Dissent swells toward Reagan plan

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Henry Kissinger said Monday the presidential commission he heads will seek to avert a nationally divisive "Vietnam type of crisis" in Central America.

President Reagan called Kissinger to the Oval Office to discuss how the 12-member commission named last week will come up with recommendations to ease the economic and social ills that underlie troubles in the hemisphere.

But the public stress on non-military solutions to what Reagan has termed "the first real communist aggression on the American mainland" was offset by a growing controversy over military exercises in the area and a new report of plans to step up paramilitary activity against Nicaragua.

The New York Times reported the administration is planning a massive expansion in CIA-directed operations that would involve "the most extensive covert operations mounted by the United States since the Vietnam War."

The newspaper said the expanded covert

War games to involve up to 4,000 U.S. troops

WASHINGTON — U.S. combat troops will join Honduran forces for the first time in extensive, months-long maneuvers that, at one point, will involve as many as 4,000 Americans, senior Pentagon officials said Monday.

And Navy sources said an eight-ship battle group led by the aircraft carrier

Ranger has arrived on station 100 miles off the Central American coast in the first stage of a U.S. show of naval force in the region.

Pentagon officials said ground exercises with the Hondurans would begin next month and run through January and termed the maneuvers a "military shield" protecting Central American countries friendly to the United States, such as Honduras and El Salvador.

The officials also said U.S. Army engineers will expand two Honduran airfields to accommodate C-130 transports and that "consideration is being given" to building a "naval facility" on the Caribbean coast of Honduras.

The combined U.S.-Honduran exercises are designed to "build up the capabilities of our forces to work together in the event of aggression" in Central America, a senior Pentagon official said.

Mass murder case cracked

Bodies found near Salt Lake

By PAUL ROLLY
United Press International

SALT LAKE CITY — The bodies of five boys kidnapped during the last five years were found in the Wasatch Mountains Monday.

Authorities were led there by statements from a man accused of what officials call the largest mass murder in Utah's history.

Assistant Salt Lake County Attorney John T. Nielsen said routine questioning of Roger W. Downs, 30, a bookkeeper at a Salt Lake City lumber company, Monday about the disappearance of a 13-year-old youth led police to the bodies.

He said first-degree murder charges would be filed later this week. The county attorney would not say if Downs confessed to the murders.

"I did not say he made a confession... As a result of talking to him we were able to determine the location of the graves," Nielsen said.

Three of the bodies were in shallow graves and two were in a river.

The victims were identified as: Alouzo Daniels, Salt Lake City, who was 4 when he disappeared Oct. 16, 1979; Kimley Peterson, Sandy, who was 11 when he disappeared Nov. 8, 1980; Danny Davis, Salt Lake County, who was 4 when he was abducted from a South Salt Lake supermarket Oct. 20, 1981; Troy Ward, Salt Lake City, 6, who vanished June 22; and Graeme Cunningham, 13, Salt Lake City, who disappeared July 14.

Nielsen declined to say whether the boys were killed.

"This is the worst case I can ever remember," said Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward. "I don't believe we've ever had a case where one person faced capital homicide charges for five murders."

Downs, a bookkeeper, was described by a neighbor as a man who looked "pretty mean."

Tina Rose, who lives next door to Downs with her three sons, ages 13, 12 and 10, and her 9-year-old daughter, said she and the children lived in fear since young boys began disappearing from the area.

Mrs. Rose said her children occasionally used to talk to Downs — but that all changed after the Ward and Cunningham kidnappings.

Mrs. Rose said Downs wasn't very friendly and looked like "he was pretty mean. My little girl went over to talk to him and the boys talked to him" at first but later she told the children to stay away.

"There were a lot of fights out there, too," Mrs. Rose said. "One of the hippies used to light fires out by the garage and then Roger would hit him."

The 13-year-old Kevin Rose said Downs "seemed like a pretty nice guy."

The boy said the news of the children's bodies "makes me feel bad, scared."

Daniels, Davis and Peterson were found buried in shallow graves southeast of Cedar Fort, just west of Utah Lake and about 50 miles south of Salt Lake City. The disappearance of Davis was the third time in as many years that a young boy had vanished in the Salt Lake area within two weeks of Halloween.

The bodies of Ward and Cunningham were found in Big Cottonwood Creek, 20 miles southeast of Salt Lake City in the Wasatch Mountains. They both disappeared from the Liberty Park area in central Salt Lake City.

Nielsen said Downs was aquainted with Cunningham and it was the investigation of that relationship that led to the break in the case.

"This arrest concludes four years of intensive, combined investigation by the Salt Lake City Police Department, Salt Lake County Sheriff's Office and South Salt Lake Police Department," he said.

Detectives had surmised a connection between three of the kidnappings because they occurred around Halloween in successive years.

The investigations of the kidnap-

Toxic waste spills

At Montpelier

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN

BOISE — An investigation will be conducted to determine why several drums filled with toxic chemicals leaked last week near Montpelier.

Frank York, the department's safety management specialist in Boise, said the inquiry would determine if federal regulations were violated when the 87 Syntex Chemical Co. barrels were loaded on a truck in Owyhee County.

While York said no conclusions had been reached regarding the way the shipment was handled, an Environmental Protection Agency official Monday said, "If the seals (on the drums) were leaking, it appears they may have been improperly cared for."

However, a company spokesman said the firm believes all federal standards were met when the barrels were filled with waste and placed on the truck — owned by Rias International of Kansas City, Mo.

Four of the containers — laden with a mixture of pyridine, methylene chloride and water — leaked through seals Wednesday while the vehicle was stopped at a diner.

On-site investigators said several other drums appeared as though they might also leak. All the drums, and about 50 barrels of soil contaminated during the spill, were loaded on trucks last Wednesday and taken to the EnviroSafe of Idaho dump site near Grandview.

York said the investigation would look into whether the barrels were properly loaded on the truck, if the containers were correctly filled and if they were in good condition for interstate shipment.

McClure, Craig oppose land sales program

By STEVEN CHRISTENSEN
United Press International

BOISE — Two Republican lawmakers from Idaho, including the chairman of the Senate's Energy and Natural Resources Committee, urged President Reagan Monday to abandon his program to sell federal lands.

Sen. James McClure and Rep. Larry Craig said they sent a letter to the president calling for a dismantling of the administration's Property Review Board and Asset Management Team — two agencies responsible for supervising the possible sale of millions of acres of western lands.

McClure said he thought the year-old program to place acreage and other "surplus" federal properties on the auction block had been so misunderstood by Americans that "it is better to stop it" and allow land transfers only under terms of the Federal Land Policy Management Act (FLPMA).

Craig went a step further, saying he had gained evidence in recent months indicating the program was aimed more at raising revenue than at disposing of unneeded federal property.

He said he believed the provisions of FLPMA, passed in 1976, had been "arbitrarily changed" by those in charge of the disposal program.

"Those priorities originally were that land deemed to be excess was to be traded, exchanged, or as a last resort, sold," Craig said Monday from his Washington office.

"I am now convinced that the last priority — sales — was moved up to the first priority," he said, adding his conviction grew "when (Office of Management and Budget Director) David Stockman decided that it was going to be an effort to raise money to offset the national debt."

McClure said in a telephone interview from Washington, D.C., the disposal program had prompted so much fear among westerners that "It is better to halt it than attempt to redirect it."

The senior senator added he does not object to transfers of federal land "which are virtually impossible to manage," but believes FLPMA, accompanied by congressional oversight, are sufficient to permit such disposals.

"I think there was enough fear on the part of many people that they misread the initial signs and you could never get them back into a rational perspective," McClure said.

"When that happens, it's better to stop the program. And I hope the administration sees it the same way."

McClure and Craig said they expected Interior Secretary James Watt and Bureau of Land Management Director Robert Burford to support abolition of the sales program.

"Believe it or not, Jim Watt has never favored this approach," Craig said. He said the Interior secretary worried the disposal program "would be very disruptive" to the normal planning process laid out for BLM under terms of FLPMA.

In their letter to Reagan, the lawmakers said establishment of the Asset Management Team and the Property Review Board in 1982 removed the assurance "that each land-disposal action will go through the normal study and review process which gives local landowners and communities an opportunity to participate in the decision-making process and ensure that the impact on them is considered."

"Instead, the highest priority appears to be to sell lands to the biggest bidder," he said.

"An across-the-board policy of selling lands is not wise stewardship, nor does it always place the government in the role of a good neighbor or land manager," Craig said.

He agreed with McClure that their letter is likely to have a large impact on the president's thinking about the disposal program.

"The pressure has built, it's representative said.

Fire damages local business

TWIN FALLS — Fire in a grain bin on the roof of the Twin Falls Feed and Ice at 135 Fifth Ave. S. caused an undetermined amount of damage Monday night.

Battalion Chief Phillip Clough of the Twin Falls Fire Department said apparently the fire started in slag in the bin where workers were doing some welding until about 5 p.m. Clough said smoke was spotted by a deputy sheriff who was passing the plant along 135th St. A butcher who works at the plant said he had a smoker going and believed that was what the deputy saw. However, when he went to the building to investigate, he found there was a fire on the roof. Police officers who had also gone to check the fire report summoned the fire department. Three trucks responded to the call and had the fire out within about an hour.

Damage was confined to the roof, grain bin and some inside grain equipment that was water soaked.

State's fires under control

United Press International

Federal firefighters extinguished Monday all but one of the lightning-caused blazes ignited in the state by a weekend storm.

Bureau of Land Management officials in the Burley area said flames had consumed about 130 acres Monday.

But they said the cost of fighting a fire in the remote area was more than the value of the land, so they had dispatched 20 people to the site just to watch the fire.

Firefighters in the Blaine district extinguished 200-acre blazes near the Owyhee County-Moore as well as a 200-acre blaze nearby.

Marine survives, eats ants

JACKSON, Calif. (UPI) — A U.S. Marine who became lost in a rugged Amador County mountain area of Northern California for nearly six weeks survived on a diet of ants, moss and grass until two hikers found him, authorities said Monday.

Lance Cpl. Kari Joseph Bell, 22, of Battle Creek, Mich., was found on a ledge near Bear River Reservoir Sunday afternoon, Sgt. Dave Crow of the Amador County Sheriff's Department said.

Bell was flown to a hospital in South Lake Tahoe in stable and fair condition, badly sunburned and about 65 pounds lighter than 195 pounds indicated on his Michigan driver's license.

Heat wave fizzling out

The heat wave that claimed more than 150 lives last week Monday as temperatures across the nation returned to normal for this time of the year.

But, as storms cracked from Montana in the Northwest to the Texas Panhandle in the Southwest and Georgia down South, a tornado ripped the roof off an observation deck at the Jacksonville, Fla., Humane Society.

"There weren't as many 100-degree readings today," said National Weather Service meteorologist Harry Gordon.

Aftershock jolts Coalinga

COALINGA, Calif. (UPI) — A "real hard jolt" struck earthquake-ravaged Coalinga Monday, one of a series of strong aftershocks from the May 2 tremor that destroyed the downtown area and turned hundreds of people into refugees.

The tremor, measuring 5.2 on the open-ended Richter scale, occurred at 3:31 p.m. PDT with an epicenter 11 miles northwest of this farming and oil community, according to the U.S. Geological Survey.

"It sure tore hell out of everything," said Phillip Bowman, manager of the Jiffy Food Store in Coalinga.

Price case trial scheduled

POCATELLO (UPI) — Ten of 12 defendants in an alleged gas price-fixing conspiracy in Bannock County pleaded innocent Monday before U.S. Magistrate Craig Jorgensen.

The magistrate set trial for the defendants — including former state Sen. James A. Leese, D-Pocatello, for Sept. 27 before Judge Ray McNichols in Pocatello.

Two other defendants — Herzog Oil Co. of Pocatello and Earl Pixton — pleaded innocent last week. Their trial also was scheduled for Sept. 27, court officials said.

The 12 are accused of conspiring to fix the price of retail gasoline from January 1978 through October of last year.

Defendants in the case are: Leese, who retired from the legislative District 34 seat in 1980 after two terms, and his son, James B. Leese; Continental Fuel Co. and two of its owners, Don Bleisner and George Frost, both of Pocatello; Howard O. Miller and H. David Miller, operators of Howard O. Miller Co.; Triangle Oil Co.; Bountiful, Utah; and Roberts TBA Service Inc. and its president, Edwin H. Roberts, Pocatello.

District issue up to judge

SANDPOINT (UPI) — First District Judge Dar Cogswell must decide whether 14 proposed redistricting plans for the state's legislative boundaries are better than the map adopted by the 1982 Legislature.

Cogswell has scheduled testimony to help him make that decision. Hearings that could last up to two weeks were scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Bonner County Courthouse in Sandpoint.

Cogswell said he must decide if he should adopt a new redistricting plan or allow the Idaho Legislature to do so — and if he decides to take action himself, he must consider the 14 proposed maps submitted by plaintiffs in the case.

"I've got to wait and see what the plans look like and if they are feasible and if they comply with the Constitution," Cogswell said.

air and hazardous waste team in Boise asked, "There was clearly a problem: We don't know what caused the initial leakage. It could have been a faulty drum, perhaps suffering from corrosion."

Provant added the fact that some drums leaked "makes the whole load suspect."

"That stuff can be safely transported without leaking. That's a given: So the fact that it was leaking shows there clearly was a problem," he said.

Greg Hovis, a representative for the chemical company's parent firm — Syntex Corp. of Palo Alto, Calif., — said Monday Syntex officials believe all regulations were met when the shipment was loaded at the Boulder, Colo., subsidiary.

"The leaking occurs at our (Syntex) facility, and both our people and the trucking company people inspect those drums before and after they are put on the truck," Morris said.

"As far as we know, that shipment went out in compliance with our loading standards," he said. "When I left our plant, we believe it was within the standards which we would consider safe."

He added, "This is the first incident of this nature that we're aware of involving the hauling of material from Colorado to EnviroSafe."

York said results of the investigation be shown to the U.S. attorney in Boise and sent to the Transportation Department's office in Denver. If any violations are detected, he said, either of those agencies could institute action against the chemical company.

York said the "general penalty" for violation of shipping regulations is a $10,000 fine per count.

The department spokesman added it could take several months to complete the investigation.

Provant said it is possible the drums leaked because hot weather expanded chemicals in the barrels.

But Gordon-Hopson, head of the State Division of Environment-office in Pocatello, said he doubted nature was to blame for the leakage.

ings included the hiring of psychics, the offering of a $20,000 award by local businessmen and a statewide child fingerprinting program launched by the PTA that involved more than 35,000 Utah children.

The frustration also led the Utah State Legislature earlier this year to pass what is considered the toughest child kidnapping law in the nation.

The law calls for a minimum of five-years to life for first-time offenders and escalates to 15-years-to-life for third time offenders. Kidnappers who kill their victims face a possible death sentence.

State officials defend lockdown at prison

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — Idaho State Penitentiary officials said they restored normal operations Monday in most of the cellblock where a lockdown was imposed for six days, but about 35 potentially troublesome inmates probably will be held in their cells until Wednesday.

The lockdown was ordered July 19 after guards found homemade knives and several gallons of prison-brewed liquor in the three-tiered close-custody unit, said Warden Darrot Gardner.

Cell searches produced 10 hand-fashioned knife blades, or "shanks," and about 25 gallons of "squawkie," an alcoholic beverage brewed from leftovers in the penitentiary kitchen, officials said.

Meanwhile, corrections Department Director Al Murphy said the lockdown helped improve employee morale. He added similar lockdowns probably would be scheduled routinely in coming months.

Gardner said guards continued to enforce the lockdown in a medium-security tier where inmates last week protested the move by hurling the area, burning their clothes and hurling food through the unit.

"That tier includes the ones that were agitating the most," he said. Three inmates were moved to maximum security cells during the lockdown, but "we don't know whether we got all the agitators or not," he said.

Two of the 16 inmates in the close-custody unit were allowed to leave their cells for meals and other activities, he said.

The lockdown coincided Saturday with the third anniversary of a destructive prison riot and Gardner said prison officials had heard rumors that prisoners planned to commemorate the event by disrupting normal operations.

"There was some noise that they were going to have an anniversary riot," Gardner said, but he added that alone would not have justified the lockdown.

Compounding tensions were an inmate stabbing June 23, and reports that several prisoners had knives and illicit alcohol, he said.

"All those things, taken together, formed the basis of an opinion that there might have been serious trouble brewing," Gardner said.

Murphy said prisoners as well as guards received some clear signals from prison administrators during the lockdown.

"I'm not going to sit around and wait for something to happen," he said. "I think that shakedowns need to happen on a regular basis and probably will be scheduled on a regular basis."

He said prison workers did "a tremendous job" of enforcing the lockdown and maintaining order in other areas of the penitentiary. He said employee morale would be buoyed by the knowledge that administrators supported their actions.

Murphy, who became agency director this spring after supervising a maximum-security facility in Oklahoma, said relatively few inmates cause most of the trouble.

"If they want to celebrate (the riot anniversary), they can go ahead and celebrate," he said.

Air Force zaps missiles with laser gun

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An airborne laser has for the first time successfully disabled air-to-air missiles, the Air Force said Monday, advancing laser technology one step toward President Reagan's "Star Wars" defense proposals.

The laser weapon, carried aboard a converted Boeing 707 jetliner called an NKC-135, crippled five Sidewinder missiles shot at it from an A-7 Corsair fighter-bomber, the Air Force said.

The laser experiments were held over several months, but an Air Force spokesman declined to say if there had been any failures because "we cannot comment on the success rate. The details are classified."

He declined to comment on the distance between the attack plane and the target plane when the AIM-9 Sidewinder missiles were fired.

In earlier tests in June 1981, the laser system successfully intercepted two Sidewinder missiles but failed to immobilize them. In the latest experiments, the carbon dioxide gas dynamic laser did not destroy the Sidewinder but weakly exploded them on impact, but disabled their guidance systems so that they were prevented "from reaching their target," the spokesman said.

An airborne laser weapon could be used to protect bombers heading for a target by deflecting missiles fired at them.

The Air Force has been experimenting with the Airborne Laser Laboratory for more than two years at the Naval Weapons Center range at China Lake, Calif., to determine whether it would be feasible to build a laser weapon.

"The technology base established by these experiments will be applied to future laser development efforts," the Air Force statement said.

The technology could be applied to a space-based laser system similar to what President Reagan had in mind when he announced a program in May, called the "Star Wars" initiative, to develop a shield by the turn of the century to protect the United States from a missile attack.

But the Air Force spokesman said the airborne laser system is a long way from becoming a planetary shield.

Lawmakers angered by show of force

By ROBERT SHEPARD
United Press International

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Thomas O'Neill Monday accused the Reagan administration of putting on "an unneeded show of strength" in Central America with plans for an increased military and CIA presence in the region.

"I think it's awful, absolutely awful," O'Neill said of U.S. military exercises this summer and a report of the administration is planning an expanded CIA operation.

"It is frightening to the American people" and "to the nations of the region," O'Neill said. "It is an unneeded show of strength."

Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., said the military exercises planned for the Nicaragua-Honduran border may require congressional action under the War Powers Act.

Dodd said, "We are about to induce U.S. forces into an area of ongoing hostilities." He asked Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., to seek an urgent meeting with Secretary of State George Shultz.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Congress will be consulted on the joint exercises, but indicated the administration does not believe the maneuvers are covered by provisions of the War Powers Act.

The War Powers Act requires the president to consult with Congress when U.S. troops are sent into a war zone and limits the time the troops may remain in the area without congressional approval.

O'Neill accused the administration of seeking political gain with the foreign policy. "All things point toward building up for the campaign, and that's not good for America."

The House is scheduled to resume work Tuesday on a bill that would force a halt to the aid and supplies now provided to the Nicaraguan guerrillas.

O'Neill said he expects conservatives in the House to try to delay action on the bill in hopes of forcing its withdrawal.

Assistant Republican leader Ted Stevens, R-Alaska, said there would be some public support for a U.S.-imposed quarantine on arms shipments to Central America through a naval blockade.

"I think a quarantine to prevent more arms from going in that area would be supported by the people where it come from" more than sending in U.S. troops, he said.

"It's my personal opinion the people on the ground are going to determine the outcome in that area. I think we should be careful not to increase the numbers involved in that," he said.

uncertainty about objectives and what was attainable," Kissinger, who served as secretary of state in the Nixon and Ford administrations, told a news conference at the State Department.

"I think the commission will try to make its contribution to avoiding another Vietnam-type of crisis."

On Capitol Hill, House Speaker

Thomas O'Neill called the administration's latest moves in Central America "absolutely awful," and "an unneeded show of strength."

Accusing the administration of seeking political gain with its foreign policy, he told reporters on Capitol Hill that its efforts to bolster the U.S. presence in Central America are "frightening to the American people" and to the nations of the region.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the administration would have "no comment" on the covert activities report in the New York Times.

But he later told reporters, "We have consistently expressed our support for a political solution to the problems in Central America, not a military solution."

The report came as the House prepared to consider Tuesday and Wednesday a proposed cutoff of $80 million in officially secret backing for Nicaraguan rebels.

Foley said the possibility of an enlarged covert operation may increase support in the House this week to cut off funding.

The aid has become an embarrassing open secret for Reagan, who has termed the rebels "freedom fighters"

Troops

President Reagan is sure to be asked about the maneuvers during a nationally broadcast news conference planned Tuesday night.

Though American combat forces have been sent to Honduras previously to train Honduran and Salvadoran troops, the maneuvers mark the first time U.S. combat troops have joined in large-scale exercises with the Hondurans, the officials said.

The ground maneuvers will be spread out over five months and involve various Army and Marines contingents. The Marines will stage a landing on the Honduran coast, they said.

At one point, possibly in November, between 3,000 and 4,000 American troops will be in Honduras, about half of them combat forces, for a large-scale field training exercise, the officials said. Additional exercises of a similar size may be planned, they said.

The maneuvers have been dubbed "Big Pine II" and follow smaller scale exercises held in February, A 40- to 50-man staff from the Army's Readiness Command will set up a headquarters in Honduras beginning Aug. 1 and will stay in the country until the end of the exercises, the officials said.

At the same time, naval exercises will be conducted in Central American coastal waters of the Caribbean and the Pacific during August and September. Two carrier battle groups and a surface action group will take part in the exercises.

An eight-ship battle group headed by the Ranger has already arrived on station 100 miles off the Central American Pacific coast with an operating radius that will put it off the shores of Nicaragua, Honduras and El Salvador, Navy sources said.

Moving toward war in Central America

In the past few days, the evidence has mounted that the Reagan administration is planning nothing short of direct and full-scale military intervention in the affairs of Nicaragua, apparently with the full intent of overthrowing that nation's government.

As there often is in such situations, events are in danger of being swept out of control. American fleets have moved closer to both sides of the Nicaraguan coast, threatening a blockade or worse. The administration announces plans to send 5,000 American troops on "maneuvers" in adjacent Honduras, intersecting them into the tinderbox of already existing relations between the two countries.

The Nicaraguans, not surprisingly, view these events as further evidence that the United States' goal is overthrow of their government. That impression can't be reassured much by the American ambassador, Anthony Quainton, who denies that goal but says the United States does want to modify the government "in a substantial way." What's the difference?

The American political system places enormous discretion in foreign policy in the hands of the president. But it specifically charges only Congress with the power to declare war.

Nonetheless, when the chips are down — as Reagan is apparently putting them — Congress' real power is defensive at best. It can fume, fuss and perhaps withhold some funds, but its role is a reactive one.

This is not the first time we have been led into military intervention in Latin America, which from the time of the Monroe Doctrine has been considered something of an American cologne. But the stakes are much higher this time in the nuclear age.

There was a time — a dozen or more presidents ago — when Americans would have trusted the leadership of the nation in such matters. But in the post-Kennedy, post-Johnson, post-Nixon era in which we live, a nation's trust is more slowly built and more fragile to maintain.

President Reagan's popularity may carry him on the domestic front. But his strident bluster in international relations has made millions and millions of Americans very, very uneasy that he will carry us into a war for which the justification has not been made.

If there ever was a time for cautious, deliberate diplomacy in our Central American relations, now is that time. No nation doubts our great military power and we are not diminished by withholding it, as some of jingoists suggest.

I told you to come back tomorrow, we've got a good deal on the Brooklyn Bridge.

Letters/ Newest educational 'cure' also appears most ridiculous

Where were the parents?

On the morning radio news, I just heard the newest "cure" for education — that children attend school between the ages of four and sixteen; and since this new theory was formulated by "experts," people listen. These "experts" could have never taught elementary children. I've heard some foolish recommendations, but this one wins the prize for the most ridiculous. Four year olds are not physically or emotionally mature enough to handle a school situation. Why can't people see that the problem with education isn't the schools? It's easy to cast the blame there, but in my opinion, the problem with education is that our parents expect our children to enjoy school completely. We don't want our children under any stress. The truth of the matter is that most people in our society (myself included) punper and spoil our children so much (long before they enter school and long after they graduate) that these children are not able to take on the responsibility of getting the kind of education we want them to have. My family and I had two night Rotary exchange students spend a night with us not long ago. One of the boys had spent a year in Pennsylvania and the other had spent his year in New York. I asked them if they had enjoyed their American families. They both said that they had, but they both added "American children are so spoiled." As they have visited in homes across America, they say that it's the same all over this country. American children are so over-indulged and spoiled. I was shocked that they had noticed. I believe that our schools offer the best rate education to any student who is mature and responsible enough to accept it. Most high school students take as little as possible to graduate. Maybe we do need to make our high school requirements stiffer; but during this time when little has been required to graduate, why have the parents been? Have we as parents been making sure that our children are taking the tougher classes, or have we been just going along with their decisions, letting them coast by on easy courses so they'll have time to "enjoy" their school years. The time has come for parents to make demands on their children and for parents to make their children aware that each of us is responsible for our own actions. Remember parents, education is more than holding a book in one's hand. Education is a lifetime lesson in responsibility. Being a teacher, I find the constant debates about educators and education to be totally demoralizing and unfair. I feel that most teachers are very dedicated and hard working. Most teachers care deeply about each student and about what happens to that child now and in the future, but teachers can accomplish only so much as our society in general will allow them to accomplish. Thus, I feel that the problem with education in America does not lie in the school system alone, but rather in the hearts and minds of the American parent. E.G. WATT, Buhl

She was trapped by culture

On July 16th, Attorney General Jim Jones commented that Ms. Virginia DeMeyer did not "exercise good judgement" and that in his view, justice was done. I would like to comment on the case and suggest that Ms. DeMeyer has been trapped by a culture that encourages alcohol consumption on the basis that we are all "responsible social" drinkers and bad things happen to someone, but not us. All the comments and insight cannot erase the devastation that occurred, but it would be less tragic if some positive reaction emerged that reduced such trauma in the future. As an example, where were her friends or companions that might have persuaded her not to drive, or who might have observed her over a period of time and suggested she was developing a problem? Alcoholism is a progressive disease whose backbone is denial and our society is adamant about not admitting that it is a disease to get help. Our new DUI laws punish offenders for getting caught, that is the crime, for it brings the negative aspects up for all to see, and as a drinking culture we don't like it that. To suggest that prohibition is the answer is ridiculous. We prohibit marijuana and it is now the third largest cash crop in the country. What is the answer? The only hope I see is education and common sense cultural mores that do not accept irresponsible behavior, no matter what the excuse. Ms. DeMeyer has had her rights violated by a society that encourages consumption on an open basis, and only reacts after the fact. She was sold a dangerous narcotic drug with no attempt on the part of the producer or seller or system to in any way prevent this tragedy from coming to pass. For the producer and seller whose negligence contributed in almost any measure to be unscrupulous, to repeat this sort of thing again and again, is a violation of all our rights, and a sad comment on how important our use of alcohol has become. Tylenol pulled their product off the market because seven people died, and even though we lose over 200,000 people a year to alcoholism, I have never seen or heard of a child proof cap on Budweiser or a bottle of Canadian Club. The Advisory Committee of the British Medical Association states flatly that "alcohol is from first to last a neurotoxic drug;" and if this be true, to sell it without regard for the consequences surely must be actionable. Truth in advertising is enforced with every other product, and the lawsuits stemming from asbestos, lead, dioxin, and etc. boggle the mind, but children die on the streets and lives are shattered because we drinkers are afraid to look. How long will this go on? How important can our drinking be? Where are the leaders who will try to bring reality and reason for the future? Probably never, for the biggest business in the country is feeling good, chemically, and who would dare tamper with that? ARCHIE D. WALKER, Jr., Buhl

Hansens should explain their finances

I believe it is time for Rep. George Hansen to stop huffing and puffing like the big bad wolf about his self proclaimed campaign to save the United States. Hansen caricatures himself as the country's only patriot; but fails to state that in all his years in Washington, D.C., he has succeeded in doing nothing but get interpersonal trouble and spend all his time defending himself.

Hansen fails to mention that he is a self-confessed criminal from the past. His crime was again failing to report properly his financial dealings. A philosopher might debate whether crime was in fact lying or just not telling the truth. From what has been happening since, many of us could conclude it was plain old lying.

Now you are charged again, George, with essentially the same crime: only four times as great. This time, in spite of all your yelling about being singled out for persecution, the accuser is the Justice Department of the United States. It is headed by William French Smith, one of President Reagan's closest friends and advisers. This is not the detested "liberal" Eastern press. This is one of the great conservatives of the day.

The real question that the congressman and his wife, Conale, should answer is what have they done with all the money they have borrowed. In his reports, Rep. Hansen admits to having borrowed between $300,000 and $500,000 from about 9 banks, mostly in Idaho, and an additional $180,000 from a banker in West Virginia who was under federal indictment for bank fraud.

All of this money is, of course, in addition to his salary and fees for speaking engagements.

Guest opinion Lloyd J. Walker

The real question is what does a ill ole non-drinking country boy and his wife do with that huge amount of money?

They have admitted investing in the silver and soy bean commodities market. Some call that investing, but most knowledgeable people would call it pure gambling for non-professional people like the Hansens.

Unfortunately this speculating has not been alone, it has been under the guidance and tutelage of Nelson Hunter Hunt. We have all heard of Jesse James from Missouri, but few of us know of the notorious Hunt brothers from Texas who tried to corner the silver market and came close to seriously destroying the monetary system of the United States.

Their conduct was so dangerous to us all that they make Jesse James pale in the shadows. Yet the congressman and Mrs. Hansen use the Hunts as their confidants and advisers. Mr. Hunt has even admitted giving or loaning Conale Hansen $50,000 to help her cover her commodity losses.

All of these commodity shenanigans must be the reason for all the huge amounts of money borrowed by the Hansens. Any elementary school child can tell you that the Congressman cannot pay the interest everyone else is being charged by the banks on his debts even if he uses his entire salary. His "separated" wife must be receiving additional help to pay the bill.

This "separation" leads us all to a final thought. Congressman Hansen and his wife in 1977 entered into a separation agreement as to money. It is her separate dealings, mostly with the Hunts, that were not reported.

All her financial actions are private besides the Hunt dealings. Why should the financial dealings be private? She must be collecting money to pay off this huge debt or at least to pay the interest. It is her separate dealings, mostly with the Hunts, that were not reported.

The Equal Rights Amendment has no greater foe than George Hansen and here is his wife supposedly independent financially just like the pro ERA people advocate.

This separation is a pious joke on the voters of Idaho and the United States House of Representatives. It is obvious to all that Congressman Hansen should answer the real questions such as what has been done with all the borrowed money and what is his "separated" wife doing financially. Congressman Hansen referred to the Times-News editorial as being full of baloney. Perhaps he should quit spreading baloney and speak straight to the issues.

Justice has a sweet smell — sort of BOSTON — At last, the sweet smell of justice. After three-and-a-half years, the five young men who once upon a time pleaded guilty to the gang-rape of a 39-year-old woman in Holbrook, Mass., were finally punished for a crime.

Last Wednesday they were handed a two-year suspended sentence and ordered to pay damages for assaulting the woman's car.

How are these men finally brought down by the harsh hammer of justice? you may ask. For those who have forgotten the details of this nationally publicized case, a brief chronology: On Jan. 23, 1980, a group of young men met the woman in a bar. This woman, forever after referred to as a "former beauty queen," went with them to a nearby wooded area. So did her car. There, five of the men maintained that she offered to have sex with them all for $200, and she maintained that they raped her.

What it agreed upon by everyone is that the man took turns. While one was jumping her, the others were jumping on her car. At the end, the bruised auto was rolled over an embankment. The bruised woman was left naked in the January night.

A sixth man, who later testified against his friends, may have saved the woman's life by returning to the scene and driving the woman to a nearby fire station.

On Oct. 5, 1981, in a plea bargain, the five men agreed to plead guilty to rape. In return, the judge — who called this "a consensual sexual adventure that went off track" — gave them a suspended sentence and $500 fines to be paid in $5 weekly installments. Four days of public outrage later, the judge revoked the suspended sentences, ordered their guilty pleas withdrawn and ordered the case to trial.

After many legal machinations that included one trip to the U.S. Supreme Court and another to the Massachusetts Supreme Court, and a mistrial, the quintet went to trial in April 1983. This time they pleaded innocent to rape and to malicious damage to the woman's personal property.

On June 17, they were found innocent of damaging the woman but — bossum and pass the scales of justice — guilty of damaging the car. Last week, they found out that crime doesn't pay.

Well, what have we learned from the successful prosecution of the gang-bang-up of a car? That it's easier to convict men of battering a chassis (if the chassis is a piece of metal).

Their universal tilt to be considered by the legal profession, especially by those who have the misfortune to be on the side of a woman in a rape case. Here is one of them: It is better to have a car as a client than a woman.

This car, unlike this woman, was not penalized for being unable to testify at the trial. Nor did anyone in the courtroom bring up the automobile's private history or reputation. Although it is suspected that the car once received bruises for which it was at fault: There are even rumors that the car once plunged willfully into a fender-bender.

In addition, cars cannot be judged harshly for frequenting a bar, although occasionally they get a good A for foreign number? It is rare that a Mercedes 450-SL is suspected of enticing vandals.

It should also be noted that this particular car was a perfect client because it had been totaled. Who could dispute that it was the victim? There was the dead body. It would have been easier, legally speaking, if the woman in this case had not been rescued, but had been a frozen stiff.

What is the moral to this tale of the Banged-up Car? Sex muddles the legal waters. If five men had gone another more than leave a bruised and naked woman alone in the middle of the January night, I'm convinced they would have received sterner punishment.

Stay tuned until next October, when the famous New Bedford rape case goes on trial. They'll probably get the guys for ruining the felt on the pool table.

Many try to aid dying child

MINNEAPOLIS (UPI) — President Reagan's plea for a donor liver for Ashley Bailey has brought almost 2,000 telephone calls; none has produced the gift of life the Texas child desperately needs.

The 11-month-old girl, who suffers from biliary atresia, a congenital disease that causes bile to build up in the liver, was the subject of a national rally spearheaded by Reagan Saturday.

Reagan's office called University of Minnesota Hospitals Monday to check on the child's condition and asked that he be kept informed.

donor had been located.

In his appeal, the president urged anyone who knew of a possible donor to contact the Living Bank in Houston.

But the only liver suitable for the 11-month-old Ashley would have to come from a child weighing 10 to 15 pounds with an O-positive blood group.

The Reagan plea prompted nearly 1,500 people from 46 states to call the Living Bank and at least 200 calls were received at University of Minnesota Hospitals Monday.

All the calls to the university were inappropriate, spokeswoman Vicki Morgan said.

chief transplant coordinator at the hospitals where Ashley has been waiting for a transplant since May.

"All you can do is wait," she said. "It's a very passive role that one must play in waiting for an organ transplant, because a donation like this is a gift. You just have to wait for it."

Many of the responses to the president's plea have been inappropriate because people do not understand the child must have a child's liver and the organ must come from a child who has been kept on a respirator.

Lawyer mum on sex videotapes

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Attorney Robert K. Steinberg, invoking his right against self-incrimination, refused to answer nearly two dozen questions in a preliminary hearing Monday about sex videotapes he claimed showed top government officials at "sex parties."

On the stand exactly two weeks after first claiming he saw the tapes, Steinberg did little to clear up mysteries still surrounding the case. It is uncertain whether the tapes ever actually existed or, if not, why the respected Beverly Hills attorney would fabricate the sensational story.

On his way into court Monday, Steinberg was handed a subpoena to testify about the tapes again Thursday at a preliminary hearing for Marvin Panowitz, 22, charged with murdering Vicki Morgan, longtime mistress to late presidential confidant Alfred Blomington.

During the seven-minute hearing Monday before Municipal Court Judge James Coleman, Steinberg cited the Fifth Amendment 23 times in refusing to answer a variety of questions about the three videotapes he claimed showed Blomington, Miss Morgan and government officials in sex acts.

Before Steinberg took the witness stand, his attorney, Leonard Levine, told the judge his client "does not possess the items that have been subpoenaed by the prosecution."

Steinberg was subpoenaed July 12 after he claimed the videotapes were stolen from his office. Levine commented mistemeanor charges be filed against Steinberg for making a false report and Deputy District Attorney Stanley Weisberg said Monday that was still under consideration.

Economic recovery shaves deficit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The faster than expected economic recovery has shaved $10.5 billion from the administration's projection of next year's federal deficit, the government announced Monday.

That deficit — for fiscal year 1984, which begins in October — now is estimated at $179.7 billion, the Office of Management and Budget said, down from the $190.2 billion it had estimated in April.

The budget office projected the deficit declining to $82 billion in 1983, $20 billion less than it had estimated.

Officials said, however, that the latest projections assume complete congressional enactment of President Reagan's budget proposals.

Congress already has indicated in its first of two budget resolutions it will substantially change those proposals. If it does so largely by shifting among programs — for example giving more to domestic programs and less to defense — the final result could be similar.

The administration's new figures are contained in a mid-session update of budget projections first submitted by the president in January and revised once in April.

The new figures are based on a revised administration estimate of 5.5 percent real growth of the economy this year, which it announced last week instead of 4.7 percent previously estimated.

They do not, however, take into account the Commerce Department's latest estimate of 6.7 percent growth in the second quarter.

Senate readies for decision on MX today

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate entered the final phase Monday of a prolonged debate over building the giant MX missile, with Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., moving to eliminate the $2.6 billion allotted for production of the 10-warhead nuclear weapon.

Hart, the chief foe of the MX, outlined his opposition in a nearly 50-minute speech in the Senate, in preparation for a show-down vote Tuesday, spent his 12th day debating a $200 billion military authorization that contains the MX funds.

"The MX puts a hair trigger on our strategic nuclear forces," Hart argued. He said that, because the missiles would be deployed in vulnerable, fixed sites in Wyoming and Nebraska, they would have to be fired even before an incoming attack struck the United States.

Hart said the MX strategy forces the United States into a dangerous "launch on warning" posture.

An agreement worked out last week ended a Hart filibuster but permits as many as four MX-related amendments to the authorization bill.

The agreement between the Democratic and Republican leadership also sets two hours of debate on each amendment and provides for a vote on the entire bill by 7 p.m. MDT Tuesday.

There is little likelihood Hart's amendment can pass. Proponents of the MX predict the Senate vote will be about the same as in May, when the new missile was endorsed 59-39.

What's what

In New Delhi, India, a judge sentenced a widower and two cohorts to be hanged. The widower explained that even in his wife's final weeks of an expensive pregnancy, her family failed to pony up the customary dowry. But the judge said the husband and friends should not have set her on fire as they did, should not have burned her to death. The details are horrible, but the generally is worse: Knowledgeable estimators think the families of husbands in India annually murder about 3,000 wives whose families fail to pay dowries.

REAGAN'S HERD

Q- How many head-of-cattle-does President Ronald Reagan run on his California ranch?
A- Three. Did I mention he doesn't own an automobile? A Jeep and a tractor, yes, but no Sunday-go-to-meeting type car.

Q- You can't get dentures unless you see a dentist, right?
A- In all states but five, that's the law. Only

Oregon, Idaho, Colorado, Arizona and Maine dental technicians fit, make and sell direct.

Do men ever enter in any of the Olympic contests?
A- In rifle-shooting, at least.

THE MAD CZAR

The second son of Peter III and Catherine II of Russia was Paul, known in the late 1700s only there as The Mad Czar. Irritable rascal was Paul. While inspecting the elite guard one chilly morning in 1795, he noticed a button missing from a soldier's uniform. "About face!" he screamed. "March!" Somebody asked where to. "Siberia!" he yelled. Off they went, all 400 of them, miserably on a 2,000-mile march to the land of the dead. There's no record they were ever seen again.

Careers of most opera singers last only about 20 years. Age thickens the vocal cords, tries the lungs. There are exceptions, though. Tenor Pavarotti sang well after age 70.

Remember, the first syllable in the word "ophthalmologist" is pronounced "off." Hairy anybody gets that one right.

Jagger travels over the hill

LONDON (UPI) — Mick Jagger, one of rock'n roll's richest rebels crosses over into middle age Tuesday — apparently too busy making records to much reflect on his 40th birthday.

The occasion was considered significant enough for the staid Times of London to print a long article about the lead singer of the Rolling Stones.

Jagger, the sitting prince rock prince who has led the Stones across world stages for 20 years, was busy working in New York on a new Stones album for release in the fall, his London agent said.

"Basically, he's working — finishing the Stones studio album. He's going to be out of town for a few days — somewhere in America — but that's all we know," a publicity spokeswoman said.

Jagger, the son of a London college lecturer, still has a house in the capital's fashionable Chelsea district but spends much of his time in the United States.

He plans for another album, she said, but it's not out of the question," the spokeswoman said.

A publisher was throwing a party to launch a new biography of Jagger Monday night and an unusual tribute came from London's Times newspaper. It devoted almost a full page across five columns to an appreciation of Jagger by fellow rock idol Pete Townshend, guitarist with The Who.

"A gangly young man doing the Twist inspired me to commit myself completely to the rock and roll stage," Townshend said, recalling a performance by the youthful Jagger in a south London dance hall in 1963.

"Degas said that everyone has talent at 25 but the difficulty is having it at 50. Mick will still be beautiful when he is 50," Townshend said.

Fans flock to soap star gathering

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Dozens of soap opera stars — distressed lovers, doctors and dastardly villains — gathered in Washington this weekend for the largest festival in the history of daytime television.

More than 75 of the most popular soap characters will meet their fans in a weekend-long Soap Opera Tribute sponsored by the UPB and Soap Opera Festivals, Inc.

The fans spend more time with these people than with their families," said Joyce Becker, creator of the 7-year-old Soap Opera Festivals, Inc., a business which sponsors personal appearances by soap stars.

"It is an institution. The stars are a second family to their 55 million viewers," Ms. Becker said.

Flying in from New York and Los Angeles, actors representing every soap opera on television will tour area military hospitals and bases and hold a question-and-answer session on the Ellipse Saturday.

Veteran soap star Charita Bauer, who has been on "The Guiding Light" since its radio days, will attend the festival, as will two 1983 Daytime Television Emmy award winners — Bob Woods, Bo on "One Life to Live," and Louise Shaffer, Rae on "Ryan's Hope."

Ms. Becker, who also writes a gossip column for the largest soap magazine, "Daytime TV," says she "never realized how big soap operas were and what a big audience they reached" until her magazine sponsored a contest to win a free trip to a soap studio.

After the winner took her trip to New York, Ms. Becker says, "she said she could now go home and die happy, because now she had met her second family."

Climbers crowd face of famous Matterhorn

ZERMATT, Switzerland (UPI) — Alpine guides said Monday the famous Matterhorn mountain looks more like a giant anthill this summer.

They said 50 climbers are scaling the 14,690-foot mountain each day with a record 3,000 expected for the summer season as a whole.

By August, the Zermatt guides bureau said, a daily average of 100 is expected.

But the brilliant sunshine since the end of June — which has attracted the climbers in the first place — has also added to the danger because it has been melting the snow and ice which in turn has loosened the rock face.

The past three weeks have seen six climbers killed on the Matterhorn because of rockslides.

Guides said that many climbers fail to wear proper clothing with some even wearing tennis shoes instead of boots.

The Matterhorn is a relatively easy climb by the normal route but there are other routes which are for experts only.

Man discovers six brothers

YATTON, England (UPI) — David Kitchen thought he was an only child. But he celebrated his 47th birthday with six of seven newly discovered brothers.

"I'm absolutely overwhelmed," he said Sunday during the celebration at his home in a village outside Bristol some 100 miles west of London. "It's like Christmas and birthdays and weddings all rolled into one."

Kitchen learned he had been adopted only after his father died recently. Searching through a pile of old deeds he found an adoption certificate which disclosed his real name — David Conway.

He was able to trace a 78-year-old aunt, the only one who could tell him that he was the fourth of seven sons, put up for adoption after a marital dispute.

Kitchen will meet his seventh brother soon. Meanwhile, he and his wife and children are making plans to change their name to Conway.

PATTI IS BACK

Patti Roberts, former wife of Richard Roberts and daughter-in-law to Evangelist Oral Roberts of TV fame, has published a book about her life in the Oral Roberts ministry. "The viewers of the TV show have a right to the story of what exactly happened," said the singer-entertainer, referring to her sudden disappearance without public explanation from the popular TV program following her divorce. Ms. Roberts said the book, "From Ashes to Gold," (Word Books, $9.95) is not intended to be an expose of the Oral Roberts empire. "But, there was a time when I wasn't sure if it was God's Kingdom or Oral's Kingdom I was helping to build," she said. "The book is mainly about mistakes, pain and healing."

SINGING DUCHESSES

The Duchesses of Kent, who has not made a public appearance since an April operation to remove an ovarian cyst, has performed before an audience of 1,100 at a private engagement in England. The Duchesses, an accomplished pianist, organist and vocalist, took part in a festival with the vocalists Verdi's Requiem. The rare appearance was made in part to dismiss fears about her health. "I'm feeling very well indeed," she said. "I am fine." The Duchess, wife of Queen Elizabeth II's first cousin, has sung with the Bach Choir since 1978.

Confined cat draws protest

PASSAU, West Germany (UPI) — Catlovers, rock musicians and even other cats are demanding freedom for Bubu, a 2-year-old tomcat confined to his home by a court order after he mewed up a neighbor's yard. Bubu, a black cat with white paws, is so well known that letters addressed to "Bubu, Passau, now under arrest," are being delivered to his owners, Franz and Elisabeth Baler.

The letters express indignation over a verdict last week by Judge Rudolf Hammer confining Bubu to his home for the rest of all his nine lives because a neighbor complained he soiled his garden and scratched his garden wall.

The judge threatened to impose a $200,000 fine on the Balers if Bubu gets out of the house and "intrudes" on anyone's property.

A rock band in Hamburg wrote to ask the name of the complaining neighbor to avenge the cat.

Chrysler workers seek raise

By MICHELINE MAYNARD
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — Chrysler Corp. and the United Auto Workers opened talks Monday on the union's demand for a share of the automaker's record profits for U.S. workers who made the company avoid bankruptcy.

The opening of formal talks on the union's bid for at least a $1 an hour pay raise was to be repeated later in the day in Toronto, where bargainers for the Canadian UAW and Chrysler Canada were set to meet.

"We're going to go for a bundle," said UAW President Owen Bieber as he arrived for his first raise of negotiations since his election in May as head of the 1.2 million-member union.

"We're willing to give it our best shot," said Thomas Miner, Chrysler vice president for labor relations.

The automaker has said it views the day's session as merely exploratory. But UAW Vice President Marc Stepp said the union "came prepared to sit down and bargain."

The two sides held a brief exploratory meeting before going into a full main table bargaining session. A union spokesman said the company agreed to talk based on the information it was given in the preliminary meeting.

"At least that's a start," said union spokesman David Mitchell.

The union set a Wednesday deadline for completion of the talks. The UAW's Chrysler Council, which meets Thursday in Huntsville, Ala., must approve any contract before it is presented to the rank-and-file for ratification.

Current one-year pacts covering 47,000 U.S. and 9,600 Canadian workers expire in January and talks normally would begin in November.

Chrysler workers in both countries make about $2 an hour less than their counterparts at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. because of concessions made three years ago to help the automaker avoid bankruptcy.

Chrysler last week announced a record $310.3 million profit for the second quarter. This came on top of a previous record $172.1 million profit in the first quarter.

The automaker also has announced plans to pay off in August its remaining $800 million of the $1.2 billion in loans backed by the U.S. government. Chrysler in June paid off the first $400 million.

Union chiefs draw big pay

By DREW VON BERGEN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Sixty-five Teamsters union officials received salaries and expenses of more than $100,000 during 1982, while many rank-and-file members were working under wage freezes, a disident union report reported Monday.

Teamsters President Jackie Presser, who was a union vice president and head of the Ohio Conference of Teamsters in 1982, made $94,855 during the year, the third-highest amount, it said.

The report was issued by the Teamsters for a Democratic Union organization, a small but vocal reform group. It said the data was based on research primarily involving off-the-record reports by the union to the Labor Department.

"This is shameful for our union," said disident organizer Kan Paff. "The pay of these guys is completely out of line for union officials who are supposed to be serving the members, not using their union jobs to become millionaires."

Former President Roy Williams was listed as receiving $278,790 in salary during 1982, but the disident group considered him the top recipient and since it said he also had $534,387 in legal fees paid by the union for his unsuccessful defense against bribery charges. That brought Williams' total income to $813,247, it said.

Harold Friedman, president of Local 517 in Cleveland, home local of Presser, collected $47,517 in 1982, the disidents said, including $248,789 as an official of Bakery Workers Local 19.

He was named by Presser June 27 as Teamsters International's vice president, and will receive $55,000 for that position.

Under the current nationwide trucking contract, Teamsters members did not receive any wage increases other than a cost-of-living adjustment which was earmarked for health benefits.

Paff said if the salaries were cut in half it would mean an additional $5 million could be spent on organizing new members for the union.

The union had no immediate comment on the report. Presser, who was elected by the union's General Executive Board as Teamsters president in April following Williams' resignation, will receive $225,000 for that post.

Disagreement divides Elkhorn partnership

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The four-man partnership that revived The Elkhorn Club of Sun Valley has split after differences about operations of the resort.

Australian hotel owner Adam Adams and Elkhorn general manager Jim Cunningham have brought the interests of their partners, D. Roy Allen and Gary Coultis, both of Calgary, Alberta, in Canada.

Cunningham declined to reveal terms of the deal, but he said Tuesday that Allen and Coultis left the business venture with a profit.

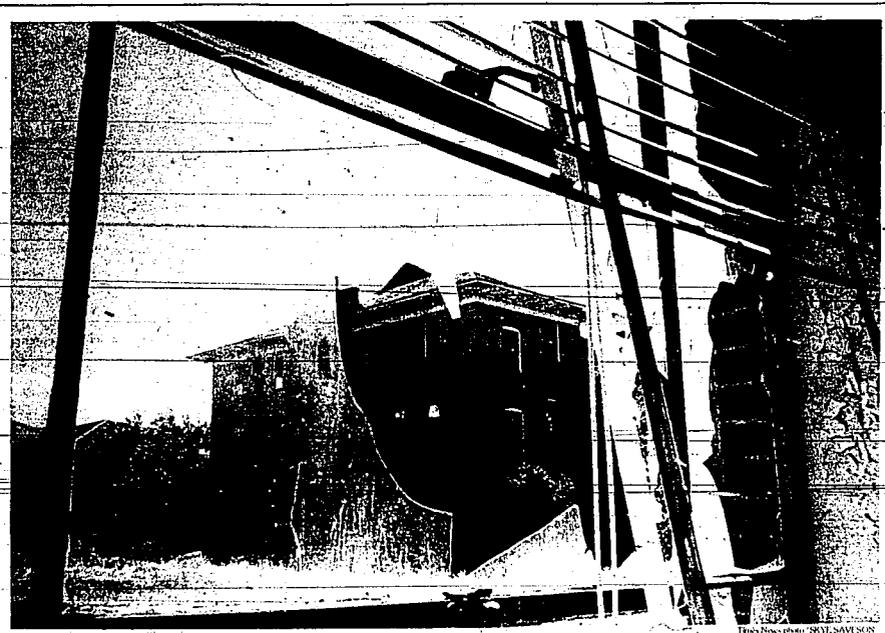

Wood River Valley

"The long-time hitters stayed and the short ones left," Cunningham said. Cunningham said the group disagreed on how to operate the club over the long run. The manager denied that a fight he had in the Elkhorn lobby with Allen in early July caused the break-up.

"It had nothing to do with the sale," he said. The buy-out already had been set, he said. Cunningham and Adams now are sole owners of Elkhorn Inn Sun Valley Associates, which runs the resort's 140-room, 18-hole golf course, shopping mall and other facilities on a 195-acre complex. They will continue to develop the club concept, which offers special discount rates and features: flat use of facilities to members anywhere from $1,500 to $7,500 for 25-year memberships, said Cunningham. But the Elkhorn Club also will remain open to the general public, instead of eventually becoming restricted to club members, he said. Cunningham said the management will pursue a "soft service" approach, relying on contacts through members and former guests for membership instead of a wide-scale recruitment effort in cities such as Seattle, Los Angeles and other areas. Allen and Coultis were the prime forces in adapting the club idea, which has been successful in other resort areas, for Elkhorn, he said. The new owners are proceeding with plans to develop an athletic club during 1984 and to convert the skating rink in the resort's shopping mall for theater uses, the manager said. They have discussed the possibilities with Sun Valley officials. The four businessmen put up $5.67 million in May to rescue the former Elkhorn resort from bankruptcy: it had been closed for about 10 months. In June, Allen said the partnership anticipated an eventual Elkhorn Club membership of about 4,500 people, who would have access to a network of similar clubs around the country. Elkhorn re-opened on June 17. Since then, "We're doing much more business than anticipated," Cunningham said. Usage of the golf course alone is up 30 percent, he said. Cunningham has been involved in developing lodges in winter sports areas such as Vail, Colo. Adams has hotel properties in Australia.

BURLEY — Linda Cates' artistic effort to recapture the mood of the Albion State Normal School as it was in the 1900s will be on display at the Cassia County Historical Society Museum in Burley beginning Aug. 15. Cates put together a display of silk screen pictures designed from old photographs of each of the 10 buildings on the now-abandoned campus. The Burley woman's project is her graduate practicum in instructional technology at Utah State University, Logan, Utah. The display was recently presented to the Cassia County Historical Society. Along with the silk screen pictures, Cates put together an accompanying pamphlet with information about each of the buildings.

Zatelle Pace, museum curator, said the project "is professionally done... and will mean a great deal to the museum because the buildings are being destroyed." "The pictures give us an idea of what the campus was like years ago," Cates said she learned there was no published history of the campus or its buildings and that the school's annuals contained the only published written record of the school. In her search, however, she did find some unpublished sources, and she said she was able to get a lot of information and pictures from the school's alumni. She also heard some comments about the current state of the abandoned school. Cates said one alumna told her "it would be better to destroy the buildings than to leave them standing so ugly."

"One hopes that they can rebuild the campus, but it would not be the same place," Cates said, adding that "the buildings look like graded old Russian duchesses who have long outlived their usefulness." For her graduate project, Cates said she was trying for more than just a pictorial history. She said she wanted to capture a feeling of what the buildings were like when they were new. "Architecturally, they are really unique," she said. "That is why I used old prints. One gets a feeling from old prints of what the buildings were, really like." She said she couldn't use present-day photographs because the buildings are in such disrepair. In one instance, however, she had to use a current photograph. She said she touched it up to keep the broken windows from showing. See ALBION on Page B2.

Hansen sets tentative pact

By HARRIET GUTHBERT

HANSEN — Hansen school district teachers and administrators worked out a tentative contract settlement this past week after one meeting with a federal mediator, said Terry Gilbert, the Region IV Idaho Education Association director. Starting pay will move from $11,400 a year to $11,750, Gilbert said. The salary scale for experienced teachers won't change, but each teacher will receive a 2 to 4 percent incremental raise based on experience and education, said Gilbert Simpson, the chief negotiator for the teachers. The agreement also calls for teachers and administrators to organize a committee to study setting up a sick leave bank, Gilbert said. Insurance coverage will remain the same, with the district paying $135 a year toward any health insurance policy. Simpson is in the process of notifying the district's teachers about the tentative settlement, and a final vote on the proposal won't be tallied until August. The settlement in Hansen leaves four Magic Valley districts that have yet to work out a contract agreement. The four districts are Glens Ferry, Twin Falls, Kimberly and Shoshone. Federal mediator Tom Curt of Salt Lake City is expected to meet with

East End Twin Falls County

Glens Ferry teachers and administrators Monday night. The major dispute for the Glens Ferry district centers on the salary schedule, with teachers asking for adjustments at the higher end of the scale. Under the present salary schedule, teachers have to work 24 years before reaching the top end of the salary schedule. The teachers want to reduce that time. Curt will move to Twin Falls on August 11. Teachers in Twin Falls are opposed to an administrator proposal requiring them to pay for any health insurance premium increases for double and family policies. In Kimberly, teachers and administrators have yet to work out the ground rules for negotiations. The Kimberly Education Association is in its first year of representing the teachers in contract talks. No future meetings have been scheduled. And in Shoshone, the summer has been served. Contract talks were recessed to await the outcome of a June override election, but weren't scheduled.

Jobless statistics not quite correct

TWIN FALLS — Refined estimates now are indicating that June's unemployment picture for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties did not improve as originally reported, state labor analyst Lon McDonald says. Most recent statistics, based on a sampling of more than 150 employers in area industries, show that 7.2 percent of the area's labor force was jobless last month, he says. The new, seasonally adjusted rate is .4 percentage points higher than the earlier forecast of 6.8 percent. But it still represents an improvement of .7 percentage points from the month of May.

McDonald says although the forecast of unemployed workers was very accurate, the Department of Employment overestimated the numbers of people holding jobs by about 700. That caused the jobless workers to be a smaller proportion of the total work force and lowered the unemployment rate, says McDonald, who works in the department's Twin Falls office. The revision is the second of four routinely made over the course of about six months as more accurate data becomes available.

Judge Becker argues his case for law clerk and secretary

BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Judge Phillip M. Becker, who fills the new judge position in the Fifth Judicial District as of Sept. 1, told Jerome County commissioners the full-time services of the judgeship will cost the county about $28,000 a year. He said his work in Jerome will require the county to provide him with a law clerk and one of two secretaries. He said for the time being, he can get by with limited office space while in Jerome County.

out of the Gooding office because that is where the writ goes. He said he did not see how he could operate without a law clerk. Becker said District Judge Theron W. Ward of Twin Falls has not felt it necessary, but that most judges now rely heavily on law clerk services. He said the law-clerk salary would be about $18,000 a year and can be kept low because he plans to hire a law school graduate, replacing that clerk with another new graduate about every year. Becker said this would give the court a low-salaried clerk, and would give the young attorney valuable experience. He said he is looking at a budget of $10,000 for each secretary although he may not need this through the first year. Becker said he plans to maintain his office in Gooding County, largely because the Jerome County Courthouse does not have space for a judge and staff of three. "There is no question but what sometime down the road, Jerome County will have to build a judicial building," he said. Becker said he is already making plans to set up a calendar as soon as he meets with Jerome area attorneys to review pending cases. He said the additional judge position will make it possible for him to be available in Jerome County as needed, not just on a one-day-a-week basis. Becker, formerly magistrate judge in Gooding County, was appointed district judge

July 12 by Gov. John Evans to fill the new position created by the Legislature. He will basically serve Gooding and Jerome counties, but being the newest judge will also mean he will be sent into other counties for special cases or where a local judge is unable to serve, Becker told the commission. "I plan to continue to keep law and motion days in Gooding on Mondays and Jerome on Tuesdays, but I will be available to try felonies, or accept pleas as needed. It takes a few minutes to drive here from Gooding," he said. Becker said he may, in the future, change the Monday law and motion day in Gooding to Fridays so he will be available to meet on Mondays with county commissioners of the two counties.

For the present, Becker will be using two small offices across the hall from the district courtroom while in Jerome County. The offices have served Justice Ward and Judge Daniel Meehl of Twin Falls for their weekly sessions in Jerome. Becker said there are numerous pending district court cases in Jerome and Gooding counties and there will probably be more once the additional judge position is functioning. He said some attorneys have been inclined to settle cases out of court in the past rather than wait for a judge. Commissioner Pam Smith told Becker a judicial building is "out of the question" at the present time because the county is still to accept the question it will be some time before the county can even think about it.

City to cover half of new pool's cost

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council decided at a budget work session Monday to set the city's contribution toward a new city swimming pool next year at $250,000. The figure represents "60 percent of what we know at this time (to be the cost of a new pool)," said Councilman Paul Newton. It is also $50,000 more than the council indicated it would spend at a similar work session last week. Achieving the $250,000 was not easy. The council slashed into allocations for almost every city department proposed as part of the 1984 budget.

Action came after Mayor Chris Tallington declared the "misinformation" he said was being spread about the city's pool-building plans. "An illusion" that federal or state grant money may be available for the pool persists, he said. Newton raised the question of additional funding for the pool. He said the city's contribution to the project is primarily a policy issue. The council plans to make the substantial contribution to the new pool from capital improvement funds. It has appointed seven citizens to an executive finance committee to raise the rest through private fund-raising efforts. Estimates place the cost of a 25-yard by 25-meter outdoor pool with separate diving tank and toddler pool at $500,000. The council voted to contribute a minimum of $200,000 to the project at its last meeting. But Newton and several other members said they felt that was too little. "We're kidding ourselves if we think we're going to get $300,000 from private fund raising," said Councilman Gale Kleinok. "If it's a high priority we should come out of it." A motion to halve the city's contribution at $200,000 failed after it received only the votes of council members Alan Wubker, Emery Peterson and Mary McCluskey. After a second motion to raise the contribution to $250,000 succeeded, the council began the process of slashing into various city department requests for the city's federal-revenue-sharing money. First to go was $35,000 to replace the restroom at Harmon Park and $8,000 to install curb and gutter at Harry Barry Park and Highland Park. Next came $5,000 from the $15,000 the city uses to maintain downtown landscaping. A total of $7,000 was eliminated from $12,500 the city planned to use to resurface tennis courts for competitive play. And $5,000 was cut from the $15,000 proposed for resurfacing of cart paths. TWIN FALLS — A new job training program for the disadvantaged begins this fall. The Job Training Partnership Act or JTPA program will replace CETA, the Comprehensive Education and Training Act that ends Sept. 30. The new program's intent is to train and employ the economically disadvantaged and others who face barriers to employment, said Rod Lundgren, coordinator of the South-Central Private Industry Council, which is administering the program in the eight-county Magic Valley region. Like CETA, the new program is funded by the federal government, with funds channeled by the state to the different regions. Caldwell judge to decide Filer legislator's sentence

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News Staff Writer

TWIN FALLS — A Caldwell judge is set to decide the fate of a Filer legislator who last month pleaded guilty to a drunken driving charge. Rep. Lawrence Knigge, 47, could serve up to six months in jail depending on Judge Stephen W. Drescher's decision. Drescher will preside over Knigge's Aug. 8 sentencing hearing at the Twin Falls County Jail Building.

REP. LAWRENCE KNIGGE Faces Aug. 8 sentencing

The Idaho Supreme Court appointed the Canyon County magistrate judge on June 29, after Knigge's lawyer, Bill Hollifield, moved to disqualify Canyon County magistrate Judge Marvin Oberlin. Oberlin presided briefly over the case after the Supreme Court determined that magistrate judges throughout the Magic Valley had "deemed themselves disqualified" to hear the case. Filer District Magistrate Court records indicate Knigge rescinded his innocent plea one day after Drescher was named to the case. Knigge's guilty plea came in the form of a document, which Hollifield filed on June 30.

Attempts to reach Hollifield Monday were unsuccessful. The 46-year-old Knigge was arrested Saturday morning in Twin Falls clinic and hospital.

July 1, a blood-alcohol rating of 0.10 percent. The law provides high evidence for a conviction. The new law also provides stiffer penalties for repeat offenders. The maximum jail term facing first-time offenders remains at six months, but the top fine has been increased to $1,000. In Knigge's case, the old law applies. "You can't punish anyone with a law that came into effect after they committed the crime," said Fritz Wonderlich, Twin Falls city attorney, the man who is prosecuting the case. Wonderlich said he will not press Drescher for a harsh sentence. The city attorney's position is that the Knigge case will be treated no differently than any other case involving a first-time offender. "My position has been that on all first-time DWI's, I don't participate much. I always make recommendations on second-time offenders, but on this one, I leave that up to the judge," Wonderlich said. Wonderlich concedes he can't handle the Knigge case like any other. For one thing, the fact that Wonderlich will attend the sentencing hearing does not mean he is "leaving such decisions to the judge."

But Knigge's role as a lawmaker should play no role in the sentencing outcome, Wonderlich said. YFCA seeking community funds

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YFCA is appealing to the community for funds to provide Y memberships to low-income families. The goal of the drive is $4,000. That will provide about 30 one-year memberships to families that can't afford to join. Says John Eschenburg, YFCA executive director. Persons who have shown a past interest in the Y — be they members or non-members — will be asked through the mail for contributions, he says. In addition, Y-board members will establish a Century Club for persons who donate more than $100.

Club members will receive a plaque and be honored at a luncheon, says Jim Tarter, Y-board president. The club already has its first member, Dr. M.C. Parker, a Twin Falls board member who said he and his wife wanted to be the first to join when the idea of the club was discussed last month by the board. The fund-raising drive will end Aug. 15. The Magic Valley YFCA will ask community service groups, such as the Salvation Army, to provide candidates for the memberships, Eschenburg says. The Y doesn't have the staff to screen the applicants.

The municipal staff course. A new car, a new town mower were excised from the fire department's requests at a savings of $6,000. Finally council cut $10,000 from the amount it had proposed to spend on streetlights next year, leaving $15,000. Items that were spared included a new computer, drug abuse films and a document shredder for the police department, a parks department pickup, books for the library, a new police patrol car and the conversion of city streetlights to efficient low sodium bulbs. The cuts will allow $6,000 to remain in a contingency capital improvement fund. The $250,000 proposed budget for street maintenance next year, considerably more than this year, Council members decided street maintenance should be given top priority next year since it has been neglected in recent years.

Another man recalled watching a music teacher nearly faint when she looked out of the window of the old rock building and saw a man in uniform practicing marching drills. It seems the music teacher had just been notified that her husband had been killed in the war. A student ran out and stopped the soldier, the man told Cates. One alumna said she went to the school in 1939 for $100 for the entire year. He said he paid only $3 a month to rent a house downtown.

Evans unveils contract for Swan Falls

GOV. JOHN EVANS Wants public reaction

By BRUCE BOTKA United Press International BOISE — Gov. John Evans released Monday terms of a compromise contract designed to settle the Swan Falls water rights controversy, but he said he would not sign the document until it received public review.

Officials said the pact between the state and Idaho Power Co. is aimed at clearing up disagreements over the use of water above the Swan Falls Dam on the Snake River in the wake of a ruling last year by the state Supreme Court.

when the river flow was lowest and demand for the utility's electricity highest.

The controversy was fueled this spring when the utility sued about 7,500 water users, saying the high court ruling forced Idaho Power to protect its water right from encroachment by irrigators, municipal-water customers, developers and others.

Evans' aide Pat Costello said both sides reserved the right to negotiate changes following the public-review period, which ends Aug. 23. Costello said "copies of the contract are available from the governor's office, but no public hearings are planned."

Poles start releasing political prisoners

By WALTER WISNIEWSKI
United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — More than 100 political prisoners and common criminals were released from at least nine jails across Poland Monday under the government amnesty program linked to the lifting of martial law.

Officials in Warsaw were slow in reporting how many men and women were freed nationwide. The names of those released were not disclosed and the total freed could have been much higher.

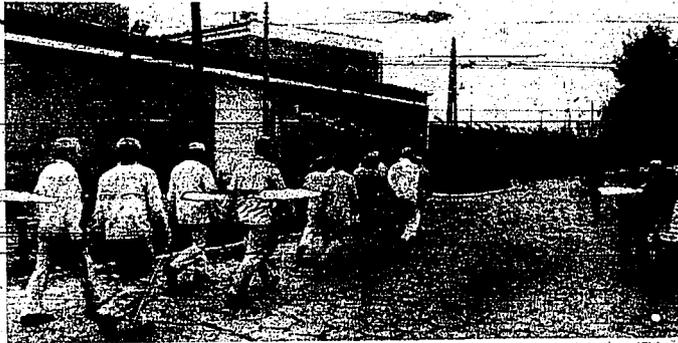

Justice Ministry officials assigned to collect prisoner-release data from around the country said 57 political offenders had received full or partial pardons, but they were unable to confirm whether they were already freed.

The ministry office in Warsaw said another 57 people charged with common crimes also benefited from the amnesty decree — one man was kept in prison on a reduced sentence, but the others were freed.

A spokesman at a detention center in Opole, however, told UPI at least 100 prisoners were freed in the southern provincial capital near the St. Anne roundabout which Pope John Paul II visited last month.

All the people released in Opole were detainees — either awaiting trial or not yet charged, the spokesman said — but there was no word how many were political offenders.

The spokesman in Warsaw, Maciej

Part of the prisoners freed Monday begin leaving Boleleka jail near Warsaw

Urbanik, said he had not been in contact with the Opole detention center. He added his reports were not necessarily complete.

Government officials said 650 political prisoners were in Polish jails at the time martial law was lifted last week after 19 months. They indicated at least 60 of those would be ruled ineligible for the amnesty program.

Justice Minister Sylwester Zawadzki said in an interview last week up to an additional 1,000 common criminals could be pardoned "for humanitarian reasons" under the decree signed by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski.

Five of the nine penal institutions where pardons under the amnesty program were reported were in Silesia, the industrial heartland of coal mines and steel mills where the Solidarity trade union was especially strong before its suspension.

The pace of the amnesty program, announced last week at the same time Poland's communist regime ended martial law, was running slow at most prisons.

At Strzelin prison, near Wroclaw, officials said four political offenders and one man charged with a criminal offense were released. They added another 16 men were cleared for release "in the next few days."

Soviets complete Siberian pipeline

By JOHN IAMS
United Press International

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union said Monday its workers have finished laying the Europe-to-Siberia natural gas pipeline.

The pipeline, named a U.S. trade embargo that strains America's relations with its European allies last year.

The 2,766-mile pipeline, also the subject of charges the Soviets used slave labor to build it, stretches from Siberia to the country's western border and was laid in a record time of 14 months, the officials said.

"Not a single pipeline project in the Soviet Union has ever been completed in such a short time," Tass said.

Tass said more than 2,500 miles of the pipe have been tested and one section, between Uzenal and the Sverdlovsk region in Siberia, is already pumping natural gas.

Still to be completed before the pipeline becomes operational are 40 compressor stations to pump the gas along.

"The building of compressor stations along the pipeline is being initially swung and ahead of schedule," Tass said.

"The construction of the Siberian-western Europe gas pipeline is to be completed before this year is out."

American opposition to the pipeline initially stemmed from fears it would make western Europe overly dependent on Soviet energy supplies.

Then, after the Soviet-backed regime in Poland imposed martial law to crack down on the Solidarity trade union movement in December 1981, American firms banned American firms from selling pipeline equipment to the Soviets.

He extended the ban six months later to cover foreign subsidiaries of U.S. firms and foreign firms making the equipment under U.S. license.

America's allies, which had already agreed to buy natural gas from Siberia, denounced the move as an attempt to infringe on their sovereignty.

Grenade rocks Israelis' headquarters

By JACK REDDEN
United Press International

Two rocket-propelled grenades exploded near the Israeli army headquarters in the southern Lebanese city of Sidon Monday. A late-night explosion sparked gunfire that forced Israeli troops to seal off the area, officials said.

There were no casualties from the grenade attack, and an Israeli spokesman in Beirut said no details were available on the second attack.

The explosions came as Israel began building a helicopter base and other fortifications around Sidon in advance of a redeployment of its troops from central Lebanon to more defensible positions in the south, Lebanon's official National News Agency said.

Israeli army spokesmen in Tel Aviv said the grenades exploded in a field about a quarter mile from the headquarters in the former Lebanese government building in Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut and just behind the new planned front line.

"We really don't know what they were aiming at," a spokesman said. "Maybe they wanted to show they were in the area. It was so far away, it doesn't seem likely they were aiming at" the headquarters.

State-run Beirut radio said another "loud explosion" and "intense gun shots" later rocked the northeastern sector of Sidon and that Israeli troops sealed off the area.

An Israeli military spokesman in Beirut said the two attacks occurred three hours apart — the last at 11:15 p.m. (3:15 p.m. MDT) — but there were no immediate details on the cause or damage from the fighting.

In Paris, Lebanese President Amin Gemayel called for a U.N.-sponsored referendum in areas of Lebanon occupied by Israel and Syria to demonstrate his people's determination to rid their country of all foreign soldiers.

Gemayel, who is returning from a trip to the United States, abruptly flew out of Lebanon airport Monday night aboard a Middle East Airlines jet without filing a flight plan, leaving only unconfirmed reports he was headed for Rome.

Gemayel's new bid to restore the authority of the Beirut government came two days after his political opposition formed a "National Salvation Front" to act as a virtual second government in Syrian-controlled regions of Lebanon.

Gemayel arrived in France and met with President Francois Mitterrand he urged the U.N. to sponsor a referendum on Lebanese "legitimacy."

"Freedom and democracy can be 100 percent secured in areas controlled by the Lebanese army," he said. "But in occupied areas, there is repression and the muzzling of national opinion."

Church says capitalism, communism fading

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — The Anglican primate of Canada told the World Council of Churches Monday the world is at "the end of an era" in which both capitalism and communism are playing themselves out.

Archbishop Edward Scott, who also serves as moderator of the council's Central Committee, told the church leaders "the recent past has been dominated by an 'urban industrial culture' that stressed materialism and the scientific method.

"The competing ideologies of capitalism and communism, he said, are products of that culture.

"These ideologies are no longer satisfying the deepest human aspirations and neither is displaying the power to galvanize adherents and so provide unity, direction, standards and courage to their respective communities," Scott said.

Scott's remarks were part of his moderator's report at the opening session of the 18-day assembly, which brings together more than 300 delegates from the council's 300 member Christian communions in 100 countries.

Officials say the combined membership of churches that belong to the council approaches 600 million people.

Meeting under the theme, "Jesus Christ — the life of the world," the delegates and another 3,000 guests and observers will set the agenda of the council's work for the next decade.

In his report, Scott said both capitalism and communism "are on the defensive," but the present struggle between them endangers the world.

Hong Kong talks resume

BEIJING (UPI) — Britain and China resumed negotiations Monday on how much each will control of the future of Hong Kong but maintained strict secrecy on talks being closely watched in the capitalist outpost of China's southeast coast.

Neither side would comment on the substance of the first of two days of talks on the British colony. Secrecy also shrouded the previous round of negotiations July 12.

But Chinese sources familiar with the talks said earlier the two sides apparently had agreed to put aside the difficult question of sovereignty to concentrate on the technicalities of ensuring Hong Kong's future stability and prosperity.

Hong Kong is the world's third largest financial center, and suggestions the Chinese communists might relax control have sent periodic ripples through the colony, especially in business circles.

Hong Kong Governor Sir Edward Youde joined the British delegation led by Ambassador Sir Percy Cradock. The Chinese side was led by Vice Foreign Minister Yao Guang.

The talks ended after three hours of talks that Sir Edward, upon his arrival Sunday, predicted would be "very busy and useful."

Death toll climbing in Japan

By ANTONIO KAMIYA
United Press International

TOKYO — Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone Monday ordered a government review of disaster prevention measures as a result of the weekend monsoon in western Japan that left at least 87 people dead and 21 missing.

A third day of search and rescue operations launched by a 70,000-strong army and police force recovered more bodies, bringing the death toll to 82 people in a Japanese prefecture. At least 10 others are missing and presumed dead.

"It has been two days and it is very hard to imagine that there are any more survivors," a police spokesman in Shimane said.

Shimane province, a rugged and mountainous province on the Sea of Japan coast about 400 miles southwest of Tokyo, was the hardest hit in the Saturday monsoon that killed another five people in Yamaguchi to the south.

In Seoul, the South Korean government said heavy rains from the same monsoon front killed five people and left seven others missing.

Damage to property in Shimane was estimated at $62 million, with the government reporting at least another $40 million in damage to public works.

The figures were expected to grow as authorities determined the extent of the destruction wrought by the rainstorm that dropped 23.6 inches of rain in a single day. Forecasters said the storm may be the worst in its history in Japan in postwar years. A 1974 onslaught in the area left 112 people dead and missing.

As rescue workers worked through mountains of rain-soaked earth to search for survivors, Nakasone ordered the government to review disaster prevention measures to prevent similar tragedies, officials said.

Most of the casualties from Saturday's rainstorm came from giant mudslides that rushed down from mountains.

Nakasone, who told reporters Sunday he was "shocked by the scale of the disaster," also urged the government to dig first priority to cope with relief work in the disaster area, officials said.

Thousands of families in the Hamada-Masuda area, a stretch of three coastal communities about 10 miles apart, were without electricity and water after the rainstorm.

A National Police spokesman said the latest reports showed 549 homes destroyed and 60 bridges washed away and extensive damage to roadwork, railways and farmlands.

Salvador admits rebels killed 11 men

NOME, Alaska (UPI) — A foray into the Nome and mostly unseen Siberia by seven environmentalists sparked interest and some concern by Alaskan Eskimos, many of whom have relatives in the Soviet Union they have not seen for three decades.

One woman, Jenny Alowa, a representative of the Inuit Circumpolar Federation, sent a message to Greenpeace officials aboard the Rainbow Warrior saying she saw positive aspects of their visit but was concerned it might jeopardize Alaskan Eskimo's efforts.

Family members in the Soviet Union, "I am disappointed and somewhat mad about your mission to Siberia," the message said. "I am mad because your program, even though it is for a good cause, might or has jeopardized our plans and intentions of visiting Siberia in the near future." Ms. Alowa, a Nome resident, is originally from St. Lawrence Island in the Bering Sea. She said there were from 1,500 to 2,000 coastal Eskimos in Siberia and that they have not seen their counterparts in Alaska for 32 years. She compared the situation to East and West Berlin.

However, she was not available for comment as she and other Eskimo leaders were at a conference of the federation.

"It was very obviously not our intention to jeopardize anything like this," said J. Greenpeace's Robert "Bob" Cummings, 38, Vancouver, B.C., the co-coordinator of the Rainbow Warrior's mission.

"If they (the Russians) were to use this as an excuse, we think it would be only an excuse because the Soviets could not see any connection between Alaskan Eskimos and Greenpeace."

The captain of the Rainbow Warrior, Peter Willcox, 30, Norwalk, Conn., said, "I feel sorry if it is proven that our action caused it... but I feel that's a lot of assuming."

Bridge collapse leaves 18 dead

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A motor bridge was swept away by a river-swollen-with-rains from a typhoon, killing at least 18 people and leaving more than 100 missing, reports said.

Wayne — the second typhoon to hit the Philippines this month — struck sparsely populated islands in the Philippines Sunday, packing winds of 137 mph.

Eighteen people were confirmed drowned when the bridge collapsed into the raging waters of the Manananga river at Talissay on Cebu island — 360 miles southeast of Manila, the official Philippine news agency said.

Television reports said between 100 and 200 people were crossing the narrow wooden bridge when it crumbled. The exact number of missing and injured was not immediately known.

Rescue operations were underway in Talissay, a popular tourist resort center 10 miles south of Cebu city, the island's provincial capital.

KBS television said the bridge, a temporary replacement for a bridge destroyed a year ago, collapsed at about 6 p.m. under the weight of about 100 people. Many of the victims were workers returning home from offices in Cebu, it said.

The government television station MBS-4 said about 200 people were crossing the bridge at the time.

There were no immediate reports of damage or casualties from areas affected by Wayne. Typhoon Vera slammed across the heavily populated central Philippines July 15, leaving more than 130 people homeless and hundreds of thousands homeless.

Sri Lanka officials order rioters killed

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Rioting raged in Sri Lanka Sunday and in the north Monday and government troops called out to enforce a curfew shot looters "without warning." Unofficial reports said 50 people had been killed.

Robbers in Colombo burned and looted shops and houses, most belonging to predominantly Tamil people, and police and army units trying to maintain order fired tear gas to disperse them.

The government ordered a general mobilization of volunteer units of the armed forces and extended a 15-hour curfew through Wednesday as violence escalated in the picturesque island nation off the southern tip of India, once the British colony of Ceylon.

The rioting began Sunday night in the southern part of the island. It spread to the killing of 15 soldiers in a guerrilla ambush Saturday near Jaffna in the north, reportedly by small guerrillas seeking a separate state.

Roughly 80 percent of Sri Lanka's 15 million people are Buddhist Sinhalese, with the remainder Hindu Tamils from southern India who have long complained of discrimination.

Government reports on the death toll were incomplete, but unofficial reports received outside Sri Lanka said more than 20 people had died in the clashes.

"Shops and houses in several parts of Colombo were damaged and three deaths were reported," the Ministry of State said in an official communique.

The government also reported that "as a result of acts of rioting and thuggery, several civilian deaths have taken place in Jaffna," 240 miles north of the capital.

Authorities clamped down a 2 p.m. to 5 a.m. curfew in Colombo and also set one in the suburbs and the north, without warning, and that "offenses of looting" were punishable by death.

By Monday night, state-run radio reported that several looters who defied the curfew had been shot, but gave no details.

Strict censorship has also been imposed on reports on the violence.

Greenpeace angers Eskimos

By MICHAEL W. DRUDGE
United Press International

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Upright guerrillas dug in on the strategic Guazapa volcano killed 11 soldiers and wounded 38 others in the past week, the army said Monday.

A Defense Ministry communique claimed there were "numerous terrorist casualties" in a military sweep that began a week ago on the volcano. The rebels of San Salvador, which the army has used for more than two years as the base to stage raids on farms, towns and highways north of the capital.

The army, however, provided no details to back up its claim and journalists who visited the combat zone reported they saw no bodies of guerrillas.

The communique said "two columns of rebels were surprised" in an air force bombing run at Copalchan, a village in Cuscatlan province 7 miles southeast of Guazapa.

It said the exact number of rebels killed or wounded was impossible to determine because of the "intensity of the combat."

Defense Minister Carlos Eugenio Vides Casanova visited the combat zone Sunday, holding meetings with operations commander Col. Adolfo Monterrosa and with Col. Domingo Atacati battalion is participating.

Military sources say some 3,000 men have been deployed around Guazapa with small patrol units to strike the slopes looking for guerrillas. Warplanes continued to bomb suspected rebel positions Sunday, said an officer participating in the sweep.

Military sources said that the troops have failed to capture any rebel camps so far.

In other combat, the military reported six national guardsmen killed and five civil defense men wounded Saturday in fighting around Coari, a town in San Miguel province, 56 miles east of San Salvador.

The army opened an operation around Coari over the weekend, attacking guerrillas who have moved into northern San Miguel from adjacent Morazan province. There a large-scale "pacification" sweep is underway, military sources said.

Wildlife heads back to volcano

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — Animal and plant life is returning to Mount St. Helens volcano, where an cataclysmic 1980 eruption flattened 150 square miles of brush and timber.

A biological phenomenon," said Jopli S. Edwards, one of 200 scientists conducting research on the southwest Washington volcano.

Many researchers said they were astounded at the rapid influx of animals and birds on the volcano, which erupted May 18, 1980. In an awesome display that left 57 people dead or missing and covered surrounding land with heavy ash.

Edwards, a University of Washington zoology professor, is doing research on the upper slopes of the mountain, said animals and plants that live in the Northwest are good at colonizing as a result of the history of volcanic eruptions in the region.

"That's why they're so special and unique for studying," he said. "The initial interest was on volcanology and geology. But from here on out, it's a biological phenomenon."

The animals' return "demonstrates the resiliency of nature, how rapidly nature heals itself," said Robert J. Anderson, a Weyerhaeuser Co. wildlife biologist who has counted 26 mammal species, 101 bird species, one reptilian and three amphibian species in the area.

As plant life increases in the devastated area surrounding the volcano, animals return. Evelyn H. Merrill and A.B. Adams, two University of Washington doctoral candidates who led a research expedition this summer, noted an increase in certain plants in the searched area at the outer edges of the blast zone. The result has been an immigration of elk.

Five college and high-school students in the research program, sponsored by the School for Studies in Cambridge, Mass., have spent the last month tracking the elk.

The students monitor the elk's movement and study the area as they track daily from their base camp east of Toutle, Wash.

An estimated 6,750 elk and 14,400 deer now inhabit the four Washington Department of Game management areas adjoining the crater, said Mike F. Kuttel, a department wildlife biologist.

The numbers are roughly equivalent to populations before the eruption, except in the hard-hit area north of the crater where the herd remains down 25 percent, Kuttel said. The animals, he said, are healthy and productive.

James A. MacMahon, a Utah State University biology professor, said, "The amazing part of it is to see just how many plants and animals survived the blast, let alone how many have recolonized."

Dig unearths Indians' past

PATEROS, Wash. (UPI) — The Columbia Basin was a hot, dry place 6,000 years ago — that much is known. But relatively little information has been gathered about the people living along the Columbia during that period.

Researchers at the Wells Project at Lake Pateros think they may soon be able to provide some insights on the ancestry of what is now the Colville tribe.

"They were probably a small number of people traveling in small bands over great distances along the Columbia," speculated James Chatters, Central Washington Archaeological Survey assistant director and leader of field work on the project.

"Food sources were scarce here. So far our findings indicate that mussels from the river were a staple of their diet — not just a supplement," said Chatters, noting very few mammal bones have been found amidst the widespread mussel shells.

Chatters is coordinating the work of about 70 persons involved in the dig. The survey, a department of Central Washington University at Ellensburg, is the prime contractor for the extensive project that hopes to collect valuable archaeological data before the water behind Wells Dam is raised two feet.

The 13 sites on which it is working will be irreparably damaged when the water level rises.

Although they all lie on Douglas County PUD land, most of the sites are also on orchard land bordering the river. Juxtaposed with rows of productive apple trees, the 5,000- to 7,000-year-old sites announce their antiquity.

The vast majority of artifacts found so far by the survey are unimpressive and dull to the layperson. But the mussel shells, fine cracked rocks, flakes, cores and edge ground cobbles stirs a certain excitement in the archeologists.

"Among the mysteries such pieces may help solve are the eating habits, occupational seasons, family unit sizes, tool-making processes, and tool uses among Columbia Basin inhabitants circa 5,000 B.C.

Guru plans 'destination resort' at Oregon ranch

By CLYDE JABIN
United Press International

RAJNEESH PURAM, Ore. — Disciples of an Indian guru who built their own city on a remote Oregon ranch now envision a resort with a five-star hotel open to people who are not members of the religion.

Plans for the resort call for a health spa, 25-yard-long pool, a large man-made lake and a 200-unit hotel.

A 100-unit Yashodhara Subdivision is on the drawing boards, along with fairgrounds with permanent facilities for events like the sect's second annual "world festival" held around the fourth of July.

This year the event attracted 15,000 devotees of 51-year-old guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, who lives at Rajneeshpuram with 1,000 followers and claims 300,000 disciples worldwide. "We're going to be a destination resort," said Swami Krishna Deva, 34, mayor of Rajneeshpuram and a former Los Angeles psychologist.

His only regret is that Oregon law will allow gambling tables at the resort like at Monaco.

"I love gambling," he said. The resort will be built at Guatam the Buddha Grove, a hilly area at an elevation of 4,000 feet about eight miles from Jesus Grove, a valley where all of the commune's service facilities and dwellings are now located.

Despite being widely separated, the two groves and an area called Deaderata Canyon are all part of the 210-acre city of Rajneeshpuram.

Swami Deva Prem, 34, an engineer who heads a staff of 40, said the hotel at Buddha Grove will have saunas, sun decks and "everything possible to make people comfortable."

The lake, which will be created by damming a creek, will have a surface three times as large as the Jesus Grove. The reservoir provides irrigation water and is a popular place for the Rajneesh to frolic.

Deva Prem said sales of the subdivision plots will be open to non-Rajneesh.

"We'll sell the property as speculation," he said. The purchaser will not be pressured to become a Rajneesh, he said.

"We're not proselytizing," he said. Commune spokeswoman Ma Prem-Veena, who became a disciple 11 years ago in Poon, India, said the "glorious view" from Buddha Grove and the proposed accommodations will make the hotel a five-star facility. Rajneesh leaders unabashedly say they want to build the resort to obtain money to replenish the commune's coffers.

"We like to live like kings," said Ma Prem-Veena, president of Rajneesh Foundation International. "We hate poverty."

Sheela said there was nothing in the Rajneesh religion against making money.

She did not think the resort would pose a threat to other central Oregon resorts, such as Kah-Nee-Ta on the Warm Springs Indian Reservation.

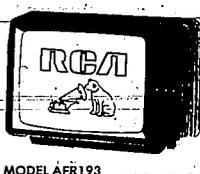

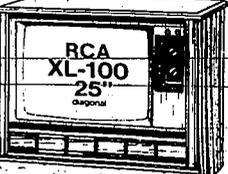

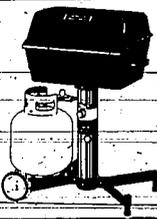

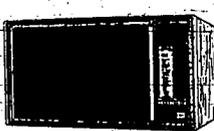

She said people coming to the ranch are likely to go to be interested in the other resort. The planning goes on at a swift pace, but opposition from a land-use watchdog group, Friends of Oregon, which is contesting the incorporation of Rajneeshpuram.

Southern stars stun favored North

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What was supposed to be an evening featuring the North's domination became a display of the South's determination. Spearheading a tireless effort by holding the North to a final 38-15, the South climaxed its performance and the game with a 65-yard touchdown drive aided by penalties and fueled by desire to win the State All-Star Football classic Monday night at Bruin Stadium, 16-13.

Kirk Copeland, who scored the South's first touchdown on a 4-yard run, ran 4 more yards for the decisive tally with 16 seconds to go. It lifted the South into a 14-13 lead, which grew when quarterback Mike Rice of Twin Falls connected with Bruin teammate Brent Standing for the two-point conversion following a delay of game penalty.

Copeland's winning plunge provoked mingled shouts of joy and disbelief from the modest-sized but vocal crowd. Indeed, probably nobody except the South players themselves expected anything other than North mastery.

And the North did appear indomitable — for about half of the first quarter. It jumped to a quick 13-0 advantage, but the rest of the proceedings belonged to the South.

"We took a lot of ribbing all week from the North, how it would be 28-0," said Twin Falls Coach Bill Jones, who directed the South's defense. "But our kids were ready to play football. They really responded."

The South was extremely hungry and wanted the game very bad in the fourth quarter," North Coach Nick Menegas of Post Falls agreed. "You've got to give them credit. Those kids played with a lot of desire."

The South's ferocity manifested itself primarily on defense. A strong pass rush headed by Kimberly's Scott Osborne (four sacks) combined with incessant penetration on running plays to limit the North to 42 yards rushing. In all, the North mustered just 100 yards total offense. "We're very excited about that defense," Jones said wryly.

The North's defense was similarly effective, allowing the South just 184 yards total offense and no first downs in the second half until the winning drive.

"I'm pleased with my defense's play," Menegas maintained. "We had our backs against the wall several times and we came through with big interceptions and big third-down plays."

But not at the end. Leading 13-8, the North seemed to have set up a victory when its offense consumed nearly five minutes from the fourth quarter to 1:45.

Quarterback Steve Halliday of Coeur d'Alene completed two third-down passes to sustain the march, but on fourth-and-8 at the South's 35-yard line, Mountain Home quarterback Brent Pease threw incomplete to Moscow's Mark Baird, returning possession to the South with 1:45 left.

Rice got the South started smoothly, completing consecutive 9-yard — passes — to — Standing — and Jerome's Kevin Rice and advancing to the North's 47.

After an incomplete pass, Rice failed to connect with Standing, but Moscow's Steve Hemstrom had bumped the Twin Falls receiver. The pass interference penalty, which Menegas labeled as the drive's most crucial play, gave the South a first down on the North's 32.

A well-timed slant pass from Rice to Rice gained 9 more yards. Mike Rice then scrambled around left end and out of bounds, where he received

South all-stars didn't believe their notices

By MIKE PRATER

TWIN FALLS — Mike Rice knew it was a touchdown. Kirk Copeland knew it was six points. Even offensive coordinator Jon Jund, standing far away on the sidelines, knew his play was a success.

For many years to come, football aficionados from around the state will be talking about the play that sent the South to a stunning 16-13 come-from-behind win over the North in the annual Idaho All-Star football game Monday night. The South's triumph is believed to be the first since the days of Jerry Dellinger in the early 1950's.

Nevertheless, 1983 belongs to the South, a team that was supposed to be as much as a 28-point underdog. A team that was supposed to be overpowered, overrun and altogether overtly destroyed. But such was not the case in front of a disappointing crowd at Bruin Stadium Monday.

With a mere 16 ticks remaining on the clock, Copeland — a 6-foot-1, 187-pound running back from Bonneville High School in Idaho Falls, blasted his way into the end zone for his second 4-yard touchdown run of the night, giving the South the win and the fans ample opportunity to drench the field, which they did.

"It was a simple off-tackle to the left side of the line. It was one of our main plays and at the time it seemed like the thing to do.

"I knew it was a touchdown from the moment I was handed the ball," he continued, as best as he could while being hounded by fans. The play, which capped a seven-play drive that went 65 yards, ironically came with compliments of the North. A pass interference call and a latter unsportsmanlike conduct flag handed the South a sizeable portion of real estate and two timely first downs.

With generosity like that, offensive coordinator Jund of Jerome wasn't about to let the opportunity go to waste.

"When we got the ball, we immediately went into our two-minute offense," he said. "And when we got down to the five, it came down to two plays. Obviously, we didn't need the second one. The first one was executed just as perfect as it could have been. I had no doubts it was six points."

"We wanted to move Cox (Mike Coeur d'Alene) away from the ball. After that, all we needed to do was dig ourselves a hole," he said.

Twin Falls' Mike Rice, who quarterbacked the entire game for the South, had large amounts of praise for Copeland and his offensive line.

"At times, they (the line) just overpowered the defense," he said in a joyous lockerroom following the conquest.

The offensive climax would never have materialized if it hadn't been for the South's strong defensive stand, which on several occasions was led by Kimberly's Scott Osborne.

Osborne, who played offense in high school, had four solo sacks in helping to stop the potent North attack, which was held to minus-42 yards on the ground. With backs like David Toy of Mountain Home and Ty Ogata of Borah carrying the ball, the North was supposed to have a hayday on the ground.

"I felt the turning point of the game would come when our defense got tired," said South defensive coordinator Bill Jones of Twin Falls. "We had less people in camp than the North did and I figured that might make a difference.

"Our people are tired and are going to feel it in the morning; but we held our own out there," Jones said.

Despite the individual heroics of Copeland, Rice, Osborne and others, many on the South squad felt it was a certain quality the team developed during the 10 days in camp that led to the victory.

While many had written the South off as big losers even before the opening kickoff, the Southern stars didn't. Even after the North scored its initial touchdown in the opening seconds, the South didn't give up.

"We didn't listen to that underdog stuff at all," Jones said. "We went into the game thinking it was even and with the help of a few breaks, we came out on top."

"We never quit. We were extremely pumped from the start and that's what helped carry us through," said Copeland.

"Even after the first series, we were still pumped up. We knew we had a chance and obviously we knew something the predictors didn't. All I have to do now is look at the that," he said, pointing to the 16-13 score that beamed from the scoreboard.

Rozelle rules four NFL stars will stay home in September because they were caught with cocaine

By IRA KAUFMAN
United Press International

NEW YORK — Four players, including two members of the Cincinnati Bengals, Monday were suspended without pay through the fourth game of the upcoming regular season by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, who cited their violation of league drug policies involving use of cocaine.

"Disciplinary suspensions, effective immediately, have been imposed on four NFL players for violations of league drug policies," said Rozelle in a harshly worded 11-paragraph statement. "They are Ross Browner and Pete Johnson of the Cincinnati Bengals, E.J. Junior of the St. Louis Cardinals and Greg Stemrick of the New Orleans Saints."

"After thoroughly reviewing the respective cases and meeting with the players and their representatives, I have determined that each player, due to his participation in illegal activities involving cocaine, will be suspended without pay through the fourth game of the 1983 regular season. None of the four players is permitted to attend training camp, practice sessions, meetings or otherwise use club facilities. All four will be eligible to petition for reinstatement following the fourth game of the '83 regular season."

"The suspensions can be appealed within 20 days, according to league spokesman Jim Heffernan. Browner, a 25-year-old starter, testified in Cincinnati U.S. District Court last month that he bought cocaine at least a dozen times from John Schultz, a Cincinnati plumber subsequently convicted on 20 counts of

Humble Twins unload on Brew Crew

By United Press International

The Minnesota Twins made like the Minnesota Vikings Monday night, routing the Milwaukee Brewers by two touchdowns.

Tom Brunansky clouted two home runs, Kent Hrbek and Ron Washington smacked five-run homers, and Gary Ward added a solo shot to pace the Twins to a 17-3 drubbing of the visiting Brewers for their fourth straight victory.

Winner Frank Viola, 5-7, gave up 10 hits and posted his third complete game.

Mickey Hatcher's three-run double and Brunansky's first homer keyed a five-run first inning against Mike Caldwell, 7-8. Rusty Knutson opened with a double and with one out Caldwell walked Ward and Gary Gaetti to load the bases. Knutson came home on Hrbek's infield single and Hatcher then cleared the bases with a double but was thrown out trying for a triple. Brunansky capped the scoring with his first home run.

The Twins got three homers in the first for five more runs and a 10-0 advantage. Ward led off with the 17th of the season to center field. After Gaetti's single, Hrbek laced his seventh homer to right center. With one out, Brunansky singled and Washington poked his third home run of the year.

Ben Ogilvie singled in a run for Milwaukee in the fourth, and Charlie Moore had a two-run double in the fifth inning to cut the deficit to 10-3.

The Twins picked up an unearned run on two Milwaukee errors in the fifth to lead 11-3. Tim Laudner's two-out single was the big hit in a five-run seventh for Minnesota, and Brunansky's second homer of the game gave the Twins their final run in the eighth.

Chicago, 7, Toronto 4.

At Toronto, Harold Baines went 3-for-4 and drove in four runs and Rich Dotson and three relievers combined on a five-hitter to lead the White Sox.

Dotson, 10-5, scattered three hits over the first 2 1/2 innings, and Dennis Lemay worked the final 1 1/2 innings for his fourth save. Dave Slieb, 11-9, took the loss.

New York 6, Texas 5.

At Arlington, Texas, Dave Winfield delivered a two-run triple in the ninth inning to give the Yankees their 10th victory in 11 games. Rich Gossage, 8-3, got the victory even though he gave up two hits in the eighth, when the Rangers scored three runs to take a 5-4 lead. John Butcher fell to 2-3.

California 5, Baltimore 2.

At Anaheim, Calif., Reggie Jackson and Mike Brown each hit solo homers and Tommy John picked up his 245th career victory in leading the Angels. The victory snapped California's three-game losing streak and pushed John's record to 8-7. Mike Boddicker, 6-5, suffered the loss.

Kansas City 6, Cleveland 1.

At Kansas City, Mo., Amos Otis singled home two runs and Hal McRae, Leon Roberts and Frank White each contributed an RBI double to hit Paul Splittorff, 9-3, and the Royals. Splittorff scattered four hits, walked three and struck out two over the 1 1/2 innings, and Dan Quisenberry beat the Indians hitting the rest of the way for his 24th save. Neal Heaton dropped to 5-4.

Roston 3, Oakland 0.

At Oakland, Calif., Brock Holt scattered five hits in pitching his second victory in the season while Wade Boggs hit two sacrifice flies and Dwight Evans added his 19th home run. Hurst, 7-8, did not walk a batter. Boggs has four game-winning RBIs in the Red Sox' last five victories.

Mets return from brink to beat Braves

By United Press International

The New York Mets pulled one out of the frying pan Friday night by trailing 4-1 in the ninth inning in New York against the Atlanta Braves; the Mets rallied for four runs and knocked off the NL West Division leaders, 5-4.

The Mets began their ninth-inning outburst with one out when Junior Ortiz singled off reliever Terry Forster. Steve Bedrosian, 6-4, relieved and Dave Kingman followed with a pinch-hit single, sending Ortiz to second. With two outs, Hula Braverman and Keith Hernandez delivered run-scoring singles and George Foster capped the inning with a two-run double to left-center to make a winner of reliever Doug Sisk, 4-2.

The Braves had built a 4-1 lead on a pinch homer by Mike Jorgensen in the doubled down the right-field line to score Murphy and Chambliss.

Atlanta took a 1-0 lead in the fifth on a single by "Hot" Cloyd at Washington and Murphy, but New York tied it in the sixth on a one-out single by Hernandez, walks to Foster and Darryl Strawberry and a sacrifice fly by pinch-hitter Rusty Staub.

Chicago 5, Los Angeles 3.

At Chicago, Mel Hall lined a three-run triple and Bill Buckner added a two-run homer in a seven-run fifth inning that carried the Cubs to victory, trailing 9-0 entering the fifth, the Cubs sent 11 men to the plate in knocking out Bud Hooton, 6-5.

St. Louis 9, San Francisco 4.

At St. Louis, George Hendrick broke a 1-for-26 slump with three hits, including a two-run homer, to lead the Cardinals to victory. Hendrick's home run, his 12th of the season but first since June 11, and a two-run double by Ozzie Smith, highlighted a five-run first inning against Andy McCalligan, Pittsburgh 6, San Diego 3.

At Pittsburgh, Dave Parker had three hits, including a two-run homer and an RBI single, to lead the Pirates to the 13th victory in 16 games and their 25th in their last 35 contests.

Rick Rhoden, 8-8, got the victory with the help of strong relief pitching by Cecilio Guante.

Cincinnati 4, Montreal 3-8.

At Cincinnati, Mario Soto pitched a seven-inning and struck out 11 and Dan Driessen slammed a two-run homer to spark the Reds to victory in the opener. In the second game, Ray Burris pitched a five-hitter, Andre Dawson hit a two-run homer and Bryan Litch scored four runs to help the Expos salvage a split.

Stop the nickname habit immediately

DEAR ABBY: You touched a nerve with that letter from "Barbara," who hated to be called "Barb," "Barbie," "Babs" or anything but Barbara. I'm sure she was speaking for all the Victorias, Catherines, Suzannes and Patricias who are called "Vicki," "Cathy," "Suzie" and "Patty" by people they hardly know. Americans are the worst offenders. At first meeting, Robert becomes "Bob," William is "Bill," and Richard becomes "Rich" or, worse yet, "Dick!" However, there is a sure cure for such rudeness. The offender should be stopped cold with a direct and simple, "My name is Barbara, Catherine."

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

Robert or William," or whatever the person's name is. If the offender "forgets," a second reminder, or even a third, is in order. —CALL ME DOROTHY (NOT DOTY OR DOT) DEAR DOROTHY: Offensiveness lies in the ear of the hearer. Many appreciate a friendly nickname, providing it's not a put-down such as "Fatso," "Skinny," "Motor Mouth," "Schmo" or "Bussy." DEAR ABBY: I'm a newlywed with my own home. I told my mother that I always put out pretty little guest towels for guests to use, but she says I should use a cloth napkin. I ran a cute poem in your column about that problem a few years ago. If you run it again, I'll cut it out, frame it and hang it in my powder room. Thanks. —SHIRLEY DEAR SHIRLEY: It was written over 30 years ago by Mabel Craddock of Ventura, Calif., who said she had grown weary of having her guests dry their hands on toilet paper, bath mats and even curtains, leaving her guest towels untouched. She framed it and hung it over her guest towels. A Great Towel Speaks! Please use me, guest! Don't hesitate. Don't turn your back Or vacillate. Don't dry your hands On petticoat. On handkerchiefs Or handkerchiefs. I'm here to use; I'm here for drying. Just hanging here Gets very tiring.

Where are all the great chefs of the world?

I don't know how to explain the fact that all my friends married men who cook while I got stuck with a man who thinks that a "marinate" is a place to park your boat. My mother said I reached the age of 34 and panicked. I do know that if you marry a culinary pacifist, he will not be born again, no matter how hard you try. You can lead a man to the stove, but you can't make him cook! My friends said men need praise for everything they do. I tried that. One night I whispered to him, "Why don't you go to the kitchen and get something for our guests-to-munch-on-before dinner?" He returned five minutes later, set a jar of olives in the middle of the coffee

Emma Bombeck At wit's end

table and said: "Where do you hide the plates?" "Sweetheart," I said, "It's my fault. I concealed them behind the big doors called cupboards to keep them away from the children, but this is wonderful. You see, you can cook if you just wanted to." He sensed my insincerity. Others said men love to dress up in costumes when they cook. They like the funny little barbecue aprons that say "GENIUS AT WORK" and the little tools that fit in the pockets and the pack of dogs that follow them around all night. We tried outdoor cooking once. The steaks were done an hour and 15 minutes before the potatoes. The salad was the last course, and for a week we had charcoal breath and ever afraid to breathe near an open flame. Next month, we will celebrate 34 years of marriage. That means I have served up 37,125 meals — make that 37,125. For one full day in February of 1951, I was confined to my bed with a cold. It was the best of times and the worst of times. As I clutched my bedsprings I could only imagine what was happening in the kitchen. It was like attending a war via radio. Mixers stopped too suddenly. Dogs let out human-like screams. Children fought and bodies dropped. Metal clanged. Strange odors permeated the air. Cries were muffled. Doors slammed. Finally, the meal appeared. A hamburger (four inches thick and two inches in circumference). Potatoes slashed to ribbons and a mound of apple sauce. There was a cup of tea that had been hemlock in a former life. "I only dirtied one paring knife," he said proudly. I was to always wonder if I had waited until I was 35, I might have met James Beard.

Operation didn't help night 'runs'

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a prostate operation called a TUR. My main reason was night urination. Since then the frequency of urination has diminished but I still go three to six times at night.

I am 72. My urologist who performed the operation told me to refrain from liquids after 6 p.m. and to work on overcoming the habit. I have even stayed off liquids from noon on to no avail.

I've seen two other urologists in the same group and neither would comment on the size of the prostate. I've also had a cystoscope which was negative. What do you suggest?

DEAR READER — Time and patience may help. However, it is important to understand that frequency of urination does not mean passing lots of urine. Also there are other reasons for frequency besides prostate obstruction.

First find out if you are really passing an excess amount of urine which can occur as a result of diabetes and other disorders. Carefully measure and record all your fluid intake each day and, on the same day, measure the total urine passed. Do this for a few days to find out what the balance is — fluid in vs. fluid out.

You may need an internal medical consultation to look for other causes, particularly if the test proves that you are passing a lot of urine rather than just urinating frequently.

Beyond that, it is a urological problem. If you do have prostate obstruction, your urologist could instill a radio-opaque substance in your bladder and then use an X-ray to see if you still have residual urine in the bladder. If you do, it could mean you need more of the core of the prostate removed.

The size of the prostate is not nearly as important as how much it constricts or obstructs the urethra from the bladder. This can occur even though the prostate is small.

I am sending you the Health Letter 156, Prostate Gland. Problems. To give you a better appreciation of the situation. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long-stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am worried about social diseases such as herpes simplex. We have a friend who does not use any bleach. She has had too many accidents with it taking out color and refuses to use it anymore. She does her laundry using cold water and washing powder. Could a social disease be transmitted by using washcloths and towels at her home? I wouldn't want to appear neurotic and bring my own, so what is the answer?

DEAR READER — No, you won't catch herpes that way. But do inquire discreetly if she uses a clothes dryer or not. If she does, that is the best procedure in the laundry routine to destroy infectious organisms. The heat required to dry the clothes kills almost all organisms. The exception is fungus such as athlete's foot.

Detroit smiles as car sales up 38%

By MICHELLE MAYNARD
 United Press International

DETROIT — Domestic automakers said Monday their sales rose 38.6 percent on a daily rate basis in the middle 10 days of July, resulting in the best annual sales rate for any period so far this year.

The automakers had nine days in the July 11-20 period this year in which to sell cars, eight in the same period of 1982. This accounts for any disparity in some of the figures.

In the 10-day period, the automakers sold 206,875 autos, up 38.6 percent on a daily rate basis from last year's 152,038. The daily selling rate of 22,986 cars per day was the best for the period since 1979.

The sales figures translate to an annual rate of 7.7 million cars, the best for any period this year. Sales have now been up for six consecutive 10-day periods.

During the similar 1982 period, the annual selling rate was 5.6 million cars.

So far this month, sales of 343,000 are up 41.9 percent from last year's 241,556.

Sales for 1983 to date are 3,069,180, up 15.5 percent from last year's 2,676,378.

General Motors led the Big Three automakers in sales for the period, and month to date.

GM sold 128,390 cars in the 10-day period, up 45.6 percent from 78,382. The automaker is offering financing of 9.8 percent on some small and sporty models.

The No. 1 automaker's sales are up 48.7 percent so far this month and 13 percent for the year.

are up 26.2 percent and 10.7 percent for the year.

"The people coming back into the market are buying a wide range of cars," said Philip E. Benton Jr., Ford vice president of sales.

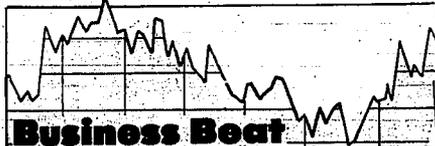

"In the last 30 days, all sizes have experienced substantial increases with mid-sized cars showing the largest gains."

Chrysler Corp. is offering rebates and an 8.8 percent financing rate on some models. Its sales of 28,400 are up 26 percent for the 10 days compared to 18,698. Sales are up 37 percent for the month and 24.8 percent for the year.

American Motors Corp. sold 4,450 cars in the period, up 60 percent from 2,700. AMC sales for the month are up 55.7 percent and 113 percent for the year due to the success of its Renault Alliance model.

Volkswagen of America sold 2,098 cars in the period, down 24.6 percent from 2,472. VW sales for the month are down 27 percent but down 9 percent for the year.

Honda is currently began building cars in Marysville, Ohio, sold 1,816 cars in the 10-day period. Its sales so far this month are 3,516 and are 1,322 for the year as a whole.

600 sheep at weekend sale

TWIN FALLS — More than 600 purebred sheep go to the auction block this weekend when the Idaho Wool Growers Association holds its 52nd Annual Ram and Ewe Sale at the College of Southern Idaho. Bidders from several Western states will bid at the Ewe Sale, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Friday and at the Ram Sale, scheduled for 10:30 a.m. Saturday. Both will take place in the Livestock Expo Center on the northeast side of the CSI campus.

Auctioneer Lyle Masters of Blain will conduct the 1983 sale. Wool growers and interested public are invited.

Siberian gas line completed

MOSCOW (UPI) — Workers Monday completed laying pipe for the world's longest natural gas pipeline stretching between Siberia and western Europe, Moscow announced.

The 2,766-mile heavy-duty gas main, scheduled to carry 32 billion cubic meters of gas a year, was laid in less than 14 months, the official Tass news agency said. "Not a single pipeline project in the Soviet Union has ever been completed in such a short time," it said.

According to Tass, more than 2,500 miles of the pipeline has been tested. One 335-mile section between Urengoi and the Sverdlovsk region is already pumping gas to Siberian users.

Economy spurs bankruptcies

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Although the number of personal bankruptcies has risen dramatically since the Bankruptcy Reform Act took effect in 1979, a new government report Monday said the economy, not the law, is to blame.

The legislation, the first comprehensive revision of the bankruptcy statutes since 1938, was intended to make bankruptcy more efficient by consolidating procedures and balancing the interests of different classes of creditors. It took effect on Oct. 1, 1979.

In the first year of the new law, bankruptcies increased 60 percent from 197,000 in the 12 months ended June 30, 1979, to 315,000 a year later, the study by the General Accounting Office, the investigative arm of Congress, found.

A total of 453,000 bankruptcies were filed in 1981, a 44 percent jump over 1980, and 450,000 in 1982, a slight drop over the previous year.

Bell Atlantic chooses name

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The holding company that will own Bell telephone operating units in six mid-Atlantic states and Washington, D.C., announced Monday it will call itself Bell Atlantic Corp.

The firm is one of seven regional companies that will be formed when American Telephone & Telegraph Co. spins off its local operating companies in January, 1984, as part of an antitrust suit settlement with the federal government.

Bell Atlantic is the first regional company to take advantage of a ruling earlier this month, in which U.S. District Judge Harold H. Greene ruled the Bell name belonged to the local companies, not AT&T.

Productivity drops in 1982

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Productivity declined in more than half of American industries during 1982, a sharp contrast from a year earlier, the Labor Department reported Monday.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said its report of output per hour for 1982 showed the largest declines in steel productivity and output since the measure began in 1947.

Steel industry productivity declined 19.5 percent, largely as a result of a sharp, 40.1 percent, drop in output.

The bureau said the steel productivity decline contrasted to an 8.8 percent increase in 1981, as demand fell in almost all steel markets as a result of the economic downturn.

Even a large drop in employees hours of 25.6 percent could not compensate for the falloff in output, the department said.

Exxon profits surge

By United Press International

Exxon Corp., the world's largest oil company and industrial power, said Monday second-quarter profits rose 25.6 percent, largely because of higher oil production and improved refining and marketing results.

Ashland Oil Co., ranked 15th in the U.S. oil industry, suffered a 46.3 percent slump in earnings for the April-June quarter.

Ashland's earnings for its third fiscal quarter ended June 30 fell to $37.1 million, or $1.08 a share, from $69.1 million, or $2.12 a share, a year earlier. Revenues were down 4.5 percent to $2.1 billion vs. $2.2 billion.

In the second quarter Exxon earned $1.07 billion, or $1.25 a share, in the same quarter last year, but revenues slipped 4.9 percent to $2.9 billion from $2.5 billion a year earlier.

Exxon's earnings for the 1982 second quarter reflected a $106 million charge in connection with the mothballing of the Colona, Calif. Oil Field in Colorado and a $158 million credit related to debt restructuring.

Exxon Chairman C.C. Garvin Jr., said the company's operating, selling and administrative expenses were $400 million less before taxes in the latest quarter compared with the year-earlier period.

For the first six months of 1983 Exxon's earnings jumped 26.7 percent to $2.13 billion, or $2.47 a share, from $1.69 billion, or $1.94 a share, in the first half last year. Revenues dropped 1.2 percent to $46.6 billion vs. $51.96 billion.

Exxon's chemical profits were up 55 percent to $85 million in the first half of 1983 over the comparable 1982 period, while U.S. petroleum exploration and production earnings rose 4 percent to $992 million.

Profits from U.S. refining and marketing operations jumped 41.3 percent to $130 million in the first half from $92 million a year ago.

"Petroleum products margins, although much improved over this year's second quarter, did not reach the high levels experienced in last year's third quarter," said John R. Hall, Ashland chairman.

"Ashland's other businesses have not yet benefited from the improving economy," he said.

Shares back

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI) — Holly Sugar Corp. announced Monday it has repurchased 130,000 shares of Holly Sugar stock for $7.4 million from Jeffrey M. Plover and its wholly owned corporation, DeClasons Inc.

Funds for the repurchase — which amounted to $56.92 per share — were provided from a federal tax refund of $9.8 million received last week. The refund was generated by the closed early last year of Holly Sugar's Holly Fructose corn syrup facility at Tracy, Calif.

Lower deficit figure gives stocks a boost

NEW YORK — Overcoming an early plunge, the stock market registered a small gain Monday after the government reduced its estimate of the fiscal 1984 budget deficit.

But trading was restrained by news the Washington Public Power Supply System formally defaulted on $2.25 billion worth of bonds, the largest municipal default in history.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, down eight points at the outset after adding 1.80 Friday, added 1.70 to 1,232.87. It had been up more than five points in the final hour of trading. It gained 36 overall last week.

The closely watched average has risen about 450 points since last August and many investors have been cashing in on those profits, analysts said.

The New York Stock Exchange index rose 0.33 to 98.07, and the price of an average share increased 13 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index jumped 0.64 to 169.53. Advances topped declines 866-730 among the 1,961 issues traded.

Big Board volume totaled 73,680,000 shares, up from the 68,550,000 traded Friday but below the 83 million daily average of the 1983's first six months.

Some late-afternoon buying was triggered when the Office of Management and Budget said the projected deficit for fiscal 1984 had been scaled down to $179.7 billion from $192.0 billion estimated in April because of increased receipts and outlays.

Bonds recalled as Manuel Johnson, assistant Treasury secretary, said the economic recovery could trim borrowing needs and the recent increase in interest rates "may already of peaked out."

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 85,295,450 shares compared with 81,669,840 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index lost 0.22 to 247.40 and the price of a share fell one cent. Declines edged advances 311-304 among the 820 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 7,350,600 shares compared with 7,627,495 Friday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers Index of OTC stocks gained 0.13 to 320.84.

On the trading floor, Pan American World Airways was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/2 to 8 1/2. American Telephone & Telegraph followed, off 1/4 to 6 1/4.

General Motors was third on the list, up 1/4 to 75 1/4. Ford followed, up 1 1/2 to 60 1/2. Chrysler, which began negotiations with the United Auto Workers, eased 3/4 to 30 1/2.

Texas Instruments plunged 10 1/2 to 118 1/2 in heavy trading. The company late Friday night reported a second-quarter loss of $119.2 million.

Holly Sugar lost 4 1/4 to 48 1/4. The company bought back 100,000 of its own shares from dissident stockholder Jeffrey Plover for $7.4 million.

On the Amex, Wang Laboratories class B led the actives, off 3/4 to 38 1/2.

Challis bank joins First Security

BOISE — The Custer County State Bank of Challis will become a branch of First Security Bank of Idaho, officials of the two institutions have announced.

"The merger will mean added banking services for our depositors," said Raymond Bursted, chief executive officer of the 40-year-old institution. "The de-regulation of banking has increased competition among banking and financial institutions so much that it is increasingly difficult for small banks to remain independent."

The transaction will be accomplished by an exchange of stock. Bursted and First Security chairman Ralph J. Comstock Jr. said in a news release. It must be approved by the shareholders of both banks and by federal and state regulating agencies.

The Custer County Bank was founded in 1943 by Otto P. Hoebel of the Butte County Bank of Arco and a consortium of Challis and Arco investors. It reported deposits of $17.8 million at the end of its 1982 fiscal year.

Once approved, the Challis institution will be the 69th branch in First Security's statewide network.

First Security also is awaiting federal approval for a buy-out of the Butte County Bank of Arco, which has many of the same investors as the Custer County institution, said First Security spokeswoman Shirley Mix. That sale was negotiated in February.

First Security Bank of Idaho has $1.6 billion in assets.

A good 'technician' can help protect your car investment

I stopped at the gas station to chat with the owner as my car was being filled with gas and oil the other day and complimented him on his mechanic's diagnosis of my auto's ailments.

"Mechanic!" scoffed. "That's no mechanic! He insists we call him (and we do) a 'technician' and he deserves every compliment you give him."

The equipment hidden under the hood of a new car these days is increasingly intimidating. An old-fashioned "mechanic," good as he is, can't handle the complex machinery without up-to-date training. And with average new-car prices crossing the five-figure total, the typical worker is now spending a half-year's pay to buy a vehicle. How, then, do you find a competent mechanic (technician) and prevent costly repair problems in the future? Some valuable tips:

- Word-of-mouth reference is still tops. Ask your friends or reliable acquaintances. Good mechanics quickly build good reputations.
- Wait until you are considering and look for an organized, well-kept shop. A mechanic who takes pride in his work usually keeps the shop clean and well-organized. Check for modern equipment, such as engine diagnostic testers and exhaust gas analyzers, says Dave Bowman, technical communications manager for Fram/Autolife, a major auto parts manufacturer. If the mechanic uses brands you don't recognize, be wary.

- Look for certification (certificates in the shops or uniform patches bearing the name "National Institute for Automotive Service Excellence") and gives competency tests in eight categories of auto technology.
- If a mechanic has passed these tests, it can be a good indication that he is competent in that area of work.
- Also check for "certificates of diploma from other technical training schools. Good mechanics take classes to keep up with the latest auto technology and will hang their certificates in the shop. Look for decals indicating membership in top industry organizations — a sign that the mechanic is truly a dedicated professional.

- Talk to the mechanic. Good mechanics will not offer "curbside diagnoses" to problems. They check your car thoroughly before making a diagnosis. Ask for a full explanation of what the mechanic will do in terms you fully understand.
- Ask for options. Good mechanics will explain what options you have, if any, on a repair. For instance, instead of replacing an old carburetor with a new one, you might use a remanufactured model that costs less.
- Check attitudes on "second opinions and estimates, which good mechanics should welcome. Those who refuse to give written estimates or do not call when an estimate changes should be avoided.
- Don't play "doctor" and diagnose the problem yourself. Let the mechanic diagnose why your car is, say, sluggish. When describing symptoms, be specific. If your car "plugs," does it "ping" in the morning, evening, while driving at 55 miles per hour, in cold or hot weather?

- Be sure the repair writer does not make the diagnosis. The order form should say "repair stalling problem," and list the symptoms, not "adjust carburetor or perform tune-up" if you have not requested it.
- If problems defy your accurate description, ask the mechanic to take a test drive. If the mechanic refuses to do another shop.
- Discuss the diagnosis and repair procedure with the mechanic before work begins so you will know exactly what you will be paying for. If the diagnosis does not satisfy you, take the car for a second opinion; expect to pay for the time the first mechanic spent on diagnosis. Ask for a guarantee on parts and labor in writing.

- When you retrieve your car, ask to see old, replaced parts and ask why they were replaced. If the mechanic refuses to show you needed parts, do not go back to that shop. The mechanic may have done unnecessary repairs. Some states have laws requiring mechanics to show their customers repaired or replaced parts.
- Finally, make arrangements for a method of payment before you pick up your car. Don't expect the shop to give you credit, be prepared to pay with cash — not checks or credit cards.

Steel cutting prices, profits

BY SYNTIA PIECHOWIAK
United Press International

PITTSBURGH — U.S. steelmakers, trying to woo customers with massive price cuts, have enjoyed another quarter of losses and probably won't improve until year-end, Wall Street analysts say.

Second-quarter price-slashing strategy — which one steelmaker termed "suicidal" — cut deeply into financial results, experts said.

So far, five major producers — National Steel Corp., Republic Steel, Inland Steel and Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel — have reported further losses in the second quarter, but they say the period when steel demand swells.

Steelmakers scheduled to report this week — including No. 1 U.S. Steel Corp. and No. 2 Bethlehem Steel Corp. — are expected to do no better.

Although the industry is pulling out of its record 1982 slump — its worst since the Depression with losses totaling more than $2 billion — it probably will not turn a profit until mid-1984, analysts say.

"The losses are coming down some, but it's not very pleasant," said Charles Bradford, steel analyst for Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith in New York.

Steel prices are depressed because demand is so weak that customers can safely demand concessions, said Peter Anker, metals analyst with First Boston Corp.

But the industry itself must shoulder part of the blame, Bradford said, because "it makes no sense to have prices this low. They're killing each other."

Demand for plate, structural and other types of steel is so poor that prices should be low, but steelmakers ought to charge more for flat-rolled products, he said.

Imported steel can't be blamed for the discount fever, Bradford said, because "their prices are generally about where they've always been."

"Without some relief on prices, it's going to be difficult for these companies to get into the black," said Smith Barney steel analyst Wendy Beale, who has pared back her earnings predictions for most major steelmakers. "They're very close to volume levels where they could make a profit if only prices were a little better."

The July-September quarter offers little chance for improvement, analysts said.

"The third quarter is going to be a repeat, or a little better version, of what we're seeing now," said Anker. But in the fourth quarter, several steelmakers — including Inland and National — have a crack at making money, analysts said.

National, the nation's No. 4 steelmaker, lost $22 million in the second quarter, but reported operating income of $80,000 and its first profit on steel operations in nearly two years.

Inland reported a net loss of $29.7 million despite higher shipments. No. 5 Republic Steel lost $45.4 million and Arco recorded red ink of $75.8 million. Wheeling-Pittsburgh Steel Corp., citing "suicidal" price slashing, reported a net loss of $18.9 million.

U.S. Steel, the nation's largest steelmaker, is expected to cut its losses but stay in the red in the second quarter.

The company's domestic refining business should turn a profit, said Bradford. "Steel is doing somewhat better, but not much better."

Japan's top steel maker reports drop

TOKYO (UPI) — Nippon Steel Corp., Japan's No. 1 steel maker, Monday reported a sharp decline in profits and sales for the business year that ended in March.

The company said net earnings for the year fell 33 percent to $149 million. The diminished net earnings came from consolidated sales, which totaled $12.07 billion, off 11.7 percent from a year ago.

Nippon Steel officials predicted continued weak demand for steel products worldwide to which the company blamed its poor performance over the past year.

Reinforcing Nippon Steel's pessimistic forecast, the government Monday reported Japan's output of crude steel in June declined 2.6 percent from May to 7.99 million tons.

$80 silver precast by 1990

WALLACE (UPI) — Explosive demand by the Soviet Union and China will help push the price of silver to about $80 per ounce by 1990, a market analyst predicts.

Financial strategist Paul Sarnoff, who spoke last week at an investment seminar in the northern Idaho mining district near Wallace, said the current $18-per-ounce silver price isn't as important for investors as the projected demand and almost-certain price increases.

He said China and the Soviet Union will provide nearly two-thirds of the worldwide demand of 1.1 billion ounces of silver by the end of the decade, while new mine production will be only about 300 million ounces.

"Imagine, a possible shortfall in one year of 800 million ounces," he said.

Russia and China alone will have checked demand of 650 million ounces, but their mines will produce just 70 million ounces, Sarnoff said.

Sarnoff said his personal investment strategy is one of "accumulation rather than speculation."

He said he has tried to create a fund that includes a "hard asset, one that has the best chance to cope with the coming inflation."

Sears says earnings up on recovery

CHICAGO (UPI) — Sears Roebuck and Co., the nation's largest retailer, Monday reported second-quarter earnings jumped 88 percent from a year earlier and net income for the first six months was double year-ago levels.

Net income for the three months ended June 30 was $308.3 million, or 87 cents a share. That compares with $127 million or 67 cents a share for the second quarter of 1982.

Total revenue rose to $7.96 billion from $7.20 billion in the second quarter last year.

For the first six months, Sears reported net income of $472.9 million or 83.34 per share. That is up from $201 million or 67 cents per share last year. First-half revenue increased to $14.87 billion from $13.64 billion.

Edward R. Telling, chairman and chief executive officer, said all Sears business groups reported earnings improvements.

"Consumers are strongly leading the economy and this is being reflected in the results of our merchandise, insurance, real estate and financial services groups," Telling said.

"We forecast late in 1982, we continue to expect a gradual recovery of the economy through 1983, with the momentum increasing as the year progresses."

Analysts expect revenues to continue gaining strength in the third and fourth quarters. However, Sears income is not likely to increase at the same percentage rate as in the second quarter.

Water inundates newest coal mine

WILBY, England (UPI) — The new modern coal mine in Western Europe, opened only three weeks ago, Monday, gurgled under two feet of water that threatened $5.4 million worth of the latest-in coal cutting machinery.

The "superpit" near Selby in Yorkshire, about 200 miles north of London, could be closed for weeks, possibly months, a National Coal Board spokesman said. Shut-down will cost the coal board $90,000 a week.

Summer driving levels off

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Average nationwide gasoline prices moved up only marginally during the past two weeks—and it appears that summer driving has reached its peak, oil industry analyst Dan Lundberg says.

The bi-weekly Lundberg survey of 50,000 retail outlets in 50 states listed the average gas price, including taxes, at 125.19 cents per gallon, up 0.18 cents since July 8.

Wholesale prices, without taxes, were 95.10 cents per gallon, up 0.10 cents.

The average profit for retail dealers was 8.71 cents per gallon, up 0.02 cents but still less than the 11.48 cents per gallon dealers maintained at the start of the year, Lundberg said.

"Summer driving is a disappointment and it's attributed to price sensitivity and also an apparent reluctance of owners of older model cars who are dependent upon competent service station repairs to go into rural and more remote areas," he said.

"There has been so much attrition in service stations in rural areas," Lundberg also said drivers of newer model and foreign cars have in recent years looked more to car dealers for minor repairs and maintenance.

"They, too, constitute a reluctant body of motorists who are afraid to venture out of the metropolitan areas," he said.

"While the current overall average price is above the 119.73 cents average gasoline price at the beginning of the year," Lundberg said, "it has to be viewed in the light of the national weighted tax on gasoline, which has climbed to 21.39 cents per gallon since January."

He said the tax includes the 5 cents per gallon national tax imposed April 1, and an additional average of 0.94 cents per gallon imposed by states.

"If you take that 5.94 cents from the current 125.19 cents per gallon you arrive at 119.5 cents, which is just a bit under the price of gasoline at the first of the year," he explained.

The overall average of regular gasoline at full-service stations and 181.56 cents at full-service outlets, the survey noted.

Regular unleaded was 122.67 cents for self-service and 137.74 cents for full service.

"Except for scattered state price increases, it does look as though the summer price of gasoline has hit a period of stability," Lundberg added.

Auto export quota review set for 1984

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Japanese auto export quotas will be reviewed next March in light of the strength of the U.S. auto industry, Japan's ambassador to the United States said.

Yoshio Okawara said the quotas have given U.S. auto manufacturers some breathing space.

"They will be effective until March 1984 but beyond that I cannot tell," Okawara said.

Japan announced in May 1981 it would voluntarily restrict automobile imports to the U.S. to 1.6 million vehicles annually.

"The Japanese are pleased the U.S. economy is improving because it will help Japan recover from its own slump," he said. "But we are concerned with protectionist sentiment of some of U.S. politicians."

Okawara spoke at a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the sister-city relationship between Salt Lake City and Matsumoto, Japan.

He met with Utah Gov. Scott Matheson Friday to discuss importing Utah steam-coal and farm products to Japan.

Japanese industries are not particularly in need of increasing coal imports at this time, but in the longer term, Japan will be interested in buying coal from the United States and other sources," Okawara said.

The ambassador said the sister-city concept promotes better understanding between individual people and nations.

The sister city relationship between Salt Lake City and Matsumoto began in 1958 under the direction of the late A. Ray Olpin, a former president of the University of Utah.

Matsumoto, a city of 190,000, is 90 miles northwest of Tokyo on the main Japanese island of Honshu.
