Boys flee ranch House burned

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Police were continuing their search late Monday for as many as three runaway boys from the Idaho Youth Ranch, who allegedly ransacked a rural Norland home and set it afire during the weekend.

An accomplice, a 16-year-old boy from Burley, was in extremely critical condition Monday night at the University of Utah Hospital in Salt Lake City. He was caught in the blaze and suffered serious burns over the upper half of his body.

Police said Monday that two — and possibly three — youths took guns, ammunition and other expensive articles from the Jerald Schenk home, 1404 S. Schenk, north of Rupert, and fled in the family's green 1971 Ford. Before leaving the area, they drove their burned companion to Mindoko Memorial Hospital and dropped him off at the emergency entrance.

The Mindoko County Sheriff's Department has released the names of the boys because they are juveniles.

Corry Jones, the assistant director of the Idaho Youth Ranch, confirmed Monday that all four boys were residents at the ranch, which attempts to rehabilitate boys 12 to 18.

He said the four boys — and one who was found in Pocatello — had walked away within six hours Saturday night from their Sunday night.

The three suspects of being involved in the Schenk looting and arson are the injured boy, a 16-year-old from Pocatello, a 12-year-old from Couer d'Alene, who ran away about six hours earlier, and the third, whose name might be with the fleeing boys, Jones said.

After walking away from the ranch, at least some of the runaways apparently spent part of the night in a field south of the Minth Adams farm, next door to the Schenk home. Adams said Monday that he found straw disturbed and evidence of a recent fire when he checked the cellar.

The Schenk house was empty when the Sunday night fire broke out on the camping trip. They still had not been located Monday night.

City offers to help victims

RUPERT — The Jerald Schenk family knows that their house burned in a fire only hours after they left for a camping trip Sunday. Officials, family and friends were trying to locate Jerald wife Dixie, their daughter, Dana, 17, and their sons, Kirk, 14, and Scott, 9, late Monday.

But despite their misfortune, the Schenks at least will have emergency cash and temporary living quarters waiting when they return. Rupert city officials have opened a benefit fund for them at two local banks. Mayor Bill Whitton said Monday, Persons interested in helping the Schenks can contribute directly to the Jerald and Dixie Schenk Benefit Fund at the Rupert branches of Idaho First National Bank or First Security Bank of Idaho.

The city also is accepting donations of furniture and other household items at City Hall, where Mrs. Schenk is living. Another benefactor is opening an unoccupied house for the family's use until it can get settled again, the mayor said. Arrangements still were being made Monday after-

Whitton said two City Council members, June Dombbeck and Dwinelle Allred, arranged for the establishment of the funds.

Marcos denies shooting rival

Opposition leaders suspicious

MANILA, Philippines — President Ferdinand Marcos Monday blamed communists for the murder of his political rival Benigno Aquino.

Meanwhile, there were reports soldiers were arrested for failing to protect opposition leader.

Opposition forces said Marcos has many questions to answer about the death of Aquino, who was shot and killed while in military custody moments after he was escorted from the plane on which he flew soon after Aquino's plane at Manila International Airport Sunday.

The newspaper gave no further details on the reported arrests, but said Armed Forces Chief Gen. Fabian Ver ordered an investigation into who was "responsible for the breach of security that enabled a killer to enter the airport and approach his target."

Manila's Bulletin Today newspaper said 14 Avsecom men were disarmed. The newspaper said firearms carried by the troops would be subjected to "routine" ballistics and paraffin tests.

"Thousands of weeping Filipinos" at the Aquino residence filed past the open casket of the former senator.

assassinated Sunday minutes after he returned home in self-exile from three years of de-facto rule in the United States.

A stitched bullet exit hole was visible on Aquino's chin, his face was swollen and both eyes were blackened. Blood remained on his clothing.

"I want the world to see what they have done to my son," Mrs. Aurora Aquino said as she stroked her slain son's head.

Governor to lobby for exemption cuts

Merit pay — A5

BOISE — Gov. John Evans said Monday he will urge the Legislature next year to boost education revenue by imposing the sales tax on service industries and eliminating the exemption for Idaho National Engineering Laboratory contractors.

Those and other moves, coupled with maintenance of this year's 1 1/2-percent sales-tax hike, would also boost revenue, he said at a news conference.

Enlarging sales tax coverage to include lawyers, financial consultants and others who provide consumer service could raise $20 to $50 million per year, he said, adding that several other states already tax service industries.

"Many states have broadened the interpretation of what they collect in sales taxes," he said. "It also makes the tax system more fair while and less regressive in the process."

The present tax structure weighs most heavily on low-income families that pay sales taxes when they buy necessities, he said, adding that many non-taxpayers frequently are purchased by wealthier individuals who would bear a larger share of the tax burden if those purchases were taxed.

Evans said he would present a package of revenue-raising proposals to the 1984 Legislature to help cover spending hikes for education programs, including enhanced teacher salaries.

However, he added it was too soon to predict how much additional revenue would be sought. Those figures won't be settled until early November, he said.

Some lawmakers have estimated that the INEL exemption costs the state $1 million to $7 million in lost revenue annually, and Evans said eliminating the bargain would be especially important if INEL were chosen as the site for construction of new production nuclear reactors to produce tritium for nuclear weapons.

Energy Secretary Donald Hodki recently recommended the reactor be built at INEL, rather than at sites in Washington and South Carolina.

Evans said neither of the other two sites exempt contractors from sales taxes.

"Let's exempt what everybody else does," he said. "Why should Idaho be sacrificing that revenue when we need that revenue so badly to increase our educational expenditures?"

Evans said he would not endorse merit pay for teachers until overall wage scales were increased.

"The first thing we have to do in Idaho is just raise the general level of pay for teachers," he said. "Then we turn around and start talking about merit after that."

U.S. forces to stage more maneuvers

By PATRICIA KOZA
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Thirty-two U.S. ships will participate in a major training exercise in the Western Atlantic and Caribbean today through Sept. 17, the Pentagon announced Monday.

The maneuvers, involving 35,000 troops, were described by Pentagon officials as routine and separate from the "Big Pine" land and sea military exercises in Honduras.

During the course of the exercises, however, a six-ship group led by the nuclear-powered guided missile cruiser USS Mississippi will break away and participate in operations with the carrier Coral Sea in international waters in the Western Caribbean.

It will be the third major set of exercises in the Central American area. Along with the Coral Sea battle group in the Caribbean, a six-ship force led by the battleship New Jersey was heading for Central America's Pacific Coast from Pearl Harbor.

The 62,000-ton Coral Sea and its escorts arrived in the region last week as part of a series of sea and land maneuvers ordered by President Reagan as a demonstration to the leftist government of Nicaragua of American resolve to stop the flow of arms to guerrillas in El Salvador.

The U.S. ships participating in the Western Atlantic-Caribbean operation, dubbed "Readex 2-83" for "Readiness Exercise 2-83," include the aircraft carriers Independence and John F. Kennedy, five cruiser-destroyers and frigates, seven support ships; two minesweepers; two amphibious ships; two Atlantic-Ocean attack submarines and one command ship.

The Navy will be joined by two ships from Britain and one from the Netherlands, the Pentagon said.

They will participate in anti-air, anti-surface and anti-submarine warfare missions and replenishment-at-sea tasks routinely conducted with NATO allies, officials said.

The Navy held "Readex 1-83 in March, which involved 36 ships, including one Dutch and six British vessels, and more than 300 aircraft in the western Atlantic and Puerto Rico area.

"It's a routine exercise the Navy conducts," a spokesman said. Similar exercises are conducted about twice a year, he said.

Price Corporation cuts deal to buy Blue Lakes mall site

By MARY HANCOCK
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Price Development Corp. has reached a tentative agreement to buy another Twin Falls mall site, now owned by a Des Moines, Iowa, firm.

The agreement, announced Monday, may end the stalemate between the Salt Lake City firm and the Twin Falls City Council over the zoning of Price's original site for a regional shopping mall.

"That happens," Price officials say construction could begin next year between the existing mall and the new one.

Price officials said they had been bogged down in legal disputes. For the past two years, the city and Price have been locked in a dispute over the company's plan to construct a mall on a 35-acre site located on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, north of the Green Acres housing subdivision. Price owns that site in partnership with the Workman Family Partnership of Twin Falls.

"In the event that if (the new plan) is approved, we would have to work with Mr. Workman for some alternative plan there," Rasmussen said at Monday's meeting.

Price officials said they were looking for a site in mind for a mall. That may require the Utah firm to present its new plan to the city Planning and Zoning Commission and subsequently the City Council for approval.

Douglas Rasmussen, of Price's land acquisition division, said an application for a public hearing on the plan will be filed with the city by the end of the week. That could put the matter before the zoning board next month as part of a series of steps in October.

Earlier this month, Price representatives acknowledged that they were considering a new site for that mall. At the time, the General Growth Property surfaced as a likely prospect, although Price officials declined to confirm the negotiations.

When city officials denied the developer's request to increase a 30-foot height of residential land in the original site for commercial use, Price filed suit. The court battle already has made one trip to the Idaho Supreme Court and is now headed for its second argument before the state's high court. Some estimates have put a decision at the end of the year, but no one was closing the court case Monday, and Rasmussen said the lawsuit tentatively would remain active.

"We don't want to drop it until we have a piece of property to build a 100,000-square-foot shopping mall on the General Growth site. The Iowa company had planned a 750,000-square-foot building on the 61-acre site, formerly owned by Oren Boone.

The Price plan would not develop immediately either the property's southwest corner, consisting of 3.5 acres, or the property's southeast corner, consisting of eight to 10 acres, Rasmussen said.

City officials had approved the General Growth concept as a planned-unit development. With a planned-unit development, the city reviews and approves details of a project. A recent city council change requires additional city and regional council approval.

"We're willing to do that if you deem it necessary," Rasmussen told council members.

Several members expressed reluctance at requiring another round of zoning hearings. "We don't desire to put you through that public hearing thing unless it's a significant change," said Councilman Paul Newton.

But city attorney Fritz Worderlich indicated the changes, as outlined Monday, probably would require a hearing.

Council members asked Rasmussen to present a comparison of the two projects to determine the significance of the changes.

Questioned later by The Times-News, Rasmussen said his company has obtained commitments from larger, so-called "anchor" stores. But he declined to identify them.

"We will announce them when we're ready," he said.

AWACs to stay for time being

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A White House spokesman said Monday no final decision has been made about withdrawing two sophisticated U.S. radar-surveillance planes from the Sudan where they were sent after the outbreak of fighting in Chad.

But deputy press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters they would of course consult with all allies across the area before taking this action.

Speakes made the comments in response to a television network report that the Airborne Warning and Control System aircraft, plus 700 support personnel and eight fighter escorts, will soon be pulled out of the Sudan.

Despite Speakes' remarks, however, an administration official indicated the AWACs soon will be withdrawn from North Africa.

Salvadorans say tactics work

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — Salvadoran military officials said Monday new army tactics, including the U.S.-designed "pacification" program, have scattered rebel units and placed them on the defensive.

Military officials in the provinces of Morazan and Usulután claimed the program in San Vicente province and the use of frequent patrols have severed rebel supply lines, forcing them to ask for food in villages and stage assaults on highway traffic.

"The change in tactics in the past month, as well as the use of long-distance patrols, have permitted us to take the offensive where the leftists have mobilized," said an officer in the eastern province of Morazan.

"They are totally on the defensive and scattered in small groups that will have a hard time recuperating if the tactic continues," he said.

Vietnam veteran goes berserk

PASCO, Wash. (UPI) — A Vietnam War veteran accused of home-to-home stabbing attacks on his neighbors during an apparent flashback to his combat days may have slipped into a drug-induced hallucinogenic state, authorities said Monday.

George E. Johnson, 34, of Pasco, appeared in a preliminary court hearing Monday to read his rights following his arrest for the killing two people with a kitchen knife and the critically wounding a third.

Franklin County Superior Court Judge Robert Day ordered Johnson held without bail and appointed a public defender as his attorney. Prosecutors have until 4:30 p.m. Tuesday to file formal charges.

Friends and family of Johnson said he often used both cocaine and PCP, an animal tranquilizer that works as a powerful and unpredictable hallucinogen in humans.

Actor faces weapons charges

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI) — Actor Todd Bridges of the "Diffident Stroker" television series will be arraigned Tuesday in Beverly Hills Municipal Court on charges of carrying a concealed weapon and a loaded firearm in a vehicle.

Bridges, 18, was stopped by Beverly Hills police July 20 after he sped through a red light in his 1980 Porsche. Police found a loaded .45-caliber automatic pistol in an opening in the driver's door and bullets in a briefcase.

Truckers protest new taxes

BOISE (UPI) — Trucking industry officials from across the country pleaded for relief from higher highway taxes Monday during a public hearing chaired by Sen. Steve Symms.

"The overall profitability of the trucking industry in 1982 was nil. I see very little change in this situation in the near term with federal, state and local governments," Grigg said. "An information packet packaged with Benedictin reviews a number of studies on the drug but that only recently have two studies shown a possible link between the drug and pyloric stenosis, a stomach deformity that occurs in about one in every 1,000 births, Grigg said.

Womans crew lands big shark

MONTAUK, N.Y. (UPI) — The crew of a charter fishing boat, captained by a woman, battled and landed a 3,000-pound great white shark that rammed their boat in an attempt to get free, the skipper said Monday.

A larger shark got away.

Kengon, captain of the 40-foot charter vessel, said the catch Sunday off the coast of Long Island made her only the second woman ever to catch a great white shark and said it helped to vindicate the bad reputation of female captains.

Bridges' attorney, Maxwell Keith, said his client would plead not guilty to the charges against him and would await a pre-trial.

The black actor claims he was carrying the gun to protect himself from a woman, Keith said. Keith says he has been numerous. Because of the threats, Bridges says he is being his son Fernando's father because of harassment — including alleged gunfire — from men he believes are Ku Klux Klan members.

Drug linked to birth defect

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Doctors are being warned that Benedictin, the only drug approved for treating nausea during pregnancy, may be linked to stomach deformities in infants. The Food and Drug Administration said Monday.

The drug, a formula of vitamin B-6 and an anti-histamine first marketed in 1959, is "one of the most studied pregnancy drugs in history," said FDA spokesman Bill Grigg.

Grigg said it is the only drug approved for "morning sickness" associated with pregnancy.

Benedictin's manufacturer, Merrell Dow Pharmaceuticals Inc., has stopped producing the medicine, attributing the decision to financial reasons.

Grigg said an information packet packaged with Benedictin reviews a number of studies on the drug but that only recently have two studies shown a possible link between the drug and pyloric stenosis, a stomach deformity that occurs in about one in every 1,000 births, Grigg said.

Jones said members of his staff had obtained some of the details of the runaways' activities from the burned boy before he was airlifted to the University of Utah Hospital's burn center.

"They had gone to the house to get food," he said. "But when they got there, they also started vandalizing, and the boy spread some gasoline on the floor," Jones said.

"He lit the fire and it exploded and just engulfed the door in flames," he said. "The boy apparently couldn't escape through the window. The other boys broke down the door, rescued him and they all left in the car, the director said.

Three campaign workers in their 20s who had supported Aquino when he ran for legislative office from prison in 1978 were in line to see his body for the second time.

"We love him," said a young woman, speaking from under a brightly colored parasol. "We will not forget him. Many people will not forget Aquino. This is not the end of the Aquino era."

Neither the woman nor her companions would give their names. Other mourners approached by a reporter were reluctant to be interviewed.

"It is not healthy to discuss politics," one man said.

Aquino's funeral was scheduled for Sunday. In Boston, Aquino's widow, Corason, and his five children prepared to return to the Philippines Tuesday.

An opposition leader warned that Aquino's assassination put in question the Philippine government's ability to protect President Reagan during his visit to Manila in November.

"I don't know what Mr. Reagan will do, that's up to Mr. Reagan," former Senator Salvador Laurel, president of a coalition of 12 opposition parties, told journalists at the Aquino home in suburban Quezon City.

"But if I were him I wouldn't feel safe here if the 350,000 armed forces of Marcos could not protect Senator Aquino, how can he be able to protect Mr. Reagan when he comes in November?"

Marcos, at a nationally televised news conference, said Aquino was shot once in the head with a .357 Magnum by a professional killer. He said the gunman, killed by soldiers after he shot Aquino, was still unidentified.

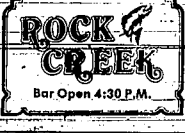

It rekindled government involvement in Aquino's death, and blamed communists who are involved in a guerrilla war against his government.

WASHINGTON — A disgruntled Justice Department official who worked on the administration's project to eliminate sexually discriminatory laws resigned Monday, a day after blasting President Reagan's commitment to women.

Barbara Honegger, a 37-year-old special assistant at the Justice Department, said she realized a month ago that "Ronald Reagan never intended to enforce equal rights for women."

"The president made a promise to the American people on Dec. 31, 1981, in an executive order he signed with force of law that he would identify and correct every single remaining sexually discriminatory federal statute.

"We date, not a single statute has been corrected," Ms. Honegger said on NBC's Today show, where she announced she was resigning.

In Los Angeles, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Ms. Honegger's suggestion that Reagan is not committed to rooting out discrimination "was just not true."

"The impressions were more erroneous than the facts," Speakes said.

Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, Ms. Honegger's boss as head of the department's civil rights division, said "I don't think even now she thinks it's a sham."

"Barbara is someone who was preoccupied with how many titles she had behind her name," Reynolds said in an interview, adding that she had "expectations for herself that never really came to fruition in terms of places in the administration she would like to have gone."

"A lot of what we are seeing now are some of those frustrations," Reynolds said.

He also said Ms. Honegger misidentified herself as head of the attorney general's gender discrimination agency review. He said she was one of a number of people working on the project.

"I think to suggest she was in a leadership role is somewhat misleading," Reynolds said.

Ms. Honegger, a special assistant in the department's civil rights division, was on an 18-month contract to work with the presidential Task Force on Legal Equality. Her contract expires at the end of September.

The task force was set up to ensure "the systematic elimination of regulatory and procedural barriers that have unfairly prejudiced women from receiving equal treatment from federal activities."

Reagan has long advocated such reforms to ensure "sexual equality as an alternative to ratification of the Equal Rights Amendment." In her television appearance Monday, Ms. Honegger said, "I have heard through the grapevine that the administration has no intention of going on that far beyond the plan on them — I have re-phrased."

In a lengthy article in Sunday's Washington Post, Ms. Honegger charged the administration is doing the "minimum possible" to rectify laws that discriminate on the basis of sex.

Alicia to set damage record

By BARBARA CANETTI
United Press International

HOUSTON — Insurance officials said Monday damage inflicted on the Texas Gulf Coast by Hurricane Alicia would top a record $1 billion.

John P. Holloway, president of GAB Business Systems, said the estimate included damage covered by federal flood insurance and crop losses.

"Preliminary reports of the extent of damage to homes, businesses, industrial and government facilities suggest that Hurricane Alicia will set a record for claims payments," Holloway said.

"The previous record insured loss from a hurricane was set by Frederic when it struck Mississippi and Alabama in 1979 with damages of $700 million."

"Up to two weeks of work will be required before life along the coast, and specifically in the lucrative Galveston tourist area, returns to normal," authorities said.

Houston Lighting & Power Co. of officials Monday said 150,000 to 200,000 residents still were without electricity, and that portions of Galveston's West Beach may be without service until after the normally profitable Labor Day weekend.

Operations along the 50-mile-long Houston Ship Channel remained suspended because channel-marking buoys and lights were lost in the storm, according to the Coast Guard.

"The channel is opened only to a limited extent during the day," said Coast Guard spokesman Matt Walter. "The larger vessels are not coming in and it is up to the pilots whether to allow the smaller vessels. We are trying to rebuild and remark the channel."

Alicia, the first hurricane to hit the U.S. mainland in two years, came ashore Thursday on the west end of Galveston Island, and virtually leveled it. The city's historic section and resort interests on the east end were spared the heaviest damage.

"It will be a week or two before our welcome mat goes out again," said

Jeri Gengora of the Galveston city manager's office.

Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire's office said downtown has been fully opened, but power outages in residential sections of the city made life difficult because of heat and humidity.

Five Red Cross disaster centers were opened Monday to provide food, shelter and medical attention to about 2,000 families displaced by the billion-dollar storm.

Galveston police Capt. Leon Lewis said National Guardsmen will remain in the city "until we survey the situation and decide they are not needed."

"Looting is at a minimum because of the risk with all the police, guardsmen and Department of Public Safety officers," Lewis said. "We haven't had too many burglaries and even accidents are down. We've had less crime reported during this time than normal."

Houston judges sent looters a strong message.

President's hearing fades

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — President Reagan's hearing has suffered a slight deterioration since he was examined a year ago, he told reporters Monday.

"The president was examined by Dr. John William House, an ear, nose and throat specialist. When he emerged, a reporter shouted, 'How's your hearing?'"

"What?" Reagan replied with a laugh.

"They say there's been a slight deterioration, about the same as last year," he said. "We're just keeping tabs."

Panel considering teacher merit pay

BOISE (UPI) — Three Idaho educators say merit pay for teachers will improve the quality of instruction only if rewards for superior achievement are combined with enhanced oversight.

The Idaho Joint Legislative Public Education Reform Committee heard from several education specialists in Boise Monday during its first full meeting.

Chairman of Public Instruction Jerry Evans said the committee will make a mistake if it considers only merit pay without looking at other, equally important, compensation issues.

Evans, Don Rolfe of the Idaho Education Association and Gary West of the Idaho School Board Association agreed salary schedules for teachers should be designed to recruit and retain qualified teachers as well as reward top-flight instructors.

"We need to be talking about a broader issue than merit pay alone," said Evans.

compensation should neither preempt adequate entry-level salaries nor foster hostility between teachers and administrators.

"I'll must not pit teacher against teacher or, for that matter, teachers against administrators or all the employees versus management," Rolfe said.

He also said quotas that artificially limit merit rewards are self-defeating because they discourage teachers from showing initiative if they suspected they won't reap any benefits.

West, also a member of the Meridian School Board, said teacher pay in Idaho generally rewards instructors only until they have advanced to the top of their field.

Top pay in the Gen State ranges from about 150 to 200 percent of entry-level wages, West said. But in private industry, experienced workers with qualifications like those of the best teachers often earn five to six times as much as beginning employees, he said.

State investigates possible waste spill

GRAND VIEW (UPI) — State workers inspected a hazardous waste dump in Owyhee County Monday after receiving a report heavy rains had caused possible contamination, but company officials denied the claim.

Owyhee County Commissioner Don Davis said he contacted authorities Monday because it appeared the rain had caused water to flow from the dump operated near Grand View by Envirose Services of Idaho.

Davis said one citizen reported a flash flood

Monday night caused a barrel of toxic materials to float outside the boundaries of the dump, which stores pesticides, industrial chemicals and other hazardous waste.

State Hazardous Materials Bureau Chief Bob Olson said he could not confirm those reports until he resolved word from his inspectors.

Keith Morton, site manager, said he did not find any evidence that hazardous materials had flowed from the site.

Davis said he feared possible contamination to the nearby Snake River and Castle Creek, and he threatened to push for shutdown of the facility.

"If we see waste go into the river, we'll consider closing the dump," the commissioner said. "We know something like this could happen."

Morton said the facility was designed to protect against heavy rains through use of drainage ditches and separate "containment" areas to securely store toxic wastes.

"The main concern was if there was any runoff off at the site, and no there was not," Morton said.

Snipers wound driver

BOISE (UPI) — A 15-year-old boy will be tried as an adult after he and another juvenile allegedly fired a rifle at passing cars on Interstate 84 Monday, hitting four vehicles and wounding a passenger, authorities said.

Eric Duncan was charged with aiding and abetting and battery with intent to commit a serious felony, Ada County deputy prosecutor Dennis Johnson said.

Duncan will be tried as an adult because of the nature of the crime, the prosecutor said. A Fourth District judge ordered the youth to appear Sept. 2 for a preliminary hearing.

Charges are still pending against an unidentified 12-year-old boy, who police believe also was involved in the incident, Johnson said.

The boy was arrested early Monday in connection with a flurry of gunfire that struck four vehicles on the freeway west of Boise about 1:30 a.m., Boise police Sgt. Jim Shippy said.

He said investigators believe the youths, whose names were not released, left a Boise halfway-house overnight and stole a .22-caliber rifle during the robbery of a nearby home.

They then allegedly went to a field near the Cole exit and fired shots at trucks and cars on the interstate.

One of the bullets hit Rance Dickson in the neck as the Marine corpsman rode down the highway, Shippy said.

Man faces fraud charge

BOISE (UPI) — A Boise man is scheduled to appear in federal court Tuesday to answer a 12-count indictment alleging he gave the government false information to obtain federally insured mobile home loans.

The indictment, issued Aug. 10, accuses Marc Lindsey of committing fraud against the government while he worked for Sherwood and Roberts Inc., a Seattle-based mortgage banking business that has an office in Boise.

The indictment accuses Lindsey of obtaining insured loans from the Federal Housing Authority by submitting false information about where the mobile homes were to be located.

The indictment notes that the federal agency relies on lenders to be sure recipients meet federal guidelines.

Lindsey, the firm's former mobile home manager, is accused of committing the alleged fraud starting on June 19, 1980.

He worked for the company from Feb. 7, 1977 to Nov. 20, 1980, according to court records.

The felony charge carries a maximum $10,000 fine and five years in jail for each separate count.

Tax protest leads to jail

POCATELLO (UPI) — Sixth District Judge Peter McDermott ordered a Bingham County man jailed for failure to file state income tax returns from 1977 to 1981.

Bardell Anderson has ordered to remain in the county jail until he agrees to pay the missing returns.

In an earlier court hearing, Anderson was given until Aug. 18 to file the returns, but he has refused to do so because of what he says are his constitutional rights.

Anderson, who is representing himself, failed to take advantage of his right to file the returns in Supreme Court to intervene and stay the jail sentence.

Rash of murders terrifies Illinois town

JOLIET, Ill. (UPI) — Law enforcement officials Monday investigated the slayings of a couple whose throats were slashed just hours after four women were found stabbed and shot to death in a ceramics shop.

The new slayings brought to 16 the number of people who have died violently in the area since June 25, and officials warned Joliet-area residents to take no chances.

The latest victims were a couple found Sunday night their apartment in Park Forest South, a suburb about 30 miles southeast of Joliet. They apparently were killed Saturday, Coroner Robert J. Tezak said.

They were identified as Ralph Dixon, 40, and Crystal Knight, 25, a couple police said had lived together for several years. Both were found with wire, their mouths taped and their throats cut, Tezak said. The woman was nude and the apartment ransacked, he said.

The latest killings were discovered as authorities searched for leads in the deaths of four women found slain in the backroom of a ceramic shop in Joliet Township.

Officials refused to tie the murders of the couple to the previous slayings.

"I can't definitely say there's no link (to previous slayings), but it appears from everything we've discovered so far it is an isolated incident," said Park Forest Police Department Sgt. Ron Wheatley of the latest killings.

"All the rest of the murders were pretty much confined to one specific area, far from the scene in Park Forest."

Ill. County Coroner Robert Tezak, who is investigating the six weekend murders, said "the latest two were even more brutal than the other four."

Tezak said it was possible Dixon knew his attacker or attackers, since neighbors told police Dixon never allowed anyone in the building unless the visitor telephoned first.

He said the manner of the two deaths and that of the four women indicated the two tragedies were not related.

"I'd certainly not want anybody not to panic and not to stop in isolated places or do anything foolish," he said.

Police with increased staff from state law enforcement agencies, said they had no leads in the slayings of the four women. Frightened residents expressed fears that a mad killer was on the loose.

Heat wave hits South

The Southland blazed under yet another day of record heat well into the 100s Monday. Rain came for the parched Midwest but it was too late to save the crops in many areas.

The intense heat pocket in the Southeast quadrant was predicted to hang on at least until Wednesday.

Authorities in Houston figured it would take a week or two of work before things could return to near normal along the Texas Gulf Coast. The effects of Hurricane Alicia, still had 150,000 to 200,000 residents without electricity and operations along the Houston Ship Channel remained suspended.

Augusta, Ga., marked a heat record for the fourth day in a row when the temperature got to 103. Fayetteville, N.C., "cooled off" to 105 from from Sunday's all-time state record of 110.

In shimmering Virginia, records were posted in Richmond, Norfolk, and Roanoke. It got to 101 in Richmond.

Charlotte County, Va., ordered its schools closed 90 minutes early each day until the heat breaks. The only air conditioners in the county's school system are in the principals' offices.

Some means of relief have been devised. Midwest prairies, but they were too little and too late to save much of the scorched crops.

"Non-irrigated corn is past the stage of recovery," University of Nebraska agronomist Don Hanway said. "This (drought) should keep us reminded that these kinds of things can happen even in the United States."

Phone officials expect strike to end Thursday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With a tentative national agreement in hand, negotiators sought Monday to reach local agreements that could end the 16-day nationwide telephone strike by midweek.

The three-year national pact is subject to ratification by the rank and file, but union leaders said 675,000 striking operators and technicians could be back on the job Thursday morning if local agreements are reached with 34 bargaining units of the Communications Workers of America.

CWA spokesman Duayne Trecker said Monday the local bargaining units have been asked to wrap up individual negotiations by 11:30 p.m. Wednesday.

"We hope to have local negotiations wrapped up by midnight Wednesday and we will call an end to this strike just as quickly as possible," CWA President Glen Watts said.

"Assuming these local contracts are completed... CWA members can begin returning to work," he said.

Watts said there do not appear to be "any real roadblocks" in the local bargaining units.

FHA trims house mortgage rate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Monday lowered the interest rate for federally backed Veterans Administration and Federal Housing Administration mortgages a half-point to 13 percent, ending a summer trend of increases.

The rate climbed a half-point as recently as July 29, raising fears that the housing boom could be stifled later this year. The rate had been as low as 11.5 percent up until June 7.

Other improvements in the money market, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel Pierce Jr. announced the drop in the interest rate for FHA-backed single family mortgages.

Effective Tuesday, the new rate for the level payment mortgage will be 13 percent, down from 13.5 percent, and the new rate for the graduated payment mortgage will be 13.25 percent, down from 13.75 percent.

A similar drop was announced by the Veterans Administration for VA-guaranteed single family loans.

"The slowing down in the money supply, growth and the moderation in retail sales and durable goods orders have reassured the credit market that the economic recovery will not reignite inflation," Pierce said.

Pollution hurts plant growth

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Air pollution caused by automobiles worsens the impact of drought, cutting soybean yields by as much as 30 percent in moderate drought conditions, it was reported Monday.

The Agriculture Department research also showed soybeans could tolerate dry soils if the environment were free of air pollution, and that pollution losses could be minimized if soybeans had adequate moisture.

Howard Hegstad, a plant pathologist with the department, said he and other scientists grew soybeans in polluted air and in air filtered to remove ozone, caused mostly by auto pollution, and sulfur dioxide, another common pollutant.

The experiments took place last summer in open-topped, outdoor chambers at the department's Agricultural Research Center in Beltsville, Md.

Walesa leaves the shipyard at Gdansk

Poles to protest today

GDANSK, Poland (UPI) — The communist regime warned Polish workers Monday they would "take money out of their own pockets" if they take part in slowdowns threatened by the banned Solidarity union this week.

The slowdown protest was called after Solidarity's demand for talks between the government and Lech Walesa was rejected by the authorities.

Walesa, founder of Solidarity, addressed a crowd of 500 workers at the protest. He said he would lead union activists would go ahead with their campaign.

"It starts tomorrow," Walesa announced to a crowd of well-wishers at the Lenin Shipyard clutching a bouquet of red and white carnations.

Walesa conceded the slowdown was a risky tactic. "We don't know how to perform this kind of a protest," he said.

More than 1,000 people gathered expecting a speech by Walesa and a march in a Solidarity monument outside the shipyard's main gate. But the former union chairman sent everyone home, saying there would be no mass demonstrations until next week.

The Solidarity underground called on its supporters to slow the pace of work from Tuesday through Aug. 31, anniversary of the strike settlement in Gdansk in 1980 when the communist regime agreed to recognize independent trade unions.

Brazil halts payments

BRASILIA, Brazil (UPI) — Brazil said Monday it had suspended capital and interest payments on $2 billion of its $40 billion foreign debt owed to Western banks.

Finance Minister Ernane Galves said the suspended portion of the debt was some $2 billion owed to central banks of Western countries grouped in the so-called Paris Club and falling due through 1984.

"Brazil last week asked the Paris Club to coordinate renegotiation of that portion of its debt owed to major Western central banks, estimated at $7.8 billion."

The Paris Club is an informal group to which major Western countries belong, that is convened whenever help is requested in renegotiating debt. The United States, for example, does not have a permanent representative in Paris but sends one if a country requests assistance.

Asked if Brazil had suspended capital repayments on these debts during negotiations, Galves said, "Interest payments have also been suspended."

Galves said the decision will affect some $500 million falling due this year and another $1.5 billion due through 1984.

Galves said Brazil was confident the International Monetary Fund would give private bankers a green light by September to go ahead and recommence lending to the debt-strapped nation, releasing some $1.2 billion of a jumbo loan which was frozen when Brazil was unable to bring inflation down and meet other economic targets agreed with the IMF.

Representatives of the bank advisory committee for Brazil from Citibank, Morgan Guaranty, Lloyds Bank and the Bank of Montreal met last week in Brasilia with Galves, Central Bank President Carlos Langoni and other officials to discuss so-called Phase 2 of Brazil's renegotiation efforts.

Eight dead in Druze shelling of Beirut

By United Press International

Syrian forces and Druze-Moslem militiamen shelled Christian neighborhoods around Beirut Monday, killing at least eight people and injuring 30 others, including the commander of the Italian peacekeeping force in Lebanon.

An Israeli soldier was killed near the ancient Phoenician port of Sarafed, 35 miles south of Beirut, when an Israeli missile was "bombed" by military sources said. The Israeli military spokesman for the area, well inside the planned new Israeli lines, had no information on the attack.

The stepped-up violence followed a campaign by President Amin Gemayel to reach a national conciliation with the "National Salvation Front" opposition group which includes Druze leader Walid Jumblatt.

Fights continued despite shelling of the area around the international airport, which was closed for six days by similar shelling two weeks ago.

Some shells landed around the presidential palace in suburban Baabda, Beirut radio said.

A Lebanese security source said at least 20 people were killed and 30 others were wounded in the barrage that enveloped Beirut's Christian sectors and touched Burj-Barajneh, a Palestinian and Shiite Moslem area.

Phatange radio, broadcasting from the Christian sectors, put the number of dead at 20 but that figure could not independently verified.

One exploding shell hit a house in Burj-Barajneh, killing a child, Beirut radio said.

The security source said Druze and Syrian forces fired a 120-mm mortar at the Christian neighborhoods of Sarafed, Druze, Shu'at Fit and Dikwane.

Gen. Franco Anglon, commander of the four-nation multinational peacekeeping force in Beirut, was slightly injured in Burj-Barajneh.

Nicaraguans take rebel camp, kill insurgents

By United Press International

Nicaraguan troops captured a rebel camp and killed 20 rightist insurgents in a "special operation" that raised the death toll in heavy fighting this past week to 31 rebels and 21 government troops, the Sandinista government said Monday.

The Honduras-based guerrilla Radio 15 de Septiembre claimed that "task forces of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force are fighting in the provinces of Jinotega, Madriz and Nueva Segovia."

"Thirty counter-revolutionaries have been killed in the capture of a camp in the north in a special operation of the Sandinista army," said Victor Tirodo Lopez, one of the nine members of the ruling leftist Sandinista Directorate.

Tirodo Lopez did not specify the date or the location of the raid, saying

"they are still fighting."

Escalated fighting along the northern border in the past week has killed 54 rebels and 21 government troops, according to official figures from the Defense Ministry.

The Sandinista official newspaper, Barricada, quoted Tirodo Lopez as saying "there will only be peace when the American flag is withdrawn from our coasts and the United States stops supporting the counter-revolutionaries."

U.S. warships are currently cruising off the coast of Nicaragua, partly to prevent arms being sent from Nicaragua to leftist guerrillas in El Salvador.

In neighboring Honduras, the navy destroyed a U.S. helicopter on Monday in the port of Cortes, on the Atlantic coast 130 miles northwest of Tegucigalpa for a two-day stopover, the U.S. Embassy said.

French face uphill fight in Chad

NDJAMENA, Chad (UPI) — The commander of the French garrison arrived in Ndjamena Monday accompanied by elite airborne commandos and said he faced a "difficult job" in halting the invasion of the former French colony by Libyan-backed rebels.

His arrival came as "diplomatic sources said U.S. officials were in the country for consultations on resuming $25 million aid pledged by President Reagan. Only $11 million, consisting of surface-to-air missiles, Jeeps, trucks and uniforms has arrived so far."

"I am here and I have a difficult job ahead," French Brig. Gen. Jean Foll said in a brief press statement at the military airfield. "All of us here a difficult task in the time ahead."

Foll, 54, arrived aboard a French Air Force DC-8 along with more than 100 black-bereted French airborne commandos.

Pol, considered an African specialist after 14 years of experience on the continent, said his first job would be to survey the French positions on the ground and determine the best use of French soldiers and equipment in Chad.

There are as many as 2,000 French soldiers in the north-central African country, with about 650 deployed at forward positions. The forces have formed a defensive belt straddling the 15th parallel and extending 250 miles from Biltine and Arada in the east to Sarai in the northwest.

Military sources said the French deployment would probably be completed by Wednesday.

Eight supersonic fighters and fighter-bombers were flown Sunday to support the French forces and Chadian army troops.

A French military spokesman ruled out any use of the French force for offensive purposes, despite appeals by the Chadian government for more aggressive tactics to oust Libyan-backed rebels from the north of the country.

"The purpose of the French aircraft in Chad is for the protection of French troops should that become necessary," the official spokesman said.

Insurance plan stalls teacher contract talks

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Teachers Association has refused to accept changes in health insurance benefits proposed by the school board, and it will start the school year without a contract.

In a compromise move, the board on Monday offered to pay the entire cost of a policy for a teacher and his or her family, but it wanted to raise the deductibles.

The board suggested increasing the deductible from $100 to $200, and full coverage would not start until medical bills reached $5,000. Last year's policy covered all bills over $2,000.

The board previously paid the entire cost of health insurance for an employee and his or her family, and the TFEA steadfastly has refused to accept any change in insurance benefits, saying it would amount to a pay cut.

Previous board proposals had asked the teachers to pay for all premium increases on husband-wife and family policies above the 1983 level.

The proposal means "a lot more out-of-pocket expenses for teachers," said Connie Hutchison, the chief negotiator for the TFEA.

The teachers have agreed to work under last year's salary schedule, with starting teachers earning $12,500 a year. Experienced teachers will receive a $375-a-year incremental raise based on continuing education and seniority.

Hutchison also said the board's proposal offers no guarantee that the deductible won't change again next year.

She termed Monday's session disappointing in that no board members were present. A team of administrators represented the board's position at the talks.

To break the stalemate, the TFEA is asking the board to maintain the insurance coverage at last year's level and to appoint a committee to study the question.

After the committee, to be composed of three TFEA members and three board representatives, makes a thorough review of insurance plans and companies, the teachers would reopen negotiations, Hutchison said.

Superintendent Gary Piller, however, said the district cannot afford to pay for rising insurance costs with its state-state appropriation.

The board has estimated full coverage would cost the district $100,000 more this year, compared to last.

While Hutchison does not dispute the amount of the increased cost, she says the district has the money to fund all but $6,000 to $25,000 of the sum. The board has calculated the increase on top of last year's proposed budget, rather than the actual budget, she says.

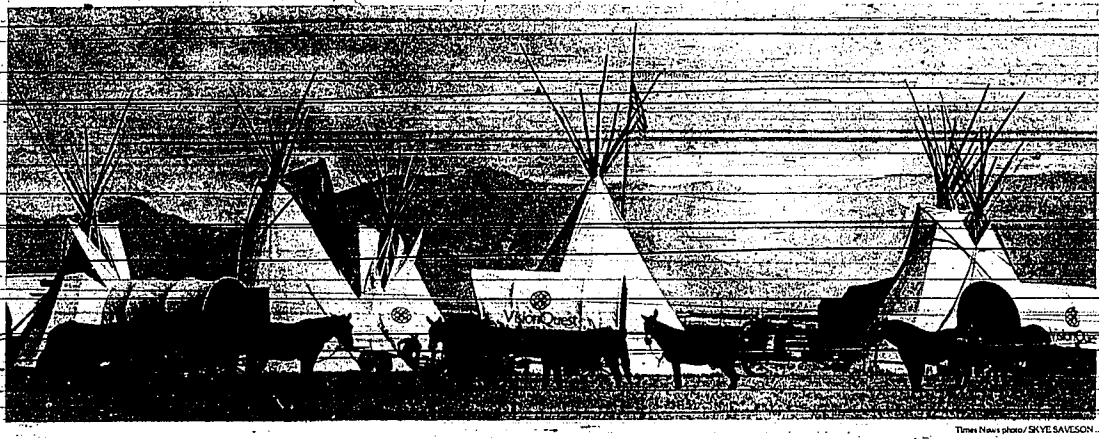

In the struggle over insurance benefits, the board has put 48 non-money items as revised leave-of-absence and sick-leave policies on the back burner, according to Hutchison. The board will pick those points up again, when the two sides are closer to an agreement, she says.

In the meantime, the teachers will continue to be paid the same as last year. What will happen to insurance during the interim is unclear, Hutchison says.

The board and TFEA left Monday's negotiating session without setting another date for talks, but Piller says they could meet again next Monday.

Hutchison will brief the teachers on the status of the negotiations at a general meeting today at 5 p.m. at Our Savior Lutheran Church, 1708 Highway A.E.

Panel favors bond

For city pool

By MARTY TRILLHAASE
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The city's special pool finance committee formally has recommended authoring a bond-raising drive in favor of a bond issue election in November.

"Instead of asking for money, we'd be looking for votes," Dave VanEngelen, the chairman of the committee, told Twin Falls City Council on Monday.

The bond issue election date could be delayed until spring in the event that it conflicts with a school bond issue, committee members said.

The committee also has recommended that the city pursue financing grants funds.

VanEngelen said the committee was almost unanimous in its decision. Six of the committee's seven members attended a meeting earlier Monday at which the decision was made.

Council, meeting later in the afternoon for an informal workshop session, could act on the recommendation.

When it formed the committee in July, the City Council initially called for a private fund-raising drive to be held this fall. The money would have been used to meet the difference between the $20,000 that the city has budgeted for its capital improvement fund and the pool's estimated $500,000 to $600,000 price tag.

But that plan has run into public opposition, VanEngelen said. For one thing, the plan has raised concerns that it might conflict with the annual United Way drive.

VanEngelen added that many people believe the city should pursue a bond issue first before passing the plan.

"They felt there was an obligation that the city should provide, and they were hesitant to donate until the normal channels had been tried," he said.

The committee's recommendation to council followed an architect's presentation about three potential pool sites.

"Dropped from that list was a site near the National Guard Armory at Frontier Field. Officials concluded the site is unsuitable because it is in the flood plain of the Perrine Coulee."

The three remaining sites, presented by Boise architect Gerry Armstrong, all lie on property owned by the city. They include:

- Frontier Field, south and west of Frontier Road. The project cost here was estimated at $444,600.
- Frontier Field, north of Frontier Road, near the existing tennis courts

Water line break floods Rupert

RUPERT — Water from a broken main rose to the doors of some downtown businesses in Rupert late Sunday night.

But city crews managed to shut the main before the water caused extensive damage.

Mayor Bill Whitton said close to 250,000 gallons of water gushed from a 12-inch main line a half-block from City Hall at about 9 p.m.

BILL WHITTON
Lauds city workers

"It got up and was tapping at the doors of many of the businesses and office buildings," he said. It flowed more than a foot deep in some places, he said.

About 50 customers in the immediate area around the break lost water service for three hours, Whitton said. The water from the underground main carved out a 20-foot-wide hole on Seventh and C streets, he said.

Whitton credited a quick response from municipal water crews with limiting the damage. Reports filed Monday by business owners indicated only light damage, he said.

The crews immediately switched off pumps and cut off water to the main by turning off valves. A recently installed water system allows the city to turn off one- or two-block areas. Whitton said. Officials have not determined yet the exact cause of the break in the main, which was only a year old, Whitton said.

Gordon Seward, the president of Intermountain Irrigation Co., which was the contractor for the work, reported alongside city crews throughout the night to patch the main, the mayor said.

"The broken main was expected to be repaired by late Monday night."

Consolidation hearings start

By DAVID LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Understandably, the topics of the first public meeting in the Magic Valley on possible school consolidation turned to the state's program for school funding and teachers' pay.

The topics were appropriate because all six people in attendance Monday night at the hearing in Hailey were associated with schools — three from the Blaine County schools and three from the Dietrich schools.

The meeting also presented a contrast. Blaine County is one of the richest districts in the state, and Dietrich is one of the smallest and at one time was the poorest.

In a meeting that was designed to study a number of areas dealing with possible school consolidation — including finances, administration and school-district configuration — Blaine County Superintendent Dick Jones quickly moved the discussion to state funding.

Being affluent, Blaine County often comes out on the short end of the state's equalization formula for school funding, he said. The state formula is intended to "share the wealth" with all school districts in the state, so students in the poorer districts will receive as good an education as students in more affluent districts.

But in the last few years, Jones said, Blaine County has received a smaller and smaller portion of state support, which has caused the district to resort to override levies the last five years, the last reaching $600,000.

Jones said his district received only $200,000 from the state last year to supplement its $1 million budget. He suggested the state set a minimum amount that a district can receive in state funds, to at least allow Blaine County not to rely on an override each year.

Jones said he favored equalization, but Blaine County is in an extreme and unique situation in the state.

"I do think that something should be done to the formula to make it more equitable," he said. "We feel that we are being equalized clear out of the (funding) picture."

District Superintendent Wayne Perron spoke out in favor of continuing the equalization program, although he did express some sympathy for the Blaine County situation.

Perron said his district has benefited greatly from the program. He said the district is now able to compete with others for hiring good beginning teachers. As a result, the quality of education has increased in the last few years, he said.

Back to the topic of the evening, Perron said he was against consolidation.

Many of the teachers and families in the area have come there for the

Hail damages valley grain crops

BUHL — An afternoon hail storm damaged grain, corn and several other crops in a spotty pattern from Buhl to Castleford.

Most reports indicated the damage was worse to the grain, but that it also riddled corn in a number of fields in the Buhl area.

Gary Blietz of Castleford said in assessing his fields he would estimate a 15 percent to 25 percent loss in grain. He said his other crops, such as potatoes, did not appear to be hit as severely.

He said the hailstones measured from a half-inch to three-quarters of an inch in diameter, and they continued to fall for quite a while.

Rich Greenwall, of the Adolph Coors Elevator Co. east of Buhl, said there was a lot of wind with the hail, and the grains that had not been harvested sustained damage in driving around after the storm, he said. He saw some flattened grain and stripped and riddled corn and beans, north of U.S. 30 to the Snake River Canyon.

He said most of the barley for Coors has been harvested, but he said there will be a few late fields that probably were damaged. A more accurate survey will be made today, he said.

Larry Stevens, of the Green Giant Co. in Buhl, said he found spot damage to cornfields he checked Monday afternoon north and east of Buhl.

"We have had two or three calls in the southwest area saying there was damage, but we don't have a very complete report at this time," he said.

Officials study INEL as site

Waste disposal key issue in deciding location for reactor

By HAL BERGIVON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Hazardous waste management and risk analysis will be two key factors examined in an 18-month study to determine the impact of building the new production reactor at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

A broad outline of the soon-to-be started study was included in an Aug. 9 "decision memorandum" prepared by Don Hodel, the secretary of the U.S. Department of Energy. A copy of the memorandum has been obtained by The Times-News.

The controversial reactor — better known by its initials NPR — would produce tritium and plutonium, two radioactive elements that would be used in the production of nuclear weapons.

The cost of the NPR has been estimated at anywhere between $4 billion and $10 billion.

Earlier this month Hodel recommended that the NPR should be built at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory. His recommendation came after a federal advisory panel reported that two other locations would make better sites. But one of those sites, located outside Hanford, Wash., still is under consideration, according to Phil Keil, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Energy.

Keil told The Times-News that the waste-management investigation will examine what improvements are needed at the INEL site to adequately solidify and store the radioactive liquid wastes that would be produced by the reactor. The advisory panel concluded that the INEL lacked a geologic waste-disposal site for nuclear wastes and a tritium recovery and processing facility.

The risk analysis, Keil says, will look at the chances of the reactor facility leaking radioactive materials, and it will try to determine what would be the chances of a leak contaminating the Snake River Aquifer.

The memo indicates that the study also will include a look at the region's transportation facilities; the project's possible impact on endangered species and archeological sites, and an examination of socio-economic issues raised by the INEL site selection.

Hodel said these topics should be the minimum issues addressed by the study.

The U.S. Department of Energy came under sharp criticism from South Carolina politicians and environmentalists when it attempted to restart a refurbished plutonium and tritium "reactor" without first completing an environmental-impact statement.

In January, the state joined a lawsuit filed by environmental groups to force the Energy Department to complete such a study. DOE officials insisted that the study was not warranted. But Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., nudged through Congress a law requiring the Energy Department to complete an expedited six-month environmental impact study before restarting the reactor.

The department's reluctance to examine the reactor's environmental problems increased the citizen concern in South Carolina over the possible location of the NPR in the state, according to Pat Windham, an aide to Hollings.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, has cited the South Carolina backlash to the state's decision to restart the reactor, panel's conclusion that the state's Savannah River facility was the best place to put the NPR.

However, Keil says the NPR, unlike the "L" reactor, will require an extensive environmental study.

"This (NPR) is a whole new thing," he told The Times-News. "The 'L' reactor had already been operating and we knew what it could do. The NPR is a whole new thing and would require extensive questioning."

The environmental-impact study will examine several different reactor designs currently being considered for the NPR.

A heavy-water reactor similar to a reactor already in use in South Carolina is Hodel's preferred choice. This reactor would use a tested design, but it would not produce any steam as a by-product, which the Energy Department would like to sell to private utilities.

So the study, according to Keil, also will examine the impacts and benefits of building a low-temperature heavy-water reactor, which would produce modest amounts of steam, and a high-temperature, gas-cooled reactor, which would produce sizable amounts of steam.

Hodel, in his memo, wrote that "a current version of the heavy-water reactor, based on 30 years of experience at Savannah River,"

Rupert woman dies from accident

RUPERT — An elderly Rupert woman was killed and four other people were injured in a traffic accident south of Rupert about Monday.

The victim has been identified as Emma Kessinger, 81, the driver of one of the two vehicles. According to Idaho State Police, the woman failed to stop at a stop sign and drove into the path of another car.

Kessinger was pronounced dead at the scene. ISP Cpl. Les Stimpson said preliminary indications were that the woman died of a heart attack caused by head injuries and trauma.

The driver of the second vehicle, JoAnne Andrew, 47, of Rupert, was southbound on Meridian Road, west of the stop sign. Her car was pulled into her path from 200 South.

Neither vehicle overturned, officers said, and the passengers were not ejected, although none was wearing a seatbelt.

Andrew and her four teenage passengers were taken to Minidoka County Hospital, where two of them were hospitalized in stable condition. Hospital officials would not release the names of the hospitalized youths because they are juveniles.

The passengers in the Andrew car were Julie Kraus, 16; Ellen Deane, 16; Terry Kraus, 17; and Judi Greaves, 14, all of Rupert. Kessinger was alone in her vehicle.

Albion declared a disaster area

BY BONNIE BAIRD JONES
TIMES-NEWS WRITER

ALBION — The Cassia County commissioners on Monday declared Albion and the property surrounding the community a disaster area.

It was the first step toward securing the federal government's assistance in the form of flood-damaged homes, businesses and farms.

Cassia County civil-defense director Billy Crystal said an application, along with information on damage and the estimated repair costs, will be sent to the state Bureau of Disaster Services and the governor for a ruling.

The flash flood that swept into Albion on Saturday destroyed or damaged all of the town's six businesses, city offices and about 30 homes.

The original estimate of 20 homes damaged rose to 30 on Monday, as a property-by-property survey began.

County commission Chairman Wendell Stock, Cassia and City Councilman Marvin Mendelhall headed the survey committee, assisted by Albion volunteers and officers.

As of Monday night, Crystal said it still was too early to estimate even a rough figure on total damage.

"We hope to have this tomorrow after we have talked to more of the people. Our next job is to justify to the state that we do have a disaster status in the community," he said.

There will be no outright grants available for property owners, he said, but low-cost loans. If approved, would help with clean-up and repair costs.

"It's mostly mud and water damage," Mayor Roy Powell said. "Some of the homes and businesses have about eight inches of mud on their floors and in their basements."

Powell and Mendelhall said there is also street damage, including one culvert-type bridge that washed out, and many areas where water cut under the pavement.

Only one business apparently suffered structural damage. Crystal said the floor at the Annie Laurie Inn is sinking.

Representatives of the various farm agencies also were in the Albion area Monday to inspect crop damage.

"They are looking more toward additional structures or practices that will prevent similar damage in the future," than to disaster loans," Crystal said.

The flood was triggered by a heavy rainstorm that washed down the foothills north of Albion and brought tons of silt from fields and hillsides into town. Many of the fields either had been harvested or were unplanted, which increased the topsoil loss.

Rural setting, Perron said. Consolidation would take that away.

Because of Lincoln County's rural and widely dispersed population, he said the cost for transportation of students to school would be excessive and impractical.

"If we consolidate, it would lower the quality of education in the county," he said.

"I feel it should be left up to local people's consideration," Perron said.

According to the Lincoln County legislative committee, which were present at the meeting:

The committee is holding similar meetings throughout the state and will present its findings to the full Legislature in January.

Dennis Dempsey, the principal of the Wood River Junior High School, a part of the Blaine system, which is already consolidated, told the committee that it would not make any difference what standards are set or what changes are made if the state does not provide enough money for higher teachers' salaries. The quality of education will never increase without higher wages, he said.

Idaho cannot compete for top teachers because of low pay, and that is directly linked to the quality of education, he said.

The committee members who held Monday's meeting were: Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl; Sen. Gordon Darringer, R-Doon; Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls; and Valley School District Superintendent Keith Huettig.

Three more school consolidation hearings will be held in the Magic Valley this week.

Tonight, the scene will shift to Twin Falls, where the meeting will be held at O'Leary Junior High School. Wednesday night, Burley Junior High School will host the committee, and Thursday night's hearing will be held at Gooding High School.

All of the meetings will start at 7 p.m.

A Harmon Park, the site of the present pool, which was not opened this year due to its condition. The cost here was estimated at $656,600.

Armstrong's pool proposal calls for an eight-lane, 25-meter competition pool, a 20-by-30-foot wading area and a 45-by-45-foot diving area.

Also put on council's table was an engineer's recommendation that geothermal energy be used to heat the pool.

Ken Tewksbury of Boise projected that energy savings could pay for the initial geothermal investment of about $120,000 in 14.5 years, given a pool season of Memorial Day through Labor Day. If the pool season ran between May 1 and Sept. 30, the project could pay for itself in under six years, he said.

Divers 'find' truck from lake

HAILLEY — It took three divers and a wrecker to recover a submerged pickup truck and boat trailer Sunday afternoon from Alturas Lake.

According to the Blaine County sheriff's office, the owner, whose name was not available, bucked the trailer into the edge of the water to load his boat but failed to get the vehicle in "park."

The vehicle rolled back and sank in to 40-foot of water. The driver's window was open, and as the vehicle filled with water, it rolled over on its top with the trailer on top of it.

Divers from the Blaine County Search and Rescue unit went into the lake and hooked wrecker cables to the vehicle, and it was pulled out of the water.

Officers said there was little damage other than to the driver's nerves.

'Living will' may be ignored

DEAR ABBY: You have written many times about a Living Will. While a resident in the retirement community where we live (about 800 residents) was hospitalized, she told the chief medical officer that she had a Living Will and he responded, "Oh, we don't pay any attention to those things!"

"That doctor recently retired, but I suspect there may be many other physicians who feel the same way. My point: Having a Living Will, how can one be sure that it will be honored? I think your readers should be told."

AWAITING YOUR RESPONSE
DEAR ABBY: Unfortunately, there are still some physicians who may refuse to follow the directives stated in the Living Will.

"Of course, if you are lucky enough to find a one-of-a-kind doctor that has enacted a Living Will law, then the physician MUST follow the directive. If you do not, ask your physician if he will respect your Living Will. If he says no, don't try to change his mind or change doctors."

"Should you prefer not to change doctors, ask your attorney to contact the Society for the Right to Die, 250 W. 57th St., New York, N.Y. 10019; telephone (212) 248-8274. The society's legal staff will be pleased to work with your attorney to help make your wishes effective."

DEAR ABBY: I liked your suggestion of "reminding" a forgetful spouse that a big day is coming up.

I used to tape reminders to my husband's bathroom mirror saying, "Only 14 more shopping days until Shirley's birthday." Then the next day, "Only 13 more shopping days until Shirley's birthday." I did that every day until the final day. Then the message would say, "Today's the day!"

"When he'd give me a gift, I'd get surprised, hug him and say, 'Darling... you remembered!'"

DEAR SHIRLEY: I'm in your corner.

DEAR ABBY: The week before Father's Day, you wrote, "Don't give Dad another shirt or wallet; give him something he will cherish forever — a letter telling him how much he means to you."

Well, I composed a letter on the bus to work that very morning, typed it on my lunch hour and mailed it to my father in a beautiful card that evening. He was actually my stepfather, but he had been more of a father to me than my real father. I know it would mean a lot to him, especially since he was in the hospital at the time.

He died on July 5, and I'm so glad I wrote that letter. Now I can live with myself, knowing that he knew how I felt about him.

Thank you so very much for making me put my thoughts of love and gratitude on paper. If this letter helps just one person to do what I did, it was worth writing. Gratefully,

—CLAUDIA JANSAN PABLO, CALIF.

Working women can handle stress

NEW YORK (UPI) — Working women are better equipped to handle stress than women who don't hold jobs outside their homes.

"The healthiest women are those who combine careers with parenting," says an article in the August issue of Working Woman magazine.

"Apparently, the satisfactions of the triple roles offset the stresses."

The findings are based on a study by Luis Verbrugge, an associate research scientist at the School of Public Health of the University of Michigan.

"The runners-up in health status are unmarried working women," she found.

Water favored to quench thirst

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (UPI) — A recent survey for a beverage manufacturer indicates water is still the first choice of Americans for quenching thirst.

Almost 71 percent of the almost 650 people contacted in a random survey said they associated tap water with quenching thirst in general. More than 60 percent named iced tea, and almost 48 percent, soft drinks.

In seasonal preferences, water remained No. 1, preferred by 40.9 percent as a summer beverage and 44.2 percent in winter. Iced tea was No. 2 in summer, with 34.6 percent. Soft drinks were No. 2 in winter, with 40.6 percent.

The study was done for the Nestle Corp. of White Plains, whose products include instant tea and tea mixes.

Caracas steroid scandal

Four lose medals

By JOHN POWERS
Boston Globe

CARACAS, Venezuela — They knew that the medical committee had set up a "hot lab" here, that their German analyzing equipment was the most sophisticated in the world.

Yet at least seven weightlifters apparently felt that their use of body-building, anabolic steroids would go undetected at the Pan American Games. They were wrong.

Medalists Cuban world-record holder Daniel Nunez, the 1980 Olympic champion at 123 pounds, was stripped of his three Pan American gold medals and the world mark in the snatch that he set here last week.

Also sanctioned were Nunez's countryman Alberto Blanco, who won three gold medals at 220 pounds, plus Canadians Guy Grevette (two golds, one silver at 182) and Michel Vinu (two bronzes at 143) and three other weightlifters — Argentine Guillermo Lopez, Puerto Rico's Jose Lozada and Colombia's Caballero Dolcy.

"This is some of the saddest information I've ever given," said Pan American Sports Organization president Mario Vazquez Rana, who announced the medal revocations.

It was the first time in the Games' 32-year history that athletes had been deprived of medals for drug usage.

Even more athletes are expected to be named this week, and one case may involve an unnamed American lifter whose initial doping test reportedly came up positive.

"I'm a little surprised the athletes would try to get away with it," said Dr. Roy Bergman, the U.S. delegation's chief physician. "The equipment here is state-of-the-art. It can detect drugs at their molecular level."

And because Los Angeles will use the same equipment at next summer's Olympic Games, what happened Monday has sent shock waves through several other sports — like field events and wrestling — where steroid use is common.

Most of the weightlifters, whose competition ended Friday, have returned home. But Canadian coach Aldo Roy, who said his delegation had no prior knowledge of his lifters' steroid use, said that the medals would be returned if requested.

"On the basis of morals and ethics," said Canadian delegation chief Barry Nye, "this certainly can't be condoned."

But the matter won't end here. The International Weightlifting Federation, which administers the amateur sport worldwide, is expected to either suspend or ban all of the athletes involved.

Nunez was the clear favorite to win the 132-pound class in the 1984 Games. Blanco was the bronze medalist at his.

Pan Am drug probe may implicate Americans

By FRED McMANE
United Press International

CARACAS, Venezuela — Under a black cloud of the biggest drug scandal in the history of International amateur athletics, the United States swimming team tried to bring a little golden glitter Monday night to the Pan American Games.

Only hours after four weightlifters were stripped of their medals and three others reprimanded for taking anabolic steroids, the U.S. swimmers grabbed four more gold medals, including one in a world record time of 3 minutes, 40.32 seconds in the 4 x 100 individual medley relay.

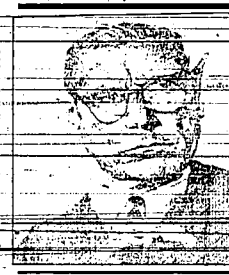

But the joy for the U.S. athletes may be short-lived. Another drug expose is expected Tuesday and this one may strike closer to home.

"There are going to be about a dozen name mentions, maybe more," said a high official with COPAN, the governing body of the Pan American Games.

At least one U.S. athlete is suspected of being one of the names on the list. Dr. Roy Bergman, chief physician of the U.S. squad, said one unidentified American weightlifter may be named, but he requires further testing before a determination can be made.

With track competition beginning Tuesday, it was expected some athletes might be dropping out. John Randolph, head coach of the U.S. track and field team from the University of Florida, called a news conference Monday night that was canceled by the U.S. Olympic Committee.

"It's a real tragedy," William Simon, president of the USOC, said of the sanctions. "But it's no surprise to those in the Olympic movement. This was a time bomb waiting to explode. It should be severely dealt with. It's an evil that plagues our society. I frankly welcome this. It's out on the table. Justice has been swift."

USOC President William Simon

'This was a time bomb waiting to explode... I frankly welcome this.'

Although the scandal cast a pall over the entire Games, it had little effect on the performance of American athletes. As it has been throughout the competition, the U.S. swim team was magnificent on its final night.

Mary Meagher of Louisville, Ky., won the women's 200-meter butterfly. Susan Walsh of Hamburg, N.Y., took the 200-meter backstroke and Jeff Kostoff of Upland, Calif., won the 1,500-meter freestyle to join the relay team in the winners' circle.

Only Brazil's Ricardo Pardo, who won the men's 200-meter individual medley, spoiled the U.S. party. Prado also won the 400-meter individual medley earlier Games.

The most exciting performance was turned in by the 4 x 100 relay team. Featuring four swimmers who held individual world records in their specialty, Rick Carey, Steve Lundquist, Matt Gribble, and Rowdy Gaines improved on a mark of 3:40.84 set by the same team in Ecuador in the World Championships a year ago.

Carry, who set the tone for the race by swimming his leadoff leg in 55.60, and Lundquist both set world records earlier in the meet.

"When you have four world record holders on one team, I think my grandmother could have jumped in and swam and we still would have had the record," said Gaines, who swam the anchor leg. "When I got three guys ahead of me like this what can I say?"

The U.S. team finished with 25 gold medals in 23 events. In boxing, the United States won two fights to give the Americans 11 boxers in the semifinals.

Perrell Whitaker of Norfolk, Va., hit the first right at the Pan Am Games, stopped Kenworth Nims of the Bahamas at 1:50 of the first round in a lightweight bout. And Jerry Page of Columbus, Ohio, scored a unanimous decision over Jose Magallanes of Venezuela in a junior welterweight fight.

In cycling, David Grylls of San Diego set an American and Pan Am record in 4,000-meter individual pursuit.

Other results: The women's pole team won the gold medal by beating Cuba 8-4.

Foundering Cubs give up on Lee Elia

By RANDY MINKOFF
United Press International

CHICAGO — Embattled Chicago Cubs' Manager Lee Elia, whose job was seemingly on the line since the start of the season, Monday was fired by Cubs' General Manager Dallas Green and replaced with former major league manager Charlie Fox.

Saying "Elia wasn't managing like I know he can," Green said the man he brought over with him from Philadelphia to direct the "New Tradition" Cubs on the field. Elia had one year remaining on a three-year contract and was offered another job with the club.

"I've tried very hard to work things out with Lee but the team has not responded since the All-Star break," said Green, who said he decided to fire Elia Saturday but waited until Monday to inform Elia and the coaching staff.

"Lee and the coaching staff still feel the club is capable of playing close to .500 baseball but with only 39 games left, we will have to really regroup just to get back to last year's record," Green said.

Elia, 46, guided the club to a 73-89 record last year after serving as a coach with Green at Philadelphia.

"Right now I'm in a little state of shock," Elia said. "I'm aware of the nature of baseball today. When a team plays sound baseball through the All-Star break and then foundries, then the job is not getting done."

Elia said he may have put too much emphasis on his starting lineup.

"Maybe I put my eggs in one basket. Maybe I didn't go to the extra men," Elia said.

Elia did say his blast against the fans succeeded in its purpose.

"I wanted to get the club motivated and I did," Elia said. "The fans here are a unique breed. There are great fans."

The Cubs were 54-69 entering Monday's game with Cincinnati and the 15 games below .500 was the low point for the season for the CUBS that at one time in early July was only three games out of first. Worse yet, the club was only two games behind last year's pace when the Cubs posted a 3-2 mark over the last two months of the season.

Fox spent most of his baseball career in the San Francisco Giants organization and managed the team from 1970-74. He led the Giants into the National League championship series in 1971, when the team lost to the eventual World Champion Pittsburgh Pirates.

Fox then moved to the Montreal Expos organization in 1976 as a scout.

Torrid Chisox dump K.C., make Hoyt 16-game winner

By United Press International

Julio Cruz hit a tie-breaking two-run homer in the eighth inning to back Ed Whitson's five-hitter Monday night and lead the Chicago White Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

The victory gave the streak White Sox a full nine-game lead over the second-place Royals in the American League West.

Hoyt, who has 10 losses, became the first 16-game winner in the majors. He struck out two and walked one as the White Sox opened a nine-game binge in the AL West.

Cruz, third baseman of the year, came after Scott Fletcher reached on an error by shortstop J.L. Washington

The blast, Yount's 14th, made a winner of starter Chuck Porter, 6-5, who allowed eight hits, struck out six and walked none in his fifth complete game.

Garland's New York Yankees single with one out in the 14th inning scored Mike Heath from third base to lift the A's and end the Yankees' three-game winning streak. Dave Beard, 5-3, pitched three innings for the victory while George Frazier dropped to 3-3.

Steroids

Javel in Moscow. Vlau is the Canadian national champion. And Graesslin placed second in last year's Commonwealth Games.

Though steroids are often used as a running drug for patients suffering from chronic muscle wasting diseases, they can produce heart disease, impotence, sterility, premature arteriosclerosis and liver tumors.

Still, numerous athletes use steroids regularly to build muscle bulk, eating off several pounds before major competition.

"Ballpark figures say three months for oral steroids, six to eight months for injected ones," says Bergman. "But it's dangerous to rely on those estimates. Steroids are tremendously variable in their clearing rates. You could take them, have them stored in your body fat, and not use them until you're packed."

Until recently, steroid users, aware of the need for sophisticated testing equipment, could calculate an appropriate cutoff time and know their tests would turn up negative.

"I don't think the athletes really believed that one testing would be any different here than anywhere else," Bergman said.

Since the IWF tested only gold-medal winners and two random lifters in each weight class, the number of actual steroid users here may have been much higher.

"Out of this," said a Canadian official, "I think you'll see a policy where the top six in each class will be tested."

More than that, sports physicians here believe that steroid's actions will signal a turning point in drug use among Olympic athletes.

What this does, says Bergman, is show athletes that if they cheat, they'll be caught. There'll be a real stimulus to come in clean to Los Angeles.

Correction

The Times-News reported incorrectly last week that Explorer John Koopter of Twin Falls had won a medal at the National Explorer Olympics in Columbus, Ohio. Koopter is from Paul. The name of another medal-winning Explorer, Mike Landrum, was misspelled.

No surprises in Denver — Elway is the Broncos' QB

By United Press International

Denver coach Dan Reeves Monday named John Elway, the 41-million rookie from Stanford, as the Broncos' starting quarterback for the upcoming season.

In announcing the decision, Reeves said Elway would start in the Broncos' final pre-season game Friday at Minnesota. He said Elway, who battled veteran Steve Deberg for the starting spot, "has the ability to get better."

Reeves and Deberg are equal at this time, but for a guy to be equal as a rookie, he gives you the chance to get better all the time," Reeves said. "I feel he can handle the situation. We will be a somewhat different football team in that we will not be as multiple as first on offense, but each week he'll be able to handle more."

Elway completed 7-of-12 passes for 83 yards in Denver's 49-10 win over Cleveland Saturday night, threw for a touchdown and scrambled for 21 yards. Deberg completed 5-of-11 passes for 84 yards and guided Denver to a 10-3 halftime advantage.

NEL

Reeves had said after the game he hoped to decide by early this week who would start at quarterback.

In other training camp news, "The Tuck" — that team official whose job it is to tell players they've been cut from the roster — struck hard on Monday.

The Pittsburgh Steelers released two rookie free agents, reducing their active roster to 65, a team spokesman said. The club released guard Bill Langan, who played at Westminster College in New Wilmington, Lawrence County. Langan also played at Bishop Boyle High School in Pittsburgh and lives in nearby Munhall. Also released was wide receiver John Schoen, who played at Boston College.

The Cleveland Browns cut seven free agents and put two others on the injured reserve list to reduce their roster to 60. Cut from the team were running back Jimmy Gayle from Ohio State, cornerback Chris Van Pelt from Michigan State, tight end James Glibor from Missouri, wide receiver Vincent Potts from Bowling Green (Ohio), center-guard Mark Mather from Miami of Ohio, safety Sam Brown from Georgia Tech and defensive end Marvin Dyeil from Georgia Tech.

Placed on the injured reserve list were tight end Steve Schaefer from Toledo and wide receiver Victor Fairrison from North Carolina.

The Atlanta Falcons waived four players and placed two others on injured reserve, trimming their roster to 61. Waived were defensive end Mike Perko, quarterback Jeff Komlo, guard Earnest Butler and tight end Clay Brown. Placed on injured reserve were linebacker Neal Musser, who has an injured elbow, and punter George Roberts, who has a neck injury.

The Dallas Cowboys cut eight players from their roster, including fourth-round draft pick Chris Faulkner and South African kicker Naas Botha, who left a lucrative rugby career in hopes of making the team. Also sliced from the squad were free agents Mike Call, a guard from Colorado State, Steve Cona, a wide receiver from Utah, Tulsa punter Stephen Cook, Rod Bone, a safety from Notre Dame, and James Madison cornerback Mike Thurman.

Auburn fullback died from heat stroke

AUBURN, Ala. (UPI) — An autopsy showed Monday that Auburn University fullback Greg Pratt, who collapsed and died after running drills Saturday, was hit by heat stroke, officials said.

Pratt, 26, of Albany, Ga., had trouble finishing the last of four 40-yard sprints in 90-degree heat Saturday. He later collapsed in the "tiger dressing room" and was taken to the East Alabama hospital.

Coroner where he was pronounced dead at 2:35 p.m.

Early reports indicated Pratt died of a heart attack, but Lee County Coroner Jon Williams said Monday the autopsy by the Alabama Department of Forensic Sciences showed the cardiac arrest was caused by heat stroke.

"I am ruling the cause of death was found to be heat stroke. The manner of death is accidental," Williams said.

Pratt's death stirs heated arguments

ATLANTA (UPI) — Football was an autumn sport when Bill Curry played at Georgia Tech in the 1950s, and he does not see any schools as fast forward their season openers to the hottest time of the year.

Coaches around the South, already scorched by a severe heat wave, were taking extra precautions in preseason drills Monday, following the death of Auburn University fullback Greg Pratt, who collapsed Saturday after a running drill.

"I've always thought we've moved the season up too much," said Curry, now the Tech coach.

He is member reporting for practice at Georgia Tech on Sept. 1 in the '60s. I don't see why we can't do that, especially with our weather so good in this part of the country."

Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden agreed but noted it's "just about as hot in September."

"I don't know if two weeks would make a difference," said Bowden. "But I wish we didn't start as early. I am concerned every day that thing (Pratt's death) scares us to death and always has."

With the schedule expanded to 11 games — and with the need for television revenue to balance athletic department budgets — there seems little chance of any moving back this season. Instead, coaches are much more careful about signs of heat stress among players.

Bowden and his staff attended a seminar on heat stroke Aug. 1 with the team doctor and trainers.

"We keep water on our sidelines all the time," said Bowden. "We tell them to get water anytime you can. The old theory that you can't let them drink water was a big mistake."

"I also give them a 10-minute break halfway through practice to drink a special fluid our trainer uses."

"I think we are taking all the precaution that we can," added Mississippi State Coach Emory Bellard. "We have a scheduled break every 30 minutes plus we have water available behind every drill on the field."

Curry noted that players today grew up in an air-conditioned society. "My generation grew up without air conditioning," he recalled. "We sweated all the time in the summer and would go out and practice three hours and not be allowed to have water. That was very foolish but we didn't know medically what we do now."

"These youngsters are different. Their bodies are different since they grew up with air conditioning." All the coaches surveyed agreed the drill which Pratt was running — four 40-yard sprints in shorts — was not too harsh. It was 96 degrees when he collapsed.

Dow pierces 1,200 level as oils lead rally

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones average climbed above the 1,200 level Monday in a rally paced by oil issues and based on investor hopes for lower interest rates following a money supply drop.

Sharing the spotlight with aluminums were some other basic industry stocks that would benefit from the economic recovery. But high-technology issues remained under selling pressure.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which gained 1.76 Friday and 11.38 overall last week, rose 8.54 to 1,203.15 thanks to a late buying burst. The Dow climbed nearly 14 at the outset, lost most of that gain by mid-session and then surged near the close.

The New York Stock Exchange index added 0.18 to 35.10 and the price of an average share increased seven cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.38 to 194.34. Advances topped declines 807,218 among the 1,946 issues traded.

Big Board volume totaled 76,420,000 shares, up from the 59,550,000 traded Friday, the second slowest session of the year.

The Federal Reserve's report late Friday of a $500 million decrease in the nation's money supply raised hopes the Open Market Committee would not tighten credit further and triggered the initial buying outburst.

"The bond market was rising because of the money supply figures and it looks like the interest-rate picture is firming," said New York investment advisor David Polen.

"I think the market is coming out of a lengthy pullback and the bull market rally will resume in the near future," Polen said. "The recovery report has started already but it's just not certain."

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all-U.S. exchanges and over the counter totaled 89,994,010 shares, up from the 69,327,720 traded Friday.

The American Stock Exchange index added 0.65 to 231.56 and the price of a share rose four cents. Declines edged advances 317,307 among the 822 issues traded. Composite volume totaled 7,118,800 shares compared with 5,967,440 Friday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers index of OTC stocks lost 0.34 to 258.76.

On the trading floor, Mobil Corp. was the most active NYSE-listed issue, up 1/4 to 33 1/2. Among the other oils and energy related issues, Comstock rose 1/2 to 8 1/2, the 1/4 to 28, Union Carbide 2 1/4 to 67, DuPont 1/4 to 50 1/4, Dresser Industries 3/4 to 25 1/4, California Standard 1/4 to 39, Mesa Petroleum 1/4 to 17 1/4, Texaco 3/4 to 34 1/4, Phillips Petroleum 1/4 to 38 1/4 and Indiana Standard 1/4 to 54 1/4.

General Motors, which announced 1984 price increases, was the second most active issue, off 1/4 to 67 1/4. Ford lost 1/4 to 55 1/4 and Chrysler 1/4 to 25.

American Telephone & Telegraph was third on the active list, adding 1/4 to 64 1/4. Three striking unions have reached tentative agreement on a new labor contract.

Alcan Aluminum gained 1/4 to 38 1/4, Aluminum Co. of America 1 to 44 1/4 and Reynolds Metals 3/4 to 34 1/4. All three have been recommended by analysts.

Among the high-technology issues, IBM lost 1/4 to 121 1/4, Motorola 3/4 to 127, NCR Corp. 3 to 11 1/4, Advanced Micro Devices 2 1/4 to 51 1/4, Sanders Associates 2 to 103, Cray Research 2 to 42 1/4 and Data General 2 to 67 1/4.

On the Amex, Wang Laboratories class B led the actives, followed by Amдах, off 1/4 to 17 1/4. BAT Industries was third, off 1/4 to 2 1/4.

Record Idaho yields seen

BOISE (UPI) — Record yields are expected this year for winter and spring wheat, barley and corn crops in Idaho.

The Idaho Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said the winter-wheat yield of 60 bushels per acre is six bushels above last year and five bushels above the previous record set in 1981.

However, overall production will be 50.4 million bushels compared with last year's 52.4-million-bushel total because acreage under production has fallen from 820,000 to 800,000, the report said.

The spring wheat yield is expected to hit 75 bushels per acre, three bushels above last year's record total. Production from the 475,000 acres in production will be 35.8 million bushels, down 6.1 million bushels from the 1982 total, when 105,000 more acres were cultivated.

Barley yields are forecast to reach 72 bushels per acre, up three bushels from 1982 and 10 bushels over the 1981 total. Production will hit 72 million bushels, down 3 percent from last year's record crop.

The corn for grain yield jumped to 122 bushels per acre, up two bushels from last year. Production is expected to total a record 7.9 million bushels, the report said.

Utility seeks better rating

SPOKANE (UPI) — The Washington Water Power Co., suffering from its involvement in a troubled nuclear project, wants to improve its credit rating by meeting with officials of several New York bond rating services.

Utility executives plan to meet in early September with representatives of Standard & Poor's, Moody's Investment Service and Duff and Phelps.

"They will have to review all the factors in the Northwest which affect us, including the status of WPPSS No. 3," said WWP President Paul Redmond.

WWP, which lost its AAA bond rating last year, wants to improve its rating before trying to sell about $60 million worth of bonds next month.

The Spokane-based utility currently has a BBB rating from Standard & Poor's, an A3 rating from Moody's and a 7 rating from Duff and Phelps.

Federal mortgage rates cut

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government Monday lowered the interest rate for federally backed FHA and VA mortgages to 13.13 percent, a half-point improvement that ended a summer trend of increases.

The rate climbed by the same amount as recently as July 25, raising rates that the housing boom could be stifled later this year. The rate had been as low as 11.5 percent up until June 7.

Citing improvements in the money market, Housing and Urban Development Secretary Samuel H. Pierce Jr. announced that drop in the interest rate for FHA-backed single family mortgages.

Effective Tuesday, the new rate for the level payment mortgage will be 13.13 percent, down from 13.5 percent, and the new rate for the graduated payment mortgage will be 13.25 percent, down from 13.75 percent.

A similar decrease was announced by the Veteran's Administration for VA guaranteed single family loans.

GM hikes prices

AMC unveils new Jeep, Chrysler offers 100,000-mile warranty

By MICHELINE MAYNARD
United Press International

DETROIT — General Motors Corp. announced Monday it is raising the overall price of its 1984 models by about 2 percent or $232 and is freezing or lowering the prices of 34 models.

In other industry developments Monday, American Motors Corp. introduced the first new versions of its Jeep in 20 years and unveiled the Renault Encore hatchback version of the Renault Alliance.

Chrysler Corp. announced a five-year, 100,000-mile warranty on 1984 pickup trucks and utility vehicles. The No. 3 automaker also is recalling about 1,300 workers at its Warren, Mich., truck plant.

GM's announcement means the price of an average GM car equipped with typical options like air conditioning, power-steering and brakes will be about $11,600 when the cars officially appear in showrooms in late September.

The 2 percent price increases are about the same as last year, when GM cut or froze prices on more than half its models. Before the industry's recent downturn, automakers used to raise prices about 5 percent at the start of a model year.

In 1981, GM raised prices about that amount, only to incur the wrath of buyers who went into what was termed "sticker shock" when they saw the $11,000-plus prices.

The biggest GM price increase is 6.97 or 6 percent on the 1984 Corvete, which was introduced this spring. This raises the base price of the fiberglass sports car to $22,155.

Among other increases, the Chevrolet Caprice goes up $400 to $23,399. The Buick Skyhawk four-door is up $148 to $7,353 while the top-selling Oldsmobile Cutlass Supreme coupe goes up $268 to $9,376.

GM said it is cutting the price of its Pontiac Firebird and Chevrolet Camaro sports cars by an average $185.

The price of new front-wheel-drive versions of Chevrolet Celebrity, Pontiac 6000, Oldsmobile Cutlass Clera and Buick Century station wagons will be more than $200 below current standard coupe versions of those vehicles.

GM is reducing slightly the prices of subcompact and compact cars inches, narrower and four inches lower than the old Cherokee, AMC said.

They weigh nearly 1,000 pounds less and provide substantially improved fuel economy with AMC's new 2.5-liter, 4-cylinder engine. The Jeep will get 24 miles per gallon in city driving and 33 mpg on the highway.

The new Encore will get 38 mpg in city and 42 mpg in highway driving, which should make it the highest mileage gasoline-powered car in the country. The Encore shares the same basic platform as the Alliance but has an aerodynamic rear lift and wraparound glass providing a contemporary look.

The 1983 AMC should fill voids for AMC in the current car market.

Sixty percent of subcompact sold are hatchbacks, while sporty compact utility vehicles like the Jeeps currently make up 25 percent of the four-wheel drive market.

AMC Chairman Paul Tiptett, at a news conference in New York, said the new cars should mean a better financial performance for the No. 4 automaker, which has lost money in the last 13 quarters.

"Tiptett said AMC is "certainly interested" in going one step further and introducing a pickup truck model, which would be a bit of a Jeep plant.

He said the firm should sell 40,000 Jeep Chevrolets and 30,000 models in 1984, compared with 1983. AMC is expecting combined sales in 1984 of 200,000 Alliance and Encore models.

The company currently plans to split production at Kenosha, Wis., by 60 percent Alliance and 40 percent Encore, but could change that if needed.

Used car prices rise but sales decline

By MICHELINE MAYNARD
United Press International

DETROIT — Used car prices went up 13.2 percent in 1982 to an average of $4,773 per vehicle and the price of a used car went up more than 10 percent last year, the Hertz Corp. says.

A Hertz study released Sunday found the number of used cars in 1982 was the lowest since 1976.

The annual survey by the nationally largest rental-leasing agency found that 10.7 percent more in 1982 to own and operate a used car or 25.44 cents per mile compared with 23.04 cents per mile in 1981.

By contrast, Hertz' survey of new car prices for 1982 found it cost 44.67 cents per mile to own and operate a new vehicle compared with 43.43 cents per mile in 1981.

Hertz said slightly more than 16.6 million used cars changed hands in 1982, down 5 percent from the 17.7 million used cars sold in 1981. The 1982 figure is 10.8 percent below the record 18.6 million used cars sold in 1980.

The 1982 sales total was the lowest since 1976, when 15.8 million used cars were sold, according to Hertz.

The average price of a used car last year was $4,773, up 13.2 percent from $4,218 in 1981.

Two out of three Americans buy used cars rather than new ones primarily because new car prices are too high, Hertz said. The average price of a new car in 1982 was $8,666, compared with $7,967 in 1981.

"Used cars last year were still cheaper to buy and cheaper to run than new cars," a Hertz spokesman said. "Used cars sales sagged because second-hand drivers were keeping their wheels longer and not buying."

Hertz said this year's 13.2 percent increase to date in new car sales should mean an increase in used car sales since more people are trading in their old cars.

Women travelers want same courtesies extended to men

A minor hullabaloo has occurred recently about what is "proper treatment" of the American businesswoman traveler.

It's really astonishing that the subject should have come up at all at this late date.

Businesswomen already accounting for 30 percent of all corporate travelers. Women's share of US business travel market is growing three times as fast as men's. With business travel totaling more than $70 billion each year, hotels, motels, airlines, railroads and all other services that cater to business travelers should have been worrying about us long ago — assuming they were going to worry at all.

As a woman frequently traveling on business, what special treatment do I want?

Sylvia Porter

Speaking for myself and I hope for you, Nothing.

On the water security standard courtesies: comfort, security, the same privacies that men traveling on business want.

I'll admit without embarrassment that I like to find a packaged airport car in my bathroom, skirt hangers in the closet, full-length mirrors (even a makeup mirror) in the hotel room. But if not, I'm not surprised.

With such tiny exceptions, an East-ern Airlines spokeswoman interviewed spoke for me when she said: "Women do not want to be treated differently from men. It's a difficult segment to market."

An explanation for the suddenly heightened awareness of us may well be the soaring trend of corporate travel costs. Business travel costs increased almost 20 percent in 1982 over an 18 percent jump in 1981.

And a startling disclosure of an American Express study was that of 10,000 companies, about 43 percent lack a national explicit travel policy or employees and codifies the laws on car rentals, first-class plane tickets, entertainment expenses, etc.

A few years ago, when the airlines were competing insanely against each other by offering coupons good for half-price seats (and fare with purchase of a ticket), many employees required that staff remit the previous vouchers along with expense accounts. The employees then applied the vouchers to other corporate travel, saving hundreds of thousands of dollars. Undoubtedly, many travel managers crave a similar bonanza now.

To me it's curious that so many hotels and, to a lesser extent, airlines standard courtesies when dealing with women clients. Why not just ask us?

When it comes to selecting a hotel, when as well as men want a safe location, accessible to downtown and appointments. We want tight security and we expect courtesy and discretion.

Most of us find special "women's wings" — floors with occasional women guests only — a drawback to college restrictions. How many of you, at the end of a hectic day on business in a strange town, want to congregate in the lounge on a special floor for "women only"?

There are plenty of steps you can take to ensure your safety whether or not you lodge on a "women's floor."

Among them:

- When you check in, make sure the clerk does not direct your room number in the hallway across the lobby. Keep your room number confidential and cover the key ring or tuck it in a pocket.
- Request a room on an upper floor, near the elevator bank and away from conference facilities. Don't accept a room at the end of a corridor or in an alcove.
- Don't hang the "Please Make Up Room" sign on the door and announce to all that you're not in the room.
- Check with the front desk before you go out jogging or strolling. Find out if there are any nearby crime areas to avoid.
- Don't permit staff to patronize you or make you feel uncomfortable. When you dine alone, reserve seating in corners or by the kitchen doors. If you entertain clients in a hotel's restaurant, arrange in advance to get the wide aisle and check. Waiters still can't get accustomed to handing the check to a woman — and headwaiters still think they can hide us in the shadows.
- This is an industry that lives on repeat business. Your complaints can count if you make them. Don't tolerate "special" treatment.

Let Us Drive Your Car On Our Indoor Highway

Nothing discovers facts about vehicle performance better than road testing. With our Sun RAM VI chassis dynamometer, we can do it all right inside our shop.

Computer-controlled, the RAM X1 simulator can road condition, so we can measure your vehicle's response under many different speeds and load conditions. We'll check acceleration too.

Call for your performance ride on our indoor highway today.

TUNE-UP AND SAVE At The Pump

Professionally tuned engines save you money two ways: better fuel economy and less costly repairs due to incantation. We offer you professionally-trained technicians and the most modern test equipment.

Our Sun Computer II is fast and accurate. It completely tests all six engine systems: starting, charging, ignition, fuel, compression and vehicle emissions.

Your test results will be printed on a computer-lead-lead-out-Form-Understand-and-install your "Whole Story."

Bringing your new business ideas into focus with First Security business financing.

At First Security Bank we believe that new business ideas should be given every opportunity to grow and prosper. All too often potentially profitable business ideas are not clearly seen and fail to reap their benefits because of the lack of timely financial support. First Security Bank takes pride in the record we've established for commercial lending. We recognize that new business ideas can and do develop into profitable realities.

CASE HISTORY #99
Backing the small businessman with the big idea, First Security Bank teamed up with an Idaho trucker and lent him the capital to start a trucking company. Beginning with three trucks and First Security Bank support, the line grew and prospered. Today, he has a fleet of over 50 trucks and annual sales of $100,000.000.

With foresight and commitment, First Security Bank financing can make your big idea a success.

Come in and let us hear your good ideas. We respond promptly, decisively and locally to most every type requirement.

After all, somebody backed a printer named Franklin, who foresaw the market for bifocal lenses.

We're backing your good ideas in business.
