State pays final tribute to Jordan

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Mourners paid their last respects to former U.S. Sen. Len B. Jordan Tuesday by attending an hour-long funeral service and filling past his flag-draped casket as it lay in state in the Capitol Rotunda.

National Guardsmen stood vigil as legislators, family members and former state leaders paid tribute to the late Republican senator, who died Thursday in Boise. He was 84.

The Rev. Fred Venable eulogized the former Idaho governor by reading remarks from family members, who said Jordan should be remembered as an honest man who was an inspiration to others.

Jordan died at a Boise hospital after suffering from coronary disease and cancer. His condition was complicated by a stroke last Tuesday, family members said.

After the funeral, Jordan was buried at Cloverdale Memorial Park in Boise. The graveside ceremony was restricted to family members.

"He had a sense of fair play that made lasting friends of his strongest adversaries," said Venable, of the First United Methodist Church, Cathedral of the Rockies. "He never stopped learning and, for those who listened, he never stopped teaching."

The family's piety, referred to Jordan's deep respect and knowledge for Idaho's river system, reflected in his favorite Biblical quote: "All the rivers run into the sea, yet the sea is not full."

Venable said, "He knew his rivers ran full this spring, and now he has returned with them to his source."

Among the more than 600 who attended the funeral services were Andrew Idaho State President, Pro Tem James Risch, Bonneville Power Administrator Peter Johnson and several state lawmakers.

Earlier, Lt. Gov. David Leroy fitting Jordan and said placing his body in the state Capitol was a "very fitting tribute."

"He gave brilliant service to this state from this building," said Leroy, a Republican. "It's a very fitting tribute, especially where his casket is positioned — on the side that gives access to the governor's office."

Jordan served one term as governor beginning in 1950, and then was appointed to the U.S. Senate in 1962 after the death of Sen. Henry Dworshak.

He completed four years of Dworshak's term, then was re-elected for a full term in 1966. He retired in 1973, saying he wanted to spend more time with his family.

Senate President Pro Tem James Risch said Jordan was "a great man — someone who will be badly missed."

Supreme Court rules states can pay to pray

By ELIZABETH OLSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Legislators may pay a chaplain to open their sessions with a prayer, the Supreme Court ruled 6-3 Tuesday.

Such appeals for divine guidance are "part of the fabric of our society," the court said.

Chief Justice Warren Burger, writing for the court, said the prayers are a "simply an acknowledgment of beliefs widely held" by the people and not an unconstitutional entanglement of church and state.

The high court's decision in the case of the Nebraska Legislature's chaplain apparently will allow Congress to continue its practice of paying Its and Senate chaplains to begin Its

Risch says Idaho lawmakers would have gone right on praying

BOISE (UPI) — Senate President Pro Tem Jim Risch says the Legislature would not have abandoned its long-held practice of opening daily sessions with a prayer, regardless of the outcome of a suit challenging the use of public funds to pay chaplains.

Risch said he was pleased with a U.S. Supreme Court ruling Tuesday.

But the Boise Republican added the daily prayers would not have stopped at Idaho's Statehouse even if the high court rejected using taxpayer funds to pay members of the clergy.

"We would have continued to use chaplains — either in-house, legislators themselves, or funded through some other means," he said Tuesday.

Risch said the high court's 6-3 ruling reaffirms the intention of American's founders that daily legislative meetings should begin with prayer.

"It obviously indicates the founding fathers did not intend this to be a violation of the Constitution," he said.

The chaplain in the House, Rev. Donald Baird of the Trinity United Presbyterian Church, said the opening prayer is an important way to begin the day's lawmaking activities.

The reverend, who receives $105 for every week the House is in session, added access to a chaplain is important to many lawmakers.

Every state legislature, except the Massachusetts Senate, opens its daily sessions with a prayer, usually offered by a guest minister, Nebraska and 17 other states, including Idaho, have salaried chaplains.

"In light of the unambiguous and unbroken history of more than 200 years, there can be no doubt that the practice of opening legislative sessions with prayer has become part of the fabric of our society."

"To invoke divine guidance on a public body entrusted with making the laws is not, in these circumstances, an establishment of a religion or a step toward establishment; it is simply a tolerable acknowledgment of beliefs widely held among the people of this country," Burger wrote.

Justices William Brennan, Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens dissented.

Politicians suited for role

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Politicians were especially urged to apply Tuesday for the role of guest corpse in "The Real Inspector Hound," a comedy in which the actor lies motionless continuously for 90 minutes.

There is no pay for the part in the Pittsburgh Laboratory Theater's version of Tom Stoppard's play, but producers said the murder victim gets plenty of exposure.

"In the play there is a corpse on stage from the opening of the show through to the end," said John Knott, general manager of the theater. "All they do is lie there still the whole time.

"We're hoping that people who are looking for exposure for themselves might come out. It would be perfect for politicians, just for the recognition. All they have to do is provide their own suit."

Ma. Knott said guest corpses can appear in the one-act satire on traditional murder mysteries for as many nights as they choose between July 8 and Aug. 6.

She said regular members of the theater company were not enthusiastic about the part, because "it's a kind of tough to ask an actor to not act."

Troop withdrawal talks

Shultz huddles with Syrians

By E. MICHAEL MYRRES
United Press International

DAMASCUS, Syria — Secretary of State George Shultz met Syrian officials Tuesday in a hectic one-day Middle East shuttle to three Arab states aimed at winning the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon.

Shultz was scheduled to hold a crucial meeting Wednesday with President Hafez Assad to discuss his demands for an unconditional Israeli pullout from Lebanon as a precondition for bringing Syrian troops back home.

"We have much to talk about," Shultz said at Damascus airport Tuesday. He was welcomed by Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul-Halim Khaddam after a short flight from the Lebanese capital of Beirut.

Shultz met King Fahd, of Saudi Arabia, in Jeddah early Tuesday before flying to Lebanon for a one-hour session with President Amin Gemayel at the presidential palace overlooking war-ravaged Beirut.

In Damascus, Khaddam gave a banquet for the secretary of state but formal talks between the two foreign ministers were set for Wednesday before Shultz's session with Assad.

Afterward, Shultz was to fly to Israel for a 24-hour stay and then back to Washington.

Last weekend, President Reagan sent Shultz on the unexpected Middle East tour at the end of an Asian trip. Syria's agreement to meet Shultz was a minor breakthrough because the Damascus government had refused to meet with U.S. special envoy Philip Habib in his efforts to achieve a withdrawal of Syrian forces from Lebanon.

But before Shultz's arrival, state-run Damascus radio stepped up its attack on the May 17 Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal accord, mediated by Shultz.

"Syria fights the agreement of submission," it said. "Syria insists on the withdrawal of the Israeli forces from Lebanon without any hostile gains."

During Shultz's stay of less than five hours in Beirut, Lebanon warned the agreement with Israel could be a partial withdrawal if it were part of a timetable for a full Israeli pullout.

Lebanon fears the redeployment would lead to a partitioning of the country between the 30,000 Israeli troops and 50,000 Syrian and Palestinian forces.

Reagan works on rivalry of teacher unions

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan got an icy reception from the American Federation of Teachers Tuesday as he sought to woo the group by attacking a larger rival union for brainwashing American school children.

More than 100 delegates of the AFT, the nation's second largest teacher's organization with 880,000 members, silently left the hall as Reagan began a speech urging the group to join his excellence-in-education campaign. Others wore orange badges of protest.

Applause was polite but restrained.

Reagan's appearance at the AFT meeting capped a nearly weeklong trip west that began with similar appearances in Kentucky and Kansas to highlight his back-to-basics education push. He requested the opportunity to disagreements in our view."

While he has sounded conciliatory about Reagan's proposal for merit pay for outstanding teachers, the federation strongly objects, for instance, to tuition tax credits backed by the administration. And Sandler has said the president deserves no more than "an F plus" grade on education issues and has no chance of receiving the group's political endorsement.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes described Reagan as "reasonably satisfied with the reception" he received. "It was quite adequate," he said.

He also told reporters that Reagan, who flew back to Washington afterward, was aware of the teachers' walkout, but he attributed it to a protest against U.S. involvement in El Salvador rather than opposition to Reagan's education policies.

White House aides had predicted Reagan's cause would be aided by speaking to the AFT, even if he met protest. They reasoned a bad reception would help him paint teachers as an obstacle to needed reform, more concerned about their own interests than the quality of schools.

Reagan spent less time in his speech articulating his education goals than attacking the federation's rival, the 1.7 million-member National Education Association.

This president lauded the AFT for pursuing a more conservative course than the liberal activism of the NEA, which has opposed merit pay for teachers and criticized administration reluctance to put federal funding behind education reforms.

He got loud applause when he charged the NEA, by aiding publication of a "curriculum guide" on the nuclear freeze, was attempting to "manipulate school curriculum" for propaganda purposes.

"You stand in bright contrast to those who have promoted curriculum guides that seem to me more aimed at frightening and brainwashing American school children than at fostering learning and stimulating balanced, intelligent debate," Reagan told the delegates.

Bob Harman, NEA communications director, said in Philadelphia where the group was meeting that the booklet Reagan referred to, titled "Choices," was produced by the Union of Concerned Scientists with NEA advice and assistance.

Its purpose was "to provide children with information on nuclear war," he said. While some of the language is characterized as being antiwar, Harman said, "I don't think

Mayerick makes a comeback

CLEVELAND (UPI) — Former mayor Dennis Kucinich, who held office during Cleveland's dark days of default, Tuesday started his political comeback by capturing 53 percent of the vote to win a City Council primary.

"This is a great victory for the people," Kucinich told some 150 screaming supporters.

The 36-year-old liberal Democrat was considered the favorite in the eight-candidate Ward 17 primary because the ward is composed of Kucinich's most loyal followers. It was his first election victory since the city defaulted in December 1978.

Burton ties the knot again

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Actor Richard Burton was married for the fifth time Sunday during a break in a New York stage play starring his second and third wives, Elizabeth Taylor, it was announced Tuesday.

A spokesman for the long-time Shakespearean actor-turned-movie star, said Burton, 57, and Sally Hay, 35, were married in the presidential suite of a Las Vegas hotel July 3.

It was the first marriage for Miss Hay who met Burton during the filming of the movie "Wages" on location in Vienna early in 1982. Miss Hay was employed on the film as a continuity supervisor.

Gunman makes off with 'Jedi'

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (UPI) — A gunman held a film projectionist hostage for two hours Tuesday and forced him to hand over a 70mm print of "Return of the Jedi."

Overland Park police Lt. Phil Barbour said the gunman got away with the film, valued at between $7,000 and $10,000, in seven metal cases.

Barbour said projectionist John J. Smith told authorities he was leaving the Glenwood Theater shortly after midnight when a man approached him in the parking lot and pulled a gun.

Smith said he and the man went into the theater, but when the gunman saw the building was still occupied, the pair returned to the parking lot and waited for the movie house to clear.

Flows in Lake Powell down

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Bureau of Reclamation officials said they will take advantage of reduced inflows to Lake Powell to shut down the left spillway on Glen Canyon Dam this week so divers can inspect damage to the structure.

Kathy Lovelace, spokeswoman for the Bureau of Reclamation in Salt Lake City, said Tuesday the inflows to the Powell behind the Glen Canyon Dam in southeastern Utah had decreased to about 330,000 gallons per second, from a high of 835,000 gallons per second last week.

She said that means flows can be decreased from the dam this week, easing flooding downstream on the Colorado River.

Today's weather

Cooler, a chance of thundershowers

Twin Falls — Burtley's Hapert, Jarvis Gooding areas: Not so warm today and Thursday. Partly cloudy with a chance of a late afternoon or evening thundershower.

Widely at times today. Highs in the middle 80s today and 80 to 85 on Thursday; lows near 50.

Camas Prairie, Halley, Wood River Valley: Not so warm today and Thursday. Partly cloudy with widely scattered showers and thundershowers in the afternoon and evening, mainly over the mountains. Gusty wind at times today. Highs 73 to 83 today and 67 to 77 on Thursday; lows 37 to 47.

Northern Nevada and Utah: Cooler and windy, with variable high cloudiness over Nevada today and Thursday. Highs near 70 today and in the 80s on Thursday; lows near 50. Partly cloudy today and Thursday over Utah, with isolated showers possible near the mountains. Highs in the 90s; lows in the 60s.

Synopsis: Cooler temperatures and afternoon mountain thundershowers appear in prospect for much of Idaho through the weekend.

Increasing moisture in a southerly air flow will combine with lower pressure moving inland from the West Coast to generate the afternoon showers and thundershowers, which will fall chiefly over the mountain areas. Cooler temperatures should reach western Idaho today, spreading over the state on Thursday. Mid-afternoon temperatures Tuesday were 5 to 15 degrees warmer than on Monday, with the state's hot spot at Pocatello, where the high of 90 degrees was recorded. The coolest morning low was 34 at Deadwood.

Clouds over the state were broken and high, although some thundershowers developed late in the day above mountain country.

In Twin Falls on Tuesday, the pollen count was 18 per cubic meter of air.

The agricultural forecast for the Magic Valley and southern Idaho calls for precipitation of around 10 inches over the next five days. The best chance for showers will be in the afternoon and evenings, mainly near the mountains.

Daily average evaporation rates will be between 30 and 35 inch through Sunday. Winds today and Thursday will be 5 to 8 mph in the morning, picking up to 10 to 14 mph in the afternoons.

Elsewhere in the nation on Tuesday, the hottest temperature reported was 119 degrees at Coolidge, Ariz., and the coldest was 31 at West Yellowstone, Mont.

In Idaho politics and one who all in politics could take many lessons from.

"He was a statesman in the truest sense. His positions were well-stated, well-founded. You just didn't find him on a radical side of an issue."

State Rep. Larry Harris, R-Boise, said one of the most remarkable aspects about Jordan was the "superb team" he made with his wife, Grace.

Harris said he carries with him a copy of a quote—taken from Mrs. Jordan's book, "The Unintentional Senator" that helps explain why he serves in public office.

"What moves the American citizen to seek public office?" Mrs. Jordan wrote: "It is the average, he believes in law and order, in the primacy of the public interest, in equal justice and in government—that is respected."

"Also it is not unpleasant to attract public attention of the right kind."

Jordan's grandchildren said they recalled the longtime politician as an inspiration who was more to them than just a public servant.

"He was more than just a statesman because he was my grandfather," 17-year-old Len B. Jordan said. "If I could be one-third the person he was, that sure would be enough for me."

Susan Lovelace, a granddaughter from Denver, said Jordan in recent years appeared more interested in the lives of his family than relating his own wide-ranging experiences.

"When I tried to get him to tell us more, he said he never learned anything by talking," she said. "That taught me the importance of listening."

positive way in a case 20 years ago but has changed his mind, said such an invocation "intrudes on the right to conscience" by forcing legislators either to participate in something they disagree with or "make their disagreements a matter of public comment."

It also "forces all residents of the state to support a religious exercise that may be contrary to their own beliefs," he said.

Nebraska's legislative-prayer practice was challenged in 1979 by state legislator Ernest Chambers—the son of a fundamentalist minister.

He said he did not share, or agree with, the Presbyterian religion of the Rev. Robert Palmer, who served as the Nebraska legislature's chaplain for 16 years until January 1981 when a court ruled against the practice.

Burger rejected arguments that Palmer's long tenure amounted to establishing an official religion and showed a preference for one denomination over another.

that's a bad position."

Reagan "wants to say negative things about the NEA. I think it's a marvelous distraction for the fact that he has not had a single positive thing to offer education since he took office," Harman said.

In fueling the feud between the two groups, Reagan provided evidence that his overtures to the AFT are intended to isolate the NEA and Democratic presidential hopefuls who are actively seeking its influential political endorsement.

"I know there's another pretty big education organization out there," he said. "But it has been my experience that dedication, open-mindedness and initiative count for just as much as size. And it seems to me that in all three categories the AFT—like AVID—tries a lot harder."

Reagan also received applause when he said the teaching of a second language in schools "should never permanently segregate non-English speaking students in a way that will make it harder... for them to succeed in life."

Andropov issues a warning

MOSCOW (UPI) — Walking with difficulty and unable to control the shaking of his hands, Soviet leader Yuri Andropov met West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl Tuesday and warned that deployment of U.S. missiles in Europe would heighten the threat of war.

West German officials said the 69-year-old Soviet president and Communist Party chief, who canceled talks with Kohl Monday, was "hindered" in his movements as he took his place at a green felt-covered table in the Kremlin.

Soviet television's evening news program showed Andropov's hands shaking as he gestured to make a point. Photographers were allowed in to the room only after the men were seated.

Although Kohl told Andropov that President Reagan believed an agreement was possible before the NATO Disarmament Conference, Andropov agreed, the Soviet leader declared that pressure would not change the Soviet position.

"Politicians in the NATO countries keep repeating that the U.S.S.R. will make concessions in Geneva after new American missiles have been brought to Western Europe," Andropov said.

"This is a profound and dangerous delusion. If it comes to deployment, we will neither surrender our positions nor weaken our defenses, but take prompt and effective measures in response to ensure the security of the U.S.S.R. and its allies."

NATO is committed to begin deploying 572 Pershing-2 and cruise missiles in five Western European countries if the Soviets do not agree to reduce their existing fleet of SS-20 rockets and other weapons in the medium-range category.

Soviets say U.S. stalling talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (UPI) — The Soviet Union accused the United States Tuesday of deliberately blocking arms control negotiations in order to achieve military superiority with new weapons such as space combat systems.

Soviet chief delegate Viktor I. Israelyan said the NATO Disarmament Conference the United States was responsible for "the lack of any progress at all" in talks on limiting both nuclear and conventional weapons.

intermediate missiles," he said. "The United States and some of its allies make no secret that their actions are aimed at the achievement of military superiority." Israelyan said.

He claimed that Washington had programs to produce and deploy new intermediate nuclear weapons as well as medium-range missiles and "completely new systems of conventional weapons."

"Space combat systems are being developed to deliver strikes on targets in outer space and on earth," he charged.

Israelyan reiterated previous Soviet proposals for a nuclear weapons freeze and current levels and a moratorium on all further nuclear testing.

Poles stick with threat to fire Walesa

WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Lech Walesa's aides said Tuesday they did not think the Solidarity union founder would end his unauthorized vacation from the Lenin Shipyard before a Wednesday deadline set by his bosses. Walesa, reportedly staying with relatives in a village about 50 miles east of Warsaw, was not available for comment.

Aides at Walesa's home in the northern part of Gdansk said they were in touch with him and he was aware of the threat of disciplinary action. But they doubted he would return to the shipyard by the deadline.

Danuta Oczki, director of personnel at the Gdansk shipyard where Walesa works as an electrician, said the deadline for his return was the end of the regular work shift at the yard on Wednesday.

"If he hasn't appeared by then his foreman will notify us and we'll be entitled to take disciplinary measures," she said.

Soviets award Jaruzelski highest medal

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet Union honored Polish leader Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski on his 60th birthday by awarding him the Order of Lenin, the highest Soviet honor, the Soviet news agency Tass said Tuesday.

Tass said Jaruzelski received the award for his "services in the development of the fraternal friendship and cooperation between the peoples of the U.S.S.R. and the Polish Peoples' Republic and on the occasion of his 60th birthday."

The Polish leader's birthday is Wednesday.

Miss Oczki said unauthorized absences from the shipyard usually are punished by dismissal. A decision on Walesa would "not necessarily" be taken quickly, she added.

dismissed, but if so, his motives were unclear. The firing of Walesa could set off labor demonstrations in support of the Solidarity founder.

The union leader said several months ago he would join the Solidarity underground if he found it impossible to advance the cause of his organization following his release from 11 months in martial law internment camps.

He applied for reinstatement to his old job as an electrician at the yard where he worked before the August 1980 strikes that gave birth to Solidarity, but officials delayed approving his re-employment until late April.

He had been working since then on the contract for a new shift in shipyard garage, earning about $225 per month.

Reports from the Vatican recently have indicated that Pope John Paul II might have struck a deal with Polish authorities to urge Walesa to step out of the public spotlight in return for the further easing of martial law.

Soviet violinist defects, asks asylum in U.S.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (UPI) — Soviet violinist Viktoria Mullova, who fled a concert tour in Finland, requested political asylum in the United States Tuesday to better her career, a U.S. Embassy official said.

"I simply had to get out to go on with my playing. It's a matter of my career," Miss Mullova, 23, said in an interview in Stockholm in the Swedish daily Ilta-Sanoma.

A spokesman for the U.S. Embassy said Miss Mullova came to the embassy accompanied by a Swedish policeman to request asylum.

The immigration police in Stockholm said Miss Mullova and her accompanist, Vahtang Zhordania, were in hiding "somewhere in Stockholm."

Miss Mullova, and Zhordania, defected Sunday from Kuusamo, 15 miles from the Soviet border where they arrived last Saturday with Soviet cultural attaché Irene Zaharova.

The pair left all their luggage and a priceless Stradivarius violin — on loan from the Soviet government — at the hotel in Kuusamo.

Miss Mullova said she and Zhordania crossed the border to Sweden at Tornea-Isparanda and flew to Stockholm on a regular domestic flight.

"I was terribly frightened, particularly on the Finnish side when we saw Soviet cars on the roads," Mullova said in the newspaper interview.

She said Soviet authorities had stified her artistic development.

Mullova, winner of the prestigious Tchaikovsky competition in Moscow in 1982 and the Finnish Sibyllus competition in 1981, complained of not being allowed to perform at more than two or three concerts every month.

Report alleges torture

LONDON (UPI) — Dissidents in Sri Lanka are being pushed down from hooks, tortured with needles under toenails and forced to sniff chili powder by government security forces, Amnesty International said Wednesday.

"On April 10 this year a young farmer ... died in custody after being held without charge for two weeks," the London-based independent human rights organization said in a 72-page report on its investigation in the Indian Ocean island state formerly called Ceylon.

It said when doctors examined the body they found "24 external wounds and 10 internal injuries."

Amnesty International said Sri Lankan President J. R. Jayawardene had rejected its request to discuss jail reforms suggested in the report, a copy of which was sent to him.

ville Schell during January-February 1982, but Amnesty said it was "still receiving information that detainees were ill-treated, relatives denied information as to their whereabouts and lawyers hindered in meeting them."

Most of the human rights lapses cited by Amnesty International took place during government efforts to enforce a Prevention of Terrorism Act, which allowed army and police agents to hold suspects incommunicado. At least 85 such dissidents are in detention, AI said.

The report also investigated the deaths of Tamil separatists "apparently shot or beaten to death by security forces in June 1981 following the shooting of two police officers."

Two young Tamils shot by police were left for dead but survived. Government took no action "noting that violence has frequently accompanied demands for a separate Tamil state."

Poll shows Reagan weakness, strength

Although the election is still 17 months away, national political polls already are blossoming across America like Indian paintbrush flowers in the Copper Basin country.

The latest, a New York Times-CBS poll, shows President Reagan getting more approval from the voters on his job performance, but ironically, not winning their confidence for re-election.

The survey found 47 percent of Americans approve of the president's job performance, up from 41 percent in January. But only 42 percent said they thought Reagan had done well enough to merit re-election.

A poll, we should all remember, is a bit like a snapshot picture taken out the window of a high-speed train. You get a blurred image of the countryside next to the track, but not much else. It is really a picture of a moment in time, subject to change and revision. Put another way, the only poll that counts is the one taken on Election Day.

From that perspective, the president is doing rather well, particularly this far ahead of the election and against the lengthening list of Democratic contenders, none of whom is exactly inspiring a groundswell of support.

His performance on the economy continues to lead that of his conduct of foreign policy, where there remains considerable fear he could lead the United States into a war.

A lingering weakness is his strength among women voters, what the pollsters are calling the "gender gap." Women voters consistently are giving the president lower marks, and the gap could cause him a serious problem if it persists.

But all and all, the president is doing a considerably better job than many would have thought when he started. He is, after all, not a young man, and there are repeated rumors that he is not always up to speed or energy.

Nonetheless, he has made substantial progress on several key areas, including many aspects of the economy. Those successes have won him support among many voters and make him a heavy leader in the polls at this time.

James Watt might be closet conservationist

James Watt is probably a closet conservationist. How else can one explain the Department of Interior's cavalier treatment of the nation's publicly owned forests, understaffing rudimentary services like firefighting, permitting clear-cutting of forest lands on terrain conspicuously vulnerable to erosion, reckless sale of land at prices well below their intrinsic worth — assuming they should be sold at all?

Watt, the political pragmatist who heads the department, surely knows that these practices are bound to stir political opposition. He must sense that they will provide impetus to congressional restrictions on such actions, restrictions that can be expected to endure for at least as many years as people remember Watt's tolerance of the current abuses.

Watt is galvanizing support for better financing, for broader protection, for longer-range planning for the nation's forest and wilderness lands, support that might have had a hard time being heard without his actions.

The Boston Globe series by Charles Radin illustrates clearly the effects of abuse, neglect and exploitation can have on 191 million acres of national treasure.

Squandering these assets for the sake of short-term financial gains is a violation of trust no one should ignore. James Watt, to his credit, has made it hard to ignore the ways in which public resources have been maltreated.

—The Boston Globe

(YET ANOTHER) TEDDY AT THE BAT

IT LOOKED EXTREMELY ROCKY FOR THE DEMOCRATS THAT YEAR. RON WAS IN THE WHITE HOUSE AND THE VOTERS DIDN'T CARE. SO WHEN FRITZ TOOK THE LEAD AND CRANSTON SECOND PLACE, YOU COULD HEAR THE THUD OF EVERY FALLING DEMOCRATIC FACE.

CAUSE GLEN, THE OBSCURE HERO, BORED THEM TO THE CORE. AND BROKEN-RECORD GARY HART WAS YET A BIGGER BORE. NO ONE KNEW FRITZ II — OR CARED. ASKEW WAS A JOKE.

AND JESSE JACKSON WAS ENOUGH TO GIVE 'EM ALL A STROKE.

A STRAGGLING FEW CONCEDED LEAVING HERE THE REST WITH THAT HOPE WHICH SPRINGS ETERNAL IN THE DEMOCRATIC BRAIN. FOR THEY THOUGHT — IF ONLY TEDDY WOULD LEAD HIS MAGIC HAT — THEY'D PUT UP EVEN MONEY, NOW, — WITH TEDDY AT THE BAT!

Capitol Hill retains its plantation air

Ira Allen

Most of the old Southern power barons who made laws in back rooms over bourbon and branchwater are gone, but Capitol Hill is still a plantation.

The Greek columns, the lush greenhouses swarming with plebeian tourists, the patricians who bloat at length on the Senate floor, the backslapping and camaraderie, the amiable way a congressman will chat with anyone who recognizes him.

Staff members are paid whatever their lords and masters want to pay. There are no equal opportunity or health and safety laws that apply, and good field hands are rewarded with comfortable, high-paying jobs close to the power.

The outward serenity of life on the Hill can mask the rampant ambition that causes each of the 100 senators to look in the mirror each morning and see a future president of the United States. Or at least hear the staff shooerpoppers tell him so.

Covering Congress is a reporter's dream — regular hours, long vacations when members leave for "district work periods" and, above all, the cogerness with which 535 lawmakers and 20,000 staff members will talk.

Since everyone has an ax to grind for his boss, the teeth quotient is lower than a reporter might like, but the sheer volume of documents, press releases and leakers amounts to an embarrassment of riches — so much so that a good part of any day is spent gleefully battling information away.

The ease with which information can be obtained led to a formulation by this columnist that should be of help to newcomers in the Capitol press corps. Namely, anything newsworthy that happens in Washington or the rest of the world can be learned within 45 minutes on the Hill. If a rumor cannot be confirmed in that time span, it simply is not true.

Like any rule, there is an exception. For those not favored by the well-aimed leak, it did become impossible to confirm last fall that Sen. Edward Kennedy was indeed dropping out of the presidential race. Thus, an important corollary to the theory is that a scoop can last only 45 minutes — except when it involves Congress itself.

Capitol Hill is a breeder reactor of good stories. Every imaginable issue either starts in Congress or finds its way there in a hurry, and most issues take at least 10 years from inception to final action, generating more accusations, hearings, debates and reconfirmations than can be consumed.

Ending a six-year term covering the Senate, I have been blessed with good stories — not so much the budget and tax and defense battles, nor the social issues of abortion and school prayer. But what raw meat came from feuds between senators, or crickets committee hearings with hooded witnesses and testimony that Jimmy Hoffa was "ground into little pieces like hamburger and dumped in a swamp."

Even a story on the impecably tended Capitol garden bed of a truth: "They spread 40 tons of fertilizer on Capitol Hill every year, and that doesn't even include what's in the Congressional Record." Beyond the stories themselves, what will be missed is the collection of silver-tongued devils who provide the press galleries with memorable words and entertaining orations, people such as Pat Moynihan, Bob Dole, Howard Baker, Barry Goldwater, Orrin Hatch, Charles Mathias, Alan Simpson, Bill Proxmire, Ted Stevens and Paul Tsongas.

Early in my career, I was sent to cover the Maryland legislature and given directions — "Look for the cash register with a dome." After reporting on these congressional creatures for precisely the length of a senator's term, I have been gradually disillusioned, mostly because things aren't all that different on Capitol Hill than in the state legislatures that are so often laughed at.

The members frequently are statehouse alumni, all too willing to barter their state-manship for campaign contributions. Too many continue to indulge in petty egoism and ask, "What's in it for me?" Instead of "What's good for the country."

The ground rules are the same as in the state capitals. It just takes more clout to hit one out of the ballpark.

Personalities loom larger than issues, which is understandable because a politician can change his stripes but not his character.

They are, in sum, just like your town council members or delegates to your general assembly — just a little bit smarter and a whole lot leaker.

Ira Allen has been covering the Senate for United Press International.

'Debategate' takes on life of its own

Loye Miller Jr.

It started with a passing reference in a 488-page book, but the affair of the "pilfered" Carter debate papers has taken on a life of its own.

Only a week ago, it appeared the little "Debategate" furor, scoffed at by Reagan White House officials, soon would blow over like a summer thundershower.

But now the president has given the matter serious standing by ordering the Department of Justice to find out what really happened, and whether any laws were broken back in 1980 when reams of White House documents prepared to brief President Carter for the crucial campaign debate fell into the hands of the Reagan camp.

Justice has ordered the FBI to conduct an investigation. This means that if the FBI finds anything resembling a thorough job, people who worked in the Carter White House offices from which the papers came will be questioned by agents.

Thus, for the first time there seems to be at least an even chance that we may discover how the Carter papers got to the Reagan headquarters, and whether the Reagan staff overtly sought the information or simply accepted it from a disgruntled Carterite.

It is a light year's change from the soundings of barely a week ago, when the top people in the Reagan White House were trying to laugh off the whole thing.

The affair was spawned by the publication of "Gambling With History" — Reagan in the White House" by Time magazine White House correspondent Laurence Barrett.

On page 382, Barrett included a brief reference to an incident in which Reagan's advisers, as they prepared for the 1980 Carter-Reagan debate, used some of Carter's own papers. Apparently a Reagan mole in the Carter camp had filched papers containing the main points the president planned to make when he met Reagan for the debate," writes Barrett.

Other reporters began to poke at the story. Rep. Don Albores, D-Mich., chairman of an obscure subcommittee that oversees the Ethics in Government Act, began to ask questions and dispatched letters to the administration officials said to have known of the "filching" — White House Chief of Staff James Baker III, Communications Director David Gergen and Budget Director David Stockman.

This is when the White House men got themselves in trouble. Baker and Stockman sent Albores letters denigrating the importance of the papers to their campaign at the time. They all but openly accused the congressman of trying to make a mountain out of a molehill and embarrass Reagan, Gergen, who coordinated the debate preparations, wrote that he didn't even remember any Carter papers.

But then the White House was embarrassed when Gergen found in his continuing search of his own files a thick wad of the Carter materials of which he had denied knowledge.

So it's clear that Baker, Gergen and Stockman knew then they were using a large batch of documents taken by someone from the Carter inner offices even though Baker and Gergen, by reputation, were generally thought to be more ethical than that.

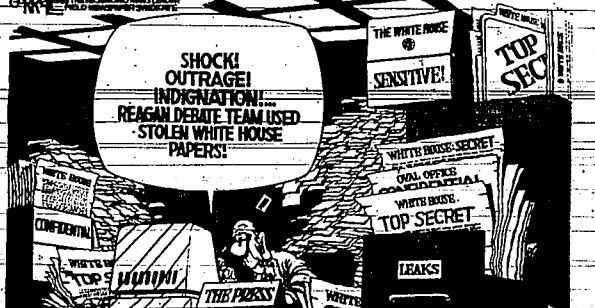

Baker says he thought the stuff came to him from campaign manager William Casey. Casey, now head of the CIA, denies ever knowing of such papers, much less handling them.

With the FBI on the loose, these fellows all better have been telling the truth, or close to it.

As it is, the whole affair is a tawdry blot on the record of Reagan's victory over Carter.

If it gets any worse, it could cost the president the loss of some of his most able top staff aides, or even his intelligence chief.

Loye Miller Jr. writes from Washington for United Press International.

Kibitzers, cops, canines: They all puncture runner's ego

Fred Ferguson

WORK -- Harried is the heckled
...ies you puff harder than
"We run," is ego-inflating
...ners pass you by.
All the world seems bound to puncture the runner's inflated ego — except runners themselves. There are the kibitzers. They are concerned about you. They come in categories:
Physical — "You're going to ruin yourself!"
Fitness freak — "You should lift weights, too."
Weight watchers — "You won't lose a pound."
Environmentalist — "You're filling your lungs with pollution."
Medical — "You're a sure bet for a heart attack."
Clothes conscious — "You look disgusting in that."

Speed nut — "You'll get there faster in a cab."
Many kibitzers are derelicts. Some runners say they are all derelicts.
Derelicts have it in for runners — particularly runners who jump over sleeping dogs.
Derelicts have been known to chase runners. They fortify themselves with nasty sayings and a gulp from a bottle in a paper bag. Then they come at you — a step or two.
Obstructionists are another matter. Try to pass phalanxes of mailmen trundling carts or mothers pushing strollers.

Squealing by brings imprecations from these gentle walkers. So does "Pardon me." Some runners shout back. Walkers seldom give chase.
Cautious runners don't get along, either. Cautious block crosswalks to let off passengers. Try shouting, "Why don't you learn to drive?" This brings explosives in response. Misery loves company. The cautious's misery can be mollifying to the deflated runner.
Barking dogs plague runners. One runner I know barks back. Some dog owners don't like this infringement of barking rights. They howl.
Elated by the commotion caused, our barking runner began barking first — once to a sedate Irish setter. Some dogs have no soul. They don't bark back.

The runner's friend, trotting somewhat behind, caught up to report the dog's owner blamed the bark on the sad-eyed setter. "Bad dog! Bad dog!" she said he said.
One thing cuts a runner to the core — when a traffic officer blows a runner out for crossing with the light through traffic in gridlock. The cut goes deeper. Truck drivers cheer the cop. Running takes time — time for reflection on the plight and perils of running. Some say it could be better spent. But runners say they think deep thoughts on the fly.
Cars that barney miss runners are worthy of such thoughts. A punch to the fender turns thought to action. It makes a bang bringing a look of anger from the driver. But it takes a painful toll. Car's fender is harder than hand,

Another thought while running: Why do some joggers run without bras?
Women who run with bras say those who don't, don't attract attention. The subject has been surveyed by male runners. They say more study is needed.
Some runners seek escape from all this thinking. They wear headphone radios. Absorbed in stereophonic sound, they have been known to run into — step into — things. Actually these people are just jockers.
Runners' solace can be had in people-watching. Some say you can do that better walking. It depends on how much of people you want to see — if you are a clyde runner.
Fred Ferguson writes for United Press International.

LM Boyd What's what

A sane man will never trust a woman who tells him she's handsome, but will love her absolutely when she says he's clever. That has been our Love and War man's claim for many years. Client asks if a woman likewise rejects a compliment about her looks, but accepts one about her intelligence. No, a woman is conditioned early to sense that the first call a man hears with her is not the call to culture. She thinks that, to him, "pretty" is more important than "perspicacious." She may or may not want to be a sex object, but if the man talks that way, at least she's inclined to believe he means it.

WIDOW'S PEAK

Q. How come that hairline that comes to a point down the forehead is called a "widow's peak"?

A. Dates back to the superstitious time when mothers thought daughters born with the characteristic would be widowed early therefore.

Q. What's the average skull size for a man?

A. 40. And the average dress size for a woman is 36. Look: you always wanted to be above average, no?

Q. What's the unused 90-percent of the human brain for?

A. Nobody knows.

EDNA ST. VINCENT MILLY

All literary types know well the name of the poet Edna St. Vincent Milly. Not all know, however, that the St. Vincent part was not an old family surname, but rather the name of the hospital at which she was born. St. Vincent's in Rockford, Ill. Her mother liked it there.

Prison experts say the typical jailhouse inmate hereabouts is a first-time offender, booked on some minor charge, who hangs himself within three hours of arrest.

This - notice recently was boxed in Jerusalem Post: "The 'Today' page will appear tomorrow."

Q. What's the biggest sort of cat?

A. The Siberian tiger. Growl! men average feet 4 inches.

Claim is a third of the men go bald by age 30, another third do so by age 60.

NEA ends session with jab at Reagan

By ROD SNYDER
United Press International

PHILADELPHIA — The new head of the nation's largest teachers union blasted President Reagan and a rival union leader Tuesday for using school children as a "political football."

Mrs. Futrell, closing the National Education Association's six-day annual convention, accused Reagan and American Federation of Teachers chief Albert Shanker of skirting the issue of improving public schools.

"The children of America are being used as a political football," she said. "And the children are the ones who will be hurt in the long run."

Mrs. Futrell, a black woman elected NEA president Saturday, spoke as Reagan addressed the AFT gathering in Los Angeles.

She said Reagan supports merit pay increases for teachers only because it is good politics and charged he has not developed a policy for improving the nation's schools. The NEA opposes merit pay.

"It reminds me of a child who fails a test and says he'll work harder on the next one and then shows up late to take it," Mrs. Futrell said. "That student probably gets an 'F'."

NEA Executive Director Don Cameron criticized Shanker for supporting Reagan and conservative political groups that have tried to cut education spending.

He told delegates at the 1.7-million member convention Shanker was "walking a political tightrope in playing politics with Reagan and probably would fail."

Shanker has supported Reagan's education policies while the NEA has consistently opposed the president's stands on issues including merit pay and tuition tax credits, NEA officials said.

Mrs. Futrell said the NEA will suggest to teachers in September a Democratic-presidential candidate to support through the primaries and make an endorsement next year.

The NEA gathering drew a stream of Democratic presidential hopefuls seeking the group's endorsement. The NEA has said it hopes to spend $4 million supporting 1984 congressional and presidential candidates.

Former Vice President Walter Mondale and U.S. Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, the Democratic front-runners, used the gathering to criticize Reagan's education policies.

Brzezinski advises firing of the moles

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski said Tuesday President Reagan should determine who leaked and obtained national security information used by the Reagan camp in the 1980 campaign against President Carter and then "pull the plug" on the government, fire them.

Brzezinski, adviser to the Carter administration, issued a statement saying the "unauthorized transfer of information" threatens the integrity of the national security system.

He said if the information was classified, both the source of it and the recipient broke the law and should face "appropriate judicial proceedings."

Brzezinski said he is leaving the Investigation to the Justice Department. The White House has turned over to investigators hundreds of pages of material the Reagan campaign received from the Carter-White House, and the FBI is to begin interviewing several top Reagan aides this week.

A House subcommittee also is investigating the case. In California with Reagan, who addressed the American Federation of Teachers in Los Angeles, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Tuesday any further papers that might be discovered in White House files affecting the FBI inquiry would go "directly to the Justice Department."

Richard Allen, national security adviser in the Reagan administration, said Monday he received information in 1980 from inside the Carter campaign, but all of it was "innocuous, unclassified and unrelated to national security."

Returns $10,200 Found: Honest teen

BRIAN, Conn. (UPI) — A teenager who found and returned a pouch containing $10,200 in cash and checks Tuesday was rewarded for his honesty.

Robert Briggs, 17, of Bristol, found the pouch about 8 a.m. and promptly brought it to the police station, authorities said.

About the same time, a woman walked into the station to report she had lost a pouch containing the same amount of money.

Police said the woman had placed the bag on her car and drove off. The checks and money belonged to the company she worked for in Rocky Hill.

After the woman gave police proper identification, she counted the money and checks and said it was all accounted for.

The owner of the Rocky Hill company said he had sent Briggs a thank you letter and a cash gift.

"You don't find that kind of honesty very often today," he said. "There was quite a bit of cash there. He could have kept the cash and thrown away the checks."

James with his first wife, Betty Grable

Cancer claims Harry James

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Bandleader Harry James, a dazzling trumpet player whose swing orchestra epitomized one of America's most original and enduring musical forms for more than four decades, died Tuesday of cancer. He was 67.

James, who helped launch the career of dozens of musicians and singers — including Frank Sinatra, Dick Haymes, Helen Forrest and Connie Haines — had been ill since April with lymphatic cancer but performed as recently as last month.

A spokesman at Valley Hospital said three of the band leader's five children were at his bedside when he died at 6:30 a.m. MDT. The son of circus performers, James began taking music lessons under his father's direction at age 12 and went on to join the ranks of Benny Goodman, Artie Shaw, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey and Glenn Miller during the big band era of World War II.

Commenting on James' death, Goodman described him as "one of the giants of the swing era." He said he was a "highly talented trumpet player."

At the height of his career, on July 5, 1943, James, the No. 1 trumpeter, married the nation's No. 1 pin-up girl, Betty Grable. Their marriage lasted until 1965 when they were divorced.

From 1941 to 1943, the bandleader mustachioed James' popularity created traffic jams and riots during a New York appearance. Sinatra first established himself as a big band crooner as James' featured singer. James later hired newcomer Dick Haymes as his lead singer.

James was born March 15, 1916, in Albany, Ga., where the Mighty Haag Circus was pitched at the time. His mother performed on a vaudeville circuit until one month before his birth. His father conducted the circus band.

By age 10, James was playing solo trumpet and at the age of 12 was given the job of conducting the No. 2 circus band.

When he was 15, he got tired of blowing marches for the circus and began sitting in with dance bands around the Southwest. Within a few years he was offered a job with Ben Pollack's orchestra and he wrote a song, "Peckin'," which started a dance craze among a newly spawned group of jazz music lovers who were known as jitterbugs.

But it was a trumpet solo on a Pollock record called "Deep Firm" that brought James his first real break, a recording of "Sweet King."

Goodman heard the record and sent for James, who joined him in 1937. It was Goodman who encouraged James to form his own band and in 1939 he took the advice.

Labor dealt a setback

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal appeals court Tuesday shot down a portion of new Labor Department regulations that were expected to trim $463 million a year from the cost of federal construction projects.

Organized labor officials, however, said that would have ended the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington is devastating to the traditional manner that the Davis-Bacon Act has been administered.

The judges voted to strike down rules that would have ended the weekly paperwork of federal contractors and permitted wider use of lower-paid, semiskilled "helpers" at federal construction sites.

At the same time, however, the court upheld other regulatory changes affecting the use of helpers and changing the method for determining the prevailing wage paid construction workers on federal projects.

It also upheld the department's plan to eliminate a so-called "90-percent rule," whereby a wage received by 30 percent of the workforce in an area was automatically considered the prevailing wage.

The rulings on all three provisions were considered defeats for organized labor.

Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan said he was "very pleased with the decision ... which upheld in large part the regulations we've issued to improve the administration of the Davis-Bacon Act."

"We plan to move as swiftly as possible to implement the regulations upheld by the court," Donovan added. The five new regulations were issued by the Labor Department in May 1982 and were immediately challenged by the AFL-CIO, the Teamsters union and 16 other unions or departments.

The unions challenged the secretary of labor's power to make the changes, arguing they do not conform to federal laws enacted during the Great Depression to guarantee workers on federal construction projects comparable wages to those in private construction.

A U.S. District Court in December 1982 struck down four of the five new changes.

Tuesday's ruling was more favorable to the Labor Department.

Holiday toll reaches 446

By United Press International

The 1983 Fourth of July holiday traffic fatality count showed Tuesday 446 people were killed on the nation's highways during the long weekend. Officials in several states credited tough new drunk-driving laws with helping to keep the death count below last year's.

The traffic death toll was about what the experts predicted.

In addition, at least 61 people drowned during the 78-hour weekend, which began at 6 p.m. local time.

Justice prevents execution

PARCHMAN, Miss. (UPI) — Confessed child killer Jimmy Lee Gray won another legal round Tuesday when Chief Justice Warren Burger refused to lift a lower court stay preventing Gray's execution in the chamber.

Gray, 34, had been scheduled to die at 10:01 a.m. CDT Wednesday for the 1966, non-slaying of three-year-old Theresa Jean Scates of Pascagoula. After kidnapping and sexually assaulting the child, he held her head in a drainage ditch until she strangled from swallowing mud.

Burger's refusal to intervene left the case in the hands of the New Orleans 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which has called for arguments of Gray's contention that death in the gas chamber constitutes cruel and unusual punishment.

Burger was the third Supreme Court jurist to refuse to lift the stay, handed down by the 5th Circuit last Saturday.

Symms backs off saying he'll resign

By BILL F. MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, said Tuesday he probably would not resign if Congress passed a bill to take him out of office, but he said he would give such a move serious consideration.

Symms said he and some of his colleagues would be forced to consider resigning because proposed limits on outside income could pose a financial hardship.

When asked if he would quit if the cap were approved, Symms said, "Probably not. I said I'd give it consideration. But big deal. You can consider anything."

Symms said he made the off-hand comment at the end of an interview about budget matters, and he accused the media of having the issue out of proportion.

The senator added that it was "probably wishful thinking" on the part of newspapers reporting he was threatening to resign.

State Democratic Chairman Mel Morgan said Tuesday he did not think Symms would resign and only made the comment because "he needs a little attention."

"Anybody who spent one million, three hundred thousand (dollars) to get elected is not going to resign," Morgan said.

Symms, during a morning news conference, said he opposes a cap on outside income because public officials should be allowed flexibility in their private financial affairs, as long as there is public disclosure.

But he refused comment on the indictment of Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, who has been charged with four counts of failing to report certain loans and investment earnings.

In her comments, Symms called "routine" his request for more information before approving the promotion of Lowell Jensen to a top position in the Justice Department.

He acknowledged that one reason he wastes more time to consider the appointment is so he may learn Jensen's role in filing the disclosure charges against Hansen.

But Symms said there are several other issues he wants to consider, including the part Jensen may have played in indicting several Burley farmers for transporting illegal aliens.

The charges were dismissed, but the farmers were forced to pay "thousands of dollars" to defend themselves, he said.

On another topic, Symms said quick action is needed to avert a Communist takeover in El Salvador that could eventually spread to Mexico.

He said the president must develop a strategy for defeating Communist rebels in the U.S. would be forced to use troops to defend against a takeover in Mexico.

Symms said a takeover in Mexico would cause "massive refugee problems" with those escaping Communist rule "just hobbling across the border."

He recommended the Reagan administration develop plans that will help lead the central American country to victory over guerrillas.

Skydiver's chute OK

ALPINE JUNCTION, Wyo. (UPI) — The parachute of a 32-year-old Pocatello man killed in a skydiving accident over Palisades Reservoir was apparently in working order at the time of the jump, a federal investigator said Tuesday.

Lincoln County Undersheriff Dan Dahlstrom said Gregory S. Snyder was skydiving from an altitude of about 6,500 feet at about 8 p.m. Sunday when "the last control" in his chute started into a tumbling spin.

"It's a little preliminary, but there's every indication... there were no deficiencies or abnormalities noted with the chute," Kemper Hall, of the Federal Aviation Administration's Casper office said. "It would have performed normally (if Snyder had opened it)."

Hall said Snyder's chute was found opened, but it is believed that was caused by the impact of the water.

Hall said other skydivers in the area witness of the mishap and "all believe he (Snyder) was conscious and was in a good frame of mind" during the jump.

A companion of Snyder's, O.R. Hughes, jumped with Snyder to an altitude of 2,000 feet when he opened his chute and said Snyder did not appear in any danger to that point.

Judge won't allow default of WPPSS

SEATTLE (UPI) — The order preventing Chemical Bank of New York from declaring a default on $2.25 billion in bonds for two terminated nuclear power plants will stay in effect pending a decision by the Washington Supreme Court, a King County judge ruled Monday.

Superior Court Judge H. Joseph Coleman said the temporary restraining order will stay in effect until the state Supreme Court acts on a motion to reconsider its ruling freeing public utilities in Washington from paying off the bonds for Washington Public Power Supply System projects 4 and 5.

Attorneys for Chemical Bank, trustee for bondholders, and for WPPSS said their motion for reconsideration would be filed Monday afternoon.

The state high court ruled June 15 that public utility districts in Washington did not have the authority to enter into agreements to build the two projects and therefore were not obligated to pay for them.

Coleman said if he was to lift his order now, it would be premature because the state Supreme Court decision is not yet final. He said if the motion for reconsideration is denied and the June 15 decision becomes final, the order blocking the default process would automatically be lifted.

City spending holds the line

New budget looks like old one

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Private business has ridden a turbulent sea in the past year, but the financial course of the city of Twin Falls has remained relatively fixed.

A preliminary $10 million 1984 city budget, delivered to City Council on Tuesday by City Manager Tom Courtney, carries a message of stability without prosperity.

Courtney terms it a "maintenance budget."

It could mean there will be little bad news forthcoming from city government next year. It also could mean there will be little good news.

The city's problems, particularly deterioration of its streets and other capital facilities, will continue. But its strengths will persist as well.

Overall, the document foresees a rise in the cost of operating city government on a day-to-day basis by 1 percent, to $8.37 million.

But overall, the $10.05 million total represents a 2 percent decrease from last year.

The drop is due to the completion of two major construction projects — the waste-water treatment plant and the extension of the airport runway — and a decrease in the cost of operating the airport.

Since Republic Airlines discontinued service to Twin Falls.

In addition to the deterioration of streets and other facilities, the preliminary budget lists one other potentially severe problem area in the coming year — growth.

As the economy improves, the city will not have the resources to pay for the provision of additional services. The city "cannot afford to grow," Courtney said in his report.

"The only real solution to the city's capital-improvement needs and the pressure of growth lies with increased funding, which is in the hands of the state Legislature," Courtney says in the budget statement.

But for the first time in five years, the city will have generated $200,000 in surplus, which may be recycled into capital projects, Courtney says. And he proposes that the city reinstate its capital-improvements fund.

With the addition of "federal revenue-sharing money," the city will have a total of $499,949 available for special improvement projects next year.

Some of this is sure to go for street improvements, Courtney says. This is an area the city has neglected since the One Percent Initiative cut revenue from local property taxes, the city's main revenue source.

But council has indicated it would like to earmark some of this special money for a new municipal swimming pool.

The preliminary budget does not contain an allocation for a new pool, however. Nor does it contain a figure representing the goal for a companion private fundraising drive.

The budget proposes:

- A 3 percent cost-of-living increase for city employees. This was calculated on the basis of the expected increase in the Consumer Price Index.

A net increase of three city positions, to an equivalent of 184.5 full-time employees. Courtney says that two new police officers are needed to provide sufficient manpower during peak periods. The third new position would be in the engineering department, where demands are expected to increase. See BUDGET on Page B2

Lightning triggers raft of range fires

SHOSHONE — Lightning bolts from Tuesday evening's thunderstorms touched off at least 14 range fires in the U.S. Bureau of Land Management's Shoshone District.

Some 70 firefighters — including recruits from Boise, Idaho Falls, Burley and Hammett — were called out to fight the blazes. The fires spread over an estimated 1,000 acres of rangelands north of the Snake River.

As of 10 p.m. Tuesday, only one of the fires was under control. And firefighters had yet to arrive at several of the reported fires.

BLM fire investigator John Sabala said that none of the fires posed any immediate threat to private property.

The fires, according to Sabala, involved rangelands north of Bliss, north of Paul, south of Dierich, south of Bellevue and east of U.S. 93. The largest fire involved an estimated 500 acres, he said. Scattered thundershowers helped the firefighters combat the blazes.

Earlier in the day, a man-caused fire started along the north side of the Snake River Canyon, above the Blue Lakes Country Club.

The fire, which spread over some 30 privately owned acres, was fought by a crew of 15 BLM firefighters. It was reported at 2 p.m. and brought under control about 90 minutes later.

Court gives Ellis time to complete sales of fish

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BOISE — A big fish sale may settle an estimated $1 million worth of claims against three bankrupt businesses owned by Buhl trout-raiser Ken Ellis.

The sale — combined with the purchase of Valley Trout Farms Inc., Parrago Inc. and Magic Springs Inc. — could raise enough to pay off a long list of creditors, Frank Dykas, Ellis's lawyer, said Tuesday in federal bankruptcy court in Boise.

As a result of Tuesday's hearing, Judge Merlin S. Young held off two of the prime creditors — the Internal Revenue Service and the Southern Idaho Production Credit Assoc. — until August, long enough for Ellis to complete negotiations currently under way with two Buhl companies.

The IRS is seeking forced liquidation of the three companies for payment of $612,194 in back taxes, and the credit association is seeking dismissal of the reorganization proceedings in order to recover millions of dollars in mortgages on the properties.

But after noting the apparent failure of past negotiations, including interest in L.E. Simplot Co., Young gave Ellis one more month to come up with a reorganization, which could involve the sale of his companies.

Valley Trout Farms is a trout-producing operation. It raises fish using feed supplied by Parrago Inc. The fish then are processed for market under the auspices of Magic Springs Inc.

Two Buhl-area companies, Rangen Inc. and Clear Springs Trout Co., are dealing for part or all of the companies. There may be others interested, Dykas said. Ellis expects negotiations to be completed within the next two to four weeks.

The sale of the properties presumably would pay off the mortgages, and the sale of the fish now growing at Valley Trout Farms could satisfy other unsecured debts, the lawyer said.

Dykas and his partner, Bob Weaver, who represents the three corporations, said the sale of the fish "must go hand-in-hand" with the properties.

"If somebody is going to buy the Magic Springs facility, they've got to have fish to put in it," Dykas said. All the parties looking at the Ellis trout-raising operations want both the swimming inventory and the physical plants, Weaver said.

A dismissal of Valley Trout Farms is cause at this time would be a disaster for the unsecured creditors," Dykas told the court.

The sale of fish could yield anywhere from $775,000 "by a most conservative estimate" to $1.5 million, he said.

Attorney Gregory Goss of Twin Falls, representing the creditors' committee, said the creditors had no objection to waiting the month if a reorganization plan is forthcoming.

Young scheduled another hearing for Aug. 8. He also criticized Ellis's previous attorneys for not making sure that the court received the reports required under bankruptcy laws.

Hugh Pierce, an Internal Revenue Service compliance officer, claimed that the BLM corporations have paid some taxes, but generally they have not kept up with the required payroll withholding payments, even since filing bankruptcy.

Kimberly goes dry

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Kimberly is under a state of emergency today, and Mayor Rosa Lea Whitehead is urging the city's 3,000 residents to use only essential water.

A lightning strike Tuesday evening knocked the second of the city's four water wells out of operation, dropping the city's water supply to 600 gallons per minute, she said. The first well broke down last week.

Police cars and pickups outfitted with loudspeakers drove through the town's neighborhoods Tuesday night, asking residents to shut off sprinklers and restrict water use.

"There's barely enough for domestic use and no fire protection at all," Whitehead said.

The city's 200,000-gallon reservoir is down to two feet of usable depth from its normal 19, she said. The mayor declared the emergency at about 4:45 p.m. after the lightning bolt crippled the Larson well on the southwest side of the city, at Maxine and Ivory streets. The well on the southeast side, at South Oak Street, stopped operating last week. Remaining on line are a large well and a small one.

No neighborhoods are completely without water, Whitehead said.

"We've got water in the system; it's just that there's not very much."

City officials now are concentrating on repairing the well hit by lightning, she said. They also have contacted state authorities to see if money is available for water-supply emergencies.

Tuesday's crisis marks the second of a recent years that Kimberly has had to cope with low water levels. A lack of wells caused regular supply problems about three years ago until the city was able to add a new well to its system, the mayor said.

It's official, Pam Allen on waiting list

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In the case of 2-year-old Pam Allen, and the Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh, no news was good news.

If the hospital did not call the Twin Falls family on Tuesday, it meant that Pam officially would be placed on a waiting list to receive a liver transplant, a hospital spokeswoman said.

As of Tuesday night, Fred and Carol

Allen, Pam's parents, had not heard a thing.

Beverly Kirkpatrick, of the hospital's transplant program, said Friday that it was "likely" that Pam would be accepted into the program. Her case, however, rested on final review by the team of surgeons who would perform the operation, she said. The surgeons were scheduled to meet Tuesday.

If the hospital had called the Allens, that probably would have meant a problem and possibly a delay in her acceptance, Kirkpatrick said.

Earlier last week, Pam went through a series of tests in Pittsburgh to determine whether she was strong enough for the life-essential operation.

This week, the Allens are back in Twin Falls. And they will stay close to home, as they wait to hear from the hospital that a donor has been found, Mr. Allen said Tuesday.

Currently, the family is making arrangements to obtain "beepers," the devices are required so the hospital can contact the Allens immediately once a donor is located.

When that occurs, Pam must be at the hospital within six hours for the operation because of the short "life" of the organ. The family already has been promised the use of a private jet for when that moment arrives.

Pam was born with a severe liver defect. Without a transplant, her doctors say she has a year, more or less, to live.

Double murder suspect arraigned at hospital

TWIN FALLS — Keith Rosencrantz formally was advised Tuesday of the first-degree murder charges he faces in connection with the June 18 shooting of his former girlfriend and her male companion.

Instead of taking place in a courtroom, however, the arraignment was held in a room at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. Rosencrantz, 36, of Castleford, is recovering there from a wound to his left shoulder.

The suspect allegedly turned a shotgun on himself following the murders of Cathy Alice Gittel, 30, and Michael Wayne Lee, 28, of Twin Falls, at the woman's residence in Buhl.

At the arraignment, Dr. Rodney Swartling of Twin Falls told Gittel District Judge Charles Brumbaugh that Rosencrantz's medical condition would not impair his understanding of the proceedings, according to Dennis Voorhes, the deputy Twin Falls County prosecutor.

No bond was set for the defendant because the charges are a capital offense, Voorhes said. Defense lawyer Randy Stoker of Twin Falls indicated he would petition the court for bond at a later date.

Also during the hearing, Rosencrantz waived his right to have a preliminary hearing within the prescribed 14 days after the arraignment, Voorhes said. No date for that hearing has been set.

be taken to jail immediately upon his release from the hospital. Doctors say that they will keep the suspect in the hospital for another five days for observation, he said.

Earlier court hearings involving Rosencrantz were canceled because of his injuries. Now listed in satisfactory condition, Rosencrantz was re-arrested for the crimes on Friday. An arrest by Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy has been guarding him since then.

BLM auction sells 10 federal parcels for total of $53,685

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

SHOSHONE — As auctions go, the Bureau of Land Management's land sale last Friday was a rather sedate affair.

There were no fast-talking auctioneers trying to work the 46 participants into a fever pitch, as they competed for 12 small tracts of federal land, located alongside Magic Valley Reservoir.

And the bidding, for the most part, was a silent process, without the head-on shouting matches that some free-wheeling auctions sometimes ignite.

"I thought the auction was done very professionally," said Mary Louise McConigal, a Littleton-Halley resident who purchased a .065-acre lot for $3,063. "There was a total understanding of what was going on at all times, and everyone was very courteous."

The BLM's area manager, Erwin Cowley, serving his first stint as government auctioneer — managed to sell 10 of the parcels in just under 90 minutes.

In the process, Cowley raised $53,685 for federal coffers.

The high bid for the day, $16,500, purchased a 0.4-acre parcel, which was valued at $9,000 by government appraisers. And the day's low selling price, $2,800, was for a tract that was less than a 0.1 of an acre. Two parcels received no bids; they may be put up for sale again later.

Friday's sale was not part of the Reagan administration's controversial "asset-management plan," which is designed to help reduce the federal debt through the sale of "surplus" federal properties.

Rather, the parcels were targeted in a BLM plan put together by the agency during the Carter administration, designed to rid the government of small, hard-to-manage and isolated tracts.

The Reagan administration's land sales, scheduled to begin Oct. 1, will involve 2,000 acres in the BLM's Shoshone District and 4,300 acres statewide during a 12-month period.

But the Magic Valley Reservoir sale, while small in total acreage, sparked considerable interest due to the parcels' prime location and zoning, which allows for home construction.

The majority of the 46 registered bidders were residents of the Magic Valley. And McConigal and the nine other winning bidders all were Magic Valley residents.

McConigal, like many of the auction participants, said that she wanted to find a small place to call her own at the increasingly popular and crowded Magic Valley Reservoir.

She inspected the parcel before she bid on it. Her tiny tract "is basically just a piece of land with no trees and a little bit of sagebrush and natural grasses," she said Tuesday.

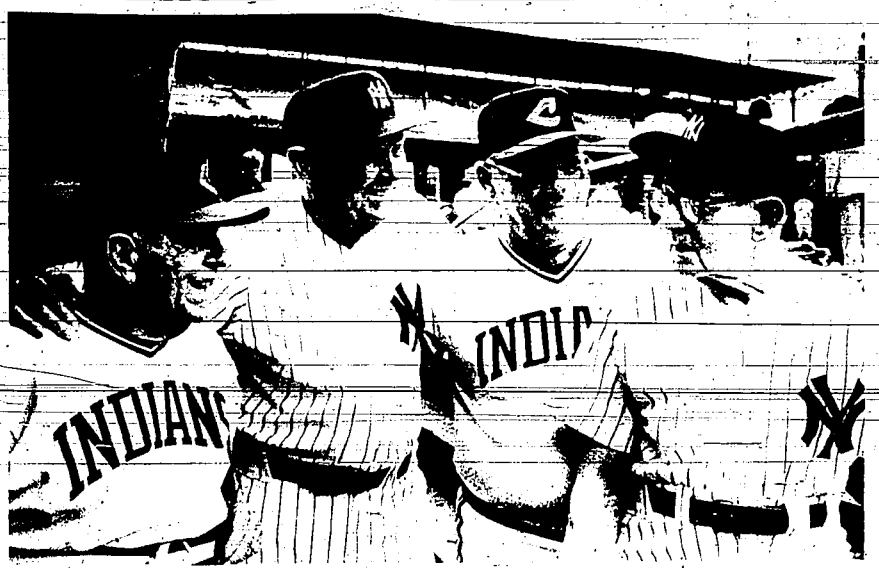

McConigal figures the tract is just right for the 24-foot trailer she plans to put on it and the modest dock she hopes to build on its narrow shoreline.

Prior to the auction, McConigal said she set a firm price that she would not exceed. Although there were several other persons bidding on the parcel, she said she was able to buy the land under her limit.

The other successful bidders were: W.E. McCormick of Gooding, Richard Gillespie of Twin Falls, Don Farnes of Jerome, Harry Stark of Rupert, Ross Davis of Buhl, Alexander McDonald of Bellevue, Alvin Puckett of Kimberly and Rodney Murphy and Dennis Bolton, both of Burley.

Ex-Cubs Williams, Kessinger sparkle

Even AL Old-Timers can't beat NL

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National League old-timers, relying on power from former Chicago Cubs Billy Williams and Don Kessinger, Tuesday proved their league's dominance isn't limited simply to the regular All-Star game.

The senior circuit, with a heavy emphasis on the word senior, outlasted the American League old-timers 6-5 in the Old-Timers All-Star game played at Comiskey Park on the eve of baseball's 50th anniversary All-Star game.

Williams cracked a towering two-run homer in a four-run second and former Cub shortstop Kessinger lined an RBI double to snap a 5-6 tie in the top of the third inning to give the NL the victory in a loosely played contest.

Williams, currently a hitting instructor with the Oakland A's, was named the game's most valuable player for hitting his homer into the second deck of Comiskey Park off knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm.

Kessinger, a former teammate of Williams, knocked a double down the leftfield line in the third, scoring former Giant Bobby Thomson, who had lined a two-out double to left field.

Kessinger's hit came off loser Don Larsen, the last New York Yankee to throw a no-hitter until Dave Righetti's masterpiece Monday at Yankee Stadium. Robin Roberts, who got the final out in the second, was the winner while Johnny Vander Meer, who pitched baseball's only back-to-back no-hitters, retired the American League in order in the third for the save.

The National League jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first. Enos Slaughter led off with an infield single off Lefty Grove. Ernie Banks singled but Slaughter was thrown out trying to reach third.

After Willie Mays grounded out, Ron Santo drew a walk off Jim Bunning and Joe Torre, currently Atlanta Braves' manager, singled to score Banks.

The American League scored three in its half of the first. Luis Aparicio led off with a bunt single. One out later, Minnie Minoso walked and both scored on Al Kaline's double off Juan Marichal.

Tony Oliva lifted a deep drive to center that was caught by Mays. But the former Giant apparently forgot there were only two outs and Kaline scored all the way from second on the sacrifice fly.

In the second, Monte Irvin lined a one-out single off former Sox pitcher Bill Pierce. Red Schoendienst drew a walk and both scored on pinch-hitter Smokey Burgess' double to right field.

Williams then hit the first pitch into the first row of the second deck.

The American League tied the game with two runs in the second. Brooks Robinson hit a ground rule double and went to third on Bill Freehan's single. Robinson scored when second baseman Bill Mazeroski fumbled Jim Fregoso's apparent double play grounder for an error.

Moose Skowron lifted a fly ball that Lou Brock dropped running in from left, allowing Freehan to score the fifth run.

Seattle Manager Del Crandall led off the third for the NL and singled but Dick Bartell hit into a double play before Thomson and Kessinger lined their back-to-back doubles.

Steib, Soto nominated to start All-Star

By PHIL HERSH
Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — In a baseball world gone mad in Toronto in first place at mid-season? — maybe the way to end the game's most maddeningly irrational streak is giving the job to a past angry man.

Dave Steib fits the description. The Blue Jays pitcher, named by American League manager Harvey Kuhn to start tonight's 50th Anniversary All-Star Game at Comiskey Park, was once quick to do a slow burn.

"He's obsessed with winning," says Toronto catcher Buck Martinez, "and that obsession was misdirected, the last couple years. Now he's going in the right direction. His competitive anger is aimed at the other team."

Wednesday's other team has been driving American League brass crazy for the last 20 years. The National League has won 11 straight All-Star Games and 19 of the last 20. There is no explanation for that record save one that the poet Emily Dickinson (writes left, was badly) offered a century ago: "Much madness is divinest sense — to a discerning eye."

No matter which way you look at him, the 25-year-old Steib comes across nasty on the mound. His slider is equally mean: "He was blessed with a lot of talent," Martinez says. He also was cursed with an attitude that used "I rate" as an excuse to be irate at teammates with lesser ability. After a Greg Luzinski homer last season, Steib blamed Martinez for calling the pitch.

The confrontation that followed led the pitcher to temper his reactions. "There were some things I had to learn to accept," says Steib. Defeat is not one of them. His competitive fire remains.

The irony is that if the American League wants to play with a firebrand, the National League has the match — its starting pitcher, Cincinnati's Mario Soto, also has found self-control to be as important as getting his fastball and changeup over the plate.

"When you came up young like me, you let things bother you more," says Soto, a six-year veteran at 26. "Things happen, and you have a second to react the right way or wrong way."

Soto's reaction to being hit with a pitch by Philadelphia's Ron Eusebio last season was to head for the mound with a bat. The result? Soto was ejected from the game in the seventh inning, after which the Phils wiped out a 4-0 lead, costing the pitcher a win in a season when the hunking Reds made Soto's job very unprecious.

The rematch turned into a shouting match with Phils' third-base coach Dave Bristol. The result? A distracted Soto gave up a grand slam and lost the game when the hunking Soto threw a six-pitcher to beat the Phils 8-1.

"It wasn't hard to get him upset," says Phillies manager Pat Corrales. "Now that he knows that trick, he won't go off again."

"We talk about Latinus having fiery exuberance," says the Reds' All-Star Johnny Bench. "He's had enough time to learn to control it."

"On our team, he's 9-7. On another team, he could have 14 or 15 wins. It's credit to him that he doesn't get more frustrated or disappointed. At least Whitey Herzog (NL manager) and a few other people gave him respect by naming him the starting pitcher."

The managers picked the starting pitchers Tuesday. The rest of the starters were predetermined by the fans' vote. But Kuenn was given a chance to choose one starting outfielder, when Reggie Jackson scratched.

Natt to remain with Trail Blazers, who match Cavaliers' offer

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers announced Tuesday that they have matched an offer sheet by the Cleveland Cavaliers for free-agent small forward Calvin Natt.

The Cavaliers announced Friday they had signed Natt to an offer sheet worth a reported $4.5 million for six years. The Blazers had 15 days to match Cleveland's offer upon receipt of the offer sheet.

Portland officials received the offer sheet Tuesday. It did not take them long to decide.

"This is what our president, Larry Weinberg, indicated all along he would do," said Harry Gilckman, executive vice president of the Blazers. "We are delighted that Calvin will remain in Portland. We regard him as an integral part of our team."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed but Portland General Manager Stu Inman said, "I'm delighted for Calvin that he got such long-term security and that he will remain with the club he has contributed so much to."

Natt was vacationing in Louisiana and could not be reached for comment. Natt became a free agent at the end of last season and said he would accept the best offer for his services. Following Portland's season-ending loss to Los Angeles in the NBA Western Conference semifinal playoff series, Weinberg declared the Blazers would sign Natt or match any offer.

Inman said Natt's value was easily recognized by the team and the rest of the NBA.

"League-wide, Calvin has a reputation as a player with great ability and dedication, a player who flat-out plays with great intensity every time out," Inman said.

"I'm very pleased," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "Calvin has been our most consistently productive player regarding scoring, individual defense and rebounding — at both boards."

The 25-year-old Natt is a four-year pro — from Northeastern Louisiana. Drafted by New Jersey in the first round of the 1979 collegiate draft, he was traded by the Nets to Portland later that season for power forward Maurice Lucas and two first-round draft choices.

Last season, he averaged a career-high 20.4 points per game and led the team in shooting accuracy with a .543 percentage.

GAYLORD PERRY
Claims he's 'very excited' about taking his 310-261 lifetime record to Kansas City

Perry bound for Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Gaylord Perry, who was released by the Seattle Mariners 10 days ago, was awarded to the Kansas City Royals Tuesday on another claim, a team spokesman said.

Perry, who has a 310-261 lifetime record, will join the team Thursday in his first workout after the All-Star Game. He will be in uniform Friday night when the Royals host the New York Yankees.

"I was just on the phone with them," Perry said in a telephone interview from his North Carolina farm. "I'll leave Thursday morning and get there for a four o'clock workout. I hope to be pitching pretty soon; I've been working out here and working on the farm."

"I'm very excited about it; it feels great. When someone steps down and says, 'We want him,' it makes me feel good."

The 44-year-old right-hander was 3-10 with a 4.94 ERA this year before being designated for reassignment by the Mariners; his seventh-inning league team. Perry began his professional career in 1962 with the Cleveland Indians in the American League and played his first major-league game with San Francisco in 1962.

He has won 20 or more games in a season five times, the latest with San Diego in 1978 when his 21-6 record and 2.72 ERA earned him the Cy Young Award as the National League top pitcher.

To make room for Perry on the 25-man roster, the Royals sent catcher Russ Stephans to their Triple-A affiliate in Omaha.

"It's a winning ballclub, and anywhere you win it's a lot better and a lot happier," Perry said, adding that he has played before with Kansas City Manager Dick Howser and Royals pitching coach Floyd Boyer.

Thrills shall come, even without Harry James & the Bear

Between reports of the American Federation of Teachers' disapproval of President Reagan and the upcoming weather, the radio informed me Tuesday morning that bandleader Harry James had died. Genuine disappointment struck me instantly. Harry James was not of my generation, but his music transcended our age difference. Such sweet swing!

I always retained the hope that I might find myself in some city where he happened to be performing so I could hear him play. That chance arose last year in San Francisco, but I blew it, opting instead for an evening in a nightmarish, nice choice, idiot.

My thoughts, as they do during 98 percent of my waking hours, turned to sports. I recalled when Bear Bryant passed away a few months but have you checked air fares to Chicago lately? Not only am I unlucky, I decided, I'm also poor.

Further thinking popped my bubble, and necessarily so. I'm hardly unlucky. I realized (nor am I poor; I'm glad just to be employed). Maybe I'll never see Harry James, but I can't numbings won't make my notebook, but I did meet an excellent Vince Lombardi; I never watched Mantle, but I saw Willie Mays, and that's good enough for anybody.

My point (finally) is that there never has been a Golden Age, at least in sports. No plateaus, no utopias. We should accept what is presented to us, revel in it or revile it, and let the past remain a memory, fond or otherwise. Spawned by the death of Harry James, these ramblings were slaked by the All-Star Old-Timers' game played Tuesday night in Chicago and that other affair for reeled stars created by Cracker Jack, which will occur soon in Washington. I find it pathetic to stare at a bumbling Henry Aaron or a withered Warren Spahn on the field. Such men were best watched decades ago: in their prime.

The presence and movements of retired athletes deteriorate from magical to mortal. Ten, 20 years from now the Arons and Spahns in these old-timers' games will yield to Seavers and Roses; men whose heretics I've been fortunate to witness. When they play those games, don't look for me at the ballpark. I loathe athletic pantomimes.

Pantomimes are unnecessary when the real thing is a great supply. Much of the beauty of athletic endeavor is its regeneration and proliferation. Arousing events happen all the time, everywhere.

Center stage teams. I've had the privilege of seeing Idaho State win a national football championship, Twin Falls High School's football team reach a state title game (I missed the basketball final) and College of Southern Idaho go to the national basketball tournament. I've seen many insignificant events of people, and perhaps they are, but they excited the hell out of me.

I'll have a few pangas of longing tonight, wishing I could be at Comiskey Park. However, God and the Major League Baseball Players Association willing, I'll have the All-Star Game. It must have been nice to hear Harry James play the trumpet. Yet others shall trumpet for me.

Even AL Old-Timers can't beat NL

CHICAGO (UPI) — The National League old-timers, relying on power from former Chicago Cubs Billy Williams and Don Kessinger, Tuesday proved their league's dominance isn't limited simply to the regular All-Star game.

The senior circuit, with a heavy emphasis on the word senior, outlasted the American League old-timers 6-5 in the Old-Timers All-Star game played at Comiskey Park on the eve of baseball's 50th anniversary All-Star game.

Williams cracked a towering two-run homer in a four-run second and former Cub shortstop Kessinger lined an RBI double to snap a 5-5 tie in the top of the third inning to give the NL the victory in a loosely played contest.

Williams, currently a hitting instructor with the Oakland A's, was named the game's most valuable player for hitting his homer into the second deck of Comiskey Park off knuckleballer Hoyt Wilhelm.

Kessinger, a former teammate of Williams, knocked a double down the leftfield line in the third, scoring former Giant Bobby Thomson, who had lined a two-out double to left field.

Kessinger's hit came off loser Don Larsen, the last New York Yankee to throw a no-hitter until Dave Righetti's masterpiece Monday at Yankee Stadium. Robin Roberts, who got the final out in the second, was the winner while Johnny Vander Meer, who pitched baseball's only back-to-back no-hitters, retired the American League in order in the third for the save.

The National League jumped to a 1-0 lead in the first. Enos Slaughter led off with an infield single off Lefty Gomez. Ernie Banks singled but Slaughter was thrown out trying to reach third.

After Willie Mays grounded out, Ron Santo drew a walk off Jim Bunning and Joe Torre currently Atlanta Braves' manager, singled to score Banks.

The American League scored three in its half of the first. Luis Aparicio led off with a bunt single. One out later, Minnie Miñoso walked and both scored on Al Kaline's double off Juan Marichal.

Tony Oliva lifted a deep drive to center that was caught by Mays. But the former Giant apparently forgot there were only two outs and Kaline scored all the way from second on the sacrifice fly.

In the second, Monte Irvin lined a one-out single off former Sox pitcher Bill Pierce. Red Schoendienst drew a walk and both scored on pinch-hitter Smokey Burgess' double to right field.

Williams then hit the first pitch into the first row of the second deck.

The American League tied the game with two runs in the second. Brooks Robinson hit a ground rule double and went to third on Bill Freehan's single. Robinson scored when second baseman Bill Mazeroski fumbled Jim Fregosi's apparent double play grounder for an error.

Moose Skowron lifted a fly ball that Lou Brock dropped running in from left, allowing Freehan to score the fifth run.

Seattle Manager Del Crandall led off the third for the NL and singled but Dick Bartel hit into a double play before Thomson and Kessinger lined their back-to-back doubles.

Steib, Soto nominated to start All-Star

By PHIL HERSH
Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO -- In a baseball world gone mad -- Toronto in the first place at mid-season? -- maybe the way to end the game's most maddeningly irrational streak is giving the job to a past angry man.

Dave Steib fits the description. The Blue Jays pitcher, named by American League manager Harvey Kuenn to start tonight's 50th Anniversary All-Star Game at Comiskey Park, was once a major-league pitcher.

"He's obsessed with winning," says Toronto catcher Buck Martinez, "and that obsession was misdirected the last couple years. Now he's going in the right direction. His competitive anger is aimed at other pitchers."

Wednesday's other team has been driving American League brass crazy for the last 20 years. The National League has won 11 straight All-Star Games and 19 of the last 20. There is no explanation for that record save one that poet Emily Dickinson (writes left, was batty) offered a century ago: "Much madness is divinest sense -- to a discerning eye."

No matter which way you look at him, the 26-year-old Steib comes across nasty on the mound. His slider is equally mean. "He was blessed with a lot of talent," Martinez says. He also was cursed with an attitude that used to rate "as an excuse to be irate at teammates with lesser ability." After a Greg Luzinski homer last season, Steib blamed Martinez for calling the pitch.

The confrontation that followed led the pitcher to temper his pitch.

"There were some things I had to learn to accept," says Steib. Defeat is not one of them. His competitive fire remains.

The irony is that if the American League wants to play with a firebrand, the National League has the match. Its starting pitcher Cincinnati's Mario Soto also has found self-control to be as important as getting his fastball and changeup over the plate.

"When you came up young like me, you let things bother you more," says Soto, a six-year veteran at 26. "Things happen, and you have a second to react the right way or wrong way."

Soto's reaction to being hit with a pitch by Philadelphia's Ron Reed last season was to head for the mound with a bat. The result? Soto was ejected from the game in the seventh inning, after which the Phillies pitched out a 4-0 lead, costing the pitcher a win in a season when the bumbling Reds made every win precious.

The rematch turned into a shouting match with Phil's third base coach Dave Bristol. The result? A distracted Soto gave up a grand slam and lost 8-2. A week later, he became Soto threw a six-hitter to beat the Phillies 8-1.

"It wasn't hard to get him upset," says Phillies manager Pat Corrales. "Now that he knows that trick, he won't go for it again."

"We talk about Latin having fiery exuberance," says the Reds' All-Star coach Whitey Herzog (NL manager) and a few other people gave him respect by naming him the starting pitcher.

"The managers picked the starting pitchers Tuesday. The rest of the starters were predetermined by the fans' vote. But Kuenn was given a chance to choose one starting outfielder when Reggie Jackson scratched."

Natt to remain with Trail Blazers, who match Cavaliers' offer

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — The Portland Trail Blazers announced Tuesday that they have matched an offer sheet by the Cleveland Cavaliers for free-agent small forward Calvin Natt.

The Cavaliers announced Friday they had signed Natt to an offer sheet worth a reported $4.5 million for six years. The Blazers had 15 days to match Cleveland's offer upon receipt of the offer sheet.

Portland officials received the offer sheet Tuesday. It did not take them long to decide.

"This is what our president, Larry Weinberg, indicated all along he would do," said Harry Glickman, executive vice president of the Blazers. "We are delighted that Calvin will remain in Portland. We regard him as an integral part of our team."

Terms of the contract were not disclosed but Portland General Manager Stu Inman said, "I'm delighted for Calvin that he got such long-term security and that he will remain with the club he has contributed so much to."

Natt was vacationing in Louisiana and could not be reached for comment.

Natt became a free agent at the end of last season and said he would accept the best offer for his services. Following Portland's season-ending loss to Los Angeles in the NBA Western Conference semifinal playoff series, Weinberg declared the Blazers would sign Natt or match any offer.

Inman said Natt's value was easily recognized by the team and the rest of the NBA.

"Calvin-wide, Calvin has a reputation as a player with great dignity and dedication, a player who not only plays with great intensity every time out," Inman said.

"I'm very pleased," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "Calvin has been our most consistently productive player regarding scoring, individual defense and rebounding at both ends of the court."

The 26-year-old Natt is a four-year pro from Northeast Louisiana. Drafted by New Jersey in the first round of the 1979 collegiate draft, he was traded by the Nets to Portland last season for power forward Maurice Lucas and two first-round draft choices.

Last season, he averaged a career-high 20.4 points per game and led the team in shooting accuracy with a .543 percentage.

GAYLORD PERRY
Claims he's 'very excited' about taking his 310-261 lifetime record to Kansas City

Perry bound for Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Gaylor Perry, who was released by the Seattle Mariners 10 days ago, was awarded to the Kansas City Royals Tuesday on a waiver claim.

Perry, who has a 1982 lifetime record, will join the team Thursday in his first workout after the All-Star Game. He will be in uniform Friday night when the Royals host the New York Yankees.

"I was just on the phone with them," Perry said in a telephone interview from his North Carolina farm. "I'll leave Thursday morning and get there for a four o'clock workout. I hope to be pitching pretty soon. I've been working out here and working on the farm."

"I'm very excited about it, it feels great. When someone steps down and says, 'We want him,' it makes me feel good."

The 44-year-old right-hander was 3-10 with a 4.94 ERA this year before being designated for reassignment by the Mariners, his seventh major-league team. Perry began his professional career in 1958 at St. Cloud, Minn., in the Northern League and played his first major-league game with San Francisco in 1962.

He has won 20 or more games in a season five times, the latest with San Diego in 1978 when his 21-6 record and a 2.72 ERA earned him the Cy Young Award as the National League top performer.

To make room for Perry on the 25-man roster, the Royals sent catcher Russ Stephans to their Triple-A affiliate in Omaha.

"It's a winning ballclub, and anywhere you win it's a lot better and a lot happier," Perry said, adding that he has played before with Kansas City. Major League pitcher Dick Howser and Royals pitching coach Floyd Boyer.

Thrills shall come, even without Harry James & the Bear

Between reports of the American Federation of Teachers' disapproval of President Reagan and the upcoming weather, the radio informed me Tuesday morning that bandleader Harry James had died. Genuine disappointment struck me instantly. Harry James was not of my generation, but his music transcended our age difference. Such sweet swirls.

I always retained the hope that I might find myself in some city where he happened to be performing. So I could beat him play. That chance arose last year in San Francisco, but I blew it, opting instead for an evening in a nightclub that more closely resembled a nightmare. Nice choice, idiot.

My thoughts, as they do during 98 percent of my waking hours, turned to sports. I recalled when Bear Bryant passed away a few months ago and the similar fantasies I had to banish then of someday interviewing the Bear. I went on to consider all the superb athletes I had barely missed watching: Mickey Mantle, Gale Sayers, Elgin Baylor, Bobby Orr, and others.

A bubble of self-pity began swelling inwardly. How unlucky, how bereft of satisfaction I am for being born too late. I moaned to myself. Pondering today's All-Star Game. I felt even worse. Two weeks ago a friend offered me a free ticket to the classic but have you checked air fares to Chicago lately? Not only am I unlucky, I decided, I'm also poor.

Further thinking popped my bubble and necessarily so. I'm hardly unlucky. I realized (nor am I poor; I'm glad just to be employed). Maybe I'll never see Harry James, but I can always buy his records. Bear Bryant's mumbblings won't make my notebook, but I did meet an ebullient Vince Lombardi. I never watched Mantle, but I saw Willie Mays, and that's good enough for anybody.

My point (finally) is that there never has been a Golden Age, at least in sports. No plateaus, no utopias. We should accept what is presented to us, revel in it or revile it, and let the past remain what it is, fond or otherwise. Spawned by the death of Harry James, these ramblings were stoked by the All-Star Old-Timers' game played Tuesday night in Chicago and that other affair for retired stars created by Cracker Jack, which will occur soon in Washington. I find it pathetic to stare at a bulbous Henry Aaron or a withered Warren Spahn on the field. Such men were best watched decades ago, in their prime.

The presence and movements of retired athletes deteriorate from magical to morose. Ten, 20 years from now the Aarons and Spahns in these old-timers' games will yield to Seavers and Roses, men whose heros I've been fortunate to witness. When they play those games, don't look for me at the ballpark. I hate the athletic pantomimes.

Pantomimes are unnecessary when the real thing is in great supply. Much of the beauty of athletic endeavor is its regeneration and proliferation. Arousing events happen all the time, everywhere.

Consider nearby teams. I've had the privilege of seeing Idaho State win a national football championship, Twin Falls High School's football team reach a state title game (I missed the basketball final) and College of Southern Idaho go to the national basketball tournament. These may seem insignificant to a lot of people, and perhaps they are, but they excited the hell out of me.

I'll have a few pangas of longing tonight, wishing I could be at Comiskey Park. However, God and the Major League Baseball Players Association willing, I have the opportunity to see the 100th anniversary All-Star Game. It must have been nice to hear Harry James play the trumpet. Yet others shall trumpet for me.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"Each one sees what he carries in his heart." Goethe.

West's opening lead should have guided South to the winning line... South drew trumps, ending in dummy, and took a losing heart finesse...

SENSATIONAL SUMMER FRUIT SALADS FROM THE CALIFORNIA COUNTRYSIDE

The state of California is a land of contrast and variety... offering sunny beaches, majestic redwood forests and fields, orchards and groves brimming with a bounty of fresh produce.

Agriculture in the Golden State is considered one of the most diversified in the world with no one commodity dominating the state's farm economy. California leads the nation by a wide margin in the production of some 50 commercial crop and livestock commodities. California-raised fruits and nuts account for more than 40 percent of the nation's cash farm receipts and vegetables account for about one-third. Fruit, nut and vegetable crops cover more than 9 million acres of precious California countryside!

Among California's top commercial fruit and vegetable commodities are avocados, Bartlett pears, iceberg lettuce, nectarines, peaches and plums—all in season this summer, making them ideal for refreshing warm-weather meals. Not only do they perk up the simplest of dishes with unique flavor and color combinations, they also supply essential nutrients and fiber. They're all naturally low in sodium and, of course, direct from the farm... unprocessed, unmlled and unspiced.

Whether you have a special love for appetizers, salads, entrees or desserts, let these fresh fruits and vegetables from California take center stage this summer. Begin an elegant sit-down dinner with an equally elegant first course—California Prawn and Fruit Salad. Simply arrange steamed prawns, Bartlett pear and avocado slices on crisp iceberg lettuce wedges and drizzle a tangy mustard dressing over all.

Instead of the usual chef's salad fare for your next luncheon gathering, please your guests with a quick-to-fix Calypso Salad. Fill Bartlett pear and avocado halves with a tuna salad mixture and perch them around a mound of shredded iceberg lettuce. Top with a colorful arrangement of plum and peach slices and serve with a tangy plum dressing... a light and lovely meal!

Crazy about Mexican food, but ready for a new twist? Dazzle your family or friends with a fruity Tostada Salad dinner. Top crispy tostillas with shredded iceberg lettuce and cooked chicken. Arrange juicy peach slices over all and finish with a spoonful of creamy smooth avocado dressing and a dollop of sour cream. Offer some taco sauce for those who'd like to "zip up" their tostada and be sure to have enough of everything on hand for second helpings!

Light and refreshing desserts are a must for hot days and nights and here's one that's sure to bring the temperature down. Decoratively arrange Bartlett pear and plum wedges and avocado chunks over crunchy iceberg lettuce slices and top with scoops of super cold nectarine ice. It's that easy and that delicious!

Take a vacation from the hot stove and reap the flavorful, colorful and nutritional benefits of the California countryside. Summer-time fruit salads never looked or tasted so good!

TOSTADA SALAD

- 4 flour tostillas (8-inch diameter)
- Vegetable oil
- 2 cups shredded cooked chicken
- 1 can (15 ounces) tomato puree
- 2 teaspoons oregano
- 1 head California iceberg lettuce, shredded
- 2 fresh California peaches, sliced
- AVOCADO DRESSING, recipe follows
- Sour Cream
- Taco sauce, optional
- Diced green chiles, optional

Fry tostillas, one at a time, in hot oil (about 1/4-inch deep) a few seconds on each side, until crisp and golden. Drain on paper towels. Combine shredded chicken, tomato puree and oregano in a saucepan. Simmer 3 minutes to heat chicken through. Place each tostilla on a serving plate. Top with lettuce, chicken mixture, peach slices and Avocado Dressing. Dollop each with sour cream. Drizzle taco sauce and sprinkle diced green chiles over each salad, if desired. Makes 4 servings.

AVOCADO DRESSING

Peel, seed and mash 1 large ripe California avocado. (Should yield 1 cup puree.) Stir in 1/2 cup dairy sour cream, 1/3 cup milk, 1/4 cup diced green chiles, 3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice, 1/8 teaspoon cayenne and 1/8 teaspoon salt. Continue to stir until smooth.

ROYAL PEACH SALAD

- 2 cups cottage cheese
- 1/2 cup chopped almonds, divided usage
- 1/4 cup dark seedless raisins
- 4 to 6 cups shredded or torn California iceberg lettuce
- 2 or 3 fresh California peaches, cut into wedges
- 2 or 3 fresh California Bartlett pears, cut into wedges
- 1 cup diagonally sliced celery
- CREAMY DRESSING, recipe follows

Combine cottage cheese, 1/4 cup chopped almonds and raisins. Line four individual salad plates with lettuce. Scoop cottage cheese mixture into the center of each plate. Alternate wedges of peaches and pears around cottage cheese. Sprinkle celery over each. Pour Creamy Dressing over salads and top each with 1 tablespoon of remaining chopped almonds. 4 servings.

CREAMY DRESSING

Combine 1/2 cup plain low-fat yogurt, 1/4 cup half-and-half and 1/3 cup (1/2 of 6-ounce can) thawed orange juice concentrate in blender jar. Whirl until smooth.

CALYPSO SALAD

- 2 cans (7 ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/2 teaspoon thyme
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 2 fresh California Bartlett pears, halved and cored
- PLUM DRESSING, recipe follows
- 2 ripe California avocados, halved and seeded
- 1 or 2 heads California iceberg lettuce
- 1 fresh California plum, cut in wedges
- 1 fresh California peach, cut in wedges

Combine tuna, sour cream, thyme and lemon juice. Fill pear and avocado halves with tuna salad mixture. Line a platter with outer lettuce leaves. Shred enough lettuce to measure 2 quarts; mound onto lettuce leaves. Perch filled pear and avocado halves in a ring around lettuce; small ends facing center. Arrange plum and peach wedges over the top forming a radiating pattern. Garnish salad with minced parsley and twisted lime slices, if desired. Serve with Plum Dressing. 4 servings.

PLUM DRESSING

Slice 3 fresh California plums or enough to measure 1-1/4 cups. Place slices in blender jar; whirl until smooth. (Should yield 1 cup puree.) Stir in 2 teaspoons sugar and 2 teaspoons red wine vinegar; mix thoroughly.

CALIFORNIA PRAWN AND FRUIT SALAD

- 1/2 to 3/4 pound medium prawns
- 2 fresh California Bartlett pears, halved, cored and cut into crosswise slices
- 2 ripe California avocados, seeded, peeled and cut into crosswise slices
- 1 head California iceberg lettuce, cut into 4 wedges
- MUSTARD GLAZE DRESSING, recipe follows

Steam prawns over small amount of water 3 to 6 minutes or until prawns turn pink. Cool and shell prawns; drain, if necessary. Place lettuce wedges on 4 individual salad plates; arrange prawns, pears and avocados on wedges. Spoon Mustard Glaze Dressing over each salad. 4 servings.

MUSTARD GLAZE DRESSING

Combine 3/4 cup sugar, 1/2 cup white wine vinegar, 2 tablespoons chopped onion, 1-1/2 teaspoons dry mustard and 1 teaspoon salt in blender jar; whirl until smooth. Gradually add 1 cup vegetable oil; continue to whirl until thoroughly mixed. Stir in 1 tablespoon minced parsley and chill before serving.

NECTARINE ICE ON FRUIT SALAD

- 1 head California iceberg lettuce, cut into rasts (crosswise slices) and halved
- 2 fresh California Bartlett pears, cut into wedges
- NECTARINE ICE, recipe follows
- 2 ripe California avocados, seeded, peeled and cut into chunks
- 2 fresh California plums, cut into wedges

Place lettuce slices in a large shallow bowl; arrange pears, avocados and plums over lettuce. Top with Nectarine Ice and serve. 4 servings.

NECTARINE ICE

1-teaspoon-plain-gelatin
 2 cups orange juice, divided usage
 1 cup sugar
 2 cups chopped fresh California nectarines (about 4 large nectarines)

Soften gelatin in 1/4 cup orange juice; set aside. Combine nectarines, sugar and 1/4 cup orange juice in saucepan; bring to boil. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, about 3 minutes or until nectarines are soft. Blend gelatin into nectarine mixture, stirring until dissolved. Pour into blender jar; whirl until smooth. Stir in remaining 1-1/2 cups orange juice. Pour mixture into a shallow pan; freeze until firm. Cut ice into chunks and turn into a mixer bowl; beat until smooth. Return ice to freezer and freeze until firm, 1-1/2 quarts.

Fresh pears and lettuce team up in a delicious summertime salad that's easy to make.

Layered salads attractive

MINNEAPOLIS (Minn.)—The idea of layering vegetables to serve as a salad has recently swept the nation, appearing at church suppers, family get-togethers—and everywhere—a quick-and-easy salad is needed.

This simple and attractive idea of layering various salad ingredients can be used for fruit salads, too, as in this Seven Layer Fruit 'n' Cheese Salad. It starts with fresh pears.

When selecting pears, remember that they are picked when mature but still hard to the touch. Pears develop the best flavor when ripened from the inside out, so it is quite easy to find a pear that feels ripe on the outside but is brown and mushy inside. Pears should ripen at room temperature until the skin at the stem end yields to slight pressure.

When using chopped pears, toss in lemon juice to prevent them from

- SEVEN LAYER FRUIT SALAD
- 3 unpared pears, chopped
  - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
  - 5 cups shredded lettuce
  - 6 tablespoons imitation bacon crumbs
  - 2½ cups shredded Cheddar cheese, about 10 oz.
  - 1 cup mayonnaise or salad dressing
  - Toss pears and lemon juice; reserve.
  - Place lettuce in 4-quart bowl.
  - Top with 2 tablespoons imitation bacon, ¼ cup cheese, the pears, 2 tablespoons imitation bacon and the remaining cheese. Gently spread mayonnaise over top. Sprinkle with remaining imitation bacon. Serve immediately. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Insect populations build up

REXBURG — As mild summer approaches, insect populations build up and do more damage to plants.

One of the most voracious pests that appears about this time of year is the cabbage worm. These little white moths flying around your cabbage, broccoli and related plants produce the little green caterpillars which eat holes in the leaves. As soon as the moths appear, plants must be sprayed regularly until harvest.

My favorite pesticide for all kinds of caterpillars is an organic one sold as Thuricide or Dipel. It is a suspension of a bacteria which is specific for caterpillars and is not dangerous to humans or animals. It can be safely applied immediately before harvest.

Other pesticides which are effective on caterpillars are diazinon and sevin. They are very effective and can also be applied safely to fruits and vegetables, but require a short period between application and harvest. Diazinon and sevin are also very effective on chewing beetles such as the potato beetle and cucumber beetle.

As mentioned in a previous column, the apple worm is another caterpillar which can only be controlled by regular spraying until mid to late August.

My philosophy with ornamental plants is to avoid those which have pest problems. Some of the more general pests like aphids are often controlled by natural predators without spraying.

If you notice a few soft, green bugs on your plants,

Allen Wilson Intermountain gardening

check to see if lady bugs also are present. Unless large populations develop, they will control them. Sometimes a few bugs can be washed off with the hose before getting out the sprayer.

If significant damage occurs on ornamentals, one of my favorite pesticides is orthene. It is a systemic chemical which is transferred throughout the plant. It kills pests which are rolled up inside a leaf or on the bottom of a leaf which you don't happen to hit with the spray.

Some people are quite concerned about using chemicals, because of all the adverse publicity in recent years. Home garden chemicals are quite safe to use as long as label precautions are followed.

Garlic, dieters' delight, can eliminate culinary doldrums

Caesar salads combine chilled lettuce, cheese, fresh garlic with other ingredients

SAN FRANCISCO — When you want to give ordinary salads a zip, add a touch of fresh garlic. Its pungent flavor helps to perk up almost any dressing mixture.

According to the California-based Fresh Garlic Association, producer of about 90 percent of the nation's garlic crop, you can cook with just as much, or a little garlic as you wish, to produce a full-range of flavors — from the merest hint to the zestiest, most full-bodied taste sensation.

Want just a subtle whisper of garlic in your salad? Halve a garlic clove and rub the cut sides against the inside of your salad bowl before adding the greens and the dressing. The garlic adds body to the salad but you'll barely know that it's there.

Or perhaps you like a robust garlic taste. Make garlic-flavored croutons by spreading bread with garlic butter before cubing and toasting. You can also drop a cut clove of garlic in your favorite salad dressing and let it steep to draw out the hearty flavor. Retrieve the garlic before pouring the dressing.

Dieters will be delighted to know that garlic is a lightweight in the calorie department, while being heavy on flavor. Each clove contains one to two calories.

Garlic may be good for you in other ways, too: German researchers claim that garlic may be responsible for lowering blood cholesterol levels thereby decreasing the possibilities of heart attack. Other medical properties that garlic might have is not new.

Here are two remedies for the menu blubs that don't require a medical research laboratory to prepare. "Traditional Caesar Salad" and "GILROY Caesar Salad" are marvelous combinations of chilled lettuce, cheese, fresh garlic and other delectable ingredients which will help lift you out of the culinary doldrums.

TRADITIONAL CAESAR SALAD
3 anchovies
1 or more cloves fresh garlic.

- minced
  - 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
  - 1/4 teaspoon prepared horseradish
  - 1 teaspoon fresh lemon juice
  - 1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
  - 3 tablespoons olive oil
  - 3 cups Romaine lettuce, rinsed, drained, chilled and broken into 1-inch pieces
  - 1/4 teaspoon salt
  - black pepper, freshly ground
  - 1/2 cup croutons, plain or garlic
  - 3-4 tablespoons Parmesan cheese
  - 1 egg, coddled
  - Place anchovies on a small plate; sprinkle with garlic, mustard, horseradish, lemon juice, vinegar and oil. Mash with a fork into a smooth paste. Place lettuce in a large salad bowl. Sprinkle with salt and a generous grinding of pepper. Add anchovy paste and croutons. Sprinkle cheese on top. Drop coddled egg on top of cheese. Toss salad gently until greens are well coated with dressing. Makes 2 servings.
  - GILROY CAESAR SALAD
  - 1 head lettuce
  - 6 or more cloves of fresh California garlic
  - 1 1/2 cups oil
  - 1/2 cup tarragon flavor wine vinegar
  - 1 tablespoons prepared mustard
  - 2 teaspoons sugar
  - 2 teaspoons seasoned salt
  - 2 teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
  - 1/2 teaspoon herb pepper seasoning
  - Tabasco sauce to taste, about 1/16 teaspoon
  - 1/4 cup sliced green onions
  - 1/4 cup crumbled blue cheese
  - 2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
  - 1/2 cup chow mein noodles
  - 1/4 cup julienne strips salami
  - 1/4 cup small toast rounds or croutons
- Separate leaves of lettuce and rinse thoroughly. Drain and chill until serving time. Squeeze garlic using a garlic press to measure 2 teaspoons. Combine garlic with oil, vinegar, mustard, sugar, salt, horseradish, Worcestershire sauce, herb pepper seasoning and Tabasco in a pint jar. Cover and shake well to blend. Chill. At serving time, shred lettuce to measure 2 quarts, and toss with onions, blue cheese and parsley. Shake dressing again; pour 1/2 cup over salad and toss lightly; serve at once. Pass additional dressing. Makes 6 servings of 1/2 cups of salad per serving. Dressing recipe makes 2 cups. Store the extra dressing in the refrigerator to use another time.

Walla Walla onions arriving

World-famous Walla Walla sweet, yellow onions are coming to town now. These French-type vegetables are recognized for their mildness, tenderness and sweetness. And, these sweet onions range in size from small, medium to jumbo, for use in raw salads, sandwiches and picklings, as well as in cooked main- and side-dishes.

SWEET ONION SOUP
 4 jumbo-sized sweet onions, peeled and very thinly sliced
 2 cloves garlic, peeled and mashed
 1/2 stick sweet butter
 1/2 cup beef broth
 3 cups water
 Softened butter for spreading
 8 slices Italian or French bread
 1/4 to 1/2-inch thick

2 cups grated natural Swiss cheese
 Paprika garnish
 In a heavy saucepan, lightly brown the onions and garlic in broth. Gradually stir in the water, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil. Then stir in the water. Cook, stirring, until the onions are tender and the soup is steaming hot. When ready to serve, spread the bread slices generously with the softened butter. Brown the buttered bread slices in a skillet. Put a browned slice of bread into each of eight heavy soup bowls. Fill the bowls with steaming soup. Sprinkle tops with grated Swiss cheese. Stick for a minute under broiler, just to melt cheese. Bread will float up from bottom slightly. Sprinkle the top of each bowl lightly with paprika and serve immediately. Makes 8 servings.

SWEET ONION-ORANGE SALAD
 6 tablespoons vegetable oil
 2 tablespoons white wine vinegar
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 Pinch white pepper
 2 jumbo-size sweet onions, peeled and very thinly sliced and separated into rings
 4 navel oranges, peeled and thinly sliced
 In a small jar with a lid, shake

Willetta Warberg
On food

together to combine the oil, vinegar and white pepper in a salad bowl, salt and the vinegar mixture, sliced onions and oranges. Adjust salt and pepper seasoning. Serve immediately. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

BAKED STUFFED SWEET ONIONS
 6 jumbo-size sweet yellow onions, peeled
 1 cup cooked rice
 1 cup finely chopped walnuts
 1/4 cup sauteed, chopped mushrooms
 1 egg, beaten

Salt and pepper to season to taste
 1/4 teaspoon crushed sweet basil
 Slice off one-fourth of the top from each peeled onion. Steam the onion bottoms for 15 minutes in one inch of water, until they are barely tender. Preheat oven to 350° F. Drain the onions, leaving 2 or 3-layer shells. Mince scooped-out center to make just 1 cup of minced onion.
 In a small bowl, combine the minced onion, rice, walnuts, mushrooms and beaten egg. Season mixture to taste with salt and pepper. Toss with crushed sweet basil. Divide the mixture among onion "bowls." Arrange stuffed onions in flat casserole. Bake, uncovered for about 30 minutes, or until the stuffing is browned. Makes 6 servings.

DEEP FRIED SWEET ONION RINGS

- 4 jumbo sweet yellow onions, peeled and sliced 1/2-inch thick, separated into rings
- 3 egg yolks
- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups buttermilk

Vegetable oil for deep frying
 Preheat oil in deep-fat fryer to 375° F. Dry off the onion rings with paper toweling. In a mixing bowl, beat together the eggs, flour, soda, salt and buttermilk. When batter is whipped smooth, dip onion rings into batter—6 to 8 rings at a time, fry in deep fat 4 to 5 minutes, or until lightly browned. Place the fried rings on paper toweling to drain. When all of onion rings are first fried, drop them again into hot fat and fry a minute longer. This second frying will crisp them. Drain again on paper toweling. Sprinkle with salt before serving. If desired—

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS—The weather has put a push on fresh produce. So, be careful when selecting your buys. Centers of soft fruits, especially, can be pulpy. After-the-holiday sales will be around for a few weeks. It is wise to walk throughout your store, looking for sales, before you decide what you want to buy. The prices can be quite different between shelf items and temporary aisle sale baskets and platforms.

Sweet Potato Gratin is an especially tasty accompaniment to poultry or pork dishes

Sweet potatoes good side dish

SAN FRANCISCO — Fresh California sweet potatoes deliver a savory side dish when teamed with red onions, butter and cream.

Sweet Potato Gratin is an especially tasty accompaniment to poultry and pork, and proves the versatility of this delicious vegetable.

Three major varieties of sweet potatoes are produced in California—Jersey, Jewel and Garnet. Although the latter two are often labeled as "yams" in the markets, all three are true sweet potatoes. The Jersey is the choice for baking or roasting while Jewel and Garnet varieties work well in most dishes and are basically interchangeable.
 Select sweet potatoes that are firm, smooth, reasonably clean and blemish-free; handle carefully to prevent bruising. For maximum shelf life, store in a cool dry place; do not refrigerate.

Sweet Potato Gratin, just one of many tasty, year-round dishes that can be made from fresh California sweet potatoes, is destined to become a family favorite.

- SWEET POTATO GRATIN
 1 1/2 cups chopped red onion
 2 tablespoons butter

- 1/2 pound fresh California sweet potatoes, yam variety, peeled and julienned 1/4-inch thick
 1/2 cup heavy cream
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 1/4 teaspoon white pepper
 Sauté red onion in butter until soft. Place half the cooked onions in bottom of a shallow 1-quart baking dish. Place half the sweet potatoes on the onions; top with remaining onions. Finish with a layer of sweet potatoes. Mix cream, salt, and pepper; pour over sweet potatoes. Bake at 325° F, 30 to 45 minutes, or until tender. (Makes 4 servings.)

Reader raps store gimmicks

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Dear Martin: Several months ago, on a Friday, I paid $1.89 for a 5-pound bag of sugar. On Sunday, I received a circular from the same store and right on the front was an offer for the same bag of sugar for $1.29, with a $7.30 purchase requirement.

What all this means to me is that I am being hustled out of 60 cents. I watch this and countless other gimmicks being used on us every day. I firmly believe that the only thing absolutely free in this world is fresh air.

I am sure you don't personally believe in these gimmicks, so why don't you and the other consumer advocates push to get rid of them? — Terence S., Bayside, N.Y.

Dear Terrance: "Gimmick" has become a bad word and no one wants to be taken in by a gimmick. If you had waited until Monday to buy your sugar, you would have saved 60 cents, and perhaps you would have felt that this was a genuine bargain.

The store probably paid more than $1.29 for that bag of sugar. So, it took a small loss with the hope that people who were not regular customers would see their circular and come in to shop. Getting a new customer in the front door is worth a lot more than 60 cents to a supermarket.

Why a $7.30 purchase minimum? Supermarkets use this restriction so that their advertised bargains will be received by shoppers who will do more than just run in for that one package of sugar. Is this unreasonable? I don't think so.

Money provides the fuel for our society; we are not accustomed to receiving anything free, and I think we all know it. But a price reduction, whether it be through an advertised supermarket special, or a coupon, or a refund, can save us money. There are cynics who say no. But more than 80 million Americans who have developed the thrifty habit of taking advantage of these offers say yes!

REFUNDING TIP: Many refunders save up their free product coupons and use them at stores that have these offers. The store may have higher prices, but it doesn't matter, since free product coupons allow the shopper to meet the minimum without laying out any money, except perhaps for sales tax, and the advertised bargain is a smart shopping bonus.

SMART SHOPPER AWARD
My Smart Shopper Award goes to Patty Tennant of Frank, Ohio.

"A grocery store was offering double coupons and sale prices of Aunt Jemima products. The syrup, regularly $1.83 was on sale for $1.59. The store doubled my 40-cent coupons and I paid 79 cents. The pancake mix regularly $1.19 was on sale for 79 cents. The store doubled my 25-cent coupons and I paid just 20 cents!"

Supermarket Shopper

Two items cost me $1.08, but my savings were far from over. On the box was an offer of a $1 refund, plus $2.50 in coupons for profits from the two items—I had just purchased. I think I got my money's worth!

Send 24 points for a $2 refund, or 24 points for $3 in coupons, or 42 points for a $4 refund, or 42 points for $6 in coupons. Indicate your choice of refund on the form. Look for the form on the package. Expires Oct. 15, 1983.

Boyfriend allergic to her?

DEAR ABBY: This is written in all seriousness, so please don't take it as a joke. My boyfriend thinks he is allergic to me.

"Dan" breaks out with a red, itchy rash whenever he's exposed to anything he's allergic to, which happens whenever we are together for any length of time. We've heard it's possible for a person to be allergic to another person, although—it is extremely rare.
This allergic Dan has gone to said, "I must be your girlfriend's makeup, perfume, hair spray, deodorant, toothpaste, shampoo, etc." But since I've stopped using makeup, perfume, hair spray, etc., and now use only deodorant, toothpaste, shampoo, etc., his rash has persisted, and we've come to a dead end.
We really care for each other, but we may have to split up if he doesn't quit breaking out every time we're together. It's been going on for over a year.

—K. IN COLORADO SPRINGS
DEAR K: It may be a "nervous reaction" rather than an allergy. Suggest that Dan consult a psychotherapist. I don't mean to be unkind, but your boyfriend could be unconsciously itching to split up or "break out."

DEAR ABBY: After 20 years of

Abigail Van Buren
Dear Abby

dating. I've come to the conclusion that my mother was wrong when she said, "A lady never calls a gentleman—she waits for him to call her."

Too many times I've had a man ask for my phone number, and I'd hang around the house afraid to go anywhere for fear I'd miss his call. Then he never called.
When a woman meets a man she'd like to see again, and he takes her number, why shouldn't she feel free to take his, too, so if he doesn't call her, she can call him?

I recently met a very attractive man, and we seemed to hit it off very well together. But instead of his taking my number and saying the usual "I'll call you," he gave me his number and asked me to call him.
Perfect! I had the option to either call him or not. It was all up to me. I liked that. Don't get me wrong, I'm not on a power trip. I still like doors opened for me, but I prefer to do the calling.
I'd like to hear the opinions of men on this.

—DON'T CALL ME, I'LL CALL YOU

DEAR DON'T: So would I. Gentlemen?

DEAR ABBY: You may think this is silly, but I want to get my ears pierced a second time so I can wear two pairs of earrings at once. Mom and Dad say, "NO!" I say they are my ears, and if they rot off, it will be my problem.

I'm 16, and I think I know what I want. My parents say having two holes in each ear is just a passing fad, and one day I'll be sorry, but Abby, having two holes in the same ear has been around for centuries.

My mom and dad say they're afraid I may get carried away and end up with maybe seven holes in each ear, and one in my nose, too. I won't. I think even three holes are gaudy. All I want is two.

What is your opinion?

—PERFORATED PATTI
DEAR PERFORATED: True, they are your ears, but you are still a minor, and as such your mother-by-the-wishes of your mom and dad. I vote with them. Two holes in one head are enough.

(Every teen-ager should know the truth about drugs, sex and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long-stamped 37-cent self-addressed envelope to: Abby-Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90008.)

Valencia orange crop plentiful

VAN NUYS, Calif. (UPI) — California and Arizona expect their largest crops of Valencia oranges since 1971, with yields 80 percent greater than the 1982 crop, according to Sunbelt Growers, Inc.

The growers' association said that because Valencia trees produced so much fruit, the oranges will tend to be smaller than usual. It said, however, that will be plentiful with fruit size somewhat bigger than normal.

Now it's 'Star Wars cookies' for kids

NORWALK, Conn. (UPI) — In an update of the animal cracker, Pepperidge Farm has introduced nationally a new line called "Star Wars Cookies," aimed at the in-movieland child consumer.

The 8-ounce packages contain cookies shaped in likenesses of Luke Skywalker, Princess Leia, Darth Vader, R2-D2, Yoda and other characters from the George Lucas movies—available in chocolate, vanilla and peanut butter flavors.

Youths get too much salt

CHICAGO (UPI) — College students may be eating too many prezels with their beer.

An article in the Journal of the American Dietetic Association shows their sodium intake is alarmingly high.

A scientific sample of 139 students at the University of Illinois, Champaign, indicates some male students consume more than four times the maximum daily recommendation, or 13,950 milligrams a day. Coeds in the sample consumed up to 9,374 milligrams daily. More than 3,000 stu-denters unsafe.

Prof. Mahmood Kahn, the dietitian who made the study, says the daily averages of 3,904 milligrams of male students and 2,228 of women were computed only on the amount of sodium contained in the foods the students said they eat. The figures do not include salt added from a shaker — a factor that probably raises the average, intake beyond excessively high amounts, Kahn says.
Respondents completed a 15-page questionnaire detailing the food they eat in an average 24-hour period.
