Mock radiation released at Idaho nuke rally

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — About two dozen protesters released 280 helium-filled balloons at a nuclear-testing center Monday to dramatize the distance wind-borne radiation could drift from the site.

While demonstrators marched at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory near Idaho Falls, residents in 12 cities around the state flooded phone lines at the office of Sen. James McClure urging the Republican to support a proposed nuclear freeze.

Protest spokeswoman Liz Paul said calls were made to McClure's Washington office every three minutes asking the lawmaker "to support the nuclear freeze resolution, to vote against production funds for the MX missile, and to use his influence to stop or delay deployment of the Pershing and cruise missiles in Europe."

McClure later released a statement which read: "To now appease the Soviets and freeze the deployment of both the Pershing missile and the MX missile will severely undermine America's security, and thereby raise the specter of a nuclear confrontation."

The protests came as part of a national drive to convince lawmakers to reverse the trend toward development of new nuclear weapons, Ms. Paul said.

The spokeswoman for the Ketchum-based Groundwater Alliance and about 24 other people gathered near INEL at noon Monday, then marched a mile to the testing facility's entrance gate.

There they released 280 helium balloons bearing the message. "This balloon has been released from the INEL entrance gates in the Arco desert. If there is a nuclear accident at INEL, it is safe to assume radioactive particles could follow a similar path."

One observer, Don Cammack of Arco, said. "By the way the balloons took off, they might be picking them up in Chicago in about two days. They really went."

Cammack said the scarcity of supporters for the protest march can be attributed to a general endorsement of INEL activities by residents near the site.

"There were no local folks out there because many of the people around here work at INEL, and they aren't scared," he said.

Butte County Sheriff Darrell Richards and Deputy Blaine Price stood near the peaceful protest, as did U.S. Marshal Graham Clark of Boise.

Ms. Paul said calls to McClure's office began about 7 a.m. MDT Monday and continued for several hours.

She said those making the calls included members of her group in Ketchum; the Snake River Alliance in Boise, Nampa, Twin Falls, Bull and McCall; Idahoans for Nuclear Weapons Awareness in Idaho Falls; the Pocatello Center for Peace and Justice; and residents in Coeur d'Alene, Sandpoint, Lewiston and Blackfoot.

Besides urging McClure to support anti-nuclear legislation, the callers also stated "our opposition to the use of INEL, as an interim commercial nuclear-waste storage site," she said.

McClure said he shares the protesters' desire to prevent nuclear war, but is not sure a freeze on weapons development is the best way to achieve the goal.

"The facts are plain for all to see," he said. "The Soviet Union possesses a strategic nuclear arsenal far superior to America's forces."

The senator said stopping production of new weapons systems "would freeze America into a position of inferiority."

Activist arrested for nuke protests

More than 1,100 anti-nuclear protesters were arrested Monday at rallies around the country, including nearly 800 peace activists trying to block a major center of "Star Wars" technology in Livermore, Calif.

No injuries were reported.

About 2,500 demonstrators held hands on what they called "International Day of Nuclear Disarmament" and blocked gates to Lawrence Livermore National Laboratory, the nation's largest nuclear weapons research center.

Most workers arrived before the 6 a.m. protest.

Other protests were held in Connecticut, Vermont, Nevada, Massachusetts, New York, Rhode Island, Idaho, New Mexico, Texas, Minnesota, Illinois and Florida. Arrests nationwide totaled 1,159 people.

Protesters were arrested when they sat down on roadways leading to the lab's four gates. They were taken by bus to the Blaine County jail at Santa Rita and charged with blocking a roadway, a misdemeanor.

Don Matchan, 73 (L), Bea Temple, 67, of Santa Cruz, Calif., smile as they are arrested

Police said they arrested 796 people, including Daniel Silberg, the activist who leaked the Pentagon Papers during the Vietnam war.

"A day like this is a complete waste," said Roger Ide, the lab's deputy associate director for nuclear testing. "There is no dialogue. Neither the protesters nor the workers changed their minds on the issues."

"We are protesting nuclear war," he said. "Nuclear weapons responsibly handled, however, are an attempt to stave off that nuclear war."

The lab develops advanced nuclear weaponry and researches "Star Wars" type technology such as lasers and nuclear fusion.

Barbara Haber of the Livermore Action Group, which coordinated the protest, said the demonstrators wanted to show that "this is the place where 90 percent of the arms are built and this is a place that is important to shut down."

About 300 people sat and sang "We Shall Overcome" at the gate of Ballast Point Submarine Base on Point Loma across the bay from San Diego, Calif. Police arrested 34 people for blocking a public thoroughfare.

A hundred people were arrested at the Electric Boat shipyard in Groton, Conn., where Trident nuclear submarines are built, and charged with disorderly conduct for blocking steps to an administration building. Shipyard workers stepped over them to get to work.

Twelve women were arrested at the British Trident office and an FBI office in New London, Conn., and two men and a woman were arrested at the U.S. Naval Underwater Systems Center for tossing a red substance symbolizing blood on the building.

Police arrested 130 people who lay in front of trucks at gates of the General Electric Co. in Burlington, Vt., to protest what they said was the production of weapons for El Salvador and other Central American countries. Police Chief Richard Beaulieu said they would be cited for disorderly conduct and released.

About 250 people in New Mexico blocked a road leading to Kirtland Air Force Base. Police arrested 31 on charges of obstructing traffic, said Deputy Chief Ray Rivera.

In Westboro, Mass., more than 100 people tried to block the GTE Sylvania plant but failed to prevent workers from getting to their jobs. No arrests were made.

Challenger crew prepares satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — America's first woman in space and the other Challenger astronauts Monday ran through a trouble-shooting checklist for the world's first reusable satellite that she will launch and recapture from orbit Wednesday.

The astronauts found a few minor information processing problems with some of the satellite's 11 experiment packages, but nothing that would stop its deployment.

From the flashing computer screens in Challenger's cockpit, Sally Ride, Robert Crippen, Frederick Hauck and John Fabian relayed information on the problems to ground controllers. The fifth astronaut, Dr. Norman Thagard, continued his experiments on space sickness.

Fabian, who has a doctorate in aeronautics and astronautics, and Ms. Ride, whose doctorate is in astrophysics, did most of the trouble-shooting. They will use a 50-foot mechanical arm to launch and then retrieve the West German satellite.

The happy-go-lucky astronauts on the shuttle's seventh mission were right on schedule as they spent the day powering up the satellite and gathering information from some of the other experiments in the shuttle's open cargo bay.

"Television from the shuttle showed one of Challenger's experimental payloads, a Department of Defense canister with a hinged lid that cost $150,000 to develop.

The canister, which looks like a kitchen garbage can, is measuring levels of natural radiation in the upper atmosphere in a project intended to improve forecasting of radiation storms that can disrupt radio communications.

Challenger itself was performing almost perfectly as it whizzed around the Earth every hour and a half at more than 17,000 mph.

"It's fun up here," said Crippen, who flew on the first shuttle two years ago.

NASA officials were jubilant about the smooth flight.

"We're delighted with the performance of both the orbiter and the flight crew and the ground team."

Over Reagan objections Panel adopts compromise budget

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Senate-House negotiators Monday adopted a compromise $89 billion 1984 budget, opposed by President Reagan — that would raise taxes $73 billion over three years, slash his military buildup and produce a $129 billion deficit.

The spending plan now goes to the full Senate and House, where Republican and Democratic budget leaders predicted it would have a "reasonably good chance" of approval. The president is not required to sign a budget resolution, but can later veto spending and tax bills that implement it.

"My gut reaction tonight is, yes, it will pass the Senate," said Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., the ranking Democrat on the budget committee.

Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., said the Senate will have a more difficult time than the House in passing the compromise — and that Senate-Republican leader Howard Baker will be the key to its fate.

"Obviously the White House is going to oppose it," Solarz said. "If Baker opposes it, then I think it's doomed. If Baker supports it, then I think it has a fighting chance."

Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., said: "I'm very hopeful that the (Baker) will" support the package.

The compromise contains $22 billion more than Reagan wants for non-defense domestic programs. Of that, $8.5 billion is for recession-relief programs, such as a new jobs bill, that have not been enacted into law yet. That money was put in a "reserve fund," which would not be used until the proposals are authorized by Congress, if ever.

Without the reserve fund, the deficit would be about $171 billion.

The budget plan would increase defense spending after inflation by 5 percent, half the increase sought by Reagan. Military spending would be increased from this year's estimated level of $24.6 billion to $26.6 billion.

The plan calls for $12 billion in unspecified tax increases next year, $15 billion in 1985 and $46 billion in 1986.

Reagan, whose own budget proposal was rejected by both the House and Senate, opposes the compromise on the basis that it raises taxes and spends too much on defense programs and spends too little on the military.

The plan includes a 4 percent pay raise for all federal employees effective Jan. 1.

Pope defends workers' right to organize, stiffens his stand

By BARRY JAMES
UPI Senior Editor

KATOWICE, Poland (UPI) — Pope John Paul II emphatically defended the Solidarity union's right to exist Monday, defying a warning by communist authorities against igniting further anti-government demonstrations.

Earlier in Poznan, the pontiff referred directly to the Rural Solidarity farmers' union despite government insistence that further pro-Solidarity rallies during his eight-day tour could slow Poland's route to normalization.

"It's a question of a people's right to free association," John Paul told more than 1 million people on arrival in the pouring rain at the airport in the southern city of Katowice.

"It is not a right... given to us by the state. The state has the obligation only to protect and guard it so that it is not violated," he said, quoting late Polish prime minister Cardinal Stefan Wyszyński.

"It was in this spirit that I spoke in January 1981 during a audience granted to the delegation of Solidarity, accompanied by the Representative of the Polish Government for Permanent Working Contacts with the Holy See."

The pope's mention of Solidarity — the first direct reference to the banned workers' union — sparked loud cheers from the crowd from Silesia, Poland's industrial heartland of coal mines and steel mills.

Unions "are a moulcepiece for the struggle for social justice, for the just rights of working people," the pope added, referring to his own previous writings on the subject.

Mourning seven Silesian coal miners killed by police in the first days of martial law, the pope said that Poland could only solve the deep divisions between government and society if "a true dialogue" emerges.

John Paul's second homcoming since becoming pope in 1978 has been marked by steady, papal pressure aimed at winning an easing of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's martial-law policies, imposed Dec. 13, 1981.

On Friday, John Paul appealed directly to Jaruzelski to let him meet with Solidarity founder Lech Walesa. Jaruzelski agreed and Vatican officials said the meeting would likely take place Wednesday or Thursday in Krakow.

Well-informed Polish Catholic sources said John Paul toned down a speech he gave Sunday in Czestochowa after the government warned pro-Solidarity displays at his masses could have a "negative effect" on normalization in Poland.

In a Czestochowa prayer, the pope said Poland is a nation yearning "to live in truth, in freedom, in justice and social solidarity." But sources said his original text was much stronger.

The pope "doesn't want his people to suffer more because of him," said a Vatican official. "He doesn't want anybody, most of all the government, to be able to say that things can get worse because of this visit."

In Poznan, John Paul's salute to outlawed Rural Solidarity, an agricultural outgrowth of the main union, drew an ovation but otherwise a service attended by about 750,000 people remained calm and religious in nature.

Illegal red-and-white Solidarity banners fluttered in the Poznan crowd, but not as many as at the pope's previous appearances since he arrived in his homeland last Thursday.

All factories in the Poznan region were shut for the day. Workers promised to work an extra day on a weekend.

At the final blessing of the Poznan mass, the congregation began to sing "God Save Poland," the hymn that has become the unofficial anthem of Solidarity. Nearly everyone raised his hand in Solidarity's "V-for-Victory" salute.

Communist officials in Poznan were so disturbed by the gesture they canceled a telecast of the pope's appearance at the city's cathedral, also blocking out a closed-circuit transmission to a press center for foreign reporters.

In his homily, John Paul also mourned the victims of the 1956 Poznan riots, the first anti-communist uprising in Poland in which scores of striking workers were shot dead by police.

Youthful Solidarity supporters in the western city tried to march to a monument honoring the victims, but riot-squipped police blocked off the site.

The pope said he wanted to visit the monument, too, but officials kept his motorcade away from the scene.

Jury selection starts DUI trial

BOISE (UPI) — The attorney for suspended deputy attorney general Virginia DeMeyer says results of blood-alcohol tests will not be admitted as evidence during her trial on charges of involuntary manslaughter and drunken driving.

Defense lawyer William Brauner said Monday during questioning of prospective jurors that test results measuring his client's blood-alcohol content were included in evidence banned from submission during a hearing last week conducted by visiting District Judge Arthur Oliver.

Ms. DeMeyer is charged with involuntary manslaughter and driving while intoxicated after she allegedly struck and killed the two youths along State Highway 44.

Seventeen of 28 potential jurors questioned Monday were disqualified from serving on the panel. A pool of 100 citizens was called for questioning.

Questions by Brauner and Special Prosecutor Glen Walker of Kootenai County focused on prospective jurors' feelings toward alcohol use and their interpretations of involuntary manslaughter laws.

More dioxin poisoning found

ST. JAMES, Mo. (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Monday it has offered temporary relocation to three families whose homes are on a road with the highest levels of dioxin in the state.

The road leads to the farm of Russell Bliss, the hauler who spread dioxin-laden waste on an roads located in and east of the 31 confirmed dioxin sites in Missouri.

Bliss was said to have oiled Plaza Road where the three homes are located twice in the early 1970s.

Morris Kay, an EPA spokesman in Kansas City, said tests revealed levels of dioxin as high as 1,800 parts dioxin per billion parts of soil. The Centers for Disease Control said 1 part dioxin can be hazardous to humans.

The highest previous reading in the state had been 1,700 parts dioxin.

Dioxin also was found in two residential yards, but at much lower levels.

More violence in the Mideast

By United Press International

Gunmen spraying machine gun fire ambushed a Syrian military convoy Monday outside Lebanon's second largest city, killing seven officers and soldiers in retaliation for a massacre of 31 civilians last week, police said.

The unidentified gunmen opposing the Syrian occupation of north Lebanon surprised the convoy eight miles south of the northern port of Tripoli with a hail of bullets, police said.

They killed three Syrian officers and four other soldiers. The incident spread fear with the Syrians cutting off the road leading to the city and people closing down their shops, a police source said, adding that another soldier was wounded in the machine-gun ambush.

The other Syrian soldiers were injured earlier in the day aboard an ammunition truck, which police said was also ambushed by men with machine guns. The Lebanese Central News Agency said the vehicle overturned and exploded.

Women back pregnancy ruling

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women's groups say the Supreme Court ruling that the same pregnancy benefits given to female workers must also apply to male employees' wives shows the high court recognizes men can suffer sex discrimination too.

The justices ruled 7-2 Monday in a case from Newport News, Va. that companies violate federal anti-discrimination law when they deny the same pregnancy benefits to spouses of workers that are part of the health benefits package for women employees.

"We're very pleased with the decision. It showed that the Supreme Court has a realistic view of what sex discrimination is something that can hurt both men and women," said Dorothy Hildings, president, League of Women Voters.

The league worked to get the Pregnancy Discrimination Act of 1978 passed, which amended federal law to outlaw discrimination against women expecting babies.

Jets collide on O'Hare runway

CHICAGO — A jumbo jet maneuvering before takeoff poked its wing into the nose of a second jet on an O'Hare Airport runway Monday, putting both planes out of service but causing no injuries.

Airline spokesmen said a Flying Tigers 747 cargo jet wheeling into takeoff position clipped a United Airlines 747 with 414 people aboard at 11:30 a.m.

The Flying Tigers plane lost about eight inches of its wingtip, while the United jet suffered a 10-inch gash below the pilot's window, the spokesmen said.

The Federal Aviation Administration is investigating the incident.

Spokesmen for both airlines said both aircraft had been given proper clearance to taxi.

The United flight, bound for Honolulu, already had been delayed more than an hour when the incident occurred. The passengers were put on another plane and left two hours later.

Mideast envoy may leave job

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Middle East mediator Phillip Habib is discussing with State Department officials whether to leave his post as special envoy, administration officials said Monday.

The officials said a decision about Habib's future is expected to be made before Secretary of State George Shultz leaves Thursday on a trip to Asia.

Habib met with President Reagan, Shultz, national security adviser William Clark and White House chief of staff James Baker for about 20 minutes Monday. He is expected to meet again with Shultz on Tuesday.

Reagan told reporters returning from a Mississippi fundraiser on Air Force One that the issue of Habib's future role did not come up during his meeting on the president's plan for peace in the Middle East.

Thieves pilfer $9-million gems

LONDON (UPI) — In one of Britain's biggest gem hauls, thieves wearing Halloween masks ransacked a jewelry store vault in four minutes Monday and escaped with $9 million in royal diamonds and crowns, rings and coronets of the royal family, it is said.

The officials said a decision about Habib's future is expected to be made before Secretary of State George Shultz leaves Thursday on a trip to Asia.

said flight director Tommy Holway.

"Everyone is doing an exceptionally good job and we're well pleased with the progress to date."

Crippen fired the shuttle's two maneuvering engines twice to drop the winged spaceship to an orbit 141 miles high to meet requirements for the satellite operations.

The 3,307-pound satellite, called SPAS for shuttle payload satellite, is intended to become a space platform for rent to carry commercial experiments.

The astronauts also lowered the cabin pressure in the shuttle — from 14.7 pounds per square inch to 10.2 psi — in an experiment to see if preparation time for future spacewalks will be shorter.

On Tuesday, Ms. Ride will operate an experiment in space medicine production that commercial developers hope will lead to the production of a hormone in a few years to treat a disease caused by a hormone deficiency. The specific hormone and condition remains a trade secret.

Ms. Ride began her day with a jog on the ship's treadmill.

"I guess I am probably one of the few people to run across the Indian Ocean," Ms. Ride said as the Challenger zipped around the Earth.

The astronauts were awakened at 12:30 a.m. MDT. They will be getting up earlier each day to be on schedule for their unprecedented landing at the Cape just after dawn Friday.

At the Kennedy Space Center officials were monitoring weather forecasts and rehearsing for the shuttle's glide home from space. Challenger cannot land in rain, widespread cloud cover or strong crosswinds.

Space agency officials have equipped Challenger to extend the mission up to two days if Friday's landing has to be waived off.

The astronauts already have fulfilled the major goal of their $250 million mission — launching two communications satellites for paying customers.

The astronauts were in a chatty mood Monday bantering with each other and ground controllers at the Johnson Space Center in Houston.

"Fahlan, the crew cutter, tossed off the best line of the day."

"Sally and I haven't been so high since the Oktoberfest (when the two astronauts visited the West German satellite plant in Munich)," he said. "I don't believe he said that."

"There's a 16-second blank in our tape," said McBride.

"Thank you, GC (ground controller)," Ms. Ride said.

compromise would pass both the full House and Senate.

Members of the joint conference committee have been trying since June 8 to blend the House-passed $361 billion budget and the Senate-passed $55.1 billion blueprint into a single compromise the full House and Senate will pass.

Kansas Budget Committee Chairman Jim Jones, D-Ola., and Senate Budget Committee Chairman Pete Domenici, R-N.M., agreed to spending and tax targets during a private meeting Saturday.

The Senate-passed budget, which was approved by only one vote, called for tax increases of $9 billion next year and $73 billion over the next three years, a 6 percent increase for the military, and spending about $11 billion more than Reagan wants on non-defense domestic programs. It had a $179 billion deficit.

The House-passed budget, with a $171.9 billion deficit, called for tax increases of $30 billion next year and $229 billion over the next three years, a 4 percent increase in defense, and spending about $29 billion more than Reagan's budget proposal called for only nominal tax increases in the next two years, a 10 percent increase in defense spending and a virtual freeze on non-defense domestic spending. It contained a deficit of $184.1 billion.

Synopsis:

A brief interval of warmer temperatures will welcome summer to the Magic Valley.

The new season will arrive in Idaho at 3:00 p.m. today.

But temperatures still will remain below normal and another spell of showers and cooler readings appears in prospect later in the week.

On Monday, most of Idaho was under a layer of clouds, and temperatures were well below normal, with most readings in the 60s. Monday's 75 was the state's warmest. The coolest morning low was 24 at Stanley, with minimums ranging up to 50 at Lewiston.

In Twin Falls on Monday, the pollen count was 42 per cubic meter of air.

High pressure will bring dryer, warmer conditions to Idaho through Thursday. Then another Pacific frontal system will produce showers and cooler temperatures on Friday and Saturday.

The agricultural forecast calls for total precipitation for the next five days of near .10 inch in southern Idaho. The best chance for showers will be Friday and Saturday. Daily average evaporation rates will be near .30 inch by Wednesday, then drop to near .21 inch by Saturday. Winds for spraying will be near 10 mph today and Wednesday afternoon.

Elsewhere in the nation on Monday, the hottest temperature reported was 109 degrees at Gila Bend, Ariz. and the coolest was 29 at Butte, Mont.

Court supports men's rights

By ELIZABETH OLSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court took a step Monday toward equal rights for men, ruling that companies must provide wives of male workers the same pregnancy benefits given to female workers.

Voting 7-2, the court upheld a ruling that a Virginia company's insurance plan discriminated against men by limiting benefits for their spouses while giving female workers more benefits.

Justice John Paul Stevens, writing for the majority, held the plan of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. harms men because "the protection it affords to married male employees is less comprehensive than the protection it affords to married female employees."

The plan, Stevens pointed out, provides "limited pregnancy-related benefits for employees' wives, and affords more extensive coverage for employees' spouses for all other medical conditions requiring hospitalization."

"Thus, the husbands of female employees receive a specified level of hospitalization coverage for all conditions; the wives of male employees receive such coverage except for pregnancy-related conditions."

The 1978 Pregnancy Discrimination Act "makes it clear that it is discriminatory to treat pregnancy-related conditions less favorably than other medical conditions," the court majority concluded.

Justices William Rehnquist and Lewis Powell dissented, maintaining the "plain language" of the law "leaves little room for the court's conclusion that the act was intended to extend beyond female workers."

In other actions Monday, the court:
- Gave police more protection from the danger of assault by people under arrest, ruling 9-0 that officers can look inside purses, wallets and other personal belongings when booking someone into jail.

It unanimously held that airport narcotics agents may use trained dogs to sniff out drugs in passengers' luggage without obtaining a search warrant.

Over two justices' objections, refused to consider a Virginia, Minn., case over whether public hospitals must perform abortions if the operation is not required to save the mother's life.

Rejected a former Miss-Wyoming's attempt to reinstate a $28.5 million libel verdict against Penthouse magazine for an article about the fantastic sexual powers of a Miss America contestant.

Agreed to decide whether parents of black students in seven states may sue the federal government for granting tax exemptions to racially segregated private schools.

At issue in the Newport News case was whether discrimination in regard to pregnancy is automatically unlawful sex discrimination. The court agreed, saying that under the 1978 law discrimination based on a woman's pregnancy is "on its face, discrimination because of her sex."

"By making it clear that an employer could not discriminate on the basis of an employee's pregnancy, Congress did not erase the original prohibition (in Title VII of the 1964 Civil Rights Act) against discrimination on the basis of an employee's sex," the court held.

Judge won't hold up draft law injunction

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI) — A federal judge Monday refused to delay an injunction against a law requiring men to register for the draft to qualify for student financial aid.

U.S. District Judge Donald Alsop denied the government's motion for the delay, ruling "the government failed to prove it would suffer irreparable harm if the injunction overrules the law scheduled effective July 1."

Alsop ruled last week the law was unconstitutional under the Fifth Amendment because it would force men to incriminate themselves when applying for federal student financial aid. The injunction went into effect immediately.

The selective service law requires all males to register within 60 days before or 30 days after their 18th birthday or risk prosecution.

The Minnesota Civil Liberties Union filed the suit on behalf of three anonymous Minnesota students who said they had not registered and would be denied financial aid for college this fall unless the law was overturned or changed.

Amy Silberberg, MCLU legal counsel, said "the group was 'extremely pleased' with Alsop's ruling. She said Alsop's action affirms the validity of the group's contention that the law violated protections against self-incrimination and the denial of student aid for non-registration would have punished students who had not been convicted of a crime.

She said the MCLU is "optimistic" Alsop's ruling will stand up on appeal. Last week's ruling also said Section 1113 of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, passed by Congress last fall, was an unconstitutional "bill of attainder" — a law passed by a legislative body taking away the rights of a certain group of people.

Nell Koslowe, special assistant attorney general, had asked for the stay pending an appeal. Koslowe said last week the Justice Department would appeal directly to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Alsop's order, issued June 17 but dated June 16, affixed a preliminary injunction barring the government from asking male students on their financial aid applications whether they have registered for the draft.

Alsop last week ordered the Department of Education to notify all college student financial aid officers that students cannot be compelled to submit draft information.

He also said the government must eliminate all references to the draft in any student aid literature mailed after June 30.

No jury probe of escape snafu

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A county grand jury does not have enough time in its term to investigate the snafu that allowed an escaped mental patient to walk away from a prison in China near the home where four people were slaughtered, foreman Joseph Healy said Monday.

Healy said, however, the panel would recommend the succeeding grand jury take up the matter. The next grand jury will be impaneled July 1.

Singer Tammy Wynette greets President Reagan with a kiss.

President seeks support for policy

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — President Reagan told enthusiastic Mississippi Republicans Monday that Americans must not heed those who would "allow Central America to be turned into a string of anti-American Marxist dictatorships."

Reagan said the United States must not hand Central America to "the Soviet-Cuban-Nicaraguan axis."

The president flew to Jackson, Miss., to attend what was billed as a tribute to Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., but actually was designed to help the state GOP amass funds for the 1983 campaign, including a gubernatorial bid in the heavily Democratic state.

In two meetings during the 90-minute visit, Reagan repeated his rallying call for support of his policies in Central America, and did a bit of bragging about cutting back on government paperwork at home.

Departing from his speech text to some 2,000 warmly applauding supporters, Reagan announced that his committee to reduce government waste already has cut the federal payroll by 65,000 people and eliminated 73 million copies of federal publications.

One of the 2,200 banished bulletins, he said, was a pamphlet advising housewives "how to have a sparkling clean sink." But most of the speech was serious recitation of campaign themes.

"We must not listen to those who would disarm our friends and allow Central America to be turned into a string of anti-American Marxist dictatorships," Reagan warned.

"The result could be a tidal wave of refugees — and this time they'll be 'feet people' and not 'boat people' — swarming into our country seeking a safe haven from communist repression to our South."

Reagan's address on a flying round-trip to Mississippi came only hours after he was briefed at the White House on the Central American crisis by Richard Stone, his new ambassador dealing with that area.

Pope stirs Poland, Solidarity's support

Not too many months ago, Polish union leader Lech Walesa was under house arrest and the Solidarity movement he headed seemed splintered and weak. Poland's military regime was moving relentlessly to end the movement's influence, rooting out sympathizers in city after city.

But appearances are deceiving. Pope John Paul's dramatic return to Poland this week suddenly has put the regime of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski on the defensive.

On the one hand, it wants none of the fervent Polish patriotism that Pope John Paul implies in every public speech. That patriotism plays directly into the hands of the Solidarity movement, which now seems about to break out again as an above-ground movement.

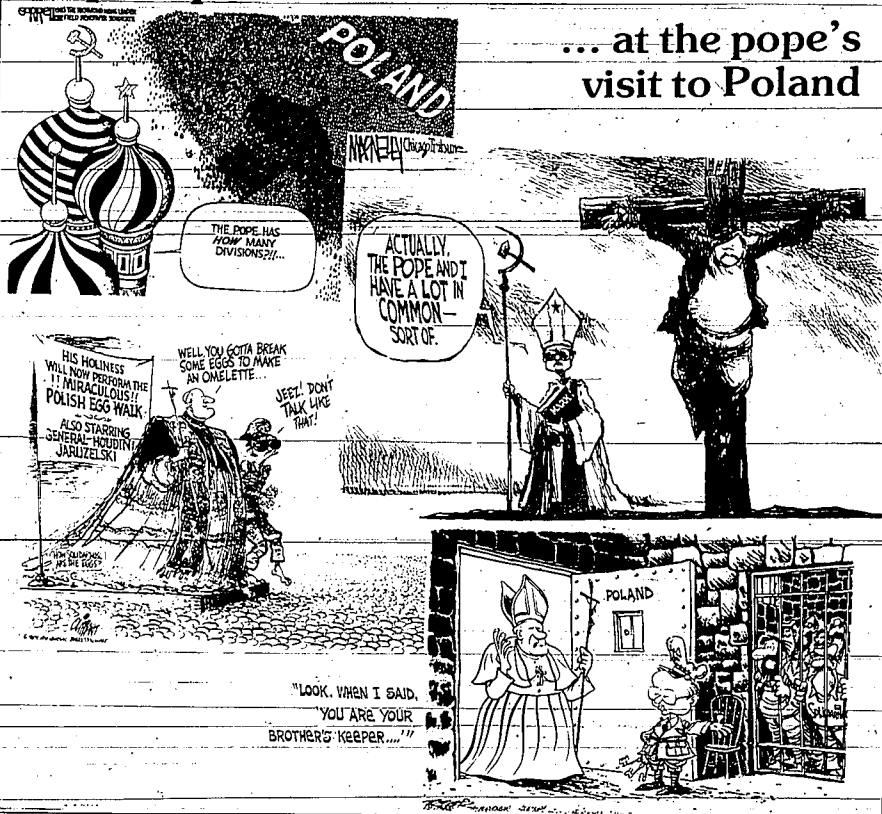

On the other hand, the regime can hardly deny this Polish pope access to the huge crowds that have gathered to hear him in heavily Catholic and nationalistic Poland.

Buoyed by Poland's struggle for freedom, Pope John has been bolder and bolder, thrusting the church into a more assertive role with the regime.

The risk is that events will rush forward, resulting in a coalescing of the very forces of freedom and unionism that the regime so fears.

Some confrontation-minded folks in the United States may think that good, but most observers are wary of what the regime's, and the Soviet's reaction, would be. A confrontation between Solidarity supporters and the regime is not, after all, as remote a possibility as it once seemed.

A directive to CSI

The editorial in Sunday's Times-News does a disservice to the students, faculty, and staff at CSI. Your statement "It generally has shied away from a broader academic role of educating young people in the liberal arts of the professions" is not correct.

CSI offers curricula in most of the professional fields from pre-med to pre-engineering. In addition, students can select any number of liberal arts areas of study from art to music to literature to foreign languages.

I would suggest that anyone considering attending CSI obtain a copy of the new 1983-1985 catalog (one will be sent to you on request) and see for yourself the great variety and fine quality of academic offerings available.

Keep flag-flying high

No, you did not print my article that I sent to you about our flag and Flag Day. That did not surprise me at all. I may be so reticent about the flag that I'm being the silent one, but I spell very much for our country.

To say anything about our flag or Flag Day just might start people to wonder what's going on here. It could even start the people to realize that we have a flag and it means something. It could even inspire our children to see our flags flying freely, causing them to observe and to understand more about our flag—it could cause our aliens and our enemies to take notice that the American people are surely patriotic in standing for the flag of their country.

In my thinking the press should be obliged to speak out about the flag of our country. We most certainly should not hide our flag, but what are we doing when we fail to publish anything or display it.

We have the flag today because of the sacrifice of our forefathers and of later years as well. We should be glad to bring it before the people and to cause some alertness in their lives.

No offense that I did not give my article consideration, but probably thought it mediocre and not worth the time. I know where I stand for the flag of our country, we should keep it flying high.

Ghosts of classes past haunt reunions

News Item -- Dr. Jack Sparacino, a psychologist, did a survey on high school and college class reunions and came to the conclusion the difference between people who attended them and those that did not return wasn't based on the status they hold today, but the past status they held in school.

Art Buchwald

"Herman, darling, are you going to your high school's 30th year reunion?"

"Why should I? They'll only start calling me 'Inky Squid.'"

"Is that what they called you in school?"

"Yeah, except for George Hankoff. He called me 'Squishy Squid.'"

"But that was years ago. You now own the largest land development company in the United States."

"That won't cut any ice with Billy Mahler. He'll still step on my foot and say it was an accident."

"You know you're exaggerating. I'm sure they'd love to see you. After all, you're the chairman of the board of a Hollywood motion picture company, and you're probably the only one who married a movie star."

"Maybe so, but I'll bet you Susan Butler still won't dance with me."

"Who is Susan Butler?"

"She was our high school's leading pom-pom girl. She used to stand on Bob Markay's shoulders and yell 'DEREEEEE FENSE!' whenever the other team was threatening to score. One time I asked her to go to a prom with me and she said, 'I don't dance with Inky Squids.'"

"Maybe she'll change her tune when you arrive at the airport in your private Lear jet."

"Milton Steiglitz will just laugh and say, 'Who would have thought that stupid Inky, with his shritail always out, would own his own airplane? It shows you what a mess the country is really in!'"

"You're making those things up, Herman. After all, you're probably the only one in your class who has a university library named after him."

"Milton never forgave me for dropping a fly-bait in the ninth inning to rob him of no-hitter."

"I never knew you played baseball on the high school team."

"I didn't. It was a sandlot game in Hollis Woods, around the corner from where I lived."

"But now you own a National Baseball League team. Milton will certainly be impressed with that."

"It won't give him back his no-hit ball game."

"Well, it's no big deal to me if you go or not. I won't know anyway there anyway."

"You're lucky. I wouldn't want you to meet

Gunner Morgan. Every day he'd go through my lunch bag and take out anything that tickled his fancy. I don't think I ever ate one of my mother's brownies the whole time I was in high school."

"It would be fun to spring on him that you now own 2,150 chocolate chip cookie franchises in the country."

"Gunner would probably find some way of taking them away from me."

"Isn't there anybody in the class that was nice?"

"Fern Haggerty never called me Squid."

"Well, you'll be glad to see her."

"Yeah, but she was built like the Goodyear blimp, and everyone in the class thought because she didn't call me Squid, there was something serious going on between us. If I see her at the class reunion and I'm nice to her, they'll think there's still something going on between us."

"Maybe Fern went on Weight Watchers. After all, that was 30 years ago. She may be a very beautiful woman now."

"If she is, she probably won't talk to me, and if she does, she'll probably call me Squid."

"So I take it you're not going to the reunion."

"Not!! Arnie Krasner is going to be there."

"All right—what was your relationship with Arnie Krasner?"

"He was my best friend until he told everyone in class I slept on a rubber sheet."

Art Buchwald writes from Washington for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

Nixon might offer toast to work of his court appointees

When Richard M. Nixon ran for president 15 years ago, he made two major promises concerning the Supreme Court.

First, he said he would change the court's personnel to be more conservative on social and political issues in general, but especially on issues involving the conflict between law enforcement and individual rights.

Second, he zeroed in on one set of constitutional rules fashioned by the Earl Warren court that made it more difficult than the conservatives thought necessary for police to obtain search warrants to seize evidence.

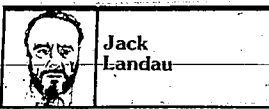

Nixon might well give himself a toast now. His conservative appointees to control the court, and they recently went 90 percent of the way to reversing the Warren court's limits on police search warrants.

The issue of the court deal with is the so-called "exclusionary rule," which is strongly resented by law enforcement officials because it excludes from trials evidence obtained by police in violation of a person's Fourth Amendment protection against unreasonable searches and seizures.

Chief Justice Warren Burger, law enforcement officials and conservatives in general have long argued that evidence seized in violation of the Fourth Amendment should be admissible in court because the evidence—such as a murder weapon or a cache of drugs—has a legitimate bearing on the case.

The remedy, they have argued, is not to allow a guilty person to go free because police have violated a technical rule on search warrants, but rather to allow the suspect to sue the police for damages.

The Warren court, civil liberties groups, defense attorneys and liberals in general have argued the evidence must be excluded because otherwise the police will be encouraged to violate the Fourth Amendment. Allowing illegally seized evidence to be used in trials puts the courts in the position of approving violations of the Constitution, they say.

Furthermore, the liberals say, it is unrealistic to expect that a murder suspect, convicted because of illegally seized evidence, is going to collect enough monetary damages from police to discourage police in the future from violating the Constitution.

For the past five years, ever since the Nixon conservatives gained solid support on the court, many people have predicted that the conservative justices were laying in wait for a good case in which to reverse the exclusionary rule.

Earlier this year, the court agreed to review a case involving the seizure of drugs in which the search warrant was primarily based on an anonymous letter sent to police stating that a suburban Chicago couple—Lance and Susan Gates—were in the drug trade.

The Fourth Amendment prohibits search warrants unless the police have "probable cause" to believe that a crime has been committed and that the premises to be searched have evidence of the crime.

The Supreme Court has ruled for the past 20 years that while police are allowed to rely on confidential informants to obtain search warrants, they must have used the informant, previously so they can say he is reliable, and they should have some additional evidence on which the local judge issuing the search warrant can rely.

In Gates case, police received a letter stating the Gateses would soon go to Florida to make a drug pickup. He would go by plane and she would drive, according to the letter.

The Gateses soon did travel to Florida, and when their actions conformed to the tipster's letter, the police went to a local magistrate and obtained a search warrant for the Gateses' home. There police discovered drugs, weapons and other contraband.

In court, the Gateses made a motion to exclude all this evidence from their trial on the grounds that the anonymous tip was not reliable enough to satisfy the probable cause requirements of the Fourth Amendment. The Illinois Supreme Court agreed with them.

The State of Illinois appealed the case to the U.S. Supreme Court. It said the time had come for the court to limit the exclusionary rule and allow reliable evidence of a crime into a trial even if police had violated the Fourth Amendment.

After the Supreme Court agreed to hear the case, the stakes were set for what many court observers believed would be the conservatives' major effort to keep Nixon's promise.

But it didn't exactly work out that way. The majority opinion by the court's most conservative justice, William H. Rehnquist, said that most of the justices were in favor of keeping the exclusionary rule for the time being.

However, he then went on to lower the standards for probable cause to the point where the rule might just as well be taken off the books.

Rehnquist said that even an anonymous letter might be enough if, given the totality of the circumstances, "the letter appears to be credible."

If subsequent events verify some of the anonymous tipster's statements, as in the Gates case, that is enough "probable cause" to justify issuing the search warrant.

Rehnquist said.

Justice William J. Brennan Jr., who dissented, said the decision leaves local magistrates with so much discretion that the standard of "probable cause" is, in effect, no standard at all.

"That's a decision," Brennan said, "threatens to obliterate one of the most fundamental distinctions between our form of government, where officers are under the law, and the police state, where they are the law."

Jack Landau writes on the law for Washington News Service.

Briefly

Mammoth-hash-brown ready

CALDWELL (UPI) — Engineers, researchers and production-line workers labored for two hours Monday in a successful effort to build the world's largest hash-brown potato — a mammoth 60-foot-long slab comprised of about 16,000 spuds.

Nearly a dozen reporters looked on as J.R. Simplot Co. crews produced a hash brown weighing nearly 2,000 pounds.

Paul Quinsey, marketing director for the food-processing firm that provides french fries for the McDonald's chain, said it cost Simplot at least $10,000 to make the giant breakfast item.

The four-inch-thick hash brown was cut into four-foot lengths as it came off the assembly line, Quinsey said. The lengths were then reconnected in a huge refrigerated room, where the spud pancake will stay until it is trucked to the Backroom Breakfast Aug. 13 commemorating Caldwell's 100th birthday.

Holdup suspect still at large

BOISE (UPI) — Charges have been filed in the armed robbery of about $8,000 from a Midvale bank, but federal authorities said Monday the suspect was still at large.

Dennis Dale Blanchard, age and address unknown, was indicted last week by a federal grand jury for stealing cash, checks and money orders May 25 from a branch of Treasure Valley Bank.

The grand jury indictment said Blanchard was armed with a handgun believed to be a .44-caliber Virginia Dragon.

A police search near Midvale in southwestern Idaho the day of the robbery failed to reveal any signs of the suspect, and further attempts were called off several days later.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Howen said Blanchard has lived in the Northwest, but he said he did not know if the man had a permanent address.

A warrant for Blanchard's arrest was issued Friday.

Patrolman quits second post

NAMPA (UPI) — A patrolman who investigated an accident involving Canyon County Coroner James Merritt said Monday he has resigned his post as deputy coroner.

Nampa Police Officer Chris Klein said he submitted his written resignation to Merritt late last week but does not want to publicly discuss the reasons for his decision.

Acting Nampa Police Chief Glen Crawford has said his office is looking into allegations Klein was involved in a conflict of interest by serving as a deputy coroner.

Klein failed to arrest the coroner at the scene of a June 10 accident in Nampa involving Merritt, 48, and William D. Jackson of Evergreen, Colo.

Jackson then made a citizen's arrest of the coroner. The coroner was later charged with operating a vehicle under the influence of alcohol, and has pleaded innocent to the complaint.

Truck crash kills Idahoan

PRIEST RIVER (UPI) — Authorities say a millworker died early Monday when his pickup truck slammed into a mill truck about 7 1/2 miles southeast of Priest River.

Police say Steven Lee Wilson, 28, Priest River, was dead at the scene of the accident, which occurred at 5:30 a.m. on DuPont Road near the northern Idaho town.

Priest River Police Sgt. Wally Mitchell said Wilson's truck apparently went out of control on a curve and slammed nearly head-on into the log truck.

The driver of the empty log truck, Harold Ellis, 54, Priest River, was treated at a Newport, Wash., hospital for cuts and bruises, Mitchell said.

Wilson was driving to work at a sawmill near Priest River when the accident occurred, the police chief said.

Montana man dies in wreck

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — An Anaconda, Mont., man was killed in a weekend traffic accident on Interstate 15 which critically injured a 19-year-old passenger in his pickup truck.

Idaho State Police said Steven Isaacson, 22, died Sunday of injuries he sustained in the mishap shortly before noon on the freeway two miles east of Sage Junction.

Two of the three passengers in the vehicle — Isaacson's wife, Marlene, 22, and his brother, John Isaacson, 21 — escaped with only minor injuries. But John Isaacson's wife, Doris, was taken to Parkview Hospital and was listed in critical condition, police said.

Idaho crime rate rises 10% in quarter

BOISE (UPI) — Crime in Idaho rose nearly 10 percent during the first three months of 1983, indicating a reversal from recent declines in major offenses, state Law Enforcement Department spokesman Bill Overton said Monday.

The crime rate rose 9.7 percent during the first quarter of 1983, with the largest jump recorded in the number of rapes, Overton said. "It is significant in that it is the first major rise since 1980, and it may indicate a change in the crime rates we've been seeing," Overton said.

But he said the rise was not unexpected because it was doubted a slowdown in the number of criminal offenses could continue indefinitely.

"It's not unexpected because the very nature of people and statistics is that they do change," Overton said. "It's been going down for some time, and a rise is to be expected."

The 9.7 percent hike compares to an overall increase of 9 percent recorded during the past five years, he said.

Figures from all of 1982 showed a decline of 9 percent compared to the year before, Overton said. He said he could not predict how high the 1983 figure will be by the end of the year.

The statistics compiled from 99 county and city police departments show a 17.1 percent increase in the number of rapes.

The only other type of violent crime that increased was aggravated assault, which went up 2.8 percent, Overton said.

The number of robberies dropped 10.1 percent, while seven murders were recorded — the same figure during the first three months of last year.

Most property-related crimes are on the rise, with burglary up 4.2 percent; larceny, 13.2 percent and motor vehicle theft, 9.1 percent.

The number of arson cases dropped 14 percent, Overton said.

Overton praised crime watch groups, saying the figures would be even higher without citizen efforts.

Fiddle contest starts

WEISER (UPI) — A special contest for young fiddlers was held Monday for the first day of the 30th annual National Oldtime Fiddlers Contest.

The weeklong contest begins at 8 p.m. every night in the Weiser High School gymnasium with between 10,000 and 15,000 people expected to attend, spokeswoman Judy Parsons says.

She said 310 contestants from 30 states have signed up so far to vie for six titles. She predicted the figure will near last year's 350 contestants by the time pre-registration closes.

The highlight of the event is Saturday night's grand championship, which will be followed by an awards ceremony for all divisions.

A total $7,690 in cash prizes range from $15 for the children's divisions and $1,200 for the national grand champion.

Parsons said $7 bleacher seats still are available for the Saturday night performance.

The fiddle contest Tuesday will feature competition in the 65 and older division, while Wednesday's competition will be for teenagers.

Boisean denies mail theft charge

BOISE (UPI) — U.S. District Court officials said Monday a Boise man has pleaded innocent to a charge of possession of stolen mail.

Erion Leroy Pushard Jr. was released from custody after denying the charge handed down last week by a federal grand jury. Pushard is accused of filing two sacks of mail June 3 at a downtown Boise parking lot near the city's main post office.

Two Boise police officers who said they witnessed Pushard's actions said the suspect was examining bank checks made to another Boise resident.

Court officials said no further court hearings had been scheduled.

Leftists lose 31 in fighting

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — Thirty-one leftists were killed in battles the last five days in the rugged highlands of Guatemala, the army said Monday. Three civilian militiamen and two civilians also were killed.

Seven soldiers were wounded in the fighting, the army said.

The announcement came as President Efraín Ríos Montt, under mounting pressure to restore democracy, held meetings with representatives of 14 political parties to discuss possible elections.

Peruvian labor leader jailed

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — The leader of Peru's largest labor coalition was arrested on charges he created "public disorder" by staging two illegal strikes and planning a third in defiance of a state of emergency, police said Monday.

Interior Minister Luis Percovich also said Baldomero Valenzuela, president of the leftist Popular Democratic Union — was arrested on charges he opened "this is not a persecution of the left," Percovich claimed.

He said Isidoro Gamarra, president of the powerful Peruvian Workers Federation was arrested for "altering public order" by organizing nationwide strikes in 1981 and in March of this year.

Begin intervenes in strike

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Prime Minister Menachem Begin met with hunger-striking doctors Monday in a move to halt spreading work action by physicians that threatened to collapse Israel's socialized medical system.

"I feel that the government is just trying to humiliate me," said Dr. Yamir Amit, 34, from Jerusalem's Hadassah Hospital, whose doctors joined the protest last.

In all, 1,500 doctors from 23 hospitals from Nahariya in the north to Beer Sheva in the south stopped only water and refused food to press demands for a 100 percent pay raise.

Finance Minister Yoram Aridor has offered only a 30 percent increase, saying any higher amount would break the wage agreement with other workers.

Americans use cut-rate fares

LONDON (UPI) — A British travel agency, out to undercut the cheap trans-Atlantic fares of People Express by $40, welcomed its first flight of 400 tourists Monday from the United States.

The London-based Slade Travel Agency is offering a $260 roundtrip fare between Britain and the United States until the end of July to compete with People Express' fare of $300.

Islanders vote today on switch

KOLONIA, Micronesia — Thousands of Pacific islanders will vote today on whether to end 25 years of American administration over Micronesia.

Tosiwo Nakayama, president of the remote island "group spread" over a million square miles of ocean, predicted Monday that the plebiscite would pass.

"Yes" there is no question, I am confident the voters will approve it," said President Tosiwo Nakayama, sitting barfoot in his modest office in downtown Kolonia.

About 40,000 people — half the population — were expected to vote on whether to end U.S. trusteeship over the western Pacific archipelago.

In place of the trusteeship, the islanders will choose a 15-year Compact of Free Association, giving them complete internal self-government but delegating defense to Washington, said Nakayama.

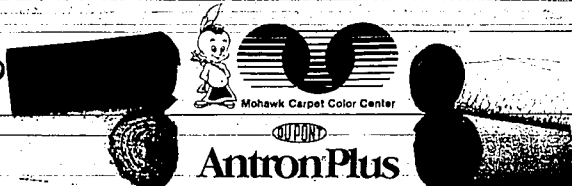

"The question is not really whether it will pass, but rather how many people will bother to vote," said an American observer.

The compact would list the United States as much as a "partner" in aid and must be approved by Congress.

The four-year-old Federated States of Micronesia comprises four tiny island group states — Ponape, Yap, Truk and Kosrae — with a total land area of only 271 square miles scattered over 1 million square miles of the western Pacific.

The islanders will travel to remote polling stations by car, canoe and on foot, and some results may not reach the capital for two weeks, said Information Officer Tom Bryan.

For double slaying in Buhl

Suspect will be arraigned in hospital bed

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Keith Max Rosencrantz will be arraigned today from his hospital bed on charges that he "murdered" his former girlfriend and her male companion.

The 30-year-old Castleford man is accused of firing shotgun blasts into the victims' chests late Saturday night, before turning the weapon on himself, resulting in a wound to his left shoulder.

Rosencrantz remained in serious condition Monday night at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, where he is in the intensive-care unit.

First-degree murder charges were filed Monday in the shooting deaths of Cathy Alice Gittel, 30, of Buhl, and 28-year-old Michael Wayne Lee of Twin Falls.

That triggered the issuance of an arrest warrant, and Rosencrantz officially remained in custody without bond.

Judge Michael Redman is scheduled to hold the arraignment at 11 a.m. Aside from inflating the court case, the action will make Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies responsible for guarding the defendant. As of Monday, Buhl police were performing that task, according to Sheriff Jim Munn. Buhl police say they do not know when the shooting occurred. But a neighbor, R.A. Metzler of Buhl, reported hearing gunshots at 9:30 p.m., according to a probable-cause statement that has been filed with the Fifth District Magistrate Court.

Metzler said he then went to the Gittel residence at about 10 p.m. and found the victims' bodies in the living room and the defendant lying in the doorway. Rosencrantz is alleged to have asked Metzler, "Why did I do it? I loved her."

As of Monday, Buhl police said they had no answer. "We don't know why he did it, why he shot them and why he shot himself," said Chief David Hartway. "It's something we have yet to get."

Gittel's 2-year-old daughter, who was home at the time of the shooting, was not injured.

She has been placed in the custody of an aunt, who lives in Buhl.

Rosencrantz and Gittel had lived together until about one month ago, when she returned to Buhl, according to Elroy Keen of Castleford, a friend of the defendant.

At about that same time, the woman and Lee began dating, according to Lee's father, Monte Lee of Twin Falls.

The probable-cause statement alleges that earlier in the day Saturday, the defendant had expressed depression to Keen over the state of his relationship with Gittel. The two men had spent the afternoon fishing.

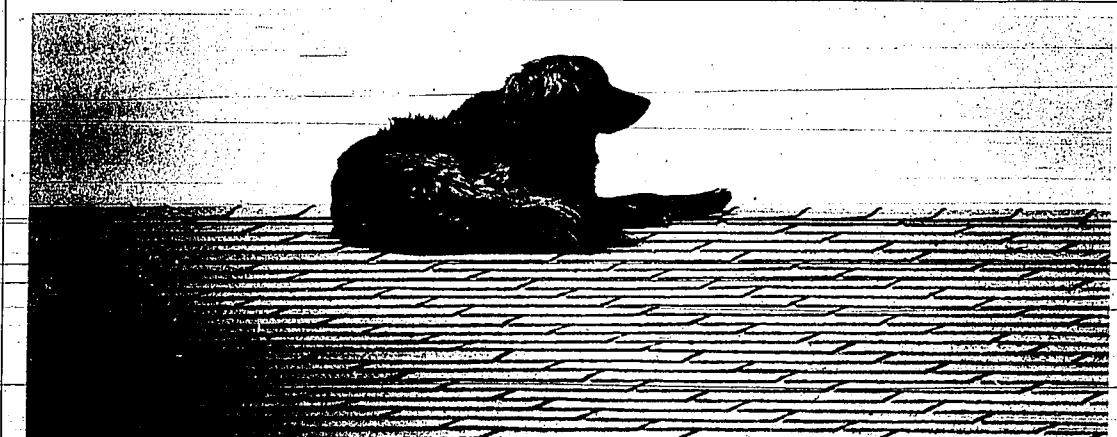

Later in the day, they drove to the Gittel residence. But Rosencrantz remained in the car while Keen met with the victim.

Keen indicated he last saw Rosencrantz at the County Tap Bar in Castleford at about 9 p.m. The defendant gave no indication of being upset at that time. Keen told The Times-News on Monday.

"As far as I was concerned, he was in one of the best moods I had seen in a long time."

The shooting came just one day after Rosencrantz had pleaded recent to charges of drunken driving and possession and exhibition of a dangerous weapon.

At the time of Rosencrantz's June 12 arrest for drunken driving, Buhl police said they confiscated a rifle, which allegedly was resting upon the front seat of his vehicle. He had been released without bond, pending the outcome of his case in magistrate court.

A real 'watch' dog

The top of a house is not a place one usually finds a dog — unless his name is Spooey, or in this case, Quarterback. Quarterback, who belongs to Mark Bodwell of 273 Sunrise Blvd. N. in Twin Falls, spends many hours on the roof of his owner's home. Bodwell says his dog likes to see what is going on in the neighborhood and can't when he's penned.

Builder's 'bullpen' upsets residents

Twin Falls council will study the issue

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls City Council has put off for further study a complaint by a group of homeowners against Wills Inc., a Twin Falls construction company.

The homeowners presented council with a petition on Monday night. It asks for the removal of a nearby construction yard, which Wills Inc. recently located in their neighborhood.

Council members took no action other than to approve a motion to take the petition under advisement. However, council members expressed a hope that a compromise can be reached, and that city staff members can draft an ordinance that will address the problem on a citywide basis.

The homeowners live in the Green Trees Estates, Indian Trails and Carriage Estates subdivisions in the eastern part of the city. Wills Inc. is developing a subdivision of new homes nearby.

"Place yourselves in their homes," said former city manager Jean Milar, speaking for the homeowners.

The yard is unsightly, contains flammable materials and is surrounded by an institutional-style chain-link fence, he said.

Furthermore, it is in violation of several zoning ordinances, Milar said. The city does not allow warehousing or storage in a residential zone.

Milar was supported by several of the homeowners, including Dennis Conrad, who said that although the "bullpen" as such construction yards are called because they contain heavy equipment and supplies — is supposed to be temporary, recent experience shows it could remain there for years.

Bob Wills, the owner of Wills Inc. took exception to the homeowners' assertion that the site poses a hazard. And branding plans and diagrams for council's benefit, he showed he had located the yard on the only piece of land he owned nearby that was not being farmed.

He said he feels "entitled" to the yard if he is going to provide new housing at reasonable expense. It is not practical to store machinery and supplies far away from a large construction site, he said.

City Manager Tom Courtney said the city has made it a "longstanding practice" to allow construction yards in subdivisions as they are being developed.

In earlier action Monday night, City Council granted a non-conforming building-expansion permit to the Twin Falls Rod and Gun Club.

The approval came after a City Planning and Zoning Commission decision that the gun club is a non-conforming use of an agricultural zone. That zone allows other recreational facilities, such as golf courses.

The permit was opposed by Milar, speaking for Gordon-Greaves and Craig Nielsen, the owners and potential developers of nearby agricultural lands. He said that a community would be better if the gun club was encouraged to move elsewhere.

But Jeff Scott, the secretary of the gun club, said the city could not force the club to move since it has been at its present location since the 1920s, and such is the "grandfather" right to remain there. Moving would mean the loss of business for city motels and restaurants, he said.

A tea party?

Paper suggests protest against rising property-tax assessments

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — Rising property-tax assessments in Lincoln County have fired up protesters, who say they will hold a Boston Tea Party, 20th-century style.

The idea of sending tea bags to the Lincoln County commission in protest was suggested in the June 16 issue of the Lincoln County Journal. And so far, the county commissioners say that they've received about 25 complaints, including one from a former mayor of Shoshone.

"With the economy the way it is and people like myself on a fixed income and retired, I think the (State) Tax Commission is overriding our assessors and their ability to do what they think is right," says Ellwood Werry, a former mayor.

The dispute involves the following assessment increases: • The value of residential improvements in the city of Shoshone will increase 46 percent for 1983 property taxes, which will be due in December.

• Land values in the city of Richfield will increase more than 300 percent from 8 cents a square foot to 25 cents.

• Land values in the city of Dietrich will increase more than 250 percent, from 4 cents a square foot to 11 cents.

• Assessed values of commercial properties will decrease by 35 percent. • Lincoln County Assessor Imogene Helsey says the Tax Commission determined such increases are required to bring the county's assessments up to market value, as required by law. The state agency made that determination on the basis of reported property sales within the county.

While she does not like the order, Helsey says she lacks evidence to show the new values are inaccurate.

"If we couldn't find sales to support our battle, there was not much we could do about it," she said Monday. "The only thing at this point that anyone can do is write to their legislators, tell them they don't like the system that's used."

Such a dispute between county assessors and the Tax Commission flared for months last summer, until the Idaho Supreme Court eventually sided with the state agency. The court decision led to higher assessments in Twin Falls, Gooding, Canyon and Blaine counties.

"They told us this is what we had to do, or they will come in and do it in August like they did in Twin Falls, Gooding, Canyon and Blaine," she says.

Much of the protest concerns a relative figure, however. Assessments have little to do with how individual tax rates change from year to year.

For victims of domestic violence

Group earns grant to establish shelter home

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A group of volunteers who have harbored battered wives in their own homes for the past year have received a needed boost.

Volunteers Against Violence has been awarded a $15,750 grant to establish a shelter for victims of domestic violence.

The grant from the Idaho Council on Domestic Violence. Appointed by the governor, the council is responsible for administering state funds to aid domestic-violence victims, under a law that went into effect last July. The money comes from a fee attached to marriage licenses. Lura-Morgan Renk, one of the founders of VAV, says the grant will be used to rent a house where battered spouses and their children can be housed safely until they can "get back on their feet." The funds also will be used to hire a part-time coordinator for the shelter, to buy food and to provide funds for emergency medical and legal costs.

The money is a boost to the 15 active volunteers of the group, Renk says. Because of the intense emotions involved with domestic quarrels and violence, the volunteers were rapidly "burning out." Now some of the responsibilities and pressure will be relieved by the coordinator, she says.

Since the group began more than a year ago, the volunteers — mostly women — have housed the battered wives, as well as counseling them and answering emergency calls. Renk says: "In the first eight months of 1982, five VAV volunteers sheltered 15 women and 33 children. That did not count the telephoning by the volunteers to line up other housing with relatives and friends — or the understanding voice they supplied to a battered spouse in need, she says.

Even though a coordinator will be hired, volunteers still will be needed for counseling, intervening in family crises and maintaining the shelter, Renk says.

Volunteers Against Violence also will have to turn to the community for donations of more money and goods for the shelter. The grant, Renk says, will allow only for a "bare-bones" one-year operation of the home.

The group is planning to open the shelter as soon as possible. Eleven other grants, totaling about $145,000, have been awarded by the council to similar programs in the state. Under the domestic-violence law, the money was distributed to various regions of the state based on the percentage of marriage licenses issued in 1981, says Carol Hosler of Rupert, a manager of the Domestic Violence Council.

Each program that receives a grant must provide matching funds through donations, volunteer efforts or other contributions.

Some CSI candidates will visit school

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho board of trustees will invite some of the five finalists for the president's job to visit Twin Falls after the Fourth of July holiday, says board Chairman LeRoy Craig.

However, Craig said Monday that he could not pinpoint the exact number of candidates who will be interviewed in person until he has consulted with other board members.

The board is waiting for the Association of Community College Trustees, a Washington, D.C.-based consulting group, to provide additional information on the candidates before the group is cut further. Craig says.

The visits will give the board an opportunity to sell the candidates on CSI, as well as give board members a closer look at the applicants and their spouses, Craig says. The press also will be able to meet with the finalists at that time, he says.

CSI's interim president, Jerry Meyerboffer, is one of the finalists. The board is keeping all other application information confidential to protect the candidates' current jobs, Craig says.

CSI hired ACTC to help with the search because it could acquire information on the candidates in a discreet way, Craig says. The board will combine a 17-member citizens committee's evaluation of the candidates with information from ACTC before making a final decision, Craig says.

The citizens committee helping has done an excellent job, Craig says. It has spent a lot of time going over the candidates' resumes and credentials.

The committee rated each applicant according to the following profile: Administrative experience, community to a comprehensive community college philosophy, faculty relations and ability to raise money.

The committee also has been looking for candidates who can communicate with people in an agriculturally oriented district, as well as the Legislature, other agencies and students.

The search committee prefers someone with a Ph.D.

Two-car collision kills 21-year-old Buhl man

BUHL — A two-car collision late Sunday has claimed the life of a 21-year-old Buhl man.

Pronounced dead at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital was Danny Ellis.

Ellis reportedly suffered head and chest injuries when his car was struck three miles south and three-and-a-half miles west of Buhl, on county road 3800 North.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said the accident occurred at 10:45 p.m., when Ellis attempted to turn his westbound sub-compact car left and was struck by a westbound half-ton pickup truck, driven by 21-year-old Ty Ron Bybee of Buhl. Munn said Bybee was attempting to pass Ellis at the time.

Ellis was pronounced dead at 1:12 a.m. Monday.

A passenger in Ellis's car, 18-year-old Kerry Clark, was treated at the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital and later released. Bybee was treated at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and released.

Munn said his department's investigation has not determined the speed of the vehicles at the time of impact. No citations had been issued as of Monday, he said.

A full obituary on Ellis is on Page B2.

After June 30, water claims will cost more

TWIN FALLS — Next Thursday, June 30, will mark the last day that water users can file unrecorded water claims with the state Department of Water Resources for a $30 fee.

Starting Friday, July 1, water users will have to pay a $100 claim fee to record their water claims. And that fee will jump to $300 on July 1, 1984.

A five-year registration campaign conducted by the Department of Water Resources — has netted more than 5,000 claims. But department officials estimate that some 28,000 water rights still need to be recorded.

Ken Dumm, the department director, says many people feel their rights are legally on record because they are shown in property deeds or are on file in a county recorder's office. These recordings, however, are not sufficient under current state law, he says.

Domestic wells for single-family household use and irrigation of less than a half-acre are exempt from the filing requirements.

Filing claims are available at county courthouses, county Extension Service offices and DWR regional offices in Idaho Falls, Twin Falls, Boise and Coeur d'Alene.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ellis of Buhl; a sister, Paula Beckstead of Meridian; his maternal grandmother, Gladys Harral of Buhl; and his maternal great-grandmother, Bertha Harral of Buhl.

A private graveside service will be held Wednesday at 11 a.m. in the West End Cemetery at Buhl.

A memorial service will be held Wednesday at 2 p.m. at the First Assembly of God Church in Buhl, with the Rev. Doyt Allen officiating.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the First Assembly of God Church of the Idaho Youth Ranch, near Rupert.

The Farmer Chapel of Buhl is in charge of arrangements.

In Burley fight

Rupert youth is stabbed eight times

BURLEY — An 18-year-old Rupert youth is recovering from eight stab wounds he received during a fight with a Burley youth Sunday morning in a fight at a Burley residence.

Burley police say they suspect three juveniles, Armando Garcia was in stable condition Monday at Cassia Memorial Hospital, according to a nursing supervisor.

Police were called to a fight at the residence of Joe Almanza, 751 Conant Ave. When officers arrived, a little after midnight, several unidentified hospital personnel said the fight had broken up and the three "troublemakers" responsible had left, according to Sgt. Dave Tracy of the Burley Police Department.

The teenagers did not say that Garcia had been involved in the fight.

A few minutes later, police were notified by hospital personnel that a man had been admitted for stab wounds and bruises.

Garcia suffered three deep wounds under his left arm and five smaller wounds in the same area.

Police suspect a Burley male who recently was caught shoplifting in the store, Tracy said Monday. The man, who police would not identify, apparently

Shoplifter suspected in ransacking of Safeway

BURLEY — Police believe a suspected shoplifter ransacked the Safeway store at 1655 Overland Ave. in Burley early Sunday morning.

A woman who was delivering a newspaper to the store noticed broken glass and called police at 4:40 a.m., according to Sgt. Dave Tracy, of the Burley Police Department.

When officers arrived, they found bottles of food and eggs smashed on the floor, tipped over registers and other items thrown through the windows.

The culprit gained entry by breaking the glass on a side door and crawling in, Tracy said. During the destruction, the man must have cut himself on glass because blood was found.

Police suspect a Burley male who recently was caught shoplifting in the store, Tracy said Monday. The man, who police would not identify, apparently was out for revenge, the officer said.

Police had not yet been able to find the suspect as of Monday.

Tracy said he did not know how much damage had been done to the store, but he estimated it would run into thousands of dollars.

Safeway officials were not available for comment Monday.

High court assigns judge to hear Knigge's DWI case

TWIN FALLS — A Caldwell judge has been assigned to preside over Rep. Lawrence Knigge's magistrate court trial for drunken driving.

The Idaho Supreme Court has assigned Judge A. Marvin Cherin, of the Third District Magistrate Court, to hear the case against the Filner Republican lawmaker.

The Supreme Court appointed Cherin after it determined that magistrate judges throughout the Magic Valley had "deemed" themselves "disqualified" to preside over the case.

The 58-year-old Knigge has pleaded guilty to the charge but says he was innocent to the charge because he was under the influence of intoxicating beverages when Twin Falls police stopped his northbound pickup truck along Blue Lakes Boulevard North on May 28.

He was not jailed. If convicted, Knigge could face a maximum penalty of six months in jail and a $300 fine. Stricter penalties go into effect July 1.

A date for Knigge's trial is scheduled to be set Wednesday.

Tax

What will pay a much more important role in determining property tax payments is the "50-50" homeowners' exemption. That provision, enacted by Idaho voters in November, exempts the first 50 percent up to a maximum of $50,000, of a home's value from taxes. That means that residential property owners will see their tax payments drop, Helsey says.

And once that point has been explained, most of the protesters have been satisfied, says Douglas Hansen, the chairman of the Lincoln County Commission.

"When they understand, when it's explained to them, they're going out smiling," Hansen said Monday. "I think they're going to be a lot better about the situation. The way it looks now, unless we're backing up the wrong tree, people are real happy."

The perception of the county's political impotence against the state agency is one of the reasons for the protest, which the Lincoln County newspaper calls a symbolic gesture. The newspaper notes that its call for such a protest comes 209-and-a-half years to the date of the original Boston Tea Party.

"If each resident who protests his assessment would leave a tea bag at the Courthouse, then when the month is over, the county can pack them up and send them to the state as a tangible attention-getter. They might even get warrants and feathers for the occasion," the editorial said.

Melba Thorne, the associate editor, says the newspaper will provide protesters with free tea bags. But she says the newspaper's editorial stance was "meant to make a point, not to antagonize."

Nelson wins Open on 65-foot putt . . .

By BILL TANTON
The Baltimore Evening Sun

OAKMONT, Pa. — Larry Nelson, a soft-spoken 35-year-old Georgian, won the U.S. Open Golf Championship here Monday.

Nelson played the final three holes of this rain-delayed tournament going birdie-par-bogey for a final 72-hole score of 285, four strokes under par.

Nelson went into Monday's action on the well-soaked Oakmont Country Club course tied with defending Open champion Tom Watson. Both men were 4-under par to start off.

Nelson probably won the tournament with a 65-foot putt for a birdie on 16. That gave him a one-stroke lead on Watson, who was playing one hole behind him.

Watson appeared to be decisively beaten when he played the final hole. He drove into the rough, hit his next shot over the green and then chipped 35 feet past the hole.

Watson showed there, however, that he had not fallen apart. He made the 35-foot putt, finishing the tournament at 281.

What probably cost Watson the championship was his bogey 5 on the 17th hole. He missed a 3-foot putt, a rarity for him since he is one of the best putters on the PGA tour. The putt went 2 1/2 feet past the hole, but Watson made it coming back.

The third-place finisher at 283, three strokes back, was Gil Morgan, a consistent Oklahoma with an impeccable swing.

Nelson's victory today was the sixth of his pro career, which started in 1974. It was his second major championship. He won the PGA at the Atlanta Country Club in 1981.

Nelson's winner's purse for the Open is $72,000. That gives him earnings for the year of $101,543, which shows what kind of year he had had until Oakmont.

Nelson had entered 116 tournaments and had failed to make the cut in nine of them. On the PGA's putting competition, Nelson ranked No. 158 among the 220 touring pros.

None of that bothered him here, obviously, especially commencing with Saturday's third round. Nelson shot a 65 that day, 6 under par. His final round score today was 67.

Nelson's 132 for the final two rounds is the lowest in U.S. Open history. The old record was 136, held by several golfers.

Nelson, who stands 5-9 and weighs 155 pounds, tied for 19th in the Open last year, at Pebble Beach, Calif. That tournament was won by Watson, who was attempting today to become the first man since Ben Hogan in 1950-51 to win back-to-back Opens.

Watson's runnerup prize was $44,000. Morgan won $25,000. Tied for fourth at were Calvin Peete and Spain's Jose Ballesteros. Each won $17,968. Hal Sutton, a second-year pro, finished sixth.

'(It's) the bottom of the ninth and I have to hit a home run but I didn't do it'

—Tom Watson

. . . as Watson's putter fails him

By JOHN O'BRIEN
United Press International

OAKMONT, Pa. — Tom Watson said his finishing hole Monday in the U.S. Open was like the "bottom of the ninth and I have to hit a home run but I didn't do it."

Watson, who lost his bid to become the first man to win consecutive U.S. Opens since Ben Hogan did it in 1950 and '51, finished second at the demanding Oakmont Country Club course, one stroke behind Larry Nelson's 4-under-par 280.

Watson tied at 4-under with Nelson when play began at 10 a.m. EDT Monday, putted out at the 14th hole following Sunday's suspension of play because of rain, and played holes 15 through 18. Nelson, who played the final three holes Monday, canned a 182-foot birdie putt of 15 but bogied 18 to finish at 4-under.

Watson lost the vital stroke on par at 17, after his second shot went into a right-side bunker, and he put "the best bunker shot of my life" some seven feet from the hole, but missed the putt and settled for bogey.

Watson, however, called his second shot at 18 more significant than the bogey at 17 that dropped him to 3-under.

After a booming 300-yard drive on the par-4 156-yard 18th, he selected a six iron and went for the flag but the shot landed 25 yards over the green and his chance for a birdie and a tie with Nelson died.

Asked what the crucial shot was, he said, "That iron on 18. It was the one shot I couldn't afford to miss but I did. Eighteen was like the bottom of the ninth and I have to hit a home run but I didn't do it."

Leaders' cards

OAKMONT, Pa. (UPI) — Cards of the leaders in the U.S. Open golf championship at Oakmont Country Club:

Par out	444 543
4 3 5 6	3 6
Par in	445 344
3 4 4 3 5	7 1
Par total, 4 rounds	—284
Nelson out	443 542
4 3 4 3	3 3
Nelson in	445 324
2 4 5 3 3	6 7
Nelson total	—280
Watson out	433 442
5 2 4 3	3 1
Watson in	546 344
3 5 4 3 8	6 9
Watson total	—281

"I had the opportunity," added Watson, who took home the $44,000 second-place prize. "On 18 he (Nelson) opened the door but I couldn't slip through it."

Watson said he played well enough to win but praised Nelson, whose 132 shattered by four strokes the all-time low score for the final 36 holes of the U.S. Open.

"The other guy played better," he said.

Watson said he was "very pleased with my play this week — I played some very good golf. But I hit the wrong shot at the wrong time and day."

Watson said before the British Open, a tournament he won last year, he will play in the Western Open, which he must win to gain a berth on the Ryder Cup team. Watson, 33, who has 22 PGA tour wins, has seven 20 Top 10 finishes in 1983 but no wins.

Buhl coach signs on at Jerome

By SALLY WILSON
Dallas Morning News

JEROME — Bob Allen, who has coached Buhl High School's boys' basketball program for the past three seasons, was hired Monday as the head coach at Jerome High.

"We feel he's a bright, up-and-coming young coach who will be good for our state basketball program," grades seven through 12, said Jerome High athletic director Jon Jundt. Allen will replace Pat Hicks, who resigned last month to become an assistant to Terry University of Idaho basketball coach Bill Trumbo.

"I think it's a professional advancement," said Allen Monday night. From Helena, Mont., where he is participating in a basketball clinic, Allen is a 36-year-old and obviously a very good program.

Both Jerome and Buhl are Class A-2 schools and members of the Cross-State and South-Central Idaho conferences.

Vilas, Clerc fall by wayside in first round at Wimbledon

By SALLY WILSON
Dallas Morning News

LONDON — The grass at Wimbledon appeared to cover the entire court, but the players saw something different: a deep chasm in the court called the first round.

No. 1 seed Jimmy Connors and No. 2 John McEnroe made it safely across on a sunny Monday afternoon, but No. 4 seed Guillermo Vilas, No. 7 seed Jose-Luis Clerc and No. 9 seed Steve Denton of Texas, did not. Vilas went down to former University of Houston player Nekeia Odior 3-6, 5-7, 6-9 (7-7), 7-5, 6-2 in the Nigerian's first appearance on hallowed Centre Court.

Denton, whose big serve is tailored for the slick grass courts, got caught looking too far down the draw.

The former University of Texas player couldn't get his first serve in against New Zealand's Chris Lewis. Denton had beaten him in their last three matches — and let a great draw slip away. 6-4, 4-6, 7-6 (7-3), 4-6, 6-3. Denton should have vilas in the fourth round and clay-courter Mats Wilander in the quarters.

Argentina has only won four matches since March, so the ease of the victory by Claudio Panatta probably wasn't a surprise to many — even those who might have confused C. Panatta with Adriano Panatta, the Italian champion and Claudio's older brother.

During the afternoon, McEnroe, Connors and No. 10 seed Billie Jean King had treated the first round as the greatest hurdle in the 2-week All-England Lawn Tennis Championships. McEnroe and Connors won in straight sets; McEnroe eliminated Ben Testerman, 6-4, 7-6, 6-2, while Connors beat Eddie Edwards, 6-4, 7-5, 6-3.

Indeed, McEnroe has lost in the first round (1978 to Eric Van Dillen), and Bjorn Borg and Connors have narrowly escaped several times. Vilas should have escaped in three sets Monday evening.

Despite the turmoil caused by Vilas' impending suspension, the Argentine remained composed enough to serve for the match at 7-6 in a third set and then took the set on a service winner and ace.

set and then cashed in on constant go-for-broke shots in the fifth set.

Vilas never played badly: He just allowed the reins to fall out of his hands.

"I wasn't exploding at the right moment," said Vilas, who at age 30 faces a 1-year suspension by the Men's International Pro Tennis Council for allegedly accepting a $20,000 tournament guarantee fee.

"I was playing correctly, and you need to do more than that here. It's not been an easy time. Right before the match, people are coming up and telling me they feel sorry for me, asking me if I took the money."

Odior, a 1981 Houston graduate with a degree in marketing, has a big serve suitable for grass. He upset John Kriek on the grass at Newport, R.I., last summer after coming from love-5 in the third set. He served out the victory over Vilas with a service winner and an ace. When asked about the match point he saved, the Lagos, Nigeria, native couldn't remember it.

"Would you believe it, I couldn't ask for more," said Odior, ranked No. 82. "I built up a lot of confidence in the fourth set, and I knew I had to pour it on."

Malone, Erving lead NBA all-star choices

By JEFF HASEN
United Press International

NEW YORK — Philadelphia center Moses Malone, with a trophy mantle as broad as his huge shoulders, Monday headed the 1982-83 NBA All-Star team announced by the league.

Malone, who won the Most Valuable Player award last week for the third time in five years, is joined on the first team by a teammate, forward Julius Erving, Boston forward Larry Bird and guards Magic Johnson of Los Angeles and Sidney Moncrief of Milwaukee.

Erving, Bird and the 6-foot-10, 235-pound Malone were repeat selections from last year's first team, while Johnson and Moncrief were named to the second team a year ago.

Named to the 1982-83 All-NBA second team were forwards Alex English of Denver and Buck Williams of New Jersey, center Kareem Abdul-Jabbar of Los Angeles and guards George Gervin of San Antonio and Isiah Thomas of Detroit.

The voting was done at the end of the regular season by a panel of 75 media members who regularly cover the NBA — three from each league franchise city and six representatives of the national media. Each member of the panel was asked to select a first team and a second team. Two points were awarded for a first-team vote and one for a second-team vote.

Malone, named MVP after leading the 76ers to their first title in 16 years, was the NBA's top rebounder for the fourth time in the last five seasons, at 15.3 per game, and the league's No. 5 scorer with a 24.5 average.

Bird, a first-team All-Star in each of his four pro seasons, was the only player named on all 75 ballots and received 149 out of a possible 150 points, with 74 first-place votes and one second-place vote. Malone drew 147 points to lead the centers and Johnson collected 144 points to pace the guards.

Erving, who teamed with Malone to lead the 76ers to a 65-17 record, fifth best in NBA history, and a 12-1 playoff mark that was the best ever, 147 points to lead the centers and for the fifth time in his seven seasons in the league. He was an ABA All-Star four times.

Moncrief was named to the All-Defensive team and won the inaugural Defensive Player of the Year award.

CSI's Chapin shines at college rodeo finals

BOZEMAN, Mont. — The College of Southern Idaho's Kyle Chapin, a Bait-Mountain-New, native, moved into first place after the first go-round at the National Intercollegiate Rodeo here Monday night.

Chapin scored 68 in his ride to give the Eagles a solid start in their quest for a national collegiate rodeo championship.

"I was real pleased as the way we started," said CSI rodeo Coach Shawn Davis. "We had some real nice rides tonight. We'll do fine if we can continue to do well."

In addition to Chapin, teammate Jed McKinley of Kimberly racked up a score of 69 in the bareback riding

Allen

Jund said Allen was one of 10 candidates for the job. Five were interviewed.

Allen said one of his major goals will be to get the freshman and sophomore basketball coaches at Jerome involved in the varsity program as much possible. He said he has not yet discussed who will be his assistant.

A native of Buhl, Allen attended the College of Idaho and graduated from Idaho State University. He began coaching five years ago and took over the Buhl High program in 1980.

Allen's wife, Darlene, works at the Idaho School for the Deaf and Blind. They have a two-month-old daughter.

Braves discover how to win again

By United Press International

Glenn Hubbard hit a grand slam and Chris Chambliss knocked in three runs with a double and a single Monday night to support the four-hit pitching of Greg Falcone and lead the Atlanta Braves to a 7-1 triumph over the Houston Astros.

The victory, at Houston, stopped a four-game Braves' losing streak. Chambliss delivered a second inning double to loser Vern Riffe, 1-3, to stake the Braves to a 1-0 lead and added a two-run single in the fourth to help Falcone to his fifth victory in six decisions.

Hubbard connected for his grand slam in the fifth to break the game open.

Falcone was in complete control, allowing a runner to second only twice and none after the third inning.

Houston scored a run in the first to take a 1-0 lead. Leadoff hitter Omar Moreno walked on four pitches and promptly stole his 21st base of the year. After Falcone retired the next two batters, Phil Garner drove in Moreno with a single to right field.

Atlanta tied the score at 1-1 in the second inning. Dale Murphy walked, stole second and scored on a Chambliss double to the gap in left center field.

The Braves took a 3-1 lead in the third. Leadoff singles by Claudell Washington and Murphy were aided by a Jose Cruz error in left field that allowed both runners to advance to second and third. Chambliss then delivered both runners with a bloop single.

Montreal 5, Philadelphia 0

At Montreal, Andre Dawson drove in three runs with a homer and two singles to support the three-hit pitching of Ray Burris and lead the Expos. The Expos jumped on losing pitcher Steve Carlton, 7-8, for two runs in the first inning. Tim Lincecum led off with a single and stole second. After Chris Speier walked, Dawson singled home Raines. Al Oliver hit into a fielder's choice but Tim Wallach delivered a run-scoring single. Burris, 3-2, surrendered just three singles to pitch his first complete game of the season.

National

St. Louis 3-4, New York 1-6

At New York, Keith Hernandez' two-run homer in the first inning and Mookie Wilson's two-run double in the second powered the Mets to a split. In the opener, Kevin Hagen scattered eight hits over seven innings and Bruce Sutter collected his sixth save in leading the Cardinals.

Pittsburgh 5, Chicago 4

At Pittsburgh, pinch hitter Richie Hebner led off the bottom of the 10th inning with a home run to give the Pirates a come-from-behind victory in the first game of a double-header. Hebner's blast, his first, came off reliever and loser, Bill Campbell, 2-3. The Pirates tied the score in the bottom of the seventh inning on a single by Marvella Wynne and an RBI-double by Bill Madlock.

San Diego 4, Los Angeles 1

In Los Angeles, Sixto Lezcano collected three straight hits and scored twice to lead the San Diego Padres to a victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Monday night behind the combined four-hit pitching of Ed Whitson and John Montefusco.

San Francisco 4, Cincinnati 3

In San Francisco, Jeff Leonard's two-out single in the 10th inning scored Darrell Evans and lifted the San Francisco Giants to a victory Monday night over the Cincinnati Reds.

Evans singled to right with one out and stole second with two out. Chili Davis was intentionally walked by Ted Power, 1-4, and Leonard singled off the left field fence to make a winner of Greg Minton, 2-3, who pitched the final inning.

The Giants tied the score at 3-3 in the ninth on a double by Leonard and a triple by Bob Brenly. Cincinnati took a 2-2 lead in the eighth. Ron Oester led off the eighth with a single and went to third on loser Jim Barr's wild pitch off throw. Dann Bildeardo popped out and Duane Walker was given an intentional walk.

Rozema nails down seventh

By United Press International

The improvement of the Detroit Tigers in the standings this season can be easily traced to the comeback efforts of Dave Rozema. Rozema, whose injured knee last year prevented the Tigers from being a serious contender in the American League East, allowed only two hits over 7 1/2 innings and Kirk Gibson drove in two runs with a solo homer and a fielder's choice grounder Monday night to lead the Tigers to a 4-1 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Boston 6, Cleveland 3

At Boston, Jim Rice belted a two-run homer and Tony Armas added a solo shot to pace a 12-hit attack that carried the Red Sox. Rice, who entered the game tied for the AL lead in homers with 15, smashed his 16th of the season in the fourth inning with Dwight Evans aboard to give Boston a 6-0 lead. It was the sixth homer in the last 17 games for Rice, who has 44 RBIs.

American

Chicago 7, Seattle 3

At Chicago, rookie Greg Walker's three-run homer in the fifth inning snapped a 3-2 tie and sparked the White Sox. Larry Hoyt, 8-7, pitched a six-hitter in helping Chicago win its sixth game in its last eight starts.

Oakland 7, Kansas City 2

At Kansas City, Mo., Jeff Burroughs knocked in three runs with a single and his fifth homer to support the slick pitching of Bill Krueger and give the A's a victory. Krueger, making the jump this season from Class AA to the major leagues, walked five and struck out one to improve his record to 6-5 with his second complete game of the year.

Toronto 2, Minnesota 1

At Toronto, Lloyd Moseby refused to go for a fake intentional walk trick and singled off pitcher Ron Davis' bare hand with two out in the ninth inning to knock in Ernie Whit with the winning run. Jim Goltz, 5-5, allowed only three hits, struck out three and walked four in going the distance for the victory. California 10, Texas 9

In Arlington, Texas, Doug DeCinces' double down the left field line with two out in the top of the 13th inning scored Rick Adams from second with the go-ahead run Monday night and gave the California Angels a victory over the Texas Rangers.

25¢ out of every $1 received from National Forest timber sales goes to Idaho counties to support schools and roads. It's important revenue that helps lessen the load on already overburdened taxpayers.

But with more than one third of Idaho's National Forest Lands still tied up in the 12-year-old Wilderness debate, long-range Forest Service and industry planning is restricted. That puts future timber sales and the potential county revenues from those sales in jeopardy.

Not only will counties lose money but businesses that depend on National Forests cannot plan effectively, justify significant investments or assure their employees future jobs.

Nearly four million acres of Idaho Public Land has been designated as Wilderness. That's an area larger than Rhode Island and Connecticut combined and more Wilderness than any other state but Alaska. To help resolve the Wilderness issue, the Forest Industry is suggesting that another 600,000 acres be added to complete the Wilderness System. The remainder of the Roadless Lands would be free for Forest Service-regulated multiple use, including tree growing.

It's an issue that affects all of us... and you can help settle it. Voice your support for a resolution to the Wilderness issue.

Mother's poem gives daughter a lift

DEAR ABBY: You can imagine my surprise and great joy when I read your column in the Los Angeles Times and saw the poem entitled, "The World is Mine." It was written by my mother. Dot Aaron, some 35 years ago.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

Through the years we have heard from so many people around the country who have found inspiration from it, as did "Martí" from Aurora, Colo., who sent it to you asking who wrote it.

It has been a long time since I have seen it in print, and you can't imagine how deeply touched I am to know that my mother's words continue to live on. She was a super, multi-talented lady who passed away in 1959 — much too young, and with so much more to do.

I am newly widowed at age 53 and have recently moved to California from St. Louis. Thank you for printing my mother's poem. It meant so much to me.

—SUZANNE AARON MATHES
DEAR SUZANNE: Ahal Your letter is the conclusive verification I had hoped for. To date I have heard from readers in nearly every state (and Canada, too) informing me that Dot Aaron had written that lovely poem many years ago. And shame on those few who themselves claimed authorship.

DEAR ABBY: I have been doing a lot of reading lately and I just found out that my husband is no bargain (in bed, I mean). We've been married for 11 years, and I never thought I had to anyone else, so she might as well take it with her.

Is that true?
—EMBARRASSED
DEAR EMBARRASSED: Ask the waiter, waitress, hostess and restaurant manager what the policy is with regard to what customers may take home.

George Burns' book, "How to Live to Be 100 or More: The Ultimate Diet, Sex and Exercise Book" (Putnam). It's the perfect gift for someone who could use a lift right now.

anything to complain about until I read up on how other men performed.

According to some of these sex surveys, my husband is at the bottom of the list, and I feel cheated.

I wonder how many other women feel the same?

—CHEATED IN YPSILANTI
DEAR CHEATED: Don't believe everything you read. If you've never had anything to complain about, you weren't "cheated."

Sex surveys can be tricky. I suspect that more people lie about their sex lives than the combined total of those who lie about their age and weight.

DEAR ABBY: I have this friend — an older woman, widowed and living alone — who embarrasses me no end when we dine out together in a restaurant.

Before we leave, she empties the contents of the breadbasket into a plastic bag, taking all the remaining bread, rolls, crackers and breadsticks. If there's a dab of butter left, she has a little container for that, too. She also takes all the "HUG" packets of artificial sweetener.

I told her it wasn't proper to take all that stuff, and she said she was told that, according to law, once food is placed on the table it can't be served

Clean toenails don't stop smell

DEAR DR. LAMB: I have read your column and when you have mentioned smelly feet you have never said a thing about people cleaning out from under their toenails.

I wish you would please tell people to clean under their toenails at least once a week if not more often. When they don't, this causes a terrible, terrible odor. Thanks for listening.

DEAR READER: Well, you have told millions of people. Now let's hope there are more clean toenails in your household and perhaps millions of others.

Of course you are right. It is just part of cleaning or washing your feet. But I must add that there are many people who have problems with smelly feet who do in fact clean their toenails and wash their feet once or twice a day.

The first step in controlling odors is to wash the feet and dry them thoroughly. Twice a day is not too often if a person has a problem. The second step is to change socks twice a day if possible and, when the temperature and situation permits, go barefoot. Dry feet are less likely to be smelly feet.

Anything that helps prevent sweating of your feet is also important. There are many preparations, as well as a number of home remedies, that do just that.

But the thing most people miss is that often the odor is caused by bacteria that live under the surface of the skin and are unaffected by ordinary soap and water.

That is why I recommend asking your doctor for a prescription of some pHisoHex preparation to use as a soap. As this penetrates the skin it will kill the bacteria and soon there is no odor. Without help from such a product, all the washing in the world will not solve this problem for people who have it.

For other tips on caring for the feet I am sending you The Health Letter 11-8, Your Feet and How to Care for Them. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to fill in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB: — Is it true or just a myth that a drink of whiskey or brandy warms the body? In the winter the older members of our family take brandy or whiskey with them when they go ice fishing for warmth.

It has been a subject of much controversy in our house. What about an alcoholic drink to cool you in the summer?

DEAR READER: — A person who is drinking often has a flushed skin. That is because there is an increased flow of blood to the skin. That warm blood warms the skin.

If you feel cold (which is different from actually being cold), that alcohol flush makes you feel warm. However, you lose body heat through the skin. Your skin is your radiator and bringing blood to the surface cools the body.

Valley life

Mother's poem gives daughter a lift

DEAR ABBY: You can imagine my surprise and great joy when I read your column in the Los Angeles Times and saw the poem entitled, "The World is Mine." It was written by my mother, Dot Aaron, some 35 years ago.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Through the years we have heard from so many people around the country who have found inspiration from it, as did "Marti" from Aurora, Colo., who sent it to you asking who wrote it.

It has been a long time since I have seen it in print, and you can't imagine how deeply touched I am to know that my mother's words continue to live on. She was a super, multi-talented lady who passed away in 1969 — much too young, and with so much more to do.

I am newly widowed at age 53 and have recently moved to California from St. Louis. Thank you for printing my mother's poem. It meant so much to me.

—SUZANNE AARON MATHES
DEAR SUZANNE: Aha! Your letter is the conclusive verification I had hoped for. To date I have heard from readers in nearly every state (and Canada, too) informing me that Dot Aaron had written that lovely poem many years ago. And shame on those few who themselves claimed authorship.

DEAR ABBY: I have been doing a lot of reading lately and I just found out that my husband is no bargain (in bed, I mean). We've been married for 11 years, and I never thought I had to anyone else, so she might as well take it with her.

Is that true?

—EMBARRASSED
DEAR EMBARRASSED: Ask the waiter, waitress, hostess and restaurant manager what the policy is with regard to what customers may take home.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANYONE WHO LOVES TO LAUGH: Get

George Burns' book, "How to Live to Be 100 or More: The Ultimate Diet, Sex and Exercise Book" (Putnam). It's the perfect gift for someone who could use a lift right now.

(If you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say, send for Abby's complete booklet on letter-writing. Send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38223, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

anything to complain about until I read up on how other men performed. According to some of these sex surveys, my husband is at the bottom of the list, and I feel cheated.

I wonder how many other women feel the same?
—CHEATED IN YPSILANTI
DEAR CHEATED: Don't believe everything you read. If you've never had anything to complain about, you weren't "cheated."

Sex surveys can be tricky. I suspect that more people lie about their sex lives than the combined total of those who lie about their age and weight.

DEAR ABBY: I have this friend — an older woman, widowed and living alone — who embarrasses me no end when we dine out together in a restaurant.

Before we leave, she empties the contents of the breadbasket into a plastic bag, taking all the remaining bread, rolls, crackers and breadsticks. If there's a dab of butter left, she has a little container for that, too. She also takes all the little packets of artificial sweetener.

I told her it wasn't proper to take all that stuff, and she said she was told that, according to law, once food is placed on the table it can't be served

Clean toenails don't stop smell

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have read your column and when you have mentioned smelly feet you have never said a thing about people cleaning out from under their toenails.

I wish you would please tell people to clean under their toenails at least once a week if not more often. When they don't, this causes a terrible, terrible odor. Thanks for listening.

DEAR READER — Well, you have told millions of people. Now let's hope there are more clean toenails in your household and perhaps millions of others.

Of course you are right. It is just part of cleaning or washing your feet. But I must add that there are many people who have problems with smelly feet who do in fact clean their toenails and wash their feet once or twice a day.

The first step in controlling odors is to regularly clean and dry them thoroughly. Twice a day is not too often if a person has a problem. The second step is to change socks twice a day if possible and, when the temperature and situation permits, go barefoot. Dry feet are less likely to be smelly feet.

Anything that helps prevent sweating of your feet is also important. There are many preparations, as well as a number of home remedies, that do this.

But the thing most people miss is that often the odor is caused by bacteria that live under the surface of the skin and are unaffected by ordinary soap and water.

That is why I recommend asking your doctor for a prescription for some phisohex preparation to use as a soap. As this penetrates the skin it will kill the bacteria and soon there is no odor. Without help from such a product, all the washing in the world will not solve this problem for people who have it.

For other tips on caring for the feet I am sending you The Health Letter 11-8, "Your Feet and How to Care for Them." Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it true or just a myth that a drink of whiskey or brandy warms the body? In the winter the older members of our family take brandy or whiskey with them when they go ice fishing "for warmth."

It has been a "subject of" much controversy in our house. What about an alcoholic drink to cool you in the summer?

DEAR READER — A person who is drinking often has a flushed skin. That is because there is an increased flow of blood to the skin. That warm blood warms the skin.

If you feel cold (which is different from actually being cold), that alcohol flush makes you feel warm. However, you lose body heat through the skin. Your skin is your radiator and bringing blood to the surface cools the body.
