Of Nicaraguan... Cuba, U.S. talk of pullout

By FREDERICK KIEL
United Press International
Cuban President Fidel Castro offered to pull Cuban military advisers out of Nicaragua and stop sending arms to that country if Washington did the same throughout Central America, it was reported Friday. President Reagan indicated he could accept such an agreement. "If he is really serious about this, I think it's fine," Reagan said in an interview to be broadcast in Washington today. "I think that I am willing to give him the benefit of the doubt in any negotiations."
In a one-hour session with reporters at a reception Thursday in Santiago de Cuba, Castro's suggested through an interpreter he would pull Cuban advisers out of Nicaragua and quit sending arms to that nation. If Washington and other nations agreed to do the same in all Central American countries, his comments were carried Friday by CBS, NBC and ABC.
Reagan said he believes the U.S. military buildup "and the whole appearance that we are not going to back away from what we think must be done there" has caused Cuba to soften its policy.

"But we will take the lead, and we've said from the very beginning, 'yes,' we'd like a negotiated settlement and a peace."
"And we're willing to participate in anything, negotiations that will lead to No. 1, the recognition that in El Salvador the solution must be by democratic means, not by someone trying to shoot their way into power," he said.
Reagan said the "ideal would be if Castro and the Castro government could simply decide that they wanted to rejoin the family of American nations and sever their ties with the Soviet Union, and become American again."
Reagan previously said he will support any agreement among Central American countries for withdrawal under "fully verifiable and reciprocal conditions of all foreign military advisers and troops."

Congress approves food stamps, arms

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International
WASHINGTON — The House and Senate Friday approved a $7 billion catch-all spending bill that averts a threatened cutoff of food stamps, gives senators a $9.100 pay raise and provides El Salvador with $25 million in military aid.
President Reagan was expected to quickly sign the supplemental appropriation bill into law to avoid any disruptions in food stamp benefits.
The food stamp program was due to run out of money Monday, and administration officials said food stamp recipients would experience delays in getting their benefits. If the supplemental money bill was not passed by midnight Friday, it was passed shortly after 5:30 p.m. EDT.
The only major dispute was the Senate's refusal to go along with a Senate provision to provide $8.4 billion to the International Monetary Fund, which makes loans to developing countries. The House voted 219-165 against it.
Citing the need to pass the bill by midnight to ensure no disruption in food stamp benefits, the Senate reluctantly agreed by voice vote to remove its IMF provision from the measure.

The House and Senate then approved the bill by consensus, that is, by disposing of all of the conflicting amendments that were pending against it. No formal, final vote was necessary in either chamber.
Before disposing of their disagreements, the House endorsed the gist of the compromise bill on a 257-133 vote Thursday night and the Senate did the same on a 49-23 vote Friday.
The measure contains $1.2 billion to fund the food stamp program through Sept. 30. It also includes $1.3 billion to cover uncashed Social Security checks, and $118 million for child nutrition programs.
The House voted 224-107 to give senators a 15 percent pay raise, to $69,800 a year, and to limit their outside earnings to 30 percent of the new salary — the same as House members.
The $25 million in military aid for El Salvador is only half the amount requested by the president for the war-torn Central American nation.
"If we don't act on this bill, Monday there will be no food stamps," House Appropriations Committee Chairman Jamie Whitten, D-Miss., said in opening the debate.

State leaders rehash public land sales

By United Press International

BOISE — Rep. George Hansen and Sen. Steve Symms say they are reexamining their support for the federal public land-sale program before deciding whether to join a move seeking abolishment of the Reagan administration plan.
Sen. James McClure and Rep. Larry Craig, both Idaho Republicans, wrote a letter to the president Monday, calling for dismantling of the administrator's Property Review Board and Asset Management Team — the agencies established to supervise the proposed sale of millions of acres to the West.
Hansen, Ft. Idaho, said this week he agrees the controversial sale program should be reviewed to ensure proposed bidding of federal property follows proper management policies.

He said he is concerned about statements by federal officials indicating an emphasis on selling lands for raising revenue rather than disposing of unneeded, isolated tracts.
"I think, because of the preoccupation of the Office of Management and Budget for more money, that it sometimes has a tendency — under Democrats as well as Republicans — to taint the thinking of some of those officials," Hansen said. "That's why you get statements about selling federal assets to pay off the federal debt. That's not a good reason."
Meanwhile, Gov. John Evans is quarreling again with Interior Secretary James Watt, this time over a magazine article in which the Reagan cabinet member accuses Idaho's chief executive of acting hypocritically in opposing federal land sales.
Gubernatorial aides said Evans mailed a letter to Newsweek editors Thursday rebutting comments made by Watt about the Idaho governor in the magazine's July 25 issue.
Watt, in an interview with the magazine, said protests by the Idaho governor about the land-sales program were motivated by political concerns and that Idaho officials have approved more public land sales in the state than the federal government.

"It's totally a political, partisan issue," Watt said. "How can a governor complain from Idaho when he sells about 16,000 acres in one year, and we sell, across the country, 1,312?"

"There will not be a massive land sell-off, there was never intended to be a massive land sell-off," he said. "Last year we sold 1,312 acres. This year we've offered (about) 5,000 acres for sale, and sold 3,500 acres. People don't even want some of the land."
The barbs from Watt were spotted by the governor's staff deep inside a nine-page cover story that examined controversy over federal land management practices, particularly those concerning wilderness areas.
Although Watt did not mention Evans by name, gubernatorial aides

Religious group target

Arsonist ignites bombs in Portland hotel room

By MARC McFARLAND
United Press International

PORTLAND, Ore. — Three bomb blasts rocked a downtown hotel owned by an embattled Indian guru early Friday, injuring two people, including a Southern California man charged later with arson.
Sect leaders claimed the blasts at the Hotel Rajneesh were an act of vengeance against the guru and said private security will be beefed up.
It was the first major act of violence against the religious group since 51-year-old guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh and several hundred followers moved to central Oregon two years ago and began buying up property.
"We've been expecting something like this because of the bigoted and inflammatory sentiments that have been expressed against us," said Swami Krishna Deva, mayor of Rajneeshpuram on the guru's 64,000-acre ranch in central Oregon.
The suspect, tentatively identified by police as Stephen P. Paster, 34, Los Angeles, was critically injured in the first explosion, which police believe was caused by a pipe bomb. A police officer suffered minor smoke inhalation and was treated and released from a hospital.

Paster underwent nine hours of surgery and was in critical condition with partial amputation of the hands and "explosion trauma" to his face, torso, arms and hands.
Damage to the hotel and its contents was estimated at $100,000. The hotel was valued at $1.25 million.
Paster was not a follower of the guru, sect leaders said, but they believe he stayed at the guru's ranch about 200 miles away Wednesday night with two other men, attending a meditation session open to non-members.
Police said the explosions at the four-story hotel occurred in Room 405, occupied by the suspect. The first blast at 1:23 a.m. blew the door off the hinges and glass off the window, and two other explosions occurred shortly before 3 a.m. after about 60 guests and employees had been evacuated.
The second blast ripped a hole in the floor of the room and triggered a fire that with two other men, attending a meditation session open to non-members.
The sect, which claims 300,000 disciples worldwide, has angered some Oregonians and alarmed others with its previous reputation for violence and group sex.

Mountain-side slides, buries 150 under mud

By RAY PEREZ
United Press International

BOGOTA, Colombia — Torrential rains Friday hampered rescue workers trying to recover the bodies of 150 people buried under tons of rock and mud in a massive landslide in the village of Gachala, 100 miles east of Bogota.
The victims included 140 construction workers employed at a hydro-electric plant, the town where the rains caused the slide of a mountain to collapse late Thursday.
A spokesman said 10 off-duty police men moonlighting as night security officers at the plant also were buried in the mud. About 200 military and civil-defense personnel were taking part in the search for the bodies. But because of the heavy rains, only 20 victims had been unearthed by dusk.
The spokesman also said 14 seriously injured people had been flown — Bogota — for treatment. Another 19 survivors, with less serious injuries were being treated at a Gachala hospital.
The landslide occurred just as three buses carrying 80 workers arrived at the plant, located 6 miles from Gachala, for a shift change. Another 80 workers were about to leave.

"While some workers were stepping out of the buses and were getting in, the landslide came upon them," one worker said. "Two buses and many of the workers were completely buried."
Another witness said the landslide came without warning and the victims had no chance to escape.
"We heard a great noise, an explosion and then we saw the rain of rocks and mud during the few seconds it took for the mountain to collapse," the witness said.
Fabió Puyo, general manager of the Bogota Energy Company that is building the $1.3-billion plant, said he estimated 140 of his workers were killed by the landslide.
Ten helicopters, carrying supplies and medical personnel, were dispatched from Bogota after Mayor Augusto Ramirez, directing the rescue mission, said land vehicles were having trouble reaching the site because of continued rain.
Gachala, a village of less than 2,000 persons, is located near Quebradablanca, where 400 persons were killed in a similar landslide.

Reagan: Soviet farmers need freedom

By IRAR ALLEN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, a day after agreement on a 50 percent increase in grain sales to the Soviet Union, told young American farmers Friday the Russians need American aid because they have no freedom.

Addressing a Rose Garden gathering of almost 300 high school Future Farmers of America, Reagan said the low-farm productivity in the Soviet Union is directly related to the country's lack of personal liberties.

Reagan did not mention his announcement Thursday that the United States will sell annually between 9 million and 12 million metric tons of grain to the Soviets beginning next year.

But in extolling American farm productivity, he said, "There's another country with resources just every bit as much as ours, a major power. The citizens are decent, hardworking people but they have no freedom.

Earlier, the president held a final meeting with his deputy national security adviser, Robert McFarlane, and his deputy, Richard Fairbanks, who are embarking on a Middle East shuttle as the president's new troubleshooters in the region.

McFarlane will attempt to persuade Syria to withdraw his troops from Lebanon, clearing the way for a parallel Israeli withdrawal.

In his talk with the young farmers,

Reagan told one of his favorite anti-Communist jokes — a story about a Soviet commissar who visits a collective farm and inquires about the potato harvest.

"If we piled all the potatoes into one pile it would reach the foot of God," the farmer answered.

The commissar replied: "This is the Soviet Union — there is no God."

"That's all right," the farmer retorted, "there aren't as many potatoes either."

Leading economic indicators point to recovery

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government's leading economic indicators climbed another 1 percent in June, confirming the economic recovery is able to hold its own for at least the next several months, the Commerce Department said Friday.

The increase is the weakest since November, but government economists feel it still amounts to a statistical insurance policy against a sudden change in direction for the economy.

And in a separate report, the Labor Department said U.S. productivity of the farm grew at a 4.3 percent annual rate in the second quarter, the strongest improvement in output per hour since the start of 1981.

The president's chief economic adviser, Martin Feldstein, told reporters at the White House the productivity figures "are an economist's dream."

Included in that report was a scant 0.2 percent increase in the cost of the labor ingredient in factory goods, which he said is an indication of fundamental transformation of the economy.

Oklahoma cries for aid as heat wave goes on

Oklahoma imposed a heat emergency Friday and temperatures topped 100 there and across the nation's central band. Two deadly heat waves back to back claimed 160 lives. Oklahoma Gov. George Nigh ordered a statewide emergency and ordered daily inspections for extensive heat at all nursing homes and boarding houses. Nigh said the inspections would continue until the hot spell is over.

He urged all mayors and city officials to keep "all public facilities" open seven days a week, with extended hours.

He recommended that libraries, senior citizens centers, city halls and community centers be kept open in early evening hours to serve as shelters from the heat.

Judge criticizes Reagan on women rights

ATLANTA (UPI) — A leading woman judge charged Friday that President Reagan is "disinterested" in finding qualified women and minorities to appoint to the federal bench.

Judge Gladys Kessler, president of the 500-member National Association of Women Judges, called for aggressive efforts, including affirmative action, to match the Carter administration's record on appointing women and minority judges.

Speaking during the American Bar Association's annual meeting, Ms. Kessler said the Reagan administration "has made it clear by its failure to name blacks to the federal bench and its near-total failure to name women that it is disinterested in finding qualified women and minorities."

Her criticism at a time when Reagan is under increasing fire for his civil rights policies. His three nominees to the U.S. Civil Rights Commission are facing criticism during confirmation hearings on Capitol Hill and White House aides are worried about polls showing weak support for the president among women.

Ex-convict goes to jail for helping police

DALLAS (UPI) — An informant was ordered returned to prison for violating parole board rules by aiding police in cracking a major drug scheme, and an astonished judge said Friday he feared for the man's life.

"Personally, this man was in technical violation of his parole, but all of his violations were in helping the police," said State District Judge Kelly Loving.

"He has done nothing harmful to anybody. The only thing he's done is do a lot of good for everybody."

Authorities praised the man's work. The informant, whose original crime was forgery — had been placed on parole by Loving when he assisted in an undercover operation in May.

"Down there (at Huntsville), no one likes a snitch. You can't make it down there," said the informant, known as "Rabbit" or "Hugo."

"I know I'm not going to make it out of there alive. It's like I'm sitting on death row. I'm a dead man — I don't have a chance. I wonder how they'll feel when they get me down there and send me home in a box."

McClure pushes tax money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Senate and House conference has approved legislation to restore payments to 14 states of taxes to counties deprived of tax revenue because of large federal land holdings within their boundaries. Sen. Jake Garn, R-Utah, said today. Garn and Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, sponsored the measure as an amendment to the 1983 supplemental appropriations bill. After routine approval of the bill, the bill goes to the president for his signature. The leading PILT recipients last year were California, $10.6 million, New Mexico, $8.9 million, Utah, $7.9 million, Arizona, $7.6 million and Montana, $7.2 million. Garn said Utah will get more than $2.4 million this year. A conflict developed over the PILT money when a court ruled in a Michigan case that townships could receive the funds instead of counties. The ruling held that the PILT Act intended to give the money to the smallest unit of local government to offset lost tax dollars because of federal lands. "The Sixth Circuit Court made a grave mistake," Garn said. "As a member of congress at the time, I know what your intent was for PILT. It was — intended — for counties. Our amendment overturns the decision of these judges and will see that PILT funds go where they were intended." The bill changes PILT Act language relating to the smallest unit of government to the "principal provider of services," which in most cases means the county, Garn said.

Suicide watch placed on accused

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A 30-year-old bookkeeper accused of sexually assaulting and murdering five young Salt Lake area boys remained in a "suicide watch" cell Friday while three of his alleged victims were buried. Police Capt. John Poelle said the investigation of Arthur G. Bishop, Salt Lake City, "is now in kind of slow-down, wrap it up stage. It will take us a couple of months to get this all tied together." He said his office put out a routine inquiry to several western states where Bishop lived for a time, "but at this time he is not a suspect in any abductions or murders in other states." Poelle also said investigators "have just about ruled out" the possibility that Bishop was involved in the death of Thomas Walling, 9, who disappeared from his foster home in Thatcher, Utah, June 24. His body was found in the Malad River July 8. Bishop wore a bullet proof vest when he was arraigned Wednesday on 15 felony counts, five of them first-degree murder. He was also charged with five counts of kidnapping and various sex-related crimes. Salt Lake County Jail officials said Bishop was being constantly watched in his cell as a precaution against possible suicide. Poelle said people who were reluctant to call with information before are calling now that five bodies have been discovered and Bishop has been charged in the highly-publicized case. Police spokesman Willie Stoler said one problem causing the delay in reporting the incidents was the reluctance of the victims themselves.

Air base hospital to remain open

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. George H. Hansen says he has been assured by the Air Force it has no plans to close its base hospital at Mountain Home, despite a recommendation from a presidential review panel that the medical facility be shut down.

In a letter Friday to Mountain Home Mayor Roy Blodgett, Hansen said the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control suggested closure of the hospital on the grounds its use of available bed space has declined over the years. But the Idaho Republican said military officials do not intend to follow that recommendation. "The decision on this matter is made by the Department of the Air Force, and I have been assured that the Air Force has no intention whatsoever to close the hospital in Mountain Home," he told the mayor.

Teacher refutes sex charges

CASCADE, Idaho (UPI) — A Meridian school teacher who faces a $1.8 million sexual-misconduct suit has filed a counterclaim, calling the legal action against him an "exercise" that compelled him to leave the Meadows Valley School District. The counterclaim by teacher John Ugarriza accuses the McColl woman who filed the suit alleging misconduct of making "utterly false and defamatory" statements against the educator in an effort to injure his reputation and win an unjustified monetary award. Ugarriza's attorney, Ray Setzke, said Thursday court action on the counterclaim has been held to pending a related petition filed recently by a Minnesota insurance company. Ugarriza is seeking $100,000 from Dorothy Sams for damages she allegedly caused when she and her daughter filed the lawsuit. Sams' suit alleged Ugarriza had sexual relations with her 16-year-old daughter, Julia, on four occasions while she was a student at the New Meadows school in 1981 and 1982. Mrs. Sams accused Ugarriza of having sex with her daughter while counseling the girl for other sexual acts she claimed were forced upon her by two other people, Donald Hutton and Vivian Schup of McColl. They were tried and acquitted of the sex charges by a jury.

Hansen opposition pondered

BOISE (UPI) — Richard Stallings says the odds are nine-to-one he will run again next year against Rep. George Hansen, the Idaho Republican who defeated him in 1982. The Rexburg Democrat, a professor at Ricks College, said Thursday his decision would be based largely on his family's feelings. But Stallings added he gets letters or telephone calls every day from people who urge him to run again. Hansen will lose support unless he is acquitted on four felony charges that he failed to disclose personal loans and profit on silver futures trading in financial statements filed under the Ethics in Government Act of 1978, Stallings predicted. Stallings said he had to submit financial reports during the '82 campaign nearly identical to the ones Hansen is accused of filing improperly. "I have always been taught that when I sign my name to something it ought to be right," he said.

Companies hear complaints, stop pesticides

ELMO MUIR
Owns chemical warehouse

TWIN FALLS — When Elmo Muir, the owner of Warberg Moving and Storage Inc., decided to expand his business operations into the warehousing of farm pesticides, fertilizers and related chemicals, he thought he was doing Twin Falls and the local economy a favor.

Not only was he providing several new jobs, but he felt he was offering a valuable service — bringing farm supplies from a variety of companies closer to farmers, and making them available at a single location.

Now, four-and-a-half years later, the financial future of his chemical warehouses, off Canyon Drive, has come apart. In the last 45 days, two of his largest chemical suppliers have pulled out. He worries that, if he cannot find a replacement for them, the chemical warehouses may pose a threat to his main business venture, the moving company.

The national companies, Ortho and American

Cyanamid, did not pull out because of the economic or bad business practices. They stopped shipping to his warehouses on account of letters and newsclips they received from Twin Falls citizens who claim the warehouses have contaminated their property. The citizens further suspect the warehouse of causing them illnesses, such as rashes, sore throats and dizziness.

The companies told Muir they felt he was doing a good job but that the chemicals posed no threat to the neighborhood. But in an industry that is particularly sensitive to such things, he says, they did not want bad publicity.

Some of the residents live as close as 30 feet from the warehouse — on the other side of an alley dividing the block between Canyon Drive and Buena Vista Street.

And since December, the residents have mounted a campaign on several fronts to do what they see as necessary to protect themselves. Writing letters to Muir's suppliers was only one prong of the campaign, whose eventual goal was to force the chemical operation to move.

The dispute has lasted for close to a year, during which time the state has become involved. The Department of Health and the Department of Agriculture have run a variety of soil, water and air tests to determine the validity of the residents' complaints.

Although the results have been contradictory in some regards, they have failed to turn up any firm evidence that the warehouse is endangering the health of the residents.

In light of this information, and since he has broken no laws, Muir harbors one overriding concern: "How are people allowed to put somebody out of business without any proof that he has done anything wrong?"

He sees no justice in the situation, and he is angry.

"If there was proof, I could understand and go along with them. But where there is no proof, it just blows my mind."

Things look different from the other side of the fence running down the alley. Several Buena Vista-area residents admit the warehouse operation has improved since they began to put on pressure, but they still say they feel sick when warehouse odors blow into their yards.

They admit their neighborhood is not one of the city's finest. In fact, the city comprehensive plan has designated it for future industrial development.

"But it's their right to a healthy environment, they say."

"Even though we are remnants of the past, we are not second-class citizens," says Edna Rains, one of the residents.

"Is money or people more important?" asks another, Edna Lee.

Warberg Moving and Storage Inc. is a well-established Twin Falls business. It was founded by the Warberg family, who sold it to a Utah company, Muir says.

Standards questioned Area jail cell cited on state TV show

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Conditions at the Twin Falls County Jail will be featured Monday on a statewide television broadcast.

The 72-year-old jail is one of three facilities that will be examined by Idaho Public Television's "Idaho Reports."

The program will be aired at 7 p.m. on KAD-TV, Channel 4 in Boise, as well as over KISU at Pocatello and KUID at Moscow.

KAD crews filmed the jail on Wednesday and conducted interviews with Sheriff Jim Mann and Health Commissioner Dave Munroe, who headed a citizens committee that explored the need for a new county jail.

Gary Richardson, the KAD producer responsible for the segment on Twin Falls, says he selected the Twin Falls County Jail because of its age and reputation.

"The piece we're doing is kind of an overview of the jail-standards situation and a brief look at the Twin Falls jail as a brief example," he said.

Also featured in the program will be the Caribou County Jail and the Kootenai County Jail. In the case of the northern Idaho jail, court decisions have restricted use of the facility to a temporary holding facility. Kootenai County officials are required to transport long-term inmates to the Shoshone County Jail at Wallace.

The producers of these segments, Paula Whisler of KISU and Marc Krein of KUID, will join Richardson in a discussion of the issue.

Richardson says the program will look at how county officials across the state are dealing with deteriorating physical plants in the face of public apathy, stricter jail standards, rising inmate populations and limited county revenues.

In particular, the program will focus on how the state's new drunken-driving law may increase the number of people behind bars. In Twin Falls, county officials fear the new law, which provides for mandatory minimum sentences for repeat

Three names selected for assessor opening

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

GOODING — Gooding County Republican leaders have narrowed to three the list of applicants seeking former Assessor Brent Gleaser's job.

The Republican Central Committee has submitted the following names to the Gooding County commission:

- Doyle Pugmire of Hagerman, who formerly operated a real-estate firm.
- Eoy Diemart of Wendell, an accountant and subcontractor.
- Joyce Scanlon of Gooding, a deputy in the assessor's office.

The three emerged from a list of eight applicants. The county commission is scheduled to consider the nominations at its Aug. 8 meeting.

Whoever is appointed to the position will serve through January 1985. Voters will select an assessor in the November 1984 general election.

The position became vacant earlier this month when Gleaser stepped down, saying he wanted to pursue his education and other personal interests. Since then, reports have surfaced that indicate the resignation came amid allegations that Gleaser had filed an improper expense voucher. The former assessor reportedly claimed $68 in expenses that he allegedly incurred on a personal business trip.

County officials have declined to comment on the report.

Gleaser was appointed to the post in 1980 and then won election in his own right in November.

Karen Brattforde of Wendell, head of the GOP Central Committee, said the 12 Republicans who participated in Thursday's vote have voiced a preference among the three candidates for the county commission. But that preference will remain confidential, she said.

"We were really pleased. All eight of these candidates were excellent," Brattforde said. "We were very pleased to have this large number because we haven't had this much interest, even in an election year."

Committee members had two major concerns in their decision, Brattforde said.

"Primarily, we were looking for a manager of the office. We felt that with the quality of the candidates, most of them could learn the job," she said. "Most of our questions were related to managerial experience."

The committee also considered practical politics and secured the candidates' promise to seek election as a Republican in the 1984 election, Brattforde said.

Conservation tour spotlights hydro-power plan

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Using water to generate electricity on a lava desert, where water is a most precious commodity, seemed a distinct reality during Wednesday's annual Wood-River-Resource Conservation and Development Area tour.

One stop on the tour was a site north of Tuttle, on the Malad River, which was described in a 1910 report as "20 feet wide and four feet deep, and then 20 feet deep and four feet wide."

It is the site of a low-head hydro project developed by Tuttle businessman Vernon Ravenscroft.

Ravenscroft, standing at the site of the project's diversion dam, where the river is wide and shallow, told the tour group that the level of the river fluctuates "like a butterfly with the hiccups."

But he went on to explain that he believes this generating station that is being developed at the site.

The large number of participants on the tour and the technical questions they asked indicated considerable local interest in what Ravenscroft described as electrical generation that uses a "controlled hydro flow with maximum pressure and limited turbulence."

The river water is diverted into a canal system. It then flows through a wide spillway, into the headworks and through a system of three, varied-capacity turbine-generators. The water is returned to the river channel in the area where the river begins its descent into the Malad Gorge.

Ravenscroft explained that the diversion is made to concentrate the river's 53-foot drop at the point where the water enters the headworks.

He also said the project is allowed to divert up to 210 cubic feet of water per second, but the lowest flow the plant can use is 30 cubic feet per second.

The plant is designed to operate throughout the year, but there is a possibility of some down time due to low water, he said.

The power generated at the plant will be sold through contract, to the Idaho Power Co.

Ravenscroft also operates a Boise-based consulting firm to help other hydro-system developers with feasibility reports, legal requirements, contract negotiations, permits and similar considerations.

The Tuttle development was started last November, but it was delayed by unusually high water this spring.

Several members of the tour group were concerned about the environmental impact of the project.

Ravenscroft explained, with obvious pleasure, that he believes the project actually will enhance small-mouth bass fishing and water fowl and pheasant populations.

Some back water is created by the diversion, and a series of ponds are being built into the canal system to settle out the silt before the water enters the turbines, he said.

These sites are being developed as fish spawning areas and water-fowl habitats, Ravenscroft said. The developers have spent additional money to develop pheasant nesting areas in the site as well.

He told the group that some of the development is on private property, while other parts are on BLM ground. Only the pond areas on private crop land will be closed to public hunting or fishing, he said.

From the Tuttle site, the group also traveled Wednesday to the Northside Canal Co.'s generating plant near Bliss and then to John Koyie's hydro project on the Little Wood River, west of Gooding.

Fair season

Elmore County to feature new baking contests

GLENN'S FERRY — The county fair in Elmore County is alive, well and growing, says Kathy Lillybridge, of the county's Extension Service office.

Lillybridge says there will be two new contests in the open class division of this year's fair — bread-making and chocolate cake-making. And this year the fair is offering monetary prizes and ribbons for open-class entries.

All of the commercial booths have been rented this year, which is an improvement over past years when several areas remained empty, she says.

"We've made a real effort, with these two new contests and the prizes to get people involved. It's not been easy to get the merchants' support," Lillybridge says.

The Elmore County Fair, in Glenn's Ferry, will begin officially on Tuesday, Aug. 14, and continue through Saturday, Aug. 13.

Open-class entries will be accepted on Tuesday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and produce will be taken Wednesday from 9 a.m. to noon.

The new bread-baking and chocolate cake entries will be accepted on Wednesday from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Lillybridge says there are certain recipes that must be followed in these contests. The recipes may be obtained by calling her at 587-4626.

The Three Island Rodeo, featuring local rodeo talent, will begin at 8 p.m. on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings.

On Thursday at 6:30 p.m., a 4-H style show will be held.

Around 2:00 Elmore County 4-H'ers are expected to participate in this year's fair, she says.

Friday night, there will be a free barbecue, which will last from 6 to 8 p.m. Afterward, at 9:30 p.m., there will be a dance, featuring the River-Rockers from Hammett.

Saturday morning, there will be a free breakfast, sponsored by the Mountain Home Chamber of Commerce, beginning at 7:30 a.m.

The morning will be topped off with a black powder shooting contest at 9:30. The prize for this contest, she says, will be a Lyman .45-caliber. Great Plains Black Powder Rifle.

Livestock competitions reign in Blaine County

HAILEY — The Blaine County Fair and Livestock Show will be held Aug. 16-20 at the Blaine County Fairgrounds.

Exhibits should be submitted on Tuesday, Aug. 16, which is also the day most livestock judging contests will be held.

All 4-H and FFA members with registered livestock projects are eligible to enter the livestock-judging contest, which will begin at 10 a.m.

From noon to 6 p.m. on that day, all 4-H, FFA and open-class exhibits will be accepted.

On Wednesday, Aug. 17, open-class and non-livestock 4-H and FFA exhibits will be judged, beginning at 8:45 a.m.

The open-class breeding animal contest will begin registering animals at 8 a.m. That event is open to any Blaine County resident.

A fee of $1 for administrative costs and $2 for each time an animal is shown will be charged.

Much of Wednesday will be devoted to registration and the judging of a variety of horse contests.

On Thursday, Aug. 18, the day's activities begin with the opening of the exhibit building at 8 a.m., followed by the open-class livestock show, which will begin at 9 a.m. and will last through much of the day.

From 7:30 to 9 p.m. the Junior Jamboree will be held at the rodeo arena. The event, sponsored by the fair board, is open to all 4-H and other organized riding clubs.

Friday, Aug. 19, is one of the busiest days of the fair, with judging contests for a variety of animal and exhibit classes scheduled throughout the day.

At 4 p.m., a motorcycle event will be held, and at 5 p.m. the annual barbecue, sponsored by the 4-H Council, will begin. Entertainment during the barbecue will be provided by the Old-Time Fiddlers.

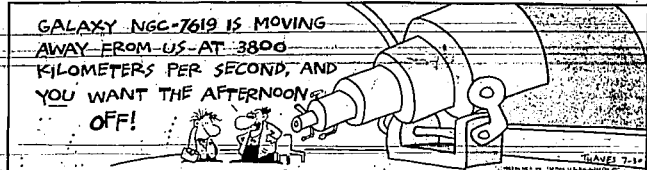

At 7:30 p.m., a harness-team obstacle-course competition will be held in the rodeo arena.

The fair will conclude Saturday, Aug. 20, with the livestock buyers' luncheon at 12:30 p.m. and the annual 4-H FFA fat-stock sale, starting at 1:30 p.m.

The annual rodeo, sponsored by the Carey Rodeo Committee, will begin at 8 p.m. in the rodeo arena.

What's what

Our Chief Prognosticator credits the computer with the greatest modernization of all — in China. The old Chinese yin-yang movement is so complicated a skilled operator only can type about four words a minute. SEXY STAR

Maybe you've read that some actresses in sexy movies are so young that they're not permitted by law to see their own pictures. Sabina Sijmen, age 17 at the time, was one such. She showed up at the Attorneys will tell you the law ought to be both local and timely. In the Virginia colonies, for example, any man who picked corn before it was ripe, even his own corn, was subject to a public whipping. That which made sense then, wouldn't make much sense now, what?

STRIPPERS WANTED

This appeared in the "Help Wanted" ads of a Toronto newspaper: "For Strippers Only. Five nights a week. Must be able to perform in dimly lit quarters." Twelve men, who recognized the address given as that of a print shop, showed up to say they qualified in printing trade terminology as "strippers," and several were put to work to make a new night shift. The shop owner who placed the ad told the 70 women who also showed up that they'd come to the wrong place.

David Niven flashes thumbs-up, dies

CHATEAU DOEX, Switzerland (UPI) — Oscar-winning actor David Niven, whose charm and wit brought him to four decades of movies, died Friday with a characteristic thumbs-up sign on his death bed. He was 73.

Niven, who played heroes, lovers and scoundrels with the same ease aplomb in nearly 90 films, "died peacefully and without pain shortly after 7 a.m." in his Swiss mountain chalet, said his Swedish nephew, Michael Wrangdahl, said.

The British actor and author had suffered for years from an unspecified motor neuron disease, a degenerative ailment that progressively debilitates the nerves and weakens the muscles of its victims.

Recent photographs had shown Niven drawn and emaciated, and friends visiting him in London's Wellington Hospital earlier this year said his symptoms included the quivering, uncontrollable limbs of motor neuron victims.

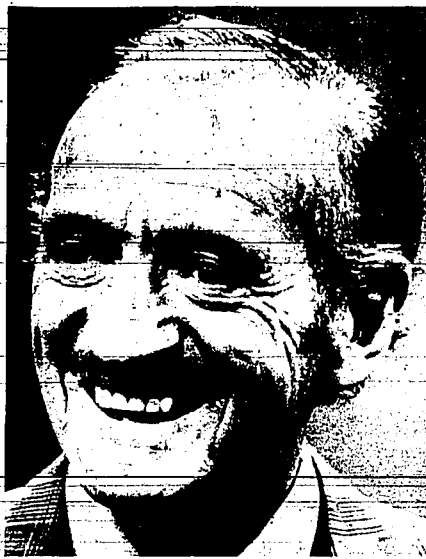

But the long, wasting illness never appeared to break Niven's spirit.

"His health had been showing marked signs of improvement since he came to the mountains three weeks ago," Wrangdahl said. "He had been very cheerful and happy, he had put on some weight and had been swimming every day."

"His last gesture a few minutes before he died had been to give the thumbs up sign," he said.

Niven, who began his Hollywood career in 1935, last starred in a French-made film entitled "Better Late Than Never" with Art Carney in 1981. He made a cameo appearance in "Trail of the Pink Panther," released in December, and will also appear in "Curse of the Pink Panther" to be released Aug. 12.

His acting career reached its zenith in 1959, when he won both the Oscar and the New York Critics' award for best actor for his moving portrayal of a pathetic looper preceding the adventurous dreamer Phileas Fogg in "Around the World in Eighty Days," the dashing airman in "Dawn Patrol" and the suave "Jewel" thief in "The Pink Panther."

Niven brought four decades of charm to the movies

Wrangdahl said funeral arrangements were pending. He said Niven came to his chalet near the fashionable ski resort of Gstaad earlier this month spending time at his home in Cap Ferrat in southern France, where he was writing a second novel.

Friends, colleagues and fellow stars mourned Niven as having always been, according to Gregory Peck, "the epitome of scintillation and charm."

"I knew him for 30 years and he was a joy to be with," said Peck, a member of the fraternity of male film stars of the 1950s and 1960s to which Niven also belonged.

"I think you had to know him very well to realize he was a man covering up deep personal problems common to a lot of us — despair, loneliness, feelings of rejection, vulnerability — things that would have driven almost anyone to despair. But David's way of handling was to laugh it off."

Said Marion Brando, "I think that he was one of the most compulsively charming men I ever knew ... He had a great need to be charming to everybody and make everybody laugh. He left a great deal of laughter behind him."

Elizabeth Taylor said, "I have loved David since I was a teenager. I loved him for all the qualities he had, his friendship, his relish for life, his humor, his consideration, his intelligence and the fact that he was David the person first and foremost."

Bandshell blare bothers Baldrige

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Park Service has pulled the plug on amplifiers used to broadcast the music to tourists because the music distracted.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige's office and annoyed bureaucrats.

At issue are five summer concerts on for visitors to the site. Better Speakers on the grassy Ellipse across the street from the White House for tours of the executive mansion.

Baldrige's office also is located nearby, and his spokesman said Friday the problem would not go away despite three summers of complaints that the music was disrupting work in the departmental headquarters.

The problem arose in 1981 when Baldrige moved his suite of offices overlooking the Ellipse and "it hadn't subsided. We told the Park Service there was a problem. They agreed," spokesman Jay Cooper said. "Music — Baldrige, 60, a top businessman and expert call roper tapped for government service by President Reagan, is partial to country and western music, but aides stressed the issue was volume, not content."

Park Service spokeswoman Sandra Alley said "every reasonable solution" was considered before finally shutting off the amplifiers that blare music from a bandshell — facing the Commerce Building — to the bleacher area, where an estimated 10,000 people sit daily.

"We even put a ranger-up in the secretary's office for a while," she said. "He said he couldn't hear it, but some Commerce employees said they could, so we had to do something."

Mrs. Alley said the Park Service and Commerce officials rejected the idea of insulating windows in the building because of the cost.

Turning the bleachers and bandstand around also was weighed, but that would have cost $400,000 — and interfered with softball diamonds on the Ellipse.

Honduras cuts off debt talks on trade

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (UPI) — The Honduran government indefinitely suspended talks Friday with Nicaraguan diplomats over Managua's inability to pay its $15 million trade debt to Tegucigalpa.

On Thursday, Honduras suspended grain shipments to neighboring Nicaragua over the debt in a further heightening of tension between the two countries.

Nicaragua has often warned a war with Honduras could begin over Tegucigalpa's support of U.S.-backed Nicaraguan rebels, who operate from Honduran territory, but regular trade has continued between the two countries.

The Honduran Finance Ministry said the meetings on the debt between economic delegations of the two countries would be postponed indefinitely. There was no official reason given for the suspension.

Government sources said the meeting was put off because of a "light fall" suffered by Finance Minister Leticia Matay.

Honduran Ambassador to El Salvador Roberto Suazo Torne, meanwhile, said the efforts of the four-nation Contadora Group would delay a general war in Central America.

Foreign ministers from Contadora — Mexico, Panama, Venezuela and Colombia — were meeting for the second day in Panama in an attempt to come up with a formula to lessen tensions in the region.

The group is named after the island off the Panamanian coast where the countries first met in January.

Suazo Torne, in a speech to the British Club of Honduras Thursday, acknowledged that the Contadora group is proposing solutions with good intentions, but he added, "They say the road to hell is full of good intentions."

Suazo Torne told members of the club that he thought it very difficult to find a peaceful solution to the conflict in Central America.

"The reality is that there is an East-West confrontation in Central America, and trying to ignore that reality is tantamount to burying one's head in the sand," he said.

Vietnam arrests U.S., British treasure hunters

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Vietnamese authorities have jailed an American photographer and a British treasure hunter who vanished searching for a pirate fortune believed buried by Capt. William Kidd on the coast of Sumatra.

The Nation Review reported the two adventurers were seen in a Vietnamese jail by 13 Thai fishermen who were released last week after their arrest by Vietnamese authorities.

Richard Knight, 43, a British citizen, and Frederick Graham, 19, of Belmont, Calif., were last seen June 8, when they were reported to have reached the southeast of the Gulf of Siam beach resort of Pattaya, 60 miles south of Bangkok.

Pattaya police said the American and the Briton, accompanied by two Thais, had planned to search for a fortune in gold they believed was buried by Capt. Kidd, the 17th century Scottish pirate, on an island off Vietnam.

The fishermen reportedly told of having seen the pair Thursday night at a party they gave for Thai Deputy Prime Minister Bhihach Rattakul, who negotiated their release by Vietnamese authorities.

"Yes, this is the one we met in Vietnam," the Nation Review quoted one of the Thai fishermen as saying after they were shown a picture of the missing Briton.

One of the westerners wore a heavy beard and the other was very thin, the fishermen said.

Europe sizzles in heat

By United Press International

Temperatures dropped slightly in parts of northern Europe Friday, giving temporary relief from sizzling heat that has sparked forest fires, led Switzerland to run "short" of fans and forced toddlers to drop their diapers.

The hiatus was not expected to last long, however. Weather forecasters predicted blistering temperatures will return to some parts of Europe this weekend.

In Sardinia, 1,500 men and 28 aircraft were sent from Italy to fight bush fires that killed six people, injured nine others and now threaten a NATO radar station.

tion and television relay tower at Tempio Pausania near Sassari.

Officials blamed the fires both on arsonists seeking to clear land for pasture, and on a heat wave that pushed temperatures as high as 104 degrees Fahrenheit.

Temperatures reached record highs all over Europe this week, with 104 degrees recorded in West Germany, the hottest temperature ever in either West or East Germany. It was recorded Wednesday in the southern town of Thuringen.

"The body can lose up to 10 liters (quarts) of sweat through the pores in a day," the Munich newspaper Tagesspiegel ominously told its readers Friday.

Pipeline threatened by war

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Iran warned Friday it would sever the pipeline to Turkey that carries all of Iraq's oil exports, treating as a strike from newly captured positions in the northern battlefield of the 35-month-old Gulf War.

The threat to cut Iraq's only source of foreign earnings followed Iraq's report that a crack parachute commando group penetrated a strategic mountain peak that dominates the Haj Omran battle zone, killing 2,900 Iranian soldiers.

Iran claimed Friday that it retook the mountain in a bloody battle, that it controlled the vital narrow passes of Cheman Mostafa and Gelaye and that it stemmed an Iraqi counterattack on Haj Omran.

"The Iranian army broke the Iraqi army's resistance up on the heights of Karamdand. Many were killed and injured," official Tehran radio said.

Hasshemi Rafsanjani, speaker of the Iranian parliament, told a Friday prayer session in Tehran that Iran's Operation Dawa-2 offensive across the northern mountains ensured Iran "would not let Iraq Kurdistan belong to or serve Iraq anymore."

Israel set to redeploy troops

By United Press International

Israeli Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir said Friday the Jewish state would proceed without delay to redeploy its forces in southern Lebanon despite objections from Arab states.

In Lebanon's eastern Bekaa Valley, fighting erupted anew between rival Palestinian factions around the town of Jdida after a 12-hour lull and spread to neighboring villages. There were no reports of casualties.

State-run Beirut radio reported at 11 p.m. local time the fighting had turned into sporadic artillery exchanges around Jdida and "the situation in the valley is still very tense."

The pro-Arafat Palestinian news agency Wafa quoted a military spokesman as saying the rebels had "failed . . . to achieve any military advance on the ground."

Shamir returned home Friday from talks with President Reagan in Washington and said the redeployment of Israeli troops to more defensible positions in south Lebanon would go ahead without delay.

Sky football coaches like Idaho, BSU, Reno

By RALPH WAKLEY
United Press International

SUN VALLEY — The Big Sky Conference football coaches say there is no outright favorite for the league's 1983 title, but nearly every coach listed the same three teams above the rest of the schools.

Nevada-Reno's Chris Ault, coach of one of the schools, said today that his Wolf Pack should have an outstanding fall based on the number of returning starters.

"We'll have nine starters back from last year's offense plus a redshirt who started in 1981," Ault said. "So our offense should be solid from the first game on. But our defense isn't going to be up to the same caliber of play as our offense."

Ault said he expects Reno, Boise State and defending co-champion Idaho to be the top teams in the Big Sky this fall, with Montana as the other team most likely to be in the top four.

Montana and Idaho tied for first in this conference last year. But the Grizzlies' offense was weakened by the loss of six seniors to graduation and quarterback Marty Morhinweg and fullback Joe Kluczewski to academic problems.

Ault and the rest of the league's coaches are in Sun Valley through Sunday for the third annual Big Sky coaches meeting. The conference athletic directors and football officials were also attending the three-day convention.

Northern Arizona coach Joe Harper and Montana State's Dave Arnold both picked Idaho to finish first again. But both quickly added that the Vandals should expect a tough title chase.

After Idaho, Harper said Reno and Boise State "should be the best of the rest." But Harper said his Lumberjacks could break in to the top four if they can solve the same problem faced by Reno and Montana — finding a starting quarterback.

Arnold says he favors Idaho because of the six Vandal starters coming back. But he added, "I think it's going to be a heck of a battle again this year. And we've got as good a chance as anybody else, provided our defense stays soundly."

Boise State's Lyle Setenich said, "We have quite a bit of talent, but I'd have to say we're not the favorite to win the Big Sky this year."

"I'd pick Reno and Idaho as the top two teams, followed by Weber State and then us. Also, Montana might be in the top four," Setenich said. "In other words, it's going to be another tight race this fall."

But Weber State coach Mike Price claims everyone — but Setenich — is picking his Wildcats to finish last. And Price said, "It's great. I love it. I love it."

He said Weber State was picked to place last in 1981, the year the Wildcats posted a 7-4 record and were in the conference title race until the final week of the season.

"Idaho or Nevada-Reno should be the pre-season favorites. And you always have to count on Boise State being in the running," Price said.

"But, I think we've got a chance because everyone will be overlooking us."

Idaho State coach Jim Koeltter said his Bengals will probably "finish in the middle" of the 1983 title chase.

"Right now I don't see any of the other seven teams running away with the title. But Boise State and Nevada-Reno have always been good, and Idaho should be among the top teams this fall," Koeltter added.

Montana's Larry Donovan and Dennis Erickson of Idaho both said picking a favorite this year is almost impossible, given the strengths of all the teams.

Price said, "Remember what happened last year? Everybody picked Idaho State (the defending Big Sky and NCAA Division I-AA champion) and they finished last."

Donovan claimed, "I think the 1983 race will be tight from top to bottom. I wouldn't be surprised to see a team with two losses at least tie for the title. We've gone through the whole league and we just don't see an overwhelming favorite."

Board approves two drugs

BOISE (UPI) — Horses racing in Idaho will be allowed to receive treatment with phenyl butazone and premarin, according to a spokesman for the Idaho Horse Racing Commission.

The two drugs were previously banned in the Gem State, the commission's executive secretary Gary Campbell said Friday.

The new regulation, passed recently by the racing commission, will become effective Monday, Campbell said.

Phenyl butazone is an anti-inflammatory drug that cuts pain in joints by reducing swelling, and premarin is a hormone used to prevent nose bleeds.

Twelve states — including Washington, Oregon and California — now allow trainers to administer the medications to horses racing on their tracks, Campbell said.

"I think it will bring us out of the dark ages and into the mainstream of things," Campbell said. "Horsemen have asked for it for the last several years, and they haven't been allowed to get it."

Commissioner Cy Chase said phenyl butazone "is a therapeutic sort of thing. It's like a person taking an aspirin."

Phenyl butazone has been a controversial drug in some states where its use has been banned by state racing commissions, sometimes resulting in horses being disqualified after tests showed they had traces of the drug in their urine.

Drug regulations vary widely, with a number of drugs that are legal in one state banned by an adjacent state. Horse owners and trainers are sometimes unaware in the differences in regulations, which serves to restrict the number of states in which they compete.

In recent years there has been a movement by state racing commissions to standardize regulations; particularly those dealing with drugs that are commonly used.

A little late

Twin Falls catcher Brock Miller reaches in vain for a wide throw as Carson City's Stacey Kruse crosses the plate during the first game of an American Legion doubleheader at Frontier Field Friday. The Nevadans won the contest 9-2.

Buhl wins opener in state B tourney

EMMETT — A throwing error in the bottom of the 11th inning gave Buhl a 3-2 victory here Friday in the opening round of the Idaho "B" American Legion tournament.

The victory put the Indians into the tournament semifinal today against St. Maries, which defeated host Emmett 11-1 in the other opening-round game of the tournament.

"It was really a well-pitched game all-around," said Buhl coach Joe Sagar. "We wanted to save Darrin (Strickler) for tomorrow (Saturday), but he threw few enough pitches that I think he's able to pitch."

Buhl and St. Maries will meet at 1:30 p.m. in a loser-out contest at 7:30. The winner of that game will play the loser of the earlier game tonight at 7:30. The winner of the night game will take on the victor in today's early game on Sunday at 9 p.m. for the state championship. The second game will be played immediately following the first if the previously unbeaten team loses.

Strickler, now 7-2, was the third Buhl pitcher, throwing the last four innings. He came on after Caldwell had tied the game with two runs in the fifth inning off Mark Munroe, the starter.

Neither team was to score again until the 10th, when Munroe led off with a double. Mike Crowley bunted, trying to move Munroe to third. Catcher Mark Lehman threw to third, too late to catch Munroe, and the third baseman relayed the ball to second in an attempt to catch Crowley. The ball sailed over the second baseman's head into right field, allowing Munroe to score the winning run.

Buhl struck first in the game, coming up with two runs — only one of them earned — in the third inning. Munroe led off with a double, and with one out, Mark Laing contributed a two-base hit, scoring Munroe. James Blackwood then hit a sharp ground ball to the shortstop, who threw the ball over the first baseman's head, allowing Laing to score.

The Silver Streak countered with a pair in the fifth when, with one out, Jim Ehlers singled, Mike Garcia and Jim Garrison walked to lead the bases, and Terry Hoadley followed with a double, scoring both runners.

The Indians missed a chance to put the game away in the seventh when Meyer and Munroe contributed back-to-back singles to lead off the inning. Crowley sacrificed them along to second and third and Laing walked to lead the bases. Blackwood tried the "squeeze bunt," but pitcher Hoadley picked up the ball and threw Meyer out at the plate. Lehman then relayed the ball to first, beating Blackwood to the bag for the double play.

Great expectations

John Elway has quickly become Colorado's most popular tourist attraction

By KEVIN COWHERD
Baltimore Evening Sun

GREELY, Colo. — A storm is moving in from the foothills of the Rockies, thick puffy clouds the color of dishwater racing each other across the afternoon sky.

On a practice field tucked to one side of the University of Northern Colorado, John Elway is leading up the Denver Broncos' shotgun offense. The Broncos installed the shotgun just two days ago and Elway loves it to death. He flirled with the shotgun for a time at Stanford University; this promises to be a more stable relationship.

Yet the wind is picking up now, making the toss of a football more art than science. While the rest of the Broncos gaze uneasily at the angry Colorado sky, a man on the sidelines nudges his companion.

"The wind," the man says knowingly. "Let's see how good Elway is now."

The companion merely nods. Almost 500 spectators still ring the practice field. How many of them are trading the same thought? Elway moves to the line of scrimmage now, all swagger and intensity. Two eyes peer from a facemask, reading the linebackers, studying the deep backs.

"Red-98... Red-98... Hut... Hut, Hut, Hut."

In less than three seconds, the ball is in the air, fighting the gusts. Forty yards downfield, wide receiver Wade Manning has come a man in to the defense, and Elway has found Manning. Forty yards downfield, a spiral you wanted to press against the pages of a book, a perfect pass against a wind blowing hard enough to take your breath away.

The practice field erupts in applause. Some of it comes from Elway's teammates.

John Elway has been in training camp a little over two weeks. And everyone in Colorado is waiting... waiting with a trace of impatience for the Elway Era to begin.

In the first-floor cafeteria at 6:30 in the evening, it is time to get down to business. Spoons and forks are clinking against drinking glasses. The cafeteria falls silent.

Suddenly, a Bronco rookie rises and climbs uncleanly onto the seat of his chair. He has an announcement:

"Hi, Um-Ray-Gone-linebacker, from the University of Colorado. For your listening and dining pleasure, I will now sing the Colorado fight song.

"Will everyone please rise?"

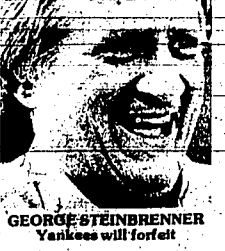

No one rises. Instead, everyone laughs. At a corner table, Elway is working on a taco, piled high with enough meat and lettuce and tomato to pass for a two-story building. A smile makes its way through the meat and the lettuce and the tomato. Elway's a rookie, and

Tar Wars: Steinbrenner won't kiss and make up

GEORGE STEINBRENNER
Yankees will forfeit

By GARY KALE
United Press International

NEW YORK — Having settled the George Brett controversy, American League president Leo MacPhail must now determine when, where and under what conditions the suspended New York-Kansas City game of July 24 is to be played.

The understanding is that if first place hinges on the outcome of the game for either team, a likely date for resumption is Oct. 3, the day after the regular season ends. It will be picked up with two out in the ninth inning and the Royals ahead 5-4.

Both teams have Aug. 18 off and there has been discussion about resuming play, then Yankee owner George Steinbrenner, however, may not agree to such a move.

"I'd rather forget than play on an off-day," he said. "Let's make enough of a mess of this already. I'm not going to let him take away my team's off-day in the middle of a pennant race."

Another factor under MacPhail's consideration is whether Brett can be in the lineup for the suspended game. After hitting his two-run homer in the ninth inning to put the Royals ahead 5-4, Brett was called out because the pine tar on his bat extended beyond the 18-inch limit. Brett was ejected after violently objecting to the call.

MacPhail refused Friday to comment on Steinbrenner's statement that "if the Yankees should lose the Eastern Division race on the ruling of MacPhail, I would not want to be living in New York City. Perhaps he should start house-hunting in Missouri."

Ironically, MacPhail lives in New York, while Steinbrenner makes his residence in Tampa, Fla.

"Lee talked briefly to Mr. Steinbrenner this morning, but I'm not at liberty to reveal what was discussed," said Bob Fishel, secretary and assistant to the AL president.

MacPhail, who planned to leave inter Friday for the weekend Hall of Fame festivities at Cooperstown, N.Y., released Brett's controversial bat for return to the Kansas City third baseman. It will be flown by Emery Air Freight to Detroit so Brett can have it in time for Saturday's game with the Tigers.

Steinbrenner and MacPhail appeared on network television Friday to discuss the Brett controversy and the reversal of the umpire's verdict, an unprecedented move by MacPhail in his 10 years as league president.

"It was a poor decision," said Steinbrenner on NBC's Today show. "I haven't found anybody that really understands the rationale. We have a rule that says it's illegal and he (MacPhail) said the umpire was right in following the rule."

"But now we have something called the spirit of the law. Here is a veteran ballplayer who has been warned several times this year yet continues to flirt with the rule."

Steinbrenner said the least MacPhail should have done was make Brett hit again with a legal bat.

"I'm worried about the future of the umpires," Steinbrenner said. "If they're going to make these tough calls. This was a giddy call but now we have something called the spirit of the law that changes the rules."

M-K trims workforce by 84

BOISE (UPI) — Morrison-Knudsen Co. Inc. discharged 84 employees at its Boise headquarters office Thursday, citing a lower-than-expected workload for the construction and engineering firm.

Company President W.H. McMurren said the layoffs are effective Aug. 12, and termination notices went out Thursday.

A company spokesman said the terminations are considered a permanent reduction in workforce. In addition to the 84 dismissals, 21 other workers were to be transferred to other MK operations, officials said. They said the terminations and transfers — as well as normal attrition — were expected to reduce the company's Boise workforce to 1,645 from almost 2,000 at the beginning of 1983.

The county told commissioners it would cost about $25 million to eventually correct the mill problem.

The horrible trump stack is often the basis for a sad bridge tale. The opposite is true in today's example. Ruth Fremberg of Sunnyvale, Calif. handled a bad stack beautifully to score a difficult game at the ACBL Spring National Championships.

The club jack was won by South's queen and a low trump was led. West's ace devouring dummy's king. With all five trumps with West, how was South to avoid the loss of four trump tricks?

Playing trumps head on wouldn't do, so Ruth had to fall back on a different plan. After winning West's exit with her club she cashed her heart queen and dummy's heart king and then ruffed the heart ace (ruffing the jack would not provide as much compensation for the "king" card as another diamond came next. Ruth ruffing to reduce both West and South to only four trumps.

Ruth now exited with the trump king and West was stuck. Whether he won or ducked, Ruth would score two of the last four tricks to
