DeMeyer guilty of drinking, killing children

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — Suspended Idaho Deputy Attorney General Virginia DeMeyer was convicted late Friday of involuntary manslaughter and drunken driving in the traffic deaths of two Star children by a Fourth District jury deliberating for 13 hours.

Mrs. DeMeyer, hearing the verdict two days before her 31st birthday, revealed no emotion when the decision was announced. But several jurors sobbed and members of an anti-drunken driving group beamed smiles and hugged each other outside the courtroom.

The eight-woman, four-man jury later recommended that Mrs. DeMeyer be incarcerated in the county jail.

Judge Arthur Oliver ordered a pre-sentence investigation for Mrs. DeMeyer, who could be sentenced to up to 2 1/2 years in jail on the felony manslaughter and misdemeanor drunken-driving charges.

After the verdict was declared, Special Prosecutor Glen Walker told reporters the deaths of Wesley Black 12 and his 10-year-old sister, Joy, were a "greater evil" than sending Mrs. DeMeyer to jail. The defendant and her attorney, meanwhile, left the court building quickly.

Oliver released Mrs. DeMeyer on her own recognizance, but he did not set a sentencing date.

Walker said he thought the jury "hated to make his decision" because Mrs. DeMeyer had no prior record, "but the greater evil has been done" in the deaths of the victims.

"The facts were there," he said. "It was the only proper decision they could make; but I'm sure some of them are not going to be able to sleep well."

Walker said he realized the defendant "has suffered a great deal."

"One time she made a mistake and she is labeled a felon. She did nothing that many other people don't do — she went to have a drink and then drove."

Walker, the Kootenai County prosecutor, and Oliver, a retired Pocatello judge, were assigned to the case after Boise judges and prosecutors stepped aside because Mrs. DeMeyer is the daughter of Ada County Commissioner Ed Riddle.

Police said the victims were struck as the boy rode a bicycle pulling his sister in a wagon down State Highway 44. The accident occurred Oct. 4, 1982.

Walker urged jurors to convict the woman, who was suspended from her state job shortly after the arrest on all charges.

But Mrs. DeMeyer's attorney, William Brauner, said in closing arguments the state attorney will be tormented the rest of her life with memories of the accident. Brauner of Caldwell, claimed the accident occurred because his client was blinded by the sunset, not because she was drunk.

He said a guilty verdict against Mrs. DeMeyer would not bring back the victims — and would constitute a judicial injustice.

Brauner, in an emotional plea to the jury, claimed his client and the children were the victims of a tragedy spawned by a blinding sunset.

He said the defendant kept to the right of the

Johnnie Deaton wasn't fazed by the wet weather Friday, as she shouted encouragement to her son, Jason, who plays in the Babe are expected through the weekend. Highs should be near 70 today and 70 to 75 on Sunday, with considerable cloudiness.

Aide: Reagan hurt Carter papers brew scandal

By JACK LESAR
United Press International

A close associate of President Reagan acknowledged for the first time Friday mushrooming reports of documents that made their way from the Jimmy Carter White House to Reagan's campaign staff — have "potential for hurting the president."

The assessment came amid reports the Reagan campaign staff received national security staff reports from the Carter White House and established its own "intelligence operation" to avoid being surprised by any last-minute deal to free U.S. hostages in Iran.

The administration associate, who asked that his name be withheld, said it would be best for the president "to lay out" all the information he has and to seek answers about the matter promptly.

"I think we're in for a long siege," he said. "I feel it has the potential for hurting the president."

The White House refused further comment on the controversy. A spokesman said Reagan "has made his crystal clear" in expressing determination to "get to the bottom" of the allegations.

A former Reagan campaign aide reported Friday the campaign staff set up an "intelligence operation" to avoid being surprised. If President Carter made a last-minute deal to free U.S. hostages in Iran, "but former Reagan campaign staffers discouraged a Washington Post report the campaign received parts of daily staff reports prepared for Zbigniew Brzezinski, Carter's national security adviser. The charge is the most serious yet leveled in the controversy over the Reagan campaign receiving Carter campaign materials.

The FBI — the Justice Department and a congressional committee are investigating the matter. And Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., said that if Attorney General William French Smith does not request a special prosecutor, he will ask the House Judiciary Committee to do so.

Edwards, chairman of the committee's constitutional rights subcommittee, said in Washington the briefing book "may be the tip of an iceberg," because no one knows what

Holiday motorists return to highways

By United Press International

"Leaving recessionary gloom behind," one American in six will hit the road this weekend to celebrate the long Fourth of July weekend, travel experts reported. Police marshaled forces as the holiday began Friday.

The U.S. Travel Data Center, a non-profit organization that keeps track of American travel patterns, said its monthly telephone survey showed one American in six, or about 34 million people, would be traveling during the weekend — most of them by car.

"Plans for July Fourth vacations indicated Americans are leaving recessionary gloom behind and returning to their customary leisure travel patterns," said Douglas Frechling, director of the data center.

The National Safety Council estimated between 420 and 520 people would be killed in traffic accidents in the period between 6 p.m. Friday and midnight Monday. Another 20,000 to 24,000 will suffer disabling injuries, the council predicted.

Los Angeles County traffic violators faced much stiffer penalties Friday and police were out in force on the nation's highways to keep traffic deaths at a minimum during the long weekend.

Last year, 470 people died during the holiday, and police geared up to handle the rush of highway travelers this year.

In Southern California, motorists caught tailgating, cruising through a stop sign or committing other common violations face penalties that have been nearly doubled.

Teachers: Schools need more planning, funds

By HENRY J. RESKE
United Press International

PHILADELPHIA — The president of the nation's largest teachers union said Friday planning and money are needed to improve education, not merely "barnstorming tours" by President Reagan sporting school proposals.

Willard McGuire told delegates at the annual convention of the 1.7-million-member National Education Association the United States is poised for the first time to "make quality education for all a birthright and a reality."

"But it will take more than scholarly reform recommendations to turn our schools around, more than media attention, more even than presidential barnstorming tours," he said. "Achieving excellence will take planning, research, and, without a doubt, new financial resources."

Democratic presidential candidates, hoping to lure the endorsement of the powerful NEA, streamed to the teachers convention and also blasted Reagan, who did not plan to attend the gathering.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale and U.S. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, criticized Reagan at the convention Thursday, with Mondale charging the president was using education as the "doormat" of his policies.

In a counter-move, President Reagan, continuing to press his views on education, will address the American Federation of Teachers in Los Angeles next week, a White House spokesman announced Friday.

The administration has been demonstrating its preference for the AFT, the AFL-CIO's teachers' union, and snubbing the NEA, though the NEA is much the larger of the two teachers' groups.

Reagan declined an invitation to attend the NEA convention.

Prayers pay off for toddler; transplant deemed possible

By PAT MARCANTONIO

TWIN FALLS — Two-year-old Pam Allen has been accepted for a liver transplant program at a Pittsburgh hospital. The news came Friday, after months of prayers and anxiety by her family — and community concern that resulted in the raising of a $35,000 trust fund for the child.

The most trying times, however, may be ahead, as the Twin Falls family now waits for a donor to provide a new liver for Pam.

Although it will not be announced officially until Tuesday, Beverly Kirkpatrick of the Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh said Friday that it is "likely" Pam will be added to the list of other children waiting for a liver transplant.

For three days this past week, Pam underwent tests at the hospital to determine if she was physically strong enough to endure the long and risky operation.

Pam was born with a biliary atresia, a genetic defect in which the duct that drains bile from her liver fails to develop. Due to the condition, the child's liver has been damaged severely. Without the transplant, her doctors give Pam a year, more or less, to live.

The doctors at the hospital said Pam is an "ideal candidate," her mother, Carol Allen, said Friday afternoon in a telephone interview with The Times-News.

Mrs. Allen said she was relieved by the news; happiness seemed to be vibrating through her voice.

"I was worried (the doctors) would say, 'no.' There's always that doubt in your mind that something would crop up," said Allen, who is a nurse. "The tests made her (Pam) mad, but otherwise, she really went through them really well."

She and her husband, Fred, were asked by the doctors if they still wanted to go ahead with the operation after they were told of the potential stress to them and the rest of the family, Mrs. Allen said. "Their answer was apparent."

Kirkpatrick said the test results will be reviewed next week by the surgeons who will perform the operation. They will have the final say, but usually, they go along with the findings of the panel of doctors who conducted the extensive tests, she said.

A team led by Dr. Thomas Starzl, a veteran of liver transplants, probably will perform the operation, said Kirkpatrick, who is a social worker with the hospital's liver-transplant program.

In the interim, the Allens will be responsible for the non-medical aspects. This includes obtaining "beepers" so they can be contacted immediately once a donor is found, Kirkpatrick said.

"From here on in, it's pretty much their own responsibility. (Yet), they were ahead of us," because the family has the money and a jet ready to transport Pam to Pittsburgh for the operation, Kirkpatrick said. She was returning to the jet that has been promised by a Sun Valley resident and the trust fund that has been built through the many fund-raising events held in the Magic Valley since April.

"The plane is the hardest part," Kirkpatrick said. When a donor is found, Pam must be at the hospital within six hours because of the short "life" of the organ.

The Allens also will be responsible for sending in regular reports on Pam's physical condition to the hospital.

"That's how our list is based — on who has the most critical needs," Kirkpatrick said. She would not say how many other children are on the list.

Kirkpatrick said the hospital uses a national program to locate the essential organ. "Now the hard part comes," she said. "And that is waiting until they hear from us."

Woman falls into ocean, dies
 POINT LUDWIG, N.Y. (UPI) — A Florida woman who fell off a private yacht died Friday of exposure after spending nearly nine hours in the waters southeast of Montauk, N.Y.

South County Hospital officials said Aidana Rowe, 48, died at 12:48 p.m. EDT without regaining consciousness.

The Coast Guard said Mrs. Rowe, 40, of Shalps, Fla., was with her husband Arthur, when she fell off the Morning Star, a 55-foot, three-masted schooner, at 11:05 p.m. Thursday.

Her husband apparently spent the entire night searching for her before finding her floating in the water without a life jacket 40 miles southeast of Montauk.

Senators urge AIDS legislation
 WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Democratic senators urged President Reagan Friday to sign legislation creating a $300 million fund to combat sudden disease outbreaks such as AIDS — "the most dangerous epidemic in this country since polio."

Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., the chief sponsors of the bill, wrote Reagan urging him to reject the advice of those in the administration who oppose the health emergency fund.

Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome destroys the body's ability to ward off infections and is increasingly seen as a fatal disease. So far, it has primarily struck male homosexuals, Haitians and intravenous drug users.

AIDS was first diagnosed in 1981 in Los Angeles and reached epidemic proportions in 1982. Victims often contract a rare form of cancer, Kaposi's sarcoma, and a type of fatal form of pneumonia, pneumocystis carinii pneumonia.

Chicago Seven case judge dies
 CHICAGO (UPI) — Senior U.S. District Judge Julius Hoffman, who presided over the bolterous Chicago Seven trial of anti-Vietnam War protesters, died Friday. He was 87.

Hoffman, who had presided as a state and federal judge for more than 35 years, died at his home. He had planned to officiate at a wedding later in the day.

"He had a great sense of humor," Senior U.S. District Judge Abraham Lincoln Marovitz said of his friend and colleague of 50 years. "I'll miss him."

California State Assemblyman Tom Hayden, a Chicago Seven defendant, said Judge Hoffman was a worthy and stubborn adversary. "I'm sorry to hear of his passing."

Hoffman's career as a judge began in 1947 on what was then known as the Cook County State Superior Court, and was highlighted by the 1970 Chicago Seven conspiracy case which resulted in his being named a diminutive judge into the national limelight.

Grand Ole Opry set for sale
 NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — The Grand Ole Opry, the cradle of country music, will be sold along with the Opryland entertainment complex in a deal valued at more than $200 million. It was announced Friday.

Edward L. Gaylord said his Gaylord Broadcasting Co.-Dallas-agreed in principle to buy the Opry plus the 120-acre Opryland amusement park, the Opryland Hotel complex, WSM-AM and WSM-FM radio stations, The Nashville Network cable television enterprise and Opryland Tours from American General Corp., a $13 billion insurance conglomerate based in Houston.

Jack Benny's widow dies at 77
 LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Jack Benny's widow and favorite comedy foil, Mary Livingstone, died Thursday of an apparent heart attack in the mansion where her husband died nine years ago. She was 77.

Miss Livingstone's entire show business career was devoted to playing Benny's wise-cracking, ego-deflating radio and TV wife, always critical of Benny's penny and social aspirations.

Their private home life was often the basis for Benny's radio shows from the 1930s until the early 50s on television. She was a regular on the Benny weekly radio shows but only an infrequent guest on his TV programs.

Indians plan huge bingo game
 CHEROKEE, N.C. (UPI) — The Cherokee Indians, exempt from state laws regulating bingo, are marking the 4th of July holiday by sponsoring what they bill as the world's largest bingo game, with prize money totaling more than $1 million.

Their private home life was often the basis for Benny's radio shows from the 1930s until the early 50s on television. She was a regular on the Benny weekly radio shows but only an infrequent guest on his TV programs.

Bus crash kills at least eight
 BAIE-COMEAU, Quebec (UPI) — An injured bus driver saved the lives of at least eight of his passengers in the blazing aftermath of a head-on collision on a remote road that left eight dead and 35 injured, authorities said Friday.

Despite leg injuries, driver Norman Dube, 35, pulled eight or nine people through a rear window after the bus burst into flames, said Yves Colombe, regional manager of Voyageur Colonial Ltd. bus lines.

Eight people died and 25 others were injured Thursday when the bus traveling the 300 miles northeast from Quebec City to Baie Comeau slammed into with a station wagon shortly after 4 p.m. EDT.

"Five of the victims, all male, were in the station wagon and three were in the bus — one man and two women," said Normand Tremblay of the Quebec Police Force said.

Tornadoes whip at 80 mph

By United Press International

Tornadoes and thunderstorms spewed by high winds and golfball-size hail cut a broad swath from Texas to the Midwest Friday, knocking out power to thousands and derailing an Amtrak train.

Hail and high winds hit northeast Texas, downing power and telephone lines around Bonham. A tornado struck about 3 miles east of Fruitland, Idaho, hitting a barn and killing a cow.

Michael Bawdy, 26, of Smyrna, Ga., was killed when struck by lightning at a runway construction site at Hartsfield International Airport in Atlanta. Three people were slightly injured.

Storms damaged a marina in Hall County, Ga., and trees and power lines around Gadsden, Ala., were downed by high winds. Dime-sized hail pelted Mandarin, Fla.

High winds and golfball-sized hail pounded Penn Township near Butler, Pa. The winds downed several power lines and trees. At least 19 tornadoes from Minnesota to Pennsylvania were reported, the National Weather Service said.

Up to 6 inches of rain from accompanying storms threatened flash-floods in Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Flooding of the Cedar River forced the evacuation of entire blocks of Austin, Minn. A Mower County Sheriff's Department spokesman said it was not clear how many families would be affected.

highway to avoid traffic in the oncoming lane and struck the children.

"Virginia DeMeyer killed the kids, but is that a crime?" Brauner asked. "Is that something you send people to the penitentiary for?"

"To convict a person who is not guilty is not going to bring back the kids, and it's going to prove only that we're not civilized."

But Walker said the state proved Mrs. DeMeyer consumed enough alcohol prior to the accident to put her above the state limit of .08 percent.

The defendant, in a tearful appearance on the witness stand, admitted she drank four glasses of wine and a gin cocktail before getting into her car. But she said she was in control of the vehicle at the time of the collision.

Walker put an analyst on the stand who said he believed the defendant's blood-alcohol level was above .11 when she hit the children. The prosecutor also said Mrs. DeMeyer tried to divert jury attention from the case by claiming police had tried to interfere with her during the arrest.

Deliberations were highlighted by an announcement from Oliver that an intimidating call was made to one member of the 12-person panel.

Oliver said he would conduct an investigation into the apparent attempt at jury tampering.

The judge denied admittance of a blood-alcohol test of the defendant shortly after the accident, a ruling which Walker said "punished" the state in its attempt to convict the woman.

"It is not the place of the jury in my view to further punish the state by acquitting her," he said in closing arguments. "Remember, it's not the police on trial here."

other material might have been stolen from the Carter White House.

But Justice Department spokesman Thomas DeCar said there is no need for a special prosecutor "at this time."

John Garrick, a retired rear admiral who joined the Reagan campaign in August 1980 as an aide to chief of staff Edwin Meese, said an intelligence operation was launched in mid-September after the campaign to divert jury attention from the case by bargaining chip in $300 million in undelivered material paid for by the shah.

He said the objective was to prevent Carter from parrying a last-minute release of the hostages into an election victory.

Garrick said Meese, now White House counsel, William Casey, head of the CIA, David Trent, now with the Transportation Department, and Ron, former Reagan aide, knew about the intelligence operation.

The controversy over the Carter papers was sparked by "Gambing with History," a new book by Time magazine correspondent Laurence Barrett, which made a first reference to divert jury attention from the case by bargaining chip in $300 million in undelivered material paid for by the shah.

The White House has turned more than 850 pages of such material over to the Justice Department for its investigation.

The FBI said it expects to start interviews next week into how Carter's 1980 debate briefing material fell into the hands of Reagan's campaign. Officials said top Reagan aides likely will undergo questioning.

A former high-level adviser to Reagan's campaign told The Washington Post that Richard Allen, Reagan's former national security adviser, received parts of daily staff reports prepared for Brezinski.

Several other Reagan campaign officials said they had never heard about the copies of the staff reports and one former Reagan adviser denied the campaign had access to such materials.

Synopsis:
 Below normal temperatures and showery periods through Wednesday.

That's the outlook for Idaho and the Magic Valley over the July 4 holiday weekend.

A Pacific weather system was crossing Idaho on Friday night and today, accompanied by heavy rain. The system will keep temperatures cool and produce occasional showers.

The agricultural forecast calls for showers and isolated thundershowers through Wednesday. Precipitation will average 10-inch to 20 inch, with a few areas receiving nearly 25 inch. Average evaporation rates will remain between 20 to 25 inch 24 hours through the period. Winds will be from 10 to 15 mph today and Sunday, with stronger gusts near the thundershowers.

On Friday, maximum temperatures ranged from 52 at McCall to 73 at Malheur. The state's warmest reading was 77 at Stanley. Morning lows ranged from 38 at Malheur to 60 at Hagerman.

In Twin Falls on Friday, the pollen count was 27 per cubic meter of air.

Most of Idaho had some precipitation in the 24 hours ending Friday afternoon. Amounts were generally light, with most areas having less than 25 inch. Homedale's third of an inch was the most reported up to that time.

At vigorous Pacific cold front moved into southwestern Idaho. It brought locally heavy rain and strong, gusty winds to the Treasure Valley. The heavy rains brought widespread possible local street and road flooding, and travelers and residents were advised to be alert for heavy rains and rising streams.

Elsewhere in the nation on Friday, the highest temperature reported was 108 degrees at Gila Bend, Ariz., and the coldest was 30 degrees at Gunnison, Colo.

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court handed the Reagan administration a victory over environmental activists Friday in a 5-4 ruling that may discourage lawsuits demanding tough enforcement of pollution laws. The justices declared individuals or groups bringing such suits against the government cannot win attorney's fees unless they are at least partially successful in their court fight.

minor issue of legal fees, the decision could have important implications for the continuing battle between the administration and the nation's major environmental groups. Since President Reagan took office in 1981, conservationists have turned to federal courts with increasing frequency to thwart administration policies they view as relaxing pollution standards and environmental protection. The ruling was a defeat for the Sierra Club and the Environmental Defense Fund. They had demanded $30,000 in legal fees after losing a suit against the Environmental Protection Agency involving the Clean Air Act. Writing for the majority, Justice William Rehnquist declared that under the air quality law and under "historic" principles, some success on the merits must be obtained before a party becomes eligible for a fee award. Rehnquist concluded if the government is "completely successful" in a suit brought by an outside group, requiring the government to pay legal fees "would be a radical departure" from long-standing legal principles.

Disaster relief targeted for floods

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (UPI) — President Reagan Friday declared the states of California and Arizona major disaster areas because of flooding from the Colorado River that has caused millions of dollars of damage in the states. The president signed the disaster declaration at his mountain ranch. The action will make available assistance from the President's Disaster Relief Fund, as well as emergency loans from the Small Business Administration and Farmers Home Administration. Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt and Calif. Gov. George Deukmejian sought the federal aid in response to controlled flooding undertaken by the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation because of a record snow melt in the Rockies. Deukmejian, in a letter to Reagan Wednesday, said the early estimated dollar loss exceeded $3.2 million and said any increased runoff poses a threat of an additional loss of $10 million.

Military downplays Agent Orange

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There is no indication Air Force personnel who "lived in" Agent Orange during the Vietnam War experienced more deaths than those more lightly exposed to the defoliant, a report by the service said Friday. But Air Force officials said it is too early to know conclusively whether Agent Orange causes death because the group tested may not have reached the age where a fatal disease attributable to the chemical compound can be detected. Maj. Gen. Murphy Chesney, deputy surgeon general of the Air Force, said the study of 1,200 Air Force officers and enlisted men assigned to Operation Ranch Hand in Vietnam between 1962 and 1971 was the first in-depth U.S. statistical survey on the effects of Agent Orange. "At this time, there is no indication that Operation Ranch Hand personnel have experienced any increased mortality or any unusual patterns of death in time or by cause," the report said. "They are not dying in increased numbers at earlier ages or by unexpected causes."

But Veterans groups and a congressman said while the report is good news as far as it goes, they are more interested in a study due to be released this fall on illnesses linked to the defoliant. Agent Orange, used to turn jungles into deserts to deny hideouts for the Viet Cong, is blamed by veterans seeking millions of dollars in compensation for causing cancer, liver, kidney, skin, nerve and a host of other health problems. The Veterans Administration argues there is no proof the chemical caused those ailments.

Court supports analyst

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Wall Street securities analyst who uncovered one of the biggest business frauds in history should be praised, not punished, the Supreme Court ruled 6-3 Friday. In an important decision for the securities industry, the justices overturned the Securities and Exchange Commission's censure of Raymond Dirks for tipping investors about a $2 billion fraud at the Equity Funding Corp 10 years ago. The SEC found Dirks had broken strict rules against trading stock based on "inside tips" by alerting certain investors in time for them to sell their Equity Funding insurance stock before news of the fraud broke and the company toppled.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (UPI) — America's first woman astronaut said Friday she had no problems working with men in space — and her crewmates said the feeling was mutual — and she had no special advice for the next woman to fly. "We had no problems with a mixed crew on our flight," said Dr. Sally K. Ride, 32, who flew with four men on the seventh space shuttle mission. Dr. Judith Resnik is scheduled to fly on the 12th space shuttle mission next winter with a crew including Ms. Ride's husband, astronaut Steven Hawley. "I don't think she needs any advice," Ms. Ride said. "Judith is going to have a great time. I happen to know from first-hand experience.

She's got a great crew." It will be the first flight of the third shuttle, Discovery. NASA Associate Administrator J. Gen. James Abrahamson appeared at the news conference to present Ms. Ride and her crew members a certificate from 714 women in the federal government honoring their flight as the first to take an American woman

Arcade theft ends in death

HOUSTON (UPI) — Four men believed to be young employees were found dead, apparently robbed and repeatedly beaten, in a "horrible scene" at a videogame arcade Friday. Homicide Detective J.C. Mosler said a woman employee of the Malibu Grand Prix arcade and miniature auto races track and a Federal Express deliveryman found the victims, who apparently had been knifed repeatedly.

Police theorized robbery was a motive and that the killings took place sometime after the midnight closing time. Officials said the inside of the building was partially ransacked and a safe was open. "It is a horrible scene," said Mosler. "There were signs that robbery was the apparent motive. "It was terribly brutal, but I wouldn't care to comment on the exact nature except to say it is a horrible scene," Mosler said. The assistant manager of Malibu Grand Prix said there little money at the arcade. "It's not much, but we only had money in one location and it's pretty secure," said Ernest Jaramila, assistant manager. "Somebody would really have to be sick to do something like this for that amount."

Plan set on synthetic gas

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Synthetic Fuels Corp. has awarded a $120 million price guarantee to a consortium of companies including Texaco Inc. and Bechtel Power Corp. for a power plant halfway between Las Vegas and Los Angeles. The award was announced Thursday by corporate Chairman Edward Noble who said the other sponsors of the Cool Water Coal Gasification project include the General Electric Co. and Southern California Edison Co. Should energy prices remain at relatively low levels, the award guarantees the sponsors a certain price for their product. The plant is expected to build a facility that will convert coal into 750 million BTUs per hour of synthetic gas. The plant is located in the California desert at Daggett, 12 miles from Barstow.

George Bush (R) and Finland's President Mauno Kivisto discuss invitation to visit U.S.

Bush probes into Soviet relations

HELSINKI, Finland (UPI) — Vice President George Bush arrived in Finland Friday to get a "clear picture of Soviet views" from leaders of the Scandinavian country that shares a border with the communist superpower.

Accompanied by 80 officials, including numerous bodyguards, Bush flew from Oslo, Norway into Turku airport, 120 miles west of Helsinki for a 48-hour visit to Finland, the fifth stop on his eight-country tour of Europe.

There were no official statements as he was greeted by Social Democratic Prime Minister Kalevi Sorsa, and national and local government personalities. Bush immediately went to President Mauno Kivisto for lunch.

Bush handed Kivisto an invitation from President Reagan to visit the United States. The Finnish news agency YTV said Kivisto has accepted the invitation, but that no date has been set for the visit.

No statement was issued on Kivisto's discussions with Bush.

More substantive talks, followed by a half hour news conference, were set for Saturday.

He was expected to outline U.S. policy on disarmament and on Central America, already covered in Britain, West Germany, Sweden and Norway.

An anti-U.S. demonstration was scheduled Saturday by the hardcore communist "Defenders of peace." It will take place in the senate square, well away from Bush's itinerary.

PLO truce is shaken; Arafat looks to Russia

By HUGH POPE
United Press International

BAR ELIAS, Lebanon — A shaky cease-fire held Friday between rival Palestinians but dissidents opposed to guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat said their rebellion was succeeding and predicted the truce would collapse.

In Tunis, Arafat sent an "urgent" message to the Soviet Union regarding the plight of his forces in Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley, the Palestinian news agency Wafa said without elaborating on its contents.

Two days of bitter fighting this week left rebels in control of most Palestinian positions in the Bekaa and planning a push north against the last remaining Lebanese stronghold of Arafat loyalists in the port city of Tripoli.

Wafa, still loyal to Arafat, said the message was transmitted to Moscow through the Soviet charge d'affaires in Tunis where Arafat presided over an emergency meeting of the PLO Executive Committee on the crisis.

Reporters traveling in the Bekaa described the area as tense and said Syria had cut off the main road linking Damascus with the ancient city of Baalbeck, 40 miles northeast of Beirut, where the cease-fire was achieved on Thursday.

A spokesman for the rebels opposing Arafat's leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organization cast doubt the cease-fire arranged Thursday would hold much longer, denying the rebel leaders had consented to it.

"We are still pressing our demands," said a spokesman for the leader of the dissidents, Col. Said Moussa. "What is going on is a series of uprisings." The spokesman said the dissidents would listen to the proposals of a PLO delegation dispatched Friday from Tunis to Damascus without Arafat. "If it had anything useful to offer" toward ending the 7-week conflict.

CIA accused of plot

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Nicaragua accused the CIA Friday of plotting to bomb its territory in "unmarked planes" and stage a mock retaliatory raid on Honduran villages to provoke a war between the two countries.

Minister of Interior Tomas Borge said the plan was hatched at a secret meeting in Honduras attended by CIA officials. Leaders of the Nicaraguan rebel movement and Gen. Gustavo Alvarez Martinez, Honduran military chief.

Borge said the plot involved "the utilization of unmarked planes" to attack Nicaraguan towns and immediately attack a Honduran village to give rebels disguised in uniforms of Nicaraguan regulars.

His statements were printed Friday by the pro-government daily El Nuevo Diario, and confirmed by Interior Ministry officials.

Borge, the only survivor of the three men who founded the leftist Sandinista movement that rules Nicaragua, said the attack on the Honduran village was to be carried out by rebels disguised in uniforms of Nicaraguan regulars.

He said such an operation would then "justify further attacks" on Nicaraguan territory not only by rebels but also by the Honduran army.

Lid kept on writers union

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Government officials extended the suspension of the Polish Writers' Union for two months Friday, apparently because the group refused to purge itself of Solidarity supporters and opponents of the regime.

News of the extension came as Pope John Paul II met in Rome with Polish Primate Jozef Glemp and four other top Polish prelates, apparently to discuss the aftermath of the pope's June 16-23 visit to his homeland.

Glemp denied Thursday on his arrival in Rome that the church had made a deal with the Polish regime on forming a union to replace the banned Solidarity organization without the leadership of Lech Walesa.

The 1,400-member writers' union will continue to operate under a state-appointed custodian until Aug. 31, an official announcement said.

China criticizes Mao, affirms new leaders

PEKING (UPI) — China criticized the late Mao Tse-tung Friday for the "erroneous" purge of Deng Xiaoping in 1976 and affirmed publicly for the first time that Deng is the top leader and major influence of the post-Mao era.

The occasion was the publication of "The Selected Works of Deng Xiaoping," a collection of 47 speeches given by Deng between 1975 and 1982. The release came on the 62nd anniversary of the founding of China's Communist Party.

Deng, who has preferred to rule from behind the scenes through proteges appointed to officially higher posts, was praised in newspaper commentaries as a leader on par with Mao, and the late Premier Chou En-lai.

Families host youths from 22 nations

BY GABRIELLE WESTERGREEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the past two days, families in Twin Falls have been hosting 40 students from 22 countries around the world.

The 17- to 19-year-olds have been with the American Field Service exchange program in the Fortland area for the past year, where they have lived with American families and have gone to American high schools. They are now on a 10-day bus tour to California, from where they will fly home.

Thursday night, they gave a presentation during the intermission of the weekly band concert in City Park. And tonight, they will present an international talent show at the First United Presbyterian Church at 7:30.

The bus trip is a sort of transition period, says Susan Waters, who heads the exchange program in the Twin Falls area. The students confirm that opinion: They are torn between wanting to stay and being ready to leave. One boy from Sweden called it "a time of confusion."

The hardest part has been leaving their host families. Students from Brazil, Italy, Australia, Germany, Argentina, New Zealand, France, Indonesia, to name just a few, all seemed to agree on this point. They will miss their families the most, never mind the M & M's, the peanut-butter-and-jelly sandwiches and the chocolate-chip cookies.

Their greatest memory of the United States will be their families, too.

"Someone to care about and a family to care about me," that was all I wanted," said a student from South America. Life in America is very family-oriented, said a Swedish student. Furthermore, the members of American families are quite close, he said, compared with Swedish families, where each individual is more independent.

But other features of American life will stick in their minds, too. This winter was the first time many of them had seen snow. Others will remember the fast food: "Tell me!" said one girl. "I gained 35 pounds."

Most of the students' previous ideas about America had come from what they'd seen on television. "I'd seen New York and L.A.," said one girl from Italy, but she had never imagined all the other cities. "You might have heard of Idaho," said another student, but that was about all I wanted," said a student from South America. Life in America is very family-oriented, said a Swedish student. Furthermore, the members of American families are quite close, he said, compared with Swedish families, where each individual is more independent.

The exchange students also will remember their experiences in American high schools. Graduation was a particularly foreign ceremony to them. "It was fun," said one student. "In Germany, you get your papers and go home."

Most students thought American school was "lunner."

"You get to choose the classes you want and wear the clothes you want," said a student from Honduras.

Many said they are taking home clothes. T-shirts especially. But one girl said she is taking a computer back with her; she found it helped her in studying.

The students certainly seemed to have picked up a few American habits, as they ran off Thursday to play football, Frisbee and volleyball after a lunch of barbecued hogs and potato salad.

Unknown to most Idaho allows extra turning

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When was the last time a document as dry as the state traffic code held an interesting surprise for those who work with it regularly?

For several people in Twin Falls that day was Friday.

A press release issued recently by the Idaho Department of Transportation concerned left-hand turns at red lights.

It is legal in Idaho, according to the release, to make a left-hand turn at a red light if that turn is made onto a one-way street. That left-hand turn may be made from either a one-way or a two-way street.

At first, Virginia Malone, one of two driver's license examiners at the Twin Falls County Courthouse, thought that sounded pretty fishy.

But sure enough, when she consulted the May 1983 edition of the state's driver's manual, she read that such turns may be made "cautiously... except where posted."

"I don't think anybody here was aware of that. It's the first time I had picked up on it," she said.

Least there be any doubt, Idaho State Police Sgt. Ron Biggstone says that such turns are allowed, except where prohibited by local ordinance. And

Twin Falls city attorney Fritz Wondelich says no such city prohibition is on the books.

"It's been the rule of the road for a long time," said city engineer Gary Young, who was not the slightest bit surprised.

He used the Third Street and Second Avenue West intersection near the post office and The Times-News office as an example. A motorist heading south on Third Street may turn left onto Second Avenue if there is no traffic coming south on the one-way avenue.

"Do it all the time," he said.

Still, "a lot of people are either not aware of it, or else are afraid to do it," he said.

City Council member Mary McClusky is one who had doubts about the law. McClusky chairs the City's Highway Traffic and Safety Committee.

"I don't know of any street where I would make that turn," she said.

The release was issued by the Transportation Department in an attempt to reduce air pollution caused by vehicles idling at intersections, especially during rush hour, said Bill Harvey, a spokesman for the department.

Encouraging people to make the turn may also result in a decrease in fuel consumption, he said.

Bullpen battle ends in accord

Company will move equipment after farm crop is harvested

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A dispute between Willis Inc. of Twin Falls development-construction company, and a group of residents from the eastern section of the city apparently has been laid to rest.

The showdown concerned a "bullpen" at 2501 Ninth Ave. E., a construction yard in which Willis Inc. was storing construction machinery and supplies under lock and key, apart from its main headquarters.

Residents of the Green Tree Estates, Indian Trails West and Carriage Estates subdivisions presented Twin Falls City Council with a petition recently, asking that the bullpen be removed.

They complained it was unsightly, posed a hazard to the area and might remain in their neighborhood for years.

At the meeting, Bob Willis, the owner of Willis Inc., said it was located off Ninth Avenue because a crop had been planted in a nearby field, which also is owned by the company.

"Thursday," Vince Albert, a spokesman for Willis Inc., while Willis was out of town, said a compromise had been reached with the city.

"The intent of placing the yard off Ninth Avenue was not to cause any animosity," he said.

He said it will be moved onto the agricultural land as soon as the crop there is harvested.

"At least he's moving it. That's the main thing," said Dave Ledbetter, who owns the house immediately adjoining the bullpen.

In the wake of the agreement, the city also will not draft an ordinance to deal with the general problem of developers' construction yards.

Council decided such an ordinance might be warranted at the session during which the petition was presented.

Council members reviewed the matter at a work session earlier this week. And Friday Mayor Chris Talkington said council now feels the Willis' bullpen was "a one-of-a-kind situation."

The problem does not warrant a new ordinance — at least until construction activity picks up, he said.

Talkington said he was aware of the agreement worked out with the company by city staff members.

"Frankly, I hope they would move it before then," he said.

Council offers $1,000 reward in arsonist case

BUHL — Buhl City Council is offering a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for a dozen cases of arson in the city last month.

"It's an important enough matter," Mayor James Barker said, important enough so that the city is willing to cut into the contingency funds of its budget to make the money available.

"We want to show the citizens that we are concerned, and that we're willing to put our money where our mouth is," Barker said.

"When you're dealing with someone with a sick mind like this, there's always a chance that he's going around and bragging about it to someone. The money may encourage that person to come forward."

The last arson reported in Buhl were two car fires on June 22.

"I think the citizens are alert (to the danger), now, and that's made a lot of difference.

"But when you've got, at best, only two officers to patrol the whole city, at 3 a.m. when this guy strikes, there's just a lot of places to hide," the mayor said, explaining the difficulties Buhl police have had in catching the arsonist.

Barker praised the police and fire departments, however, saying, "they're doing everything they can and are running down every lead. They do have some suspects."

Any person with information concerning the arsons should call the Buhl Police Department at 343-3200.

Rate hike slated for cable television viewers

TWIN FALLS — Starting Aug. 1, the monthly rate for basic service from Magic Valley Cablevision will be 50 cents higher.

Basic service covers channels 2 to 13. The 5.6 percent increase — from $9.65 to $9.45 — is the first service-charge hike since November 1981, says Cablevision manager Chris Kingdon.

The increase is needed to pass along cost increases to customers, he says.

"Among other things, it will offset property tax increases in Twin Falls and Jerome counties. Property taxes are assessed on the value of all the company's equipment — including wiring, amplifiers and power stations.

Those increases were particularly high in Jerome County, Talkington says. This year, the company will pay $1,444.30, approximately three times as much as it used to, he says.

The service-charge increase also will pay for the increasing cost of overhead, labor and materials.

talkington says.

The city of Twin Falls does not regulate cable rates as part of its franchise agreement with the company.

Twin Falls does collect a 2 percent tax based on the company's gross revenues, however. This tax recognizes the expenses incurred by using city right-of-ways for cable wire, says Talkington, who is also the Twin Falls mayor.

Magic Valley Cablevision serves the communities of Kimberly, Hansen, Filer, Jerome, Gooding and Wendell, in addition to Twin Falls.

A public hearing was held on the increase in Jerome on Wednesday night, as part of that city's franchise agreement.

Nobody appeared for the meeting except the mayor, Talkington says.

He notes the fee increase is smaller than the 6.8 percent rise in the Consumer Price Index for the 16 months from December 1981 to May 1983.

Nampa station joins area's cable network

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A new cable television station came on line Friday in the Magic Valley.

Independently operated KTRV from Nampa has been added to the offerings of Magic Valley Cablevision.

The station features reruns of old 1960s and 70s serials, plus relatively recent movies with local appeal.

Chris Talkington, the Cablevision manager, says the old serials include such shows as "The Virginian," "Gunsmoke," "Charlie's Angels," "I Love Lucy" and "Bewitched."

In addition, two movies will be shown every evening, as well as the national Independent Network News. The station will run movies from noon to 8 p.m. on Sundays.

Based on market share, KTRV is one of the most successful of 170 independent, non-network-affiliated stations in the country, says its manager. "We're doing a great job of being in the Treasure Valley area in October 1981."

The strategy has been the same as that used by many other independent stations. This is to rely on "counter programming" programming that offers an alternative to the standard schedule of network fare, he says.

Under federal regulatory laws, Cablevision must carry KTRV on its regular dial since it is a regional station with a sufficiently large market share, Talkington says. But no existing stations will be dropped.

KTRV will appear on Channel 9, CBN, the Turner Broadcasting station, which was currently located there, has been shifted to Channel 4 in the mornings — when Idaho public television is off the air — and to Channel 10 during the rest of the day, Talkington says.

In an attempt to become a full regional station, KTRV also has filed applications for low-power broadcast licenses in the Twin Falls, Pocatello, Lewiston and Idaho Falls markets, Jones says. But no decision has been made yet on these applications, he says.

The station will have a full-time advertising sales office in Twin Falls.

Hairy 'kids' aid 4-Hers

TWIN FALLS — The pitter-patter of little kids' feet was heard in the offices of The Times-News on Friday.

The "kids," however, were a little on the hairy side.

It was all part of an unusual one-day fund-raiser by the Cedon Dray Canyon 4-H Club, called "rent a goat."

Twin Falls business and media outlets were asked to rent an animal for a $5 or more donation, or "pass" one of the goats on to a "friend," said Judy Rienstra of Buhl, a club leader.

The young 4-H members ventured into the animal business to raise money for the club's display of horses and Fair this fall, Rienstra said.

Usually, parents of the children have to pay for the hay and other materials.

By collecting their own money, the children will relieve their parents of some of the obligation, said Sandy Canoy of Piller, the club president.

Officers arrest murder suspect a second time

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Castleford man accused of the double homicide on June 18 is again under the surveillance of an armed guard at his hospital room in Twin Falls.

Keith Rosencrantz, 30, was re-arrested Friday afternoon at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. He has been charged with the first-degree murder of his former girlfriend and her male companion, said Deputy Voorhees.

Rosencrantz allegedly shot himself with a shotgun after fatally wounding Cathy Alice Gittel, 30, of Buhl, and Michael Wayne Lee, 28, of Twin Falls, at Gittel's home in Buhl.

Because of his injuries, Rosencrantz officially was arrested two days later, as he lay in his hospital bed. He was shot in the left shoulder area.

The suspect was "released" the next day and the armed guard who was on duty was removed because Rosencrantz was not considered to be an escape risk by law enforcement officials.

During his stay at the hospital, Rosencrantz's head "had been monitored" three times a day by authorities, Voorhees said.

Hospital officials told the prosecutor's office Friday that they anticipated Rosencrantz would be released next Tuesday, but possible as early as Sunday.

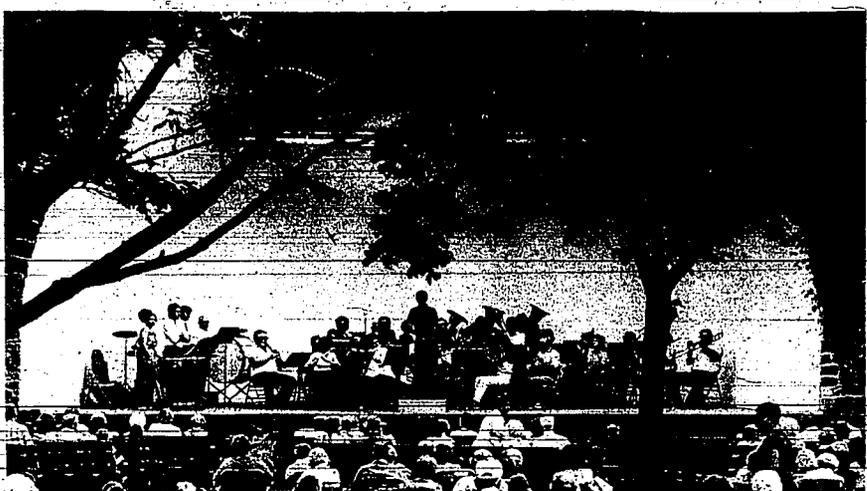

"It was determined this (Friday) morning that his condition had improved, so as to present a risk of escape," Voorhees said.

With the information, the prosecutor's office went to Fifth District Magistrate Court and requested and received — another warrant for Rosencrantz's arrest, he said.

Rosencrantz, who was reported in satisfactory condition Friday evening, was arrested about 15 minutes later, Voorhees said.

There is now a 24-hour guard with Rosencrantz.

The law says that once arrested and suspected to be brought before a magistrate judge within 48 hours, Voorhees said. But because of the July 4 holiday, Rosencrantz will be brought into court on Tuesday, or he will face a judge in his hospital room.

There are six concerts remaining in this summer's weekly series of Thursday night performances at City Park.

Twin Falls Municipal Band has 'grown up'

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Municipal Band probably has attracted more attention this summer than it has in the past decade.

But under the afloat baton of Ted Hadley, it is an undisputed fact that the fourth in a weekly series of City Park band concerts Thursday evening was exceptionally good and exciting.

Possibly more than 600 people cheered, clapped, danced and sang the pleasant outdoor evening away.

This band, which was founded 78 years ago, is said to be the longest-standing municipal band in Idaho. Unlike community orchestras, which function primarily during the school season and claim a pretty regular, professional and ongoing group of musicians, a summer band must rely on the vacation whims of eligible instrumentalists in the community to perform the concerts.

Hadley seems heavy with purpose to develop a fine band that can perform the most popular and often quite difficult music.

Hadley led an appropriate concert Thursday. The program consisted of rousing music to celebrate America's birthday. We heard such stirring songs as "American War," "Armed Forces Salute," "Battle Hymn of the Republic" and "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

The Twin Falls Municipal Band does not sound provincial any more. Hadley pulled generous and suspenseful sounds from more than 30 musicians.

The group's display of unity throughout more than 10 different styles of music was overwhelming. For one who had not heard the band since the 1940s, the "grown-upness" was surprising and thrilling.

Every performer contributed admirably. Those deserving special mention were Al DeVries on trombone, Denis Heide on trumpet and Patty Jo Gablica and Renee Stephenson on piccolos.

An unexpected treat during intermission was the stage visit of 40 American Field Service exchange students from Argentina, Brazil, Belgium, Canada, Honduras, Japan, Colombia, Chile, Bolivia, Paraguay, Indonesia, Italy, Thailand, France, Australia, New Zealand, Sweden, Uruguay, Panama, South Africa and Germany. They have been living for a year in Washington, Oregon and Idaho.

The students gave their names and their homelands. Several spoke to the large audience about the pleasures and difficulties during their time in the United States.

Hadley thanked them for visiting the concert. He touched many hearts when he reminded the audience that many of us came from those diverse countries to make up this nation, whose independence we are celebrating this weekend.

The accident occurred at approximately 10:45 a.m.

Her passenger — 81-year-old William Petersen of Fortuna, Bjorkstrand — and Petersen were taken to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls, where they were treated and released.

Survey: Most people believe in heaven and a loving God

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

Increasingly, church-goers are optimistic about the afterlife, demonstrating a growing belief in a merciful, loving and forgiving God, a lessening concern about the darker elements of life after death.

That is the conclusion of the editors of U.S. Catholic, the monthly publication of the Carrolls, Fathers and Brothers, who surveyed their readers on their views of the afterlife.

They found that 97 percent of those believing in the afterlife said they believe in heaven and a loving God.

In heaven and 38 percent said they expect to go straight to heaven when they die.

Another 56 percent of the readers, composed mostly of Roman Catholics, said they expect to go to heaven after purgatory. According to Roman Catholic doctrine, purgatory is a "place" where baptized souls who have died without repentance for venial sins are expected to go to hell.

And while 80 percent of those responding said they believe in hell, the magazine said its readers were reluctant to put anyone there. Given a list of "candidates" for hell, 22 percent chose Hitler; 15 percent Stalin, 12 percent Nero, 10 percent Judas and 6 percent Pontius Pilate.

Others receiving scattered votes included Playboy publisher Hugh Hefner, Mehmet Ali Agca, who attempted to assassinate Pope John Paul II, Richard Nixon and a "high ranking hierarchy who womanize and/or steal."

The magazine editors also said a surprising 87 percent said they thought they would go to heaven "even if I died with a mortal sin on my soul" — a view that clashes directly with what most Catholics are taught to believe.

"The decline in the belief in hell is one of the most important changes in our history," says Martin Marty, church historian and professor of divinity at the University of Chicago, in commenting on the survey.

"There is a growth in humaneness and a great sense among people that fear of hell doesn't motivate people to be good," he says.

Heaven, the magazine said, is something else.

Nearly everyone said they believed in it and almost as many said they expect to go there. Asked what they would do in heaven, readers thought fell into a pattern, saying first they expect "to hug God," find relatives who died before they and ask God some tough questions, like "why are little children taken without warning?"

The editors said the last two responses were not surprising but the first was.

"The hugging of God was mentioned too many times by too many people to be ignored," the magazine said. The editors speculated the image may come from the New Testament parable of the prodigal son, the gospel song "image of 'he's got the whole world in his hands' or from the longing of people who were not hugged enough as children.

Mormons create new ward for Twin Falls

BY PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "It's exciting. It's growth."

That's how Mijo Price, the Twin Falls Mormon Church spokesman, describes the creation of a new ward, or congregation, in the city.

The 16th Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints was created from the Second and 10th wards. All three are located in the southern part of Twin Falls, Price says.

The reason for the new ward was growth.

On the average, there are 450 members in a Mormon ward, which is the grassroots organizational unit of the church. The Second and 10th wards had approximately 600 members each, and that was too large, Price says.

Don Watson, the president of the Twin Falls West Stake, which includes the two wards, began the process to establish the new ward. A stake is composed of many wards.

The new ward will have 383 members; the 10th, 380; and the Second Ward, 375.

Before the new ward was announced earlier this month, there were months of paperwork, surveying and studies, Price says. The final approval for the division came from Mormon leaders in Salt Lake City.

During the research, some older members were concerned that there would not be enough people to staff the 16 wards. They wanted to see leadership positions required to run the ward, he says. The church, however, was confident there would be no problems, Price says. The Mormon Church has no professional clergy.

Who belongs to what ward depends on where they live. Mormon wards and stakes are determined by boundaries within the city, Price says.

In the case where a new ward has been created, some church members and their neighbors may end up going to different wards.

In August, all three wards will move into new facilities in the 200 block of Park Avenue. At present, the congregations share an older building at 348 Fourth Ave. North.

The wards each have a given amount of time for their many functions and meetings on Sunday and during the week, Price says.

"The new churches have been named along with the establishment of the new ward, as bishop of the 16th Ward, Richard Langford will be responsible for the administration of the congregation, Price says.

Our church news guidelines

The Times-News encourages any church in the Magic Valley area to submit information for our listing of church services, which appears each Saturday.

To insure your information is used, follow these guidelines:

- The deadline for church news is Thursday noon.
- Typewritten or plainly printed information is best; it helps eliminate errors.
- Provide full information — complete names, titles, locations, day and date. Include the name of the community — we serve many — and a phone number to call if more information is needed.
- If you have questions about church news, call 733-9331 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m., and ask for Glenda Mae or Jon Kinney.

House leaders scurry to Hansen's aid

Rep. GEORGE HANSEN

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — House leaders — including three Democrats — will try next week to block a Justice Department subpoena aimed at obtaining documents for the prosecution of Rep. George Hansen, the Idaho Republican's staff lawyer said Friday.

James McKenna said the House leadership, including Democratic Speaker Tip O'Neill, Majority Leader Jim Wright and Rep. Tom Foley, D-Wash., would file court papers trying to prevent prosecutors from obtaining original copies of financial reports Hansen filed from 1978 through 1981.

Hansen has been indicted by a federal grand jury on four counts of falling to disclose several loans to him and his wife, Conna, as well as profits on the sale of silver futures.

U.S. District Judge Joyce Hens Green has postponed indefinitely Hansen's trial — originally scheduled June 20 — to allow time for his lawyers to appeal her refusal to dismiss the charges.

McKenna said in a telephone interview from Washington that the five-member leadership panel, which includes three Democrats and two Republicans, agreed to contest the subpoena of House Clerk Benjamin Guthrie after meeting with Hansen and his lawyers.

Hansen, 52, has argued representatives should not be subject to prosecution for misdeeds in connection with the Ethics in Government Act of 1978.

When he was indicted April 7, Hansen claimed the prosecution "frustrated" his constitutional privileges and immunities of Congress.

McKenna said House leaders agree Congress did not intend for criminal penalties to accompany mistakes in financial disclosure filings.

"They will in their argument be making some of the very arguments we have made," McKenna said.

Hansen's lawyer said the government needs to obtain from Guthrie the original financial reports to obtain a conviction.

McKenna claimed the government knows it has virtually no chance of winning the case, but will find a way to "lose gracefully" after "dirtying up" the seven-term Republican.

Water official offers plan to use Snake River

BOISE (UPI) — The best way to avoid depleting the Snake River system may be to stop reserving water as preparation for possible droughts, state water resources Department Director Ken Dunn said Friday.

Dunn said the reserve water, instead, could be sold to farmers for new production or to other users.

Revenues earned would be devoted to paying irrigators not to plant crops during a drought, he said.

He told two water-rights study committees his suggestion would ensure an adequate water supply to farmers at a cost that would be lower than buying rights from Idaho Power Co., which has been granted 8,400 cubic feet per second at Swan Falls Dam by the state Supreme Court.

Idaho Power's rights will eliminate the state's ability to protect with plans for new agricultural development unless there are further court decisions or new laws to protect uses other than power-generation, Dunn said.

His suggestion for selling reserve water was one of several methods that may be considered to protect the state's options, he said.

He said irrigators could be forced to pay Idaho Power for water at a cost of as much as $40 per acre-foot unless there are legislative changes or new Snake River management techniques.

Senator named to administer Office on Aging

BOISE (UPI) — Sen. Gary Gold, D-Pocatello, was named by Gov. John Evans Friday to head the Idaho Office of Aging.

Gold, a trade union consultant, succeeds Rose Bowman, Evans' former campaign manager, who was selected as director of the Idaho Health and Welfare Department last month.

The 45-year-old senator from District 31 was first elected to the Legislature as a representative in 1977, serving on the Revenue and Taxation and Local Government committees.

He moved to the Senate in 1980 and served on the Revenue, Projections, Commerce and Labor and Local Government and Taxation committees.

He also is a member of the Legislative Council.

Gold said in a telephone interview from his Pocatello home Friday that his background includes 21 1/2 as a welfare caseworker upon graduation from Idaho State University.

Area lawmakers evaluated on natural resource issues

MOSCOW (UPI) — State Sen. Vernon Lamm, D-Pocatello, has received the Idaho Conservation League's top rating in the group's 10th annual rankings.

The ratings, designed to show which lawmakers think conservation and the environment are important to Idaho, listed Lamm as the top legislator from either chamber.

He earned a 100-percent rating by the group for voting the League's "pro-conservation" recommendation on all 16 votes studied.

Only one Republican was rated in the top 10 in each chamber — both being from the Magic Valley: in the Senate, Laird Noh, R-Twin Falls, chairman of the Senate Resources and Conservation Committee, tied with Sen. Norma Dobler, D-Moscow, and Kermit Kiebert, D-Hope, for the No. 4 position.

In the House, Rep. Steve Antonio

R-Rupert, took the No. 7 position with a 69-percent rating.

Issues included in the ratings included a memorial urging the U.S. Energy Department to locate a production nuclear reactor in eastern Idaho, a memorial opposed by the league. Another issue imposed fines for the illegal taking of salmon, which the league supported.

Sen. William Moore, R-Hayden Lake, was the only northern Idaho lawmaker to be rated among the bottom five legislators in either chamber. He was rated 34th among the 35 state senators with a ranking of 13 percent.

The lowest rating given any legislator went to Rep. Rich Orme, R-SL Anthony. The eastern Idaho rancher voted with the league's recommendation only once in 12 votes for an 8-percent rating.

Police confiscate marijuana

BOISE (UPI) — State police said Friday they have confiscated marijuana valued at $274,000 from a Nampa residence where a sophisticated commercial production business may have been flourishing for years.

Law Enforcement Department spokesman Bill Overton said officers from several state and southern Idaho departments also seized growing equipment worth $20,000 from a house where three rooms had been converted into a greenhouse for producing high-quality "sensimilla" pot.

Donald Walling, 21, Nampa, was arrested in the seizure, which took place late Thursday during a training session in the state's marijuana eradication program. The police action marked the second time officers have seized pot during training sessions, he said.

However, Overton said Walling did not live at the residence where the greenhouse was located and apparently was not the owner of the equipment and marijuana.

LONDON — At a stand outside Wimbledon, the morning newspaper headlines were predicting war: If not petitioning for it, they read "ENEMY ACTION." And "WIMBLEDON CENTRE COURT."

John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl had trumpeted their reciprocal hostilities the past two months since they last met in Dallas.

But the war, sorry to say, never started. McEnroe showed Ivan Lendl that serving and volleying is still his game on his grassy territory as he defeated the No. 3 seed, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4, 6-4 Friday in the Wimbledon semifinals.

He will be a heavy favorite for a second singles title when he meets unseeded Chris Lewis in Sunday's final. Lewis, a 26-year-old New Zealand, eliminated Kevin Curren, 6-7 (3-7), 6-4, 7-6 (7-4), 6-7 (3-7), 8-6, in three hours and 46 minutes Friday.

The McEnroe-Lendl match wasn't nearly as dramatic as either its buildup or the Lewis victory. After McEnroe won the first set tiebreaker and broke in the seventh game of the second set, the left-handed New Yorker looked invincible.

The match, immediately established as a serving duel, needed only two breaks to turn on.

"He took full advantage of the few mistakes I made," said Lendl; "who may have wrinkled a few Royal Box noses with his new punkrock hair cut."

If there were few mistakes, there were even fewer rallies. With Lendl getting 81 percent of his first serves in during the first set, Lendl held easily on every game but one. At 2-3, he faced a break point but saved it with a service winner. McEnroe had a break point against him in the ninth and 11th games, and he saved them with service winners.

Only New Zealand knows about Lewis

By SALLY WILSON

LONDON — By Friday morning, Chris Lewis had a foot-high stack of telegrams in his room, all from New Zealand, and that was before he reached the final at Wimbledon.

Lewis, a 26-year-old from Auckland, has been impressing star-struck New Zealanders for a week and a half with reports of his reaching the fourth round, the quarter and then the semifinals. For three hours and 46 minutes Friday on Centre Court — where he had never played a singles match — Lewis impressed and delighted nearly 14,000 English fans by beating Kevin Curren, 6-7, 6-4, 6-7, 8-6.

Lewis becomes only the eighth unseeded player to reach the finals at Wimbledon and the first since Wilhelm Bungert did it in 1967. None of Lewis' predecessors, however, won a set. Lewis, also the first New Zealand in the final since Tony Wilding in 1914, will meet

No. 2 seed John McEnroe in Sunday's final.

"I couldn't feel any better," said Lewis. "In the end, it came down to the fitness factor. I didn't feel tired."

Eight years ago, Lewis won the Wimbledon Junior U18 and was expected to make a quick transition into the pros. But he never got close to the No. 1 position he held as a Junior. At various times, Lewis got into the mid-20s on the ATP computer, but this year he dropped considerably — to 91.

In his 12 previous tournaments in 1983, Lewis got past the second round three times.

Down love-three in the fifth set against Curren on Friday, Lewis looked as if his climb at Wimbledon would end in the semifinals. Curren had not been serving well at times — only 33 percent of his first serves in the second set were in — and looked sluggish, particularly in going down 1-5 in the second set.

But he had lost only one point on his first two service games of the deciding set.

McEnroe quieter in pursuit of title

By JOHN JONES

LONDON — If tennis is becoming a blood sport, then John McEnroe was one of the best-behaved gladiators in the business Friday in dispatching bitter rival Ivan Lendl.

It is a known fact that there is no love lost between them. But all the venom went into McEnroe's serve and volley for his 7-6, 6-4, 6-4 romp to his fourth successive Wimbledon final. McEnroe will face Chris Lewis of New Zealand Sunday in the final.

"I served and volleyed well but the other part of my game wasn't at its best," McEnroe said. "Over the whole match it was one of my best for consistent serves."

Whenever he scented trouble, the 24-year-old New Yorker muscled himself out of difficulty. He served 16 aces and service winners galore.

"The important thing today was that he didn't know where my serves were going and that forced him to guess," McEnroe said. "Although I won in straight sets, it was a close match with only two breaks in it.

McEnroe admitted the 7-5 tiebreaker win in the first set gave him a psychological boost.

The first break came in the seventh game of the second set. Lendl had just won the best rally of the match but went on to concede the crucial game on a double fault.

The incentive for self-control may have been prompted by the fact that McEnroe is only a few points away from a penalty fine total that would mean disqualification from top class tennis for three weeks.

He is just $1,200 away from the $7,500 disqualification figure.

McEnroe has to keep mind and body sound for another punishing two days. On Saturday, he and Peter Fleming team in the men's doubles final against the Gullikson twins. Then it's back again Sunday to face Lewis for the title.

"After Wimbledon I have a month off with no tournaments," McEnroe said. "Hopefully, I'll be celebrating after Sunday."

Rick Woods has stopped hearing Howard Cosell's voice

BOISE — Rick Woods had to teach himself to stop hearing the voice of Howard Cosell. "I opened up in Texas Stadium on a Monday night," says the former Boise State University All-American defensive back, who has a good chance to start at free safety for the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League this fall. "There I was out on the field, and I knew pretty soon Howard was going to mention my name. It's really easy to be intimidated, but you don't have time to be."

He wasn't. He interrupted Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White in that game.

"In some ways, it's easier (in the NFL)," says Woods, a Boise native who is back in town this week to play in a charity golf tournament. "At least in the NFL, you feel like you can smile before the games. You're playing with professionals, and the coaches will tell you — once — if you're doing something wrong. Then it's up to you."

Woods was, along with defensive tackle Randy Trautman, was the real star of the great Boise State defense during the halcyon years of Coach Jim Criner's Broncos.

sparking a unit that consistently led the conference in allowing the fewest yards rushing and passing. Woods, who had passed up the chance to play in the Western Athletic Conference to lead BSU, was the Broncos' big-play man, coming up with the key interception or making the critical tackle in so many Boise State games. He also earned a reputation as a reckless player, willing to risk injury to make the hit on defensive or to return the punt on special teams.

Playing in the NFL is every football player's dream, but most who go to schools like Boise State realize that their chances are slim. Even those who do make it through training camp know that they will spend a lot of their professional careers on the outside looking in, waiting for a chance to play.

That chance came early for Woods. Pittsburgh's fourth pick in the 1982 college draft. He walked into a camp of veterans and sufficiently impressed Steeler Coach Chuck Noll to be given extensive playing time in pre-season. By the time the regular season began he was the Steelers' fifth defensive back and principal punter returner.

"Early in the season, I felt the pressure," says Woods. "But then after they traded J.T. Thomas, I felt real comfortable. I knew I had made it, and I didn't worry so much about getting burned."

Getting burned seemed to be the farthest thing from Woods' mind in rookie year. Trying to pick up an extra yard or two on a punt return against Kansas City, he fell forward on his left arm and a Chiefs' defender hit his elbow. The resulting break put him out of action until the playoffs, when he got the Steelers' final game of the season, against San Diego.

"I learned a lot about the NFL in just that moment," says Woods. "These guys play for keeps."

Woods finished sixth in the NFL and fourth in the AFC in punt returns last year, and was only one of four punt returners in the AFC to average more than 10 yards per return. As a result, not only will he be returning kicks in Pittsburgh this fall, he will be battling with veteran Ron Johnson for the starting free safety job.

"There's a great football tradition in Pittsburgh, but I think a lot of the rookies last year showed a winning attitude," Woods says. "I feel good about going to camp. I've got a shot at starting, and it's just a question of going out and proving that I can do the job."

Woods says the complexity of NFL pass offenses was the toughest adjustment, although practicing against Terry Bradshaw made the transition easier.

"You practice against Bradshaw, and then you go into an exhibition game and face some third-string quarterback," says Woods. "It's cake."

Woods, who played in the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs two seasons out of three at Boise State, got experience in playing in pressure situations in college. He misses the camaraderie of the Boise State teams.

"It's a little more detached on the professional level," he says. "If there's a party, most of the guys don't show up because most of them are married. They did in college."

Still, Woods says there is remarkably little hostility, even among players who are competing for the same position.

"The veterans will try to help you, give you advice sometimes," he says. "They're professionals, and they want the team to win."

Winning is something Rick Woods can think about again, now that survival in the NFL is less of an issue.

"Good players adjust to the system no matter where they are," he says. "Great players make the adjustment, not the other way. It's tough to come in right off the bat and try to prove what you can do, but I'm trying."

'Shearson 10' sparks Wall Street's gains

By FRANK W. SISSLER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The Shearson "uncom-10" provided the most fireworks Friday as the stock market closed out a dark week with its third straight gain in the slowest trading in three months.

"This was a typical Friday prior to the 'Fourth of July holiday,'" said Harry Laubscher of Palne Webber.

"The trading was slow and prices rose which was happened historically."

The Dow Jones industrial average, an 8-1/2 winner Thursday, added 5.30 to 1,225.26 but finished the week with a 16.43-point loss thanks to a 32-point skid the first two sessions.

The New York Stock Exchange index gained 0.50 to 97.91 and the price of an average share increased 19 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 0.80 to 168.91. Advances topped declines 564-592 among the 1,919 issues traded.

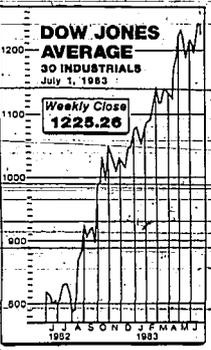

The issues on Shearson-American Express's 36th annual "ten-uncom-mon values in common stocks," released late Thursday, all scored big gains to pace the late market upturn.

But the Big Board volume of 63,110,000 shares, down from the 76,310,000 traded Thursday, was the slowest turnover since 58,595,450 changed hands March 20.

While many investors left early for the holiday, other traders stayed on the sidelines to await the Federal Reserve's post-market report that showed the nation's money supply rose $400 million in the latest week.

The increase surprised analysts, who had predicted a sharp decline following a $3.2 billion drop the week before. Bonds plunged following the latest report and that clouded the market's outlook for next week.

Bonds had rallied the previous two sessions and alleviated investor fears that the Fed would tighten credit to bring the money supply growth central and to stem inflationary fires stoked by the recovering economy.

The government reported construction spending rose 3 percent in May. That was the latest in a series of reports showing the economy reviving strongly from the recession.

The American Stock Exchange listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 75,271,000 shares, down from the 87,493,380 traded Thursday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers index of OTC stocks gained 2.88 to 321.50.

Among the 321.50 issues, Butler International rose 3 1/2 to 22 1/2. Commercial Metals 2 1/2 to 30 1/2. First Chicago 1 1/2 to 24. General Signal 2 1/2 to 49 1/2.

Miller-Walk 1 1/2 to 52. Presley Cos. 4 1/2 to 28 1/2 and Storer Broadcasting 2 1/2 to 33 1/2. Ch-Ch's rose 3 1/2 to 24 1/2, bid in the over-the-counter market.

Blue-chip American Telephone & Telegraph was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 64 1/2.

International Telephone & Telegraph advanced 1/8 to 43 1/2. It gained 1 1/2 Thursday after ITT said its defense units have order backlogs of more than $1 billion.

McEnroe whips Lendl

By SALLY WILSON
Dallas Morning News

LONDON — At a stand outside Wimbledon, the morning newspaper headlines were predicting war, if not petitioning for it. They read, "ENEMY ACTION." And "WWIII ON CENTRE COURT."

John McEnroe and Ivan Lendl had trumpeted their reciprocal hostilities the past two months since they last met in Dallas.

But the war, sorry to say, never started. McEnroe showed Ivan Lendl that serving and volleying is still his game on his grassy territory as he defeated the No. 3 seed, 7-6 (7-5), 6-4, 6-4 Friday in the Wimbledon semifinals. McEnroe reached his fourth straight final at the All-England Club.

Wimbledon finals at 7 a.m. MDT on NBC-TV

He will be a heavy favorite for a second singles title when he meets unseeded Chris Lewis in Sunday's final. Lewis, a 26-year-old New Zealander, eliminated Kevin Curren, 6-7 (3-7), 6-4, 7-6 (7-4), 6-7 (3-7), 8-6, in three hours and 46 minutes Friday.

The McEnroe-Lendl match wasn't nearly as dramatic as either its buildup or the Lewis victory. After McEnroe won the first-set tiebreaker and broke in the seventh game of the second set, the left-handed New Yorker looked invincible. The match, immediately established as a serving duel, needed only two breaks to turn on.

"He took full advantage of the few mistakes I made," said Lendl, who noses with his new punk-rock hair cut.

If there were few mistakes, there were even fewer rallies. With Lendl getting 81 percent of his first serves in during the first set, Lendl held easily on the first break but one. At 2-3, he faced a break point but saved it with a service winner. McEnroe had a break point against him in the ninth and 11th games—and he saved them with service winners.

McEnroe quieter in pursuit of title

By JOHN JONES
United Press International

LONDON — If tennis is becoming a blood sport, then John McEnroe was one of the best behaved gladiators in the business Friday in dispatching bitter rival Ivan Lendl.

It is a known fact that there is no love lost between them. But all the venom went into McEnroe's serve and volley for his 7-6, 6-4, 6-4 romp to his fourth successive Wimbledon final. McEnroe will face Chris Lewis of New Zealand Sunday in the finals.

"I served and volleyed well but the other part of my game wasn't at its best," McEnroe said. "Over the whole match it was one of my best for consistent serves."

Whenever he scented trouble, the 24-year-old New Yorker muscled himself out of difficulty. He served 16 aces and service winners galore.

"The important thing today was that he didn't know where my serves were going and that forced him to guess," McEnroe said. "Although I won in straight sets, it was a close match with only two breaks in it.

McEnroe admitted the 7-6 tiebreaker win in the first set gave him a psychological boost.

The first break came in the seventh game of the second set. Lendl had just won the best rally of the match but went on to concede the crucial game on a double fault.

The incentive for self-control may have been prompted by the fact that McEnroe is only a few points away from a peppy fine total that would mean disqualification from top class tennis for three weeks.

He is just $1,200 away from the $7,500 disqualification figure.

McEnroe has to keep mind and body sound for another punishing two days. On Saturday, he and Peter Fleming team in the men's doubles final against the Gullikson twins. Then it's back again Sunday to face Lewis for the title.

"After Wimbledon I have a month off with no tournaments," McEnroe said. "Hopefully, I'll be celebrating after Sunday."

Only New Zealand knows about Lewis

By SALLY WILSON
Dallas Morning News

LONDON — By Friday morning, Chris Lewis had a foot-high stack of telegrams in his room, all from New Zealand, and that was before he reached the final at Wimbledon.

Lewis, a 26-year-old from Auckland, has been impressing star-struck New Zealanders for a week and a half with reports of his reaching the fourth round, the quarters and then the semifinals. For three hours and 46 minutes Friday on Centre Court where he had never played a singles match—Lewis impressed and delighted nearly 14,000 English fans by beating Kevin Curren, 6-7, 6-4, 6-7, 8-6.

Lewis becomes only the fourth unseeded player to reach the finals at Wimbledon and the first since Wilhelm Bungert did it in 1967. None of Lewis' predecessors, however, won a set. Lewis, also the first New Zealander in the finals since Tony Wilding in 1914, will meet

No. 2 seed John McEnroe in Sunday's final.

"I couldn't feel any better," said Lewis. "In the end, it came down to the fitness factor. I didn't feel tired."

Eight years ago, Lewis won the Wimbledon Junior title and was expected to make a quick transition into the pros. But he never got close to the No. 1 position he held as a junior. At various times, Lewis got into the mid-20s on the ATP computer, but this year he dropped considerably—to 91.

In his 12 previous tournaments in 1983, Lewis got past the second round three times.

Down love-three in the fifth set against Curren on Friday, Lewis looked as if his climb at Wimbledon would end in the semifinals. Curren had not been serving well at times—only 21 percent of his first serves in the second set were in—and looked sluggish, particularly in going down 1-5 in the second set.

But he had lost only one point on his first two service games of the deciding set.

Rick Woods has stopped hearing Howard Cosell's voice

BOISE — Rick Woods had to teach himself to stop hearing the voice of Howard Cosell on a Monday night, says the former Boise State University All-American defensive back, who has a good chance to start at free safety for the Pittsburgh Steelers of the National Football League this fall. "There I was, out on the field, and I knew pretty soon Howard was going to mention my name. It's really easy to be intimidated, but you don't have time to be."

He wasn't. He intercepted Dallas Cowboys' quarterback Danny White in that game.

"In some ways, it's easier (in the NFL)," says Woods, a Boise native who left town this week to play in a charity golf tournament. "At least in the NFL, you feel like you've earned before the game. You're playing with professionals, and the coaches will tell you—once—if you're doing something wrong. Then it's up to you."

Woods was, along with defensive tackle Randy Trautman, was the real star of the great Boise State defenses during the halcyon years of Coach Jim Criner's Broncos.

sparking a unit that consistently led the conference in allowing the fewest yards rushing and passing. Woods, who had passed up the chance to play in the Western Athletic Conference to attend BSU, was the Broncos' big-play man, coming up with the key interception or making the critical tackle in so many Boise State games. He also earned a reputation as a reckless player, willing to risk injury to make the hit on defensive or to return the punt on special teams.

Playing in the NFL is every football player's dream, but most who go to schools like Boise State realize that their chances are slim. Even those who do make it through training camp know that they will spend a lot of their professional careers on the outside looking in, waiting for a chance.

That chance came early for Woods. Pittsburgh's fourth pick in the 1983 college draft. He walked into a camp of veterans and sufficiently impressed Steeler Coach Chuck Noll to be given extensive playing time in the regular season. By the time the regular season began he was the Steelers' fifth defensive back and principal punter returner.

"Early in the season, I felt the pressure," says Woods. "But then after I trained J.T. Thomas, I felt real comfortable. I knew I had made it, and I didn't worry so much about getting burned."

Getting burned seemed to be the farthest thing from Woods' mind in rookie year. Trying to pick up an extra yard or two on a punt return against Kansas City, he fell forward on his left arm and a Chiefs defender hit his elbow. The resulting break put him out of action until the playoffs, when he got the Steelers' final game of the season, against San Diego. "I learned a lot about the NFL in just that moment," says Woods. "These guys play for keeps."

Woods finished sixth in the NFL and fourth in the AFC in punt returns last year, and was only one of four punt returners in the AFC to average more than 10 yards per return. As a result, not only will he be returning kicks in Pittsburgh this fall, he will be battling with veteran Ron Johnson for the starting free safety job.

"There's a great football tradition in Pittsburgh, but I think a lot of the coaches last year showed a winning attitude," Woods says. "I feel good about going to camp. I've got a shot at starting, and it's just a matter of going out and proving that I can do the job."

Woods says the complexity of NFL pass offenses was the toughest adjustment, although practicing against Terry Bradshaw made the transition easier.

"You practice against Bradshaw, and then you go into an exhibition game and face some third-string quarterback," says Woods. "It's a cake."

Woods, who played in the NCAA Division I-A playoffs two seasons out of three at Boise State, got experience in playing in pressure situations in college. He misses the camaraderie of the Boise State teams.

"It's a little more detached on the professional level," he says. "If there's a party, most of the guys don't show up because most of them are married. They did in college."

Still, Woods says there is remarkably little hostility, even among players who are competing for the same position.

"The veterans will try to help you, give you advice, some times," he says. "They're professionals, and they want the team to win."

Winning is something Rick Woods can think about again, now that survival in the NFL is less of an issue.

"Good players adjust to the system no matter where they are," he says. "Great players make the adjustment more quickly. It's tough to come in right off the bat and try to prove what you can do, but I'm trying."

Smith, McKenzie highlight in first day of Sports Fest

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—Veterans Francie Larrieu Smith, facing surgery in two weeks, and Dave McKenzie, the leading American in the hammer throw, turned-in top performances Friday as the track and field competition opened at the National Sports Festival.

Larrieu, who will undergo an operation to correct nerve damage in his right foot on July 15, won his last race of the season and defended her title by beating NCAA champion Michele Bush of UCLA in the 1,500 meters with a clocking of 4:41 minutes, 27.1 seconds.

McKenzie, who had hoped to exceed his U.S. record of 244 feet, 5 inches, failed to settle for a gold-medal loss of 241 feet.

Other winners included Paul Cummings of Provo, Utah in the 10,000 meters (30:58.96); Patty Kearney of Eugene, Ore. in the women's javelin throw (178-2); Todd Scully of Blacksburg, Va. in the 20-kilometer walk (1:39:13); and Bruce Bleckford of Wellesley Hills, Mass. in the 3,000-meter steeplechase (10:55.03).

At the end of the first day of the decathlon, Mike Marks of Missoula, Mont., had scored 4,214 points to lead Tim Wright of Phoenix, Ore. with 3,971, while Martine Harmon, a freshman at Cal State-Northridge, was the runaway leader in the heptathlon after the first four events.

Larrieu had mixed feelings about the fact that she did not have to face Mary Decker in the 1,500.

"I think Mary's times have made me get off my rear and try to do something to improve my time," Larrieu said, but she added, "It's nice to run a race without Mary once in a while. It means you have a chance to win."

McKenzie, 34, who improved his hammer throwing technique during the mid-1970s by training in West Germany, recorded his winning throw on his last attempt. He still is far behind the world record of 275-6 owned by Sergey Litvinov of the Soviet Union.

The other top attraction came on the basketball floor, where the South faced the East Friday night for the gold medal. The North, led by Tim Kempton of Notre Dame, beat the West 135-114 for the bronze.

Olympic basketball coach Bobby Knight was in attendance at the Festival and he said he had not yet promised any player that he would be a part of the 1994 team that goes for the gold in Los Angeles.
