Residents set to fight flood

By ANN D. KIRKWOOD
United Press International

BOISE — Disaster officials waded "belly deep" to rescue cattle stranded by floodwaters Friday while more high water was expected to inundate already drenched lowlands in the Boise River Valley during the weekend.

The Army Corps of Engineers scheduled "almost constant surveillance" of the river throughout the weekend. Disaster personnel, meanwhile, were told to stay near their telephones in the event water levels pushed over levees or broke through the earthen barriers and flooded residential areas.

"We're trying to gear ourselves for a flood fight," said Jack Blake, Ada County disaster services coordinator.

Water levels that hit 35-year records earlier in the week were expected to be boosted even further—seven to 10 inches by Tuesday—as a result of additional releases from Lucky Peak Dam upstream from Boise, Corps officials said.

Incremental releases resulting in two- to four-inch increases in water levels were scheduled for Saturday and Sunday to make room for more water flowing into the reservoir system as warm weather melted heavy snow in the mountains.

Minor flooding in rural residential areas, pastureland and parks along the river was expected to become more severe with the additional releases, officials said.

"It's no longer just a little water along the ground in many of these areas."

NATO chiefs agree to deploy missiles

By BRIGID PHILLIPS
United Press International

PARIS — The unity of the NATO foreign ministers cracked Friday over a U.S. attempt to commit members of the military alliance to limit trade with the Soviet Union, alliance sources said.

The 16 NATO ministers ended the two-day spring session of the Atlantic Council solidly behind deployment of medium-range U.S. missiles in Europe if Geneva arms talks do not produce an agreement with Moscow by December.

Secretary of State George Shultz said the Council's final communique made "a strong statement" showing "the solidity ... of the alliance, and determination" to start deploying 572 Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in December.

But a dispute arose between Shultz and French Foreign Minister Claude Cheysson over a renewed U.S. attempt to cut East-West trade and limit dependence on natural gas from Moscow's Siberian pipeline, conference sources said.

The ministers prolonged the meeting.

Bonneville officials turn cool to WPPSS bailout proposal

By G.S. KHALSA
United Press International

SEATTLE — The Washington Public Power Supply System must devise a more precise plan to avoid a three-year construction halt on its nuclear plant No. 3 before the Bonneville Power Administration will accept it, a top BPA official said Friday.

Robert E. Ratcliffe, BPA deputy administrator, expressed doubts about a WPPSS proposal to ask commercial banks for a $30 million line of credit to complete the Salsop, Wash., reactor.

"I'm not prepared to say we would accept it. We've got to have more details," Ratcliffe said during a meeting of the WPPSS executive board. "We will be prepared to make a decision when the availability of funds and the terms of that availability have been spelled out more clearly to us."

He said BPA's reaction "is not favorable" to the possibility it would have to raise its rates to cover the full loan within the next eight years should the supply system fail to regain access to the bond market.

He noted that for every $100 million borrowed from commercial banks, Northwest ratepayers would be faced with a rate hike of about 1 mill (one-tenth of a cent) per kilowatt hour.

"The concept of providing contingencies for eight years causes some concern," he said. "What it does to our rates is very serious."

He said Bonneville's main concern about the loan proposal are "the repayment term, the interest rate and those terms associated with the right to refinancing."

"The banks haven't said they would loan a nickel at any rate for any period, so until that happens it's a little premature to be determining what we're going to do," he said.

However, while there has been speculation the plan would be rejected by any sensible banker, Ratcliffe said he had heard of some interest in the bailout proposal.

"I've been told by some knowledgeable sources that there have been some contacts and there were some bankers that were at least interested enough to talk," he said. Personally, he said, he considered acceptance of the loan proposal "unlikely but possible."

The plan advanced by WPPSS treasurer James Perko calls for a $360 million line of credit that could be drawn on for construction needs until the plant is finished in December, 1986. Interest of 16 percent would be paid on money once it was withdrawn from the loan account.

At the end of three years, WPPSS hopefully would be able to pay off the loan through the sale of more bonds. Currently WPPSS is frozen out of the market because of its potential for defaulting on payments for a $2.25 billion debt owed for terminated plants 4 and 5.

If WPPSS was still unable to sell bonds at the end of three years, BPA would be required to renege the loan over the subsequent five years by raising rates to Northwest ratepayers.

Perko told the executive board he had talked to attorneys involved in complex litigation over plants 4 and 5 and found their consensus was the most likely time frame for settlement was two years.

Several members of the executive board also expressed reservations about the loan plan.

Robert Olson, a Mason County Public Utility District No. 3 commissioner, said the prospect of paying off $360 million through rate hikes over such a short period "is terrifying to the ratepayers and terrifying to the Bonneville Power Administration. It shows we do need to borrow money on a prudent basis."

Howard Richman, a Cowell County PUD commissioner, objected the loan would be a serious departure from WPPSS' basic strategy of securing long-term financing that can be paid back after the power plants are on line and producing electricity.

"Changing the concept of financing from a lifetime payout to something you pay higher rates early for is an entirely different concept and I'm very disturbed at this type of conversation," Richman said.

Executive Board Chairman Carl Halverson of Portland, Ore., replied that in all probability the loan could be "rolled over" into a long-term payback agreement if WPPSS regains access to the bond market.

Richman also pressed the WPPSS staff to come up with an opinion on whether WPPSS can legally mothball the plant, 30 percent of which is owned by four Northwest private utilities and the other 70 percent by the BPA.

Pacific Power & Light Co. and Portland General Electric Co. each own 10 percent of the plant, while Washington Water Power Co. and Puget Sound Power & Light Co. each own 5 percent.

According to the original bond resolution for plant No. 3—a decision such as mothballing must be made by 80 percent of the ownership, and the private utilities have threatened to sue if construction is halted.

Thatcher to engineer own cabinet staffing

By BARRY JAMES
UPI Senior Editor

LONDON — Armed with an unassailable majority in parliament, Margaret Thatcher served notice Friday she will purge the last of the Conservative old guard and create a cabinet entirely in her own militant image.

"I'm not a good butcher," the prime minister said, "but I've had to learn to carve the joint."

It is certain to be a very different leadership to the one Mrs. Thatcher inherited upon her election in 1979. Her first cabinet was packed with old-fashioned Conservative paternalists and consensus-seeking moderates.

Mrs. Thatcher distrusted them and called them "wets" who were unwilling to accept the radical challenge of turning the British political scene decisively away from socialism and toward the right.

But then she was uncertain and untested, a middle-class outsider in the crusty leadership of the Conservatives. She had to accept the cabinet she inherited.

Now, with the aura of the Falklands war still upon her, there is no such uncertainty. Mrs. Thatcher is likely to pour away the remaining wets who survived a 1981 purge.

Much was made during the election campaign of the extremist faction in the opposition Labor Party known as the "militant tendency." Many people undoubtedly voted for Mrs. Thatcher not because they agreed with her, but because they were afraid of letting in the Marxist-leaning militants.

According to political commentator Peregrine Worsthorne, however, "Thatcherism is the Militant Tendency of the Tory (Conservative) party, and henceforth it will rule unchallenged."

"Indicating a bloodletting in the Conservative leadership could be expected within the next few days," Mrs. Thatcher said in one speech.

"We shall have to think about reshaping the cabinet," she said. "I say reshaping because it's not as it was last time, having to work it out from the world go. It's really going to be rather like a reshuffle."

Vintage wets such as Home Secretary William Whitelaw, Foreign Secretary Francis Pym and Northern Ireland Secretary James Prior are precariously pitched on a slippery precipice.

The future belongs to Thatcherites "dries" such as Employment Secretary Norman Tebbit, Conservative Party Chairman Cecil Parkinson, Industry Secretary Patrick Jenkin and Health and Social Services Secretary Norman Fowler.

Gas price hike fuels first month of inflation

By MARY BETH FRANKLIN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Higher gasoline and heating oil costs fueled a 0.3 percent rise in wholesale prices in May, the first increase this year, the Labor Department said Friday.

At the same time, the department reported that initial claims for state unemployment benefits across the nation rose for the second week in a row, indicating businesses remain uncertain about the economy's immediate future.

But the Commerce Department had some good news: retail sales across the nation increased for the third straight month in May, largely due to continued strong performance by car dealers.

Analysts cautioned the new wholesale price figures are no cause for alarm, noting a certain amount of inflation is normal in an economic recovery.

"We are still enjoying a pretty favorable price trend," said Sandra Shaber, an analyst with Chase Economics in Bala Cynwyd, Pa. "One expects some increase as we get into recovery."

Ms. Shaber predicted there will be more and probably larger, price increases in the months ahead, but "we're not going to get back to double-digit inflation in the near future and that's favorable for the economy and for consumer purchasing power."

The White House said the new figures reflect continued progress in economic recovery. "It shows we are holding the line on inflation and we are doing extremely well on holding down prices on every level," said deputy press secretary Larry Speakes.

The Producer Price Index for May now stands at 284.3, meaning prices that cost $1,000 at the wholesale level in 1967 now cost $2,843, a nearly three-fold increase.

The department also revised its estimate for February wholesale prices, previously reported as a 0.1 percent increase, to no change. The record now shows price declines or no increases in each of the first four months of this year, making the May figure the first real hike since December 1982.

If producer prices continued to increase at the May's seasonally adjusted level for 12 months, they would register a 3.9 percent annual rate, a spokesman said.

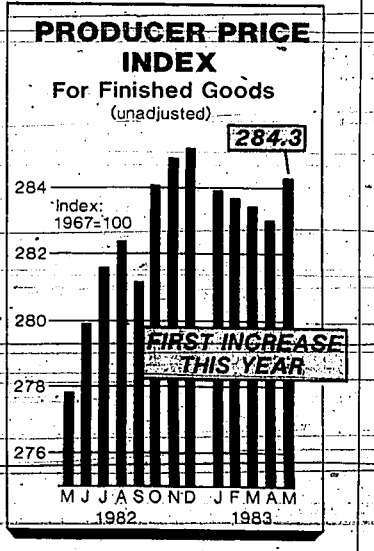

The 0.3 percent increase in May reflected sharp upturns in energy prices, particularly home heating oil and gasoline, which had dropped over the last five months, the department said.

In contrast to energy prices, consumer food prices fell 0.5 percent in May, following three consecutive monthly increases, including a substantial 1.2 percent jump in April.

Prices for consumer goods other than foods and energy inched up 0.1 percent in May, about the same as in March and April.

"Because the recovery was comparatively weak in the first quarter, wholesale prices, which lag the business cycle, have still not picked up," said Jerry Jasnowski of the National Association of Manufacturers.

But the recovery's weakness has led businessmen to hold back on hiring.

Trains crash killing at least 22

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — A speeding train heading from Aswan in southern Egypt to Cairo slammed into the rear of an idle train early Friday, killing 22 people and injuring 46, police said.

Police officials said the crash near Al-Ayat railway station, about 30 miles south of the capital, was the second major Egyptian railway disaster in less than two weeks.

On May 30, twelve people were killed and 40 others injured when six cars attached to a train heading for Cairo derailed and were hit by another train moving in the opposite direction.

The sources said the idle train in Friday's accident was out of order. The driver of the other train, which was moving at an estimated speed of 55 mph, was late in spotting it in the pre-dawn darkness and was unable to stop.

NAACP to resolve leadership

CHICAGO (UPI) — NAACP board members will try to change a leadership crisis in the nation's oldest civil rights organization Saturday in a vote whether to seek the resignation of Chairman Margaret S. Wilson.

The vote is the result of a rift between Mrs. Wilson and Executive Director Benjamin Hooks, who could receive increased power if the 64-member board votes to urge the chairman's resignation.

Mrs. Wilson suspended Hooks May 18 without seeking board approval, criticizing his management of the 400,000-member NAACP.

Angry board members voted unanimously to reinstate Hooks in a meeting May 28 at the organization's Brooklyn headquarters, and voted 49-2 for a resolution that urged Mrs. Wilson to resign.

Mrs. Wilson disputed the legality of the board's meeting and called for Saturday's meeting at the O'Hare Hilton to explain why she suspended Hooks. She said, however, she has not seen an NAACP audit report, completed between May 18-26, that she contends she needs to defend her action.

Reagan's school stand blasted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Top congressional Democrats Friday ripped President Reagan's record on education, accusing him of gross untruths and saying his recent concern about public schools should be taken with a grain of salt.

House Democratic leader Jim Wright, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, Rep. Carl Perkins of Kentucky and Sen. Claiborne Pell of Rhode Island said Reagan has cut federal funding of education — despite his comments to the contrary.

"When Mr. Reagan states that education has not been cut, he states a fundamental, basic, gross untruth," Wright told a jammed news conference.

Reagan, who took office vowing to dismantle the Education Department, in recent weeks has sought to take a lead in upgrading America's schools.

While still maintaining the primary fiscal responsibility for schools rests with states and localities — not Washington — Reagan has said he plans to develop an agenda for educational excellence.

Greeks abandon sinking ship

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — A crew of 23 men abandoned a sinking Greek cargo ship in the north Pacific Friday and were picked up by two merchant vessels tracking the disabled ship, the Coast Guard said.

The Japanese crew abandoned the 458-foot MV Athena, which was taking on water from leaks in its Alaska. In rough seas about 650 miles south of Adak, Alaska.

A first group of 13 crewmen left the sinking ship in a motorized lifeboat and were picked up after 3:30 p.m. PDT by the 650-foot merchant vessel Bristol Mar, which was headed for Long Beach, Calif.

Lawyer arrested in fake death

CANTON, Miss. (UPI) — A prominent Mississippi lawyer, regarded as a model citizen and family man, was extradited from Georgia Friday to face charges of faking his own death and burning another man's body in a $221,000 embezzlement scheme.

Madison County Sheriff W.B. Noble said Edward L. Cates, 54, a former Jackson city council member, arrived about 3 p.m. CDT Friday from Lawrenceville, Ga., accompanied by two law enforcement officers.

Cates' attorney, Sam Wilkins, said he had advised his client to remain silent, and Noble said Cates refused to give a statement or discuss the identity of the man buried in his cemetery plot.

Cates was traced to the Georgia town after he apparently became concerned about his wife's financial well-being and started sending her money orders.

Roller coaster speed scheduled

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (UPI) — As a kid, Laurie Lee was "deathly afraid" of roller coasters. But now, 25, she describes her fondness for the rides as a passion, and "just talking about it makes my heart pound."

Ms. Elliott is one of some 125 coaster enthusiasts expected to take part this weekend in Coasterfest '83, a three-day "game of riding eight of the twisty contraptions throughout western New York and Canada.

The coaster riders will travel from California and from as far away as Germany to participate.

Huge search held for suspect

CHINO, Calif. (UPI) — The governor of California offered a $10,000 reward Friday for information leading to the conviction of an escaped mental patient charged with the massacre-murders of four persons in a ranch house.

Kevin Cooper's mother, meanwhile, appealed for him to surrender. In a tape aired on television in Southern California, Esther Cooper told her son:

"Kevin, mommy still loves you. If you can hear me, please give yourself up."

About 300 law enforcement officers scoured the Mexican border Friday in their hunt for Cooper, who allegedly butchered his victims three days after he easily slipped out of Chino state prison because of a series of bureaucratic mistakes.

Flood

"Blake said, noting that he evacuated cattle from a farm by forcing the animals to swim to safety.

Blake said most older homes along the river were built before Lucky Peak Dam regulated water flow and, as a result, had foundations that elevated the living areas.

"But you have to wade belly deep to get to them now," he said.

The waterway hit 8,500 cubic feet per second Thursday and was expected to rise to 9,500 — 3,000 cfs above flood stage — by Sunday. Corps officials said damage at 10,000 cfs — the level expected if additional releases are ordered Tuesday — could exceed $2.7 million.

"If the water gets through barriers during the weekend, it will get to some homes in a hurry and we'll have the problem of trying to evacuate them," Blake said.

Blake and Corps spokesman Dave Brownell said officials did not know what paths flooding would take through many areas because water levels had not been as high since before Lucky Peak Dam was finished in 1955.

"I'm more concerned about the possibility of disturbing some of our utility systems, such as sewage," Blake said. He said sewer and storm drains first would back up "but then it would come out, and where it would come out we don't know."

"I just can't let how long lines and other things like that will last," Blake said. "I'm concerned, but I'm sure it's too late to do much."

ing two hours to reach a compromise leading to review security aspects of East-West trade "in order to avoid further use by the Soviet Union of some forms of trade to enhance its military strength."

Cheysson said NATO has no role in national trade decisions. "Economic relations between sovereign nations will not have to face constraints by this military body except where they concern military matters," he told reporters.

"There was perhaps some fear there could be an economic NATO," he said. "But that idea has passed now and this has been made crystal clear."

Shultz responded to questions on the clash by quoting the communiqué, which said trade with the Soviet bloc "must remain consistent with broad allied security concerns."

"This includes avoiding dependence on the Soviet Union or contributing to Soviet military capabilities. Development of alternative Western energy resources should be encouraged," it said.

Aircraft nearly collide above Reagan

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — A state patrol helicopter pilot who thought his air space was cleared as he monitored President Reagan's motorcade, below suddenly saw a jetliner and narrowly averted an airborne collision, an official said Friday.

The Federal Aviation Administration and tower officials huddled Friday to determine just how both aircraft were allowed to be in the same place at the same time Thursday.

When the helicopter pilot saw the plane and the jetliner pilot saw the helicopter, both swerved immediately.

A radio said a controller told the pilot of the Western jetliner, "There is a helicopter in your vicinity."

The pilot of the jetliner, a Western Airlines Boeing 727 with 144 people aboard, saw the helicopter at the same time as he approached for a landing. Both swerved, avoiding a possible collision by about 100 yards.

The controller handling the plane's landing, who has six years experience, was removed from control duty pending the investigation.

Reagan's motorcade went under the normal approach path for planes landing from the southwest.

A man monitoring the control tower

Budget battle goes on

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senate budget negotiators Friday declined an offer by House Democrats to split the differences between their conflicting 1984 budget plans, saying the full Senate would never approve the proposal.

between the two spending plans into a special 'contingency' budget, the fate of which will be decided at the end of the conference.

Instead, the joint conference committee decided to put more than half of the $17 billion difference in non-defense domestic spending programs

The joint conference committee members struggled for a third day to blend the Senate-passed $850.1 billion budget for fiscal 1984, which begins Oct. 1, and the House-passed $961 billion plan into a single compromise Congress will pass.

Senators work quietly to resolve pay issues

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Senators worked behind the scenes Friday to soften the 30 percent limit on speech honoraria and the pay-raise moratorium they imposed on themselves a day earlier.

The spending measure was in its second full day of debate Friday but all roll call votes were put off until Tuesday. Asked if his colleagues were talking about a pay raise, Baker said: "Incidentally."

A key Senate source said action of some sort was certain. "The matter of pay and honoraria will be addressed," the source said. "There are more than a handful of senators who are disappointed, who would financially be put in straits, by the action taken by the Senate yesterday."

The Senate quit for the day without taking action on pay and honoraria. That means resolution of the matter has been put off until early next week, when the Senate takes up the supplemental appropriations bill again.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker took steps to keep open the possibility of modifying the pay and honoraria amendments voted on Thursday during debate on the $15.6 billion supplemental appropriations bill.

Responding to sensational publicity about huge speech honoraria some senators have collected, the Senate Thursday voted 88-3 to block a raise in members' $60,662 salaries and $1-41 to limit outside earned income to 30 percent — about $18,200. For senators, most outside earned income is in the form of speech honoraria.

68 squeezed in one garage

SANTA ANA, Calif. (UPI) — Two teenagers were arrested on suspicion of harboring illegal aliens after immigration authorities raided a home and found 68 people crammed into a windowless, unventilated garage.

"The 68 people in there could have died," said Felix Rocha Jr., an Immigration and Naturalization Service investigator.

"Everybody was wringing wet," police Sgt. Jim McDonald said after officers, summoned to the home Thursday afternoon by a suspicious neighbor, went to the garage and opened the unlocked back door.

Agency's giveaway targets 30 tons of food

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — More than 30 tons of rice and instant non-fat dry milk will be distributed next week to low-income families in the Magic Valley.

The South Central Community Action Agency will distribute the surplus commodities, which come from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Carol Clift, the agency's services coordinator, says there are 40,000 pounds of rice and 26,400 pounds of instant milk available for those who meet the income guidelines.

Those requirements are: for a one-person household, the annual income must not exceed $3,675; for a family of two, $8,175; for three, $10,275; for four, $12,375; for five, $14,475; for six, $16,575; for seven, $18,675; and for eight, $20,775. For families with more than eight members, add $2,100 for each additional member.

Those applying for the food must supply a Social Security number and sign an income-verification form. Clift says. Eligible persons will receive parcels of rice and milk on the spot.

Applications will be taken at:

TWIN FALLS COUNTY

• Tuesday and Wednesday at the National Guard Armory, off Frontier Road in Twin Falls, from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.

• Wednesday at the West End Senior Citizens Center, at 1010 Main St. in Buhl, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

JEROME COUNTY

• Wednesday and Thursday at the Jerome Community Action office, at 226 N. Lincoln in Jerome, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.
• Thursday at Syringa Estates, off Fifth Street in Hazelton, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

GOODING COUNTY

• Wednesday at the Senior Citizens Organization office, at 308 Senior Ave. in Gooding, from 10 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

• Monday at the Golden Years Senior Center, off South Main Street in Richfield, from 1 to 3 p.m.

BLAINE COUNTY

• Wednesday at the Blaine County Senior Center, at 319 Second Ave. N. in Halley, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

• Thursday at the Burley fire station, off Miller Street in Burley, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Applicants should enter through the rear entrance.

MINIDOKA COUNTY

• Thursday at the Civic Auditorium, behind Rupert City Hall, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

CAMAS COUNTY

• Residents may contact Edna Gill, at the Camas County Senior Citizens Center in Fairfield, at 764-2226.

The SCCAA receives no federal money directly to distribute the commodities. During its past distributions of surplus federal cheese, the SCCAA depended on volunteers and donations.

Clift says its May distribution of 33,600 pounds of cheese was a success due to the assistance of more than 124 volunteers at the various sites in the Magic Valley.

For the June distribution and one in the fall, the SCCAA will cover its expenses with funds from a supplement to a larger federal block grant that finances its other programs. The block grant is administered through the state.

In September, 36,000 pounds of honey, 40,000 pounds of flour and another 26,400 pounds of milk will be given away to low-income families.

Drivers may get license plates in mail

By BONNIE BAIRD-JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Vehicle owners in Blaine County may be getting their new license tags from the mailman, instead of the county assessor, in the future.

Assessor Marjorie DuBois recommended to the county commission this week that the county begin a mail program for license-plate renewals. She said it would avoid the usual rush at the end of the month and would be a convenience to residents.

"And it might save the county some money," she said.

DuBois was asked to prepare a more detailed plan and bring it back to the commissioners for approval.

She submitted samples of renewal forms used by other counties that have a mail program.

"The people in the license department want to try it," she said. "I think we would gain a lot of good will from the people when we explain that any additional revenue taken in would go to help improve county highways and roads."

DuBois said if the mail program works successfully, her office would be able to cut the time it spends going to Hazelton to issue licenses several days each month.

The system would require a minimum fee of 50 cents to cover postage and handling, she said.

"The notice would be mailed to the vehicle owner, who would fill it out and mail in the payment, plus the fee. The office then would prepare the registration slip and mail the license plate stickers back to the applicant."

Notices would be sent out in plenty of time to be returned before the deadline, she said.

National leader tells Elks to focus on service

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was formed 116 years ago, it was more social than philanthropic, and its founding members almost chose the name "Buffaloes."

That tidbit was told Friday by the national leader of the 1-million-plus members in the organization.

The Elks' grand exalted ruler, Marvin Lewis, 59, of Brawley, Calif., was in Twin Falls this week for the Elks' state convention.

"Lewis says the organization was started as a social club in New York by a group of entertainers. But after the death of a member, the men held a benefit, changed direction and became a service organization."

When it came time to name the group, the members narrowly chose the name "Elks" over "buffaloes," says Frank Hise, of Corvallis, Ore., a former grand exalted ruler. Two votes more and it would have meant a different animal on the group's emblem.

Hise says the organization differs from other fraternal orders because it offers a lot of family-oriented activities — from picnics to hayrides to Mother's Day dinners.

Although still social in nature, Lewis says the Elks do serve their communities. Dues and money generated through fundraising projects by chapters around the state help support the Elks Rehabilitation Hospital in Boise.

Around the country, there are similar facilities, many focused on the treatment of children. More than $1 million in scholarships is awarded each year by the Elks.

At the convention in Twin Falls, the winners of the state scholarships will be named.

The group's new challenge is fighting drug abuse among the young by initiating educational and prevention programs.

"To straighten out a person's life (from drugs) is almost as dramatic as taking a child who has never walked and helping him to walk," Lewis says.

A committee of Twin Falls lodge members has been formed to work on the project. There are several Elks on the committee who are policemen.

The grand exalted ruler also says the Elks want younger people in the organization. Currently, the average age is 54.

Since its founding, the organization has grown each year except during the Great Depression, Lewis says. The economy again is taking a toll because the organization last year reported a slight decrease in membership. Hise expects another decline this year.

Yet, the dues are worth it. For a young family, membership includes a lot of low-cost entertainment — such as dances and dinners — for the money.

Another aspect of the Elks is their patriotism. The Zoning panel levies fines for violations

By MARTY TRIJLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two men seeking after-the-fact approval for land divisions they had already made got what they wanted Thursday night.

But it cost them.

The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission has imposed fines as a condition of its approval.

Marvin Sears of Twin Falls received the stiffest fine — $300. Zoning board members said they considered his action to be a deliberate violation of zoning law.

Sears divided one acre from his six-acre parcel, located 1.5 miles southeast of the Amalgamated Sugar Co. plant. He placed a mobile home on the smaller parcel without obtaining the required land-division and building permits.

Saying he considered Sears' act to be a "knowledgeable violation," zoning board member Lytle Frazier of Twin Falls proposed the fine.

Frazier said he wanted the fine to serve as a message that such violations will not be tolerated.

Under the terms of the motion, Sears could face additional fines of $300 per day if he fails to either finish the approval process or remove the trailer from the land.

Zoning board members unanimously approved the motion. Sears did not offer public comment.

Notices would be sent out in plenty of time to be returned before the deadline, she said.

Initially, zoning board members considered fining Eldredge $150 for the move. But they determined that Eldredge's failure to obtain a land-division permit before selling 68.5 acres last year was more an oversight than a willful violation.

Eldredge retained three acres of the parcel for a home site, and he did obtain a building permit.

Although he filed an application for the land division, he never paid a filing fee, and the application was not acted upon, Eldredge explained.

"I had been aware of the situation," Paulson said. "I wish Ed were here to clarify this."

And real-estate broker Jim Paulson of Buhl indicated that Ed Woods, who acted as the county's zoning administrator until his death last year, may have been aware of the situation.

"Ed was aware of this. It's not like we're trying to pull a fast one," Paulson said. "I wish Ed were here to clarify this."

But the request brought an official objection from the J.H. Simplot Co., which operates a facility near the Eldredge property.

A Simplot official said residential development would not be compatible with the facility.

"It's obvious that we do not want Mr. Eldredge to tear his house down, but we'd like to go on record as opposing," said Sheldon Sorenson, who represented the company.

In response to that concern, the zoning board has required Eldredge to waive any claim against the company for odor problems or the spillage of farm chemicals.

In Twin Falls Street work planned

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In summertime the living may be easy, but the driving can be a pain.

In addition to being the season of the lawn chair, summer is the season of the street improvement project.

Residents on both the east and west ends of Twin Falls may already have noticed the evidence of summer's other self.

Where Madrona Street once was along the east side of Jaycee Park, there now lies a pitted, slaked and machine-inhabited stretch of dirt.

And where a lawn once formed the setting for the county offices near Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, several less-than-majestic piles of dirt now rise.

The two locations provide evidence of the first street projects from the crop of 1983.

According to city engineer Gary Young, the section of Madrona Street bordering the park will be reconstructed completely. New curbs and gutters will be installed, as well as sidewalk along the park side of the street.

In addition, two new drains with catch basins and a pipe to channel run-off into the Ferrine Coulee will replace an old drain structure at the intersection with Elizabeth Boulevard.

These improvements should help keep run-off water on the street, out of the park and off neighboring property, he says.

As part of the project, the adjoining Jaycee Park parking lots will be regraded and paved.

State report: Salmon tract farmers should tap new waters

By HAL BERNSTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Even in the best of years, there is never enough water running off the South Hills to meet the irrigation needs of the Salmon and Cottonwood tracts south of Twin Falls.

To make matters worse, ground water supplies on these tracts — joyfully known as the Salmon Falls Division — are deep and meager.

As part of the plan draw howls of protest from property owners situated above the aquifer, who feared that new wells would cause their waterbates to decline and pumping costs to rise.

As a result of these protests, the Bureau of Reclamation withdrew its water-rights filings and backed away from lobbying Congress to provide funds to develop the Salmon Division project.

Meanwhile, the Legislature passed a bill requiring its approval of any water permit involving the transfer of ground water from one basin to irrigate 5,000 or more acres of land in another area.

In late 1980, the advisory group was asked to take a fresh look at the Salmon Division project and come up with ways to resolve the water shortage. Its final report outlines a scaled-back version of the Bureau of Reclamation's original plan. Included in the group's final report is a recommended 66 percent reduction in the number of ground-water wells needed for the project.

The advisory group, chaired by state Water Resource Board member Reed Hansen, found that in wet years, Salmon Division farmers could obtain a major portion of the water they need by pumping excess flows from the Snake River.

A second important water source, the study found, could be obtained by renting surplus water owned by certain canal companies and individuals.

To back up this finding, the study cited a 41-year report that indicates the Salmon Division farmers could meet an average of 30 percent of their water needs from this "rental pool."

"Many of the canal companies have a lot of storage water and only use it during the dry years," Hansen says.

"It's a really significant source of storage water that could be developed," Hansen says.

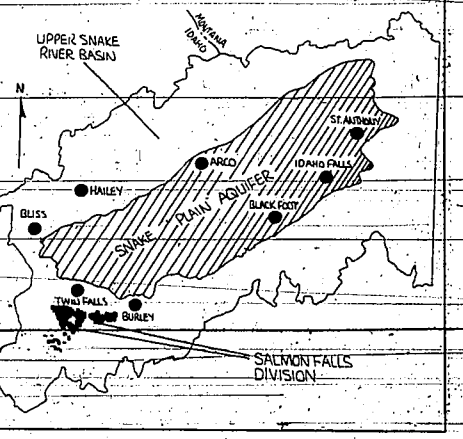

"During a dry year, he says, some of the stored water would probably have to be replaced by water pumped from the Snake River Aquifer. But this pumping, he says, would not have dire effects on the aquifer's water level."

"According to the study, the 11 wells needed by the project would pump less than 0.5 percent of the amount of water that currently is pumped from the aquifer."

"In a normal year, or excess flow year, we would never touch the wells," says Jack Claborn, a Kimberly farmer who farms 640 acres of Salmon Division lands. "The wells would be just a back-up system."

In the study, the advisory group concluded that "we can find no valid reason why the Snake Plain Aquifer ground-water resource should not be used by the Salmon Falls Division."

Streets

On the other side of town, the lawn is being torn out in front of the county offices so Martin Street may intersect directly with Morrison Street, at Addison Street.

Two right-angle corners will be added on Martin — one bending the street west, and one bending it back south to the new intersection. Part of the original Martin Street will be retained to provide a direct right turn for westbound motorists turning off Addison.

The present offset intersection is "not a safe or expeditious way to handle the traffic," Young says.

The change will allow one set of traffic signals to govern the single intersection of all three streets. The signals will be added later as a traffic safety project, using mostly state funding, he says.

Both projects were started two weeks ago. It will be another two weeks before the final asphalt is laid.

Young says.
The other projects slated for this summer include the reconstruction of Wendell Street from Fliper Avenue to Caswell Avenue; an asphalt overlay on Blue Lakes Boulevard South; an asphalt overlay of Minidoka Avenue; the installation of curbs and gutters around South Park, along Highland Avenue and Lois Street; the widening of the intersection at Addison Avenue and Eastland Drive; and the installation of traffic signals at Washington Street and Fliper Avenue.

The day will be highlighted by a scavenger hunt in which youths will scour the community attempting to fill a list of items. Prizes will be awarded to the children who collect the most items.

Area fire departments will hold various fire-fighting competitions and direct the activities of a dunk tank. Games, including sack races, will complete the day's events.

Water

Extensive ground-water studies have been conducted for the Salmon Falls Division which illustrate that this amount of pumping will not adversely affect the aquifer."

According to Hansen, the effects of the dry-year pumping alone would be felt in a quarter-mile area around each well.

Hansen says any new actions to develop the Salmon Falls Division may have to await the resolution of the Swan Falls water-rights controversy.

This controversy was triggered by a November 1982 state Supreme Court decision which granted the Idaho Power Co. the right to take 8,200 cubic feet per second of Snake River water to power its Swan Falls hydroelectric plant. This ruling cast a cloud over Bureau of Reclamation filings to divert Snake River waters upstream from Swan Falls to the Salmon Division.

Advisory group members point out that until the Swan Falls water rights are either subordinated by the state, sold by Idaho Power or abrogated by court rulings, the Salmon-Falls Division project could remain stymied.

The project must also overcome a second major hurdle — securing federal funding from a penny-pingriding Congress that is increasingly reluctant to support major new irrigation projects.

"Things may be tough in Congress, given the amounts of money that we are talking about," Hansen says. Any federal funding he predicts probably would include a cost-sharing clause requiring irrigators to help pay for the project.

lodges, however, do not become involved directly in politics, Hise says.

During the upheaval over the Vietnam War in the 1960s and 1970s, the organization successfully lobbied Congress to initiate a national patriotism week.

"You won't find demonstrators or communists in the Elks," Lewis says. To find an Elks lodge, all you have to do is find an American flag, he says.

The state convention began Wednesday and will continue through Sunday. More than 300 delegates and their wives are attending the meeting. There are 22,500 Elks in Idaho.

Some consider 'health' ministers What's the pulse of the church?

health" movement that seeks to provide an interdisciplinary physical, psychological and spiritual approach to health and health care.

The nurse would serve as health educator for the congregation, coordinate volunteers and be a personal health counselor, treating minor health problems and channeling people to the doctor when they need it and to community organizations like "grief groups" and Alcoholics Anonymous.

The idea of "nurses in churches" was raised by the Rev. Granger Westberg of Downers Grove, Ill., the founder of the Alliance Health Centers and a pioneer of the holistic health movement.

Westberg told the conference that more than a dozen centers have been established in the United States and that while they are difficult to start, they largely have been successful.

He said use of church-based nurses on the other hand, would be an easier and less-expensive project for a congregation to undertake. He said he hopes to set up pilot projects this year in Chicago, Tucson and Denver.

Westberg says the nurse would have a status on the staff similar to that of an associate pastor and would be

Participants at the conference also adopted a "findings" statement that affirmed "roles appropriate to the church" in the health-care field. It said the church:

• Is a place for exchange on the complex ethical issues facing the health field and for issue identification and research.

• Should educate its membership to the issues and opportunities for both individual and corporate actions to foster health.

• Should take the lead in motivating individuals to take responsibility for their health.

• Must develop its "caring function of support" for persons in society who are experiencing disease or impairment.

REV. KEN RHOADES
Saw great growth

Christ as their savior.

There have been low points, like watching people drift away from the church. But, he says, it has been rewarding to see those who have drifted return to their faith.

"There's no reason why the church shouldn't continue to grow and have an influence on the community," he says. "Look back on God's blessing and gain sight of what God can do for you in the future."

With the growth of Bible Baptist over the years, he says God already has shown what he can do.

Baptist minister leaving after hearing God's call

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Just as God (Heid) Ken Rhoades into becoming a Baptist minister, God has led him to another church after 14 years of service at the Bible Baptist Church in Twin Falls.

Rhoades, 39, will be leaving next week to become the pastor of a church in Sulphur Springs, Texas.

He will be honored Sunday at a reception following the 7:30 p.m. service at Bible Baptist Church, at 315 South Ave. W. The public is invited to attend.

Rhoades says it is going to be hard to leave.

His two children, Stephen, 15, and Cheryl, 11, grew up in Twin Falls. There have been many happy times here. He watched the church grow and prosper, he says.

Yes, he feels it's time to move on.

The Texas congregation offered him the position upon the recommendation of another minister. He believes the offering was another sign of "God's leading him," and he accepted.

A man of gentle words, Rhoades says his father worked for an oil company in Texas. During junior high school, he felt a calling for the ministry, but considered becoming an accountant. He finally "surrendered" to the feeling and entered a Baptist college after graduating from high school.

Later, he served four years as an associate pastor in a Missouri church. At Bible Baptist Church, he became a head pastor for the first time.

When he took up the ministry in Twin Falls, he found a congregation of 19 members. He received free housing and $50 a week for his job as pastor. He drove a school bus part-time. His wife, Patsy, taught school.

Today, Bible Baptist has more than 300 members and owns buildings and property worth $50,000. Rhoades no longer has to work outside the church and even has the help of an associate pastor.

"It is amazing that God has been able to give it (the growth) to us in that amount of time. You can't have an influence on the church unless you have to have people you can depend upon. And always be outreaching for new people."

One of his proudest achievements during his 14 years has been the church's growth. Another has been witnessing people "accept Jesus

What's what

This one ought to pucker your lips. Said Anton van Leeuwenhoek: "There are more animals living in the scum on the teeth in a man's mouth than there are men in a whole kingdom."

Q. Is there a difference in the way right and left-handed people applaud or clasp their hands or fold their arms?
 A. Evidently not. Each person habitually does each act the same way, but handedness doesn't affect that way, scientists say.

Appearances lie. Take the gorilla. Among the least criminal of beasts, that one. A vegetarian that doesn't even kill for food. No murder, no rape, no robbery. But what other animal can incite greater fear?

ITALY'S BASEBALL
 Q. Since when do they play baseball in Italy?
 A. Since 1944 after the Anzio landing of World War II. Credit one Horace J. McGrath with that. He was the superintendent of the Sicily-Rome American Cemetery. He buried the Anzios' remains near a town called Nettuno. And, otherwise, he taught the locals how to play baseball. He did teach the umpires, though. Italian umpires trained in Cuba.

The Pacific Ocean atoll called Christmas Island once nested 17 million birds. Now there are 17. Where'd they go? Nobody knows.

Q. In legal lingo, who is always the opposite of "John Doe"?
 A. Richard Roe.

You say you're losing some teeth? Never mind a beaver only has 20 teeth, and it can chew down trees.

BABY CARRIAGE
 Q. Who was the U.S. president who bought the first baby carriage for the little girl who eventually grew up to become his wife?
 A. Grover Cleveland was that man. When his best friend, Oscar Polson, fathered little Frances Cleveland-bought the carriage. When Cleveland was 49 and Frances was 21, they got married.

The remains of Edgar Allan Poe, his Virginia and his aunt Maria Clemm are in the same grave.

Judge: Redistricting will require time

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — The judge who ruled Idaho's 1982 reapportionment law unconstitutional and a Republican lawmaker agreed Friday the legal fight over boundaries for the state's legislative districts won't be settled for years.

First District Judge Dar Cogswell said he would schedule a series of court hearings beginning next month aimed at resolving constitutional questions surrounding the law that was struck down Tuesday by the state Supreme Court.

Cogswell and Senate President Pro

Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said the need for repeated hearings and the likelihood of lengthy appeals mean the case probably will remain unresolved in the near future.

The high court said the reapportionment law violated the state Constitution because it split counties into different electoral districts.

But justices also said the state could present additional evidence supporting its argument that no reapportionment law could comply with both the state and federal constitutions.

None of the rulings affect current legislative operations, and present district boundaries will remain intact until the dispute is settled. Cogswell rejected calls to halt the 1982 general election.

The judge said the Supreme Court had directed him to determine whether a constitutional reapportionment law could be drafted, but he said lawmakers should have the final say on the specifics of such legislation.

"The court should only step in as a matter of last resort," the judge said in a telephone interview from Sandpoint. "Unfortunately, we may have come to the last resort."

Cogswell declared the law unconstitutional last year after several residents and local governments in northern Idaho claimed the reapportionment measure unlawfully placed portions of Kootenai County and the Coeur d'Alene Indian Reservation into several legislative districts.

"The way it stands right now, it's my understanding from the opinion that they say that (the reapportionment measure) is unconstitutional," Cogswell said. "I felt it was unconstitutional, and I believe the Supreme Court has."

But Risch, himself a lawyer, said the high court would not have allowed the state to make new arguments in support of the statute if it wanted the measure thrown out.

The judge said, however, the court would not have affirmed his ruling if justices did not agree the law violated the state Constitution.

Utah cleaning up; floods apparently receding

By PAUL ROLLY

SALT LAKE CITY — A second sinkhole Friday threatened plans to drain the river roaring down a major downtown artery and Gov. Scott Matheson declared five more counties disaster areas due to flooding from recent mountain runoff.

Reggie Box Elder, Summit, Garfield and Piute counties were declared state disaster areas. Matheson asked his administration to survey damage and decide if he should ask President Reagan to add the counties to a federal declaration.

The growing sinkhole — the second in a week — may have squelched plans to dismantle the 1/2-mile-long sandbagged river. The river divided downtown and snarled traffic as workers toiled to unplug the storm drain that is believed to have caused the sinkhole.

Paul Barber, assistant to Mayor Ted Wilson, described the 12-foot-deep sinkhole as "wide enough to drive a car into." Officials had hoped to reopen State Street to traffic Monday but Barber said the new sinkhole could delay the opening date.

Flood-control officials throughout the rest of the state had better news, however. Relatively cool temperatures during the week slowed the canyon runoff, and many of the valley streams began to recede.

"Things are real quiet right now," said Salt Lake County Public Works Director Don Spencer. "We have all the streams under control and right now we're dredging several creeks filled with debris so we can be ready if the runoff picks up again next week."

The National Weather Service forecasts highs in the 90s by mid week and Spencer said officials expect the peak runoff from several canyons by Friday.

He said the threat of flooding from last week's runoff, however, prompted thousands of public works employees and volunteers to place more than a million sandbags along the creek banks and construct several man-made canals.

"Hopefully, we'll be prepared for the peak flows," he said.

A Bountiful woman recovering from injuries she suffered in an accident involving a backhoe remained in serious condition at LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City. A National Guard front-end loader helping the city's flood cleanup effort Thursday hit a parked car and pushed it into Joyce Rand, 42.

McClure: Schools can tip election

BOISE (UPI) — Increasing public concern over educational quality will thrust that issue onto center stage in next year's elections, Sen. James McClure said Friday.

The Idaho Republican predicted educational quality and funding will be discussed more in his own race for re-election next year than in past contests, although he doubted it would be a decisive factor.

"Education will be more at the center of public discussion during the election year than it has been in the past," McClure said at an Idaho Association of School Administrators meeting. "I see in Idaho a great deal of public concern about how well we're getting the job done."

McClure said the nation's educational system is "losing ground" in its ability to train workers for a changing job market, but he said additional federal funding may not provide the solution.

He told administrators local districts should bear the prime responsibility for schools, not the federal government.

"Education is a cornerstone in our society, but that is a cornerstone laid primarily by local government," McClure said.

He assured officials overall federal funding will be higher this upcoming school year than last, despite reductions in an impact aid program that replaces taxes from those living on Indian reservations and other federal facilities.

McClure said one problem with public schools is a tendency to cater to students' minimal needs to the detriment of above-average pupils.

"We have homogenized education and reduced it to the lowest common denominator," he said. "We are still turning out some good students, but the average has declined."

BOISE (UPI) — The number of family farms in Idaho declined by 100 from 1981 to 1982. Al Fothergill of the Idaho Citizens Coalition says.

It was incorrectly reported Friday that 1,000 farms fell from the roster. Fothergill said Friday the total dipped from 24,000 in 1981 to 23,900 last year. In 1980, there were 43,663 family farms in the Gen State, he said.

In an article written for the Idaho Citizen publication, Fothergill, economist and director of the Idaho Citizens Coalition — said only a concerted effort to stabilize markets, gain reasonable credit rates and hike commodity prices will help stop the trend.

Rising Chinese leader dies

PEKING (UPI) — Liao Chengzhi, Peking's chief negotiator in talks with Britain over the future of Hong Kong, died of a heart attack Friday, one week before he was expected to have been elected vice president of China. He was 75.

Liao died of a "sudden heartstroke in Peking," an official announcement said. "Liao Chengzhi's death is a great loss to our party and people."

Liao's death was announced in the Great Hall of the People as delegates were attending the sixth National People's Congress, the Chinese parliament of which Liao was vice president.

The congress had been expected to name Liao state vice president following elections next weekend.

"He passed away at a time when the first session of the Sixth National People's Congress is in progress. This has caused great sorrow among the deputies," the official Xinhua news agency said.

Head of Peking's Overseas Chinese Commission and a Politburo member, Liao was China's senior negotiator in the talks in Peking on Hong Kong, the British crown colony China wants to reclaim when Britain's 99-year lease expires in 1997.

A veteran of the late Chairman Mao Tse-tung's Great March who was purged during the 1966-76 Cultural Revolution, Liao also was active in China's effort to reunify Taiwan with the mainland.

Liao's father, who was assassinated in 1925, was the closest confidante of Sun Yat-sen, the father of modern China. Liao himself was an associate of the late Premier Chou En-lai.

Liao was born in Japan in 1908 and received his first education at a Catholic school there. His ties to Japan also served his later rise to prominence as a senior official involved in the promotion of Sino-Japanese relations.

Reacting swiftly to news of Liao's death, Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe praised him for his "bridge building" role between China and Japan and said, "We have lost a valued friend," he said.

Two soldiers were hurt in a wreck that dumped this Hawk missile into the road

Army rockets take unusual rides

By United Press International

Friday was a bad for the U.S. Army, at least as far as its missiles were concerned.

Near Wuerzburg, West Germany, a car collided with a U.S. Army missile transporter Friday, sending three armed Hawk rockets crashing onto a highway. Friday, seriously injuring two soldiers, an Army spokesman said.

The transporter was hit by a car towing a trailer as it tried to overtake a 15-vehicle U.S. military convoy on the Wuerzburg to Fulda highway, about 15 miles outside Wuerzburg, he said.

The truck overturned and the transporter driver and his companion were injured. The car driver was treated for shock.

The spokesman said the three Hawk anti-aircraft missiles — each 16-feet long, 1 foot in diameter and weighing nearly 1,400 lbs — spilled onto the road from a pallet on the truck as it rolled over.

The rockets were armed with high explosive warheads and police sealed the highway.

Meanwhile, a tractor-trailer hauling an Army anti-tank missile from Florida to Alabama was stopped Friday and the driver charged with drunken driving and driving the wrong direction down a four-lane highway near Gurley, Ala.

Vincent Vincel, a spokesman for Rockwell International, manufacturer of the rocket, said there was "absolutely no possibility" for an explosion even if the truck had crashed.

"We run missiles back and forth all the time," he said. "It's not unusual, but having a guy stopped like that is."

Job refused by winner

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — The political wing of the Irish Republican Army won election to Parliament Friday, but winner Gerry Adams said he would refuse his seat even though an order barring him from England was lifted.

As vote counting got under way in the British-ruled province, a bomb killed a British soldier on foot patrol in West Belfast. The outlawed IRA's "Belfast brigade" claimed responsibility.

"We support the IRA," said Adams, vice president of the group's legal political wing, Sinn Fein. "They got their mandate from the British presence in Ireland. Sinn Fein got their historic mandate today. We will never betray that."

Violence in Lebanon results in four deaths

By United Press International

In new jolts of Lebanese violence, a squad of gunmen killed three Israeli soldiers Friday and a supporter of the revolt in the Palestine Liberation Organization died in a bomb blast that demolished his home.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for either incident. They came as Libya's leader, Col. Moammar Khadafi, held separate meetings with the leaders of Saudi Arabia and Jordan.

Khadafi has sharply criticized both King Fahd of Saudi Arabia and Jordan's King Hussein.

The Saudi news agency said Lebanon and the crisis within the Palestinian movement were the topics of Khadafi's talks in Jeddah, Saudi Arabia. Jordanian sources said the same was true of the talks in Amman.

Khadafi flew to Saudi Arabia from Yemen, where President Abdullah Nasser said Thursday he settled a dispute between the Libyan leader and PLO chief Yasser Arafat, the Yemeni press agency SABA said.

Khadafi has backed radicals opposed to Arafat's leadership of the PLO.

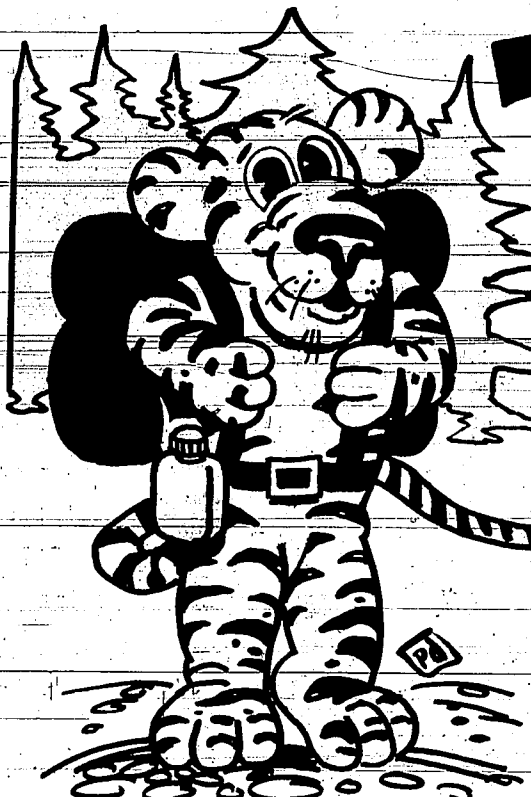

He has also worked with Syria to thwart the Lebanese-Israeli accord providing for a pullout of Israel's 30,000 troops from Lebanon if Syria's 40,000-man force and the PLO's estimated 10,000 men are also withdrawn.

Three Israeli Defense Forces soldiers were killed this morning northeast of Tyre, when an IDF patrol was ambushed, an Israeli spokesman said in Beirut. Lebanese police said four other soldiers were wounded.

He said the ambush occurred "when a group of terrorists ambushed the patrol with small guns and rocket-propelled grenades. The Israelis returned fire, the Israeli spokesman added.

Lebanese police named the site of the attack as Abassieh, about 12 miles north of the Israeli border.

Israeli forces "immediately closed all roads leading to the region and carried out massive search operations in the neighboring towns," the police report said. "As a result more than 100 persons were arrested."

Salvadoran soldiers launch the largest offensive to date

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Salvadoran artillery units, apparently directly overseen by U.S. military advisers, pounded rebel positions Friday in what could become the biggest government offensive of the civil war.

The development was the latest indication of growing American influence over Salvadoran combat operations in the 3 1/2 year conflict.

Eighty troop transport trucks capable of hauling some 5,000 men rolled out Thursday near Chinchontec Volcano, 28 miles east of San Salvador in San Vicente province, civilian residents said.

The troops included members of three U.S.-trained battalions spearheading the government's war against leftist guerrillas, the residents said.

Artillery units fired at rebel positions in eastern San Vicente province in support of at least 5,000 Salvadoran soldiers in the drive, patterned after an American-pacification program used in the Vietnam war.

Artillery pieces were set up on a soccer field in the city of San Vicente, 3 miles northeast of the volcano, and at other locations outside the city, the residents said.

The 105mm artillery pieces, which have a range of several miles, have been firing around-the-clock on suspected rebel positions since the operation got under way on Thursday, the residents said.

Some 2,000 infantrymen began advancing on foot up three slopes of the 6,550-foot volcano, the residents said.

Envoy arrives in Nicaragua

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Richard Stone, special U.S. envoy to Central America, arrived Friday for meetings with Sandinista leaders, including the foreign minister who was the alleged target of an American assassination plot.

Stone flew to Nicaragua from Honduras Friday with top Nicaraguan officials, among them Foreign Minister Miguel D'Escoto, four days after three U.S. diplomats were expelled for allegedly plotting to poison him.

The Reagan administration denied the charges and retaliated by closing six Nicaraguan consulates and expelling 21 diplomats. One of the 21, the former Nicaraguan consul in New Orleans, asked Washington for political asylum.

After meeting Thursday with Honduran officials in Tegucigalpa, Stone praised the country for its growing democracy and criticized the Marxist-led regime where he said power "is in a few hands."

In Mexico City, Salvadoran leftists proposed Thursday that they hold a direct dialogue with Stone as a representative of one of the parties involved in the Salvadoran war. There was no immediate response.

Stone's visit to Nicaragua stemmed from an invitation made before the expulsions of the diplomats. His visit is part of a 10-nation trip that began June 2, his first tour since being named special envoy on April 28.

Stone was meeting with D'Escoto, a group of private businessmen and Daniel Ortega, head of the ruling junta.

VanOstran stages rally at District rodeo

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News writer

FILER — Tim VanOstran had Friday night off at the Sixth District High School Rodeo, but the Twin Falls cowboy still managed to stage a furious charge in his quest for the all-around title.

VanOstran's times from Thursday night's performance held up at the performance and the senior added 29 points to his all-around efforts.

Terry Laumb, who appeared to have the championship all wrapped up, faltered for the second night in a row, thus picking up only 17.5 overall points.

Laumb, the district's defending all-around champion, now holds only a 201.5-196.5 lead.

The crowd will be decided at today's 8 p.m. show. The top four qualifiers in each event will advance to the state finals in Filer June 24-25.

In the girls' division, Twin Falls cowgirl Kayla Atkinson won on her slim lead-over-Minico's Tana Greenwell.

Atkinson, who scored points in goat tying, breakaway roping and team roping, leads the all-around 148.5-146.

Greenwell scored first go-round points in goat tying, pole bending and breakaway roping to give her 21.5 first go-round points.

In action Friday night, Laumb recorded the night's top bareback score — 52. That was a second go-round score and if it holds tonight, he could pick up 10 needed points.

With all the all-around action going on, David Cooper still managed to highlight the evening, scoring a hard-to-beat 73 in bull riding. Scott Black of Burley had a 67 and event leader Scott Sayers of Twin Falls had a 66.

Kenny Tuma of Twin Falls beat out Laumb with a 12.1 in steer wrestling then did the same at Koenig's lone cowboy. Will Bedke, in calf roping with a 15.8.

The girls' division pleased the crowd with its second straight night of sizzling times.

Filer's Karlene Brown had a 18.407 barrel racing run, the fastest of the rodeo.

Buhl cowgirl Toni Rodig belted her Thursday night pole bending run with a 21.671. Combined with her 22.227 first night effort, Rodig could easily pick up 30 overall points in the event, enough to give her the championship.

Connie Wilson of Filer broke the 10 second barrier in goat tying for the first time in two nights with a 9.5.

Sayers held together the top single event performance by a girl in breakaway roping. The Castleton junior had a 3.7, a time that would win her a lot of money on the professional circuit.

Richard Hunsaker of Declo and Tuma had the fastest team roping time at 13.5.

Bareback — 1. Terry Laumb, Declo, 52; 2. George Zimmerman, Buhl, 43; 3. Tab Butlers, Declo, 42.

Bull riding — 1. David Cooper, Buhl, 73; 2. Scott Beck, Burley, 67; 3. Scott Sayers, Twin Falls, 67; 4. Dave Tucker, Twin Falls, 66.

Steer wrestling — 1. Kenny Tuma, Twin Falls, 12.1; 2. Laumb, 16.1; 3. Alan Stutzman, Twin Falls, 23.0.

Bull roping — 1. Tuma, 15.8; 2. Will Bedke, Oakley, 18.8; 3. Benny Bailey, Declo, 20.7; 4. Tim Zaltman, Twin Falls, 30.7.

Barrel racing — 1. Karlene Brown, Filer, 18.407; 2. Tana Greenwell, Minico, 18.439; 3. Stacey Hill, Castleton, 18.611; 4. Bonnie Simpson, Minico, 18.77.

Pole bending — 1. Toni Rodig, Buhl, 21.671; 2. Melinda Wickes, Declo, 24.81; 3. Cass Zimmerman, Declo, 22.111; 4. Greenwell, 22.441.

Goat tying — 1. Connie Wilson, Filer, 9.5; 2. Tony Jones, Rock Creek, 11.3; 3. Teresa Simpson, Minico, 11.7; 4. Kayla Atkinson, Twin Falls, 12.1.

Breakaway roping — 1. Heil, 3.7; 2. Chris Lewis, Filer, 5.1; 3. Rhea Monroe, Twin Falls, 6.3; 4. Lisa O'Leary, Castleton, 6.5.

Team roping — 1. Richard Hunsaker, Declo and Tuma, 13.5; 2. Hatley and Brian, Declo, 14.2; 3. Atkinson and Sayers, 19.6.

Sue Kushlan of Rupert hits a 3-wood during her victorious round Friday

Kushlan captures MV golf

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JACKPOT Nov. — Sue Kushlan of Rupert tamed the greens, the winds and history Friday afternoon to win the four-year reign of Twin Falls' Karen Brown to win the championship by three strokes.

Kushlan took the lead eight holes into the final day and never let go in fulfilling her philosophy of "If you can't have fun playing golf, don't play."

It's an easy by-word for Kushlan, who has had sufficient background upon which to base such an assessment.

A southern California product who came to Rupert by way of Caldwell, Kushlan, with a grin, admits her philosophies about golf developed "after I finished playing on the mini-tour and didn't do any good. If it weren't my job, I'd be broke."

Kushlan and Brown entered the final day knotted at 76 and through the first several holes battled evenly. But then a succession of three-putts hit Brown, who isn't known for such lapses.

"I was going for birdies and saving the price," she rallied at her clipping from "I kept going, but I did yesterday. I couldn't get anything close and I kept going too far past the hole with my approaches."

Kushlan, who had matching 76-76 scores on the Jackpot course, couldn't really identify the difference between Thursday and Friday.

Thursday she had blamed an early run of three-putts and one four-putt for an early lapse that thrust her as much as three strokes behind.

But Friday, "I know I didn't have a four-putt and I don't think I had a three putt. I didn't hit my irons as well today as I did yesterday, but my tee shots were farther today than they were yesterday. And when I thought I needed to make the putt I made it," Kushlan said.

"I didn't get out in the junk (rough) as much as she did (Thursday). I didn't do anything outrageously good but I didn't do anything outrageously bad."

The difference came when Brown three-putted the eighth hole and fell one behind at the turn. It stayed within a stroke until the 13th when Brown had another three-putt and the fate was sealed on the par-three 17th when Brown needed three to get down from perhaps 15 feet off the green.

"The real difference was," said champion Kushlan, "I made every putt I had to and Karen didn't. It stayed within a stroke until the 13th when Brown had another three-putt and the fate was sealed on the par-three 17th when Brown needed three to get down from perhaps 15 feet off the green."

"I just couldn't keep it close enough. I kept going for birdies and I couldn't stop the ball close enough to the pin."

USF to resume basketball in '85

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Two-time national champion University of San Francisco, which dropped its basketball program a year ago because of a series of brushes with the NCAA, will be back on the courts starting in the fall of 1985 but at a reduced level and under strict guidelines.

Rev. John Lo Schiavo, president of the University, announced Friday that the Board of Trustees had agreed to bring the program back at the same time, the board laid down a strict set of rules and it also was announced the Dons will name a new athletic director soon to replace Bill Fusco.

"We have now had almost a year to reflect on that decision (the one made last July to drop basketball) and on the integrally related matter of the future of USF's entire intercollegiate athletic program," Rev. Lo Schiavo said in a prepared statement.

"It has been especially useful to be able to consider these matters in an environment free of the turmoil created by the problems with the men's basketball program."

Lo Schiavo said that, in the past year, there have been a number of developments which have led to the further decision, made by the Board of Trustees today, to undertake a men's Division I intercollegiate basketball program commencing with the academic year 1985-86.

REV. JOHN LOSCHIAVO Sets strict guidelines

Rev. Lo Schiavo went on to say that admission standards for athletes will be the same as for any other students and while the school will go after gifted basketball players they must be students first and athletes second.

He said recruiting will be limited to the region rather than national, as in the past, and USF will play a schedule against teams in California and nearby states.

Slew O'Gold, High Honors also have good odds Caveat tabbed favorite for today's Belmont

NEW YORK (UPI) — With workouts easing and preparations nearly complete, Slew O'Gold and Caveat rested Friday in anticipation of a burning speed duel in today's running of the Belmont Stakes.

The weather today was expected to be sunny and warm with a high around 80 degrees, which would be appropriate conditions for the two swift 3-year-olds.

Slew O'Gold, having stizzled 5 furlongs in 58 seconds Wednesday, galloped an easy mile and a half Friday, while Caveat, who blew out half a mile in 49 seconds Thursday, merely walked around the track.

Sid Walters, trainer of Slew O'Gold, planned to have his colt — work a half-mile this morning and Wood Stephens was to have Caveat gallop

1 1/4 miles as a last tune-up for today's 3:35 p.m. MDT post time.

The son of Seattle Slew will be operating out of the No. 1 post position, which brings back unpleasant memories for Walters. Starting from the inside in the Kentucky Derby, Slew O'Gold was bumped at the gate by a swarming No. 2 horse and went on to finish fourth, just behind Caveat.

Jockey Angel Cordero, Jr., recalled: "Me and Jorge (Velazquez, who rode Marfa in the Derby and will ride High Honors in the Belmont) were having a helluva race for third money when Caveat just went swoosh."

"I'm just going to leave the pace all up to Angel," Walters said. "If it's fast he might lay back, and if the pace is slow, maybe he'll go."

August Belmont's Caveat, who late Friday was installed as the 3-2 favorite in the 1 1/4-mile Belmont under Laffit Pincay Jr., drew the No. 7 post position as a field of 15 was entered for the final leg of the Triple Crown.

At 15, the race will offer a record gross of $38,500 and a record winning value of $215,100.

In the late odds line, Slew O'Gold and High Honors were made the co-second choice horses at 6-1.

Stephens hinted he may be willing to let Caveat stay back and let Slew O'Gold set the pace rather than stiek to his more recent strategy of moving right to the front.

"In the past he did not like getting dirt kicked — in his face," said

Stephens, "sounding much like the father of a boy who had recently undergone a muscle-building course."

"Now, nothing bothers him."

Virginia Lindholm, who has won this title 12 times, finished third, noting, "Just where I figured I would be. If I played pretty well, I can't hit it with these girls on a long course and my show game just wasn't enough to keep up with them."

Unblemished with a 162, ten strokes behind Kushlan and seven off Brown's pace, Sergene Sorenson, Burley, was fourth with a 165.

"He added it would be ideal if High Honors did not go to the lead until the sixteenth pole."

Patience is a virtue—just ask ISU grid boss Jim Koetter

POCATELLO — Jim Koetter spent the most important day of his 24-year coaching career on Friday pretty much the same way as he spent the previous day in the office and called a coaches' meeting.

"I've been a patient person," said the new Idaho State University football coach after ISU athletic director Babe Cascia introduced him as Dave Krathgorpe's successor. "And it's finally managed to get done."

It's a long wait. It began in 1960 when Cascia let Koetter, who had played wide receiver for him for two years at Idaho State, coach the freshman team. Then there were two years at Aberdeen and 15 more at Highland High School in Pocatello, where he set a 10-2 record and two state championships before Krathgorpe's predecessor Bud Hake was fired. Koetter was the popular choice for the ISU job then, but the nod went to Krathgorpe, then an assistant at Brigham Young University.

Koetter, who had coached recruiting trips, quickly made the Highland mentor his chief assistant. After the Bengals won the national championship in 1981, it appeared that Koetter would be elevated to the head coaching job when Division I schools began — to — besiege

Steve Crump

Krathgorpe with job offers. Krathgorpe turned them all down, and assumed the title of assistant athletic director at ISU. Then last winter, it looked as if Krathgorpe might replace Bruce Snyder at Utah State.

Krathgorpe demurred, and the expectation was that he would stay on until Cascia retires at the end of the year and become the athletic director.

But two weeks ago, just before Koetter was scheduled to go on vacation, Krathgorpe called him into the head coach's cubicle in the ISU football office and told him that he had applied for the vacant Utah State job. So it didn't surprise Koetter much when the hotel clerk handed him a message along with his room key as Koetter and his wife checked into their hotel on Maui last Friday.

"Congratulations," he said. "Dirk." Dirk, of course, is Koetter's eldest son, a former prep star at Highland, former starting quarterback at ISU and, since April, the new head football coach at Highland.

"I think the fact that Koetter had the inside track for the job was in the back of everyone's mind," said Koetter on Friday. "I think everybody assumed that Dave would become the athletic director and that I would have a shot at the job, but I never had anything in writing."

From ISU's standpoint, Koetter's selection was doubly attractive. First, since it was assumed all along that he would get the job, it lent stability to a program that has had five head coaches in 10 years. More importantly, it gave Idaho State something it has not had for a long time: a decided advantage in recruiting Idaho athletes.

With the exception of University of Idaho assistant John Smith, who grew up in Idaho Falls and graduated from Bonneville High School, Koetter is the only football coach at the three state universities with ties to the state's high schools. "This may be an understatement, there is probably no other coach in the state more widely known on the prep level," he coached against 70% of the eight current head coaches in the Gem State Conference and all four head coaches in the Southern Idaho Conference. Borah's De Pankratz, for example, is another product of Cascia's ISU program of the '60s. Boise's Jim Carberry coached at Pocatello High while Koetter was at Highland.

What that means is that Koetter can pick up the phone and ask one of his old compatriots at one school about a hot prospect across town. He can find out in 10 minutes what will take Idaho's Dennis Erickson or Boise State's Lyle Selenech two days of looking at films to discover.

That's important for Idaho State because it alone among the state's three big schools, has to struggle to maintain its geographical base. Since eastern Idaho is largely Mormon, the best students and the best athletes often find BYU, Rice College or even Utah State more attractive. That puts ISU at a disadvantage in competing with BSU and Idaho for private financial support and for legislative support as well. Hence when it comes time to throw dollars for ISU, or for an Ada County corporation to divide its financial support, it is a liability for the Pocatello school to have a roster filled with players from Caldwell and Boise.

Koetter has made that possible. Two years ago he recruited all-state tight end Jody Griswold of Borah from under the nose of former BSU coach Jim Griner. Last fall he picked up offensive lineman Randy Triplett from Boise, who was also being sought by BSU, and more dramatically he lured two all-state wide receiver Greg Adelsbach from Moscow and away from Idaho's explosive passing offensive.

"Idaho will be the basis of our recruiting efforts in the future," said Koetter. "Because of the (recruiting) efforts of the other two schools in the state, recruiting has been very difficult for us within the state, but we will be concentrating on it."

Koetter expects to do very few things different from Krathgorpe with the players he does recruit. "I'd have to be awfully dumb to do that," he said. "There will be no major changes. I haven't had a chance to sit down and talk to the assistant coaches. There may be some adjustments — in personnel, but whatever emerges will be as good as what was."

Koetter, who coached running backs and receivers during his first two seasons at ISU and ran the offense last year, is unsure about

Thon, three pitchers direct Houston past San Diego, 2-1

LaCrosse, 4-4, pitched 5 1/2 innings before leaving with an injured finger on his pitching hand. He allowed an unearned run, while striking out one and walking two. LaCorte pitched 1 1/2 innings before hurting his ankle running the bases and Dawley finished to win his fifth save of the year.

The Padres scored in the sixth off LaCrosse. With one out, Gene Richards walked and, after LaCrosse was replaced by LaCorte, Richards stole second and advanced to third when catcher Alan Kobay finished the ball into center field. Richards then scored on a ground out by Juan Bonilla.

The Astros pitching staff has now gone 39 1/2 innings without yielding an earned run.

At Chicago, Ferguson Jenkins, 3-3, pitched a four-hitter, for Chicago's first complete game since September of last year and Jody Davis drove in four runs to lead the Cubs: A crowd of Royals 2, Mariners 0.

Reds 3, Sox 0.

Cowboys outscore Gems, 24-15

BOISE—Playing under surprising weather conditions—cold temperatures and a steady drizzle—the Twin Falls Cowboys improved their record to 5-3 Friday night with a 24-15 triumph over the Boise Gems.

The second game of the scheduled double-header was rained out. The Cowboys amassed 22 hits, a feat which obviously pleased Coach Mike Robbins. "There was hitting throughout the whole lineup," he said. "I was hoping to see a lot of hits to a hitter, because you know you're going to get a hit," he said.

Mike Federico paced the Cowboys with a 3-for-4, 6-RBI performance. Shawn Humberger added two hits in four trips and 2-RBI while David Slotten went 3-for-5, including a long three-run homer in the seventh. "It was a satellite," said Robbins of the blast.

Left-hander Nate Burke, who pitched the last three innings of Twin Falls' 11-inning 6-5 victory over Pocatello in the second game of Thursday night's twinbill at Frontier Field, tired in the fifth inning and yielded to Brock Miller.

Not only were the conditions less than satisfactory, but so was the equipment, according to Robbins, who said that the teams had just three baseballs at their disposal. "And the balls were soaked," he said. "You couldn't throw curveballs. All you could do is pipe the ball."

Twin Falls faces the Boise Senators today in a 1 p.m. double-header, then meets Meridian for two more games Sunday.

victory over Twin Falls' Mary Obachain. JoAnn Sanderson had a 187 and Louise Smith filled in for fourth with 196. Net honors went to Diane Gullies, Burley, with a 135 and the second-day lap prize—Irone Daisogio—Burley, was second with 141, with Norma Ward, Twin Falls, and Laurena Marshall, Murtaugh, knotted at 146.

Elva Felton, Twin Falls, after worrying about the fighting of the tournament for two days, took the second flight gross prize with a 207 and annexed the second-day lap ring with a 207. That gave her a six-stroke lead over Verda Pool in the gross division with Beiva Helme, Rupert, at 169 and Marilyn Wignall, Twin Falls, at 221. Diana Starin and Sandra Tarter, Twin Falls, who were the first-day leaders, wound up one-two in the net division at 149 and 149, one of the infrequent times that flight net leaders will be over par.

Ballesteros, Zoeller knotted

HARRISON, N.Y. (UPI) — Seve Ballesteros put together a string of four birdies in six holes for a 4-under-par 67 Friday that gave him a share of the lead with Fuzzy Zoeller at the halfway mark of the $450,000 Westchester Classic.

Zoeller, overcoming a slight case of the morning blahs, produced his second-consecutive 68 as both he and Ballesteros stood at six-under 136, leaving them one shot in front of Craig Stadler, who had a sizzling 66 despite some trouble with his putter.

Oddly, both Ballesteros and Zoeller failed to survive the cut in their last appearances at the Westchester Country Club, the 26-year-old Spaniard missing out in his only previous visit in 1981 and Zoeller last year.

Go!

Asked about his chances of adding the $81,000 top prize to the Masters crown he won in April, Ballesteros joked, "I'm in a lot better position than two years ago."

Roger Maltbie and Pat McGowan each shot 66 to tie for fourth place at 138 with Bruce Flesher, who had 68. Another stroke farther back was Jay Haas following a 69. Maltbie's round included "a couple of home run putts" of 50 and 35 feet.

Gary Hallberg, the opening-round leader at 67, slipped to a 74 to stand at 141—while rookie David Peoples, who had shared second place with Zoeller and Chip Beck, skied to a 76 that left him at 144. Beck was at 140 following a

Leen among winners at Muni juniors tourney

TWIN FALLS — Tom Leen fired a 68 on Friday to take first place in the boys' 15-17-year-old division of the Idaho Junior Golf Association tournament at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

Leen finished one stroke ahead of Craig Jones, who fired an eagle on the third hole to complete the round with a 69. Jason Meyerhoefer was third with a 70.

Julie Hamblin won the girls' 15-17 honors with a 72.

The tournament, which drew 110 golfers — 102 girls and eight boys — was one in a series of juniors tournaments being held in the Magic Valley area this summer.

Paul Durham won first place in the boys' 13-14-year-old division with an 81, one stroke ahead of Charles Wadsworth and two ahead of Kerry Klassen, Tony Purves and Mike Conger. Klassen won a three-way playoff for third place, with Purves finishing fourth and Conger fifth.

Kellie Jones won first place in the girls' 13-14 division with a 121.

Eric Saxvik had the low boys' score in the 11-12-year-old division, a nine-hole total of 45, followed by Brent Boley and Brian Reed, both at 48. Barry beat Reed in a sudden-death playoff for second place.

Tara Cantrell fired a nine-hole total of 62 to win the girls' 11-12-year-old division, followed by Shelley Purves with a 77.

Jody Hurst was the boys' 9-10-year-old winner with a nine-hole total of 44, followed by Kade Wilson with 50 and Frank Carpenter at 58. S. Boyd finished on top of the girls' division, with a 99.

In the boys' 8-and-under group, Justin Astorino was the medalist with a 39, followed by Jonathan Hopkins at 46 and Tom Hannah with a 51.

Kylie Petersen won the girls' honors with an 81.

Reinhardt hikes LPGA Championship lead

KINGS ISLAND, Ohio (UPI) — Alexandra Reinhardt shook off early jitters Friday to shoot a 4-under par 68 and take a commanding 4-shot lead halfway through the $200,000 LPGA Championship at the Jack Nicklaus Sports Center.

Reinhardt, who led by one stroke at the end of the first round with a 5-under par 67, increased her margin with her 35-33 — 68 on the 6,277-yard, par-72 "Gritzy" course, giving her a 36-hole score of 9-under par 135.

Five players were tied for second at 5-under par 139 — Dot Germain, whose 6-under par 66 was the best round Friday, Hollis Stacy, who had a second round 68, Sandra Haynie (69), Lauren Howe (70) and Patty Sheehan

Another shot back at 140 were LeAnn Cassaday and Chris Johnson, while defending champion Jan Stephenson and Vicki Tabor were at 141.

Stephenson shot a 5-under par 70 Friday, Johnson and Tabor had 75 and Cassaday a 71.

Howe may pitch again soon

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Los Angeles Dodgers reliever Steve Howe, admitted to a drug rehabilitation center two weeks ago after he resumed his abuse of cocaine, may return to the mound by June 19, his agent says.

Tony Attanasio said Thursday the left-hander, who has seven saves and has not allowed an earned run in 22 innings this season, was "coming along so well and so strong" at the CareUnit in Orange County.

"He looks terrific," Attanasio said. "He's got his stuff and he's throwing to a couple of guys who played semipro who can hold him. He's lifting weights every day."

Attanasio and Howe have asked doctors at the facility about a modification in the pitcher's treatment that would allow him to return to the team by June 19, the day he comes off the disabled list.

"If it happens, it happens," Attanasio said. "But they're not going to jeopardize all their work for the sake of a few days. But if it's OK in the minds of the doctors and in Steve's mind, then I see no reason why it can't be done."

Howe spent several weeks at a drug abuse facility in Phoenix during the off-season. He consented to be hospitalized again after he resumed using cocaine this season.

McHone becomes Spurs' boss

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — San Antonio general manager Bob Bass said Friday that Morris McHone, a former Star Tribune assistant, was the only man ever considered to take Albeck's job as head coach of the Spurs.

Bass announced the hiring of McHone in a news conference, saying, "It's Morris McHone's day. It's a new era. We're going to have some fun."

McHone, 39, served for the last three years as Albeck's assistant and became the chief candidate for the top job when Albeck left the Spurs Wednesday to take over the New Jersey Nets.

Although McHone is not well known outside NBA circles, his reputation had grown within the league during his tenure as an assistant coach.

McHone, a 1965 graduate of Florida State University, will be the third youngest head coach in the NBA. He first came to the league in 1979 as Albeck's assistant when Albeck coached the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Ex-Piston coach hospitalized

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Hospital officials said former NBA coach Scotty Robertson was in stable but critical condition Friday in the coronary care unit of Our Lady of the Lake Hospital.

Robertson, 53, who coached the New Orleans Jazz and Detroit Pistons, suffered the apparent attack at Ryan Airport in Baton Rouge Thursday morning following a flight from Dallas, officials said.

He reportedly was helping his daughter move into a new apartment in Dallas before he was stricken.

A spokesman for the Detroit Pistons said Robertson had a heart attack in 1979 just before he was named Pistons' coach. He was fired from the job in April and now lives in Florida.

whether he will hire an offensive line coach or a quarterback and receivers coach for next season. That's an important choice, since Kragthorpe was widely conceded to be among the best offensive-line coaches in the country — and because the Bengals offense during that championship season was run by a passing specialist, Mike Stapp, who is now the offensive coordinator at Long Beach State.

"My feeling right now is that it's too much to be the head coach and try to call all the offensive plays," he said. "I think I could be the head coach and coach the running backs and kickers, but we'll have to wait until I talk it over with the assistant coaches."

Koetter said ISU senior quarterback Paul Peterson is "ready to have an excellent season," but he isn't sure whether the offense is capable of competing for the conference championship.

"That's something that you really don't know until you get into the season and see how the players react," he said. "In 1981, we had the right players, the right schedule and no injuries. Last year, except for five plays in three games, we could have been conference champions again."

The new coach added that he has no personal goals for the Bengals for next year.

"That's something that a coaching staff will have to set," he said. "I do agree with Coach Kragthorpe though, that over all this was our best recruiting season in the four years we've been at Idaho State."

That's about as close to a prediction as you'll get right now from Jim Koetter. But be patient.

'It just isn't as much fun,' says Bench

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Johnny Bench, who anchored Cincinnati's devastating "Big Red Machine" teams of the 1970s with power hitting and brilliant catching, announced Friday he is retiring at the end of this season.

JOHNNY BENCH Makes retirement official

"It just isn't as much fun anymore," said the 13-time All-Star. "My body says it's not as much fun."

Bench, 35, in his 18th season with the Reds, is virtually assured of being elected to baseball's Hall of Fame when he becomes eligible five years after retirement.

"There is a season and a time for everything and this is the time for me to retire," Bench said at a packed news conference conducted on the Riverfront Stadium field. "I decided about three weeks ago that this season would be it."

"I'm proud I worked hard to be a Cincinnati Red and I'm proud to be a Cincinnati Red," said Bench, who has spent his entire career in the Reds' organization. "It's been a boy's dream for me."

Buhl legionnaires begin road trip successfully

SALT LAKE CITY — Buhl's Class B American Legion baseball team successfully Friday, defeating Hillcrest's B team, 10-3.

Coach Joe Shepard was pleased with the improved play of the Indians, who were less than stellar in splitting a double-header with Pocatello's B squad Thursday night, winning 14-10 and losing 9-7.

Garvey expresses joy at return to Wisconsin

MADISON, Wis. (UPI) — "His pay won't be nearly as good as it was with the National Football League Players' Association," but departing executive director Ed Garvey didn't seem to mind.

Garvey headed the NFL's first union in 1967, and led the first in-season players' strike in the NFL's 63-year history last season. The sports industry drew great respect for his work, much of it negative. There were those who fired him last year because of the 57-day strike, but he survived it. Last month he received a 207-vote confidence from NFL player representatives.

Blackledge signs series of 1-year pacts with Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Todd Blackledge, the brainy quarterback who guided Penn State to the national championship, was selected by Kansas City with the No. 7 pick in the NFL draft.

Blackledge, the last of the Chiefs' 12 available picks to sign a contract, increases the number of quarterbacks on the club to four: Steve Fuller and Bill Kenney are entering their fifth seasons and Bob Gagliano his third.

New San Diego franchise might consider Tulsa move

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — The owners of the United States Football League's homeless San Diego franchise prefer to stay in California, but are willing to move to Tulsa, Oklahoma if necessary.

A number of owners, including Tulsa, have reportedly said they would welcome the San Diego franchise if a deal is not struck Tuesday.

a youngster in Oklahoma, I dreamed of being Babe Ruth, Yogi Berra and Mickey Mantle all rolled into one. It's been just about everything anyone could want."

Bench, who first joined the Reds for 26 games late in the 1967 season, was the club's regular catcher from 1968 through 1980, when he said he was "worn out" from catching and began playing first base and then third base.

Bench caught 100 or more games for 13 consecutive seasons, tying a major league record. He won 10 consecutive Gold Glove awards and some consider him the finest defensive catcher in the history of the game.

Bench hit 40 home runs and collected 258 RBIs.

But Bench had a bad season last year, hitting just 13 homers, driving in only 38 runs and batting .258. He also was criticized for poor play at third base, even though it was only his first full year at the position.

"Last year wasn't a good year for me and I think it tarnished some of the things I had done," said Bench, explaining that he didn't want to "hang on" and just play mediocre ball late in his career.
