Meyerhoeffer named to head CSI

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In a move that surprised few, the College of Southern Idaho board has appointed Jerry Meyerhoeffer as the school's second president.

Meyerhoeffer, 45, has held various administrative posts at the college for the past 17 years. Most recently, he had served as vice president under James "Doc" Taylor, the junior college's first president. He assumed the president's duties on an interim basis when Taylor died in an November.

Meyerhoeffer was chosen from a field of 168 applicants. The board interviewed the final three candidates Tuesday and Wednesday, before deciding on Meyerhoeffer Wednesday night. His appointment was announced Thursday.

H.D. Yarrrough, the president of Amarillo College in Texas, and Guerin Fischer, the executive director of the Clearbrook Center Foundation in Rolling Meadows, Ill., were the other two finalists.

The CSI board of trustees received a lot of advice from many people before making the decision, board Chairman LeRoy Craig said Thursday. Board members drank a lot of coffee in the trustees' room during the past few days, he said.

"While all three were excellent people, we felt he (Meyerhoeffer) had the qualities we wanted to continue excellence at CSI," Craig said.

The board knew what Meyerhoeffer could do; it did not know what anyone else could do, Craig said. Board

House votes to cut off covert aid to rebels

By ROBERT SHEPARD
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The House, in a rebuke of President Reagan, voted 223-194 Thursday night to halt covert aid to anti-government rebels in Nicaragua.

The measure now goes to the Republican-controlled Senate, where it is almost certain to be rejected in its present form.

The dramatic series of votes came amid growing concern in Congress over the increasing U.S. military presence in the troubled region where Reagan has dispatched ground troops and naval battle groups to carry out maneuvers.

Administration supporters, after turning back one Democratic amendment by a one-vote margin, later lost key votes by slightly larger margins.

The amendments were offered to a Democratic-sponsored bill intended to halt what administration critics charged is a U.S.-sponsored invasion of Nicaragua by anti-Sandinista insurgents.

One of the final amendments — offered by Democratic leader Jim Wright of Texas — restored original provisions of the bill to order a halt to the covert aid and openly provide $80 million to friendly Central American governments to use in halting arms shipments to any guerrilla forces in the region.

Wright's amendment also declared that the government of Nicaragua had violated its pledges to the Organization of American States for free elections and other reforms and had violated the OAS charter by aiding leftist guerrillas battling the government of El Salvador.

The amendment called on Reagan to work with the OAS to resolve the conflict in Central America.

Wright's amendment was approved by voice vote, and the House went on to pass the overall bill.

Idaho's congressmen, Larry Craig and George Hansen, voted against the cutoff.

The House had earlier approved, 221-205, another Democratic amendment offered by Reps. Edward Boland, D-Mass., and Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., that provided for covert aid to halt when the bill became law, but providing that 30 days after that date the president could ask Congress to approve a resumption of the aid. However, that amendment was superseded by adoption of the Wright substitute amendment.

The House rejected, 223-203, a compromise amendment by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., that would have allowed the covert aid to continue if the president submitted a new plan to halt arms shipments to leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

The administration supporters won the first vote, 214-213, when they defeated an amendment by Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., who proposed an aide cutoff and called for the Central American nations to agree to halt arms shipments to anti-government forces anywhere in the region.

Congress kills withholding with overwhelming margins

By MARY BETH FRANKLIN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Congress voted Thursday to repeal a law that allows the interest and dividends.

Republican leaders said they were assured by the White House that President Reagan will sign the repeal legislation.

The Senate and House, voting against the controversial tax program in overwhelming numbers, acted just one week before the Treasury Department's deadline for putting it into effect.

The House approved the compromise legislation 392-18 and the Senate followed a short time later, 90-7.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., accused

Congress of "caving in to special interests, blowing a hole in the federal budget."

"I don't think that most people are as satisfied as the interest groups would have us believe," Danforth said.

The law originally was to go into effect July 1 but Treasury Secretary Donald Regan first granted an extension until Aug. 1 and then to Aug. 5 to allow time for Congress to act.

Although the bill would repeal the withholding statute, it also calls for tougher taxpayer reporting requirements of interest and dividend income and "backstop" withholding for those who fail to report or under report that income.

A spokesman said House Republican leader Robert Michel of Illinois was assured by the White House before the House vote that Reagan would sign the measure, which he earlier opposed, because it was a package of tax and trade incentives for 27 friendly nations in the region.

Rep. Barber Conable of New York, senior Republican on the Ways and Means Committee, urged his House colleagues to support the bill, which he called "a workable compromise" that should end "this over-long and painful ordeal for all of us."

Rep. Norman D'Amours, D-N.H., a leading opponent of withholding, called the compromise "a clear victory for the overwhelming majority of American taxpayers who pay their taxes."

Four undergo transplants

By ROBERT DOHERTY
United Press International

PITTSBURGH — The baby daughter of a White House electrician, rushed to Pittsburgh on an Air Force jet arranged by President Reagan, was in critical condition Thursday, recovering from 16-and-a-half hours of liver transplant surgery.

Sixteen-month-old Candl Thomas was one of four young patients to undergo life-saving liver transplants within a two-day span in Pittsburgh, Minneapolis and Memphis.

However, in Twin Falls, Pam Allen, the 2-year-old daughter of Fred and Carol Allen, continued to wait for a liver donor.

The Allen child has been accepted in the liver transplant program at the same Pittsburgh hospital where two of the most recent operations occurred. Doctors have given Allen about a year to live without an Thomas emerged around 7 a.m. Thursday from the liver operation performed at Pittsburgh Children's Hospital, by a surgical team headed by transplant pioneer Dr. Thomas Starzl. Her condition was standard for new transplant patients.

The child and her parents, Stewart and Penny Thomas of Accokeek, Md., were flown to Pittsburgh from Andrews Air Force Base, outside Washington, Wednesday at Reagan's order, after word came that a donor liver was available.

Reagan mentioned the Thomas child and 11-month-old Ashley Bailey of Clyde, Texas, in his nationwide radio address last weekend, appealing to the public to donate badly needed organs as dying youngsters like them could live.

Reagan telephoned the Thomases to offer his good wishes after their daughter came out of surgery, and he invited the family for a White House visit.

"When Candl's well, we're going to take Candl to see him," Mrs. Thomas said after the seven-minute call.

"I thanked him for opening the doors for us and families like us," said Thomas, 36, a 12-year veteran of the General Services Administration. "He was grateful he could help out as much as he could."

An Air Force jet also was dispatched to fly a donated liver from Utah

Grain deal is good news for farmers

By NORMAND SANDLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration announced a new long-term grain agreement with the Soviet Union Thursday.

The agreement guarantees up to $2 billion in U.S. grain purchases from U.S. farmers in each of the next five years.

The agreement was reached earlier in the day in Vienna, where the third round of talks were being held. It calls for higher minimum and maximum purchases than a previous agreement that has been extended twice and expires Sept. 30.

"This is a happy day for American agriculture and for the citizens of this country," Agriculture Secretary John Block told reporters at the White House. "It has been a long and difficult struggle back."

The surprise announcement, delayed until after the close of the commodity markets, was made by William Brock, U.S. trade representative.

William Brock, They said the formal signing will take place in late August. Administration officials portrayed the agreement as a major step toward regaining a portion of the Soviet market lost during the grain embargo ordered by President Carter in January 1980 in response to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Farm Belt businessmen applauded the agreement. "U.S. farmers could have received no better news than the announcement of a new and improved grain agreement with the Russians," said Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

The grain agreement is good news for the farmer and for the economy as a whole and may well represent the beginning of a new era in U.S. Soviet trade relations," said Rep. James Leach, R-Iowa, a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee who traveled to the Soviet Union earlier this month.

House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, said, "Anything that points to the possibility of rebuilding export sales is good news."

The pact requires the Soviets to buy at least 9 million metric tons of corn and wheat each year, up to a maximum of 12 million tons. Purchases above the maximum, which are not unusual, would require U.S. approval.

The previous agreement set a minimum of 6 million tons and a maximum of 8 million. Brock called the terms of the new pact "a measurable and significant increase." Brock said the 9 million-ton minimum would mean at least $1.6 billion a year for American farmers at current prices.

As an added incentive, the agreement allows the Soviets to reduce the minimum for corn and wheat to 6 million tons by buying 500,000 tons of soybeans or soybean meal in any year.

The United States sold 14 million tons of grain to the Soviets last year. The Soviets have bought 6 million tons so far this year, but could buy more by Sept. 30, the end of the fiscal year.

While the new long-term agreement was expected to give a psychological boost to the markets, Brock and Brock insisted the long-term effect on prices

Ag secretary samples food stamp diet

By SONJA HILLGREN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block and his wife, Sue, spent $4 at the supermarket Thursday for a week's supply of low-cost groceries they will eat to test menus recommended for the 22 million Americans who get food stamps.

Government recommendations suggest how a family of four can eat nutritious meals for $3 a week. Surrounded by television cameras, photographers and reporters, the Blocks wheeled a shopping cart through the aisles of a suburban Maryland supermarket and picked out such foods as chicken on special for 49 cents a pound, a rump roast for $1.79 a pound and regular hamburger meat at $1.39 a pound.

The groceries they chose cost $4.14 in all after Mrs. Block handed the checkout clerk a couple of coupons.

"The whole issue of food for people in the United States is in the spotlight," Block said when asked why he chose to make the personal test at this time. "There has been some criticism as to whether we're meeting the need."

Asked if the suburban Maryland market where they shopped simulated experiences of needy Americans who get food stamps, Block said a comparison check showed the store's prices were the same as in Washington grocery stores where food stamp recipients shop.

"When was the last time you ate ground beef?" a reporter asked Block.

The Blocks check out with $54 worth of groceries that represent food stamp fare

"Pretty often," he replied. The Blocks chose three loaves of white bread, more than they usually buy, so Block, his daughter and a visiting friend can take bag lunches each day. They also bought beef liver, tuna fish, bologna, peanut butter, grape jelly, saltine crackers, frozen vegetables, fruits, noodles, macaroni, margarine, dry navy beans, potatoes and American processed cheese, among other things. A reporter asked Mrs. Block if American processed cheese was really her favorite and she insisted it is.

Block also picked up some cornflakes, noting he had to buy them because he produces corn on his huge Illinois farm.

Reagan unveils drive to rub out mobs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Invoking the names of gangbusters Elliot Ness and Robert Kennedy, President Reagan named a 20-member commission Thursday to probe organized crime by suggesting it to the spotlight.

While praising the efforts of the FBI and congressional investigators who have been chasing mobsters for the past half-century, Reagan told a White House Rose Garden gathering: "The time has come for all of us to assist in the fight to break the power of the mob in America."

The commission will be headed by 73-year-old New York federal appeals judge Irving Kaufman, famed for presiding over the trials of spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg and of organized crime leaders arrested in Appalachia, N.Y., in 1957.

Kaufman called crime syndicates, including new arrivals such as motorcycle and prison gangs, "parasitic and cancerous."

He also promised, "We shall not whitewash; neither shall we whitewash" during hearings to be held around the country.

He said the panel "shall leave no avenue unexplored" in following its mandate "to go public and expose this menace."

The commission will have to ask Congress for subpoena power and panel member Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, said he would press for authority to compel witnesses to appear.

It was not known how much money the administration would request for the commission's operation.

"Through the years, a few dedicated Americans have broken this curtain of silence and fought this menace," Reagan said.

"Their names are familiar: Prosecutor Thomas Dewey and Judge Samuel Seabury, federal agent Elliot Ness, Senators (Estes) Kefauver and (John) McClellan, Attorney General (Robert) Kennedy, investigative reporter Don Bolles.

FCC surcharge a factor in doubled phone bills

By DAVID LAWSKY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Residential telephone rates probably will double by 1988, but the Federal Communications Commission's new surcharge will be responsible for only about half the increase, FCC Chairman Mark Fowler said Thursday.

Fowler, testifying before a House-Senate hearing, was questioned about an FCC decision to allow imposition of a $2-a-month surcharge on residential phone lines, starting next year. The surcharge is to increase to $3 in 1985 and $4 in 1986, rising to $6 by 1989.

In Idaho, however, the state Public Utilities Commission has challenged the FCC's authority to allow the surcharge in a July 19 decision, the PUC ruled that Mountain Bell customers who do not wish to make out-of-state phone calls must have the option of foregoing the $2 surcharge.

Warren Lavey, an FCC official, said last week that the Idaho PUC action may be challenged in court. Meanwhile, the House Energy and Commerce and Senate Commerce committees are considering legislation to eliminate the surcharge.

Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., asked "Fowler what will happen to the average rate for home telephones."

"It will probably double in three years," Fowler said.

But Fowler said only half the increased cost would be due to the FCC surcharge. Tom Spavins, an FCC official accompanying Fowler, said the remainder of the increase will be due to general inflation, depreciation and other causes.

Senate places farm price debate on hold

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate interrupted a filibuster against a bill to freeze so-called farm target prices Thursday to give the administration time to outline alternative plans for next year's wheat price support program.

Agriculture Secretary John Block will announce the two alternatives Friday, and the target price bill is likely to be back before the Senate Monday, said an aide to the Senate Agriculture Committee.

Block said he would outline the two wheat alternatives. "Then we're going to let the Congress decide what farm program they want to deliver to the farmers," he said.

Target prices are levels designated by the government as the prices farmers are likely to be paid when they sell their crops. The targets are later used to calculate how much the government will compensate farmers if actual market prices drop below the expected levels.

Block has lobbied for the two-year freeze on target prices for grains and cotton as a way to cut costs of the multibillion-dollar farm program. In the current fiscal year, various price support programs are expected to cost the government $2.1 billion.

"I am advised that it would be the better part of discretion ... not to pursue this matter until Monday," said Senate Republican leader Howard Baker. "There is at least a possibility that something might be worked out that would allow us to pass a target price bill without controversy."

U.S. holding car company

DETROIT (UPI) — The government holds the stock of John Z. DeLorean's bankrupt auto company, which he turned over to an undercover FBI agent as part of an alleged $24 million cocaine deal, documents showed Thursday.

Documents filed in federal bankruptcy court by creditors for the DeLorean Motor Co. said the U.S. attorney's office in Los Angeles possesses the stock certificates of DeLorean Motor Co. Inc.

This was confirmed by a grand jury indictment of DeLorean drawn up by the federal government which mentions that the stock certificates were turned over to the undercover agent in San Carlos, Calif.

DMCI incorporates two other DeLorean subsidiaries — DeLorean Manufacturing Co. and Christina Corp.

Piler needs balance in new schools post

The Twin Falls school board appears to have chosen well in its selection this week of Gary L. Piler as the new superintendent of schools for the district. He is a tough-minded individual who has earned that reputation as the district's assistant superintendent under the more reserved James Sawin, who has gone to a college teaching job in Texas. That assertiveness will serve him well in bringing additional quality to the Twin Falls school system, where, we notice, there is sometimes a tendency to let mediocrity reign. He will have to push the district toward excellence. But Piler also will need to balance his natural energy and drive with finesse and poise. Being assistant superintendent is not the same as being the top dog. Now, he must deal with school employees, the board, the community and the legislators in varied ways, perhaps all at the same time. We wish him well and are confident he can provide the Twin Falls school system with the kind of positive direction it needs. Some tests of his performance will come early — in teacher negotiations and the promotion of a bond issue, which may well be on the ballot this fall. Beyond that, there needs to be curriculum changes in the district. We'd like to see some imaginative attention from Piler on such sticky problems as merit pay and the master-teacher concept, both of which are emerging as viable ways to improve the quality of our teacher corps. Both, we think, are adaptable to Twin Falls. But the leadership for their implementation must come, at least in part, from the superintendent's office. We also would like to see him look closely at the now-strained relationship between teachers and parents. When pressed just a bit, many teachers express outright contempt and scorn for the parents of their children. And parents, seeing test scores in a free-fall, have little confidence in the quality of what their children are getting. Perhaps Piler's biggest task will be to break down this barrier and bring both groups together in a cooperative involvement with their children's education. Several recent national reports have pinpointed problems in America's schools, and it will now fall to individual leaders like Piler to help begin badly needed reform efforts. We wish him well in that endeavor. His job will require drive, poise and finesse to set high standards for parents, teachers and students alike. He will need to inspire confidence.

Foreign policy shouldn't surprise us

WASHINGTON — The newspapers were full of ominous stories of U.S. naval forces deploying off Central America and hints of a possible U.S. naval blockade of Nicaragua. One newspaper, the Washington Post, also had a front-page story saying some of our closest friends in the region were "expressing confusion about the direction of American policy in the area." How our friends could possibly be confused about our policy in Central America is a mystery, for it is crystal-clear to U.S. voters. Our policy is exactly what we voted for. In 1980 the basic document of the Republican Party, their platform — after stating, "Our country moves agonizingly, aimlessly, almost helplessly into one of the most dangerous and disorderly periods in history" — got down to specifics on Central America. "We deplore the Marxist-Sandinista takeover of Nicaragua and the Marxist attempts to destabilize El Salvador, Guatemala and Honduras. ... We oppose the Carter administration aid program for the government of Nicaragua. However we will support the efforts of the Nicaraguan people to establish a free and independent government." The Democratic platform said this: "After nearly four years in office, we Democrats have not solved all of America's problems. Most of those problems we inherited. Eight years of Republican politics left this nation weak, rudderless, unrespected and deeply divided." After that preamble, the Democrats got down to specifics on Central America: "In stark contrast to the policies of previous Republican administrations, this Democratic administration has begun to forge a new, collaborative relationship with nations of Latin America and the Caribbean. ... "The United States has worked hard to encourage the expansion of democracy in Latin America, respect for human rights, and the preservation of national independence and integrity from the threat of Soviet and Cuban intervention." "The people of the United States voted. In their infinite wisdom they concluded that they had had enough agonizing and aimless drifting into this dangerous and disorderly period and should elect a Republican president and Senate to deplore the Marxist takeover in Nicaragua. They also knew the Democrats had inherited most of their problems and elected a Democratic House so our nation would not be weak, rudderless and unrespected, but would expand democracy in Latin America and preserve national independence and integrity from the threat of Soviet and Cuban intervention. How could a policy be clearer than that? Not only is our policy clear, it is working. The president says so. On March 10, he told the National Association of Manufacturers: "So the good news is that our new policies have begun to work. Democracy, with free elections, free labor unions, freedom of religion and respect for the integrity of the individual, is the clear choice of the overwhelming majority of Central Americans." "The bad news is that the struggle for democracy is still far from over. ... "In an effort to get the struggle for democracy over with, the president spoke to a joint session of Congress, asking for strong bipartisan support for that clear bipartisan policy we had voted for. In strong, clear bipartisan fashion, the Congress is giving the president some of the money he wants and some of the authority to do some of the things he wants to do. Now, to show we know how to handle ourselves in this dangerous and disorderly period, we have the Navy manuevering off Central America and the Army manuevering in Central America. ... This should convince those Sandinistas that we really do care about them. It is how a mighty nation carries out a fine, clear bipartisan policy free of agonizing, aimless drift on the one hand and weak, rudderless, unrespected division on the other." Otis Pike, a former congressman, writes for Newhouse News Service.

Letters | Hansen: "Lay off the abuse of my wife."

George responds to letter
I have read Lloyd Walker's guest opinion in your paper of July 26 and he can take a long walk on a short plank. His demand on me is rude and crude and about as absurd as if I were to demand that he vote Republican. However, even in politics, Mr. Editor, there are still some rules of decency in our so-called civilized society contrary to the way your paper and its editor, Lloyd Walker, conduct yourselves. I am the congressman, not my wife. ... However, she does work long, hard hours every day serving the people of Idaho without taking a cent of pay. Connie is a kind, friendly and cooperative person, and she is every bit a lady, a very honest and decent lady. Connie has never hurt you, Lloyd Walker, nor you, Mr. Editor. By what right do you people drag her into your political muckraking? Lloyd Walker's slashing article hit Connie directly and indirectly at least two dozen times. Do you, Lloyd Walker, feel better when you can beat up on a lady? Who are you to accuse her, anyway? If you're some sort of one-man ethics committee, why don't you take a long look in the mirror before you hep into the judgment seat. Now, I'm a Republican offceholder and you're well known as the Joey Brown of Democrat complainers. I expect your-criticism even though I think your methods are obnoxious and you don't know facts from fantasy. But, I'm publicly putting you on notice, man to man, that you had better lay off the abuse of my wife. Your idea of women might be different from mine, but I'm just old fashioned enough that I won't stand by for any more such personal attacks on my family. REF. GEORGE HANSEN

How is 'talent' measured?
While listening to the radio Friday evening I heard an advertisement for the Miss Twin Falls pageant. The spokesman for the Lion's Club was distinctly describing the affair as a "Scholarship Pageant," where the winner goes on to compete for Miss Idaho, Miss America, etc.

The advertisement was followed by the Bellamy Brothers' tongue-in-cheek song "I Love Her Mind," wherein the song writer extols the physical beauties of his female companion but insists "I love her mind." He hastens to add however, that his only concern with her mind is the way she uses it to find ways to please him with her body. I don't know if the disk jockey appreciated the irony of his choice of records in that spot, but I felt it was very appropriate. Common fellas! Let's call this pageant what it is, a beauty pageant. It's not "judged" for their physical attributes; it's a throwback to the time when women were the possession of men and the men jockeyed for the most attractive specimen. ... I do not mean to impugn the intelligence or talent of the young women who participate in these affairs, or the girl who has by now been named the winner of this contest, but there is something wrong with a system that requires a girl to prence around a stage in a bathing suit in order to get a college scholarship. I challenge you to explain what a woman's bust size, or for that matter her waist, hip or thigh measurement, has to do with her intellectual capacity or her value as a human being. ... I will argue that the girls are judged on talent and oral interviews as well as the swim suit and evening gown competitions. It is true that many do exhibit remarkable talent, but you are really not fooling anyone. A truly talented vocalist, instrumentalist, artist and so on would not have a ghost of a chance in the pageant if she were not also possessed of a lithe and lovely form. ... James Koutack explained it perfectly well on his "Party Line" program last week while interviewing the 1983 title holder, "It don't hurt to be attractive either!" he noted. He went on to say that the girls who compete in these affairs seem to have a more mature sophistication than other girls their age. Not Mr. Kostnick, they have a very carefully trained and equally artificial facade that has nothing to do with real life. ... If it is a talent contest, then judge talented young women for their abilities and skip the bare nude strutting. If it's a scholarship contest then do something more scholarly than promanade for an ogling audience. ... The only people who really benefit from these contests are the promoters and possibly the diet aids industry. While I am aware of the movies, T.V. and other forms of mass media perpetuate a mythological standard of both feminine and masculine attractiveness, this kind of affair gives an air of legitimacy to that standard. ... You, man, does create frustration and more often than we care to admit, emotional and life threatening anxiety in those women who can't measure up. It also creates disillusionment for men who wonder why their women doesn't "look like that." If the Lion's Club wants to do a real public service, then sponsor programs that teach young people to maintain the health of their physical bodies in order to improve the quality of life and their capacity to make a meaningful contribution to society and themselves. ... The pelvic bones don't look good in today's tight jeans, or the girl whose grandmothers from four generations have had the same round, not oval face with perfect cheek bones, that she has, to understand that they too are beautiful and worthwhile individuals. J.B. ### Played either way, gender gap is still part of politics

BOSTON — It looks like that happy little band of eternal optimists are back at the controls of the Republican Party. For months, the Reagan people peered down into the black hole of the gender gap and issued gloomy reports. Now, they are coming out of the same statistical valley positively glowing. ... According to recent stories in The Washington Post and The New York Times, the powerful positive thinkers in the White House are rewriting the gender-gap analysis. The problem isn't that the Republicans are having trouble with men. It's that the Democrats are having trouble with men. The problem isn't that women are peculiarly disaffected from Reagan; it's that men are peculiarly attracted to Reagan. ... Fortune magazine, not what you would call a Democratic hip sheet, is currently floating the same notion. Its column, Keeping It finds the Democrats to be "in trouble with the male sex." As the author puts it with such grace and tolerance, "We say that Reaganism increasingly benefits from the gender gap and further aver that the Democrats do not have an Oriental gentleman's chance of prevailing next year unless they wipe up gap-wide." How do we account for this sudden reversal of gender-gap history. A feat of optimistic alchemy? Ann Lewis, the political director of the Democratic National Committee, suggested that the Republicans know they have a lion, but they're trying to make lemonade from it. A liberal Republican repeated to me the story about the optimist who was given a room full of horse manure for Christmas and began shoveling furiously. Somewhere in all of this, he told himself, there has to be a pony. ... But putting aside the scatalogical ponies and lemonade, there is some truth here. There are always two sides to any gap, two ways to read the same statistics. ... At the end of the 1980 election, it was clear that both sexes had changed. Millions of men had strayed from the leadership of the Democratic Party. Millions of women had strayed from the leadership of men. ... In the past couple of years, women's feelings about Reagan have remained relatively (and negatively) constant, while men have been far more fickle. ... A recent New York Times CBS poll found an 18-point gap between the sexes. A full 57 percent of men approved of Reagan's job performance, while only 39 percent of women approved. ... In one way this poll charted the male gap. It was men, after all, who changed their minds. In two months' time, they increased their approval of Reagan by nine percent. But it also charted a female gap, because women aren't followers anymore. They are holding onto their political ideas and standards. Female disapproval stayed virtually the same. ... The whole thing begins to sound like a game of semantics — whose gap is it, the boys or the girls? — but it's actually a game of politics. ... Go back for a moment to the ponies and lemonade. The Reaganites have virtually written off black voters. They can hardly get into the double digits of approval. Do the cockeyed optimists in the White House think it's possible to win more male? It's beginning to look that way. ... For a time this spring the administration made a play for women voters. There are two female Cabinet appointments, a flurry of sensitivity sessions, and sudden support on a handful of women's issues from child care to pensions. Lately the White House has taken to inviting women to dinner, and the party has adopted astronaut Sally Ride as if she were a Republican appointee. Flattery, however, has gotten them nowhere in the polls. The gut issues for women are still those labeled "pence" and "fairness." The reality is that it may not be possible for a President with a bellicose foreign policy and stringent social-welfare policy to remain true to his beliefs and attractive to women voters. ... The official optimists may be enjoying a turning point. Instead of trying to narrow the gender gap by the superficial wooing of women, the Republican regulators may try to widen it by wooing men. ... That course would be more comfortable for the Reaganites. After all, as our Fortune teller says, the way to get back to the ball game with the gods' is to "first, forget about the feminist agenda; second, position yourself as favorable to defense and opposed to social spending." ... Then, you might even learn how to make lemonade. Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe

Inspectors watch out for hazards of pools

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Armed with a checklist and test kits, health inspectors make sure that you are not swimming in potential hazards at community pools.

Environmentalists from the South Central District Health Department inspect the 75 public pools in the Magic Valley before they open for the season, says Alan Biermann, the district's environmental director. And if there is time, they will return for another spot check during the summer.

During the inspections, chlorine is not the only chemical the environmentalists measure, he says. The water also must be tested for alkalinity and acidity. If there's too much acid, the water may eat away at plumbing and the tile around the pool.

It takes the right chemical balance to ensure the chlorine will work properly to kill harmful bacteria.

The operator, Biermann says, must be something of a chemist because he is required to measure the water composition regularly.

If the water is not clear, health inspectors can — and have — closed a pool. They check this by placing a six-inch black circle at the bottom of the deepest end of the pool. If the circle is not visible clearly, then operators will not be able to see a swimmer in trouble at the bottom, Biermann says.

The state requirements include more than water quality.

The operators also must have a fence around the pool, proper markings of water depth, ladders and steps, non-slip floors and soap for showers that must have a minimum 90-degree temperature.

Cold showers will keep people out of them and that means swimmers taking a lot of external bacteria into the pool, Biermann says. The dirt that could have been cleaned away with a good shower becomes a load on the pools' filters.

Then, there's the mechanical aspect to consider. Machines that inject the chlorine gas must be kept above ground. Otherwise, the gas, which is deadlier and heavier than air, could flow right into the pool.

Gutters around the pool must work correctly to get off the floating oils and particles from the surface.

And there are additional regulations that must be met even before the pool is open, such as approval of the structure's design by the State Department of Health and Welfare.

Another ingredient for a safe pool is not included in the state regulations, Biermann says. That's common sense.

... but slides throw curves

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Buzzing down a water slide has become another popular form of cooling off during a hot summer.

The popularity of the slides, however, has caused a problem for the health inspectors who are responsible for the public's safety amid all the fun.

"For many years, the environmentalists of the South Central District Health Department have been inspecting public swimming pools for health and safety hazards. They have used state standards, which regulate the amount of chlorine in the water to the posting of 'No Diving' signs.

But the regulations were designed specifically for pools," says Alan Biermann, the district's environmental director. "There were no state regulations for water slides. And that left health inspectors at a loss when slides began opening for business around the state.

Under a recent state ruling, however, the inspectors were directed to use the pool regulations for the inspection of water slides — and that bothers Biermann.

In May, the chief of the Water Quality Bureau of the state Health and Welfare Department determined that the splash-down pools under the slides should be inspected as pools. So the district must inspect the Magic Valley's two water slides using the existing regulations.

Biermann says the water slides should have their own rules because they have their own potential hazards.

For instance, swimming-pool water must contain a certain amount of chlorine to clean the water of bacteria. The water rushing down the flume of a water slide is more exposed to air, so the chlorine will evaporate faster.

Worse, the existing rules will not cover the slide flumes, he says.

To rectify matters, the state's district inspectors have requested the state Board of Health and the Legislature to adopt standards designed for water slides, Biermann says. They would regulate water quality and structural design, since many accidents are caused by obstructions in the flume, Biermann says. The proposed rules were prepared by the U.S. Health and Human Services Department and the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta.

The operators of the two water slides in the district like the idea of specific regulations for slides — up to a point.

Retha Anderson, the co-owner of the Anderson-Camp slide, east of Twin Falls, says state regulations should not prohibit business or cause added expense.

Tad Hansy, the co-owner of the Twin Falls Hydrotube, off Addison Avenue, says slide operators should

Barton's unveils expansion plans

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

JACKPOT — Planning has begun for a multi-year, multimillion-dollar renovation and expansion of Barton's Club 93 in Jackpot.

According to Bob Barton, the co-owner of the casino and motel, the work will entail "an enlargement of everything."

He says the project's scope probably will fall somewhere between $10 million and $15 million over a period of eight years. Ultimately, it could triple the size of the current Club 93 operation, he says.

"We have been there 28 years, and we plan to be there another 28," he said Thursday. Barton is co-owner of the club with his brother, Tom.

The Club 93 plans come to light in a time of high hopes in Jackpot. Elko County voters approved a school bond issue in June that will provide a high school in town.

Nine new hotels are planned for the municipal golf course, to be paid for with a second bond issue. The federal Bureau of Land Management is contemplating land sales that would open up new acreage around the community.

And Cactus Pete's, which owns the two other casinos in town, also has major expansion plans contemplated or in various stages of development.

Barton is bullish on the future of Jackpot, as well. He thinks the new high school will be a great asset in developing a working community. And he favors the federal land sales, which will allow more people to own property, he says.

Currently, he is working with architect Walter Eagle of Twin Falls. "It will probably be a long project," he says. "There probably will be no plans developed until the end of the year."

The plans probably will entail construction of a new building alongside the present casino. After it is completed, the old casino, dining room and showroom could be closed down and remodeled, he says.

Beach named for retiring park chief

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Outgoing Twin Falls parks superintendent Arnold Bryson will be remembered in the name of the beach he helped create at Dierkes Lake park.

"Bryson Beach" was proclaimed at a ceremony Thursday. Twin Falls Mayor Chris Takington presented Bryson with a framed photograph of the most recent addition to the city parks system.

A granite plaque — bearing the inscription "Bryson Beach" — dedicated to Arnold Bryson, parks superintendent, 1974-1983 — also has been mounted on the retaining wall at Dierkes Lake, says City Manager Tom Courtney.

The presentation came as a surprise to Bryson, who spent much of this spring working away at Dierkes, redesigning the beach for its first summer of use.

"It's worth all the heartaches and the skinned knuckles and the fits of anger," he said as he oversaw one of his last municipal jobs — the cutting of his retirement cake in City Council chambers.

But Bryson was most pleased with the framed photograph of the beach, taken by Rod Mathis, an assistant city engineer.

"I'm going to hang it right on my living room wall," Bryson said.

"It's one of the few times I've seen him speechless," Chad Browning, the city recreation director, said of Bryson's response to the dedication. Bryson gained a reputation for his grins before he left his years with the city. Several city workers agreed you could usually tell where he stood on an issue by the angle of the bristles.

Bryson has worked for the city 24 years, but today will be his last day.

There was cake and punch Thursday afternoon for city employees who wished to offer their congratulations and best wishes. These included six of seven City Council members.

But if the moff on his retirement cake is any tip to his future plans, it may be a little difficult to reach Bryson in the coming months. On top of the cake was a plastic fisherman, wading through blue icing waters in search of the big one.

And Bryson was not giving away any secrets, either.

He has two favorite fishing holes — the Salmon River and the Snake River. "You can find the sweet ones in one and the big, fierce ones in the other, he said.

County to deal revenue sharing funds

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Among the budget considerations that all Idaho county commissioners mull over at this time of year is the question of how to slice the federal revenue-sharing pie.

Last week, the Twin Falls County commissioners were asked to plug two projects into their equation.

Twin Falls Highway District officials want the county to pay half the cost of a two-mile paving project. And Burd Municipal Airport board members are seeking funds to help finance the cost of a new taxiway and lawn irrigation system.

On top of that, county officials are contemplating making roughly $150,000 worth of capital-improvement expenditures.

All of that hinges on the size of the revenue-sharing pie, something that remains unknown, pending final congressional action. Last year, $240,000 in revenue-sharing funds filtered into the coffers of Twin Falls County.

"As near as we can tell, we're going to get the same amount next year," says Clerk Dick Pence, who serves as the county budget officer.

Also unknown is the amount of unspent revenues from the current revenue-sharing budget that will remain available for the fiscal 1984 budget year. As of July 1, half of the $300,000 budget remained in the revenue-sharing account. The budget year expires Sept. 30.

The largest request comes from the highway district, whose members want to pave a two-mile section of gravel road to accommodate traffic to and from the county's solid-waste landfill. The project involves county roads 2700 East and 2900 East.

Highway district officials plan to pave the section next year.

Floyd Dayley, the highway district director, says a paved road would be easier to maintain and would eliminate dust problems in the area. History is also on the side of such an arrangement. Several years ago, county funds were made available to help pave roads traveled by landfill-bound motorists, Dayley says.

This time, construction costs are put at $50,000 per mile. The highway district would like the county to put up half that amount, Dayley says.

Burd's request involves putting together a combination of local and federal dollars to finance construction of a 40-by-3,900-foot taxiway. Airport

Leon Wright, center, describes the crash to Twin Falls Deputy Ed Gudgeall

Experimental airplane ditches in grain field

CURRY — An Oregon pilot escaped serious injury Thursday when his experimental aircraft ran out of gas and crashed in a wheat field about a mile north of Curry.

Hugh S. Moseley, 40, of Beaverton, Ore., suffered minor head injuries in the accident. He was treated and released from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

Moseley and three other pilots were flying west of Twin Falls when his single-seat airplane ran out of fuel, Twin Falls County sheriff's Deputy Ed Gudgeall said at the scene.

The pilot tried to make an emergency landing on an access road beside the wheat field, but he could not line up properly and overshoot the road, the deputy said.

The plane went down in the wheat field and flipped upside down. One of the other planes circled the site to mark it for police. By the time officers and an ambulance arrived, Moseley was walking around outside the craft.

Moseley's three companions landed at Twin Falls, but they refused an interview. Moseley also did not return phone calls.

Leon J. Wright, the owner of the farm, said some wheat had been damaged when the plane crashed, but the amount was not immediately available. There was no fire.

Moseley did not get authorization to land on the access road, he was headed, the deputy said. There was substantial damage to the aircraft. The accident happened at about 18:15.

The plane went down in the wheat field.

BLM crews battle large range fire

HOLBROOK—Some 70 firefighters—abraded by a helicopter and water tanker—sought to contain a 6,000-acre fire that was blazing Thursday in rangelands located four miles south of Holbrook, about 60 miles south of Pocatello in Oneida County.

The fire—believed to have been ignited by a lightning bolt—first started Sunday morning in an area designated by the federal Bureau of Land Management as a natural-burn area.

Control efforts, said BLM spokeswoman Jodie Butler, started Tuesday after a second fire began outside the burn area, eventually merging with the first fire.

The fire, Butler said, was burning in an area of heavy sagebrush, grass and juniper. Wind and the dry desert heat have hampered the firefighters' efforts to contain the blaze. Dispatchers said much of the effort was lost because of the steep terrain.

As of 10:30 p.m. Thursday, BLM dispatcher John Fillmore said that the firefighters were digging ditches around the fire in an effort to contain it.

BLM crews from the Burley, Shoshone, and Idaho Falls districts were fighting the blaze.

According to Butler, the blaze also has burned some 60 to 80 acres of private land and a campground in the Carbon National Forest.

In another fire-related development, about 40 members of the U.S. Forest Service's inter-regional fire crew and regular Sawtooth National Forest firefighters left Twin Falls on Thursday night to assist with a serious forest fire reported in the Wasatch National Forest of Utah.

A local fire dispatcher said little was known in Twin Falls about the blaze, "except that it was burning near Ogden."

The area firefighters left by bus about 10 p.m. to join with other intermountain-area crews.

Dog gives police burglary clue

TWIN FALLS—A usually hostile canine has been credited with giving Twin Falls police the vital clue that led to the arrest of four burglars, who have been charged with three recent home burglaries.

The clue was the fact that the dog, belonging to Mr. and Mrs. Donald Runney of Twin Falls, led the burglar party unharmed through their residence at 215 Buena Vista St. Taken in the burglary, which occurred between last Wednesday and Monday, was $211 worth of jewelry and coins.

Assuming the burglar was someone who the animal recognized, police narrowed their list of suspects to a 13-year-old Twin Falls boy who was arrested Tuesday, said police Chief Tim Qualls.

Further investigation led to the arrest Tuesday of two other boys, ages 8 and 11, and their involvement in three house burglaries. Police believe the three boys were responsible for the June 24 theft of foreign and U.S. coins, with a face value of $32, from Edna Rains' home at 210 Buena Vista St., and the July 16 theft of $150 in cash from John Hawkins' home at 237 1/2 Elm St.

All three boys were released to their parents, Qualls said.

A fourth suspect emerged Wednesday when police charged a 16-year-old Twin Falls girl with receiving some of the stolen goods. She was released later that day, Qualls said.

Burley accident injures couple on cycle

BURLEY—A Heyburn couple riding a motorcycle "was injured" in a Wednesday night accident at Main Street and Miller Avenue in Burley.

The driver, Lavern Aiken, 25, and his passenger, Karlynn Gonzales, 21, were treated and released at Cassia Memorial Hospital.

According to a Burley Police officer, at about 9 p.m., Aiken's vehicle collided with a truck, driven by Donis D. Jeffs, 61, of Burley. Jeffs was driving east on Main Street, while Aiken was westbound. Jeffs turned in front of the motorcycle.

No citations have been issued, but the accident still is under investigation.

There was $700 damage to the motorcycle and $100 to the truck.

Jeffs was not injured.

Revenue

Officials have applied for a Federal Aviation Administration grant to cover 50 percent of the project's $120,000 cost. The federal agency is expected to announce its decision within two weeks.

Besides the $12,000 local share of the project, Buhl officials say they will need another $6,000 to install a sprinkler system in the median between the taxiway and runway, and to complete clean-up operations.

All present, Buhl officials say, they have about $8,000 of their own funds available.

"We're pretty close to covering the taxiway, but we wouldn't have money for anything else," says Rod Wilson, the chairman of the Buhl Municipal Airport board. "It's just like the home budget. You almost get there, but not quite."

Governor names board members

By JANENE BUCKWAY Times-News correspondent

—GOODING—The recreation district approved by Gooding County voters in early June finally is being organized.

Earlier this week Gov. John Evans appointed three Gooding-area residents to serve on the board of directors for the district. The three are: Vern France, Zone 1; Sue Caviness, Zone 2; and Barbara Anderson, Zone 3.

France says the appointments are for staggered terms, one for a year (France), one for two years (Caviness) and the third for three years (Anderson).

The first zone will come up for election in November 1968.

"The staggered terms add continuity to the board," France says.

The district uses the same boundaries as the Gooding School District. France says an organizational meeting will be held the first part of next week to get the ball rolling.

The new directors will meet with representatives from recreation districts in other Magic Valley counties to get information on how to begin, he says.

The district is a property-tax supported entity, and its meetings will be open to the public. The regular meeting place and time will be announced as soon as they are established, France says.

The second item of business will be to get a budget. France says the board will not need to determine what level of funding is needed.

He emphasizes that the recreation district will serve both city and county residents and that the district will stress youth programs.

"As far as I am concerned, some level of user-fee will be maintained for the adult programs."

France says he is aware of a movement to petition for another election that would seek to dissolve the district, but he says he feels it is the board's responsibility to move ahead with the formal organizational process, as mandated by the June 7 election.

Revenue

Officials have applied for a Federal Aviation Administration grant to cover 50 percent of the project's $120,000 cost. The federal agency is expected to announce its decision within two weeks.

Besides the $12,000 local share of the project, Buhl officials say they will need another $6,000 to install a sprinkler system in the median between the taxiway and runway, and to complete clean-up operations.

All present, Buhl officials say, they have about $8,000 of their own funds available.

"We're pretty close to covering the taxiway, but we wouldn't have money for anything else," says Rod Wilson, the chairman of the Buhl Municipal Airport board. "It's just like the home budget. You almost get there, but not quite."

operating the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport.

- $7,500 will be spent to cover the county's share of the Murtaugh Bridge construction project.
- $8,000 will be distributed among the four senior-citizen centers in the county.

Barton

The expansion would include a new restaurant, showroom, cocktail lounges, warehouse and a number of gaming facilities.

The Bartons own enough land on their Club 93 lot for the plans. But they would attempt to build out the site with as many motel rooms as possible within architectural guidelines, he says.

In Jackpot, it is generally agreed that motel rooms are in great demand, and new ones could be absorbed with few problems.

But Barton says he is waiting to see how successful Cactus Pete's is with the luxury suites it opened earlier this summer before deciding what type of rooms to add to Club 93.

Slides

Both Anderson and Haney say that many safety rules already are enforced at their businesses to prevent accidents.

Biermann says he does not know when the state might adopt the proposed water-slide rules. Until then, the smaller splash pools of the water slides must be treated like the larger swimming pools.

Lincoln County gets rural addresses

By JANE NE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE—Address numbers are beginning to appear in several areas of Lincoln County. The contract to prepare an addressing system for Lincoln County was given on competitive bid to Cascade Consultants of Boise in April.

The grid map was presented to Lincoln County Commission earlier this month and John Pickens, project manager, began contacting residents to place the address numbers on their property.

Pickens said Lincoln County addresses begin at the intersection of U.S. Highway 93, State Highway 75 and State Highway 26, in the middle of Shoshone, which is designated 00.

From that point, the addresses run in one-mile squares. The first address on the east side of the road is 170th-mile number. With the proximity of 100 address numbers on each side of the road in every mile.

"We are placing numbers at existing residences or vacant buildings but not vacant lots or acreages," Pickens explained, adding that the possibility of numbering new homes as they are constructed is built into the system.

He said existing roads will be numbered, such as: Three Mile Road West, or Six Mile Road North, and that road markers eventually will be placed at all intersections.

Homes on the west side of a road will have odd numbers, while those on the east side are even. Homes on the north side of a road will be even numbered and on the south side, odd.

Pickens and his assistant are working to north Shoshone and hope to finish by Wednesday, then move on to Richfield and Dietrich.

He said many residents have questioned why the project is being done, and how much they, as county taxpayers, are paying for the project.

His notice form says, "with the pattern of land development in our state, it is continuously becoming more difficult for fire departments, utility companies and emergency units to locate people who take up residence in areas without a specific address—that is, a street name and house number."

The cost of the project is being largely carried by utility companies that have customers in the area. Mountain Bell, Idaho Power Co. and Intercontinental Gas Co. are each paying $5 per rural customer. Mountain Bell is also providing the numbering plaques.

The county has an ordinance requiring residents to participate and to allow the numbers to be placed on their property.

Residents failing to comply can be fined $5 per day until they allow the numbers to be placed.

A grid map will be placed in the Lincoln County Courthouse showing the road numbers. Homeowners' addresses will be placed in a computer with the telephone available only to law enforcement and emergency services officials.

A resident may have his address listed in the phone book if he wishes, but is not required to do so.

Board names officers

RICHFIELD—Jim Wellhausen has been elected to his sixth term as chairman of the Richfield school board.

At the annual reorganizational meeting earlier this month, Maxine Sirtan was re-elected vice chairman, and Jackie Johnson was retained as clerk.

In other business, Superintendent A.J. Jones reported to the board that Spanish will be added to the high school curriculum this year.

The board also agreed to provide $50 to help defray the cost of installing a water fountain behind the backstop at the baseball field.

The fountain is being installed by Chad Ward as an Eagle Scout project.

15 ask to share funds

By THOMAS MORHLANG
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY—Fifteen individuals representing 11 organizations and governmental entities, put in their requests this week for Cassia County commissioners for a portion of the available revenue-sharing funds.

The county has received the sum of $345,359 in revenue-sharing funds and the submitted requests added up to $210,000.

Groups represented at the public hearing to discuss plans for the funds included the Oakley Senior Citizens, the Albion Public Library, the Albion Quick Response Unit, the Oakley Valley-Arts Council, the Cassia County Fair board, Cassia Memorial Hospital, the Almo Park commission, the Elba Park commission, the city of Oakley, the Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue Unit and the South Central Community Action Agency.

The largest request for funds came from Cassia Memorial Hospital for $54,000 for a respiratory therapy computer and an operative arthroscope.

The commission told those attending the hearing it would consider the requests at the next regular meeting. Commissioners indicated the amount of revenue-sharing funds available for requested projects has not yet been determined.

In other business: Blue Cross representative Craig Fisher informed the commission his firm is going to raise premiums on insurance coverage for county employees and also change the schedule of benefits. The county is considering an alternative plan with Blue Cross.

Burley Chamber of Commerce President Ron Osterhout appealed to the commission to help fund a fireworks display next year during the Fourth of July celebration. The commissioners indicated it would be improper to use county funds for that purpose and encouraged the chamber to seek private funding.

Board denies request

By SUSIE DELOZIER
Time-News correspondent

RUPERT—A request that the county alternate calls between two ambulance services was rejected this week by MINIDOKA County commissioners.

Attorney Mark Taylor, representing the Valley Regional Medical Services, requested that the county alternate ambulance calls between his clients service and that of the Mini-Cassia Ambulance Service.

Taylor also requested consideration by the county of subsidy sharing between the two services.

The commission said the county would continue to abide by a contract with the Mini-Cassia Ambulance Service, at least until the contract expires in September of 1984.

In other business: John Chase, representing the Good Sam Club, expressed a need for a recreational vehicle dump station in the area. He asked if there might be funds available through the county for such a project.

The commission has received several requests from county residents that the gates at Emerald Lake be left open all night now that the lake has been restocked with fish. The commission denied the request and the gates will close each evening at 10 p.m. as in the past.

Representatives from the Mini-Cassia Search and Rescue Patrol appealed to the commission for funding of some of their expenses to come from the counties general revenue sharing.

A public hearing will be held at the County Courthouse Aug. 5 at 8 p.m. to receive input from the public as to how the money from the general revenue sharing should be spent, commissioners told the patrol spokesmen. They said the request should be presented at the hearing.

Court rejects murder-sentence appeal

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

BOISE — Convicted murderer Lawrence James Jenkins will remain in prison for at least another seven years, the Idaho Court of Appeals ruled this week.

In a unanimous opinion, the three-member court found that Jenkins' 25-year prison sentence for second-degree murder was not excessive. The 46-year-old Jenkins had been eligible for parole after serving a third of the sentence.

Following a three-day trial, a 12-member jury found Jenkins guilty of murder in the Sept. 12, 1981, shooting death of 23-year-old Jimmy Lee Legg of Twin Falls. Judge Theoren Ward imposed the sentence on Oct. 15, 1982.

The shooting occurred outside the Brand Lounge at 1007 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. in Twin Falls. Witnesses said they saw Jenkins place a pistol at Legg's throat, threaten that he would shoot the gun, then return the weapon to the victim's throat and fire. Legg died instantly from the wound. In the confusion that followed, Jenkins escaped from the scene and left the state. He was arrested in California on Jan. 15, 1981.

At his trial, Jenkins testified that someone had placed the hallucinogenic drug LSD in his drink.

No evidence to support that claim was presented at the trial, but jurors did not accept prosecutors' arguments that the shooting was premeditated.

In his appeal, Jenkins argued that the sentence was excessive and that it was not conducive to rehabilitation. However, the appeals court held that Ward actually imposed a sentence below the maximum life-imprisonment penalty for second-degree murder.

A sentence within the statutory limits is not considered to be excessive if it does not run longer than is deemed necessary to protect society, the court ruled.

"The record discloses a senseless act. Testimony at trial tended to show that Jenkins had gone to the tavern, carrying two guns and looking for a confrontation with someone other than the victim," stated the opinion, authored by Judge Don Burnett.

"We believe the facts before us support confinement for a period of at least eight years and four months, which comprise one-third of the sentence. The circumstances of the crime portray Jenkins as a person who conducted his 'graveyard' business for the safety of people around him. Society is entitled to protection from this danger."

Doctors denied access to hospital records

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Court of Appeals has ruled that records prepared by a medical committee at Cassia Memorial Hospital cannot be released to two doctors who want the data for their defense in a lawsuit filed by a patient.

The appeals judges affirmed this week a decision issued by Fifth District Judge George Granata Jr., but the court modified its terms, saying the data sought by Dr. Frederick L. Wood III and Dr. S.J. Kassiss cannot be released.

The case arose when Alyce and Bill Murray sued the two doctors for medical malpractice. Wood and Kassiss asked Granata to allow them to use in their defense information the 1973 Legislature ordered kept confidential, in a medical-privilege and immunity statute.

Mrs. Murray contends the doctors have received radiation therapy, not an operation, for the treatment of cancer. The doctors, however, were seeking to have submitted in their defense a decision by a committee of hospital officials, which recommended the operation.

But the appeals-court judges cautioned Granata to apply the law fairly when the case goes to trial.

"They said it would not be fair for the judge to allow the doctors to show the committee met and issued a recommendation without also allowing the Murphys to cross-examine the committee members."

"On the other hand, it would be equally unfair to prevent the doctors from showing that Dr. Wood had consulted with the tumor board on July 11. If the Murphys were permitted to suggest or argue to the jury that the doctors had failed to comply with a local standard of care by not seeking a second opinion before operating," the appeals-court ruling said. "It also would be a distortion of the truth."

Jerome County wins road lawsuit

Jerome — Residents of the Canyonside Estates subdivision have lost a court case that may answer questions about road improvements and maintenance in other new subdivisions in Jerome County.

Twelve Canyonside Estates couples filed the suit in Fifth District Court last fall, in an effort to force Jerome County and the Jerome Highway District to maintain and improve D Drive, the main road in the subdivision.

The residents contended it was the responsibility of the highway district to maintain the road. They argued that it is used by the public, and that the county accepted the subdivision plat prior to construction.

Earlier this month, Judge Daniel Meehl ruled against the plaintiffs. He said the county and the highway district have specific regulations about subdivision development, and these regulations were in effect at the time the subdivision plat was filed.

The regulations require certain minimum standards before a road is accepted for highway-district maintenance.

Meehl ruled that these standards have not been met.

Tuesday, Meehl ruled against a motion by the plaintiffs, seeking reconsideration of his case.

Canyonside Estates is one of several new subdivisions in Jerome County where roads were not paved by the developers at the time the property was sold. Residents of other subdivisions also have asked the county to assume responsibility for improvement and maintenance of their roads.

Israel to redeploy its forces

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United States accepted Israel's plans to redeploy its forces in Lebanon Thursday, but received an assurance from the Jewish state that the move will be a step toward total withdrawal.

"Any notion that this (Israeli) redeployment is part of an effort to stay in Lebanon is totally wrong," Secretary of State George Shultz said after a meeting with President Reagan and visiting Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Defense Minister Moshe Arens.

The White House meeting capped several days of talks with the Israeli officials on the Jewish state's plan to pull back its forces in Lebanon several miles to the south to create more defensible positions.

Last week, Lebanese officials accompanying President Amin Gemayel during his visit to Washington warned that an Israeli redeployment could lead to an extended occupation.

Along with the continued presence of Syrian troops, the Israeli occupation would lead to the partition and political disintegration of Lebanon, the officials said.

Shultz said Israel has promised that its redeployment plans are a "step in the direction of total withdrawal."

One U.S. official added, "The Israelis assured us they have no territorial ambitions."

But Arens said Israel did not give nor was it asked to give any specific commitment to withdraw totally. Israel is still committed to the agreement negotiated in May with Lebanon which calls for a pullout only when Syria agrees to withdraw.

Arens said that the Israeli redeployment will be completed "before winter" and it will be coordinated with the Lebanese army so that there would be no vacuum as Israeli forces withdraw.

Earlier, on NBC's "Today" program, Arens said the redeployment would give the fragile Lebanon government a chance to see if it can extend its control over more territory.

Israeli officials said, however, that the deterioration of Israel's relations with Egypt might raise problems in negotiating future withdrawal agreements.

Leaders gather to gain Central American peace

By JANE BUSSEY
United Press International

With Soviet military supply ships en route to Nicaragua and a U.S. naval flotilla steaming offshore, Latin American foreign ministers gathered in Panama City Thursday for crucial talks on peace efforts in Central America.

U.S. Presidential envoy Richard Stone arrived in Costa Rica from Honduras, pressing his third diplomatic shuttle in a bid to ease tensions sparked by the Salvadoran civil war and attacks by U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels trying to topple the leftist Managua government.

His trip fueled speculation that he might try again to meet with Salvadoran leftist guerrillas after the failure of two previous attempts.

Assembling for the meeting in Panama City were foreign ministers from Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama — the Contadora group joined by ministers of Costa Rica, Honduras, El Salvador, Nicaragua and Guatemala. They were to hold a preliminary session and a full meeting Friday.

Venezuelan Foreign Minister Jose Alberto Zambrano, the first to arrive, was critical both of the Soviet ships reported by U.S. officials to be carrying war material to the leftist government of Nicaragua and of the American naval flotilla already off Nicaragua's Pacific coast.

"All these acts that can be interpreted erroneously, in one sense or another, are harming the fundamental orientation of the search for peace," he said.

Panama officials said Wednesday a Soviet freighter carrying transport helicopters is the first of about a dozen Soviet and other East bloc vessels bound for Nicaragua.

In San Salvador, Constituent Assembly President Roberto d'Aubuisson denied Stone had told legislators Wednesday that a U.S. naval task force on maneuvers in Central American waters might be used for offensive purposes.

Christian Democratic Party leader Julio Rios Pineda, who spoke at the news conference along with d'Aubuisson, said "when we speak of politics in general, Mr. Stone mentioned that in politics, the best defense is the attack."

In Washington, a State Department spokesman also denied Stone had made the remarks as reported.

Group vows rocket attack

PARIS (UPI) — Armenian terrorists threatened a rocket attack against the French Embassy in Tehran by Saturday unless France releases 21 Armenians.

The threat, which prompted France to ask Iran for increased security for its citizens and property in Tehran, came a day after the seizure of the Turkish Embassy in Lisbon in which five Armenian terrorists and two others died.

In a phone call to AFP, the French national news agency in Tehran, the so-called "Orly" Armenian terrorist group warned it would launch a rocket attack against the French Embassy in the city within 48 hours.

The deadline was to expire Saturday morning but no exact time was available.

The group demanded the release of 21 fellow Armenians held by French police after the July 15 bombing at Orly airport in Paris in which seven people died and 55 others were injured.

French consul Simon Santoni, contacted by phone in Tehran, said roadblocks were set up around the embassy and the building was searched by Iranian police.

The Orly group is fighting for world recognition that 1.5 million Armenians died in the "genocide" of their people in 1915. They also demand the creation of a separate Armenian state carved out of eastern Turkey.

Seven more killed in Sri Lanka riots

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — Troops firing at suspected terrorists killed seven people in a crowded railway station Thursday, and the government cracked down on separatist parties to halt ethnic violence that has taken 125 lives.

Government spokesmen also reported a burning, looting rampage by navy sailors and a prison riot that added to the soaring death toll from clashes between minority Hindu Tamils and Buddhist Sinhalese in the Indian Ocean nation.

Araonsists and looters hit homes and shops in the capital. In one incident troops fired in the air and then at the legs of looters, wounding seven people, police spokesmen said.

In New Delhi, Prime Minister Indira Gandhi expressed "grave concern" over the violence and dispatched her foreign minister to discuss the attacks against the Tamils, who are of Indian origin.

Counselor faces misconduct charges

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — A woman and her ex-husband told a hearing officer Thursday Boise State University counseling director Maximino Callao had a lengthy affair with the wife while providing therapy to both of them.

Callao, who also is the Boise State fencing coach, has admitted counseling Moll Edgerton, 28, Boise and having a sexual relationship with the woman while she was a freshman at the college. But he said the affair did not commence until after therapy had concluded.

Testimony was presented during a state Bureau of Occupational Licenses hearing into whether Callao's license to practice psychology in Idaho should be revoked for unprofessional conduct. Hearing officer Jean Uranga, a Boise attorney, will make recommendations to the Board of Psychological Examiners. The board will decide what, if any, disciplinary action to take against Callao, who joined the Boise State faculty in 1971.

Spokesmen for the Occupational Licenses Bureau said closing arguments would be submitted in writing. They said a decision by the Psychological Examiners Board probably would be made late next month.

Ms. Edgerton — who filed the initial complaint against the psychologist — testified she believed she was still receiving counseling from Callao, who also was married, while they were engaged in the affair.

"He would speak to me much in the manner of a therapist," she said, adding she was "awed" by Callao. "The therapy was ongoing in our relationship and very much a part of our relationship right up to the very end."

The woman, who was divorced from her husband in January, said she and the therapist discussed Callao's professional code of conduct — which prohibits psychologists from engaging in sex with a client or counseling one spouse while being intimate with the other.

Callao's attorney, Patricia Urquhart of Boise, asserted in opening remarks that the woman happily maintained the affair until this May, when she learned Callao would not marry her. Urquhart said she was "less than a month" later, Urquhart said, Ms. Edgerton victoriously filed the complaint against her former lover to damage him professionally.

WPPSS bill hatched

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Three Northwest senators will introduce legislation to create a new funding mechanism allowing the Washington Public Power Supply System to complete at least two nuclear power plants, Sen. Steve Gorton, R-Wash., says.

The bill is a "compromise" that would accomplish the same goal as an amendment to an Interior appropriations bill passed last week by the Senate Appropriations Committee, Gorton said Wednesday.

The amendment would permit the Bonneville Power Administration to enter into a contractual arrangement with a newly formed financing entity separate from WPPSS to complete some of the plants.

It was sought by private utilities with an interest in "Plan C," mothballed because of lack of construction money due to the failure of two other bond-financed WPPSS plants backed by 88 public utility districts.

Gorton said the agreement worked out between himself and Sens. Henry Jackson, D-Wash., and James McClure, R-Idaho, would permit hearings before the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee and did not mean the appropriations rider would be withdrawn.

BLM plans burns on 14 desert areas

By United Press International and The Times-News

BOISE — Bureau of Land Management officials say they have scheduled 14 controlled burns this summer to reduce unwanted vegetation on 15,000 acres of southwestern Idaho rangeland. Two of them are near Three Creek in the Jarvisburg Resource Area of southeastern Owyhee County.

BLM district manager Martin Zimmer said the burns are designed to reduce competition from big sagebrush and invading juniper, which will help improve livestock forage and potential big-game habitat. BLM fire crews will conduct the burns in cooperation with the Idaho Department of Fish and Game, local landowners and ranchers with grazing permits.

Zimmer said the burns will range in size from 200 acres to 3,500 acres. The two in the Jarvisburg Resource Area will attempt to clear about 1,000 acres near Devil Creek and another 2,500 near Fovion Creek, says rancher Bert Brackett, who grazes cattle on the land.

After surveying the density of the sagebrush and grass undergrowth, BLM fire officials estimate that about 60 percent of the acreage actually will catch on fire, Brackett said Thursday.

Members of the 71 Livestock Association were to meet last night with Idaho Fish and Game officers and other officials to discuss wildlife habitats in the Three Creek area and the effects of burning off the sagebrush. Clearing land by controlled fires has been a controversial technique in the past in that area and in other rangeland districts.

The BLM is taking a conservative program; Zimmer said —

"Most of the burns are located in areas where there is little chance for damage to soils and watersheds should a fire get out of control," Zimmer said. "On those few projects where there is a higher resource value, protective control measures will be enforced to ensure that a damaging wildfire does not occur."

Besides reducing unwanted vegetation, the burns will enhance natural regrowth of forage, he said.

Bar reviews DeMeyer case

BOISE (UPI) — The lawyer for the Idaho State Bar said Thursday she is reviewing the recent drunken driving and involuntary manslaughter convictions of former state Deputy Attorney General Virginia DeMeyer for possible disciplinary action.

Barbara Miller said she could not comment directly on her office's review of the guilty verdicts returned July 1 against the 31-year-old woman.

But she said court clerks forward to her office within seven to 10 days all convictions entered against practicing attorneys. In each case, she said, the reports are reviewed to see if disciplinary action is warranted.

"I automatically get a copy of the conviction, and then I automatically review it," Ms. Miller told the Idaho Press Club.

It generally takes a month or two to finish the investigation into alleged lawyer misconduct, she added.

She said a new set of sanctions went into effect July 1 that expands the avenues of recourse the bar or the state Supreme Court can take against attorneys found guilty of unprofessional behavior.

They range from private admonitions and reprimands to public censure, probation, suspension or disbarment from the practice of law, Ms. Miller said.

The counselor added only the Idaho Supreme Court is empowered to suspend or disbar a lawyer, while the bar's Professional Conduct Board or Ms. Miller herself can issue lesser penalties.

The new standards also increase public access to findings of the review board in cases where misconduct is determined, she said.

Ms. Miller said she generally receives about 1,500 calls each year from Idahoans who want to complain about lawyers. But "of that number, she said, very few prove substantial enough to warrant disciplinary action.

In a changing world, there's still someone you can depend on.

When you think of your telephone service, you probably think of Mountain Bell. That's not surprising, because Mountain Bell has been here for just about as long as telephones have been here.

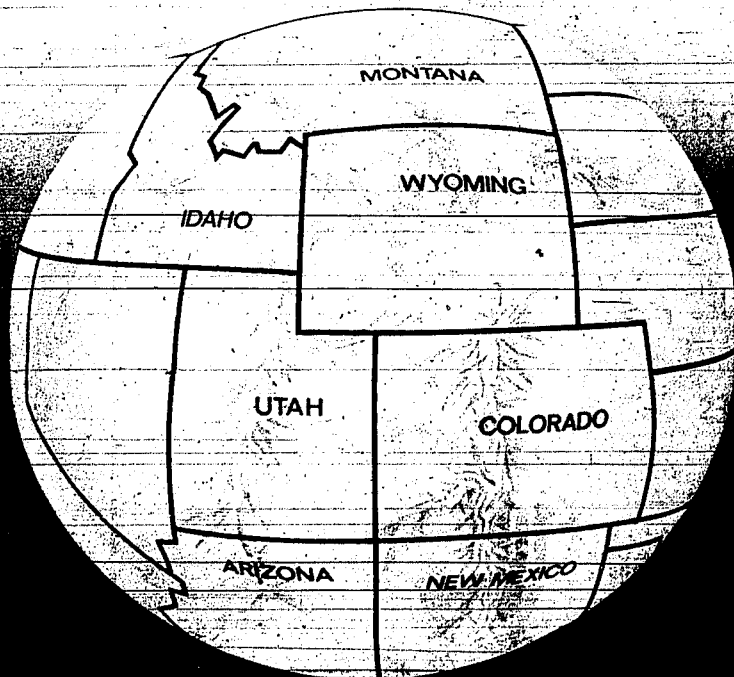

And in the changing telecommunications world, Mountain Bell will still be here—committed, as always, to providing you with excellent service at a fair price.

The future starts here. Right now, the Bell System is going through the biggest corporate restructuring ever. It's the result of an agreement between AT&T and the U. S. Department of Justice to increase competition in the telecommunications industry.

On January 1, 1984, Mountain Bell will no longer be part of AT&T. We'll be a new company with new responsibilities. But we'll still be your local telephone company. You can depend on us to be there with service that will bring you into the future.

What will the future bring? You'll have a greater choice of products and services than ever before. And options that let you pay for only those services you choose.

For example, we will still offer our local flat rate service, but for customers who place fewer demands on their phone, we will be expanding availability of our lower cost option—Measured Service. With the cost of local service going up, that's welcome news.

You've already seen the first wave of Custom Calling features such as Call Waiting and Call Forwarding. New ones will be added. We'll provide the connection between your telephone and home computer. We'll provide the network that could reduce shopping, banking, and information gathering to just minutes.

You're probably already aware that there will be some changes regarding the telephones that you now lease. Here, again, there will be options for you.

You now have a choice whether to buy the phones you're currently leasing. On January 1, 1984, our leased phones become the property of AT&T. In the coming months, we'll help you decide what's best for you—to buy or lease.

Our telephone network will bring you the world. As the provider of the local telephone network and access to long distance, Mountain Bell will still be your link to the world. But our role in long distance service will change. As of January 1, we'll continue to provide all long distance service within Idaho. However, for out-of-state calls, we'll provide you with access to a variety of long distance companies, including

AT&T. You can choose the one that best suits your calling needs and the price you want to pay.

The changes that are occurring at Mountain Bell are exciting. And we want you to understand them and what they mean to you.

If you have any questions, just call our toll-free number. And let's talk. There'll be somebody to talk to, somebody to help you, somebody to give you information.

In this era of change, you can still depend on Mountain Bell. That will never change.

Food and Drug agency chief bows out

ARTHUR HAYES
To head college

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Arthur Hayes Jr. submitted his resignation Thursday effective Sept. 2, as commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration to become dean and provost of New York Medical College.

In a letter to Margaret Heckler, secretary of Health and Human Services, Hayes, 50, said "it is with sincere regret that I ask you to accept my resignation."
Hayes said he had "a challenging opportunity to return to the field of academic medicine" that he already accepted earlier in the day.
Appointed FDA commissioner on April 13, 1981, by HHS Secretary Richard Schweiker, Hayes instituted a major reorganization of the agency that regulates foods, drugs, cosmetics, medical devices and products that emit radiation.

Major highlights of his term include the Tylenol poisonings, which resulted in new tamper-resistant drug bottles, a campaign to reduce salt in Americans' diets and a program to provide incentives for firms to develop drugs for rare illnesses.

Last spring, Hayes found himself in an embarrassing controversy when he accepted what the Justice Department concluded were questionable travel and speaking fees from private groups.
HHS, which has jurisdiction over the FDA, had no immediate comment on Hayes' resignation.

But Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, whose Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee oversees the agency, issued an immediate statement praising Hayes as a "distinguished public servant" with an exemplary record.

"Art Hayes will be a tough act for someone to follow," Hatch said.
While Hayes had some big supporters in Congress, he was also critically questioned by others on a number of points, such as the agency's control of medical devices and supervision of over-the-counter drugs.

An FDA official, speculating on Hayes' reasons for stepping down, said: "After two years, he probably got tired of the harassment from Capitol Hill, from the job."

Nominee cancels bid for position

WASHINGTON (UPI) — North Carolina attorney Thomas Ellis, sharply attacked as having a racist background, bitterly asked President Reagan Thursday to withdraw his nomination to the Board for International Broadcasting.

In a letter to Reagan, Ellis called the nomination "an obvious partisan political effort to drive a wedge between you and the black community using me as the instrumentality."

Ellis, an associate of Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who ran Reagan's 1976 presidential campaign in North Carolina, bowed out after a majority of the Senate Foreign Relations committee asked Reagan to withdraw his nomination.

Reagan, expressing regret, indicated he would withdraw the nomination. In a letter of response, he told Ellis, "during this affair, you have acted in a manner consistent with the reputation for honor that you have always possessed."

"I mean that reputation among your friends and associates will continue to be strong," Reagan added.

Ellis accused Sens. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., and Joseph Biden, D-Del.,

members of the committee, of turning his confirmation hearing into "a personal attack on me by my political enemies."

In a letter to the two senators, he said, "I believe you have overreached the bounds of propriety and fair play for purely partisan politics."

In his letter to Reagan, he said: "Frankly, I do not mind taking whatever heat these two ultra-liberal senators want to generate in my direction."

"However, I believe it is vital to America that they and their ilk be denied the opportunity to use me to hinder your struggle to return economic stability and provide an adequate national defense to our nation," he said.

Ellis said he hopes the board, which oversees Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty, will continue to "broadcast the tenets of Christian belief through mass communication" and "carry out this task without fear of interference from some of those in public office who do not recognize the threat of communist world domination."

Heat wave hits again

United Press International

The second round of a implacable July heat wave scorched the Plains and Midwest Thursday with record-breaking temperatures over 100 degrees, pushing the death count to 177.

Heavy thunderstorms moved through the Gulf Coast to the South Atlantic shore, dumping 2 1/2 inches of rain on Miami.

The nation's midsection suffered under temperatures that soared past 100 degrees. Scorches included 106 at Medicine Lodge, Kan., 105 at Garden City, Kan., and 104 at Wichita, Kan. Kansas City hit a record 103.

Chicagoans sweated through the evening rush hour in record-breaking 100-degree heat, and Peoria and Moline, Ill., sweltered in highs of 102. The death count since the heat moved in more than two weeks ago included Kentucky with 44, Missouri with 40, Illinois 23, Indiana 16, Georgia 14, Tennessee 11, North Carolina nine, Iowa four, Alabama, Florida and South Carolina three each, and Oklahoma, Kansas, Ohio, Minnesota, Maryland, New York and Arkansas one each.

Authorities in Eufaula, Okla., filed manslaughter charges against four owners of a boarding home for the mentally disabled where a woman died, apparently because of the heat, in a hot, stuffy room.

Health Department officials in Chicago cited a nursing home whose air conditioning failed for "crucially, neglect or indifference" in the heat-related deaths of four patients.

Forecasters blamed the renewed heat on a jet stream high over the earth, which pushed the heat from the Southwest into the Midwest.

Timber producers get break

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan gave timber companies five year no-interest extensions on federal contracts bid before the recession. Agriculture Secretary John Block announced Thursday.

Timber purchasers, facing default on high-priced contracts bid before the recession, needed some form of relief, Block said. The timber industry had been seeking help for years, including cancellation of their contracts.

Block said default could have led to bankruptcies or economic disaster for communities dependent on the timber industry.

"We believe the president's decision to authorize five-year contract extensions without interest payments provides the best compromise for the industry, the government and the dependent communities," Block said in a statement.

Even though timber prices have begun to rise, Block said, it is apparent that prices may not reach inflationary level of the late 1970's when the high contracts were bid. Many sales cannot be profitably harvested at current prices.

MacPhail sides with Royals in pine-tar row with Yanks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Addressing one of the stickiest issues in his nine-year tenure as American League president, Lee MacPhail Thursday upheld a protest by the Kansas City Royals and overruled his umpires' decision which nullified George Brett's homer last Sunday for excessive pine tar on his bat.

MacPhail's decision meant Brett's two-run homer against New York will stand and the suspended game will be picked up if it has a bearing on the divisional races with Kansas City ahead of the Yankees 5-4 in the ninth. The Yankees and Royals are not scheduled to play each other again this season.

MacPhail overturned rookie umpire Tim McClelland's decision to call Brett out after Kansas City's All-Star third baseman slammed a dramatic two-out homer in the ninth of Yankee relief ace Rich Gossage to put the Royals ahead 5-4. The Royals officially protested the decision Monday and MacPhail deliberated three days before ruling at an 11:30 a.m. EDT news conference.

"It is the position of this office that the umpires' interpretation, while technically defensible, is not in accord with the intent or spirit of the rules and that the rules do not provide that a hitter be called out for excessive use of pine tar," said MacPhail in a 2-page release. "The rules provide instead that the bat be removed from the game. The protest of the Kansas City club is therefore upheld and the home run by Brett is permitted to stand."

The score of the game becomes 5-4, Kansas City, with Kansas City at bat and two out in the top of the ninth inning. The game becomes a suspended game at that point and must be completed before the close of the season if practicable or the close of the season if it should affect the first-place position in either division.

MacPhail said the suspended game may be made up Aug. 18, an off-day for both clubs. He added that the bat — one of Brett's favorites — will be shipped Friday to Detroit, where the Royals are scheduled to play the Tigers.

Brett was on the fourth hole of the Brookridge Country Club in Overland Park, Kan., when he learned of the decision from club pro Doyle Thomas. "I wasn't counting on winning," Brett said. "I didn't have my heart set in winning. I wish the damn thing never happened. We got a lot of publicity out of it and it's been bad. It was a distraction. Who knows how long it's going to last. They might even have a 'Pine Tar' night at the ballpark."

"I'm happy but I hope it doesn't mean anything in the standings. I hope we win by more than one game and the Yankees win or lose by more than one game. What would happen if we had to finish the game? I wouldn't look forward to going back to New

"The fact that I hit it off Gossage in New York is probably what magnified things. It was weird, a unique call. It wasn't like you were safe or out on a close play at first. You hit a home run but then they said you didn't hit a home run because it was an illegal bat. It wasn't an illegal bat."

The decision marked the first time since MacPhail took over the presidency of the league in 1974 that a protest was upheld. For the Yankees, that's one time too many.

"If the Yankees should lose the Eastern Division race on the ruling of MacPhail, I would not want to be Lee Living in New York City," Steinbrenner said. "Perhaps he should start house-hunting in Missouri. Naturally, we are very disappointed in the league office ruling but I can say honestly I predicted it. As much as I hate to admit it, I figured he would do just that. If you're

Kushlan rallies to win White Satin title

Closing 71 overhauls Simpson

BURLEY — Rupert's Sue Kushlan has been an often throughout the last couple-three years that she had put-low numbers on the board.

The Rupert women, who admits to having a little trouble keeping her concentration on the game, cut it again Thursday when she carved out a three-under (women's) par 71 to come from behind and claim the White Satin Sugar women's golf tournament at Burley Municipal Golf Course.

Kushlan, said a solid day of putting was largely responsible for the 71, although everyone came together fairly well for the round.

Thursday's score allowed her to overtake first-day leader Terri Simpson of Burley and win by five strokes. Simpson, who had rounded off 77-78 to actually place second in gross play, instead won low net in the championship flight with a 133.

The gross list was rounded out by Burley's Doris Ellingham who had 78-79 rounds and Virginia Udhjem, Twin Falls, who had 85-77. Betty Davis of Twin Falls closed Simpson in net with a 135, two ahead of Carol Schmid, Idaho Falls.

A total of 90 women participated in the two-day event which featured added money from Amalgamated Sugar Company.

Other flight winners included:

Meyerhoeffer, CSI will keep athletic policy

By LARRY HOVRY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The appointment of Jerry Meyerhoeffer as College of Southern Idaho's second president indicates that athletics will remain a priority item at the school.

Meyerhoeffer has steadfastly seconded former President James L. Taylor's position that athletics are a bond in the student body and a bridge between the school and the community.

"I think probably Dr. Taylor's policies will be kept alive — lose a game and you're gone," Meyerhoeffer said with a laugh in referring to Taylor's continuous mock threat to his coaches.

"But, really, I expect little change in direction for our athletics. It is an item important to the board as well as the school," he said. "In making his list of qualifications for possible presidents, the board established a high interest in athletics second or third on its priority list. We feel we have a fairly comprehensive program now. I don't expect to see any expansion or cut back."

However, Meyerhoeffer, who may retain the jurisdiction of athletic director for this year, notes that CSI, like virtually every college in the country, is looking for help in its athletic budgets.

Meyerhoeffer told the CSI Golden Eagle Boosters at their annual reorganization meeting a month ago that the athletic coffers basically are dry. He asked that group's aid in a major push to increase outside contributions considerably and also noted that continued half-lightening measures have been instigated within the department.

"We have several things that must be accomplished within the department," Meyerhoeffer said, when asked about the urgency in selecting a new athletic director.

"That is something we will be putting our attention to this fall. I really don't think we'd hire anyone on with us on a basis this year. Someone will assume the role. Right now we have a lot of people wearing a lot of hats at CSI and that's what this will be at least for the upcoming year," he continued.

"The board has established a policy — at least for the time being — that it would prefer not to have person management occurring in the athletic directorship. That cuts down somewhat on our selections. I have thought some about the people who are there that might be capable. I think right now the job description of an athletic director would be mostly a budget overseer and any problems that might arise in any of the programs would be taken care of by the coach involved or perhaps through the thinking of several people."

"I'm thinking about hiring an athletic director is largely governed by Meyerhoeffer's report that "we don't have the money to hire anyone."

He said the downturn in the area's economy had cut into CSI's basketball revenues which carries the brunt of department's budgetary requirements. At the same time, increased cost, especially in travel and on-road food and lodging, have cut heavily into income.

To combat that, Meyerhoeffer said the college hierarchy and the CSI Boosters board of directors have tentatively scheduled a meeting early next month to explore areas of increasing revenues.

"We don't see any big change in what has been done previously," Meyerhoeffer said. "We will be seeking new things to try to be more effective in the area of fund raising that we have been in the past."

Earlier, Meyerhoeffer had noted that any contributions to the athletic budget — except the "scholarship breakfast" conducted each spring — has been marked by the dispersal of season tickets.

"At that time, Meyerhoeffer had noted that perhaps CSI had gotten off on the wrong foot in letting CSI fans associated contributions with tickets."

"For the most part we will be trying to do everything in the athletic department more economically. We certainly can't expand at this point. We must be very frugal and aware of cost effectiveness. The biggest key in holding down cost is that everyone in the department must work together. I think we have the personnel to accomplish that. All of our coaches are very aware of the situation we're in. They get along well."

All-league players shine more brightly under August sun

SUN VALLEY — Lex Rube, sports information director for Crazy Point State, settled into the Danish modern armchair next to the fireplace of his $117-a-night condo and tugged loose a sigh.

"But we've got to tell them something," he pleaded, looking intently at Coach Harvey Thudbucker, nestled among his bright books and chairs on the overstuffed sofa across the room. Through the window, the sun dipped low into the Sawtooths. When it rose again, Coach Thudbucker would be standing before 50-odd hung-over journalists assembled for the annual Big Sky Conference pre-season football press week, trying to explain his reasons and optimism about the Flying Moose this season.

"This is a class operation, coach," Lex tried to explain. "You're not going to be able to convince these people that you can win with two linebackers, a nose guard who wears ballet slippers and a free safety who's run 8.9

"Not to worry, Lex," said Coach

Steve Crump

Thudbucker, drawing on his El Gringo panatella. "Offense is our strong suit. I'll dazzle 'em with our skill people."

"Our skill people are unskilled," Lex countered. "The fall back is the alumni association president's son-in-law, the fullback wears a size 14 jersey and the quarterback shouts 'amnesia!' whenever anyone from the defense comes near him."

The coach allowed himself a wry smile and a second rye and soda.

"You're forgetting Duncan O'Callowick," he said. "The kid can flat fly. I'll make him an All-American at end."

"The kid can fly all right," Lex concurred. "He also chews kumquat seeds, stares at his navel and refuses to touch the football because it's made of the skin of a dead animal."

"He'll settle down," the coach mused.

"Give him a little game experience. Leon McQuint was pretty green too before last season, and he ended up setting a conference record for sacks."

"Four eyes McQuint set the league record for sacks because he kept running into goal posts," Lex protested. "He knocked down 12 of 'em in one game, which is not hard to do if your bifocals are three inches thick."

Coach Thudbucker frowned.

"I think you're taking an overly negative view of this year's team. If I may say so, Lex," he said, picking up the phone to order more rye. "This is basically the same group of kids that has upset Montana, Idaho and Boise State in the past two seasons."

Lex's sigh became a low moan. "Coach, we beat Montana by locking them in visitor's locker room, we beat Idaho by giving their bus driver the wrong directions and we beat Boise State by moving the game at the last minute to

Mt. N.D. Three forfeits in five years do not make a successful program."

Coach Thudbucker grinned. "Watch your attitude, Lex, or you'll find yourself back doing community relations work for the St. Louis Blues. One word from me, and you could be working for the Minnesota Twins fan club."

"No need for threats, coach," Lex replied evenly. "You just have to understand that I have a tough job here. It's embarrassing to have a sophomore football player tell a reporter that he likes our school a lot better than the other four college he's attended."

"The media just doesn't appreciate what a tough job recruiting is," the coach replied, trying to sound patient. "It was just a stroke of luck that we happened upon Green Jeans McQueen."

"Come on, coach, you can't blame luck for Green Jeans," Lex insisted. "We probably would have been put on probation anyway. Besides, he'd been moving the lawn in the stadium for years before you came along."

"Well, I tell you one thing," the coach said, opening the door for room service. "He sure proved that a 63-year-old man can play the game of football."

"Technically, coach, sawing through the legs on the visitors' bench and spiking their Gatorade with tabasco sauce isn't playing the game of football," Lex suggested.

"Sure was fun to watch, though," the coach howled, slapping the belly on the back and sending him sprawling.

The youngster kept control of his tray, however, balancing on one foot as he juggled glasses, ice and bottles. Coach Thudbucker stroked his chin, giving the youth a long look.

"Not bad son," he said. "Ever play any football?"

"The Flying Moose's receiver corps should be strong," Lex wrote. "Bolstered by the addition of 14-year-old Johnny Jones

USFL expansion means more college positions

CHICAGO (UPI) — The planned U.S. Football League expansion will only mean more beachheads for college football coaches and players, Michigan Coach Bo Schembechler said Thursday.

Schembechler, who last year blasted the new league for invading college campuses and luring away undergraduates, said the new expansion teams will add to the continuing problem of agents talking to college players.

He predicted that if the trend continues, there could be as many as 60 or 70 pro football teams searching colleges for talent, offering contracts to players who have no business playing pro football, and convincing them not to obtain their degrees.

"They (the agents) are getting ready to strike again," Schembechler said. "They are getting ready to talk to the players. Anyone from a high school senior to a college undergraduate is probably open to this. The agent issue must be addressed."

Schembechler, who told USFL representatives they weren't welcome at his practices last summer, said agents have offered contracts to players on his team who weren't starting for the Wolverines.

"I've had a couple of second-team players who have been offered two or three contracts," Schembechler said. "Every single player will now think he can play pro football."

Because the USFL lost money in its initial season, Schembechler said, they have turned to expansion franchises to help the original teams survive.

"Every city in the country with a population over 250,000 could wind up having a team," Schembechler said.

Schembechler said he feared that the NFL, to keep competitive with undergraduate signees such as Herschel Walker, may try to sign players before their collegiate eligibility is completed.

"As long as (NFL Commissioner Pete) Rozelle is around, I think they may be able to hold the line," Schembechler said. "There hasn't been this type of competition for the NFL before."

Ironically, one of Schembechler's best players, Anthony Carter, wound up being a stellar performer on the USFL champion Michigan Panthers this season. Carter completed his college eligibility but signed before he finished his term at Michigan.

Schembechler also criticized USFL Commissioner Chet Simmons for supporting the move to sign players while they are still in college.

"He's been outspoken on this," Schembechler said. "I still believe it is in the best interest of the student-athlete that we do everything we can to help guarantee that our athletes do everything possible to finish their careers and obtain a degree."

Sheehan, King survive heat to lead women's open

BROKEN ARROW, Okla. (UPI) —

Betty Sheehan forced to play her round in 103-degree heat, passed what she said was a "survival" test Thursday to fire an even-par 71 and tie Betsy King for the first-round lead in the U.S. Women's Open.

The heat, humidity and wind combined to turn the 6,298-yard Cedar Ridge Country Club course into a torture chamber for those who were not through with their round before noon.

"I just feel like I survived," said Sheehan, one of the tour's young stars who has won twice this year. "And this was a survival test. When you sit for a while in the shade you don't want to start playing again."

Many of the game's most familiar names limped in, with unfamiliar numbers on their scorecard — including two-time Open champion JoAnne Carner with a 10-over-par 81.

"It took me a while to add up my score," said Carner, 41, the LPGA's leading money-winner this year. "I played like I was pregnant, and I'm not."

King, 27, has finished in the top 10 in three of her last five starts on the tour and she used just 29 putts on the slick greens to get off to her best start ever in an Open.

"An experienced player will win this tournament," said King, who played her round early in the day before the temperature reached its peak. "It takes an awful lot of experience, and patience to handle this course."

King admitted she had an edge because she left the first tee at 7:36 a.m.

"I would say it is a two-shot advantage to be able to play in the morning," she said. "I sure wouldn't have wanted to be the last player on the course."

King went to the 17th tee at 2-under-par but drove through the fairway at that hole and took a bogey. Then she three-putted the final hole from 73 feet.

The 71's by King and Sheehan gave them a one-stroke advantage over a crowd of players that included Jan Stephenson, who used an eagle at the par-4 11th to record a 1-over 72.

"I had just made a bogey and I told my caddy I needed to do something brilliant," Stephenson said. "So I hit a 6-iron 158 yards right into the cup."

Stephenson was joined at 73 by former Open champion Pat Bradley, Becky Pearson, Janet Coles, Debbie Melsterlin, last week's tour winner Lauren Howe, and Juli Kestner, who turned pro after winning her third straight U.S. Amateur title last year.

At 2-over 73 were Dot Germain, Lori Garbacz, Lenore Muraoka and Stephanie Farwig, Sandra Haynie and Beth Daniel, were among those at 74.

"Nobody asked my opinion before the tournament," said Stephenson, who is looking for her first Open title. "But if they had, I would have said 6-over would win this tournament. This is a very tough golf course and that has been evident all week during the practice rounds."

Former Open champions Sandra Palmer (77), Hollis Stacy (78), Jerilyn Britz (78), Donna Caponi (78), Susie Beringer (78), and defending champion Janet Alexander (82 with a 45 on the back nine) all had their woe. Kathy Whitworth, winner of 84 tournaments but never an Open champ, shot 80.

"I can't remember the last time I shot an 80," Carner said. "It wasn't because I wasn't trying. I was. It was just that everything that could go wrong did go wrong."

Landrum, Heafner share lead in Canadian Open

OAKVILLE, Ontario (UPI) —

Ralph Landrum, a late entry "from the bottom of the PGA barrel" (tied a 6-under-par 65 Thursday to the late-charging Vance Heafner for a one-stroke lead in the $450,000 Canadian Open championship.

Landrum, who has faltered at four straight PGA qualifying schools and missed gaining a berth by three strokes in the pre-tournament qualifying event, was allowed into the Open Monday night after several PGA stars withdrew.

He responded by sinking four birds and then finishing the par-71, 7,067-yard layout at the Glen Abbey Golf and Country Club with a 68-foot eagle putt at the 18th hole.

The 25-year-old native of Burlington, Ky., one of the early starters, held a three-shot lead until Heafner, a fourth-year pro from Alaska, started at the back and roared through the final nine holes with five birds, a course record for Glen Abbey's front nine.

Heafner, ranked 53rd in earnings this year, and Landrum led nine-year veteran Barry Jackel, one stroke back at 66 after a round of five birds and no bogeys.

"I was getting a little nervous coming in at the 17th hole," Landrum said. "This is a new thing for me to be on the leader board."

Landrum has gained entry into seven tournaments this year through sponsor exemptions or by replacing late withdrawals.

"I am the very last guy available each week," Landrum said. "Me and Tommy Nakajima (Japanese pro) are in the same situation. We are at the bottom of the PGA barrel."

Australian Greg Norman was two strokes back at 67, tied with South Carolina pro Mike Hallett. John Cook, the 1981 Btg Crosby champion, former U.S. Open champion David Graham and Bob Murphy were bracketed at 68, along with David Ogri, one stroke ahead of George Archer and Mark Fiel.

Heafner used a brilliant putter and took advantage of a light afternoon rain which held down the wind to sink a total of seven birds while sustaining one bogey.

Carr denies planning retirement

By United Press International

Veteran wide receiver Roger Carr is refusing to attend his own retirement party.

At Cotton Valley, La., Carr Thursday denied quitting the team and questioned whether a "play" was behind the team's announcement Wednesday night he had retired.

"I don't know if this is a play on their part or what," said Carr, who acknowledged he might have mentioned retirement during talks with team officials, but contended he has not retired.

"You can say a lot of things, but saying them and doing them are two different things," Carr said. "I'm just trying to get a little better idea of what's going on here. I haven't had any correspondence about his retirement."

"I received a letter from (General Manager) Mike McCormick. Telling me that I'd retire I had to submit an official letter to Seal (Commissioner Pete) Rozelle in Michigan, and the (NFL) commissioner," he said.

Carr, 31, is in the last year of his contract, which carried over to the Seahawks when he was traded from the Baltimore Colts last season.

"I thought we had an understanding before this season we would sit down and talk about my contract," he said. "But we haven't done much talking and so far we're not even on the same page."

Carr was named All-Pro in 1976, when he caught 43 passes for 1,112 yards — and — 11 touchdowns — for Baltimore. His best year was 1977, when he caught 61 passes for 824 yards and five touchdowns.

With the Seahawks, Carr accounted for only 15 catches for 265 yards and two touchdowns, including the winning score in the season finale against Denver.

In other NFL developments Thursday:

At Thousand Oaks, Calif., an NFL arbitrator denied a free agent contract grievance by Dallas Cowboys safety Deitor Dickson, a team official said. Dickson, 25, filed his complaint after the Cowboys made some alterations in the contract he signed before his rookie season. In the spring of 1980, said Joe Bailey, the Cowboys' vice president for administration.

"When he came into the minicamp in May (1980) two weeks after signing we had discovered that we had erred in the contract so we notified him to bring in the other one and change it," Bailey said. Dickson's legal report to training camp with the other veterans July 21 while awaiting resolution of his grievance.

At Carlisle, Pa., Washington linebacker Monte Coleman continues to battle for more playing time.

"I probably wouldn't be the winner every year but I have to be right among the leaders," the 31½-year-old said as he contended his body following a training camp workout. When NFL coaches describe the perfect physical specifications for an outside linebacker, they describe Coleman's 6-foot-8½-inch frame, runs 40 yards in 4.44 seconds, loves collisions.

At Latrobe, Pa., the Pittsburgh Steelers announced Cliff Stoudt will start at quarterback in Saturday's Hall of Fame game against New Orleans in Canton, Ohio. It will mark the fourth consecutive exhibition opener that Stoudt, a backup to Terry Bradshaw, will start for the Steelers.

SUN VALLEY — Folk art of Idaho will be the focus of attention during a five-day folk festival featuring workshops, concerts and artists in Halley Tuesday through Saturday. Richard Hart, director of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, said a number of outstanding folklorists will be involved in the workshop sessions and programs. All events are free and open to the public, he said.

Folklorists Steve Sporin, Gary Stanton and Harry Gammendinger will be examining folk art and music of Idaho. Sporin is folk art coordinator for the state of Idaho. Workshop sessions will be held each day.

Concerts begin Friday at 3 p.m. and continue until 10 p.m. On Saturday the concerts begin at noon and continue until 9 p.m.

More than 20 individual artists and artist groups will be performing for the concerts, Hart said.

On the Friday program will be the David Grisman Quartet, a nationally-known musical group. The Desert String Band, offering pioneer folk music, and the Wild Geese, with traditional Irish music will also be performing, as will the Cours Des Miracle group, specializing in French music. These performers are sponsored by the Institute of the American West, a non-profit educational organization.

"Our ultimate objective in offering the festival," Hart said, "is to create understanding and awareness of the folk art of Idaho."

Typical of the workshop offerings that will help demonstrate some little known Idaho arts will be a slide presentation on Bob Severe, a saddle maker, and a presentation on blacksmithing by Rudy Jorgensen.

Park provides art show setting

By GABRIELLE WESTERGREEN

TWIN FALLS — This weekend a stroll through Twin Falls City Park will be made more entertaining by the 24th Art in the Park show Saturday and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Last year there were 72 entries in the event—sponsored by the Art Guild of Magic Valley. This year, says president Charlotte Kilfoyle, at least that many and possibly more artists are expected to participate.

"We're fairly isolated in the Magic Valley," Kilfoyle says, and the show provides exposure for craftsmen.

She says the show is primarily designed to help the artists because the guild takes no commission.

"There are very few restrictions on who may set up a stand in the park. However," Kilfoyle says, the guild does try to eliminate large scale commercial products. These hurt the local galleries and take up space, she says.

Kilfoyle says the emphasis for the show is on original products created by artists and not commercial jewelry kits or frames imported from Mexico.

"We want somebody who will make their own jewelry cast or jewelry," she says.

KETCHUM — Dinner, a capricious little one-act play, a drink and fine musicians cap off a night on the town. Ah, life in New York. Or Los Angeles. Or Ketchum. Ketchum?

This weekend and next, evenings of good libations and superb comedy will be in Ketchum as the Laughing Stock Theatre Company kicks off its summer season with "Ravenswood."

The show opened Thursday night, and will continue tonight, Saturday and Sunday and again next week, Thursday through Sunday.

Curtain time for the Laughing Stock production of Terrence McNally's one-act comedy is 8:30 p.m. in the Cannon Bar in Ketchum's Creekside Restaurant.

Tickets are $5 and are available at Chapter One Bookstore in Ketchum.

Laughing Stock has provided home-grown theater to the Wood River Valley for seven years and performs to a consistently sold-out house.

The company's amateur status is quickly forgotten in the light of 20 productions and recent official recognition in the form of a grant of up to $4,000 from the Idaho Commission on the Arts.

Gall Sheehan, director of "Ravenswood," credits Laughing Stock's well-deserved success to the dedication of its members.

"The shows I've seen Laughing Stock put on could go anywhere. It's good theater. Laughing Stock's reputation is one of providing people really good time, a good theater experience. It's almost an addiction. It's something we love to do," said Sheehan proudly.

She said when this "addicted" group of friends and neighbors get together for fun and drama, you get a sparkling Laughing Stock production fairly crackling with high intensity energy. And, in the case of "Ravenswood," side-splitting belly laughs," she says.

Sheehan explains the play as a "never one, not well-exposed and not often done, but a play you probably won't have a chance to see again."

"Ravenswood" is the first act of the Obie award-winning play "Bad Habits," a modern look at relationships in life. It deals with one extreme of these relationships: permissiveness. It is a soft satire on marriage counseling, and is full of uncanny perceptive humor.

"You can identify with these people in 'Ravenswood.' You've seen them. You can see your friends there," Sheehan laughs.

"And you can see part of yourself there," adds Laughing Stock board member, Kathy Wylie.

Laughing Stock was conceived when a few friends, who took a class together at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, decided to pool their talents in 1977 and see what happened.

"We all chipped in $50. There were four of us. And since then we've been self-sufficient. With the exception of 'Cowboy,' which ran last fall, Laughing Stock has run on ticket sales and community support," explains Wylie.

"Cowboy" was the exception in which a few professionals were brought in to encourage new concepts and a learning experience for the company.

Wylie bubbles over the company's progress over the years.

"There's so much talent here," she says, "and Laughing Stock has become a forum for that, a place to come together and share that talent. We are constantly growing and doing new things," she says.

One of the reasons Laughing Stock

Jerome potter uses his art as the means of liberation

By GABRIELLE WESTERGREEN
Times-News intern

JEROME — Bill West says most artists — to find direction in expressing themselves. In his case, he says, the direction finds him.
"Competence and direction are the results of heart-felt work," says the Jerome potter, who has been involved with his art for nine years.
He says, however, he has always been interested in art.
"I can't remember when I didn't emphasize art," he says, adding that his mother still has drawings from when he was in first grade.
He says that he first learned to make pots at the College of Southern Idaho from LaVer Steel.
West then went to the College of Idaho in Caldwell, where he got a bachelor's degree in art. In Caldwell, he met Barrett Jackson, a college graduate who was making a living selling pottery.
The idea of earning a living with his pottery had not occurred to him, he says, until he saw Barrett doing it.
West worked with Jackson a couple months after graduating in 1974, before setting up his own home business, "The Horse's Mouth," in Jerome.
The operation is jointly run by West and his wife, Cheryl, who is also a potter, with a degree in ceramics. In addition, the couple teaches night pottery classes at CSI and workshops for children.
West says the operation has grown slowly.
He built all the wheels and the kilns necessary for the business, and has also built kilns for other artists.
On one hand, West says he is not much locked into mass production. He then goes on to say, however, that he is not "embarrassed about making cup after cup... and not am I making a statement of cosmic significance," he says.
"I do it because of freedom," he says, and quotes from "Zorba the Greek," a book by Nikos Kazantzakis.
"Once I was a potter," says Zorba, "I was mad about that craft. You realize what it means to take a lump of mud and make what you will out of it? That's what you might call being a man: freedom!"
"Potting is repetitions and a lot of work," says West, "but it's freedom because you're alone with your own fibre. It's liberating. It's pure work."
The Wests fire the stoneware around 10 times a year when the three kilns are full. One kiln holds 60 large pieces, butter dishes or bigger, and around 250 smaller ones such as bowls and goblets.

Bill West puts finishing touch on pitcher

Firing the pots takes immense amounts of work, says West.
"It takes hours and hours to load, and hours and hours to fire," he explains.
He spends 24 to 30 hours splitting wood for stoking the kilns, which need feeding every five minutes to maintain the necessary temperature — 2350 degrees for stoneware and 1950 degrees for earthenware utensils.
West says he was once asked why he still uses a wood kiln, which is obsolete and less efficient than gas. His answer is "responsibility."
Firing is what makes ceramics, he says.
"We don't fire by temperature but by experience."
He says wood ash can settle or be blasted onto the pots. It attacks the glaze and the clay adding patterns to the vessels, he says.
West says the first step in making his pots is mixing the clay powder with water and letting it age for a month in a barrel. Swampy water in the barrels is beneficial, Bill explains, because the microbes break the clay down and make it more elastic.
The clay is then dried in the air, or in a special press, which Bill designed himself.
Before beginning work on an object, the clay is "wedged" to remove the bubbles, a process like kneading bread.
The pots are then "thrown." This English term originally meant slamming the clay down on the wheel, but it has come to mean the whole process of creating the form, West explains.
The Wests also built their own kick wheel: a Korean-style potting wheel.

Marble roll of toilet paper exemplifies modern art items

BOISE — A leather suitcase made from clay, a cardboard box fabricated using acrylic paint on canvas, a roll of toilet paper of Carrara marble, and a life-size forklift truck are just a few examples of the objects in the "Contemporary 'trompe l'oeil Painting and Sculpture' exhibit. Organized by the Boise Gallery of Art, the exhibition is scheduled for Aug. 13 through Sept. 25, at the Gallery, 670 South Julia Davis Drive in Boise. It will then travel to five museums across the country through early 1985. "The impetus for this exhibition is the lack of attention contemporary artists have received," says this particular branch of realist art, which dates back to the 18th Century B.C., said a gallery spokesman. Literally translated from the French as "trick the eye," trompe l'oeil requires exact or near representation of an image. The basic premise is to convince the viewer he is seeing what appears to be present when in fact he is experiencing an illusion. Two lectures will be held in conjunction with this exhibition. On Monday, Sept. 19, at 8 p.m., artist Duane Hanson will speak about his art; and on Thursday, Sept. 22, at 8 p.m., Carlo Lamma, director of O.K. Harris Works of Art in New York City, will speak about Contemporary Realism.

Both of these lectures are free and open to the public. The Gallery is open Tuesday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., and weekends from noon to 5 p.m. A suggested admission donation is $1 for adults and 50 cents for senior citizens, children and students. Included in the modern art exhibition are works by well-known artists who have been working in the trompe l'oeil mode for many years, including Duane Hanson, John De Andrea, Marilyn Levine, Richard Shaw and Paul Sarkisian.

Potter

which is pushed by the potter's foot. When an item is formed, it is then fired for a day until it becomes "leather ware" and is ready for trimming, such as adding the rim on the base, putting on handles or adding decorative touches.

Earthenware pots are "bisqued" in a small intermittent kiln in their business. This is another English word, Bill says. The earthenware feels like a biscuit, once the water has been removed. The items are then fired again in the wood kiln with the stoneware. Stoneware is fired only once in the larger kiln and is glazed before firing, Bill explains. "It's valuable to me to fill orders," West says. The Horse's Mouth was designed so that people can come and have custom dinner sets, and other personalized items made. "Basically, he adds, "deadlines are really hard." He says he once had to hand deliver a dinner set to a wedding because the first batch was ruined in the kiln. Sheryl West says they are always experimenting in their work. "Basically, it's one mistake after another," says West, adding that he feels he is just beginning. "I may say to people that I am a potter because it's what I love to do," he says, "but I must have a higher aim." The camel, as an art form, interests West. He has recreated images of the animal both in two and three dimensions. Several of his pots have sculpted handles in the form of camels and he has made a teapot in the shape of a camel. Two camels superimposed, he says, look like a butterfly. This is very much like Kazantzakis' idea of the changing of a worm into a butterfly, he says. "West says the camel embodies many aspects of a potter's existence. "It must be beaten to work, he's clumsy, funny-looking and lives in a world of sand and heat. It's also a way of poking fun at myself," the potter says. "A camel can't think anything beyond work and if I find anything it will be through work," says West who expresses the philosophy that if something doesn't work, a person must try harder. "Art is what goes beyond words. It's like when you are talking to someone and then simply touch them. . . . A pot is a way to communicate non-verbally and it will go on communicating when I am gone," he says. "Art is what you bring to the piece. . . . Aesthetics and art are not synonymous," he says. "Aesthetics are only a part of art and the raw expression is only a part, too." He says doing a craft for its usefulness is silly because industry does it better. "Tupperware can be made all night, he says. "But a beautiful teapot which droops all over your hand is worth having," he says laughing. "Serve tea with a towel."

There will be a demonstration and display by a wheelwright, showing the building technique of wagon wheels. Workshops are held in conjunction with the Idaho Commission on Arts. During the Friday night concert, Hart said, the Oinkari Ballo dancers will entertain with native dances and music. Also Friday night, Gov. John V. Evans will present the Idaho Folklife Awards for 1983. This year's winners are Jimmy Jassuro and Domingo Anotegui. Both are Basques who have been instrumental over the past 20 years in supporting the efforts of the Oinkari dancers and helping preserve the Basque customs. The award is given each year by the governor and the Institute of the American West in recognition of outstanding contribution to Idaho folk arts. Winners are determined by a panel including folklorists. The workshop events will be held in the Copper Basin Restaurant and the Liberty Theater in Halley. The concerts are scheduled for the Halley City Park where the award presentation will be made Friday evening. Sun Valley center officials said the evening workshops Tuesday will be in the Liberty Theater while others will be in the Copper Basin Restaurant. Friday and Saturday afternoon festivities move to the Halley City Park for outdoor concerts. Hart said only graduate or undergraduate students who attend the workshops for credit will be charged a fee. Under sponsorship of the National Endowment for the Arts, about 20 fellowships are being made available to cover meals and housing for secondary school teachers in Idaho, and some surrounding states, Hart said. Additional information is available from the Institute of the American West 622-3971 at Sun Valley.

is so popular is its quality of freshness, of flowing change, says Wylie. Sheehan points to the very nature of the company: it is made up of people from the community, not highly trained actors, but people who live fairly ordinary lives during the day. But at night, they run for the footlights. "Auditions have been open for every single show, with the exception

'Staying Alive' barely alive

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — John Travolta blazed up the screen in "Saturday Night Fever."
His debut movie performance was so magnetic that you just had to know what became of Tony Manero, the ambitious Brooklyn disco king.
In "Staying Alive," Tony finally moves upstairs, but he may have been better off in Brooklyn.
Directed and co-written by Sylvester Stallone, "Staying Alive" should have been subtitled "Rocky Goes Dancing" for its lack of originality and vitality.

Movies

In this vehicle, Tony is a struggling dancer trying to make it on Broadway. In scenes that come right out of "All That Jazz" — minus the energy — Tony auditioned and is rejected with regularity.
To earn a living, he teaches dancing — waits tables in a disco — and still attracts women. His biggest admirer is his fellow dancer Jackie played with sweet docility by Cynthia Rhodes.
Besides his desire to become a star, Tony also is trying to become a more mature person and break illustrated through unforgettable songs or cemented entirely over by walks through the park to Bee Gees music.

— For instance, when Tony stands up Jackie for a date with Laura, he later flirts Jackie at her cabaret job tearfully singing one of those "be done me dirt but I love me" songs.
Unfortunately, "Staying Alive" is filled with forgettable music. The soundtrack wouldn't matter as much if the dialogue was good, but it isn't. The conversations are completely confusing and only saved occasionally by sordid one-liners by Travolta. But one liners do not a film make.
The final Broadway show segment is exciting but seems to be out of control with characters and plot on a tangent.
Travolta is the only watchable element of "Staying Alive." His Tony is a bundle of animistic verve. Yet, he is wasted in a lot of brooding and dancing in slow motion.
"Staying Alive" is barely alive; it probably would be better to skip this one and remember Tony strutting down the street in "Saturday Night Fever." In that film, he had something to strut about.

Cat lover plans to hock ring to take cat's remains along

DEAR ABBY: When Liz and I were married, she had a cat named Snowball. No problem. But when Snowball went to that big cat house in the sky, Liz carried on as though she had lost a child.
We gave Snowball a beautiful funeral and buried her in the pet cemetery in a velvet-lined casket the size of a shoebox. The price tag on that, believe it or not, was $2,500.
Two years later we moved from Torrance, Calif., to Pittsfield, Mass., and Liz didn't want to leave Snowball, so she had her dug up and shipped to Massachusetts to be buried. That move cost me $1,200. OK, so now Snowball is in Massachusetts.
I am now being transferred back to California (San Diego this time), and you guessed it, Liz wants to move Snowball again. I don't want to be a meanie, but I am the sole breadwinner in this family, and I have had it with moving dead cats!
Liz says if I won't pay for moving Snowball to San Diego, she'll hock her engagement diamond to pay for it.
What do you think?
— COMPUTER EXPERT
DEAR EXPERT: Only a true cat lover can understand how another cat lover feels, so don't get your back up.

Consider this: Have Snowball's remains cremated and kept in a lovely urn that can be easily transported without further needless expense. You and Liz could enjoy a lovely holiday if you'd just let sleeping cats lie.
DEAR ABBY: My father, who is 68, went to the hospital for what was supposed to be minor prostate surgery, but it turned out to be much more serious. The doctor discovered cancer so far gone he just closed Dad up.
My mother-made-the-doctor promise he wouldn't tell Dad. Don't you think Dad has a right to know? It will just be a matter of time before he catches on.
We, the children, are trying to persuade Mother to change her mind, but she insists that Dad is better off not knowing. She says, "Ignorance is bliss."

What do you think?
— THE CHILDREN
DEAR CHILDREN: There is little "bliss" in ignorance that creates false hope. I think your father should be told in order to attend to any unfinished business.
DEAR ABBY: My boyfriend moved in with me three months ago. (He's in his early 40s, and I'm in my early 30s.)
He is a salesman and sells products in people's homes. These are times when he comes home as late as midnight — sometimes with makeup and lipstick on his shirt. (I don't wear makeup.)
He swears he does not fool around. Should I believe him? Or should I hurt him out?

DEAR CONFUSED: No to your first question, yes to your second.

Radio station boosts signal

HAILEY — KSKI radio will improve its coverage and the clarity of its signal by adding 30 feet to the top of its existing 150-foot tower, and constructing a second 180-foot tower.
The two towers will provide "directional" coverage along the length of Wood River Valley, and will "give us, at last, a good, strong signal in our service area," says station manager Jim Paxton.
The station, located near Hailey, also has received approval from the Federal Communications Commission to boost its signal from 1,000 to 5,000 watts for daytime broadcasting, and from 250 to 1,000 watts for its night signal.
The new towers and the extra power should provide listeners from Timmerman Hill to the SNRA headquarters with a clear signal, which Paxton admits has not always been possible in the past.

He says the mineral deposits in the mountains surrounding Wood River Valley block and distort the station's signals, but the $100,000 project should extend clear service to Bellevue, Pico and Carey.
Paxton says the new tower would be acquired from a station in Lewiston and would be located on land about an eighth of a mile north of the existing tower.
He says the station was negotiating currently with the owner of the property where the station hopes to locate the second tower. "As soon as we get the negotiations wrapped up we'll get a construction permit and should be able to begin work in a matter of days."

Weather permitting, Paxton says he hopes to have the system operational "by the time the snow flies." If there is an early winter, the station may not be able to begin its improved operations until next spring.
He says originally he had hoped to have the system operating by late summer or fall of this year, but delays before the county planning and zoning commission before being granted the necessary conditional-use permit stalled the start-up date.
Paxton says the existing tower "doesn't stand out" and can barely be seen from the road, and the new tower should be screened effectively by a stand of cottonwoods.

Association seeks board members

The Association for the Humanities in Idaho is now searching for three new board members, two from southeast Idaho.
Nominations and applications for these positions will be accepted until Oct. 1.
The board is comprised of 16 volunteers who distribute in excess of $350,000 annually to deserving public humanities projects.
Among the projects recently supported by the association are walking tours of historic sites in Mountain Home and Sandpoint, an economic history exhibit in Lava Hot Springs, a symposium on reproductive technology in Caldwell, a project to teach the Coeur d'Alene Indian language to young Indians, a centennial history slide program and booklet on Bliss, a two-day conference on Russian history and culture in Boise, and a project on early Idaho poets.

Residents of southeast Idaho interested in the various disciplines of the humanities (literature, history, philosophy, folklore, jurisprudence, archaeology, etc.) are invited to apply.
Applicants or nominees should also support the Association's broad mission of advancing the humanities in Idaho and of fostering public appreciation of them.
New association members would begin serving four-year terms in February 1984. They would be asked to attend two-day meetings in February, June and October. Board members are not paid but are reimbursed for travel and per diem expenses while in Boise.

— Association policy requires a balance on the board between representatives of academic institutions and the public at large. To maintain this balance, the Association in October will elect one public and one academic member from southeast Idaho.
Additionally, the group seeks geographic diversity from within each region.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"Intelligence is not needed for luck-but luck is needed for intelligence..."

NORTH 7-29-A... WEST A Q10 9-4... EAST A Q10 9-4...

It takes both luck and intelligence to score today's slippery game...

Vulnerable: Both Dealer South. The bidding: South West North East...

West led the club-queen and East alertly played his king to prevent a possible first round duck by South...

Opening lead: Club queen to park one of his black-suit losers.

South had good luck in finding the diamond king outside. He could have taken advantage of that luck by being more careful about his entries...

Bid with The Aces: South holds: 7-29-B... ANSWER: Three no-trump.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12383, Dallas, Texas 75213, with self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.
