Congressmen admit sex with pages

Studds leaves after his speech

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — A House committee Thursday recommended two congressmen be reprimanded for "improper sexual conduct" with teenage congressional pages.

Rep. Daniel Crane, R-Ill., had sex with a female and Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., with a male, the committee said. Both congressmen admitted the affairs.

Studds acknowledged in a speech on the House floor he is a homosexual and said he made a "very serious error in judgment" 10 years ago.

Crane apologized for his "mistake" and said, "I'm human... I only hope my wife and children will forgive me."

The committee on Standards of Official Conduct, meeting in closed session, voted 11-1 to adopt the recommendations and report of special counsel Joseph Callifano, who conducted a year-long investigation of allegations of sexual misconduct between teenage pages and House members.

Callifano's report said both pages consented to sexual relations with the congressmen and no laws apparently were broken: The pages have left Congress and were not identified. Both told the committee they bear no grudges.

The committee also said James Howarth, the majority chief page in the House Doorkeeper's Office, had an affair with a 17-year-old female page under his direct supervision in 1980. There is evidence Howarth purchased cocaine in the House Democratic cloakroom in 1980, it added.

The report said Studds, 46, who is single, had a sexual relationship in 1975 with a 17-year-old male page, who may have been 16 when the relationship began. It also said Studds, a 10-year House veteran, made sexual advances in 1973 to two other male pages.

The male page testified that his first homosexual relationship was with Studds, after an evening of drinking Cape Codders — a vodka and cranberry juice mix — at the congressman's Georgetown apartment. The youth told the committee Studds is a "intelligent, witty, gentle man," a transcript showed.

The committee said Crane, 47, who is married and has six children, had a sexual relationship with a 17-year-old female page in 1980.

"I'm sorry that I made a mistake," Crane, who is in his third term in Congress, said in a statement. "It happened three years ago. I'm human, and in no way did I violate my oath of office. I only hope my wife and children will forgive me."

Crane's lawyer described the young woman as "mature beyond her years" and she said in committee testimony she "found the congressman, as an older man, very attractive."

Studds, in his dramatic speech to this, colleagues acknowledging his sexual orientation, said he is not fighting the charges only because the "right to privacy is more important than proving in public the validity of the points I have made."

But he called his action "a very serious error in judgment." He said it involved a brief, mutually voluntary relationship 10 years ago. He said he would hardly call that "sexual misconduct."

"It is not a simple task for any of us to meet adequately the obligations of either public office or private life, let alone both," Studds said. "But these challenges are made substantially more complex when one is, as am I, both an elected public official and gay."

Carrier administration who conducted the committee's investigation, told reporters. "The improper sexual conduct which we have uncovered took place between three and 10 years ago."

"Two members of the House and one current employee were involved in separate incidents. The pages involved have testified that the relationships were consensual," Callifano said.

Discussing the laws of the District of Columbia, where Studds' relationship occurred, and Virginia, where Crane's took place, he said: "These laws do not render the actions of Representative Crane or Representative Studds a crime."

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill said he found the sexual misconduct report "most disturbing," but noted the committee had determined that allegations of widespread sexual misconduct by members of Congress and pages were "groundless."

"The committee made the facts public and recommended that disciplinary action be taken. I accept the committee report as accurate and I consider its recommendations

Water rights contract set

Helps settle Swan Falls issue

By United Press International and The Times-News

BOISE — The Idaho Power Co. and the state reached tentative agreement Thursday on a water-rights contract that would drop the names of about 5,000 irrigators from a lawsuit filed by the utility.

But the proposed agreement, which covers the use of Snake River water, still must be approved by Idaho Power's board of directors and Gov. John Evans, officials say.

Preliminary approval was reached during a meeting Thursday between utility and state attorneys, said Idaho Power spokesman Jim Taney.

The agreement is a result of an Idaho Supreme Court ruling last November. The court decision gave Idaho Power Co. the right to use 3,400 cubic feet of water per second at its Swan Falls dam for hydroelectric purposes during the peak summer irrigation season.

The utility, in an effort to protect that right, then filed suit on March 29 against 7,500 water users it claimed were infringing on its water right.

Under the contract — the negotiations for which were authorized by the Legislature this year — the utility would drop from its suit all but about 2,200 irrigators, Taney said.

Included on the roster of those who will be exempt from the suit are those who have been pumping river water since before the Supreme Court ruling, as well as those who already have made a substantial investment in a pumping system, officials say.

In exchange, the state would agree to protect Idaho Power from any complaints the utility's customers might file accusing the utility of giving away its water.

Pipeline problems close five reactors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission Thursday ordered five nuclear power plants shut down because of growing evidence of pipe cracks in crucial reactor cooling water lines.

The plants must undergo costly inspections and possible repairs of the massive piping systems that could take several months.

At least 11 other plants, all of them boiling water reactors, also have experienced potentially dangerous corrosion cracking in their major cooling pipes, the four commissioners were told at a staff briefing.

All of those 11 already are either closed for repairs or have been fixed, however, and are back in operation.

A major part of the repair cost stems from the need to purchase replacement electric power when the reactor is shut down. Replacement power can cost a utility company $500,000 to $1 million a day.

The commissioners ordered the shutdowns after a highly technical briefing by staff experts on the history and current status of the pipe-cracking problem.

The five plants ordered closed for inspection are: Quad Cities, Decatur, Ala.; Browns Ferry 2, Southport, N.C.; Dresden 3, Morris, Ill.; and Pilgrim 1, Plymouth, Mass.

Harold Denton, NRC director of reactor regulation, reported that 16 boiling water reactors are "at risk" for water "reactors" as far as suspected for cracks. 11 were found to have significant "intergranular stress corrosion cracking" in their large piping — pipes 12 inches to 28 inches in diameter.

Blind trust

What looks like a game of blind man's buff is actually part of treatment at the Port of Hope, off Second Avenue North in Twin Falls.

Residents there took "trust walks" this week as a way of learning to trust others. One resident, center, gave directions to two others while leading them through the downtown and back. The walks are designed to restore a sense of trust that alcoholism destroys.

Rural interests win battle against time

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House, bowing to rural lawmakers, Thursday defeated legislation to extend daylight-saving time an extra two months each year.

The 211-199 defeat, apparently killing the issue for this Congress, came as a surprise. The House previously had passed such legislation, only to see it die in the Senate.

But rural lawmakers, mainly from the Midwest and the north central tier of states, launched a lobbying campaign, complaining bitterly that school children would be placed in jeopardy waiting in the predawn darkness and farmers would be harmed.

"Dairy farmers resent having to operate by the one time frame when the rest of society operates by another time frame, especially if they hold a job-in-a-factory," said Rep. Thomas Tauke, R-Iowa.

The legislation would have required those states that choose daylight time turn clocks forward on the first Sunday in March each year instead of the last Sunday in April. Clocks would continue to be turned back on the last Sunday in October — the same as at present.

The House first passed 221-187 an amendment by Rep. Dan Coats, R-Ind., to allow states to exempt themselves from the two extra months-of-daylight time while continuing to observe the other six months.

But even that was not enough to attract enough votes to pass the bill. The debate generally became a rural-urban battle, although some prominent rural lawmakers supported the extended time.

"I've never had a calf come to me and oppose daylight-saving time," replied Rep. G.V. Montgomery, D-Miss., one of several who said that farmers will continue to begin work at dawn.

"The cows are going to get up at the same time in the morning," said Rep. Carlom Moorhead, D-Calif. Farm animals will continue to "live by the laws of nature and not the law of the clock," he said.

Volcker to hold tight reins on money supply

By DONALD H. MAY
United Press International

PAUL VOLCKER
May not finish term

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker Thursday told a Senate confirmation hearing that possible Fed actions raising interest rates now could avert bigger increases later on.

Volcker told the Senate Banking Committee the Fed already has tightened somewhat its monetary policy and also surprised some members by his saying he is not committed to serving out his new four-year term.

President Reagan, following a long internal administration debate, announced June 18 he would nominate the 6-foot-7 Volcker, to serve another term as the 600,000-a-year head of the Federal Reserve Board.

The decision was happily received on Wall Street as offering continuity in the economy struggle back from the recession. The Fed's tight-money policies under Volcker's leadership have been credited with helping chop down the inflation rate from double digits.

Although Senate approval of the nomination is virtually certain, senators used the hearing to question Volcker on several topics — including the Fed's plans for the future and his intended tenure in the key post.

Volcker, first appointed Fed chairman by President Carter in August 1979, said he would serve "a substantial length of time," but has not promised to finish the four years.

"I didn't want to commit myself to necessarily serve a full term," he said.

Pushing his usual sign, Volcker told the committee the Fed already has tightened its monetary policy somewhat. That's a topic of concern because of fears that reluctance to expand the money supply could choke off the recovery.

"Our policy in the last month or so has been slightly less accommodating," he said.

He declined to discuss policy decisions made in a closed meeting Tuesday and Wednesday by the Federal Open Market Committee, the Fed's main policy-making body. But he said, "I don't think you'll find those decisions terribly dramatic."

Volcker will reveal those decisions next week when he makes a formal, semi-annual report to committees of Congress.

Chairman Jake Garn, R-Utah, said the banking committee will not vote on Volcker's confirmation until it receives that report.

While Volcker did not say whether the Fed plans any further monetary tightening — which would temporarily raise interest rates — he did say that such action is taken it could lead to a healthier economy and lower interest rates in the long run.

"Sometimes a restraining action in the short run will be just the thing that's necessary to avert the risks of a much bigger rise in interest rates later," Volcker said, "and that's of course the kind of question we have to raise for ourselves right now."

"If we permit the inflationary process to get started again you're clearly going to have higher interest rates."

Volcker declined to make any prediction for interest rates in the short run. In the long run, he said, "if we maintain progress against inflation, over time interest rates will decline."

He told the panel Congress' failure to cut federal budget deficits — now about $200 billion year — is the biggest threat to sustained recovery. He noted that amount of red-ink means the government is borrowing $750 million on the average working day.

Briefly

Conviction in spanking death.
MORGANTOWN, W.Va. (UPI) — A county jury Thursday found Leslie Green guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the 1982 paddling death of her 2-year-old son, Joseph.

Mrs. Green, 25, showed no emotion during the reading of the verdict but later put her head on a table and sobbed. Her husband, Stuart, who had pleaded guilty to involuntary manslaughter in May, accompanied her.

Medical authorities said the boy had paddling given the child increased blood flow to his injured buttocks, causing his organs to fail. He died of shock.

Mopongalla County Circuit Judge Frank DePond scheduled sentencing for Aug. 2 and raised Mrs. Green's bond from $1,000 to $5,000. Her lawyers, Joseph Skinner and Edward Friend, said the bond would be raised.

Religious leaders arrested.
ALLEGAN, Mich. (UPI) — The leader of the House of Judah religious camp, his son and two other male followers were arrested Thursday night on charges of allegedly beating children of sect members.

Arrested on warrants issued by the Allegan County prosecutor were self-described prophet William A. Lewis, 61, his son William L. Lewis, 38, Theodore Jones, 39, and Robert McGee, 29.

All were charged with cruelty to children. The four were being held in the Allegan County Jail and were to be arraigned Friday morning.

The 66 children from the camp were removed under court order and placed in temporary foster homes last week following an investigation into the July 4 death of a 12-year-old boy.

Man charged in wildlife case.
BOISE (UPI) — A Cambridge man has been indicted on seven counts of illegal interstate shipment of several species of desert wildlife, including three poisonous gila monsters that allegedly were mailed in an unlabeled container.

A U.S. District Court grand jury alleged this week that Jerry Korn, 31, illegally mailed the poisonous reptiles in June 1981 in violation of federal and Arizona laws.

Korn also is charged with violating federal laws by shipping 13 desert iguanas, 56 edible chuckwallows, three fringe-toed lizards and two zebra-tailed lizards.

The seventh count alleged the southwestern Idaho resident illegally received and sold an eastern Indigo snake, which is classified as a threatened species.

NAACP dumps chairwoman.
NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — The NAACP Board of Directors Thursday night removed Margaret Bush Johnson as chairwoman, blinding ending a leadership fight that has consumed much of the black organization's attention for three months.

Executive Director Benjamin Hooks said the board assigned all of Mrs. Wilson's duties to Vice Chairman Kelly Alexander of Charlotte, N.C., a strong Hooks supporter during the organizational feud.

Mrs. Wilson skipped out a back door following the board's afternoon-long session and could not be reached for comment.

FBI rescues kidnap victim.
MIAMI (UPI) — FBI agents rescued the wife of a former Salvadoran ambassador from kidnappers in Washington late Thursday and officials said they were moving in to make more arrests in Miami, where the woman was abducted Friday.

FBI spokesman Christopher Mazzella said Cecilia Salazar-Quiroz, 33, the wife of the former Salvadoran ambassador to the United States, Roberto Quiroz, was rescued by FBI agents in an unannounced move in Washington.

"The victim was rescued by FBI agents at a place she was held captive the last four to five days," Mazzella said. "We're in the process of making arrests in Washington and Miami. We've made three or four in Washington and they're still looking for a few, probably three, in Miami."

BLM wants to unload land.
COEUR D'ALENE (UPI) — A U.S. Bureau of Land Management official said Thursday the agency wants to get rid of more than 11,000 acres it controls in northern Idaho because the property is burdensome to administer.

Jack O'Brien, chief of the BLM's Coeur d'Alene resource division, said the parcels marked for disposal are a "hodgepodge" of parcels because "they are odd-shaped among property that is privately owned, just sprinkled here and there. They just can't be managed properly."

The BLM manages about 250,000 acres from Lewiston north to the Idaho-Canada border. O'Brien told people during the second of a series of public meetings on the Coeur d'Alene BLM District's land-disposal program.

None of the land will be for sale until 1985 and no appraisals are available yet, O'Brien said. He said 3,600 acres are to be offered for public sale, 2,700 acres will be designated for exchange with the state, and 4,800 acres will be exchanged for privately owned land primarily that owned by Potlatch Corp.

Jury alleges scam on slots.
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A federal grand jury Thursday indicted 10 people on conspiracy and interstate transportation charges in what prosecutors called one of the major slot machine cheating rings in the state's history.

The indictment charged the 10 with using keys, magnets, "blocks," and other devices to manipulate the reels of slot machines into a winning jackpot position at a number of casinos.

for disciplinary action necessary," O'Neil said.

Calliano is continuing an investigation of drug use on Capitol Hill.

The panel recommended that Studts and Crane should be reprimanded by the full House and that disciplinary action be taken against Howarth.

A reprimand, it agreed to by the full House, has no effect on a congressman's voting rights. The last reprimands came in 1976, when three congressmen were cited by the House for their actions in the South Korean influence-buying scandal.

House Republican leader Bob Michel of Illinois said, "It is now up to the full House to make its judgment and act accordingly." Crane's lawyer said he expects the House to act next week.

The committee report outlined both congressmen's sexual relationships.

It said the Studts relationship began in the spring of 1973 during the first term. It said Studts, at the time 36, was introduced by another page to the teenager at a restaurant.

On a subsequent dinner at Studts' apartment, the panel quoted the page as saying, "Studs said he was too drunk to drive the page home and the pair had sex. They later took a 2 1/2-week trip to Europe together, the committee said. The teenager paid his own way, it added.

In the Crane case, the committee report said the female page testified she had made a friendly wager over a basketball game with Crane for a six-pack of beer in the winter of 1979. The page lost the bet, but Crane invited her to his apartment to have a drink one night; the page testified.

The page slept with Crane that night at his apartment and on three or four other occasions, the report said.

"The page stated that she had found the congressman as an older man, very attractive, and that perhaps she was more responsible for the sexual relationship than he was," the report said. "She did not blame Representative Crane."

Taney said he did not know when the contract would receive final approval.

The irrigators who will not be helped by the project are those with more than 2,000 water users who started using Snake River water, or filed water claims, after the state Supreme Court ruling. These irrigators still will be affected by the pending lawsuit.

The general category of water users who may find themselves in legal limbo, Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, told The Times-News earlier this week that irrigators and ranchers who tapped into the Snake River after a March 1963 state law went into effect still would be affected by the suit if they had not acquired the water-development permits stipulated by the law.

The number of water users in this category is unknown.

According to Noh, these users have been operating illegally and when they attempt to register their water rights under a new state law, these rights may be challenged by Idaho Power authorities.

Idaho Power officials confirmed earlier this week that they were considering action against such irrigators, but there was no mention of this situation in Thursday's agreement.

Meanwhile, the State Water Board is studying a plan to purchase Swan Falls Dam from Idaho Power, as one way of ensuring adequate water for future agricultural development.

Today's weather

National Weather Service Forecast to 7 p.m. EST 7-15-83

Cloudy and cool, chance of showers

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding areas will be partly cloudy today and Saturday, with a slight chance of showers. Unseasonably cool. Highs 65 to 72; lows 40 to 45.

Camas-Prater, Halley, Wood-River Valley: Unseasonably cool today and Saturday. Partly cloudy, with a slight chance of showers. Highs 58 to 65; lows tonight in the 30s.

Northern Nevada and Utah: Sunny today, becoming partly cloudy this afternoon in Nevada. Utah forecast indicates much cooler this afternoon and Saturday, with a few rain showers at times.

Much cooler weather with some showers will prevail over the entire state today and Saturday. A cold front extended through the central portion of the system, which pushed on out of the state later in the evening, brought showers, a few thunderstorms and brief wind gusts up to 50 mph.

As the system moved through Salmon on Thursday afternoon, the temperature plunged 23 degrees, from 81 to 58. In just over an hour, also, wind gusts of over 50 mph were reported in Salmon and 40 mph gusts in Mountain View.

Cold air aloft associated with the low-pressure system has lowered the snow level over the state to 7,500 feet. Heavy snow was reported falling in the higher elevations of the west-central mountains at mid-day on Thursday.

Strong winds swept across the southern half of the state on Thursday. Sustained winds of 15 to 30 mph were common, with locally stronger gusts in the vicinity of the front.

Temperatures on Thursday afternoon were much cooler than Wednesday's readings. The greatest cooling was in the southwest, where Boise's 3 p.m. reading, at 53 degrees, was 39 degrees cooler than that of the day before.

The highest temperature in the state on Thursday was 81 degrees at Malad, while Deadwood had the low of 41 degrees.

The agricultural outlook shows that total precipitation over the next five days will be 10 to 20 of an inch, with heavier amounts in mountain valleys. The best chances for showers will be Saturday and again Monday.

Daily average evaporation rates will be between 23 and 28 through Tuesday. Winds for spraying will be 10 to 20 mph today and 10 to 14 mph on Saturday.

Temperatures elsewhere in the nation on Thursday ranged from a high of 114 in Palm Springs, Calif., to a low of 42 in Alamosa, Colo.

Prayer bills to Senate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Judiciary Committee sent two school-prayer constitutional amendments to the floor Thursday without endorsing either the version backed by President Reagan or one providing only for silent prayer.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, sponsor of the silent-prayer version, complained that unnamed outside groups in their "zeal" for the version they got Reagan to accept had diminished chances for approval of either. Reagan's modification would prohibit any government official from composing the prayer. Committee Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., warned last month the president's original proposal lacked votes because of the authorship issue.

Panel sets rules for Carter paper probe

TIP O'NEILL Against Inquiry

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With House Speaker Thomas O'Neill voicing opposition to the inquiry, a splintered congressional subcommittee Thursday adopted formal rules for its investigation of how Ronald Reagan's 1980 campaign obtained Carter White House papers.

At the same time, a lawyer representing the subcommittee chaired by Rep. Donald Albosta, D-Mich., moved closer to an agreement with the White House under which the panel would gain access to Reagan's campaign files without issuing a subpoena, Albosta's aides said.

The stacks of campaign files are stored in a warehouse where they are being reviewed by a team of FBI agents investigating possible theft of White House materials or other criminal activities.

James Hamilton, who was assistant chief counsel to the Senate Watergate Committee and is expected to become the special counsel to Albosta's subcommittee, is negotiating with White House Counsel Fred Fielding on behalf of the panel.

Hamilton was seen leaving the White House Thursday. A White House spokesman confirmed that Hamilton met with Fielding.

O'Neill told reporters he met with Albosta Wednesday night and asserted the Post Office and Civil Service subcommittee lacks jurisdiction to lead a congressional probe of campaign practices. O'Neill said any such investigation should be handled by the Judiciary Committee.

"I have told him (Albosta), 'Don't overstep your bounds,'" O'Neill said. "He doesn't have investigatory rights."

He said any subpoenas or "extra staff for the inquiry must be approved by the full Post Office and Civil Service Committee, chaired by Albosta's Michigan Democratic colleague, William Ford.

A source close to Ford described him as being "between a rock and a hard place," noting Ford is both "extremely loyal and in tune with Tip (O'Neill) and extremely supportive" of Albosta.

He feels Albosta's doing the right thing. The source said, noting Ford already has provided the human resources subcommittee with two experienced investigators.

Tapes in Morgan home reportedly 'innocuous'

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Several videotapes were found in Vicki Morgan's condominium by detectives investigating her murder but her lawyer said Thursday the material appeared "innocuous" and did not reveal government officials in sex acts.

Attorney Michael Dave said a partial review of the tapes indicated they contained only movies, news and entertainment programs recorded from a television and "nothing that even resembles a home movie."

Dave, who represented Miss Morgan, 30, before her death and now represents her family and estate, characterized the material on the tapes as "innocuous."

Police Sgt. William Welch said there were a number of video cassettes in Miss Morgan's condominium and they were released with her belongings to the victim's family — before Beverly Hills attorney Robert K. Steinberg claimed he had viewed tapes showing government officials in sex acts.

"Mike Dave has assured me that the tapes are purely innocuous," there is nothing on them that relates to any of this (sex)," Welch said in a telephone interview. "I have asked Mike Dave to hold on to the tapes, just in case they should become relevant."

Dave refused to specify exactly how many videotapes were turned over to the family, but stressed he believed the "sex tapes" described by Steinberg did not exist.

Reagan scores one more B-1 win

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Just a day after overwhelmingly endorsing the B-1 bomber, the Senate handed President Reagan another victory Thursday by approving advance funding for the program.

The Senate voted 56-41 to approve a multiyear contract sought by the Pentagon to finance production of the B-1 for three years, and to reaffirm a production schedule providing the last of the 100 bombers would be completed in 1988.

Normally, Congress approves only one-year weapons production contracts.

The Senate acted during its fourth day of work on a comprehensive military spending bill that would authorize nearly $200 billion in 1984 for procurement, research and development, operation and maintenance, civil defense, military construction, and Energy Department weapons programs.

But by early evening, it still had not tackled the issue that has loomed over the chamber since debate began Monday: whether to approve production funds for the MX missile.

In an apparently coordinated effort to draw out debate, none of the Democratic opponents of the intercontinental nuclear-weapon had introduced MX amendments by late afternoon.

In addition, Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., introduced a controversial nuclear freeze resolution, which has been held up in the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, as an amendment to the military bill.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker warned he may file a petition seeking to limit debate unless some MX amendments surface, and repeated his warning of a rare Saturday session to complete the bill this week.

Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., and a half-dozen or so others have promised extensive debate on the MX issue, with Hart promising to hold the floor "as long as I can."

Group wants spacemen

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Citizens Against UFO Secrecy filed a "Writ of Habeas Corpus Extraterrestrial" to force the government to release more than a dozen ETs supposedly found in crashed flying saucers, the group's director said Thursday.

"We want the bodies," said Larry Bryant, a 45-year-old Alexandria, Va. writer. "But we'll take whatever information we can get, including whether the bodies are dead or alive."

Bryant, who heads the Washington, D.C.-based group he said is an umbrella organization for various UFO groups, said he filed the petition to get more information about bodies reportedly found in saucer crashes — most of them in New Mexico.

"What our petition aims to do, simply, is to perform a 'citizen's disarrest' — to make the government account, formally and fully, for their capture of one or more UFO crewmen that have the misfortune of falling into U.S. military hands," he said.

The legal document, accepted last week by the U.S. District Court in the District of Columbia, claims Air Force Secretary Verne Orr and the U.S. attorney general are "maintaining secret custody over one or more occupants of crashed landed UFO's of apparent extraterrestrial origin."

It includes a photocopy of a recently released purported March 22, 1950, government memorandum stating: "An investigator for the Air Force stated that three 'saucer' flying saucers had been recovered in New Mexico."

"Each one was occupied by three bodies of human shape but only 3 feet tall, dressed in metallic cloth of very fine texture. Each body was bandaged in a manner similar to the blackout suits used by speed flyers and test pilots."

Chileans again stir against the military

The military dictatorship of Gen. Augusto Pinochet must be shaking in its boots this week to learn that despite years of repression, there is a vocal and apparently growing sentiment for genuine democracy in Chile.

That also must be of concern to the Central Intelligence Agency, which played a major role in the downfall of Chile's Marxist leader, Salvador Allende, a decade ago. Allende, the Western Hemisphere's only popularly elected communist leader, was removed from office forcibly and probably murdered in a right-wing coup supported openly by the Nixon administration and the CIA.

For a time, it appeared, Pinochet's strong-arm tactics worked. Chilean workers seemed cowed, and the regime survived, if it didn't prosper.

Events this spring have changed that situation. First, the government jailed a popular union and opposition political leaders, blocking a broad-based demand for more participation in the affairs of state.

This week, the tempo increased. Opposition politicians brought out huge street demonstrations against the Pinochet regime, despite a tough curfew and censorship of coverage in the nation's press. At least two persons were shot by troops and hundreds were arrested.

Given the past record, members of the latter group may well "disappear" in government jails, as did thousands of Allende supporters and officials after the Pinochet coup.

In a nation like Chile, the desire for freedom is strong. Like water finding its way down through cracks in solid rocks, it can be detoured, but not prevented.

Ten years of repression under Pinochet have not seemed to divert its presence from Chilean society, which now bristles with outpourings of support for democracy.

The United States has an opportunity, as it has had before, to align itself with the forces of progressive change in this process. But as in the past, we suspect the chance may be lost by our own government's rabid fear of a return to an Allende-style government in Chile.

So American policy may remain captive of the Pinochet regime, supporting an oppressive dictatorship that no more represents the people of Chile today than it did a decade ago when it seized power.

That is unfortunate, for all across Central and South America, people are stirring for change, and the opportunity is ripe for the United States to forge new relationships, not old ones in old patterns.

NEXT DEBATE EPISODE: IN A DIM WASHINGTON PARKING GARAGE, REPORTERS BERNWARD AND WOODSTEIN KEEP A DATE WITH THE CARTER WHITE HOUSE MOLE...

Check ruling corrects earlier mistake

WASHINGTON — Even the Supreme Court's most ardent conservative supporters quietly recoiled two years ago when it upheld a life sentence for a repeat offender who had passed a $35 bad check.

The court ruled that the life sentence, imposed on a Texas man under that state's repeat-offender law, did not amount to cruel and unusual punishment.

Fortunately, some of the justices who were in the majority in that decision have since realized it was a moral — if not a constitutional — barbarity. So the court — in an almost instant case — now has reversed itself. It recently ruled that it was unconstitutional to impose a life sentence on a South Dakota man to jail for life under a repeat-offender law for having passed a $100 bad check.

The Texas decision of two years ago relied on the "strict constructionist" philosophy of not interfering with the criminal justice powers of individual states as long as their laws do not violate the federal Constitution. The court's right wing might have been expected to applaud, since the ruling was a classic example of conservative constitutional philosophy — states rights, tough on crime.

But there were few cheers from Chief Justice Warren Burger's allies. They generally maintained a disapproving silence. There was something too brutal about sending a man to jail for life for such a common and non-violent crime involving such a small amount of money.

And the gentle Virginia civility of Justice Lewis F. Powell, who voted with the majority in the Texas case, apparently has remained disturbed by the harsh result.

So, over the protests of Burger, Powell wrote the recent 5-4 majority decision that corrects what many would say was the inhumane Texas decision. The court said it was cruel and unusual punishment, violating the Constitution's Eighth Amendment to send the South Dakota man to jail for life for passing a "no-account check" for $100 during a drinking spree.

The decision rested on a technical difference between the repeat-offender laws of the two states. In both the Texas case and the South Dakota case, the men had been convicted previously of non-violent crimes. The Texas defendant had fewer previous convictions (two) to the South Dakota man's six.

In both cases, bad checks were involved. The Texas defendant had defrauded for only $35, compared with the South Dakota man's $100. So in terms of previous convictions and the amounts of money involved, the Texas man would seem — if anything — MORE deserving of leniency.

Why, then, is the Texas check-passer's life sentence not cruel and unusual, while the South Dakota man's is?

Because, Powell says, the two state repeat-offender laws have one difference. In Texas, the life sentence is normally subject to parole after 12 years. In South Dakota, there is no parole for a life sentence — though the governor can and does regularly commute jail sentences in place of parole. Powell says a life sentence in Texas usually amounts to 12 years, while in South Dakota it often is 20 years.

It seems clear Powell's legal justification is more cosmetic than real. There is no certainty in Texas that parole will be given. The life sentence of a particular prisoner could easily last 20 years, just as in South Dakota.

And it is possible under the South Dakota law to receive a commutation and serve less time than a Texas offender who is denied parole. The real reason the Supreme Court reversed itself is a matter of simple conscience. Powell says a life sentence, in order not to be cruel and unusual, cannot be "disproportionate" to the crime.

This is simply another way of saying the justices will use their own consciences to decide whether a sentencing law is unfair and ought to be declared unconstitutional.

Burger wrote a lengthy dissent. He noted acutely that the court had specified in the Texas case that "the length of a jail sentence actually imposed is purely a matter of (state) legislative prerogative" which the Supreme Court should not second-guess based on its own ideas of fairness.

Fortunately, a majority of the court ignored this. The chief justice — instead of dissenting — should be proud of his court for effectively admitting its earlier mistake. It is such intellectual honesty that keeps the U.S. Supreme Court in high regard among the nation's citizens.

Jack Landau writes on the law for Newhouse News Service.

Reagan's words, deeds give clear message: he's running

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's top aides do not know how to say it louder or more clearly than they have: "He's running."

But the timing for Reagan's announcement to the world that he wants a second term in the White House is what is confusing. He has made all the moves of a candidate, and yet maintained his presidential demeanor.

In a recent interview, pointedly limited to how he views the age factor and how he enjoys his job, Reagan made it plain he will seek re-election, and feels that he is physically up to the job.

Much as he seeks the seclusion and solace of his mountain ranch for renewal, he feels he would be bored if he decided to opt for retirement at the age of 73.

When brought into the White House, Republican leaders have been pacified with broad hints from Reagan that they will be happy with his decision. When the president goes to his Santa Barbara ranch for a vacation in August, he is expected to meet with various GOP state chairmen who will fly in for a chat. He also will huddle with his top political advisers at that time. But even then, aides are expecting Reagan to hold off his formal announcement until around Thanksgiving.

Vice President George Bush has been told by Reagan that he wants him in the No. 2 spot on the ticket, and Bush seems to be happy about that. In recent weeks, the president has been highly visible on the road and has picked a top aide believe will be a hot one in the campaign — promoting excellence in public schools.

There are other signs in the wind. The administration is suddenly moving in the direction of more restrictive action in the civil rights field with the school desegregation suit against Alabama. The proposed amendments to fair housing laws also create a new aura for the administration.

With the economy on the upswing, Reagan feels he has a springboard to seek re-election. Hence he and other administration officials are strongly urging that there be no increase in interest rates, which they feel could inhibit economic recovery.

Reagan still has a problem with the so-called "fairness" issue and the wide perception that he is a "rich man's president." But he is trying to overcome that and feels that his personal acquaintance with the Great Depression make him well aware of economic hardship.

Reagan also has some fence mending to do with women voters. The polls show that women do not feel that he is sympathetic to their concerns, and his opposition to the Equal Rights Amendment has hurt him with women activists.

Although he has appointed two women in the Cabinet and one on the Supreme Court, he has a hard time convincing women that he has given the same break to some of his predecessors.

So far, none of Reagan's political supporters feels that he has been hurt politically by the investigation of how President Carter's campaign briefing book and other documents landed in the hands of the Reagan team in 1980. Reagan has taken the high ground in demanding a "full and complete and total" investigation by the Justice Department.

The president has some aces up his sleeve that could raise his political stock before November 1984. By that time, he could achieve an arms reduction treaty with the Soviet Union and claim that it is much better than SALT II, the pact that Jimmy Carter and Leonid Brezhnev signed in Vienna in 1979.

A summit meeting between Reagan and Soviet President Yuri Andropov also could go a long way in enhancing Reagan's image as a statesman and a peacemaker.

JUSTICE SANDRA O'CONNOR walking the middle

'Half a loaf' describes Justice O'Connor's start

BOSTON — Two years ago, when Sandra Day O'Connor was nominated as the first sister to join The Brethren, Reagan called her a "person for all seasons." The political commentators, on the other hand, called her "a person for all reasons." She was a two-fer: a conservative and a woman.

Now Justice Sandra Day O'Connor has completed her second term at the court with a remarkable finish: She walked down the middle of the road with one foot on each sidewalk. In the Court's closing week, O'Connor cast the swing votes in the Norris pension case.

First she agreed with one quartet of justices that pension plans can't pay smaller monthly benefits to women than to men. Then she agreed with the other quartet of justices that this decision should not be retroactive, that equality would start from today.

As Judith Lichtman of the Women's Legal Defense Fund reads it, "She gave us half a loaf." And this is, in many ways, a decent summary of the first woman's first two years on the bench.

O'Connor has sliced the legal bread on her table in an intriguing way. In most cases, O'Connor voted with conservative Justice William Rehnquist. Indeed their nickname,

"the Arizona Twins" could be changed to "the Arizona Slamese Twins."

She voted with conservatives on the death-penalty issues, and on many civil-rights issues. She helped narrow the standard for class-action suits and agreed that a plaintiff had to prove an employer's "intent" to discriminate. Finally, in the long-awaited abortion case, she wrote the minority opinion that put calm.

But on issues that were narrowly defined as sex discrimination, O'Connor broke ranks. Her very first Supreme Court opinion, in the Hogan case, ruled that the nursing school at a public university could not be closed to men.

Next she ruled that employees as well as students are protected from discrimination in most of the nation's colleges and universities. This year she agreed with liberals on the Court that employers had to offer the same pregnancy benefits to spouses of male employees as to female employees.

As Georgetown Law Professor Wendy Williams puts it, "It's remarkable how compartmentalized she is. In all areas she gives the view that states should prevail, except in one area: gender discrimination."

There are a host of theories about why Justice O'Connor deserts the conservatives solely on gender issues: Most of them center around her own personal experiences. In a decidedly sheltered life, the only barriers O'Connor has faced are the very ones she has helped to remove: "No Admittance to Women."

One classic tale has been told and retold about O'Connor. Having been graduated from Stanford Law School third in her class, she was refused a position in every major law firm in Southern California except one. They offered her a job as a secretary.

It's also clear that her ambitions in conservative Arizona were limited because of her sex. Since moving to Washington, O'Connor has never again been told the known fact that she would like to join Burning Tree Club, a private club to which other Supreme Court justices belong. The club has not yet admitted a single woman. (You let one female Supreme Court Justice in and you'll have to let them all in.)

Beverly Cook, a professor of political science at the University of Wisconsin/Milwaukee who has been studying women judges for the past six years, analyzes Justice O'Connor this way: "It seems to me that she understands quite fully those things which make it difficult for women of her class and position — higher education, insurance. But pensions aren't very helpful to housewives or the poor."

In general, women's-rights advocates agree that O'Connor is "about as good as you could have gotten out of this administration," but there is disagreement on how much she's likely to change.

Professor Cook sees her as "becoming increasingly isolated from other women. She needs another path, but it's unlikely she'll get it any time soon on the Court." On the other hand, a highly respected woman judge has said, "This is a warm, generous person. Give her a couple of years."

Time is one thing you got for Justice O'Connor's job. Enough time, it's hoped, to find the other half of the loaf.

BRUSSELS, Belgium — An Armenian terrorist fatally shot a Turkish diplomat in the head at a point-blank range Thursday to avenge the massacre of more than 1 million of his countrymen nearly 20 years ago.

Two Armenian nationalist groups set up to retaliate for the 1915 deportation and massacre of as many as 1.5 Armenians living in Turkey claimed responsibility for the assassination of Turkish Embassy Attaché Dursun Aksoy.

Witnesses said a man wearing blue jeans and a striped polo shirt calmly walked up to Aksoy's red and black car, parked near the diplomat's home, fired through the window at point-blank range. The gunman then escaped.

Aksoy, 39, was dead with two bullet wounds to the head by the time an ambulance reached the scene of the attack on the Avenue Franklin Roosevelt in Brussels' fashionable Embassy section, police said. Police said the killer was about 20 to 30 years old.

black hair and moustache, 5 feet 8 inches and heavily built. He was described as a white man of Turkish descent. They also distributed an identical picture of him.

A spokesman for the Belgian prosecutor's office said two 9mm shells were found at the scene of the shooting and two 9mm automatic pistols were found in nearby bushes, indicating an accomplice may have served as a lookout.

After the attack two men were seen running toward a Brussels university campus. One of them threw away a blue jacket and the pair fled into an underground garage.

A few minutes later, two men drove out of the garage in a blue car. The spokesman said they may have been the attackers.

"We have killed one today, and we will kill more Turkish diplomats," a man said later in an anonymous telephone call to the United Press International bureau in Brussels.

Speaking English with a heavy accent in a thick, raspy voice, the caller said the plan was work of the Secret Armenian Army for the Liberation of Armenia.

Another man later telephoned UPI claiming the killing was carried out by the Justice Commandos of Armenian Genocide.

"I am the captain. We are responsible for the attack. The car is an old model Ford, the color metallic gold and the number plate 8837," said the second caller, who spoke a mixture of French and English.

"I give these details because we hear another Armenian revolutionary group is claiming the attack."

Increased protection was ordered at Turkish-owned premises and Foreign Minister Leo Tindemans telephoned Turkish Ambassador Faik Melik to offer condolences following what the foreign ministry called the "cowardly attack."

Aksoy, a father of three described as an administrative attaché, came to Brussels in 1979 and was scheduled to leave in October. His embassy said that in going out alone he ignored standing instructions to Turkish diplomats.

Brazil bailed out

BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — Brazil's newly decreed austerity measures have won the favor of the International Monetary Fund and an agreement will be signed to continue loans to stave off bankruptcy, a government spokesman said Thursday.

Brazilian government ministers and an IMF delegation continued to meet at night to finalize the agreement.

Planning Ministry spokesman Alberto Homsi said: "The meeting continues but I can tell you that the agreement will be signed Monday."

growing unemployment and 127 percent inflation in the last 12 months.

The spokesman did not say what guidelines the IMF would impose.

IMF leader Eduardo Wiesner earlier called the new anti-inflation measures "very important" and said they would help Brazil and the IMF reach agreement to release the remainder of a $4.9 billion loan agreed upon earlier this year.

The IMF had frozen a $411 million installment of the loan since May 31 because Brazil failed to hold down government spending, a requirement that had been demanded.

The accord will cover economic guidelines under which Brazil will try to revive its crippled economy, staggered by an $88 billion foreign debt.

Brazil owes a $60 million payment Friday to the Bank of International Settlements.

Economic cloud hangs over French celebration

PARIS (UPI) — France celebrated Bastille Day with traditional street dances, fireworks and a dazzling military parade, but under a cloud of economic gloom, some spectators yelling "resign!" at President Francois Mitterrand.

Security at the parade, which marked the 14th anniversary of the storming of the Bastille prison and the abolition of the French monarchy, was the heaviest in the memory of observers.

As Mitterrand reviewed the troops down the capital's prestigious Avenue des Champs Elysees, his car was surrounded by the traditional Republican Guards on horseback.

Police stood 10 yards apart and crowds were kept unusually far from the street by metal barriers.

"Resign, Mitterrand!" shouted a few spectators. Others whistled in derision. Police questioned 30 people but made no arrests. Thousands of those attending applauded Mitterrand, however.

Mitterrand's popularity has slumped steadily since taking office two years ago. The latest opinion survey Wednesday in the newspaper France Soir showed only 32 percent of the public approved of his actions.

At a gala reception at the Elysee Palace after the parade, Mitterrand admitted in a television interview

"the difficulties France is encountering and the mounting intolerance."

"He said firmly, 'I expect from the French the same courage in the economic battle that they have shown in military battles.'"

The president added "it broke my heart" that he was forced to cancel two weeks ago the Paris world's fair originally planned to celebrate the revolution's 200th anniversary in 1992.

But Mitterrand did not trim the costly July 14 celebration, dear to the French.

Parisians revelled Wednesday night at lively street dances in fire stations and on six historic squares, including the Place de La Bastille where angry mobs tore down the infamous Bastille prison July 14, 1789.

The 100 deaths marked a violent beginning of the bloody French revolution and the downfall of the monarchy.

Soviets: U.S. halts summit

MOSCOW (UPI) — Washington is preventing a summit meeting between President Reagan and Soviet President Yuri Andropov by waving his "nuclear sword" at the Soviet Union, a U.S. official said Thursday.

"What is required is a certain extent of mutual understanding on major international problems," said Yuri Kornilov, the official Soviet news agency's political analyst.

"What is necessary is undoubtedly the decision from both sides to strive in deed, not in words, for positive changes, and — still better — to a radical turn in the mutual relations," he said.

"I was pointed to the recent U.S. Senate resolution and editorials calling for a summit and said it was evidence of the 'well-justified concern that sober-minded U.S. politicians and the American public feel in connection with the continued aggravation of the international situation.'"

"The news agency said that despite such desires, 'official Washington is doing its utmost to see to it that this discourse be substantiated by making absolutely nothing.'"

"In particular, Reagan's nuclear policy is the biggest obstacle in the path toward a summit, the analyst said.

"He said the United States wants at any cost, to break what they feel is an arms parity in Europe. He said the United States insists on 'having a nuclear sword, long and sharp, to dictate its will and its terms to the other side.'"

"Such an aggressive line does not carry any positive construction and a joint quest for ways of solution of pressing problems, but at heightening of tension and confrontation," the analysis said.

Martial law end is near WARSAW, Poland (UPI) — Parliament Thursday passed a law giving police sweeping powers and began work on legislation that would end martial law in Poland.

The leaders of the Solidarity underground denounced the regime for what they decried as an attempt to retain martial law but in disguised form. They said they would continue their campaign of resistance.

Well-informed Polish sources said Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski's government would order an amnesty for several hundred political prisoners and declare martial law over on July 22.

There was no formal announcement of the Communist Party leader's plans. But an advance schedule disclosed in the Sejm, parliament, confirmed Jaruzelski would speak Thursday on the eve of a national holiday to mark the end of more than 19 months of military rule.

With only three dissenting votes and six abstentions, the 460-seat parliament passed a law that gave police stop-and-search powers and guaranteed them the right to use tear gas, clubs, water cannon and other tactics that became familiar during martial law.

The Sejm gave preliminary approval to five constitutional amendments, including one that would make future declarations of a state of national emergency easier.

Police stood 10 yards apart and crowds were kept unusually far from the street by metal barriers.

"Resign, Mitterrand!" shouted a few spectators. Others whistled in derision. Police questioned 30 people but made no arrests. Thousands of those attending applauded Mitterrand, however.

State must pay charges for federal firefighters

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho lawmakers must pay debts owed for federal firefighting efforts or face being barred from receiving U.S. Forest Service protection for state timberland, Lands Department Director Gordon Trombley said Thursday.

Department officials say lawmakers owe the Forest Service about $256,000 for fighting fires on state land during the past several years.

The federal agency has contracted to protect about 900,000 acres of remote state- and privately owned lands at a predetermined fee, Trombley told a legislative committee to study the issue.

"Inasmuch as the state contracts with the (Forest Service) to provide fire protection ... through a cooperative agreement, it is imperative that adequate funds be appropriated to cover the costs," Trombley said in a written statement. He said Idaho historically has relied on the Forest Service to fight fires on state timberlands that are surrounded by federal property and are a great distance from Lands Department facilities. He warned that failure to address the revenue problem could prompt the federal government to withhold highway funds or other program monies from the state.

The agency also could refuse to fight fires on state land, he said.

"The costs to the state to physically protect these lands would be exorbitant," Trombley said.

Trombley said the funding problem could be eased by reducing state reliance on federal agencies for firefighting duties.

The move would save money because the Lands Department can fight blazes at an average 50-cent-per-acre cost compared to the federal cost of 76 cents per acre, Trombley said.

But he warned lawmakers the department initially would need increased funding for more personnel and equipment to protect the additional acres.

As for state rangelands, Trombley said his department no longer contracts for fire protection from the Bureau of Land Management because of a lack of funding.

INEL won't get spent fuel

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — U.S. Energy Department officials have confirmed the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory will not be used to store spent fuel from commercial nuclear power plants.

DOE spokesman Phil Garon in Washington, D.C., said the Idaho facility has been ruled out because the storage site near Idaho Falls has potential defense-related uses.

INEL officials also said one of their sites may be used for a classified research and development project first was mentioned in a press briefing last month. Details of that project have not been disclosed.

Castleford gets new school superintendent

Brethauer takes position after program at ISU

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — The new Castleford School District superintendent participated in his first meeting with the school board this week.

Lyle Brethauer, 47, began his job July 12, 1983, whose contract was not renewed by the board in January.

Brethauer is no stranger to the Magic Valley. From 1970-73, he taught social studies at Buhl High School and was involved in the athletic program.

From in Nevada, Brethauer received both a bachelor's and master's degree in education from Idaho State University at Pocatello. At the university, he also completed a six-year certification program for superintendents.

West End Twin Falls County

He is a full-time education specialist, he says.

He came to Castleford, with his wife, Grace, from the ISU program. His past jobs have included principal positions in Aberdeen, Lakeland and in Washington.

Brethauer says he applied for the Castleford job because of his familiarity with the area. "I had always liked the Magic Valley. I knew the country and people, and was anxious to get into the area."

He says his "first priority" will be addressing the poor condition of Castleford's high school, an older building.

District voters defeated a $1.05-million bond issue last October that would have funded a new high school and vocational-agriculture building.

Brethauer says the board has not decided yet on what avenue to take to resolve the problem.

In other action at Tuesday's board meeting, Mary Anne Bliks was re-elected board chairman, and Roger Clark was chosen for another term as vice chairman.

Also, new board member Jon Wells was sworn in. He replaces Curt Darrow.

Schenk expects to land another post in Idaho

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — The former Castleford School District superintendent still is a little bitter over the way the school board decided not to renew his contract.

But Ed Schenk, 53, is looking forward to a new superintendent's job.

Schenk 53, said Thursday that he has been offered another job in Idaho. But he declined to release further details because he said the contract has not been signed yet. He expects that may happen sometime next week.

Schenk's last day on the Castleford job was July 1. That's when the new superintendent, Lyle Brethauer, came on board. Schenk said he has been sticking around to help with the transition.

The last days on the job may have been smooth for Schenk, but the parting between him and the board was not.

Controversy came to Castleford one January night, after the board announced it had decided not to rehire Schenk for the 1983-84 school year.

Schenk said the announcement came as a surprise to him. If the board had been that displeased with his performance, it should have given him the opportunity to resign first, as is the usual procedure in personnel matters, he said at the time.

Board Chairman Mary Anne Bliks even admitted the board could have handled the situation better.

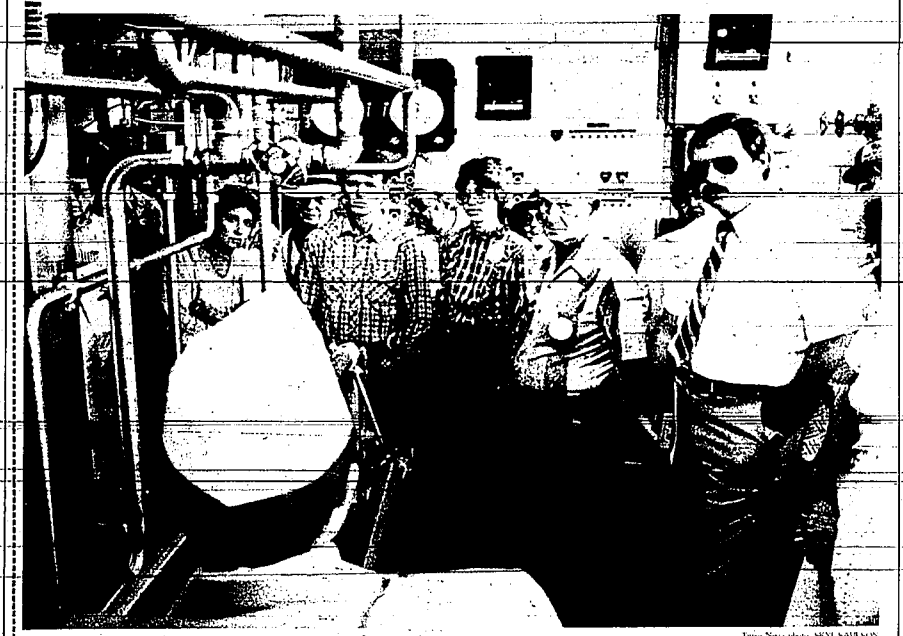

Yet, the decision was made. And Schenk later decided not to appeal because, he said, he thought it would do no good and the damage had been done.

Months later, Schenk says he still is a little hurt over the matter, which he says was the result of a personality conflict with the board.

"School" boards have "different personalities," he said Thursday, in retrospect. Some you "click" with and some you don't, he said.

The board had presented 16 reasons for its decision, and Schenk answered them all publicly.

If Schenk does take the new job, he will have to leave Castleford, where he has lived during his five years with the district. He says he will miss the town and its people — at least some of them. But "that's life," he says.

Farm tour

The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce sponsored its annual agricultural tour Thursday, and this year, the focus was on the dairy industry and its impact on the Magic Valley. One stop was the processing room at Triangle Young's Dairy in Twin Falls, where general manager Karl Nelson, back to camera, explained the dairy's workings. A full story on the tour will be in Sunday's Times-News.

Schools await energy grants

Word expected in two months

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Within two months, the Twin Falls school board should know the fate of the district's two applications for federal grants to install energy-saving devices — including a geothermal well — at three schools.

That was the report that Scott McClure, of McClure Engineering in Twin Falls, gave the board Tuesday night. His firm "audited" the schools for energy use and assisted the district in preparing the grant applications in June.

The applications have gone to the U.S. Department of Energy and the Bonneville Power Administration.

The district has applied to the DOE for "matching" funds to sink a geothermal well near Twin Falls High School. The underground hot-water would be used to preheat domestic-use water at the school and provide heat to the floor heating system, McClure said.

There is a good chance of finding hot water at the location, he said, because the College of Southern Idaho's geothermal wells are less than a mile away.

The district would be reimbursed for the cost of drilling the well if hot water is located and it is of sufficient flow, he said. The grant also would pay the costs of retrofitting the school's heating system.

The DOE grant application also proposes:

automatically turn out the external lights at the high school when they are not needed.

- Converting the lighting system in the high school gym and the Robert Stuart Junior High School gym to more energy-efficient ones.

- Installing low-leakage dampers for air-ventilators and attic insulation and covering the windows on the north side of the high school.

The total cost of this project would be $110,260, said Larry Baxter, the district's budget officer. Under the terms of the grant, the district could be obligated to pay half of the costs.

In the BPA application, the district is seeking $28,111 to adapt the heating system of Sawtooth Elementary School to geothermal use and to install a device that would automatically control heat in the cafeteria multi-purpose room.

The one geothermal well would serve both the high school and Sawtooth, which is located across the street from the high school.

The total cost of the Sawtooth project is estimated at $46,150.

The district's share of the projects would come from its plant-facilities fund, Baxter said.

The projects would pay for themselves in energy savings in 10 years, McClure said.

In other business at Tuesday's meeting, Robert D. Knighton was re-elected chairman of the board, and Eugene Champlin was chosen for another term as a vice chairman.

In addition, Jenny Dougherty was reappointed as the district clerk.

Area Scouts set reflective event

TWIN FALLS — Area Boy Scouts will scale the heights Saturday in an attempt to set a world record in the communicative art of mirror-flashing.

Varsity Scouts, ages 14-15, from 40 Magic Valley teams will be involved.

Between 9:30 a.m. and 1 p.m., they will participate in an effort by Scouts in Arizona, Nevada, Colorado, Utah and Idaho to form a 15,000-mile chain-link, passing through 11 national parks and monuments.

The Magic Valley-area Scouts have a variety of objectives, including such prominent peaks as Mount Borah to the north (12,662 feet — Idaho's tallest peak) and Cache Peak to the south (10,340 feet).

"Nearly every major mountain in Utah and southern Idaho will have 14- to 15-year-old Scouts on it," says Doug Brewer, a varsity Scout, commissioner from Salt Lake City and the developer of what has become known as Project On Target.

Local ham-radio operators in the Intermountain region are scheduled to assist with "the big flash." They will travel with several of the Scout troops.

Scout leaders say mirror signals have been known to travel as far as 250 miles. Last year, a signal reached from Mount Harrison in the South Hills to Bald Mountain near Kelchum, a distance of about 100 miles.

Other peaks on the south-central Idaho roster include Smokey Dome, north of Fairfield; Mount Hyndman, near Kelchum; and Monument and Jarbridge peaks in the South Hills.

On Filer Avenue

Commission OKs commercial rezoning

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission has recommended that another parcel of land off Filer Avenue West be rezoned for commercial use.

Tuesday night, the commission approved the rezoning request of Eugene Conner, the owner of Conner's Nursery, at 540 Filer Ave., at Harrison Street, by a 3-2 vote.

The decision came almost exactly a month after commission members had approved a similar request by the owners' Wuthrich's Greenhouses, immediately to the east.

The future of Filer Avenue, west of Blue Lakes Boulevard, has been the subject of considerable discussion at recent commission meetings.

Tuesday, Lamar Orton, the city's community development director, told the commission that granting commercial rezoning requests open by one will result in all of Filer between Washington Street and Blue Lakes Boulevard becoming a commercial strip some day.

He urged commission members to consider their role as planners, as well as grantors of special requests. Once land is zoned commercial, it can be used for a number of things other than nurseries, he said. These include used-car lots and fast-food outlets.

Orton also said that from a planning point of view, there is only a small amount of land zoned for multi-family development within the city. The Conner property currently carries such a zoning designation.

"If you want to zone all Filer commercial, why don't you do it?" he asked.

There was mixed sentiment in response to Orton's comments.

Commission member Mary Turner disagreed that a broad planning gesture was needed.

And commission member Bill Wright said it was "just a matter of time" before the rest of the street would be commercial.

He was joined in this assessment by Conner, who said the commission members just would be "kidding yourselves" to think Filer will continue to be residential.

But commission alternate Joan Edwards doubted the wisdom of encouraging commercial development in such close proximity to Harrison Elementary School.

"Personally, I think we need to do a better job of protecting schools," she said.

And commission member John Bonnett, who lives off Filer, agreed that additional traffic could pose a threat.

Wright, Turner, and commission Chairman Jack Miller voted for the rezoning request. Edwards and Bonnett voted against.

All rezoning requests must receive final approval from City Council.

Orton said the Conner request probably will be taken up at the council's Aug. 15 meeting.

Water contamination brings advice to boil

CASTLEFORD — Residents of Castleford have been warned by State Department of Health and Welfare officials to boil their water for five minutes before drinking or making iced cubes.

The warning was issued Thursday after recent samples from the community water system indicated high levels of coliform bacteria, said Gary Burkett, a DHW environmental official in Twin Falls.

Burkett says the samples showed levels of bacteria between seven and nine. The state's allowable maximum is four.

So far, the danger is "not very great," Burkett says. But he says residents who drink unboiled water may suffer diarrhea or stomach cramps.

The 191 residents of Castleford receive their water from a 90-foot-high steel tank, Burkett says. Thursday, department officials planned to dump bacteria-killing chlorine into it.

Burkett says that four to five days probably will have to pass before the warning can be lifted.

Blaine coroner out for taking leave

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

HALLEY — In the middle of his three two-year term in office, Blaine County Coroner Don Mason has lost his job.

Mason took a leave of absence earlier this year to attend a six-month, advanced paramedic training course at St. Anthony's hospital in Denver.

But he failed to take the necessary legal steps for such a move. As a result, he legally vacated his office, says county Prosecutor Keith Roark.

Last month, the Blaine County commissioners appointed Mason's deputy, Rusa Mikel, to fill the position. Mikel had been designated by Mason as acting coroner during shorter leaves of absence in the past, but Mason failed to file a document with the county naming Mikel to that position before he left for Denver.

Wood River Valley

Roark says that a leave provision that elected officials may take 90-day leaves of absence, but there is no provision for a six-month leave.

"The evidence is fairly clear that it was the intent of the Legislature that holders of elective office ought not to be gone for more than 90 days," Roark says.

"The law says that if a leave is taken and it becomes apparent that no deputy was appointed, then the office is vacated."

"The commissioners had no choice, under the law, but to fill the vacancy. They had no discretion in the matter," Roark says.

Attempts by The Times-News to reach Mason in Denver for comment were unsuccessful.

However, Roark says that Mason is aware of the action.

"At the time I spoke with him, the action had been taken," Roark says. "I didn't make any attempt to reach him prior to that. The point was, we were legally without a coroner."

Under Idaho law, the district court judge, in this case Douglas Kramer, assumes the duties of coroner whenever the office is vacant. That can pose some conflicts for a judge because the coroner is legally the chief law-enforcement authority in the county whenever the sheriff is out of the county.

Mikel will serve through the remainder of Mason's term, which will expire at the end of 1984. Mikel operates Wood-River Chapel in Halley. He has not indicated if he will seek election to the office.

Roark says that there is one condition under which Mason could regain his job: If upon returning to Blaine County, Mikel were to resign his post, the county commissioners then could appoint Mason to fill the vacancy.

Patients will be 'stars'

JEROME — At 10 a.m. today, doctors, staff and some patients at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome will become "film stars."

Film crews from the College of Southern Idaho, under the direction of Bill Mauldin, will begin shooting footage for a special film that will be viewed by a number of hospitals in the Magic Valley area.

The film is designed to provide patients with information about hospital procedures, the care and treatment they will receive while in a hospital, and what sort of activities they should follow to treat themselves after they recover from whatever problem they have and are released.

The filming is expected to take four to five weeks. CSI also will do all the editing and sound work for the film.

Cheerleaders to wash cars

TWIN FALLS — The cheerleaders from Robert Stuart Junior High School in Twin Falls will hold a car wash, east of Albertson's grocery store, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. today and Saturday.

Twin class to hold reunion

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls High School class of 1958 will meet for its 25th reunion this weekend. Activities will begin at 7:30 p.m. today at the Blue Lakes Club, where a buffet dinner will be served. Saturday at the Twin Falls Municipal Golf Course for a tournament, and the women will meet at 10 a.m. for a coffee hour. A cocktail hour and dinner will begin at 7 p.m. Saturday. For more information, call Deanna Baxter at 733-3038.

Wendell class sets meeting

WENDELL — The Wendell High School class of 1963 will hold a 20-year reunion Saturday night at the American Legion Hall in Wendell. Friends who would like to visit members of the class are invited to attend after 9:30 p.m.

Chase charges are dropped

TWIN FALLS — Charges have been dropped against a Wisconsin man who had several law-enforcement officers on a 24-mile car chase Monday night, north of Twin Falls.

Michael Bonnet, 21, of Waukesha, Wis., was arrested at 7:46 p.m. Monday by Kimberly police on Idaho 25, about 12 miles east of Jerome.

Bonnet allegedly drove off from a Stinker gas station, off Kimberly Road, without paying for gas and headed east.

Idaho State Police, Kimberly police and Twin Falls and Jerome County officers joined in the chase. It ended when Bonnet's station wagon caught fire after his engine blew up, according to Twin Falls sheriff's records.

Bonnet was taken to the Twin Falls County Jail on Monday night, on charges of reckless driving and failure to yield to an emergency vehicle.

Bonnet paid the gas station $2 on Wednesday, and the traffic charges were dropped, said Tim Qualls, the Twin Falls police chief.

Suspect leaves hospital

TWIN FALLS — The Castleford man who is accused of the June 18 murder of his former girlfriend and her male friend, Donald Douglas, after a month-long hospital stay for an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound.

Keith Rosencrantz, 30, was dismissed Wednesday morning from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. He immediately was placed in Twin Falls-County Jail, said Chief Deputy Harold Jensen.

Rosencrantz will be examined periodically by a nurse and remain under a doctor's care, Jensen said. The suspect's left arm has been amputated as a result of his injuries.

Rosencrantz faces two first-degree murder charges, stemming from the shooting deaths of Cathy Alice Gittel, 38, of Buhl, and Michael Wayne Lee, 22, of Twin Falls, at the woman's residence.

The defendant was arraigned on July 5 at the hospital, where he had been since the night of the shooting. Afterward, he allegedly shot himself with the same weapon, a shotgun.

No preliminary hearing has been set for Rosencrantz.

Burley woman is serious

MURTAUGH — A 50-year-old Burley woman involved in a one-car accident earlier this week was reported in serious condition Thursday at a Pocatello hospital.

Lorrie Anderson is in the intensive-care unit of Pocatello Regional Medical Center, where she is improving, said a nursing supervisor. Anderson was the passenger in a car driven by Steven Burr, 23, of Burley. Burr was heading west on U.S. 30, near Murtaugh, when he went off the road to avoid hitting a vehicle that had crossed into his lane, according to a Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy. The accident happened at 12:50 p.m. Monday.

The car flipped end over end and landed in a bean field.

Anderson was taken to Cassia Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Pocatello.

Burr and his two other passengers — Jon McTearney, 20, and Bradley Malan, 21, both of Burley — were not injured.

Corrections

KIMBERLY — The Red Cross blood drive in Kimberly today will take place from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m., instead of the hours that were published in Thursday's Times-News. The drive will be held in the Kimberly Elementary School auditorium.

Road delays possible

TWIN FALLS — Visitors to the South Hills of the Sawtooth National Forest are likely to encounter delays at times this summer from three road construction projects.

Crews working on Deadline Ridge Road, between the Diamondfield Jack area and Winecup Spring, may have to close some portions of the road for as much as two hours at a time between now and mid-October, Twin Falls District ranger Jerry Davis said this week.

The 5.9-mile project consists of realigning part of the roadway, leveling culverts and spreading a crushed-rock surface over the road, which is a popular route for firewood-cutters, he said. The Lone Pine Equipment Co. of Kimberly is doing the $149,736 project.

Work to smooth a 3.5-mile segment of the Oakley-Rogerson Road, between the South Fork of Shoshone Creek and Rock Creek, also has gotten under way.

Delays are expected to be short and infrequent. But "people also need to allow extra time when using this area as the road is very rough," Davis said. The project, which was started late last fall because of bad weather, should be completed within two months, he said. C.I.C. Construction of Reno is the contractor.

Forest Service crews started improvements Wednesday on about 150 miles of road between Porcupine Springs Campground and Monument Peak. Short traffic delays can be expected on weekdays until about July 21. The road will be rough, but passable, said Sawtooth Forest spokesman Ed Waldapfel.

Deadline near for 'cute kids'

TWIN FALLS — The "cutest kids" in the Magic Valley will be selected during a contest at the Blue Lakes Mall on Saturday that will benefit the American Cancer Society.

Parents who think they have cute children should submit photographs of their child, no larger than 8-by-10. The photos must be less than six months old, must be of the child alone, and must be accompanied by a $4

"donation" to the American Cancer Society.

The deadline for registering is 5 p.m. Saturday. There are several age categories, with an upper age limit of 14.

The photos will be on display through July 29, and the winner will be announced July 30 at 3 p.m. at the mall.

For more information, call Kathy Williams at 734-4446.

Obituaries

E.L. 'Slim' Young

TWIN FALLS — Ernest Lorenzo "Slim" Young, 89, of Port Orchard, Wash., and formerly of Twin Falls, died Monday, following apparent heart failure.

Born Aug. 12, 1893, at Preston, he married Edith Pearl Watts on Oct. 24, 1927, at St. Anthony. The marriage was solemnized on May 22, 1946, in the Idaho Falls Temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

They lived in Nevada before moving to Twin Falls for 12 years. They then moved to Pocatello in 1951, and returned to Twin Falls two years before again moving to Pocatello, where he was employed as a custodian for the Pocatello School District.

Mrs. Young died at 7:19 a.m. and was later moved to Port Orchard to be near his daughter.

He was a member of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, which he had served in various capacities.

Survivors include: two sons, Ray Arnold Young of Oakton, Va., and Donald Young of Pocatello; three daughters, Mrs. Joan Stevens Austin of Port Orchard and Mrs. Verneeta Bates of Bremerton, Wash.; a brother, Leonard Young of Inland Park; three nephews, Max Daner of Idaho Falls, Julia Howard of Twin Falls and Mary Petersen of Hayward, Calif.; 19 grandchildren and 12 great-grandchildren.

The funeral will be held today at 11 a.m. in the Morrison Eighth Ward Chapel, off East Chapel Street in Pocatello, with Bishop Ted Tarter officiating.

Burial will be in Park Cemetery. Manning Funeral Chapel in Pocatello is in charge of arrangements.

Friends may call at the church from 10 a.m. until the time of the service.

Eric James Knudson

BURLINGAME — Eric James Knudson, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Knudson of Buhl, was stillborn Thursday morning.

Surviving are: his parents of Buhl; five brothers and his male friend, Donald Douglas and Casey, all of Buhl; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Art Knudson of Twin Falls; his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. May Jaynes of Richfield; and his paternal great-grandmother, May Knudson of Twin Falls.

A graveside service will be held Saturday morning at 11 a.m. at West End Cemetery in Buhl, with Art Knudson officiating.

Funeral home: Buhl Funeral Chapel is in charge of arrangements.

Crews controlling California blazes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Firefighters gained ground Thursday on a rash of hot forest and brush fires in California, Nevada and Oregon that have already blackened 19,000 acres.

An army of 4,500 firefighters were on the lines against 12 brush and timber blazes.

The fires were fueled by a near-record heat wave in California and Nevada. At least one was the result of arson, authorities said.

Officials said they expected to re-engage some of the 1,300 firefighters battling the largest blaze, a 4,500-acre brush fire in the Los Padres National Forest, 90 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

"We're doing a bit better on the fire," U.S. Forest Service spokeswoman Joanna Cutler said. The fire caused 39 injuries and, so far, has cost $970,000. It began last weekend when a planned burn of standing brush flashed into the deep wilderness.

To the east of Los Angeles, in Riverside County, a 900-acre blaze was being fought by 196 firefighters near Sunnyslope. Some residents were evacuated when the fire broke out but were allowed to return to their homes Wednesday night.

Firefighting efforts were hampered by temperatures above 100 degrees and winds gusting to 20 mph.

"It's pretty hard on the people," King said. "Some of them have been having problems with heat exhaustion, and it's pretty dangerous out there. It's very hilly, rough canyon terrain."

A blaze on the Soboba Indian reservation in Riverside County consumed 125 acres of vegetation before being contained.

Near San Diego, the community of Crest, more than 250 state and federal firefighters contained a brushfire that burned over 400 acres. The blaze apparently started Wednesday afternoon when a power line snapped.

Near the Southern California coast, authorities arrested an arson suspect in connection with a fire that blackened 100 acres in Laguna Canyon, where a number of homes were threatened by flames for a time.

Police said suspect Michael Oliver, 25, apparently had used a flare to start the fire.

In Northern California, about 700 firefighters battled a 3,200-acre blaze 40 miles east of San Francisco caused by a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. power line. It was 75 percent contained Thursday morning and full containment was expected by sundown.

More than 550 battled the first major fire of the year in the Klamath National Forest, which burned 250 acres south of the Oregon border in Horse Creek, Calif.

Three hundred and eighty firefighters from Oregon and California were called in during the night to battle the blaze on the south side of the Klamath River in Siskiyou County.

In Nevada, 200 firefighters battled a 1,300-acre brushfire that burned out of control 25 miles southwest of Las Vegas.

And in Oregon, near Bend, sparks from a blown-fuse on a power-pole ignited a fire that charred 3.5 acres of grass and brush.

WPPSS seeking help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Northwest energy officials traveled to the nation's capital this week, seeking federal legislation that could pave the way for a resumption of work at the stalled nuclear power plant in Washington state.

Top executives from the Washington Public Power Supply System, the Bonneville Power Administration and major utilities in the region flew to Washington, D.C. Wednesday to meet with members of the Northwest congressional delegation.

Earlier this month, the WPPSS executive board metalled Plant 3, which is about 75-percent complete at Satsop, Wash., after efforts to secure almost $1 billion in financing proved unsuccessful.

The BPA has underwritten the supply system's share of Plant 3. The remaining 30 percent of the project is owned by private utilities, which have played a major role in the effort to secure financing for WPPSS' 70-percent share of the project, along with any necessary federal legislation.

The energy leaders apparently hope Congress will act on the issue before it recesses Aug. 5. Some people involved in the effort said there has been discussions about attaching WPPSS legislation to a bill pending in the Senate Appropriations Committee, chaired by Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore.

Kushman moves into women's amateur lead

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

POCATELLO — Her philosophy of "If you can't enjoy golf, don't play!" stood Rupert's Sue Kushman in good stead Thursday. It helped her snag off an onerous triple bogey 8 on the 10th hole to come back with four closing birdies and a 2-stroke lead in the State Women's Amateur Golf Tournament at the Highland Municipal Golf Course.

Kushman, seeking her second title, takes that 2-stroke lead to today's closing round over Spokane's Candi Guthrie and a 3-shot budge over Twin Falls' Karen Brown, a two-time champion. Those three will be playing together for the third straight day.

With Kushman posting that triple bogey on No. 1 (she played the back side first), it was Guthrie who was going to be largely a "down" round for the leaders.

It was a day of major swings for first-round leader Brown, who endured a 4-putt on the 15th to fall behind momentarily to Guthrie but still battled back to hold a 1-stroke lead going into the seventh.

After a poor second shot doomed her to another lie there, Brown saw the wheels come off completely on the 202-yard, par-4 eighth hole when "I just cold topped" her. The ball stayed in the deep rough on a hillside.

"Total collapse," she muttered almost inaudibly as she turned from the tee.

"I didn't think enough," she said after her second shot, which was a baseball swing at a ball nearly waist-high above her stance. It skidded and stayed in the rough. Her third shot didn't reach the top of the severely pitched green, and the ball, once within four feet of the cup, retreated completely off the putting surface. A chip and two putts then completed the disaster and when Guthrie followed with a 3-putt, Kushman's par thrust her into the lead.

On the ninth and finishing hole, Kushman maintained her mastery. A short par-5 for these long hitters, No. 9, yielded the second birdie of the tournament. She played a 6-iron for her second shot and 2-putted to complete a 1-under 75 round.

That Kushman can be a tough customer despite the ever-ready smile and willingness to chat with anyone while trading down the fairway was evident after her 10th hole. She began booming her drives in the middle of the first nine, noting, "I started hitting the ball really well last night, in the derby after I got so tired. It slowed me down, or something."

Her 38 of the first nine pulled her halfway back to the leaders. But her second shot on No. 1 wound up on a tough uphill lie on the back of an adjacent tee box. A large tree loomed directly in front of her.

She elected to go over the top, but the ball squirted low out of the tall grass, hit heavily into the tree and fell almost straight down. She pulled her fourth shot to the left of the green and needed three to get down from there. At that point Kushman was exactly where she had started the day — 6 strokes off the pace.

But pessimism has never been part of her makeup.

"I decided right there I'd make three birdies and have a par round," she said. "I figured I could birdie three, seven and nine and any other birdie would be dumb luck. I certainly didn't think about birdying No. 2."

That started the comeback and while the rest appeared to lose strength on this up-and-down track that was again visited by hot weather, Kushman simply got stronger. She began drilling her tee shots in the 240-yard range. The other birdies came just as she had predicted.

The physical and emotional drain on Brown almost had her out on her feet as she answered questions following her 84 round.

"I was just dead," she said. "We were on the course six hours the first two days (Pro-am and best ball) and then yesterday in the tournament and the derby. I was surprised I lasted as long as I did. I expected the big number before it finally did show up. I started out bogey-bogey and then had that 4-putt on No. 15. I just got careless for a second there, and it cost me."

"I really felt fortunate to be even at the end of the first nine and stay as close as I did through the back. I'm not going to take anything away from Sue. She played today exactly like you have to in a tournament. She put so the pressure just when the rest of us were starting to slide a little and that's when you can open up the big leads."

Part of what Brown referred to came on the first nine, when her 4-putt opened the way for Guthrie to take the lead. But Guthrie, consistent at 82-83, gave it right back on the 15th when she needed four strokes to get down from pin-high on the par-3 hole.

"When I get back home I'm going to work on my short game," she promised. "It's been doing some weird things this tournament, and especially today."

Two youngsters used the second round to move up, as teenager Julie Hamblin of Twin Falls posted an 81 to stay within eight strokes and collegian Carla Schmidt of Boise had the day's second best round, a 78, to close within

Stodler's torrid 64 heads British field

Watson, Rogers, Langer three back

BIRKDALE, England (UPI) — Craig Stodler shot a 7-under-par 64 Thursday, the lowest first round in the history of the oldest major golf tournament, to take a three-stroke lead in the 12th British Open.

The putting touch never more delicate or sure, Stodler bettered the first-round record of 63 shared by Neil Giles of Britain and Bill Longmuir of Scotland. Only a bogey at the last hole prevented Stodler from matching the Open record of 63 for any round held by Mark Hayes and Leo Aoki.

Stodler's closest rivals in the $465,000 event were defending champion Tom Watson, 1982 winner Bill Rogers and West Germany's Bernhard Langer, all at 67.

Another stroke farther back was PGA Tour money-leader Hal Sutton, Australians Mike Ferguson and appeared Thursday was going to be largely a "down" round for the leaders.

It was a day of major swings for first-round leader Brown, who endured a 4-putt on the 15th to fall behind momentarily to Guthrie but

"Sometimes you get into a position that you stand over a putt and know it's going in," he said. "That's basically the way I was today."

Watson, bidding to win the title for the fifth time in nine years, shared center stage with Rogers earlier in the day but Stodler and Langer took over.

It was a solid, rather than spectacular, round from the defending champion, who had five birdies and just one bogey. He reclaimed memories of his 1978 Royal Birkdale Open experience when he had a disastrous 7 on the first hole.

Watson put his 1-iron tee shot into the same left-side bunker which started his troubles seven years ago. But this time he recovered, sinking a 20-footer to salvage a par-4. Watson then settled down into the rhythm that has made him golf's second highest money earner.

His only bogey came at the par-5 15th when he pushed his second 2-iron shot into the buckhorn bushes.

"It was not the right place to be," said Watson, who played a dropped ball and then just missed a 40-footer for par.

Watson was satisfied with his round and particularly pleased with his eight single putts.

"I made some good putts, especially coming in," he said. "I am starting them on line and I am feeling comfortable. It is a good omen."

Rogers made a spectacular surge up the leader board with a double-eagle 2 at the 526-yard, par-5 17th that took him from 1-under to 4-under. He hit a powerful drive off the tee and cracked a 1-iron from 228 yards that was short of the green but slipped into the hole.

The 17th proved something of an oasis for the field, yielding 16 eagles in addition to Rogers' double eagle.

"I never in my life dreamed of hitting a 1-iron 228 yards, but it sure had a lot of run," Rogers said. "It is my first double eagle and it sure lowers your score in a hurry."

Falls-to-Falls set for Saturday

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — This year, perhaps more than in any other, the Falls-to-Falls Run will enter the participants.

Every finisher in Saturday morning's fifth annual affair will receive a long-sleeved T-shirt — not the usual short-sleeved kind. "We felt that most of the weather in this part of the country is somewhat cool, except for the summer months," Dr. Bob Ridgeway of the Magic Valley Run Runners explained Thursday.

The new bench at Dierkes Lake, which is the finishing point for the 5.3-mile race, has been improved and should serve as a boon to weary runners. And as always, refreshments will be available to everyone and prizes will be given to the top finishers.

"Now all that's needed is to get rid of the birds that nest there."

"It's as grueling as you want to make it," Ridgeway said of the ascension that has made the Falls-to-Falls such a notorious race locally. "You could walk up it if you want."

Two likely entrants who won't walk up the hill or anywhere on the course, are Henry Carvajal and Cindy Crow. Carvajal, the former College of Southern Idaho star, seeks his third consecutive men's and overall victories. Crow is a student at the University of Idaho, will try to retain her stranglehold on the women's trophy. She has been the top female finisher in the previous four races.

But Carvajal and Crow could receive quite a challenge this time. "We've had some inquiries from the colleges around here. They might send some of their runners who are not competing during the summer to run in it," Ridgeway said.

Last year 175 runners competed; Ridgeway believes this year's turnout could fall between 180 and 200. "We've had a pretty good pre-registration for not having required it," he said.

Day-of-race registration starts Saturday at 7 a.m. at Twin Falls Park, with the race beginning approximately an hour afterward. The entry fee is $8.

Rookie equals course record to go on top at Quad Cities Open COAL VALLEY, Ill. (UPI) — PGA tour rookie Curt Byrum tied a course record with a 7-under-par 63 Thursday to take a two-shot lead after the first round of the $200,000 Quad Cities Open.

The 22-year old Byrum fired his record-tying round on the Oakwood Country Club and led an assault that saw 71 golfers shoot par or better on the 6,800-yard course.

Six golfers were tied for second, including defending champion Wayne Stewart and former champion D.A. Weibring. Greg Powers, Pat Lindsey, Dennis Hepler and Allan Miller were also tied for second at 5-under-par 65.

Bob Eastwood, George Cadie and Ron Streck were among eight golfers at three strokes back.

Twelve golfers were just four strokes off the lead in the tournament, which was played under hot and humid conditions. Greater Milwaukee Open winner Morris Hatakey and Howard Twitty were among 15 golfers in at 68.

Byrum credited a putting change suggested by his father at the GMO for his striding round, which matched the record last set by Stewart in last year's final round.

"I finally started putting the ball well again. I drove the ball well and just had some pitches into the green," said Byrum, seeking his first PGA tour victory.

It wasn't a night for stellar pitching in the major leagues

NL: Braves end low-scoring battle with Philadelphia in 9th

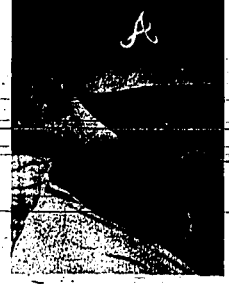

Philadelphia and Atlanta had a good pitching duel going — until the ninth inning.

Bob Horner led off the ninth with a home run, to left field on a 3-and-2 pitch to spark a four-run outburst that gave Atlanta a 5-2 victory in Philadelphia Thursday night.

The 19th-inning Braves' 13th of the season, came off reliever Willie Hernandez, 42, and put Atlanta ahead 2-1. Hernandez was removed after Chris Chambliss followed Horner's blast with a triple to right-center, and Glenn Hubbard's go-ahead two-run homer to center past a draw-in infield to score Chambliss.

Hubbard advanced to second on a passed ball by Bo Diaz and scored on a single, by Bruce Benedict. Steve Brodanian, who got the win with two outs, sacrificed Brodanian to second. Benedict moved to third on a grounder by Brett Butler and came in on an infield single by Rafael Ramirez.

In the Philadelphia ninth, Brodanian got out but walked Ivan DeJesus and Greg Gross and was Dernier sacrificed both runners and the Braves replaced starter Pascual Perez with Pedroia on Pete Rose grounded to second to drive in DeJesus.

Atlanta took the lead in the second when Murphy led off with his 20th home run, a 420-foot bomb to straight-away center field. Philadelphia starter Marty Bystrom then blanked the Braves until leaving for a pinch-hitter in the seventh.

Pirates 8, Padres 3

At San Diego, Johnny Ray doubled in two runs with two out in the ninth inning to cap a four-run rally that lifted the Pirates to their fourth straight triumph. Kurt Bevacqua hit the second grand slam of his career to cap a five-run seventh inning as the Padres had suffered to go ahead 6-3.

Mets 7, Reds 4

At New York, pinch hitter Rusty Staub hit a tie-breaking two-run homer in the sixth inning to carry Tom Seaver and the Mets. Staub, who last month tied the major-league record with eight straight pinch hits, hit his second pinch hit of the year to break a 4-4 tie. Keith Hernandez also

AL: Evans, Armas, Boggs blast Sox to victory over A's

The Boston Red Sox flexed some Fenway Park muscle Thursday night.

Dwight Evans, Tony Armas and Wade Boggs smashed home runs Thursday night to power the Red Sox to a 9-4 rout of the Oakland A's.

Oakland's Rickey Henderson led off the game with a double, went to third on Rick Peters' groundout out and scored on Davey Lopes' sacrifice fly, but the Red Sox countered with three runs in their half of the inning. Jerry Benu walked, Boggs singled and Evans smashed his 16th homer of the year, off Oakland starter and loser Steve McCatty, 3-4.

Oakland closed the gap to 3-2 in the third when Henderson singled, stole second and third and scored on Peters' single.

Boston put the game out of reach in the bottom of the inning. Boggs led off with his first homer of the year and Jim Rice followed with a double. Armas then cracked his 19th homer, putting the Red Sox ahead 6-2. Evans followed with a walk, went to third on Carl Yastrzemski's single and scored on Dave Stapleton's double play bounce.

Oakland scored in the seventh when Henderson tripled off Boston star starter John Tudor, 7-5, and came across on Peters' single.

Rangers 11, Yankees 2

At New York, Larry Parrish went 4-for-5 with two homers and five RBI and Charlie Hough, 8-7, pitched a five-hitter and fifth complete game to lead the Rangers. Shane Rawley, 3-4, started for New York and led off by allowing five hits and five runs. He allowed a single run in the second on a single by Parrish and a triple by George Wright.

Indians 4, Royals 3

At Cleveland, Alan Banister belted a 1-1 pitch into the left field stands, leading off the 10th to help the Indians snup a five-game losing streak. Rick Sutcliffe, 11-4, pitched his fifth complete game, striking out a career-high 10 and walking two.

Brewers 5, Twins 1

At Milwaukee, Don Sutton and Tom Seaver combined on a seven-hitter and Bill Schroeder hit his first major-league homer, helping the Brewers. Sutton, 7-5, allowed six hits, struck out five and walked none over the first eight innings. Starter Al

Williams, 5-10, allowed four runs and seven hits in six innings.

Blue Jays 5, White Sox 0

At Chicago, pinch hitter Rance Mulliniks belted a three-run homer and Buck Martinez added a two-run shot in support of Luis Lee's major-league shutout. Lee, 16-0, allowed only two hits, struck out five and walked two, retiring the final 13 batters in succession.

Orioles 5, Angels 1

At Baltimore, Jim Dwyer backed Scott McGore, 10-4, with a three-run homer and Rich Dauer collected three hits to pace the Orioles to their fifth straight victory. Ken Forsch, 6-6, allowed seven hits and walked two runs on his eighth complete game. The loss was the Angels' fourth straight.

Tigers 4, Mariners 2

At Seattle, Jack Morris threw a six-hitter over 8 1/2 innings and Lou Whitaker drove in two runs, helping the Tigers extend their winning streak to five games. Morris, 9-8, equaled his career high by striking out 11. He walked three and had short of pitching his first shutout of the year when Pat Putnam hit a two-run homer with one out in the ninth.

Spinks, Muhammad duel tonight in D.C.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Eddie Mustafa Muhammad — once said that Michael Spinks, the world light-heavyweight champion, wasn't tough enough to walk through his part of town in Brooklyn, N.Y.

Spinks intends to make Mustafa Muhammad's stroll through Washington a very treacherous one tonight in their 15-round title fight at the D.C. Armory. The bout, scheduled to begin at 7:35 p.m. EDT, will be televised by Home Box Office.

The unbeaten Spinks won the World Boxing Association title from Mustafa Muhammad two years ago. Spinks defended the WBA title five times and won the world title March 18 with a 15-round decision over then World Boxing Council champion Dwight Muhammad Qawi, formerly Dwight Braxton, in a unification fight.

Mustafa Muhammad, who now lives in West Orange, N.J., is ranked No. 1 by both the WBC and WBA. "I'm proud of where I'm from," said Spinks, a native of St. Louis who now lives in Philadelphia. "Ghetos are nothing to brag about but he thinks they are. I'm sure if he never left the ghetto, I'm sure I'd ever walked through his neighborhood, everybody would be walking with me."

The two will both be walking tonight — right at each other. "I don't like him and he doesn't like me," said Mustafa Muhammad. "If he was any kind of champion, I wouldn't have had to wait two years for a rematch. Michael Spinks is a coward who has been ducking me since our last fight."

Mustafa Muhammad has won four straight bouts since losing his title to Spinks. His last triumph was a 10-round decision over Jerry Celestine, whom Spinks stopped in eight rounds a year ago.

Mustafa Muhammad attempted to move up to the heavyweight division but lost a 10-round decision to Renaldo Snipes two months before losing his title to Spinks and has been plagued with weight problems ever since his brief jump to the heavies.

Filer spiker to tour Australia

FILER — Celestine Herrett of Filer will be participating with an AAU volleyball team that will tour Australia and play matches there for five weeks.

Herrett left Thursday for Spokane, Wash., where the team will practice before departing for Australia July 21.

A freshman at the University of Idaho, Herrett received a spot on the team after attending an AAU-associated volleyball camp last summer and trying out for the touring squad.

Bradshaw has elbow drained

LATROBE, Pa. (UPI) — An orthopedist Thursday drained and splinted the sore and inflamed right elbow of Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Terry Bradshaw.

Bradshaw had surgery on the elbow of his throwing arm in March and has been rehabilitating it since. He had been throwing for increasing lengths of time at the team's St. Vincent College training camp but skipped Wednesday because the elbow was tender.

He traveled Thursday to Pittsburgh, where team orthopedist Dr. Paul Steele punctured the elbow with a needle to release fluid and then splinted it. The splint will remain on for a week to 10 days, but it can be removed temporarily daily for Bradshaw to do prescribed exercises, the spokesman said.

Horse show set for Gooding

GOODING — An all-breed horse show will be held at the Gooding Fairgrounds July 23 beginning at 8:30 a.m.

In addition to Western and English categories, four futurity classes will be held in 1982 fillies, 1982 colts, 2-year-old western pleasure and 3-year-old western pleasure.

Trophies will be given to first-place finishers, with ribbons for second-through sixth place finishers. All-around winners in each age group will receive a show headstall with silver conchos.

Entry fees are $2 for youth and $3 for adult and open. Howard Conrad of Murlough will serve as judge.

For more information, call 834-5534 or 934-5744.

Shrine grid coaches named

STANKORD, Ariz. — Shrine coaches named by the Shrine Club of Miami and Larry Smith of Arizona will coach the East and West teams respectively for the 59th annual Shrine football game at Stanford Jan. 7, 1984.

Their appointments were announced Thursday. Schellenberger formerly was head coach of the NFL's Baltimore Colts and an assistant with two other clubs. He has compiled a 30-15 record at Miami since 1979.

Smith, a veteran of 21 years of coaching, brought Arizona to a 6-4 season last year and upset arch-rival Arizona State to knock the Sun Devils out of the Rose Bowl.

Criswell takes junior golf

KETCHUM — Duane Criswell's 75 gave him a 7-stroke victory over Tom Leen in the 18-17-year-old boys division Monday at the Junior Golf Association Tournament at Big Wood Golf Course.

The field of 75 entrants included 68 boys and seven girls. The next match in the summer-long series will be held Tuesday at the Buhl Country Club.

Monday's results:

8 and under girls — 1, Riley Sims, 61; 2, Berke Bloomfield, 112; 9-10 girls — 1, Jonathan Hopkins, 23; 2, Justin Astorjola, 24; 3, Jake Daisoglo, 25; 11-12 girls — 1, Summer Boyd, 27; 2, Julie Steadman, 29; 3, Kaiti Kato, 46; 2, Jody Hurst, 48; 3, Riley Boyd, 56; 11-12 girls — 1, Jennifer Steadman, 58; 2, Tara Cantrell, 65; 3, Bart Vea, 68; 2, Eric Saville, 68; 3, Brett Barry, 69; 13-14 girls — 1, Shelley Smith, 115; 2, Corry Mathews, 124; 3, Flater Lutz, 92; 2, Tom Farris, 91; 15-17 boys — 1, Duane Criswell, 75; 2, Tom Leen, 82; 3, Derek Lutz, 84.

Damer on top at LPGA event

MALVERN, Pa. (UPI) — Beth Daniel, admitting she shouldn't skip this weekend's LPGA tournament stop, birdied the last three holes Thursday to shoot a under-par 67 for a two-stroke lead after the opening round of the $350,000 McDonald's Kids' Classic.

Daniel, who has posted three second-place finishes in 1983, but is still looking for her first victory, bled the hilly, 6,283-yard White Manor Country Club course for seven birdies in the 90-degree heat to hold the advantage over Anne-Marie Palli.

Hagler to clash with Duran in November

NEW YORK (UPI) — Marvin Hagler, the undisputed world middleweight champion, will defend his title against three-time champion Roberto Duran on Nov. 10 at the Dunes Hotel in Las Vegas. It was officially announced Thursday at a public news conference which attracted a crowd of over 1,200 screaming fans to Madison Square Garden's Felt Forum.

richest ever in the middleweight division, with each fighter expected to earn nearly $10 million, according to promoter Bob Arum of Top Rank, Inc. The tickets are priced at $600, $300, $200, $100 and $50 at the 20,000-seat outdoor stadium. The fight also will be shown on closed circuit nationally.

"When I fight a fighter like Roberto Duran, it's going to bring out the best in me," said Hagler, who is 57-2-2 with 48 knockouts. In his last fight on May 27, he stopped No. 1 contender Willford Steyn in four rounds at Providence, R.I., for his seventh title defense.

Russian swimmer sets mark

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Vladimir Sainikov of the Soviet Union broke his own world record in the 800-meter freestyle to highlight Thursday's opening session in the four-day LA83 International Swim Meet, a dress rehearsal for next summer's Olympic Games.

Sainikov, swimming in the recently constructed pool that will be the site of all Olympic swimming and diving — a pool he sharply criticized earlier this week as being "just ordinary," — was clocked in 7:52.53.

He broke his previous record of 7:57.83 and beat the second-place finisher, America's Tony Corbisiere, by more than 10 seconds. Corbisiere was timed in 8:03.57.

An expected dual between Sainikov and America's top 800-meter swimmer, Jeff Kostoff, who holds seven national titles, didn't materialize as Kostoff finished a soundly beaten third in 8:04.40.

Sainikov, who also holds the world records in the 400 and 1,500-meter freestyles, began his record assault glowily with Corbisiere, a student at Yale, right at his shoulder after four of the 16 laps. But by the halfway mark the Soviet swimmer had assumed a commanding lead and he steadily pulled away to the victory and the record.

Asked about his earlier disparaging remark about the $4 million swim facility constructed on the campus of the University of Southern California, Sainikov said in English, "Today I went fast, so I like the pool."

Bosox worth $100 million, says LeRoux

BOSTON (UPI) — A buyer of the Boston Red Sox should be prepared to pay up to $100 million, more than three times the highest purchase price of any major league team, one of the club's principal owners testified Thursday.

Edward G. "Buddy" LeRoux, one of the team's three general partners, put the net value of the club at between $50 and $100 million while testifying in the trial to determine who runs the club and how much an ownership share is worth.

The highest price paid for a major league team was the $31 million paid for the Philadelphia Phillies in 1961.

"You can't compare them," said LeRoux, who has explored the possibility of selling his general partner and two limited partner shares.

A previous witness, former team treasurer John Harrington — now a representative of general partner Jean Yawkey — valued the team at $35 million plus an additional $12 to $14 million in debts.

LeRoux said his value was in part based on the uncharted area of cable television and on certain adjustments, which were not discussed. He did concede that, minus the adjustments, a fair market value for his limited share was $5 million, or five times the amount paid in 1976.

Harrington said a $2 million figure for a general partner share was "more than generous" even though an offer of $3.5 million for one was made in 1961.

Coaches pick BYU to capture WAC grid

PARK CITY, Utah (UPI) — The Western Athletic Conference's football coaches were almost unanimous — Thursday — in picking Brigham Young University to win an eighth consecutive league championship.

BYU received seven out of a possible eight first-place votes from the coaches for nine points. Air Force, the only WAC team to beat the Cougars last season, finished second in the coaches' voting with 27 points. The Falcons received the other first-place votes.

San Diego State ranked third with 33 points, followed by Hawaii 39 and Utah 40 in voting conducted during the WAC's annual summer meeting.

New Mexico, which finished 10-1 last season losing only to BYU, was sixth with 42 points despite being picked to win the WAC by the sport publishing Street and Smith's. Wyoming was seventh with 46 points, followed by Colorado State 53 and Texas-El Paso 71.

BYU Coach LaVell Edwards said his Cougars have the offensive talent to win their 10th WAC football crown since the league was formed back in 1962 with returning All America tight end Gordon Hudson and All-WAC quarterback Steve Young.

"I've got Steve Young at quarterback and that's a pretty good place to start," Edwards said. "He's as good as all-around athlete as I've ever had at BYU." Last season Young passed for 3,100 yards and 18 touchdowns and ran for another 407 yards and 10 more scores. And Hudson led the nation in receiving, catching 67 passes for 928 yards and six TDs.

Air Force Coach Ken Hatfield said the Falcons' strength this season will be in their 24 returning seniors, including 12 seniors who started in the Falcons' 39-38 win at BYU and in their 36-28 Hall of Fame Bowl victory against Vanderbilt.

Hatfield declined to name WAC MVP for his Falcons. "There's only one No. 1 and BYU is it. And they (the Cougars) are going to stay No. 1 until someone takes it away from them."

But Hatfield said Air Force should have a good chance to beat the Cougars again this fall since the Falcons will host BYU at Colorado Springs, Colo.

The Falcons should also have a solid offense led by All-WAC fullback John Kershner and league second-team quarterback Marty Louthan. Kershner rushed for 1,507 yards last year, while Louthan passed for 1,337 yards and ran for another 706.

Edwards disagreed with his fellow coaches' selection of the CSU Rams to finish eighth next fall. "I think Colorado State is going to surprise a lot of people this year. I like New Mexico did last year," He said.

Cannon spills beans on counterfeiting

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Former football star Billy Cannon appeared before a federal grand jury under protection of immunity Thursday to tell all he knew about a $6-million counterfeiting ring.

Cannon, arrested last Saturday in the phony money scheme prosecutors said was among the top five in U.S.

history, arrived at the federal courthouse with his lawyer, Robert Klempner.

The two-time All-America and Heisman Trophy winner said little as he entered the building.

Meanwhile, federal prosecutors filed in the court records details of a plea bargaining agreement they had with Cannon.

Under the terms of the agreement, Cannon said he would "cooperate fully with federal law enforcement officers investigating these (counterfeiting) and other violations of federal law."

Cannon was granted immunity from any further prosecution, — except for perjury if he lied in his testimony — and signed a written waiver of his rights to remain silent and rights against self-incrimination. The defendant also agrees to take a polygraph (lie detector) examination if such a test is deemed necessary by the U.S. Attorney, the agreement said.

Stemrick might play

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Former Houston Oilers Pro Bowl cornerback Greg Stemrick could play for the New Orleans Saints if NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle rules in his favor on a cocaine possession conviction.

An NFL spokesman said in New York Thursday Rozelle was reviewing the case of Stemrick, who was signed by the Saints this week.

The spokesman said Stemrick could receive a warning, fine or suspension. He said all clubs in the NFL have been notified that players convicted of cocaine possession face possible disciplinary action.

Stemrick, 31, and Houston teammate J.C. Wilson were arrested Jan. 12 at a private Houston lounge.

Uncle Waldo new nightspot

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Uncle Waldo used to travel with a suitcase full of wristwatches.

This might have been fairly normal had he been a salesman. But Waldo kept all the watches tuned and set to the same time.

It must have been a monumental task.

For his labors and his eccentric legacy, Waldo is now honored in the name of Twin Falls' newest nightspot.

"Waldo's Place," located underground at 117 Shoshone St. N., is the creation of two area musicians, Sylvia Young and Suzanne Sluder.

The two may be better known to local music aficionados as Suzanne and Sylvia, "Two Gals That Sing Real Good." And Suzanne may be better known as Suzanne Croner, her name before she got married.

But aficionados may not know about their most recent plans.

Waldo's Place will be a coffee house. "Just like back East when Joan Baez got started," Suzanne says.

If it is well-known refrain to some of the songs they sing that a musician's traveling life can get old.

The two have been on the road together for two years, and they have decided it is time for a change.

"The music business is tough, and the market changes so much," Sylvia says. She says folk music is currently out of favor with club owners, and being women made it doubly difficult to book dates.

So they are setting down for a while to try life "on the other side of the counter."

"We always wanted a coffee house here," Suzanne says. "Now, we've decided we'll do it ourselves, darn it."

They plan some sort of music, comedy or drama five nights a week. The sound equipment will be set up at all times, and certain nights will be set aside for an "open mike."

Area artists will have the walls at their disposal for displays. The watercolors of Cher Williams, a Twin Falls graphic artist, currently are on display.

The two admit they know little about running a coffee house. They have at least one other factor working for them. They have set up shop in what used to be Gino's Brickside Pub.

The Brickside closed in February, leaving all the fixtures intact. The place just needed a paint job and two weeks worth of cleaning, they say.

In some respects, they see their relative lack of experience working in their favor.

"We may be willing to try things others are afraid to try," Sylvia says.

They have at least one other factor working for them. They have set up shop in what used to be Gino's Brickside Pub.

The Brickside closed in February, leaving all the fixtures intact. The place just needed a paint job and two weeks worth of cleaning, they say.

Afterward, they got a loan to buy new chairs and re-stock the bar area with glasses, drinks and edibles. They took over the Brickside's liquor licenses, also a significant saving.

The Brickside was the first place they played music together two years ago. That may be one reason why they have decided to go with a homey atmosphere at first.

They will serve traditional coffee-house fare. In addition, there will be specialties. There will be bottled dark Guinness beer from Ireland and baked goods from The Cake Boutique. Light lunch will be served, featuring hearty soups and bagels.

Even Waldo aimed out onto the bill of fare. The drink bearing his name features espresso coffee with steamed cinnamon-flavored chocolate milk.

The grand-opening reception at Waldo's is scheduled for Sunday, July 24.

But Waldo's Place is currently doing business Tuesday through Saturday, 10:30 a.m. to 1 a.m., and from 1 p.m. to 1 a.m. on Sunday.

Rockhound jewelry maker named queen of Gem Days

By KELLY EVERITT
Times-News writer

FILER — Vera Bassett of Nampa has been named the first queen-over-selected in the seven-year history of the Idaho Gem State Days convention.

"She deserved it," says Gene Anthis, who, along with his wife, Helen, direct and coordinate the state's largest gathering of "rockhounds."

Over 150 exhibitors are expected to participate in the event, which draws rock and gem dealers from across the nation. The convention is being held at the county fairgrounds at Filer today, Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free.

In addition to the rock and gem displays, shows and auctions, the event will feature demonstrations on techniques for finding stones into jewelry, silversmithing demonstrations and an exhibit and demonstration of gold panning.

Also featured at the convention will be booths selling arts and crafts and antiques.

The show opens at 9:30 a.m. each day and ends at 9:30 p.m. today and Saturday and at 6 p.m. on Sunday.

Bassett was chosen as the first queen of the event for several reasons, not the least of which is her bubbling personality. She won't reveal her age, describing herself only as a "senior citizen."

But she is far younger in spirit than

Vera Bassett holds a buckle featuring her stone inlay work

whatever her age is. She speaks in a rapid, animated style. As she describes her "rockhound" hobby, her eyes sparkle like the Idaho fire opals that she turns into jewelry.

But perhaps the primary reason for her selection as queen is the fact she has developed a unique material and process for Intarsis — the carving and inlaying of stones for jewelry.

Although — she has "always been interested in rocks," for more than 20 years she has made a living growing up to 1,500 different varieties of dahlias with her husband, Roy, on their farm near Nampa.

"If you know anything about that," she says, "you know that it kind of cuts into your time for hobbies."

In fact, it has only been in the last five years that she has become a true

Go-karts will race in streets of Hagerman this Sunday

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — The go-karts racing in Hagerman Sunday will not be children's toys pushed along at 20-mph by lawn mower engines.

The high-powered super-karts are capable of getting up to 70 mph in a one-block straightaway.

"They go!" says Cliff Jensen, spokesman for the Hagerman Lions Club, which is sponsoring the races.

"The big ones will outrun a car."

A winding oval race track, set on three blocks of the wide highway through town, will have 70 to 80 cars at the event, Jensen predicts.

Practice begins at 11:30 a.m. and, after time trials, faces start at about 1:30 p.m. A plente in the city park will begin at 4:30 p.m.

The Lions set up the race course, get the straw and tires to put around it, put up detour signs and get the necessary official permission. The Lions auxiliary will have a food stand in the park.

The racers, most of them from clubs, come from Boise, Twin Falls, Pocatello and Oregon.

Larry Kurplewski, past president of the Boise club and a 20-year veteran go-kart racer, says most Hagerman race participants have karts with factory built chassis and motorcycle engines adapted to them.

"Most people don't realize how sophisticated the karts are now," Kurplewski says. "Some of the racers

Symphony begins rehearsals

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The Magic Philharmonic, a symphony group recently formed to give local musicians an outlet for their talent, will start rehearsals on Aug. 2 and will present its first concert in October.

The October performance will be the first in a series of concerts for the coming year, says Bob Dayley, president of the board of directors of the Magic Philharmonic.

Dayley says the primary goals of the symphony are to promote interest in symphonic music in the community, to provide a medium in which musicians of good caliber can perform, and to revive an interest in music education which encourages performance on stringed instruments such as violin, viola, cello, and string bass.

Even though the symphony is a volunteer organization, the group strives to be well prepared for concerts and rehearses long hours says Dayley.

Steve Floyd, the Burley High School band teacher, has allowed the group to use his band room for rehearsals and has provided access to the high school music library, an invaluable aid, says Dayley.

The Magic Philharmonic gave its first concert last March. The only complaint leveled at the group, says Dayley, was that the performance was too short. The musicians were called back for an encore, he says.

The symphony is conducted by Val Harrison, who will be assisted this season by Katherine Collier, concert mistress, and Taunia Buck, principal violinist.

The Philharmonic has played orchestral music ranging from Niccolò Paganini to Leroy Anderson. Its plans, says Dayley, are to continue to provide a variety of music, something for everyone.

Dayley says the Magic Philharmonic is a music organization which, if success is measured by enthusiasm and dedication, will rate as a great source of pride to the Mini-Cassia community.

The Magic Philharmonic is incorporating as a non-profit organization, adds Dayley.

This symphonic group, however, is not the first one in the Mini-Cassia area.

In 1961, Orvil Murphy, a Burley musician, organized the Mini-Cassia Symphony comprised of 40 musicians.

Murphy says the group provided an opportunity for musicians in the community to share their love for music with each other and with audiences who loved to listen to good music.

The organization disbanded after three years.

If you have an item for The Times-News entertainment calendar, mail it to: The Times-News, Box 548, Twin Falls, 83301, or bring it to our office. We must receive your notice by Wednesday noon to print it in that week's "Friday Special." Calendar events must be open to the public.

Art Classes and Shows

BOISE — "Fiber Structure National II" is on display through Aug. 7 at the Boise Art Gallery, 670 Julia Davis Drive in Boise.

KETCHUM — John Dawson's Smokey Bear fire prevention poster "Leave A Good Impression," featuring 15 forest animals and their footprints, will be displayed July 19 through Aug. 9 at the Ketchum Ranger District office. Dawson will also exhibit several of his wildlife paintings. The office will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily. Dawson will be at the office from 1 to 4 p.m. July 19.

TWIN FALLS — "Fragile Contents," an exhibit of pre-Columbian ceramics from Mexico, and the contemporary ceramic sculptures of Douglas Baldwin will be exhibited through Sept. 23 at the Herrett Museum on the College of Southern Idaho campus. Museum hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesdays, from 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Friday, and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

TWIN FALLS — Carol Conover will begin sessions of Children's Art Classes July 18. Beginning art classes will be held from 1:30 to 3:30 p.m. Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursdays. Intermediate classes will be held at 10 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. Tuesdays. Advanced classes with limited enrollment will be held at 1:30 p.m. Fridays. Instruction will include drawing, painting, color, design, cartooning and sculpture. For more information or to register, call Conover at 734-1588.

TWIN FALLS — Tale with a Twist studio at 2508 Addison Ave. East in Twin Falls will hold classes for 7- to 12-year-olds at 9 a.m. Tuesdays and classes for 13-year-olds and older at 9 a.m. Thursdays. For more information or registration, visit the studio.

Music and Dancing

BELLEVUE — The Velvet Dance Band will provide music for a public dance at 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Silver Dollar Bar in Bellevue.

BLISS — The "High Country" western band will play for a dance at 9 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays at the Y-Inn in Bliss.

BLISS — A public dance will begin at 8:30 p.m. at the Y-Inn in Bliss. Music will be provided by the Velvet Dance Band.

FILER — The Idaho Gem Days convention is being held at the county fairgrounds at Filer today, Saturday and Sunday. Admission is free. In addition to the rock and gem displays, shows and auctions, the event will feature demonstrations on techniques for turning stones into jewelry, silversmithing demonstrations and an exhibit and demonstration of gold panning.

Rockhound Go-karts

"rockhound." She began constructing jewelry only two years ago, and began at that time to develop her unique process for creating the backgrounds for her detailed, precision-inlaid stone carvings.

She says she hasn't completed the process and won't release the formula for it until she is fully satisfied. And she offers no class at all to what she calls her jewelry, the vibrant background colors that perfectly complement the stone inlay work.

She already is becoming famous for her work — a rare accomplishment for a woman who is appearing in only her third show this weekend.

"I entered the (gem) federation show in Boise earlier this year, just to see how I was doing, to see if I will any good."

"It took two days just for the judges to decide what class to put me in. Finally, they decided to call my work intarsias. Then they gave me the blue ribbon and invited me to the national show in Seattle later this year."

"Of course, I don't know if I'll go. Really, I'd rather go fishing."

"Also, I'm scared to death of big cities and they may ask me to give up my formula. I won't go if they're going to ask that."

"As soon as I get the formula to where I want it, then I'll give it out."

She buys the settings for the earrings, pendants, rings and belt buckles that she has for sale because "I just haven't had time to learn silversmithing."

But the rocks she cuts for her designs of scenes and animals she and her husband "mine" themselves. In fact, a special brown "picture Jasper" that is common, along with fire opals, to just of her works is named after her and her husband.

She enjoys using fire opals to highlight her work, Idaho is famous for the gem, which she says is "the very top in jewelry these days, the way turquoise used to be."

Each piece of jewelry that she produces is unique.

"When somebody buys one of these," she says as she sets out her jewelry in a special case, "they know nobody else will have another piece like it — unless, of course, they request it."

She is a perfectionist with her work. "If I start a piece, it's going to come out. No matter how many times I have to cut something over again."

"It can get very exasperating," she admits. "Look at this," she points to an inlaid seagull in a brooch. "See the legs? They're thinner than toothpicks. I think the first four (rocks) I put on (the cutting) wheel just flew off. But I finally got it right."

She points to another piece, a belt buckle featuring a beautiful mallard duck against a blue sky.

"It took half a day going through opals of different colors just to get the right color for its head. Sometimes I've spent as much as two days searching for just the right color and pattern in a rock."

She says that anyone can do the work she does. "It just takes time, patience and good equipment."

Her persons interested in becoming "rockhounds" and learning to make finely crafted jewelry, she has one bit of advice. "Join a club. They'll learn more, faster, than they can anywhere else."

For Bassett, her work is more hobby than lucrative profession. Most of the pieces she sells will cost from $55 to $150.

"I figure, I'm only getting about a dollar an hour for my work," she says. "Maybe..."

have $1,000 to $3,000 invested in their karts. The smaller ones cost $400 to $1,000."

The racing classes Sunday are rookie, age 8 to 9 racing two-cycle engines; junior rookie, ages 10 to 12 racing the more powerful two-cycle engines; junior rookie, ages 12 to 16, also with the two-cycle engines; and the four-cycle senior, ages 16 and up.

Next is seniors, ages 16 and up, racing two-cycle engines in the novice, stock and stock-heavy divisions.

For the grand finale, there is the super-karts class, ages 16 and up, with 300 cubic centimeter engines and six-speed transmissions.

Some of these karts, says Kurpewski, are fueled with nitro-additives.

John Mason, one of about six racers from Twin Falls, says there is no place in the Magic Valley to buy a go-kart, unless an occasional used one is for sale. The nearest outlet for new karts, he says, are in Boise and Salt Lake City.

Mason says, "lay-down karts" are the fastest ones he knows of, doing 100-mph on a long track. The karts that will be in Hagerman, he says, will "do zero to 50 real fast."

Other races Mason and his friends go to are in Boise, Pocatello, Utah and Oregon.

"It's kind of a sport in this area, where you've got to travel a lot to do it," Mason says. Also, he adds, it is hard to find a place to practice because most parking lot owners do not appreciate the loud kart engines.

In Hagerman, says Mason, "the course is very good for spectators because they have a lot of room and can see the entire course. For the racers, he admits, the course lacks variety and is not as much fun as others he has seen.

To promote the sport, the Twin Falls racer says he would like to see more races in this area "so the enthusiasm—generated by one race—would be carried on."

Jensen says there will be no one from Hagerman competing and karts will not be available to the public to try "...not unless you can talk one of the guys into it."

Trophies will be awarded to the race winners.

There is no admission charge for the expected large crowd of spectators at this third annual event. "It's just a fun time," Jensen says of the non-profit event.

Fellowships available for folk art workshop

SUN VALLEY — The Institute of the American West is offering stipends, which will cover housing and meals, for qualified persons attending the Northern-Rockies-Folk Festival workshops and concerts, Aug. 2-6.

The fellowships are available to secondary school teachers and others involved with humanities education. Recipients will be provided with housing and two meals a day during the course of the event, which is designed to encourage an appreciation and understanding of folk art.

The workshops will be held in Hailey and will focus on material folk arts of Idaho.

Instructors for the workshops include Idaho State folk arts coordinator Steve Sporin, Harry Gammerding, Elaine Lawless, Gary Stanton and a number of Idaho folk artists.

Credit for the workshop will be available through Idaho State University.

To apply for the stipends, write: Institute of the American West, Box 656, Sun Valley, Idaho 83353. Applicants need to provide details of involvement in teaching, and how the stipend will be of benefit.

Secondary school teachers receiving the stipends will be required to sponsor folk artist residents in the classroom during the following year.

For more information call Richard Hart, 622-9371.

Album celebrates Idaho's Hispanics

By STEPHANIE SCHOROW
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Her words weep with pain and loss; her voice runs strong and sweet.

Con el atardecer me ire de ti, me iré sin ti.

With the sunset I will leave you, leave without you.

Me alejar de aquí con un dolor dentro de mí.

I will leave here with a pain inside me.

Amor puro corazón que no es falta de amor pero es mejor así.

My love I swear that it is not for lack of love; it is better this way.

The singer is Ruth Mendez, a southern Idaho Mexican-American. The lamenting tune, called "Cruz de Ovidio" or "Forgotten Cross," is a "bolero" or romantic song of the Hispanic folk music tradition.

This song, and 13 other selections representing that tradition, are featured on an album recently produced by the Idaho Commission on the Arts to celebrate the music of Mexican-Americans living in Southern Idaho.

Titled "Soy Mexicano: Traditional Mexican-American Music from Southern Idaho," the album explores the life and loves of Hispanics living in Idaho, as interpreted by Mexican-American bands and singers.

Recorded on location, the album aims to capture the flavor of the music as it is performed before a live audience. The result is a recording that is not technically perfect but is authentic to the musical style of local Idaho musicians.

For example, the song "Flor del Campo," or "Wild Flower," was recorded in Rupert, Idaho, at a Fourth of July celebration two years ago. The performers, a group called "Los Rancheritos," have been a familiar sight at Mexican-American fiestas, holidays and birthdays throughout Idaho. Band leader Rafael Rodriguez and lead singer Linda Rodriguez, his daughter, live in Twin Falls.

A rollicking "cumbia" or tropical dance tune, "Wildflower" is a description of a pretty girl named "Flor del Campo," who lives in the mountains. Behind the ripples of the accordion, the faint sounds of the Rupert audience can be heard.

Nearly all the album's songs were written by Mexican-American Idahoans; Santos Hernandez, of Nampa, sings a tune extolling the beauties of his home town: "Nampa, Nampa, Idaho / Tu tienes tu parque-cubierta de flores / Nidito de amor / Nampa, Nampa, Idaho." (Nampa, Idaho, you have your parks covered with flowers. Little nest of love.)

The album also includes a traditional tune, "Soy Mexicano," a statement about the difficulties of maintaining one's cultural heritage while living as a "minority" in a foreign culture.

Because of the on-spot recording, the production work is rough. Comments in Spanish and English by band members, sandwiched between the songs, are often cut off abruptly. At times, the harmonies sound distinctly off-key.

Rodriguez said he and his band were aware they were being recorded, but he thought it would be better included in an album. Listening to the recording, his first thought was "We could do a better job than that."

But he is pleased with the overall album.

"It's nice because it tells the story about us, how we came to this country," he said. "There's a good selection of songs, even if it doesn't have going sound, because it's a 'homemade' album. It helped us a lot."

The album was funded through a grant for the promotion of folk music from the National Endowment of the Arts to the Idaho Commission on the Arts.

"The goal of the arts program is to document, preserve, encourage and present the folk culture of Idaho, and Mexican-Americans are the single biggest ethnic group in the state," said Steve Sporin, the album's editor and the arts commission's folk art coordinator.

The music was recorded by ethnomusicologist David Kilpatrick and produced by Barbara LaPan Rubin of the commission.

A 12-page booklet that comes with the album includes descriptions of the songs, the lyrics (in both Spanish and English) and an essay on Idaho Hispanic folk music. Transcriptions of the music are also included for persons who wish to play the songs themselves.

A second album, featuring Anglo-American musical traditions in Idaho, is now being produced by the commission.

"Soy Mexicano" is available through the Institute of the American West in Sun Valley, (the album's publisher and distributor) for $7 plus $1.50 for shipping and handling. For more information contact the Institute of the American West, Box 656, Sun Valley, Idaho 83353, (208) 622-9371.

Guided wildflower tour planned for Saturday

SOUTH HILLS — The public is invited to participate in a guided wildflower tour in the South Hills of the Sawtooth National Forest on Saturday.

Persons interested in taking the tour should meet at the Diamondfield Jack snowmobile warming hut at the top of Rock Creek. The tour will begin at 10 a.m. and end by noon. Participants should wear good sturdy walking shoes or hiking boots.

Tom Phillips, retired Forest Service ranger and wildlife specialist, will lead the tour. Wildflowers and other vegetation will be identified during a short walk through the upper Rock Creek area.

Participants are encouraged to bring a picnic lunch and spend the remainder of the day enjoying the forest.

For more information contact: E. Wadepoff, public information officer, Sawtooth National Forest at 733-3698; or Bob Pettygrove at 423-4044.

Mark Neiwirth will teach piano workshop in August

TWIN FALLS — Mark Neiwirth, concert pianist and teacher, will host a one-week piano workshop, Aug. 1-6, at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts, 511 Second Ave. E., Twin Falls.

The workshop is open to piano students up to age 21 and deadline for applications is July 23.

The workshop will consist of five, two-hour master classes designed to give students the opportunity to share the learning experience and to gain confidence by performing in front of peers, says Neiwirth.

Each student will perform at least once during the week and again at the free public concert on Saturday, Aug. 6, at 7:30 p.m.

Neiwirth will lecture about technique, theory, music history, memorizing, teaching principles and stage deportment.

As an added bonus, he will teach one private lesson to each student during the week.

The tuition fee is $40. Auditors are invited to sit in on any class for a fee of $5 per class.

Belly dancing days halted by husband

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 17 years to a good, loving man who treats me like a queen.

He has a few faults, but nothing serious. He goes out once a week with the boys, comes home drunk and falls into bed. He has never hit me or even called me names.

I always loved to dance, and I say so myself. I was very good. Before we were married I used to do "belly dancing." When someone had a birthday I'd go out and do a belly dance. It wasn't vulgar or anything. It was all fun. I got paid, but I really did it mostly for fun.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

You can make that choice.

DEAR ABBY: I'm being married in an informal wedding. It's the second time around for both of us. He's wearing a business suit and I'm wearing a short, dressy dress.

All the guests are wearing informal clothes except my fiancée's mother, who plans to wear an expensive formal gown she bought especially for her daughter's wedding, which was canceled—last summer—at the last minute.

She showed it to me and asked how I liked it. I told her it was beautiful, but I thought she'd be more comfortable in a short dress. I explained that no other woman would be wearing a long gown, and she might feel conspicuous.

She said she had her heart set on wearing it, and if I had no objections, she would wear it.

Now what? I hate to let her make a fool of herself. I've asked my fiancée, and he said, "She's stubborn as a mule. Leave her alone." What should I do?

DEAR ABBY: I'm in my early 20s, my husband is in his early 30s. My problem is sex life. We've been married for three years and our sex life has been pretty bad for most of it. There is no romance in our lovemaking whatsoever. It lasts maybe three minutes, then I'm frustrated.

I've talked to my husband until I'm blue in the face, but it hasn't helped. I've been to a marriage counselor. (He won't go.) I've even threatened to leave him. Nothing works. He says he loves me, but sex is not a very important part of marriage. I think it is.

"The rest of our marriage is pretty good, but I'm falling out of love with him awfully fast. What should I do?"

DEAR ABBY: You're a young woman, and you're in a loving, non-legal marriage. Most every university medical school offers sex therapy, which could be enormously helpful to your husband.

He really loves you, he'll agree. If he refuses, you can either settle for a sexually frustrating but otherwise "pretty good" marriage, or make good your threat to leave him—only you.

DEAR FRUSTRATED: You're a young woman, and you're in a loving, non-legal marriage. Most every university medical school offers sex therapy, which could be enormously helpful to your husband.

ROY RAYMOND GUARANTEES Customer Satisfaction

All of our cars and trucks are given complete service and safety inspected before they are sold to you. In addition, they are tested by the most modern equipment available - the DYNAMOMETER. Ask the salesman to show you the Dyno-Printout describing the mechanical and electrical condition of the vehicle.
