Ships engage at sea

Seeking airliner

By P. V. CHEN
United Press International

After his plane was hit by Soviet missiles over the Sea of Japan, the pilot of Korean Air Lines flight 007 shouted in his final radio message that the aircraft had lost power and cabin pressure, a voice analyst said Friday.

Masumi Suzuki, a voice expert who studied the final seconds of the radio traffic from the jetliner, said the pilot told the Tokyo control tower, "All engines. Rapid decompression."

The message came about 40 seconds after the Soviet pilot who downed the jet told his ground control, "The target was destroyed," according to radio transcripts.

The plane was shot down Sept. 1, killing 269 people aboard.

"A U.S. warship and a Soviet missile cruiser came within hundreds of yards of each other — almost 'shouting distance' — as the two countries intensified rival searches for the plane's black box flight recorders."

Preceding the Soviet downing of the plane, the State Department told Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko he could not use an Aeroflot plane or land at a commercial airport when he flies to the United States next week to address the U.N. General Assembly.

Gromyko will be allowed to use a "special flight" — a military plane — that will have to land at an unspecified military airbase selected by the Pentagon.

In Montreal, an emergency meeting of the International Civil Aviation Organization passed a resolution on the incident, calling for an international investigation of the tragedy and for ICAO review of its procedures to prevent similar incidents.

The resolution was passed 26-2.

The analysis of the pilot's final radio transmission to Tokyo was based on a detailed radio transcript

Ken Schilling of San Benito, Texas, wanted to take a break before getting married, so he decided to take a horseback trip to Oregon. Schilling, who travels with two dogs, two pack mules and one

For people out of work Leaders argue benefit plans

By MARY BETH FRANKLIN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan told Congress Friday the administration's proposed 18-month extension of the federal unemployment compensation program would strike a balance between fiscal responsibility and human costs.

But senators from high-unemployment states, including Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia and Arlen Specter, R-Pa., told a Senate Finance Committee hearing that the plan was too restrictive.

Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., endorsed the plan, saying there "are certain limits to how far we can go, despite the concerns expressed by some people."

However, Byrd and Specter said the administration plan is inadequate because it would reduce the maximum number of weeks of compensation and do nothing to improve the present jobless program that provides benefits for less than 40 percent of the unemployed.

The current federal supplemental compensation program, enacted by Congress last year, expires Sept. 30.

Donovan said the proposal, first offered by the administration earlier in the week, would give the unemployment program continuity and predictability while striking a balance between "fiscal responsibility and human costs."

It would continue until March 1985 under the plan, well beyond next year's elections, and reduce the number of weeks available for benefits from the current 33 to 14-week range to six to 10 weeks.

"An 18-month extension of the program would acknowledge, based on past recessions, that unemployment is likely to decrease gradually during this period of the economic recovery," he said.

The FSC program was first enacted in 1960 and has been extended twice. So far, it has cost the government $5.6 billion. The administration's proposal would add another $3.3 billion.

State looks to nation

BOISE (UPI) — Idaho's economy will significantly improve in 1984 if interest rates don't increase, driving down the national economy, state economists said Friday.

"If there is a sudden sharp increase in interest rates, we can probably expect a 5 to 10 percent increase in unemployment," said Kay Tacka, an economist with the state division of financial management.

The Department of Employment is projecting that unemployment will average 6.5 percent of the workforce in 1984, compared to the August 1983 rate of 7.4 percent, said a research analyst, Janel Hoyer.

"We feel that state employment will shift in 1984, you are going to have fewer people unemployed in Idaho, I think we are going to see growth and stabilization in all industries," Ms. Hoyer said.

Ms. Tacka said non-agricultural employment is expected to increase 3.4 percent from 1983 to 1984. That projection is based on the state's farm workers becoming that segment of the economy is relatively stable from year to year.

She said the national increase in housing starts had also had a positive effect on the state's wood products industry, which employs about one-third of Idaho manufacturing workers.

All states now provide 26 weeks of basic unemployment benefits.

Thirteen weeks of additional compensation are available under the "extended benefits" program, but only three jurisdictions — Louisiana, West Virginia and Puerto Rico — are

McClure: Idahoans opposing wilderness

By STEVE GREEN
United Press International

BOISE — Sen. James McClure said Friday a survey conducted by his staff indicates more than half of the state's population does not want Congress to classify any additional Idaho land as wilderness.

Conservation leaders attacked the survey, calling it "bogus" and saying McClure asked the wrong questions about whether some of the 6.5 million roadless acres in Idaho's national forests should be given wilderness designation.

McClure, a Republican, said 53 percent of the 13,667 respondents to his survey supported designating no more forest land as wilderness, while 21 percent favored a plan designating about 4.5 million acres as wilderness.

McClure said the survey, taken via a questionnaire mailed to 219,467 homes in July, was designed to attract opinions from the public for use in his proposal to write wilderness legislation. But he acknowledged that the questionnaire was not a scientific survey.

"Little information from the general public has been available on how many acres they think should be designated as wilderness," he said.

He said the survey indicates the public is polarized on the issue, which parallels the testimony presented during the four public hearings conducted around the state in August.

The proposal to keep wilderness acreage at its current level — the most popular of four alternatives on the questionnaire — was suggested by various agricultural and mining groups, the senator said.

McClure said he remains committed to a balanced approach to the future management of Idaho's national forests. "All of the needs of Idaho must be carefully considered," he said.

"While it is by no means a scientific questionnaire, the results will be very helpful in guiding my decisions on forthcoming forest management legislation," McClure said.

Idaho Conservation League Director Pat Ford blasted the survey, describing it as misleading.

"I don't know what the survey proves," Ford said. "The proposal McClure presented was bogus about the 4.5 million acres. No conservation organization endorsed it."

The survey said 21 percent of the respondents favored designating 4.5 million acres as wilderness. McClure said that proposal was supported by the Idaho Wildlife Federation, but Ford said, "In truth, no conservation organization supported it."

Wildlife Federation officials were not available for comment.

Ford also said the survey was not distributed extensively enough. "A lot of conservationists I talked to did not get the survey," he said. "McClure did not present the issue for people to make a decision."

Some 32 percent of those who responded to the poll favored multiple-use planning for non-wilderness areas. But Ford said it was wrong to make a distinction between multiple-use, non-wilderness areas and non-multiple-use, non-wilderness areas.

Lebanese planes activated Moslems attack U.S. Marine positions

By JACK REDDEN
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — U.S. Marines exchanged fire with Moslem guerrillas attacking their positions near Beirut airport Friday and the Lebanese air force, in action for the first time in seven years, strafed and bombed rebel artillery units in the hills east of the capital.

However, no Marine casualties were reported in the airport firefight between the U.S. troops and suspected Shiite Moslem militiamen or from shelling of the British Embassy compound where the U.S. Embassy maintains temporary offices.

The escalation in the fighting came amid reports President Amin Gemayel had accepted a Saudi Arabi proposal for a cease-fire between the Christian-led government and army and the Moslem rebels.

American military supplies were arriving to shore up the Lebanese army in its battle against the Moslem rebels.

One Lebanese Hawker Hunter fighter was downed by gunfire and another damaged during the air force attacks on Druze Moslem and Palestinian units trying to capture the strategic village of Souk al-Gharb in the mountains 3 miles southeast of Beirut.

The Marines opened up with automatic weapons when suspected Shiite militiamen began firing on their positions with machine guns and rocket-propelled grenades, witnesses said. The gunbattle went on for more than two hours.

At about the same time, Druze rebels in the Shouf mountains began a mortar barrage that hit the Lebanese Defense Ministry, much of east Beirut and came within 100 yards of the temporary U.S. Embassy. U.S. Embassy officials have been housed in the British compound since the old embassy building was destroyed in a terrorist bombing last April.

In the late evening, Beirut radio said fierce fighting was underway around army positions threatened by the Druze and Palestinians near Souk al-Gharb. It said "Battles are in progress and the army is resisting."

At the United Nations, U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said 150,000 Lebanese had been left homeless by the latest fighting. He said $10 million in aid was needed for the refugees and appealed for international help.

The air strikes by the Lebanese air force's 50-year-old Hawker Hunter jet fighters were directed at the Druze artillery emplacements in the mountains and the Druze and Palestinian forces advancing on Souk al-Gharb, the government said.

"The warplanes knocked out hostile artillery facing Souk al-Gharb and the ground troops launched a counter attack to purge the region," the Lebanese army said.

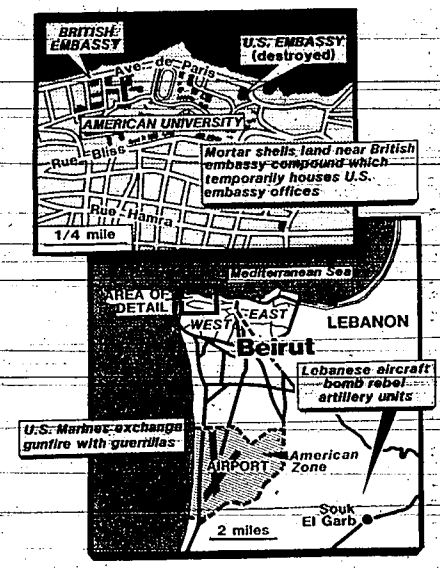

Holding Souk al-Gharb is considered essential to the government's defense of Beirut against the Syrian-backed Druze and Palestinian offensive.

One of the air force's five Hawker Hunters was "hit during raids on the mountains" and crashed in the sea, the Lebanese army said.

The plane's pilot parachuted and was taken by helicopter to the USS Iowa off the Beirut coast, a Druze spokesman said. The pilot died later in a Beirut hospital from neurological injuries.

Another Hawker Hunter was damaged and underwent emergency repairs at the British airbase of Akrotiri in southern Cyprus, a British spokesman said.

The air strikes marked the first time the Lebanese air force has seen action since 1976 at the height of the nation's civil war. The air force's six Hawker Hunter planes were flown out of Beirut airport Thursday and were operating from a makeshift airfield on the coastal highway 20 miles north of the capital.

"The shelling and air strikes coincided with reports progress in diplomatic efforts to achieve a cease-fire. The rightist Voice of Lebanon radio station said the government had approved a Saudi Arabian plan call for an immediate halt to all hostilities and supervision of the truce by neutral observers, the Lebanese army and representatives of the rebel factions.

Briefly

State backs off timber sales
BOISE (UPI) — Complaints from the timber industry have caused Idaho to back away from a possible bid for which millions of dollars-worth of Idaho logs would be shipped to China, Gov. John Evans says.

The chief executive said Thursday timber-industry representatives objected to the state acting as the agent for the proposed sales and cited a lack of supplies in the types of logs wanted by the Chinese and legal problems.

Evans also criticized aides and others who have been involved in negotiating with officials from the Asian nation.

State Economic and Community Affairs Division Administrator David Porter and University of Idaho College of Forestry Dean John Ehrenreich were "overzealous" in negotiating with the Chinese and talking publicly about it before consulting timber companies, Evans said.

Evans forms education panel
BOISE (UPI) — Gov. John Evans christened a task force on Idaho's education system Friday, asking members to draft a realistic agenda for improving, not merely recycle, studies conducted by a host of similar committees.

In launching the first meeting of the 30-member task force he appointed, Evans said he hopes the panel will pick the best parts of previous studies and meld them into a "timetable for action."

The governor said he expected a rapid-fire performance from the group, with draft reports anticipated to be delivered by October and a final plan to be offered by early November.

The long-range program then will be submitted to state lawmakers in early 1984 as Evans continues his efforts to boost education funding and gain overall improvements in the education system, he said.

Task Force Chairman A.L. Alford Jr., publisher of the Lewiston Morning Tribune, said the committee will give Evans a list of top education priorities for the next three years, a timetable for carrying out the goals and a report on what the program will cost.

Jackson on Europe campaign
BERLIN, West Germany (UPI) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson, a possible contender for the presidency, extended his stay in West Germany for an appointment today with Chancellor Willy Brandt.

Jackson, who has been touring U.S. bases, urged black soldiers to register in vote, said during a visit to Berlin he would meet with Brandt in Frankfurt this afternoon.

Aldes said Jackson, who earlier visited Great Britain and the Netherlands, was extending his stay at least a day to meet with Brandt. They said the rest of his program in Europe remained open.

Salvador braces against attack
United Press International

The Salvadoran army rushed Friday 2,500 fresh soldiers to the eastern part of the country to relieve pressure on three U.S.-trained battalions battling a new rebel offensive, officials said.

Military trucks with the men were seen traveling along the key Pan American highway, where rebels overran Villa El Triunfo for 15 hours Thursday, destroying an electrical sub-station, blacking out 40 percent of the country.

Kennedy Jr. arrested for drugs
RAPID CITY, S.D. (UPI) — Robert Kennedy Jr., son of the late Attorney General, was charged with possession of heroin and faces up to two years in prison if convicted for having less than $100 of the addictive drug in his baggage.

Kennedy, 31, announced Wednesday he was seeking treatment for a drug problem he was "determined to beat," was charged Friday under South Dakota law with one count of possession of heroin.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Reed Rasmussen said he was not aware of any plans to file federal charges in the case. Interstate transportation of narcotics is a federal offense.

An investigation was begun Sunday night when Kennedy became ill aboard a flight from Minneapolis to Rapid City. Kennedy declined medical treatment and authorities confiscated his flight bag after obtaining a search warrant for "controlled substances."

Pamela says she's ready to die
JACKSBORO, Tenn. (UPI) — Pamela Hamilton is willing to die for her religious beliefs rather than accept treatments to battle a cancer that a doctor says will kill her in six to nine months, her attorney says.

"She believes that a power higher than medicine will come to her rescue and if that doesn't happen, she's willing to accept the consequences," attorney James A. H. Bell said of Pamela, 12.

A hearing was to resume today before Juvenile Court Judge Charles Herman on a motion by the state Department of Human Services to force Pamela to undergo chemotherapy or radiation treatment for a rare form of cancer known as Ewing's Sarcoma.

Auto workers near accord

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Ford and United Auto Workers bargainers reached a tentative agreement Friday night on contract concessions to keep the auto industry's last steel mill open, an official said.

Ford spokesman Dick Judy said "the agreement is subject to ratification by the members of Local 600. Details of the tentative agreement will not be announced at this time," Judy said.

Ford said earlier this week it would close the mill, possibly by the end of the year, because the union declined to grant around $4.50 an hour in concessions.

"Their position is they've got to stay competitive or they're not going to stay in the steel business," said Michael Rinaldi, president of Local 600 and chairman of the union bargaining team.

Asked whether the union could make the steel mill competitive with other steel industry operations, he replied, "I just hope we can save the jobs."

The proposed shutdown would have put 4,350 employees out of work, including 850 salaried employees.

Ford had said it would not reopen the talks unless "substantial" progress could be made in the concessions talks. But many observers say the automaker's move as an attempt to force the union back to the bargaining table.

released earlier this week by the Japanese Transport Ministry.

Suzuki, head of the Japan Sound Research Center, was asked to analyze the radio traffic by NHK, Japan's broadcasting network.

"The pilot's tone of voice had been about the same until he reported on the change in the planes altitude and then the pitch of the voice became much higher during the last segment of radio communication, indicating he was in a state of great tension," Suzuki said. "The pilot was almost shouting."

The close encounter between the frigate USS Badger and the Soviet cruiser Petropavlovsk came during separate operations to find the flight recorders that could shed important light on why the plane veered off course and the final moments of its flight, Japanese officials said.

Nineteen Soviet ships and four U.S. vessels were searching a 12-mile-wide area in international waters near the tiny Soviet island of Moneron, west of Sakhalin Island, where the plane is believed to have gone down.

"The two ships came within 500-600 meters of each other, almost within shouting distance," said a Japanese official.

In the United States, a Soviet freighter that California longshoremen refused to unload was heading toward New Orleans, where a slater vessel was already being unloaded.

The ships were rerouted after longshoremen in Houston and Los Angeles refused to unload the Soviet cargo.

China meanwhile joined other countries around the world in demanding an investigation of the jet incident and demanding Moscow pay compensation to the families of the victims.

Attorney general releases plan
BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Jones says he will ask the 1984 Legislature to set up a compensation program for crime victims and allow state funding of alcohol evaluations and treatment for indigent drunken drivers.

Jones said Friday his legislative package would be highlighted by a bill calling for compensation of victims by those who commit crimes "in cases where such compensation is feasible."

He said the measure would also contain a provision giving victims more input in the sentencing process.

The attorney general said he would ask lawmakers to authorize the use of state funds to pay the costs of court-ordered evaluations and treatment for indigents convicted of driving under the influence of alcohol.

eligible for that federal-state program.

Finally, the special supplemental program is available to jobless workers that have exhausted their other benefits.

Donovan said while the administration is willing to extend the program, it would not accept a "reach-back" provision to restate jobless workers who have exhausted their benefits, nor agree to alterations in the extended benefits program.

"We are sympathetic to the plight of the long-term unemployed," he said in a prepared statement that he submitted, but did not read, to the committee. "At the same time, we do not believe that all of their needs can be met through the unemployment insurance system."

Guard tires of working, pulls off $7-million heist

WEST HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — The woman engaged to a $5-an-hour Wells Fargo guard charged with stealing more than $7 million led to three police off his truck, prosecutors said.

As a result, Soto, 21, "deliberately gave false information knowing (it) would delay locating Victor Gerena," said the application for her arrest warrant, which was released Thursday.

Gerena, 26, and Ms. Soto were to be married today. Gerena has been married and divorced twice.

He was the object of a nationwide manhunt for allegedly pulling off the second largest heist in U.S. history.

Police said Gerena, a former high school football star, turned on two co-workers, bound them at gunpoint, then looked a vault at the Wells Fargo terminal in West Hartford Monday of $7,017,153.

He escaped in a rented car found abandoned about a half mile away from Hartford's Brainard Airport. Gerena, who made slightly less than $5-an-hour, reportedly told his co-workers during the heist he was "tick of working." One of the guards also said Gerena once talked "jokingly" of fleeing to Canada if he ever stole a Wells Fargo shipment.

Prosecutors said Ms. Soto led them to a car he rented and long distance telephone calls, but said there was no evidence she knew about the robbery in advance.

Arrested late Wednesday, she was released on $7,500 bond just after midnight pending arraignment Sept. 26 in West Hartford Superior Court.

She is charged with hindering prosecution and making a false statement to investigators. If convicted she could face up to six years in jail and a $6,000 fine.

Wells Fargo has offered a $250,000 reward for return of the money and another $100,000 for an arrest and conviction in the case.

Americans believe data being withheld

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Americans believe the government is withholding important information about the Soviet attack on a Korean airliner, but they approve of President Reagan's overall handling of the incident, a poll showed Friday.

Sixty-one percent of the people who responded to the New York Times-CBS News poll said they felt the U.S. government is "holding back information that people ought to know." In response to the poll finding, deputy press secretary Larry Speakes said, "We've made available as many details as we possibly can in order to get the full story out despite the fact the Soviets have not done likewise. Asked if the public got 100 percent of available information, Speakes said, "I don't think it would substantially change the story."

Fifty-five percent of those polled generally supported Reagan's response to the tragedy but 56 percent said he should have been tougher.

The telephone survey of 705 adults taken Wednesday night and published in The New York Times Friday showed half the respondents favored halting grain sales to the Soviet Union to retaliate for the downing of the Boeing 747 with 269 people aboard.

Forty percent opposed stopping grain sales and 9 percent had no opinion.

By a 2-1 ratio, they rejected such retaliatory measures as breaking off arms control talks or diplomatic relations.

The poll also showed apprehension about the Soviet Union as a military threat to the United States rose slightly since last spring.

New U.S. treasurer 'breezes' in confirmation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Kathleen Ortega, President Reagan's nominee for treasurer of the United States, breezed through her 10-minute Senate confirmation hearing Friday without a hitch.

That was not difficult as Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., was the only member on hand to welcome and question Ms.

Ortega, who Reagan named earlier this week for the $63,800-a-year post.

Her nomination came during the administration's Hispanic Heritage Week, which included a series of events making clear White House concern about capturing the hispanic vote in next year's election.

Dole and Ms. Ortega's two Republican sponsors from her native

New Mexico, Rep. Manuel Lujan and Sen. Pete Domenici, proclaimed her a talented and qualified candidate to become the country's 38th treasurer, a post consistently held by women since 1949.

She had little to say during the brief session, aside from expressing her thanks for the nomination. She offered no suggestions when Dole asked her how to improve U.S. savings bonds sales or if she intended to initiate any currency changes such as the Susan B. Anthony dollar or the $2 bill that he referred to as "sort of like the Edsel."

Ms. Ortega, 49, was the first woman bank president in California and is a commissioner on the Copyright Royalty Tribunal, an independent agency in Washington.

Teachers walk out to strike

By United Press International

Los Angeles teachers staged a one-day walkout Friday to protest stalled contract negotiations and some of the city's 500,000 students were sent to private schools and auditoriums for makeshift instruction. Chicago teachers and the school board held talks to avoid a strike.

Nearly 90,000 students in six states were either shut out of classrooms or being taught by substitutes and administrators Friday because of teachers' strikes.

Teachers were on strike in Illinois, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Rhode Island, Washington and Ohio.

A spokesman for the Los Angeles school district said 53 percent of the teachers in all 573 schools stayed home.

Spokesman Shel Erlich said substitutes, administrators and advisors filled in for the union teachers and some classes were cancelled in gymnasiums and auditoriums.

A union spokesman said some students were being shown movies for lack of teachers.

Len Feldman, spokesman for United Teachers of Los Angeles, said in a number of Los Angeles schools have been literally shut down and kids are being sent home. I've been telling people to invest in Disney and CBS films because more films will be shown on campuses in Los Angeles than ever before."

Talks mixed for Hispanics

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan wrapped up a series of events honoring Hispanic American Heritage Week with a ceremony Monday, a charge that one-third of the Education Department's Hispanic employees are about to lose their jobs.

Reagan spoke to Hispanic American members of the armed forces attending a White House ceremony telling them, "You've lived with the values and beliefs that account for America's greatness and that keep her strong and free."

But just as Reagan completed events marking National Hispanic Heritage Week, Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., charged Education Department workers singled out for layoffs and reassignment include 48 of the department's 57 Hispanic employees.

"That's just not correct," White House spokesman Peter Rousset said. In a letter to Reagan Thursday, Roybal denounced the move as "especially distressing" because of the "loss of Hispanic expertise in programs designed to meet the special educational needs of minority children."

Roybal aide Richard Terlep said the congressman obtained the information from the Education Department.

Policeman saves accuser

MIAMI (UPI) — James Dunster collapsed in a courtroom where he was suing Police Sgt. Peter Aydelotte for killing his son and the officer applied mouth-to-mouth resuscitation that may have saved Dunster's life.

Dunster suddenly rose from his seat in the courtroom gallery, screamed and pitched onto the floor Thursday during proceedings in his civil suit against Aydelotte.

At U.S. District Judge William A. Hoelver, the jury and visitors watched, Aydelotte raced across the courtroom and administered mouth-to-mouth resuscitation until paramedics arrive.

"I've never seen anything like it in my courtroom," Hoelver said. The judge declared a mistrial, dismissed the six-person jury and said a new trial date will be set for December.

2 U.S. diplomats expelled

NEW DELHI, India (UPI) — Two U.S. diplomats — expelled from Soviet-backed Afghanistan arrived in India Friday night and the U.S. department considered ejecting Afghan diplomats in retaliation.

Hugh Turner and Robert Q. Blackburn, looking visibly tired, arrived at New Delhi's International Airport aboard an Indian Airlines flight from Kabul.

The expelled diplomats would not speak to reporters at the airport and U.S. Embassy officials also declined to talk about the expulsions.

An embassy spokesman said the two diplomats probably would return to the United States shortly.

Radio Kabul said the two diplomats were expelled for spying and "supporting counter-revolutionaries" — referring to the Moslem guerrillas fighting to oust an estimated 105,000 Soviet troops from the country.

The radio said Afghan security forces also arrested two CIA agents, apparently Afghans, it alleged provided evidence to back the espionage charges against the two diplomats.

United States operates a skeleton staff of about a dozen diplomats at the Afghan mission. There is no U.S. ambassador in Afghanistan.

A State Department spokesman in Washington said the Afghan charge of affairs was being summoned for a formal rejection of the "baseless" spy charges and that further action — possibly the expulsion of Afghan diplomats — was under consideration.

The expulsion of the American diplomats came three days after Moscow

Anti-Marcos march held

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — More than 15,000 office workers, with banners saying "We have had enough totalitarianism," joined a businessmen's protest Friday sparked by the death of opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

The march was reportedly the first anti-government protest by workers in the swank Makati business district in recent memory and the largest demonstration since an estimated 2 million people turned out for Aquino's burial last month.

"This is not going to stop," one businessman said of the snowballing anti-government protests. "It's almost like the last few weeks of the Soviet 'iron' — it will build up and build up."

Salvador Laurel, head of a 12-party opposition coalition, said earlier the opposition would boycott 1984 parliamentary elections unless President Ferdinand Marcos steps down in favor of a caretaker government.

The boycott threat could deal a severe blow to U.S. hopes that next year's polls would mark a return to democracy in the Philippines.

In downtown Manila, about 1,000 students bearing coffins with placards saying "Pres-freedom is dead," paraded before three major newspapers to protest alleged government control of the press.

The protests were part of a resistance campaign by opposition forces that have accused the government of complicity in the assassination of Aquino Aug. 21 on his return from three years of exile.

Businessmen who acted as parade marshals said between 15,000 and 20,000 office workers and business executives joined the three-hour demonstration that ended in a political rally.

Opposition leader Laurel told the cheering crowd at the rally, "Usually it is the business people who are the last to join a revolution. But here I see almost the entire Makati business group."

One of the banners held by the workers said, "We have had enough totalitarianism — It stinks." Others called for the resignation of Marcos, who has been in power for nearly 18 years.

Terrorists confess plot

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI) — Eight suspected terrorists accused of plotting to blow up the U.S. and Israeli embassies and kill Egyptian officials to establish a radical Arab regime have made "full" confessions to police, government-run newspapers said Friday.

Al Ahrum, Cairo's largest circulation newspaper, said the defendants had confessed to police they were members of a hard-line splinter faction of the Palestine Liberation Organization led by Sabri El-Banna, better known as Abu Nidal.

The suspects, Al Ahrum said, were sent to Cairo to bomb the American and Israeli embassies, assassinate unidentified Egyptian officials and topple the government to establish a radical Arab regime.

Moderate officials of the PLO, who maintain an office in Cairo, also were targets, authorities said.

Holy day displaces politics

TEL AVIV, Israel (UPI) — Israel shut down Friday for Yom Kippur, the holiest day of the Jewish year, and political maneuvering to find a successor to outgoing Prime Minister Menachem Begin was put off for two days.

Yom Kippur is a period of reflection for Jews — the day they believe God decides who will live and who will die in the coming year.

The Jewish Day of Atonement also comes 10 years to the day after the start of the 1973 Yom Kippur war and exactly a year after the massacre of Palestinians in the refugee camps of Beirut — events that led to the rise and fall of Begin as Israel's leader.

The country's borders close for Yom Kippur and Palestinians in the occupied West Bank and Gaza, as well as Lebanese refugees in the north, cannot cross into Israel until the fast day ends.

The process of choosing Israel's next premier will wait until Sunday, when President Chaim Herzog starts consultations on selecting the man he believes most capable of forming a new government.

Foreign Minister Yitzhak Shamir, who has the best chance of succeeding Begin, visited the ailing caretaker prime minister Friday to deliver the traditional blessing of "May your name be inscribed in the Book of Life."

A public opinion poll conducted by the newspaper Yedioth Ahronoth predicted Begin's Likud party would defeat the opposition labor party by an overwhelming margin if elections were held now despite his resignation. It said a Likud party led by Shamir would win six more parliamentary seats than Labor in such an election. Begin formally resigned Thursday, his health poor and mood gloomy over the death 10 months ago of his wife.

Begin remained at home for the ninth straight day, and did not make the traditional broadcast in memory of fallen Israeli soldiers. Instead, Defense Minister Moshe Arens went on the air instead.

Russia, China opening doors

PEKING (UPI) — Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Mikhail Kapitsa ended a working visit and returned here Friday, declaring that a "new channel of contact" had been established between Moscow and Peking after 20 years of hostility.

The highest-ranking Soviet official to pay a formal visit to Peking since the Sino-Soviet split in the 1960s, Kapitsa met once with Foreign Minister Wu Xueqian and twice with his Chinese counterpart, Vice Foreign Minister Qian Qichen.

"Putting it briefly, we have opened a new channel of contact, this time on an international issue," said Kapitsa, whose visit came one month before formal normalization talks resumed in Beijing between Qian and Leonid Ivchenko, another Soviet deputy foreign minister.

Kapitsa, the Kremlin's top diplomat, described the talks as "businesslike" but refused to go into details, saying they were confidential. But diplomatic sources familiar with the talks said they covered the three main "obstacles" that China felt must be removed before relations can be normalized — the presence of Soviet troops in Mongolia, the occupation of Afghanistan and Soviet support for the Vietnamese occupation of Cambodia.

Until now, the Soviets had refused to discuss these issues, maintaining they involved the sovereignty of third countries.

Libya: U.S. in on killing

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy accused American and French troops Friday of slaughtering Moslems in Lebanon and Chad and urged Western countries must soon come to the aid of their "brothers."

In a letter to U.N. Security Council President Noel Sinclair of Guyana, Khadafy said the United States and France were "using fire and sword to exterminate the 'inhabitants' of Lebanon and Chad."

Saying he wanted to "call the attention of the international community to this explosive situation in Lebanon and Chad," Khadafy said it was the "introduction of extraneous parties under the name of peacekeepers" that aggravated the Lebanese situation.

About 1,200 U.S. Marines are taking part in the multi-national peacekeeping force in Lebanon. Another 3,600 French, British and Italian troops make up the contingent sent to help the government of Chad and President Amin Goussani re-establish control in the country.

"Intervention in such a form has caused the war to enter a neo-crusader phase such as we believed human civilization had transcended.

Panel seeks raises for state employees

By MARK SHENEFELT
United Press International

BOISE — State employees would receive an average 9 percent pay increase in fiscal year 1985 under a recommendation made Friday by the Idaho Personnel Commission, but the $1.5-million hike must be approved by legislators who froze worker salaries this year.

Richard Hutchison, the commission's deputy director, unveiled the package to Idaho Public Employees Association convention delegates, saying the commission had voted for the plan only hours earlier.

The pay hike will go to the office of Gov. John Evans, who will incorporate it — or his own recommendation — in his budget recommendations to the 1984 Legislature.

Evans said the commission sought a 7 percent pay raise for state workers for the current fiscal year. But legislators battling to prevent budget deficits froze the pay hikes at fiscal year 1982 levels.

The IPEA, recognizing the fiscal dilemma the state faced during this year's legislative sessions, declined to fight the pay-freeze movement, but urged lawmakers to make up for the hardship in future years.

Hutchison said the 9 percent overall increase for the state's 8,000 employees would be necessary to pull pay levels back in line with comparable rates among private employees, and public workers in other Western states.

While Idaho's state workers are weathering the wage freeze, pay rates for their counterparts in neighboring states are climbing at an average of 4.5 percent, he said.

When the 1983 pay freeze struck, Idaho workers already lagged behind by 2 percent, he said. Another 2.5 percent hike will be needed to cover wage inflation during the first six months of 1984, he said.

Those three factors demonstrate the need for a 9 percent overall boost in the next fiscal year, Hutchison said.

Jones refuses to apologize to governor's staff

BOISE (UPI) — Attorney General Jim Jones said Friday he is "certainly not" going to apologize to Gov. John Evans for alleging gubernatorial staff members could be potential Democratic witnesses at a reapportionment hearing and advised them against testifying.

But the Republican legal officer also said he would not provide proof to substantiate the claims because he does not want to escalate the dispute with Evans.

Jones told reporters earlier this week his office had learned gubernatorial workers called Democrats who were expected to testify at a redistricting hearing in the First District Courtroom of Dar Cogswell. The attorney general said those witnesses then became reluctant to talk in favor of a reapportionment plan adopted by the 1982 Legislature, but struck down by Cogswell in favor of an alternate plan soon to be appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Evans denied his office had any improper contact with witnesses. And he chided Jones to either apologize for the accusation or back it up with evidence.

"I'm certainly not going to apologize, because I think I have a very good foundation for saying everything I did," Jones said during playing of KTVB-TV's "Viewpoint" program.

Student scores decline, but still better average

BOISE (UPI) — State education officials say college-bound seniors who took Scholastic Aptitude Tests last spring didn't do as well as they had in the past, but still exceeded the national average in verbal and math scores.

State Education Department spokeswoman Helen Williams said Friday that Idaho's mean verbal score fell from 482 in 1982 to 479 this year, compared to the national verbal score of 425.

Ms. Williams said Idaho students' mean math score remained at last year's 513, compared to the national score of 463.

She said Idaho students have consistently outperformed their national counterparts on the SAT test, but added only 7.2 percent of the state's 13,500 high school seniors took the test this year.

Lella Lewis, an Education Department testing consultant, said an increase in the percentage of students taking the test might account for the decrease in the average verbal score. She said 6.5 percent of the state's high school seniors took the exams in 1982.

Ms. Williams said 35 percent of those taking the test planned to attend the University of Idaho, 24 percent planned to enroll at Boise State University, 12 percent planned to register at the University of Washington, 10 percent wanted to attend Stanford University and 10 percent planned to enroll at Idaho State University.

Jurors release accused killer

PAYETTE (UPI) — Third District jurors deliberated about nine hours before deciding early Friday that William L. Culbertson was innocent of charges he kidnaped and stabbed a 70-year-old man, then set fire to the victim's home.

The 12-member jury shortly after midnight acquitted Culbertson, 38, of first-degree murder and arson charges in the December 16, 1981, slaying of Fred Gamble.

Prosecutor Bruce Birch alleged Culbertson borrowed $42 from Gamble at the victim's home south of Payette, then killed the man after an argument and set fire to his house.

Birch said the defendant returned to the home moments later because he had left the money inside, and was seen by witnesses leaping through a window of the burning building.

The suspect signed a confession shortly after the incident, Birch said. But Culbertson, taking the stand earlier in the week, testified he believed he was only signing a statement — not a confession — following questioning by Payette Police Chief Floyd Moyer and Payette County sheriff's Lt. Leroy Cordes.

The defendant told the courtroom of Judge Roger Williams he borrowed money from Gamble, then borrowed the victim's car.

License denied for dam proposal near Bliss

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has "turned down" a request to build a 65-megawatt power plant on the Snake River, near Bliss.

The decision, made earlier this week, marks the end of a five-year effort by Idaho Power to gain federal approval for the plant, known as the Wylie Dam project, according to Idaho Power board Chairman Jim Bruce.

"Our new power forecast showed that we would not need the dam in the near future,"

Bruce said Friday. "That was the reason that FERC denied the permit."

Bruce says the state's power forecast has changed dramatically since 1978, when the original application was filed. At that time power usage was expected to grow at a rapid rate. And small hydro projects, built by independent groups, were not expected to provide major amounts of electricity.

But the recession has caused power demand forecasts to dip, and new federal laws have triggered a boom in small hydro production, which Idaho Power is obligated to purchase from the independents.

By 1990, Idaho Power expects to purchase 150 megawatts of power from independent producers, more than twice the projected 65-megawatt capacity for Wylie Dam.

"We've got more small hydro in the mill than we know what to do with, and that couldn't have helped with the permit application, I'm sure," Bruce says.

However, Bruce says he thinks Wylie Dam eventually would offer Idaho Power customers cheaper electricity than power purchased from independents.

"When you build Wylie, then at the end of the 50 years, it's depreciated out and it decreases the rate base. With cogeneration, (independent power production) there's never any reduction in the rate base."

Idaho Power, according to the federal decision, may reapply for the license at a later date. Bruce says the application would be "a costly and time-consuming process, and you don't know what you'd get in the end."

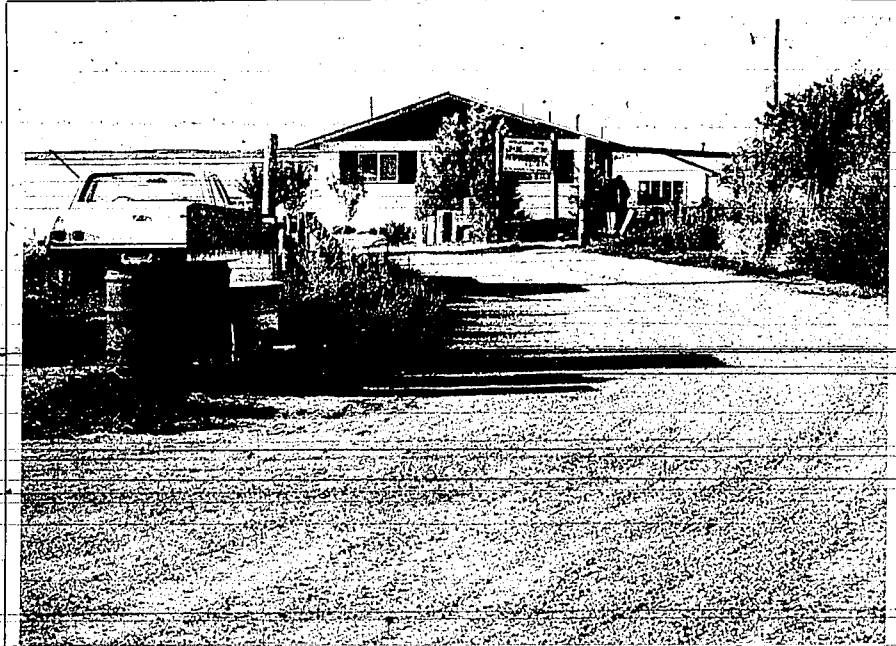

Pat Ford, the director of the Idaho Conservation League, says his organization welcomes the federal action.

"For the moment, at least, it means that this stretch of the river will be saved."

Ford says the ICL opposed the project because it would dam one of the few remaining free-flowing sections of the Snake River, diminishing its recreational value, and would have harmed an endangered fish, the sculpin. Ford also says the proposed dam is located in a geologically unstable area.

Since the power was not needed, Ford says there was no compelling reason to build the dam. According to Ford, conservation would provide a cheaper alternative power source for customers.

"It was a very expensive project that was going to raise rates."

Residents near J & K Nurseries don't like the volume of traffic using Morton Drive, the gravel road leading to the nursery

Business gets options to end dispute

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A city-county board has given the owners of J & K Nurseries a year to gain access to their property by means other than Morton Drive, or else move the landscaping and sprinkler-installation portions of their business.

The unanimous decision of the special zoning appeals board — which was convened under a 1980 city-county agreement — was announced Friday morning. The board was composed of Twin Falls County Commissioners Ann Cover and Marvin Hempleman and Twin Falls Councilmen Gale Kleinkopf and Paul Newton.

The decision came after a bitter public hearing on the issue Wednesday night. It was greeted as a compromise by both John and Karen Phillips, the owners of J & K, and several of the residents of a neighboring subdivision, who had petitioned the city for revocation of J & K's conditional-use permit earlier this summer.

Hempleman, who made the compromise motion, explained that the landscaping and sprinkler-installation parts of J & K's business have been added since the county granted J & K a retail sales permit in 1978. Therefore, they do not fall under the scope of the original permit, he said.

And he said the period of time, until Oct. 1, 1984, should be long enough to relocate those parts of the business.

The only dispute to this motion came during a brief period of discussion that followed. Newton suggested that J & K's retail sales also be included in the motion.

There is no access to J & K other than Morton Drive, and retail sales generate the greatest

Debate rages on recreation District moving forward

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The newly formed Gooding Recreation District is continuing its organizing efforts, despite a possible election to dissolve the district.

The district's board of directors began preparation of its budget for summer 1984 programs at its Wednesday meeting, attended by several area residents.

Signatures for a petition of appeal against the district.

The board members responded to questions in an attempt to clear up what they call some misconceptions.

Points covered included:

- The board of directors is a legal body appointed by the governor to administer the recreation district.

- The district will not go on the county property-tax rolls until June 1984, and it will not receive tax money until January 1985.

- The amount of the recreation property-tax levy has not yet been set, but board members agree it will not be more than the $277-mill levy formerly assessed by the city, and it easily could be less.

- There is no recreation tax being levied this year, either by the city or the recreation district.

- The city passed a resolution in April abolishing its recreation property tax levy when the recreation district was formed. City residents cannot be taxed twice for recreation.

- The recreation district will not take ownership of the city's real property, such as the swimming pool, tennis courts, parks, etc., but it will manage the operation of those facilities.

- The city will retain its contract with the golf course, and the recreation district will not be involved in that operation.

"We are an organizing vehicle for county recreation," said Sue Cavness, the recreation board chairman. "We don't want to start new programs, we will consider what the people want."

Tom Jones, who has agreed to act as recreation director without pay until a part-time director can be hired, said the board that the Optimist Club will continue its operation of the programs for the coming year. But the club "does not wish to handle the summer baseball program, he said."

The board agreed to investigate methods for borrowing the funds necessary for a summer baseball program. Board members said they felt the only expense would be for a part-time director, to coordinate the schedule and assist in acquiring volunteer coaches.

A tentative salary of $2,000 for a three- or four-month summer season was discussed. The board asked Vice President Vern France to check with the city concerning liability insurance to cover the youths participating on city property.

The board also indicated it would continue user fees for recreation programs, but it will try to keep the fees low enough so that all interested can participate. Board members said the user-fees would assist in funding and make it possible to keep the tax levy as low as possible.

Jones reported that 250 youths participated in this summer's baseball program. Each paid a $5 fee. He also explained there were 80 elementary-school children in the soccer program and 15 junior-high students. Fifty girls and 60 boys participated in basketball, he said.

Taxpayers fight district

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

GOODING — A committee in Gooding County is continuing a drive to collect 700 signatures on petitions that would call for a special election to dissolve the county's new recreation district.

The district was approved by voters on June 7, but those taxpayers opposing the district, meeting earlier this week, said many property owners have realized since that time a district could be quite costly because of the authority given the district's board of directors.

"We are basically opposed to any tax increases at the present time because of the current economy," says Dick Strickland, the chairman of the committee.

"The tax for the recreation district would be on all property, which means farmers would pay about two-thirds of the cost and city property owners about one-third."

His co-chairman, Lloyd Lierman, says the law that created the district allows it to set its own tax levies and to build or establish various recreational facilities, all at the expense of the taxpayers.

Sue Cavness, the chairman of the three-member board of directors for the district, met with the opposition group earlier in the week to answer questions regarding district plans. She expressed sympathy for the taxpayers position and said the district has agreed to hold initial activities to conducting a baseball program in Gooding. She estimated this could be done for about $1,000, and no more than $2,000 in total costs for the first year.

Lierman and other residents expressed a fear that the district could embark on an ambitious program under the state law governing recreation districts. The purpose of the district is listed as "acquiring, providing, maintaining and operating public recreation centers, such as swimming pools, picnic and camping facilities, ball parks, handball and tennis courts, marine and snowmobile facilities, ski areas, golf courses and other related grounds, buildings and equipment."

Bank tightens standards at credit associations

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

SPOKANE — A top official at the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Spokane says the bank is tightening oversight of its 30 production credit associations in the Northwest, after the takeover of four by federal authorities.

"We are monitoring the situation more closely on a more individual basis," says Ronald Tangvald, a senior vice president.

Earlier this year, the bank cooperated with the Federal Credit Administration in assuming control of the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association in Twin Falls because it was insolvent.

The FCA is the parent to the Federal Intermediate Credit Banks system, which provides funds for, and supervises local credit associations.

The southern Idaho cooperative marked the fifth time this year that the federal government has had to step in, says William Hoffman, the associate deputy governor of the FCA.

Four have been in the five-state district run by the Spokane bank. The FCA, in cooperation with the credit bank, also has assumed control of associations in Medford and Salem, Oregon, and in Mount Vernon, Wash. The fifth was in the Louisiana state, Hoffman says.

Hoffman, who supervises banking operations for the federal agency, says he expects other credit cooperatives to be unable to pay their debts if the farm economy remains depressed.

"I would say the farmers in this country are in generally worse shape than they were a year ago."

Tangvald, whose bank lends money to PCAs in Idaho, Oregon, Washington, Montana and Alaska, agrees. "It's reasonable to assume that unless the (farm) economy reverses, there will be significant problems."

"The situation over the past few years is that the commodities that are the major commodities in the Northwest are the ones that have been hit the hardest," he says.

Both the Southern Oregon PCA at Medford and the Puget Sound PCA at Mount Vernon loan heavily to the fishing enterprises. Fishing has suffered from intense competition and other difficulties.

The Southern Idaho PCA and the Willamette PCA in Salem, Ore., generally are agricultural lenders, Tangvald says. Some of the crops raised by their clients, such as onions, potatoes and grains, have had volatile pricing situations. Livestock producers also have had a difficult time, he says.

The vast majority of PCA borrowers still are handling their loans responsibly, Tangvald says. But the bank will keep a sharper eye on all PCAs and try to catch problems before they can impair the associations.

Although the Southern Idaho Production Credit Association is considered insolvent, federal and bank officials caught the problem before it ate into the equity owned by the borrowers.

KETCHUM — State Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, is mounting a campaign to compensate private contractors and the state Division of Highways, a claim the division denies.

Peavey is placing the blame of broken windows and scarred paint jobs on the manner in which the chip-seal resurfacing was handled by the private contractor and the state Division of Highways, a claim the division denies.

Peavey is saying the automobile damage was caused because the loose layer of chip-seal was left on the road too long and because the state posted advisory, rather than mandatory, speed signs to slow traffic during the work.

Peavey's windshield was broken during the job, which was done by Circle A Construction of Twin Falls prior to Labor Day. The chip-sealing stretched from Bellevue to just north of Ketchum.

"I don't think they got the chips off the road as soon as they possibly could have," Peavey says.

"It certainly wasn't the fault of the motorists. There are some real horror stories about brand new cars having broken windows on the way home from the shopping."

Howard Johnson, the District 4 highway superintendent, acknowledges that the loose chips were not swept from the highway as soon as normal. But, he says, cool weather and rain prevented the chips from sealing properly in the oil base, making it necessary to leave them on the road longer.

He says the job was done as any other chip-seal job, and he finds no fault with the way it was handled by the contractor. "The project was handled just like we handle any other project."

The chip-sealing provides an economical way of resurfacing paved roads and gives good traction for summer and winter driving, Johnson says. Normally, a road is chip-sealed once every seven years.

He says a road is cleaned before a thin layer of oil is placed on it and then covered with a layer of loose gravel. Rollers help seat the chips into the oil, he says, but it takes time before they seat properly.

During the initial stages, flagmen and pilot cars direct traffic through the work area, but they do not work at night, Johnson says.

He also says there is a high volume of traffic on Idaho 75, which caused a large number of automobiles to be damaged, and that many drivers failed to observe the advisory 30 mph signs that were posted.

Johnson says that the wider roadway throughout much of the project area — used for turn lanes and turnouts — caused a build-up of excess chips. These chips became airborne when one vehicle passed another.

The road was swept two and three times during the project, he says.

Peavey and Blaine County law-enforcement agencies received a high number of complaints during the work. But they weren't the only ones. "We had numerous complaints regarding broken windshields and chipped windshields," Johnson says.

"I can sympathize with people, but if everybody would use some common sense, there's no reason for it to happen."

Johnson does say that if he were to do it again, he would consider 24-hour flagmen and pilot cars, something that would run into an extra expense.

Peavey says that once he accumulates all the complaints, he will evaluate them and see if there are any grounds to approach the Highway Division about compensating the motorists whose automobiles were damaged.

Johnson says the chips are considered a road hazard, and it is up to the motorist to adjust his driving speed to allow for the hazard. He also says motorists are covered under their comprehensive insurance for the damage.

In the meantime, Peavey would like those with complaints to drop him a note detailing the time, place and extent of the damage for his evaluation.

The notes can be sent to: Sen. John Peavey, Box 488-Ketchum, 83340.

Volunteers to explain services

TWIN FALLS — The people who make things happen — community volunteers — will be on display today in the Twin Falls downtown mall during the annual Community Services and Volunteer Day.

A wide variety of organizations, including health care, service, veterans and political groups, will have booths along Main Avenue to tell the story of their community activities.

The "valley walk" will have a booth, providing information about various participating agencies.

There also will be food and baked goods for sale.

The event is being sponsored by the downtown business improvement district.

Jerome hosts district 4-H fair

JEROME — The Magic Valley area district 4-H fair will take place today, beginning at 8 a.m. at the Jerome County Fairgrounds.

Competition will include: a horse show, beginning at 9 a.m.; dog show, 10 a.m.; style revue, 10 a.m.; and the 4-H bowl, a question-and-answer competition, at 2:30 p.m. District competition in the beef and dairy categories was held during the Twin Falls County Fair last week.

Competitors in the district meet must have placed among the top 100 in the district in competition at the fairs in Cassia, Minidoka, Twin Falls, Jerome, Gooding, Blaine or Camas counties, according to University of Idaho Extension Service agent Bill R.

An apology

TWIN FALLS — A story in Wednesday's Times-News detailing alleged conflict-of-interest charges involving Lamar Orton, the Twin Falls community development director, inappropriately included identifying figures for Orton's bedding plant business.

The policy of the newspaper is that such information is confidential and not for public information. The Times-News regrets the error and apologizes to Orton.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — In "Civil court blotter," The Times-News recently reported the filing of a lawsuit in which Hanes Seed Co. and Idaho First National Bank are the defendants. All references to the Gallatin Valley Seed Co. related to the filing were in error.

The Times-News incorrectly reported that the Hanes Seed Co. was doing business as Gallatin Valley Seed Co., and that when shares of Hanes were acquired by Idaho First National Bank, shares of Gallatin also were acquired by the bank, as a subsidiary of Hanes.

Gallatin was never owned by Hanes and never operated as doing business as Hanes. The shares of Gallatin have never been owned by Hanes or Idaho First National Bank. Gallatin has never been involved in any lawsuits with Hanes or Idaho First National.

Murder suspect remains in jail

TWIN FALLS — Bond has been denied for the Castleford man accused of fatally shooting two persons in Buhl this summer.

Judge Michael Rodman, of the Fifth District Magistrate Court, said at a Friday bond hearing that the nature of the charges is one reason why he will not set bond for Keith Rosencrantz, 31.

Rosencrantz has been charged with two counts of first-degree murder. He allegedly shot his former girlfriend, Cathy Alice Ghel; 30, and her companion, Michael Wayne Lee, 23, of Twin Falls, at the woman's residence on June 18, before turning the shotgun on himself.

As a result of his injuries, Rosencrantz lost his left arm.

Defense lawyer Jeff Stoker requested a $20,000 bond at Friday's hearing. He said the crime appeared to be one of "passion." Statistics show that the chance of a repeated incident, however, is low, he said. "I don't think he will run."

But Kandance Kemp, the deputy Twin Falls County prosecutor, said, "I think he's a time bomb, and it's necessary for the public to have him under lock and key."

Rosencrantz's mother, Peggy Gortman of Castleford, testified that her son was "awful nervous and irritable" before the incident.

"Now, he's more like his old self, calm and good-natured."

If released, her son would live and work with her and her husband, Lyle, of Buhl, she said.

Gortman said that her son and her mother, who lives in Buhl, were willing to place all their property in the hands of the court to cover any bond.

Kemp asked Gortman if she knew her son had been arrested a few days prior to the shootings for "packing a gun and using alcohol to the extreme?"

Gortman replied that she knew only about the intoxication part and learned about the gun later. She said she had planned to enroll him in an alcohol treatment program.

Kemp claimed Gortman did not have control of her son before the shootings and could not maintain it if he was freed on bond.

On behalf of the defense attorney's motion, two Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies testified that they believed Rosencrantz would not leave the area if released.

Gary Stringer, a jailer at the county facility, said he thought Rosencrantz "would stay around," but he added, "I don't know if he would do any crimes."

Rosencrantz said that he could have — but didn't — escape when he was not guarded at the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, where he was treated for the shoulder wound.

Presenting evidence against the motion, Sheriff Alvin Mann said the guard was removed from Rosencrantz's room based on a doctor's report that the suspect was not ambulatory. A round-the-clock guard was replaced when Rosencrantz's condition improved.

In making his ruling, Rodman said the suspect appears to have an alcohol problem. And the pressure on him because of the case could aggravate matters and possibly "endanger the community," he said.

DUI offender sent to Cottonwood

By PAT MARCANTONIO

TWIN FALLS — A man with a prior record of more than a dozen drunken-driving offenses ran out of "chances" this week.

He has been sentenced to spend four months at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood.

And at the end of that time, it will be determined if Donald F. Houk, 50, of 212 Fourth Ave. E. in Twin Falls, will be placed on probation or if he will spend the rest of his five-year term in prison.

That sentence was imposed earlier this week at the Fifth District Court in Twin Falls by Judge Daniel Meehl. Five years is the maximum sentence for a repeat drunken-driving conviction.

Houk was sentenced for DUI incidents that took place in March and April in Twin Falls. At the hearing, Prosecutor Harry DeHann said Houk had accumulated 13 prior drunk-driving offenses. There also was a record in California.

"I'm not very proud of those," Houk told the court. "Hopefully, I'll not have any more of those."

Houk's attorney, James May, asked for a withheld sentence and probation, with the stipulations that his client would limit his driving to work only and continue taking a medication that discourages drinking.

"He knows he's getting down to his last chance," May said. A prison term could result in the suspension of Houk's real-estate license, the attorney said, and there was "no sense taking his livelihood away."

May added that his client continually had sought treatment for his "illness" of drinking.

DeHann said he wanted imprisonment because the public had sent a clear message — through stiff legislation — that it wants drunken drivers off the road, "even for a short period of time."

Meehl said Houk had stayed out of trouble in the last months and his improved attitude was documented. But, the judge said, there was no assurance that he would not "be a danger to society."

Meehl also gave Houk credit for the time he had served in jail on the charges. Houk was transferred to the Cottonwood facility on Wednesday.

In another district court case heard this week, Richard A. Jones, 31, was placed on probation for two years.

Convicted of marijuana possession and arson, Jones had served four months at the Cottonwood facility. Based on his behavior at NCI, the remainder of his three-year prison sentence was suspended by Meehl.

Jones had pleaded guilty to possessing marijuana in December and to setting two cars on fire in the Devil's Corral area in April.

Meehl ordered Jones to pay restitution.

portion of the traffic on Morton Drive, he said. That traffic was the major factor motivating the complaint.

Hampelman, however, said the original permit was for retail sales. By itself, a growth in J & K's volume since 1978 was no grounds for revocation, he said.

But later Friday, Mark Stubbs, an attorney representing one of the residents, said he thought Hampelman was wrong. "The major problem has not been solved," he said, referring to the traffic.

He reiterated a point that he made earlier, however, that the city's retail volume experienced by J & K is a "significant" change of use.

This was one "finding of fact" cited by Twin Falls City Council members in their 4-2 vote on Aug. 15 to revoke the permit.

Hampelman and Mrs. Phillips appealed that decision to the special appeals board. Under the 1990 agreement between the county and city, the board is the final administrative judge for zoning disputes within the "impact" area, where J & K is located.

Sheryl Merritt, one of the residents who signed the petition, however, said Friday that she thought the board had been "very fair."

"We sure didn't want to shut the business down, but the neighbors did want to tell Mr. and Mrs. Phillips there was a problem, she said.

"Solving the problem for one group of people by creating a problem for another is no solution at all," she said.

"Either way, it was a losing battle."

Mr. Phillips said the decision was obviously "political." As such, he said he had mixed feelings.

But Mrs. Phillips said the board ruled "more in our favor than not."

She noted, too, that the complaint about traffic had not been solved. But she said she and her husband will continue in their attempts to purchase a lot that would give them direct access to Grandview Drive.

Migrant council funds CSI auto course

TWIN FALLS — Nine Mexican-American students are enrolled in an abbreviated auto mechanics course at the College of Southern Idaho, which is being funded by the Idaho Migrant Council.

During the 30-week course, the students will receive instruction in auto work — on — brakes, front-end alignment, suspension, tune-up and electrical systems.

According to instructor Fred Rodriguez, the course is intended to prepare the students for service station work or employment at area garages.

This is one of several grants the school has received from the Idaho Migrant Council, which have been helpful to CSI in training area Mexican-Americans, according to CSI officials.

This is the section of the law that has stirred opposition, Lerman says.

Strickland says the committee has about 500 signatures now and needs just over 600. However, the goal is 700 signers, to allow for possible disqualifications or duplication.

The committee leaders say they would like to meet the goal by next Oct. 1, so an election can be held this fall. To add to the signatures now on file, the committee plans to man a booth on Main Street during Spud Days festivities today. Other members will continue calling on taxpayers in their areas, explaining their plan for an election.

It was indicated at this week's meeting that the election-sponsoring group probably will have to pay the bill for the special election.

Although there was some uncertainty expressed as to the initial tax levy the district plans, Strickland says the maximum levy allowed by law would be six cents per $100 of assessed property value, or 60 cents per $1,000.

QUESTION . . .

Do I have to pay Federal Income Tax on the life insurance proceeds received recently as the beneficiary of my husband's insurance?

ANSWER . . .

Very probably the insurance money you received is exempt from Federal income taxation. Insurance proceeds are usually paid to related beneficiaries for the purpose of providing funds after the death of the insured. However, if the insurance money was paid to you in full consideration of a debt, or for a portion of the money must be included in your gross income for Federal income tax purposes. This applies also to death benefits paid under accident and health insurance policies.

As a general rule, therefore, this money is tax exempt if you are the surviving spouse or a relative of the insured and the insurance proceeds were paid in a lump sum to you as the beneficiary of the policy.

Former leader does not regret new Presbyterian church

By MICHAEL OBELE
United Press International

DALLAS — The southern Presbyterian leaders whose 46-year campaign led to the formation of the new Presbyterian Church in the United States of America has no regrets about the dissolution of his old denomination.

With the campaign to unite Northern and Southern Presbyterians at a successful end, there is no nostalgia today when the Rev. John Anderson of Dallas recalls the day he laid the former Presbyterian Church in the United States, of which he was a minister, to rest.

The date was July 10; the time was 2:30 p.m.; the place was Atlanta.

In union with his Northern counterpart,

Anderson told tens of thousands of the faithful. "We now declare the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America to be in existence."

The historic pronouncement marked the end of Anderson's church and that of some 638,000 other members. It was formed during the Civil War years, after a rift with the rest of the Presbyterian Church in North America.

"I've really resented being in the confederate church," Anderson, 63, said recently. "I really think the old had to die in order for the new to come."

During its existence, the congregations of the church filled the Southeast, extending as far north as Maryland, as far west as Texas and north to Kansas. For much of this century, the church stressed overseas evangelism and ecumenism, and maintained close ties with Northern Presbyterians.

Anderson's work and travels as the last leader of the church further convinced him it was time to turn out the lights on regional Presbyterianism.

"It was a beautiful, but a hectic year," he says of his travels to Russia, Mexico, Canada and South Africa. During the 27 Sundays he was not in his pulpit at the First Presbyterian Church of Dallas, he found that the Northern and Southern Presbyterian churches were duplicating each other's efforts at home and abroad in evangelism, education and social work.

Anderson also notes that both churches held the same general theological positions.

His emotions at the pasting of the Southern Presbyterian church were dominated as much by excitement that a 122-year-old family feud was ending as by relief that most of his administrative chores were done.

"Instead of adjusting to it, you're sort of relieved," Anderson says.

He says the only drawback to not being a denominational head is having to carry one's own luggage.

"As a permanent job, it would be murder. I missed my wife and my dog."

Although he had long been sold on merger, some in the Southern Presbyterian church, especially evangelicals, opposed the union. It often fell to Anderson to work with such pastors and elders in the weeks before members cast the votes necessary to dissolve the church and form a united church with their Northern colleagues.

"I had to work very hard on that. There were people who had grave concerns about this thing."

Back in his pulpit most Sundays, Anderson still has a five-year obligation to attend meetings with church officials on a governing body of the newly formed church.

"I think we have some traditions we have to guard, but I like the Latin phrase we have. 'The church reformed, yet ever being reformed.' You never let the cement harden."

Holland busy with city work

By SUSIE DELOZIER
Times-News correspondent

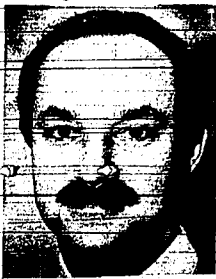

RUPERT — Russ Holland thinks he is a "city man" and better the community one lives in.

To that end, he serves as president of the Rotary Chamber of Commerce and is now serving his second term as vice chairman of the Mindoka school board. And he was only recently elected as president of the local Rotary Club.

Holland, who is manager of Roper's Department Store in Rupert, credits his employers with encouraging him to become involved in the community. Holland graduated from Idaho State University in Pocatello with a major in history education, only to discover "there was not a great demand for people with that sort of degree."

Holland says he heard about a management program Roper's was offering and went to work as assistant manager in their Burley store.

"When the position of manager at the Rupert store was offered to me, my wife and I decided to commute to living in Burley. I would commute to Rupert each day. But we soon found my employer, Jim Roper, had other plans for us."

"Our employees live in and become involved in the community where they work," Roper told Holland.

So Holland began his community involvement with membership in the Chamber of Commerce in 1977. Then when the school board was experiencing problems, Holland felt he might be able to help.

"There were some real conflicts between some board members and I was hoping that as a new board member I could help them bury the hatchet so we could all work together," recalls Holland.

"I was also eager to help get some badly needed new buildings and to get a public-kindergarten program going," he adds.

Holland says he gets "a great deal of satisfaction when I see all the great things these organizations achieve for the city of Rupert and its residents."

"Because we're volunteer groups, we're able to accomplish a lot for the community and provide some extra benefits such as the Chamber of Commerce Scholarship, our annual running Marathon each summer, and the Christmas City decorations that Rupert is so well-known for.

All these things and more are made possible through the efforts of many volunteers."

Board opposes zoning-office cuts

nated in the economy move. Commissioners made no move to change their plans on the issue, just asked the zoning commission to understand their position in view of reduced county revenue.

JEROME — Members of the Jerome County planning and zoning board expressed concern over possible downgrading of zoning matters when they met this past week with Jerome county commissioners.

Five members of the zoning board asked commissioners to reconsider the money-saving order cutting the county zoning administrator and building inspector, Al Hepworth, to a four-day week.

Commissioners have trimmed one day's time from Hepworth's schedule and reduced his salary by 20 percent.

Clair Ricketts, chairman of the zoning board, said by having Hepworth work only Monday through Thursday the county is creating not only a financial hardship for Hepworth, but also a problem for contractors.

"We have discussed this and believe we need a full time inspector to do a good job," Ricketts told the commissioners. "If a contractor needs an inspection on Friday so he can start pouring concrete Monday morning and there is no inspector available, he loses a day or two of work time," Ricketts added.

He said there have already been complaints from builders. Ricketts said the zoning board believes availability is important, even if Hepworth may not be carrying a heavy workload five days a week.

Commission Chairman Carl Butler told zoning officials the county made the cut in an attempt to balance the budget. He said Hepworth was given a choice of taking a salary cut from $16,000 annually and staying on full time, or reducing his work week by one day and receiving only $13,344, or about $3,000 less per year.

Richard Critser, a zoning board member, asked commissioners if they are de-emphasizing the importance of zoning in the county. He told the county officials Hepworth is well qualified and does a good job for the county, having had considerable experience in the building and construction fields.

Earlier this year the commission eliminated the secretary in the zoning office, but Butler said this may not be permanent. He said through the Green Thumb program the county expects to have free use of senior citizen-workers for 24 hours each per week and that one of these workers could serve as secretary for Hepworth.

Critser agreed 24 hours a week might be enough to help reduce answering and message delivery while Hepworth is out of the office on inspections.

Butler said commissioners felt the building inspector's salary was a little too high since it exceeded that of the county clerk, treasurer and several other department heads.

He also said two positions in the assessor's office have been elim-

School seeks teaching aid

HAILEY — Volunteers to provide first-hand expertise to school curriculums are being sought by the Blaine County school district.

Superintendent Dick Jones said the volunteer program is designed to bring people with experience and skills into the classroom to provide knowledge "over and above" what the classroom instructors can provide.

Jones said the program also is intended to attract more public involvement in the school system. "We want people to know what we are doing," he said.

Jones is now compiling a list of resource people to participate. He said he will approach community service groups and make other inquiries to find volunteers.

Anyone wanting to contribute his time should contact Jones at 788-2298, Wood River High School principal Phil Homer at 788-3481, or any of the district's principals.

THE ACES[®] BOBBY WOLFF

"Nothing so needs reforming as other people's habits." - Mark Twain.

If East follows habit, he has no chance to be the third game. If he leads South astray, South is a huge favorite to earn a minus score.

West leads the heart-jack and East is at the crossroads. Should he play his ace or queen?

If he plays his ace and then his queen, South will duck and East must shift to another suit. This gives South the time he needs and the diamonds are developed before his king of hearts is gone. Three no-trump bid and made, with an over-trick.

What happens if East plays the queen instead of the ace? Since South cannot look through the backs of cards, he will surely take his heart king. His only hope is to lead diamonds and West routinely ducks the first round. When South continues with the suit, West takes his ace and East gets his chance to shine. On this diamond, he discards his ace.

Could the play of the heart queen produce a loser? It might if West had led from the K-J-10. However, given South's bidding, he most surely had the heart

ANSWER: Three hearts. Three no-trump is a possibility, however, the heart honors might prove to be priceless for play in hearts.

Valley wins Canyon Conference showdown

By CHRIS HAFST
Times-News writer

WENDELL — The Valley Vikings can boast that they were resurgent; the Wendell Trojans can moan that they became crippled.

Both statements are true, but the most valid thing to say is that it was quite a football game, this 16-6 Valley triumph Friday night.

The Canyon Conference opener was flavored with delicious tension, marred by an injury to Wendell quarterback Matt Bertagnoli, characterized by powerful hitting and decided by Valley's strong second-half performance.

Trailing 6-0 at intermission, the Vikings received the second-half kickoff, marched 65 yards in nine plays and took an 8-6 lead on Marlin Mussmann's 2-yard touchdown run and conversion pass to David Severance — a definite reversal, considering the Vikings had zero first downs and just 25 yards total offense at halftime.

Following a surprising fourth-quarter decision by Wendell Coach Jack Lancaster which led to an aborted Viking drive, Valley notched its insurance touchdown three plays after Jay Holstine recovered a fumble at the Trojan 7-yard line.

The rally nobly routed Valley Coach Forrest Fombeck, whose team improved its overall mark to 3-0.

"I'm not going to slight Wendell — they really popped us," he said. "But I think the kids took a really check." They looked at the scoreboard and got off the ball a lot better. We got really hungry.

"We had been untested to this point (referring to Valley's routs of Murtaugh and Malad in its first two games). But after we got down, we came back. I'm really proud of all of them."

Yet it was Wendell which deserved to be proud at the outset. After taking the opening kickoff, the Trojans crisply moved 66 yards in nine plays, assuming a 6-0 edge on Brett Thackeray's 8-yard run with 7:38 left in the first quarter. Drive-sustaining plays included Eric Weismelster's 23-yard run, which put Wendell in Viking territory, and Bertagnoli's 9-yard pass to Ray Sultz on third-and-8 from Valley's 39.

The defenses dominated the action the remainder of the half. Valley's deepest penetration was Wendell's 46, while the Trojans twice pierced the Viking 35 but lost possession each time, first on downs and then on a wild option pitch from Thackeray to Weismelster that Valley's Danny Douglas recovered.

Thackeray was manning the quarterback spot because Bertagnoli had suffered a broken collarbone late in the first quarter. The injury occurred on a first-and-10 at Valley's 44: Severance and David Moneur threw Bertagnoli for a 5-yard loss, forcing the Trojan signal-caller out of this game and at least several more.

Since Bertagnoli's usual backup, sophomore Jay Barker, had played four quarters earlier this week in a junior varsity game and thus was just one under the state's weekly limit, Lancaster was forced to put Thackeray at quarterback. This emasculated Wendell's prime rushing threat.

Lancaster felt it did more. "It made the difference in the whole game," he stated. "It took away a lot of our running game — when Bertagnoli got hurt it just took a lot of wind out of our sails. We were dominating the game at that point, and I felt like we would continue to do so."

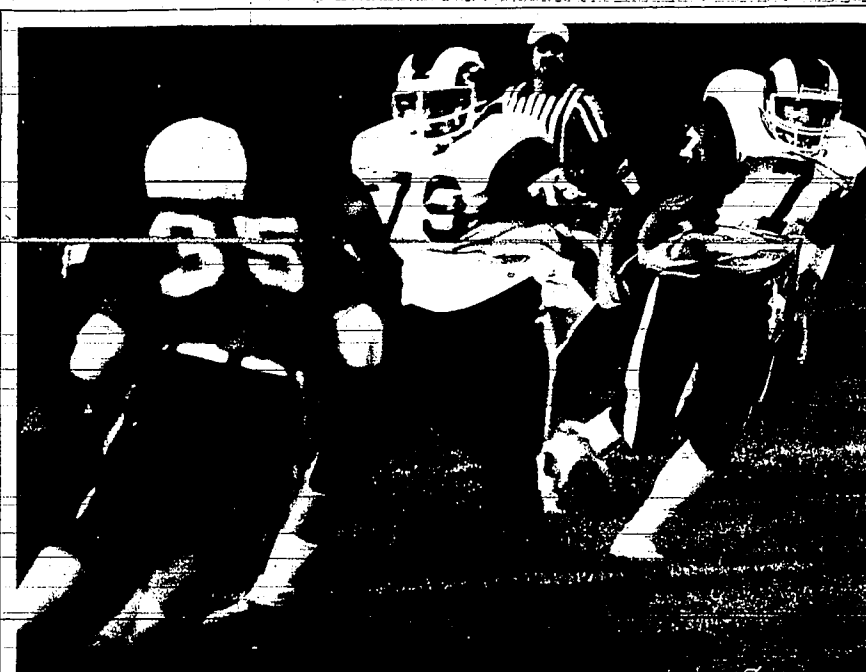

Wendell's defense certainly ceased to dominate the Vikings. "We didn't come out hitting in the second half like we should have," Lancaster said. "We were getting possession and eventually faced a fourth-and-2 at its own 30 when the third quarter expired. When the fourth quarter began, Lancaster shocked the overflow crowd by allowing the Trojans to go for the first regular possession and eventually getting stopped after picking up 1 yard."

Highland tackle Bret Hansen (79) takes blocking aim at Bruin Craig Leonard (35) as Keith Honas (7) heads the other way

Alert Rams stump Bruins

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In almost the twinkling of an eye — about 10 seconds — the Twin Falls Bruins went from possible winners to ensh 14-0 losers to the Highland Rams Friday night.

On only its second serious penetration of the night, Twin Falls — looking at a fourth-and-5 on the Highland 7 and the scoreboard showing 0-0 — elected to try for the field goal. It was practically point-blank for Corky Federico and after a night of giving and taking breaks, the Bruins were close to taking the lead.

But at the snap, Highland safety Troy Quick hopped over the line and smothered the ball to the point that he fell on it. As his momentum carried him past, the ball lay on the turf and everyone seemed to relax — except for defensive end Paul Hill, who knew it was a live ball. He picked it up and started for the end zone some 87 yards away, escorted by a host of Bruins who knocked down the only Bruin with a chance of overhauling him.

That score came with 9:28 left in the game. Three plays later an errant option pitch gave Highland the ball again at midfield. Ten plays after that Keith McAdams scored on an eight-yard dive to seal the Highland win.

live ball. "That decision was solid all the way down the field," Jones said, when asked if he'd considered a shot at the touchdown. "When it came up second and long I told (offensive coordinator) Bill Ingram to put it safe. (Resulting in a down-and-out pass that went incomplete). The third down was a 13 that was designed to put the ball in position for the kick. If (left) Lamarbert popped off, fine, but if he didn't, the ball would be set up."

"I felt at that point in time, if we kicked the field goal we'd win the game," he added.

First-year Ram Coach Dirk Koetter asked if it was a play of individual effort that brought the block about, said "It certainly was a play. We tried to divide (the line) and come up running from the secondary and block it." Which is what happened.

"Give full credit to Randy Rehner, our defensive coordinator," Koetter said. "They said we didn't have any defense (after getting whipped by Borah) but he showed us we did tonight."

For most of the game the Bruins seemed to be fighting on their backs after two early fumbles gave Highland possession inside the 25 and the 30, respectively. But the defense averted one thrust and Highland fumbled the other back.

Minico wins GSC opener over Griz

By MIKE PRATER
Times-News writer

RUPERT — The Minico Spartans ended a 14-year losing skid against Skyline Friday night by knocking off the mistake-prone Grizzlies 19-9.

The victory marked the first time a Minico football team has defeated Skyline since 1968, the season the Spartans upped the Idaho Falls school 14-12.

The clincher for this year's outing came midway through the second period when senior quarterback Von Peterman hooked up with Kevin Halverson for an 86-yard scoring strike.

Halverson, the son of Minico Coach Red Halverson, caught the perfectly thrown pass near midfield before outrunning two Grizzly defenders to reach pay dirt and establish the final margin.

That touchdown was the final scoring play of the night as the two squads settled down in the second half for a defensive struggle that resulted in a barrage of turnovers.

Minico also opened the scoring, jumping on top early in the first quarter when senior tailback Eugene Chapa scored his second touchdown of the season, a 2-yard effort with 6:43 remaining. That scoring opportunity was set up moments earlier when Trent Bell pounced on a loose Skyline football.

Skyline's point production came about when Chapa slipped in his own end zone, giving up the safety and on Tom Hershey's 5-yard run at 7:15 of the second period. Skyline led at that point 9-7 and it appeared to have enough steam to remain on top.

Although the Grizzlies had several opportunities to score in the second half they turned the ball over four times on downs and once on a lost fumble.

"We were really up for this game," said Red Halverson. "The offense did what it had to do, but we really won the game because of our defense. We were great in the trenches. It was strictly a defensive effort."

Minico's defense did rise to the occasion in the second half when it appeared the young Grizzly offense started to move the ball.

Skyline opened the second half as if it was determined to keep its winning streak against Minico alive. In its opening drive, the young Grizzly offense, with backs Hershey and Mike Taggart doing most of the work straight through the middle, drove the ball to Minico's 45.

However, the Spartans stopped Hershey cold on a crucial fourth-and-1 play to end the drive that consumed most of the period.

"I felt after stopping them that we were going to win the ball game," Halverson said. "With (Greg) Schow and (Steve) Garland playing in the trenches, we felt untouchable after stopping them deep in our territory."

Minico, though, came right back and turned the ball over as quarterback Jerry Johnson threw the first of two passes to the wrong team.

Once again the Spartans denied Skyline any yardage and the Grizzlies lost the ball when they failed to convert a fourth-down pass play.

Oakley stays alive in MVC

By CHRIS HAFST
Times-News writer

MALTA — The Oakley Hornets stayed alive in the Magic Valley Conference race Friday night, driving for a touchdown on their first possession and after that blocked with Raft River in a defensive stalemate for a 7-0 decision.

Oakley kicked off and forced a punt to begin the scoring drive, going 61 yards before Gus Geringe played the Hornets ahead with a one-yard plunge.

Wayne Lind booted the point-after.

Raft River had two challenges before halftime, the deepest carrying to the four before being turned back and the second to the 15.

Oakley's best shot for more points came in the fourth quarter after recovering a fumble at the Raft River 20. Lind tried a field goal that was blocked.

Oakley — 7 0 0 0-7
Raft River — 0 0 0 0-0
O-Geringe 1 run (12yd kick)

The same scenario was repeated as Johnson threw his second interception. Minico's defense held and then the teams traded fumbles deep in Minico territory.

Skyline had one more chance, but once again couldn't pick up a first down.

"We just don't have the horses for a potent offense," said disappointed Skyline Coach Mahlon Rasmussen. "If we had good players, we could have won this thing. I think we are just as good as ballclub as Minico, but we are having a down season."

Shellshocked Bulldogs lose big to A-2 American Falls

By CHRIS HAFST
Times-News writer

KIMBERLY — The best thing that can be said about the Kimberly Bulldogs' performance Friday afternoon was that it was unglue.

Displaying rare ineffectiveness, the Bulldogs doomed themselves with various miscues and dropped a non-conference game to the American Falls Beavers, 36-8. The 28-point margin of defeat was the Bulldogs' worst for the regular season since they fell to Gooding, 42-12, on Oct. 12, 1979.

The Bulldogs, 2-1, lost five fumbles and had two passes intercepted. They were consistent in their erring, committing mistakes early, late and in between, which left Coach Gordon Hogan mollified. "I wish I could answer that," he said after being asked to explain Kimberly's sloppiness.

Turnovers set up all but two of the Beavers' five touchdowns, but they might have won even without Kimberly's philanthropy. The A-2 school, which improved to 3-0, owned enough strength and skill to survive on its own.

American Falls' superior strength was embodied in its line play, which dominated both sides. Defensive end Burt Ferringer was especially powerful, spending much of the afternoon in the Bulldogs' backfield.

Meanwhile, the Beavers' skill was demonstrated primarily by wide receiver Mike Hensch, who caught seven passes for 172 yards and two first-half touchdowns. Nearly all of Hensch's receptions were worthy of highlight films, being of the leaping, sailing, grabbed-with-the-fingertips variety.

"We knew they would be tough," Hogan affirmed. "They looked good on paper and they executed pretty well."

Neither team executed well initially, first trading fumbles and then interceptions. But Kimberly broke the deadlock late in the first quarter when quarterback Tim Ferrell fumbled a snap, American Falls recovering.

After an encroachment penalty and an incomplete pass, the Beavers scored on quarterback Wade Ward's 12-yard pass in the quarter. Ward passed to Mike Hayhurst for the conversion.

Ferrell and the Bulldogs endured more adversity moments later, when an American Falls player deflected his punt, which ultimately traveled just five yards from the line of scrimmage, giving the Beavers possession on Kimberly's 31-yard line.

Hensch brought American Falls inches from the goal line with a remarkable 26-yard catch heading out of bounds. Ferrell scored on the next play with 10:18 to go before halftime and grabbed the conversion pass from Ward for a 16-0 Beaver advantage.

Midway through the second period Ferrell intercepted a Ward pass behind the American Falls 35 and ran for 10 yards.

From there the Beavers used 11 plays to collect their third touchdown. Agains Hensch accounted for the big gains, catching a 35-yard bomb on third-and-10 from the 3 and diving for a 25-yard touchdown pass on third-and-12 in the right corner of the end zone 57 seconds before intermission.

Kimberly surged briefly, driving 87 yards in 10 plays to score on Ferrell's 41-yard pass to Troy Jackson with 11:17 left in the third quarter. Ferrell found Jackson over the middle at the 30, and the Bulldog scampered untouched the rest of the way. Ferrell connected with Andy Nauman on the conversion, narrowing the difference to 29.

Though the Bulldogs forced American Falls to punt on its next possession, their hopes were crushed soon afterward. Back to pass — third-and-11 from his own 20, Ferrell was instantly surrounded by Beavers. Hensch did a flip the ball to Dan Nelson, but the toss went away. The enterprising Ferringer scooped up the ball at the 11 and proceeded into the end zone with 1:51 left in the period.

Gooding 14 G. Ferry 12

GLENN'S FERRY — The kicking toe of Mark Jones provided the difference as the Gooding Spartans slipped past the Glenns Ferry Pilots 14-12 Friday night.

It was a game of halves as the Pilots dominated the first with a pair of touchdowns passes sandwiched around another scoring threat that failed. In the second half, Gooding seemed to knock on the door constantly but didn't nail it down until Todd Sims hit Brian Darcy on a seven-yard scoring pass with 2:52 to play.

Glenns Ferry held Gooding five times inside the 15-yard line, most of those in the second half.

Gooding — 3 1 0 0-14

Turner reinstates his tepee

ATLANTA (UPI) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner ordered the tepee of team mascot Chief Noc-A-Homa reinstated Friday in hopes of improving the Braves' sagging performance in the race for the National League West pennant. "Turner, who ordered the chief's home taken down Aug. 11 to make way for more seats, said he decided to put the tepee back in the left field stands of Atlanta-Fulton Stadium County because some fans felt its removal was responsible for the team's nose-dive. "It's just something I decided to do while driving to work this morning," Turner said Friday. "I don't think the tepee means anything, but it certainly can't hurt anything." Workers began rebuilding the tepee around noon. When the chief was evicted last month to make room for 250 additional seats, the Braves were 70-45 and held a 1/2-game lead over the Los Angeles Dodgers. Since then, they have lost 10 of 13 home games and 20 of 30 games overall, and have dropped 4 1/2 games behind the Dodgers with just 17 games remaining in the season. Many Atlanta fans have blamed the Braves' decline on removal of the tepee, noting a similar losing streak last season after the tepee was taken down. For the past month, the Braves' office has been swamped with telephone calls and mail from fans, who have pleaded for the tepee to be reinstated.

Australia II protest rejected

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — An international panel of jurors Friday upheld Liberty's second America's Cup victory over Australia II, but Aussie Syndicate Chairman Alan Bond charged "the evidence was biased." "We're going to study the decision and see what appropriate action to take," Bond said after the five-member America's Cup International Committee disallowed Australia II's protest, ruling Liberty was not dangerously close to the Australians. The unanimous decision confirming Liberty's 2-0 record in the best-of-seven series was particularly cheerful for Liberty skipper Dennis Connor, celebrating his 41st birthday. "Liberty needs only two more wins to keep the cup hoisted to a table in the host New York Yacht Club's Manhattan mansion and maintain the 132-year American domination of the event — sports' longest winning streak. The Australians maintained their boat was forced to wear away Thursday when Liberty was too closely across its path there was imminent danger of a collision. The Australians said their tacking prevented the clash but cost them the race. The committee disagreed, contending Australia II was far enough away to pass Liberty without harm by continuing her course on the disputed fourth leg.

Connors upset by Mayer

DALLAS (UPI) — Sandy Mayer upset U.S. Open champion Jimmy Connors with a 6-4, 7-5 victory Friday night to advance to the semifinals of a $200,000 Grand Prix tennis tournament. Connors, coming off his fifth U.S. Open title, was undone by the consistent play of Mayer, the fifth seed. In the other late quarterfinal match, Brian Teacher upset second-seeded Gene Mayer 6-4, 6-3. With his victory over Connors, Mayer advanced to the semifinals against Andres Gomez of Ecuador, who captured two tie-breakers Friday to defeat New Zealand's Chris Lewis 7-6, 7-6. Teacher will play Scott Davis — a 7-6, 6-1 winner over John Fitzgerald Friday, in the other semifinal match Saturday. Gomez had rally from three points down in a second-round tie-breaker against Eric Korita to make it into the quarterfinals. In Friday's match against Lewis he won both tie-breakers 7-5.

Bandits use Chargers, Klein

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Tampa Bay Bandits of the United States Football League filed suit Friday against the San Diego Chargers of the National Football League over the Chargers' attempts to lure running back Gary Anderson from the Bandits, the USFL announced. Tampa Bay's managing general partner, John Bassett, said the suit was made necessary by actions of San Diego principal owner Eugene Klein and the Chargers. "Mr. Klein and San Diego knew Gary Anderson was under contract with the Bandits," Bassett said. "The NFL was warned that any actions to lure Gary away would be considered an interference with a contractual relationship. Mr. Klein is not above the law." Anderson, a first-round pick by San Diego in the 1983 NFL draft, signed a four-year contract with the Bandits on May 9, 1983. Anderson rushed for 516 yards on 97 attempts and caught 29 passes for 347 yards in the second half of the USFL season. Anderson signed a series of four one-year contracts with the Chargers 1/2 August, claiming that his agent, Dr. Jerry Argovitz delivered him to the new league in exchange for an expansion franchise. Federal District Judge Norman Black then granted a temporary restraining order on Aug. 4, but dissolved it eight days later.

Baseball

Phillies, Pirates deadlocked

By United Press International

Mike Schmidt scored from third base with two out in the 13th on Steve Baker's second wild pitch of the inning to give the Philadelphia Phillies a 3-2 victory Friday night over the St. Louis Cardinals.

The triumph enabled the Phillies to retain a share of first place in the National League East, while the Cardinals fell 3 1/2 games behind. Schmidt led off the 13th against Steve Baker, 0-1, with his fourth consecutive walk and pinch hitter Kiko Garcia sacrificed him to second. After Garry Maddox grounded out, Baker uncorked his first wild pitch, sending Schmidt to third.

Pinch hitter Gary Matthews was walked intentionally and with Bo Diaz at the plate, Baker threw a 1-0 curve in the dirt, allowing Schmidt to score and making him a winner. Willie Hernandez, the third Philadelphia pitcher. Hernandez improved his record to 7-4 with three innings of work.

The Phillies had tied the score 2-2 with a pair of runs in the eighth. Pinch hitter Pete Rose singled and Joe Morgan walked to knock out starter John Stuper. Len Matuszek, who had an apparent sacrifice wiped out after the umpires ruled — after a Cardinal protest — that the ball started out to foul, bunted again, but reliever Bruce Sutter threw the ball into left field to score pinch runner Jeff Stuss and send Morgan to third. Joe Lefebvre tied it with a sacrifice fly. With their signaling rally, the Phillies got starter Charles Hudson off the hook after the rookie right-hander allowed just one hit in his eight innings of work. The Cardinals parlayed that hit — Darrell Porter's ground-rule double — into a two-run fifth in which both runs were unearned.

Leading off the inning, Andy Van Slyke was awarded first by plate umpire Terry Tata on catcher's interference, stole second and scored on Porter's hit down the right field line. Porter went to third on a groundout and scored on a groundout by Mike Ramsey. Pittsburgh 9, Montreal 0.

In Pittsburgh, rookie Jose DeLeon pitched an nine-inning and Marvyn Wynne hit an eighth-inning grand slam to lead the Pittsburgh Pirates to a shutout over the Montreal Expos in a game delayed 42 minutes by rain. The triumph enabled the Pirates to maintain a tie for first place in the National League East.

DeLeon, 7-2, pitched his third complete game despite control problems. The right-hander walked five and struck out eight.

Wynne's first career grand slam, with two out in the eighth, came off reliever Jeff Roarkon. Tony Peña's infield single was sandwiched around by Mike Easler and Dale Berra before Wynne hit a 1-1 pitch into the right-field seats to give Pittsburgh a 9-0 lead.

In the sixth, Richie Hebner tripled in Jason Thompson, who had been hit by Charlie Lea's pitch, and Tony Pena, who reached on an error by second baseman Manny Trillo. Hebner scored on the second wild pitch of the game by Lea, 1-0, to give the Pirates a 5-0 lead.

The Pirates took a 1-0 lead in the fourth when Dave Parker doubled, took third on a wild pitch and scored on Thompson's single. They made in 2-0 in the fifth when Dale Berra singled and scored on Johnny Ray's two-out triple to the right-field corner.

Chicago 7, New York 4. In New York, Rick Reuschel won his first major-league game in nearly two years with relief help from Bill Campbell to help the Chicago Cubs to a victory over the New York Mets.

Reuschel, 1-0, allowed only one hit over the first seven innings before being knocked out in the Mets' fourth-inning eighth, highlighted by Rusty Staub's two-run pinch homer that enabled New York to tie the National League record for pinch-hit home runs.

Cincinnati 8, Houston 3 In Cincinnati, Rick Esasay, Eddie Milner and Gary Redus hit home runs in a five-run fourth inning and Bruce Berenyi allowed six hits over eight innings to pace the Cincinnati Reds to a win over the Houston Astros night. Berenyi, 6-14, struck out six, walked two and turned slugger at the plate — getting three hits and scoring two runs. Jose Cruz had four of Houston's six hits.

Atlanta 6, San Diego 0 In Atlanta, Bruce Bendick drove in three runs to back the four-hit pinch-hitting of Craig McMurtry and send Atlanta to a victory over the San Diego Padres, snapping the Braves' three-game losing streak. McMurtry, 13-9, struck out five and walked one in picking up his third shutout and fifth complete game. The right-hander earned his first victory since July 27, and was making his 10th attempt for his 13th triumph.

In a late game, Los Angeles was at San Francisco.

Chisox clinch at least tie for West title

By United Press International

Chicago White Sox fans have waited 24 years, so neither day or two shouldn't matter.

The White Sox, looking for their first pennant since 1959, scored a 7-0 victory over the Seattle Mariners behind the two-hit pitching of Floyd Bannister Friday night to clinch at least a tie for the American League West title.

Kansas City stayed alive with a 6-5 victory over Oakland, but it will take just one White Sox victory or one Royals' loss to put Chicago in the playoffs.

"Sure, it would have been nice to clinch it tonight," Bannister said. "I'm just glad we won. We'll just have to go out tomorrow night and get it done."

Harold Baines' seventh-inning solo homer snapped a scoreless tie and the White Sox batted around for six runs in the eighth inning to score their 15th consecutive victory at home and 10th in their last 11 games. Bannister, 15-10, has won 12 of his last 13 decisions since the All-Star break. The left-hander struck out a career-high 12 walked two hit a batter and did not allow a Mariner past first base. The shutout was Bannister's second of the season and his fifth complete game.

Baines' homer, his 17th, came on the first pitch off Bryan Clark, 7-8, and landed in the right-field bleachers.

The White Sox sent 11 batters to the plate in the eighth. Carlton Fisk and pinch hitter Greg Walker each had two-run singles in the inning. Fisk also opened the inning with a single and scored the first run.

Kansas City 6, Oakland 5 At Kansas City, Mo., Butch Davis batted around sacrifice fly in the eighth inning enabled the Kansas City to stave off elimination. Hal McRae opened the eighth off Keith Atherton, 2-3, with his fourth hit, a triple, and after back-to-back intentional walks to Willie Aikens and Frank White, Davis delivered his run-scoring flyout. Baltimore 8, Milwaukee 1. At Baltimore, rookie Mike Boddicker scattered six hits and was backed by a 17-hit attack. Boddicker, 14-7, pitched his ninth complete, losing his shutout in the ninth. The right-hander earned his 15th homer. Cal Ripken doubled twice for the Orioles, who lead second-place Detroit by six games in the AL East.

Boston 6, Detroit 1 At Boston, Ed Jurak singled in two runs to highlight a four-run sixth inning and Bob Ojeda, 10-7, pitched his fifth complete game to power the Red Sox. Minnesota 11, Toronto 4 At Minneapolis, rookie Tim Lincecum went 5-for-5 with two solo homers, a triple and two singles and Mickey Hatcher and Tom Brunansky each hit a two-run homer for the Twins. Reliever Rick Lyander, 5-12, was the winner. New York at Cleveland was rained out. In a late game, Texas was at California.

Twin's Hanchey tops Cactus Pete's

By LARRY HOVEY Times-News writer

JACKPOT, Nev. — Two-time champion Perry Hanchey of Twin Falls will take a three-stroke lead into the final round of the $30,000 Cactus Pete's Amateur Golf tournament today.

Hanchey became the only man in the 220-golfer field to better par as he carved out a one-under 71 that gave him three shots on Utah's Gary Hartz. It was another couple strokes to Twin Falls' Doyle-Dugger and Jim Purves.

An afternoon wild held scores up somewhat but most of the field complained of putting troubles — a usual obstacle in this course of bedeviling reference frames. One man had 31 putts on the front side alone.

"It was my putting," said Hanchey, taking the opposite tack. "I went around in 29 putts and I only had one three putt. I remembered back to the days when I could put this course. When the pins are in tough spots like they were today, I forgot about trying to make anything and concentrated on getting the ball close and to the side that I want to make the second putt. I made one of them that way, too."

Hanchey said he rolled in a pair of 40-foot putts but gave part of that back by missing a two-footer, resulting in his only three-putt of the day.

Purves, who took the Magic Valley Amateur two weeks ago and was considered on a high, settled for a 77 and noted with a smile "You want a quote? I can give it to you quick. Five three-putts, five over."

Dugger chipped in for an eagle on the 10th hole and made two great pars to stay in the thick of things. The tournament concludes today with the titles being decided in the championship, first and second flights — three three-flights-completed play Thursday.

Caldwell, Zoeller tied atop Vegas pro-am

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — Rex Caldwell shot his second straight 66 and J.C. Snead had a 69 late in the day Friday to tie Perry Zoeller for the third-round lead in the $750,000 Las Vegas Pro-Am, the richest golf tournament of all time.

Caldwell, who never has won a title in nine years on the PGA Tour, played his third round at Snowbowl, while Snead played at cooler Las Vegas 92. There was some thunder and lightning in the area and played was held up 30 minutes at Snowbowl.

Zoeller, meanwhile, played his third round early in the day and benefited from a warm sun that eased his chronic aching back. He shot what he called an "uninteresting" 70.

So, with two more rounds to play in this 90-hole event that rewards the winner "with $135,000," the three had scores of 203. Zoeller was 13-under while Caldwell and Snead were at 12-under. Zoeller has yet to play the Las Vegas course, the only course of the four used in the tournament that is par 71. The other three are 72 layouts. Mac O'Grady shot a 67 at Desert Inn to stand at 204 while Mike Holland came out of the pack with a 66 at Las Vegas with a 66 to tie Gil Morgan, who had a 70 at Las Vegas, at 205, only two shots off the lead.

Tom Forsman also shot a 66 at Las Vegas to tie Brad Bryant.
