Jets pound Chad as U.S. watches

MOAMMAR KHADAFY Sends in more tanks

By United Press International

NDJAMENA, Chad — Libyan warplanes pounded two towns in southern Chad Thursday as Col. Moammar Khadafi sent Soviet-made tanks to aid rebels battling government troops in a northern desert oasis, officials and diplomats said.

In Cairo, the United States rushed two AWACS radar planes to Egypt to monitor closely Libyan military movements in the face of a threat to sink a U.S. aircraft carrier in the Mediterranean, Western diplomatic sources said.

Libyan bombers, backing rebels trying to overthrow President Hissene Habre, raided Oum-Chalouba and Kalati near the Sudanese border for the second consecutive day, said information Minister Soumaila Mahamat.

Aberdhanian Moussa, the Paris spokesman for the rebels led by ousted President Goukouni Weddeye, said the two eastern towns had fallen into rebel hands. Mahamat, however, denied the claim.

Western diplomatic sources said Libyan transport planes had landed in Oum-Chalouba.

They added that sophisticated Soviet-made T-62 and T-72 tanks were rolling across the desert toward Faya-Largeau, the scene of fierce fighting between government troops and rebels.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said "heavy fighting continues in Chad. There are continued air strikes in the area."

The U.N. Security Council Wednesday considered an earlier Chadian allegation of Libyan air attacks on Faya-Largeau, the oasis town some 500 miles from Ndjamena which dominates northern Chad.

Chad said Libyan planes began systematic bombing raids against the town Saturday when Habre's army recaptured the oasis from rebels under the command of deposed President Goukouni Weddeye.

Libya has denied any intervention in the Chadian conflict and has instead accused France, the former colonial power, and the United States of escalating the war.

In Cairo, two U.S. Airborne Warning and Control Systems aircraft arrived a week ahead of schedule. Western diplomatic sources said. The AWACS officially were sent for joint U.S.-Egyptian maneuvers later this month.

The AWACS were dispatched earlier than planned, the sources said, because of the conflict in Chad and tension between Libya and the United States.

Libya threatened Wednesday to attack the U.S. aircraft carrier Eisenhower if it entered the disputed Gulf of Sidra off Libya's coast. Washington rejects Libyan claims. Its territorial waters reach 200 miles into the Mediterranean.

After meeting Zaire President Mobutu Sese Soko in Washington, President Reagan said the United States will not be affected by Libyan threats. "We will hold maneuvers as we always have in international waters," he told reporters.

The eastern Chad towns under Libyan attack command two key roads, one to Faya-Largeau, some 230 miles away, and the other to the capital of Ndjamena via Abeche.

Goukouni's rebels captured the two towns July 9 but were ousted three days later by Habre's army. After regaining control of the vital Canadian east, Habre's troops pushed north and retook Faya-Largeau last weekend.

For 5-week vacation

Congress ends on food issue

By STEVE GERSTEL

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate and House adjourned and left on a five-week vacation Thursday after approving legislation to extend the free surplus food program and protect jobs.

The House approved the legislation by voice vote and sent it to the White House. The Senate approved the bill only hours earlier.

Congress is to return Sept. 12.

The Senate, in a surprise move, adopted a two-part bill that would provide $50 million to continue the food distribution program and authorize $55 million to prevent jobless compensation recipients in some states from losing their supplemental benefits.

The two-year, $50 million authorization for the food program would allow continuation of the program under which surplus cheese, butter, soybeans, flour, rice, dry milk, corn and honey are given to the needy.

The jobs bill would preclude any state from losing more than four weeks of the supplemental benefits compared to the number of weeks paid in other states, unless a labor Department ruling, lost more than four weeks.

An estimated 450,000 jobless — who have either lost or would lose their supplemental compensation — would benefit from the legislation if enacted into law.

Earlier, Senate Republican leader Howard Baker failed to negotiate agreements on dairy or farm target price bills, a $7.6 billion Interior Department appropriations bill, or a revenue sharing measure and finally gave up.

They will be considered in September. The House, only slightly busier, approved a five-year extension of the Civil Rights Commission. It included language making it harder for a president to fire commission members.

But, faced with numerous amendments, the House failed to complete work on legislation to extend and toughen current law on hazardous wastes. The bill was pulled until September.

Sharp contrast to other pre-adjournment sessions, neither the Senate nor the House had to deal with "must" legislation — content to act only on bills that could be approved without acrimony.

Despite two days of negotiations, no agreement was reached on dairy or target prices legislation with the administration refusing to uncouple the two bills.

"High-mindedness has won out," charged Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., saying that failure to pass the new dairy program would cost $1 billion.

Agriculture Secretary John Block failed to break the impasse. Block offered a compromise under which wheat target prices would increase slightly.

But Block insisted the dairy program could not go forward without agreement on the target price bill.

The dairy legislation would provide cash incentives for farmers who reduced their milk output and would put into effect a series of reductions in the milk support price.

Leahy, D-Vt., charging the administration with tying together the destiny of the dairy and target price bills, declared "the dairy matter no longer be hostage. Let dairy be dairy."

"Somebody else (the administration) made this kamikaze attitude that they have to be tied together and go down in flames together."

Shopping mall may change its address

By MARTY TRILLHAASE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Salt Lake City development firm may shift its proposed shopping mall to a site that is more acceptable to Twin Falls city officials.

That possibility surfaced Thursday following a meeting between representatives of the Prime Development Corp. and Tom Couney, the Twin Falls city manager.

The tone of that meeting suggested that one location being considered is another proposed shopping mall site, now owned by the General Growth Corp. of Des Moines, Iowa.

In 1980, the Iowa firm announced plans to build a mall on the Oren Boone property, located northeast of the intersection of Blue Lakes Boulevard and North Pole Line Road.

The Boone property could give Prime what it has been unable to get for its own site — adequate zoning.

But Prime representatives say they have reached no commitment with General Growth or anyone else.

"We're looking at any and all alternate sites just to see if we can get anything going," Bob Paine, a Twin Falls lawyer who represents Prime, said Thursday. "I think the basic thing is the tenants are demanding that we do that because they're saying, 'We want to come to town.'"

For two years, City and Price officials have been locked in a dispute over the company's plan to construct a mall on a 38-acre site, located off Blue Lakes Boulevard North, north of the Green Acres housing subdivision.

City officials have denied the developer's request to rezone seven and a-half acres of residential land for commercial use.

Two other possible mall sites already have obtained the required zoning approval. In addition to the General Growth proposal, officials of the Woodbury Corp. of Salt Lake City have said they plan to build a mall on the John Breckenridge property, southwest of the Blue Lakes Pole Line Road intersection.

As a result of council's denial, Price filed suit against the city. The developer's lawsuit already has made one

The Coral Sea and four escorts will join large-scale military maneuvers in the Caribbean in the Reagan administration's show of force in the area. Some 3,000-4,000 U.S. troops will take part with Honduran forces in land maneuvers.

Japanese doctor says A-bomb saved Japan

By JAN ZIEGLER United Press International

WASHINGTON — The atomic bomb dropped on Hiroshima saved Japan because its military was ready to sacrifice the entire country rather than surrender, a Japanese medical official said Thursday.

Takami, former president of the Japan Medical Association, said the Japanese military managed to override all domestic opposition by 1945 and "had driven Japan to a stage that if it could not win it would surrender."

"If the military surely would have lost the war and many people would have been starved if the atom-bomb had not been dropped."

Takami wrote in the Journal of the American Medical Association. "When one considers the possibility that the Japanese military would have sacrificed the entire nation if it were not for the atomic bomb attack, then this bomb might be described as having saved Japan."

He believes that the majority of Japanese people now agree with my current position," wrote the doctor, who served as medical association president from 1957 to 1962.

Takami, who was studying nuclear physics at the Institute of Physical and Chemical Research in Tokyo when the United States dropped the bomb Aug. 6, 1945, said he and institute researchers knew what caused the explosion as soon as they checked the atomic two days later.

Takami took the date to his gravestone by marriage. Count Makino and told him President Truman had warned that Tokyo would be the next target.

Heat wave ravages Cornbelt

Seaboard and Louisiana floodwaters began to recede.

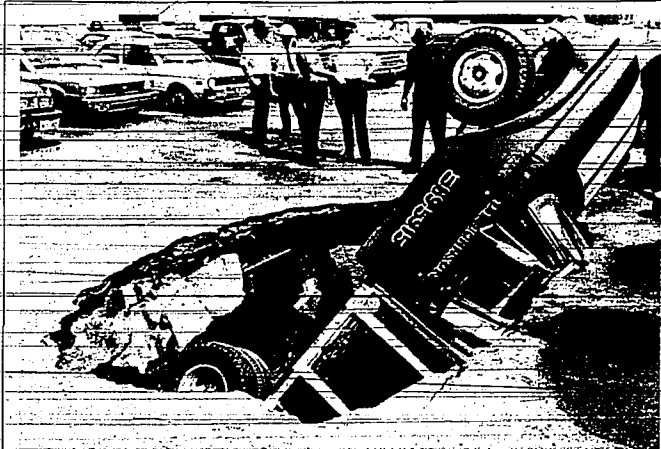

Temperatures throughout the central states were forecast to peak in the 90s and 100s through Friday. The National Weather Service said St. Louis already has recorded 35 days of temperatures of 90 degrees or higher — the normal total for an entire year. "The heat wave is still on," said forecaster Harry Gordon of the National Severe Storms Forecast Center. "The heat wave is here (in the Plains) and that's the place that it doesn't look like they'll have much chance for any rain."

Summer's off-again, on-again heat streaked the nation's midsection Thursday, claiming its 51st victim in the hard-hit St. Louis area and devastating crops in parts of the Corn Belt.

A 77-year-old woman found unconscious in her home became the St. Louis area's latest victim in the heat wave that has killed at least 51 area residents in less than a month and nearly 200 nationwide.

Reagan signs women's day

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, who has had his troubles with activist women this week, proclaimed Aug. 26 Women's Equality Day and called Thursday for appropriate observances to mark the occasion. In his proclamation, Reagan noted that the 19th Amendment, which gave women the right to vote, became law 69 years ago on Aug. 26, 1920. "Since that important milestone in the history of the United States, women have used the ballot just as they have always used their energies and talents — to affect and improve our national life," he said. Reagan went before the National Federation of Business and Professional Women Wednesday to apologize for a snub they received when their scheduled tour of the White House was abruptly canceled and their buses turned away. But Polly Madenwald, BPW president, also took exception to Reagan's speech, remarking about "women's place." "I want you to know I've always recognized it, because I happen to be one who believes that if it wasn't for women, our men would still be walking around in skin suits carrying clubs," he said. His proclamation said: "Women have every reason to be proud of their contributions to every aspect of our society — science, space, government, business, medicine, education, health and the family. And their contributions are growing. "We continue, as a nation, to pursue equal opportunity and rights for all our citizens, granting each person the chance to reach his or her goals." The president strongly opposes the Equal Rights Amendment. White House spokesman Peter Rousell said there was nothing unusual about Reagan issuing the proclamation. "Every president in recent history has put it out."

Block family eats on food stamps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Agriculture Secretary John Block yearned for an ice cream sundae on the weekend and beers and soft drinks on sultry evenings, but he said Thursday a foodstamp budget kept him and his family well fed for a week. Even Shadow, the family's black mongrel dog, ate well. She wolfed down the biscuits that were baked for Sunday's dinner and the family had to settle for bread. Block, a millionaire who owns a 3,000-acre hog, corn and soybeans farm in Illinois, acknowledged "it's impossible to really appreciate the plight of the poor." But he told a news briefing the experiment gave him a greater appreciation and understanding of the food stamp program. He was questioned about eating on $58, the largest food stamp allotment possible for a family of four. Households with large families get smaller allotments. But Block said he wanted to follow the plan recommended for people with no income. Block said "no one" in the family galded or lost weight. "It was good food," he said. "They were the kind of meals I've eaten most of my life, in many cases." The diet included a rump roast, hamburger, chicken, bologna, beef liver, lots of bread, macaroni and several other foods. "The cookies went rapidly, the biscuits and muffins," Block said. On July 23, Block and his wife, Sue, shopped for the week's experiment at a suburban Maryland supermarket. They were followed by a mob of reporters, photographers and television cameras — a hoard that knocked food off the grocery shelves as it passed. The groceries purchased on that trip provided Block, his wife, their daughter, Christy, 16, and Joyce Hamilton, 19, a house guest from Springfield, Ill., three meals a day for a week.

AIDS cases reported already have doubled

ATLANTA (UPI) — The number of cases reported weekly of deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome has more than doubled in the last six months, federal health officials said Thursday. The national Centers for Disease Control said the number of AIDS cases increased to a weekly average of 53 in July, compared to 24 per week last January and 11 per week in July 1982. The daily average of AIDS cases reported to CDC increased from three or four a year ago to nearly eight per day. As of Aug. 1, the CDC said there have been 1,972 AIDS cases reported, with 331, or 17 percent of the total occurring over the last six weeks. Of all patients, 759, or 38 percent, died. Dr. James Allen of the CDC's special AIDS task force said part of the reason for the increasing number of reported AIDS cases was better cooperation by state health departments in reporting the disease. But there also was no doubt about the rising incidence of the ailment, he said. "There are more cases per month being reported today than there were six months ago," he said. Allen said some "exciting leads" were being developed by researchers in their investigation of AIDS. "Tiny bits of evidence continue to fit into place."

Tipsy monkeys are helping research of alcoholic women

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Female monkeys that became alcoholic during a research project developed the same kind of reproductive disorders that affect alcoholic women, scientists reported Thursday. The researchers concluded that use of monkeys in the laboratory may help doctors devise ways to treat and prevent disorders associated with alcoholism in women. Three female monkeys that took daily self-administered alcohol injections experienced the same sort of menstrual disruptions that alcoholic women experience, they said.

The researchers also reported that the study indicated alcohol-induced disruption of the menstrual cycle in humans is a result of alcohol's toxic effects on both the ovaries and parts of the brain that direct the production of a hormone that stimulates ovarian cells. The study, reported in the Aug. 12 issue of Science magazine, was carried out by scientists from the Harvard Medical School's Alcohol and Drug Abuse Research Center and the New England Regional Primate Center in Southborough, Mass.

Proposed city pool needs a bond issue

Should a city launch a private fund drive, like a charity, competing directly with groups like the United Way to raise money for civic projects?

That philosophical question underlies the collision which has been coming the past couple of weeks over the city's idea to raise an estimated $300,000 from private sources to help build a new swimming pool.

The fund-raising campaign is already in the planning stage and would be up and running this fall. Therein lies the conflict with the United Way, which sponsors its own fund-raising effort every autumn.

The United Way last year struggled through its campaign and fell short of its goal, raising about $165,000 in all. Despite an improving economy, few believe that kind of money can be raised again if the city is pushing its pool campaign at the same time.

The Times-News supports the United Way's campaign, and for many years, has had a representative on its board of directors. That, we think, is a reasonable civic contribution. But our participation doesn't bind us to seeing this conflict only from the United Way's perspective.

City officials legitimately are concerned that a bond issue for the pool would fall if put before the voters. Maybe, but we think otherwise. A $500,000 bond issue, spread over 20 years, would add about $7.50 a year to a $50,000 property's assessment. Half of the total $250,000 — has already been set aside. We think the rest could be raised in a bond.

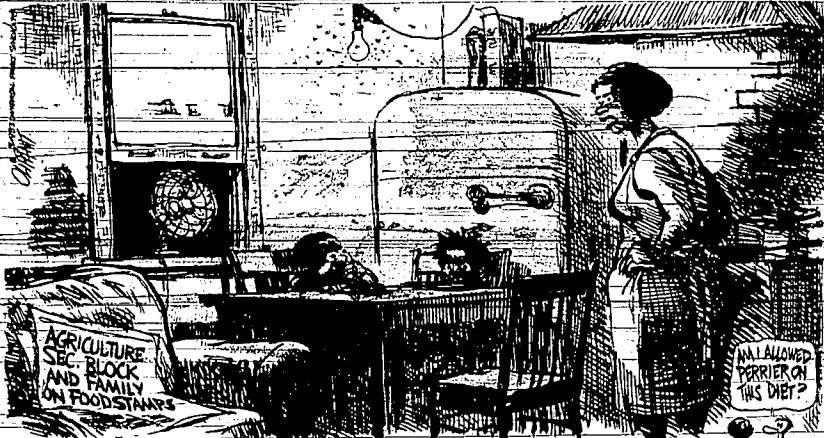

And, if it can't, perhaps that means Twin Falls people don't want a pool as badly as some think. In either case, the people will have had a chance to vote on a civic project involving the expenditure of public funds, up or down. That's how democracy ought to function.

Nor do we see any conflict with a pool bond issue and the school district's tentative plan to put a school bond issue on the ballot again this fall. They are separate projects and we think voters will treat them that way.

In short, we think United Way president Lee Wagner has raised some good points in highlighting the potential collision between a pool fund drive and the United Way's campaign.

We have supported the idea of a new pool from the start, and we still do, but we think the council should re-examine the fund-raising methods. In our judgment, it should look more closely at a bond issue, which we think would stand a good chance of passage.

Such an approach would avoid a head-on collision with both the United Way and other fund raising projects, like the 4-H Fair livestock sale, which depend on private contributions. What it comes down to, in a sense, is that there isn't enough donation money in the community to fund these established projects, plus a pool. Another route should be found.

Winners appear in pack of odd books

BOSTON — As a long-time fan of the book world, I approach each summer eager to read the best-seller lists. After all, it's so much more fun to read the lists than to read the books.

What is new this season is the sudden disappearance of books about the Japanese or about sex. Even Barbara Woodhouse seems to have retired to the doghouse.

True to the spirit of times — conservative — we have a hit list of books about the perennial favorite topics: health and wealth. One hardcover is telling us how to create wealth through real estate and another how to create health through fiber. Jane Fonda is still working out with the women and Charles is working out with men, and George Burns is working out with humor.

The fiction list, for its part, is using its muscle to sell itself. We not only have "The Return of the Jedi," we also have the return of Robin Cook's doctors and Andrew Greeley's priests and Norman Mailer's excesses. The only innovation is the surprising number of horses who have raced to the top of the best-seller.

The way things look, if some future anthropologists were to use the best-seller list of books the fastest starter of our civilization, they would describe a well full of internal national terrorists and bankers who capture former priests and torture them with an anti-life diet.

Having said this, it is clearly time to present you with my own Summer Dog Days Reading List of best (and less) sellers. This annual sample is based once again on such old standbys as personal prejudice.

First on my list and first on anyone's list should be Alice Walker's stunning novel, "The Color Purple." I can't remember a story that pulled me into a life as quickly of made me as reluctant to leave. Her novel gives voice to the lives of poor rural black women and men in all their harshness and strength.

Way up north, in the urban world of the '80s where men and women have relationships and analysts, there are three and three worth making this chart. One of them is Laurie Colwin's "Family Hippopotamus," a novel about the woman who has everything and yet develops "a working interest in what unhappiness might produce." Colwin is at her best this time out, not in talking about men and women but about an individual existence in a thoroughly secure and rigidly ordered family life.

Nora Ephron shuttles the same piece of East Coast turf, but this time it's a family unhappiness. Now that all the literary fuss has died down, guessing who's who in this roman a clef — read "Heartburn" for the pink liners, and the pathos.

Read "August" for Judith Rossner's extraordinary description of the lives of an analyst and a patient, and the month that looms so large in their five years together.

In the non-fiction world, scientists who can write about their business in an engaging way are as scarce as, well, "Hen's Teeth and Horse's Toes." Stephen Jay Gould — who has made this list often enough to have his name retired — is one of them. It is a pleasure to follow his mind in this collection as it wanders through questions of evolution.

creationism, genetics, the workings and politics of science.

My other candidate for the Scientist-Who-Can-Write Award is Lewis Thomas. In the most moving parts of "The Youngest Science," he talks about the growing distance between doctors and patients. In the days when his father was a physician, he writes, "The touching was the real professional secret." Dr. Thomas still has it.

So does Russell Baker. In "Growing Up," Baker has shared all the tastes and smells of his childhood and family, about childhood in an era when it was still a special and separate place, and about the complex and rich relationships between a mother and the son she tried so hard to mold.

While we are on the subject of secrets and psyches, Sissela Bok's book, called simply "Secrets," is about as pristine and finely tuned an ethical discussion of the world of private and public secrets as I've seen.

On the side of revelation, however, another book from the Secredatee Diet-Doc: After Diane Pillsbury's disappointing guide on the Harris trial last year, we have Shmua Alexander's fine piece of reporting on Jean Harris. "Very Much a Lady" — it ends with the headmistress reminding prison clothes off to every child.

Before you retire to the hammock, one last entry on the list. For those who want to know where Reagan is taking the country, avoid all the recent economic and political treatises. Head straight back to the world of Theodore Dreiser. "Sister Carrie" is as good a portrait as any of life without a safety net.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Life can be tough if you own a beach

My good friend Professor Heinrich Applebaum has just done a sociological study on how private beaches affect the average American's vacation. He did it under a grant from the "Life is Unfair Roundup."

Applebaum's study came to some startling conclusions.

"You would think," he told me, "that people who own their own beaches would be twice as happy as those who don't."

"Well, it's not true. My interviews indicate that those who have no rights to a private beach are three and a half times happier than those who do."

He said, "It appears that those who don't own beach front property believe the ocean is public and they have the right to use any beach they want to, even if it's marked 'Private.' In fact, they prefer to use a private beach more than they do a public beach because not only are private beaches nicer but it drives the owners up the wall."

"I should think so. A person with a private beach has better things to do than just sitting on the beach just anybody using it. There are still such things as property rights in this country."

"Public beaches don't believe this," Applebaum said. "They feel that a beach is a beach is a beach and if they can get away with using a private beach rather than a public one, their day is made. This is particularly true of those beaches who will walk miles across dunes, sand and rocks to camp on a piece of property that is of little to them."

Art Buchwald

"That's terrible."

"It's worse than that. I discovered in my studies that as the summer goes by the owners of private beaches start suffering severe mental problems, including depression, paranoia and hysteria. Very few of them can cope with strangers using their beaches. At the end of the summer they are psychological wrecks."

"How so?" I asked.

"Well, they get up in the morning, and the first thing they do is go down to their beach to see if anyone is on it. The thing about private beaches is people use them not only for sunbathing in the daytime, but also at night for other things: if they find their beach has been used at night, if drives the owners crazy. Get off my beach!" they scream at the people wrapped in their blankets.

"Then the beachowners go back to their houses to have breakfast. After breakfast they go back to the beach to see who is on it. If no one has arrived yet, they go into town to buy the papers and shop for groceries. But they are very ill at ease because all the time they're away they keep wondering if anyone is on their beach."

"When they return from town, they immediately go back to the beach to check it out. They sit on a sand dune waiting for the invaders. Some people send their children down to stand guard, and at the first sign of an unauthorized bather the children sound the alarm and everyone goes down to the beach to drive the trespassers off. If the beachowners refuse to move, they have to go back to the bus to call the police. This can run two or three hours."

"It doesn't sound like much fun for the beachowners," I said.

"It isn't. You can't accept lunch dates or go fishing or sailing because they believe as soon as they go someone will walk on their property."

"A person could develop a complex after a while."

"Most of them do," Applebaum said. "They have nightmares, hallucinations and crying jags. They start talking to themselves. And in some cases they even plot murder. If these people don't get treatment, they can become a danger to society."

"Then on the basis of your study you're recommending that people who own waterfront property seek psychiatric help as soon as the summer begins?"

"It's essential," Applebaum said. "A person who owns a private beach at a summer resort is a walking time bomb that could go off at any moment."

Letters/ Another shot in the Walker-Hansen letter duel

Walker wants resignation

Rep. George Hansen should resign. His personal conduct has been such that he is a chronic embarrassment to the residents of the Second District. From his foolish trip to Iran to his continual financial plight which has caused him and his wife to borrow somewhere between $300,000 and $700,000, to his confession of guilt to me in time in 1975, and four court counts of indictment on a second. Surely, George, you have some sense of obligation to your office and to Idaho.

Certainly we deserve, regardless of political party, a representative about whom we can brag and not hang our heads in shame and embarrassment when asked if we are the state which has the representative who does anything and everything for publicity. Yet, most other people do not even know the extent of your criminal problems and non-existent legislative accomplishments.

Certainly the Second District has responsible men and women who can sit in that seat without tarnishing it. It makes little difference if they are Republican, Democrat, conservative or moderate just as long as they have a free vote for Idaho.

Representative Hansen, if you do not resign somewhat gracefully and let a person with decent reputation replace you, the Democrats will win that seat.

This letter apparently ends the written exchange since no one has heard any more from Representative Hansen. Perhaps the next exchange should be a public debate on the obligation of Representative's office.

Coming: a tree for peace

On Aug. 6, 1945, the U.S. dropped an atomic bomb on the city of Hiroshima in Japan. Three days later, a second bomb was dropped on Nagasaki. Both cities were destroyed, and hundreds of thousands of people were immediately killed. Thousands more were badly injured, and the effects were passed on to future generations.

This year the Reagan administration threatens to trigger a similar onslaught on a profoundly greater scale. They are planning to station 572 "cruise" and Pershing II nuclear missiles throughout Europe. The action would increase the possibility of a nuclear conflict that would destroy the continent — and possibly the world.

Throughout Europe, millions of people have marched against the threat of a "Euroshield" that supports for a nuclear Europe. East and West U.S. peace activists have supported these efforts and have called for a halt to other "first strike" nuclear weapons, such as the MX missile and Trident submarine.

As billions of dollars are siphoned away from vital social programs that could provide jobs and services to meet the needs of our people, billions more are spent on these new weapons. Many of our tax dollars are also spent on weapons and advisers to Central America, increasing the involvement of the U.S. in those regional conflicts.

On Aug. 6, 1983, Americans from all walks of life will take part in activities commemorating the bombings of Hiroshima and Nagasaki, expressing our determination to prevent this from ever happening again. We are calling for a halt to plans for stationing "cruise" and Pershing II missiles in Europe, and for the immediate withdrawal of our military to programs meeting human needs and an end to military involvement in foreign conflicts.

On Saturday, the Magic Valley Snake River Alliance will donate and plant a peace tree with plaque at Twin Falls City Park, with prayers for peace in the future.

Join with us in affirming hope rather than despair and life instead of nuclear destruction. Remembrance is not enough. Together we must prevent Euroshield.

Poverty is not a surprise

On 11 came as such a surprise ... not only to President Reagan, but to the media as well. One in five children in the U.S. are starving. The press could have found this out by going to the public library. They would have found out that here in Idaho, for example 38 percent of the unemployed have run out of "employment benefits."

Now how do you suppose that people are eating if no money is coming in?

Mr. President, get down with the common man. The media, stop getting all your news from the wire services.

Fire crew climbs peaks to battle blaze

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

Part of a firefighting force scrambling to extinguish blazes sparked by a lightning storm hiked up steep terrain to the 3,000-foot level in a central Idaho fire today to battle flames spreading through dead trees and leaves.

Six hundred firefighters in southern Oregon joined the effort in a fire that had charred an estimated 100,000 acres of range, the Bureau of Land Management said.

Crews in Nevada, Oregon, California and Idaho mopped up other blazes in a series of lightning-caused fires that have blackened more than 180,000 acres in the West.

Arnold Hartigan, spokesman for the National Interagency Fire Center in Boise, said 9,896 range and forest fires in the United States this year — most in the West — have burned more than a million acres.

In Idaho's Salmon-National Forest, helicopters buzzed low to dump water on the Warm Springs Creek blaze 20 miles south of Salmon in the higher reaches of the forest.

Helicopter crews also dropped lunches to a half-dozen firefighters who had hiked uphill nearly two miles to tackle the blaze with shovels, said Jim Stone, a Forest Service spokesman at Salmon.

The fire had covered less than an acre, but Stone said it was burning down into a five-foot-deep layer of rotten wood and leaves, making it harder to extinguish.

"It's pretty deep in there," Stone said. "It goes down about five feet from the surface. It's definitely a longer, more tedious and more dangerous operation. It's a little too hot to dig down into, so we have to rely mostly on the helicopters to dump water on it. Then the ground crews chase the sparks around until they have it under control."

He said the fire was surrounded by heavy timber and could spread rapidly if it escaped the "duff," or deadwood, area. But he said crews believed they would be able to contain the blaze within a day.

Official: Reagan study on women misleading

BOISE (UPI) — State officials said Thursday a federal news release showing a 94.6-percent increase in the number of professional women in Idaho is misleading and may be a Reagan administration attempt to appeal to female voters.

The Census Bureau, in a press release Thursday, said a new report shows the number of female professionals and managers in Idaho rose from 16,225 in 1970 to 31,599 in 1980 for the 94.6-percent increase.

However, a Census official said those figures may be misleading because, standing alone, they don't show the entire picture for women in management and professional occupations.

John Friebe, a statistician for the agency, said other department figures show 18.1 percent of all women employed in Idaho in 1970 were managers or professionals. That figure compares to 20.6 percent in 1980, he said.

Hearing set on phone rates

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has scheduled a public hearing next month on whether phone customers in the state should be forced to pay an extra charge for in-state long distance calls.

The Federal Communications Commission ordered an "access charge" be levied for interstate calls, but Idaho regulators challenged that fee in a recent order.

The hearing, scheduled for 9:30 a.m. Sept. 27 in Boise, may include findings of an investigation into interstate access charges being conducted by the PUC staff and Idaho phone companies.

The Mountain Bell Co. ruling last month said the interstate charges should be optional so Idaho customers who do not make out-of-state calls do not have to pay the fee.

The PUC is now trying to decide whether to impose a similar access charge for in-state calls and how much those fees should be.

The charges would help local phone companies for the cost of transmitting long-distance calls, PUC spokeswoman Dana Howard said.

A young Sri Lanka looter gets whipped by soldiers

Violence blamed on coup

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (UPI) — President Julius Jayewardene charged Thursday that ethnic violence that killed 267 people and rendered nearly 30,000 homeless formed the first stage of an attempted coup against his government.

Armed security forces patrolled the capital and other Sri Lankan cities during the dust-to-dust curfew in the picturesque Indian Ocean nation, formerly known as Ceylon.

For the fourth straight day, there were no reports of violence in the capital, but some railway lines were disrupted in the north, the stronghold of the Tamil minority that has been the target of much of the violence.

The clashes, which began July 23 with the murder of 13 soldiers in northern Sri Lanka, pitted the predominantly Buddhist Sinhalese against the mostly Hindu Tamils.

Robot fixes nuke plant leak

TORONTO (UPI) — Efforts to remove radioactive fuel from a crippled nuclear reactor were hampered Thursday because robots needed for the task were damaged when the unit sprang a leak, Ontario Hydro officials said.

Spokesmen for the provincial utility said that before 12 nuclear fuel bundles could be removed from one of five reactors at its nuclear station in suburban Pickering, technicians would have to repair two remote-controlled fuelling machines that suffered electrical damage when super-heated steam and water burst from a pressure tube Monday.

Since the incident, about 50 gallons of radioactive heavy water has spilled every minute from the 20-foot-long tube which contains the fuel. The reactor is of a Canadian design that uses heavy water.

Hydro officials said the water, several feet deep in a sump inside the reactor vault, was being pumped back through the reactor to cool the nuclear core.

Robert Popple, assistant director of Hydro's nuclear generation division, said because the heavy water, also called deuterium, was contained inside the 4-foot-thick, reinforced walls of the reactor vault, there was no danger to the public or Hydro workers.

Soviets set to boycott chess

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soviet chess federation said Thursday its two contenders for the world championship will boycott semifinals in Pasadena, Calif., and in Abu Dhabi — a move that risks disqualification.

The statement came after 20-year-old Garry Kasparov, the world's No. 2 player, appealed for his match against Soviet defector Viktor Korchnoi to be moved out of Pasadena.

Phantom group claims to hold Emanuela

ROME (UPI) — A phantom anti-Christian group claiming to hold kidnapped 15-year-old Emanuela Orlandi threatened Thursday to kill the girl by Oct. 30 if the Turk who shot Pope John Paul II is not released from prison.

Police sources in Rome said investigators were not giving the letter much credence but they had to follow up every lead in the bizarre kidnapping.

The group, which identified itself as the Turkish Anti-Christian Liberation Front, also provided what they called "proof" they were holding Emanuela, the daughter of a papal messenger who vanished June 22.

"Our prisoner Emanuela Orlandi will undergo immediate execution the Christian day of Oct. 30," said a registered letter sent by special delivery to the Milan office of the Italian news agency ANSA.

A spokesman at the Turkish Embassy said the group was unknown in Turkey. "No one has every heard of any such group at all," said the spokesman.

"I think a lot of people are just trying to take advantage of the situation of this poor girl, using whatever name they want and making whatever demands they can think of," he said.

Israel pullout not secured

By United Press International

Israel Thursday rejected Beirut's demand for a timetable of Israel's total withdrawal from Lebanon, but U.S. envoy Robert McFarlane said his talks with Prime Minister Menachem Begin produced the "promise of progress" nonetheless.

McFarlane raised the Lebanese request in two days of talks in Jerusalem, a senior Israeli official said, and carried the Israeli refusal back to the Beirut government.

He later met for two hours with Lebanese Foreign Minister, Elie Salem and President Amin Gemayel's national security adviser Wadhi Haddad. State-run Beirut radio said the Lebanese refused to discuss any withdrawal as long as it is not complete.

Socialists in office end Italian crisis

By PEGGY POLK
United Press International

ROME — President Sandro Pertini swore in Bettino Craxi Thursday as prime minister of Italy's first socialist-led government, ending a 97-day government crisis.

If Craxi, 49, wins an expected vote of confidence from Parliament next week, Europe's Mediterranean coast will be ringed with Socialist-led governments. France, Spain, Greece and Portugal have also chosen Socialist prime ministers since May 1981.

The 45-year-old Pertini gave the oath of office to Craxi and 27 of his ministers in a ceremony at the Quirinale Palace only hours after the Socialist leader submitted the names of his five-party, center-left coalition, which will form Italy's 44th post-war government.

A brief hitch developed when Michele Di Gesi, the Social Democrat named as minister for regional affairs, failed to show up and instead sent a letter declining the post.

The job is "prestigious but merely ceremonial" and he could be "more useful" working in his party, Di Gesi said.

With Craxi's apparent approval, Social Democrat leader Pietro Longo gave the post by telephone to party member Pier Luigi Romita, who had been minister for scientific research.

Craxi himself stepped earlier in the day when he forged his newly created post of minister for the environment as he read the list of government members before television cameras.

Days of hard bargaining produced a balance of 16 Christian Democrats, five Socialists, three Republicans, four Social Democrats and two Liberals. Thirteen ministers were holdovers but only three of them in the same posts they held in the previous government under Christian Democrat Amintore Fanfani.

The new prime minister will go before Parliament Tuesday to present his program and seek a vote of confidence. Political analysts said Craxi's government is virtually certain to confirm Craxi's government — only the third led by anyone other than a Christian Democrat.

Informer's case triggers death threats

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — Trying to silence terrorist terrorists, Irish Nationalists threatened Thursday to kill three kidnapped relatives of an informer if he did not withdraw evidence against 10 former associates.

The threat was made by the Irish National Liberation Army, a Marxist offshoot of the illegal Irish Republican Army, against informer Harry Kirkpatrick, whose sister and stepfather disappeared from their vacation home in Ireland.

Kirkpatrick's wife, Elizabeth, was kidnapped from her Belfast home three months ago and nothing has been heard of her since.

Kirkpatrick, a senior INLA man, is serving five life sentences for more than 70 terrorist offenses including five murders. He reportedly has given information on 18 former associates.

The INLA threat came as Ulster's longest trial wound to a close, with 35 people convicted of murder or membership in the Irish Republican Army based solely on the evidence of one IRA informer.

The INLA, in a statement to a reporter, said it would issue a deadline soon for Kirkpatrick to withdraw his evidence. "Failure to have done so will result in the immediate execution of all the relatives," the caller said.

Irish police fear the INLA claims are true since the Kirkpatrick's holiday home was found empty Thursday with the front door forced open.

In Belfast Crown Court Thursday, four men implicated by IRA informant Christopher Black in two murders were jailed for life.

Regan's future safety dubious in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — An opposition leader Thursday warned President Reagan against playing footsie with a dictator and said the U.S. leader's safety could not be ensured during his November visit with President Ferdinand Marcos.

Former Sen. Salvador H. Laurel, president of a coalition of 12 opposition parties, said there was rising anti-American feeling in the Philippines due to Reagan's support for Marcos.

Laurel issued the warning after the government said it refused travel documents to Marcos' exiled rival Benigno Aquino Jr. because it uncovered an assassination plot which made it impossible for the government to protect him.

Aquino, a former presidential candidate, wants to end three years of self exile in the United States.

"If this government with 350,000 soldiers, with a president with martial law powers, cannot protect the person of Sen. Benigno Aquino, how can it claim that it will be able to protect the person of President Reagan when he comes in November?" Laurel asked at a news conference.

"There are probably more people who are anti-American or anti-Regan now because of the pro-Marcos posture of Mr. Reagan," Laurel said. He said Reagan was "in greater danger" than Aquino.

Laurel said Reagan is eyeing reelection in 1984 "so he doesn't want to antagonize the 700,000 Filipino voters in the United States who may not like (him) playing footsie with a dictator whose human rights record is very bad."

Opposition leaders said the alleged plot against Aquino was a Marcos ploy to keep his archival out of the country until he can be jailed with minimal embarrassment.

Aquino, 50, faces a death sentence in the Philippines on what he says were trumped up charges.

Scottish adventurer crosses Atlantic in smallest boat

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — After 55 days at sea, Scottish adventurer Tom McClean sailed into Spanish waters Thursday in the smallest boat ever to cross the Atlantic.

His bathtub-sized dinghy Gillispur, just 7-feet 9 inches from stem to stern, was sighted in Spanish waters just north of Portugal, port authorities at Lajes in Portugal's Azores region said.

Portuguese maritime authorities messaged shipping in the area to be on the look-out for the lone sailor and two Portuguese naval vessels were on alert for the craft.

McClean seemed certain to regain the record for the smallest craft to cross the Atlantic.

He left St. John's Newfoundland 55 days ago bound for Falmouth England, but the weather blew him off course in the final stages of the voyage.

McClean, a former British Special Air Services commando who runs an adventure training center on the west coast of Scotland established the record last year when he made the crossing in a 9-foot 9-inch craft.

But he was beaten out of the record books by American Wayne Dickenson who completed the crossing last winter in an 8-foot 11-inch boat called God's Tear.

Even before he reaches land, another Englishman is planning to challenge McClean. Tom McNally, 46, flew to Canada this week to prepare to make the trip in a 6-foot 10-inch craft.

"The Big G," his trip, in a boat just 11 inches bigger than himself, will be in aid of cancer research.

County plans demise of across-board raises

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — At next week's Republican Central Committee meeting, the Twin Falls County Commissioners will outline a series of substantial changes concerning how they deal with their employees.

Chief among those changes is an end to the yearly across-the-board salary increase. The commissioners say the 15 percent wage hike given the county's 110 employees last month will be the last of its kind.

Next year, county employees will face such things as merit pay increases, job descriptions, a personnel and procedures manual, and a salary schedule.

"The people who will be getting raises next year will be the ones who have proven that they can do an outstanding job," says Commissioner Judy Felton. "We won't be sitting here saying every employee gets $40. We will still be approving raises. But we will be approving raises on the basis of job performance, not time on the job."

The county GOP Central Committee will meet next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in the Twin Falls County Judicial Building.

The session will come roughly one week before the county releases its tentative 1983-1984 budget. That budget, which will take effect Oct. 1, contains $150,000 in salary increases. The increase falls within the yearly 5 percent budget increase allowed county governments under the One Percent Initiative. Exempted from the increase will be part-time employees, who will be tied to minimum wage.

Employee salaries consistently have been a thorny issue for the county commissioners. For years salaries in Twin Falls County lagged behind the pay rates found in similarly sized county and city offices in the state. The situation almost led to an initiative drive last year before disgruntled sheriff's deputies decided to wait out the budget-making process for another year.

But the decision to increase salaries by 15 percent has left others dissatisfied. Critics contend the increase is too high, considering the economy. They also have taken issue with the fact that the commissioners extended the increase to their own paychecks. The commissioners have expressed that the comparatively low salaries paid to Twin Falls employees — coupled with the commissioners' new authority to set their own salaries independently of the Legislature — created a need for what they have termed a one-time corrective action.

"It is a one-time, substantial raise to correct the trend of the drastically low salaries here," Felton says.

Without such action, the county could expect

Sweepers also work Street resurfacing diverts motorists

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Motorists who normally cruise Twin Falls' wide Shooshone Street on their way to work were brought up short Thursday, just south of North Five Points.

Instead of a broad, three-lined expanse of pavement, they found further travel abruptly blocked by a row of bright orange and white barricades.

Similarly strange things were happening in nearby residential areas. Two large, yellow street sweepers were making their way in tandem up and down several of the quiet streets, cleaning sticks and debris from the gutters and the driving surface.

Twin Falls has begun its summer seal-coating program. Residents should expect to see the street closure barricades and the bright yellow sweepers for another two weeks if all goes as planned, says city engineer Gary Young.

The work must be done each summer if the streets are to be kept from cracking and deteriorating, he says.

Generally, seal-coating work goes fairly fast once it is under way. Crews come and go in a matter of hours, he said.

The sweepers, which clean the streets in preparation for a new layer of oil and chips, must stay a day ahead of the main crew.

"If people see the big sweepers on their street one day, they can be assured the seal-coaters will be there the next," Young says.

Then later, the sweepers will be back to clear up the excess chips, he says.

No cars will be allowed to park on a street before the crews move in. Notices will be left on the houses along streets targeted for work, telling residents to move their vehicles the following day, he says.

If the vehicles are not moved, they will be towed around the block so the work may continue. Some towing is unavoidable, Young says.

Shooshone is the busiest street that is scheduled to be done this year, he says. But the parking lot at the airport also is scheduled. At this point, Young says it is impossible to say on which day that work will be done.

Since there are always cars parked there, however, it almost certainly will require a one-time mass towing.

Plans September drive

Health-care group seeks membership

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Memorial Health Care Foundation is a motion and ready to launch a membership drive in September, says President Jack Muldoon.

The foundation, which was re-activated this spring, has elected officers and organized five standing committees.

Curtis T. Eaton, the president of Twin Falls Bank and Trust, will serve as vice president, and Joe Milliken, an associate professor at the College of Southern Idaho, will be the secretary. Elaine Phillips, the chairman of the Twin Falls Republican Central Committee, will be treasurer.

The foundation will hold fund-raising drives to help Magic Valley Regional Medical Center with improvement projects, such as equipment purchases.

The group also will provide a vehicle to assess community health-care needs and to meet those needs, Muldoon says.

"Public health is fundamental to the well-being of a community. The foundation would like to contribute to the spiritual and economic well-being of the community," he says.

A hotline for senior citizens, which would inform the hospital of any problems, could be one project the foundation will undertake, Muldoon says.

Another top priority for the foundation will be to improve communication between the hospital and the community, he says. The group could sponsor a publication that would keep people informed of what is going on at the hospital, he says.

The foundation is not going to limit its focus to fund-raising, but it will present ideas on how to improve communications to the hospital board, Muldoon says.

The group, which now has 70 members, was started in 1978 by James "Doc" Taylor, the late president of the College of Southern Idaho. Taylor's illness and the change of management at MVMHC slowed the foundation's activities.

The group is planning a tree-planting ceremony in September after the hospital's multi-year remodeling project is completed, Muldoon says.

Anyone interested in joining the foundation should contact Muldoon at Penu Wise Drugs in Twin Falls or Sue Summers in the hospital's community-relations department.

Sharon Walker and Miwako Tasaki teamed up to prepare some culinary delights for a birthday dinner Thursday night.

Moms are moms everywhere

After caring for each other's children, two mothers finally meet

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Miwako Tasaki, 36, of Nagasaki, Japan, had never been to America — let alone Twin Falls — before two weeks ago, but she instantly recognized Sharon Walker's house south of Twin Falls.

And Walker, 43, who has never set foot in Japan, is intimately familiar with the arrangement of Tasaki's living room and kitchen.

That's because the Walkers and the Tasakis have raised each other's children as part of an exchange program that has lasted 10 years.

Wendy Walker, 25, started the chain in 1973. She visited the Tasakis for five weeks as a 4H exchange student.

Wendy enjoyed the Tasaki family and Japan so much that her younger brothers and sisters — Heidi, Billy and Skip — followed her to the Tasaki home in subsequent years.

And the Tasakis must have been impressed with the Walkers, for they sent their children packing the other way. Heidi visited the Walkers in 1974, and her brother, Yoshio, followed in 1975.

On July 29, the two women, who previously had seen each other only in photos, met for the first time in the Boise airport. The exchanges, which had involved numerous letters, phone calls and gifts, left the two women teeming like sisters.

Tasaki had just completed a marathon air trip that involved connections in Fukuoka, Tokyo, Los Angeles and San Francisco, but she said she wasn't tired. "I felt like I was going home."

Although Tasaki lives in a crowded seaport city and Walker lives on a 200-acre plot surrounded by cows, horses and dogs, the two have much in common.

Both are housewives who have been involved heavily in youth activities.

Walker was involved with 4H when her were children were younger, and now, she is an avid Twin Falls "Bruin" booster. Both Walker and Tasaki were sporting high-school booster buttons as they talked about their reunion.

Tasaki is a leader in a folklore group called Cultural Association of Story-Tellers. And as part of her trip, she chaperoned five boys from the group to Idaho to stay with various host families.

Each year, the 174-member club, which was founded by a group of Twin Falls women in 1908, makes such contributions.

They are in keeping with the increasingly civic nature of the organization, says Eric Harper, this year's club president. In the early years, the club was oriented more toward sponsoring lectures and cultural events, he says.

The money comes from interest earnings on the club's $12,500 investment. At one point, the group began saving money to build a clubhouse. But when that project was scrapped, club members decided to donate the interest on the fund to worthy community projects, says Marjorie Langdon, a club member who serves on the group's real-estate board.

The club donations go to visible, tangible projects, Harper says. "Every year, for years and years, there has been a park project," she says. This year, all $2,400 in donated interest went to parks, she says.

Also this year, money went to the Ed Woods Memorial Pavilion and a flower bed, both in Rock Creek Park, which is operated by Twin Falls County.

The group has made significant contributions to Rock Creek Park since it was developed by the county several years ago.

Director set to leave Gooding alcohol center

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

GOODING — The man who "put a lot of heart" into Walker Center will be leaving next month.

Carl Bergstrom, 49, will step down Sept. 1 as the director of the Walker Center for Alcoholism and Chemical Dependency Treatment. He will take a job in the Oregon offices of St. Benedict's Hospital, which operates a rehabilitation center and the alcoholism-treatment programs in Utah.

Bergstrom, who has been director for five years, first arrived when Walker Center was about 18 months old.

The center, which offers a residential treatment program, then was located in the old state tuberculosis hospital. Its financial situation was "shaky" and dependent on contracts from the state, he says. There were "holes" in the treatment program. In addition, the center lived under the threat of being kicked out of the building to make room for a proposed women's prison.

"Well, we've come a long way," Bergstrom said Thursday.

In 1981, the center hit a milestone as its operation was acquired by St. Benedict's, a non-profit hospital.

Without the acquisition, the center never would have reached the status it has achieved, Bergstrom says. The licensing of the facility as a hospital occurred through St. Benedict's "leadership and guidance," he says.

Today, the center is "highly recognized by the health community in southern Idaho," Bergstrom says. It has improved its programs, reached out into the Magic Valley and added an excellent family treatment program, the director believes.

This fall, it will move into a $1.2 million wing at Gooding County Memorial Hospital, as part of an agreement to expand its operation and provide service to the hospital.

"I'm sorry to be leaving. I'm proud of what's happened here and of my involvement." But Bergstrom says that many others, such as its board of directors, the community, the staff and the clients, are responsible for the center's progress.

"They really are what this success story is all about."

Archie Walker of Bliss, the board chairman of the facility that bears his name, says Bergstrom "put a lot of heart" in the program and will be missed.

"I'm happy for him, but sad for us," he said Thursday.

At his new job, Bergstrom will supervise St. Benedict's outreach treatment operations in Idaho and Utah. His job also will include promoting public awareness about the treatment programs and helping communities establish their own programs.

No one has been hired to fill Bergstrom's position.

Women's group buys shelter for picnics at Sunrise Park

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sunrise Park in Twin Falls will have a new picnic shelter in several weeks, due in part to a contribution from a local women's organization.

The Twentier Century Club, one of the oldest clubs in Twin Falls County, has donated $900 to the city for the open shelter.

It is being built on the site where an old municipal storage building recently burned down, according to Chad Browning, the city's parks and recreation director.

He says the balance of the roughly $2,400 the picnic shelter will cost will come from an insurance settlement from the fire.

Each year, the 174-member club, which was founded by a group of Twin Falls women in 1908, makes such contributions.

They are in keeping with the increasingly civic nature of the organization, says Eric Harper, this year's club president. In the early years, the

Charges pending in shooting

SHOSHONE — The identity of a Shoshone woman who fired two pistol shots into her husband on Wednesday and then surrendered to sheriff's deputies 30 minutes later remained unknown Thursday.

Doug Rose, the Lincoln County Prosecutor, said the couple will not be identified unless charges are filed. And he said he does not anticipate making that decision before Tuesday.

"If we don't file charges Wednesday, we see the name brought into a criminal prosecution or his name brought into a criminal prosecution," Rose said. "Suspects' names routinely are withheld in Lincoln County prior to the filing of criminal charges, Rose said.

The victim, who suffered elbow and leg wounds, was treated at a doctor's office and then released. By Thursday, he had moved in with friends in Hayden, Rose said. The woman was not jailed and reportedly went to live with family in Jerome.

The shooting occurred outside the couple's house, located a mile west of Shoshone, at about 11 a.m. Rose said the weapon was a .22-caliber pistol. An unidentified individual took the victim to the doctor's office. All the time, the woman surrendered to the sheriff's office.

"She started to tell the sheriff what had happened. We immediately informed her of her rights and provided her with a public defender," Rose said.

Lincoln County public defender Wesley Woodall said the couple had a history of domestic violence.

The couple had moved to their home about a month ago, he said.

Self-defense is one possible explanation for the shooting, since authorities suspect the couple had a history of domestic violence.

Rose said he is seeking information from other police agencies concerning the background of the couple.

The prosecutor indicated that charges probably will be filed in the case.

"We're not sure what the charges may be at this point," he said.

high turnover, making it, in essence, a training ground for other local governments, Patton says. That's another thing that Twin Falls County can no longer afford to do, given its growing reliance on computers and a steadily shrinking number of employees, she says.

"When you're paying less for a job than anyone else in the area, unless an employee has an unusual amount of loyalty, it can be assumed that the employee will apply for the higher-paying position," she says. "If you're always working with new people and training them, you don't have much job efficiency."

While the salary increase may be the top issue in the 1983-1984 budget, the commission also wants to draw attention next week to what it has in mind for the 1984-1985 budget.

In short, it is a package of changes, designed to standardize county personnel procedures. Among those changes are:

- Policy and procedures — Adopted earlier this summer, the document incorporates state and federal civil rights laws, county policies such as vacation and sick leave, and employee grievance procedures.
- Job description — Recently completed, this manual outlines the responsibilities of each job within the county.

- Salary range — County officials are in the process of comparing the salaries paid Twin Falls County employees with the wages of the state's largest counties. Based on that study, the commissioners plan to link each employee to a salary range. The flip side of that concept involves salary freezes for any employee whose wage already exceeds the maximum pay level.
- Inventory — For the first time, county officials have begun counting their office chairs, typewriters and other equipment. The inventory is designed to eliminate costly duplicate purchases and allow the county to sell unneeded items.

the kitchen and take a look at other parts of the state.

The Walker family took Tasaki on a weekend camping trip in the Sawtooths.

Yoshio, who is studying natural resource management at Kyoto University, enjoyed backpacking in the wilderness. And the Walkers wanted to give his mother a chance to take a look at the area with which her son was so impressed.

Tasaki was scheduled to go to Yellowstone National Park, but she was scoured off by the recent death of a camper in a bear attack.

She considered Arco a safer destination. With the help of Heidi Walker, currently an Arco resident, Tasaki put on a Japanese program for 24 children at the public library. She introduced the children to origami, the Japanese art of paper-folding, showed pictures and answered questions.

American children find origami difficult, but they are curious about Japan, she says.

Walker now is hoping to tour Nagasaki. But she says a rendezvous with the Tasaki family in Hawaii would be a more realistic goal.

Mother faces kidnap charge

TWIN FALLS — A 20-year-old Twin Falls woman has been charged with kidnaping her two young children.

Margie Brannon, of 430 Second Ave. E., was arraigned Thursday in Fifth District Magistrate Court on a charge of first-degree kidnaping. The charge was filed after the woman allegedly took her children, who were in the custody of the Department of Health and Welfare.

Health and Welfare officials had allowed Brannon custody of the children, ages 2 and 11 months, for one night each week, according to a probable cause statement filed with the court.

The children were left with their mother on July 28. When DHW officials returned to her home on July 29, Brannon allegedly had disappeared with the children.

The children were recovered earlier this week.

Brannon is free without bail.

With the help of Heidi Walker, currently an Arco resident, Tasaki put on a Japanese program for 24 children at the public library. She introduced the children to origami, the Japanese art of paper-folding, showed pictures and answered questions.

American children find origami difficult, but they are curious about Japan, she says.

Market average plunges to 3-month nadir

High-tech issues take a beating at hands of traders

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
OF Business Writer

NEW YORK—Despite a late burst of buying, the stock market plunged along a broad front to a 3½-month low Thursday after a prominent economist predicted interest rates would rise over the next several months.

High-technology stocks were battered after Tandy Corp. reported sharply lower July sales figures than experts had anticipated.

The Dow Jones industrial average, down 27 to 1,169 at mid-afternoon, gave up 14.73 to 1,183.09, the lowest level since it closed at 1,174.54 on April 18. Although it rose 8.82 Wednesday, the Dow has fallen 60.60 since July 26.

The Dow was operating at a 2-point handicap since Allied Corp., Bethlehem Steel, IBM and California Standard traded minus their dividends.

Several technical analysts were encouraged that the closely watched average managed to close above the 1,180 level. But others said the late paring of losses amounted to big investors replacing borrowed shares sold earlier.

The New York Stock Exchange Index dropped 1.10 to 33.33 and the price of an average share of 100 common stocks—Standard & Poor's 500-stock index shed 2.11 to 161.33. Declines routed advances

1,192-411 among the 1,969 issues traded.

Big-Rogers volume swelled to 100,870,000 shares and $180,370,000 Wednesday, the heaviest turnover since 199.3 million changed hands July 20, as institutions bailed out of wide range of stocks now that values on bonds have risen sharply.

"I don't think the long-term bond market has changed—but the long-expected correction (or pullback) has arrived," said Harold Ehrlich of Bernstein & MacCaulay. "There is no reason why the market should not come down after rising 20 percent in almost a straight line over the past year."

First Boston economist Albert Wajnflower triggered the rout by forecasting a boost in federal funds rates, to 10½ to 11 percent, a rising Fed discount rate and a 13 percent yield on long-term bonds by the end of the year.

The bond market, which had been in a mild rally following the government's rather successful sale of $1.25 billion worth of 10-year notes Wednesday, went into a steep decline following Wajnflower's comments.

Several analysts said the government's record $15.75 billion sale of note and bonds this week was more than the market could bear.

Banclex Corp. of Dallas did hike its key charge to 11 percent from the prevailing 10½ percent level.

But no other major bank followed.

"I think higher interest rates will hurt the economy," said Ricky Harrison of Interstate Securities, Charlotte, N.C. "But I don't think the higher charges will kill the recovery."

Composite volume of NYSE issues traded on all U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 119,806,450 shares compared with 94,255,110 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange Index skidded 3.90 to 230.76 and the price of a share fell 2½ cents. Declines routed advances 506-142 among the 821 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 8,588,250 shares compared with 7,777,070 Wednesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers Index of OTC stocks lost 4.15 to 299.70.

On the trading floor, Tandy Corp was the third most active NYSE-listed issue, off 2½ to 42½. The company's 8 percent increase in July sales was about 7 percent less than analysts had anticipated.

Among the other high-technology issues, IBM (ex-dividend) lost ¾ to 119½; Commodore International 1¼ to 42½; Warner Communications ¾ to 21½; National Semiconductor 1¼ to 49½; and Texas Instruments ¾ to 106¾.

Also General Electric lost 1¼ to 48½; Honeywell 2 to 115½; Motorola ¾ to 136¼; NCR ¾ to 117¼; Sperry Corp. 1¼ to 42½; and Teletype 2 to 133¾.

Study: Auto industry to need workers

By MICHELENE MAYNARD
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT—Car production in the United States and Canada should increase 10 percent in the coming year, resulting in 75,000 more auto-related jobs, a study predicted Thursday.

The new survey by Chase Econometrics, a Pennsylvania-based forecasting firm, also predicted the current demand for large cars will fall off after 1983 and that more small cars will be produced.

The Chase forecast said production in North America this year should end up at about 7.5 million cars. This is up 17 percent over last year's depressed levels, which were the worst since the late 1970s.

In 1984, production should hit 8.6 million cars or 16 percent, James Bowling, director of automotive production forecasting, said.

"This is extremely good news in terms of employment in the industry," he said. "It means that some 75,000 workers in the auto and supplier industries will either be called back to their old jobs or hired to fill newly created positions."

Bowling said the firm expects automakers in the coming year to concentrate more on front-wheel drive, smaller cars and to curb production of larger, rear-wheel drive cars that have been very popular this year.

Currently, small cars make up 21.8 percent of production. Mid- to full-size cars account for 55 percent, sporty cars 8.4 percent and specialty cars 14.8 percent.

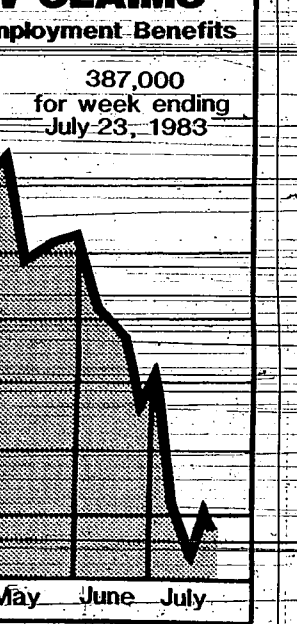

The Chase forecast expects small cars to grow in 1984 to 22.5 percent of production. Larger cars will make up 54 percent, sporty models 8.5 percent and specialty cars 15 percent.

One reason for the 0.7 percent increase in small car production is that Honda plans to accelerate its Marysville, Ohio, plant to full capacity next year. The 1 percent decline in large car production is due to General Motors Corp.'s plans to drop its Chevrolet Malibu model.

The Chase study pointed out each of the major automakers is adding front-wheel drive models. Many are dropping old rear-wheel drive designs.

Ford has replaced its Fairmont and Zephyr models with the Tempo and Topaz. Chrysler this fall will introduce the Daytona and Laser sports cars and will drop the Corbado, Mirada and Imperial.

Dollar soars against foreign currencies

By MARY TOBIN
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK—The dollar bolted to record and near-record levels against major currencies Thursday in response to a rise in short-term interest rates that was not offset by the Federal Reserve.

Gold also rose slightly in Europe, closing in Zurich at $414.50 an ounce, up from Wednesday's $402.50. In London, the metal finished at $413.375, up from $411.375.

But in New York, Republic Bank quoted the cash price of gold at $411 an ounce, down from $415. The New York Commodity Exchange also set the August contract at $411, down from $415.50.

Silver plummeted to $11.69 an ounce from $12; the Comex settled at $11.638, down from $12.035.

Robert Farley, vice president at Sinclair Group Companies, said trading was quiet until mid-day when predictions of higher rates by an influential economist sparked some selling. He said the Chad-Libya tensions provided "some support," but not enough to offset the negative impact of rising interest rates.

The dollar was higher in early European trading but had begun to ease by the close and opened lower in New York.

But it bounced ahead— it closed at 8.06 French francs, up from 7.978 francs. The London market closed at 1.574 francs, up from 1.574 francs. The London market closed at 1.574 francs, up from 1.574 francs.

The buying accelerated after the Fed did not intervene in the money markets or show a visible presence in the foreign exchange markets and after a Texas bank hiked its prime rate to 11 percent from the prevailing 10½ percent.

"That led to a very big sell-off in the capital (money and bond) market," said a New York bank dealer. "The timing (for the prediction) couldn't have been worse, with Treasury selling a long bond and everybody nervous about interest rates anyway."

The third and final sale of Treasury's quarterly refunding was Thursday.

The buying accelerated after the Fed did not intervene in the money markets or show a visible presence in the foreign exchange markets and after a Texas bank hiked its prime rate to 11 percent from the prevailing 10½ percent.

One dealer said the Fed might have sold a few dollars about 4½ if it had been gobbling right up the dollar in an upturn and the full of foreign exchange says when it's running buy it."

"After all of its talk this week, the Fed had an opportunity to pull its action where its mouth is," said a New York bank dealer. "The Fed had a chance to sell dollars."

In London, the pound tumbled nearly 2 cents to $1.4875 from $1.5065. In New York it was rated at $1.4875, down from $1.5075. Dealers attributed the pressure on sterling to a lack of intervention by the Bank of England, even when other central banks were selling dollars.

European closing rates with New York prices and the comparative Wednesday rate in parentheses: Frankfurt, 2.664 marks, down from 2.6615 (2.6740 vs. 2.6615); Zurich, 2.1395 Swiss francs, up from 2.1380 (2.1525); Milan, 1.575 lire, up from 1.574 (1.5835 vs. 1.574); Paris, 7.978 French francs, down from 8.006 (8.0525 vs. 8.003).

In overnight Tokyo trading the dollar inched up to 243.15 yen from 243.05 yen then charged to 243.70 yen in New York from 243.15 Wednesday.

New jobless claims signal good news

WASHINGTON (UPI)—New claims for state unemployment benefits declined in late July, the Labor Department said Thursday, and a key senator predicted the nation's unemployment rate will fall to 9.8 percent or lower when the government issues a new rate Friday.

Sen. Roger Jepsen, R-Iowa, chairman of the Joint Economic Committee, made the optimistic forecast Wednesday in anticipation of the July unemployment figures from the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Unemployment in June was a seasonally adjusted 10.2 percent of the civilian work force, but more than 11 million Americans still were actively looking for work.

The department reported 387,000 persons applied for first-time unemployment benefits in the week ended July 23, a decrease of 7,000 from the previous week's revised level in data adjusted for seasonal factors.

The new claims measure is considered by economists as a barometer of job market health because it reflects new entrants in jobless rolls.

The department also reported 3,102,000 persons received regular state benefits during the week ended July 16, a drop of 106,000 from the previous week.

Block's concessions fail to head off filibuster

By LINDA WERFELMAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON—Agriculture Secretary John Block's offer to compromise on a controversial plan to freeze farm target prices apparently has failed to convince opposition, Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said today.

Dole said filibuster leaders who kept the Senate from acting on the two-year freeze continued to block action even though Block offered to increase targets a little. "It's going to cost the wheat farmers about $1 billion," Dole said.

The administration has proposed a freeze program that will go into effect without congressional approval of a target freeze that is expected to reduce income to wheat producers by about $600 million next year.

And if agreement on target prices could not be reached, Block indicated that he would consider pending dairy legislation separately, that prompted Sen. Patrick Leahy, D-Vt., to accuse the administration of having a "kamikaze attitude that they have to be 100 together or go down in flames together."

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker had said he would set aside time for debate on the measures today if support appeared likely.

But Sen. John Melcher, D-Mont., leader of a filibuster that has thus far blocked approval of the target price bill, said the suggested compromise was "kind of a bill pillar" for wheat producers.

Senate Agriculture Committee aides said the compromise would allow a slight increase in wheat target prices, but Melcher said such boosts might prove "too little too late" for lawmakers who represent wheat-producing states.

"It's really a shot in the dark," he said in assessing the bill's chances of winning Senate approval.

Target prices are the levels established by the government as the prices farmers are likely to be paid for their crops. If actual market prices fall to reach those levels, the target prices are used to determine how much the government will pay farmers as compensation.

Under the new proposal, instead of a two-year freeze, target prices for wheat would be permitted to increase from $4.30 per bushel this year to $4.37 for the 1984 crop and $4.45 in 1985, Melcher said.

If no changes are made in the current law, target prices would climb to $4.65 in 1985.

Block suggested the compromise during discussions with farm state senators on a trio of proposals that also deal with changes in the dairy and tobacco price support programs.

Officials said an alternate dairy program may be considered by the Senate today if legislators come to an agreement with Block on the target price bill.

Block had originally said he would accept the dairy program changes only if he got the target price freeze.

Divorce threatens a host of taxing pitfalls

If you're going through the stress of a divorce, among the last complexities you want to think about are taxes.

Yet, after all has been said, divorcing can have consequences that come back to haunt couples who found talking about taxes during their divorce proceedings—just too, too much.

But without careful advance planning, you—as a single or you, as a couple—may suffer the unfortunate consequences of a divorce for many years to come. Here are a few of the big pitfalls against which to be on guard.

PITFALL NO. 1: Designating a portion of the wife's monthly payment as child support. Alimony under a divorce decree of written separation ments are deductible as alimony only if they are spread out over a period of more than 12 years and the spouse receiving them gets less than 10 percent of the total in any one year. What frequently happens is that a couple agrees to a 10-year payment schedule giving the husband the alimony deduction and then the spouse along the line they have a falling out. If on impulse the husband gets rid of the payments left in one lump sum, he loses his tax deduction eligibility.

PITFALL NO. 3: Failing to file a joint return for the year of the divorce. Couples have a right to file jointly as of Dec. 31 whether they are married or not on the day their return is filed. Owens reminds you. Thus if a divorce becomes final after Dec. 31, spouses should agree in advance to file jointly if, of course, it is beneficial to both. They also should agree on how to deal with deficiencies or parent or returns if separate returns are filed, who gets the credit for overpayment or liability for underpayment of the estimated tax should be worked out.

PITFALL NO. 4: Neglecting to agree upon dependency exemptions. In general, the parent who has custody of the child for the greater part of the calendar year is presumed to have furnished over half the child support. In that case, the dependent exemption—the crosser's area when either (1) the non-custodial parent provides at least $600 of support during the year of the divorce decree, and (2) a written agreement certifies the non-custodial parent to the exemption, or (3) this parent provides $1,200 or more for the child support and the other parent has custody of the child—usually establish the prevailing man.

PITFALL NO. 5: Taking the tax trap on property transfers. Property transfers as part of a divorce settlement can mean taxable income if it has gone up in value. Taxes are based on the difference and its market cost of the property and its market value at the time of the transfer. A way to avoid this particular pitfall is to make a taxable income if it is the wife's name before a divorce. Under the new law, transfers between spouses are free of gift and estate taxes. As long as a gift is not associated with the divorce, it's tax free.

SPECIAL WARNING: As a divorced couple, don't forget to change your wills. This also refers to the beneficiary designation on life insurance policies and on retirement plans.

FINAL NOTE: Before making any agreements about dependency exemptions, parents should bear in mind—that medical expense and child-care deductions will depend on who gets the dependency deduction. Also a key factor changing the rules about child support comes into play if grandparent contribute 75 percent of the child's total support or if the child is in the custody of grandparents for seven months of the year.

Retail sales level off

By GARY KLOTT
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK—The nation's leading retailers Thursday reported sales in July—moderated from the exceptionally strong pace of June, although cash register receipts were still about 10 percent annualized year-over-year.

Analysts said the July sales gain was below the average 13 percent increase posted in June by the largest retailers because consumers rushed out earlier this summer to buy air conditioners and other seasonal merchandise to cope with the unusually hot weather.

Air conditioners and summer apparel sold extremely well in June. Even the final 10 percent cut in personal income tax rates, which took effect July 1, failed to stimulate consumer spending enough to outpace the June gains.

Jeffrey Felner, retail analyst at Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner &

Smith, said the July sales reports are still quite favorable.

"The July results reflect favorable trends—in inflation, unemployment and income gains, while the recent rise in interest rates has placed some pressure on consumer attitudes," Felner said. "We nonetheless believe the prevailing environment will remain favorable throughout the remainder of 1983."

Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retailer, said its July sales were up 9.8 percent from a year earlier to $1.65 billion, a record for July.

Sears Chairman Edward R. Telling said all sections of country posted sales increases for the sixth time this year. The largest increases came in the Midwest, reflecting the strengthening economy and the hottest temperatures in 10 years.

Strong sales gains were registered in 100 appliances for the 10th successive month, Telling said. Other strong sales gains were in men's apparel, hardware, automotive, recreation and home fashions.

For the 36-week period ending July 30, Sears sales were up 7.5 percent. No. 2-ranked Kmart, based in Troy, Mich., reported an 11.8 percent rise in July sales to $1.97 billion. Sales for the first half of the fiscal year are running 11.1 percent ahead of last year.

But J.C. Penney Co., the third largest retail group, reported a 0.7 percent decline in July sales to $675 million. At the half-way mark in the fiscal year, Penney's sales were up 2.8 percent from last year.

Sales for Cincinnati-based Federated Department Stores, ranked fourth, jumped 14.6 percent in July to $535.6 million. For the first six months, sales were up 15.3 percent.

F.W. Woolworth, ranked fifth, had a 6.7-percent sales increase to $370.7 million. Six-month sales were up 4.8 percent from last year.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI)—Wheat, corn and oats were lower and soybeans substantially lower at the close of trading on the Board of Trade Thursday.

Wheat was off 1/4 cent to 2 1/2 cents, corn 7/8 to 1 1/8 cents off 1/4 cent, and soybeans off 1/2 cent.

Traders were choppy in the closing session, with a mild technical reversal that kept levels steady. There was some profit-taking earlier in the day which continued into the closing.

Traders were more active taking long positions on markets and decided to get out of some shorts to see if new developments occurred during the weekend and the day after.

The U.S. grain trade association, which was signed last weekend also influenced Thursday's trading.

Twin Falls tips Minico, Poky in Legion play

By Steve Crump
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — Scott Matlock singled home Mike Federico off the bottom of the eighth inning Thursday night to stake the Twin Falls Cowboys to a 3-2 lead and victory over Pocatello in the Southern Regional American Legion Baseball Tournament.

Matlock's single gave the Cowboys their first lead of the game after Twin Falls had been shutout by Rebel righthander Steve Anderson for six innings. It was the second win of the day for the Cowboys, who earlier defeated Minico 13-12 on Vic Valdez' ninth-inning single in the ninth inning. The Pocatello win put Twin Falls into tonight's semifinal game against Idaho Falls, which edged Blackfoot 4-3 earlier Thursday.

That contest is scheduled for 8 p.m. Minico will game on Blackfoot in a loser-out walkout 7 p.m.

"I tell you I'm not really a religious person," said Twin Falls Coach Mike Robbins. "But before we left home this morning, I got down on my knees and prayed for some help. I said, 'let us do this for Jim.' And I kept on praying all day in the dugout."

Robbins was referring to Cowboy business manager Jim O'Connor, who died after a long illness last week. "I guess somebody heard me because everything seemed to turn out that way," Robbins said. "We were down in this game 2-0 against a pitcher who was blowing the ball past my kids and we came back and got him."

The Cowboys tied the game in the bottom of the sixth with two outs as Dennis Kersen hit a two-run curve ball into leftfield, driving in two runs. Kersen had fought off a high inside fast ball from Anderson on the previous pitch, doubling it off. They hit the next pitch into a stiff wind blowing in from leftfield and the ball fell just beyond the reach of Pocatello's Billy Roberts.

In the eighth, Mike Federico led off by hitting an error-throw to second on a wild pitchoff throw by Anderson, and took third after Corky Federico hit into a double play. On the next pitch, Matlock hit a line drive just out of the reach of second baseman Dave Willey, driving in what proved to be the deciding run.

Victor Valdez, who gave up three runs in the second and fourth innings, settled down to pitch shutout ball the last five frames.

In the opener, Valdez hit a one-two pitch for a single with two on and two out in the ninth inning to send the Cowboys past Minico.

"I got a curve ball the pitch before the one I hit, and I almost swung at it," Valdez said. "But I know Robbins would jump all over me if I did. The next pitcher was a curve ball again, and I was kind of lacking for it."

Valdez' single drove home Mike Federico with the winning run, ending a game that featured 42 hits and in which the lead changed hands four times.

"I don't care if my kids get beat on hits, but I can't stand to lose a game on walks and errors," said Robbins. "I'm just glad we got out of this one when we did."

Twin Falls righthander Mike Black threw the last three and one-third innings for the Cowboys, picking up his fourth victory of the season even though he allowed eight hits and six runs. But Robbins was pleased with Black's performance for two reasons: Black settled down to retire six of the last eight batters and saved the Cowboys' bullpen ace, Nate Burke, (ordurly later in the tournament.)

"I was tempted to go get him in the ninth when Black walked the lead-off batter," Robbins said. "But the pitches that were called balls were real close, so I decided to leave him in there. Black is the kind of pitcher who's always around the plate, and that's the kind of guy you want in that situation."

Minico took a three-run lead in the top of the first on a double by Dave Clark and two-run single by Arlin Smith, but the Cowboys came back to pick up seven runs in the bottom of the second.

Twin Falls sent 11 batters to the plate in that frame, collecting two runs on a double by Corky Federico and two more on Scott Morgan's two-bagger.

Sutton grabs one-shot lead in PGA

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (UPI) — Hal Sutton, the leading money-winner on the PGA Tour, fired a near-perfect 6-under-par 65 Thursday to take a one-stroke lead over Scott Simpson and Bobby Whitton in the opening round of the 65th PGA Championship.

Sutton, the tall blond from Shreveport, La., led Simpson, who is headed for his best year, and Whitton, a Vietnam War combat medic who makes his living as a club pro in Grand Rapids, Mich.

Sutton, who won the Tournament Players Championship this year, Simpson and Whitton were among the early starters in the field of 150 shooting for a prize of $100,000 out of a total purse of $600,000, the richest ever.

"I got away with murder and highway robbery," Floyd said. "I feel very fortunate to be 2-under-par because I didn't play anywhere else."

Bruce Lietzke, John Fought and Danny Edwards shot 67's to lay two strokes off the lead and another shot ahead of Keith Fergus, Jay Haas, Jim Thorpe, Pat McGowan and Ben Creshaw.

Sutton, whose handicap included seven birdies and one bogey, called Riviera a driving course, "maybe the best we see on the tour all year."

Driving was Sutton's game Thursday and he didn't hit his iron as often as the other. Of his seven birdies, he had only one putt over 12 feet and that was on the 11th when he came out of the rough and canned a 20-footer.

"For Sutton, it was quite a comeback considering the last time he played was three weeks ago when he blew a six-shot lead going into the final round at Kingsmill by shooting a 77."

"Sure, I have to be pleased with the way I played," Sutton said of his recent record in the PGA.

Whitton was a whole story by himself, playing with a needle embedded in the bone of his right heel and a back that acts up at times. He doesn't remember how the needle got into his heel and found out about it for the first time when it was X-rayed in the Army.

"It doesn't hurt to hit a ball, but it hurts when I walk," said the 35-year-old Whitton. "I don't know if I can walk four rounds this week because" sometimes there is excruciating pain when the needle drives into the bone."

Nicklaus shot a 73, Player 74 and Watson, who is suffering from back and neck problems, shot 74. Watson's round included two sevens, and he seemed terribly embarrassed with his performance on the Riviera course.

"You get what you deserve on this course," said Watson, who twice has won the Los Angeles Open on the same layout.

Defending champion Ray Floyd, seeking to win back-to-back PGA titles for the first time since Denny Shute did it in 1967-68, said he played poorly although he shot a 2-under 69 that left him four shots behind Sutton, Calvin Peete, leader Hal Sutton heading into the second round of the last major tournament on the PGA calendar.

Whitton is not listed in any PGA directory. He has never won on the PGA tour. In fact, he's not even on the tour. He uses his six weeks of leave time from his job each year to play in only a few PGA events, mostly because of physical ailments.

"I just can't play the tour because of my physical nature," said the blond, boyish-looking Whitton. "I have chronic back problems that keep me out of action quite a bit, and I've got pinched nerves that cause me a kind of problems if I play too much."

Club pro enjoys his moment in the PGA sun

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (UPI) — Buddy Whitton's sparkling 6-under-par 65 in Thursday's opening round of the 65th PGA Championship left the club pro from Michigan on pins and needles.

His iron shots were dead straight on the pins all day, and he's been walking around with a 2-inch sewing needle imbedded in his foot most of his life.

Whitton's story is a strange one.

The 35-year-old head pro at Blytheleaf Country Club in Grand Rapids surprised the best golfers in the world — and himself — with the outstanding round that left him one stroke behind first-round leader Hal Sutton heading into the second round of the last major tournament on the PGA calendar.

Television cash puts college football on brink of anarchy

(This is the first of a two-part series discussing the effect of litigation now in the courts concerning television rights to America's college football teams.)

Larry Hovey

Impact: College football single games on TV every Friday, from 9 a.m. through midnight every Saturday, probably at least one on Sunday afternoon or maybe Sunday evening and then at least another single game on Monday. Maybe a highlight or two in midweek.

Another impact is the creation of new networks — but every living channel you can summon up on your set. Productions not just coming on ABC, CBS and NBC, but all the "super stations" in America plus the advent of cable networks generating their own programming.

Another impact is a step further to include basketball from Dec. 1 through March 25.

It doesn't take your sports TV-weary wife to tell you that's saturation. It doesn't take the almanac to remind you of what happened to boxing when it had its Friday, Saturday and Monday night fights plus the special ones on other days.

The power of television money and the greed or need of colleges being that scenario remarkably close to fact.

The sequence of events has arrived just one step short of anarchy in television football. As usual, the major push is coming from the heavy-hits, but from those who have — and rarely have not, all. They days but that now has grown to six per season as NBC and ABC share airing rights.

So if you are among the 80 to 120 described as the "super powers" of college football, you know that your product is more marketable, more money-making, more popular, more athletes, more wins, which means more fans, more money, more coaches, more athletics, more fans, and infatuation.

Five years ago the super powers used the lure of television money to literally divorce certain schools — and conferences — from themselves in the guise of the IAA division. This meant the bulk of any television pot would remain with the division I schools and the number of schools receiving that pot would be smaller.

However, such conferences as the PACA and others who were particular targets of the move, managed to remain Division I. They accomplished this by meeting the criteria established of stadium seating capacity, average home-game attendance, myriad things other than enrollment, etc.

The big boys who succeeded in knocking conferences like the Ivy and Southern Division IAA. It was a foregone conclusion that the Big Sky and about 40 others who were charter members of the division already were successfully shooed.

To make this cavalier handling of sister institutions more palatable to the victims, the victors and the public, The latest TV contract includes a $12-million stipend for IAA-1 in addition, it stipulates that IAA schools will receive six appearances in each two-year segment of the four-year pact.

So when Idaho State met Montana on TV last fall on ABC, that network used up two of the committed six appearances. If ISU met State Pitt, UCLA, etc. it would then follow ABC used its six last fall, meaning this year ISU is geared to division I exclusively. NBC used just two of its six and must come up with four this fall.

If you then stand back and view the whole contract, the super powers are "giving" the IAA $12 million for four years in return for being part of the contract and not being on their level to receive an equal share.

Understand now that in 1980-81 of $48 million.

But some, like Oklahoma and Georgia, who want to opt out to challenge the legality of the NCAA "usurping" their institutional rights to deal with TV on a one-to-one basis, now want that $12 million back and the pie they suspect is in the sky.

What apparently was their early gripe was the "regional" formula in the contract. Say on a regional Saturday that Georgia is at Clemson, Notre Dame at Illinois and Idaho State at Montana. Each game receives $40,000 for the teams to split. Forget that millions more watch Notre-Dame-Illinois and Georgia-Clemson than ISU-Montana. State, the pay is $20,000 per team. Oklahoma and Georgia had that unfair.

Currently, however, the Oklahomas and Georgias have extended their goals — way beyond the realm of the NCAA, let alone Division IAA. They attacked the NCAA-TV policy on the basis of antitrust and won the first round. Only a demand by Supreme Court Justice Byron (Whizzer) White for a lower court to review the ramifications of the decision abrogating the contract has kept the free-for-all restrictions.

Because, if all restrictions are removed, the major networks will get into a checkbook war for the rights to USC, Notre Dame, Penn State Pitt, UCLA, etc. It would then follow that conferences would not have the right to force any member to share their TV revenues as currently is done. USC and UCLA would move so completely out of the reach of Washington, WSU, Oregon State, Stanford, etc., that super conferences would evolve. Why would USC agree to divide its TV money by playing Washington when it could keep it all by playing Pitt?

The trickle-down effect then would spread as the lesser individual schools and lesser conferences tried to peddle their wares to cable networks, TV super stations, local stations. And then it would be here: Football from Aug. 20 through Christmas Day. Bowl games threatened, competition fits dried.

In the end, however, one wonders if Georgia has the marketability it supposes now that Herschel Walker has left its campus.

Tomorrow the series will discuss the current situation in college football from the Big Sky Conference and Commissioner Ron Stephenson's standpoint.)

Watson parred the next six holes, the birdied the eighth with a seven-foot putt. But on the par-5 11th hole, disaster struck again. Or rather, a tree struck again.

He hooked his drive under a towering tree and once again, as he said, "If you have a swingable ball, hit it." He went into action. The ball slammed into the tree and bounced behind him. He then shanked a 3-iron into heavy rough and duffed the ball 30 feet down the fairway with a wedge on his fifth shot. He chipped near the green, dropped the ball on the green with his sixth stroke and one-putted for another 7.

"I played OK except for those couple holes," Watson said. "I hit a couple of sevens will do it to you. I'm disappointed. I'm very disappointed. Obviously I'm in a very tough position. I need about 15 birdies the next three days to have a chance."

Watson, who sought medical help Wednesday after developing a pain in his neck, said his neck felt stiff but not sore Thursday and refused to use the injury as an excuse.

"It was a little stiff, but it only hurt during one swing," he said.

Watson falls 10 back after pair of sevens

PACIFIC PALISADES, Calif. (UPI) — Gambler's call them Lucky 7's. Golfers use a much different adjective to describe 7's.

For Tom Watson, a pair of 7's in Thursday's opening round of the 65th PGA Championship more than likely meant the end of a dream at least for another year.

Watson, who captured the British Open last month for the fifth time, only needs the PGA crown to make his list of major complete, played just one hole before he came unglued. His second shot on the par-4, 460-yard second hole, considered the toughest on the course, landed under a tree. He thought momentarily about taking a one-stroke unplayable penalty, but decided against it.

"Hell, if you have a swing at it, hit it," Watson said.

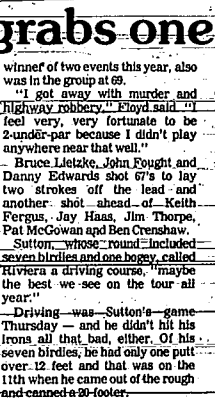

He took it all right. As a matter of fact, he hit it twice. Forced to use a left-handed swing, Watson crashed the ball into the tree. It ricocheted back and the club struck the ball again, on the same stroke, while it was still in the air, giving him a one-stroke penalty plus the shot.

He switched to right-handed, dropped the ball near the green, chipped on and one-putted for a triple bogey 7.

"That was the first of two one-putt sevens," a dejected-but-smiling Watson said. "I can't recall

Presidents should share responsibility

ATLANTA (UPI)—Michigan's Bo Schembecher, president of the American Football Coaches' Association, said college administrators must share the blame when their school athletic programs are accused of cheating. "We've got to clean up the sport to assure that it's legal, it's being done," Schembecher said. "But first, we need to educate administrators who don't have the necessary experience to the fact that they can't expect a coach with a 3-year contract to win in three years. "You can't build a winning program legally in less than five years. But too often we see coaches fired after just three years for failing to win and then in the sort of thing that has coaches bending the rules in an attempt to keep their jobs." Schembecher, in Atlanta on the NCAA's pre-season football tour, said administrators would like coaches to live within the rules, but they expect them to win.

preferably every game." Schembecher said most coaches "play by the rules but unfortunately, the indiscretions of those who don't reflect on the entire fraternity. "It's not saying cheating is not going on out there," he said, but it is going on and it's not fair. One of the problems is that the more successful a program is, the more moral coaches and players have to be." Schembecher, head coach at Michigan since 1969, said the biggest knock on college football has been the failure of some players to graduate. "You can't graduate them all," he said. "Unfortunately, all you hear about are the players who can't speak for most other schools, but at Michigan, the football program is no different than the school itself. "We take high-risk students into all sorts of programs at the University and I don't see a thing wrong with this. Most who don't graduate have an attitude problem. They don't want to go to class." Schembecher feels that won't be as much of a problem after new NCAA rules requiring specific high school courses go into effect. "High school requirements are too low now, but they'll be tougher by 1986," he said. "As it is now, we get some transcripts that don't tell what the kids can do." Schembecher says he's concerned the present drug and alcohol problem plaguing professional football will "drift down" to the college level. "We have to keep working on that. It would help if sports medical people would take a stronger attitude. Coaches aren't equipped to deal with this problem. What do I know about drugs? I've never used marijuana or cocaine. I don't even like to take aspirin. "Gaining, also is a problem on college campuses, just like the pros," he said. "We've got to constantly work on our image." Schembecher said the football association is "not going to put up with this stuff." If the U.S. Football League continues to sign players who have not completed their college eligibility. "The coaches would like to have U.S.F.L. owners sign an agreement not to sign undergraduates," he said. "We can't just take the commissioner's (Chet Simmons) word on this. They've got to put their commitments in a book and keep him there." Schembecher said he can understand how the lure of big bucks would attract young men to the pro ranks, "but we've got to stop putting a price on success." College might be able to hold on to players like Georgia's Herschel Walker if they were legally able to insure their star players against injury, he said. "How to interpret NCAA legislation differently to change the legislation," he said.

"We were just playing catch in the outfield and I turned and whipped the ball to the bat boy and I hit the bird. But it was a intentional," insisted Winfield. "It was an accident."

A police spokesman confirmed that Winfield appeared at a police station about an hour after Thursday's game. Police said Winfield would not be jailed, but the decision on whether or not he would have to post bond had not been made. Should Winfield have to return to the States, he would not do so in the face charges, the Yankees said. The Yankees, who ended their Toronto series with the Jays with a 3-1 victory, Winfield drove in runs to lead the Yankee victory.

Blue Jays' director of operations Ken Kesicki said Toronto police informed him that a irate fan watching the game on local television had called police and lodged a complaint. "The police tell us that he will simply have to appear at the station tonight and sign a paper stating he'll return to Canada at a later date," Martin said. Winfield was flabbergasted.

Anderson breaks USFL pact to join San Diego Chargers

By United Press International

The Arnold Schwarzenegger of the National Football League has added some additional muscle.

The San Diego Chargers, the league's top offensive team, Thursday signed Tampa Bay Bandits' running back Gary Anderson, who filed suit in Houston Wednesday to escape his USFL contract.

Anderson sued his agent, Jerry Argovitz, who advised him to sign with Tampa Bay, on grounds Argovitz was not allowed to handle him as a condition for the U.S. Football League's granting a Houston franchise to Argovitz.

Anderson, a former star running back at Arkansas, filed suit in federal court in Houston Wednesday. He had been selected by the Chargers in the first round of the NFL draft but the New Jersey Generalists picked Anderson as their No. 1 choice in the USFL. The Bandits acquired the Generalists' rights to him.

Chargers' owner Gene Klein said Anderson signed a series of contracts with the Chargers Wednesday night, but Klein disclosed no details. Anderson started working out with the Chargers Thursday.

San Diego coach Don Coryell said Anderson would be a running back. Coryell said the Chargers worked Anderson as a wide receiver in rookie camp to improve his ball catching but always targeted him as a running back.

All-Tampa Bay, Anderson carried 97 times for 516 yards, a splendid average of 5.3 yards per carry. He also had 29 receptions, averaging 12 yards per catch.

In Thursday's game, Anderson carried 12 times for 61 yards and a touchdown. The league announced the Philadelphia-San Francisco game, scheduled for Opening Day Sept. 4, has been switched to Saturday, Sept. 3, starting at 4 p.m. EDT. A league spokesman said stadium availability prompted the change.

The Buffalo Bills acquired veteran New Orleans Saints' free safety Tommy Myers to shore up their defensive backfield. A Bills' spokesman said Myers, an 11-year veteran, was obtained for "past considerations, but don't ask me what that is."

Veteran safety Bill Simpson retired after last season and Jeff Nixon is out for this season with a knee injury. Rookie Mike Vander Boom of Wisconsin, a fifth-round choice, suffered a concussion during a scrimmage July 23 and is out.

Rizzo cards 66 to lead Boston Five

DANVERS, Mass. (UPI) — Patti Rizzo, last year's Rookie of the Year who almost left the tour recently due to putting problems, five a day under par 66 Thursday to tie the tournament record and grab a three-stroke lead after the first round of a $225,000 LPGA tournament.

The tournament is known as the Boston Five Classic.

Rizzo, 27, turned in an uneventful 34 on the front nine, under, but then had six birdies and one bogey on the back nine to complete a 54 second at the Ferncroft Country Club course.

The record set in 1980 by Dibs Eggleston and Amy Alcott and matched by three others.

"I've been hitting it real well the last few weeks, just not scoring," I lipped out a few on the front nine, but I knew sooner or later they were going to drop," Rizzo said.

Charlize Montgomery, Penny Pate, Pam Gietzen and Linda Hunt were in at 3-under-par 69. Qualifier Mary Carr Gale, an amateur whose husband and brother are professional golfers in Massachusetts, came in with a 70 to set a tournament record for low round by an amateur. Also at 70 were four others, including Debbie Metsterlin.

Donna Caponi, the 1981 winner, and Pat Tracey were among 22 players at 71. In all, 22 of the record field of 109 golfers broke par.

U.S. Open champion Jan Stephenson skied to a 75 while LPGA champ Patty Sheehan matched par 72.

Rizzo, who has earned $38,851 this year, said she considered quitting the tour three weeks ago. "I've had more than a month without a paycheck. But she flew to Chicago for four days of intensive putting lessons and stopped experimenting with up to six putters."

"I haven't putted well since I turned pro," she said. "I've been in Canada (Peter Jackson Classic last month) that I wanted to quit for the rest of the year."

But the putting lessons paid off, as she finished ninth in Indianapolis two weeks ago and fourth in the U.S. Open last week.

Montgomery, who has yet to crack the top 100 money-winners, and Gietzen, who is making a comeback from wrist surgery, each had identical holes of 30.

Canada's yacht in semifinals

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Canada's apparently captured the last berth in the America's Cup second semifinals Thursday with a 39-second victory over the United States.

The New York Yacht Club mounted a major effort to oust top foreign competitor Australia II.

While the Royal Perth Yacht Club entry challenged her, fellow countrymen aboard Challenger 12 by 1:08, the club expressing the prestigious races claimed the keel of Australia II "threatens to unfairly control the 1983 competition."

In a package of critical letters sent to the International Yacht Racing Union in London by America's Cup Committee member James Michael, the navigator aboard Dennis Conner's Fibery said Australia II "will likely win the America's Cup in September" if the keel designed is allowed to continue to be rated without penalty.

NFL Roundup

retired. Rookie Philadelphia Eagles' coach Marion Campbell is eager to see his team under game conditions Friday in the exhibition opener against Detroit. There is a battle for the starting job at fullback, where No. 1 draft choice Michael Haddix is pushing veteran Tommie Oliver. The Lions will unveil their No. 1 draft choice, fullback James Jones, whom the Eagles considered taking until tabbing Haddix.

Detroit guard Homer Ellas may miss the game because of a hamstring problem. Three Eagles — running back Billy Campbell and safeties Brenard Wilson and Wade Hopkins — will miss the game because of hamstring injuries and tackle Jerry Sisemore will sit out due to a thigh injury.

The Pittsburgh Steelers will be missing five starters in their second exhibition game Saturday night against the New England Patriots at Knoxville, Tenn. Starting guards Steve Courson and Craig Wolfley will not accompany the team and will be replaced by Emil Bores and Rick Donnelly. Courson has a hamstring injury and Wolfley is recovering from a concussion suffered in practice Tuesday. He was hospitalized until Thursday.

Also missing will be offensive lineman Tunch Ikin, who has an injured shoulder, quarterback Terry Bradshaw and nose tackle Gary Dunn.

The Denver Broncos will display heralded rookie quarterback John Elway in the opening game of their pre-season schedule Friday night against the Seattle Seahawks.

Both clubs come into the contest with young players who are expected to have a dramatic impact on the teams in future years: Elway, the first player selected in this year's NFL college draft, and called the best college quarterback in years, and Seattle running back Curt Warner, who was No. 3 in the draft.

Broncos' coach Dan Reeves said seven-year veteran Steve Deberg will start at quarterback against the Seahawks and work the first half, with Elway working the second.

Tompkins new Oakley coach

OAKLEY — Don Tompkins, a native of Georgia, will take over as head football coach at Oakley High School. Tompkins, who has 13 years of teaching and coaching experience, will replace Doug Bailey, who has joined Coach John Billiet's staff at Burley High School.

Tompkins said the idea of raising his family in a small community "where people are a little more committed to the important things in life" led him to leave his native state.

His coach and teaching background includes four years at a "small military college," coach and athletic director at a 550-enrollment high school, elementary education plus athletic coaching in a school of 2,000 students and one year at a private school in Washington, Ga.

Tompkins said offensively he likes things "pretty wide open...we don't mind throwing it. If we had the 230-pound backs to pound people to death we might be very conservative but we haven't been many of those."

Defensively, "we'll be sticking close to a basic four-man front with a five once in a while."

Tompkins and his Hornets will have their first game together Aug. 15 to begin preparation for the 1983 season.

Idaho ninth in cup matches

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Idaho's entry in the junior girls America's Cup golf matches opened and closed the three-day div. session in ninth place.

The Idaho team carded 259 strokes over the Showboat Golf Course Thursday, headed by Lori Lyke of Eagle at 84, Julie Hamblin of Twin Falls at 85 and Tami Newcomb, Burley, at 90. Nancy Olsen of Eagle had a 92 which was not used.

Idaho wound up the tournament with 701 strokes, 85 behind champion Northern California, which came from fourth place after the first day to win the title. Southern California was second with 677, with Washington, the leader after the first two rounds, in third at 680.

Team Captain Ruby Stone, Boise, said heat "well over 100 degrees today" raised havoc "with the field." "We had a lot of trouble with heat and those bleeds on our team but everyone pulled out of it shortly after coming off the course and everyone is fine now," Stone said.

Horse show opens Saturday

BURLEY — The Magic Valley Arabian Association will conduct an all-breed horse show Saturday at Cassia County fairgrounds in Burley.

The show will offer the usual three age divisions for youth plus open western pleasure, English pleasure, saddle and hunt seat, hunt seat equitation, western riding and others.

Strong chances for horses and riders who are just beginning to compete will be offered. The show will begin at 8:30 a.m. with showmanship at 11 a.m.

Entries may be made at the show or by calling 224-3000.

Pan American games juggled

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — The Pan-American Sports Organization (ODEPA) Thursday took full charge of preparations for the IX Pan American Games in a surprise move to end the squabbling among local organizers and ensure the event will be held as planned Aug. 14-25.

The decision came after the Venezuelan Olympic Committee dismissed eight members of the Games Organizing Committee (COPAN).

The Olympic Committee charged that the COPAN members, most of them Venezuelan government representatives, failed to attend weekly meetings over the past month and neglected a series of "administrative and organizational problems" currently affecting preparations for the Games.

As a result, the ODEPA "has taken full control of the Games," Venezuela's Youth Minister Guillermo Yepes Boscan said at a news conference.

Boscan said the dismissal of government representatives on COPAN's board of directors "will be the last maneuver the government will tolerate from the Venezuelan Olympic Committee. From now on, we will deal exclusively with those persons and entities that are interested in holding the Games."

"There will be no dealings with the Olympic Committee, because it clearly appears that this is a disrespectful, anti-Olympic and anti-national organization," the minister added.

Olympic Committee officials were not immediately available for comment regarding the new situation.

Jerome Festival kickoff is a bit high-flying

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A full weekend of entertainment, highlighted by the Jerome Air Show, awaits Magic Valley residents in Jerome as the community prepares for a Festival of Pride.

The Jerome Air Show is in its fourth year as an all professional display of flying skills and aircraft.

The Saturday show begins at 6 p.m. and the Sunday show at 1 p.m. Tickets are $5 for adults and $3 for children from 6 to 12 and for senior citizens. Children under 6 are admitted free.

"We are especially happy to be able to add Bob Hoover to our show this year," Walters said. "He is probably the most outstanding pilot in the country today and although he has helped us obtain talent for our shows in the past, this is the first time he will be performing in the area."

Hoover is no newcomer to the art of flying. He was a combat pilot in World War II and later a test pilot for Rockwell's Navy F-32

Fury Jet, as well as the Air Force F-86 Sabre Jet and the F-100 Super Sabre.

"For the past 35 years he has been thrilling air show audiences with aerobatics. A recipient of El Segundo, Calif., he now serves as corporate director for special projects at Rockwell International Corp. But on weekends, he can usually be found stirring up the clouds with his own brand of aerial maneuvers for major air shows around the country."

Hoover flies a number of aircraft. In Jerome, he will be showing off his P-51 Mustang, the Air-Badge and the standard production Shrike Commande.

and dead engine landings, he declines the designation.

He says he knows his own capabilities and those of his aircraft as the result of long and diligent study. His aerial routines are the result of conferences with engineers of the aircraft he will use, ground and air testings and learning all he can about the plane.

A favorite of the past several Jerome Air Shows, Bob Bishop is back with his T-6, but highly agile Acrojet. The world's smallest jet, it is now known as the Coors Light Silver Bullet. He and the craft joined the Coors Light Team early this year.

A former test pilot for Bellanca Viking, he owns and flies the last Bellanca Super Viking produced.

This year's show will also have a Canadian flavor with the Rayban Gold, a three-man Pitts team of precision fliers.

Walters said the three-man group, sponsored by Ray-Ban sunglasses, has gained recognition for top precision performances in shows throughout Canada and the United States.

Other weekend activities in Jerome include the Kiwanis Fun Run, the Miss North Side Pageant and aerial-city church service. The fun run is open to runners of varying

Earlier memories revived for festival

By DEBRA GELET

HAILEY — Were you too impatient to listen when your grand-grandpa tried to show you how to fix your own saddle? Do you recall the songs Grandma sang to you as you curled up in her warm arms? Or did you ever come? Are the memories a bit fuzzy?

You can revive your memory and introduce your children to those arts today and Saturday at the Northern Rockies Folk Festival in Hailey.

Workshops ranging from saddlery to candle making took place this week and will repeat in two days of folk music, dancing, exhibits and demonstrations of folk arts in Hailey's City Park, says E. Richard Hart, director of the Institute of the American West, which sponsors the annual festival.

"We try to make this very family oriented," Hart emphasized. "It's a really good opportunity to hear some quality traditional music."

Over 20 artist groups and individual artists will perform during the two-day climax of the festival.

Musicians performing tonight include the David Gramling Quartet which appeared on the Johnny Carson Show, along with the Morris Creek String Band; Dave Sealand; Whitewater; Chris Proctor, the 1982 Guitar Finger-picking National Champion; the Sites and Harding String Band; and the Oinkari Basque Dancers.

Eva Castellanoz of Nysaa displays wax ornaments continental music, and Wildgeese of Irving traditional Irish songs.

Throughout the entire two days of music, exhibits and demonstrations of traditional arts and crafts will take place around the perimeter of the festival.

both of Bellevue, organized this portion of the festival and expect at least 20 different artisans with sheepskin toys, wooden animals and plaques, watercolors, jewelry, stained and etched glass, pottery, handmade quilts, leather goods, quilts and many other crafts.

Kelley, herself a "gypsy-like crafts person" who has shown her own leather work at various western craft shows, is very excited about the fine quality of the festival's artists.

"The quality reputation of the Northern Rockies Folk Festival at other craft shows has brought more artists up here," she said proudly. "I am amazed every year at the quality shown at this festival."

Many of the artists are expected to have work in progress and to show and explain the tools and materials of their trades.

The folk festival has grown tremendously since its beginnings in 1978. The Institute of the American West designed the festival to promote an understanding and appreciation of folk arts and traditions through fieldwork, workshops, publications, recordings and concerts.

Hart credits this year's larger festival to "the really tremendous response from the people of Hailey. We have been able to schedule the workshop portion of the festival this year because of their response," he said.

There is no admission charge to the festival, which is funded mainly through local contributions.

The concerts begin at 4:15 p.m. on Friday, but various workshops will be offered throughout the day, including a slide and tape presentation entitled "Bob Severe, Saddle Creek" at 10 a.m. at Hailey's Copper Basin Restaurant, and 3:30 p.m. clogging demonstration at the Elks Club.

For more information, call Hart or Marcia Jones at 622-3371. Festivities at the park on Saturday will run from 9:30 a.m. until 8:30 p.m. or until storytellers have weaved out the last bit of imagination; the last ice cream cone melts and the last eye finally closes.

Veronica Hamel and Daniel Travanti take nominations

'Hill Street Blues' tops nominations

By STAN W. METZLER
United Press International

PASADENA, Calif. — The gritty police series "Hill Street Blues" dominated the Emmy sweepstakes Thursday for the third straight year with 17 nominations, closely followed by the romantic "The Thorn Birds" mini-series with 16.

The Emmy will be awarded Sept. 25, during a live broadcast on NBC, which led the networks with 133 nominations. CBS, the year's ratings leader, garnered 73 and ABC got 58.

Daniel Travanti, named best actor in a drama series for the past two years, was nominated again for his role as Capt. Furillo in "Hill Street Blues." His competitors this year are Tom Selleck, "Magnum, P.I.," John Forsythe, "Dynasty," and William Daniels and Ed Bradley, both in "St. Elsewhere."

Alan Alda, who has won five Emmys for "M.A.S.H.," was nominated twice as best actor and director of a comedy. The Korean War show, which stopped production this year after a decade, was nominated as best comedy series.

Alda's acting rivals are Ted Danson, "L.A. Law," and "Nicholas Nickleby," seven.

Rattlesnake Run is race you run at own risk

GOODING — Billed as the world's most dangerous run, the Gooding County Leader Rattlesnake Run begins at 7 p.m. Monday.

The 10-kilometer, 6.2-mile, run will begin and end at the Gooding County Fairgrounds north of Gooding. The course, which will remain secret until the night of the run, will carry runners past the Claude Hill ranch, recently the location of a 32-inch diamondback sighting.

"Claude killed that rattler," said Beasley. "But runners had better keep on their toes." A $5 entry fee entitles runners to a Rattlesnake Run T-shirt and an opportunity to win first, second- or third-place trophies in either men's and women's divisions. The trophies are being awarded by the Gooding County Fair Board.

Runners, who will race at their own risk, may pre-register at the newspaper office, or at the fairgrounds on Monday at 6 p.m.

Wendell band to perform

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — The new Wendell City Band will perform at a community entertainment program Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the City Park, next to Wendell High School. "We're good, I'll tell you," says band director Sue Welch. "I'm pleased."

The band, she says, has been practicing for two months. Welch says even though there are not a lot of musicians, there is a wide variety of instruments.

"We're excellent in instruments," she says, "and that's the key to a good band."

Walch says she hopes this first performance will inspire more people of the community to join the band next year.

"Our primary purpose is to show the school kids there is something to do with their instruments after they get out of school besides let them collect dust," Welch says.

"It also gives incentive to the school band. When the kids see their parents play, they want to do it, too. They want to show the world they can."

The band program will include "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "You Are My Sunshine," "Ballad For Barbara," "The Teddy Bear's Picnic" and "The Stars and Stripes Forever."

Band musicians are Lucille Campbell and Jim Smith, clarinets;

Pam Crawford, contra-bass clarinet; Terrell Williams, flute; Rhonda Little and Cindy Campbell, alto saxophones; Warren Scholtz, Ardieth Klein, Damon Scholtz and Calvin Campbell, trumpets; Lana Lamb, french horn; Judy Smith, Richard Klein and Ralph Smith, trombones; Paul Nielson, tuba; Blaine Johnston, drums; and Sue Welch, electric piano. In the variety program, Miss Northside Pageant contestants, Tam Brown and Geri Thelma, will perform, followed by a clarinet solo by Laura Hansen and a saxophone solo by Cindy Campbell.

A trombone and trumpet duet will be played by Ardieth and Richard Klein. A "surprise skill" is also scheduled.

Conference posters now on sale

SUN VALLEY — Posters for "Indian Self-Rule" and "The Women's West" conferences are on sale for $3.

The Indian poster design is a reproduction of a hand-colored sketch by N. Scott Momaday, Kiowa-Cherokee writer and artist, and winner of the 1967 Pulitzer Prize for his book "House Made of Dawn."

The women's poster is centered around an image by Mary Beth Percyval of Missoula, Mont.

The posters advertise the Institute's conferences "Indian Self-Rule: Fifty Years Under the Indian Reorganization Act" scheduled to be held Aug. 17-20, and "The Women's West" scheduled to be held Aug. 10-13.

Both sessions will be held at Elkhorn in Sun Valley. Retail cost of the posters will be $20 after the conferences.

ages and ability. It begins Saturday at the South City Park in Jerome at 8:30 a.m. T-shirts will be awarded all runners, who may choose between the five or 10 kilometer courses. Scot Nelson, 324-6936, is in charge of the fun-run arrangements.

A dozen participants from Magic Valley will participate in the Miss North Side Pageant Saturday night in the Jerome High School auditorium. Sponsored by the Jerome and Wendell Lions Clubs, the pageant begins at 8 p.m. Admission is $4 and the program includes live entertainment and evening gown appearances, plus talent numbers by each contestant.

On Sunday the special church service will be held in the North City Park on Main St. at 11 a.m. It celebrates the opening of the first church in Jerome 75 years ago.

The open-air services in the park will be a suitable tribute since the first church service in Jerome was held in a tent where the First United Presbyterian Church now stands. All Jerome churches are participating in the service with Dan Kingler of the Mayfield Association in charge.

In fall swing beginning Aug. 12, the Jerome Festival of Pride will continue through the Jerome County Fair and Rodeo, Aug. 13 to 19.

A moonlight sale will be held Aug. 12 in the downtown area from 6 to 10 p.m., followed by a barbecue in the parking lot of the First Interstate Bank from 6 to 9 p.m. A Magichord concert will be held on the street at 7:30 p.m. in front of the Interstate Bank. At 9 p.m., a free street dance, sponsored by the Jerome Kiwanis Club, will be held.

Saturday, Aug. 13, a collection of antique and special-interest automobiles will be on display in the city park. The display is sponsored by the Horseless Carriage Club of Magic Valley.

The event includes a swap meet and flea market for persons interested in antique car parts. A few vehicles may even be for sale, says Russ Howell, member of the sponsoring club. Cars will be on display all day, both Saturday and Sunday.

At the same time Saturday, the Jerome Art Guild is sponsoring an arts and crafts festival in the other half of the city park. Many hand made items and art objects will be on display and offered for sale by area artists. Live musical entertainment is planned for the afternoon.

A Beesteez Run begins Saturday at 8:30 a.m. at city park with T-shirts for runners and beef prizes to the winners.

Also on Saturday will be a horse-shoe tournament at the fairgrounds at 10 a.m. and a historic tour of area churches at 2 p.m. leaving from the Jerome County Historical Room at the park.

An Alumni cross-country race for runners will be held at 7 p.m. Saturday. The Jerome County Fair parade will launch the week-long fair and rodeo Aug. 15. The parade will begin at 6 p.m. at the Jerome High School and end at the fairgrounds.

It will feature floats, mounted groups, antique vehicles and dignitaries.

The 1983 Jerome Citizen of the Year, Dr. L. V. Ruebel, will be the parade marshal. He will also be honored at a luncheon sponsored by the Jerome Chamber of Commerce.

A long-time veteran in Jerome in his 25th year active in many civic and community fairs and is a popular master of ceremonies for area events. The county fair is open to the public at no charge.

A junior rodeo for children and a tractor pull contest are among featured entertainment at the fair.

County-western band plays posse benefit

FILER — The Shoppe, a seven-member musical group whose members have combined talents to earn national awards, will be performing for Magic Valley fans at the Twin Falls County Fairgrounds Monday night.

The concert, a benefit for the Twin Falls County Mounted Sheriff's Posse, begins at 7 p.m.

The Shoppe, touted in Dallas, Fort Worth, Texas and Nashville, Tenn., has accumulated honors which include the Entertainer of the Year awards in 1980 and 1981, and the most-promising country-music writer honor in 1980 for Shoppe member J. Clarke Wilcox.

Texas' former Governor William P. Clements named the group the state's official "Ambassadors of Good Will" in 1980.

For the most part, the shoppe members hail from areas around Dallas and Fort Worth.

The group has adapted its musical program to accommodate a wide range of tastes. Its music ranges from bluegrass and dixieland jazz to gospel and country melodies.

During performances, Shoppe members have been known to keep an audience laughing with antics and jokes, before breaking into songs and instrumental music from one of their top-selling recordings.

Members include brothers, Jack and Clarke Wilcox, who started the group's career when they won an Elks Club talent contest in their home town, Irving, Texas.

The other members are Mark Cathey, Lou Chavez and Kevin Bailey, and joined more recently by Roger Ferguson and harmonica player Mike Caldwell.

The band members play guitar, banjo, drum and harmonica, and have shared the spotlight with such top names as Bob Hope, Roy Clark, Barbara Mandrelle, Jonathan Winters, Bill Monroe, Dick Clark and Tammy Wynette.

Country music fans know the Shoppe by such titles as "Doesn't Anyone Get High on Love Anymore" and their first single, "Three-Way Love." Also, "Star-Studded Nights," and their two more recent albums "Worth the Wait" and "Makin' a Livin'" have earned them attention from country-western music fans.

The concert is the major fund-raising event for the Twin Falls County Posse this year.

The horsemen are available for search and rescue efforts and also perform in parades, county fairs and horse shows. Working with the county search and rescue teams, they are often called on to search for missing persons or even downed aircraft in areas where wheeled vehicles are not able to travel.

Tickets for Monday's performance are available at the gate prior to the show or by calling 733-2044.

County fair theme 'past and present'

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News writer

GOODING — The Gooding County Fair will get underway Monday to the theme "Gooding County on the Move: Past and Present." It will continue thru Wednesday.

The fair will include a full schedule of 4-H and Future Farmers of America exhibits in livestock, agriculture and home-making projects. The fat-stock sale will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday in the fairgrounds sheep barn.

Friday afternoon or Saturday morning.

In keeping with the fair theme, exhibits in the flower show will follow the theme "A Colorful Anniversary" with visitors for "Look Out! It's Drums, Wagons West, Homesteaders Dream and Anniversary Pride, among others. Flowers can only be entered Monday from 8 a.m. to noon.

The rodeo will begin each evening at 8 p.m. Susan Kay, rodeo producer from Salt Lake City, will provide the rodeo stock.

Pre-rodeo entertainment each evening and the 1983 Gooding Rodeo Queen and attendants will be crowned Wednesday.

As part of the Gooding City 75th Anniversary observance, the Chamber of Commerce will sponsor an exhibit of historic artifacts during the fair. A book of local history "Good Beginnings" will be sold during the fair and the author Janene Johnson Buckway from Shoopah will be on hand each evening.

Open class exhibits for gardening, homemaking, art, hobbies and flowers are available and entries will be taken over the weekend.

The Gooding fair also features an art show and an antique exhibit.

The fairboard suggests "whenever possible a history should accompany antique exhibits."

Hagerman plans 'Summerfest' gala

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Hagerman will celebrate "Summerfest" Saturday, Aug. 13.

The old-fashioned arts and crafts festival, complete with homemade food for sale and a full schedule of live music, will be held at City Park from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Musicians' Union Dixieland Band, The Snake River Ramblers, The Camas Combo and the Old-Time Fiddlers, Michelle Aaron of Twin Falls, accompanied by Douglas Wright, will sing several patriotic songs and Butlers and Bows Square Dancers of Hagerman and Jerome will perform.

The historical society will sell homemade barbecue beef and the local Rebekah Ladies will feature homemade pie and ice cream at their booth.

Also on sale by the historical society will be the second in a series of silver arrowheads, crafted by local artist George Dolson.

Dolson says this year's arrowhead is named East Gate Point and is an exact replica of an arrowhead found at the Crutchfield site in Hagerman Valley.

Last year, he crafted the Desert side-notch arrowhead from another authentic local relic.

Archaeologist Kelly Murphy, who found and named the East Gate Point arrowhead, will be on hand to represent and answer questions for the Hagerman Valley Historical Society.

BILLIE STEED, president of the Hagerman Valley Historical Society which sponsors the event, predicts that about 55 artists will have booths of handcrafted items on display.

The artists, she says, will include potters, weavers, painters, wood and metal sculptors, jewelers and photographers.

Exhibits planned for the event include stained and beveled glass, rawhide, braiding, needlepoint, plus a demonstration of gold painting.

"I think it should be emphasized that it's an old-fashioned type of fun day for people," Reed says. "It's a good time to come visit Hagerman Valley."

Continuous entertainment during the day will be provided by the

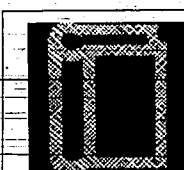

Vidal's 'Duluth' boring, but artistic

By DENISE DeCLUE
Chicago Sun-Times

"DULUTH" By Gore Vidal (Random House, $13.95).

Satire is tricky business. An author attempts to use irony, derision and wit to expose folly or wickedness. Along the way he may attempt to shock, disorient and disgust the reader, to jolt him out of ordinary perceptions into new sensibilities. Satire isn't supposed to be warm and comfy. It's supposed to be provocative. But it's tricky.

The reader (or audience) may end up loathing the work, but respecting the author for what he was trying to say, or loathing the author for being so glib, or admiring the work for its daring, or none of the above. I hated "Duluth." I found it contrived, self-indulgent, boring and unfunny. It's satirical all right. It's ironic. It's and "brilliant" work and conversation will quickly return to gossip about the author.

And I suppose it is interesting. Daring, for sure. The jacket gives no hint of its contents. "Duluth" tears the lid off Dallas," says the front flap while the back flap contains "a note about 'Duluth' from the 1951 Encyclopedia Britannica. This is a clever ploy, considering it's darn near impossible to describe what "Duluth" is about.

Vidal is exploring a notion he calls "the fictive law of absolute uniqueness." "Like most absolute laws," he writes, "(it) is relative."

"When a fictive character dies or drops out of a narrative he will then promptly reappear in a new narrative, as there are just so many characters — and plots — available at any given time. Corollary to the relative fictive law of absolute uniqueness is the simultaneous effect. ... It means that any character can appear, simultaneously, in as many fictions as the random may require."

Vidal pushes this amusing, if essentially decadent notion, to the extreme.

Mrs. Beryl Hoover and Mrs. Edna Herridge die in a snowdrift early on but appear in other fictions within the novel. — Beryl, for instance, as Marchioness of Snye, in Rosemary Klein Kantor's novel, "Yogge Duker" which is appearing as a Redbook serial as well as in the novel "Duluth." Edna appears in a television miniseries, "Duluth," also written by Klein Kantor, but it's a quite different — Duluth — than the novel. "Duluth," Edna, by the way, can speak to her husband, Mayor Herridge, through the TV, and he can hear her and speak back. Sometimes, Edna and Beryl remember who they used to be. Sometimes they don't.

Lucy at 72: I can't top what I've done

By VERNON SCOTT
United Press International

HOLLYWOOD—Lucille Ball, a national comedic treasure, celebrates her 72nd birthday this weekend tumbled only by the fact she might out-live the henna supply that gives her hair its luminous orange coloring. Lucy, a smile-crinkling her bright blue eyes, lamented the possibility of changing hair colors after 50 many years.

"The only source of my genuine henna is Egypt," she said. "I don't know anybody over there—I bought my last shipment 20 years ago and thought it would last the rest of my life."

"Who'd have thought I'd have out-lived my henna. I've just gotta get more."

The nation's first and brightest TV comedienne retired eight years ago after 23 years of weekly shows. She still misses the bright lights and action.

"It was a trauma, leaving center stage," she said. "I just sat around the house in a daze. Sometimes I'd cry. I'd worked hard all my life and suddenly everything stopped cold. The shock was tremendous."

Lucy said she has no plans for future TV appearances.

"I don't work because I can't top what I've done," she said. "I couldn't hope to top the shows Desi and I did with Bill Frawley and Vivian Vance, then later the Lucy shows with Gale Gordon."

"I couldn't enjoy retirement for the first five years. I do now. Eventually you get used to it. I still miss the arena and fun of doing my show. I enjoyed it more than going to parties."

"Now I get a vicarious kick out of the success of Desi (son Desi, 30) and little Lucie (32). They're both box office attractions on stage and Desi will star in a new TV series this season."

A sign-escaped Lucy when she was asked to weigh today's sitcoms as entertainment form she and Desi invented. Obviously, she thinks current TV comedy is inferior, excepting "Cheers" and "Taxi."

"She does not see TV producing future legends as I did with herself, Jackie Gleason, Milton Berle and Red Skelton."

"We were innovators," she said. "Who gets the chance nowadays? Desi was a brilliant innovator—I had nothing to do with the snowballing Desilu empire. When it ended I just picked up the pieces to sell it."

Lucy sold her rights to the old "I Love Lucy" series but still owns six years of "Here's Lucy" episodes which are syndicated worldwide.

Metromedia stations KTTV in Los Angeles and WTTG in Washington will devote 13 hours to a birthday salute to Lucy Aug. 6, including 26 half-hour Lucy episodes and guest appearances by Bob Hope, Johnny Carson, Bob Newhart, Phyllis Diller, Jimmy Stewart and Jack Lemmon. Lucy at 72 is far from idle. She manages several homes — her multimillion-dollar Beverly Hills estate, a New York apartment, a Palm Springs hideaway, a Snow Mass, Colo., apartment complex and young Desi's Beverly Hills pad.

She heads Lucille Ball Productions, headquartered at 20th Century-Fox, where Gary Morton, her husband of 12 years, is producing two movies: "All the Right Moves" and "Sentimental Journey."

"I read lots of scripts but leave the business and production to Gary," Lucy said. "Gary's doing a good job. But I'm not giving my name on 'All the Right Moves'."

"It's a high school sex film and contains four-letter words. I can't stand that. But I guess we must be tolerant to get people to see our films. Personally, I don't like it. I've tried around the country to see her offspring perform and recently rented the Manhattan apartment to be closer to Lucie, wife of actor Laurence Luckinbill, and her two grandsons, Simon, 2, and Joseph, 3 months, about whom she is absolutely daffy."

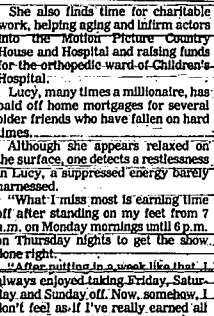

Lucille Ball embraces daughter, Lucie Arnaz, and son, Desi Arnaz

1968 glamor portrait

With first husband, Desi Arnaz in 1953

With second husband, Gary Morton in 1961

She also finds time for charitable work, helping aging and infirm actors into the Motion Picture Country House and Hospital and raising funds for the orthopedic ward of Children's Hospital.

Lucy, many times a millionaire, has paid off home mortgages for several other friends who have fallen on hard times.

Although she appears relaxed on the surface, one detects a restlessness in Lucy, a suppressed energy barely harnessed.

"What I miss most is earning time off after standing on my feet from 7 a.m. on Monday mornings until 6 p.m. on Thursday nights to get the show done right."

"After putting in a week like that, I always enjoyed taking Friday, Saturday and Sunday off. Now, somehow, I don't feel as if I've really earned all this time to myself."

Rigby student wins contest

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Idaho's winning entry in the national Congressional Art Caucus contest is Darin Robinson of Rigby.

The exhibit recently opened at the Cannon Building in Washington, D.C., announced Rep. Larry Craig (R-Idaho).

Robinson's winning entry in the national contest is entitled "Plateau." It joins more than 200 works of art by high school students chosen from art competitions conducted by Members of the U.S. House of Representatives throughout the century.

Robinson's art piece, a pencil sketch, will be displayed in the corridors leading to the U.S. Capitol.

The national art exhibition is part of an Artistic Discovery, the annual Congressional Art Competition sponsored by the congressional Arts Caucus and conducted by the Members in their home states.

Each participating member coordinated a local competition to select one artwork to represent his or her state in the national exhibition.

Great Dane name flatters Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: We don't have any problems for you to solve right now, we just wanted you to know that today we bought a beautiful, fawn-colored Great Dane puppy and we named her "Abby" — after you.

If we had a bigger farm we would buy her sister and name her "Ann," but we already have a dachshund named "Ada," and we all wouldn't fit on that one little acre.

Our "Abby" is going to be our beautiful watchdog on whom we will depend to keep us safe from harm, as you keep others safe with your advice.

We love you, but now we have another Dear Abby to love.

THE GARY CRAWFORDS, MILFORD, OHIO

DEAR CRAWFORDS: I've been called a "great dane," but never a "Great Dane." Thank you, I'm flattered.

DEAR ABBY: Your reply to "Red and Fuming," the movie-house employee who, after being hired, dyed his hair red, has me fuming, too. (His boss objected to his dyed red hair, and you sided with the employee.)

Apparently this young man's dyed red hair has made a significant change in his appearance and he no longer presents the image of the person the boss hired. A boss should have the right to require his employees to look the way he wants them to look.

The rights-of-employees-in-this country are being re-evaluated. Aetled by opportunistic lawyers seeking contingency fees for punitive damages, disgruntled employees are turning their petty grievances into court decisions, establishing unprecedented "rights." This forces companies to all sizes to eliminate positions and raise prices to cover the cost of maintaining a substandard, unproductive employees.

The old rule is still the best one, Abby: If you don't like your job, give your notice and quit. It may not be easy to find other work, but you accepted the job on your boss's terms; so live up to those terms or look elsewhere.

A-HASSLED BUSINESSMAN IN W.VA.

DEAR HASSLED: The "rights" of employees and employers are not always black or white or "red," where hair is concerned — and it's important for employees who are obviously at a disadvantage to have their rights protected.

I would defend the right of anyone to dye his (or her) hair red, since red hair is natural to some. However, if an employee showed up with green or purple hair, I'd vote with you.

DEAR SINGLE: It is never proper to tell a host or hostess that you are bringing another person.

Feeling as you do, ASK if it would be an inconvenience to bring a partner along. And since your partner is actually your guest, graciously offer to pay for him or her.

(Every teenager should know the truth about guests — and how to be happy. For Abby's booklet, send $2 and a long, stamped (37 cents), self-addressed envelope to: Abby, Teen-Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90008.)

DEAR ABBY: This problem has been bugging me for many years. When a single person is invited to a wedding and reception, is it proper to add on the RSVP card, "I am bringing a friend" — then add that person's name?

I have done this several times because as a single person I feel very uncomfortable attending a wedding alone. I am sure this could apply to other singles — widowed or divorced.

I have been criticized (behind my back) for doing this; and want to know if it is improper.

Freeman pitches for music

By GLENNE CURRIE
United Press International

NEW YORK — Every time baseball great Willie Stargell dons white tie and tails and narrates Joseph Schwantner's "New Morning for the World" from the concert platform with a full symphony orchestra behind him, Robert Freeman chalks up one for the good guys.

Freeman is director of the Eastman School of Music at the University of Rochester (N.Y.). He also is a member in a hurry — a whirlwind promoter of music for everyone — preferably classical music, but the best of its kind, whether jazz or pop or classical.

It was Freeman the baseball buff who here on paper "Starred" for 26-odd years as the Pittsburgh Pirates' 475-homer first baseman, who got a bee in his bonnet after hearing William Warfield narrate Aaron Copland's "Lincoln Portrait."

It was Freeman the musician who commissioned Pulitzer prize-winner Schwantner — with AT&T backing — to write "New Morning for the World," a work for speaker and orchestra subtitled "Daybreak of Freedom" employing the words of the late Martin Luther King Jr.

And it was Freeman the crusader who got Schwantner and Stargell together and organized a series of performances of the new work by Stargell with the Eastman Philharmonic under conductor David

Music

He points out that baseball is encouraged both by schools and by parents, even though only about 10 percent of a year reach the major leagues. But each year the system produces two or three million new baseball fans, and the game flourishes.

Music, on the other hand, gets scant attention in most schools, and few parents — largely because the country's Puritan and Calvinist founders frowned on music of any kind — encourage their children to learn music.

Baseball is big money and a big media draw; music by its very nature needs to be subsidized, and still is regarded by the media as a minority interest.

"We are stuck as a country with what I've always described as the mercantile ethic, that if you can't make a dollar doing something, it's not worth doing," says Freeman.

As a result, nearly everyone knows the rules of baseball and can follow and analyze the game. Only a small minority — principally the 25,000 annual music school graduates — know the rules of music sufficiently to follow and analyze a piece of music.

How do you go about building large-scale audiences for music?

"Young musicians should be taught to play music of all kinds," says Freeman, "thus breaking down the barriers between the pop fans and the classical music devotees."

Freeman cited Eastman's annual PRISM concerts, each of which presents several music groups playing different kinds of music — "Fouls

Armstrong, Gershwin and Bartok, for instance — we pack them in every time.

"We should be concentrating on the music itself rather than the orchestra or conductor," he said. "Audiences too often want to hear top performers only."

NOTICE OF INTENDED RULE-MAKING

In compliance with Section 67-5203(a)(1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Health, is proposing to amend Chapter 25, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action is proposed under the authority granted in Section 39-1053(b), Idaho Code, for the purpose of implementing the provisions of Section 39-1053(b)(1), Idaho Code, as effective as soon as possible.

The following is a descriptive summary of the proposed action and of the principal issues involved in the action:

In 1982, the Department of Health and Welfare promulgated rules governing laboratory testing fees. A policy statement adopted by the Board of Health and Welfare indicates that fees charged by the state lab should be comparable to those charged by Idaho Private and hospital labs for similar services. The Department is in compliance with this policy. It is necessary to periodically revise the state laboratory fee schedule. Within the time-limits specified below, any person can review the proposed rules in the DHW - Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request specifying the docket number cited above and a rate of $1.00 per page. Checks must accompany the request and be payable to the Department of Health and Welfare for the amount of $1.00.

Anyone can submit written comments regarding the proposed rules, or industry who may be affected by the proposed rules, to the Department of Health and Welfare, submit information concerning the anticipated impact of the proposed action. For assistance on technical questions concerning the proposed rules, contact Darrell W. Brock, Director, Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Health, 208 334-2235, Boise. All written comments and data concerning the proposed rules must be directed to the undersigned and must be postmarked or delivered on or before August 18, 1983.

Persons wishing to comment on the above subject may do so by writing to the Secretary, Idaho Department of Fish and Game, Boise, Idaho, P.O. Box 25, Boise, Idaho 83725, or by appearing in person at a public meeting to be held commencing at 3:00 p.m. August 1, 1983, at the above address.

FACTORY PRESSURE FORCES CLEARANCE ON 83'S

Denver District Sales Office
Ford Division
Ford Motor Company.

Mr. Roy Raymond, President
Roy Raymond Ford
1243 Blue Lakes Blvd. North
Twin Falls, Id. 83301

Dear Roy:

As I am sure you know, Ford dealers in our District had a superb sales month in June and the momentum has continued through the month of July.

On a District-wide basis, we have just completed the best new car sales month since April, 1981, and the best new truck sales month since October, 1979. Production schedules for the foreseeable future are set at full capacity, and the 1984 Ford products will be rolling into Twin Falls by the convoy load!

Your current stock is excellent and your demonstrator inventory is very new. Now is the time for a big sale that will clear the decks and make ready for the 1984's. As you have already been advised - 1984 prices will inch upward and you may never again be in the excellent position to serve the transportation needs of your customers that you see right now.

Roy - let's run that sale!

Sincerely,
K. M. Pinson
Asst. District Sales Manager

There You Have It, Magic Valley . . .

My position is clear. We must sell 1983 Ford cars and trucks to make way for the 84's. My commitment to you - buy a 1983 Ford car or truck now and save like never before. Lowest prices of the year . . . lowest prices you will ever see. Come to Roy Raymond Ford today and save hundreds, even thousands, on a new 1983 Ford car or truck.

Roy Raymond
