Moslems lob shells at U.S. Marines again

By JACK REDDEN

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Moslem gunmen launched new artillery attacks on Marine posts Sunday night.

They also raked Lebanese army units with machine-gun fire from Shiite strongholds in the capital; the government reported.

No Marine casualties were reported.

The barrage of one round every five minutes was the first in three days on Marine positions at Beirut ports, and forced them into their highest state of alert for several hours, said Marine Warrant Officer Charles Rowe.

Four Marines have been killed and 25 wounded in two weeks of warfare between the army, pro-government Christian forces and the Druze who demand a greater role in the Christian-led government of President Amin Gemayel.

The radio reported the attacks were launched from Druze Moslem areas of the Shouf mountains south and east of Beirut and for the first time from Shiite neighborhoods alongside the Marine compound.

A U.S. Marine spokesman confirmed there was "small arms" fire from the "Shiite neighborhoods, but he had no reports of shelling launched from those sectors.

U.S. and British fighter jets returned to the skies to spot the positions of possible attacking artillery.

The Druze remained locked in combat with the army in the Shouf only seven miles from Beirut and did not link forces with their Shiite allies in the city itself.

The shelling hit army posts at Beirut Technical College, near the airport, and the town of Kladé, a mile south of the Marine base. Lebanese army posts in the Shiite areas also came under machine-gun fire, a government spokesman said.

Druze warlord Walid Jumblatt said in an interview on ABC's "This Week with David Brinley" he hopes his militia can encircle Beirut after which he would agree to end hostilities and force Gemayel to negotiate.

"President Gemayel is also trying to achieve a peaceful solution with the barrel of a gun, so I have to fight," Jumblatt said.

He denied the Druze were intentionally firing on American positions.

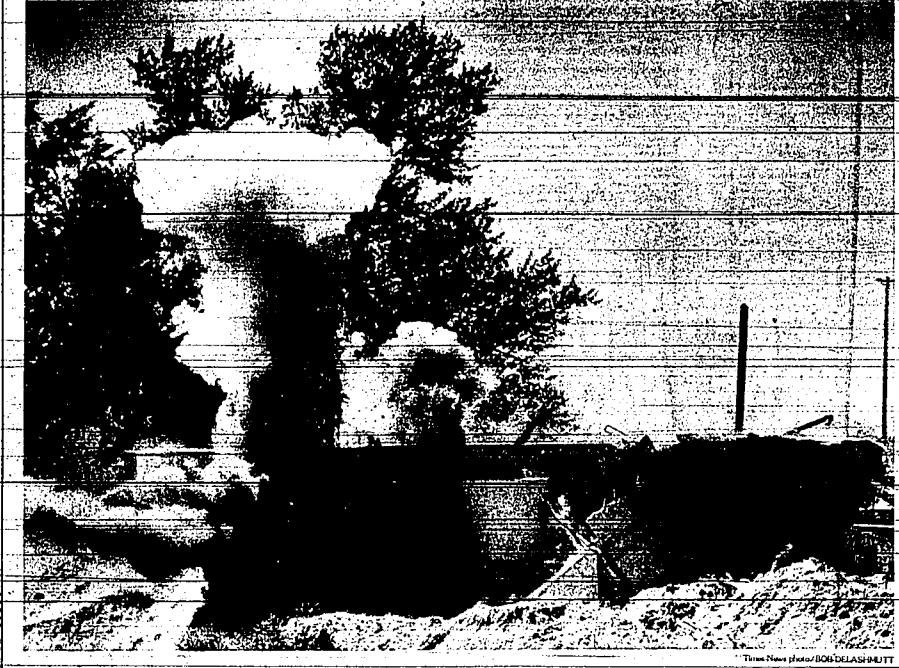

"The Lebanese army is sitting side-by-side with the Marines," he said. "How do I know who is firing on me? I have to defend myself."

The radio also reported Gemayel will not compromise his demand for the army to take control of the Shouf; that a cease-fire be implemented and that any compromise be discussed at a national reconciliation meeting.

The pro-government Christian Phalange accused their Druze adversaries of killing 30 Christians in a massacre in the Syrian-controlled village of Ras Al Mata. The government only said several civilians died from "criminal acts."

The charge came a day after a Phalange allegation that 110 people were killed in the village of Birch. The government said 50 people died there, but gave no other details. The Druze denied the charges, saying the deaths came in combat.

The Lebanese army reinforced its positions at Souk al Gharb, a strategic point on the first major ridge east of Beirut that was the target of three major assaults Saturday.

Banging away

Low booms could be heard near Jerome this past weekend as an Army Reserve unit blasted concrete structures with dynamite at the old Jerome sewage plant. The charges helped loosen and crack the structures, which will enable tractor to knock them down later.

Flight 007 heads agenda for Congress

By DON PHILLIPS

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Congress returns from summer vacation today to condemn the Soviet downing of a Korean airliner.

It also faces decisions on keeping the Marine peace-keeping force in Lebanon and deploying a new nuclear missile.

Foreign policy will dominate the early days of the session, although Congress must also finance the government for the fiscal year that begins Oct. 1.

During the five-week recess, the Soviets shot down a Korean Air Lines 747 with 269 people and U.S. Marines were shelled in Lebanon.

Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said Sunday he expects a Senate vote Wednesday on a resolution condemning the Soviet attack on the Korean plane.

Baker, R-Tenn., said on CBS' "Face the Nation" the resolution will represent a bipartisan "statement of outrage and indignation."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he fears the favor over the Korean plane incident might "push everything in the corner" and cause a delay in taking steps to lower federal deficits.

Renewed fighting in Lebanon that killed four Marines has raised new questions of whether Reagan must invoke the War Powers Resolution, allowing Congress to vote whether to put a time limit on the peace-keeping operation.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia said Sunday, "I think it's obvious the situation requires the application of the War Powers Act." Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., said he felt Reagan need not invoke the act now but agreed the issue is debatable.

Both men were interviewed on ABC's "This Week" with David Brinkley.

The Senate and House foreign affairs committees will receive an administration briefing Tuesday on Lebanon, Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of the House Appropriations foreign operations subcommittee, says he will try to force the Marines out of Lebanon.

Baker said there are "probably" enough votes in the Senate to sustain a continued American military presence in Lebanon. "But I don't know what the situation will be in 10 days or two weeks."

Baker also said that beyond bolstering Reagan's military expansion plan the airliner incident "will not significantly change those things that Congress must do in this session."

Congress must tackle the MX missile. The pending military appropriations bill includes funds for the MX, the new B-1 bomber and other weapons systems, and it is believed the chances of approval of the new systems were enhanced by the Korean plane incident.

Twin Falls fair gate misses 100,000 mark — barely

By HAL PERKINS

United Press International

Despite a record-breaking 1983 Twin Falls County Fair failed to meet the magic 100,000 mark that had been hoped for by fair manager Tom Shouse — but not by much.

The 1983 Twin Falls County Fair grossed $1,000,000, a record-breaking 1983 fair.

The total 1983 attendance represented a 10,000 increase over the 1982 edition.

According to Shouse, Saturday was the most popular day of the fair. Cool breezes and lots of sunshine brought forth a crowd that the fair manager believes may continue to be a single-day record.

On Saturday, the spectators gathered in the sales arena to watch the fat-stock auction, checked out the commercial exhibits on the midway and also made a heavy run of the food concessions.

During the evening, they flocked to the rodeo, which Shouse says attracted a near-sellout crowd.

The carnival also did well.

"The carnival manager told me he had the biggest day Saturday that he had ever had anywhere," Shouse said Sunday.

By Sunday morning, the water works that had been replaced by a sewer line had been broken only by the occasional splatter of a hammer tearing apart a pipe.

Out on the carnival grounds, the Ferris wheel, with nothing but empty seats sticking up into the sky, appeared balked.

Off the main midway, a giant flag displayed by Impressed Debbie Ann Garvin was folded up and ready to be hauled away.

"I think the investment in the stalls that were made in the midway will be a good thing," Shouse says, but they will be torn down in a matter of days.

By Wednesday, Shouse expects all the merchants will have dismantled their booths.

Volunteer workers also remained at the fair Sunday, hoping for a massive clean-up project to remove the trash that littered the grounds. It may take several days to get all the paper cleaned up, but the aluminum cans are not likely to linger on the ground long.

The cans now bring 33 cents a pound at Twin Falls recycling.

During the winter months, the fairgrounds will be quiet except for an occasional bull action. The buildings all will be watered and most of the water systems shut down.

But next summer, it will spring back to life, serving as a staging ground for a wide range of community events.

And then next fall, the gates will open once again on the county's premier event.

Japanese find ID card from 007 passenger

By United Press International

European airline pilots launched 60-day ban on flights to the Soviet Union today. The ban by Britain, France, Italy, Spain, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland and the Netherlands will reportedly limit more than 40 flights a week.

In Moscow, a top Soviet general appeared on television to try to justify the downing, saying it was "absolutely impossible" in the dark to distinguish a Boeing 747 from a U.S. RC-135 spy plane, a converted Boeing 717.

The U.S. has admitted a RC-135 was in the area before the attack but said it was on the ground 1,500 miles away when the tragedy occurred.

Col. Gen. Nikolai Masovskiy, commander of flight aviation in the air defense forces, also said the two planes "produce an analogous radar signal." Western aviation experts refuted the Soviet claim.

Police said the waterproof identification card of Mary Jane Hendrie, 25, of Ottawa, was picked up on the shore at Orni, a small fishing town in northern Hokkaido Island.

This is the first definite personal effect we have so far recovered," a regional police spokesman in Hokkaido said.

Thousands pay tribute to McDonald

By FRANK COOK

United Press International

WASHINGTON — More than 4,000 people paid tribute to Rep. Larry McDonald, D-Ga., Sunday, rallying behind a cry for "simple justice" for the arch-conservative congressman killed in a Soviet air attack.

At the memorial service at historic Constitution Hall several blocks from the White House, conservative speakers revered McDonald as a martyr to the fight against Communism. McDonald was aboard the South Korean airliner shot down 12 days ago when it strayed into Soviet Union airspace.

"It is not vengeance we seek but simple justice," said Conservative Caucus Chairman Howard Phillips, drawing the crowd to its feet.

President Reagan, though invited and at the White House, did not attend the service for one of his New Right allies. He declared Sunday a national day of mourning for the 269 victims of the crash.

Many conservative leaders interpreted the president's absence as a snub.

Kathryn McDonald, the congressman's wife, sat on the speaker's platform dressed in black, but did not speak.

Mrs. McDonald, considering a candidacy for her husband's seat, told an earlier service Sunday her husband was "cold-bloodedly murdered by the same ungodly force that has gobbled up half the world."

The Rev. Jerry Falwell, leader of the Moral Majority, compared the congressman to the biblical warrior Samson. "Larry McDonald, the champion of our day, has brought down the house on the Philistines," he told the crowd.

But Phillips drew the loudest ovation when he demanded U.S. military superiority in the McDonald's name. "Instead of fearing communism, let us give communism something powerful to fear," said Phillips.

Rep. Philip Crane, R-Ind., chided Americans for thinking that Soviet leader Yuri Andropov who he said "ordered the assassination of Pope Paul" and "the rape of Afghanistan" would not order "the murder of a plane load of innocent civilians."

McDonald, said Crane, "stood for the highest ideals of Western civilization."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., put a solemn finish on the three-hour service, saying, "Larry's death and the deaths of 268 others should serve as a passport to understanding tyranny and remind us of the sacrifices that nudge the world a little closer to civilization."

Pinochet pledges movement

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Gen. Augusto Pinochet, under fire with three more people dying as a result of protests against his military regime, vowed on his 10th anniversary in power Sunday to continue Chile's slow march to democracy.

Despite 41 deaths since the demonstrations began in May, Pinochet made it clear that his government will stick to the constitutional schedule which extends his term to office until 1985.

Neither caving criticism, nor attempts to divide it, nor terrorist violence will hinder the progressive evolution toward full democracy," said the 67-year-old general in a nationally televised two-hour address.

Crime reports, rate drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The number of serious crimes reported to police in the United States dropped 3 percent in 1982 and 150 crimes rates dropped 4 percent, the sharpest declines in six years, the FBI reported Sunday.

The FBI's annual uniform crime report, which counts the number of crimes reported to 15,000 law enforcement agencies, said most violent crimes were down from 1981.

Gen. William French Smith said he was pleased the crime statistics showed a decline, but noted they were 47 percent higher than a decade ago.

According to the report, murders declined by 7 percent, robbery was down 6 percent and forcible rape dropped 5 percent. Aggravated assault, the only index to increase in volume, was up 1 percent.

In property crimes, burglary decreased 9 percent, motor vehicle theft dropped 2 percent and larceny-theft declined 1 percent.

Pope warns war nearing

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — Pope John Paul II celebrated mass before 300,000 rain-drenched people on the banks of the Danube River Sunday and warned a group of diplomats that the world could be entering a "dark hour."

John Paul, in thinking Austria fair reopened its borders to political refugees, also issued a clear criticism of the lack of freedom in the Soviet bloc.

Despite strict security laid on for the visit, a 38-year-old Portuguese man whom police described as "black" tagged at the pope and came within 2 yards of him at the end of a service at a Vienna stadium Saturday night.

The man, who said he wanted the pope's touch to heal his ailment, was detained overnight and released Sunday.

Jet blows tire on landing

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A DC-8 charter flight from Canada blew a tire Sunday when it landed at McCarran International Airport shortly before noon.

Officials said there were no injuries and no damage to the aircraft.

The Worldway charter landed to a stop on Runway 25, the main runway at the airport, and the 236 people aboard the flight were bused to the terminal.

Police, protesters battle

DREUX, France (UPI) — Riot police battled thousands of Socialist protesters Sunday after an alliance of conservative parties won a election regarded as a key test for the Socialist-led government and its immigration policies.

Two policemen and four demonstrators were injured in the disturbance.

The conservative alliance was voted in to head the industrial town 50 miles southwest of Paris, 54,449 people to 44,556 for the ruling Socialists.

Soaring unemployment and a widely accepted belief that delinquency is on the rise has triggered a fierce backlash against France's 4.5 million immigrant workers.

Chemist explains pyramids

MIAMI (UPI) — A French industrial chemist says the Egyptians built the Great Pyramid of Giza by using a limestone fossil-fuel substance that was used like cement at the construction site nearly 5,000 years ago.

Dr. Joseph Davidovits advanced his theory in an interview published in Sunday's Miami Herald.

Davidovits said the pyramid wasn't built from blocks of stone that were hauled from pits miles away by thousands of straining workers and then placed one on top of the other.

He said the pyramid wasn't made of stone at all — and it wasn't piled. It was poured from lake to stone.

Storms put dent in heat

By United Press International

Thunderstorms broke a record stretch of sweltering heat in the Midwest and the upper Plains Sunday but thermometers simmered toward new September highs along the Eastern Seaboard.

Heavy rain heralded a long-awaited cold front moving through the Ohio and Mississippi valleys and prevented heat-weary residents a delayed preview of autumn.

The National Weather Service reported temperatures trailing the front from Wisconsin to eastern Nebraska were 20 degrees lower than at the same early-morning hour Saturday, and were not expected to climb beyond the mid-50s by late afternoon Sunday.

Guatemala forces on alert

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — The military government placed security forces on alert Sunday to search for the kidnapped sister of Guatemala's new leader, who vowed he would never negotiate with his presumed leftist abductors.

Four armed men seized Celeste, Aida Mejia de Velasco, 54, late Saturday when she left the Social Security General Hospital where she has worked for 14 years, the army said.

Mrs. Velasco is the sister of Gen. Oscar Humberto Mejia Victores, who became chief of state in an Aug. 8 military coup that ousted President Efraim Rios Montt. Rios Montt's sister, a school teacher, was kidnapped June 29 by members of the Rebel Armed Forces.

Idaho laboratory simulates Three Mile Island accident

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — An experiment simulating the Three Mile Island nuclear reactor accident was successfully completed last week at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory, scientists said.

Nuclear Regulatory Commission Program Manager Bob Wright said a bundle of nuclear fuel rods was heated quickly to nearly 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit, then allowed to cool slowly.

He said the day-long test, conducted Thursday, simulated conditions that occur when a slow leak of reactor coolant is followed by a halt in the coolant flow.

The NRC requested the experiment to provide information needed for safety regulations and training.

"This is the first test under real accident conditions that occurred at Three Mile Island. The data will eliminate much of the uncertainty that occurs in severe accident conditions. It will provide an information base for much of the NRC's licensing decisions," he said.

Phil MacDonald, manager of the firm contracted to conduct the study, EG&G Idaho Light Water Reactor Safety Branch, said the experiment simulated "one small section" what happened during the 1979 commercial reactor accident at Three Mile Island, Penn.

"As far as we can determine everything that has been absolutely successful. The data looks very encouraging," he said.

"The temperatures rose as high as we planned and then dropped slowly. We were able to measure the fission products and the hydrogen as they were released. None of the radioactive fission products were released from the test assembly designed for these measurements," he said.

The test was the second in a series of several fuel damage experiments at the facility.

The researchers are studying nuclear fuel damage and fission product behavior during serious nuclear reactor accidents to which the test temperatures as occurred at Three Mile Island, Wright said.

"The successful completion of this experiment will provide us with very important information on reactor behavior under severe accident conditions. This information will substantially reduce uncertainties regarding reactor behavior during such accidents and provide the NRC with a basis for policy decisions," he said.

MacDonald said "The end result of this is that the data will determine the validity of computer codes" for nuclear reactor operations.

Six other countries are involved in the tests, including Great Britain, which is considering construction of a light water reactor, and Japan, where concerns about reactor safety have increased since the accident at Three Mile Island.

Other countries involved are Italy, The Netherlands, Belgium, and West Germany.

Sunny over both states today and Tuesday. Warmer with highs in the 80s. Lows in the upper 50s and 60s.

Ideal late summer conditions appear likely to continue in the Magic Valley for several more days.

Bright sunshine on Sunday produced temperatures in the 70s and 80s with skies generally clear over much of southern Idaho. Readings in the north were in the 50s and 60s under cloud cover.

The state's warmest reading was 82 degrees at Malad after a morning low of 58 at Soda Springs.

Winds were brisk in the Magic Valley and across southern Idaho, blowing from 15 to 30 mph with gusts up to 30 mph at Pocatello.

In northern Idaho, however, skies were cloudy and rainfall of nearly an inch was reported. Elk River had 58 inch and Shampain an even inch of precipitation. Heavy rain fell Saturday and Sunday. Showers persisted although the clouds began breaking away during the day.

A westerly air flow will cool down over Idaho today through Friday, with a disturbance bringing a chance of showers to northern Idaho by late Tuesday and Wednesday. Otherwise, the state will be dry with temperatures near normal.

The agricultural forecast for the Magic Valley and southern Idaho calls for precipitation over the next five days of less than .10 inch in valley areas. Average daily evaporation rates will range from 20 to 28 inch.

In northern Idaho, however, skies were clearing and rains on Tuesday, increasing to 8 to 12 inch in the afternoon.

Elsewhere in the nation Sunday, the national temperature reported was 113 degrees at Bullhead City, Ariz., and the coldest was 29 at Truckee, Calif.

Colleges to receive grants

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two-year community colleges across the country will be given $25,000 grants to enrich courses. In hopes that more of their graduates will become academically able to transfer to four-year colleges, the Ford Foundation said Sunday.

The $600,000 in grants go to 24 low-cost, neighborhood colleges with substantial enrollments of minority and low-income students.

The colleges receiving grants are in Birmingham, Ala.; Phoenix, Ariz.; the California cities of Compton, Los Angeles, Oakland, Sacramento and San Diego; Miami, Fla.; Honolulu, Hawaii; East St. Louis, Ill.; Louisville, Ky.; Baltimore, Md.; Boston, Mass.; Detroit, Mich.; New York, Cleveland, Ohio; Houston, Texas, and Richmond, Va.

COALINGA, Calif. (UPI) — A sharp tremor Sunday struck the Coalinga area which was devastated by a big earthquake four months ago, but little damage was reported.

"It was a good hard shake," a Police Department dispatcher said. "There were a few things falling off shelves but not much else was reported."

The University of California seismographic station at Berkeley reported the quake registered 4.2 on the Richter scale at 5:48 a.m. MDT. Its epicenter was 10 miles north of Coalinga.

Mrs. Reagan accepted the award Saturday night for her 87-year-old mother's years of volunteer work for the Arizona Association for Retarded Citizens.

Mrs. Davis was recognized with the Arizona Lifetime Achievement Award for her efforts to recruit financial support for the ARC and for volunteer service.

Montana fires under control

LAME DEER, Mont. (UPI) — Hundreds of fire fighters, helped by cooling temperatures, Sunday stamped out the number of lightning-ignited range fires that scorched nearly 34,000 parched acres in southeastern Montana.

"We're about ready to fold our tents and steal off into the darkness," said Bureau of Land Management operations coordinator John Russell.

Most of the nearly 1,000 firefighters, who had battled the three major lightning-ignited fires that started Wednesday, packed up and went home, leaving only skeleton crews for mopping up operations.

Beginning Saturday, fire crews were gradually called off a fire that had blackened 5,000 acres on the Crow Indian Reservation. Manpower at the Wanblee fire that charred 1,400 acres was reduced to "patrol status" Sunday afternoon, said Russell.

Sperm bank child year old

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Doran Blake, the second child fathered by a donor to a controversial "genius" sperm bank, is a year old, and his mother says he is not only precocious but loving.

Afton Blake, an unmarried clinical psychologist who turned to the Repository for Germinai Choice in Escondido, Calif., for parental fulfillment after a series of failed relationships, said her son is already swimming.

"He does things ahead of his age," Blake said. "For instance, his gross motor coordination — the way he uses his body — as well as his fine motor coordination — his eye-hand coordination — are well advanced."

Summit not off for 1984, Reagan says

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Reagan said in an interview released Sunday that he may still have a summit meeting with Soviet President Yuri Andropov next year and never considered suspending nuclear arms talks because of the Korean plane incident.

Reagan, in an interview with Time magazine, was asked if he seriously considered suspending the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks with the Soviets or the Intermediate Nuclear Force talks after the Soviets shot down Korean Air Lines Flight 007 with 269 people aboard.

"No," he said. "These are things we are seeking because this is a dangerous world and (the Soviets) constitute the bulk of that danger."

"An act of this kind reveals how easily there could be an accidental start to conflict," he said. It is important that we work as hard as we can to reduce the threat . . . contained in the present imbalance of weaponry . . . their superiority in that weaponry."

Reagan also said he would not rule out a summit meeting with Andropov in 1984.

"I'll never rule that out," Reagan said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan would get on the line to Kremlin boss Yuri Andropov "so fast it would make your head swim" if a Soviet plane began wandering through U.S. airspace, Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn., said Sunday.

And, Baker said, only the president could order an attack on such an aircraft, even if it were over sensitive U.S. military installations, such as the naval facilities at Norfolk, Va.

The Senate Republican leader, endorsing Reagan's measured response to Soviet attack on a Korean Air Lines jumbo jet Sept. 1, told television interviewers he had questioned the president about the American response to a similar incident.

Baker said he asked Reagan, "What would the American position be under similar circumstances? Who would have the authority to fire on such a plane, who in our government? And he said, 'It better be only me.'"

"I'd be on that hot line so fast it would make your head swim," Baker quoted Reagan as telling him, apparently during a meeting last Sunday at the White House.

"We would have forced that plane to land," rather than shoot it down, Baker said.

The GOP chief, interviewed on CBS' "Face the Nation," also congratulated the administration for releasing a revised transcript of intercepted Soviet radio transmissions that suggest a Russian pilot may have fired warning shots at errant KAL Flight 007 that pierced Soviet airspace on a scheduled flight to Seoul.

"It would be awfully easy for the administration to ignore this," Baker said of the fighter pilot's statement — previously listed as "unintelligible" — that "I am firing cannon bursts."

"Perhaps they were the trainers," Baker said, but "it is still no justification, by any stretch of the imagination, for downing a civilian airliner."

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said, "The NBC's 'Meet the Press' that it 'may take a while to sort out what may be done to punish' the Kremlin beyond the relatively mild measures imposed by Reagan and other nations."

Appearing on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley," Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia repeated a call for worldwide curbs on grain trade with Moscow "that would be lifted on certain conditions — an apology, reparations, assurances that the Soviet Union would not shoot down an unarmed airliner again."

"NEURITIS"

If there is one thing the neuritis victim is aware of, it is the fact that he has a serious, painful condition. The pain of neuritis is particularly intense because it strikes the nerves directly.

The pain involves one or both shoulders, even the arms, wrists and legs. Yet the actual cause of the pain is not in any of these areas. It is usually located near or in the spine because neuritis is the result of a malfunctioning of nerves. It is not a disease.

While aspirin or other pain-killing drugs may bring temporary relief, the condition of neuritis and its effect will remain until the cause of the problem is corrected.

The doctor of chiropractic seeks to correct the cause by removing the nerve interference which produces neuritis. He is not merely reducing or relieving the pain, but eliminating it by correcting the cause of that pain.

Neuritis is not a "miracle" it will go away if you can and you should seek immediate help.

Unthinkable possible

The premeditated slaughter of 269 people aboard a Korean Air Lines jumbo jet is an act of inexcusable barbarism.

As best we can hope it was an aberration, a terrible snafu in the Soviet military and not the systematic implementation of Soviet policy. At best we can hope Soviet leaders will apologize and accept world condemnation as justified.

But after nearly 40 years of Cold War with the Russians, we know better. There will be no apology, no acceptance of guilt, no explanation whether it was a mistake or policy, no accurate news reports to the Russian people. There is only a stony silence from the Kremlin.

The dilemma of our age is checking the barbarism of aggressive totalitarianism while avoiding mass destruction.

We urge strong, unified condemnation from the world community.

We urge quick and plain, appropriate sanctions from the U.S.

Let us remember we are dealing with a mean, aggressive, paranoid cluster of men who don't represent the Russian people, but rule over them. Let us remember they are capable of the unthinkable.

—Lincoln (Net.) Star

No word is bad word

It's not surprising that things get a bit testy around corporate headquarters when the red ink starts flowing, and Caterpillar Tractor Co. is no exception.

So, after a nasty strike that severely strained relations in Peoria and a $264 million first-half loss, Caterpillar headed for their bunkers. A new change in strategy was disclosed to financial analysts, but Peoria was left in the dark, and rumors were rampant there that Caterpillar was ready to pull out of Illinois altogether.

But management realized the danger that was fomenting and invited 500 business, labor and political leaders, as well as local TV stations, to a meeting where the company's new strategy was explained and citizens' worst fears were allayed.

It's a wise manager who realizes that a lack of communication is bad communication.

World at a crossroad

The Soviet attack on an unarmed Korean jumbo jet promises to be a crossroads in East-West relations. Soviet leaders often have responded to international criticism as though it were motivated solely by ideological animosity. So far, they seem inclined to deal with the storm of protest over the Korean plane in the same manner. They do not yet seem inclined to acknowledge the shock and revulsion the incident has caused.

If Soviet President Yuri Andropov cares to spare the Soviets from being further isolated in the international community, he will candidly account for the actions of the Soviet air-defense commanders, accept responsibility for the attack, and establish a procedure for similar situations in the future that complies with the conventions of civility followed by other nations.

In the absence of a candid Soviet response, the international community will have to take actions of its own. The Reagan administration must respond to the outrage in the Sea of Japan, but it must do so in concert with other nations rather than alone. The appropriate forum for any sustained reaction is the United Nations Security Council.

Some things eternal on darkest nights

WASHINGTON — One of the things I now am a little bit concerned about is intercepting aircraft at night.

I flew night fighters in World War II. Now the weapons used are far more deadly — heat-seeking missiles instead of machine guns, computerized guidance systems instead of eyeballs.

Some things, however, are eternal. On the darkest of nights, there is still some light. There are stars, which provide enough light to identify the size and shape of another aircraft if you approach it closely.

The night of Aug. 31-Sep. 1 wasn't the darkest of nights. There was a quarter moon. And when you're at 30,000 feet, clouds don't cover the moon.

Even when clouds do obscure the stars, there is no moon, on the very blackest of nights, it is possible to identify aircraft. The engines of an aircraft produce exhaust so hot that it glows. Every aircraft has its own distinctive exhaust pattern, and can be identified by it.

So we get to the questions of policy and of command and control. Who makes what decisions? At the height of World War II, when we knew the planes we were tracking were armed and would kill us if they could, no U.S. pilot could shoot at another aircraft until he had positively identified it as an enemy. That was the policy, and it was made in Washington.

We had IFF (identify friend or foe) then, as they have now, and it was supposed to tell us whether that blip on our radar screen was one of ours or one of theirs — but it was fallible. Sometimes it didn't work. Sometimes a friendly pilot simply forgot to activate it. So we demanded more than that. We meant getting close enough to see it.

From there on the decision was the pilot's. His eyeballs identified the plane. And if it was an enemy aircraft, it was his finger that pulled the trigger. He decided.

The Soviet pilot who tracked Korean Airlines Flight 007 was an honest man without the right to decide. He said he saw the plane visually and on radar. He reported that the airplane's navigation lights were burning and that the strobe light was flashing. He said he asked to approach the target. He turned off his weapons system and approached it.

After approaching the aircraft he again said the strobe light was blinking.

He didn't make the decision. He asked, "What are instructions?"

We didn't hear the answer, but we know what it was.

Five minutes after asking for instructions he reported, "The target is destroyed." Then he again asked, "What are instructions?"

The Soviet pilot carried out orders.

It is the official policy of the Soviet Union to shoot down civilian aircraft that moves into its air space. It wasn't an unidentified aircraft; an honest pilot identified it. One cannot read the transmissions of the pilot without concluding that if he had made the decision, the 269 passengers and crew would be alive today.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz announced in advance that at the human rights conference in Madrid all he wanted to talk about was the shooting down of the Korean airliner.

Thus forewarned, Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko jumped in. We state, "Soviet territory, the borders of the Soviet Union are sacred," Gromyko said.

All Shultz could do was reply: "The implication is that if anyone strays over them, they're ready to shoot them down again. I think that illustrates the difference in allocation of weight to security on the one hand and human values on the other." We didn't need this tragedy to tell us that. But it is a useful reminder to us, and — more important — to the rest of the world.

The ideological conflict between the Soviet Union and the United States isn't carried on in the news media of Moscow or Washington. The battleground is the world's people. It's Budapest, Belgrade, Beijing, New Delhi and other familiar capitals of the Third World.

The Soviets lost. They were on the side that is more protective of innocent lives in war than the other side is when at peace.

Use arms funds to support life

Thank you for giving prominent coverage yesterday to the UPI story headlined "Fast for Peace." Having issued only a few days in support of the nine persons who began a "fast for life" against the arms race on Aug. 8, I can begin to sense the depth of commitment that Dorothy Granada, Charles Gray, and the others are making in the cause of peace. Please keep us informed.

It was significant that the other stories on page C-1 of your Sept. 8 issue dealt with various aspects of the growing military buildup in our world or the attempt to slow it down through the Geneva talks. As tensions grow in the Far East and the Middle East, it should be evident that the hundreds of billions of dollars the world spends annually on armaments have not and will not lessen the danger of war, but rather hasten it.

Those joining in the "Fast for Life" remind us that there are already millions of victims of the arms race. Dollars, rubles, pounds, and francs that could be relieving poverty on every continent are used instead for armaments. It would cost a lot of money, Dorothy Granada states, to provide food, clothing, shelter, education, and medical care for the poor people of the world — as much as $20 billion. Yet the world spends that much every two weeks on the arms race!

Let those who "hunger for disarmament" call upon the leaders of our country and the other nuclear powers, France, Great Britain, China, and the U.S.S.R., to stop further production of weapons to end life and use the money to support life for their own citizens and for all people on earth.

Confession of a news junkie: His computer places second

There are some things that newspaper people are not supposed to admit: I'm going to break that rule here today.

For in mind now, this confession is strictly in confidence. I wouldn't want a word of it repeated elsewhere, so you and I will keep it secret.

One of the cardinal rules of the newspaper business is that its practitioners, under no circumstances, have anything remotely positive to say on the subject of television. If pressed, we will only assume an arrogant posture. Oplate of the masses and all that sort of thing.

Up until now, I've had no problems with toeing the party line. In my opinion, the wonderful world of television has offered nothing of value since Bullwinkle was removed from the airwaves.

I am even more vicious on the topic of television "news." I have a difficult time ascribing any credibility to a group of folks unable to master the concept of the collective noun. But there is no need to argue that point here. If you doubt what I say, watch our homegrown version of TV news for a few nights. On that I will rest my case.

Against that background, comes my confession: I have become a fan of Cable News Network.

The process leading up to this conversion has been going on now for several years but has been greatly accelerated during the past two weeks.

In case you haven't noticed, our world has produced more than its share of unsettling events in recent days. We have been daily greeted with a barrage of crises of the sort that make you take an extra look at the sleeping kid when you retire each night.

In times like these, I react like a lot of people in my business. The overriding need becomes a drive to have more information. I become obsessed with following each twist of the story as it breaks. I want to know and I want to know now.

That has been a personal quirk of mine for as long as I can remember. I suspect it's what brought me into this business. The people working behind the scenes at a newspaper have always occupied a position of privilege. Up until now, they have always had access to the most complete and immediate information.

At one of the other papers where I worked, the old-timers would tell of the days before television when the paper's offices would become the hub of activity on evenings toward the latter part of the baseball season. The editors would follow the progress of crucial games and post the scores on the front of the building. Folks would gather out front and follow the games in the only way that then existed to conduct a live sports cast.

Radio and television killed that practice.

Now, when I sit it, it appears as if CNN is removing another element of privilege from our business.

I am a news junkie. My job is ideal for one of that affliction. I sit in front of a computer that literally puts the world at my fingertips. A few key strokes will instantly place an overview of world events on my screen. A few more will display in detail the latest developments within seconds after the stories are written.

That ability always struck me as magical. I had access to information before anyone else. I was in a position of privilege.

CNN has eroded that privilege by making a continuous flow of information available to anyone with a television. And it does it with enough speed and accuracy to leave my trusty computer terminal in second place.

I'll let you in on a little secret that illustrates the story on our front page on the death of Sen. Henry Jackson. Although the story carried a United Press International credit at top, the essential detail of the story did not come from our wire service. It came from CNN.

I was in charge of the front page that night and heard on CNN that Jackson had died just before our deadline. I rewrote an earlier UPI story on the basis of the broadcast and managed to only slightly stretch deadline to get the story in the paper. UPI came through with the story well after our deadline.

I was using information available to everyone with a television to break a major story. So much for privilege.

From the time of Gutenberg, this business of disseminating information has been characterized by a series of revolutions. Each has consisted of breaking down more barriers on who has the privilege of access to information.

CNN, with its array of satellites and 24-hour broadcasting schedule, has taken that revolution to its conclusion. For the first time, it's possible for everyone to have access to information continuously and as it happens. That's a revolution.

Doctor's rudeness cuts her to quick

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
Universal Press Syndicate

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I am a 39-year-old woman recovering from a hysterectomy. I had the operation less than a week ago and I am in a state of shock — not from the surgery, but from the behavior of my doctor.

The last day of my hospital stay, my doctor came into my room to remove my stitches just as I had picked up my telephone. It was my 18-year-old son calling from another state. He was calling me from jail! He said he was allowed only one telephone call, and, Abby, before I could ask any questions or hear what else he had to say, my doctor yelled in a loud voice, "All right, hang up — have them call you at home!"

I covered the mouthpiece and said, "Please, it's my son. He's in jail!" He rolled his eyes heavenward, gestured, pained up, got red-faced and ordered me to "quit lying up the hospital telephone lines."

When I tried to find out what my son was in jail for, the doctor kept shouting at me until he finally took the telephone out of my hands!

Abby, I feel so depressed and betrayed. This doctor calls his patients "my girls." Aren't we "girls" entitled to even common courtesy? Aren't the priorities of my life deserving of respect?

— DOWNHEARTED IN CALIF.
DEAR DOWNHEARTED: I am glad you were able to vent your anger in a letter to me. But for maximum results, and a change of behavior on the part of your doctor, let him have it with both barrels.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are stationed overseas. We've been married for eight months and I just found out I am pregnant. We are thrilled.

Now for the problem: I have never smoked cigarettes and can't stand the smell of them. If someone smokes near me, it makes me sick. I had not planned on letting people smoke in our home. I don't want the smell on my furniture, draperies, on my body or clothes. And I don't want smoke in my lungs or my unborn child's.

I have a good relationship with my in-laws, but I haven't known them long, so how do I get this point across to my mother-in-law and sister-in-law, who are both chain-smokers? They both have health problems, but they are so hooked on cigarettes they can't go for half an hour without one. I know they will want to visit us when we return to the states, but I don't want their cigarettes in my house.

I don't think it would be fair to wait until they walk off the plane to tell them how I feel, but I can't seem to put it into words without coming across as a hateful, intolerant little snip.

What I should do? — CAN'T STAND SMOKE
DEAR CAN'T: You're right. You can't wait until they walk off the plane to tell them. The solution is obvious. You or your husband should write or phone and tell them just what you've told me.

Ketchum seeks 2-year option tax renewal

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — The Ketchum City Council has decided to ask voters to renew the city's full 5 percent local-option tax for two years.

The decision was made Friday at a special council meeting.

However, council members did say they would work actively with lodge and bar owners in lobbying the Legislature to authorize a lower, broader-based tax, and after the two years, seriously consider lowering the tax. It can collect on hotel and motel beds and alcohol sold by the drink.

But that offer did not please the business people. After the meeting, some said they will fight the city at the polls to defeat the tax, and they said they will pursue the lawsuit, they have threatened for the past month.

"We have to have a reduction this winter," said Alan Penney, the owner of the River Run Lodge. His pollution was the same as most of those who are opposing the tax.

Council members and Mayor Jerry Seiffert debated the issue with the lodge and bar owners for more than three hours Friday. That session followed a nearly two-hour debate at the regular council meeting last Monday.

The two sides searched for something they could agree on, but they did not find it.

The businessmen offered their support for a lobbying effort and some offered to drop the pending suit, which would challenge the constitutionality of the tax, if the city lowered the tax.

In return, the city offered to give its support to the lobbying effort and work to lower the tax after two years if the business owners would tolerate it for two more years.

City officials said they are "locked in" to the amount of money the tax generates, but the lodge and bar owners said they could not live with it. In the end, the city exercised its authority to place the tax on the Nov. 8 ballot.

Now, the lodge and bar owners will attempt to stop it at the polls, where it needs 60 percent approval, and to the courts.

"We'll do everything we can to defeat it at the polls," Penney said.

The city said it could not make any more cuts in its budget to lower the tax, which is expected to generate about $390,000 in the next year.

Council members said they already have a "bare-bones" $9 million budget, and some services would have to be cut if the tax was lowered. And the services that would be dropped would be those that have the greatest effect on the tourist, city officials said.

What kept the council from lowering the tax was the purchase of City Hall, officials said. The city has two more payments, of $112,000 and $108,000, on a seven-year lease-purchase agreement.

Once that debt is gone, council members said, the city would be able to make adjustments in its budget to give the lodge and bar owners some relief, if necessary.

Council members also agreed to put an advisory ballot before the voters to see if they will accept a community-based sales tax, instead of the tax on beds and alcohol. If they

Las Vegas next destination for jobless couple

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

ALONG INTERSTATE 94 — Not all of America's jobless can be found waiting in the halls of unemployment offices.

All and Lyon Craven had been walking east on an empty stretch of Interstate 94, west of Mountain Home, for nearly an hour when an orange car stopped to give them a lift.

It was nearly 7 a.m., but a dawn chill still hung in the air.

The Cravens' hitchhiking journey was the latest chapter in an ongoing hard-luck story that began 14 months ago, when Mr. Craven lost his truck-driving job, hauling cattle out of Ontario, Ore.

Craven, a 50-year-old Korean War veteran, said the couple had traveled most of the night and then spent the early morning at a truck stop, downing bowls of chili and heavy whipping cream.

They had left Oregon's Hood River Valley two days earlier, after a futile job search for work in the region's post-orchards.

"Everywhere we went, there were 'No Pickers' signs," he said, as he placed a small green suitcase onto the floor and settled back for the ride.

Craven, a quiet, beaming man with a leathery face and a red nose, said he had searched for work all over the West, but none of his efforts had been fruitful.

After his unemployment checks ran out, Craven said he managed to keep food on the table by cutting wood, doing yard work and helping with a traveling tool-sales operation.

But even that kind of work had become hard to find since his aging 1965 car broke down along the highway.

Last fall, he said, the couple had found seasonal work at a Hood River pear orchard. Poor-picking, Craven said, managed to earn the couple a combined total of nearly $30 a day. So, the couple was eager to take up the orchard manager's invitation to help with this year's harvest.

A few weeks ago, they left Ontario for the Hood River Valley, hoping to find work quickly. But when they reached orchard country, their former employer said he already had a full crew.

They heard the same story all over the valley, they said. "We must have contacted some 25 orchards, but they all said they had full crews."

While the Cravens searched for work, federal Immigration and Naturalization Service officials searched the orchards for illegal Mexican fruit-pickers.

"Mexican workers, by they recent immigrants or seasoned workers living in the Hood River Valley, are highly valued by area farmers, according to Wally Earkin, the editor of the weekly Hood River News.

"The down-and-out Americans leave half of the fruit on the ground," Earkin says. "The growers, they want trained specialists."

Over the past four years, Earkin says, there have been a series of protests by unemployed Americans angry over illegals working in the fruit orchards.

Mr. Craven said he respects the skills of the illegal aliens and can understand why a grower would want to use them. But he says he also saw scores of out-of-work, often-honorary persons looking for orchard jobs.

"They sleep on the streets, under bridges and in their cars," he said. "They were all over the valley."

"Just a few years ago, the Mexicans had all the picking jobs because Americans didn't want that kind of work. Now, a man will do just about anything he can to take care of his family. So, it kind of irks me to see all those people turned away from the orchards."

Reagan and the newspapers keep saying that the economy is getting better, but I don't believe it. The unemployment statistics, I don't think they count all the people like me, whose benefits have run out and who aren't drawing any more checks."

The car dropped the couple off in Twin Falls and its driver went on to begin his day's work at The Times-News.

The couple started hitchhiking again on Addison Avenue, headed south for Las Vegas. The Las Vegas newspaper, Mr. Craven said, "is full of ads for hotel and apartment managers."

The Cravens were headed south into Nevada last week in their continuing search for a job.

Region must exploit its advantages to remain strong

Easy times gone for Rocky Mountain economy

By BOB FRIED
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The easy times are over for the Rocky Mountain economy.

Idaho, Montana and Wyoming commerce must exploit its advantages and make important changes during the next 20 years to stay with the rest of the world, a regional economist told government and business officials last week in Sun Valley.

New agricultural goods and markets must be developed. Outside investment also must penetrate both the manufacturing and service sectors of the economy, said Allen Bjergo of Montana State University.

"We have carelessly squandered too much of our birthright to expect any such 'boom' periods again, but we have, nevertheless, opportunities to improve things, to use our lifestyle and natural resources to become more competitive with the rest of the world," he reported in a specially commissioned forecast of the Northern Rockies' economy to the year 2000.

Bjergo spoke last week at the Intermountain Markets for World Products conference, sponsored by the Institute of the Rockies and held at the Elkhead Club in Sun Valley.

"Introducing economic boom areas are giving way to a harsh reality — there are no free rides. In the future, nothing will be as easy and affluent as it has been."

Natural resources already are no longer easy or cheap to extract. Population growth is slowing, and technicians are leaving workers to other regions with more jobs. Finally, inflated money values no longer are driving the region's industries artificially.

"We've been coasting on these free resources. We've been coasting on this pyramid game. Sooner or later, we've got to get down to work and start earning our own way," Bjergo said.

Each portion of the economy has its own difficulties. Agriculture still seems the most stable of the raw-material industries, but both timber and agriculture will continue to lose jobs, he said. Mining has fallen off so drastically that it is unlikely to ever recover. Its losses during the past decade, including which once employed large work forces, already has declined.

An economic development specialist with Montana's state government reported that almost 7,000 permanent jobs have left the state since 1980.

The area has been content to ship out raw materials and let the processing be done elsewhere. However, that deprives the area of jobs, money and people, Bjergo said.

The fastest-growing sector of the economy — service, retail and professional businesses — recycles wealth, but does not create it. Population trends will affect its health greatly, he said.

But opportunities exist, Bjergo said.

Agriculture can raise new, more valuable products, taking advantage of unique conditions in the Northern Rockies. One example is the already extensive seed industry.

Both agriculture and timber can trim waste and conserve resources. For instance, the half of the wood supply that currently goes to waste can be processed into different forms for fuel, such as pellets, he suggested.

Attracting outside investors, particularly those in high-tech and service areas, will aid the manufacturing sector, Bjergo said.

The three states also can capitalize on their most pervasive resource, stunning natural beauty and good climate. Both the processing and service sectors can be expanded by increased tourism and recreational trade.

"We are a world-class sleeper in tourism," said John Badger, the president of the Institute of the Rockies.

Fewer fires over region this season

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Preliminary reports indicate that 1983 will rank as a below-average year for forest and range fires.

Both Sawtooth National Forest and Bureau of Land Management officials report a reduced number of acres burned this year.

However, Carlos Mendola, a BLM Shoshone District fire official, cautions that the 1983 season will not end for at least another month, and range conditions "are as dry now as they have been all summer."

"The stuff that was green earlier has turned brown and died," he said last week.

Dale Jarrell, a Forest Service fire-management officer, reports that this season's 18 fires burned only four-and-a-quarter acres of Sawtooth National Forest land.

Last year in this date, 27 fires had occurred in the forest, Jarrell says. And over a five-year period, he averages of 68 fires have occurred each year.

Weather, Jarrell says, has been a key element in reducing the number of fires this year.

"We had a very long, extended spring this year, and the green-up period for the grass and brush went into July. Then, we had a great deal of rain during the month of August."

In the BLM's Shoshone District, 86 fires have burned some 3,000 acres of brush lands, according to Mendola. During the last 40 years, an average of 102 fires have occurred each year, burning an average of 68,590 acres.

In the Burley District, the BLM's Floyd, Idaho reports that 28 fires have burned 10,750 acres of land. In an average year, the district has 54 fires that burn 12,000 acres.

Japanese market vast, largely misunderstood

By BOB FRIED
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The figures are staggering. It's the second largest free market in the world. It has 180 million people, and per-capita consumption has increased 500 percent since 1970. The wealth is distributed so well that almost everyone ranks himself in the middle class.

Essentially, Japan is a promised land for marketing.

But in reality, "Japan is yet today an ignored market," says Hideo Kimura, a professor of economics from Sophia University in Tokyo and an international trade consultant.

Few foreign companies operate in Japan. By the time all the paper companies and subsidiaries are added away, only 23 foreign concerns actually do business in Japan, Kimura says. Their share of the marketplace is 2 percent.

The reasons why foreign companies bypass the huge Japanese market will puzzle him, Kimura told participants at last week's World Markets for Intermountain Products conference in Sun Valley.

But once they do enter the market, foreign businesses — particularly American — often make devastating mistakes because they don't research the Japanese buyer adequately, said Kimura and Robert J. Ballou, an economist and another international trade consultant.

"Too often, we come here where we are and assume the other is like me... it doesn't follow," said Ballou, a Belgian native who had spent 35 years in Japan and is Kimura's colleague at Sophia University. Cultural differences have a big effect on marketing, particularly in Japan, the two men said. The differences go beyond labeling.

For instance, many American manufacturers approach Japanese business executives to sell a specific, ready-made product. But they will not modify it to fit the Japanese marketplace, the economists said.

"They say, 'Take it or leave it,' and the Japanese leave it," Ballou said.

American businesses often are intent on closing a deal and moving on. The Japanese, however, prize a long-term, reliable relationship.

Manufacturers must deliver products on extremely tight schedules, even to an exact hour-of-the-day. And companies must stand behind the products to the point where they will take "BSC" any vendor's case. "The Japanese philosophy is that if the product doesn't sell with normal effort, it's the product's fault, the economists said.

Suppliers also must be quick to unusual problems. Most American companies get defensive or blame somebody else when their product is defective or does not sell, Kimura said.

The Japanese buyers' is quite demanding, Kimura said. A full line of products — not just one or two — is expected.

New products also are expected. The life cycle of a product in Japan is a third of that of one in the Western marketplace, Kimura said. Each product also must be tailored to a need. General-use products generally are not well-accepted.

But there are significant advantages for the seller.

High pricing is expected. In fact, many products will not be bought unless they are priced tightly, he said, because of tradition or because of suspicions about quality.

Pricing also must be firm. Once a price is set, a change is not easily accepted without good reason. Instant discounts do not work in Japan, Kimura said.

It may take a while to get established, but once established, the Japanese market is lucrative, Kimura said.

"How can you ignore the Japanese market?" he asked the conference participants.

The expert conference was sponsored by the Institute for the Rockies, a non-profit association for exploring issues important to the Rocky Mountain Region.

A number of state officials from Idaho, Montana and Wyoming, including Gov. John Evans of Idaho and Gov. Ted Schwendron of Wyoming, attended, along with other business people and export traders.

Delinquency rate cuts loan funds

By The Times-News

HAILEY — U.S. Farmers Home Administration funds for new construction loans in Blaine County have been restricted this summer because of a high delinquency rate on existing loans.

William C. Norberg, the FHMA state director, says the Blaine County office was denied access to funds above its initial allocation because of a delinquency rate of 20.1 percent, above the allowable 18.1 percent, based on the national average.

However, Norberg says that he will allow funds to the Blaine County office for transfers on existing loans until the end of this fiscal accounting year, Sept. 23. "We will make as many transfers as we can,"

The situation in Blaine County is not unique, Norberg says, and many counties around the nation are above the allowed delinquency level. He says the restriction on additional funds is an attempt to lower the delinquency level on the subsidized housing loans.

The county was down from a delinquency rate of 22.2 percent to the 20.1 percent rate at the end of June, he says.

Each county is given an initial allocation for loans at the beginning of each year, and county offices can make loans to qualified applicants up to that level, Norberg says.

However, if a county is not above the delinquency rate, it can have access to the national pool for additional funds, and it may make as many new construction or transfer loans as the office can handle, he says.

By the end of June, the Blaine County office had used all of its initial allocation and when it sought additional funds, it was denied access to the national pool, Norberg says.

do, the vote can be used to lobby the Legislature to authorize the tax, they said.

What has the business people upset is the combination of local and state taxes that brings the total sales tax charged to tourists in Ketchikan to 11.5 percent, the second highest of any Western resort area and the highest in the Intermountain region.

When the tax was initiated in 1978, it was added to the 3 percent state sales tax then in effect, which brought the total tax to 8 percent, a level the lodging industry thought reasonable.

However, in 1982, the Legislature approved a 2 percent sales tax on beds and liquor by the drink to promote tourism in Idaho. Then, this year, it raised the state sales tax 1.5 percent, an increase meant to be temporary, but which Gov. John Evans is seeking to make permanent.

The lodge owners believe the total tax amount will drive tourists from Sun Valley, and many believe they will go out of business. Since they believe they are too small to fight the state's taxes, they have focused their fight on the city.

"No tourists, no town," has been their motto.

The lodge and bar owners agree the tax provides necessary services that benefit tourists, such as additional snow removal, expanded police and fire departments, and a sophisticated ambulance service — more services than a town of 2,000 permanent residents needs.

They also agree that tourists should pay for these expanded services, but they say they can not afford to pay the tax for all the extra services.

They say they would willingly accept a lower, broader-based tax that every business would have a share in, and they are suggesting a 1 percent local sales tax.

However, the city does not have the authority to create such a tax without legislative approval.

ISU quarterback Paul Peterson hands off to Merrill Hoge during the Bengals' win at UTEP

Hobart breaks two NCAA I-AA records

By The Times-News and United Press International

It took Idaho almost half of the game to realize Southern Colorado was no pushover. But once Vandal quarterback Ken Hobart got his passing game in gear, the Indians were headed for an aerial massacre.

Hobart had four interceptions in the first half. But the Idaho senior more than made up for his mistakes in the final two periods as he threw the Vandals to a 43-28 win Saturday night while setting two NCAA Division I-AA records.

"I did some stupid things in the first half," Hobart said. "And our team performance to the halftime was real average."

But Idaho coach Dennis Erickson said Hobart "rose to the occasion in the second half, like he always has, and did a super job."

In other games Saturday for Big Sky teams, Boise State beat Eastern Washington 33-14. Idaho State upset Texas-El Paso 12-10, and Northern Arizona crushed Southern Utah State 53-3, while Montana State led 21-3 at North Dakota.

Montana, Nevada-Reno and Weber State were all idle.

All Hobart did was complete 37 passes for 527 yards and six touchdowns in Idaho's win, setting Division I-AA records for his passing yards and 543 yards in total offense. He also set four Big Sky records and six school marks in the come-from-behind win.

Southern Colorado was ahead 21-0 lofted a 35-yard touchdown pass to Brian Allen on the final play before halftime—to make it 21-7 for the Indians.

In the second half, Hobart tossed TD passes of nine yards to Kurt Veeman, 15 to Ron Whittenburg, nine to Curtis Johnson, 22 to Scott Auker and 34 to Rich Love as Idaho scored on five of its first six possessions.

Idaho State turned to its defense to stop UTEP, getting a touchdown on safety John Barry's 67-yard interception return and a pair of field goals from Perry Larson.

Larson's game-winning field goal from 45 yards out was set up by Jeff Kaiser's Big Sky record 89-yard punt to the El Paso 1. The Miners couldn't move the ball and punted to midfield. The Bengals got a first down to the UTEP 35 and then called in Larson.

Idaho State got a scare when senior quarterback Paul Peterson had to leave the game in the second quarter. With a badly bruised right arm, ISU sports information director Glenn Alfords said Sunday that Peterson would not play in next Saturday's game against Eastern Washington, but would be ready for the Bengals' conference opener against Idaho in two weeks.

Northern Arizona's defense produced six interceptions and recovered two fumbles as the Lumberjacks won their season opener against Southern Utah State. And running backs Jerry Holder and Thurman McKinley each scored a pair of touchdowns for NAU.

Central Texas passed for two touchdowns, Tony Massagli kicked four field goals, and Boise State's defense shut out Eastern Washington in the second half as the Broncos gave rookie coach Lyle Setencich his first victory.

At Grand Forks, N.D., Montana State led a 3-0 lead on Mark Carter's 32-yard field goal in the first quarter. But the rest of the game belong to North Dakota as the Sioux beat the Bobcats for the fourth consecutive time. Next Saturday, Boise State is at Montana, and Montana State hosts Idaho, and Northern Arizona travels to Weber State, in Big Sky games. In non-conference contests, Idaho State will play Eastern Washington at Spokane and Nevada-Reno travels to Fresno State.

Dodgers outlast Atlanta

By United Press International

To manage in the major leagues is to suffer. Sunday, the Los Angeles Dodgers helped relieve Tom Lasorda's pain.

"This was as great a victory as I have ever enjoyed, and it made up for all the suffering in past games," Lasorda said after the Dodgers had rallied for four runs in the ninth inning for a 7-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Mike Marshall's two-run double tied the score, and rookie R.J. Reynolds squeezed home Pedro Guerrero for the winning run as the Dodgers upped their lead in the National League West to three games. Reliever Joe Beckwith, 2-3, was the winner, while Gene Garber fell to 3-5.

"This is the biggest thing that has happened to me since I've been in baseball," Reynolds said of his suicide bid.

Jose Morales doubled in the ninth for his 107th career pinch hit and Jim Anderson ran for him. After Steve Sax walked, Charles relieved and struck out Bill Russell, but Dusty Baker looped a single to right center, loading the bases. After Cecil Espy ran for Baker, Guerrero walked on a 3-2 pitch, forcing in a run. Marshall then doubled to the base of the wall in right field, tying the score. Greg Brock was then walked intentionally, loading the bases.

With the count 1-0 and Guerrero breaking, Reynolds, called up Sept. 1 from San Antonio of the Texas League, hit a bunt down the first base side, allowing Guerrero to score without a play.

Philadelphia's Pittsburgh 5, Lezcano singled home in the seventh inning and Philadelphia added an insurance run on Dave Parker's error to lead the Phillies to victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The decision kept second-place Philadelphia within a half-game of the first-place Montreal in the National League East while Pittsburgh dropped two games off the pace.

Colts' Vernon Maxwell gets kudos after sacking Steve DeBerg

Elway flounders; DeBerg saves Broncos once again

By CARL KORN
United Press International

BALTIMORE—With time running out in Denver Broncos' last play, quarterback Steve DeBerg knifed in the huddle and said to receiver Steve Watson, "I'm laying it up. Go for it."

Watson sprinted down the right side of the field and put it in perfectly thrown 54-yard bomb that was the key play in the Broncos' 17-10 victory over the Baltimore Colts Sunday.

Watson, a Baltimore native, was Denver's hero before a near-sellout crowd that included 40 of his friends and relatives.

Watson caught six passes for 161 yards, including a 24-yard touchdown pass from DeBerg to tie the score at 10-10 with less than six minutes left.

"I thought I was going to have to jump over somebody," Watson said of his long catch. But he had clearly beaten cornerback James Burroughs, who managed to drag Watson down at the 4-yard line.

See additional NFL stories on Page B3

DeBerg, sipping after a poor performance by heralded rookie John Elway for the second straight week, rolled into the end zone for the winning touchdown with just 29 seconds left.

The Colts had taken a 10-3 lead when Larry Anderson picked up a fumble and sprinted 41 yards for a touchdown. DeBerg hit running back Rick Parros for a short completion early in the fourth quarter but as Parros turned upfield, he was hit by rookie linebacker Vernon Maxwell and the ball squatted loose. Anderson recovered on the 41, scissored his way between two Broncos on the 15, and sprinted into the end zone.

Denver led it at 10-0 when DeBerg rolled out and hit Steve Watson with the tying score at 5:55 left.

Seahawks still own New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—The coaches are new but one thing still remains constant—the Seattle Seahawks own the New York Jets.

Rookie Curt Warner rushed for 128 yards and a pair of touchdowns Sunday to help the Seahawks continue their mastery over the Jets with a 17-10 victory.

Seattle, which entered the game as a 9-point underdog, pushed its record to 7-0 against the Jets since the Seahawks were founded in 1976.

The Seahawk defense recovered four fumbles, two inside their 20, and intercepted three passes to bring Chuck Knox his first victory as Seattle coach. It also was the first loss for the Jets' new coach, Joe Walton.

The Jets, 1-1, who received a 40-yard rushing start, from Freeman McNeil, twice moved inside Seattle's 5-yard line but could manage only an 18-yard field goal by Pat Leahy through three periods. New York's only TD came with 3:10 left on Richard Todd's 46-yard pass to Wesley Winder.

The Jets' defense then recovered a Seattle fumble at the Seahawk's 34, but on the next play, Todd was intercepted by Keith Butler on a pass intended for McNeil.

Todd's 35-yard pass to Derrick Gathewey gave the Jets a first down on the Seattle 24 with 58 seconds left, but linebacker Eugene Williams swiped a Todd pass that deflected off the hands of running back Steve Dilling to stymie New York's final threat.

"It was a satisfying win," Knox said. "The Jets are a heck of a football club. Our players handled adversity really well. They came back. The final two interceptions were the ballgame. Football is like that. We made the plays when we had to. We hit and hustled when we had to."

JIMMY CONNORS Had the stomach for it

Connors wins his fifth U.S. Open championship

By MARTIN LADER
United Press International

NEW YORK—His toe was aching, his stomach was grumbling and the heat was wearing him down. But all Jimmy Connors needed was one break, one little opening, and for the fifth time he was able to capture the U.S. Open championship.

Jumping all over the one opportunity, pumping himself up in the fading sunlight of another brilliant afternoon, Connors swept through the last 10 games Sunday and as dusk settled in he had himself a runaway 6-3, 6-7, 7-5, 6-0 victory.

It was the second straight year Connors beat the unfortunate

Czechoslovakian in the final, and as a fitting tribute—it marked his 100th tournament singles success. With the $120,000 first prize, the 31-year-old left-hander also became the first man to go over $5 million in career earnings.

The big break for Connors on another scorching day, with the temperature reaching 107 degrees at courtside, came in the 10th game of the third set when Lendl double-faulted at set point. Connors took advantage by breaking serve to pull even at 5-5, and Lendl couldn't win another game the rest of the match.

"Ivan served for the third set," Connors said. "When I broke him that game it lifted me and I think he got a little dejected. From that point on you never know if you can wear him down, but from there I thought I took a little control."

Lendl, who once more will have to explain time after time why he can't win the big one, admitted, "After the double fault I never recovered mentally."

"I think I was tough enough. If you keep doing mistakes like that it doesn't matter how good you are or how tough you are, you're never going to win."

Connors, who started limping earlier in the set as the result of a slight toe injury suffered during Saturday's semifinal, broke in the 12th game to take the set when Lendl sent a forehand long.

"He played a pretty awful game to lose the set," Connors said. "He missed three or four balls for no reason."

Now on a roll, and with the sellout crowd loudly on his side, Connors made the decisive break in the second game of the fourth set. Then, sensing the end, Connors, who had only six aces during the match, served 12 of them in the third game.

Lendl managed to ward off two match points on his service in the 12th game, but Connors achieved the third victory on his third match point with a crosscourt return.

"To have a chance to do it once again is a thrill," Connors said immediately following the victory. "After that last year and playing so well, I thought I'd come back this year another time."

Connors, who beat Lendl for the 11th time in 14 career meetings, was gracious in victory, refusing to say his 25-year-old opponent let the pressure get to him.

"I don't think he was choking," he said.

Connors has won numerous opportunities during the first three sets. In the first 24 games there were 13 service breaks and Lendl, who had been broken only five times in six previous matches, was broken 11 times by Connors during the 3-hour and 3-minute contest.

Poised 'Skins outlast Eagles

By United Press International

With the temperature on the floor of Veterans Stadium registering in excess of 100 degrees, it seemed too early in the NFL season to talk about key games.

But for the Washington Redskins, their 13-point fourth quarter — highlighted by John Riggins' 14-yard touchdown pass — that lifted them to a 23-13 victory. Sunbunny corner, the Philadelphia Eagles was just what the team needed.

The Redskins, 1-1, blew a 23-0 halftime lead and lost 31-30 to the Dallas Cowboys last Monday night in their season opener. Quarterback Joe Theismann said they needed a cold shower before the game.

"After what happened last week, this could have been a disaster," said Theismann, who led the Redskins on drives that ended in field goals of 24, 23 and 22 yards by Mark Moseley in the last six minutes of the game.

"Losing, like winning, can be habit forming. If you believe you can't beat people, then you won't. We had to get our confidence back today. We made some mistakes in the first half but we eliminated them in the second. The defense and the special teams were great."

An 18-yard punt return by Mike Nelms set up Washington's 43-yard drive for the go-ahead score. Theismann hit Nick Gjakovic on a key third-down play for 21 yards to the 14. On the next play Riggins bowled over left guard and broke two tackles for the touchdown with 12:51 left.

"There was a big hole there," said Riggins, who tied Larry Brown's club record with his 35th touchdown as a Redskin. "Anybody would have scored."

The win was the eighth straight on the road for the Redskins, a club record.

Moseley's first field goal of the game, a 36-yarder, forced a 10-10 tie in the third quarter and the Eagles, 1-1, leveled the lead again.

Dallas 34, St. Louis 17

In St. Louis, Ron Springs ran for touchdowns of 1 and 19 yards and the Dallas defense intercepted four passes to lead the Cowboys to their second straight comeback victory, a triumph over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Cowboys, 2-1, fell behind 10-0 in the first quarter before scoring 31 straight points to beat the Cardinals for the ninth time in their last 10 meetings and drop St. Louis to 0-2.

The Cardinals trailed 17-10 entering the second half but appeared in position to tie the score when Bubba Baker recovered a Tony Dorsett fumble at the Dallas 26. Jim Hart hit Roy Green with 16-yard pass, but Hart's next pass was intercepted by Dennis Thurman in the end zone.

Chicago 17, Tampa Bay 10

In Chicago, Terry Schmidt scored on a 26-yard interception return with 10:46 left to snap a 10-10 tie and lift the Chicago Bears to victory over the punless Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

The win evened the Bears' record at 1-1 while Tampa Bay fell to 0-2 and is the only winless team in the NFC Central.

Walter Payton caught a 73-yard touchdown pass from Jim McMahon in the second quarter for the longest pass completion ever against Tampa Bay and Bob Thomas kicked a 50-yard field goal at the close of the first half for the Bears.

Schmidt snared a pass from Jerry Golsteyn that was intended for tight end Jimmie Giles and ran down the right sideline, diving in for the score and giving the Bears the lead for good.

Tampa Bay, shut out in its opening loss to Detroit, tied the score in the third quarter on the first touchdown of the season. James Owens' dived over from a yard out with 8:16 left in the third quarter to knot the score at 10-10. The TD capped a 71-yard, 12-play drive that was set up by a 23-yard completion from Golsteyn to Giles on the previous play.

New York Giants 16, Atlanta 13

In Atlanta, a 54-yard kickoff return by Mike Dennis set up rookie Al Hall-Shelk's third field goal, a 30-yarder at 3:38 of overtime that gave the New York Giants a victory over the Atlanta Falcons.

The Falcons, 1-1, forced the game into overtime when they tied the score 13-13 with 3:06 left in regulation on a 6-yard touchdown pass from Steve Barkwood to Alford Jackson following a 38-yard interception return by linebacker Al Richardson.

The Giants, 1-1, won the overtime loss and elected to receive. Dennis took the kickoff at his own 5-yard line and stepped out of bounds at the Atlanta 41. Sticking to the ground, mainly on the running of Rob Carpenter, who had 111 yards for the day, the Giants drove to the Falcons' 13 before calling on Hall-Shelk for the 30-yard field goal that won for good.

Hall-Shelk kicked a 37-yard field goal with 10:40 elapsed in the first quarter and added 31-yarder just 55 seconds into the fourth quarter. The Giants also scored on a 6-yard pass from Scott Brunner to Earnest Gray with 1:12 left in the first half.

Los Angeles Rams 30, New Orleans 27

In Anaheim, Calif., Vince Ferragamo connected with rookie Ollis Grant on a 19 37-yard pass to set up

Ernie Dickerson's third touchdown of the game, a 3-yard run with 1:22 left that lifted the Los Angeles Rams to victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Trailing 27-21, the Rams got a big break when Jeff Simmons dove a punt at the New Orleans 2-yard line, pinning the Saints on their own goal-line. On fourth down, punter Russell Erbeben stayed in the end zone for a safety, making the score 27-23.

Erbeben's ensuing free kick was returned by LeRoy Irvin to the Los Angeles 40 with two minutes left. On the second play, Ferragamo hooked up with Grant, a rookie from Michigan State, dropping the ball into his hands at the New Orleans 40. Grant then outran four defenders before being hauled down at the 3-yard line by Rodney Lewis.

Patient Lye wins first PGA event

SUTTON, Mass. (UPI) — It may be an expensive precedent, but Mark Lye wanted something special to mark his first PGA victory.

So, in the spirit of the late Tony Lema, Lye bought a case of champagne for the press, and himself, to celebrate his one-stroke victory Sunday in a $350,000 PGA tournament.

"I've certainly knocked on the door enough times and failed, mostly because I was scared," Lye said in an emotional speech. "It has been a long dry spell and you just can't imagine the feeling I feel. This is going to do wonders for Mark Lye."

Lye fired a sparkling 7-under 64 to overtake the faltering leaders on a sweltering September day. He started his round eight shots behind leader John Mahaffey, who wound up in a tie for second with Jim Thorpe and Sammy Ratches.

"I just got psyched up out there and took it to the course. Before, I'd always tried to back into it. That's what makes this all the more sweeter. I played it aggressively like it's supposed to be played."

Pittsburgh runs down Pack

By United Press International

If the Green Bay Packers have a full feeling in their collective stomachs, they can thank the Pittsburgh Steelers, who ran the ball down their throats all day Sunday in a 28-21 victory.

The game, played before 55,154 fans at Lambeau Field, left both teams at 1-1.

Pittsburgh gained 285 of 471 total yards on the ground while holding the ball for 41:16. Franco Harris led the way with 118 yards on 22 carries, while Eric Ballard chipped in with 90 yards.

The Steelers played without injured defensive linemen Gene Rivera, Gary Dunn and John Goodman but their makeshift line still held the Packers, whose time of possession was just 18:44, to 87 yards rushing.

"We were short defensive linemen and we wanted to keep them off the field as much as we could," said Steelers coach Chuck Noll. "We went out there with the idea of running the football and possessing it and keeping our offense on the field."

"The Steelers ran the ball well at certain times," said Green Bay coach Bart Starr. "They ran the basic plays that we prepared for all week and they executed them very well."

The final outcome overshadowed the play of Green Bay's Lynn Dickey, who completed 14-of-20 passes for 230 yards, including TD passes of 71, 73 and 12 yards to James Lofton.

"I think we moved the ball well against an excellent defensive team."

AFC

Dickey said. "But we stopped ourselves all afternoon."

The Packers were assessed 50 yards in penalties, many of them during critical offensive drives.

"We beat ourselves," said tackle Greg Koch. "Every guy in the offensive line had a penalty. We can't play them and ourselves at the same time."

Buffalo 10, Cincinnati 6

In Cincinnati, Joe Ferguson fired a 14-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Butler, Fred Stetafor kicked a 28-yard field goal and the Buffalo defense provided a last-minute goal-line stand to lift the Buffs to victory over the self-destructing Cincinnati Bengals.

Buffalo's defense preserved the victory by stopping Cincinnati after the Bengals had mounted a first-and-goal at the Buffalo 4-yard line in the final three minutes.

Cleveland 31, Detroit 26

In Pontiac, Mich., Brian Sipe set a club career record by throwing four touchdown passes Sunday, then had to survive a nearly disastrous safety before the Cleveland Browns' late comeback.

Defensive tackle Doug English tackled Sipe in the end zone with 4:34 left to make it 29-26 and give Detroit a chance to win on a field goal, but a holding penalty pushed the Lions back to their own 47. Free safety Mike Whitwell then intercepted backup quarterback Gary Danielson on a third-down pass and returned it 28 yards to the Detroit 27 to snuff out the threat.

Following the turnover, Matt Bahr punt Cleveland back out of field goal range on a 25-yard field goal with 1:57 to play.

Los Angeles Raiders 20, Houston 6

In Los Angeles, Marcus Allen rushed for 96 yards and Jim Plunkett threw for 229 yards to help the mistake-prone Los Angeles Raiders to an easy victory over the Houston Oilers.

The Raiders, 2-0, dominated throughout in a game played in heat approaching 100 degrees, but mistakes kept Houston close for much of the contest. Allen tumbled twice in the third period and Chris Bahr missed three field goals for the Raiders.

Allen carried 17 times and keyed the Raiders' first scoring drive. Plunkett hit 19-of-28 passes but suffered two interceptions.

Miami 34, New England 24

In Miami, David Woodley threw two touchdown passes, including a 64-yard bomb to Duful Harris, and the Miami Dolphins' defense held off a late New England comeback bid en route to a victory over the Patriots.

Woodley connected on a 1-yard touchdown pass to first-year tight end Dan Johnson and then found Harris for the 64-yarder late in the third quarter. Harris wrestled the ball from rookie cornerback Ronnie Lippett on the 20, stumbled, caught himself and raced into the end zone.

Orioles dim prospects for New York pennant

By United Press International

Mike Flanagan notched his 11th victory and Tippy Martinez held off a ninth inning but New York Sunday to help the Baltimore Orioles ride, a five-run second inning to a 5-3 victory over the fading Yankees.

By winning three of four games in the weekend series, the Orioles dropped New York seven games back from the East. The Yankees have 20 games remaining.

Flanagan, starting when Jim Palmer's turn was moved back a day, withstood 97 degree heat and high humidity to pitch 8 1/3 innings. Martinez, who appeared in all four games in the series, got the last two outs for his 17th save. Flanagan, 11-3, struck out eight and walked one in allowing 11 hits.

Dave Righetti, 14-7, struck out two and retired the side in the first inning but was victimized when Baltimore sent 10 batters to the plate in the second.

Kansas City 3, Minnesota 1

At Minneapolis, Willie Aikens hit a two-run homer with two out in the ninth and Dan Quisenberry posted a major league record by the 38th save to lift the Royals. Quisenberry tied the record set by Detroit's John Hiller in 1973.

Toronto 16, Oakland 6

At Toronto, Willie Upshaw belted his first career grand slam and Jesse Barfield had three hits, including his seventh homer in his last 11 games, to

Montreal 4, New York 0

At Montreal, Charlie Lea, 15-3, tossed a six-hitter to set a club record with his eighth straight victory and Tim Wallach drove in two runs Sunday, lifting the Expos. The decision helped Montreal establish a lead-high of 12 victories on a homestand in 16 games. Mike Torrez, 9-15, took the loss.

St. Louis 2, Chicago 1

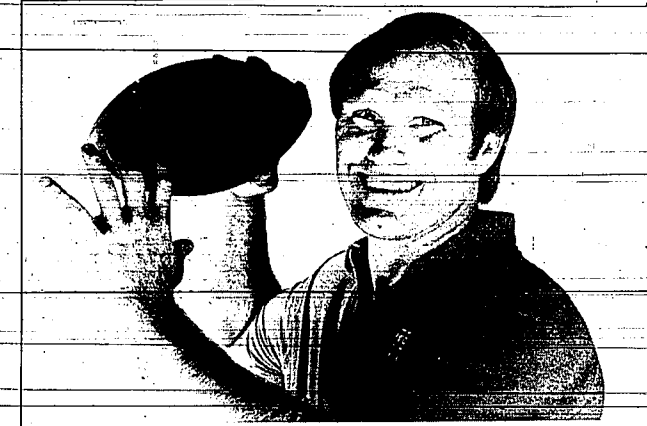

At Chicago, Willie McGee smashed a two-out single off Lee Smith, 4-9, in the top of the ninth to score Lonnie Smith from second, John Stuper, who pitched the first eight innings and yielded five hits, evened his record at 10-10, while Bruce Sutter pitched up his 18th save.

San Francisco 3, Houston 2

At San Francisco, pinch hitter Dave Bergman keyed a three-run ninth off Nolan Ryan, 13-7, with a two-run single and Tom O'Malley followed with an RBI single for the Giants. Greg Minton, 7-10, pitched 1 1/3 innings for the victory. San Francisco starting pitcher Hansel Montañez struck out 14 before leaving in the eighth.

Cincinnati 4, San Diego 2

At San Diego, Paul Houlihan scored two runs, one on his fifth home run of the season, to lead the Reds. Rookie lefty Russell, 2-2, was the winner. Tom Hume pitched the ninth to earn his eighth save. Mark Thurmond, who had won six of his last seven decisions, fell to 7-3.
