Rebels strike, more Marines injured

By HUGH POPE
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Rebels attacked a key Lebanese army post guarding the Shouf mountain approaches to Beirut Monday and wounded three U.S. Marines in a separate mortar attack as 2,000 Marine reinforcements arrived off the coast.

"A dozen 120mm mortar shells fired from the east landed in our area," a U.S. Marine spokesman said. "We did not respond and had three Marine injuries."

State-run Beirut radio said the shelling started a huge fire in a hangar at the airport.

Two of the Marines were to be transferred for treatment to the U.S.S. two Jima offshore. One suffered a dislocated shoulder; the other shrapnel injuries to his hands. The third returned to duty, the Marine spokesman said. Four U.S. Marines have been killed and 28 injured since the violence erupted in Lebanon two weeks ago.

At the United Nations, the embattled Beirut government of President Amn Gemayel appealed to the U.N. Security Council to declare a cease-fire and call for the withdrawal of "all illegitimate" foreign forces from Lebanese soil.

The Council was called into urgent session to consider the fighting between Syrian-backed Druze Moslems and Christian militia forces that erupted nine days ago when Israel redeployed its forces to southern Lebanon.

Negotiations for a cease-fire in Lebanon broke down as the Lebanese government balked at Syrian conditions.

U.S. Presidential envoy Robert McFarlane, reiterating "full U.S. commitment to help Lebanon," left for Saudi Arabia, which has been trying to mediate a solution to the conflict with the Syrians.

An international Red Cross convoy reached 25,000 to 40,000 refugees in the besieged central Shouf town of Deir al Qamar, 13 miles southeast of Beirut.

The Red Cross also said it recovered the body of Canadian television correspondent Clark Todd from the nearby battered town of Kfar Matta. He was the first journalist killed in the Lebanese war.

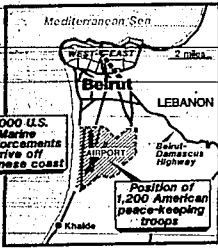

In Jerusalem, a close aide to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin threatened to strike at Palestinian guerrillas returning to the Beirut area alongside Druze Moslem militiamen.

Israeli military sources estimate 1,700 Palestinians from several guerrilla groups within the Palestine Liberation Organization, are taking part in the fight against the Christian Phalangists and the Lebanese Army.

The return of the guerrillas to the Beirut area comes a year after Israel's bombardment and siege of the Lebanese capital forced the PLO to evacuate the city.

Three U.S. warships with 2,000 Marines aboard arrived off the Lebanese coast Monday to back up the 1,200 Marine peacekeepers in Beirut, part of the four-nation multinational peace-keeping force.

The U.S. Marine Commander Col. Timothy Gearty said there were no plans to bring the reinforcements ashore.

Crises in world mute dissent in Congress

Leaders urge support of Reagan foreign policy

By STEVE GERSTEL
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Republican and Democratic leaders urged Congress Monday to continue the Soviet Union for shooting down a Korean airliner and voiced support for President Reagan's decision to keep U.S. Marines in Lebanon.

There were strong indications from top members of both parties they want a "new partnership" with the White House on foreign policy issues in the face of growing tensions around the globe.

Senate leaders, acting only moments after returning from a five-week summer vacation, filed a harshly worded resolution calling for "appropriate sanctions" against the Soviet Union, demanding an apology and compensation for the 269 victims of the attack on a Korean Air Lines jumbo jet.

A similar resolution was to be offered in the House later, and the measures were certain of approval — probably by unanimous vote — later in the week.

The leaders indicated strong bipartisan support for keeping the Marines in Lebanon, at least for the Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., introduced a resolution that would allow Reagan to keep the Marines on duty for six more months but require congressional approval of an extension beyond that date. Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y., offered one triggering the war powers act, which could lead to a congressional decision to get the Marines out.

During Congress' absence from Washington, four Marines were killed in Lebanon and the Korean airliner was shot down by a Soviet fighter, making foreign policy issues the main topic of discussion as the legislators returned for the last part of the session.

The further incident and the fighting in Lebanon appeared to forge a bipartisan front on foreign policy in Congress and closer relations with the White House, which had showed signs of severe deterioration before the recess.

Although not expected to last, the coming-together could help Reagan in his foreign policy and arms negotiation initiatives, and might provide the votes he needs for such controversial items as the MX missile and the production of nerve gas.

present, but rank-and-file demands grew that Reagan invoke the War Powers Resolution to provide for a congressional review.

Twin Falls district, teachers agree on tentative contract

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Education Association and the school board have reached a contract settlement, "it now appears" to be a victory for the teachers.

The agreement came Monday night during an unscheduled negotiating session. The talks had been going on for five months.

The board has agreed to maintain health insurance coverage at last year's level. The insurance issue had been the major stumbling block during negotiations, with the teachers resisting any cut in their benefits. The district will continue to pay the full premium for the teachers and their families.

The contract, however, will contain language that will protect the district from unlimited increases in insurance costs.

The teachers and the board will set up a committee to study ways to contain escalating costs.

The district will switch from the Horizon Mutual insurance company to Blue Shield of Idaho, and will sign a 12-month contract with the new carrier, starting Oct. 1, according to Superintendent Gary Piller.

The settlement will cost the district $45,527 a year more than the previous contract, Piller said. The district will make up the cost through an additional levy on property taxes, he said.

Under state law, a school district can ask for an emergency tax levy if its enrollment increases. The district had 38 more students as of last Friday, in addition to the several hundred it has added in the last four years, Piller said Monday night.

and the civic watchdog Better Government Association found members of Congress travel with few controls to limit expenditures, avoid waste and duplication or prevent abuses.

In August, eight House and Senate groups crisscrossed the Far East, each on an Air Force plane far more expensive than commercial flights. Two of the House members visited 11 islands respectively for a second time this year.

Also on the 23 trips in August, including 17 that strained the limits of the Air Force's 17-plane 89th Airborne Division, were 80 staff members and 42 spouses. The congressmen and senators — and even congressional aides traveling alone — were escorted by one or more officers from the military services.

UPI and the BGA, in a review of seating costs of official travel abroad, found no central reporting of expenditures, but learned:

• As many as 100 congressional trips overseas each year are aboard planes of the 89th Airborne Division, the Air Force's Military Airlift Command that includes Air Force One.

• In the last six months, the Army sponsored 45 congressional trips, mainly on airlift planes, and the Air Force 18. Records listing passengers are destroyed semi-annually, Pentagon officials confided, to avoid bad publicity. The Navy reported that in fiscal 1982, the only period for which it released figures, it sponsored 22 foreign trips on Air Force planes.

Figuring conservatively, if congressional groups took 86 trips to Hong Kong, lodging and transportation, Pentagon officials confirm. This year, escort officers will pay nearly $1 million for such services.

It is difficult to pinpoint costs, but the price of Congress' foreign travel will easily exceed $14 million in 1983 and probably approach $20 million.

In addition, UPI and the BGA reported Sunday it is costing U.S. embassies hundreds of thousands of dollars to support official U.S. visitors with chauffeurs, escorts for spouses, scheduling help and "greeters" to welcome members at the airport. Evan Galbraith, ambassador to France, complained it cost $1 million for 658 U.S. officials to view last spring's Paris Air Show.

At least $14 million

Price tag buried, but junkets cost us plenty

By GREGORY GORDON

WASHINGTON — Members of Congress, while slashing U.S. agency travel budgets, are tapping the treasury for well over $14 million a year for their own journeys to see the world.

At least 21 senators and 80 House members returned in Capitol Hill Monday fresh from forays abroad during the summer recess. Aides to congressional panels that set up the latest round of overseas trips are quick to defend them, noting their committees need to meet foreign leaders, visit military bases and refugee camps and discuss foreign trade.

Katherine Ortega comments on her appointment as Reagan looks on

Reagan courts Hispanics

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan resumed a drive for Hispanic political support Monday by nominating banker Katherine Ortega to be U.S. treasurer and saying more than 20 other Hispanics are in line for top federal jobs.

Boasting a commitment underlined by the appointment of more than 125 Hispanics to "senior positions" in government, Reagan raised the curtain on four days of activity to bolster his standing with the nation's fastest-growing minority.

"Today you'll find Hispanics at the FCC (Federal Communications Commission) and the CAB (Civil Aeronautics Board) and all over government," Reagan said during an "East Room ceremony marking Hispanic Heritage Week. "They offer professionalism, and we intend to take advantage of that talent."

Reagan was warmly applauded as he entered. Ms. Ortega, 44, a commissioner of the Copyright Royalty Tribunal for the last nine months, stood at his side, visibly moved by the announcement of her nomination, which is subject to Senate confirmation.

"We need your participation and your beliefs to guide this nation," Reagan told Hispanics in the audience, "because the hopes and dreams of Hispanic Americans are the same hopes and dreams that founded this country."

With Hispanics considered a swing constituency in such key electoral states as Florida, Texas and California, Reagan has gone all-out

Peace fasters near starvation

OAKLAND, Calif. (UPI) — Four "Fast For Life" hunger strikers are approaching starvation after going without food since Aug. 8 to protest the nuclear arms race and world hunger, a spokeswoman said. Charles Gray, 58, his wife, Dorothy Granada, 52, both of Oakland, Andre Lariviere, 34, of Quebec, and Mitsuohei Kobayama, 34, of Japan, are being monitored daily by a medical team as they approach Sept. 14, the 40th day of their fast, considered the "point at which the average human body begins the process of starvation," said Robin Knowlton at a press conference. Doctors have advised Mrs. Granada to enter a hospital, but so far she has preferred to stay with the other three fasters at House of the Way, a Catholic community center, Ms. Knowlton said.

Board OKs sale of state land

BOISE (UPI) — The State Land Board ordered 16 parcels of state land sold Monday, part of a plan to divert the state out of its agricultural acreage. The land, mostly in Madison County, totals about 7,900 acres of farmland, wasteland and improvements valued at about $2 million. State Land Department Director Gordon Trombley said the land would be sold by the end of the year, "harrowing the bottom of the market falling out." He said the state is required by law to accept no less than the appraised value of the land at auction. Attorney General Jim Jones, a land board member, said selling the properties would bring in more revenue for the state than leasing it.

Latest hurricane peters out

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Chantal, headed for the chilly waters of the North Atlantic, was downgraded to a tropical storm Monday night and forecasters said it would die before threatening land. The storm, the third hurricane of the 1983 season, was a hazard only at most of its tropical stage in the Atlantic forecasters at the National Hurricane Center in Miami said. It was hundreds of miles away from major shipping lanes.

At 8:30 p.m. EDT, tropical storm Chantal was centered near latitude 33.0 north, longitude 54.0 west, or about 650 miles east northeast of Bermuda, forecasters said.

The storm was moving toward the northeast at 10 mph and was expected to continue in that direction. Chantal's maximum sustained winds were 70 mph — 4 mph less than necessary for a storm to be classified a hurricane.

Test tube twins doing well

HOUSTON (UPI) — The first set of test tube baby twins born in Houston cuddled in their mother's arms Monday, but slept through their first public appearance since their birth on Friday. "They are healthy, very different, but look like each other," said their 36-year-old mother Kay, who asked that the family's last name not be published. "I've been blessed." The blond-haired boys, Blake and Bruce, were the first set of twins born through the in vitro fertilization program at the University of Texas Medical School in Houston. The program began in July 1981. The first baby in the program was born in February 1983.

Attack wounds five students

COMPTON, Calif. (UPI) — Five students were shot and wounded Monday by attackers who fired into a crowd of youths during the first day of classes at a high school in a violent police called an apparent gang dispute. The victims of the noon hour shooting at Manuel Dominguez High School were four girls and a boy, ranging in ages from 15 to 17.

The most seriously wounded victims were Rosalyn Kelly, 16, shot in the back, and Adrian Bralstford, 15, shot through the neck.

The other three students were treated at Dominguez Valley Community Hospital for less serious wounds in the foot, ankle and buttocks.

Sheriff's deputies and school security guards arrested six youths on charges of assault with a deadly weapon. Officers said two of the suspects were carrying handguns, and authorities also confiscated a .22-caliber rifle.

Pair faces murder charges

CALDWELL, (UPI) — A Sept. 21 preliminary hearing date was set Monday at an arraignment for Donald Fetterly and Karla Windsor, both accused of first-degree murder in the stabbing death of 45-year-old Sterling Grammer.

Third District Magistrate Judge Marvin Cherin appointed a public defender to represent the couple. He also informed Fetterly that a Twin Falls County arrest warrant is pending against him on a charge of writing a check with insufficient funds.

Canyon County Prosecutor Richard Harris said the couple had been threatened from jail several days before the slaying on charges of fraudulent use of a credit card. An Oct. 4 hearing was scheduled for the couple on the credit card charge.

Harris said Fetterly, 26, has "a long, extensive record." He said Fetterly and Ms. Windsor, 27, were both unemployed and living together in Caldwell.

Burgers killing rain forests

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — University of Michigan researchers say there is a direct link between America's love of fast-food hamburgers and the destruction of rain forests in Central and South America. "Tropical rain forests in Central and South America are being cleared to provide room for grazing cattle," Richard A. Block, lecturer in the U-M School of Natural Resources said Monday. "The cheaper beef is then exported to the United States where the principal buyers are fast-food chains." "What makes this even more tragic is that the cleared land can only support grazing for a short duration. In a matter of years, the cattle producers must clear additional rain forests because the nutrients in the soil are so quickly depleted."

Marines may call air strikes

— WASHINGTON (UPI) — There were widespread reports Monday night that President Reagan has authorized Marines in Beirut to call in air strikes against forces shelling their positions, if necessary. But some administration officials said they don't believe Reagan has gone that far. One top official confirmed there were several meetings about the subject over the weekend, but said he did not recall the president giving that kind of broad authority to the Marine commander in Beirut.

"I don't believe that's true," the White House official said, adding that administration executives and national security officials mainly discussed contingency plans during the weekend. Numerous reports said the president was being urged to consider such an authorization by Robert McFarlane, Reagan's special envoy in the Middle East. Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, asked about reports McFarlane had urged Reagan to consider authorizing air strikes if needed, said: "No decision has been reached." Other sources said they did not believe there was any such specific presidential order or authorization made over the weekend. The White House declined comment Monday night "on specific contingencies that might arise" in the defense of the Marines. However, spokesman C. Anson Franklin pointed out: "The commander is authorized to use the means within his command to defend his mission. He can also call for additional support."

in recent months to woo their support, in part to offset his low standing among blacks. Sensitive to accusations of political exploitation from some Hispanic leaders, Reagan noted Ms. Ortega is a certified public accountant and was California's first woman bank president. "So," he said, "you can see that she's being nominated not because she's Hispanic, but because she's highly qualified." "I am honored that she is to become a part of my administration," Reagan said, pointing to the 125-plus Hispanic appointees now in the administration and adding that "another 20 or 25 soon will be named." Ms. Ortega, her voice choked with emotion, accepted the nomination "with a deep sense of joy, pride and gratitude." The Tularosa, N.M., native said she "was born a Republican" and praised Reagan for policies that ensure "progress through initiative, resourcefulness and equal economic opportunity." In the $63,000-a-year job, Ms. Ortega would be one of the most visible Hispanics in the Reagan administration, although her responsibilities would be limited. She would succeed Angela Buchanan, who resigned. The largely ceremonial treasurer's post was expanded under Ms. Buchanan, who served as treasurer of the 1980 Reagan campaign. In the 1980 campaign of the U.S. Mint and Bureau of Engraving and Printing. Ms. Ortega would be the second Hispanic woman to hold the post. The first, Romana Acosta Banales, served in the Nixon and Ford administrations. Reagan's schedule for the next few days includes nearly a half-dozen sessions with Hispanic religious leaders, reporters, servicemen and educators. He will attend a dinner Wednesday with Hispanic Republicans. White House officials said their polls show the effort is paying off. Reagan's strategists believe he will need to carry about 35 percent of the Hispanic vote if he is to win reelection next year. Ms. Ortega, a graduate of Eastern New Mexico University, became president of the Santa Ana, Calif., State Bank in 1975. She had been vice president and cashier of the Pan American National Bank in Los Angeles from 1972 to 1976. Reagan also spoke Monday to several hundred officials of small towns and townships gathered for their annual conference, and pledged his continued support for the general revenue sharing program.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill after talking with Reagan chief of staff James Baker, spoke of "showing leadership" to members of Congress and the White House. Senate Republican leader Howard Baker said he has the feeling a "new partnership" may be emerging between Capitol Hill and the White House. "I sense that in conversation with the president, I sense that in conversations with those members of the Senate that I have had an opportunity to visit with," he said. O'Neill, Baker and Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd are firm in their positions that Reagan should not withdraw the Marines from Lebanon despite the increased hazards. O'Neill, D-Mass., said pulling out of Lebanon would be "the worst thing we could do" and would cause the rest of the world to lose faith and confidence in the United States. "I have no intention of having those troops pulled out under fire," said Byrd, R-Tenn. "I don't take them out. If it would send the wrong signal." Byrd, D-W.Va., told reporters, "I don't think we should pull out our troops today. Whatever we do, we should do it in cooperation with the members of the multinational peace force." Byrd said he "doesn't think Congress will jerk the rug out from under you. I don't think Congress will pull out the troops now." O'Neill and Byrd have advocated that Reagan report to Congress under the war powers act, but he has no far declined. Baker said Reagan will consider the possibility this week. "I'm not ruling that I will suggest to the president that he file under the war powers act, but there are other options," Baker said, adding that invoking the measure could have the advantage of becoming a "bipartisan statement of massive support."

The evening stars are Mercury, Jupiter and Saturn. Those born on this date are under the sign of Virgo. They face the "Black Jack" Pershing, an illustrious American general of World War I and Jacqueline Bisset in 1946. On this date in history: In 1776, in the French and Indian War, the British defeated the French on the Plains of Abraham overlooking the city of Quebec.

In 1788, Congress authorized the first U.S. national election, to be held "the first Wednesday in January next (1789)." In 1955, the Federated German Republic (West Germany) and the Soviet Union established diplomatic relations, the first since the end of World War II. In 1971, New York state forces stormed and regained control of Attica state prison. Twenty-eight convicts and nine hostages held were killed. Pentagon: Congress crippling policy

By RICHARD C. GROSS
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration's Congress Monday of crippling its policy in Central America and warned the "locking votes" could lead to a U.S.-Soviet partition of the region requiring a permanent U.S. military presence there.

The criticism came from Fred Ikle, who is undersecretary of defense for policy, in the Pentagon's No. 30 office.

"If we are merely involved to fail, then we should not be involved at all," said Ikle, who loosed a barrage of some of the toughest language directed by the administration at Congress on foreign policy in remarks prepared for delivery to the Baltimore

Council on Foreign Affairs in Baltimore, Md. The text was released at the Pentagon.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger, who toured three Central American countries last week and returned convinced of their need for more U.S. military and economic aid, helped prepare the most forthright policy statement thus far on the U.S. response to what is viewed as the Nicaraguan export of Marxist insurgency on the isthmus.

Ikle took issue with a House vote, July 29 that denied money for the CIA to finance covert operations against the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua by rebel forces allied to the United States and based largely in neighboring Honduras, where U.S. advisers are training Salvadoran troops.

"The president's policy for Central America has not yet been given a chance to work," he said. "The blocking votes in Congress have denied the president the means to succeed."

"As long as Congress keeps crippling the president's military assistance program, we will have a policy always shy of success," Ikle said. "We will remain locked into protracted failure."

He said the cutoff of money to the "democratic resistance forces in Nicaragua" would deliver a "psychological impact" because it would signal a win for the "totalitarian Leninist forces" who could attack the guerrillas from "safe havens that would be protected by the U.S. Congress."

"Congressional legislation to deny U.S. support to the democratic resistance forces in Nicaragua would turn Nicaragua into a sanctuary from which the nations of Central America could be safely attacked but in which U.S.-supported forces could not operate," the undersecretary said.

Court ruling backs milk producer tax

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI) — A federal appeals court ruling Monday in favor of a tax on milk production will force the closure of small dairy farms and result in an increase in the price of milk — in the supermarket, agriculture officials said.

A three-judge panel of the 4th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruled in favor of the tax aimed at cutting milk production and offsetting some of the $2.3 billion price-support program.

The panel said U.S. Agriculture Secretary John Block complied with federal regulations when he implemented the assessment and the regulations are constitutional.

The decision rebuffed attempts by the state of South Carolina and groups representing about 35 percent of the nation's dairy farmers to eliminate the initial 18-cent fee imposed on each hundred pounds of milk produced. A second 50-cent assessment took effect Sept. 1, pushing the total fee to 51.

Leslie Tindal, South Carolina agriculture commissioner, said a decision would be made later this week on whether to appeal to the Supreme Court.

Dairy and agriculture officials in other states said the court's decision would close some farms and eventually increase the price of milk because farmers will pass the tax on to the consumer.

"Very obviously, unless Congress addresses this issue immediately we're going to have a lot of farmers going broke," said Tommy Irvin, Georgia agriculture commissioner. "Projections are that as many as 10 percent of our farmers will be on the border line of going broke because of this tax."

William Moore, executive director of the Georgia Milk Producers Association, said the $1 fee "will cost the average milk producer about $1,200 per month and that's going to put some people out of business."

Moore said the fee will force an increase in the price of milk.

Pressure ends St. Louis teacher strike

By LLOYD SCHWED
United Press International

St. Louis teachers, bowing to a federal judge's back-to-work order and threats of mass firings by the school board, Monday ended their 4-day-old strike, but strikes elsewhere kept 100,000 students on extended vacations.

In addition to the return to work in St. Louis, tentative contract agreements were reached this week at small districts in Washington State, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island, and negotiations resumed Monday in hopes of averting a strike in the giant Boston public school system.

Over 100,000 students, however, remained on extended vacations due to teachers strikes in Illinois, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Washington State, Pennsylvania and Michigan.

Michigan was the hardest hit state with nearly 4,000 teachers in 17 districts. Officials in three districts said they may begin firing strikers.

The announcement of the end of the strike in St. Louis at midday came as a surprise. Teachers walked out last Thursday when contract negotiations broke down, and throughout the morning Monday had talked tough about ignoring the back-to-work order by a U.S. district judge and in defiance of the threat of mass firings by the St. Louis school and union officials announce agreement.

school board. Superintendent of Schools Jerome B. Jones and Evelyn Battle White, president of Local 420 of the American Federation of Teachers, made the joint announcement of the strike's end. "The teachers will be back in the classroom tomorrow," said School Board spokeswoman Marge Polcyn. "We have always wanted to get back to negotiations and resolve the issues," said Ms. White. "I'm very optimistic that we will be able to resolve the problems."

School for St. Louis' 56,000 students remained open during the strike, with non-striking teachers and supervisory personnel filling in, but less than half the students attended Friday.

In Washington State, a tentative contract agreement was reached early Monday with striking teachers in the 12,200-student Renton School District. Another was reached late Sunday in the 2,900-student Snoqualmie Valley School District.

A three-day strike by 210 teachers in Pennsylvania's Cornwall-Lebanon School District ended Saturday, but details of the contract were not announced.

A walkout in South Kingston, R.I. — one of three strikes in the state — was settled last weekend when clerical workers voted to accept a 7 percent pay increase. Teachers had honored the workers' picket lines since the strike began last week.

In Boston, negotiations resumed Monday in hopes of averting a strike of the city's 50,000 public school teachers. Negotiations entered their second straight week without a contract, with the two sides reportedly divided over major issues such as pay, seniority, benefits, class size, work-time and performance evaluations.

Reagan seeks to remove technology barriers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — With an eye toward boosting American competitiveness, President Reagan Monday proposed legislation that would free U.S. companies to band together in pursuit of technological advances.

Reagan, in a message to Congress, proposed a series of changes in federal antitrust, patent and copyright laws — to encourage greater investments of time, effort and money in developing new technologies.

A White House background paper underscored the importance of "removing the legal barriers to identifying and protecting the rights of innovators to their legitimate financial rewards."

In an apparent bid to defuse expected criticism, Reagan stressed the effort to loosen the reins on industry is coupled with a continuing commitment "to protect the interests of American consumers."

The proposal comes at a time of widespread reassessment of the U.S. industrial position, especially the technological strides that Reagan credited for nearly half the increase in U.S. productivity in the last 50 years.

The White House unveiled the proposed legislation as Reagan formally charged his Presidential Commission on Industrial Competitiveness, which he created Aug. 1 to study the competitive position of American industry.

Amid talk of joint projects to surge ahead of "U.S. competitors" — especially the Japanese — in computer technology and new-generation electronics, Reagan said the economic importance of technological development "is difficult to overstate."

Report links Vesco to drug trade

CHICAGO (UPI) — Robert Vesco, the fugitive financier who fled the United States in 1972 with about $60 million in cash, now operates as a middleman between the Cuban government and major drug traffickers, the Chicago Tribune said Monday.

"The connection between Vesco's operation and South American drug-exporting operations; federal officials say, is Carlos Lehder, flamboyant leader — who Drug Enforcement Administration officials believe to be one of the largest of the cocaine 'm-fias' flooding the American market with the illegal drug," the Tribune said.

It said Vesco told a congressional official of his drug link in a recent conversation.

A lawyer representing clients seeking to recover about $24 million in assets that vanished when Vesco fled under indictment in a mutual-funds fraud case, speculated that Vesco turned to cocaine trading because he was running out of money.

The congressional official, who requested anonymity, said the links and sporadic contact with Vesco. The officials said he was told by Vesco that he uses his contacts — with Nicaraguan leftists and Cubans to arrange for drug smugglers to buy back drugs confiscated from airlift ships and planes en route from Bolivia or Columbia to the United States.

Vesco is apparently based out of an island in the Bahamas called Norman's Cay, about 200 miles from Florida.

Last week, NBC News reported Vesco was operating a major cocaine smuggling operation from the island and that top American diplomats had hampered the FBI's effort to arrest Vesco on drug charges.

Ted Swift, a spokesman for the DEA, declined to comment on the report.

Man admits jail torture

HOUSTON (UPI) — A former rural southern county deputy charged with violating prisoners' rights Monday testified he poured water over the face of a restrained prisoner to make the man confess.

Floyd A. Baker, in the first admission of such activity by one of four defendants in the federal civil rights trial, said he gave prisoner Kevin Coffman the water treatment inside the San Jacinto County sheriff's department in 1979 on orders of former Sheriff James "Humpty" Parker and former chief deputy Carl Lee.

"Carl Lee handcuffed Coffman and placed a towel around his face," Baker said.

"Carl Lee pulled him back and (John) Glover handed me a pan of water and said pour," Baker said.

Baker added he took the pan and poured about one-half gallon of water from it on to Coffman's face.

"I was doing what I was told," Baker said.

He later said he did not morally condone the action but had been brought up by his parents not to question authorities.

Six prisoners have testified in the 2-week-old trial that they were tortured. Water poured over a towel draped over their faces gave them a sensation of being drowned, they said.

Baker was the second defendant to take the witness stand. Former deputy Carl Lee, denied taking part in torturous incidents testified by the six prisoners. Parker, and former deputy John Glover, have rested their cases without testifying.

'Trauma' centers could save our lives

We're used to thinking of hospital emergency rooms as front-line facilities in the treatment of seriously injured persons, the place to which we rush patients following all serious accidents.

So it's particularly disturbing to learn that the care in such centers may not be as good as we think. Dr. Donald Trunkey, the chief of surgery at San Francisco General Hospital, says thousands of lives are being lost every year because so-called "emergency" rooms aren't adequate.

In many emergency rooms, he says, surgeons and anesthesiologists are not available in the critical few minutes following a patient's arrival. One study shows that it takes up to an hour and 15 minutes for such personnel to arrive, and by then, it is too late for many patients.

Trunkey proposes the establishment of a national network of regional "trauma" centers, designed and staffed to handle victims of accidents in which there are injuries and wounds.

An estimated 165,000 Americans die each year of trauma injuries, and twice that many more are permanently disabled. No one knows exactly how many lives could be saved through a system of trauma centers, but Trunkey estimates the figure could be 24,000.

Perhaps most attractively, he notes, the centers could be established with little additional cost, nor with not many more surgeons and anesthesiologists than the nation now has.

The problem is particularly acute in rural areas, where the level of medical care varies greatly from facility to facility.

Given the large number of people who are injured yearly in accidents, Trunkey is right to call attention to the problem. If it is something local hospital boards and state health departments might consider, as they try to map both community and regional health care.

Letters

Taxpayers have had it

It isn't hard to imagine that many of us won't be able to keep our parents in a nursing home at $1,000 plus a month's cost and still be able to support ourselves and our offspring. But do you realize how many parents, of other people, we are also supporting through tax breaks?

Many individuals go so far as to have their parents get divorces where the one will have no money or property, so the taxpayers foot the bill. Then when their last parent has to go to the nursing home, they have them sign their property over to them so the taxpayers will support the remaining parent, also. These are the people who have the money to buy new cars, pick-ups, camp trailers and summer homes at the taxpayer's expense, so the pleader that takes care of his own does without.

Also, I wonder where the teachers, public officials etc. figure all the money is going to come from for all their raises. Even our illustrious Al Brewster, of another of our tax protest groups, wants to deprive the farmers and ranchers of their sales tax exemptions on machinery and repairs. Personally, I believe our taxpayers have about had it. Too many of our farmers and ranchers are going broke and many more will be following the same road till our food supplies will become an endangered species.

Governor Evans, on his education binge, is sickening. If the taxpayer doesn't have the money, how can they pay everyone more money?

It would be nice if farmers and ranchers could get a raise on the receiving end instead of the giving end.

Watch out for Sen. Jim McClure, with his present sympathy for preservation of our public lands after election, as he's being heavily financed in his bid for re-election.

Unions' role assessed

Regarding your editorial of Friday on teachers and their bargaining rights.

With all their faults, trade unions (including teachers' unions) have done more for humanity than any other organization of man that ever existed. They have done more for decency, for honesty, for education, for the betterment of the race, for the developing of character in man, than any other association of men.

Company wins over hearts in squeeze

As if we didn't have enough trouble in American business, Elize Collins has just written in the Harvard Business Review that more and more love affairs are taking place in the executive echelons of our nation's corporations.

In the past these affairs have been between the male boss and his secretary, but as more females climb up the management ladder, they are now taking place between high-level executives of both sexes.

According to Ms. Collins these affairs are playing havoc with other employees, because they don't know if a management couple, in love, is making decisions for the good of the company or for each other.

The organizational and emotional turmoil pervades everyone from underlings to superiors, and the normal double-crossing atmosphere in the corporation is replaced by distrust, jealousy and back-biting.

Ms. Collins offers a tough solution to the problem. Companies must regard love affairs between their executives as conflicts of interest, and she proposes that the person who is least essential to the firm be asked to leave. She writes that in the male corporate world this is likely to be the woman. But, she adds, if both parties are of equal value, it is the man who should be canned to avoid a sex discrimination suit against the company.

Bosses, Ms. Collins says, must take a strong stand, because the company always comes first.

Art Buchwald

Yet there is another solution that Ms. Collins doesn't suggest, which could save both jobs.

Let me give you a scenario.

The chief executive of Kiss & Tel calls in two vice presidents.

"Miss Smart, Mr. Duff, rumor has it that the two of you are very much in love."

"Where did you get that idea, J. T.?" Duff asks.

"Well, for one thing Miss Smart is running her hand through your hair while I'm talking to you."

Miss Smart says, "It's true, J.T., Arthur and I are crazy about each other. But we don't fool around on company time."

"That's not the point," J.T. says. "The entire conglomerate knows about it and it's causing a real morale problem. Even our Singapore office thinks you two are plotting against them."

Duff says, "That's ridiculous. Our division has never been in better shape since we've fallen in love. We're the only executives in the company who game plan corporate strategy in bed."

"Nevertheless, Duff, I must take a strong stand on this issue. According to management policy the least essential of the two of you must go."

"You can't do that to Arthur," Miss Smart yells.

"What do you mean, me?" Duff cries. "I'm more essential than you are. I was responsible for the takeover of the Brett Pine Tar Company."

"After I showed you how you could do it, by selling off our Mt. Saint Helen's Real Estate subsidiary."

"Are you trying to tell me your job means more to you than our love?" Duff says.

"I can always fall in love," Miss Smart says.

"But I worked too hard to get where I am in this company to throw it away now."

"I should have known you were a ruthless broad when you closed down Scranton, Pennsylvania. You can move out of the apartment tonight."

"It will be my pleasure, and from now on you can write your own reports. Let's see how long you last with the company on your own."

"I should have known this conversation even I assume the love affair between the two of you is over, and you will both start behaving like grown-up dog-eat-dog executives?"

"You bet your sweet life, J.T.," Duff says.

"Then the problem is solved and the two of you can stay. I'm proud of both of you. When I came to shove you chose the company over your hearts. That's the kind of managers I want playing on my team."

Guilt is where the big money is found

WASHINGTON — For a nation teetering on the brink of economic recovery, this is bad news. Bantam Books is bringing out a paperback called "Dare To Be Dull."

The book is aimed at Americans who are weary "of being trendy and yearning to be Out Of It."

As a publisher's blurb puts it: "... for all of those who are tired of dressing for success, having relationships instead of marriages, and eating bizarre health foods, when, in their heart of hearts, they really like macaroni and cheese."

That might seem like a relatively narrow audience, but what spirit is the book could have if it became a best-seller.

Next out could be a book called "Dare To Be Bald." And there would go a big slice of the millions of dollars spent each year on shampoos and other scalp preparations acquired in the desperate hope of stopping one's hair from disappearing.

Then the fashion industry might receive its lumps from "Dare To Be Dowdy," for women, and "Dare To Be Seedy," for men.

I can see it all now — females flaunting style decrees by wearing last year's macaroni when male are in vogue, men sticking with double-knit Nehru jackets when worsted jump suits are supposed to be the cat's pajamas.

Countless psychiatrists could be forced out of business by such books as "Dare To Be Zorro" and "Dare To Be Schmidt."

Why, phobias alone could supply enough material for a new five-foot shelf.

Moreover, publishers could stop "new wave" music in its (eight) tracks. Picture the impact on rock bands, concert impresarios and record companies of such titles as "Dare To Be Funky," and "Dare To Be Schmidt."

Remember a few years back when "assessiveness training" was all the rage?

Dozens of programs were developed to help people develop more positive mental attitudes.

Institutes that specialized in returning blushing personalities were almost as common as pizza parlors are today.

I don't know how much cash was extracted from well-heeled doormats, but if that trend had been retarded by books like "Dare To Be Mousy" and "Dare To Be Sheepish," America's most recent recession might have arrived several years earlier.

I once knew a public relations agent who liked to brag that he was "the biggest bore" in the National Press Club. That is the kind of spirit that endangers the fiscal well-being of us all. Frankly, several other club members were more boring than he was.

The fact is that guilt is where the money is. Any country that makes its citizens feel contrite about having paunches, flaky scalps or rough skin is well on the road to riches.

When financial reverses threaten, dare to be illiterate.

First the barrage, then GAO's report, then virtual silence

WASHINGTON — Let me ask you to look back, if you will, to a period of about eight days in December, 1982, when The Washington Post led an attack against members of the board of directors of the Legal Services Corporation.

The attack had all the trappings of an artillery barrage: smoke and fire and thunderous noise. While it lasted, the assault was deafening.

This was the substance of the Post's news stories and editorial comment — that the 10 Reagan appointees named by President Reagan on Feb. 11, 1983, were "fat fees" for their services; that these fees were collected at a rate "at least twice as large as those paid to any previous board."

There were juicy tidbits and sidebars. The Post centered its fire on board chairman William F. Harvey. He had turned in an expense account for driving to Washington from his home in Indianapolis; the Post thought he should have traveled by air instead. The Post huffed with outrage at a bill Harvey had submitted for cab fares. The Post, breathing heavily, charged that Harvey had flogged the election as LSC president of his former student and protégé, Donald F. Bogard, and had rewarded Bogard with a sweetheart contract of unprecedented generosity. The contract included a clause that — gasp! — covered dues for Bogard in a private club of his choice.

"It is disgusting," said a Post editorial. The New York Times, playing pigtail, chimed in; the Reagan appointees were "chiseling on the poor."

Very well. All this, as I say, was in mid-December of 1982, just as the 97th Congress was ending its lame-duck session. The Post's barrage served a tactical purpose: It diverted attention from a "continuing resolution" affecting the Legal Services Corporation that otherwise might have been examined critically.

The effect of the resolution was to freeze LSC contracts for two years, thus preventing any board and any president from imposing any significant reforms. The Reagan appointees, ever having been confirmed by the Senate, were going out of office; they were too busy defending themselves from charges that they were, in a word, crooks.

Now let me direct your attention, if I may, to Aug. 31 of this year, just two weeks ago. Eight months had passed since the Post had its glorious day at the races. Senators Kennedy of Massachusetts and Welcher of Connecticut had demanded that the General Accounting Office investigate the charges raised by the Post. The GAO had done its job. Its final report was released.

The report vindicated the Reagan appointees absolutely. True, their collective fees in 1982 were larger than the fees paid to Carter board members in 1981, but there were good reasons for this: The Reagan board met 27 times; the Carter board met only 12 times; and besides, Congress meanwhile had raised the per diem rate by 15 percent.

The GAO concluded that Harvey had done nothing wrong at any point; he had not flouted Bogard's election as LSC president and the contract provisions for Bogard were comparable to those of his predecessors.

The GAO report made other points. Far from padding their expense accounts, the Reagan appointees had not asked for even the reimbursements lawfully due them. Harvey, for example, did not put in for $1,400 covering 62 hours of work on LSC tests.

Another Reagan appointee, Washington lawyer William J. Olson, similarly had declined to seek reimbursement for 12 days of his time.

Compared to other government corporations, the Legal Services Corporation had provided almost a model of prudence and economy. The GAO recommended some minor internal controls on expense accounts in the future, but gave the Reagan appointees — all of them now departed — a clean bill of health.

This was on the morning of Aug. 31. The New York Times gave the GAO report a grudging eight paragraphs on page A-21 on the morning of Sept. 1.

The first paragraph reported the GAO's finding that the Reagan members "had acted properly." The second paragraph reported the finding that "several board members could have claimed more than they did."

Paragraphs three and four were background. Paragraphs five, six and seven dwelled upon the GAO's suggestion for internal controls. Paragraph eight was more background.

The Washington Post carried not one single word.

James Kilpatrick writes his column, "A Conservative View," from Washington.

Soviets shoot down U.N. resolution

By JULIE BROSSY
United Press International

The Soviet Union vetoed a Security Council resolution Monday that "decisively deplores" the destruction of a Korean airliner and the chief of the United Nations warned the shooting may cause an "international storm too great for us to weather."

Moscow also expelled a U.S. diplomat and his wife to employment at the U.S. Consulate in Leningrad on charges they were spies. But a U.S. Embassy spokesman in Moscow charged "the timing of the incident speaks for itself."

More countries joined the international boycott on air travel to the Soviet Union to protest the attack 12 days ago that killed 269 people aboard Korean Air Line Flight 007.

The official Tass news agency said Vice Consul Lon David Augustenberg and his wife Denise were caught spying. Washington "vigorously" protested what it called the mistreatment of the couple and revealed that two Soviet air attaches were expelled from the United States last month.

At the U.N., the United States managed to secure enough support from allies for a 9-2 vote in the 15-member body, with four abstentions on the resolution, which had been watered down to attract as much support as possible.

Jeanne Kirkpatrick watches as John Thomson of Britain votes for the resolution

The United States, Britain, France, Netherlands, Malta, Zaire, Togo, Pakistan and Jordan, voted for the resolution. China, Zimbabwe, Nicaragua and Guyana abstained. Soviet Union and Poland voted against.

The Soviet Union is one of five permanent members of the Council with the power to veto any resolution. Soviet Ambassador Oleg Troyanovsky repeated Moscow charges that the Korean airliner was on a "pre-planned spy mission" over Russian territory when it was shot down.

Before the vote, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar warned in a report to the General Assembly that the momentum of international diplomacy must be regained or the world risked "being caught, immobile and in the open, in a new international storm too great for us to weather."

The attack "points dramatically to the urgent need for more open and ready communications between all sides ... in order to create an environment in which the use of force would be unthinkable," Perez de Cuellar said.

Along Japan's 200-mile coastline facing the Sea of Okhotsk, searchers found parts of two more bodies and 35 pieces of debris from the Korean Air Lines flight.

Among the wreckage, which included shoes and part of a seat, was a business card belonging to Mason Chang of Taichung, Taiwan, police said. Chang was listed as a passenger aboard the aircraft.

Commission stops probe of murder

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — A government commission, accused of bias by opposition leaders, suspended its investigation Monday into the assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

The announcement came as a White House advance team began meeting with Filipino officials to prepare for President Reagan's planned November trip despite warnings the visit could be "very dangerous."

The five-member commission appointed by President Ferdinand Marcos unanimously decided to call off the probe into Aquino's Aug 21 slaying until the Supreme Court rules on petitions charging the probe is biased.

The commission member Julio Villamor said, "It was the best thing the commission could have done." Villamor said.

Opposition leaders charged the commission was biased in favor of Marcos. Aquino appointed its members to investigate Aquino's slaying at the Manila International airport only moments after his arrival from the United States.

Authorities said students in at least 10 universities walked off their classes at midday as part of a planned passive resistance campaign against the government of President Ferdinand Marcos.

In some schools, teachers were absent, forcing the cancellation of classes. "Stay at home Sept. 12 and participate in the standstill movement for Ninoy Aquino," said leaflets distributed on campuses. Ninoy was Aquino's nickname.

The 30-member White House advance planning team led by Michael McManus, assistant to the president, held talks with Filipino officials and surveyed the presidential palace where Reagan will stay during his November visit.

The team also inspected the seaside Rizal Park and the American Memorial Cemetery at the Fort Bonifacio army camp where Reagan was to make his only public appearance, a government television report said. Reagan's stop in the Philippines will be part of a five-nation tour of Asia. Opponents of the Marcos regime have urged him to cancel the trip to protest the killing of Aquino but so far there has been no change of plans.

Indian floods and landslides claim 180 people

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Raging floods and landslides touched off by heavy rains killed more than 180 people Monday, washing away a bus packed with 80 passengers and collapsing a seven-story building.

All rail service was suspended in northeastern Assam after floodwaters from the Aie and other rivers inundated vast areas of the state noted for tea plantations and jungles.

Helicopters swooped down to rescue 600 people clinging to a Hindu temple submerged by floods unleashed by a heavy downpour in central Madhya Pradesh, officials at the state capital of Bhopal said.

In southern Karnataka state, a seven-story building under construction in the capital of Bangalore collapsed under a torrent of rain, killing at least 40 people and injuring more than 70 others.

Rescue workers in the Morena district of Madhya Pradesh, 175 miles south of New Delhi, recovered the bodies of 44 of an estimated 100 passengers of a state government bus that was swept away by floods, officials said.

The bus, with some passengers sitting on the roof, tumbled off a partially submerged bridge into the Kuwai river after one of its wheels struck a hole in the bridge, officials said.

The bus was empty when search parties pulled it from the river early today. Unofficial reports said the vehicle may have been carrying up to 125 people.

Official reports said at least 62 people were killed in floods and landslides in the Himalayan state of Sikkim, located on the Chinese border between the kingdoms of Nepal and Bhutan, since Saturday night.

Chile quiet after riots

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Opposition leaders Monday denounced a presidential pledge to restore democracy by 1983 and blamed police for 10 deaths during four straight days of anti-government protest.

"We have seen new and shameful violations of human rights, and even crime," said Alejandro Hales, former Christian Democratic minister of mining, blaming "institutionalized violence and police provocation" for the killings.

The Democratic Alliance, which has held five nationwide protests that left 42 people dead—the last five months, demanded Pinochet resign, establish a provisional government and hold free elections within 18 months.

Last week, they broke off talks with civilian Interior Minister Sergio Onofre Jarpa because they said Pinochet refused to offer a satisfactory timetable for a return to democratic rule.

Jarpa, a right-wing politician charged with the task of liberalizing the military regime, has taken steps to legalize political parties and stop up the repatriation of political exiles.

Methane gas explosion leaves 64 miners dead

HLOBANE, South Africa (UPI) — A fiery methane-gas explosion tore through a coal mine in Natal province Monday, killing 64 miners and injuring 10 others in one of South Africa's worst mining disasters.

Four of those injured were ferried by helicopter to the Chamber of Mines Hospital in Johannesburg and reported in serious condition.

Despite the accident, production was back to normal within hours at the Hlobane mine, owned by the state-run Iron and Steel Corp.

"We had to persuade some of the afternoon shift to go down," said Jurie Blom, a manager at the mine 200 miles southeast of Johannesburg. "We don't like to do it but we have to produce."

Officials said they suspect the blast was caused by a spark from a mining tool that ignited an immense buildup of natural gas as 80 miners were working two sections of a horizontal seam cut a miles into a mountainside.

"A coal dust explosion would have caused more extensive damage and spread throughout the mine," Blom said.

Blom said all but three of the victims were blacks, mainly Zulu contract workers.

"The people who died were literally burnt away," Blom said. "The people who survived are pretty badly burnt too."

Ambulances and emergency teams from nearby mines rushed to Hlobane to help in rescue work.

Islanders vote to end U.S. rule

MAJURO, Marshall Islands (UPI) — Marshall Islanders voted to end 36 years of U.S. rule over the 24 atolls of the Micronesian nation, incomplete returns showed Monday.

With nearly 60 percent of the vote tabulated, residents of the central Pacific republic had approved the "Compact of Free Association" by a 3,354 to 2,337 vote, or 58 percent in favor, in the Sept. 7 plebiscite.

The agreement, if approved by the Marshall Islanders and ratified by the U.S. Congress, will give the 33,000 people of the central Pacific nation complete independence from the United States except in defense matters.

Mom can afford a live-in attendant

DEAR ABBY: My mother, who is 85 years old, is falling in health and fast approaching the time when she can no longer live alone. She has over $100,000 in savings, but she refuses to spend a dime of it because she wants to leave an "inheritance."

I am willing to take her into my home, although it is too small to accommodate three people comfortably. My husband is opposed to giving up our privacy and thinks my mother should spend her money on the care she needs.

We have no designs on her savings, and I agree with my husband that no amount of money is worth sacrificing our privacy. But Abby, how can I turn my back on my mother if she insists on living with me?

She regards all nursing facilities as "sties." I'm afraid if I recommend one she would interpret it as an act of abandonment. I am frustrated and upset worrying about this.

What is your advice?

— TORN IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR TORN: Since you can't accommodate her in your home and she can't afford to pay for her own care, suggest that she employ a live-in attendant to look after her in her own home.

And — don't feel guilty. Every 85-year-old person should be so fortunate.

every night (I think you know what I mean). If it matters, we're both in our late 20s.

Recently, my husband started a great paying job.

Now the problem: Every two weeks he has to work swing shift, and he's exhausted when he gets home. I work from 7:30 a.m. until 4 p.m. and don't see him until he gets home around 2 a.m., so we don't have any time for lovemaking. We want to be more than just weekend lovers.

How do other couples manage their lives when they work overlapping shifts?

— NOT SWINGING WITH THE SWING SHIFT

problem.

We went to a friend's wedding (her second) and Mom was depressed the whole next day. She said, "You're so attractive, I can't understand why you can't find someone." I happened to mention that a patron of mine met her husband on a cruise. Immediately Mom said, "Go on a cruise!"

One day I may marry, but I'm not desperate. I was engaged twice, and thank God I didn't marry either one! I don't need a man for security or support. I own my own business and I'm independent. I'm alone, but I'm not lonely.

I like children, but I really wasn't cut out for motherhood. I like men, but am I going to get married to show the world I can get it thru — or make my mother happy?

Abby, please tell parents to enjoy their grown children for the people they are — not for what they want them to be.

Judge sentences tax protester to prison

BOISE (UPI) — A former railroad engineer from Pocatello has been ordered to spend one year in prison for refusing a judge's order to file federal income tax returns for two years in which his gross income averaged $33,500.

U.S. District Judge Marion Callister Monday revoked the parole of Clyde A. Pipkin, 68, who had been convicted in 1980 for failure to file a tax return from 1976.

In May 1980, Callister had placed Pipkin on five years' probation for failing to file a 1977 return on the conditions he file tax statements and pay the amounts due for both years.

After his 1980 appeal was rejected by the Ninth

Circuit Court of Appeals, Pipkin spent more than a year in prison and paid a $2,500 fine.

When Pipkin refused to comply with the probationary orders, Callister revoked the suspended sentence and ordered further imprisonment.

Deputy U.S. Attorney Warren Derbridge said Pipkin consistently refused to comply with Callister's May 1980 order.

"I think he wants to be a martyr, so we'll let him be one," Derbridge said. "I hope the revelation of this to the other tax protesters has some effect on them. But I really don't know if it will."

The former Union Pacific engineer, who acted as his own lawyer throughout the proceedings, admitted he earned $27,950 in 1976 and $29,437 the following year.

On Monday, Pipkin renewed his argument that the federal court did not have jurisdiction in the case, but Callister rejected that reasoning.

In his initial appeal, Pipkin challenged the right of Congress to enforce by criminal laws its power to levy and collect taxes.

That contention was rejected by U.S. Appeals Court judges in Oregon, who also denied Pipkin's allegation that the filing of income statements would violate his his Fifth Amendment right by making him testify against himself.

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — A 2-year-old boy died Monday from injuries he suffered Saturday after falling into an irrigation ditch, a hospital spokesman said.

The child was identified as Michael Olsen, the stepson of Brent Heath, Rigby.

Police said the boy fell into a ditch about eight miles north of Idaho Falls

Saturday evening. He was treated at the scene by paramedics, who then transported him to Riverview Hospital in Idaho Falls.

The boy showed only faint signs of life when he arrived at the hospital, and remained in critical condition until he died about 7:30 a.m. Monday, the spokesman said.

Right to Work Committee

Group says governor either hypocrite or stupid

BOISE (UPI) — The Idaho Freedom to Work Committee says Gov. John Evans was "either a shameless hypocrite or incredibly stupid" when he recently signed an executive order that contains language similar to a bill vetoed by the Democrat in 1982.

Louise Koontz, co-chairwoman of the organization opposed to mandatory union membership, said Monday the order signed by Evans on Labor Day bore a striking resemblance to a right-to-work bill rejected by the governor during the 1982 session.

Section 1 of the Labor Day order said, "Each employee of the state of Idaho has the right, freely and without threat of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist an employee organization or to refrain from any such activity, and each employee shall be protected in the exercise of this right."

Section 1 of a bill passed by the GOP-dominated Legislature in 1982, but vetoed by Evans, read, "It is hereby declared to be the public policy of Idaho that all persons shall have, and shall be protected in the exercise of the right, freely and without fear of penalty or reprisal, to form, join and assist labor organizations or to refrain from such activities."

Mrs. Koontz said the governor's action on Labor Day amounted to "blatant hypocrisy" because Evans does not support the right of employees to reject union membership.

She said Evans "is either a shameless hypocrite or incredibly stupid on this one."

But Pat Castella, the governor's staff lawyer, said Monday Mrs. Koontz misunderstands both current law on union membership and Evans' stand on the issue.

He said Evans does not favor compulsory union membership, but believes state workers who benefit from collective bargaining should share the cost of contract negotia-

Workers reject pact

NAMPA (UPI) — Union employees at Nampa's Armour Food Company plant have joined workers nationwide in rejecting a contract and vacation time, union leaders said Monday.

United Food and Commercial Workers Union local President Sam Miller said local union members voted against the contract last week by a 51-22 margin. Miller said the vote was no surprise.

"I think because of the past history of what these people have given up and the ongoing deterioration in what they have seen in the plant, there is a point where that person has to say enough is enough," Miller said.

Kathy Davidson, a spokesman at Armour's headquarters in Phoenix, Ariz., said there are no plans to continue negotiations for a new contract.

Ms. Davidson said workers at the 13 armour plant sites rejected the contract proposal in a vote Thursday, but a final tally was not released to the public.

The contract called for a reduction in the base pay for virtually all of the firm's employees to $8 per hour, down from $9.30 per hour.

Deputies snatch pot harvest

BOISE (UPI) Ada County Sheriff's Detectives confiscated an estimated $10,000 worth of marijuana plants and arrested three people in a weekend raid at a Boise home.

Detective Bandy Buzzini said a patrolman noticed the plants growing in the back yard of a home while on another call and notified detectives, who obtained a search warrant and confiscated the plants just "as they were in the process of cutting it out of the vegetable garden."

Arrested Saturday were David L. Gibson, 23, Rebecca S. Lamb, 31, and Richard W. Corbett Jr., 22. All were charged with manufacturing a controlled substance.

Report on education receives good reviews

By HARRIET GUTHERTZ
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Task Force on Higher Education came to Twin Falls last week to explain its preliminary blueprint for improving the state's colleges and universities.

Although only 17 persons attended the meeting, held at O'Leary Junior High School, they gave the report a warm reception.

"It's a superb report," said Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly. It probably will be difficult to implement, but all of the things don't have to be done overnight, he said.

The Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry spearheaded the drive to establish the task force. A group of 35 business, government and political leaders — including Jerry Meyerboeffer, the president of the College of Southern Idaho and John Forbes, the manager of the Tupperware plant in Jerome — spent the past year working on the preliminary report.

Key recommendations include developing a network of six community colleges; imposing admission standards at state universities, charging tuition and increasing faculty salaries.

The task force is in the process of holding a series of public hearings throughout the state, and it will incorporate the comments into the final report that will be presented to the governor, the State Board of Education and the Legislature.

Members of the task force say they realize that parts of the report, especially those related to building new community colleges and charging tuition at universities, are controversial, but they say they are determined to implement the proposals.

If the task force can gain the support of the Legislature, members will "go out and sell the package to the people," said John Clute, the chairman of the task force and a vice president at the Boise Cascade Co.

The state has to offer an excellent system of higher education, Clute said. It cannot afford not to, he said.

And that also means vocational education, Clute said.

Although top-rate vocational programs are expensive, Clute said they are essential to "attract some of the right kinds of businesses to Idaho." The programs will pay for themselves, he said.

"We want three first-class universities," he said. And that might mean cutting programs to end duplication. The state can only support a limited number of top-rate programs, Clute said.

If each university concentrated on a specialty, the state can have excellence, he said.

Clute also said that Idaho universities have to stop competing for students to maintain their levels of funding. Funding based on a body count is wrong, and the State Board of Education is moving away from that approach, he said.

Building a system of community colleges would allow the universities to impose admission standards, while maintaining access, he said.

The community colleges, along with the other proposals, will cost money, but House Speaker Tom Silvers, R-Twin Falls, said the state's revenue problems should ease as the economy improves.

Noh said expanding the community-college system would actually ease the property-tax burden for residents of Twin Falls and Jerome counties.

"It's so blatant, so unfair that three counties support the entire community-college network with property tax," he said.

Noh was speaking of Coeur d'Alene and the Northern Idaho College at Cassi d'Alene. Those community colleges are supported locally, while others in Boise and Idaho Falls are state-supported.

Cheryl Hymas of Jerome, a member of the State Board of Education, agreed with Noh. "It's time for the rest of the state to support junior colleges," she said, noting that she was speaking as a resident of Jerome and not for the state board.

Hymas also said that property-tax spending

Robbery suspects arrested

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls men were arrested Sunday night at a roadblock at the Perrino Bridge, after they allegedly robbed a grocery store.

Backhanded, the men, 21 and 24, Highland Ave., and Dennis Leo Major, 22, of 445 Quincy Ave., were arraigned Monday on armed robbery charges in Fifth District Magistrate Court.

According to the complaint filed against the men, they were stopped at about 10:19 p.m. Sunday, Beasley and Major entered Butrey's grocery in the Blue Lakes Mall and presented a note to clerk Janet Crockett, threatening bodily harm if she did not cooperate.

The two indicated that they were armed, and they demanded that the woman place money from the register into a paper bag, said Tim Qualls, the Twin Falls police chief. The amount of cash taken was not released to police.

The men then left the store, and headed east on foot. A description was broadcast by police and roadblocks were established, Qualls said Monday.

Less than an hour later, the suspects, driving a van, were stopped at the bridge by Twin Falls police and sheriff's deputies from Jerome and Twin Falls counties, Qualls said.

The money was recovered, he said. No weapon was found.

At the time of the arrest, Major was free on his own recognizance in a pending case involving the recent armed robbery of a Twin Falls convenience store, Qualls said.

The suspects are being held in the Twin Falls County Jail. Major is being held in lieu of $50,000 bond. A $10,000 bond has been set for Beasley.

Clinic delivers services

By DIANA HOOLEY
Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenn's Ferry-based Health Clinic is making an effort each month to provide a community service that is "very inexpensive or free," says Linda Terrell, the clinic manager.

During August, the clinic offered free "well-baby" physicals. The program this month is free flu vaccines, she says.

The clinic also will be sponsoring a benefit garage sale and dance this fall to raise money for a portable Life-Pak system for the city ambulance.

Terrell said last month's physicals were a "total success."

"I don't think we could have squeezed in one more appointment."

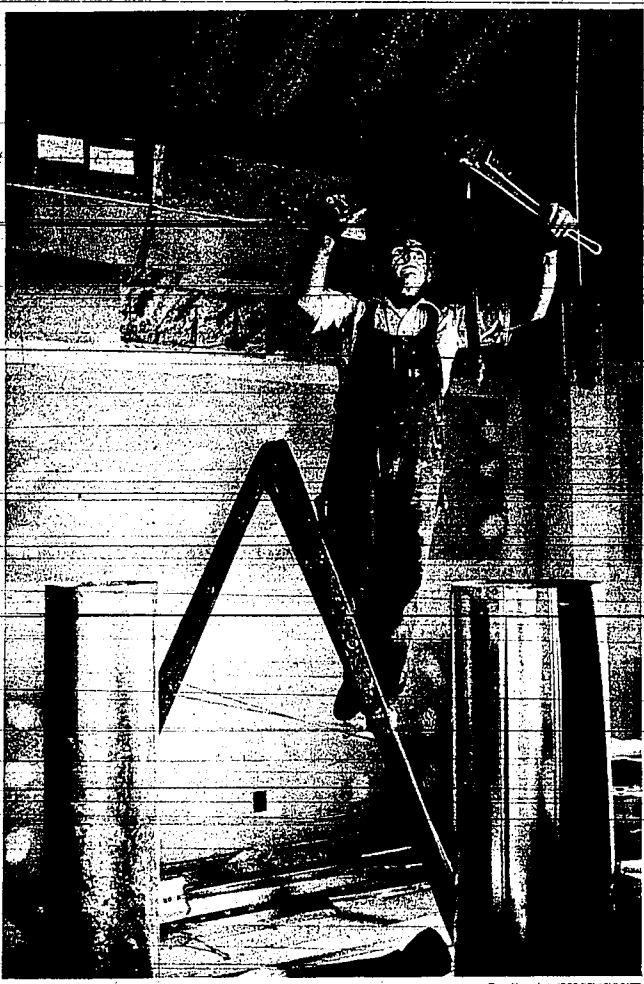

The physicals were done partly to introduce "the community to the clinic's new nurse-practitioner, Bob Porter, who practices in pediatrics."

The flu vaccines, Terrell says, basically will be geared to the elderly and those with serious or chronic conditions, like diabetes or kidney disease. However, Terrell says the vaccines also will be free to other community residents, but appointments should be made in advance.

The Life-Pak system the clinic wants to purchase costs $6,800, she says.

So far, she says, the clinic has raised a little more than $2,000 toward the purchase of the system. The community has been supportive of the cause, Terrell says. If anyone wants to make a donation, they should call the clinic.

The garage-sale benefit for the equipment is scheduled for Oct. 1 and 2 from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the home of John and Geri Herbert, 905 E. Garfield in Glenn's Ferry.

Ratepayer lawyer makes case on WPPSS issue

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Attorney Herman Bedke is back in his Burley office this week after his first skirmish in regional electric-power politics.

On Friday, Bedke flew to Seattle to take part in the ongoing regional debate over the Washington Public Power Supply System's troubled nuclear plants.

Bedke, representing a newly formed group of Mini-Cassia electrical consumers, testified against any new federal assistance to help the financially troubled power system. His testimony came at a U.S. Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee hearing organized by Sen. James McClure.

The Mini-Cassia group, Bedke says, opposes a McClure-sponsored bill that would authorize the federal Bonneville Power Administration to help WPPSS obtain the $1 billion that is needed to finish its troubled plant No. 3, near Salsburg, Wash.

"The economics of the bill could cause an extreme hardship on ratepayers," he says.

McClure's plan calls for the BPA to guarantee financial backers that $1 billion in new loans to finish plant No. 3 would be paid back.

Bedke, however, says he questions the viability of the project, and he fears the BPA eventually would have to pay the loans back out of its own budget. To do that, he believes, the BPA would have to attach additional surcharges on its Pacific Northwest customers.

"Another increase in rates, as a means of providing enough shallow water for children."

Bedke also complained to the Senate committee about the region's lack of voice in the WPPSS decision-making process.

"WPPSS is a Washington organization, incorporated under Washington law, and the BPA is a federal agency that just tells us what to do," he said.

Bedke, who has practiced law in Burley for the past 34 years, says this was his first foray into power politics.

He says he joined the new organization because he has to pay electric bills at his Burley office and at-a country-home and farm in the Raft River Valley.

According to Bedke, most of the witnesses at the Friday hearing opposed the bill. Labor union officials and some government administrators, however, testified in favor of it, he said.

Economic planner says state needs a new road

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BURLEY — A high-capacity road connecting the Boise area, the port at Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene is the most important project needed to boost Idaho's economy, the state's top development administrator said Monday.

David L. Porter, the head of the Department of Economic and Community Affairs, told the Burley Chamber of Commerce that the north-south route would expand the flow of goods to and from the port at Lewiston significantly.

Porter and Darryl Manning, the director of the Idaho Transportation Department, now are looking seriously at a four-lane divided highway from Emmett, north about 50 miles through the Indian Valley area, to U.S. 55. Emmett is about 30 miles northwest of Boise.

"There is a dirt road up there now. It is a fairly flat, snow-free area, so it would be an ideal truck route," Manning said in an interview.

The link would take the commercial traffic off two slower routes used extensively by tourists and recreational vehicles, U.S. 95 to the west and Idaho 55 to the east.

The need for a speedy truck route to Lewiston and the Panhandle is not a recent development. It first was raised during the administration of Gov. Cecil Andrus, Porter said.

But increased shipping activity has focused more economic attention on the port at Lewiston and the routes that tie it to other parts of the state.

An upgraded road system would open up Boise, Twin Falls, Burley and other cities on the Snake River Plain to imported products that could be carried cheaply on barges from the Pacific Coast, Porter said. Now, those barges often navigate empty up the Columbia and Snake rivers to take on wheat at Lewiston, he said.

Moving products economically from the barges south to Interstate 84 now is a problem because only single-trailer loads are allowed on

City firemen pass up raise

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls firefighters have agreed to forego a general salary increase next year, as part of their annual contract negotiations with the city.

Nonetheless, the city still will have to pay an additional $105,000 to the firefighters' retirement fund next year, says City Manager Tom Courtney.

The increase comes as the result of an Idaho Supreme Court ruling earlier this summer, which struck down a 3 percent cap on yearly retirement pay increases for firefighters.

The city's approximately 25 firefighters are its only unionized employees. Each year, they negotiate a contract separate from other city workers.

Jerry Hafer, the union vice president, said Monday that negotiations went "pretty smoothly" this year.

"We would have liked to have had a raise, but we can understand the City Council's position."

The city's 1984 budget includes a 3 percent cost-of-living increase for all other city employees. But the firefighters' problem stems from the Supreme Court ruling, which declared state legislation that established the retirement pay cap unconstitutional.

That legislation was part of a 1978 move to transfer the Firemen's Retirement Fund to the state Public Employees Retirement System. At the time, the firefighters' fund faced a large unfunded liability and the threat of insolvency.

But the section of the law that established the 3 percent cap subsequently was challenged by retired Boise firefighter Donald Nash. Nash sought to restore the old system of calculating yearly retirement increases on average increases for active firefighters.

The Association of Idaho Cities estimates that Twin Falls — and 18 other cities that contribute to the firefighters' retirement fund — will have to pay 38.6 percent of the salaries of employees hired prior to Oct. 1, 1980, into the fund. AIC figures that cities would have had to pay only 24.7 percent prior to the ruling.

Courtney points out that this represents a 56 percent increase in responsibility for benefits this year.

The city will continue to pay full health-care costs for firefighters. The contract also represents the "status quo" in most other key regards, he says.

City's pool plans are taking shape

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council has made the final conceptual decisions for a proposed new municipal pool.

Council members decided at a Monday afternoon work session on an "L"-shaped pool that will have a uniform depth of four feet. One leg of the "L" would afford six 25-meter lanes of seven-and-a-half feet in 25-yard lanes of similar width.

The proposal includes a separate three-board diving tank and a separate pool for young children.

It also includes a separate 30-by-60-foot teaching and wading pool. This was proposed by Coe-Manning-Gale Kleinkopf, as a means of providing enough shallow water for children.

At current cost estimates, the entire pool complex may cost $794,000, Kleinkopf said.

The proposal represents a modified version of the second of five alternatives presented by project architect Gerry Armstrong.

As discussion of the pool continued Monday, a difference of opinion emerged among council members about whether the cost of the project may have risen beyond what the voters are willing to pay for.

Mayor Chris Talkington said he felt the pool costs already are over that point.

But Kleinkopf and John Peterson defended the proposed $794,000 cost as the amount of money needed to build a quality pool that will serve the community for 30 years.

The council now faces the task of deciding how much of the total cost it will ask voters to approve as part of a November bond issue.

The city has set aside $250,000 in general capital-improvement funds for the project next year.

Allen child doing better

TWIN FALLS — Pam Allen should be released from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center later this week, after being admitted Friday for an infection.

The 2-year-old, who is waiting for a liver transplant, was admitted with a high temperature. Dr. Paul Miles of Twin Falls, her personal physician, says the infection originated at an artificial valve that was placed in the child when she was a few months old.

Pam, the daughter of Fred and Carol Allen of Twin Falls, was born with a defect that caused her bile duct not to develop.

Miles says Pam is being given medication and is doing well. She should be released in about three to four days.

The child has suffered similar infections previously, he says.

Pam has been accepted into a transplant program at a Pittsburgh hospital. Her medical condition could affect her place on a list of potential transplant recipients, Miles says.

Across the nation, the grandchild of two Bury County couples was not starting well Monday.

Ten-month-old Chelsea Hamblin, who is related to state legislator Ernest Hale and Mr. and Mrs. Max Bingham, is waiting for a new liver, but she is not doing well at a Memphis hospital, Mr. Bingham said Monday. In fact, her doctors are amazed at how she is clinging to life, he said.

Chelsea suffers from a disease that is destroying her liver.

Murder suspect pleads innocent

JEROME — A former Washington resident has pleaded innocent to the shotgun slaying of a young Jerome woman on May 7 near the Hansen Bridge.

Thomas Franklin Guthrie, 46, formerly of Glenoma, Wash., and a native of Aberdeen, Idaho, was indicted by Circuit Judge in Jerome last week that he wished to plead innocent to the first-degree murder charge filed against him. In accepting the plea, Judge Philip Becker told Guthrie that he would set the date for a trial as soon as possible.

Guthrie was arrested in July in Alabama and later returned to Jerome, after officers traced a prescription found at the murder scene. Police said Griffith and her son were hitch-hiking from Boise to Jerome, where she had just established her home.

Guthrie originally was arrested on a warrant out of Washington and returned there from Alabama. Before he was brought to Jerome by Sheriff Eliza Hall and Chief Deputy Larry Webb, Guthrie allegedly confessed to Washington authorities that he shot Griffith.

In district court with Guthrie last week were his mother, brother, sister and brother-in-law, who came from Alabama for the arraignment.

Guthrie, who says he cannot read or write, listened as the court reporter read the first-degree murder complaint and told the court he understood the document.

Becker denied the request of defense attorney John Heazler for bond, and he ordered Guthrie returned to the Jerome County Jail, where he has been held since July 25.

TWIN FALLS — A Filer man was hospitalized Sunday night after he received an electrical shock from a conveyor belt at a Twin Falls freight company.

Manning says. Considerably more work still is needed on U.S. 95, south of Lewiston, before the state would consider building the four-lane link through the Idaho valley, he said. The project, which could cost an estimated $3 million, now is more than 10 years down the department's work list.

Yet Manning says he still considers it important.

"We anticipate, as the years go on, there will be more ore and different types of products shipped on the inland waterway (through Lewiston)," he says. Lewiston is ready in the near for shipping point for Montana wheat.

In his Burley talk, Porter also said the state is intent on shipping processed logs instead of raw timber to the Republic of China, as part of its recently announced trade effort. The Chinese are discussing buying between 9 and 12 million board-feet of lumber a month from Idaho forestry enterprises, Porter said.

Porter also said the state is attempting to maintain the vitality of the agriculture and forestry industries by encouraging the use of new technologies and development of new markets.

Ketchum seeks grant to hike water pressure

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News Writer

KETCHUM — A grant of slightly more than $600,000 from the state's community block-grant program to approve fire-fighting capabilities in the downtown area is being sought by the city.

The system would complement a private system that now provides domestic water to the downtown area but does not meet state requirements for fire protection because the pipes are too small, says Wayne Forrey, an engineering consultant to the city.

Many areas of Ketchum, including residential areas in the northern section of town, are on the Ketchum Spring Water Co. system, a private utility owned by Royce Asher of Sun Valley.

Forrey says the Ketchum Spring Water pipes downtown are four and five inches in diameter and provide only about 50 to 800 gallons per minute, while state requirements are 1,500-gallon pipe with flows of 2,000 to 3,000 gallons per minute.

He says the city plans to put in pipes ranging from eight to 10 inches to provide adequate water to the downtown.

The situation in the downtown is critical, Forrey told city councilmen recently, noting that the flows are not adequate to fight a major fire. Fortunately, he said, the city had a large water-line repair when Atkinson's Market in Jacobbi Square burned last May, or the fire might have been worse.

If the fire had occurred somewhere downtown where adequate water was not available, the outcome might have been different," he said.

If approved, the grant would allow placement of the system throughout the downtown where municipal water is not available.

The city would not place the pipe on Main Street to avoid tearing up Idaho 74, which also is the city's main street. Water for fire-fighting on Main Street would come from hydrants from Lewisville and Washington avenues to the east and west of the street, Forrey said.

To avoid construction in summer when the town has heavy tourist traffic, Forrey said the work would take place in the spring of 1984, if possible.

Computer error means Wendell 'loses' $2,000

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News Correspondent

WENDELL — Because of a computer error, the city of Wendell has underbilled 10 mobile-home owners $2,065.50 for 18 months of sewer service.

June Holm, the city clerk, said the new city computer was programmed with a $4.50 sewer charge for Valley View Mobile Park. That fee was supposed to have been multiplied by the number of mobile homes using the service, but due to an error, it was not.

It (the $4.50 charge) was never computed for all the homes," explained at a recent Wendell City Council meeting. She estimated there are 25 to 30 mobile homes using the city sewer service at Valley View.

In August, assistant city clerk Rick Braga discovered the error while examining sewer bills for 18 months.

A bill for 18 months of back charges has been sent to park owner Maurice Scheel. Holm said Scheel has not paid the bill and has turned the matter over to his attorney.

After discussion, the council members decided to let city attorney Cecil Hobbey handle the matter for the city.

In other business at the meeting:

- The council examined aerial maps of Wendell for sale from the Aerial Mapping Co. of Boise. The sizes of the photographs available to the city and to the public range from 9-by-9 inches to 42-by-42 inches. Orders for the maps are being taken at City Hall.

- Senior citizens may now work for the city through a new national program called One Thumb. According to Holm, citizens over 55 may apply to work a maximum of 24 hours a week for minimum wage. The program, organized by the National Farmers Union, is paid for by the U.S. Department of Labor. It emphasizes non-custodial duties.
- Any one interested should apply at City Hall.

Coaches selected unbeaten Coeur d'Alene over Meridian in this week's survey of the top A-1 prep football teams, while Madison, Homedale, Troy and Council led the rosters in their respective divisions.

The Vikings, tied with Meridian in last week's ratings, moved into sole first place on the strength of a 45-14 win over Rogers, Wash., Friday. The Warriors, also 2-0 for the year, beat Boise last week.

Borah, 2-0, remained in third place, followed by Capital, 1-0. Twin Falls entered the top five after posting a 21-7 victory over Nampa and raising its record to 2-0.

In A-3 play, coaches returned Madison, 2-0, to the premier slot. Moscow, 2-0, held on to the No. 2 spot, trailed by Bishop Kelly, 2-0 and Middleton, 1-1.

Jerome, the third-place squad last week, slid to fifth despite picking up a 43-24 win over Gooding to boost its season mark to 1-1.

Although Homedale lost its Friday game, 21-12, to Middleton, 65-0, it kept the Canyon County school in the top A-3 position.

Next came Grangeville, 1-1, and Sugar-Salem, 2-0, followed by West Side, 2-0, and Lapwai, 1-1. Valley, with a 2-0 record, slid from the top five.

In the A-4 division, Troy, 1-1, held onto its No. 1 rating. Castleford, 2-0 after a 26-12 victory over Oakley, moved up two spots to second. Mutian, 2-0, dropped a position to third, followed by Wilder, 1-1, and Plummer, 2-0.

Coaches again chose Council, 2-0, as the top squad among Idaho's eight-man teams. Cascade, also 2-0, retained the No. 2 spot, followed by Camas County, 2-0, and Carey — which opens its season Friday.

Rockland, 1-0, and Garden Valley, 2-0, tied for the fifth position.

Six-year-old Kelly Wagner of Twin Falls kicks a ball during a practice session on Monday

Youth soccer comes of age

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's cheap and fun, but nevertheless youth soccer still is struggling to grow locally. Attracting participants isn't the problem: About 320 children from grades 1-6 played last year in a new league organized by the Twin Falls Optimist Club and the city recreation department.

During the Labor Day weekend, despite the holiday, more than 250 youths signed up to play in the league, which is scheduled to resume next week. It's anticipated that this year's player total eventually will match last season's. Though these figures don't approach the 1,650 who played little league, tee ball and girls' softball this past summer, soccer has done quite well for a sport relatively new to this area.

Recruiting enough coaches and luring more older kids to the sport have proven annoying, however. While these setbacks are hardly fatal to local soccer, they prevent it from truly burgeoning.

Ironically, the large turnout of youths has caused the lack of coaches. League chairman Jim Thompson said he has received commitments from "17 to 18" coaches. Since each team has 15 players, the current number of coaches is sufficient. But in the likely event that more players sign up, more volunteers will be needed. As this week began, Dick Greenwood, a league co-organizer, said "one and maybe two teams" are without coaches.

Many adults are reluctant to coach because they see little or nothing about the rudiments of the sport. Yet in this area, who's an expert? "No one has really played it, so it's hard to coach it. But everybody would be at the same starting point," said Dennis Bowyer, who works for the recreation department and helped organize the league.

The league has held several clinics for coaches, referees and players. It is generally agreed that more coaches' clinics are needed. Also, games have been scheduled for Tuesday and Thursday nights, the better to lure more adults, who might prefer golf, hunting or fishing on weekends.

A dearth of older players — fifth through eighth graders — also hampers the league. Children are refreshingly open-minded, but, like typical humans, they become more set in their ways as they grow older. For many, soccer hasn't been an integral part of their athletic and recreational lives. So they avoid it.

"Little kids are easy to get out," Bowyer said. "With older kids there's maybe peer pressure. 'What are you playing soccer for, that's a sissy sport. Why don't you play football?'"

Thompson thought that since O'Leary and Stuart — inner-city high schools dropped seventh and eighth-grade football (the service clubs now run those teams), some of those students might turn to soccer. "But we had only a handful of sign-ups from the seventh- and eighth-graders," he said. "It's a little disappointing, but I think it'll take us a couple of years to have it successful enough in the fifth and sixth grades to make it popular among junior high schoolers."

Otherwise, it seems that many youths and adults alike find soccer a "kick in the grass," as bumper stickers proclaim. The sport's attractions are unmistakable — children of both sexes can play together, size and strength are relatively unimportant, and it's excellent exercise.

Moreover, soccer comes cheap. The program run by the Optimists and the recreation department is largely self-supporting. Children pay just $7.50 each and get a T-shirt and a seven-game schedule in return.

"It's a great alternative, because of the number of kids who can play versus the cost," Thompson said. "It might cost $30 to $100 to outfit a football player. It costs $30 to $100 to outfit a whole (soccer) team."

Many parents appreciate soccer because games don't threaten the health of their children. "We're not trying to compete with other sports, except maybe football with the younger kids. I think a lot of mothers would rather have their children playing soccer instead of running into each other," said Greenwood.

Perhaps those parents should get out and coach.

High school sports and dollars: Ashton's story

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the last installment in a three-part series on financing of interscholastic high school athletics in Idaho.

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

ASHTON — If you were looking for a typical small town in Idaho, it would be harder to find a better prototype than Ashton. This community of 1,300, located where the Henry's Fork spills out of the Rockies and meets the Snake River plain, depends for its livelihood on Idaho's top three industries: agriculture, tourism and timber. It is an inter-mountain, 85 percent Mormon, solidly Republican, universally conservative. Most of its families have been in Fremont County for four or five generations, and they are united against the depredations of developers in the nearby Island Park area and vigilant against domination by the county seat of St. Anthony, 17 miles to the south.

Ashton is also the home of North Fremont High School, which after years of frustration finally won the Nuclear Conference and District 6 Class A-3 football championships in 1982 and the right to advance into the state playoffs. When the Huskies played their opening-round game in the Idaho State University stadium in Pocatello, 110 miles to the south, more than half the population of Ashton was on hand to watch them beat Fruitland, 22-21. The next week, North Fremont was to play District 4 champion Kimberly in the semifinals at Twin Falls.

There was just one problem. North Fremont's high athletic budget was depleted, and the District 215 school board didn't have the $3,000 necessary to send them to that game and a possible state championship game.

"I don't think there was ever any danger that we wouldn't get to go," says North Fremont football Coach Wally Sitwachok. "The district would have had to go in the hole, though, which would have really hurt us for this year."

Instead, the North Fremont High School Boosters Club went to work. It raised $4,500 in five days.

Fouts & Co. come from behind to overcome Kansas City

By RICK GOSSELIN
United Press International

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — The San Diego Chargers spent 57 minutes proving a point with the run and three minutes winning the game with the pass.

Dan Fouts, silent throughout much of the second half with San Diego's sudden shift in offensive philosophy, fired a 12-yard touchdown pass to Wes Chandler with 1:45 remaining to give the Chargers a 17-14 victory Monday night over the Kansas City Chiefs.

Fouts was a frustrating 9-0-17 for only 127 yards in the first half as the Chargers fell behind 7-3. So they went to a ball-control offense and drove 96 yards in 15 plays over 6 1/2 minutes with the second-half kickoff to take a 10-7 lead on a 10-yard run by Chuck Muncie.

San Diego appeared to have the game well in hand when the Chargers drove 80 yards the next time they got the ball, again exclusively on the ground, to the Kansas City 2. But Muncie, fumbled the ball into the endzone where it was recovered by cornerback Gary Green midway through the fourth quarter.

Bill Kenney completed four passes for 26 yards to move the ball to midfield, where Carlos Carson electrified the Chargers on a flea-licker — a 48-yard TD pass-to-follow wide receiver Henry Marshall to give the Chiefs a 14-10 lead with 3:07 remaining.

Fouts, who had thrown only four passes in the second half to that point, emerged from his shell with completions of 13 yards to Chandler, 36 yards to James Brooks and 15 yards to Muncie to set up the TD pass to Chandler — an 80-yard drive in a mere five plays to help the Chargers avert an 0-2 start. Both the Chargers and the Chiefs are 1-1.

Muncie and Brooks benefited from San Diego's new offensive philosophy in the second half as Brooks rushed 22 times for 87 yards and Muncie one short of his career-high with 27 carries for 110 yards, his 16th career 100-yard game.

"We came out feeling we could run the ball and we wanted to run the ball," Fouts said. "It helps our passing game if we can run it. I love handing the ball off. And if it leads to 3:07 (his wins), we'll run it a lot more."

"People said we couldn't run the ball," Muncie said, "and Coach (Don) Coryell is the type who wants to prove people wrong."

Neither quarterback threw an incompletion in the second half with Fouts 0-8-8 for 132 yards and Kenney 11-0-11 for 60 yards. Fouts finished 17-0-25 for 259 yards.

Big Sports

Sooner close in on Nebraska

NEW YORK (UPI) — Nebraska, which strengthened its grip on the No. 1 spot with a thrashing of Wyoming, was joined near the top by Big Eight rival Oklahoma in rallying by the UPI Board of Coaches released Monday.

Nebraska, No. 1 since pre-season, received 38 of a possible 59 first-place votes and amassed 522 points. Oklahoma vaulted from fourth into second with a 27-14 win over Stanford Saturday, getting two first-place votes and 485 points.

Texas, which opens its season Saturday at Auburn, dropped from second to third and Auburn fell from third to fourth despite a 24-3 rout of Southern Mississippi.

Notre Dame, a 54-6 winner over Purdue, received the other first-place vote and leaped four spots into fifth.

Remaining out of the top 10 are No. 6 Ohio State, No. 7 Georgia, No. 8 North Carolina, No. 9 Florida State and No. 10 Michigan.

Florida State, 2-0, jumped four places after a wild 44-35 victory over Louisiana State, which knocked off previously 10th-ranked Tigers out of the ratings.

Completing the Top 20 are No. 11 Alabama, No. 12 Iowa, No. 13 Pittsburgh, No. 14 West Virginia, No. 15 Auburn, No. 16 Washington, No. 17 Southern Methodist, No. 18 Arizona

State, No. 19 Maryland and No. 20 Boston College.

After losing 56-20 to Nebraska, Wyoming coach Al Kincaid praised the top-ranked Cornhuskers.

"I got some first-hand experience," Kincaid said. "They didn't make mental mistakes. Everything I expected, we got."

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne is determined to be the last one convinced of his Cornhuskers' greatness.

"I really don't know how good we are because we haven't been tested," he said. "We've been playing well. We feel we're making progress."

Minnesota will try to test Nebraska Saturday, while four of the next five challengers face off against each other. Ohio State at Oklahoma and the Auburn-Texas showdown will have major impact on next week's balloting. Other meetings of ranked teams Saturday pit Michigan at Washington and West Virginia at Maryland.

Notre Dame plays Michigan State in the Irish's home opener Saturday; Georgia, idle last week, is at Clemson; Florida State is at Tulane; North Carolina, 2-0, entertains Miami of Ohio; and Michigan, after an unimpressive 20-17 win over Washington State, dropped the Wolverines five notches, likely to rebound against the Huskies.

Alabama gained three spots in the list after winning in Ray Perkins' debut as successor to Bear Bryant. The Tide plays host to Mississippi this week; while Iowa jumped five places after crushing Iowa State.

Washington and Boston College cracked the Top 20 after impressive victories. The Huskies, ranked in pre-season before dropping out last week, moved back with a 34-0 win over Northwestern in their opener. Boston College, 2-0, used an upset over Clemson to gain its ranking.

Along with LSU, defending national champion Penn State dropped out of the ratings after its second straight loss.

Here by sections are the coaches who comprise the UPI football board:

EAST — Frank Barua, Rutgers; Don Nehlen, West Virginia; Serafino "Pope" Fazio, Pittsburgh; Dick "Mac" Pennington, Syracuse; Jack Bickel, Boston College; Tom Young, Army.

MIDWEST — Fazio Iona, Ohio State; Dave McClain, Wisconsin; Gerry Faust, Notre Dame; Mike White, Illinois; Hayden Fry, Iowa; Dan Simrell, Toledo.

Day fires ace at Muni

Day used a 9-iron to get his ace on the 152-yard par-3 fourth hole. Witnesses were Keith Kelly, Bill Bolster and Gary Rene.

Kimberly game times changed

KIMBERLY — Kimberly High School's junior varsity football game today against Wood River was moved from 7 p.m. to 4:30 p.m., according to athletic director George Arnes.

And Friday's varsity football game against American Falls will be played at 4 p.m. instead of 6 p.m., as originally scheduled.

The reason for the time changes is that the high school field is still without lights, the result of the city's electrical station being renovated.

LEM GALEAI
16 tackles vs. UTEP

Hobart, Galeai make BSC player-of-week

BOISE (UPI) — The Big Sky Conference had an easy decision in picking the league's first offensive player of the week for the 1983 season. That award Monday went to Idaho senior quarterback Ken Hobart.

All Hobart did last weekend was set two NCAA Division I-AA and four Big Sky single-game records, plus a conference career mark, and a handful of Idaho records in leading the Vandals to a 43-28 victory over Southern Colorado.

Hobart passed for 327 yards and had 545 yards in total offense, both Division I-AA and Big Sky records, in Saturday night's win. And six of his conference record 37 completions went for touchdowns. His six TDs also tied a conference mark.

Hobart now has passed for 6,209 career yards, breaking the old conference record of 5,940 passing yards set last season by Northern Arizona's Scott Lindquist.

It was the fifth time the 6-foot-2 Hobart had won the Big Sky weekly award, including three last year.

The conference Monday also picked Idaho State senior linebacker Lem Galeai as its defensive player of the week for his role in ISU's 12-10 upset win at Texas-El Paso Saturday night.

Galeai made 16 tackles in helping the Bengals produce their season-opening win on the road. It was the first time the 236-pound Galeai had been singled out for the league honor.

Other players nominated for the offensive award were: Boise State quarterback Gerald DePres, punter Jeff Kaiser of Idaho State, Montana State tight end Joe Bignell, and running back Jerry Hilder of Northern Arizona.

The other defensive nominees were: Boise State tackle Michel Bourgeois, linebackers Tom Hennessey of Idaho and Jim Kalafat of Montana State, and Northern Arizona freshman cornerback De-Ivan Robinson.

Kokanee snagging allowed above Anderson Reservoir

ANDERSON RANCH RESERVOIR (UPI) — The run of kokanee on the Boise River's South Fork just above Anderson Ranch Reservoir is so heavy this year the Idaho Department of Fish and Game decided Monday to let anglers snag or catch all the salmon they can.

"Normally, this water is closed to protect the spawning kokanee, but the large run has given us more fish than we need for spawning and egg-taking needs," said state Fisheries Manager

Dave Hanson. Until Nov. 1, anglers will be permitted to snag or catch all the kokanee they can on a stretch from the reservoir's slack water upstream to 30 yards below the fish trap at Pine Bridge, he said.

Hanson said kokanee in the area have been averaging about 1.3 pounds each.

Department officials cautioned, however, that littering laws will be strictly enforced in the area.

Check seminar on Thursday

TWIN FALLS — Bankers, police and attorneys will talk about checks, their use and abuse at a program geared to the business community on Thursday.

Twin Falls Credit Women International is presenting the free seminar called "Checks From Birth to Death" from 7 to 9:30 p.m. Thursday at the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The program will cover the entire life cycle of a check. It will include tips on preventing forgeries as well as necessary information for prosecuting forgeries, said spokeswoman Terry Flawn.

The seminar may help business people cope with checking problems during the approaching holiday retailing season, she said.

Among the speakers will be Twin Falls Police Chief Tim Qualls, Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Dennis Voorhees, attorney Greg Fuller and others. The general public is invited.

Idaho gas rates to decline

BOISE (UPI) — Natural gas rates in Idaho will drop by 3.4 percent next month due to lower prices charged to Intercontinental Gas Co. by its supplier.

The Boise-based company asked the state Public Utilities Commission for the rate change because of reduced costs for fuel from Northwest Pipeline Co., Salt Lake City.

Intercontinental Gas officials said the action, effective Oct. 1, will result in a $4.4 million rate decrease over the coming year. The annual average residential natural gas bill will drop $12.68, officials said.

Rates had been lowered 3 percent in April after an earlier reduction in Northwest Pipeline's wholesale charges.

Heinz sales, income climb

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Consolidated net income of H.J. Heinz Co. rose 11.2 percent to $81.48 million during the first quarter of fiscal 1984.

For the period ending July 27, earnings per share were up 11.1 percent to $1.30, compared to $1.17 in the same period a year ago. Net income for the quarter a year earlier was $55.30.

First quarter sales of $940.33 million were up 3.4 percent from $909.17 million a year ago.

A.J.F. O'Reilly, president and chief executive officer, said the first quarter results support his cautious optimism for the full year, with the company benefiting from general economic improvement in the United States and abroad.

Tandy's sales up in August

FORT WORTH, Texas — Tandy Corp. reports consolidated sales of $265.81 million during August.

That is an increase of 15 percent over the same month in 1982, when sales of $178.48 were recorded. The U.S. Radio Shack division reported a 19 percent gain in sales to $166.33 million during August.

GM unveils Pontiac Fiero

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — General Motors Corp. Monday unveiled the 1984 Pontiac Fiero, a two-seater fiberglass sports car whose price will begin at $7,999.

The sportscar was unveiled at a press preview at Pontiac Motor Division headquarters. The base price of the car does not include air conditioning or an automatic transmission. A sport coupe will cost $9,499 while an SE coupe will cost $9,359.

Pontiac Division General manager William Hoglund said the division expects between 80,000 and 85,000 Fieros in the 1984 model year. The car goes on sale Sept. 22.

The Fiero currently is available only in white and red because of new painting system involving non-lead paint.

Drought cuts corn crop

By SONJA HILLGREN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The worst drought in half a century has cut the U.S. corn crop to 4.39 billion bushels.

That is a dramatic 48 percent decline from last year's record crop and 19 percent less than last month's estimate, the government said Monday.

The corn crop could be the smallest since 1970, when an epidemic of southern corn leaf blight cut the crop to 4.15 billion bushels.

Both corn and soybeans are key livestock feeds. Higher prices caused by the drought are expected to force livestock producers to cut back production and that will show up in higher food prices in 1984.

Agriculture Secretary JOHN RYAN predicted that price inflation for 1984 will be 6 percent to 6.5 percent — up from less than 3 percent this year.

Despite the reductions, he told reporters, crops left over from past harvests mean corn and soybean supplies will be the sixth largest on record and wheat supplies will be the second largest on record.

"There's no reason for anyone to become overly concerned about food costs," Block said. "I don't think we're looking at lower exports next year," he also said.

Based on a Sept. 1 survey, the Agriculture Department estimated the national average corn yield to be 85.1 bushels per acre, the lowest since 88 bushels in 1976. A record of 114.8 bushels was set last year.

A portion of the corn output decline stemmed from the payment-in-kind program in which the government promised commodities to farmers who cut output. The result was the smallest corn acreage in this century.

Before unrelenting hot, dry weather began in July, the Agriculture Department had predicted that acreage cutbacks would reduce the corn crop by about 2 billion bushels below last year's record of 8.4 billion bushels.

When the first estimate was issued a month ago, a crop, hiked by one month of drought was estimated at 5.24 billion bushels.

When drought continued through August, it became clear that damage would worsen and meteorologists concluded that soil moisture levels were lower in more areas than at any time since the Dust Bowl years.

"It still looks like it is probably the worst since 1938 in terms of its impact on our major commodity crops like corn and soybeans," said Norton Strommen, the chief meteorologist at the Agriculture Department.

The soybean crop, which was excluded from the payment-in-kind program, was estimated at 1.53 billion bushels, down 33 percent from last year and 17 percent lower than last month's prediction. That estimate is the smallest since the 1.3-billion-bushel harvest in 1976.

The department's Crop Reporting Board estimated national average soybean yield at 24.9 bushels per acre compared to a record 32.2 bushels last year. It would be the lowest yield since 23.7 bushels per acre were harvested in 1974.

The harvest of grain sorghum, another feed crop, was estimated at 490 million bushels, down 43 percent from last year.

The cotton crop was forecast at 7.78 million bales, down 33 percent from last year. The rice harvest was estimated at 104 million hundredweight, down 33 percent from 1982.

Planted last fall, winter wheat matured before drought began with a record national yield of 41.8 bushels per acre. The crop of 1.94 billion bushels is down just 6 percent from last year in spite of inclusion in the payment-in-kind program.

The durum wheat crop was estimated at 72.9 million bushels, down 51 percent from last year and down 10 percent from last month. The estimate of other spring wheat production, at 358 million bushels, was down 35 percent from 1982 and down 6 percent from last month's prediction.

The Crop Reporting Board said barley production would be a record 532 million bushels, up 2 percent from last year. The oats crop was put at 473 million bushels, down 23 percent from last year.

Stocks surge early, close with skid

By FRANK W. SCHLESER
United Press International

NEW YORK — The stock market went through buying and selling extremes Monday before ending the day in a session that saw the Dow Jones average finish its all-time high.

The broad-based trading in three months was tied with hopes and rumors about the nation's money supply and interest rates. Gold mining stocks were considered as the bullion market collapsed.

The Dow Jones industrial average closed 107.40 on Monday. It surged 17.68 to 1,257.45 in the first half hour, putting it far above its all-time closing high of 1,243.87 on June 16.

The closely watched average, which gained 24.29 overall last week despite a 8.40 loss Friday, had been down more than 11 points within an hour to go and less than a point with 30 minutes to go.

"This was one of the most volatile sessions ever," said Michael Metz of Oppenheimer & Co.

The New York Stock Exchange index shed 0.02 percent, and the price of an average share decreased 25 cents. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index lost 1.24 to 185.46. Declines edged advances 947,908 shares, the 2,004 issues traded.

The Big Board volume of 114,020,000 shares, up from the 77,990,000 traded Friday, was the heaviest turnover since 124.45 million changed hands June 16.

Prices soared at the outset of the Federal Reserve's report late Friday the nation's money supply unexpectedly dropped a $1 billion in the latest statistical week and plunged in the afternoon on rumors the number would be revised.

The market recovered a bit in the final hour when the Fed, in an unusual move, denied the rumors last week's figures were inaccurate. But investors were shaken by the violent up and down in prices.

Composite volume of NYSE issues listed on all U.S. exchanges and over-the-counter totaled 131,714,200 shares, up from the 90,856,770 traded Friday.

Oil, gas lotteries lure fast-buck boys

Of course you've fantasized at one time or another about striking it rich in oil or gas.

All of us have and the TV dramas in this instance copy reality.

Also copying reality — but usually not so harmlessly — are the companies that offer to file your entry in government-sponsored oil-and-gas-leasing lotteries.

By offering countless hundreds of thousands, the companies are luring you into the lottery with promises of quick and huge profits, are misrepresenting what they can do for you; are engaging in high-pressure sales tactics; are charging wildly inflated fees.

This nationwide problem has led securities commissioners in 11 states to issue cease and desist orders charging violations of anti-fraud and state securities laws. The Federal Trade Commission has charged one such filing service with making false representations. A recent telephone survey indicated that in at least 33 states, residents are the targets of these schemes. About 250 companies are estimated to be making these offers — although of course not all of them are out to gyp you.

Here's how they work:

The Bureau of Land Management (BLM) of the U.S. Department of the Interior posts lists of federal lands available for lease-by public lottery every two months. You can file for a chance to win the option to lease the mineral rights in a parcel if you are a U.S. citizen, by paying a filing fee of $75 for each entry. Most of the leases have little or no market value since lands in the program don't lie within a "favorable geological structure" of a producing oil or gas field.

Even if you win, you still have to find a buyer. Many leases are simply not marketable. Still, some parcels are more promising than others; as
