Lawyer says reporter filched tapes

By MARK BARABAK
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — An attorney who claimed to possess three videotapes showing government officials at "sex parties" said Tuesday a newspaper had stolen the tapes from him, but officials ordered him to produce the materials in court.

Police Cmdr. William Booth, said attorney Robert K. Steinberg was subpoenaed to produce the tapes in court July 25 — the same day Marvin Panoast, the confessed killer of former model Vicki Morgan, is to be arraigned on murder charges.

Booth said the district attorney subpoenaed Steinberg because of his claims the tapes exist and may be relevant to the murder investigation, Booth said.

"If such tapes do exist we feel a need to view them," Booth said.

Chief Deputy District Attorney Jim Bascue said Steinberg informed his office Tuesday morning of the alleged theft after prosecutors requested he turn over the tapes.

Steinberg, 46, told investigators the three tapes had been in a gym bag in the library of his law office, Bascue said.

"Someone from the press corps went into my library this morning and stole the tapes," said Steinberg, who appeared shaken and agitated as he left his Beverly Hills office.

But a short time later, a police spokesman said Steinberg made no mention of his suspicions during a lengthy interview with investigators.

"He didn't make any accusations against any reporters to our detectives," Lt. Bill Hunt, said.

Steinberg told reporters he called the White House and discussed the tapes with presidential counsel Fred Fielding. Deputy secretary Larry Speakes confirmed the conversation took place.

"Robert Steinberg called Fred Fielding at 2:20 p.m. (EDT) and said just before he made the phone call he discovered the tapes, which he had placed in his racquetball bag, were not there."

A spokesman for Fielding in Washington said when the counselor was informed the tapes were missing he advised Steinberg if the tapes turned up he should not destroy them. Steinberg said Fielding asked him not to destroy the tapes so it could be determined if any criminal conduct had occurred.

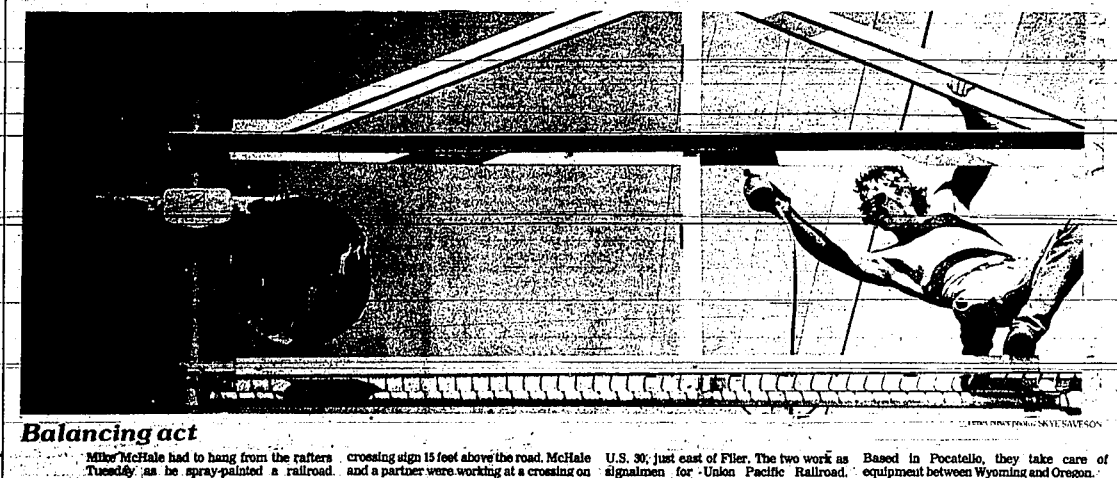

"Mr. Fielding said that right now the proper party to look at the tapes was the district attorney of Los Angeles County," Steinberg said.

"If the district attorney of Los Angeles County feels there is some criminality in these tapes, then the Department of Justice will send a special investigator out for themselves to consult with the district attorney's office to see if such acts existed."

Asked why, if it was a matter for local prosecutors, Fielding counseled Steinberg not to destroy the tapes, Speakes said.

"Questions have been raised about the involvement of federal appointees and federal officials in this thing and we were asked for reaction on it. And the reaction is we don't want any of it revealed. If it was a justice of

Evans appoints Becker to fill district judge slot

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

GOODING — Phillip Becker, 47, the current magistrate judge in Gooding County, has been appointed to the new Fifth District Court judgeship by Gov. John Evans.

Evans made the appointment Tuesday while Becker was attending the annual state judicial conference in McCall.

The Legislature created a sixth Fifth District judgeship in 1982 to handle a growing case load, but the position had not been filled until this time. No reason was given by the governor's office for the delay.

In addition to his duties as a magistrate judge, Becker now serves as the "trial court" administrator for the Fifth Judicial District.

Becker's 448,200-a-year appointment will be effective Sept. 1. He will face approval by the voters at the next general election.

The Gooding native said Tuesday that he expects the Fifth District Magistrate's Commission to advertise for, interview and select a replacement for his magistrate's post by the time he assumes his new duties.

He says he applied for the judgeship "because it was a different challenge (from the magistrate's job), and I felt I needed more of a challenge."

As a district court judge he will face primarily criminal cases, but Becker refuses to characterize himself as either a lenient or a tough judge.

"I try to listen to all sides and try to be fair and firm in my decisions," he says. "The public is my boss."

The new judgeship was created by the Legislature specifically to handle the case loads in Jerome and Gooding counties. Becker says he will maintain offices in both counties and go "wherever the work is," but he probably will keep his resident chambers in Gooding.

Becker graduated from law school at Gonzaga University in Spokane, Wash., in 1961.

He then returned to Gooding to begin his legal practice. Over the years, he served as the public defender in Gooding, Camas, Lincoln and Jerome counties, until he was elected to the post of Gooding County prosecutor in November 1976.

In July 1978, he was named to his present post as Fifth District magistrate judge and the district's trial court administrator.

Twice, he has temporarily served as a district court judge. He served for several months in 1980 when Judge James Cunningham of Twin Falls was ill, and for six months in 1981, standing in for Judge Douglas Kramer, who also took a leave of absence due to illness.

An educated woman can break a man's heart

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (UPI) — Men married to better educated women or to women employed in white-collar jobs face a two-to-three times greater risk of heart disease than other men, a researcher said Tuesday.

The increased risk in men married to women educated beyond high school was seen only when the women were employed outside the home, said Dr. Suzanne G. Haynes, assistant professor of epidemiology at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Her findings were published in the July issue of the American Journal of Epidemiology.

The findings were based on a 10-year study of 269 married couples who completed extensive psychological and social questionnaires between 1965 and 1967, when the husbands ranged in age from 45 to 64.

Dr. Haynes, the principal investigator for the study, said there were several possible explanations for the findings, which were seen even after taking into account such standard coronary risk factors as smoking and high blood pressure.

"One important observation that came out of this study was better educated working wives whose husbands developed coronary disease were significantly more likely to have had a non-supportive boss and few job promotions than wives of non-caes," she said.

Thus, she said, wives with education beyond the high school level and employed outside the home may experience stressful work conditions, which in turn affect their home environment and heart disease rates among their spouses.

"The dual role of some women in raising children and working outside the home may produce added pressure on a marriage and also may lead to more coronary heart disease among husbands," she said. "Another possibility is the wives with superior educations or jobs may threaten their husbands' self-esteem, resulting in insecurity on the part of men in these marriages and subsequently higher rates of heart disease."

She said information from the study was not sufficient to confirm the latter two possibilities.

Haynes warned the research involved marriages that were well established before the general acceptance and increasing influx of women into the work force. She said the results should not be applied without question to married couples today.

Senators promise to wage war against MX

GARY HART Leads the charge

WASHINGTON — Despite pleas by Republicans, Democratic opponents of the MX missile vowed Tuesday to keep the missile debate alive through virtually every step of Senate action on a $200 billion military spending bill.

As the Senate resumed debate on the MX bill, Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., said he and others would offer numerous "qualifying" amendments, partly to extend the debate and partly to determine whether there is enough support to defeat the missile system outright.

Hart also hinted at a filibuster to prevent an MX vote, saying "it depends on the debate and I will do all that I can to defeat the (missile) system."

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker chided his colleagues for a "poor start" on debating the military spending bill and warned of long and perhaps weekend sessions to finish it.

"I'm not bluffing," an annoyed Baker told a near-empty chamber after one of a series of quorum calls.

"We need to finish this bill this week, and we're off in a poor start..."

Noting the Senate has been able to pass by voice vote only three non-controversial amendments since taking up the bill Monday, Baker urged senators on both sides of the aisle to introduce their proposals now, but although several said they plan amendments, none was ready Tuesday.

"I reiterate, it is essential that we finish this week," Baker said.

"That is music to my ears," said Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, chairman of the Armed Services Committee and manager of the bill, which includes production funds for the controversial MX missile and B-1B bomber.

"You may be the only senator in this chamber that feels this way," Baker retorted.

Tower said earlier at least 30 amendments to the bill had been introduced to the bill "and we expect that number to grow."

He urged senators to submit any further amendments they intend to offer and said he hopes to have all amendments on one issue, such as MX, taken together — a tactic sure to meet Democratic objections.

Hart is one of at least eight senators who have agreed to offer MX amendments "as part of an overall strategy to try to eliminate $5.04 billion in funding for the controversial 10-warhead nuclear weapon."

He said there are at least 35 votes against MX and another half-dozen "no" votes. He also predicted the MX debate will continue into next week, despite "a very poor start" timetable, and did not rule out a third week of debate if the Democratic strategy is successful.

The group includes Sens. Edward Kennedy and Paul Tsongas, D-Mass.; Carl Levin, D-Mich.; William French Clay, D-W.Va.; Bill Bradley, D-N.J.; Dale Bumpers, D-Ark.; and at least one Republican, Mark Hatfield of Oregon.

The Democratic members outlined their strategy as a party meeting. Hart said the group will not try to keep work from going forward on other amendments, such as killing funds for the B-1 bomber or for nerve gas production, as long as the debate period for them is limited.

"But we will talk every day on the MX," he vowed.

In its first recorded vote on the bill in two days, the Senate agreed 47-42 to remove a restriction that would have made production of new 155-millimeter tactical (short-range) nuclear shells contingent on the willingness of at least one NATO ally to accept them on its soil.

Soviets won't make concession

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet leader Yuri Andropov said Tuesday Moscow still insists on counting the independent nuclear forces of France and Britain with that of the United States in Geneva talks to limit, medium-range missiles in Europe.

His comments came in a meeting with French Communist Party leader Georges Marchais, Texas said.

President Reagan has proposed to limit deployment in Western Europe of some of the 572 cruise and intermediate range missiles the Soviets destroy some of their existing SS-20 and shorter range rockets.

The Tass dispatch quoting Andropov was later "annulled" and French sources said members of the Marchais delegation to Moscow protested that the French Communist position on nuclear weapons was misrepresented in the Soviet report.

Step made toward AIDS cure

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Initial tests suggest a virus-fighting substance produced by white blood cells in healthy people may help combat the deadly incurable disease known as Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, the government said Tuesday.

The Department of Health and Human Services said the federal studies found the substance increases the infection-fighting activities of lymphocytes in AIDS victims — "at least in the test tube."

"Whether it will help AIDS patients is not yet known," HHS said in a statement. "Nevertheless, the research may provide a clue about the nature of the disease and how it might be treated."

Said Margaret Heckler, HHS secretary: "It's a glimmer of light. It's not the whole answer, but it is promising."

California brushfires rage on

OJAJ, Calif. (UPI) — Two major Southern California brushfires blackened about 7,500 acres of steep grassland and a third blaze destroyed two mobile homes and 10 vehicles worth $350,000, firefighters said Tuesday.

More than 1,300 firefighters were on the lines in the remote Matilija Canyon area 90 miles northwest of Los Angeles, the same area that in 1932 was the site of the largest brushfire in California history — 219,254 acres.

The Forest Service said 400 men, 100 engines and 75 firefighters were injured, mostly with heat exhaustion from the 100-plus degree temperatures. One firefighter broke a foot and another suffered a burned hand.

Salvador troops hit by rebels

SAN-SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Guerrillas killed 15 troops, wounding the heart of a government "pacification" program in eastern San Salvador province, military sources said Tuesday.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said the soldiers died in a rebel ambush Monday at the village of La Joya, 34 miles east of San Salvador. There was no contact with the rebel forces in San Salvador.

If the figure is correct, it would be the heaviest blow to the army in San Vicente province since it opened a Vietnam-style "pacification" program, to drive off guerrillas and repopulate the province a month ago.

Volcano erupts in Chile

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Defying a curfew, thousands of people erupted flaming barricades and hurled stones at tear-gas equipped police Tuesday night in the third nationwide protest this year demanding an end to military rule.

Radio reports said at least 50 people were arrested. There were no official reports of arrests or injuries, but machine-gun fire from army troops sent into the working-class areas and downtown Santiago echoed through the streets.

Chile's ruler, Gen. Augusto Pinochet, sent thousands of police to strategic points in Santiago and Concepcion and imposed a curfew banning all public gatherings between 8 p.m. and midnight to diminish the turnout of the protest.

Witnesses said military vehicles surrounded the working-class neighborhood of La Victoria and used teargas to disperse throngs of demonstrators who set fire to tires and wood in the streets.

From grim southside shanty towns to exclusive residential sectors, thousands more stood on rooftops, in gardens or at their windows and obeyed curfew calls to peacefully protest.

Lawmen die in plane crash

GALICE, Ore. (UPI) — Rescue crews Tuesday found the bodies of two law-enforcement officers killed in the crash of a small plane in the Sitka-Yukon National Forest during a surveillance mission to find marijuana fields.

From grim southside shanty towns to exclusive residential sectors, thousands more stood on rooftops, in gardens or at their windows and obeyed curfew calls to peacefully protest.

Alaska struck by earthquake

VALDEZ, Alaska (UPI) — An earthquake measuring 6.2 on the Richter scale shook southwestern Alaska Tuesday but caused no injuries or major damage, officials said.

"Everyone I talked to said they didn't need their alarm clocks this morning," said Lyle Von Bergen, a spokesman for the Alutaska Pipeline Service Co. in Valdez. "I don't know anyone who slept through it."

The quake, which hit at 6:10 a.m. Alaska time and lasted for 20 seconds, registered 5.2 on the Richter scale. Its epicenter was 30 miles west of Valdez in Prince William Sound, according to Michael Blackford, geophysicist for the Alaska Tectonic Warning Center in Palmer.

Von Bergen said there was no damage at the trans-Alaska pipeline terminal in Valdez. "We're continuing to operate as usual," he said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Initial tests suggest a virus-fighting substance produced by white blood cells in healthy people may help combat the deadly incurable disease known as Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome, the government said Tuesday.

The Department of Health and Human Services said the federal studies found the substance increases the infection-fighting activities of lymphocytes in AIDS victims — "at least in the test tube."

"the peace or traffic court, we wouldn't want evidence destroyed."

After Steinberg recounted his conversation with Fielding, police arrived at his office to take a theft report and ordered the 25 reporters who had gathered there to leave.

Steinberg said Monday he was given the videotapes Saturday by a woman claiming to be a friend of Pincus after he was asked to provide legal counsel to the defendant, Steinberg said.

Steinberg, 30, had a baseball bat as he slept last Thursday.

Miss Morgan, 30, had been a model before she became the mistress of presidential candidate Alvin R. Bloodgood, heir to a department store fortune and a founder of Diners Club.

Miss Morgan filed an $11 million palimony suit against Bloomingdale last year. She lost the suit, but claims against Bloomingdale's estate based on alleged written contracts are pending in court.

Steinberg said the tapes showed six people involved in "anatomical sex acts" and claimed they posed a "high risk to the national security of the country if released."

In addition to Bloomingdale, he identified the individuals as friends of the department store heir, who was a member of Reagan's "Kitchen Cabinet" before his death last summer at age 68.

He said the other participants were a businessman, three government appointees and an elected official.

Steinberg said he would destroy the tapes because they were not relevant to Pincus's defense but later said he would offer them to the president because of his close involvement with the participants.

Steinberg claimed he viewed the tapes Saturday with an attorney he refused to identify and someone "from the Department of Justice" whom he also refused to name.

Pincus's current attorney, Arthur Barons, said Tuesday he has not seen the tapes.

The tapes, he said, ran about an hour and appeared to have been made within the past five years.

Pincus, 33, remained jailed in lieu of $250,000 bail after his arraignment was postponed until July 25. Barons said he would eventually enter a plea of innocent by reason of insanity on Pincus's behalf.

He said it would be "in the best interests of all" if a compromise were quickly reached.

Hamilton, a likely candidate to serve as special counsel for the subcommittee, was assigned to special counsel Samuel Dash during the Watergate investigation by the Senate Select Committee on Presidential Campaign Activities.

Major White House press secretary Larry Speakes, referring to a passage that this committee has "paper chase," said Hamilton phoned Fielding in mid-afternoon but declined to elaborate. He said the two probably would talk again.

Today's weather

Hot today, cooling off by Thursday

Twin Falls - Burley-Rupert - Jerome - Fair and hot today, becoming partly cloudy and not so warm but breezy Thursday. Highs in the 80s today and in the 90s Thursday; lows in the 50s.

Camas - Prairie - Halley - Wood - River Valley - Fair and warmer today, becoming partly cloudy Thursday, with a slight chance of a thunderstorm. Not so warm and windy. Highs in the middle 80s today and in the 90s Thursday; lows in the 50s.

Northern Utah and Nevada: Mostly sunny and warm in Nevada through Thursday. Highs in the 90s; lows near 50. Mostly fair and warmer in Utah through Thursday. Highs in the 90s; lows in the 50s.

Synopsis: Sunny, hot conditions will return to the Magic Valley today, but Thursday may see some clouds and slightly cooler temperatures.

The high pressure which has diverted the storm tracks into Canada and kept the clouds and showers confined to northern Idaho will be replaced by a low pressure system on Thursday. This will spread cooler temperatures and some showers across all of Idaho, temporarily ending the hot, dry weather over northern Idaho. Conditions will improve again by Saturday, with some showers and some clouds. Wind will reach Idaho on Sunday.

Under mostly sunny skies, Tuesday afternoon, temperatures in southern Idaho were hot, ranging from the 80s in the southwest to the 90s in the upper Snake River valley. In the north, 60 to 70 degree readings predominated. The state's hot spot was Hagerman with a reading of 95 degrees. Stanley's 35 was the coolest morning low.

Showers fell over the panhandle most of the day with Muller's 36 inch of rain the most. Light rain was reported there and at Coeur d'Alene at mid-afternoon.

The pollen count at Twin Falls Tuesday was 25 per cubic meter of air.

The agricultural forecast for the Magic Valley calls for total precipitation near zero, except for about .10 inch from mountain showers Friday. Average open pan evaporation rates will range from 25 to 35 inch at most locations. Winds will be light in the mornings and from 10 to 15 mph in the afternoons.

Elsewhere in the nation Tuesday, the hottest temperature reported was 119 degrees at Palm Springs, Calif., and the coolest was 23 at Jackson, Wyo.

Germans uncover way to beat heat

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — It's the nudest summer in German history. So many people are taking their clothes off in parks and beaches that those who don't often have the feeling they are conspicuous. Nude loggers even have been sighted in West Berlin's Grunewald woods. "Nudes everywhere," commented the mass circulation newspaper Bild Tuesday. "Germany is taking off its clothes." Men, women and children are going topless and bottomless not only on public beaches like West Berlin's Lake Wannsee, but in parks like Munich's Englische Garten in the city center.

A Bild reporter in Munich estimated there were 6,000 nudists, including whole families, sunbathing there Monday. "Everyone glared at me because I had clothes on — the only one who had," he reported. Another Bild reporter said of 10,000 bathers at Berlin's Lake Wannsee beach 3,000 were nude. "It's the nudest summer I've ever seen," Gerhard Ehrke, director of tourism at the Baltic Sea resort of Scharbeutz, told the newspaper. The public nudist wave began last summer with hundreds of people in Munich, West Berlin, Hanover and other cities taking off all their clothes in public parks and beaches. This year thousands are doing it.

Nudism — nacktultur — and the belief that it is identified with health, beauty and purity long has been identified with Germany, but not until last summer was it practiced widely outside clearly defined areas. Now, for example, in the Englische Garten, Munich's equivalent of New York's Central Park or London's Hyde Park, nude people lie and sit on the grass and walk along park paths side by side with clothed families out for a picnic. It is illegal. But the authorities, as often in West Germany when confronted by mass law breaking, particularly when it professes to be progressive, take no action.

Conservationists fight Salmon hydro plans

BOISE (UPI) — A proposed method of fleecing small hydroelectric projects in the Salmon River basin came under fire Tuesday by conservation groups that say the procedure would not show total damage to fisheries. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission staff opened a four-day hearing in Boise Tuesday to discuss a possible way of dealing with small generating projects should be permitted in the central Idaho river system.

"Sixty-two projects have been planned in the area, raising concern about damage to fisheries and surrounding forest. "The Salmon River basin has the last remaining unspoiled fish habitat in Idaho," said Terry Thatcher, who represented the National Wildlife Federation and its Idaho chapter. "We want an overall plan that looks at biological needs and considers whether any power is even needed." But Lewiston developer Carl

Haywood advised the agency to move ahead on projects that present little environmental threat to avoid costly time delays. The FERC staff is proposing to evaluate projects by placing them in three categories, depending on the amount of environmental damage they might cause. The "A-B-C" proposal would tell agency commissioners whether the project would cause little environmental damage, a great deal of harm or an undetermined amount that warrants further study. "The ABC plan, in its simplest form, is a mechanism for the commission to approach these applications and to start taking action on them," FERC staff member Richard Azarzo said. But Thatcher said the agency should first develop a plan of the river system, then declare certain areas off-limits to any development.

Violence mars Orange Day

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Protestant youths rampaged through Catholic areas and Catholic rioters battled security forces Tuesday hours before thousands of British loyalists paraded to the sound of life and drum in traditional Orange Day parades. The rioting injured 35 police and civilians in the annual July 12 celebration of the victory of a Protestant rebellion, led by the Netherlands' William of Orange, over the Catholic King James II at the Battle of the Boyne in 1690. About 500 Protestant youths went on a five-hour rampage in the market town of Ballynahinch, 13 miles south of Belfast, during the "11th night" bonfire celebrations leading to the traditional Orange Day parades. Three youths were arrested as police dispersed the protest by firing plastic bullets. The rioters, throwing stones, bottles and Molotov cocktails, attacked a number of Catholic homes and smashed shop windows as terrified families barricaded themselves inside their doors, police said. Catholic youths retaliated in Londonderry, 65 miles northwest of Belfast, throwing gasoline bombs at police outside the headquarters of the Apprentice Boys of Derry, one of the province's Protestant loyalist orders. One youth accidentally set himself on fire, and one person was arrested, police said. Firefighters across the province spent the night coping with more than 100 fires started by out-of-control bonfires. In more than a score of towns in Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic, huge crowds of Protestants, wearing their traditional bright orange sashes and carrying the flags and banners of local Protestant lodges paraded behind life and drum bands.

Very few get RIFed on government jobs

Remember back when Ronald Reagan was running for president and railing on and on about the bloated federal bureaucracy and how it needed trimming? Well-meaning comments, you might have said, but can he really cut into the entrenched staffs in various federal agencies?

Well, a new study suggests that even a president with the best of intentions cannot do very much to substantially trim the federal government's staff. In Reagan's first year in office, the study found, only 6,134 persons were actually cut from the federal payroll, less than a third of 1 percent of the government work force.

Another 3,046 were downgraded in position and 3,414 resigned.

The so-called "reductions-in-force" numbers — a common government euphemism for layoffs — were published this week by the Merit Systems Protection Board, which was created in 1979 to guard against abuses in the federal civil-service system.

But apparently, the system is working well enough when it comes to protecting staff. The board concluded that the layoffs had been conducted fairly for the most part, although some personnel officers claimed they were pressured to apply layoff guidelines unfairly.

The board found those who had been laid off (RIFed?) or downgraded experienced severe morale problems, and that other people in the same offices also experienced fear of being RIFed, too.

No surprises there. Maybe they should talk with people in the rest of the nation, where "RIFs" have been common in the past two years.

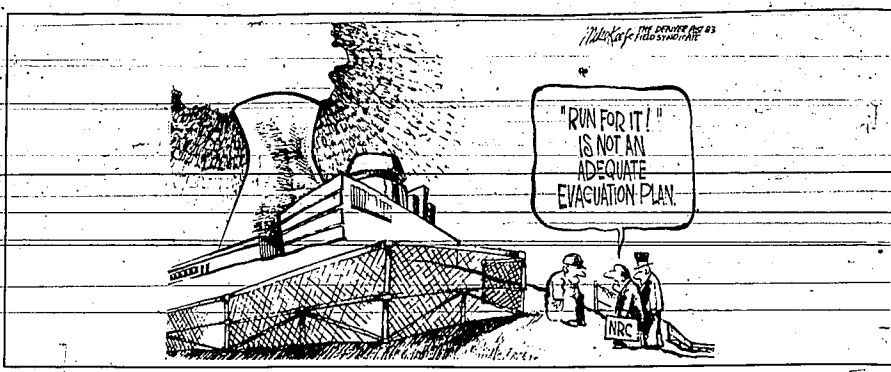

There is a lot of talk about how badly hurt the government has been in recent cutbacks, but this study doesn't exactly confirm that.

Rather, the protection devices built into federal employment seem to be working well. We would guess there are still long waiting lines for federal jobs of all kinds, where the benefits are excellent and the pay often higher.

In a government economy where beginning mail sorters make nearly $20,000 a year and less than a third of 1 percent get laid off even in a recession, no wonder the country is going broke.

There simply is no incentive to hold the line on costs, and plenty of reasons to protect staff, hedge positions by "bumping" down grades, until the person who actually loses the job is probably the clerical person in the office who's working harder than many of the higher-ups.

So much for Jefferson's wisdom that the government that governs best is the one that governs least.

Guest opinion: What future in Idaho?

Kathy Kreilkamp

Many decisions are now pending that will gravely affect the future of Idaho. It is imperative that we, the citizens of Idaho, realize that we can influence these decisions and thus, determine our future. The sale of public lands, water rights and new projects at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory (INEL) are some issues that will affect how we live our lives in the coming years.

One major area of concern is the location of a weapons material production reactor, the NPR, at the INEL. Senator McClure, chairman of the committee to determine the location of NPR, has stated that Idaho has a 50/50 chance of being chosen.

Aside from the remoteness of this site, always an advantage for the production of radioactive materials, there are three other major selling points for the NPR: the creation of jobs for Idaho, the production of low-cost electricity as a by-product of the reactor, and the participation by Idahoans, as patriotic citizens, to the defense of our nation. On the surface these advantages could lead us to believe that the NPR is the best thing that could happen to Idaho. But let us take a closer look.

If it is true, the NPR will create jobs. It is predicted that there will be 3,000 construction jobs and 800-1,000 technical jobs when it is completed. However, according to Department of Labor statistics, $1 billion invested in civilian construction would create 100,072 jobs whereas a $1 billion investment in the construction of this reactor will create 1,000 jobs.

Now some might say that whatever benefits Idaho economically should be pursued, 1,000 jobs are better than none. However, these economic benefits are far outweighed by the costs. Since the estimated 3,000 construction jobs are short term and will attract many workers from outside the state and there will be 3,000 workers on Idaho unemployment and in need of social services once the reactor is completed. The remaining jobs will be for skilled nuclear technicians and therefore will mostly again be out of state workers. It can easily be seen that the 4,000 jobs created by the NPR will not actually employ 4,000 Idahoans and will leave us with a staggering social services burden.

The second advantage, the production of low-cost electricity, is on the face of it attractive to everyone. Idaho Power has stated they would consider purchasing the electricity if there is a need for it. Idaho Power is not using all the water currently available to them for the production of hydroelectric power and energy usage is not expected to increase. We must be careful to assess our future electrical needs accurately. Recently, a painful lesson was learned by residents of the Northwest. Unrealistically high projections of future energy usage were used to promote the construction of nuclear reactors in Washington and resulted in the collapse of the WPSS project. Unexpected costs and risks are a trademark of nuclear power industry.

The NPR will need 50,000 acre feet of water annually to operate. This water would be taken from an already over-taxed water supply so necessary to irrigate our farmlands. Much of the water used for farming in Southern Idaho comes from the Snake River Aquifer, one of the world's largest natural aquifers. The INEL site is located directly over this aquifer. In 1974 and again in 1979 Governor's Task Forces found the INEL site inadequate for the storage of nuclear wastes and called for a halt to the injection of radioactive materials into the aquifer. The NPR would produce more wastes to be stored at the site.

The existing breeder reactor in Savannah River, S.C., is now plagued with lawsuits. These lawsuits stem from radioactive elements introduced into the environment by the reactor and waste polluting the river. There has been an increase in illness reported as well as other adverse effects. Here too, we can learn from the experiences of people in other regions.

In an NPR Price Site Comparison Study, the NPR if located in Idaho would cost substantially more than if located at the other two sites under consideration. Initial costs would amount to an extra $3 billion. The taxpayer throughout the country will pay this added expense.

The third selling point for the NPR is the participation of Idaho in our national defense. Senator McClure and others have deemed it our patriotic duty to contribute to the production of nuclear weapons. This implies that our only patriotic option is to continue the nuclear arms race. There are those in our government who have labeled supporters of the nuclear freeze immoral and communist backed. This statement was made knowing that many churches support the freeze.

In an NPR Price Site Comparison Study, the NPR including the Catholic Council of Bishops. It is interesting that such statements are made by those governing a country founded on freedom. One of these freedoms is to question our government's policies; this ensure that one administration cannot dictate morality or ignore the will of the people.

As physicist Albert Einstein has said, "The splitting of the atom changed everything save our mode of thinking and thus we drift towards unparalleled catastrophe." Perhaps patriotism lies not in striving to perpetuate old ways in a new world, but in working together as citizens of a free country to find solutions that will ensure conscientious use of technology and the preservation of life on this planet. Defense can be defined many ways, it is our way of thinking that limits the ways which we can protect ourselves. It is not defense that threatens life on this planet, but nuclear weapons.

The function of this New Production Reactor is to produce tritium and plutonium for nuclear weapons. Considering the recent vote in the House of Representatives supporting a nuclear freeze and the administration's repeated assurances that we are striving for a reduction in the arms race, we have to wonder about the need for this reactor.

Last month the House Armed Services Committee reduced the funds for studying the NPR. However, the Department of Energy still needs confidence that they will get the needed funding in the fall. This issue could go either way, it can influence the decision and hold our elected representatives accountable for how our tax dollars are spent.

There are two other projects currently proposed for the INEL: the Interim Away from Reactor Storage plan and a Fusion Reactor. Many of the same pros and cons apply to these projects. The Interim Storage plan would increase the transportation of radioactive materials on our highways and the amount of wastes stored over our aquifer. By 1986, the federal government hopes to no longer be involved in the storage of commercial radioactive wastes. Each state, or groups of states forming compacts, will be responsible for their own wastes. Projects such as the Interim Away from Reactor Storage will open the door for states like Idaho to become radioactive garbage dumps.

Many issues that face us today require our close examination — particularly nuclear issues. Radioactivity is not biodegradable. What we decide regarding these issues will not affect Idaho's future for literally thousands of years. We must set standards and guidelines for future development in our state. A highly industrialized state must be as concerned about the quality of the water, air and soil as does a state whose economic base is agricultural and whose citizens enjoy one of the finest recreation areas in the country.

The choice is yours. What kind of Idaho do you want for yourself and future generations.

Letters/Why not combine Western Days with a big bang on July 4?

Misses the fireworks

Dear Mayor and City Council Members: I've been wanting to write this letter since the last Fourth of July, so better do it now before another slip by. I'm sure there are many who feel as I, who miss the July 4 fireworks display. If I remember right, I read in the paper that it cost about $5,000, a cost the city could no longer justify. I'm sure there are many more urgent uses for our tax dollars. However, July 4 is not a day to be neglected. I think it's a shame that a community this size does not have some sort of a celebration. So many people from Twin that I've talked to were planning on going to one of the surrounding areas. I'm sure they'd all support a local celebration, which would also promote a sense of community. What about asking everyone to consider adding to their monthly water bill a voluntary donation of $1, or whatever they felt they could afford? I imagine there are about 5,000 families on the city water system, so it's possible you'd collect enough in a month. Let the weekly news magazines get in the act, whether it be $1,000 or $15,000, will be spent on next July 4 fireworks display. Then print it in the paper each month how much you have to date. To charge admission would be a hassle. There would be no way of knowing how much money would be taken in. Also, there may be families who couldn't afford admission, or who'd rather not show up in their yards. Someone may have a better idea on how to handle the donations. Also, another thought: What about scheduling the Western Days to coincide with the Fourth? What a celebration that would be, climaxed by a great fireworks display. I realize, of course, that you have many, many more important matters to consider, but please give this some thought and maybe ask the community for any other suggestions. You know — all work and no play, etc., etc. Thanks for listening. GRACE COASSOLO Twin Falls Bliss had great rodeo Congratulations, Bliss, on your 100 years. Hats off to the Bliss rodeo committee and participants. The greatest little rodeo in the West, it was. Having a granddaughter who had never seen a rodeo, it really left us both impressed.

Six to 10 children, from 6 to 10 years of age, came out riding calves. The puppy, kitten, chicken, duck and rabbit scramble for the youngsters was hilarious. That could have been on TV. We were so close to nature that a wild bunny wandered into the arena and couldn't get out. The adult riders and barrel-racers were sellout. News is a better wrapping material than multiple polls

One of the dreadful burdens contrived by the people who publish daily newspapers is the necessity of publishing one every day. Advertisers, bless their benevolent hearts, expect it. There are people who can't enjoy their morning coffee without a paper. And fishermen need something in which to wrap the catch. The vital necessity of putting out something every day containing at least something in the guise of news means that when there isn't much going on, something must be created. There is, of course, always something going on somewhere. Israel or Lebanon can always be used for a front page. When the automobile accidents get into the news columns of the dailies, however, you know it's a slow day. There have been some slow days lately. How much ink would have been dribbled over the burning issue of Reagan's campaign's having obtained papers prepared for the Carter campaign over the first 10 days of this month if anything had been happening? Absent a larynx, the story is right up there with the population explosion of swans on the Peconic River. Surely, President Reagan would like to be able to turn election losses on the expense accounts of some of the satirist reporters and editorial writers who keep preaching about ethics. None of the self-created stories that the press indulges in is worse or more pervasive then the poll. Everything you could read this past weekend had a poll in it. The New York Times did a poll with CBS News. Radio stations must put something out everyday, too — though you can't wrap fish in it. Long Island's Newday did a poll with an outfit called Social Data Analysis, Inc. Even the weekly news magazines get in the act. There is a poll in Time and a poll in Newsweek. My eyes glaze over when the New York Times tells me that 82 percent of the male Republican respondents think Reagan should be the Republican candidate for president in 1984, but only 61 percent of Republican women think so. The respondents, if you want a truly glaring statistic, were 61 percent of 1,365 adults. The Newday poll was not as specific as it was deceptive. It is interesting to read that of the 1,100 U.S. adults who made this news, only 36 percent could identify George Schultz as our secretary of state and only 21 percent could place Raymond Donovan as secretary of labor.

The news was that style and personality are more important than issues or competence in determining how people feel about Ronald Reagan. That is democracy. It is also depressing. Seventy percent had a "favorable" or "very favorable" opinion of the man. That's nice. This was better than Time gave him. On a scale of one to 10, 54 percent of 1,007 respondents gave Reagan a six or better. Newsweek says 61 percent of U.S. citizens think Reagan's campaign staff did wrong in 1980 in having those documents from the Carter White House. Polls have become a national disease. Newspapers and news magazines use them to create news in the same manner politicians use them to create images. Oh, for the good old days when a politician said what he really thought and found out on Election Day whether the people agreed with him. Today, a politician takes a poll to find out what the people think and then says he thinks so, too. Are the people for lower taxes? So is he. Are they for higher defense spending? He is for higher defense spending. Are they for balancing the budget? So is he. The fact that you can't do all three of these simultaneously is irrelevant for it is style and not substance that matters. The poll tells us so. We expect this sort of stuff from politicians, for they must try to get elected. From newspapers, we expect a higher standard. They don't have to get elected, they just have

Pentagon official vows to end waste

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Deputy Defense Secretary Paul Thayer pledged Tuesday to fire Pentagon officials if necessary to cut waste in military spending and raised the "ultimate threat" of shutting off some defense contractors.

Thayer, a former chairman of the LTV Aerospace Corp., acknowledged there is "waste and abuse" in Pentagon but said he is not "robbing it out of the vest."

Thayer said he will take time because of "a buildup of bad practices, or bad decisions made, starting a decade or more ago."

1982 in the purchase of aircraft spare parts by the Air Force and the Navy.

Prices for nearly 20 percent of the 15,000 spare parts checked by the Pentagon inspector general's office soared 500 percent or more in those three years, it said. The cost of spare parts in fiscal 1982 alone was $1.2 billion, the report said.

As one example, the report — distributed by the Project on Military Procurement, which is critical of Pentagon spending — said Pratt and Whitney Corp. of Hartford, Conn., charged $17.50 each for bolts that were projected to cost 67 cents.

"I expect to follow up. Corrective action, where indicated, is going to be taken."

Without being specific, Thayer said Pratt and Whitney, a division of United Technologies Corp., not get off "scot-free. Our ultimate threat is to stop doing business with these people. I'm certain there will be certain penalties."

He said he would act firmly against Pentagon officials found to be responsible for waste in spare parts buying.

"I can assure you that if our people are responsible for gross negligence, we'll certainly take action to stop this," he said. "I'm not trying to relieve the Air Force from responsibility in this."

"It appears that there has been some negligence and that corrective action should be fast and immediate," Thayer said, noting he had not read

EPA chief employed friends

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The former chief of the Environmental Protection Agency's Denver regional office created jobs for 10 of his friends and political associates in the area, including a neighbor and an employee of his amusement park, EPA investigators reported Tuesday.

Federal personnel practices may have been short-circuited in some of the hirings by former regional chief Steven Durham and several of those given jobs appear to have lacked proper qualifications, the agency's inspector general's office concluded.

Durham was among 21 political appointees, including Administrator Anne Burford, to resign as a result of the agency's allegations of EPA mismanagement and cozy ties to industry. He had been accused of reversing staff recommendations on the environmental impacts of federal actions and stalling toxic waste cleanups.

In a letter to Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., discussing results of the inspector general's inquiry into his hiring activities, EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus said he has asked the new Denver regional chief, John Welles, to review "EPA's continued need" for the positions Durham created.

Eight of the 10 officials still work for EPA.

According to the report, a copy of which was obtained by United Press International, an official of the Office of Personnel Management concluded Durham may have violated or stretched to the limits federal hiring regulations in making some of the appointments.

Dioxin at public pool

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — Traces of dioxin were discovered on a concrete strip surrounding a community swimming pool at a mill site from a former Agent Orange manufacturing plant in Newark, state and federal officials said Tuesday.

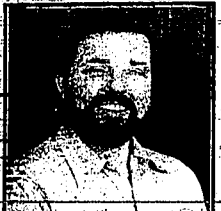

Environmental Commissioner Robert Hughey said the Hayes Park Pool, closed Sunday because of a filter malfunction, would not reopen until additional tests showed the highly toxic chemical was removed.

Hughey and Richard Dewling, deputy regional director for the Environmental Protection Agency, said the pool was closed as a precautionary measure.

Water samples from the pool turned blue as evidence of the chemical.

The pool is located a half-mile from the former Diamond Alkali Co. plant, where Agent Orange was manufactured from 1966 to 1968 for the U.S. government.

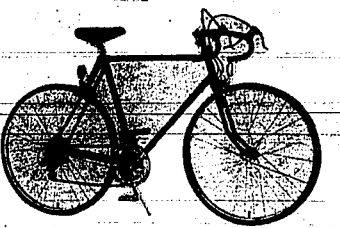

The company, Diamond Shamrock Corp. of Dallas, last month, reading of between 100 and 50,000 parts of dioxin per billion were discovered at the plant.

Those about to be knighted by the Queen of England traditionally kneel on a small wooden padded piece of furniture called a kneeling stool. Queen Elizabeth II has one such on the Royal Yacht Britannia just in case she wants to knight somebody on the high seas.

Q. You said Ronald Reagan put together a nightclub act that bombed in a Las Vegas casino. How has Bob Hope fared in that situation?

A. Hope hasn't played a casino. He once was quoted as saying he thought it would be bad for his image, and nothing in the record suggests that what happened to Reagan has changed Hope's mind.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Deplete a number of unexpected conditions to thwart some of your progress. You have the opportunity now through your own perseverance to succeed.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) It is rather slow going in the morning but later you can work at double speed and accurately get good results.

Taurus (Apr. 20 to May 20) You find it hard to decide how best to proceed but confusion soon lifts and your special aptitudes work famously for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) The home situation is rather muddled but soon everything straightens out and harmony is reached.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) - You get a "puzzling" letter or communique in the morning, but you figure the matter out to your satisfaction.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Doublecheck any expenditures and then you can do very nicely, where other monetary matters are concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can only make progress if you are sure what it is you want from others and then you can proceed in a positive fashion.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Plan just how to gain some cherished wish - then you can proceed - but with caution. Be patient with a loved one.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A higher-up may want to change your modus operandi, so go along with it without complaint. This gains you more prestige.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Some new venture could be the means through which you can advance more quickly, provided you are well-prepared.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Find a better way of handling your obligations and put into practice immediately. Show more devotion to kin.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You may find it hard to gain the cooperation of an associate in the morning but later can do so easily. Put that plan to work.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) The work you do today can be greatly appreciated by higher-ups. Be very cooperative with fellow workers.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TO DAY... he or she will understand the behind-the-scenes that will further your valuable capability. Then your progeny will know how to make it worthwhile and whether or not it is worthwhile.

She'll promote 'naturalness' for year

LORRAINE DOWNES
New Miss Universe

By TIM BRYANT
United Press International

ST. LOUIS — Lorraine Downes, reclining on a huge bed and sipping champagne, said Tuesday she will use her year's reign as Miss Universe to crusade for "naturalness" and health.

Miss Downes, who Monday night was elevated from Miss New Zealand to the beauty crown, said she had only 2 1/2 hours sleep before reporters and television cameramen crowded into her sumptuous bedroom at the Chase-Park Plaza Hotel.

"I finally got to sleep at four o'clock this morning," said Miss Downes, her glittering crown firmly attached to her blonde hair.

Her breakfast of ham, eggs, muffins and strawberries served on a silver tray went untouched. However, the 19-year-old model, basking in the glare of the television lights, took a tiny drink of champagne.

"I am just so excited about all the things I'll have the chance to be doing," said Miss Downes, who wore a pink-dressing gown and her blue-and-white "Miss Universe" sash.

Miss Downes, one of three daughters of a retired plumbing contractor, will be awarded $50,000 in prizes, including $30,000 cash, use of New York City apartment, a limousine and a plane. In return, she will be required to keep up a busy schedule of personal appearances for "Miss Universe Inc.," the pageant's owner.

"The main thing I want to promote is naturalness and health," she said, adding she believes a talent competition should not be added to the annual pageant.

"Miss Universe is really beauty inside," she said. "She's going to be meeting and speaking with people."

Miss Downes, 5-foot-8 1/2, 110 pounds, and a native of Auckland, told the invited reporters she hopes being

Miss Universe will boost her modeling career.

"My modeling is my love," said said, smiling broadly. "My No. 1 thing is my modeling."

"I believe in being very natural, happy and healthy," she said.

The hazel-eyed beauty edged out Miss USA, Julie Hayek, 22, a senior at UCLA, who was named first runner-up.

Miss Ireland, Roberta Brown.

Miss Downes said her boyfriend in New Zealand is "very happy for me."

She was unaware of the approximately 100 protestors who marched outside Kiel Auditorium, where the pageant was conducted and beamed to a worldwide television audience.

The demonstrators said the annual event exploits women.

"As far as women's lib is concerned, everybody is free to have their own opinion," she said. "I'm proud to be a woman."

Schoolgirl visits site of '45 Yalta conference

YALTA, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Samantha Smith, the U.S. schoolgirl visiting the Soviet Union at the invitation of President Yuri Andropov, Tuesday visited the site where Allied leaders met at the end of World War II.

After visiting the Yalta conference site, Samantha and her parents, Jane and Arthur Smith, left today for a three-day tour of Leningrad where they were to tour the Winter Palace, the Hermitage and war memorials.

The Smiths will return to Moscow Saturday. No definite schedule has been set, but Samantha was expected to meet with Andropov before she leaves for home next week.

The 11-year-old schoolgirl from Manchester, Maine, wrote to Andropov earlier this year, saying she was worried about the possibility of nuclear war.

She asked if the Soviet Union wanted to start a war and Andropov responded by inviting her to visit and see what Soviet people are really like.

In Washington, Malcolm Toon, ambassador to Moscow from 1978 to 1979, said Andropov's invitation was designed to picture the Soviets as promoters of peace who cannot be blamed for world strife.

He said the Soviets were "exploiting" Samantha with "the possible result that we could end up in a confrontation that nobody wants."

On her last day at Artek, a prestigious camp for young pioneers, Samantha and 10 of her new Soviet girlfriends visited Lydiya Palace, site of the 1945 Yalta conference among President Franklin D.

Roosevelt, Prime Minister Winston Churchill of Britain and Soviet Premier Josef Stalin.

Samantha and her friends received a police escort to the white stone palace overlooking the Black Sea. Questions were asked not to follow or report her. Soviet officials said her parents requested that she receive more privacy.

'Ordinary thief' jailed 118th time

BOSTON (UPI) — Peter J. DiNatale describes himself as "an ordinary thief trying to make a buck."

But his doubts he's doing too well.

The 71-year-old man has been arrested for the 118th time in his 65-year criminal career, this time in connection with the burglary of a Wellesley apartment.

DiNatale, pleaded innocent to the charges Monday in Dedham District Court, put up $1,000 cash bail, and was ordered to reappear July 27.

He said his first arrest was at age 6, when he tried to derail a train by placing objects on the tracks in South Boston, where he grew up.

"I'm just an ordinary thief trying to make a buck," DiNatale told the Boston Globe an interview two months ago. "I'm just a two-bit, lousy, penny ante common thief."

Pilot facing check charge

NEW WINDSOR, N.Y. (UPI) — Ultralight airplane pilot Joe Tong, who flew his 250-pound craft cross-country in record time, has been charged with being a fugitive from justice and has been remanded to Orange County Jail, police said.

New Windsor police said Tong was wanted in Grand Rapids, Minn., on a felony theft by check charge. Tong allegedly wrote a bad check for $1,700 in Minnesota, police said.

Tong is a 34-year-old resident of Minnesota, a 3,000-mile trip a record 18 days. Ultralight planes are similar to hang gliders except the planes have motors and flying controls.

Tong was arrested at 4 p.m. Monday at Stewart Airport as he was about to board a plane home to Lovell, Kan.

Police said Tong will remain in jail pending extradition proceedings.

Country singer still hospitalized

SEATTLE (UPI) — Country music star Patsy Cline remained in the intensive care unit at Seattle's Virginia Mason Hospital Tuesday, recovering from a heart attack last week during his tour of Canada and the northwestern United States.

"He seems to be getting better. His general condition has gradually improved since he arrived," said Clarence Bloomdahl, nursing supervisor at the hospital, where Hixley was in intensive care.

The 37-year-old entertainer suffered the attack Friday. Hixley underwent coronary bypass surgery in 1977.

Idaho's record wheat yield helps keep harvest level up

By SONJA HILLGREN
United Press International

Idaho's record wheat yield helped keep harvest level up, a national effort to reduce grain production. Record yields put this year's wheat crop at 1.34 billion bushels.

That is just 8 percent less than last year's record, the Agriculture Department said Tuesday.

The latest estimate, based on a survey conducted at the first of this month, was 3 percent more than last month's estimate.

A key reason for the relatively large winter wheat crop, in light of the largest acreage diversion in history, was a record national average yield, partially offsetting an 18 percent decline in expected harvested acreage. The department's crop reporting

Board said the national average wheat yield would be 40.7 bushels per acre, up 4.6 bushels from last year and 3.8 bushels higher than the previous record set in 1973. Last month's estimate was 40.1 bushels per acre.

Record yields are expected in Kansas, Colorado, Idaho, Ohio, Oregon, South Dakota, Texas and Washington.

The Kansas crop was expected to be 446-million bushels, down from 462 million bushels last year.

Nationwide, harvested acreage was estimated at 47.8 million acres.

Officials continue to be optimistic that the payment-in-kind acreage reduction program will reduce large stocks of grain, especially for spring-planted crops. The first major estimates of key spring-planted crops — corn, soybeans, cotton, sorghum and spring wheat — will be issued next month. Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested in spring and summer. It makes up about three-fourths of the nation's wheat crop. The remainder is planted in the spring.

The oats crop was estimated at 519 million bushels, a 16 percent decline from last year. A 14 percent decline in acreage was accompanied by a 1 percent decline in yield to 57.4 bushels per acre.

The department said the barley crop, however, would be a record 560 million bushels, up 7 percent from last year. Acreage for harvest was up 9 percent and average yield, estimated at 56.5 bushels per acre, was for the first time less than last year's record.

Kaufman sparks big selloff

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Dow Jones average plunged below the 1,200 level Tuesday in a stock market selloff triggered by economist Henry Kaufman's statement that interest rates are moving higher.

But light trading indicated "institutional buyers took the day off," said Monte Gordon, Dreyfus Corp. vice president. "Everytime Wall Street hears sounds that interest rates are going higher, the market retreats in confusion."

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 8.31 Monday, skidded 17.62 to 1,198.52, the worst slide since a 20.34 drop June 28. It put the DJIA at its lowest level since 1,196.11 on June 10.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat and oats were lower, corn mixed but mostly higher and soybeans rose at the close Tuesday on the Chicago Board of Trade. Wheat was off 1/2 cent, corn off 1/4 to 3/4 cent, oats off 1/4 cent and soybeans up 1/4 to 1/2 cent. Volume was extremely heavy. Several price leaders and commission houses bought more than 10 million bushels of corn each, floor traders were active buyers of soybeans as well.

Wheat futures continued hot dry weather also helped boost prices, especially corn, since much of the crop is in a critical stage of development. The July-December corn spread closed at 40 cents, down from 41 cents the close last Friday. Wheat futures drifted lower with little news to attract attention. The Agriculture Department was scheduled to release its estimate of winter wheat production after the market closed.

State, Idaho Power near Swan Falls accord

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Relief may be on the way for some 5,000 of the 7,500 Snake River water users whose water rights were challenged by a November Idaho Supreme Court ruling.

The court ruled that the Idaho Power Co. Swan Falls hydroelectric plant has an undisputed right to use 6,400 cubic feet of Snake River water per second during the peak summer irrigation season.

To protect its Swan Falls water rights, Idaho Power then filed a lawsuit on March 29 against all irrigators who presently are diverting Snake River basin waters upstream from the dam.

But now, Idaho Power and state Department of Water officials report they are close to reaching an agreement under which some 5,000 of the irrigators will be dropped from the lawsuit.

The governor was authorized this spring by the Legislature to enter into such an agreement.

"We've pretty much agreed on all the issues, and now it is a matter of finalizing the details in a draft agreement," says state Water Department official Norm Young.

Idaho Power's Jim Taney predicts that a final preliminary agreement will be approved within two weeks. This agreement, he says, then will be distributed to various state agencies and the public for comment before its final adoption.

Taney reports that Idaho Power and state officials have met three or four times over the past few months to iron out details of the agreement.

According to Taney, one point of debate has focused upon the definition of "substantial investment," which would allow a water user to be dropped from the suit.

Taney says this definition will be set, but it probably will be set at both a fixed-dollar amount or half the total development cost of a given project.

The agreement will allow users with valid, developed water rights filed prior to the November Supreme Court decision to be dropped from the suit. It also will allow some would-be water users who already have made substantial investments in irrigation pumps and wells to be dropped from the suit.

However, some 2,200 irrigators and other water users will continue to be singled out in the Idaho Power lawsuit. These users started using water or filed water claims after last year's Supreme Court decision.

In return for dropping the irrigators from the suit, Taney says Idaho Power expects the state to protect the company from all complaints from its customers to the Public Utilities Commission that the agreement might trigger.

Idaho Power lawyers fear that without this protection, the company could find itself in legal tangles for sacrificing its low-cost, power-generating water rights to the 5,000 irrigators.

However, Sen. Laird Noh, R-Idemerey, reports that another category of water users also will remain liable to the legal actions launched by Idaho Power. These users include irrigators and ranchers who tapped Snake River basin waters after a March 1963 state law went into effect, which required water development permits.

According to Noh, these users have been operating illegally. And when they attempt to register their water rights under a new state law, they may find these rights challenged by Idaho Power lawyers.

Laird says this problem was discussed in a June 30 legislative committee meeting attended by Idaho Power lawyers. The lawyers, he says, indicated that "they have little sympathy for those people who have been using water for all that time, contrary to Idaho law."

Laird says it is still unknown how many water users fall into this category. However, he says that some of his own water rights failed to receive the required permits.

Tom Nelson, a Twin Falls attorney who is representing Idaho Power in its negotiations with the state, confirmed Tuesday that the company presently is contemplating taking legal action against water users who have been operating without the required permits.

CSI class teaches inventory control

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ten Magic Valley farm workers are getting the chance to further their occupational horizons thanks to a new, parts-inventory management program at the College of Southern Idaho.

After students finish the 16-week course, they will be able to work in an auto- or agricultural implement-parts department, at an electrical or construction supply house or other businesses where inventory management skills are necessary.

Although many vocational schools in the state offer parts-inventory programs, the CSI program is different because it teaches students to use a computerized accounting system, says Monte Overacre, the instructor.

Overacre's students also are learning the old paper and pencil method — in case they get a job with a company that has not converted to computers, Overacre says. And Overacre makes a special point of warning students about potential problem spots when a business makes the switch from index cards to floppy disks.

About 40 percent of all automotive parts dealers currently are using computers, Overacre says. He expects all of them to convert by 1985.

A small auto-parts store used to carry 10,000 different types of parts, Overacre says. It now handles close to 20,000 different items. And a wholesaler handles up to 80,000 lines, he says.

A properly managed inventory can increase a store's gross profits by 10 percent to 20 percent, Overacre says.

And Overacre knows how critical an inventory program can be to the success of an organization. As a logistics officer with the Army in Korea, he had to keep the planes flying even if it meant resorting to "midnight requisitions."

Overacre holds a bachelor's degree from Southern Illinois University in occupational education.

The parts-inventory program is sponsored by a $180,000 grant from the Idaho Migrant Council, and it will be continued in September if the council deems it successful, Overacre says. The program was designed to retrain agricultural workers for more highly skilled jobs.

CSI discontinued a non-computerized over-the-counter parts-sales program in May. That program was open to all students.

In addition to teaching students how to fill up the right program, Overacre stresses customer relations. About 45 percent of all auto-parts customers are walk-ins, Overacre says. How they are treated will determine the success of a business, he says.

If a student masters the art of selling, he or she can move up from an assistant's job to manage the department, Overacre says. Working as a manufacturer's representative is also a way to advance. Once a person succeeds in outside sales, the possibilities for promotion are endless, he says.

To give students a better idea of what it's like to run a parts department, they take turns acting the part of the store manager, customer, shipper and computer clerk.

The manager directs the class that day and asks Overacre for advice only if there is a "really big problem," says Eva Cobeay, a student in the class.

In about two weeks, the students will move from the classroom to local businesses for five weeks of cooperative training. They will work as regular paid employees, and the business is free to hire them permanently, Overacre says.

Many area businesses have expressed interest in the program, Overacre says. The businesses involved in the co-op work are Gem Equipment, Ace-Hansen Chevrolet, Wolferton International, Tri-County Equipment, Motor Meye, Step-Ken Auto Parts, Burks Tractor and Dick Dey Motors.

Overacre is hoping that the program will continue to meet the needs of area businesses, and that it will be adopted as a permanent part of the CSI vocational curriculum.

Grants aimed at economy

Public works projects delayed

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Economic development will continue to be the focal point for the state's community development block grant program in the coming year.

But if the economy improves, there is a good chance some emphasis could be shifted in subsequent years to rebuilding public works, the so-called "infrastructure."

With these comments, Art Tackett, the director of the Idaho community block grant program, opened a briefing for area government officials Tuesday morning at Twin Falls City Hall.

The purpose of the briefing was to explain the procedures that city and county officials must go through to apply for grants in the 1984 "go-round" of funding.

The initial deadline for those applications is Sept. 15.

Community block grant money for small cities and counties originates with the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Among other things, it has been used in past years to renovate and weatherize housing, rebuild blighted areas and provide expanded economic opportunity.

The city of Twin Falls received $350,000 this year as part of a three-year $3.5 million grant to help build the new Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce industrial park.

Since 1981, responsibility for the administration of much of the program has been shifted to the states. Block grants for all cities and counties in Idaho except the city of Boise now are handled by the state Division of Economic and Community Affairs.

And in 1984, Tackett predicts that there will be approximately $7 million to divide between competing city and county projects. Two percent of the money will be retained by the state for administrative purposes.

Another 10 percent will be held in reserve for "imminent-threat" grants. These go to cities and counties that have no available means for funding emergency improvements.

The remaining money will be split evenly between one-year and multi-year grants. All grants are distributed on the basis of a rating system, under which cities and counties score points for various features of their projects.

Since the state took over the program, Tackett says the grants have gone to jurisdictions representing approximately 55 percent of Idaho's urban population other than Boise, which receives its block grant money direct from the federal government.

Most cities the size of Twin Falls and Burley have received some funding, he says.

In Idaho, smaller cities, of roughly 2,000 population, have not received much benefit from the program yet, he says. However, Tackett says it is critical that the program begin reaching these smaller cities in coming years.

Valley gets money to boost tourism

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

IDaho Falls — Tourists, travel agents and conventioners will get Magic Valley's message during the next six months, courtesy of $89,730 in state money.

The Magic Valley Tourism boosters have been given $89,730 to create slick slide shows, wine and dine travel writers, entice bus tours and distribute plenty of brochures describing the virtues of this area's recreation.

However, the Burley Chamber of Commerce has withdrawn its $7,400 application, and the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce had its proposed $6,000 display booth at the Perrine Memorial Bridge delayed because the state agency wants to devise a statewide strategy for erecting tourist information signs.

The Idaho Travel Committee gives out funds from the state's 2 percent tax on hotel and motel rooms and campgrounds twice a year. On Tuesday, it disbursed $358,311 worth of tourism promotion money for 19 projects. Groups from the state's six tourism regions had requested $436,132.

The state committee has put a hold on a number of attempts to erect roadside signs that would steer tourists to various attractions.

"Every city wants signs," said vice chairman Mike Smith of Kooskia after the two-day session. "We have to get a guideline that can be applied to the entire state. That way, when we know we have a master plan, we'll be able to fund these signs."

The state plans to devise the plan by its January meeting, Smith said.

As a guideline that can be applied to a 12-mile series of signs along the interstate, planned by the Burley Chamber of Commerce, and a multi-sided "display booth" at the Perrine Bridge overlook, planned by the Twin Falls Chamber.

During the session, Mayor Mike Dolton lobbied vociferously for the block, but his plea wound up on the losing end of a 3-2 vote by the state council. However, Smith said later that the Twin Falls booth could become the model for a number of similar displays in Idaho.

"I feel proud of the fact that they want to use ours as an example," Dolton said. "But I'm still slightly disappointed they didn't use it as more of an example and fund it" in time for the last half of the summer tourism season.

However, the Twin Falls group did get some money requested for the display when the state committee restored $4,000 to develop a sophisticated slide show, which will be used to attract convention groups and tourists. The money had been cut by the local travel committee.

The Magic Valley grants, totaling $83,730, approved Tuesday will go to:

- The Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce — $18,450 for the slide show, new brochures and a mailing campaign, Dolton says.
- The Magicland Regional Travel Committee — $32,100 for its travel show booth; promotion of late summer

Transwestern proposes smaller hangar

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Transwestern Airlines apparently has scaled down an earlier version of a proposed new hangar it plans to build at the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport.

Earlier this year, the Logan, Utah-based carrier received tentative approval from the airport advisory board for a proposed 13,000-square-foot hangar. The building would have contained room to maintain three airplanes, an office and a sleeping area for pilots.

About a week ago, the airport commission learned that the airline had approached John Reeder, of Reeder Flying Service of Twin Falls, to build a 4,900-square-foot structure, instead of the larger one. Reeder told the commission at its Monday meeting Tuesday that the airline has offered him a five-year lease on the building, with an option for another five years.

The hangar would be located east of the fire station at the airport.

Reeder would not say how much the building would cost or when he would begin construction.

Transwestern Airlines officials were not available for comment Tuesday on the building change.

As the proposal under Reeder will have to present the city engineer with detailed building plans. After reviewing the plans, the airport board would recommend its approval or rejection to Twin Falls City Council and the Twin Falls County commissioners, said Dick Shotwell, the board chairman.

The earlier proposal never made it to the city engineer stage, he said.

"There was no need Tuesday for the board to approve the new proposal, because it already had given its blessing to the earlier request," Shotwell said. The latest plan is just a

Firm asks for economic development bonds

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The board of the new county corporation that will issue tax-exempt industrial revenue bonds held an organizational meeting Tuesday — and received its first request for the bonds from a Michigan commodities company.

The Economic Development Corp. of Twin Falls was established last month by the county commissioning said. The company also plans to extend its brokerage business to processing beans.

The state law that allows for industrial revenue bonds, in essence, permits a local government to extend its tax-exempt status to bonds that are sold to finance private projects.

The lower interest rates that these bonds carry are supposed to encourage business, and the government entity is not to be liable for any bond sales.

The Michigan company has paid $100 to obtain its application forms. When it, or any other firm, submits an application, it will cost $2,500. And another $2,500 will have to be paid before the bonds are issued — upon the approval of the board and after a public hearing is held on the request, Lanting said.

The firm will fund the administration of the corporation. Also, the fees will discourage frivolous applications, Lanting said.

During the review, the board will

Phone company lowers request

By ELLEN MARKS
United Press International

BOISE — Continental Telephone Co. of the West has agreed to cut its $1.7 million rate increase request by about $150,000 to speed the hearing process before the Idaho Public Utilities Commission; utility officials say.

The phone company, which serves numerous small towns in Idaho, including Fairfield and Carey, explained the changes in its rate-increase request during a hearing Tuesday.

The utility's decision to eliminate certain expenses from its request will mean a slight drop in its proposal to raise rates by an overall 27 percent.

The company also has requested increases of between 79 percent and 126 percent in its one-party residential service rates and a hike in pay-telephone-calls from 10-cents to a quarter.

The commissioners already have granted 11.5 percent of the utility's request, under orders by the Federal Communications Commission.

Utility officials said in a written statement that they agree with certain PUC staff recommendations "in an effort to minimize the issues, which we hopefully expect the hearing process and reduce the cost of the proceeding to the company and the Idaho PUC."

But company officials say they have not revised their request for a 12.5 percent overall rate of return, up from the current 10.5 percent.

The PUC staff has recommended that the rate of return be held at about the same level.

Another unresolved issue is the utility's proposal to charge customers for $385,295 in uncompleted projects.

The PUC staff has recommended that commissioners not pass those projects on to consumers until the projects actually are being used.

The utility, based in Bakersfield,

Calif., is seeking increases because it collected only about half its allowable earnings last year.

Under the PUC staff proposal, local rates would rise about 24 percent.

Continental serves customers in small southern and central Idaho cities, including Riggin, Parma, McCall, Donnelly, New Meadows and Marsing.

The utility's relations with its customers has been described as below average by a PUC staff member who said complaints rose 94 percent from 1981 to 1982.

Beverly Barker, the director of the PUC's consumer assistance division, said figures showed the PUC received 55 complaints and inquiries about the phone company operations last year, which was more than those generated by other utilities.

Complaints included poor long-distance service and delays in extending facilities to new customers, Barker said in pre-filed testimony.

scaled-down version of the same plan, he said.

"We'd like to see them build it and have the office and pilots here," Shovel said.

Reader said Tuesday that the building plans now include one aircraft bay. The sleeping area has been eliminated because some Transwestern pilots have been transferred to Twin Falls, he said. However, the structure would be designed for later expansion, Reader said.

Transwestern Pres-

dent George Bagley told the city that the airline wanted to discuss its Twin Falls to Boise flights. The company had been losing money on the route. Any disconnection, however, would not affect the plans for the new maintenance hangar, he said at that time.

In other airport business Tuesday, Airport manager Harry Merrick reported that he and Shovel were planning to meet with Idaho National Guard officials in Boise. The guard owns about 80,000 square feet of land and a 4,000-square-foot building at the airport. Airport officials would like to take over the unused property for possible expansion purposes, Shovel said.

Twin Falls council and the county commissioners would have final approval on any negotiations.

No date has been set for a meeting with the National Guard, Merrick said.

Merrick also reported that the Bamcock Paving Co. of Pocatello should finish some odds and ends on the runway-extension project within the month. In addition, airport officials are negotiating with the company to do extra work to correct some soil erosion near the runway, Merrick said.

look at the financial situation of the applicant. An applicant will be responsible for obtaining financing for its project on its own, Lanting said.

Under the law, the criteria for board acceptance is "broad," Clerk said.

"We're just going to try our best to get some economical development that won't interfere with other business," he said.

The applicant's proposed projects also must meet Internal Revenue Service codes, as well as state and local health, zoning and environmental standards, Lanting said.

Idaho's law prohibits the issuing of bonds for retail outlets.

Lanting said he is excited about the bonds and their possible results of more employment, economic growth and broadening of the county's tax base by encouraging business in the county.

The board will meet regularly the first Wednesday of each month at 7 p.m. at the Twin Falls County Courthouse. The application forms for the bonds are available from the county commissioners' office.

Zoning board to hear requests

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission is scheduled to hear three requests Thursday, to divide a total of about 50 acres of land.

The meeting will begin at 8:30 p.m. in the Twin Falls County Judicial Building.

At the meeting, public hearings will be held on:

- A request by Frank Flores of Castleford to split a 2.5-acre parcel from 7.7 acres for his family. The property is located three miles south of Castleford.
- A request by Harold Peterson of Twin Falls to divide a 5.18 acres from a 35-acre parcel, located two miles west of Magic Valley Regional Center.
- A request by Lantz Crandall of Twin Falls to split up 5.8 acres into three lots to give to his sons. The property is located about two miles west of the Singing Bridge.

The three parcels under consideration are zoned agricultural.

BLM crews battle two fires

MINIDOKA — U.S. Bureau of Land Management crews spent about five hours Tuesday afternoon fighting two, small range fires, eight miles east of Minidoka.

According to BLM Burley District dispatcher Curtis Hanzel, the fires were reported at 4:30 p.m. Although the hot spots were within the Shoshone District, the Burley-BLM office sent two crews because it was closer to the fires.

The one-acre and eight-acre blazes were declared under control at 9 p.m. It was unknown Tuesday night what caused them.

Mishap hurts motorcycle rider

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls man was injured Tuesday morning when his motorcycle collided with a car on Highland Avenue and Ramona Street.

Curt Roberts, 19, was treated and released at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

According to Twin Falls police, a car driven by Jamey Jenkins, 20, of Twin Falls, was turning east onto Highland Avenue from Ramona when it struck Roberts' westbound motorcycle. The incident occurred about 2:40 p.m.

Jenkins has been cited for failure to yield, and Roberts received a citation for not having a driver's license.

There was $250 damage to the car and $1,500 to the motorcycle.

Cycle theft leads to arrests

TWIN FALLS — Three Twin Falls juveniles were arrested early Monday morning for allegedly stealing a motorcycle from Century Auto, 261 Addison Ave. W. in Twin Falls.

According to Twin Falls police, officers noticed two boys pushing a motorcycle through a vacant lot near Century Auto at about 1 a.m. Monday.

After a short pursuit on foot, the two were taken into custody, and a third boy was found nearby.

Two of the suspects are 15 and the third is 13. Their names were not released because of their ages.

The juveniles have been charged with grand theft and released to their parents.

The recovered motorcycle was valued at $1,000. There were no signs of forced entry at the motorcycle shop.

Overtime dispute brings suit

BOISE (UPI) — The former manager of the Maverick Country Store in Twin Falls filed suit against the store's parent company Tuesday, claiming the firm failed to pay him extra wages for overtime hours he had worked.

Jim Bohm's lawsuit, filed in U.S. District Court in Boise, seeks more than $68,000 in damages against Caribou Four Corners Inc. of Latah, Wyo., the owner of the Maverick Country Store Inc. in Twin Falls.

The suit says Bohm, who worked at the store four years ago, was owed $23,415 in overtime wages when he was terminated on Oct. 30, 1982. The suit contends he is owed triple damages, under Idaho law.

The lawsuit also contends the alleged failure to pay time-and-a-half for the overtime hours worked violates the U.S. Fair Labor Standards Act.

Idaho-Campground Owners Association — $4,200 for advertising area campgrounds in a nationally distributed camping guide. The grant is part of a $7,430 pool that will be used to promote the Magic Valley and the nearby Mountain River Country, which covers the Idaho Falls area.

Among the more unusual awards made Tuesday were: $17,000 for "Lewis and Clark Country" boosters around Lewiston to promote a winter fishing season for steelhead trout in places such as Boise, Spokane, Missoula and Great Falls, Mont., and $7,200 for the Moscow Chamber of Commerce to pay for its current campaign, which invites visitors from the box Southwest to "Cool It in Moscow."

Other regions of the state receiving grants were: $29,000 to agencies in the Idaho Panhandle, called "Big Water Mountain Land"; $20,000 to the Lewiston area, called "Lewis and Clark Country"; $116,156 to the Boise area, called "Treasureland"; $47,400 to the Pocatello area, called "Pioneer Country"; and $84,565 to the Idaho Falls region, called "Mountain River Country."

Valley golfers should fare well at Highland

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

FOCATELLO — The long, windswept Highland Municipal Golf Course, usually favors players who can read a green and handle the rigors of long fairways spanning a couple of hundred feet of vertical relief.

It happens that that description fits a number of Magic Valley golfers who are part of a 185-woman field in this week's Idaho Women's Amateur Golf Championships, which begins here Thursday.

Karen Brown of Twin Falls and Sue

Idaho Women's Amateur Golf

Kushlan of Rupert will have to be counted among the favorites when play gets underway at 8 this morning on these sprawling links in the foothills east of Focatello. They will compete with a field that includes defending champion Bev Mullins of Boise, long-hitting Crystal Marvin of Lewiston, and veterans Jean Smith of Boise and Virginia Urdjem of Twin Falls.

About the only top woman golfer in the state who won't be around is Lori Vogwert of Burley, who won the event two years ago and finished third in last year's tournament, held at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course.

"The biggest thing about this course is the greens," says Highland Pro Gary Tawzer. "On a three-foot putt you may have a three-foot break. You have to play the course a couple of times, because there are places where the greens are very deceptive."

Normally, the 5,300-yard course has rock-hard fairways at this time of the year. But heavy rain, including a deluge last Saturday, that caused a water hazard on the 18th fairway to overflow and spill a river of mud on to No. 15, has softened the surface. That could drastically change the way the course plays, according to Tawzer.

"If the wind is blowing, that would normally have an effect," he says. "But with the course as wet as it is, a wind might not make that much difference. The greens here slope to the both right and left, so I expect this to be a chipping and putting contest."

On the face of it, that would favor Brown, who has a solid long game and experience with big, tricky greens.

Moreover, she has played this course many times — and she has won the tournament twice (Brown was the runner-up last year and finished third in 1981).

But Kushlan, who finished fourth last year, ended Brown's four-year reign in The Times-News Magic Valley Women's Amateur Championships last month and could be a threat in her own right.

"There really are no local favorites in this tournament," says Tawzer. "I expect the better golfers from around the state to be the contenders."

Tawzer thinks anyone shooting a 54-hole total of 228 on the par-76 course will have a good chance to win, although a Spokane, Wash., golfer — Connie Guthrie — fired a 71 in the pre-tourney pro-am on Monday.

The course was set up pretty easy (Monday) and the weather was perfect," Tawzer says. "Whether anyone will be able to do that well under tournament conditions or in bad weather, I don't know."

The championships will get well off first today and Thursday and last — probably about 1 p.m. — on Friday.

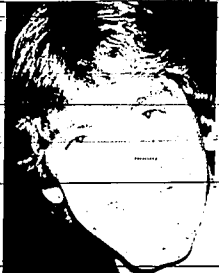

The tournament has been held once before at Highland — in 1969 — when the "champion" was Becky Maloy of Weiser.

McMillen figures Bradley's lonely

By JACK MANN
The Baltimore Evening Sun

WASHINGTON — Rep. Marjorie S. Holt, described as alarmed at the prospect of defending Maryland's Fourth District congressional seat against a handsome 6-foot-11 basketball player in 1984, may be comforted to know Tom McMillen does not classify himself as a liberal.

"I don't like labels at all," McMillen said this week after being presented as the new forward-center of the Washington Bullets. "If there has to be one, I'd say I'm a centrist — conservative in fiscal matters but more liberal in other areas."

TOM McMILLEN
Formidable candidate

This is the classic political posture — the zeal to do nifty things to help people, but no eagerness to tell the constituents how much it might cost.

One might question whether two years of hard study in philosophy, politics and economics at Oxford was a high price to pay to reach such a standard conclusion, but somehow it seemed more persuasive coming from a Rhodes Scholar.

Bullets general manager Bob Ferry struck the keynote of this week's press conference, that the name of the game was roundball, and McMillen strove mightily to carry it on. It had not occurred to the Bullets' management, Ferry said, that ransoming him from Atlanta for a draft choice would further McMillen's long-announced political aspirations.

But it did not every body know it. Coming home to Crofton, Md., as a highly visible personage in a public arena in Holt's purview, moved up McMillen's political chances much more than the $50,000 in campaign funds that Atlanta Hawks owner Ted Turner raised for him as a sort of going-away present.

"I have to admit that politics has been a part of my life ever since I was in the student government at Maryland," the 36-year-old McMillen said. "But I try to compartmentalize my life, and I'm addressing myself more to basketball at this point. . . I'm beginning to get my game in shape."

McMillen did not deny that people in his behalf have been testing the political waters, by polls and other means, to calculate his chances against Holt, a conservative Republican who would be seeking a seventh term.

"I have made it clear to people that I am serious" about politics, McMillen said, but added there are "things to be sorted out, decisions to be made: it is not a fait accompli."

McMillen's career parallels that of Bill Bradley, the senior Democratic senator from New Jersey. Bradley was a Rhodes Scholar after carrying Princeton to the NCAA semifinals in 1965 and starring in the Tokyo Olympics. He then played a decade with the New York Knicks. McMillen was his teammate in Bradley's last season, 1976-77.

McMillen was a three-time All-America at Maryland and helped the U.S. team to the silver medal in the '72 Olympics.

No-nonsense Knight eyes Olympics

By DAN BARREIRO
Dallas Morning News

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. — He stood in front of a drawing of a red, white and blue ball, eagle, and, for a moment, it was not hard to imagine Gen. George Patton was barking out the words.

"I see where some guys knock patriotism every once in a while," the man said. "That annoys me."

Bobby Knight continued, his eyes darting around the room.

"You know, any man who has fired a single shot in defense of this country has done more than anything I could ever do. But this is the only thing that's really available to me as a basketball coach."

And so Bobby Knight will coach the U.S. Olympic basketball team. Some cynics might suggest Patton would have been a less controversial choice. Even Knight took a playful poke at his past during the recently concluded National Sports Festival. Looking at United States Olympic Committee executive director F. Don Miller, Knight said: "He's been balling me out of all sorts of things for the last five or six years."

Why, Knight's detractors ask, risk naming a man who might cause an international incident? In 1979, of course, Knight was the center of controversy during the Pan-American Games at San Juan, Puerto Rico: The Indiana University coach was arrested for allegedly striking a police officer during an altercation. (In Bloomington, Ind. — an enterprising T-shirt salesman came out with a shirt that featured a raised fist and the words, "Free Bobby Knight.")

Four years later, Puerto Rican officials still denounce him.

But for better or for worse, Knight will be coaching when the U.S. team plays in Los Angeles next year. And he was in Colorado Springs to inspect the basketball troops participating in the Sports Festival. Those who saw him for the first time during a press conference at the Sports Festival probably felt wondering what all the fuss was about. Knight was on his very best behavior.

No question was met with a hard glare; no reporter was deposited in a garbage can. Not that he was making any concessions. Somebody asked him if it would be difficult to cope with the pressure of trying to lead the U.S. team to Olympic gold.

"I feel pressure when we play Grassland State," he said. "I've been through pressure."

That he has. Some may question his self-control, but few question his ability to coach basketball. In 18 years as a head coach — six at Army and 12 at Indiana — Knight has compiled a record of 375-134. His teams have made eight NCAA appearances and won the title twice. They have made six NIT appearances and won the title once. In 12 seasons at Indiana, Knight's Hoosiers have won seven Big 10 titles.

If there is a way to win the gold medal, Knight surely will find it. But he says he will do it his way. And his way is not Lou Valvo's way. The U.S. Olympic hockey coach guaranteed some players positions on the team to ensure they show up for the trials.

"Knight says you will not give anybody a free pass," Not Patrick Ewing. Not Wayman Tisdale. Not anybody.

Crowd of 45,000 awaited at Denver

By RICK GOSSELIN
United Press International

DENVER — It may be small by the standards of the Michigan Panthers and large by those of the Philadelphia Stars — but the projected crowd of 45,000 at the United States Football League Championship game Sunday would certainly flatter the standards of the first-year league.

The Panthers drew 60,237 for their semifinal round playoff game against the Oakland Invaders last weekend while the Stars, the league's showcase team during the regular season with a 15-3 record, drew a modest 15,648 for their semifinal against the Chicago Blitz.

Philadelphia has been declared the home team against Michigan in the title game Sunday evening at Mile High Stadium, where Denverites support their own USFL franchise.

The Philadelphia team with a league-best average of 41,736 fans per game.

Philadelphia averaged 18,794 and Michigan 21,513 during their initial seasons while the league on the whole averaged 24,800 in its bid to sell the sporting public spring (now summer) football.

"It's kind of hard to give you a crowd (estimate) because there's no precedent for this game," said George McFadden, the USFL director of communications. "There's been a great response after the two weekend playoff games; both of those games were very attractive. People who know the community anticipate a crowd of between 40,000 and 45,000."

There were 32,000 seats sold locally through Monday and that doesn't include the 1,000 tickets Michigan sold during its playoff game with the Invaders — a ticket sale that reached a feverish pitch by the middle of the fourth quarter when the Panthers had run up a 37-14 lead. Michigan eventually prevailed 37-21.

The USFL also announced Tuesday the officiating crew for the championship game: referee Bill Parsonson; umpire Gerry Hart; head linesman Stuart Ross; line judge Larry Hill; back judge Rich Eichhorst and field judge Grover Klemmer, with Dave Kamanski serving as the alternate.

Bowie Kuhn gave Steve Howe exactly what he deserved

By ALAN GOLDSTEIN
The Baltimore Sun

Willie Howe was busy signing autographs at the All-Star gathering in Chicago last week, pausing only for a moment when a man mentioned the name Steve Howe.

"It ain't right," Howe said, his voice rising over the noise. "I won't go underground." They're forcing them to go underground."

Howe, who never needed stimulants to rise to Olympian heights, was speaking for the majority of players who believe Howe's $54,000 fine will prevent other addicts from declaring themselves.

Sorry, Willie, but we can't agree. For once, we feel obligated to pat Bowie Kuhn on the back, for it was the baseball commissioner who recommended the Dodgers' heavy fine of Howe, a two-time offender.

Not too long ago, columnists labeled the first rumors of excessive drug abuse on the sports beat as "science fiction." When headlines suggested 80 percent of the pro players and 40 percent of their football brethren were snorting cocaine, union bosses screamed "Foul!" and threw up legal roadblocks against further investigation. Those early addition figures seem so conservative. Every day, a new sports idol is linked with drugs. Last weekend, the Baltimore Orioles were making heated denials even before a rumor had gathered steam.

NFL commissioner Pete Rozelle 801-podded the drug problem at his Super Bowl address. He must now have serious second thoughts after Dallas Cowboys Tony Dorsett, Harvey Martin, Ron Springs and Tony Hill were linked to a major FBI cocaine investigation. When the Snow White image of "America's Team" is tarnished, the NFL is in big trouble. Is it only a coincidence the Cowboys fell from grace in recent years?

Ex-Cowboy Peter Gent told it like it was in "North Dallas Party," football's version of "Boyz n the Trappin'." Gent was charged with poetic license, but knew his subject matter. Sadly, the headless Cowboy, coach Tom Landry, has been forced to admit the truth to the point that Dallas is establishing its own security office to monitor the players.

Yes, it is a massive problem, eroding the fan's faith in their deflowered heroes. Rozelle thought there was a sufficient risk to suspend Paul Hornung and Alex Karras for wagering small change on their respective teams. And he again wields his mighty sword when Art

Schlichter got in over his head with gamblers, but he readily furrows his brow when a Saints star admits to a $10,000-a-month coke habit.

Obviously, playing zonked out of your skull isn't a hobby as bad as being in the neighborhood. Only when a player becomes a pushover as in the case of Mercury Morris, does he become a leper in the eyes of the Establishment. If a team discovered one of its players was an addict, the commissioner would stamp him on some unsuspecting team.

Phillies sweep pair from torrid Braves

By United Press International

Philadelphia seemed headed for a split of a double-header with Atlanta Tuesday night until the Braves' costly ninth-inning error provided the best Phillies with a sweep and first place in the Eastern Division. Braves' second baseman Glenn Hubbard's wild throw in the ninth allowed two runs to score and gave Philadelphia a 7-6 victory over Atlanta for a nightcap triumph in their first game. John Denny and Al Holland combined on a five-hitter and Garry Maddox stroked a two-run triple to lead the Phillies to a 4-1 victory.

Cincinnati 6, New York 2
AL New York, Frank Pastore pitched a six-hitter over eight innings and Dan Driessen knocked in four runs to carry the Reds. Pastore, 3-8, struck out six, walked two and gave up a run on an eighth-inning pinch homer by Danny Heep. Driessen singled home the Reds' first run off Mets starter Mike Torrez, 5-10, in the fourth inning and slammed a three-run homer in the sixth, when the Reds scored four times.

Houston 7, Montreal 5
At Houston, the Astros erupted for four runs in the fifth inning and reliever Dave Smith pitched four innings of shutout relief. Dick's Todd Jose Cruz, Ray Knight and rookie catcher George Borkman, stroked scoring singles as the Astros rallied from a 5-3 deficit in the fifth. Los Angeles 3, St. Louis
At Los Angeles, Dusty Baker smashed a two-run homer in the sixth inning; his third home run in two days, to break a 1-1 tie and send the Los Angeles Dodgers to a victory over the St. Louis Cardinals. San Diego 5, Chicago 3
In San Diego, Jimmy Leflore, who singled for the 1,000th hit of his career in the second inning, lined a three-run homer just inside the left-field foul pole in the sixth as the San Diego Padres scored five times en route to a triumph over the Chicago Cubs. In a late night game, Pittsburgh was at San Francisco.

Colleges gear up for big TV bidding

BY HARRY BOESCH
Daily Morning News

In the wake of a federal appeals court ruling, the NCAA and rival factions began making alternate plans Tuesday for selling college football to the networks this season.

The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals Monday denied the NCAA's request for a stay in the college football television case. The ruling effectively killed the $25.5-million college football contracts with ABC, CBS and cable network WTBS.

There is not an NCAA football TV plan in place, said Dennis Cryder, NCAA's associate television program director.

TV attorneys spent Tuesday preparing to ask the Supreme Court for a stay in the case while it prepares an appeal.

If the Supreme Court grants a stay, the NCAA television plan almost certainly would remain in effect through the 1983 season. If the high court denies a stay, the bidding for college football television becomes wide open.

All alternate television package could come from the NCAA, from the College Football Association or from a coalition of the CFA, Big 10 and Pacific-10.

The NCAA also is working on an alternate plan if the Supreme Court denies the stay request. The association's football television committee will meet next week in Glendon Beach, Ore., to work on its plan.

The CFA held a conference call of its board of directors Tuesday and called a meeting of the entire membership for Aug. 2 in Atlanta to seek commitments for the organization's alternate television plan, which was adopted in June at the CFA convention in Dallas.

Members of the CFA, Big 10, Pacific-10 coalition effort are expected to meet Sunday and Monday in Chicago to work out their plan.

Meanwhile, the networks are waiting to see what happens.

"We understand a coalition will be making an effort in the next few days," CBS Sports president Neal Pilson said. "When that occurs, we'll be in a better position about our plans to carry a representative schedule of college football this fall."

USFL awards San Antonio its fifth expansion franchise

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — The United States Football League officially awarded its fifth expansion franchise for the 1984 season Monday to a group of San Antonio area investors, including south Texas rancher-olman Clinton Manges.

The investors, who include San Antonio attorney Pat Maloney and McAllen attorney Morris Atlas, had announced the franchise several months ago, but the official announcement was held up due to background checks on primary investors.

"The whole expansion is so complicated," said USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons. "We have to check out everybody in the franchise. There were some deal points that had to be resolved, and that's what happens in any deal."

Manges blamed the lengthy negotiations on unfavorable publicity surrounding a multimillion-dollar lawsuit filed against him by a Seattle bank.

"We had a lot of publicity that was negative," said Manges. "Finally we had the biggest stumbling block. (Texas Attorney General Jim) Mattox really helped out. He felt San Antonio needed and deserved a franchise."

Mattox was on hand for the ceremonies Monday night.

Manges announced team executive vice president Gil Steinke also will serve as head coach for the team, which has yet to be named.

Steinke recently retired as athletic director at Texas A&M University in Knoxville, where he served as head football coach from 1964 to 1977 and led the Javelinas to six NAIA national championships.

Jabbar can't decide: Bulls or Lakers?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar is still weeks away from a decision on where he will play next season, his agent said Tuesday.

The six-time NBA Most Valuable Player, who played out his option with the Chicago Bulls Monday with representatives of the Chicago Bulls.

Tom Collins, Abdul-Jabbar's agent, said no decision is imminent.

Collins spent six hours Monday with Chicago chief operating officer Jonathan Covler and general manager Rod Thorn.

"We won't get back to Chicago for six or eight days," the agent said. "Yesterday we had a fact-finding meeting. They wanted to see if we were serious about coming to Chicago and we wanted to see if they were serious about money. We are and they are. They've gone back to do their homework."

Collins said Abdul-Jabbar is seeking a 2-year, $4 million contract with the money up front. The Lakers, according to Collins, offered $1.2 million a year for two seasons with much of it deferred.

Kareem was impressed with Chicago, the agent said. "His preference is to stay at home, but he'd be more than happy to go to Chicago. Kareem wants it to be done quickly. He wants to enjoy his summer. We're leasing the house (Abdul-Jabbar's house was gutted by a fire during the last season) and he wants to put his kids in school."

The Atlanta Hawks are also interested in signing Abdul-Jabbar and Collins said the player is "very anxious" to speak to their representative.

Collins said he hasn't spoken to Lakers owner Jerry Buss in two weeks.

"I didn't expect to talk to him," the agent said. "He said that's what it's all about."

The Lakers open their 1983 training camp Sept. 26 at the College of the Siskiyewes in Palm Desert.

ATTENTION IDAHO POWER CUSTOMERS

Idaho Power Company recently made an offer to accept up to a 70% discount on payment in full on their 2001 interest free loans. If you plan to have one of these loans, this offer could mean substantial savings to you. However, according to their office, you must act prior to July 19, 1983.

If a temporary cash shortage is preventing you from taking advantage of this offer, or the new cash grant program, Avco Financial Services may help you.

Avco has developed a special program with budget terms designed with you in mind...

For further information, contact your local Avco office.

Take advantage of 4 billion years of water heating experience.

Get a solar water heater with help from Idaho Power.*

The sun's been heating water for a long time. In lakes, rivers, prehistoric oceans and now, thanks to solar energy technology, your bathtub. In fact, with the help of solar collectors, it can cut your water heating bill by up to half. Usually, that's a savings of about $90 a year for an average family of four. It could also conserve about half the electricity you need to heat your water if you have an electric water heater.

That's why Idaho Power wants to help you get a solar water heater for your home.

As part of a solar energy research project, we'll give you a cash rebate of up to 20% of the system's installed cost. Not only that, we'll help you choose a good system at a reasonable price. We'll inspect it to make sure it's installed correctly. If you're a do-it-yourselfer, we'll show you how to build and install your own solar water heater for as little as $400. And we'll show you how state and federal tax incentives can reduce the cost of your system.

But hurry. We're only giving out 100 rebates, and applicants will be accepted on a first-come, first-served basis.

So call your local Idaho Power office today. We'll tell you all about our 20% cash rebates for solar water heaters, an opportunity that's come around only once in 4 billion years.

*Offer limited to customers with electric water heaters.
Your savings may vary depending on the efficiency of your system, how much hot water you use during the year, and availability of sunlight to the collectors.

Menus For Easy Summer Living

It's summer and a time for relaxed barbecue dinners shared with friends in the pleasant surroundings of your patio or garden. Summer is also the natural time for an easy, informal approach to menu planning. It's a time for meals that are satisfying, yet light. And, whenever possible, it's a time to feature dishes that can be readied in advance.

Alaska seafoods and crisp, naturally-sweet Golden Delicious apples meet in two especially appealing summertime menus that are sure to delight guests and make entertaining a joy for the cook.

As a wonderful introduction to summer meals, tempt your guests with succulent Alaska Snow crab in the shell. The crab is simply thawed, then the clusters broken into sections, scored for easier eating and arranged on a bed of ice. Accompany the crab clusters with zesty Red Hot Dipping Sauce and be sure to include lots of napkins and small forks for removing the meat. Another time, serve Snow Crab Avocado Dip with crisp crackers or assorted raw vegetables.

Alaska salmon is a perfect choice for the outdoor grill as barbecuing enhances the rich, yet delicate, flavor of this treasured seafood. The salmon steaks featured here are marinated first in a tangy mustard sauce, then grilled just until the colorful flesh flakes when tested with a fork. For a larger group, a whole salmon or salmon roast is also a wonderful selection for the barbecue. Fortunately the harvest of sleek silvery salmon from the icy waters off the coast of Alaska coincides with summer barbecue season.

Golden Apple Rice Salad makes a wonderful choice to serve with the seafoods. Prepared in advance, it combines cooked rice with crisp chopped Golden Delicious apples, crunchy peanuts, raisins and a pungent curry dressing. Pretty Golden Delicious apple wedges are the perfect garnish for this salad because they resist darkening better than other apple varieties. Another time, feature tender-skinned Golden Delicious apples in a fashionable pasta salad. Or enjoy them out-of-hand, as the perfect refresher following a day in the sun.

ALASKA SNOW CRAB WITH RED HOT DIPPING SAUCE

- 3/4 cup chili sauce or catsup
- 1/8 teaspoon bottled hot pepper sauce
- 4 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon Dash sugar
- 2 to 3 teaspoons prepared horseradish
- 1 teaspoon each Worcestershire sauce and grated onion

Combine all ingredients except Snow crab; let stand at least one hour to blend flavors. Rinse crab under cool water. Cut crab into serving-sized pieces. Score backs of leg sections using large heavy knife or slit with kitchen shears. Refrigerate until served. Makes 6 appetizers.

Tip: Serve with small forks to remove crab.

MUSTARD-MARINATED ALASKA SALMON

- 1/4 cup each oil, white wine and lemon or lime juice
- 1/8 teaspoon each salt and pepper
- 3 tablespoons each Dijon mustard and minced onion
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 6 (about 6-oz. each) Alaska salmon steaks, thawed if necessary

Combine all ingredients except salmon in large shallow dish. Turn salmon in mustard mixture to coat both sides. Marinate in refrigerator 3 hours; turn once after 1-1/2 hours. Place salmon on barbecue grill. Brush with marinade; barbecue 4 minutes. Turn salmon; brush with marinade. Barbecue 10 minutes per inch of thickness or until salmon flakes easily when tested with a fork. Makes 6 servings.

GOLDEN APPLE RICE SALAD

- 3 cups hot-cooked rice
- 1/3 cup oil
- 1/4 cup lime or lemon juice
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/2 teaspoon chili powder
- 3 Golden Delicious apples
- 1/4 cup each salted peanuts, golden or regular raisins and chopped green onion
- Salt and pepper

Combine hot rice with oil, lime juice, curry powder and chili powder; chill. Core and chop 2 apples; add to rice mixture with peanuts, raisins, onion and salt and pepper to taste. Core and wedge remaining apple; garnish salad with wedges. Makes about 6 servings.

CRAB AVOCADO DIP (Not Shown)

- 6 to 8 ounces Alaska Snow-crab meat*, thawed if necessary
- 1 avocado, peeled and diced
- 1 tablespoon each lime juice and grated onion
- 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened
- 1/4 cup dairy sour cream
- Assorted crackers or raw vegetable slices

Drain and slice crab if necessary. Blend avocado, lime juice, onion and Worcestershire sauce in blender or food processor until smooth. Add cream cheese and sour cream; blend well. Fold in crab. Cover and chill thoroughly. Serve with crackers or vegetables. Makes 2-1/2 cups dip.

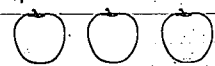

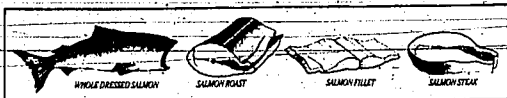

*If desired, meat removed from Alaska Snow-crab clusters may be used. Rinse 1 to 1-1/2 pounds Snow-crab clusters under cool water; crack and remove meat.

LEMON-BARBECUED ALASKA SALMON (Not Shown)

- 1 whole dressed (3 to 8 lb.) Alaska salmon, thawed and head removed if necessary
- 1 lemon, thinly sliced
- Lemon Butter Sauce

Cut heavy-duty foil to fit one side of salmon; grease foil generously. Arrange half of lemon slices on foil. Lay salmon on foil; brush inside with Lemon Butter Sauce and press foil smoothly to fit fish. Arrange remaining lemon slices over salmon. Insert meat thermometer into thickest part of salmon. Place fish, foil-side down, on grill over moderately-hot coals. Brush with Lemon Butter Sauce. Cover barbecue with lid to seal in heat and smoke. Cook salmon, basting occasionally with Lemon Butter Sauce, until thermometer registers 120°F. Allow 10 minutes per inch of thickness measured at its thickest part or barbecue until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove salmon and foil to warm platter. Serve with remaining Lemon Butter Sauce. Makes about 3 servings per pound of salmon.

Lemon Butter Sauce: Combine 3/4 cup melted butter or margarine with 1 tablespoon each lemon juice and minced parsley. Makes about 3/4 cup.

GOLDEN APPLE PASTA PICNIC SALAD (Not Shown)

- 3 cups cooked, hot elbow macaroni
- Vinaigrette Dressing
- 2 Golden Delicious apples, cored and chopped
- 1 can (2-1/4 oz.) sliced ripe olives
- 1 tomato, chopped
- 1/2 cup sliced celery
- Salt and pepper
- Grated Parmesan cheese (optional)

Combine hot macaroni with Vinaigrette Dressing; cool. Stir in remaining ingredients except salt and pepper and cheese. Refrigerate 1 hour to blend flavors. Salt and pepper to taste. Serve with Parmesan cheese. Makes about 6 servings.

Vinaigrette Dressing: Combine 1/3 cup oil, 3 tablespoons vinegar, 1/2 teaspoon crushed basil leaves, 1/4 teaspoon salt and 1/8 teaspoon paprika; blend well. Makes about 1/2 cup.

Band program set for sixth concert

TWIN FALLS — The program for the Twin Falls Municipal Band's sixth concert of the season is announced for 8:15 p.m. Thursday.

Director Ted Hadley said numbers will include "The Nutcracker March" by Eric Oesterling; "Symphonic Overture," Charles Carter; "Czech Masters Suite," arranged by Philip Gordon and containing an overture, waltz and furiant, and "Tchaikovskyana" arranged by Larry Daehn.

Following intermission the band will play "March for Masaryk" by Rudolf Obraca; "La Fleur de Paris" (the Flower of Paris) by John Casvas; "Salute to Bob Hope," arranged by Warren Barker; "Charlots of Fire Suite," Vangelis and "The Golden Shield March" by Jerry Nowak.

The concert will close with J. P. Sousa's popular "Stars and Stripes Forever" march.

This elegant main event sandwich combines cheese, apples

Apples give fresh sandwich appeal

NEW YORK — When it's summer time and the livin' is easy you want to keep the cookin' easy, too.

Make elegant — fresh — tasting sandwiches the main event at your meals, a nutritionally sound idea, especially when a good source of protein and fruit are included.

One winning combination tops crusty French baguette halves with slices of Cape Granny Smith apples, grated Gruyere cheese and coarsely ground black pepper. Broil this sophisticated lengthy sandwich for a few minutes to create an elegant light meal or sumptuous snack.

The crisp, tangy-sweet Cape Granny Smith, unlike most other apples available in the summer, are being picked right now in the Southern Hemisphere. They're fresh and in-season, so they hold their shape and texture during quick broiling. The apple's unique tart taste is a natural complement to the Gruyere as well as Brie.

Creamy Brie, in fact, paired with piquant slices of apple on airy croissants is baked to make the perfect sandwich for a company brunch or lunch. The contrasting textures of the silken melted cheese and crisp apple slices will intrigue your taste buds.

Children and adults will enjoy quick and easy-to-make Granny Muffin Snacks that also are perfect for breakfast. The spilt English muffin topped with peanut butter, juicy apple slices and a lattice of Cheddar cheese provides a satisfying and nutritious breakfast in less than 10 minutes.

When sliced — firm-textured Grannies look fresh longer than other apples. Because they don't turn brown quickly, Granny slices can be used as the "holders" for sandwiches — either open-face or two slices held together with a filling. Grannies also store well in the refrigerator for four to six weeks.

Eating sandwiches that include apples lend a good source of energy in the form of complex carbohydrates. In addition, they help remove small particles of food caught between the teeth.

A Cape Granny Smith apple, cheese and a loaf of bread add up with the smallest effort into a summer of nutritious and delicious eating.

- GRUYERE AND GRANNIES
- 1 slender French baguette, about 15 inches long
 - 3 tablespoons butter or margarine, softened
 - 2 Granny Smith apples, cored and thinly sliced
 - 1 cup shredded Gruyere cheese
 - Coarsely ground black pepper

Split bread in half lengthwise. Broil each half until golden; spread with butter. Overlap apple slices on bread halves. Sprinkle with Gruyere and pepper. Place bread halves on a baking sheet. Broil 4 to 6 servings.

It's bowl of cherries right now

By BEV BENNETT
Chicago Sun-Times

CHICAGO — Life is going to be a bowl of cherries for most of this summer. Those who patiently await the brief period in June and early July when sweet, wine-colored cherries from the Northwestern states come on the market will be well rewarded.

"The crop is the best we've ever had," said Ken Severn, manager of the Northwest Cherry Growers Association, which represents growers in Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Utah.

Silvio Pinto, the creative chef at Sogni Dorati in Chicago, also is taking advantage of the great cherry harvest.

"I made a cherry sauce for veal as a lunchtime experiment and people went crazy over it," he said. "Then I served it to a date and it was a hit as well. . . . You can also serve this over chicken breasts or lamb."

- Silvio Pinto's Veal Chops with cherries
- Time: about 30 minutes
Cost: less than $16.10
- 4 tablespoons pine nuts
 - Butter
 - 1 orange
 - 32 sweet cherries
 - 1 pound mushrooms, sliced
 - 1/2 cup sliced fresh onions
 - 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
 - 1/4 teaspoon crushed garlic (1 good-size clove)
 - Salt and pepper to taste
 - 1 tablespoon minced parsley
 - 2 cups veal or chicken stock
 - 2 tablespoons Sirega
 - 4 veal chops

Saute pine nuts in skillet with a little butter (about 2 teaspoons) until they brown and drain on paper towel. Grate just the orange part of the orange skin and set aside. Pit cherries and set them aside.

Saute mushrooms in 3 tablespoons butter until golden. Add onions, nutmeg, garlic and a modest amount of salt and pepper. Add parsley. Add stock and Sirega and cook over high heat until liquid is reduced to 1 cup.

Meanwhile, grill veal chops to taste. When ready to serve, whisk 1/4 pound softened butter into mushroom mixture. Do not let mixture get too hot. Add cherries, orange zest and pine nuts. Heat through but do not cook. Cherries must remain firm and red. Pour sauce over chops and serve to 4.

Green chiles pep up cocktail snacks, dip and taco filling

Green chiles are extremely popular in the cuisines of Texas, Arizona, New Mexico, Southern California and south of the border. And they are slowly gaining favor in these northern parts of the country.

Since today's newspaper includes a 15-cent-off coupon for canned green chiles, and since your recipe file may be sparse with this spicy-hot food's formulas, we thought we'd give you a few dishes you may not have tried yet.

Willetta Warberg
On food

CUPS OF CORN CHIPS. Sprinkle the chips with the minced onion; pour the chili over the top of the onions; sprinkle the diced green chiles over the chili; and spread half of the grated cheese over the green chiles. Arrange the remaining corn chips on top, and sprinkle the remaining grated cheese on top of the chips. Bake for 20 minutes, or until bubbly and the cheese is melted. Makes six to eight servings.

GREEN CHILE-AVOCADO COCKTAIL DIP
4 ripe avocados, peeled and mashed
1 small can of green chiles, drained and minced
Half a medium-sized sweet onion, peeled and minced
1 teaspoon of salt
Juice from two lemons
In a mixing bowl, combine the mashed avocados, minced green chiles, minced onion, salt and lemon juice. Mix together thoroughly. Cover and chill until ready to serve. Makes about three cups of cocktail dip.

GREEN CHILE-COCKTAIL SNACK
1 small can of green chiles, drained and cut into small pieces
A half-pound of mild natural cheddar cheese, cubed
1 can of anchovy filets, soaked in warm water for a few minutes and patted dry, and cut in half, or small cubes cut from a half-pound of cooked ham
2 medium-sized tomatoes, seeded and cubed
On toothpicks or cocktail skewers, alternate the squares of chile, cheese, pieces of anchovy and cubes of tomato. Serve with cocktails. Makes enough for 12 people to have several pieces.

FAT TO TRY THE PORK IN
1 small can of green chiles, drained and diced
3 tomatoes, seeded and diced
1 sweet onion, peeled and diced
1 clove garlic, peeled and minced
Salt to season to taste
Into a skillet, put the diced pork and enough fat to fry it in. When the pork is lightly browned and cooked, drain off the fat. Mix into the pork the chiles, tomatoes, onion and garlic. Cover and cook for 30 minutes or until flavors are well-blended. Remove the lid and cook down the liquid, and season to taste with the salt. Makes enough filling for eight to 10 tacos.

THIS WEEK'S BEST MARKET BUYS. Watch for good ground beef buys. Tuna fish will be on sale these next weeks. Citrus fruits are not of the quality we are used to, so think twice before spending your money on that food.

Watermelons are in good, tasty supply these next weeks and are reasonably priced right now. Soft fruits are in good supply, but prices are not as low as we all would want them. Wait to buy soft fruits until they are a few days old and the markets are trying to get rid of them. If they are right, look them into compotes or fruit sauces for ice creams and pies.

Mesquite adds spice to barbecue

By GERRI KOBREN, Baltimore Sun

"Hant you think you know it all, do you? You think there's nothing new under the sun, or under the hood of your super-deluxe covered kettle charcoal cooker? You think the old taste-buds have had their last tingle? Well, do we have a surprise for you.

It's called mesquite, and all kinds of foodies—entirely in New York and California—are tossing it into the cooking fires. Magazines aimed at the upscale culinary set have been rapturous about the stuff, and folks who've tried it are apt to pat their tummies and smack their lips, and utter adjectives like: Mmmmmmm.

That's not a lot to go on, unless you know and trust the mmmmmmer a lot. You could, of course, try to look it up in some reliable source: what or a shrubby tree, indigenous to South and Central America and the southwestern United States; it belongs to the pea family, and produces a pulpy pod and a flower much beloved of bees. Its wood is quite hard and is sometimes used for furniture.

So there you are, all of you barbecuers who thought there was nothing new under the sun. To turn those jaded palates on to the subtle pleasures of mesquite, you will take a handful of nuggets, soak them for 20 minutes or more, toss them in among your regular charcoal briquets, then stand back and sniff the woody, smoky, wonderful aroma, knowing as you do so that it is permeating your food with that same wonderful woodsmoke.

But don't expect your guests to give you adjectives. Be content with a pat and a smack and a meaningful mmmmmmm.

Here is a recipe for Texas Barbequed Beef Brisket, credited to Congressman Jim Wright (D-Texas), Majority Leader in the U.S. House of Representatives.

- Texas Barbequed Beef Brisket
4 to 5 pounds beef brisket
1 cup soy sauce
1/4 cup lemon juice
1/2 ounces beer or more
1/4 pound butter
1 clove garlic, minced
1 onion, minced
2 jalapeno peppers, seeded and diced
1 can tomato sauce
Dash Tabasco sauce
Worcestershire sauce to taste
Coffee, optional
Salt and lemon pepper
Paprika
Cayenne
Garlic powder

Hickory chips, mesquite chips, or oak bark soaked in water for 30 minutes, plus charcoal
Marinate the beef overnight in the soy sauce, lemon juice and 1/4 cup of beer. Remove meat and use marinade as base for the barbecue sauce.
In a large saucepan, heat the butter and add the garlic, onion, peppers, tomato sauce, Tabasco and Worcestershire to taste.
Bring to boil and add the marinade and remaining beer. Simmer slowly at least 2 hours, thinning if necessary with beer or coffee (yes, coffee).
Prepare a covered grill by making a heavy foil pan to catch the drippings. Place this in the center of the grill and bank the charcoal on the sides. When the coals are hot, put brisket on the grill 12 to 18 inches above the fire and sprinkle with the seasonings and baste with the thin sauce.
Sprinkled soaked hickory or other chips over the coals and cover the grill. Smoke the meat, covered, 2 1/2 to 3 hours, turning the meat every 20 minutes, and basting with the sauce. Sprinkle with additional seasonings twice.
Add additional charcoal and soaked hickory chips as necessary.
Slice the brisket and pass with any remaining barbecue sauce augmented with pan drippings.
Serves 8 to 10.

'Stocker' reveals advantages of stocking up on bargains

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

Dear Martin: I am a "stocker," which means I stock up on bargains. Many times I wonder why I don't do this more often. The time it takes to stock up on supermarket items.

Last night I decided to all down and write out my reasons. After I finished, I was satisfied that my reasons were good ones. Here they are:

1. What would happen if my car broke down and getting to the supermarket became a problem? It would be a much smaller problem for me because of all the food I have in my "personal store."

2. What would happen if the "breadwinner" in my family was laid off or couldn't work for a while? Having a stock-of-food-would-help keep the money bills to a minimum.

3. When unexpected guests drop in, my well-supplied stock of food turns a potential embarrassment into a prideful achievement.

4. When I come home from vacation, tired and hungry, I need to rush out to the store and spend another small fortune.

5. If there was a natural disaster and food couldn't be delivered to my area for a few days, I would have no problem.

6. No one likes to think about things like this, but having a stock gives a person great peace of mind. I am sure your readers can think of other reasons, and of course, it makes good money-saving sense. Colleen Pirex, Independence, Mo.

Dear Colleen: Inflation at the checkout counter has eased substantially, but food prices are still going up.

7. That's why I continue to advise smart shoppers that stocking up on supermarket bargains is a gold "plated" investment.

Dear Martin: The manager of my local Shop-Rite supermarket suggested that if I had a list of coupons for one product and decided to stock up on it, I should inform him of this before I took the items off the shelf. He can then bring up more stock, so I can get that need, and other shoppers won't be disappointed that a popular item is out of stock.

8. For example, I wanted to purchase three cases of Carnation Evaporated Milk, but I knew that this would deplete his shelf stock considerably. Several days before my shopping trip, I called to let him know that I needed the milk and asked him to be sure to have enough on hand. He was very pleased that I had done so considerate. And the shopping trip went particularly well. Dolores McIntyre, Hyde Park, N.Y.

Dear Dolores: Many shoppers do not realize that supermarkets keep almost all of their merchandise on the shelves, and that is "in little bit" no being supply in the storage areas of the store.

9. A shopper who comes in and empties a shelf of a product will probably cause that item to be out of stock for several days. Because of this, a shipment is received from the supermarket's warehouse the following day. That's why phoning the manager and letting him know of your plans to stock up, makes a lot of sense.

Implant surgery brings grief

DEAR ABBY: I could have written that letter signed "Wants to Love Again." The writer had had silicone implants to enlarge her breasts, and a year later her breasts were hard as rocks!

I had that operation four years ago and today my breasts are so hard I hate to embrace my own children. I'm an affectionate person who always enjoyed hugging my friends, but now I avoid close-body contact with everyone. I am devastated.

You told "Wants to Love Again" to go back to the doctor who performed her operation and have it done over. This is very expensive, but help from health insurance. Also, the results cannot be guaranteed.

So many women (myself included) had this done to please our husbands only to find ourselves divorced and left with a condition that makes it impossible to engage in physical intimacy with a man. Maybe it was a coincidence, but my husband stopped loving me as soon as my breasts got hard.

I would like to hear how men feel about this operation. Sign me.
DEAR WANTS TO LOVE AGAIN, TOO
DEAR ABBY: I have said repeatedly, never have any kind of

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

cosmetic surgery to please another person — only to please yourself. My mail overwhelmingly supports the theory that most men couldn't care less about the size of a woman's breasts. No man who truly loves a woman will stop loving her because her breasts "got hard." (Men continue to love women who have had mastectomies.)

A reputable plastic surgeon will inform all candidates for silicone implants that there's a 25 percent to 50 percent chance that hardening of the breasts will occur.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please tell your readers who are planning a wedding reception or a big party with live music to invite the musicians to eat?

Traveling to the job, setting up and playing from 6 to 8 hours is hard work, and we musicians get hungry. But we never eat our clients' food unless we're invited to, and brown-bagging it is considered tacky.
 —SACRAMENTO MUSICIAN

DEAR MUSICIAN: Request honored. And may you never play to a full house on an empty stomach.

DEAR ABBY: You recently published a letter from a man who needed to accompany his handicapped wife into public washrooms to assist her. He inquired about a tactful way to do so. You suggested that he approach a woman in the restaurant for wherever they might be) to ask her to find out if there are any women in the washroom, and if so advise them (and other women approaching the washroom) that a man needs to go in there to assist his disabled wife. Abby, unless the wife's handicap prevented her from speaking herself (which he made no mention of), she should do the requesting herself. This point is made for two reasons:

First, of all, your answer is prejudicial in assuming that a handicapped person cannot speak for her or himself.

Secondly, a woman in a public place would be far more receptive to a request from another woman (whether handicapped or not) than from a man.
 —KAREN C. OAK PARK, ILL.

DEAR KAREN: You are right on! The face with the egg on it is mine. Why didn't I think of that?

Chameleon-like monitors could replace dating

ITHICA, N.Y. (UPI) — Gauges that change color with time and temperature may replace "sell-by" dates now stamped on the perishable products you find at the supermarket.

Cornell University researchers tested the chameleon-like monitors not only for dairy products but also for meat, fish, frozen foods, pharmaceuticals, chemicals, film and even human blood.

Developed a decade ago for other purposes, the indicators contain an enzyme with a chemical substrate. When a product is packaged, the seal separating the enzyme and substrate is automatically broken, activating the enzyme. As time and temperature effects accumulate, a pH-induced color change occurs.

The monitor begins at green, indicating freshness, and turns yellow if there is possible spoilage of the product. The color red warns spoilage has occurred.

Cornell food scientist Frank Kostikovskii and graduate student Vikram Mistry said they found potatoes still remained acceptable for 10 days at 40 degrees F. and four days if stored at 50 degrees F.

Indians gave Americans strawberries

By ROBERT W. STRUBE
Chicago Sun-Times

Strawberries are among the most popular fruits in the world. The peak strawberry season extends from May through July.

The Indians are credited with giving us corn, but they also gave us strawberries. The English who settled in Massachusetts found the Indians growing and eating strawberries.

When purchasing strawberries, choose berries that look fresh, bright and plump, with full red color. The berries should be free from moisture with green caps attached. One of the best ways to care for strawberries that have to be refrigerated for a day or so is to store them covered with plastic or wax paper in your refrigerator. Do not wash or rinse the berries until you are ready to use them.

Pineapple adds taste of tropics to popular Tostada Salad Salad is easy supper

SAN FRANCISCO — Tropical Tostada Salad is a cool and easy summer supper. Pineapple, chicken and sour cream are a wonderful taste combination.

Here they're mixed with traditional Mexican seasonings and garnishes to create a dish the whole family will enjoy. It goes together quickly, so you don't have to spend a lot of summer fun time in the kitchen.

TROPICAL TOSTADA SALAD

- 1 can (20 oz.) crushed pineapple in juice
- 4 flour tortillas, fried
- Lettuce leaves
- 2 whole chicken breasts, cooked,

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1/2 cup dairy sour cream
- 1/2 cup chopped green onion
- 3 tablespoons diced green chiles
- 1 teaspoon ground cumin
- avocado slices, hot chili peppers

Garnish: tomato wedges, Drain pineapple. Arrange fried tortillas on 4 salad plates. Top with lettuce. Mix chicken with pineapple. Combine mayonnaise, sour cream, onion, green chiles and cumin. Toss with chicken mixture. Spoon over lettuce. Garnish plates with tomato, avocado and peppers. Makes 4 servings.

3-4 slices fresh lemon rind, grated
1/2 cup all-purpose flour, sifted
1/2 teaspoon fresh lemon rind

In a large bowl, cream butter and sugar. Beat in honey and grated lemon rind. Stir in flour. Let dough rest for 5 minutes. For each cookie, place 3 tablespoons dough on baking sheet and flatten with a spoon into a round. Four cookies will fit on a large baking sheet. Cookies will spread. Bake in pre-heated, 375-degree oven for 10 minutes, or until cookies are lightly browned. Remove from oven. Let stand on baking sheet for 3 minutes, or just until cool enough to handle. Roll cookies into cone shapes. 19 cookies are too cool to roll; return to oven for a minute. Place on rack and cool completely.

Filling:

- 1/2 cup whipping cream
- 1/2 teaspoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup fresh strawberries, washed, hulled and halved

In a small bowl, whip cream until soft peaks form. Then beat in sugar and vanilla. Spread a little cream over inside of each cone. Spoon strawberries into cones, top with a dollop of cream and garnish with a strawberry half. Makes 8 strawberry cones.

Packaged cones for ice cream may be used instead of homemade cookie cones.

Don't stop irrigating because of rain showers

The early summer has been cooler and wetter than usual, reducing irrigation requirements. For the rest of the summer, regular and thorough irrigation will be more important. Summer rain showers can be deceiving. They seldom produce more than a fraction of an inch of rain. Most plants require one to three inches of water per week during mid-summer. It is rather simple to calculate the amount of water that is applied by your own particular sprinkler system. Simply place some straight-sided cans at varying distances from the sprinkler head. Turn on the water for a specific amount of time, and then measure the amount of water collected. This will tell you how long you must irrigate to apply an inch of water.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

Different plants require different amounts and frequencies of irrigation, depending upon the depth and type of root system. Weather and soil type also influence irrigation needs. Lawns have roots that extend up to six inches deep. By watering to the full depth of the root system and allowing the soil to dry between waterings, roots are encouraged to grow more deeply. In sandy soils, a half-inch of water will wet the soil to a depth of six inches. A heavy clay soil will require an inch of water to wet to the same depth. During hot, dry weather, lawns in sandy soils may require water every three days. Clay soils may go almost as long between irrigations. The water-absorbing roots of trees are mainly in the top two feet of soil. Two to four inches of water is needed to adequately water trees. This can be accomplished by making a basin or saucer around the tree and flooding it with water at monthly intervals. Make the saucer so that water does not stand near the trunk of the tree and cause crown rot. A saucer hole also can be placed around the tree near the outer edge of the branches and allowed to run for several hours. Research has shown that young trees will grow about twice as fast if no grass or weeds are allowed to grow within a three-foot-diameter circle around the tree. This area can be cultivated or sprayed with a wood killer like Roundup or Kleenup. Once the weeds and grass have been removed, clipping mulch will prevent most weed regrowth. Frequent irrigation of raspberries and strawberries will increase the size of the fruit. On sandy soils, berries can be watered at two to three-day intervals. On heavier soils, four to five days is about right. Tree fruits can be watered at two- to five-week intervals, depending on tree size and soil type.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College at Rexburg.
