Official says last WPPSS plant in jeopardy

SEATTLE (UPI) — The last remaining Washington Public Power Supply System nuclear power plant may be in jeopardy because the system's top managers are quitting in droves, a former WPPSS board member said Wednesday.

"If this program loses any more key operational staff, I have serious doubts the Nuclear Regulatory Commission will grant an operating license," said C. Michael Berry, who resigned from the WPPSS executive board this week.

"The supply system is losing manpower in leaps and bounds," he added.

WPPSS project No. 2 at Hanford, Wash., is the only nuclear plant out of five still under construction.

The plant is 98 percent complete and is scheduled to go on line next year, but many top managers are leaving WPPSS for more stable jobs.

Berry also said WPPSS' two top governing boards should be junked and a group of independent overseers appointed to take their place.

"The only thing to do is disband the groups responsible for this thing," he said. "Find a group of independent people willing to work night and day for three years."

Berry said the governors of Washington, Oregon and Idaho should appoint three full-time directors to take control of the financially plagued power system.

Such a move would require the Washington Legislature to take action, which the retired Seattle-First National Bank president said he would work for.

"There is no way you can have a real, reasonable working board under these conditions," he said. "The legal morass and inability to get anything done is just amazing. I've never seen anything like this in 40 years of financial work."

WPPSS has stopped work on four of its five nuclear power plants, and defaulted earlier this summer on $2.25 billion worth of bonds sold to finance construction of plants 4 and 5. Both of those projects have been canceled.

The system also faces a gargantuan lawsuit filed by Chemical Bank of New York, trustee for the bondholders.

Chemical Bank's suit to regain the principal and interest on the defaulted bonds totals about $500 million, including WPPSS' directors, and the 88 public utilities and rural electrical co-ops with a shares of projects 4 and 5.

The WPPSS default was the largest municipal bond default in U.S. history.

Berry also said the work stoppage at project No. 2 at Satsop, Wash., most likely would become permanent unless resumed immediately.

About $900 million is needed to finish the Satsop plant, which is 75 percent complete, but construction was put on hold for three years this summer when WPPSS decided it couldn't raise the money.

"I think if it goes down for three years, there's not much chance of it coming back up again," he said.

Reagan praises Hispanic businessmen

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan won applause Thursday from Hispanic business leaders, the most recent target of his political courtship, when he told them they represent proof the American dream is alive and well.

Accepting shared family values and free enterprise, Reagan addressed an economic outlook luncheon organized by four Hispanic business groups in Los Angeles.

Reagan's speech was interrupted by applause several times, and he received a prolonged ovation when he concluded with the words "Vaya con Dios," Spanish for "Go with God."

"They're stoics of 'Buena, bueno (good, good)."

Reagan had lunch with the group. Before he spoke, Hispanic leaders took their turns at the microphone, predicting Hispanics in California will be the majority — and the leaders in the next 10 years.

One speaker also predicted an eventual Hispanic president.

Outside the hotel, about 150 demonstrators marched peacefully, carrying banners and signs opposing U.S. involvement in Central America, demanding investigation of the assassination of Philippine opposition leader Ninoy Aquino, and condemning Reagan's policies on women.

A group of four women dubbed themselves the "Bunny Gap." In reference to presidential spokesman Larry Speakes' comments Wednesday about former Justice Department staffer and Reagan critic Barbara Honeger. One carried a sign saying, "Bunnies Do Multiply."

Inside, Reagan was making his sixth appearance in less than three weeks to Hispanic groups.

"To every cynic who says the American dream is dead, I say I took it to the Americas of Hispanic descent who are making it in the business world," he said.

"On the eve of the appearance, officials of three Hispanic groups staged a news conference in Los Angeles to denounce his spending cuts and criticize his policies as detrimental to the community."

"The president's recent courtship of Hispanics is belated, superficial and fraudulent," said Mario Obledo, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens. He charged the president set out to aggressively woo Hispanic voters for support in a prospective 1984 re-election race only after striking out with blacks and women.

While Reagan told the business leaders they are in the front lines of economic progress in America, a recent Census Bureau report showed that 30 percent of all Hispanics — double the national figure — live at or below the poverty level.

Reagan attributed 65 percent increase in the Congressional study says Tax cuts hurt poor families

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Households earning less than $20,000 bore 70 percent of the budget cuts in employment, education, health and welfare programs during the Reagan administration, a Congressional Budget Office study said Thursday.

The study also showed households with less than $10,000 in yearly income lose most from such cuts.

President Reagan and Congress have reduced federal spending on "major" social and welfare programs by 7 percent, with 40 percent of the benefit reductions affecting households with annual incomes of less than $10,000, the CBO said. Another 30 percent of the benefit cuts affected households with annual incomes between $10,000 and $20,000.

Census Bureau figures show that in 1982, 49.6 percent of American households had incomes under $20,000 and 23.9 percent had incomes less than $10,000.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, D-Mass., who requested the CBO study, said the findings show Reagan "has denied millions of American families the basics of the American dream."

One consistent projects the image of a man concerned about the well-being of the average American family," O'Neill said in a written statement. "His record shatters that image."

In Los Angeles, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the Office of Management and Budget will analyze the congressional report and "counter that I respect comment."

But he noted as the report did that "it does not include the effects of the 25 percent income tax rate reduction" or "the effects of the strike on the treatment of unemployment in the economy."

At O'Neill's request, the CBO limited its examination to five major areas of the budget — retirement and disability programs, other income security programs, health care, education, social services, and employment programs.

Those programs make up 96 percent of all "human resources" spending — one-half of the total Federal budget and just over two-thirds of total non-military spending the CBO said.

The budget office concluded:

— Federal spending for these programs has been reduced by about 7 percent compared to what it would have been under laws existing at the beginning of 1981. Reductions are deepest in employment programs, which have been cut by about 40 percent.

"Reductions in benefit payments for individuals are greatest for households with income below $10,000. In 1984, for example, such households will lose an average of $40 in benefits relative to what they would have received under prior law, compared to the average loss in all income categories of about $25. A household, according to the Census Bureau, consist of only one person, while a family consists of two or more related people.

The budget office cautioned that its estimates are for changes in federal spending only and do not include the effects of state and local government spending. It would raise after-tax incomes for some households. However, the tax cuts have generally provided the biggest savings to higher-income households.

The CBO also said that if Reagan economic policies "significantly raise the rate of economic growth and reduce unemployment ... then they would provide higher incomes that would to some extent offset the reductions in benefits."

The CBO said projected 1982-1985 spending for employment programs has been cut by almost 60 percent; education and social services, 18 percent; other income security programs, 10 percent; health care, 5 percent; retirement and disability programs, 3 percent.

U.S., Russia sign off on 5-year grain deal

By STEVEN R. REED
United Press International

MOSCOW — The United States and the Soviet Union signed a five-year $10 billion grain agreement Thursday, ending what U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block called a "distasteful chapter" in trade between the superpowers.

Block — the first U.S. Cabinet member to visit Moscow since the death of Leonid Brezhnev — said the value of the contract could be even higher than the minimum $10 billion if the Soviet Union buys more than the annual minimum of 9 million metric tons required by the pact.

"We welcome additional trade and we are prepared to meet the needs of the Soviet Union," Block said at a news conference. "We want to be not only a good supplier, we want to be the best supplier for the U.S.S.R."

Block said the agreement did not mean the superpowers had solved all their differences. "It is important and we were able to do it and that means maybe we can do something else. That's all," he said.

Following the signing, Block met with Politburo member Geydar Aliev. Block said the subject of a possible summit between Presidents Reagan and Andropov was discussed, but no date was set.

The brief signing ceremony took place in the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. When the documents had been exchanged, Block presented Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai Patolichev with an Illinois corn growers' lapel pin.

"Unfortunately, I can't give you this one," Patolichev said, gesturing to a pin on his suit jacket. "This is for people who have been in the Communist Party for more than 50 years."

The agreement was the first major pact signed between the two countries since Presidents Jimmy Carter and

GLENN WATTS Says strike won't end

Ma Bell ready to end strike

By The Times-News and United Press International

BOISE — Mountain Bell Co. and Communications Workers of America have reached a tentative contract agreement, but Idaho officials say they are not sure when the nearly three-week-old strike will end.

Alan Shawcroft, president of CWA Local 810 in Twin Falls, said he and other union representatives will meet with CWA negotiators in Denver today to hear the terms of the settlement. Shawcroft, who went to Denver Thursday, said "current plans call for union members to start voting on the proposed pact after ballots are mailed on Sept. 8."

He said he plans to explain details of the agreement to the Magic Valley chapter at the regular meeting Sept. 7. But neither Shawcroft nor other union officials knew what the 20-day walkout will end.

"That's because nationwide, local contract talks remained stalled. And one union official vowed Thursday to continue the strike until all local contracts are signed."

Mountain Bell officials are hoping the approximately half-cozen local still without an agreement Thursday will settle their differences in time for workers to end their strike during the weekend, said Dean Argyle, company spokesman in Idaho.

"Everyone's hoping it will be done by Monday, but we're just being optimistic," he said. "We have nothing to base that on."

But Glenn Watts, president of the Communications Workers of America, said he did not expect the tentative national accord to collapse because of local disagreements but said they must be settled before he can order strikers back to work.

"At this hour, we have signed no local agreements and we are far apart in a number of areas," Watts said at a news conference.

"That means, in keeping with our policy announced after reaching port in at the national level, the CWA's strike against the Bell System will continue in all parts of the country."

The 1,000 Idaho workers walked off the job over company proposals to schedule assistance for split shifts and to assign new hires to old jobs so pay could be reduced, among other issues.

One union member, Lon Keating, said phone operators are under pressure to limit assistance to 24 seconds per caller, Keating said. "They're subject to firing if the call goes to 30 seconds," he said.

Keating said he believes the strike has hindered the utility's ability to serve its customers.

Argyle said the strike has meant some delays in equipment installation.

Blaze destroys Hollywood sets

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — A spectacular blaze burned like a beach party bonfire at the Paramount Studios lot in the heart of Hollywood Thursday, damaging three huge sound stages and destroying an historic outdoor street set.

Fire officials also reported a few spot fires at the adjacent Hollywood Memorial Park Cemetery, where several movie stars are buried — including Rudolph Valentino.

The only injuries were to two firemen who received electrical shocks, officials said. Damage was reported in the millions of dollars.

The blaze, which broke out behind a tattoo shop facade on a collection of interlocking madways known as the New York street, destroyed about 360,000 square feet of outdoor sets.

"The New York street was built in 1927" at Paramount President Mike Eisner's said in an interview at his studio office. "The real damage was to nostalgia, because New York doesn't look like our New York street anymore."

The sprawling set was used for dozens of movies with stars like Jerry Lewis, Bing Crosby and Bob Hope, including "Going My Way," "The Belles of St. Mary," "Breakfast at Tiffany's," "Day of the Locust" and both "Godfather" films.

Also filmed on the set were opening scenes of the "Laverne and Shirley" television series, with the street doubling as Milwaukee in the 1950s, and the closing scenes of the movie "Chinatown," playing Los Angeles in the 1930s.

Ronald Reagan made three movies on the Paramount lot: "The Untouchables," "Hong Kong" and "Tropic of Zebra" — but it was not immediately determined if the burned sets were used in those films.

The cause of the fire, which was reported by a studio employee 4 p.m., was not immediately known. Arson was not suspected.

Judge ignores warning in case

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge Thursday refused to rescind his order for 51 federal agencies to submit their files on the automaker John De Lorenzo to the court ignoring government warnings the ruling could delay the trial for years.

U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi modified the ruling slightly, however, saying the agencies had to submit only those documents compiled after November 1978 when the automaker began negotiations with the British government regarding his car company, to last December 15.

He also postponed the date of compliance from Aug. 31 to Sept. 21.

Prosecutors said they would appeal "shortly" to the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals, but defense attorneys said they would fight to the U.S. Supreme Court if necessary to preserve Takasugi's order.

In his ruling, the judge did not address the prosecution's warning that compliance could delay the trial, now set for Oct. 4, well into 1985 or that it might pose a threat to national security. But Assistant U.S. Attorney Lynn Phillips told reporters outside court that compliance with the order "simply can't be done" and warned "The order is simply going to bog the prosecution down."

Lawmaker backs school audit

MOSSCO (UPI) — Idaho House Speaker John Stivers says the Moscow School District may not be able to escape participating in a performance audit ordered by a legislative committee.

School board members last week turned thumbs down at the procedure ordered by the Legislative Council, saying they would comply only if the audit considered the quality of education as well as the cost.

But Stivers said Tuesday state law compels the district to participate with three other districts in the audit project, which is designed to show how state education funds are spent.

The state auditor's office will help audit the way Stivers said. But "there are going to be some audits," he added.

PUC to hear phone complaints

MELBA (UPI) — The Idaho Public Utilities Commission has scheduled a meeting next month to hear Melba residents' complaints that Mountain Bell charges them long distance rates to call Caldwell, a city 22 miles away.

PUC spokeswoman Dana Howard said 159 Melba residents signed a petition requesting the hearing, which will be Sept. 14 at the Melba City Hall.

In their petition, the residents said they should not be charged extra to call Caldwell, the Canyon County seat. Melba customers who live in the southern tip of the county, can call toll-free to Nampa and Kuna.

The commission denied a similar request last April to order Mountain Bell to remove the long-distance charges, Ms. Howard said.

Jobless claims on rise again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Initial claims for unemployment benefits climbed to 427,000 in the week ending Aug. 13, the second straight weekly increase, the Labor Department said Thursday.

In the weekly report, the department's Employment and Training Administration said seasonally adjusted data reflected an increase of 46,000 new claims, compared to the number recorded the previous week.

The figure, which provides the first sign of new workers joining the regular jobless rolls, is considered a key barometer of the health of the job market. Nationwide, Idaho ranked second highest in new claims for the week ending Aug. 6 with a rate of 5.4 percent.

Marine jet crashes into house

MOREHEAD CITY, N.C. (UPI) — A Marine jet exploded in a ball of fire Thursday and crashed into a house seconds after its four-man crew bailed out, critically injuring a woman.

The jet crashed in flames into a Morehead City house, severely burning a nearby 72-year-old widow who was taking an evening walk.

Four red-and-white parachutes billowed out against the evening sky as the EA-6B Prowler erupted into flames.

One of the crewmen was plucked from the Atlantic by a civilian vessel, the Coast Guard said, and the other three came down in Atlantic Beach, a town two miles from Morehead City, in a parking lot.

None of the crew was hurt, said a spokesman at the Marine Air Station at Cherry Point, 48 miles away.

500,000 mourn for Aquino

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — In western Manila, thousands reacted the airport assassination of Filipino opposition leader Benigno Aquino prior to public hearings on the slaying by a top-level judicial commission.

Commission chairman Chief Justice Conrado Reyes visited the Aquino home Thursday, said the inquiry would be open to opposition figures and members of the slain senator's family.

Investigators returned to the Manila International Airport Thursday to re-enact the Sunday slaying and determine the positions of a 14-man security team that was assigned to protect Aquino, 50, on his arrival home after three years of self-exile in the United States.

The gunman allegedly responsible for Aquino's death was killed by security forces.

Meanwhile, Aquino's flag-draped coffin was moved from his family home to the Santo Domingo Church, 2.2 miles away in a slow-moving hearse, followed by an estimated 500,000 mourners, including thousands of chanting but peaceful demonstrators.

In the cortege bearing Aquino's body, thousands of mourners chanted in unison, "Fight, fight, fight!" and "Free our country." Some displayed placards asking "Who killed our hero?" and others raised clenched fists exhorting crowds to "Join us."

ity for Aquino's arrival from the United States, via a last stop in Taipei, was faulty.

"It goes without saying that there was inadequate security at the Manila International Airport last Sunday," he said.

Ramos' said he was satisfied with the government-appointed commission's "will" to investigate, slaying and pledged "all resources and records... so we can get to the bottom of this dastardly incident."

He warned Thursday of civil disturbances by radicals rallying to protest "Free our country" in a huge procession, mourning the slaid opposition leader.

Barry leaves shuttle alone

Shuttle pad was cleared to allow the engines to be charged.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UPI) — Tropical storm Barry, cabin two by northerly winds, veered away from the space shuttle Challenger Thursday, collapsed into a depression and floundered across Florida into the Gulf of Mexico. But forecasters said Barry could still mean trouble.

"This thing is likely to intensify (over) the Gulf, and it could easily regain its storm status, so don't write it off," said forecaster Hal Gerrish at the National Hurricane Center in Miami.

Remnants of the depression brought only normal summertime wind and rain to the southern half of Florida Thursday and officials at the Kennedy Space Center said the launch of the Challenger was on schedule for 12:15 a.m. EDT, Tuesday.

At 4 p.m. EDT, the center of the depression was located over the eastern Gulf near latitude 27.5 north and longitude 83.1 west, or about 40 miles southwest of Tampa. Maximum wind speeds were estimated at 25 mph with the depression moving west at 15 mph.

"We project it to remain over the water for at least a couple of days. We'll be keeping an eye on it," said forecaster Miles Lawrence. "For the foreseeable future it's just blowing out to the open Gulf, so the only threat is to boaters."

Women attack Reagan plan

By MARY BEITH FRANKLIN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — NOW President Judy Goldsmith called President Reagan's commitment to women rights a "bellow mockery" Thursday, pointing to a recent article by former Justice Department staffer Barbara Honigger as proof.

Ms. Honigger, who resigned her job on President Reagan's review of federal laws and regulations containing sexually discriminatory clauses or references after calling the work a "sham," joined Ms. Goldsmith at a news conference held at the National Organization for Women Tuesday.

Ms. Goldsmith called the Justice Department documents alluded to in Ms. Honigger's recent article in The Washington Post "nothing less than Reagan's smoking gun on women's issues."

She said NOW has filed a Freedom of Information Act for the documents that detail the various laws and regulations containing discriminatory references.

In California, where the president is vacationing, White House press secretary Larry Speakes said the information is contained in internal documents not scheduled to be released until next April. Such documents may be exempt from FOIA requests.

Another White House spokesman, Peter Roussel, said the White House response on the women's issues will come from the president himself when he speaks to the women's leadership forum in San Diego Friday.

Of the three quarterly installments already completed, the first one recently was made available to the press by administration sources.

Reagan's clumsy attempt to cover up this information coupled with his reputation of the Equal Rights Amendment — makes his words of support for women's equality a hollow mockery," Ms. Goldsmith said.

"The White House knows it can't discredit the content (of the article) so it decided to go after the source," Ms. Honigger said in response to personal criticism from administration officials; one of whom called Ms. Honigger a "low-level munchkin."

"If I'm a munchkin," she said Thursday, "Then (Assistant Attorney General for Civil Rights) William Bradford Reynolds is the Wizard of Oz — and you know what god he was?"

The 6-foot-1 Ms. Honigger, barely visible behind the podium cluttered with microphones, initially refused reporters' suggestions that she stand on a box or stool.

Rally for King builds momentum

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Coretta Scott King predicted Thursday the weekend rally to commemorate the 20th anniversary of the historic civil rights march led by her husband, Martin Luther King Jr., would draw a huge and diverse crowd committed to his dream.

"I'm excited," Mrs. King said just after stepping off a plane from Atlanta. "I think we're going to see a tremendous outpouring of people representing a broad spectrum of American society."

As she greeted other march organizers waiting for her, she looked back to the beginnings of her involvement in the civil rights movement years before.

"What I have been doing for the last 25 years has been leading by this march," Mrs. King said. She countered any suggestions that the diversity of groups would confuse the message of the day.

"Absolutely not," she said. "We mobilized this march around Martin Luther King's dream and his vision. Everyone who has been involved in the last 18 months can understand this."

Martin Luther King III, who greeted his mother at the airport, also predicted his father would have approved of the plan.

"He'd feel good because this is a united coalition — environmentalists, civil rights activists, women, peace supporters," he said.

"This is like a homecoming for us," he said. "Saturday will be a day we waited for for a long time."

Mrs. King arrived in Washington in the midst of a three-day meeting of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, which her husband founded as a young minister in 1957.

Two Democratic presidential candidates, former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew and Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, took part in a candidate's forum sponsored by the SCLC Thursday, echoing calls by black leaders for a resurgence in the civil rights movement.

The other four did not appear because of scheduling conflicts, even though the SCLC said two, Sens. Ernest Hollings of South Carolina and Alan Cranston of California, both had accepted invitations earlier.

Withdrawn refuge lands that have always been publicly owned are not affected.

The federation said the wildlife refuges should be the "last resort for mineral development."

The 1 million acres just opened to leasing represent approximately 10 percent of the lands in the refuge program in the 48 continental states. The federation said there are 143 leasing applications pending on 45 refuges in 24 states: Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Illinois, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Washington and Wyoming.

Wildlife group suing Watt, BLM

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Wildlife Federation filed suit Thursday against Interior Secretary James Watt and the directors of the Bureau of Land Management and the Fish and Wildlife Service to save 1 million acres of wildlife refuges from oil and gas leasing.

"Oil and gas leasing activities are basically inconsistent with sound wildlife management and unless carefully controlled and monitored on an extraordinary serious long-term program," said Lynn Greenwall, former Fish and Wildlife Service director and now a National Wildlife Federation regional executive.

Greenwall, who headed the Fish and Wildlife Service from 1973 to 1982, said in a statement, "Opening wildlife refuges to oil and gas leasing may significantly disturb the wildlife of these refuges and the National Wildlife Refuge System as a whole."

The federation filed a complaint in District Court in Washington against Watt, Bureau of Land Management Director Robert Burford and Fish and Wildlife Service Director Robert Jantzen.

The federation is seeking an injunction against a May 12 Fish and Wildlife Service directive as well as Bureau of Land Management regulations that went into effect Monday. Both would allow oil and gas leasing on acquired refuge lands or those that have been purchased from private landowners — by the federal gov-

Only 2 Democrats seek church-group vote

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Two Democratic presidential candidates at the White House Thursday in addressing the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, but four others, including the two front runners, did not show up.

Former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew and Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado criticized Reagan administration budget cuts and joined black leaders in calling for a resurgence in the civil rights movement during speeches to a crowd of 600 people in a black church.

Sens. Alan Cranston of California and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina were also listed on the program for the candidates forum, but their chairs, behind the pulpit remained empty. They were campaigning in Maine.

The SCLC said both had confirmed they would attend, but spokesmen for the senators said they had previously told the civil rights group their candidates would be unable to make it.

advance of this Saturday's massive rally that will commemorate the 20th anniversary of Martin Luther King Jr.'s landmark march on Washington.

Both Askew and Hart alluded to King and the rally by saying that despite progress in civil rights more needs to be done.

Heavy goose kills brought on closure

The Idaho Fish and Game Commission struck a reasonable balance in its decision last week over goose hunting in the Hagerman Valley, but long-term, we think it should lean toward closing more of the area to hunting to preserve the flock.

If the Fish and Game Department does its homework and gathers the necessary data, we doubt a decision to close more of the area a year from now will be met with much opposition.

What it comes down to, in a sense, is whether a few hunters who have paid $1,000 for trespass rights should be able to take large numbers of geese from a small population.

Last fall, one of the hunters told us, he and two others took 113 geese from what amounts to a private hunting "foot-trespass" preserve.

Maybe we're old-fashioned, but as goose hunters ourselves, we can't imagine what three fellows can possibly do with that many geese.

The hunting method wasn't exactly sporting either, at least in the sense we define the term. The hunters merely sat quietly on a pivot-log and the birds came in directly to them. No pits or camouflage. Not many decoys and not much work. So where was the skill or the sport?

One of the fellows has told us that he personally hunted nearly every day of the season and personally shot dozens of ducks and geese. Idaho fish and game laws don't and probably can't discriminate against such an individual, who has more effect on bird populations than dozens of average hunters combined.

But we don't think the laws should be skewed to allow such hunters to denude game populations. The Fish and Game Department, we think, is well within its authority to recommend closures to prevent such effects.

There is a difference, in our opinion, between sport hunting and mere killing, and this kind of shooting seems to us to have crossed over the line between the two.

Yet, the hunters made valid points. They argued that they were never checked by Fish and Game officials, nor did the department do more than a cursory survey to verify the effect of their hunting on overall goose populations.

The commission partly acknowledged those arguments, and in effect, struck the middle course in giving the hunters a smaller bag limit and a much abbreviated season for this fall, but letting them that in 1984, they can expect the area to be closed completely.

The reason for that decision is not Fish and Game's intrusiveness, in our opinion, but the excessive kills that these few individuals have made.

Waterfowl populations in America have been essentially well-managed for decades by a combination of organizations like Ducks Unlimited and the hard work of game biologists and managers.

Incidents like this goose shooting suggest the need for more regulation, not less. We should remember that when we wonder why government regulation sometimes seems excessive.

Sorry, we're out of military messages

The Pentagon is getting nervous. With a White House foreign policy based on a military response to every situation, there is a growing gap between the number of worldwide commitments we've assumed to make, and the armed services' ability to meet them.

troops. You have to figure out a few diplomatic initiatives that don't require military muscle. "Well, if we can't send the fleet, what about flying in the Rapid Deployment Brigade to Kenya?" "You already requested them for Honduras." "Okay, then ferry over some AWACS." "All those AWACS are spoken for." "Then dispatch the 82nd Airborne." "We don't have the planes to transport the 82nd Airborne. Do you want us to pull a division out of Germany?" "No, that would be the wrong signal to the Kremlin, particularly at the moment we're putting Pershing missiles into Europe." "Do you people really have to send a message to Mozambique at this time? Couldn't we at least wait until the dust settles over Chad?" "The president and Mr. Clark are very concerned that if we don't show we're serious about Mozambique, they'll be laughing at us in Angola." "So let them laugh." "Watch yourself, General. I'm speaking for your commander in chief. What have you got in our military arsenal to warn Mozambique?" "If you want the truth — two jets, a WAC, and the U.S. Marine Corps Band. Once we ship them overseas you people are on your own."

Art Buchwald writes from Washington for the Los Angeles Times Syndicate.

JUST LAST WEEK the Pentagon's Joint Chief of the Day received a call from National Security Adviser Clark's office at the White House. "The President wants you to send two carriers, three missile cruisers, and six B-52s as a warning to Mozambique." "We're plumb out of aircraft carriers, cruisers and B-52s." "How can you be out of them? We've given you the biggest military budget in history." "We have the money, but most of the stuff isn't built yet. You people have asked us to send aircraft carriers to Lebanon, Central America, Libya and Southeast Asia. We don't even have one in dry dock. I wish the White House would check with us before you do any more saber rattling." "We're not saber rattling. Our national security is at stake in every part of the globe, and if we don't show the flag, our credibility will be zilch." "Well, we can't send any carriers to Mozambique." "What about nuclear submarines?" "We're all spoken for. We have to keep them on station as our main deterrent to the Soviets until we can put the MX missiles in place." "What can you send to Mozambique?" "Now about a World War II destroyer? We got a bunch of them in mothballs." "What kind of message is that to the Russians?" "With all due respect, one of the problems is that you keep sending messages to the Soviets with U.S. naval ships. Why can't you people use the diplomatic pouch like every other country does?" "The only thing the Soviets understand is strength. If we don't produce a tank force for Mozambique, they'll interpret it as a sign that we are unable to police the world." "There is just so much we can do. The Pentagon is always happy to further American foreign policy, but if you would consult with us first, we could let you know whether we can support it militarily." "I thought the armed forces had contingency plans for every situation on the face of the globe." "We do have the plans. We just don't have the

Bible no aid to science

In your letter column of Aug. 21, Genevieve Ott claims the Bible has been, and still is, the only true history of the world since the beginning. I have also read the Bible and find it to be a history of a group of people and their religion, compiled and written in a short period of time, in just one part of our world. It is also clear by reading between the lines, that there were much more intelligent people in those days than some of the deceivers that were considered as main characters of the Bible. Gen. Ott, also said science and religion have walked hand in hand through the pages of history down through the ages.

Just to mention one instance, religion in the past condemned a man and his scholars to death because he was teaching that the world was round. I do not call that walking "hand in hand."

It has always been a battle for science to advance and bring more knowledge to our world. I believe it would be helpful if everyone could find time to read the Bibles of all faiths, perhaps then they would give science a more free rein.

KMVT distorted views

My name is Judy Tucker, chief steward of the Twin Falls Communications Workers of America. I would first of all like to apologize for the pathetic way I came across on the KMVT interview Aug. 17.

My interview was edited in such a way to make it sound as if we, the telephone workers, were all going back to work the next day. That is not the case at all.

I do not condone nor will I defend anyone who crosses our picket lines. Personally, I will not cross no matter how long we are out. Secondly, I would like to say to the KMVT staff responsible for the publication how reprehensible and many others thought this act was.

Arta Roberts, did you fail to read the remarks that Rosalinda Gonzalez made in Sun Valley recently regarding white Americans, and/or if you did read them, are you so racist yourself that you did not consider her remarks racist? Do you in your way of thinking believe that slurs and insults against white Americans are right? But if they respond in the way that it really is, then it is racist?

I wouldn't waste a 20-cent stamp on a reply to you, but you see, I love America. I hate to see what is happening to our nation because of those people who live here but do not love it and who are so quick to holler racist. And the rabble rousers who are always yelling about their "rights" of which they seem to think they have more of than anyone else.

As to my ancestors, they were white Americans of Irish and German nationality who were living in this country in the 17th century. And yes there is a little Indian blood in my veins.

Anti-meat crusaders can't win with veggie burgers alone

WASHINGTON — Militant vegetarians claim they are enjoying some success at pressuring fast food franchises to offer meatless alternatives to burgers with all-beef patties.

Good luck to them, but I do wish the national presssters would make the alternative names a bit more interesting.

It's not that I have anything against the health food movement. Nor does my aversion reflect some misguided sense of macho, such as a feeling that real men don't eat bean sprouts.

I simply resent the apparent reluctance of the "eat no meat" crowd to let vegetables stand on their own roots, so to speak.

Dick West

The campaign to bring the world more fast food (fruit and vegetable dishes is being pushed by a coalition of health and humane organizations. Fast food customers, they insist, should have "a hot, satisfying and quickly prepared transition alternative available."

Although I can sympathize with their basic objective, do they have to call the transition alternative a "veggie burger"?

I'm sure I try as diligently as you and your government friends to stay abreast of the culinary trends sweeping across our land, but I don't think I could ever bring myself to go into a fast food outlet and order a "veggie burger."

The coalition's bean ideal, apparently, is ersatz flesh — vegetables that look, smell and taste like meat.

Why is it you never hear of anyone trying to disguise meat as a vegetable? Surely that type of camouflage now fails within the realm of the technologically feasible.

One possibility is lunch meat that has been left in the refrigerator so long it is beginning to turn green. Here we have the potential for a dish of pseudo-broccoli that would fool all but the most discerning vegetable fans.

Or how about a slice of liver, shredded and mixed with green cake coloring so that it closely resembles a fern? Or little meat balls treated with a chemical preservative until they simulate radishes?

I'll concede a "veggie burger" probably would stand a better chance of commercial acceptance than would a "McCasserole, Oh!," that name simply doesn't "kick it," conjuring up, as it does, visions of fermented lentils, soy beans and lola ground into a beef-like patty, fried in sunflower oil and served on a sesame seed bun.

Whatever the ingredients, the first step toward promoting vegetable-like meat dishes to first class fast food citizenship is finding attractive names for them. If I were plotting strategy for the vegetarians, I would look to the spreading wave of Tex-Mex carryovers.

"Broccoli burrito" sounds like a savory alternative, as do "zucchini tamales" and "eggplant enchiladas."

Technology has been defined as "the knack of so arranging the world that we don't have to experience it." If you accept that definition, you might also approve of arranging spinach so that we don't have to taste it.

Moslems warn of new fights

By SCOTT MACLEOD
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — A Druse Moslem leader warned Thursday of major clashes with Maronite Christian fighters in the Shouf mountains where Israeli troops are preparing to end their 14-month-old occupation.

Walid Jumblatt, calling out the United States and Israel for blame, said the Druse had no choice but to fight because no agreement could be reached with the government of President Amin Gemayel.

Gemayel went on television to urge Moslems and Christians to allow the army to take control of "explosive" regions to be evacuated by Israeli occupation troops.

He told the nation the Israeli pullback from the Shouf mountains to consolidated positions in south Lebanon "will begin soon."

"The return of the land is our biggest challenge and it is the state's right and duty to establish and strengthen its control over every inch of Lebanese territory and then protect its citizens," said Gemayel in a half-hour address. A statement by Gemayel's father, Pierre, chairman of the powerful Christian militia, said a meeting of the Phalange politburo agreed to dismantle Christian militia barracks in the Shouf to facilitate the army deployment there.

But a source at the headquarters of the Christian militia, known as the "Lebanese Forces," said it would facilitate the army but would not dismantle its militia in the Shouf.

The Lebanese army, which disintegrated after the civil war began in 1975, has been undergoing a rebuilding over the last year with the aid of U.S. military advisers and money. U.S. advisers say the army, which has grown from 15,000 to 25,000 men, is capable of taking control of the Shouf.

In Jerusalem, Prime Minister Menachem Begin's spokesman said Israel wants its soldiers deployed along the new line in southern Lebanon by Sept. 7, the Jewish New Year, but would not object to a short delay.

Israeli Defense Minister Moshe Arens already has agreed to U.S. envoy Robert McFarlane's request to keep its troops in the Shouf a few days longer than planned to smooth the Lebanese soldiers' entry into the area, officials said.

Journalist leaps from moving car

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (UPI) — Firebrand journalist Guillermo Patrio Kelly jumped from a moving car Thursday to escape from kidnappers who held him hostage for six months in apparent retaliation for articles he wrote attacking top military officers.

"The honor and ethics of all military men have been affected by this incident," Kelly, 61, told reporters after his escape.

Kelly, a prime investigator of military corruption and the activities of an Italian secret Masonic lodge in Argentina, said the group that kidnapped him was composed of "old professionals of the union gangs, paid bodyguards," Kelly explained a union mafia linked with Peronist labor chief Lorenzo Miguel of responsibility for his kidnapping.

The gang included a man "dressed up as a colonel" and a dozen psychopaths," Kelly said. But Miguel denied Kelly's accusations and said the episode had been staged by Kelly to divert the nation's attention from a return to democracy in October's elections by attacking the Peronist movement.

Miguel, leader of a labor group called the 20 Organizations, said Kelly's kidnapping was "suspicious" and that Kelly "had more luck than those people who have really been kidnapped" in Argentina.

The Peronist Party, and its probable presidential candidate Italo Luder, are expected to win October elections that are scheduled to end seven years of military rule.

Kelly's wife Irma said her husband was injured when "he threw himself out of the moving car" to escape. The maverick journalist had bruises on his face and blood in his hair when he appeared with reporters.

On Wednesday, police sources said they believed Kelly had been killed by his kidnappers. They said his body was found dumped alongside the Pan American highway outside Buenos Aires.

Andropov strips man's citizenship

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Yuri Andropov personally stripped the former Soviet representative of the human rights organization Amnesty International of his citizenship for discrediting the country, official records disclosed Thursday.

The weekly edition of the published decrees of the president of the Supreme Soviet showed that Andropov signed the revocation order against Georgiy Vladimov on July 1.

Vladimov, 52, is a dissident author who left the Soviet Union in May after writing to Andropov declaring he would rather go to prison than give in to KGB demands he reform his writing. He left on a one-year exit visa and accepted a position at the University of Cologne in West Germany.

"In consideration of the fact that G.I.N. Vladimov has regularly been engaging in activities hostile to the U.S.S.R., and that, by his actions he is damaging the prestige of the U.S.S.R., the President of the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. decrees:

"On the basis of Article 18 of the law of the U.S.S.R. of December 1978 on U.S.S.R. citizenship for actions discrediting the high name of citizen of the — U.S.S.R. — Vladimov, Georgiy Nikolaevich, should be deprived of citizenship."

Vladimov wrote to Andropov in January saying that "is was painful and humiliating" for him to ask for permission to leave but departure was preferable to KGB harassment.

In another development, Vladimir Brodsky, a founder of an unofficial Soviet peace group, said police questioned him for four hours and threatened to expel him from Moscow unless he renounced the organization.

Brodsky, in a telephone call to a Western correspondent, said when he returned home his apartment had been ransacked and some documents were missing.

French president issues warning to Libya

NDJAMENA, Chad (UPI) — French Defense Minister Charles Hernu arrived in Ndjamena Thursday for talks with government officials and an inspection of French troops helping Chadian forces in their battle with Libyan-backed rebels.

Hernu arrived aboard a French military transport aircraft from Paris and was met at the airport by Chadian officials, French Ambassador Claude Soubeast and Brig. Gen. Jean Poli, commander of the more than 1,000 French troops stationed in Chad.

"I am planning to visit (the eastern city of) Abeche to inspect French soldiers and positions there," Hernu told reporters on arrival. "This is a routine inspection visit."

"I plan to meet with President (Fisssene) Habre if he will receive me," Hernu said.

Meanwhile, French President Francois Mitterrand issued a tough warning to Libya against escalating the war in Chad.

Diplomats said Hernu's mission to Chad was partly to persuade Habre not to launch a counter-offensive against Libyan and rebel positions in the country's occupied north but instead to pursue a peaceful settlement of the conflict.

Hernu arrived amid tight security with armed Chadian soldiers lining the route from the airport to the French ambassadors residence.

The defense minister also was to provide Habre with full details of Mitterrand's policy following his first public statement Thursday on Chad since Paris began its airlift of more than 1,000 troops on Aug. 10.

Mitterrand said his decision to airlift troops to the war-torn nation gave France every means "if necessary" to respond speedily and militarily to a new offensive" backed by Libya.

"No one can doubt our will to halt further Libyan aggression," he told the Paris newspaper Le Monde.

Breeders, jockeys call probe a political trick

Editor's note: This is the last in a series of stories on horse racing in Idaho.

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — Breeders and jockeys claim state officials lack increased supervision of Idaho's horse-racing industry have exaggerated problems at the tracks — often because they seek to score political points.

"I don't understand their opposition to the industry, because it's not an evil, nasty thing, run by the Mafia," said Roger Carlson, head of the Idaho Thoroughbred Breeders Association.

Taylor Powell, regional representative of the National Jockeys Club, said the Idaho Horse Racing Commission was unduly harsh when it recently suspended two Pocatello riders for one year and fined them $500 each after they were caught with illegal electronic horse prods.

Carlson and Powell said many of their colleagues believe the state has gone overboard this year in reorganizing the Idaho Horse Racing Commission and extending regulatory efforts at the major tracks in Boise, Pocatello and Coeur d'Alene.

Ed funding questioned

BOISE, (UPI) — Two ranking members of the Legislature's budget-setting committee say the state Board of Education's request for $88 million for colleges and universities next year is unreasonable and will not be granted.

Senate Finance Committee Chairman David Little said the increase, which would represent a hike of about 20 percent compared to current fiscal year-1984 spending, "is just not going to happen."

Grizzly plan could hurt park

JACKSON, Wyo. (UPI) — National Forest Service officials say a proposal to protect grizzly bears by eliminating about 600 campsites from Yellowstone National Park will cause campgrounds outside the vacation area to overflow.

"If you phase out the campsites, we are the recipients at the other end," Reid Jackson, supervisor of Bridger-Teton National Forest, said this week.

Leary slated to visit Boise

BOISE (UPI) — Timothy Leary, the controversial psychologist who coined the phrase "turn on, tune in, drop out," will speak at Boise State University Sept. 26.

Leary, a founder of the humanistic psychology movement, has studied at Harvard University, studied with mystics, spent time in prison for drug offenses, run for governor of California and written nine books, BSU officials said.

The BSU Student Programs Board will sponsor Leary's speech.

economic benefits and try to exploit the industry for political reasons.

Carlson was one of a half dozen industry representatives who demanded last spring that Gov. John Evans fire Russell Westberg, chairman of the commission, after Westberg led a successful drive to oust their Executive Secretary Theodore Martin.

Evans refused that request and told the horsemen that, problems in the industry could result in legislation to outlaw parimutuel betting, according to Merle Parsley, gubernatorial liaison to the commission.

"When it's all said and done," he (Evans) and Westberg are in cahoots (to scuttle the industry)," Carlson said. "I think that's where it's headed, and that's the perception of a lot of them."

Westberg called Carlson's claims "absolute nonsense."

"The nearest I can figure, he gets some enjoyment out of creating acrimony and dissension in the industry," Westberg said. "What he's saying is absolute fact."

Westberg said he recognizes the economic value of the industry and believes it has room to expand. The chairman said $10 million was bet this year at Idaho's three major tracks.

Interviewed on Idaho Public Television's "Idaho Reports" Thursday, both lawmakers also disagreed with Democratic Gov. John Evans' plan to make permanent a sales tax increase instituted by the Legislature earlier this year.

"I can't agree with the governor that we need to keep the one and a half cents on. We put that on as a temporary thing and I think it should come off," said Neilbur, the vice chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Both men serve on the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, which submits budgets to the chambers for approval.

they need the extra business closing the campsites will generate.

The extra money will allow private owners to upgrade their facilities, which they can't do now because they are not making any profit, said a spokesman for several Jackson Hole campground owners.

Eliminating the campsites in the park is part of a plan to help the park's grizzly bears by restoring areas near the popular Fishing Bridge to natural state, park officials said.

Dan Wenk, landscape architect for the project, said campgrounds near the Bridge Bay area at Yellowstone Lake could be renovated and expanded when nearby sites near Fishing Bridge are eliminated.

Denis Davis, a park wildlife biologist, said park rangers and biologists have been consulted on the project.

Violent crime down in Idaho, thefts up

BOISE (UPI) — Major crime in Idaho increased nearly 2 percent during the first six months of 1983, but law enforcement officials said non-violent offenses like theft and larceny rose at about twice that rate.

Law Enforcement Department spokesman Bill Overton said Thursday violent crime generally declined during the period, with murder declining 17.6 percent, robbery down 2.2 percent and aggravated assault dropping 0.3 percent. Forcible rape increased 1.3 percent, he said.

However, motor vehicle theft jumped 7.9 percent and larceny increased 5.8 percent, he said. Arson was up 2.4 percent while burglaries declined 4 percent.

The overall increase of 3 percent for the six-month period compared with a 10 percent hike one year ago, he said. Statistics are gathered from agencies across the state, including county sheriff's offices and local police departments serving populations of 1,000 or more.

Overton said non-violent crimes generally increase in the summertime, when vacation-related thefts of cash, cars and household items hit their peak.

"More people are gone and more houses are ripped in the summer months, he said. "People get hipped off when they leave their keys laying around. If they carry large amounts of cash, when people see it they'll get tipped off."

Building equipment, tools and chain saws also are taken more frequently in the summer, he said. "In fact, more tools get stolen than anything else."

Overton said the Law Enforcement Department has mounted an advertising campaign this year that features several television spots — one featuring how to safeguard their property when they leave for vacations.

Another TV spot shows a man preparing to leave his furnished home, deciding it's "too much hassle" to take their precautions before leaving on vacation. Overton said. When the ad concludes, the man is sitting in his vacant living room — which was emptied by thieves while he was away.

Water board readies bonds to help canals

By The Times-News and United Press International

BOISE — Idaho's Water Resources Board is ready to issue tax-exempt bonds so canal companies, among others, can repair their aging — and often failing — ditches.

The state agency and Idaho First National Bank have created a program that could save the water distributors as much as three percentage points in interest on loans to rehabilitate existing canals and irrigation systems.

The low-interest lending apparently could fit at least some of the needs of the Twin Falls Canal Co. Its 75-year-old waterways "have over their design life" and need an overhaul that will cost as much as $61 million, according to an engineering study finished this spring.

Among the known problems are sinkholes and bank erosion. The canal company now is conducting a second study to determine exactly what should be done.

Company officials could not be contacted late Thursday for comment on the state's new program.

The Water Resources Board has the authority to issue tax-exempt bonds and has used it in the past to provide funds for water distribution companies, including the Twin Falls company.

Under the new plan, Idaho First National Bank will lend money for renovation projects of $300,000 or more. No upper limit has been set, according to board spokeswoman Angie Netzelt. The bank has committed to fund "several" projects. It can accept or reject any application based on a company's credit worthiness.

The state's approval gives the bonds tax-exempt status, effectively saving both the companies and the investors in the bonds significant amounts of interest. However, the borrowing company still will bear the entire responsibility for paying back the loans.

The agency will charge a 1 percent fee to waterways companies and irrigation districts participating in its Irrigation System Rehabilitation program.

Don Kramer of Castleford, the chairman of the Water Resources Board, says renovation of irrigation systems in Idaho has become a pressing need, triggering the state's interest.

Many are as much as 30 years old, signify administrator Wayne Haas says. The bonds also can be used to make dams and reservoirs safer.

The program is open to all types of water distribution companies, ranging from conservation districts to water-user associations.

Applications must be received by Nov. 1, and the state board will issue loans before the end of the year.

Finishing touches

Edward Fahrneholtz, framed by a pair of gas pumps, was working Thursday on the new Circle-K store under construction at Addison Avenue East and Eastland Drive in Twin Falls. The store will be the third Circle-K store in Twin Falls, but unlike the others, it will have a separate room for video games and a small snack bar. The store is scheduled to open next week.

Federal funds sent for job programs

By MARTY TRILLHAASE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Nearly $500,000 will be spent on job-training and related programs in the Magic Valley between Oct. 1 and June 30, 1984.

The details of the new federal program were presented to local officials throughout the area Thursday. The officials were meeting as the Region IV Development Association board of directors.

The new program will replace the federal Comprehensive Education and Training Act — commonly known as CETA.

Elected officials and representatives of local businesses will be responsible for operating the new program.

Region IV staff members, who will provide some administrative services, estimate that $54,636 will be available to run the program during its first nine months of operation.

The lion's share of the budget, $39,450, will go to the job-service project. This aspect of the program incorporates what is left of the CETA project in the Magic Valley.

It will include on-the-job training, classroom training, pre-employment education and subsidies for so-called "tryout" or temporary jobs for young people.

The job-service program anticipates serving 159 individuals in the region, says Bob Lundgren, a Region IV staff member who is serving as coordinator of the new program. At its conclusion, the program anticipates placing 65 persons in jobs.

The rest of the budget will go for $20,000 for a College of Southern Idaho program that will train 20 individuals in word-processing and advanced secretarial skills. Half of the group will come from the Burley area; the rest will be Twin Falls residents. The program plans to place 18 of the individuals in jobs.

$55,000 for CSI's refugee-training program. Dealing primarily with immigrants from Eastern Asia, the program plans to provide individuals with the skills necessary to obtain jobs, as well as evaluations, counseling and some on-the-job training. This project hopes to provide 32 persons with jobs, Lundgren says.

$17,968 for Magic Valley Rehabilitation Service Inc. The funds will allow MVAS to offer a mobile service throughout the eight-county region to 100 handicapped people. Training will focus on pre-employment skills, Lundgren says. The program hopes to place 25 people in jobs.

$50,000 for a community-relations program designed to educate employers about the various job-training programs.

"We want to fulfill their needs as employers," Lundgren says. "We want to know why they haven't used CETA in the past, and how we can correct that."

The funds also will be used to evaluate the job market and the job aspirations of the individuals.

"There will be follow-up on this, linking these businesses with programs already under way," he says. "We will try to match the two. We want to get a little information from the economically disadvantaged."

The Region IV staff will receive $27,982 to administer the program and to provide employee "outreach" and follow-up services.

Another $44,612 has been budgeted to the Idaho Department of Employment, which will provide administrative services throughout the state for the new federal program.

The agreement will be signed early next month, Lundgren says.

City panel ponders pesticides privately

By HAL BERTON Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A six-member Twin Falls City Council advisory committee met in a closed meeting Thursday afternoon to develop recommendations on how pesticide storage, transportation and handling should be regulated within the city limits.

The committee's recommendations will be presented sometime within the next few months to the City Council at a public hearing.

"The council is under no obligation to accept or reject the recommendations," said Gale Kleinkopf, a councilman and an associate director of the Kimberly Agricultural Research Station.

City Council has tabled a proposed ordinance that would require pesticide businesses to obtain a special-use permit if they choose to locate within 300 feet of an area designated as residential in the city's comprehensive plan.

"The council can use our recommendations as a basis to reject, accept or possibly modify the ordinance," Kleinkopf said.

The proposed ordinance was spurred by protests from Buena Vista Street residents. They have been involved in a lengthy, at times bitter, battle with Elmo Miller, the owner of a Twin Falls warehouse that leases space to pesticide companies.

Some of the residents, who live as close as 10 feet from the warehouse, claim that warehouse odors have caused them to become ill. But tests performed by the state departments of Agriculture and Health and Welfare have yet to turn up any firm evidence that the warehouse is endangering the health of the residents.

Kleinkopf says the potential dangers posed by other chemicals, such as fertilizers, also will be examined by the committee.

In May, a spill of a toxic ammonia fertilizer from a ruptured hose at the Summit-Southbolder plant, off Eastland Drive in Twin Falls, triggered a 45-minute evacuation of 30 homes. Nine persons were treated for ammonia inhalation at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center and then released following the accident.

Kleinkopf says this committee is trying to determine by what distance, if any, chemical storage should be set off from residential areas.

Committee members will spend the next couple weeks conducting additional research and then reconvene to draft a statement, he says.

In addition to Kleinkopf, the committee members are: Carl Blickenstaff, a United States Department of Agriculture entomologist; Doug Ryerson, a Monsanto-Chemical Co. official; Steve Dewey, a weed science specialist at the Kimberly Agricultural Research Station; Bob Sizl, another Agriculture Department entomologist; and Ed Beckinski, a pest-management coordinator for the Extension Service.

Officer charged with filing false police report

By MARTY TRILLHAASE Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — Kimberly reserve police Officer Alan McInroy has been charged with deliberately leading five police units on a wild-goose chase earlier this week.

McInroy has been charged with falsely reporting, late Monday, that a gunman had climbed to the top of the Hess Building, at Main and Center streets in Kimberly.

Five police units, including two from the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department, two from the Kimberly Police Department and one from the Idaho State Police, responded to the scene. No one was found on the top of the building.

Sheriff Jim Munn's department has followed up the incident by charging that McInroy knowingly made the false report.

McInroy could spend up to a year in jail or ordered to pay a fine of $1,000, if he is convicted of the offense, a misdemeanor.

McInroy was not arrested. Instead, he was summoned to appear Tuesday in Fifth District Magistrate Court.

Contacted at his home Thursday, McInroy declined to comment on the case.

The Kimberly construction worker served as a full-time officer for two years, until he resigned in 1981. He has since served as a reserve officer in Chief Jim Campbell's department.

Campbell on Thursday acknowledged the incident and reported that McInroy had been suspended, pending the outcome of the court case.

"The action I've taken at this point, pending disposition of the case, is strictly interdepartmental," he said.

Campbell declined to say what options are being considered.

"It is an alleged situation at this point, and he hasn't been found guilty or pleaded guilty or anything."

Small-school patrons oppose consolidation at hearing

By JANE BUCKWAY and THOMAS MOHRLANG Times-News correspondents

GOODING — Bigger is not necessarily better.

Keep the state out of local issues.

These were the two messages delivered by more than 900 citizens Thursday night.

The citizens, many from the Dietrich School District, attended the last public meeting in the Magic Valley on school consolidation.

Similar meetings are being held around the state by a special committee, appointed this spring by the Legislature, to study possible ways to consolidate or reorganize the state's 115 school districts.

After gathering public opinion from around the state, the committee will make a final report to the Legislature in January. State Sen. John Barker, R-Holt, is co-chairman of the committee, which is composed of legislators, educators and private citizens.

The meeting, held at Gooding High School, was the fourth in a series that were held in the Magic Valley this week. The turnout Thursday night was the largest by far of the four.

By a two-to-one margin, those testifying at Thursday evening's meeting spoke against any form of consolidation, particularly a state-mandated program.

However, only about a third of the speakers were from areas other than Dietrich. Other school districts represented included Richfield, Bliss, Wendell, Gooding, Hagerman and Shoshone.

Dietrich is one of the smallest school districts in the state, and its superintendent, Wayne Ferron, seemed to sum up the general feeling when he said, "We are fighting for our school; we are fighting for our community's survival."

Other speakers emphasized that small population areas fear being overpowered by more populous areas and losing "our right to control our own destiny."

"Aren't we intelligent enough to govern ourselves within our own community?" Perrotta asked.

However, Arlene Kising, also a Dietrich resident, spoke in favor of consolidation. She said that under the current procedure for distributing state funds, Dietrich receives 90 percent of its annual budget from the state.

Dietrich spends $4,000 per student, per year for the 120-125 students in its district, she said. "That hardly seems fair. It would cost millions to spend the same amount on all students, statewide."

Kising also said that because of the small number of students, Dietrich coaches ignore the standards required by other schools "in order to field athletic teams."

"If a school is too small to meet the standards, perhaps it is too small to operate," she said.

Because of the emotionally charged atmosphere, the meeting's moderator had to remind the group several times to remain quiet, not to challenge the speaker, applaud or

"We respect all of your opinions and all will be considered by the committee. Please respect each other," he said.

Several Dietrich residents testified that their children were well-educated and well-adjusted in the small, rural school. "We like things the way they are" seemed to be an overriding sentiment.

One committee member explained that the state is looking at consolidating administrative, not moving community schools. But speech after speech indicated that people are afraid administrative consolidation will be just the first step toward school consolidation, or worse.

The speakers also said that such a procedure would not save money.

"Why spend $3 or $4 to save $1?" Jim Welhausen, the chairman of the Richfield school board asked.

Superintendent J.T. Jones of Richfield said he had worked in districts with consolidated administrations. "It's an impossible situation," he said.

Neighborhoodly rules help keep the peace

DEAR ABBY: I liked your 10 rules on how to be a good wife so much that I clipped that column. Then along came your 10 rules on how to be a good husband. Don't believe it or not, my husband and I have read them all.

My mother told me that some time ago you ran 10 rules on how to be a good neighbor. Please publish them again.

STEADY READER-SPOKANE: DEAR ABBY: I have read your 10 rules. I don't know if you have read the 10 rules that I have written for my neighbor's house, or his car, or any other thing he owns.

- 1) Thou shalt keep thy dog, thy cats and thy lawnmower quiet while thy neighbor sleeps.
- 2) Thou shalt borrow from thy neighbor rarely, and when thou dost, returneth undamaged and without delay that which thou hast borrowed.
- 3) Thou shalt not allow thy pets nor thy children to run amok, trespassing thy neighbor's lawn, flower beds and fence.
- 4) Thou shalt keep thy lawn green, thy fence painted and thy driveway undisturbed even as ye shall also keep thy vehicles in thy garage where they belong.
- 5) Thou shalt watch always for criminals and fires in thy neighborhood and guard thy neighbor's home and his property even as thy own.
- 6) Thou shalt not use thy home for any unsightly or illegal activity.
- 7) Thou shalt always stand ready to help thy neighbor in his hour of true need, even as he does for thee.
- 8) Thou shalt not park thy camper, thy RV nor thy van in the street where it blocketh thy neighbor's view and createth a safety hazard to all.
- 9) Thou shalt not hold wild parties or orgies that lasteth until wee hours unless thou inviteth thy neighbor too.

DEAR ABBY: Is it unreasonable for me to insist that people take their shoes off before I let them in my house? We never wear our shoes in the house. I even wash the dog's feet before I let him in.

My husband and I always remove our shoes before entering the homes of other people. Please answer soon. I need to know.

—KEEPING CLEAN IN MILWAUKEE: DEAR KEEPING CLEAN: Although the practice is accepted as custom in other countries (Japan, for one), some people in our country might resent it.

Moreover, if you insist that all who enter your home must remove their shoes, you may soon be able to count your friends on the toes of one foot.

DEAR ABBY: My husband just celebrated his 50th birthday. Many friends made contributions to their favorite charities in my husband's honor, which was a lovely gesture. But a few friends contributed to organizations that they knew were especially dear to our hearts. A gift to any cause in the name of a friend is a generous thing, but when a gift is given not in one's own name, but to the cause of the person being honored, that, I think, is extraordinarily loving and giving!

Suicides shock town

PLANO, Texas (UPI) — Three teenage suicides in a week and six others "deliberate" have shocked an affluent bedroom community north of Dallas.

"Now we have to live this down," said Wendy Compton, 16, a junior at Plano High School, on Thursday.

"The kids' parents are blaming me, and it upsets me that these people, good people, killed themselves."

"Who knows if others are thinking about it? My parents even worry a bit about me."

Scott Dilgila, 18, one of her friends, died Tuesday, a day after he put a bullet in his brain in a depression over breaking up with his girlfriend.

Another friend, John Gundlach, 17, died a week earlier with his girlfriend, Mary Jacobs, 17. They sat in a car with the motor running in a closed garage of a house under construction because they were told to ease off on their close relationship.

Three young men killed themselves in February and March, the first out of grief over a drag-racing accident in which another student died, and the other two reportedly because they felt pressured about their futures.

"There's so much influence, so much peer pressure, so many peer group things," said Janice Prudhome, 17, a senior. "I think some kids can't stand the idea of falling short."

Parents have deluged a suicide hotline in recent weeks and are organizing a crisis center which will be made up of mental health professionals and volunteers to work with troubled children and parents.

Plano is a business boom town of 90,000, with 50,000 of the residents arriving during the past 15 years. Most are families transferred to Dallas by employers.

"We have family problems and a high divorce rate," said Larry Quinn, director of activities at the sprawling high school, enrollment 2,300.

"But a lot of other communities are experiencing the same things. We're not worse. In many ways we feel we're better. That's what's so frustrating and puzzling."

Transplant odds better

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Survival rates for kidney transplant patients have improved so dramatically since 1975 that the operation should be performed more often, a California researcher recommended Thursday.

Paul Teraski, an immunologist and professor of surgery at UCLA School of Medicine, said many doctors and hospital rules limit transplant waiting lists because they erroneously believe the death rate from kidney transplants is high.

In a study over data from 100 major transplant centers, mainly in the United States and Canada, show the death rate during the first year after transplant of kidneys from cadavers dropped from an "almost unacceptable" high rate of 55 percent in 1982 to 10 percent in 1981. At some centers, the death rate dropped as low as 5 percent.

Businessmen debate takeover, wedding

By MICHELE MAYNARD
UPI Auto Writer

DETROIT (UPI) — One of the most bizarre episodes in American business history began one Tuesday morning when Bendix Corp. launched a takeover assault on Martin-Marietta that resulted in Allied Corp.'s acquisition of Bendix.

Many corporate offices at Bendix's suburban headquarters now stand vacant. Executives have retired, quit or taken other posts at Allied's Motor City, N.J., headquarters.

One of the empty offices is that of former Chairman William Agee. His future plans remained unknown nearly three months after his departure. But the self-imposed retirement of the 45-year-old executive was followed by a $6 million "golden parachute" and numerous stock options.

The takeover battle which began a year ago returned Agee to the front pages only a few months after he married Seagram's executive Mary E. Cunningham. Their relationship had sparked a controversy over male-female roles in the changing corporate world.

Two years before, Agee appointed Ms. Cunningham his Bendix vice president and then promoted her to his executive assistant in 1980, causing rumors to circulate that their relationship was more than just a business connection: Agee had denied these rumors in a speech to Bendix employees.

Ms. Cunningham ultimately left Bendix to take the job with Seagram's in New York. But her role at Bendix was not over.

With Ms. Cunningham's help, Agee plotted the takeover of Martin-Marietta, showing the firm's aerospace expertise would provide diversity from Bendix' dependence on the recession-plagued auto industry.

Marietta resisted Bendix's "hostile" takeover bid by launching a counter takeover bid of its own for Bendix. United Technologies, the giant conglomerate, entered the fray as a Marietta ally with a separate bid for Bendix.

Allied then got into the battle on the side of Bendix and proposed a "friendly" merger agreement. Bendix and Marietta ended up owning a huge piece of the other's stock, so Allied agreed to take over Bendix for roughly $1.8 billion in securities. The settlement also provided for Allied to become Marietta's biggest shareholder.

Writing in the Detroit News, a former Bendix employee said Bendix today "is a skeleton of what was once a bustling, competitive headquarters. The second floor's executive wing is virtually a ghost town ... The cafeteria, previously a center for fellowship and cheer, is muffled."

City gives Bernstein bash

LAWRENCE, Mass. (UPI) — Composer Leonard Bernstein celebrated his 65th birthday Thursday with a gala homecoming to his birthplace and by asking some 400,000 people worldwide to wear arm bands symbolizing nuclear disarmament.

Bernstein — America's most famed composer who wrote the music for "West Side Story" and "On the Waterfront" — dedicated his birthday to "stopping the nuclear insanity."

In an outdoor amphitheater dedicated in his name, Bernstein echoed the word "peace" on a plaque in several languages, including the Hebrew version.

"Shalom,"

He sported a blue armband — a symbol of disarmament — which was cut from bolts of material that were divided into 400,000 armbands and sent worldwide, including to Elizabeth Taylor, other celebrities and Soviet musicians.

The conductor-composer, who also is a noted political activist — born in Lawrence in 1918 — was given a police escort for the 40-mile trip from Boston.

He was greeted on Main Street by a contented, throwing crowd of about 1,500 people gathered under a blue sky in which a skywriter wrote birthday greetings.

Back pain confuses doctors

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Bed rest and aspirin may be the most widely recommended treatment for lower back pain — a woe that strikes four out of five U.S. adults — but there is little evidence it does any good, a study said Thursday.

Certain exercises and drugs appear to be more effective, but there are only a few studies supporting that view, Dr. Richard M. Deyo wrote in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Deyo said even though back pain has been studied for ages, there is little agreement about the best way to treat it.

"The main thrust of the whole thing is we really do not know any better research in this area," Deyo, an assistant professor of medicine at the University of Texas Health Sciences Center in San Antonio, said in a telephone interview.

"But we do not mean the best rest and aspirin routine is not any help to back pain sufferers, Deyo said. "My hunch is that it's good," he said, but it is hard to tell "because most back pain patients get better no matter what you do."

Lower back pain is believed to occur in an estimated 80 percent of adults at one time or another, Deyo wrote, and is the most frequent chronic condition because of absence from school or work and an inability to perform housework.

One major insurance company said it paid more than $200 million in a year for back insurance claims and that American workers lose $3 billion each year annually because of back pain.

In 80 percent of the victims, doctors simply do not know the cause of the pain. Among the remaining 20 percent, a small number are afflicted with herniated discs, in which fluid leaks from the discs that separate vertebrae in the spine. Others have chronic nerve or spinal conditions. Only a few require surgery.

People flock to lottery line

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — People waited in line "for up to an hour Thursday to place their bets in the New Jersey Lottery's "Pick-6" game on a jackpot of up to $10 million, a national record if won by one person.

"If the trend continues ... We certainly should hit it," $10 million, said lottery official Judy Berry, commenting on the persnickety lottery mania and the game's $10 million ceiling.

She said the jackpot, swollen because winning numbers were not picked for three weeks, contained at least $3.5 million.

Ticket agents across New Jersey were swamped Thursday, and lottery computers that process the bets were sluggish because of high sales volume.

There was no letup in the stream of people seeking tickets, despite the long lines and the chance of winning — one in 1.9 million.

"They seem determined to stay in line," said Salvatore Pizzo, manager of Liquorama in Camden, as he looked at the 40 people outside his store waiting to buy tickets.

"It's unbelievable," said Danny Orenberg, owner of Danny's Bar and Grill in Edison. "This is the biggest I've ever seen it. Everyone is willing to take the chance for $10 million."

Train wrecks three times

ROWLAND, N.C. (UPI) — An Amtrak train bound from Miami to New York with 413 passengers aboard hit and killed a woman in Savannah, Ga., struck a pickup truck in North Carolina and derailed in South Carolina Thursday after ramming a disabled tractor-trailer.

An Amtrak spokesman called the accidents, which occurred over a 4 1/2-hour period, "an incredible coincidental series of occurrences."

Officials said 20 passengers were injured in the derailment of the eastbound Silver Meteor. None was seriously hurt, but an elderly woman, Eleanor Schmidt of St. Petersburg, Fla., was hospitalized for observation. The other passengers continued the trip by bus.

U.S. women dominant at Pan Am Games

CARACAS, Venezuela (UPI) — America's women athletes, called by 3 'doctor' ladies and not mechanical robots, showed their might at the Pan American Games Thursday amid a continuing drug probe that nailed another male athlete, a Chilean cyclist.

The United States' ladies swept to a gold medal in women's basketball, won two gold medals in track and field, captured a tennis double title and a team championship in table tennis to completely outdo their male counterparts.

The day wasn't a total loss for the men, though. Greg Holmes of Danville, Calif., turned back the 19-year-old Rafael Perez of Mexico, 7-6, to win the gold medal. In men's singles, the men's basketball team beat Argentina 88-68 and four boxers reached Sunday's finals.

U.S. men even won four gold medals in amateur wrestling, a surprise because of Mexico, and judo that is very popular in Russia.

But the day truly belonged to the ladies.

Only three days ago during a mass exodus of 12 members of the U.S. men's track and field team in the aftermath of the drug probe, Dr. Evie Dennis, the U.S. Chief of Mission, pointed out how significant it was that members of the women's team had been on the list.

"I think we're finally gotten through to them that they are ladies and not mechanical robots," said Dennis.

So far, no woman from any country competing at the Games has tested positive for anabolic steroids, but PASO had not officially confirmed it.

Vera, who participated in the 4,000-meter individual pursuit race Tuesday won by Rory O'Brien of Cuba, said she tested positive for anabolic steroids, but PASO had not officially confirmed it.

Vera, who participated in the 4,000-meter individual pursuit race Tuesday won by Rory O'Brien of Cuba, said she tested positive for anabolic steroids, but PASO had not officially confirmed it.

He received a reprimand from PASO and may be subjected to sanctions by his country's Olympic committee.

Vera is the 12th athlete and first non-wheeler to be caught using anabolic steroids, an illegal muscle-building drug, since the expose began Monday. He is also the second from his country to be detected. Chilean weightlifter Jacques Oliver was one of those previously named and was forced to return three silver medals.

In the athletic competition, U.S. women dominated.

Led by Lisa Ingram's 25 points, the U.S.-led best team Venezuela rudely and coasted to a 113-33 victory that clinched the women's basketball gold medal with a game still left on the schedule. The U.S. girls raised their record to 4-0 and even if they should lose their final game to Puerto Rico they would still win the gold since they have already beaten their two closest rivals, Cuba and Brazil.

U.S. women also sparked in the track-competition with high jumper Coleen Sommer and distance runner Joan Benoit easily taking the first two gold medals.

Sommer, the American outdoor-high jump record holder, captured the first gold of the day with a high jump of 6 feet, 3/4 inches. Although she then failed three times at a Pan Am record height of 6-4 1/4, she did not have to clear that height since Silvia Costa of Cuba could not make it over 6-3 1/4.

Neither Sommer nor Costa approached her best height of 6-6, and Sommer said that was partly because of the conditions at Olympic Stadium.

Robert of Prescott, Maine, who set the American record in the marathon in Boston this year, had no trouble winning the gold medal in the women's 3,000 meters with a time of 9:14.19 seconds.

In tennis, Gretchen Rush of Pittsburgh, who Wednesday won the women's singles title, teamed with Louise Allen of Winston-Salem, N.C., to defeat Gigi Fernandez and Maritza Julia of Puerto Rico, 6-4, 6-2, for the gold medal in doubles.

U.S. women also won the team gold medal in table tennis by defeating Cuba.

In the men's game, the U.S. moved within one victory of the gold medal by beating Argentina behind a 24-point effort by Michael Jordan of North Carolina and an excellent team defensive effort. The U.S. can clinch the gold medal tonight with a victory over Brazil.

The boxing team made up for a poor showing Wednesday night by winning all four of its bouts: Pernell Whitaker of Norfolk, Va., won a controversial decision over Angel Beltrre of the Dominican Republic; junior welterweight Jerry Figg of Columbus, Ohio, outpointed Gervonta Lopez of the Dominican Republic; veteran welterweight Louis Howard of St. Louis won a one-sided decision over Luis Garcia of Venezuela and junior middleweight Dennis Milton of New York whipped Fajardo Ortiz of Puerto Rico.

All four will meet Cubans in Sunday's final.

It was a shocking night for the U.S. baseball team, however. Nicaragua scored six runs in the third inning and held on to hand the Americans their first loss, 9-5.

Brewers rip Angels, 7-0

Rookie hurls 8-hit shutout

By United Press International

Ned Yost cracked a three-run homer to highlight a five-run fifth inning and Tom Candiotti pitched an eight-hit shutout in his second major league start Thursday as the Milwaukee Brewers to a 7-0 triumph over the California Angels.

Candiotti, 24, struck out four and walked two as he posted the Brewers' second consecutive shutout over the Angels. California starter Tommy John yielded seven runs and 13 hits in five innings to drop to 9-11.

The Brewers scored a run in the first inning when Paul Molitor led off with a single, was sacrificed to second and Eric Green scored. Tommy John yielded seven runs and 13 hits in five innings to drop to 9-11.

scoring Wathan. One out later, Sheridan singled to right-center to make a 1-0 lead. Mike Anderson hit a 7-8, and Tony Davis collected three hits and George Brett hit a home run. Dan Quisenberry tied his club record with his 55th save.

Twins 5, Red Sox 2

At Minnesota, Frank Viola tossed a three-hitter, and the Twins took advantage of Boston infield misplays for the deciding run in the seventh. Mickey Hatcher started the winning surge with a single off Dennis Eckersley, 7-6, extending his hitting streak to 13 games.

At St. Louis, Indiana 0

At Cleveland, Mike Heath and Jeff Burroughs hit two-run doubles to highlight a five-run fifth and Dave Lopes drove in two runs with a solo homer and a single to lead the A's. Steve McCatty, 5-6, fired a four-hitter in tossing his seventh career shutout. Mike Jeffcoat, 0-2, took the loss.

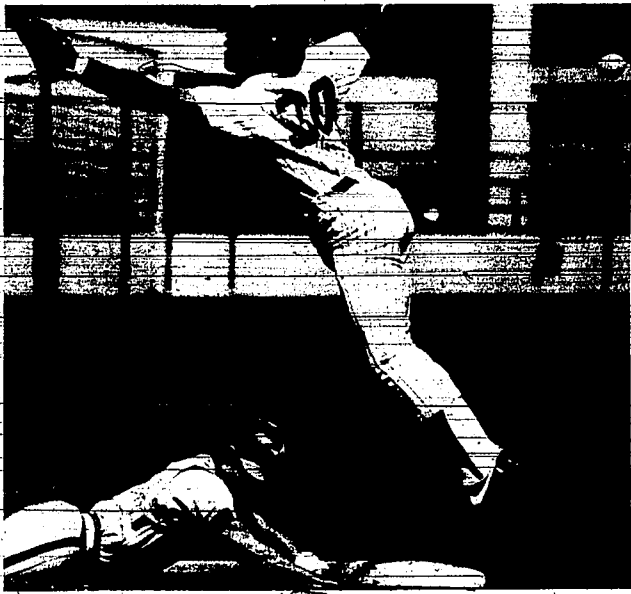

Tigers 10, White Sox 1

At Detroit, John Wockenhus hit a three-run homer in the first to ignite the Tigers. Juan Berenguer, 7-4, pitched seven innings and allowed four hits before leaving because of a cramped finger on his pitching arm.

In the first inning, Larry Herndon and Lance Parrish singled before Wockenhus launched a 3-2 pitch from Britt Burns, 7-8, into the seats in left for his ninth home run of the season. East Coast singles in a run in the second for a 4-0 lead. Chel Lemon led off the fourth with his 18th homer to make it 5-0, and Parrish doubled in a run in the fifth.

Orioles 2, Blue Jays 1 (10)

At Baltimore, Dan Ford doubled home two runs with one out in the bottom of the 10th to lead the Orioles. After Barry Bonnell hit a solo home run with two out in the top of the 10th inning, Jose Mota singled and Al Bumbry followed with a single to put runners at first and second. Ford followed with his double to right-center to make a winner of Tippy Martinez, 8-2, who had allowed Bonnell's eighth home run of the season. Ford's hit came off Roy Lee Jackson, 8-2, who entered in the 10th in relief of starter Dave Stieb.

Cards' Hendrick keeps overtime as short as possible with homer

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — There was one reason why Whaley Herzog was glad to see George Hendrick leading off the ninth inning for the St. Louis Cardinals in Thursday night's game against the Atlanta Braves.

"George doesn't like to play overtime," Herzog said. "That's why I like him up there in the ninth on in extra innings. He wants to get out of here."

Hendrick made sure he didn't have to play any longer than necessary by slamming the first pitch from reliever Steve Bedrosian into the left-field bleachers to give the Cardinals a 2-1 victory.

The homer was Hendrick's 14th of the year and second in his last two games after he went more than two months hitting only one home run. The blast was also only the fourth hit of the game by the Cardinals.

"George usually starts off pretty good and gets 10 or 12 home runs,"

National

Herzog said. "Then he goes into a dry spell, but he always comes back and starts hitting the long ball."

The blast made a winner of Nellie Johnsen, 9-2, who had relieved John Stuper in the ninth. Bedrosian led off 8-7.

The Cardinals broke a scoreless duel between Craig McMurtry and Stuper in the fifth only to see the Braves tie the score 1-1 in the sixth. Claudi Washington led off with a single, went to third on a one-out single by Chris Chambliss and scored on a single up the middle by Rafael Ramirez that ended Stuper's string of 26 innings without allowing an earned run.

McMurtry tied the Cardinals hitless through the first four innings before Willie McGee led off the fifth with a double to left-center. He went to third on a groundout and scored a sacrifice fly by David Green.

Pirates 5, Astros 3

At Pittsburgh, Tony Pena had a solo homer and an RBI single. Jim Morrison drove in two runs with a single and a double and rookie Jose DeLeon struck out 11 over 6 1/2 innings to help the Pirates snap a four-game losing streak.

DeLeon, 5-2, yielded eight hits, walked three and struck out 11 but was lifted after walking Bill Doran with two out and none on in the ninth. Alan Ashby homered with one out in the ninth for the Astros. Rod Scurry, retired pinch hitter Tim Tolman for the final out to notch his seventh save.

DeLeon has now struck out 10 or more batters three times and taken a no-hitter into the seventh inning three times in his short major-league career.

Yankees 7, Mariners 4

At New York, Steve Kemp, Roy Smalley and Omar Moreno keyed a three-run third for the Yankees. Shane Rawley 13-10 pitched his 11th complete game in 26 starts despite allowing the Mariners three runs in a wild first inning in which the Yankees made two errors and Rawley issued two walks. Rawley scattered seven hits, struck out three and walked five. Moreno had his string of consecutive hits snapped at six.

Royals 3-5, Rangers 1-4

At Kansas City, Frank White doubled home the tying run and scored the winner on a single by Pat Sheridan in the ninth inning, giving the Royals a sweep. John Walton led off with a single and was sacrificed to second by Bruce Bannister. White battled for Onix Concepcion and doubled down the left-field line,

Price on top in golf 'Series'

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — South African Nick Price birdied five of the first seven holes on the back side outside the 14th-18th, 14th and 18th holes and grabbed the first round lead in the $500,000 World Series of Golf.

Price, who made the turn on the 7,180-yard, par 70 Firestone Country Club course in seven par 3s, birdied the 14th, 16th, 17th and 18th holes, which was only broken by the birdie four on the 625-yard "monster" 18th.

Price's birdie barrage overtook early leader Bobby Clampett, who had come in with a 3-under-par 67 and finished in a tie for second place with Jack Nicklaus.

Another shot off the pace with 2-under-par 68 were Fale Irwin, Mike Nicoletti, Fred Couples and Japanese Tommy Nakajima, while Larry Mize, Bob Gilder and Ray Floyd were another shot back with 69.

Price began his first competitive round on the famous Firestone layout shakily, saving par from a bunker on the first hole.

He parred the 497-yard, par-5 second, but bogeyed the next two holes to quickly go two shots over par. A birdie on the sixth brought him down some and he made the turn in three strokes.

"I got off to a bad start," said Price, "and was just trying to keep it together. I turned one over par and was quit happy."

It was the birdie on the 11th, however, that "turned everything around," when he missed the green, but clipped in from 25 feet.

Clampett, who admits 1985 has been a "real challenging year for me," came out of the starting blocks at full speed, with birdies on the first two holes. He bogeyed the sixth, but birdied the seventh and eighth to turn a 3-under-33.

Clampett, one of the game's more colorful and unpredictable players, stands only 6th on this year's money list and qualified for the World Series. He had missed the cut in the last five events he entered and eight of the last 12, back to and including the Masters.

Nicklaus, who has pocketed $57,896 in prize money on Firestone events this year, made the turn in 33 and a pair of birdies around a loose bogey on the back side. The Golden Bear went 3-under with an 11-foot birdie putt on the 14th, but was unable to seize a share of the lead, missing 15 and 17-foot putts on the 16th and 18th holes.

U.S. Open gives Wilander tough draw

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mats Wilander, the young Swedish ace anxious to prove he can play as well on hard courts as on clay, drew the toughest assignment among the top seeds Thursday when the draw was held for next week's U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Wilander, touted as the Swedish successor to retired countryman Bjorn Borg after winning the French Open last year, made a first impression on hard courts a week ago by beating Ivan Lendl and John McEnroe en route to the ATP Championship at Kings Island, Ohio.

McEnroe now says that he can play on other surfaces. Wilander said after dropping only one set the entire week.

Wilander, who turned 19 last Monday, will be put to an early test when the 10th national championship begins Tuesday at Flushing Meadows.

Wilander, seeded fifth, will have to open against Guy Forget, a promising young Frenchman, and his second-round matchup would be against the winner of Tim Mayotte vs. Brian Gottfried.

Mayotte, a powerful 23-year-old from Springfield, Mass., has reached the Wimbledon semifinals twice while Gottfried has been a top ranking player for a half dozen years.

Also in Wilander's quarter of the draw is 13th seed Steve Denton, who like Mayotte is an aggressive player with a bullet serve.

McEnroe, seeking to duplicate Jimmy Connors' feat of last year by adding the Open crown to Wimbledon, has been seeded No. 1 for the third successive year, and his opening opponent will be 22-year-old Trey Waltke of Los Angeles.

Lendl, seeded No. 2, will be paired against Florin Segarescu of Romania, while the third-seeded Connors goes against pesky Raman, Krishner of India.

McEnroe's 35,000-rank opponent figures to be Stan Smith, the 1971

Open champion, who opens against a qualifier.

Last year Lendl ended McEnroe's string of three consecutive Open crowns with a semifinal victory, but then lost to Connors in a four-set final.

Neither Martina Navratilova nor Chris Evert Lloyd, the top two women's seeds, figures to have much of a problem at least until the semifinals. Navratilova, loser only once in 61 matches this year, drew Emilee Rapanti-Longo of Argentina as her opening opponent, while Evert will face a qualifier.

While Navratilova has yet to win the Open, Evert is the defending champion and is seeking her seventh singles crown, which would tie her for second place on the women's list with Helen Wills Moody. Moilla Mallory holds the record with eight national singles championships.

In the last eight years, only Evert and Tracy Austin (twice) have won the women's title, and Austin hasn't

Steelers shade Eagles, 10-3

Stoudt's TD pass gives Pittsburgh 4-1 exhibition record

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Cliff Stoudt threw a 4-yard touchdown pass to Bennie Cunningham on the first play of the fourth quarter Thursday night to break a 3-3 tie and give the Pittsburgh Steelers a 10-3 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in an NFL exhibition game.

The Steelers, who finished the pre-season with a 1-1 record, triumphed in 12 plays for the game's only touchdown. Stoudt, who played the entire game at quarterback, hit back-to-back 14-yard completions to Greg Hawthorne and John Stallworth and Walter Abernobile and Frank Pollard combined for 33 yards on the ground.

On a third-and-2 from the 4-yard line, Stoudt rolled right and found Cunningham, with the 6-foot-5, 260-pound tight end making a sliding catch in the end zone.

The Pittsburgh defense, continuing its excellent pre-season play, dominated the game by recording a total of eight sacks for 67 yards in losses. Ends Keith Willis and Keith Gary led the assault on Eagle quarterbacks Ron Jaworski and Joe Pisarcik with two sacks apiece — the Steelers concluded their exhibition season with 19 sacks.

The Steelers also picked off three passes to give them a total of 14 for the pre-season. Dwayne Woodruff intercepted a Jaworski pass on the first possession of the game and Gary Anderson converted the turnover into a 29-yard field goal after Abernobile and Franco Harris moved the ball downfield on the ground.

However, Anderson missed field goal attempts of 31 and 37 yards.

The Eagles, who finished the pre-season with a 3-1 record, got their only points on Tony Franklin's 29-yard field goal in the third quarter.

Philadelphia's only other threat of the game came on its next possession after the Steelers were penalized for interfering with punt returner John Selcarr. The penalty put the ball on the Pittsburgh 34 but Philadelphia managed only five yards in three plays and Franklin missed a 47-yard field goal attempt.

USFL club's nickname draws wrath

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The nickname for the new Pittsburgh franchise at the United States Football League sparked reactions ranging from slight disdain to outright disgust Thursday.

In a public contest that attracted more than 50,000 entries, team owner Edward I. DeBartolo announced the winning name Wednesday — the Pittsburgh Maulers.

DeBartolo, who is a shopping mall magnate in addition to owning the Maulers, and the NFL's Pittsburgh Penguins in the Pittsburgh Sports & Entertainment Center League, announced the selection on a radio program.

"It stinks! I hate it," said Harvey Rabinowitz of Rabco Associates, a marketing firm. "It doesn't reflect what Pittsburgh is all about. It's Pittsburgh, it's the Steel City, it's each other apart? It's mauling the only thing we do around here?"

Marketing consultant Dan Giovannitti agreed.

"The Pittsburgh 'Maulers'!" he asserted. "You know what that sounds like? It sounds like a name that was made up by somebody who wanted to appeal to people with dirt under their fingernails, and somebody who doesn't particularly like people with dirt under their fingernails."

Minor league team's gate tops 1 million

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (UPI) — The Louisville Redbirds of the American League Thursday night became the first minor-league baseball team in history to top the one million mark in attendance in a season.

The Redbirds easily broke the record with the 3,258 fans on hand at Cardinal Stadium with the visiting Evansville Triplets. The club only needed 25,155 to surpass the million mark.

"It's no longer what we're Redbird owner A. Roy Smith said in a special ceremony. "Thanks a million."

The 33,687 Redbird fans who jammed Cardinal Stadium Tuesday was the largest single-game baseball crowd in Kentucky history.

The Redbirds' home gate average of 15,735 through Thursday was better than the home-date average of six major-league clubs during 1982.

Last season, Louisville's first in Kentucky, the Reds captured the minor league circuit record with 888,418 turnout, held since 1946 by the San Francisco Seals.

played since Eastbourne, England, in June became a back number. "I really don't know what to expect," said Smith, who was seeded fourth and has a fairly tough opening match against South African Vermaak. "I'm healthy again and I've been practicing for months. I've been injured. I'll just go and do the best I can."

The Open, which will continue through Sept. 11, offers a total purse of $2,000, with the singles champion collecting $120,000.

Of the top 16 men's players in the world, the only absentee is Frenchman Henri Leconte, who broke a 10-year streak. The only top women's player absent from the singles was Evie King, who is expected to play in doubles, and Bettina Bunge, injured during the Federation Cup.

Women's pool group to meet

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Women's Pool Association begins its season at 2 p.m. Sunday with a get-acquainted luncheon at The Pocket. All women are invited to participate whether or not they are association members. A double-draw 100-meter freestyle elimination tourney will be held. First-place trophies and door prizes will be given. The pre-registration fee is $3 per player, $4 at the door. All proceeds will be donated to the United Way fund. Registration may be done at The Pocket or The Beacon, 66 by calling Sandra at 733-0300 or Nadine at 423-6478. Additionally, the annual league meeting will be held Monday night at 8 at the Bowladrome.

10-K benefit race in Bellevue

BELLEVUE — The Wood River Lions Club's "Run For Sight", a 10-kilometer race, will be held 10 a.m. Monday, Sept. 6 at Bellevue Park. The course is down and back Broadway Road. Entry fees are $7.50 in advance or $8 on the day of the race. Day-of-race registration starts at 8 a.m. Proceeds will be used to take blind children on a winter retreat.

Ritzman grabs LPGA edge

DENVER (UPI) — Fifth-year touring pro Alice Ritzman hit all the greens in regulation Thursday to card a 4-under-par 68 and take the opening-round lead in a $200,000 LPGA tournament. The 72-hole tournament concludes Sunday at Columbine Country Club. Ritzman, 31, made a stab at her first tour victory by birdying three of the four par 5s and adding a bird on the 185-yard seventh hole. Defending Denver champion Beth Daniel also had a stellar round for reasons of her own, and Cathy Fryberger was alone in third at 2-under-70. Ritzman, of Kalspell, Mont., was coming off what she called "the worst slump in my five-year career."

Haggle over Archibald pact

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — The agent for Nate Archibald, a guard the Milwaukee Bucks recently acquired on waivers, wants the club to guarantee part of Archibald's contract. But the Bucks do not want to do that. "We wouldn't have picked him up if he had a guaranteed contract, so why in the world would we guarantee it now?" said Jim Fitzgerald, the club's owner. Irwin Wiener, Archibald's agent, wants to meet with the club anyway next week to try and work out a guarantee on Archibald's pact.

Good conditions for forest

TWIN FALLS — Conditions remain largely good in the Sawtooth National Forest District for this weekend. Campgrounds in all districts are open, though heavy rains have caused some sliding on Trail Creek Road in the Ketchum District. The road remains passable, but caution is advised. Hell Roaring Creek Road is closed, due to a truck carrying logs that broke through the bridge.

Gianullas leads LPBT event

FAIRHAVEN, Mass. (UPI) — Nikki Gianullas of Vallejo, Calif., last year's Bowler of the Year, held a 38-pin lead over Patty Costello of Scranton, Pa., Thursday at the end of the third round of a Ladies Pro Bowling Tournament. Over the first 18 games, Gianullas had a total of 4,004 pins, Costello, who has won a record 21 titles, moved from seventh to third place and has 3,911 pins. Cheryl Daniels of Detroit was in third place with 3,877.

Squabbling in sailing continues

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — Australia II officials accused the New York Yacht Club Thursday of conducting a "reprehensible" anti-race campaign of harassment after an America's Cup committee member tried to convince a Dutch engineer to claim credit for the yacht's innovative winged keel. Since the club's efforts to protest Australia II's rating as a legal 12-meter boat have proved fruitless, Australia II's executive director Warren Jones said the NYCC now appears desparately to be looking for some other basis to seek to avoid honest competition on the water.

Peter Van Oossanen, head-of-the-Netherlands Ship Model Basin in Wageningen, Holland, accused the NYCC of trying to induce him into signing an affidavit falsely swearing that Australia II was not designed by Lexcen, an Australian native. In a lengthy telex to the Australia II Syndicate, Van Oossanen said Richard S. Lattin, a member of the NYCC's America's Cup Committee, and Will Valentin, presenting himself as a relative of the designer for the Liberty-Freedom Syndicate, handed him the affidavit for his signature Wednesday. Van Oossanen said he refused to sign it because it was not true. "What is most disturbing to me is that the NYCC representatives asked me to sign... knowing that the contents were inaccurate," Van Oossanen said. Van Oossanen said he had informed NYCC representatives on a previous occasion that Lexcen was in fact the sole designer.

The move was the latest in a series of attempts by the boat club to expel the boat most likely to challenge the Americans who have owned the cup for 132 years — the longest winning streak in sports history. Robert McCullough, chairman of the committee, said Lattin visited Oossanen to verify reports from "a non-club person" that "some of those people had claimed credit for designing the boat." He described Lexcen as "an old friend of mine." While Australia II crew members practiced for the beginning of the best-of-seven series against Britain's Victory '83 in the foreign final starting Sunday, Jones said Lexcen is seeking legal advice on his position "as statements made are defaming his reputation."

East German snaps own mark in breaststroke

ROME (UPI) — Ute Geweniger sliced almost one-tenth of a second off her own world record for the 100-meter breaststroke Thursday when she retained her European title. The 19-year-old East German clocked 1 minute, 31.1 seconds to improve the world mark of 1:08.70 that she set in winning the European title two years ago in Split, Yugoslavia. "I am so happy to have set this world record," Geweniger said after receiving her medal. "I kind of hoped to go under the record, but I was not 100 percent sure it would be possible this afternoon."

Dow breaks string of losses

By FRANK W. SLUSSER
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK — The Dow Jones average snapped a two-day losing streak but the rest of the market did fare as well and prices finished mixed Thursday in sluggish trading.

Eastman Kodak was a pacesetter in the blue-chip category, but defense stocks were battered following the recent retirement decision of Sen. John Tower, R-Texas, the Senate Armed Forces committee chairman.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which climbed to the 1,172 level at mid-session, wound up gaining 0.81 to 1,185.06. It had fallen 18.90 the previous two sessions, including 8.94 Wednesday.

Technical analysts said the late rebound showed that investors were willing to buy at the 1,180 level and mid-session, wound up gaining 0.81 to 1,185.06. It had fallen 18.90 the previous two sessions, including 8.94 Wednesday.

Technical analysts said the late rebound showed that investors were willing to buy at the 1,180 level and mid-session, wound up gaining 0.81 to 1,185.06. It had fallen 18.90 the previous two sessions, including 8.94 Wednesday.

Since the Dow average hit a record high of 1,248.30 on June 16, the market has trended in a narrow range with 1,185.06 on Aug. 8 being the low point.

This is the longest pause since the bull market began a year ago.

The New York Stock Exchange index shed 0.20 to 95.18 and the price of an average share decreased 1.53 cents. Declines topped advances 891-600 among the 1,912 issues traded at 4 p.m. EDT.

The Big Board volume totaled 70,140,000 shares compared with 72,200,000 traded Wednesday.

The late blue-chip rebound "was a professional traders' rally," said William LeFevre, Purcell, Graham vice president. "There was little new news to account for the late buying. This still is a very skimpy market that is influenced by rumors, particularly about interest rates."

Crucial federal funds rates traded at 9 1/4 percent before the Federal Reserve drained funds from the banking system and caused bonds to faller. There was a debate whether the Fed has eased credit or whether interest rates have fallen because of a lack of loan demand.

In the news background, the government said initial claims for unemployment benefits climbed 46,000 to 427,000. Also, an F.W. Dodge survey said a recent construction spending decrease amounted to a breather from recent surges.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter at 4 p.m. totaled 70,141,700 shares compared with 82,865,300 traded Wednesday.

The American Stock Exchange index lost 1.54 to 228.48 and the price of a share fell 11 cents. Declines topped advances 400-210 among the 792 issues traded. Volume totaled 6,290,000 shares compared with 5,880,000 Wednesday.

The National Association of Securities Dealers index of OTC stocks lost 1.33 to 289.53.

On the trading floor, blue-chip Eastman-Kodak, recommended by several analysts, gained 1 1/2 to 69 1/2. International Paper rose 1/2 to 39 1/2. Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing 3/4 to 78 3/4.

Lockheed lost 2 1/4 to 104, General Dynamics 1 1/4 to 46 1/2, E-Systems 7/8 to 34 1/2, McDonnell Douglas 1/4 to 47, Northrop 3/4 to 82 3/4, Rockwell International 1 1/4 to 27 1/4 and Watkins Manufacturing 2/3 to 29 1/2.

Walter Pate, who acquired 1.8 million of its shares from Allied Corp., lost 1 to 56 1/2.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (UPI) — Wheat, soybean and other grain futures on the Chicago Board of Trade Thursday showed mixed movement as traders weighed the effects of a 10-day crop report and soybean up to 1 1/2 cents up to 2 1/2, and soybeans up 1 1/2 unchanged.

Soybean futures, which had closed limited in most contracts for their consecutive session on Wednesday, closed out of the market, and a nearby September contract was up 1/2 cent. The limit contract, the June, Friday and Monday and even the late market futures. The market in soybean futures and the price of the grain and soybeans.

Most soybean contracts were in the market as of 3:15 p.m. — throughout the session, lower sources for professional and technical selling. Nearby September futures were 3 1/2 cents lower, and soybean futures were 1/2 cent lower. The November and January contracts were 1/2 cent lower. The market closed on a mixed note with soybean futures down 1/2 cent. Both records were set Oct. 1, 1974.

Symphony leader 'lights up stage'

By KAREN MAIN
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — As the new conductor of the Magic Valley Symphony, Carson Wong, exudes enthusiasm and energy.

And if the conductor instills the local musicians with the same forces he absorbs from music, this concert season may be remembered for more than its 25th anniversary.

After serving as guest conductor of the symphony last year, the associate professor of music at the College of Southern Idaho was asked to become the orchestra's permanent conductor beginning this season.

To insure that the classical pieces remain true to their intentions, Wong's goal is to be the link between the composer's meaning and the musicians' performance.

"To me a good conductor is a good servant to the composer," Wong says. It is not up to the conductor to interpret a composition, Wong says, because "usually music itself points a pretty clear way."

When he has conducted the symphony, Wong says there is a "relaxed relationship" between him and the musicians. "If we do work, there is no feeling around."

After all, the musicians sacrifice their time to concentrate on the symphony, Wong says. "We have one goal in mind, to work toward the music."

The new conductor of the Magic Valley Symphony is a charming, diplomatic spirit who happens to love music.

Although he is serious and articulate in his work with classical compositions, he takes a broad-minded view on all forms of music.

Rather than contending he only listens to Bach or Beethoven, Wong says he also "likes" folk songs, country-western music, jazz and modern music.

In fact, the only music Wong says he "cannot stand" is acid rock. But even then, Wong says it is a "matter of taste and understanding," so if acid rock holds a meaning for someone, then it has survived on the streets of downtown Ketchum in the area of 4th and Leadville.

The festival, now in its eighth year, is co-sponsored by Images Gallery and the Wood River Valley Advisory Council for the Arts.

The advisory council is a group formed recently to develop cultural activities in the valley, says its director, Gail Severn.

Severn says she expects over 100 artists to attend the Wood River Valley festival, including Dan Venzon, Twin Falls jeweler; Dwight Williams, Boise photographer; and Kevin Symms from Ketchum.

There will be over 25 different art forms, says Severn.

The new location for the festival is expected to draw a bigger crowd and provide the artists with more exposure, says Severn.

Associate professor in the CSI music department, Carson Wong, will pick up the baton this season as the new director of the Magic Valley Symphony.

Magic Valley Symphony notes 25th anniversary with 3 concerts

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Symphony will celebrate its silver anniversary this season by giving three concerts instead of two and holding contests for aspiring young musicians and composers.

"We want to make it a really special year," says Patsy Bradley, the business manager of the orchestra.

The concert season will open Nov. 5 with a concert highlighted by the flute solo of Jo Gerrish.

On Feb. 14, the symphony will play various pieces that have been performed over the 25 years of its existence in a "celebration concert."

The evening will be capped off with an original symphonic composition written by a resident, or native, of Idaho who wins the symphony's $1,500 composition award.

The third concert, to be scheduled for sometime in May, will feature one to three soloists who win the symphony's scholarship competition.

Scholarships of $300, $200 and $100 will be awarded to college students who previously attended any Magic Valley high school and a scholarship of $600 will be awarded to a Magic Valley high school student.

The soloists can audition for the concert on any instrument performed in a symphonic composition.

The Magic Valley Symphony started 25 years ago as an offshoot of the local Dilettantes. In one of its first stage productions, the Dilettantes recruited a small pit orchestra. The group later evolved into the symphony orchestra.

The non-profit orchestra is funded by donations and ticket sales.

From attorneys and doctors to homemakers and farmers, the 50 musicians who form the orchestra rehearse for six weeks every year to perform in local venues.

"Anyone can audition for the symphony," Hadley says. But inexperienced musicians soon find out that "the music is so difficult, they just give up."

For a "wild guess," Carson Wong, who became the permanent conductor of the orchestra this season, says most of the musicians in the symphony have had at least 12 to 14 years of playing experience.

"They may not be truly professional musicians, but they do have professional caliber," he says. "So my job is mostly just to help them put it together."

Some people "always think of highbrows" when they think of musicians who play classical pieces, Wong says. But the Magic Valley musicians are not like that at all, he says.

In fact, when it isn't concert season, Wong says, the musicians spend their spare time playing in dance bands, the city band and musical productions.

Although the symphony has not yet accompanied ballet or opera productions, Wong says the orchestra is open to the possibility.

"I'd like to see that happen," Wong says. "I think music should incorporate all different forms of arts."

For ticket information on the Magic Valley Symphony concerts to be held at 8 p.m. on November 5, February 14 and early May in the Fine-Arts Building at the College of Southern Idaho, call Patsy Bradley at 733-1078. Tickets can also be purchased at the door the night of the concerts.

Ketchum streets festival setting

KETCHUM — The Elkhorn Invitational Arts and Crafts Festival has a new name, date and location.

Now called the Wood River Invitational Arts and Crafts Festival, the show will be held Friday, Saturday and Sunday on the streets of downtown Ketchum in the area of 4th and Leadville.

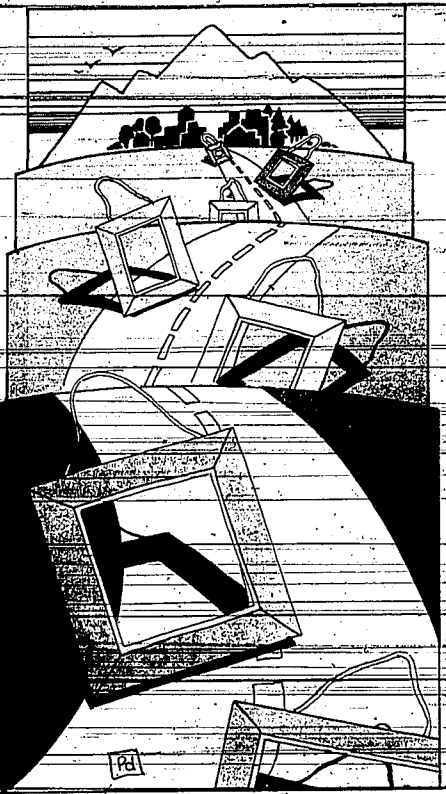

The festival, now in its eighth year, is co-sponsored by Images Gallery and the Wood River Valley Advisory Council for the Arts.

The advisory council is a group formed recently to develop cultural activities in the valley, says its director, Gail Severn.

Severn says she expects over 100 artists to attend the Wood River Valley festival, including Dan Venzon, Twin Falls jeweler; Dwight Williams, Boise photographer; and Kevin Symms from Ketchum.

There will be over 25 different art forms, says Severn.

The new location for the festival is expected to draw a bigger crowd and provide the artists with more exposure, says Severn.

Concert pianist aims high, wants fame in the big city

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Concert pianist Mark Nelwirth wants to become as well known in New York City as he is in Kimberly, Idaho, his hometown.

Nelwirth said he knew years ago he would go to New York City to pursue his musical career, and while he hasn't become famous in the big city yet, he has no doubts it will happen, he says confidently.

Nelwirth, 26, has lived in New York the past six years, where he continues to perform with a chamber music group and teaches piano to advanced students.

This summer he has been visiting his parents in Kimberly and directing music workshops and performing concerts locally.

His next concert is Saturday at 8 p.m. at the Renaissance Academy of Arts, 511 Second Ave. E. in Twin Falls. Another is scheduled for Sept. 16 at 8 p.m. at the academy.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Nelwirth of Kimberly, Mark was born on a sheep ranch in Malta, an even bigger contrast to New York than Kimberly, says Nelwirth.

In April, the pianist went to Columbus, Ohio, as a national finalist in the National Federation of Music Clubs' young artist competition. He finished third in the event out of 250 who auditioned from throughout the nation.

Two years ago, Nelwirth won the grand prize at the Manhattan School of Music competition, but he says it will take many such honors to bring the attention he wants from the music world.

As long as he can remember, Nelwirth says, he has been fascinated by the piano.

"When I was a very small child, someone showed me how to play a tune on the piano. And from then on I have wanted to learn all I could about it," the musician said.

He said his parents didn't even have a piano at that time, but his interest forced them to buy one.

"I really got serious about music when I was about 13 and from then I have never had any other goals in life. Music is my whole life," he said.

Nelwirth credits his former music teachers and the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs for much of the progress he has made.

He studied during his junior and senior high school years with the late Teala Bellini of Twin Falls.

"She was a great lady. She was strict and demanded a lot, but she got results and was a wonderful teacher," he says.

He also attended the Hartt College of Music in Hartford, Conn., and the Manhattan School of Music in New York City.

River Run for a good cause

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Philanthropy and river running don't usually bear a particularly close association in most people's minds.

That has not stopped the organizers of Snake River Run and Jamboree, however. To them, fun and good will should go hand in hand.

For $10, those who come to the Idaho Power Park at the Lower Salmon Dam this Saturday may join the weird floats scheduled to descend the SNAKE RIVER from Hagerman to Bliss. Afterward, they may feast at a cookout and jam-boree back at the starting line.

Last year, about 350 people tubed, hiked, or failed to navigate the Snake River's rapids between Hagerman and Bliss. This year, organizers expect to exceed that showing by far. They are hoping for a crowd of 700 to 800.

And all this merriment is for a charitable cause. If all goes as planned, the event may net between $4,000 and $5,000 for the Shriners' Children's Hospital in Salt Lake City.

The idea for the river run was hatched three years ago, says Margo Reitz, who's heading this year's 23-member organizing committee. Reitz and a friend had just run the stretch of the river, which drops fairly evenly through a series of rapids.

"They figured if it was so much fun, why not get a lot of people together and do it again for a charitable cause?"

"The Curate Shakespeare As You Like It" cast will perform in Sun Valley and Burley

Not exactly 'As You Like It'

SUN VALLEY — The Idaho Shakespeare Festival will present "The Curate Shakespeare As You Like It" by Don Negro and William Shakespeare at the Elkhorn Club in Sun Valley on Sunday. Tickets are $28 for buffet and performance, or $10 for performance only. Dinner begins at 6 p.m. and the performance at 8 p.m. The Curate is a "play within a play." It is a fast-paced comedy about a down-and-out acting company, which must attempt "As You Like It" with only seven players. This forces the actors to play multiple roles and results in confusion and humor. Curate director Mark Cuddy, artistic director for the Idaho Shakespeare Festival, says the play has been produced with great success all across the country — from Massachusetts to California. The Idaho Shakespeare Festival performs Shakespeare under the stars for six weeks each summer in Boise. In its seven years of performing, the festival has grown from a one-play, one-week season to a professional company with actors providing three plays in repertory over a six-week season. "The Curate As You Like It" represents the Idaho Shakespeare Festival's decision to expand its season to include a two-week tour following the regular performance season in Boise. The tour engagements will include a Burley performance next Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Burley High School Auditorium. Tickets for the Burley performance will be $5. For ticket information and reservations, call Elkhorn toll-free at 1-800-532-2104 in Burley, call 678-8753, or 678-1141.

Vocalist, pianist perform for guild

TWIN FALLS — A pianist and vocalist will present the program for the Northwest Opera Guild luncheon Tuesday. The luncheon, scheduled for 12:30 p.m. at Canyon Springs Inn on Blue Lakes Boulevard North, will feature pianist Mark Nelworth of Kimberly and vocalist Carol Barsness of Filer. Barsness studies with Marty Mead of Twin Falls and has been soloist for several area chorale and operatic productions. She will sing selections from "The Children" by Chanter, "Cecilia" by Poulenc, "Perhaps Love" by John Denver, and a selection from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro." Nelworth will play Schubert's "Impromptu in E-flat, Op. 90, No. 2," Chopin's "Scherzo in B Minor, Op. 20," "Polonaise in A-flat, Op. 53," Rachmaninoff's "Prelude in G minor, Op. 22" and Debussy's "L'Isle Joyeuse." 'Mr. Mom' TV dinner not main course

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In "Toolsie," Dustin Hoffman donned a dress and learned about being a woman. This result was a well-described hit movie.

In "Mr. Mom," Michael Keaton puts on an apron and learns to be a housewife with a less effective outcome.

Not that "Mr. Mom" isn't funny and a movie fit for a family, which is rare indeed.

Jack Butler, played amably by Keaton, is a Detroit auto engineer who has lost his job. So, wife Caroline, played by Terri Garr, goes back to work. Her star rises in the executive world, leaving Jack to tend the hearth and home and his three children.

Jack tackles his new domestic duties the hard way. He hasn't done laundry lately, so what not pack those clothes in the machine to get them all done. He hates changing the baby, so

Movies

Review

Why not use goggles, rubber gloves and forceps. Great stuff, right?

Well, almost. "Mr. Mom" has all the components to be a really comic heartwarming film with a point about the reversal of traditional roles in marriage. But, it succeeds only at being cute and a well-made television situation comedy. It had so much potential, in fact, that it hurt.

With his dead-pan delivery, Keaton is an attractive and bright leading man. His comedy timing and charisma are enough to carry "Mr. Mom" through its doldrums. The thing is that he just has used more help from a better pilot. As "Mr. Mom" he works with borders dangerously on stereotyping what a mother goes through at home.

Garr, who did star in "Toolsie," provides a good performance as usual. It was refreshing to see her playing a more solid character after all those dizzy-blonde roles.

The supporting roles are adequately covered by Martin Mull as Caroline's suave and lecherous boss and Ann Johnson as the neighborhood bombshell with a yen for Jack. Even, the kids in the film are endearing without being too adorable.

"Mr. Mom" has moments that are so right, like Jack's obsession with the soap, "The Young and the Restless," his coupon poker games, a night out with the "girls" or his battle with the vacuum cleaner named "Jaws."

But, there are gaps between the good parts and that leaves room for the substandard material to muddle in.

The subplot of Caroline's boss-trying-to woo her is distracting and slows whatever momentum the film started to build. A nonsensical ending brings the picture to a halt.

It's as if screenwriter John Hughes were wandering "How the heck do I end this movie to please the working woman, those who want to stay home and unemployed men really in the househusband role?"

Well, he probably pleased nobody with his inconclusive conclusion.

When it comes right down to it, "Mr. Mom" is just an amusing tidbit, as a main course, however, it's strictly TV dinner.

of everybody," says Helen Connolly, the principal cellist in the symphony who has known Wong for several years. "He just lights up the stage."

"He's a perfectist," says Connolly, says her husband, Guy Connolly, who plays the French horn. "He can get all people to work toward the common ideal of good music."

Jay Dalton, who is on the board of directors of the Magic Valley Choral, which Wong also directs, says Wong has a real knack for blending more serious semi-professional singlets with the fun-loving amateurs.

"It's a perfectionist he adjusts to the choral," Dalton says.

Wong is "quite a diplomat," says Patty Hadley, the business manager of the orchestra. When Wong was the choral director at Jerome High School, he had "impeccable choirs."

"I don't know how he drew those sounds from those kids," she says.

With his good-natured manner, Wong is also known for cajoling people into getting things done.

For the coming symphony season, he has been calling former members of the orchestra to return to the stage, and he doesn't take no for an answer. "Helen" Connolly says laughing.

Besides his fitness with people, Wong also has an affinity with music.

"To me, music opens the depth of my feelings," Wong says. "It's a feeling of being free, like a skydiver."

Musically, Wong says, "You cannot really describe beauty, but you can describe the way you feel."

"Music takes you out of yourself," he says. "So when there is music, Wong says "my personal self does not exist."

Born in Hong Kong, the symphony conductor went to California for his schooling. After earning a B.A. in music from the University of California at Berkeley, he went on to obtain his masters in music from San Jose State College.

Wong came to Idaho when he was hired to teach the choral program at Jerome High School. After 13 years, he became choral director at the high school in Caldwell and then became an associate professor at CSI.

Even though most of his jobs have been in choral music, Wong laughs and says he only sings "after a fashion."

His sense of humor extends to his expertise in other areas of music, too. Although he is the leader of the symphony's 50 musicians, Wong claims he does not subject anyone to listen when he plays instruments. The cello and piano were his main instruments, "but I don't claim to play them anymore," he says laughing.

Just as long as he can work with the sound of music, Wong says he will be happy.

The symphony does take a lot of time, Wong says. "At least 60 percent of my work is done before the first rehearsal."

"But when you love something, it doesn't bother you," he says. "It gives you energy."

sclerosis. Last year, $1,650 was donated to the Magic Valley United Way. This year, the Shriners have been selected for a number of reasons.

As the event has grown, more and more volunteers have been needed to staff it, Retzl says, and the Magic Valley District Shrine Council can deliver those volunteers, she says. The council represents the Burley, Riggins, Oasis, Twin Falls and Wood River clubs.

Also, however, the work of the Shrine Foundation is misunderstood among many younger people, she says, and an event such as the river run can bridge that gap.

Shriners, members of the highest Masonic order, opened their first hospital to help crippled children in Shreveport, La., in 1922. Since then, the fraternal organization's effort on behalf of these children has grown to encompass 19 hospitals and three burn centers, nationwide. Its budget in 1983 was $36 million.

Richard Sweet, the president of the Magic Valley Council, says many people think this money comes from rich members who drive white Cadillacs.

Although much money comes from generous bequests, much more comes from regular Shriner fund-raising events, such as the Magic Valley East-West Football Game, he says.

"Events such as this (the river run) give the Shrine an opportunity to work with a younger group of people, who perhaps are not aware of our activities," he agrees.

Each year, the Magic Valley council delivers the proceeds of its fund-raising to the Salt Lake City hospital in a weekend "caravan."

Retzl stresses that the river run is a "safe" fun event. Nobody will be allowed on the river without a life jacket, she says. There will be checkpoints and rescue boats.

But she cautions parents not to think they can bring small children. And of course, beer at the picnic following will not be served to minors.

Metal boats also will not be allowed. For those who have not participated in the event before and do not have access to a rubber raft, she recommends an inner tube or a large truck. These provide plenty of flotation and can be tied together for fun and safety.

The event will definitely be a race as well — with a variety of prizes for the winners, although many people may be satisfied just to take their time and enjoy the river, she says.

Registration will be from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. at the Lower Salmon Dam, located west of Hagerman. The race will begin with a start line at the dam.

Those participating are encouraged to bring two cars and park one at the bottom of the course.

Music at the picnic will be provided by the Spud Pops and others.

The sponsors of this year's event are Coors Beer, Independent Meat, television station KMYT, radio station Z-103 and Barton's Club 93.

York and studied with Raymond Hanson, Constance Keene and Dora Zaslavsky.

During his career and studies, Neiwirth has won many piano competitions throughout the northwest and in the New York city area. He performed in Carnegie recital hall to critical acclaim.

His advice to hopeful young musicians is the same advice he follows.

"I would say find the best teachers you can possibly find and above all don't get discouraged. If you think you have the talent, then give it all of your energy.

"If you don't have the drive to keep going in the face of the many blows to your ego that are bound to come, then you probably don't have what it takes to get to the top."

In his coming concerts Saturday and next month, the young artist will perform the works of Schubert, Mozart, Chopin, Rachmaninoff, Debussy and Liszt.

Tickets for the concerts are available at $5 each at the Music Center, Warner Music, Ann's Hallmark or by calling 734-0719.

What's what

After Christopher Sholes invented the typewriter, he said he was "grateful to have done something for women, who always have had to work so hard." If you'd like to lives-up-in conversation at your next party, ask those in attendance what the typewriter did for women. These are those who say it was just another washboard.

Q. Wasn't the world's largest maker of Yo-Yo's a man named Lee Duncan?
A. No, that was Donald-Duncan, Lee-Duncan trained Rin Tin Tin. Same generation, about. Both the dog and the toy were pretty high with the public for awhile there. The difference? Once down, the dog stayed down. But the Yo-Yo kept coming back up.
