Judge frees cities of WPPSS debt

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — A Washington Superior Court judge has ruled that none of the participants in two defunct WPPSS nuclear-power plants may be held liable for the $2.25 million in debts owed on them.

The ruling made Tuesday by Judge Joseph H. Coleman releases the cities of Burley, Rupert and Heyburn, as well as four Magic Valley cooperatives from their original Washington Public Power Supply System obligations.

In June, the Washington Supreme Court had ruled that the state's municipal utilities and public-utility districts lacked the authority to have entered into the agreement to help build the two nuclear plants, No. 4 and No. 5, which were abandoned more than 18 months ago.

That legal action was initiated by Chemical Bank of New York, the trustee for the investors who purchased the bonds that were sold to build the plants. The action was taken in an effort to force the 88 participants to begin paying for the plants, despite the fact that no electricity ever will be produced by them.

Tuesday's ruling, which still may be appealed to the Washington Supreme Court, is a follow-up to that earlier decision, said Jack Lowery, an attorney with the Seattle firm of Riddell, Williams, Bullitt and Walkinshaw

The firm represents five Idaho cities, six Idaho cooperatives, and a total of 21 WPPSS participants.

Lowery said the earlier ruling had eliminated 70 percent of the financial backing behind the two WPPSS projects.

The lawyers for the utilities representing the remaining 30 percent had argued, among other things, that it was unfair to force them to pay the entire debt.

They argued that they never would have entered an agreement to build the plants if they had known the majority of the utilities that were parties to the agreement did not have the legal authority to be involved.

Unless Monday's ruling is appealed successfully, it means the participants' agreement — the foundation on which the financing of the plants rested — cannot be enforced.

Lowery said:

Lawyers have referred to this as "the bathtub principle." Once you pull the plug, all the water must run out, they say.

"This is an extremely significant decision," Jack Varin, an attorney for the Prairie Power Cooperative in Fairfield, said Tuesday. "It completes the victory that the Washington Supreme Court ruling began."

He said tiny Prairie Power was facing bankruptcy if it had been forced to pay its share of the WPPSS debt. "This decision now means we will be able to continue on for a while longer."

But he cautioned that the cooperative still will have to pass along increases in the cost of the power it buys from the federal Bonneville Power Administration. Not having to pay both that increase and the WPPSS bill, however, "is probably the difference between survival and going down the drain," Varin said.

Another attorney, Larry Duff, representing the Rural Electric Co. of Rupert, downplayed the importance of the decision, however.

"WPPSS litigation is far from over," he said.

"From the standpoint of litigation, we are just moving from one lawsuit to another."

France rushes troop to Chad

By CHARLES MITCHELL
United Press International

NDJAMENA, Chad — Vowing to do as much to support President Haseene Habre as Libya is doing to topple him, France rushed 180 crack paratroopers to Chad Tuesday to act as advisers to embattled government forces.

The United States also increased its support for Habre's government, with a Pentagon spokesman in Washington indicating two AWACS reconnaissance planes sent to Sudan at the weekend may be used in Chadian airspace.

Pentagon officials had said that the Airborne Warning and Control system planes would stay on the Sudanese side of the Chad-Sudan border, from where they would provide Chadian forces with early warning on Libyan movements.

The increased Western support for Habre — including an American arms airlift to Chad — came as Libyan warplanes stepped up their saturation bombing of the east town of Faya-Largeau in northern Chad.

Western diplomats said Libyan troops and tanks were massing inside Chad and that a column of some 2,000 Libyan troops was advancing on Faya-Largeau, 500 miles north of Ndjamena.

"The game is over" in Faya-Largeau, one Western diplomat said, adding that the town had been almost completely leveled by saturation bombing.

Faya-Largeau has been the scene of bitter fighting between Habre's encircled troops and Libyan-supported rebels fighting to restore ousted President Goukouni Weddeye to power.

In Paris, French Defense Minister Charles Fauriol said he had ordered 180 French troops stationed in Central African Republic to travel north to Chad to serve as advisers.

"What Libya is doing, we will also do, apart from bombarding civil populations, which France will not stoop to do," said Fauriol in a warning to Libyan leader Moammar Khadafi that France would match his actions in Chad.

Hernu said it is not France that is internationalizing the conflict. "The Libyans have done that."

He said the 180 paratroopers sent to Chad from the Central African Republic — Chad's southern neighbor — would not take part "in direct operations of war."

France maintains about 2,000 troops in the Central African Republic, including a paramilitary unit with 175 unseated self-proclaimed Emperor Jean-Bedel Bokassa.

Hernu's announcement reflected the increasing gravity of the situation for Habre's government.

"I consider the situation at Faya-Largeau serious and threatening," Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes said in Washington.

Western diplomats said some 2,000 Libyan soldiers were advancing on Faya-Largeau, which rebels loyal to ousted President Goukouni Weddeye held for six weeks until its recapture 10 days ago.

"There is no indication as yet if the troops are directly involved, but they are there," one diplomatic source said of the Libyan ground forces.

Diplomatic sources said up to 2,000 government troops were trapped at Faya-Largeau, their escape route virtually cut off by rebel and Libyan forces.

U.S. military transport planes landed throughout the morning at the military airport outside Ndjamena, bringing the latest installment of a $35 million package, that of Tuesday's shipment consisted of trucks, government officials said.

The United States has already shipped Redeye anti-aircraft weapons and other military material to add to $45 million worth of equipment sent to France.

The United States has also sent two AWACS spy planes with eight F-15 jet fighters as escorts to Sudan.

Chadian Information Soumella Muhammad said that for the second straight day, Libya's Soviet-made SU-22 bombers rained phosphorus and fragmentation bombs on Faya-Largeau, planning down 2,000 government troops.

Diplomats in Ndjamena estimated a total of 800 tons of bombs were dropped on Faya-Largeau.

Phone rates rise as plan implemented

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley residents with one-party Mountain Bell telephone service will pay between 82 cents and $1.19 more for monthly service, starting in September, according to the state Public Utilities Commission.

The increases reflect the impact of the rate increases that were authorized for Mountain Bell by the PUC on July 19.

The 7-percent to 15-percent rate increases will earn Mountain Bell an additional $15.6 million in annual revenue. But they fall far short of raising the rates from the 37 percent to 119 percent that Mountain Bell initially had sought, to help prepare for its forthcoming divestiture from the American Telephone and Telegraph Co. on Jan. 1.

The size of each community's price increase depended on which of six rate groups it fell into, according to Diane Howard, a PUC spokeswoman.

The rate increases for Magic Valley one-party phone service will be:

- One-party rates in Twin Falls and Kimberly will increase by 11.8 percent, from $9.05 to $10.12 a month.
 - Rates in Glenns Ferry, Gooding, Hagerman, Halley, Jerome, Ketchum and Wendell will increase by 9.3 percent, from $8.78 to $9.60.
 - Rates in Bliss, Buhl and Castleford will increase by 15 percent, from $7.89 to $9.08 per month.
 - Rates in Dietrich, Eden, Hazelton, Murtaugh, Shoshone and Stanley will increase by 12 percent, from $7.63 to $8.56.
- Under this pricing structure, communities having the largest toll-free phone areas generally will have the highest base phone rates, Howard said. Isolated towns, such as Dietrich, which have few toll-free areas to call, pay the lowest base rates.

The PUC also has calculated that the 14 percent to 10-percent rate increases for two-party service will cost area customers from 92 cents to $1.25 more per month.

Four-party service, in the wake of the July 19 decision, will cost customers between 75 cents and $1.03 more per month.

And one-party business rates will increase between $1.39 and $5.15 a month.

Rural zone charges, which Mountain Bell had sought to raise by 75 percent, will remain frozen at current levels, Howard said.

The rate increases will help compensate Mountain Bell for the $13 million it spent to improve service during 1982, Howard said. A smaller portion of the rate increase, she said, was mandated by federal rules.

Latin countries vow democratic elections

El Salvador Tuesday announced elections for early 1984 and Guatemala's new military leader lifted restrictions on many freedoms to prepare the way for elections postponed by the man he ousted in a coup.

Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia victores, who ousted Monday's military overthrow of Gen. Efraim Rios Montt in Guatemala, issued a decree lifting immediately the state of alarm imposed in June.

The state of alarm banned freedom of press, political parties, the right to hold public meetings, freedom of transit and gave police and military free access to private homes.

Mejia said he would not be pres-

One of the primary reasons for Guatemala's "military freeze" was thought to be the belief Rios Montt was "drifting to the left" and Mejia's new regime was believed to signal a stronger alliance among rightist Central American governments.

Activists face industry at wilderness hearing

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — Environmentalists battled miners, loggers and ranchers Tuesday to convince Sen. James McClure that his planned wilderness bill is a "rural experiment" for a 2.3-million-acre protected backcountry.

About 270 witnesses signed up to testify during the first of four hearings to be held around the state as McClure — chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee — prepares to draft legislation resolving a long-standing disagreement over the fate of 6.5 million roadless acres.

Other hearings are scheduled Thursday in Idaho Falls, Aug. 16 in Coeur d'Alene and Aug. 17 in Lewiston.

McClure, joined for part of the hearing by Sen. Steve Symms and Rep. Larry Craig, began by assuring residents he had not decided how many roadless acres to propose for wilderness protection.

Symms, a strong backer of private ownership of land, acknowledged he has "definite ideas" about wilderness creation. But he added, "It will begin these hearings with an open mind."

Craig, a Midvale rancher and First District representative, stressed the importance of keeping some public land open for development and said he believed Congress should address the issue quickly.

"The people of Idaho deserve a reprieve from the confusion and the indecision of the past few years," he said.

Pro-development forces differed among themselves over whether Idaho's wilderness should be expanded, but many echoed the sentiments of Wally Sterling of Boise, who told the all-Republican panel "enough is enough."

Group: Watt abusing power

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary James Watt "thumbed his nose at Congress" while eliminating 1.5 million acres from consideration for federal wilderness protection in a week-end move, the Wilderness Society charged Tuesday.

Terry "Sopher," who directs the group's land management programs, told a news conference Watt had "lost his battle to open national forest wilderness to mineral development — so he's trying to dismantle the (Bureau of Land Management's) wilderness program piece-by-piece."

He and Bill Turnage, the society's executive director, suggested that Watt was sneaky about dropping the land from further wilderness review by doing it one state at a time since March.

"This is an anti-wilderness administration," Turnage said.

But Watt, who was meeting with reporters to announce a land exchange in Alaska, scoffed at the accusations and blamed the Wilderness Society for using "hype" and "trying to get headlines to raise membership."

Watt denied any attempt to be sneaky, saying the decisions were published in the Federal Register of daily government activities.

Sopher claimed Watt "thumbed his nose at Congress," by dropping more than 500,000 acres from wilderness study last December when Congress ignored a House Interior Committee resolution urging him in February to restore the acreage and make no further cuts.

Author succeeds; faces prison
HIGH SPRINGS, Fla. (UPI) — "Chickenhawk," the acclaimed memoirs of a Vietnam helicopter pilot, sold out hours after going on sale Tuesday but author Tom Mason may be in prison before other editions are out.

Walker of Walker, a New York publisher of Mason's first book said the first edition of 10,000 hardback copies sold out and the firm had begun a second run of 6,000.

Mason, 41, a former Army helicopter pilot who flew more than 1,000 combat missions in Vietnam, was awaiting word on when he will begin serving a five-year prison sentence on a drug smuggling conviction.

After receiving notification in the mail, Mason will have 10 days to report to prison, probably the federal penitentiary at Eglin Air Force Base, giving him enough time for a scheduled appearance on "The Today Show" next Tuesday.

Ireland violence erupts anew
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI) — A British soldier shot to death a youth in a "fracas" Tuesday and police arrested 30 people, including two Americans, in riots across Ulster by rampaging youths who set cars and buildings on fire.

The riots occurred on the 12th anniversary of Britain's imprisonment without trial of terrorist suspects in Ulster. The policy was abandoned eight years ago but still stirs bitter memories in Ulster's Catholic ghettos.

Two Americans were arrested, one a member of the Northern Irish Aid Group, NORAID, which is sympathetic to the Irish nationalist cause and is considered by the U.S. and British governments a front for collecting money for the IRA.

The Royal Ulster Constabulary said an unidentified British soldier would appear in court Wednesday on two murder charges in the death of Thomas Riley, 22.

Riley was fatally shot during what police called "a fracas" between a British army foot patrol and Catholic residents in West Belfast's Ballymurphy area.

"I saw three soldiers run after him," an eyewitness said. "One should shoot the bastard." Then I heard one shot and the man who was running away fell on a street corner."

Loch Ness monster revealed
DRUMANDROCHT, Scotland (UPI) — The leader of an American expedition said Tuesday he believes his group has videotaped the images of three monsters in Loch Ness, but other experts on the fabled "Nessie" doubted the claim.

Eric Beckford, director of the Crypto Zoological Society, said he recorded three figures in the water and was confident he would give them the name "Fath, Hope and Charly."

But others said the Beckford sea creatures are more likely dark shadows on the lake's surface.

"You get all sorts of false affairs," said Tim Dinsdale of the Loch Ness Association, who in 1960 filmed what he believes is Nessie.

Tony Harmanworth, curator of the Loch Ness Exhibition in Drumandrecht on the shore of Loch Ness in the Scottish Highlands, said his association had not seen Beckford's tapes but would like to analyze them.

"He might have something," Harmanworth said.

Motorcycle mishap injures two
GOODING — Two Gooding residents were injured seriously in a motorcycle accident Monday.

The "Black" was struck by a pickup truck Tuesday night at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center in Boise. James Mullins, 20, was in satisfactory condition at Mortz Community Hospital in Sun Valley.

The accident occurred at 10:40 p.m. at Idaho 46 and Orchard Drive in Gooding.

According to Gooding police Chief Bill Bunn, the two men were riding a motorcycle that struck a pickup truck, driven by Earl W. Reed, 27, of Gooding, while Reed was turning left.

Bunn said neither cyclist was wearing a helmet, and both were thrown over the pickup truck and onto the pavement.

Which man was driving the motorcycle has not been determined.

The accident is still under investigation.

Natural gas ruling helps users
WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a natural gas ruling that could save consumers hundreds of millions of dollars, a federal court threw out a 1978 rule Tuesday that required the way gas volumes are measured for price-setting purposes.

The potential savings on natural gas bills could total $300 million a year, estimated Frederick Moring, a lawyer for a group of gas distribution companies.

In addition, the ruling could save consumers an estimated $1 billion for the generally 2 percent higher rates they have been paying for natural gas under the rule.

On a 3-0 vote, the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia rejected the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's new approach to measuring the energy content of gas at the wellhead, where prices are set.

The new approach took the place of a long-used and widely accepted method for measuring heat-producing potential.

Chilean cabinet reshuffled
SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Bending to public pressure, military ruler Augusto Pinochet reshuffled his cabinet Tuesday to include a long-time Chilean leader who officials called a major step toward the restoration of democracy.

"We believe that the government should have a civilian base and that we military should have a symbolic presence in the cabinet," said Gen. Fernando Matthei, commander of air force and member of the four-man military junta.

Matthei said Pinochet informed the junta of the cabinet changes.

Asked if the reshuffle was a first step toward civilian rule in Chile, the air force chief said: "Yes, I think so."

"This could be important in terms of liability in upcoming suits," they said.

Upcoming suits include a second suit filed by Chemical Bank. This suit is known among lawyers as "Chemical Bank vs. the World" because it names more than 11 pages of defendants, including the EPA, WPPSS, 103 utilities and more than 500 individuals, said City Bill Parsons, the attorney for the city of Burley.

Diplomats report mobilization in Libya

MOAMMAR KHADAFY Orders youths drafted

By JAMES DORSEY
United Press International

TRIPOLI—Libya—Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy has sent thousands of troops into Chad and has ordered a general mobilization of the armed forces, diplomatic sources said Tuesday.

They said some 4,000 to 5,000 Libyan troops and one or two tank battalions have crossed into Chad, where Libyan-backed rebels loyal to ousted President Goukouni Wedeyde are fighting to overthrow President Hissene Habré.

The sources said Libyan tanks were stationed east of Faya-Largeau, an oasis town in northern Chad, and north of Oum Chalouba, a town in western Chad near the border with Sudan.

Libya also is massing troops and heavy artillery and tanks in the disputed Aouzou strip, which runs the breadth of the Libyan-Chad border, the sources said.

AOUZOU—In which the strategic Tibesti mountain range lies, is viewed by Libya as its natural defense line. While legally a part of Chad, the Aouzou area has been in Libyan hands for years.

Despite the concentration of Libyan forces in Chad, diplomatic sources said that as of Tuesday there was no evidence that ground troops were taking part in the fighting between the Habre forces and the rebels.

But Libyan warplanes have been bombarding Faya-Largeau, according to diplomatic sources in Libya and officials in both Chad and the United States.

Diplomatic sources said there have been a number of funerals of military personnel in Tripoli in recent days, including one for a Libyan MIG fighter pilot.

Libya has lost at least one MIG fighter and one troop transport above Chad, the sources said.

In Libya, a general mobilization is under way, the sources said.

"Men and women are being plucked off the streets and taken straight to military institutions," one said.

Libyan daily newspapers in the past week have listed the names of male and female students as well as teachers ordered to report to barracks and military academies across the country.

Youngsters often no older than 15 or 16 years have been instructed to report to youth camps. Diplomatic sources said they are then transported to the south arid Aouzou strip.

Libya has also canceled all military leaves, the sources said.

They said the government has begun requisitioning four-wheel-drive vehicles from government offices and private businesses and institutions.

Workers, AT&T heads negotiate anew

By DREW VON BERGEN
UPI Labor Reporter

Top officials of a striking telephone workers union and American Telephone & Telegraph Co. met Tuesday for the first time since the walkout began but the union said it has "no reason to feel optimistic" about an early settlement.

No formal negotiating sessions were held, but informal contacts between the two sides continued.

"At least they're talking, that's the important thing," said AT&T spokesman Charles Dynes. "I just don't think this is going to last very long."

Management and supervisory personnel kept the Bell System operating and isolated incidents of strike-related violence and vandalism were reported.

Many of the nearly 700,000 strikers picketed Bell offices and other facilities across the country as the walkout reached the third day.

In Vermont, New England Telephone Co. managers and non-union workers Tuesday repaired lines leading to 300 homes and businesses where telephone service was severed during violent overnight thunderstorms.

Pacific Telephone officials in San Francisco said management personnel are "keeping up with repair work" but conceded that installations were falling behind.

In Providence, R.I., about 500 pickets blocked supervisors from entering the New England Telephone Co. office until police were called.

Most telephone calls in the United States are direct-dialed and were handled smoothly, but people requiring operator assistance encountered delays.

Spokesman for the Communications Workers of America and AT&T said CWA President Glenn Watts and AT&T Vice President Rex Reed met for breakfast in Washington Tuesday. They were joined by other company and union representatives.

The breakfast — the first face-to-face session between the two sides since Saturday night — followed separate meetings late Monday with Kay McMurray, director of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service.

"There was a discussion of the differences between the parties," the union spokesman said. "The CWA says there is no reason to feel optimistic about an early resolution," the spokesman added.

In Boston, the AFL-CIO Executive Council passed a resolution backing the strikers and urging other AFL-CIO unions "to join in the support in every way possible."

Experts: Environment doesn't drive evolution

By PATRICK YOUNG
Newhouse News Service

WASHINGTON — Three scientists who proposed that behavior — not environmental change — is the driving force behind anatomical evolution in higher animals, including humans.

The new hypothesis suggests that an evolutionary change begins when a member of a species acquires a new behavior that allows it to exploit its environment in a new way. Then other members of the species learn the skill and use it. By adopting the behavior, the species sets up a situation favoring the survival of members that do the skill best.

And the bigger the brain, the scientists suggest, the faster evolution occurs.

This new theory — called "behavioral drive" or "behavioral selection" — is advanced by biologists Jeff S. Wykes and Allan C. Wilson of the University of California at Berkeley and zoologist Joseph G. Kunkel of the University of Massachusetts.

As an example of behavioral drive, they note that certain human populations — notably Northern Europeans and some Africans — can more easily digest cow's milk because they possess an enzyme that breaks down lactose, a milk sugar.

The presence of this lactose-splitting enzyme is apparently the result of a regulatory mutation whose spread through these populations was fostered by the selection pressure imposed by a new culturally transmitted behavior — namely, the consumption of cow's milk," the three write in the current issue of the journal Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences.

"This practice presumably began only after cattle were domesticated, about 10,000 years ago."

Their behavioral-drive theory emerges from a study that challenges a fundamental biblical teaching.

Latin commission member termed pro-Castro

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's appointment of a Cuban-born economist to his Central America commission was jeopardized Tuesday by objections from a conservative senator and Cuban exile, one calling him a "Castro infiltrator."

Reagan aides acknowledged the White House was under pressure from

Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., and Florida's influential Cuban exile community to remove Yale University professor Carlos Diaz-Alejandro from the panel.

The ideological assault on Diaz-Alejandro, a Democrat, was marked by allegations that he is sympathetic to Cuban President Fidel Castro and Marxist causes.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan is aware of the criticism. But when asked whether political views will affect Diaz-Alejandro's status, Speakes replied, "I wouldn't consider it as a factor."

He is the president's appointee, Speakes said. "And as it stands now, he will serve."

Speakes said security and conflict-of-interest checks have not been completed on Diaz-Alejandro, even though all 12 members are to be sworn in Wednesday at the State Department as the commission holds its first formal meeting.

Those whose background investigations are not complete will be given temporary security clearances to begin their work, Speakes said.

Reagan established the bipartisan commission, headed by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, July 19 to consider long-range U.S. policies toward Central America.

We should stay out of Guatemala coup

As if things weren't confused enough in Central America, yet another country there has experienced political turmoil, creating more "opportunity" for the administration to blunder.

The latest crisis is in Guatemala, and a group of rightist army officers this week overthrew the born-again Christian regime of Gen. Efraim Rios Montt. Montt's dictatorship had drawn considerable criticism as one of the most repressive in the region, but it had the support of the Reagan administration.

It will be interesting now to see how the United States responds to the new group of leaders, who have promised assembly elections by next year and eventual presidential balloting.

Given the turmoil elsewhere in the region, including El Salvador, Nicaragua and now Honduras, we'd like to think the administration would take a hands-off approach and let well enough alone in Guatemala.

But given the track record, we wouldn't be surprised to see "advisers" and various "intelligence" operatives soon inside the country, laying the groundwork for the Central Intelligence Agency. Then, we'll have another nation in which to meddle. Sophisticated foreign policy, eh?

Letters

Reasoning nation's last hope

Leon Rice of Jackpot indicates in his recent letter that he once studied American history. Obviously his studies were interrupted prematurely, somewhere at the elementary school level. He assumes a patronizing stance in scolding Dana Mikesell, whose "cowardly" attitude prompted public criticism of our senior bluff, James McClure, on or about June 10. Rice quotes Patrick Henry, while Mikesell took exception to McClure's paraphrasing of Henry's famous remark, "Give me liberty or give me death" has a noble ring to it. It's the sort of line that fit well into old John Wayne movies — unfortunately, it didn't make any sense.

"Death before a dishonor" never even looked that good tattooed on a sailor's arm, and when you think about it, every Looney Tune who ever went out in a blaze of gunfire from John Dillinger to the Symbionese Liberation Army, was saying essentially the same thing — "Let me do my thing or blow me away."

Terms such as "liberty," "cowardice," "altruism," "freedom," and "personality" are all relative — one man's Utopia is another man's misery — but death doesn't leave the human race with much in the way of options. Anyone who seriously expresses a preference for the extinction of the human species to continued existence in what he perceives to be a less than ideal environment is a candidate for the lunatic farm.

War, in the traditional sense, is a thing of the past. Prior to 1945, it was possible, even fashionable, to play such games as cops and robbers, cowboys and Indians and World War II. Adversaries could prance and posture and inflict relatively minor damage on each other in a field, and there was plenty of room in the scenario for a "winner" and a "loser," thus establishing a demarcation between "good" and "evil." Assorted and various dogmas could be pursued, however irrational, and ignorant people could be depended upon to perpetuate the status quo against the teachings of the man of one doctrine or another — sometimes religious, sometimes political, but invariably a smoke screen for the true motivation, which was of course, something of a more material nature, usually real estate.

Except in undeveloped countries, that type of war is no longer available to us — if the handful of people who call the shots among the major world governments are actually stupid enough to pull the pin on this one, there won't be any winners or losers — what there will be is 5 billion years of evolution gone down the tubes.

As a middle-aged serviceman, WW II Vietnam, I'm glad there are a few Dana Mikesells around. Rice describes Mikesell's viewpoints as naive — the pot calling the kettle black, perhaps? If Rice really believes all of this "basic struggle between good and evil" bombast, then I would like to sell him some beautiful beachfront property — in the heart of the Okeneke swamp. Naive?

That leaves James McClure. The fact that he was speaking to a small group of rednecks from Bull Idaho, notwithstanding, any politician capable of making the kind of statement that started this whole mess is in no way qualified to hold office. Excuse me, Frank Churchill was not my all-time favorite hero, but it's hard to imagine him uttering so blatant an insult to ordinary intelligence.

There is nothing wrong with loving one's country. There is something bad wrong about our perverse willingness to be led, controlled and directed by a handful of egomaniac politicians who express a preference for obliteration of the planet to a modification of an ideology. There is something really frightening about the fact that in this age of sophisticated communication, a government can completely cover up the nuclear bombing of Cambodia. There is something bad wrong with the kind of mentality which caricatures the Japanese kamikaze pilots as homicidal maniacs, while in the same breath making a national hero of Colin Kelly.

At this moment in time, as we knock on the door of the 21st century, a lunatic wearing a turban and a bedsheet is sending tens of thousands of 12- to 14-year-old Iranian boys into battle in a hopeless, meaningless war with Iraq. Since the prevailing Iranian doctrine considers anything short of death on the field of combat a disgrace, these kids are suffering casualties in the area of 99 percent. These children cannot be accused of cowardice, a charitable historian might describe them as heroes, but they are merely ignorant, and the Ayatollah insane.

Most of us here in the United States are more fortunate — we possess the capacity to reason — the only hope for the human race lies in our decision to use or not to use that capacity. From a strictly economic departure point, the worldwide expenditures for what we euphemistically refer to as "national defense" is costing trillions of dollars, all of which could be saved with a thumbnail of ordinary logic.

Dana Mikesell should be advised that not all of us "older gentlemen" have succumbed to cerebral degeneration.

Hamill show a rip-off to her

I've waited all week for someone to write a little about the Dorothy Hamill show at Sun Valley last weekend. Since none has appeared, I've missed it. I feel someone should at least mention that it was a real bummer.

For $9.50, on a metal bleacher seat, I expected more than a lot. A lot more.
Miss Hamill is a beautiful skater and world famous. She skated two solo numbers and one duet with a gentleman from somewhere. The sound track was doing the echo "bit" which is a trifle disturbing. The seats were jammed by hundreds of viewers and the entire show lasted 52 minutes.

A male skater from Disney's World Ice was an excellent performer. But we've been going to Ice shows, including the Ice Capades in Los Angeles, Phoenix and Salt Lake City since the 1940s. And we've attended many, many shows at Sun Valley for the past 31 years. So I'm not totally stupid about what I felt I should expect for $9.50.

It was a rip-off. The Peggy Fleming show several years ago was wonderful. It was a show. This one was a mediocre joke as shows go. And outrageously overpriced.

Time, place for everything

This letter is in regard to the letter on Aug. 4, 1983, by Pat Jensen. You asked Debra how she could be alarmed by what she saw, who wouldn't be? Unless you're the type of person who does that sort of thing you're in trouble, in broad daylight.

And as for smoking parks, who do you usually have the common sense to do it in private where no one will see them. There is a time and place for everything and a public park where children play and elderly people like to have picnics, is in no way a place for heavy necking. I was a teenager not long ago, so don't give me that crap about there being nothing to do in this town. There are plenty of things to do for someone with ambition who wants to assert themselves.

And I'm not condoning smoking pot or any other drugs, but that does not mean we should rationalize by saying open seat in a park is all right either. Besides, who cares what goes on in A. parks or New York parks, for that matter. This is Idaho and just because L.A. parks have drug addicts does not make it all right for Idaho parks to have perverts. Oh, and by the way, has anyone ever explained to you why children have been love and lust?

Report the American viewpoint

The double standard of the news media needs to be exposed. For example:

Last December, an accident at a power generating station caused 200 deaths and approximately 500 injuries. At least 1,000 persons were made homeless and, during the height of the disaster, 40,000 more were evacuated from the surrounding area. Over 100 charred bodies were found the first night after the disaster. At one point, 110 plant employees and 87 firefighters were trapped by the flames. Four journalists sent to cover the story were killed.

It news about this spectacular tragedy never reached you, you are not alone. Because the plant was oil-fired and not nuclear, the story received scant attention. That is not true of Venezuela, is it? No reason for it to be ignored. Aren't we being bombarded constantly with the need for safety in power generation? Didn't the whole world hear about Three Mile Island?

Why is it that we are still hearing about that four nuclear power plant accident in which no one was killed, none injured and no dangerous radiation was loosed on the area? The double standard employed here ought to be obvious. Meanwhile, the attack on safe, clean and less expensive nuclear power continues to flow from those who told us nothing about the Venezuelan incident.

Another example: American mediators who for years have been seeking to impose socialism on El Salvador demanded that the nation hold a free election. But when the winner turned out to be a conservative anti-Communist, they swallowed hard and demanded a new election.

And, of course, we are constantly reminded of the barbarity of Nazi Germany even though it was totally destroyed 40 years ago. But the far greater horrors of Communism in Russia and Red China, which are going on at this moment are glossed over with a variety of lies, cowardice and wishful thinking.

Those in the media who use double standards should enjoy no credibility at all. We are losing our freedom because we mostly hear only one side. As in Biblical days we will be in captivity for the lack of knowledge unless the American viewpoint is also reported.

Urges use of new DUI law

This letter is in response to your July 31, 1983, article entitled, "Drunk Driver Gets One Last Chance." I am assuming that reporter Marty Trillhaase has done a thorough job in reporting the facts; based on this assumption, I would like to share some concerns with you and your readers.

Effective July 1, 1983, Idaho Driving Under the Influence (DUI) legislation states that people found guilty of DUI shall have a alcohol evaluation by a licensed physician or alcohol evaluation facility. The court "shall take the evaluation into consideration in determining an appropriate sentence."

The commonly accepted definition of an alcoholic is repeated problems in some major life area: Mr. Leslie Trent is a genuine reasons for a "serious problem" in the area of legal involvement. As a result of their drinking-related behavior, most alcoholics reach points in their life when they stop never to drink again. Most family members, employers and concerned others (defense attorneys) believe the alcoholic. Unfortunately, the nature of the illness is loss of control. Despite vows and promises, alcoholics repeatedly drink again and have more problems.

I urge Mr. Trent, other DUI defendants, judges, attorneys and arresting officers to be concerned and utilize the new law. If they do, alcoholics will receive help and further carnage on the highways will be prevented.

Hansens' efforts appreciated

Now that the Democratic Party, the Times-News, Lloyd Walker, and even the Republican Party, have brought their heavy artillery to bear against George Hansen and his wife, Connie Hansen, perhaps I might add my slant shot to the battle.

If I have been state chairman of the Democratic Party giving Walker the entitlement to label the Hansens' character, then I, having been state chairman for the American Party should have equal rights.

I have known for many years that George has been a maverick in the Republican Party. We have in the past attempted to have him join the American Party, where his political philosophy and voting are compatible, which he has not elected to do. Here he would have friends with a common cause, to return America to constitutional government and abandon the socialist welfare state.

Thank heaven for George and Connie, who have placed country above self. That they have been effective can only be measured by the consistent effort from many areas that has been brought to light to nullify their efforts and to cause their constituency to question the character of these good people. The theory used is that people will believe that where there is smoke, there is fire.

We must not be lulled to sleep thinking all is well with America. Money has been committed to support the Hansens. Let us do so. Our national character is being destroyed and there are only a very few men in Washington or elsewhere who are willing to defend the country and stop the destruction. Many have placed blinders on their eyes and plugs in their ears so that this sellout can continue, but not George.

The personal finances of the Hansens might be precarious, but anyone who has been continually involved with lawyers and courts can testify to the unreasonable costs that can be involved. Perhaps the Hansens also have lived expensively, but who would vote for a common person who lacks flamboyance, and who lives common? Their personal finances are their own business, what we should be interested in is how effective they handle our public finances, which GEORGE HANSEN has been a watch dog with.

Walker has found fault with the Hansens' ancestry and their brothers, and with both the HUNTS and the HANSENS' dealing in the precious metals. Most people today are aware of the damage the liberals and traitors have done to our American monetary system and the precarious position it is in. Millions of people are attempting to diversify their investments in the ownership of precious metals. Would Mr. Walker deny them that right? Does this make George and Connie Hansen disloyal or dishonest? I believe that we should be furious with those who have destroyed the dollar, its value, our personal and national character, and reputation.

Thank you George and Connie for your efforts.

One of his theories is wrong

On July 26, 1983, you published an article written by Lloyd Walker wherein he very unethically attacked George Hansen, calling him a criminal. The thought came to my mind, if he would call a man like Hansen a criminal, what kind of adjective would it take to describe Mr. Walker?

In my opinion it should be the right of any citizen whether he be George Hansen, Lloyd Walker, myself or anyone else to borrow money, invest it, win with it or lose it without being harassed by some joker who is trying to belittle the character of another man. After all the consensus of his whole article as I see it was based on the financial affairs of the Hansens. That is not why they are in the news. Hansen should say was their own business and let us hope that the time never comes for any of us that we cannot speculate if we wish to.

However, Mr. Walker seemed so intent on slinging mud on George Hansen that he seemed to forget that in one part of his letter he said the Hansens owed so much money that they could not even pay the interest on the loans and in another place he said he wondered how clearing, not drinking people could possibly spend such huge amounts of money. Perhaps Lloyd, you would be better off to only make one of the claims; that he either was broke or had so much he couldn't spend it all. Certainly both theories can't be correct.

Summer of '83: Enjoy glorious time in a marvelous land

Congress is on vacation, columnists are doing their annual piece about what books you must read on your vacation, and millions of unproductive city dwellers are discovering the rural joys of walking in the poison ivy, swimming among the jellyfish and sleeping under the mosquitoes.

Washington required. The most popular restaurants on Capitol Hill welcome you without reservations or waiting. The lobbyists have retreated to whatever lairs lobbyists lurk in while congressmen go on junkets.

There is a glorious abundance of fresh produce in all the farm stands of the land. There is meat on the table and fish plow the sea. There is an end to the cars and boats which clog our highways and waterways.

Unemployment is down, and the economy is booming. Interest rates are high, but the prime is still 3.5 points below its peak of two and a half years ago. The auto companies are making money and the housing industry is building homes.

We are at peace, and have been for a long time. The summer of 1983 will sometimes be remembered as idyllic.

Most of us ought to be happy. So why is there such an abiding, pervasive, relentless drumbeat of complaint, unhappiness and discontent in the morning newspaper and the evening news?

Some of the reason is politics. Six fine Democratic gentlemen are combing the countryside for friends and funds.

One does not get out an incumbent president and get himself elected by talking about how good things are in this field or that.

Some of the reason is the media itself. Good news excites no great passions, attracts no readers, newscasters prize disaster, war and disease, and the mother's milk on which we must feed as people. To those still in the fighting in El Salvador? Get frantic about three men and two planes in Grenada!

For these are genuine reasons for complaint. Some are old and lonely. Some are sick and in real pain. Some are truly unemployed and some are grindingly poor. Such people have a real reason for anguish or unhappiness, but they are not always the complainers.

There are some who do have real reason, and they complain and are unhappy in about the same proportion as the vast majority who have only one reason — guilty consciences.

We look at pictures of drought and starvation in the lands bordering the Sahara, and we go to the bugging supermarkets and boast our farm income and we know we are spoiled and feel guilty. So we are unhappy and find things to complain about.

Military games blacked out

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian officials sensitive to criticism from other Arab states have imposed a news blackout on the impending joint U.S.-Egyptian military maneuvers, military sources said Tuesday.

The joint Egyptian-American "Pillar of Stars" military exercise, the largest in the region since the Middle East was scheduled to start Wednesday amid increasing Egyptian concern over the fighting in Chad.

Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali denounced Libya's backing for rebel forces in Chad's civil war, telling reporters that "the role of Libya in Africa is leading to instability in the continent."

Asian drug czar escapes army attack

By JOHN HALL
United Press International

BANGKOK, Thailand — For the third time in two years, Southeast Asia's most notorious opium warlord has eluded a military operation to smash his illicit narcotics empire, official sources said Tuesday.

That Deputy Prime Minister Prachuab Suntrangkong said the fighting last week against Khun Sa killed two Thai army rangers and at least three soldiers of drug trafficker's private army in the opium-rich area known as the Golden Triangle.

He said 43 Thai army rangers were wounded in the operation, many of them from booby traps planted by Khun Sa's followers in the rugged mountains near the meeting point of the borders of Thailand, Burma and Laos.

"Khun Sa's forces have been driven out and our troops have been withdrawn from the operation area," Prachuab said.

But the warlord himself and the bulk of his more than 2,000 soldiers escaped the Thai assault which reportedly included air strikes by American-made helicopter gunships and fighter-bombers, the sources said.

"The latest operation was different from past campaigns because it appeared coordinated with a Burmese attack on the western side of the border."

For years, Western narcotics officers have advocated concerted action by Thailand and Burma as the only way to prevent the wild warlord from escaping with his army and mobile heroin laboratories.

The 50-year-old Khun Sa, alias Chiang-Chi-Fu, is described by Western narcotics agents as Southeast Asia's number one trafficker, controlling up to half the Golden Triangle's annual 300-ton opium crop and a big share of the heroin refining business.

Details of Burma's latest offensive against the warlord were sketchy but Thai sources said it included at least 1,000 troops and helicopters supplied to Rangoon by the United States for Burma's opium eradication efforts.

Nagasaki remembers dead from atomic bomb

TOKYO (UPI) — The city of Nagasaki Tuesday appealed for an immediate end to production and testing of nuclear weapons and offered a minute of silent prayer in memory of the thousands killed in the U.S. atomic bombing 38 years ago.

Sirens wailed and church bells tolled at precisely 11:02 a.m. — the time on Aug. 9, 1945 when an American bomber dropped the world's second atomic bomb.

More than 20,000 people observed a minute of silence in memory of the victims in a memorial service at the Peace Park.

Nagasaki Mayor Hiroshi Motoshima appealed to the world's nuclear powers to immediately end the production and testing of nuclear weapons.

"We can never forget the horror of the atomic bomb. It is the time for all survivors, mothers and educators to rise up to take action for world peace," Motoshima said.

He proposed the dispatch of peace missions to the United States and the Soviet Union and the establishment of an international medical center for those who still suffer from radiation.

"The bomb, nicknamed 'Fat Boy,' destroyed the city and instantly killed an estimated 36,000 people. Another 3,391 people were confirmed dead in the past year from long-term effects of radiation. Officials said this raised the total number of people killed by the blast to 70,000.

The attack came three days after the first atomic bomb killed an estimated 80,000 people in Hiroshima Aug. 6, 1945.

Six days after the Nagasaki bomb, Emperor Hirohito announced Japan's unconditional surrender to allied forces.

The memorial service at the Peace Park began in the morning with fireworks and a regatta played by the city orchestra.

Nation reacts to coup

Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, also met U.S. Ambassador Frank Chapin and other U.S. Embassy officials at the U.S. consulate in Guatemala's new capital.

Mejia's first act as Guatemala's new leader issued a decree lifting the state of alarm imposed by Rios Montt in June to quell an earlier threat of a military overthrow.

The state of alarm banned freedom of press, political parties, the right to hold public meetings, freedom of transit.

advance knowledge of the coup encouraged it. "Absolutely not," he said, although he acknowledged, "it was common talk all around town that a coup might happen any time."

Reign of terrorism expands with Mideast bombs, fires

By United Press International

A five-day reign of terrorism expanded in Lebanon Tuesday, as arsonists torched Christian industrial areas of Beirut, and a bomb exploded in a former Palestinian hospital, wounding three people, including two children.

In the Syrian-held eastern Bekaa Valley, three supporters of PLO chief Yasser Arafat were killed, but reports differed on the circumstances of their deaths.

Lebanese police said the three men were members of Arafat's main organization, the largest group in the Palestine Liberation Organization and the base of a 4-month-old mutiny against the guerrilla chieftain.

The police said the three were killed when their car drove over a landmine on the road linking Hawsh Harima and Marj, 26 miles east of Beirut.

But the official National News Agency said the three were apparently wounded in an ambush and executed elsewhere.

The sectarian attacks in Lebanon have escalated since last Friday when a string of terrorist car bombings began in Beirut, the northern port of Tripoli and the eastern city of Baalbek.

More than 60 people have been killed and 170 injured in the separate attacks, which coincided with the beginning of U.S. envoy Robert McFarlane's first tour of the area to win the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Lebanon.

McFarlane, thwarted in efforts to secure Saudi Arabian support for his bid to get foreign troops out of Lebanon, met with Jordan's King Hussein in an unscheduled trip to Amman, then returned to Beirut.

Woman worrying about AIDS links

Margaret Kendle holds son Kyle who will grow up a girl.

Bureaucrats balk at change of sex

ADELAIDE, Australia (UPI) — A mother whose baby boy underwent a sex change because of a genital disorder appealed Tuesday to officials to recognize the 15-month old child as a girl.

"I want to get her christened and baptized because I haven't got an appropriate birth certificate. I want my child to grow up a girl, and legally she can't," said Margaret Kendle, who is unmarried.

Kendle, 27, said she was advised by doctors eight months ago it would be better to bring her son up as a girl because he was born without a functioning penis. She did not give details of the disorder.

She has been battling bureaucracy to have Kyle Anne's sex change officially recognized, although authorities in the state of South Australia so far have refused to change the birth certificate issued when the baby, named Travis, was born.

"The births, deaths and marriages registration division won't change the entry on the birth certificate and I am fearful of my child's future."

"What happens when she is 15 or 16 and wants a birth certificate for a job or a passport and she is recorded as being a male?" Kendle said.

She said the decision to bring up

Kyle Anne as a girl despite the baby's 99 percent male chromosomes was not easy.

"Bringing her up as a girl gives her the chance of being able to have sex," she said. She said although Kyle will never be able to have children, she could lead a sexual life as a female.

The baby was born at Lyle McEwin Hospital on May 2, 1982, and was described as a male despite its non-functioning penis.

Dr. K.E.T. Little, Adelaide Children's Hospital's paediatric surgeon who performed the sex change operation, said Monday the Kendle case was an unusual one.

"The law in South Australia doesn't allow changing the birth certificate to another sex when sex has been previously stated," he said.

Little said Kyle's position is legally "a very complex child."

"Often in cases where there is ambiguous genitalia no sex is given until the parents and doctors have an opportunity to think about it, and a considered decision is made about the sex of the child which is in the best interests of the child."

"In Kyle's case, it was evident that there would be problems later on and the decision was made to change the sex of the child," Little said.

DEAR ABBY: I live in Miami, and I'm worried sick about this new AIDS epidemic that is being spread by gays and lesbians. I'm a woman, and I'm homosexual. Could I catch AIDS from him? I'm not saying he has it, but could he be a carrier without knowing it?

Abigail Van Buren Dear Abby

My landlady told me that her daughter is a nurse and she has refused nursing duty with AIDS patients because AIDS is so contagious. Please tell me and the rest of your readers how we can protect ourselves against this terrible disease. I understand there is no cure for it.

MRS. F.N.M. IN MIAMI, FLA. DEAR MRS. F.N.M.: All available medical evidence indicates that AIDS is transmitted sexually, or through the exchange of "bodily fluids" — blood or semen. There is NO danger of "catching" AIDS through casual contact with homosexuals or Haitians.

There is no evidence that AIDS is caught from "carriers" — cases of AIDS have been reported among heterosexuals, women and infants. However, in almost all cases, the victims either had intimate sexual relations with, or were the offspring of, AIDS patients.

And it is true that to date there is no known cure for AIDS. The above information has been confirmed by The Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, Ga.

DEAR ABBY: For years you have used the term in your column that has bothered me. It is "safe" — "Safety" is a noun. "Safe" is an adjective.

Nouns do not modify nouns. Adjectives do. Therefore, there are no "safety-deposit" boxes; only "safe-deposit boxes."

— AN OLD RETIRED BANKER IN DALLAS

DEAR BANKER: Far be it from me to argue with an old retired banker in Dallas, but give me a break. My Maister's Ninth Year Collegiate Dictionary says: "safe-deposit box: a box (as in the vault of a bank) for safe storage of valuables — called also safety-deposit box."

DEAR ABBY: A dear friend of mine committed adultery. Her husband suspected, but said nothing. Then a "Good Samaritan" filled him in on all the facts. Now the husband feels compelled to divorce his wife for the sake of his pride because his whole family knows about the adultery.

DEAR HURTING: He should forgive and forget. And she should avoid further temptation. In my book, the biggest villain in the piece is the "friend" who filled the husband in.

DEAR ABBY: "Allergic to Crying Babies" — was mistaken — Babies fly free on domestic flights, but not on international flights.

Babies in arms are charged 10 percent until they are 2 years old. Children 2 to 11 years old are charged 50 percent, and 12-year-olds and over must pay adult fares, which makes it very expensive to visit Grandma in Europe, Asia, South America, etc.

Alan Osmond, wife have 6th; a son again

PROVO, Utah (UPI) — Alan Osmond of the singing Osmond Family and his wife, Suzanne, are the parents of a sixth child.

And it's a boy again. "I was trying until we get a girl," Suzanne-Pinegar Osmond said Tuesday. "But we love all six of our boys."

The 7-pound, 13-ounce son was born at 5:39 p.m. Monday at Utah Valley Hospital. The 29th grandchild of George and Olive Osmond was named Jonathan Eugene Osmond.

The mother and son were expected to remain in the hospital for three days. Both were reported in excellent condition — a spokesman for the Osmond Family said.

Alan Osmond, 33, flew back to Provo about noon Monday to handle the delivery. He was assisted by Drs. James Einton and Thomas Myers Jr. The father had been in the delivery room during the first five births, but Monday's delivery was his first.

"To be able to personally bring him into the world was the greatest thrill of my life," he said. "Every father should have this experience."

Now that's the oldest I call a record success."

Alan is the youngest of the seven Osmonds who perform together regularly. They had been on tour in the United States and Canada for the past six weeks. He is scheduled to rejoin his other brothers and sister, Marie, on Aug. 15 for the remaining four weeks of the tour.

Peter Jennings Co-worker still in air

ABC gives anchor post to Jennings

NEW YORK (UPI) — ABC News President Roone Arledge Tuesday announced the appointment of Peter Jennings as sole anchorman for the network's "World News Tonight."

He left the fate of co-anchor Max Robinson undecided.

The decision ends the network's five-year experiment with having its daily evening newscast anchored from three cities — Washington, London and Chicago.

Arledge said in a statement that Jennings was sole anchor and senior editor of "World News Tonight" effective immediately and beginning in September he would be based in New York.

The terms of his salary were not disclosed.

Jennings previously had been the broadcast's London anchor and chief foreign correspondent, while Robinson handled domestic news from Chicago, and the late Frank Reynolds held the Washington post.

An ABC spokesman said Robinson was in contract negotiations with the network, "and we are in constant communication with him regarding his future role."

Robinson, who was on vacation, was not available for comment.

Jennings, a 45-year-old Canadian citizen, served in the same post when he first joined ABC News in 1964.

HONOLULU (UPI) — Actor Tom Selleck has shaken off the effects of a weekend Jeep accident and has started filming a new season for the "Magnum, P.I." television series.

Selleck, 38, suffered minor injuries Sunday when a Jeep driven by his stepson, Kevin, is broken through a third-floor parking garage railing and plunged 20 feet onto a trailer.

A spokeswoman at the Honolulu office of Universal Studios said there would be no statement on the incident.

Wheat plan pushes cutbacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration Tuesday put into effect a 1984 wheat program that, for the second year in a row, will encourage wheat farmers to idle cropland.

Agriculture Secretary John Block had provisionally announced details of the program on July 29. It was one of two options, depending on whether Congress acted to freeze target prices that determine cash subsidies to farmers.

Because a filibuster kept Congress from acting on the legislation before its summer recess, Deputy Secretary Richard Lyng formally put into effect the option that includes a higher target price.

The wheat price support loan will be reduced to $3.30 per bushel, down from $3.65 this year, to send a signal to other grain-producing nations that the United States will fight to maintain export markets. The loan rule acts as a floor under farm prices because farmers can turn grain over to the government if prices fall below the loan.

Because Congress failed to freeze the target price at $4.30 per bushel, it will rise to $4.45. That means that if post-harvest market prices fall below that level, as expected, farmers will be given cash from the U.S. Treasury to make up the difference between the target and a national average price.

The government estimates that the average wheat price will be $3.30, but at the level of the price support loan — per-bushel payments could approach $1.15.

To be eligible for these benefits, farmers will be required to reduce their acreage by 30 percent. If they cut acreage up to another 20 percent, they can receive wheat stocks equal to 75 percent of that extra land that would have harvested on that land.

Kangaroo protectors plead case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charging that the slaughter of kangaroos in Australia makes Canada's bloody seal hunts "look like a picnic," animal welfare groups Tuesday urged President Reagan to ban the import of kangaroo products.

"By opening the U.S. market to the cruel kangaroo-killers of Australia, the administration may be responsible for symbolizing Australia's national signing to extinction," said Marian Newman, president of the Kangaroo Protection Foundation.

The Interior Department announced Aug. 1 that it plans to permanently open the U.S. market to kangaroo products. In 1981, the administration temporarily opened the U.S. market to kangaroo skins and meat.

Twelve animal-welfare groups organized a small protest in Lafayette Square, rallying beneath a 16-foot kangaroo balloon to which was attached the sign: "Please Mr. President Ban Kangaroo Imports."

"The cruel massacre of millions of kangaroos across Australia makes Canada's seal hunt look like a picnic," Ms. Newman said. "The Joey's are bashed or stomped to death under a hunter's boot while adults are frequently wounded and die an agonizing death."

The Interior Department defended its decision and the Australian government defended its treatment of kangaroos.

"We lifted the ban after we sent a biologist to the country," said Meg Durham, spokeswoman for the Department's Fish and Wildlife Service. "It was our judgment that allowing the import of kangaroos would not pose any significant problems for the population."

Heat goes on, crushing waves end

By United Press International

Deadly heat that has claimed nearly 200 lives nationwide this summer settled in the Plains Tuesday and "wave" damage ran into the millions of dollars along the Southern California coast.

In Florida, Maine and Vermont recovered from raging thunderstorms and twisters that left thousands without power and damaged scores of cars, homes and boats.

"You see pictures of this in the newspaper, but you don't expect it to happen right here," said David Davis of Skowhegan, Maine, where roads were blocked by trees uprooted in Monday's storm.

The deadly heat that has taken 106 lives so far this year settled in the Plains Tuesday, producing mid-end upper 90-degree readings. The 90-degree readings were expected to bring minor relief from recent 100-degree marks.

Talking politics, economics Reagan sides with Hispanics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan talked politics and economics at a luncheon with Hispanic leaders Tuesday and pledged to address the economic and social concerns of the Hispanic community.

Reagan later reviewed the economic problems experienced by people living along the U.S.-Mexican border.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes described the luncheon with selected Hispanic leaders — the second such meeting in a week — as a "listening session" designed to air the concerns of Hispanics, whose growing political clout has gotten the attention of both parties.

Vice President George Bush kept up the momentum in the administration outreach program with an appearance Tuesday at the kickoff of a nationwide Hispanic voter registration drive in San Antonio, Texas.

Bush told the audience of Hispanic leaders and activists, "If you look at the facts, you'll find it is the Republican approach which offers a full share in a growing and great nation."

On Monday, New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya accused Reagan before the same gathering of using "cosmetic activities" to hide a poor record of service to Hispanics.

"It doesn't look like it will be quite as drastic today over much of the nation as it has been," said National Weather Service meteorologist Harry Gordon.

Dietrich ready to battle consolidation drive

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

DIETRICH — The Dietrich School District is one of the smallest in the state, but most of its residents love it. And they are prepared to fight with anyone who suggests that it merge with the Shoshone and Richfield school districts.

School board members are confident that they will beat a petition drive promoting consolidation, launched by a former Shoshone resident.

But they are worried about a legislative effort that looms on the horizon to reorganize school districts.

Board members recently went door-to-door to canvass residents, to prove their point that the district stands solidly behind the little school.

The results of the survey were announced at Monday's monthly board meeting. They showed an overwhelming majority against consolidation, with 132 out of 155 residents against it. The rest said they were either neutral or would consider some form of consolidation.

If Dietrich and Shoshone consolidated, people said they would send their children to Richfield, reported board member Randy McGowan.

And if all three districts merged, people would rather go to school in Minidoka, said board member Wallace Bingham Jr. "Nobody wanted to go to Shoshone," he said.

Board member Sue McGowan said she attended schools in Reno, Nev. (Shoshone), Gooding and Bliss. Bliss was the best, she said.

"I went to Shoshone. I know what it's like," she said.

And board member Yvonne Gage, who also attended Shoshone, said students get more special attention in Dietrich.

If all three schools merge, there still would not be enough students to offer any additional courses or activities, Sue McGowan said.

When it comes to sports, board Chairman

Mervin Ridding said the school is competitive with others its size. "We were competitive even when we had fewer kids," he said.

Dietrich, an agricultural town of about 450 people, located eight miles east of Shoshone, has about 130 students.

The Dietrich School was built in 1934, but has been remodeled.

The original high ceilings have been lowered to conserve heat. And the walls have been covered with a combination of wood-grain and blue-former paneling.

The district purchased the town's Mormon church last year and has set up the rooms to house kindergarten and first and second grades.

Ironically, the Dietrich Mormon church has consolidated with the Shoshone ward.

Superintendent Wayne Perron is proud of his ability to acquire bargain-rate materials. He says he even hauled some window shades out of the dump in Sun Valley and used them to brighten up a classroom.

In his 17 years as superintendent, Perron has hammered away some himself and talked local carpenters into doing the rest at cut-rate prices.

People work on the school because they care about it, he said. It doesn't cost much to run the school.

The size of the school, however, does have its drawbacks, as board members found out in their survey.

The school has to alternate some science classes depending on student demand and offers only one foreign language.

Perron, however, says the school now owns three computers and will offer three sections of computer science to high school students.

The junior-high coaches have to dip into the sixth grade and sometimes into the fifth to put a team together. And that leads to friction between the coaches and some parents, said Sue McGowan.

Students are pushed to participate. And some parents have complained to McGowan.

about elementary school students traveling out of town for games.

McGowan also reported some complaints about elementary students having the same teacher for kindergarten and first and second grades.

"The students need a change," she said. Perron said he would consider rearranging the teaching schedule if a majority of the parents favor it.

Despite the complaints that were discussed, board members remained adamant in their opposition to consolidation.

"There is no way we're going to consolidate locally," board chairman Ridding said Monday night. "We want to control our own destiny," he said.

"People say we're clannish, and they're right," Randy McGowan said.

People moved to Dietrich to get away from big city schools, and they want to keep it that way, Ridding said.

Youths yell out at 'hot' cheerleader camp

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Despite the 90-degree heat, 84 girls and two boys spent all day Monday and Tuesday jumping and yelling on the lawn and in the cafeteria of the College of Southern Idaho.

And the same thing will happen today.

It was not some weird kind of group therapy, but a three-day cheerleading camp, sponsored by the World Cheerleader Council of Dallas.

Cheerleading squads from all over the Magic Valley and a little beyond converged at CSI this week to sharpen their skills.

All but four of the girls came to the three-day camp as school units. And that will help when it comes to perfecting routines this fall.

By the time Scott Sasaki of Seattle and Jane

Link of Vancouver, Wash., get through with the group, they will know how to who the crowd into a frenzy with style at the next football game.

The two leaders, however, encouraged the participants to individualize what they have learned, so schools all over the Magic Valley will not end up looking like clones.

Sasaki, a pep leader at the University of Washington, and Link, a former cheerleader at Clark College, are teaching their charges how to do stunts, cheers and pyramids to the sound of the latest pop tunes. Michael Jackson was the all-time favorite with the group at CSI.

But they also are teaching the students about crowd psychology and group dynamics.

Cheerleaders have to break down a crowd's "cool barrier" to be successful, Sasaki said.

After the strategy session, it was back to "Zit, straight, over right shoulder; turn, 1,2,3,4,5,6,7, together." That's what it takes to master a new routine.

And it was not all that easy for all squad members — especially for John Tooleen and Jim Miller of Jerome.

The two had never participated in any sort of pep rallies before the camp, and they had decided to come at the last minute.

Mittler and Tooleen wanted to learn how to do stunts and pyramids, but they did really expect to face intricate dance routines.

By Tuesday afternoon, however, they were getting the hang of it.

And so were the dozens of other tanned and athletic young women who dotted the cafeteria floor.

Activities dangerous Center faces age problems

By DAVID MORFAT

TWIN FALLS — There will be no more dancing or pool playing at the Twin Falls Senior Citizen Center, off Fourth Avenue West, until defects in the building's floor-support structure are corrected.

A study by a city engineer and a city building inspector has shown that the building's problems are worse than thought originally.

And repairs, which the City Council has promised, will cost more than originally expected.

Council requested the study of the building early this summer after part of the floor in a south wing collapsed.

The senior citizens had wanted to renovate that wing to expand their kitchen facilities.

The city owns the building, which formerly housed a restaurant and bar, and it rents it to the senior citizens. As landlord, council members have agreed the city has no choice but to remedy the damage and prove a safe structure.

But after Dale Riedesel, an engineer on contract with the city, and Clare Harkins, the city building inspector, completed their four of a day-long study last week, they found in the two-hour tour of the building, Riedesel and Harkins found that deterioration of floor-support structures "to be particularly bad.

Both dancing and pool playing, if continued, could lead to further sections of floor collapsing, they said.

The senior-citizen center is composed of four buildings combined into one. The sections were moved from various locations to the present site and built on steel beams.

The two men found the outer beams rest on rocks, dirt, old brick and concrete rubble. The inner beams rest on cinder-block columns with a variety of wood shims.

Their report said the outside foundation appears to be stable, although some of the floor joists "do not appear to be anchored to it in any manner."

The cinder-block columns supporting the inner beams, however, are cracked in places from the weight of the building above. Dancing could cause further strain on these columns and should be eliminated, the report said.

The south wing of the building, where the collapses already have occurred, used to be a butcher shop, the report said. Meat racks and a large walk-in freezer remain. Several inches of concrete also were poured onto a plywood floor there.

The report says the floor in the south wing "possibly rotted and collapsed due to moisture trapped beneath it and the extra weight of the concrete."

A similar problem exists in the east section of the building, where the senior center has installed several pool tables, the report said.

Water appears to be running freely into the cavity under this section from a faucet on the front of the building, they said. Further floor failures there are likely in light of the heavy pool tables above, according to the report.

Based on the report, Councilman Paul Newton estimated at a council workshop on Monday that the center could pose anywhere from a $10,000 to a $50,000 problem. More analysis is needed before repair costs can be estimated accurately.

Council members have given city staff members 30 days to confer with local contractors and come up with three figures.

But council members also agreed that for the money, it would be difficult to find a similarly adequate space for the senior citizens to use.

The building is approximately 3,000 square feet in size.

Area schools gear up with class registration

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ

TWIN FALLS — Although the recent heat wave is more likely to produce visions of swimming pools and ice cream than of blackboards, it's time for Twin Falls students to think about school again.

Kindergarten students through ninth-graders will start classes on Monday, Aug. 29, while high-school students will return on Wednesday, Aug. 31.

Registration started Monday and will proceed on a staggered basis until all of the 6,500-plus students are registered for the school year.

Students are to register according to the following schedule:

O'Leary Junior High School students should pick up their class schedules and pay their locker and activity fees this week.

Students in the O'Leary district who are new to the Twin Falls school system should register next week.

On Aug. 29, all seventh-graders should report to the auditorium at 8:50 a.m. for orientation. Eighth- and ninth-graders should proceed to their homerooms at 8:50 a.m.

The school day will run from 8:50 a.m. to 3:10 p.m. Lunch will be served.

All students should report to their homerooms at 8:50 a.m. on Aug. 29, with classes scheduled until 3:10 p.m. Lunch will be served.

Locker and activity fees will be collected Sept. 2.

Elementary students who have not registered should do so next Monday, Aug. 15. All new students in grades kindergarten through fifth are required to present proof of immunization against DPT, polio, measles, mumps and rubella before entering school.

Classes will begin on Aug. 29 at 8:50 a.m. Lunch will be served.

Twin Falls High School seniors should register on Friday, Aug. 26. Juniors will follow on Monday, Aug. 29, with sophomores registering on Tuesday, Aug. 30.

Each day, students with last names beginning with "A" through "Z" will register at 8:50 a.m., "A" through "M" at 9:30 a.m., "N" through "R" at 10:15 a.m., "S" through "V" at 11:00 a.m., and "W" through "Z" at 11:45 a.m.

Senior National Honor Society students will register on Thursday, Aug. 26, at 8 a.m.

Students arriving late will have to wait until all others have registered before being admitted.

All students will pay their fees at registration, and sophomores and juniors will have their school pictures taken.

Alternate phone services New carriers arrive in Magic Valley offering long-distance rates

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's a long shot from Twin Falls to a sales representative in New York or to a relative in Oklahoma. But after paying the long-distance phone bills every month, some businesses and residential customers might wish they could climb up on the roof and bellow that far.

Recent court decisions that have opened up the telephone industry to competition obviously cannot change the laws of physics to deliver a 1,000-mile note for free.

But new carriers now are taking on the giant of the industry, American Telephone and Telegraph Co., by offering long-distance service at discounts averaging 30 percent.

Two discount carriers have begun tapping the Twin Falls market during the past few months.

The latest, MCI Communications Corp., opened service in Twin Falls just two weeks ago. Already the No. 2 carrier in the nation, MCI operates its own long-distance network, which relies mainly on satellite transmissions and microwave links.

Another carrier, Interstate Telephone Corp. of Salt Lake City, moved into Twin Falls on May 1, with a sophisticated computer and an agreement to lease phone lines from the Mountain Bell Telephone Co. It quietly, but apparently effectively, has been signing up large phone users, such as the city of Twin Falls and various businesses.

These two are only a sampling of the new companies that are flocking into the industry, since federal courts ordered the AT&T to provide its competitors with access to its long-distance lines.

A subsequent agreement between the federal government and AT&T will break up the

"We focus in on some metro areas, and then we expand — then we manage"

Under the divestiture agreement, regional companies, such as Mountain Bell, will retain local service. AT&T will continue to provide interstate, long-distance service. But the national companies and AT&T will operate separately, and each will have to meet competition from newcomers for long-distance service.

To date, AT&T's biggest challenge nationally has come from MCI. It triggered the court suits that resulted in the Bell breakup. Its phone subsidiary, MCI Telecommunications, runs the second-largest long-distance network in the nation, and it is expanding at a tremendous rate.

Both carriers and profits in 1982, to more than $1 billion. At the end of 1982, MCI had invested $1 billion to create its land network in 1983.

"We focus in on some major metro areas, and then we expand out," says Jay Spenco, the district manager for the Rocky Mountain area, based in Denver.

Twin Falls is on an expensive push that will take AT&T north through Boise, Idaho Falls, and into Montana, he says. In the near future, the company expects to erect microwave towers to relay transmissions back to Denver and then up to satellites, he says.

For the time being, it is routing phone lines from AT&T to connect customers in Twin Falls with the Denver switching station.

Interstate Telephone Corp. operates differently. It leases national long-distance telephone lines directly from Mountain Bell, says Craig Daley, the local manager. His company is known as a S-WATS (wide area transmission service) line reseller.

But Interstate agrees so much use out of them that it can pass much greater savings along to customers than if they bought the lines themselves.

"We buy a quantity of WATS lines, and because our computers system work so efficiently, we are able to keep the costs down," Daley says.

Interstate pegs its average customer savings at 30 percent. Its first customer was the city of Twin Falls, Daley says.

"I think our savings were even greater than we really expected," says Bryan King, the city finance director. The city was spending anywhere from $1,100 to $1,200 a month on long-distance calls. "I wouldn't say that 35 percent (savings) is unrealistic," King says.

Interstate, which is a subsidiary of National Applied Computer Technologies, also uses its computers for reselling long-distance service.

"For instance, it can keep track of individual accounts for customers, which can be used by businesses to monitor use within departments. It also has other business programs."

Interstate will connect residences into its system for a one-time $5 charge and advance payments for the estimated first bill. They say after that, the customer pays only long-distance charges. Because Interstate is dealing with Mountain Bell, it can offer long-distance service within the state of Idaho, as well as outside the state, is willing to sell phone equipment at discounts, Daley says.

Wheat plan pushes cutbacks

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Reagan administration Tuesday put into effect a 1983 wheat program that for the second year in a row, will encourage wheat farmers to idle cropland.

Agriculture Secretary John Block had provisionally announced details of the program on July 29. It was one of two options, depending on whether Congress acted to freeze target prices that determine cash subsidies to farmers.

Because a filibuster kept Congress from acting on the legislation before its summer recess, Deputy Secretary Richard Lyng formally put into effect the option that includes a higher target price.

The wheat price support loan will be reduced to $3.30 per bushel, down from $3.65 this year, to send a signal to other grain-producing nations that the United States will fight to maintain export markets. The loan rate acts as a floor under farm prices because farmers can turn grain over to the government. If prices fall below the loan.

Because Congress failed to freeze the target price at $4.30 per bushel, it will rise to $4.45. That means that if post-harvest market prices fall below that level, as expected, farmers will be given cash from the U.S. Treasury to make up the difference between the target and a national average price.

The government estimates that the average wheat price will be $3.30, right at the level of the price support loan so per-bushel payments could approach $1.15.

To be eligible for these benefits, farmers will be required to reduce their acreage by 30 percent. If they cut acreage up to another 20 percent, they can receive wheat stocks equal to 75 percent of what they would have harvested on that extra land.

California coast.

In the East, Maine and Vermont recovered from raging thunderstorms and twisters that left thousands without power and damaged scores of cars, homes and boats.

"You see pictures of this in the newspaper, but you don't expect it to happen right here," said Vivian Davis of Skowhegan, Maine, where roads were blocked by trees uprooted in Monday's storm.

"The deadly heat that has taken 198 lives so far this year settled in the state Tuesday, pushing the high under 90-degree readings. The 30-degree readings were expected to bring minor relief from recent 100-degree marks.

"It doesn't look like it will be quite as drastic today over much of the nation as it has been," said National Weather Service meteorologist Harry Gordon.

Talking politics, economics Reagan sides with Hispanics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan talked politics and economics at a luncheon with Hispanic leaders Tuesday and pledged to address the economic and social concerns of the Hispanic community.

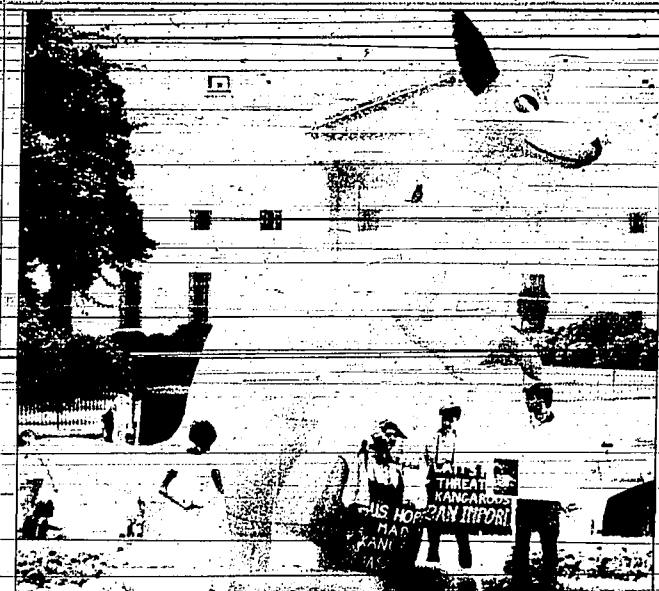

Reagan later reviewed the economic problems experienced by people living along the U.S.-Mexican border.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes described the luncheon with selected Hispanic leaders — the second such meeting in a week — as "a listening session" designed to air the concerns of Hispanics, whose growing political clout has gotten the attention of both parties.

Vice President George Bush kept up the momentum in the administration outreach program with an appearance Tuesday at the kickoff of a nationwide Hispanic voter registration drive in San Antonio, Texas.

Bush told the audience of Hispanic leaders and activists, "If you look at the facts, you'll find it is the Republican approach which offers a full share in a growing and great nation."

On Monday, New Mexico Gov. Tommy Donoy accused Reagan before the same gathering of using "cosmetic activities" to hide a poor record of service to Hispanics.

Kangaroo protectors plead case

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Charging that the slaughter of kangaroos in Australia makes Canada's bloody seal hunts "look like a picnic," animal welfare groups Tuesday urged President Reagan to ban the import of kangaroo products.

"By opening the U.S. market to the cruel kangaroo-killers of Australia, the administration may be responsible for consigning Australia's national symbol to extinction," said Marian Newman, president of the Kangaroo Protection Foundation.

The Interior Department announced Aug. 1 that it plans to permanently open the U.S. market to kangaroo products. In 1981, the administration temporarily opened the U.S. market to kangaroo skins and meat.

Twelve animal welfare groups organized a small protest in Lafayette Square, rallying beneath a 16-foot kangaroo balloon to which was attached the sign: "Please Mr. President Ban Kangaroo Imports."

"The cruel massacre of millions of kangaroos across Australia makes Canada's seal hunt look like a picnic," Ms. Newman said. "The boys are bashed or stomped to death under a hunter's boot while adults are frequently wounded and die an agonizing death."

The Interior Department defended its decision and the Australian government defended its treatment of kangaroos.

"We lifted the ban after we sent a biologist to the country," said Meg Durham, spokeswoman for the Department's Fish and Wildlife Service. "It was our judgment that allowing the import of kangaroos would not pose any significant problems for the population."

Dietrich ready to battle consolidation drive

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

DIETRICH — The Dietrich School District is one of the smallest in the state, but most of its residents love it. And they are prepared to fight with anyone who suggests that it merge with the Shoshone and Richfield school districts.

School board members are confident that they will beat a petition drive promoting consolidation, launched by a former Shoshone resident.

But they are worried about a legislative effort that looms on the horizon to reorganize school districts.

Board members recently went door to door to canvass residents to prove their point that the district stands solidly behind the little school.

The results of the survey were announced at Monday's monthly board meeting. They showed an overwhelming majority against consolidation, with 132 out of 155 residents against it. The rest said they were either neutral or would consider some form of consolidation.

If Dietrich and Shoshone consolidated, people said they would send their children to Richfield, reported board member Randy McGowan.

And if all three districts merged, people would rather go to school in Minidoka, said board member Wallace Bingham Jr. "Nobody wanted to go to Shoshone," he said.

Board member Sue McGowan said she attended schools in Richfield, Shoshone, Gooding and Bliss. "Bliss was the best, she said.

"I want to Shoshone. I know what it's like," she said.

And board member Yvonne Gage, who also attended Shoshone, said students get more special attention in Dietrich.

If all three schools merge, there still would not be enough students to offer any additional courses or activities, Sue McGowan said.

When it comes to sports, board Chairman

Mervin Ridinger said the school is competitive with others in its size. "We were competitive even when we had fewer kids," he said.

Dietrich, an agricultural town of about 450 people, located eight miles east of Shoshone, has about 130 students.

The Dietrich School was built in 1934, but has been remodeled.

The original high ceilings have been lowered to conserve heat. And the walls have been covered with a combination of wood-grain and four former walling.

The district purchased the town's Mormon church last year and has set up the rooms to house kindergarten and first and second grades.

Ironically, the Dietrich Mormon church has consolidated with the Shoshone ward.

Superintendent Wayne Perron is proud of his ability to acquire bargain-rate materials. He says he even hauled some window shades out of the dump in Sun Valley and used them to brighten up a classroom.

In his 17 years as superintendent, Perron has hammered away some himself and talked local carpenters into doing the rest at cut-rate prices.

People work on the school because they care about it, he said. It doesn't cost much to run the school.

The size of the school, however, does have its drawbacks, as board members found out in their survey.

The school has to alternate some science classes depending on student demand and offers only one foreign language.

Perron, however, says the school now owns three computers and will offer three sections of computer science to high school students.

The junior-high coaches have to tip into the sixth grade and sometimes into the fifth to put a team together. And that leads to friction between the coaches and some parents, said Sue McGowan.

Students are pushed to participate. And some parents have complained to McGowan about elementary school students traveling out of town for games.

McGowan also reported some complaints about elementary students having the same teacher for kindergarten and first- and second grades. "The students need a change," he said.

Perron said he would consider rearranging the teaching schedule if a majority of the parents favor it.

Despite the complaints that were discussed, board members remained adamant in their opposition to consolidation.

"There is no way we're going to consolidate locally," board chairman Ridinger said Monday night. "We want to control our own destiny," he said.

"People say we're clannish, and they're right," Randy McGowan said.

People moved to Dietrich to get away from big city schools, and they want to keep it that way, Ridinger said.

Youths yell out at 'hot' cheerleader camp

TWIN FALLS — Despite the 90-degree heat, 84 girls and two boys spent all day Monday and Tuesday jumping and yelling on the lawns and in the cafeteria of the College of Southern Idaho.

And the same thing will happen today.

It was not some weird kind of group therapy, but a three-day summer camp, sponsored by the World Cheerleader Council of Dallas.

Cheerleading squads from all over the Magic Valley and a little beyond converged at CSI this week to sharpen their skills.

All but four of the girls came to the three-day camp as school units. And that will help it come to perfecting routines this fall.

Alternate phone services New carriers arrive in Magic Valley offering long-distance rates

BOISE — A U.S. Bankruptcy Court judge in Boise has given Bunt trout farmer Ken Ellis more time to sell three companies to prospective buyers.

Ellis placed Valley Trout Farms Inc., Magic Springs Inc. and Parnag Inc. in reorganization more than a year ago to make them profitable.

However, efforts to pay off the companies' debts now apparently hinge on a sale of either Hagen Inc. or to compeller Clear Springs Trout Farm, both from the Buhl area.

Monday, Dykas said he could not comment on any aspects of the negotiations because of specific directions from the Production Credit Association management and the interested parties.

Ellis company that produces fish eggs, according to documents filed with the court. Both the Production-Credit Association and the federal Internal Revenue Service previously had argued in court that the trout company should be taken out of reorganization and forced into foreclosure or into forced liquidation of assets.

City approves budget, raises

BY VICKIE DRAEER
Times-News correspondent

HANSEN The Hansen City Council approved a budget of $181,371, which includes raises for the mayor and councilmen.

The 1983-84 fiscal year budget was approved at Monday night's regular council meeting, where it was noted that all tentative expenditures were balanced with the city's revenue.

City clerk Darlene Miller said the budget was "about the same as last year."

Among the few changes are raises for council members, Mayor Galen A. Simpson announced.

Simpson's salary was raised $85 a month — from $15 to $100 a month. Council members will receive $50 a month instead of their previous salary of $10 a month, Simpson said.

The raises will go into effect Oct. 1, along with the new budget.

In other business:

• Bob Wayment, chairman of the recreation council, complained that there were parents who refused to pay for their children to play in the summer ball programs.

He asked the council to allocate revenue-sharing funds to pay the costs of the ball programs.

• The council agreed to pick up the deficit this year, but agreed that in succeeding years, the kids should either pay or not play.

• "We don't know for sure if we're going to get revenue sharing every year," one council member said, noting "they've been saying they're going to cut the funds for four or five years now."

• The mayor reported that the city had $8,000 unspent from Housing and Urban Development funds. He said the money would expire in August until October, if it will be lost to the city.

• After considering several ways in which the money could be spent, the council decided to "think it over" until its next meeting.

• Simpson said the city had made the final payment of the city's fire engine.

East End Twin Falls County

The wiring of the post and cable fence, which the city council had previously agreed to do.

The council also decided to put in a post and cable fence on the side adjoining Northwest Mobile Home Estates, rather than wait until October for a chain-link fence to be installed by the owner of the mobile home park. It was reported that "many bikes and one vehicle" had already been driven across the newly-soiled grass.

• The next city council meeting will be Sept. 12 at 8 p.m.

Bliss budgets same as last year

BY HOLLY BECKSTROM
Times-News correspondent

BLISS The Bliss City Council approved a $43,100 budget for the coming year — the same amount as last year's budget.

The city will be requesting $15,000 from Gooding County to supplement its $28,400 income. It was noted at a recent council meeting.

In other business, the council restricted use of the city's rodeo grounds.

Anyone wishing to use the rodeo grounds will need to contact Fern Cacerusa, superintendent of Bliss parks. For permission before the grounds can be used.

The council made the ruling because of problem with messes left by the spectators.

Mayor Roland Zollinger said the city may soon have to change admission prices if the messes continue. The police department has only about $45 in its account, which is not enough to fund a maintenance crew to clean up the messes, he said.

Ruby Jinkins, Bliss Centennial chairman, told the council that the Bliss Centennial books are now on sale. She said the books are $5 and, thanks to an invitation from Gooding's Mayor Gene Heller, can be purchased at the Gooding County Fair.

They will be on sale in the same booth as the Gooding Historical 75th Diamond Jubilee Books, she said.

Oliver Clements, a representative of J.U.D. engineering, was present at the council meeting to offer to help Bliss apply for a continuing loan grant to be used for economic development.

The application needs to be accompanied with letters of intent from Bliss businessmen, he said.

Burley to intervene in lawsuit

BY THOMAS MOHRHLANG
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY The Burley City Council voted to intervene in a lawsuit that the city of Heyburn has filed against Cassia County to halt operation of the city's garbage-tooled steam plant, which is located in Heyburn.

Burley councilmen at a recent meeting indicated the city needs to protect its investment in the plant through the action. The city of Heyburn wants the plant shut down, contending it is a source of air pollution.

In other business, the council conducted a revenue-sharing hearing. The councilmen heard proposals for projects on which to spend part of the city's $111,700 revenue-sharing funds.

Burley residents Ron Ploger and Brent Kerba, representing the Burley Men's Slow Pitch Softball Association, presented a proposal to develop several acres of Cassia County property into a sports triplex at a cost of $27,000.

Ploger, city recreation director, indicated that Burley is unable to host softball tournaments because of a lack of a suitable facility. He said in his experience "in recreation" in St. George, Utah, softball tournaments can be an economic boon to the community.

The two men proposed that the county permit use of land located adjacent to the Cassia County fairgrounds under a perpetual lease. Currently, the land is used only during the county fair for parking.

The council encouraged the men to first approach the Cassia County commission for funding and then to appear again before the council.

The second proposal was presented by Burley resident Lyle MORROW of the Burley American Legion. His request was for $3,325 for improvements to the existing Burley baseball park.

The council suggested the veterans group approach the local school district for help with funding the project as the Burley High School baseball team uses the park for home baseball games.

In other business:

• City attorney Parsons told the council that the city has received a copy of the Chemical Bank of New York lawsuit pertaining to the termination of two nuclear power plants in the Washington Public Power Supply System. The Burley Council has over 500 defendants named in the suit on behalf of bond holders who purchased bonds for the construction of the plant. No individuals in the Burley city government were named in the suit, although the Board of Directors of Utility Light and Power was named. It was pointed out.

• The council voted to send Parsons to a Seattle meeting on the lawsuit to be held later in the month.

Realtors fear home market on decline

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

to cause large numbers of home buyers to turn away from the market, said the National Association of Realtors.

It rates climb another half-percent, the action could cause a decline in economic activity in Idaho of an estimated $154 million over one year, with less money being spent on building new homes and refurbishing existing residences, the group said.

Jack Carlson, the association's chief economist and executive, said conventional mortgage rates of 14 1/2 percent also could result in the loss of nearly 3,100 jobs in Idaho over one year.

"We fully expect they will be going up that other half a point," said association spokesman Bill Adkinson in Washington, D.C., noting that the group's economic impact figures were based on a 2 percent increase in rates, from 12 1/2 percent to 14 1/2 percent.

"The outlook now is that interest rates are going to tick up, but not all of a sudden like they did a couple years ago," Adkinson said. "We expect them to go past 14 percent this year" and "be closer to the 15 percent range."

He said the group began seeing an upward trend in interest rates three months ago, but rates in the past few weeks have been going up "significantly faster than first expected."

The higher rates could result in a drop of 1,306 housing starts statewide and an overall 24 percent decline in Idaho home real estate sales, Carlson said.

Grass, timber fires ignited by thunderstorms

By United Press International

Four grass and timber fires touched off by a severe overnight lightning storm were still burning Tuesday in southern Idaho.

The largest blaze, consuming about 1,500 acres, broke out about 7 p.m. near Minidoka as the brilliant electrical storm and rain moved east across the state.

Officials said three people were working that blaze south of Salmon. A district spokesman added more fires may have been ignited during the storm, but steam from evaporation in the forest made it impossible to differentiate fires from water vapor during a morning drizzle.

Crews were battling two fires in the Burley BLM District.

District spokesman Bob Gibson said 35 people were working to contain an 800-acre range blaze near the Utah-Idaho border. Another 60-acre fire was burning near Elkhorn Dam, with about 30 people assigned to that area.

National Weather Service officials said heavy rain along with 60 mph winds were reported in south-central Idaho near the town of Burley.

with Evangelist RICHARD HEARD

PROPHECY CRUSADE

THE COMING WORLD DICTATOR
Somewhere in Europe lives the greatest leader the world will ever know. This man, according to the Bible, the Scripture gives him, will come with an electrifying program that will deliver the world from all its wars. It's economic and monetary problems. But in the end all humanity will be required to worship him as God or face extermination. The Bible tells us without his special mark or number, no one will be able to buy and sell... or hold a job. HE WILL BE A MASTER OF DECEPTION

And he counsell ALL; both small and great, rich and poor, free and bond (in prison), to receive a mark IN THEIR RIGHT HAND or IN THEIR FOREHEADS, and that NO MAN might buy or sell, except he had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. Revelation 13:16-17

Fish & Game approves fall steelhead season

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Fish and Game Commission approved Tuesday a fall steelhead fishing season on the Salmon and Snake rivers, opening Sept. 1, saying prospects should at least equal results from last year's season.

Commissioners also approved an Oct. 15 opener for a catch-and-keep season on the Clearwater River system.

Steelhead counts at Bonneville Dam, the first of eight such barriers on the Columbia and Snake rivers, are running ahead of last year, said John Coon, executive fisheries manager for the Idaho agency.

As of Monday, the Bonneville count was 107,706, compared to 74,763 on the same day last year, he said. The 1992 upstream migration to Idaho was the best in a decade of department record-keeping, he said.

Fish now crossing Bonneville make up the fall run, those that return to the Salmon and Snake, Coon said. He said counts of the Clearwater steelhead in the "B" run begin Aug. 26.

Lower Granite is the last dam the fish must traverse to enter Idaho waters. The Aug. 9 count at that barrier was 333, about 300 ahead of the same day last year, he said.

The bulk of the Idaho-bound "A" run will be reaching Lower Granite about mid-September, he said.

"Regulations this year are generally designed to provide maximum harvest of hatchery stocks and protect wild, native steelhead," Coon said.

The following regulations were approved by commissioners:

Salmon River — From its mouth to Basin Creek about eight miles below Stanley, Sept. 1-Dec. 31, with a daily limit of two, possession limit of four and season limit of 10.

Steelhead with dorsal fins higher than 2 1/2 inches — considered wild fish — must be released and barbless hooks are required.

Snake River — From the Idaho-Washington line at the confluence of the Snake and Clearwater rivers, Sept. 1-Dec. 31, with limits of two, four and 10.

Anglers can keep steelhead with dorsal fins higher than 2 1/2 inches only between the Snake-Clearwater confluence and the mouth of Redbird Creek from Nov. 15-Dec. 31.

The dorsal-fin restriction also does not apply for the fall season from Hells Canyon Dam to Wild Sheep Rapids, 2 1/2 miles downstream. Otherwise, only steelhead with dorsal fins shorter than 2 1/2 inches can be taken and barbless hooks are required.

Clearwater River — From its confluence with the Snake River at Lewiston upstream to the Clearwater River bridge at Orofino, Oct. 15-Dec. 31. Limits of two, four and 10.

From a point bridge at Orofino upstream to the posted line at the mouth of the South Fork of the Clearwater, Oct. 15-Dec. 31, limits of one, one and three, with no rats or boats with motors allowed.

North Fork, from its mouth upstream to the yards below Damish Dam, Oct. 15-Dec. 31. Limits of two, four and 10. Fishing is prohibited from the shoreline around Dworshak National Hatchery and fishing from a boat is prohibited between the mouth of the North Fork and the Ahaska Highway bridge.

South Fork, from its mouth up to the McAdams bridge, Oct. 15-Dec. 31. Limits of one, one and three.

The regulations also say this year that it is legal to catch-and-release steelhead in any waterway open to fishing for other species, provided gear is limited to single, barbless hooks and all steelhead immediately are released.

A bird out of hand

Chicago Cubs' Bill Buckner tries to field a parakeet that had flown on to the playing field at Wrigley Field during a game with the St. Louis Cardinals on Tuesday. The bird escaped the clutches of Buckner and flew into the outfield. The Redbirds weren't so lucky, as the Cubs scored a 5-3 victory and stretched St. Louis' losing streak to eight games.

Laces flying, Moses wins World Track 400 hurdles

By PHIL HERSH
Chicago Sun-Times

HELSINKI, Finland — After six years of beating every man on earth in the 400-meter hurdles, Edwin Moses seemed vulnerable only to a freak or a fluke. And now, after overcoming such a close encounter of the absurd kind, it seems the man is simply beyond the power of terrestrial interference.

Anyone else would have fallen flat on his face on the first step after what happened to Moses on Tuesday, Sept. 7, in the final of the World Championship, the race on his left shoe came untied. Two strands, each a foot long, dangled perilously in front of him during the 40 steps it took to run the final 10 meters and hurdle the last three barriers.

And still, Moses won, his 81st straight victory in the intermediate hurdles, this time outrunning the last man to beat him, West Germany's Harald Schmid. It made Moses the only American winner in the seven finals contested on the third day of the week-long meet.

His time was 47.30 seconds, fastest in the world this year. Schmid was eight meters behind, in 48.61. Americans Andre Phillips and David Lee faded in the stretch to finish fifth and sixth.

"It was a good result but I could have run a better race overall," Moses said.

Only he could say that after running the seventh fastest time ever. Moses has nine of the top 10, with only Schmid breaking in at No. 6. He did that last year, when Moses was outwith an injury.

EDWIN MOSES

The liva had not raced since 1980. The last four times they have met, the result was the same: Schmid a badly beaten second.

"The man is there, so I run against him," Schmid said. "If I win, it's okay; if I lose, it's the same."

"If he would run a lot, he would be beatable. But he is too clever. If he is not in shape, he is not running. He is too clever to be beaten."

Even Moses knew he wasn't clever enough to figure out a way to tie his shoe in full stride. He noticed the laces flopping as he went over the eighth hurdle and hoped that only the first of his double knots had come undone.

"I didn't bother me. What could I do, stop and tie it?" Moses said.

Maybe he could have done that and still won the race. Maybe that would have given the necessary handicap to competitors who seem hopelessly outclassed in every race against Moses.

"It looks the same from where you are," Moses told the press. "The body is going through stress, and mentally it's a new thing every time."

Never was the difference between races at the same distance more apparent than in the men's 10,000 meters, the event that captivated a sellout crowd of 53,000 at Olympic Stadium.

In one of Sunday's heats of the 10,000, it had taken a time of 27:52.6 just to place ninth. The final was won in 21:01.04, but, while the time everyone had.

The lead changed 20 times in the 25 laps, the first 24 of which were run variously between 63 and 71 seconds.

The African runners — Euphrosine Mambé and Bekale Debebe and Ethiopian Genemur Shabangu — surged only briefly, never enough to break away.

The pack still included 13 of the 17 runners with 50 meters to go. Italy's Alberto Cova came from fifth place in the final 50 meters to beat East Germany's Werner Schildhauer by 1/4 of a second. Cova had done the same thing to Schildhauer in last year's European Championship, but this time he did not think it was possible.

"I did not believe I could make such a strong final sprint," Cova said after winning the final lap in 53 seconds. "It was first — hoping — just — to catch Shabangu. I got 100 meters before the finish; I saw Schildhauer could not shift to another gear. I saw I could pass him. I just hoped the finish line would be there."

Blue, four ex-teammates implicated in cocaine probe

TOPEKA, Kan. (UPI) — Kansas U.S. Attorney James Marquez Tuesday confirmed former Kansas City Royals pitcher Vida Blue was one of "less than 10" baseball players being interviewed for alleged cocaine abuse in Johnson County, Kan.

He said the investigation involved suspects other than Royals baseball players and he would turn his findings over to a grand jury within 60 days.

The Olathe (Kan.) Daily News reported Tuesday that Blue, 34, was named in documents related to the investigation. The newspaper, citing unnamed sources, said two other Royals players also were involved in the FBI probe into alleged cocaine sale and usage in eastern Kansas.

The Kansas City Star in its afternoon edition said sources had confirmed the other two players were outfielder Willie Wilson and shortstop U.L. Washington.

"I will not deny what the Olathe News reported," Marquez told reporters at a hastily called news conference. "Mr. Blue is properly named. The number of Royals is less than 10."

"I think you could characterize this investigation up to this point as a large investigation," he said. "I suspect there may be other (Royals) ballplayers to talk to. When you investigate drug cases you never know where it's going to lead you."

Marquez said he would meet with federal agents at the Johnson County Courthouse Tuesday afternoon to say whether any Royals would be indicted.

The FBI, the Kansas Bureau of Investigation, the Kansas attorney general's office, and the Johnson County district attorney's office have participated in the investigation, Marquez said.

American League President Lee MacPhail displays exhibit A

Steinbrenner orders Yankees to come witness end of the Tar Wars saga

NEW YORK (UPI) — Less than three hours after the players voted not to participate, the New York Yankees announced Tuesday night the club would play the completion of the suspended "Pine Tar" game against Kansas City on Aug. 18.

American League President Lee MacPhail had issued an edict instructing both teams to complete the final four outs of the suspended game of July 24, in which MacPhail allowed a disputed home run hit by George Brett to stand despite the bat being covered with pine tar beyond the legal limit of 18 grains.

Brett's two-run homer off reliever Rich Cossiga gave the Royals a 5-4 advantage with two out in the top of the ninth.

The 2 p.m. (EDT) start is for the purpose to allow as many young people and campers to attend the game at Yankee Stadium as possible. The Yankees' young people in the New York area to witness a "historical game," the Yankees said in a prepared statement.

Although the game could be a short one, the Yankees said they will provide entertainment as part of the program.

The Yankees' decision is apparently in conflict with the players' vote to play on Aug. 18. Before Tuesday night's game with Toronto, Yankees players voted not to participate because the completion of the suspended game would exceed the legal limit of 20 straight playing days.

"I need a day off. I need rest," said Dave Winfield, the Yankees' player representative.

"We are not packagers that's why it was written into the basic agreement," he added, referring to the section which calls for no more than 20 straight playing days before a day off.

However, there is a clause stating if there is no other way to play a game, it may be ordered at the direction of the league president. A.I. regulations provide that any played game possibly affecting the division championship be practiced during the season if practicable (date and place to be designated by the league president), and only at the close of the season if no such date is available.

It is his opinion that the date of Aug. 18 is available and practicable, and the two teams have been so advised," said MacPhail, who ruled on July 28 that the suspended game of July 24 be resumed.

Asked if the angry reaction of Yankees' principal owner George Steinbrenner had influenced the team's vote, Winfield said, "A little bit but not much."

Winfield said it was hard to tell if the club would show up at Yankee Stadium next Thursday.

Before the Yankees' vote, Steinbrenner had publicly aired his dissatisfaction with MacPhail's ruling to play Aug. 18.

"Naturally, we are not happy over what Steinbrenner said," MacPhail said.

"Once again, the American League has ruled against us. It's a damn shame, no question about it. It does not mean we are not doing a business when the (Brett) ruling came down before I feel bad for Lee MacPhail. He's a fine, decent man, but he will always be remembered as the pine-tar president."

"He ruled we play the 18th — that's bullshit. We need the day off; it does affect us. The Yankees are being penalized. We were not the perpetrators of the wrong, but we are being penalized."

Aug. 18 is an open date for both teams. Kansas City is at home against Detroit and the Yankees are at home against Chicago on the 17th. On the 19th, Kansas City goes to Baltimore for a night game and the Yankees play host to California.

Game time for the 18th is scheduled for noon EDT at Yankee Stadium. Season ticket holders will be admitted free and all seats will be $5. Since the regulation five innings were played, all rain checks are invalid.

THE ACES[®] BOBBY WOLFF

The best way I know of to win an argument is to start by being in the right.

East was the first to point the finger and South made off with today's unmakeable game. Better that East had nothing in the end, it was he who had to share the blame.

South's three heart bid was on the fringe, but the bidding flourished that North held a good hand with 4-4-1-4 to excellent fit for hearts.

East won the diamond contract his immediate problem lay in how best to assure two spade tricks. If he waited too long he felt sure that one of dummy's spades would go on South's diamond king.

Impulsively East led the club nine to West's ace and West was at the crossroads. Was West club's a singleton or should West shift to spades to score two spade tricks?

West made the wrong choice. The return pinched off the club and South had an overtrick instead of one down.

Obviously, West should have played East for the spade A-Q instead of a club singleton. East did help.

THE ALL-AMERICAN OUTDOOR FEAST

The mere aroma of food cooking over a charcoal grill is enough to whet any appetite. Add the easy informality of outdoor entertaining, the pleasure of dining al fresco, and the convenience of serving delicious easy-to-prepare chocolate desserts, and you have the makings of a great all-American outdoor feast.

Barbecuing is one meal that puts the emphasis right where it should be — on fun, rather than work. As the grilled food gradually reaches the just-right stage (with an occasional turning, perhaps, or dabbing-on of sauce), cooking and conversation proceed hand in hand. There's no separation of cook-and-guests — no need, in fact, for the chef to leave the party at all when accompanying foods such as salad and dessert can be readied in advance.

One such carefree meal is detailed here. Both the main dish — chickens basted with a zesty barbecue sauce — and the vegetable Accordion-Stuffed Potatoes — are prepared side by side in a covered grill. Serve a tossed salad, buffet-style, as accompaniment. And — finally — waiting on the sidelines to tempt chocoholics — two luscious chocolate desserts. The Graham Brownies are easy and quick to make — just combine the ingredients, pour into a pan, bake and frost. For sheer drama, it's hard to beat Chocolate Strawberry Cream Roll — a lovely and luscious dessert that can be made several days in advance and frozen until serving. Both treats, made with Hershey's Cocoa, have rich, deep chocolate flavor. And because cocoa's ready to use right from the can — with no pre-melting required, as with baking chocolate — each of these chocolate desserts has a built-in time-saving feature.

Easy cleanup is just as essential to a good time as easy food preparation. Two wonderful helpers are PAM No-Stick Cooking Spray and Heavy-Duty Reynolds Wrap aluminum foil — aids that eliminate the post-barbecue scrubbing and scraping that take the edge off the fun! Spraying the baking pan with no-stick cooking spray instead of greasing keeps food from sticking and reduces calories and fat. The no-stick-cooking-spray can also be used on the grill rack and cooking utensils before you begin barbecuing for easy cleanup. Lining the grill with heavy-duty foil not only makes cleanup a snap but also helps reflect heat for more even cooking. (If the bottom of your grill has vents, puncture the foil to conform to the openings so that air can circulate.)

GRAHAM BROWNIES

No-stick cooking spray	1/3 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
1/2 cup butter or margarine	1/3 cup cocoa
1/2 cup sugar	1/4 teaspoon baking powder
1 teaspoon vanilla	1/4 teaspoon salt
2 eggs, unbeaten	1/2 cup chopped nuts (optional)
2/3 cup graham cracker crumbs (about 4 crackers)

Spray 9-inch square baking pan with no-stick cooking spray according to directions; set aside. Melt butter in saucepan. Remove from heat, stir in sugar and vanilla. Add eggs, beat well with spoon. Add remaining ingredients, stirring until mixture is well combined. Spoon into pan. Bake at 350° for 20 to 25 minutes or until brownie springs back when lightly touched in center. Do not overbake. Cool completely; frost if desired. Cut into squares.

Frosting: Combine 3 tablespoons butter or margarine (softened), 3 tablespoons cocoa and 1/2 teaspoon vanilla in small mixer bowl. Add 1 cup confectioners' sugar and 1 to 2 tablespoons milk; beat to spreading consistency. About 1 cup frosting.

ZESTY BARBECUE CHICKEN

No-stick cooking spray	1/3 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 broiler-fryer chickens (3-3 1/2 pounds each)	2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce	1/2 cup chopped onion
1/3 cup vinegar	1 clove garlic, finely chopped
	1 tablespoon chili powder

Line the fire bowl of a covered grill with heavy-duty aluminum foil. Prepare heavy-duty aluminum foil drip pan to place in coals underneath chickens. Spray grill with no-stick-spray according to directions. Place chickens on grid above drip pan. Cook chickens in covered grill over medium-indirect heat 1 hour, turning twice. In the meantime, prepare barbecue sauce: combine remaining ingredients in saucepan; bring to a boil and simmer 5 minutes. Grill chickens an additional 30 minutes, basting with barbecue sauce, until chicken is well done and drumstick can be moved easily. 6-8 servings.

Drip pan: Use two sheets of heavy-duty aluminum foil 6 inches longer and 6 inches wider than the desired size of pan. Fold in all edges 1-1/2 to 2 inches. Score corners. Fold again, forming 1-1/2 to 2-inch sides, and miter corners against sides of pan.

CHOCOLATE STRAWBERRY CREAM ROLL

No-stick cooking spray	1/3 cup cocoa
4 eggs, separated	1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 cup sugar	1/4 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup sugar	1/8 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup water	Strawberry Filling (recipe below)
1 teaspoon vanilla	Garnish: fresh strawberries and confectioners' sugar
1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour

Line 15-1/2 x 10-1/2 x 1-inch jelly roll pan with aluminum foil; spray with no-stick cooking spray. Preheat oven to 350°. Beat egg whites in large mixer bowl until foamy; gradually add 1/2 cup sugar and beat until stiff peaks form. Set aside. Combine egg yolks, 1/3 cup sugar, water and vanilla in small mixer bowl; beat on high speed until thick and lemon colored, about 5 minutes. Combine flour, cocoa, baking powder, baking soda and salt in small bowl. Add dry ingredients to egg yolks, beating on lowest speed just until blended. Fold chocolate-egg yolk mixture into egg white mixture; spread evenly in prepared pan. Bake 12 to 15 minutes or until top springs back when lightly touched in center. Invert onto smooth-surfaced towel sprayed with no-stick cooking spray; carefully peel off foil. Immediately roll cake in towel, starting from narrow end; place on wire rack and cool no longer than 15 to 20 minutes. Prepare Strawberry Filling. Unroll cake, cool completely. Spread with filling; re-roll without towel and refrigerate. To serve, sprinkle with confectioners' sugar and garnish with additional fresh strawberries, if desired. About 12 servings.

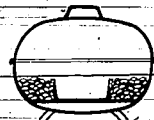

Strawberry Filling: Drain 10-1/2-ounce package frozen strawberries, thawed, or 1-1/2 cups fresh sweetened strawberries. Puree in blender or sieve to equal 1/2 cup. Beat 1 cup heavy cream and 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar until stiff. (Two cups frozen whipped topping can be substituted.) Fold in strawberry puree. (If using whipped topping, strawberry puree can be increased to 3/4 cup, if desired.) About 2 cups filling.

ACCORDION-STUFFED POTATOES

6 large potatoes	2 medium onions, thinly sliced
6 tablespoons margarine or butter	3 cups (1/2 pound) sliced mushrooms
Seasoned salt	6 slices bacon, cooked and crumbled
Garlic powder	Grated Parmesan cheese
Celery powder	Sliced cherry tomatoes
Pepper	Shredded parsley

Line the fire bowl of a covered grill with heavy-duty aluminum foil. Tear off 6 sheets heavy-duty aluminum foil large enough to wrap potatoes individually. Cut each potato almost through crosswise into 1/4-inch slices; place potato in center of each foil sheet. Using 1 tablespoon butter for each potato, rub butter into very thin slices and place in between potato slices. Sprinkle potatoes lightly with seasoned salt, garlic powder, celery salt and pepper. Insert onion slices between every other potato slice. Top each potato with 1/2 cup sliced mushrooms. Bring two foil sides up over potato, fold down loosely in a series of locked folds allowing for heat circulation and expansion. Fold short ends up and over again; crimp to seal. Cook potatoes in covered grill over medium-direct heat 45 to 60 minutes or until tender. Before serving, open each packet and top generously with crumbled bacon, Parmesan cheese, tomatoes and parsley. 6 servings.

TO PREPARE THE GRILL FOR COOKING

Line the grill with heavy-duty aluminum foil for even heat distribution and easy cleanup. Place an aluminum foil drip pan in the center of the fire bowl and arrange the coals around the pan.

Next, spray the grill rack with PAM No-Stick Cooking Spray; return rack to the grill. "Indirect cook" the Zesty Barbecue Chicken by placing the chicken over the drip pan. "Direct cook" the Accordion-Stuffed Potatoes by placing the potatoes over the coals.

Blueberries make trifle tremendous

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Anyone who has tasted a good trifle knows that this classic English dessert of custard, fruit and cake is so trifling that it has been immortalized in verse and Dickens in his "Blossoms Christening" recognized the trifle in prose. A trifle was, indeed, served at the christening, along with fowls and tongue and lobster salad.

"Christening" through, the first known published reference to a trifle in England was in 1598, in a poem by Florio called "Mantiglia." Which makes one wonder where, between the North Sea and the Mediterranean, this recipe came from in the first place.

No matter what matters is that it is delicious and easy to prepare. It is said that English ladies in the 18th century liked that fact. The dish took little trouble to make for tea.

The Blueberry Peach Trifle here is as easy to make as the ladies would have it, while preserving the tradition of layering an excellent custard with cake and fruit. The custard which is made with sweetened condensed milk is failproof and as tasty as the base of any trifle should be. The pound cake can be purchased and cut into cubes.

The fruits of summer that make this trifle tremendous are blueberries and peaches. The complementary flavors of the big beautiful blues and fragrant peaches don't overpower the custard; they offer what made this dish famous in the first place — good taste.

Other easy summer dessert choices include Blueberry 'n' Spice Bread Pudding and Lemon Crepes with Blueberry Sauce. Sweetened condensed milk makes the bread pudding moist and sweet and enhances the lemon-filling of the crepes. Either dessert would be appropriate for entertaining too.

BLUEBERRY PEACH TRIFLE

- 1 can, 14 oz. size, sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
 - 1/2 cup cold water
 - 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
 - 1 (3 1/2-ounce) package instant vanilla pudding
 - 2 cups (1 pint) whipping cream, whipped
 - 4 cups pound cake cubes
 - 1 pound ripe fresh peaches; seeded, pitted and chopped (about 2 1/2 cups), or 29-ounce can sliced peaches, well drained and drained, or 2 cups fresh or dry-pack frozen blueberries, thawed, rinsed and drained
- In a large bowl, combine sweetened condensed milk, water and lemon rind; mix well. Add pudding mix; beat until well blended. Chill 5 minutes. Fold in whipped cream. Spoon 2 cups pudding mixture into 4-quart glass serving bowl; top with half the cake cubes, the peaches, half the remaining pudding mixture spread to 1 inch of edge of bowl. Chill at least 4 hours. Garnish as desired. Refrigerate leftovers. Makes 10 to 12 servings.

LEMON CREPES WITH BLUEBERRY SAUCE

- 1 package, 8 oz., package cream cheese softener
 - 1 can, 14 oz. size, sweetened condensed milk (not evaporated milk)
 - 1/2 cup lemon juice
 - 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 - 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/2 tablespoons cornstarch
 - 1/2 teaspoon ground nutmeg
 - 1/2 cup hot water
 - 2 cups fresh or dry-pack frozen blueberries, thawed, rinsed and drained
 - 2 tablespoons brandy or water
- In a large mixer bowl, beat cheese until fluffy; beat in sweetened condensed milk until smooth. Stir in lemon juice, vanilla and 1 teaspoon lemon rind. Cover and chill at least 3 hours. Meanwhile, in small saucepan, combine sugar, cornstarch, remain-

Tomato ritual soon to begin

By ROBKASPERH
Ballmore Sun

Soon the August tomato ritual will begin. Backyard farmers will begin juggling in bags of plump tomatoes to the office for distribution to their less-productive co-workers.

The moment the tomatoes arrive, the office will be divided into two groups.

One group, the ruling class, will be composed of the tomato titans. These are the men and women who know how to grow tomatoes. They grow them not only for their own households, they grow them for the tomato-deprived masses.

The tomato-deprived masses are the members of the other group. They are people who lack the space, talent or inclination to plant their own tomatoes. Some people call them freeloaders.

Over the years I have been an active participant in this ritual. Although I prefer to think of my role in this ritual as that of an appreciative eater, other people have called me a freeloader.

Anyway, I've been there. The tomato titans are kind of people who know their fertilizer facts. While the some of us are are busy stuffing free-tomatoes into our briefcases or dreaming about lunches of sliced tomatoes, the titans are standing in the corner of the office muttering about 10-10-10 and swapping stories about mulch.

With a minimum amount of prompting the titans will tell tomato tales. Tomatoes tales fall into two categories: Those telling how easy it is to grow tomatoes and those telling how hard it is to grow them.

Once a tale begins, any freeloader within earshot is obliged to listen to the entire saga of the soil, adding an occasional "no kidding" for emphasis.

I do enjoy the taste of fresh tomatoes that over the summers I have performed many embarrassing acts to get them.

I have grieved for the pleasure of spending supper with a couple of Barry Giffs.

I have listened to endless storm damage stories, because I know a lot of Better Boys was waiting at the end of the rainbow.

And I have looked and gawped at every retelling of the battle of blossom — end-rod, because I knew I would end up sharing the sweet spoils of the victorious gardener.

Anyone — watching me go through this back-patting, lip-smacking routine might conclude that I am as happy as a toad in a warm, moist, lush in that being on the tomato dole. (I'll be with it, am.)

For by accepting tomatoes from other people, I am admitting I have failed both as a farmer — and as participant in the urban renaissance. My failure as a farmer means my roots have rotted. They grew up in the Midwest. There, I felt worth his fertilizers grow hundreds of bushels of wheat, corn or soy beans. Me, I can't even handle a few lousy tomatoes. Why, if the boys back in Kansas found out about my disgraceful record, they'd take away the feed company cap they gave me.

Moreover, my failure to grow tomatoes in my backyard means I am a disgrace to urban renaissance.

According to all the media stories about city lifestyle, a powerful factor in the rebirth of cities is the tiny but fertile backyard. Such yards are small, but judging by what I have read about what goes on in them, they are busy. These yards are where the city dweller automatically gives successful parties, discuss great books and grow lush tomatoes in small spaces, usually small spaces enclosed with railroad ties.

Now's time to enjoy flavor of apricots

The locally grown and ripened apricots' arrival in the markets has been nicely timed.

Anyone familiar with the home-grown flavor of this delicious fruit might have become a bit impatient for nature to ripen the fruit's ripening touches, but the waiting is over and we can satisfy our yearly craving for fresh apricot dishes. Following are a few we enjoy each year about this time.

FRESH APRICOT NECTAR
1 quart ripe, pitted apricots
1 cup boiling water
Honey to flavor to taste if desired
In a saucepan, cook apricots with the water until the fruit is soft; press through a sieve or food mill. Reheat the puree and add honey to taste as desired. Chill for immediate use or pour hot juice into sterilized jars, leaving a 1/2-inch headspace. Process half-pints and pints 15 minutes and quarts 20 minutes in a boiling water

Willetta Warberg
On food

APRICOT CREAM PIE
2 eggs, separated
1 1/2 cups apricot nectar, use home-made or store-bought
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 package unflavored gelatin
1/4 cup from 1 lemon
1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped with 1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1 eight-inch pie shell, baked and cooled
In the top of a double boiler, beat the egg yolks until they turn light in color. Then beat in the apricot nectar, salt and one half of the sugar. Put mixture over the double boiler bottom which has water boiling in it; cook until the mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Dissolve gelatin in lemon juice to which a teaspoon of water has been added; stir this into the hot mixture. Set aside to cool until slightly thickened. Beat egg whites until they stand in peaks, adding remaining sugar gradually. Fold the egg whites into the gelatin mixture. Fold the whipped cream into the mixture and scrape into the pan. Chill for several hours. Garnish top with toasted flaked coconut, or grated semi-sweet chocolate, or toasted slivered almonds.

APRICOT BAVARIAN CREAM
1 package orange-flavored gelatin
1/2 cup sugar
1 cup apricot nectar, use home-made or store-bought
1 cup very ripe apricots, sliced

1/4 teaspoon almond extract
1/2 cup heavy cream, whipped
2 tablespoons Marsala or brandy
In a bowl, dissolve the gelatin in 1 cup of hot water; stir in the sugar and apricot juice. Chill the gelatin mixture until cold and syrupy. Stir in the sliced apricots and the almond extract. Fold the gelatin mixture into the whipped cream. Chill until almost set and then stir in the Marsala or brandy. Spoon Bavarian Cream into stemmed glasses and chill several hours. Makes enough for 8 servings.

Too cold temperatures bad

ITHACA, N.Y. (UPI) — Too cold a food storage temperature is as bad as too warm, says a Cornell University food scientist.

Robert Gravanis says even the choicest foods can deteriorate at uncontrolled temperatures.

Eggs and most fruits and vegetables do best at 40 degrees F. The best storage range of most refrigerators, Gravanis says.

Meat and poultry, fish, dairy products and all cooked leftovers should be stored in the coldest area, 32 to 40 degrees F.

Fifty degrees F is ideal for dry food products, the scientist says, but 60 to 70 degrees is also okay. Dry foods should not be refrigerated because the humidity in refrigerators often is too high for them.

Youths buy $13 billion in family food

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

It may come as a surprise to a lot of people, but the teenagers often seen at local supermarkets are there to do more than play the video games. Through their young hands reportedly pass an astonishing $13 billion in family food dollars each year.

Supermarket Shopper

This information comes from several recent surveys. One, conducted by Co-ed magazine, found that six out of 10 teenagers said they regularly went shopping for food. They spent an average of $24 on each shopping trip, a clear indication that they were doing much more than just running into the store for a container of milk. The Co-ed study found that teens had considerable influence on what was bought; 61 percent said they prepared or helped prepare the family shopping list; 42 percent said they were the ones who selected the brands—interestingly enough, nearly as many boys did the shopping as girls!

Why are we increasingly seeing teens shopping in supermarkets? The reason lies in that families have undergone some important changes in the last decade. The once traditional American family—mother at home, father at work, two children—make up less than 5 percent of our families. More often, both parents are working, or the family has a single parent who works, and the responsibility for doing a substantial part of the food shopping is given to a teen-ager.

Are teenagers capable of performing this important job? An informal spot-check of the stores who send their teen-agers to the supermarket indicated a great deal of satisfaction with their performance.

How do most teens feel about accepting this important responsibility? Most of the teens I have spoken to are very positive about their shopping experience. "It makes me feel like an adult," was a comment I heard more than once.

In addition to doing more of the supermarket shopping, teen-agers are doing more of the coupon clipping and refunding. Sent to the store with a handful of coupons, teens are often counted on to help carry out the family plan for budgeting and saving money.

Many teen-agers have told me that the money they save through couponing and refunding is considered an "allowance." For these fortunate teens, their allowance is only limited by the effort they want to put into their "clipping, sorting and sending." A few ambitious teens have discovered the "world" of refunding and I have met these young money-savers at refund conventions where they are busy trading coupons and refund forms—and thoroughly enjoying the process.

My Smart SHOPPING AWARD goes to Peter Capone, of New York City, N.Y.

"I am 18 and have been refunding for two years. A few weeks ago a local supermarket had 45 coupons for Hawaiian Punch on sale for 69 cents. I had 12 50-cent coupons, which I used to purchase 12 cans for only $2.28. That's a 'double play' discount that helped me through the summer heat wave."

CLIP 'N' FILE REFUNDS

Clip out this file and keep it with similar cash-out coupons—beverage refund offers with beverage coupons, for example. Start collecting the needed proofs of purchase while looking for the required forms at the supermarket, in newspapers and magazines, and when trading with friends. Offers may not be available in all areas of the country. Allow 10 weeks to receive each refund.

The following refund offers are worth $10.50. This week's refund offers have a total value of $30.

This offer doesn't require a refund form.

SHOWER SHAVER Features Refund Offer, P.O. Box 1235, Maple Plain, Minn. 55348. Receive a $1 refund. Send a 3-by-5 index card with the proof of purchase and one like of the Shower Shaver package listed on the card. List five of the six features for a $1 refund or receive 20 cents for each feature listed—up to a maximum of $1—if five out of six features are listed on the card. The Shower Shaver from the front of the package. Expires Aug. 31, 1983.

These offers require refund forms: DEXATRIM $1 Refund. Send the required refund form and the entire outer carton of a package of any strength Dextrin, plus the register tape with the purchase price circled. This offer is not valid on the 10-ounce size. Expires Nov. 30, 1983.

DRY IDEA $1 Refund. Send the required refund form and the bottom flap (with the Universal Product Code symbol) from a Dry-Idea 2.5-ounce only—either Scented or Unscented—along with the "dusted" register tape with the purchase price and store name circled. Expires Sept. 30, 1983.

Strawberries need to be reset now

Now is an excellent time to start a new bed of strawberries using the latest plants. They will bear heavier next year if transplanted now, rather than waiting until next spring.

Allen Wilson Intermountain gardening

If your present strawberry bed is more than 2 years old, it is time to start a new one. Strawberry plants change their roots and leaves in their second and third years after transplanting. After that, production goes down. An old patch can be kept productive longer by removing the oldest plants each year. However, best results are obtained by starting new beds periodically with new runner plants.

In starting a new bed, do not make the mistake of transplanting the old plants because they are the largest. Their useful life has been served. The smaller plants, which are connected to the larger ones by horizontal runner stems, will be more productive next year. Most of them have just put down new roots and are easily moved at this time.

Last year I moved some plants in August and they have been more productive than plants moved this spring. They got over the shock of transplanting before winter and were already established as soon as the soil warmed in the early spring.

Now is also a good time to rejuvenate an old bed of spring bearing strawberries. If your plants are through bearing for the year, remove the oldest first. Gradually pick up your plants as continuing to flower and bear fruit, wait until fall, to remove the old plants.

Some of the new runner plants can be moved into open spots. Ideal spacing is about 4 inches between plants. If it has been some time since you have started with a new batch of strawberry plants from the nursery, you might want to wait until you can buy some new plants next spring. Strawberry plants gradually pick up virus and other diseases over the years. New virus-free plants from a nursery will probably be more productive. You may also be able to obtain a newer and better variety.

Timing is a very important factor in continuously all summer long. In fact, in the Intermountain area, its heaviest bearing period is August and September. Other good varieties in the Ricks College strawberry trial are Albion, Seasweet, Superstar, Earl Laramie, and American Sweetheart. The highest yielding spring-bearing or single-crop varieties have been Canoga, Badger Belle and Hood.

Limes good source for vitamin C

by ROBERT W. STURBE
 Chicago Sun-Times

Limes flourish in a hot, humid climate. Florida dominates the U.S. lime market and grows the Perdan, a large oval fruit with very acid juice and a few or no seeds. The few from California are somewhat smaller and always seedless.

Each producing area has its peak seasons. When the supply from Florida slacks off in August, the California crop is at its peak and choice limes that are green and heavy for their size. Brown spots on the skin are nothing to worry about; they won't affect the juice.

There are two kinds of limes to avoid. The juice of yellow-skinned limes won't have the desired acidity. Limes that are dry, hard and blackened are either not ripe, dehydrated or too old.

Limes should be refrigerated. Sunlight will turn them yellow and they will deteriorate. When refrigerated, limes will stay fresh for six to eight weeks.

Limes are an excellent source of vitamin C. There are 28 calories in 3 1/2 ounces of lime juice.

Lime-Roasted Chicken

- 1 Turkey (about 3 pounds), or selected chicken pieces 3 to 4 limes
 - 1/2 cup salad oil
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon pepper
 - 1 Tablespoon chopped parsley
 - 1 Tablespoon capers
 - 2 cooked carrots
 - 2 leeks
 - 2 boiled potatoes, peeled
 - 1/2 pound raw mushrooms
- Place chicken in roasting pan. Juice enough limes to make 1/2 cup juice. Mix lime juice, oil, salt, pepper, parsley and capers. Pour over chicken and poultry. Marinate for 1 hour, turning frequently.
- Bake in pre-heated, 400-degree oven for 1 hour or until done, basting and turning every 20 minutes. Twenty minutes before chicken is done, add cooked vegetables and mushrooms to pan, basting with the marinade.
- To serve, garnish chicken with thin slices of lime. Serve chicken and serve with vegetables. Spoon juices over servings. Makes 4 servings.

Savor summer with bounty of nature

Take advantage of fresh peaches in this eye-catching dessert

NEW YORK—Summer is meant to be savored. Unfortunately, it's a season that slips by all too soon as enjoy sun-dappled lawns, meadows abloom with flowers, brilliant blue skies, balmy breezes and nature's bounty of fruits and vegetables to the fullest for time is fleeting.

Right now, rosy cheeked peaches are making their welcome appearance in the markets to bring pleasure to our tables. Delicious "as is" in the hand, peaches become sublime with a little bit of effort.

For a simple, but super dessert, top vanilla ice cream (peach is even better!) with sliced peaches and pour a couple of tablespoons of Amaretto di Saronno over each serving.

If you have more time and want something more elaborate, a trifle is an elegant way to delight in this summer's crop of peaches. This Saronno Summer Trifle can be prepared early in the day and garnished just before serving. Custard, cubes of pound cake, sliced peaches and raspberry preserves offer layer upon layer of goodness intriguingly laced with Amaretto di Saronno.

SARONNO SUMMER TRIFLE

- 1/2 cup cornstarch
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 3/4 cups milk
- 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
- 1 tablespoon vanilla
- 1/2 cup Amaretto di Saronno
- 2 frozen pound cakes, 10 1/2 oz. each
- 2 cups raspberry preserves
- 1/4 cup Amaretto di Saronno
- 6 peaches, peeled, pitted and sliced

whipped cream

toasted sliced almonds

In a saucepan, mix cornstarch, sugar and eggs until well blended. Gradually stir in milk. Add butter or margarine and stir over medium heat until custard thickens. Remove from heat and cool, covered. Stir in vanilla and 1/4 cup Amaretto di Saronno. Cover and chill for several hours.

Cut cakes into 1/2-inch cubes. Mix preserves with 1/4 cup Amaretto di Saronno. Layer cake cubes, raspberry preserves, peaches and custard in a 2 1/2-quart bowl. End with a drizzle of raspberry preserves. Chill. Just before serving, pipe a border of whipped cream around outside edge of bowl using a pastry bag with a star tip. Garnish with peach slices and toasted sliced almonds, if desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Use zucchini for Italian stuffed dish

By SHARON SANDERS
Chicago Sun-Times

Italian stuffed zucchini is a savory combination of Italian sausage, onion, garlic, tomato and Parmesan cheese.

With the zucchini crop at its peak through August, this 30-minute entree is inexpensive to make.

Mild or hot sausage may be used. The stuffed zucchini can be baked in the oven or, if you can't bear to heat the kitchen, cooked over indirect heat in a covered barbecue kettle. Be sure to have plenty of hot coals on both sides of the grill.

Cooking time will vary from the time in the following recipe, depending upon the temperature of the coals. The zucchini are ready when the tops are golden and the flesh is easily pierced with a sharp knife.

To stretch your preparation work into two meals, double the recipe and bake both batches at the same time. The cooked zucchini can be refrigerated for several days. They taste as delicious cold as they do hot.

Serve a cool, crisp, green salad and crusty Italian bread with the zucchini. A Valpolicella wine, lightly chilled, would be a refreshing accompaniment.

Dessert is summertime eating at its simplest and best. Select the ripest peaches possible. Peel, slice and marinate with a little rum and sugar. Spoon over vanilla ice cream and enjoy.

Italian Stuffed Zucchini

Time: about 60 minutes
Cost: less than $3.50

- 1 medium tomato
- 2 zucchini (1 1/2 inches each)
- 1/2 pound Italian sausage
- Olive oil
- 1 small onion, chopped
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tablespoons chopped Italian parsley
- 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese

Remove core from tomato. Cut in half through the center. Scoop out seeds and discard. Chop tomato in fine pieces and set aside.

Cut stem ends from zucchini. Cut in half lengthwise and scoop out flesh with melon baller or spoon. Leave 1/4 to 1/2-inch shell. Set aside shells and chop zucchini flesh in fine pieces. Set aside.

Press sausage into a cold, 10-inch skillet. Place over medium-high heat. Cook for about 5 minutes, until sausage begins to render fat. Flip pieces and cook until brown. Stir in small pieces with a spatula or spoon. Cook for 3 minutes, then remove with a slotted spoon to paper towels. Cover to keep warm.

If necessary, add enough olive oil to skillet to just coat bottom. Cook onion and garlic over medium heat for about 3 minutes, until soft. Add tomato and chopped zucchini. Cook for 5 minutes.

Combine all ingredients except zucchini shells in a bowl. Grate a 1/2 cup of cheese lightly with olive oil. Lightly coat outside of zucchini shells with olive oil. Spoon filling evenly into zucchini shells and place in pan.

Bake zucchini in a pre-heated, 425-degree oven for 25 to 30 minutes, until zucchini shells are golden and tender when pierced with a sharp knife. If tops brown before shells are tender, cover with foil and continue baking. Remove from oven and serve right away, or cool and refrigerate.

Serves 4.

To serve stuffed zucchini cold, remove from refrigerator and allow to sit at room temperature for 15 minutes before serving.

Rum Peaches and Ice Cream

Three about 30 minutes
Cost: less than $1.50

- 2 ripe peaches
- 2 lablee boons rum
- 2 least boons sugar
- 1 pint vanilla ice cream

Peel peaches and slice. Place in a glass or ceramic bowl. Sprinkle with rum and sugar. Toss gently to coat. Cover and set aside for 30 minutes.

Divide ice cream among 4 dessert dishes. Cover with peaches. Serve right away. Serves 4.
