Continental Airlines Chairman Frank Lorenzo exchanges outlook with pilots of the threatening union

Pilots, airline set showdown

By BRUCE NICHOLS
United Press International

HOUSTON — Continental Airlines officials and leaders of the pilots union, facing a strike showdown Saturday, both predicted victory Friday in a labor dispute triggered by the airline's application for bankruptcy.

Union officials said they were prepared to picket Continental facilities nationwide at 3 a.m. EDT (1 a.m. MDT), but the first flight — from Fort Lauderdale, Fla., to Houston — was not due to take off until 7:40 a.m. EDT. The next flights were at 8 a.m. EDT from Washington, Tampa and Orlando, Fla.

"We don't think pilots will show up," said Henry Duffy, president of the Air Line Pilots Association, who repeated his warning that Continental is risking safety with its new work rules. "Just as important, we don't think the public will want to get on these planes."

Continental Chairman Frank Lorenzo, who predicted the rank and file will not support the union, denied safety was being sacrificed. He said Continental was adhering to Federal Aviation Administration rules.

Continental ticket sales continued strong, company spokesman Bruce Hicks said. Some flights to San Diego and Fort Lauderdale were sold out at the limited, "Welcome Back" $49 one-way fares, he said.

Hicks also said Continental has more than enough pilots for its new schedule, which was reduced from 568 to 118 flights when it resumed service Tuesday.

He said the airline now needs 350 pilots and 500 flight attendants, Continental currently flies to 75 cities instead of the 73 it served before filing the

Baby remains in peril State wrestles with life issue

By STEVE GREEN
United Press International

BOISE — An anti-abortion group, saying an infant born without a developed brain and abandoned in a trash can has a constitutional right to live, urged state officials Friday to keep the orphan on a life-support system.

"I think we need to give the baby every chance to continue her life, even if this baby doesn't have its full brain capacity," said Wayne Durham, vice president of Right to Life of Idaho. "Where do we draw the line with handicapped infants?"

He said the girl, found Monday in a trash bin at a Boise State University restroom shortly after her birth, is protected by federal law against any attempt by doctors or state officials to end her life.

Idaho Health and Welfare administrators have asked the state attorney general to research the legal options in possibly removing the child from respirators and other life-sustaining equipment.

Doctors said the infant would not survive if taken off the respirator now, but would eventually have about a 50-percent chance of gaining enough strength to breathe on her own.

However, Dr. Margaret Watkins said even then the girl — born with only a brain stem and no cortex — would probably live no longer than six months.

Meanwhile, the two-pound, 12-inch-long girl remained in stable, but critical condition Friday at the neonatal intensive care unit of St. Luke's Regional Medical Center in Boise.

Health and Welfare officials said their hands were tied in the case until lawyers determine if the state could legally order the child's life-support systems shut off.

Since the state does not have permanent custody of the newborn, any decision to terminate life-support would have to be approved by a judge, they said.

"The lawyers have indicated we do not have much in terms of any kind of law, apparently there are no state statutes relating to it," said Department Regional Manager Rich Donovan.

Durham said the child's right to life is guaranteed by the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution, which promises all citizens equal protection of the law and the right to due process.

"The baby's been born, it's living. The baby's a person and it has constitutional rights," he said. "I don't think as citizens we ought to take the responsibility to do anything to actually encourage that death."

Durham said the infant has a right to live "even if it doesn't meet the standards of every person in the community."

Police continued their search Friday for the child's missing mother, but the news of the infant's medical trouble had not prompted the parent to come forward, as authorities had hoped.

State officials said even after it was announced that the child was born without a developed brain, couples were still calling state agencies to express interest in adopting the child.

"Of course it is questionable that any of course it will be placed for adoption now," said Ellen Welch, acting social services program supervisor.

"We had two couples indicate interest in adopting the baby after the news conference — (announcing the child was born without a full brain) — she said.

Ms. Welch said the couples probably do not realize the emotional and financial demands of adopting such a child.

Jailed tax protesters may force change in income-tax law

By BRUCE BOTKA
United Press International

BOISE — The judge who jailed seven Soda Springs-area men for failure to file state income-tax returns said Friday he expected the protesters to ask the Idaho Supreme Court to set them free.

Sixth District Judge William Woodland said the high court probably would be asked to grant a stay of execution on the contempt-of-court citations issued last week when the tax-protesters defied his order to file acceptable returns.

Meanwhile, the head of the state's tax-protest crackdown team said he believes the southeastern Idaho residents are using "coercion" to force the state to change the law that allows judges to jail those who don't report their income.

And Deputy Attorney General William von Tegen said he was "pleased" to learn Thursday the protesters had called off a six-day hunger strike. "But I found it somewhat amusing that Mr. (Clifford) Turner said that he was going to fast until death. Evidentially, death didn't take very long."

Turner, Soda Springs, is the leader of the Citizens Tax Council, which has argued that the filing of income reports violates citizens' constitutional right against self-incrimination and that wages do not constitute income as defined by the law. The jailed protesters were among 12 defendants who appeared in Woodland's court Sept. 22. Five of them were given two weeks to comply with the court order.

Woodland told the seven remaining protesters they would be fined $50 for every day they refused to file returns, but they were jailed when they told Woodland they couldn't afford to pay any fine.

"This choice was all theirs," said Deputy Idaho Attorney General William von Tegen, adding that Woodland had offered to review and possibly reduce the fines.

"They could have remained out of jail," von Tegen said. "But none of them took that option."

"I think what's going on here is that they are practicing a form of coercion," he said. "This is an attempt to coerce either the public or the Legislature or the judiciary to repeal this law."

But the attorney claimed most Idahoans believe all workers should pay their share for government services.

"I think that, by and large, most citizens of this state — whether they are liberal or conservative — feel that if there is going to be a tax, all citizens should pay the tax."

In addition to the so-called "Soda Springs Seven," Rick Mitchell of Boise has been jailed for several weeks for the same offense. Von Tegen said he planned to bring charges shortly against a northern Idaho resident, but no other tax cases are pending.

Von Tegen said the Soda Springs-area protesters showed the depth of their commitment to the tax-avoidance cause when they publicly offered an $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of judges and prosecutors in the case.

"It's almost to the point where it's a religious fanaticism with them, and I don't think they are going to listen to anybody," he said.

He said the protesters' ultimate goal was the overthrow of the state Tax Commission.

For presidential nomination Largest teachers union votes to back Mondale

By THOMAS FERRARO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Walter Mondale began what could be the biggest weekend to date in his quest for the Democratic presidential nomination by winning the backing of the 1.7 million-member National Education Association Friday.

The former vice president easily won the support of the teachers group, the country's second largest labor union, and hoped for two more showings Saturday in a straw poll of Maine Democrats and first stage endorsement by the AFL-CIO.

The NEA's board of directors voted by a 9-to-1 ratio to back Mondale in state primaries and caucuses.

The overwhelming but expected victory was preceded by release of a new Washington Post-ABC poll showing Mondale far ahead of the other six Democratic candidates. He got 41 percent, 13 points ahead of his closest challenger, Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio.

Mondale appeared before the teachers about an hour after the vote, and said, together, "we can rebuild America."

Ripping Reagan's social and economic policies as divisive, he said: "Today we have a president who will fight for the MX (missile), and not lit a flinger for education. And that's wrong."

Mondale told reporters he considered the NEA action "a very important forward step in my campaign."

Asked about polls showing Glenn might run better against Reagan than he, the Minnesota said, "I'm taking

Economic vigor slows as summertime ends

By DENIS G. GULINO
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The sensitive leading economic indicators sagged 0.1 percent in August, the first decline in a year in the government barometer of the recovery's vigor, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

The dip followed a revised 0.8 percent increase in July and even stronger gains in the other months since January when the government's economic trend detector hit its 1983 peak of growth of 3.1 percent.

Some experts claimed the decline indicates a slowing of the nation's economic recovery.

Other analysts suggested the drop was something of a fluke, however, reflecting the late summer's temporary economic doldrums more than any fundamental loss of economic vigor. The endurance of the economic recovery still depends on consumers whose enthusiasm seemed to be returning in September, they said.

In a separate report Friday the Commerce Department said sales of new houses dropped 5.1 percent following July's decline of 8.6 percent. With housing the first segment of the economy to revive, even before the recession ended, analysts are now worried the sales slump could spread the same way.

Sales were running at an annual rate of 578,000 houses in August, still 48.6 percent ahead of the same month a year earlier.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige predicted the August Index "may be revised upward" later because data not yet available could show businesses restocking their shelves and warehouses. The index "is consistent with a lower and more sustainable rate of economic growth," he said.

It's just a one-month fluke because the economy staged an amazing turnaround in September," economist Michael Evans of Evans Economics said.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes told reporters the indicators, seen in the context of low inflation and high growth in the gross national product, are forecasting a path of slow, steady growth, and that's the course we want to be on."

An indicator measuring formation of new businesses was the biggest loser — among the four negative trends dominant in the report.

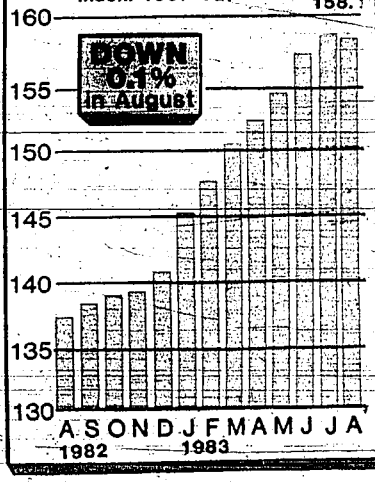

Also contributing to the slight decline were a slackening in building permits, a lack of strong growth in the average of 50 common stock

Threat issued to sink tankers

A top Nicaraguan rebel warned Friday that his U.S.-backed group may attack and sink Mexican oil tankers bringing petroleum to Nicaragua...

Mexico, one of the strongest supporters of the Sandinista government, is the sole supplier of oil for Nicaragua.

He did not say how the FDN would carry out the attacks. A spokesman for Petroleros Mexicanos, the state-owned Mexican oil company, said there was "no official comment" from the firm on the matter.

Men go to jail for parts scam

SEATTLE (UPI) — The president of a Redmond, Wash. firm who admitted his firm shipped the Air Force defective B-52 parts has been sentenced to three years in prison.

Lionel Rutman, president of MHC Ltd., pleaded guilty last month to conspiring to sell defective terminators and other parts to the Air Force.

In addition, U.S. District Court Judge Walter McGovern fined the company $10,000 at Thursday's sentencing.

Soap viewers face nude girl

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Somebody pressed a wrong button and soap opera viewers got a glimpse of a nude woman, right in the middle of "Another World."

Officials at WFTV television station said Friday the photograph from Playboy magazine was flashed on the screen. Thursday in what was described as an "electronic typo."

The photo was of a young woman, identified as a Jackson nurse, who posed in the nude for the current issue of Playboy.

The station was putting together an item for the evening news on the photo when a technician pressed the wrong button — and the picture popped up on the screen, temporarily interrupting "Another World," officials said.

The station said it was deluged with calls, most objecting to the photo. A few asked to see it again.

Salvador aid restricted again

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Friday passed legislation extending restrictions on military aid to El Salvador for another year.

The action was deemed necessary because the House has not yet passed foreign aid legislation, and current restrictions are due to expire at the end of the fiscal year Friday night.

A stopgap spending resolution allowing the government to maintain operations for the new fiscal year covers $2.8 billion in aid to El Salvador, but no restrictions. The restrictions generally require the president to certify every six months that progress is being made in human rights and reform.

Gunmen assault club, kill two

AGANUA, Guam (UPI) — Masked men firing sub-machine guns barged into a social club Friday, killing two people and wounding three others in a mounting wave of violence on the U.S.-administered Pacific island.

Five people have been killed and six wounded in four separate attacks over the past three days. Police say they believe the shootings were carried out by the same gunmen but could not offer a motive for the attacks.

Women seek to oust Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The head of the National Organization for Women said Friday the 250,000-member group, seeking President Reagan's defeat, will endorse a candidate this year and end 17 years of formal neutrality in presidential campaigns.

NOW President Judy Sikes said Reagan has singlehandedly set back the status of women by decades and NOW will actively seek his defeat.

In a news conference opening the organization's national convention, she refused to speculate which Democratic candidate will receive the group's endorsement. But when pressed she acknowledged that Sen. Barbara Boxer had been "extremely positive" in his positions on women's issues.

Leads found in family murder

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — Police investigating the brutal beating deaths of a newsmen and his family followed up Friday on possible suspects suggested by authorities in a half-dozen other cities.

Fort Wayne investigators will travel to some of the five or six cities where police have provided tips about potential suspects, Police Lt. George Letz said.

Letz, one of the coordinators of the task force, would not name the cities and said no firm suspects had emerged.

Police also said they checked out — then discounted — a report that a man saying "I can't believe I did it" was seen near the home of Dan Osborne, about the time Osborne, his wife and son were bludgeoned to death.

Strike

Leaders for the national ALPA continued meetings in Houston to map strategy related to their threat of an industrywide shutdown unless the federal government eases their de-regulation on the airline industry.

However, the proposed nationwide strike suffered a setback Friday when pilots for Delta Air Lines, the nation's sixth-largest air carrier, announced they would not participate in the work stoppage because it would be unfair to customers.

"These are the people that pay our salaries," said Capt. George Berg, a spokesman for the Delta pilots.

Berg said a nationwide pilots' strike would be counterproductive to everybody's interests.

Lorenzo said re-regulation of the industry was not the answer: "De-regulation hurts... but it is certainly better than having the industry regulated by a bunch of bureaucrats in Washington."

"I thank Mr. Duffy is going to have to find somebody other than Congress to guarantee his members $80,000 to $100,000 for working 50 hours (a week)," Lorenzo said.

Despite favorable debts-to-assets figures, Lorenzo said the company would have run out of money by Wednesday and Thursday.

Continental workers have been creating a picket line since Aug. 13 when the International Association of Machinists struck Continental replaced IAM's mechanics and kitchen workers, and continued flying.

Mrs. Futrell, who has criticized Reagan's support of public education, said "Our nation can no longer afford leaders who call out loudly for improvements in our schools and then pass total responsibility for those improvements" on states and localities.

The support of the NEA was the first of what could be a weekend "hat trick" for the former vice president.

A straw poll of Maine Democrats Saturday is expected to go for the former vice president, who has campaigned heavily in that state.

Also Saturday, leaders of the 96 unions that comprise the 13.7 million-member AFL-CIO, as well as state and local officials, will hold their AFL-CIO General Board meeting in Hollywood, Fla., to give their expected approval to Mondale.

Formal AFL-CIO endorsement will follow next Wednesday during the party's 18th biennial convention, also in Hollywood.

Government won't go broke

By ROBERT MACKAY
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate and House Friday approved a compromise stopgap spending bill needed to fund federal agencies past midnight, the fiscal 1984 year. President Reagan will sign it, a White House spokesman said.

The president will not sign the bill until Saturday at the earliest, the spokesman said. As a result, most federal agencies technically ran out of money at midnight Friday.

But the White House spokesman said Reagan will sign the measure before government services could be disrupted on Monday, the next regular work day.

The Senate approved the bill which would fund the government until Nov. 10 by voice vote. The House approved it 222-136.

Senate House conferees approved the compromise earlier in the day, after resolving the minor differences between the Senate and House bills in about an hour.

Members of Congress kept the measure very simple, resisting the usual practice of attaching pet projects to it, and whisked it through the process with surprising speed.

Spending authority for most federal agencies would have expired, with the 1983 fiscal year, at midnight Friday without enactment of a continuing resolution. Government services, however, would not have been interrupted until Monday.

The bill is needed to temporarily fund those federal agencies that fall under nine of 13 annual appropriations bills for fiscal 1984 that have not been signed by the House yet. Congressional leaders hope to pass most of the appropriations bills before the stopgap spending bill expires Nov. 10.

The joint conference was necessary to resolve minor differences between the bill the House passed Wednesday and the version the Senate passed Thursday.

Father pleads for son to surrender

RUTHTON, Minn. (UPI) — The father of a man sought in the ambush slayings of two bank employees Friday pleaded for his son and grandson to surrender to officials who blanketed six states in a massive manhunt.

James L. Jenkins and his son Steve, 18, were sought in Thursday's shooting at a vacant farm in southwestern Minnesota once owned by Jenkins. They were believed to be heavily armed.

Jenkins lost the 10-acre farm in a foreclosure action by the bank in 1980.

He had returned to the area recently and was trying to buy a small farm nearby.

Officials speculate Jenkins lured bank president Rudy Blythe, 42, and loan officer Toby Thulin, 37, to the property and then gunned them down.

Ruthton Mayor LeRoy Burch said the Jenkins were still upset over the loss of the farm and had been trying to buy some milk cows on consignment. Burch suspected the bank refused credit.

"I suppose it was just too much for them," Burch said.

Jenkins' father, Clayton, who lives in rural Florence, Minn., issued a tearful plea for his son and grandson to give themselves up.

"They should give themselves up before anybody else gets hurt," the elder Jenkins said. "They've done about all the damage they can do."

A police dragnet covered North and South Dakota, Wisconsin, Missouri and Iowa. Minnesota officials searched the back-roads of the flat prairie country for a pickup truck with Texas plates registered to Jenkins.

Extension for jobless postponed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — House and Senate negotiators, unable to reach agreement Friday on a compromise extension of the federal benefits program for long-term unemployed that expires at midnight, said they will try again next week.

Unemployment checks have already been appropriated, however, and will go out as scheduled next week, officials said.

Earlier Friday, the Senate voted 89-0 to extend the Federal Supplemental Compensation program for 18 months at levels slightly below current law.

The unanimous vote sent the $1.7 billion administration-backed bill to a House-Senate conference committee where congressional negotiators resolved some minor differences with the House-passed bill, but left the major issues for next week.

The House version, approved Thursday, extends the program for only 45 days but expands the benefits beyond current law and would provide extra compensation to about 1 million people who have exhausted their other benefits.

Following a brief public conference, House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., announced the negotiating team would meet again Monday afternoon.

Senate Finance Committee chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., hinting at a possible compromise, replied: "We're willing to make adjustments on the size of the pot. It depends what happens on the other end."

Dole agreed that they should adjourn until Monday. "It's going to take some time and require that I go to some higher authority to see how far we can go."

U.S. support to Pakistan subject of talks

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger arrived Friday in a troubled nation and said he hoped to convince the martial law government that the United States is a "strong and reliable ally."

During his three-day visit, Weinberger will meet President

Mohammed Zia Ul-Haq and other top officials in talks expected to dwell on Soviet-occupied Afghanistan and the implementation of a U.S. aid program.

Pakistan is receiving $3.2 billion in U.S. economic and military aid over five years. It has bought 40 F-16 fighters, six of which have arrived, and 100 vintage but upgraded M-48 tanks.

"Our contact and relationships have been developing rapidly, indeed, our relationships now, I think, are a model for those between the United States and non-aligned Islamic countries," Weinberger said in an arrival statement.

Rare tornado, rain hit southern California

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Wind-whipped rain with 25 mph gusts battered Southern California Friday, choking traffic, cutting power to more than 31,000 people and spawning a rare tornado that ripped away the porch from a house.

The rain broke a record set in 1916. Los Angeles County Fair officials shut down their race course because of the rain after the fifth race — the first time a race card has been halted since 1933, a spokesman said.

The Dodgers, frustrated in attempts to clinch the National League West title after two losses to the San Diego Padres Thursday night, faced the possibility of a rain-out Friday night against the San Francisco Giants.

A home in the Walnut Park area, seven miles south of downtown, weathered the most direct assault of the unseasonable storm when a twister ripped the porch off the house.

The swirl of wind also blew out windows in a house and uprooted a tree — a block away — a county Fire Department spokesman said.

AFL-CIO leans to Mondale

By DREW VON BERGEN
UPI Labor Reporter

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (UPI) — A top union backer of Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, said Friday heads-of-96 AFL-CIO unions will be following federation president Lane Kirkland, not rank-and-file workers, in endorsing Walter Mondale for president.

The union leaders, along with state and local AFL-CIO officials, meet Saturday to recommend a candidate for formal endorsement. Wednesday by the 15th AFL-CIO Convention next week, and former Vice President Mondale is the clear choice.

The federation, at the urging of Kirkland, decided to break tradition and make a pre-primary endorsement in an effort to bolster labor's influence on the electoral process and defeat an antigovernment bill by President Reagan. Communication Workers union vice president Martin Hughes, who also heads the 150,000-member Cleveland AFL-CIO, said in an interview that acceptability of a Democratic nominee is high on the minds of many union officials.

"I think Glenn has the best shot against Reagan," Hughes said. "A lot of people I talk to have told me so." Hughes, who was chairman of the Ohio delegation at the 1980 Democratic Convention, as a Carter-Mondale delegate, said most ballots at Saturday's AFL-CIO General Board meeting will be cast "pro or less following Lane Kirkland's lead than what (rank-and-file) people think."

"I think it's a dangerous new course," he said. "It's rolling the dice."

Hughes comments followed a charge Thursday by a major AFL-CIO construction union president that the federation's endorsement process will not allow for sufficient debate and comes before most rank-and-file workers have a favorite for the nomination.

Edward Carrough, president of the Sheet Metal Workers union, circulated a letter to union presidents as they arrived at the Diplomat Hotel asking them to intervene with Kirkland to "afford at least a reasonable opportunity" for debate prior to the vote Saturday.

Model 'T' celebrates

DEARBORN, Mich. (UPI) — Saturday marks the 75th birthday of the Model T — a no-frills car that brought cries of "Get a horse!" from many non-believers — but eventually sent the horse to pasture.

The Model T was introduced by Ford Motor Co. on Oct. 1, 1908, and its first year of production set what was then an all-time industry record of 10,664.

The "Tin Lizzie" was first produced by hand, but 70 years ago — this month — Henry Ford perfected his mass production method and began assembling the chassis for the Model T on a moving assembly line.

Stark simplicity — including the standard black exterior — wins the car's trademark.

Demos hunt for delegates

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — Carl Yastrzemski's retirement, the potato harvest and the University of Maine homecoming were giving Democratic officials headaches Friday as they tried to muster party members for a presidential straw poll.

Some 3,200 Maine Democrats — generally the state's most active party members — were eligible to vote Saturday for the presidential candidate of their choice. But as of Friday, only 900 delegates had registered to vote at the polling place in the Augusta Civic Center.

The immensely popular Red Sox baseball player was being honored in Boston, Maine's important potato crop is being harvested and the state university was playing its homecoming game all on Saturday.

Said state Democratic chairman Barry Hobbes: "These are significant conflicts that will mean a substantial reduction in the number of delegates who will actually vote in the poll."

Eligible to vote were elected officeholders, those who contributed at least $75 to the party, or members of state or local party committees.

Brothers sought in murders

GRANGEVILLE (UPI) — First-degree murder warrants have been issued for the arrest of two brothers suspected in the forest beating deaths of a Marine officer and his wife whose skeletal bodies were found by hunters last weekend.

Mark Langford, 27, and his brother Brian, 23, were arrested in Grangeville in the June killings of Marine Capt. Robert Bravence and his wife, Cheryl, Idaho County Sheriff Roger Laughlin said Friday.

The sheriff said a nationwide alert has been broadcast to law enforcement agencies to catch for the suspects. Authorities said they were first seen in Oregon a few days after the Bravences were killed.

Bravence was a missile systems instructor at Fort Bliss, Texas. The couple was from Scottsdale, Ariz.

Laughlin said the brothers were in this area during the time of the homicides. Photographs of them correspond with the descriptions by some of the people who have reported seeing them.

The sheriff said the Langfords also were wanted on grand theft charges for allegedly stealing the slain couple's van. The vehicle was found abandoned in Los Angeles, and credit cards belonging to the couple were used in several towns and cities between Idaho and California, he said.

Laughlin said investigators had no solid leads on the whereabouts of the brothers, but he said they could be in the area where the van was left.

BPA rate hike lower than first forecasted

By BARNEY LERTEN
United Press International

PORTLAND, Ore. — Northwest utilities gave a light round of applause to the Bonneville Power Administration Friday for reducing its wholesale power rate hike, but the aluminum industry had an angry response to its new rates.

The BPA announced it would raise its wholesale "priority firm" power rate to utilities 22 percent Nov. 1, if approved as expected by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. The new rates will remain in effect until July 1, 1985.

than what they initially filed," PGE spokesman Steve Mueller said.

However, as BPA spokesman Bob Reed noted, the national average charge is more than 8 cents per KWH, so "of all the regions, the Pacific Northwest still has the lowest electricity price."

The rates for the BPA's direct-service industries, primarily aluminum smelters, will increase 9 percent, up from the March projections of a 5-percent boost.

For smelters that continue to operate at expected levels, the rate will increase from 2.45 cents to 2.68 cents per kilowatt-hour. However, the BPA also instituted a customer charge for the industries which means higher charges if their consumption falls below 90 percent of the expected load.

The increase was 5 percent lower than the 27-percent rate hike first projected by the federal power-marketing agency in March, when the rate-making process began.

"Priority firm" is a class of power sold to public and private investor-owned utilities for resale to their residential and small farm customers. The effect of the wholesale rate hike on customers' bills will vary from utility to utility, depending on their costs and the amount of power they buy from BPA.

"Substantial cuts in programs and adjustments in cost allocations enabled us to hold down the increase," BPA Administrator Peter T. Johnson said. "Many of the changes that were made resulted from the testimony of parties in the rate hearings."

The rate boost increases the price of "priority firm" power from the current 1.8 cents per kilowatt-hour to 2.2 cents per KWH and will lift the estimated average retail price from 4 cents per KWH to 4.4 cents per KWH.

One utility, Portland General Electric Co., predicted that customers' bills would increase 7 to 9 percent as a result of the BPA rate hike. Pacific Power & Light Co. officials predicted an over 4 percent retail rate increase, with a boost of 6 percent to 9 percent for residential customers.

"What particularly disturbs us is that Bonneville also has imposed upon us a penalty if we can't operate at higher rates. We believe that is clearly illegal and will certainly be challenged," he said.

Johnson said the rate hikes are the smallest since the "modern era" of wholesale power rate increases associated with inflation and construction of large generating facilities began in 1980.

"As demand for power and costs associated with thermal plants stabilize, the trend has been for rate increases to subside," Johnson said. "Our projections are that rates here in the Pacific Northwest will remain well below the national average for the foreseeable future."

"We are extremely upset," said Brent Wilcox of Direct Service Industries Inc. in Portland, the Northwest aluminum industry's trade group. "At these numbers and these relationships, the DST rate is far above Bonneville's cost of serving us."

"Our rates have gone up to subsidize other customers, and that's not fair," Wilcox said, adding that a challenge of the rate hike is likely.

Little: Ed fund will not rise

BOISE (UPI) — Legislators probably will refuse to fund all but a small portion of the $61 million public-school spending hike sought by the state Education Board, the Idaho Senate's Finance Committee chairman predicted Friday.

"It will be an election year, and I guess the Legislature will be fairly conservative," Little said. "We had quite a bit of spending last year, and we're going to have a tax revolt if we don't stop."

Sen. David Little, R-Emmett, said he thinks fears of taxpayer protests will move legislators to hold school funding increases to a minimum during fiscal year 1985.

Meeting at Gooding Thursday, the board recommended the state general fund appropriation for schools be hiked to $78.6 million, up 29 percent from current spending.

Blind man walks the nation

BALTIMORE (UPI) — A 36-year-old blind Boise man has completed a 3,700 mile journey from coast to coast on foot to prove to himself and others that he "counts for something."

Murphy began the trip from Astoria, Ore. in April 1982, and tried to average 21 miles per day while being led by his guide dog.

Bill Morgan, 35, ended the trek in Baltimore, the headquarters of the National Federation of the Blind, which sponsored the journey, where he was met by Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho.

"This walk is a way to prove to myself and others that I count for something," Murphy said.

Craig, who represented the Idaho Congressional Delegation, congratulated Murphy on being the first blind

"I'll never again be ashamed of my blindness," Murphy said.

HEAR THE BULLET

Numerous soldiers, wounded by single rifle bullets, have told the medics they heard these bullets coming, if a rifle shot travels faster than sound, asked I, how could they have heard the bullets? A retired first sergeant, Thomas C. Gordon of Red Bluff, Calif., explains: "What the wounded man hears is a miniature sonic boom from the speeding bullet. The sound gets to his brain through his ears more swiftly than does the pain from the more distant wound. Yes, I heard both of mine — leg and chest."

Peace demanded while militias battle

By DAVID ZENIAN
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Artillery, sniper and machine-gunfire rang out across Lebanon Friday, but the army and Syria-backed rebel militias announced new measures to salvage the fragile five-day truce.

The outbreak of fighting came as Syria turned down Lebanese suggestions to hold peace talks in Saudi Arabia and reiterated opposition to establishing a U.N. force to police the cease-fire.

Chaimou, leader of the Christian National Lebanese Front and former president who wants the talks delayed until Syria withdraws its conditions on Lebanese governmental participation, insisted "Syria is a party in the conflict" and called for direct talks with Damascus.

He also said he would prefer to scrap the talks and instead see new members taken into the Lebanese government, the state-owned National Agency said. Five people were killed and one was wounded in an exchange of machine-gunfire between militias supporting and opposing Syria in the port city of Tyripoli, 42 miles north of Beirut, police said.

Meanwhile in Washington, President Reagan met with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak. Mubarak said the "cease fire must continue so that efforts to bring about national reconciliation in Lebanon be given the chance to succeed — and succeed they must."

Meeting for the third day, Lebanese army officers and representatives from the Christian, Druze Muslim and Shiite Muslim militias agreed on three new steps to stop the truce violations.

The accord called for the removal of roadblocks on the coastal highway south of Beirut, the release of those kidnapped "by the various factions" before the cease-fire and agreement by each side not to exploit the truce by reinforcing positions.

Beirut radio reported clashes between Christian and Druze fighters in a string of villages across the "border" part of the Shouf mountains southeast of the capital and said several shells crashed on the on the Beirut-Sidon coastal highway.

A Christian refugee was killed and three others were injured by sniper fire in the besieged Shouf mountain village of Deir al Kamar, the radio said.

Elsewhere in the Shouf region, Druze-militiamen fired rockets, propelled grenades and bursts of heavy machine-gunfire at government troops near Souk el Gharb, 8 miles east of Beirut.

More anti-Marcos protests flare in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — Riot police using tear gas and firing shots into the air Friday broke up a protest on Manila's "Wall Street" by white collar workers demanding an end to President Ferdinand Marcos' 19-year rule.

Thousands of office workers screamed insults and showered the police with garbage from the windows of high-rise buildings along a half-mile stretch of Ayala Avenue in the capital's financial center of Makati.

Police said six people — two civilians, a fireman and three policemen — were injured by bottles, rocks and beer cans in Makati and seven people were arrested, including a freelance reporter.

There was no explanation for the arrest of the journalist.

As garbage and debris rained down on the police, plainclothes officers fired pistols into the air to drive people from the windows.

The officers also hurled tear gas grenades into the crowd on Ayala Avenue, which was ankle deep with confetti from shredded telephone directories.

Uninformed riot police beating their truncheons against their shields drove demonstrators back into office buildings in the Ayala demonstration, the most disorderly of the scattered protests across Manila.

In the Greenhills commercial district, riot police formed a phalanx along fashionable Ortigas Avenue and pushed protesters back to their offices as army troops on a traffic island pointed M-16 rifles at the buildings.

Marcos' wife Imelda drove past Ortigas Avenue to address a gathering of city mayors at the Club Filipino resort as workers scattered yellow confetti, honked horns and beat pans in a "noise barrage" demonstration.

In a downtown square in front of Manila's Central Post Office, some 5,000 students denounced government use of force to break up demonstrations.

Riot police were deployed at Mendola bridge near the presidential palace but an expected march by the students to the area did not materialize.

In the worst outbreak of violence in Marcos' 18 years in power, 11 people were killed at Mendola Sept. 21 in a demonstration triggered by the Aug. 21 assassination of popular opposition leader Benigno Aquino.

In the town of San Fernando outside the U.S. Clark Air base 40 miles north of Manila, some 3,000 people staged a peaceful demonstration led by Aquino's mother, Aurora.

Hope dwindling for finding airliner's recorder

TOKYO (UPI) — U.S. Navy search teams report dwindling hopes of finding the "black box" flight recorders from a South Korean airliner shot down by the Soviet Union over the Sea of Japan, Japanese officials said Friday.

The Japanese were part of an international team monitoring U.S. search efforts aboard the navy destroyer USS Callaghan.

"They said the search will continue," said Maritime Safety Agency official Kazumi Mino. "When asked about prospects of finding the KAL flight data, an American officer replied, 'We don't know.'"

Meanwhile in London, the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations acted Friday to cut short their 60-day boycott on flights to Moscow, citing a need to "ease tensions" over the Soviet downing of a Korean airliner.

The organization recommended to its members to end the Moscow flight ban as of Monday and a spokesman said "we are confident they will comply."

At the same time a two-week ban on traffic of the Soviet Union's Aeroflot Airline by most Western European governments ended, and Aeroflot flights were returning to normal.

Korean Air Lines flight 007 from Anchorage to Seoul, South Korea with 269 people on board was shot down by a Soviet fighter over the Sea of Japan Sept. 1. Moscow charged the plane was on a spying mission.

Fiscal year brings many adjustments

By LINDA WERFELMAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The federal government rings in the fiscal new year Saturday with major changes in food stamp and Medicare programs, nine-digit ZIP codes for businesses and a crackdown on gypsy moth caterpillars.

But Congress stepped in at the last minute with plans to delay one of the biggest scheduled changes — a requirement that food stamp households report their financial circumstances to the government each month. Lawmakers inserted the provision into a compromise spending bill that passed the House late Friday afternoon and appeared headed for Senate approval before the night was over.

Congress' new plan was designed to extend until Jan. 1 the current policy of requiring food stamp recipients to report changes in income only when those changes actually occur. Congressional aides said the move was meant to give the states more time to prepare for implementation of the mandatory monthly income reporting system.

The government is also changing its methods of calculating food stamp benefits, which now go to 22 million Americans. Up to now, benefits have been based on each recipient's expected future financial circumstances. Now, they will be based on actual income in the previous month.

But if that change presents a hardship for people applying for food stamps for the first time, their allotments are to be determined according to their anticipated financial circumstances, officials said. Another change calls for food stamp benefits to be adjusted because of inflation. But since food inflation has been so low, some households will see no change, and others will see increases of only a $1 per month in their benefits.

The first day of fiscal 1984 also marks the start of the government's fixed-cost system for reimbursing hospitals that care for the 29.4 million elderly people enrolled in the Medicare program.

Reagan administration officials say the new "prospective payment" Medicare plan will have no direct effect on patients. Instead, it changes the system used by the government to reimburse hospitals by determining payments in advance for each type of illness.

Kimberly plans an open house

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly Parent-Teacher-Student Organization will hold an open house Monday for all parents of children attending Kimberly schools. The event will start at 7:30 p.m. in the high school gym.

A puppet show will be presented by Idaho State University students. They will demonstrate how to work with children with special problems, according to Norm Phillips, the P.T.S.O. secretary.

Teachers from the elementary, junior high and high school will be introduced. High-school Principal Jim McClellan will explain the new graduation requirements.

Afterward, parents may visit their children's classrooms, where the teachers will answer questions. Refreshments will be served in the high-school gym for parents of children grades seven through 12, and at the elementary school for parents of elementary children.

Jerome council petition filed

JEROME — One nominating petition for the Jerome City Council election on Nov. 8 was filed Friday, and two others have been taken out.

City clerk Marilyn Bragg says incumbent Councilman Henry "Dino" Pharris has filed his petition, for re-election to his second term on the council.

Jeanne Vandiver, the other incumbent whose seat is up for election, also has taken out a petition. Both council terms are for four years.

The third petition has been taken out by Fred Kiser, a former council member who served from 1974 through 1977. He is a former city employee, now retired.

Nominating petitions are available at the clerk's office. They must be filed by 5 p.m. Oct. 11.

Pharris is a long-time Jerome businessman. He has served four years on council. Vandiver, a Jerome real-estate agent, is completing her first two years on the council.

Thursday was the first day for filing petitions.

New GOP group will form

TWIN FALLS — Tom Silvers, the speaker of the Idaho House, will be the featured speaker at an organizational meeting of a new Magic Valley Young Republican group.

The meeting will be held next Thursday, Oct. 6, at 7:30 p.m. in Courtroom No. 5 of the Twin Falls County Judicial Annex.

Anyone 18 to 40 who is interested in becoming politically involved is invited to attend.

For more information, call Brad Cox at 733-0014, or Cindy Scott at 734-2854 after 5 p.m.

CSI offers additional classes

TWIN FALLS — Two word-processing awareness classes have been scheduled by the College of Southern Idaho vocational division.

The courses, which will run for five sessions each, will emphasize "hands-on" activity, with lots of practice and application.

The first class will begin Oct. 4, the second will start Nov. 8. The group will meet in Room 210 of the Vo-Tech Center. Josie Lancaster will be the instructor.

The fee is $30.

For more information or to register, call 733-9654, extension 289.

Agency opens doors to public

TWIN FALLS — As part of its 10th anniversary celebration, Magic Valley Rehabilitation Services Inc. will hold an open house this Tuesday from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

MVRS has been serving, evaluating and training mentally and physically handicapped persons since 1973. In conjunction with its anniversary, the non-profit organization last week recognized several persons and companies that have contributed to its efforts. The facility is located at 484 Eastland Drive S. in Twin Falls.

Couch Summit Road is open

FAIRFIELD — The Couch Summit Road, north of Fairfield, opened for traffic this week after a summer-long closure.

The closure was caused by a major washout during spring flooding.

In August, a repair contract was awarded by U.S. Forest Service officials to Pioneer Construction to fix the washout.

A minor amount of road grading remains to be completed, and travelers should watch for construction equipment still in the area, says Alice Bradford, a Forest Service spokeswoman.

Deadline Ridge Road reopens

TWIN FALLS — The Deadline Ridge Road, in the South Hills, is now open for traffic, according to Sawtooth District ranger Jerry Davis.

The road, which runs ringer between the Diamondfield Jack area and Winocup Springs, had been closed since July for major repairs.

"We have relocated part of the road and greatly improved the existing road," Davis says.

"The relocated portion replaces the narrow section of road that went up Bear Hollow."

According to Davis, the relocation work will provide firewood-cutters with access to additional supplies of firewood.

"Our crews are signing the areas to indicate where firewood cutting can take place along this new road," he says. "Wood-cutting will be permitted only in these signed areas."

Fire permits are required for all wood-cutting, Davis says. A $10 permit gives a purchaser the right to harvest four cords of wood.

Drivers stop to chat, arrested

JEROME — A Jerome driver stopped his car early Friday morning to talk with a friend who was following him in another vehicle; the result was an accident and two drivers have been charged with driving while intoxicated.

According to Jerome police, Gary Westlake, 20, and Shelby Jerome, 23, both of Jerome, were charged for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages.

The accident occurred shortly after 1 a.m. in the 200 block of East A Avenue. Westlake allegedly stopped in the street to talk to Blevins, who was following him in her car. But she was unable to stop and crashed into the back of Westlake's vehicle, police said.

Neither driver was injured, but both vehicles were damaged.

Cafe loses its 'welcome mat'

JEROME — Some days nothing is safe. Jerome police reported Friday that someone stole a 10-by-12-foot piece of outdoor carpeting from the front of the Jerome Cafe.

The carpet was taken sometime Wednesday night or early Thursday morning. The owners of the cafe estimated its value at about $10.

In another incident, officers said a hitchhiker, identified as Luke Andrews, 26, no address given, has been arrested on charges of defrauding an innkeeper. He allegedly went to the Pizza Hut about 9 p.m. Thursday; ordered and ate a meal; and then could not pay for it.

He was being held Friday in the Jerome County Jail, in lieu of $300 bond.

Audobon groups meet today

TWIN FALLS — The Idaho Ornithological Council will hold its 10th annual meeting today in Twin Falls.

The meeting will take place in Room 119 of the Fine Arts Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The annual affair is a gathering of Idaho Audubon Society chapters and other persons interested in birds, wildlife, wilderness and environmental issues.

The program this morning will feature two representatives, Polly Plaza and Gene Knoder, from the National Audubon Society's Rocky Mountain regional office in Boulder, Colo.

They will cover a variety of topics, including the Idaho wilderness-area plan, the "Adopt-a-Refuge" program and grizzly bears. Also this morning, Harold Marache of the Idaho Department of Fish and Game will give a slide presentation on Idaho's non-game wildlife program.

After lunch, eight brief slide presentations and talks will be given by university and government biologists on a variety of bird research projects. These will include black-billed magpies, Swainson's hawk, sage grouse, warblers and sparrows.

The afternoon session will conclude with a film of the spectacular breeding displays given by several grouse species.

This evening at 7, Charles Trost of Idaho State University will give a slide presentation on the birds, people and environment of New Guinea, spending five months in New Guinea, studying Birds of Paradise and native customs. The public is invited to attend any or all portions of the program. Registration will begin at 6 p.m.

For more information, call Jeff Ruprecht at 733-9639.

Several of the plaintiffs, including the Kalks, claimed they bought the Felmont stock when they were told the company would be purchased by Mobil Oil Co. and that an oil strike would further drive up the value of the shares.

But the investors said neither of these things happened, and the stock's value fell dramatically before they sold their shares.

The purchase prices ranged from $10 to $50 per share, but the investors say they later learned the stock was worth only about $20 per share.

Neither Becker's attorneys nor lawyers for the plaintiffs were available for comment Friday.

Stock sale brings another lawsuit

BOISE (UPI) — A woman and two of her children have sued a former Sun Valley broker for more than $1 million.

She becomes the sixth in a list of investors who claim they were defrauded in transactions involving oil company stock.

Chanelotte Kalk of Sun Valley and her children have filed in U.S. District Court complaint filed in Boise, that they were misled by agents for A.G. Becker Inc., a national firm that, at one time operated an office in Sun Valley.

Court records show that five other investors have been filed in which plaintiffs claim they lost thousands of dollars when Becker executives bought and sold Felmont Oil Co. stock on their behalf.

The company is scheduled to appear at a trial March 12 to face a similar complaint brought by the owners of the Sun Co. in Sun Valley.

The Kalks and other investors claim Becker executives misrepresented the quality of certain stocks — primarily those offered by Felmont and made costly, unauthorized transactions on their behalf.

Several of the plaintiffs, including the Kalks, claimed they bought the Felmont stock when they were told the company would be purchased by Mobil Oil Co. and that an oil strike would further drive up the value of the shares.

But the investors said neither of these things happened, and the stock's value fell dramatically before they sold their shares.

The purchase prices ranged from $10 to $50 per share, but the investors say they later learned the stock was worth only about $20 per share.

Neither Becker's attorneys nor lawyers for the plaintiffs were available for comment Friday.

for the path system, dubbed the Wood River Trails, in 1980. It has spent the last two years trying to gain easements for the system's right of way between Ketchum and Halley.

Pinto says the district is interested in using parts of the recently abandoned Union Pacific Railroad right of way for the trails. What portion of the railroad right of way the district will try to acquire will depend on what the state Transportation Department does with the rerouting of Idaho 75, he says.

The Transportation Department is considering using the railroad right of way to possibly build a four-lane highway from Bellevue to Ketchum. The department will hold hearings on the possible rerouting of the highway later this month.

Man says he gave Carter books away

By JUDI HASSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The FBI has been told that a political consultant claimed he obtained President Carter's briefing papers and gave them to William Casey, Ronald Reagan's 1980 campaign manager, sources close to the case said Friday.

The information was turned over to the FBI by Tim Wyngaard, executive director of the House Republican Policy Committee, in consultation with his boss, Republican Policy Committee Chairman Dick Cheney of Wyoming, according to a source.

The source said Wyngaard told FBI investigators Paul Corbin made that claim to him in a telephone call last April — six weeks before the controversy was revealed in the press.

In a statement, Wyngaard said he could neither confirm nor deny the report because it is under FBI investigation.

He acknowledged, however, that he cooperated with the "proper authorities, including the FBI, by informing them of specifics of the reports which reached us from a Democratic source."

The newspaper said Corbin's alleged claim to Wyngaard has been known in the White House since last June, and has figured in the dispute between Casey and Baker over which top Reagan campaign official first received the Carter briefing papers.

Baker has said he got the Carter papers from Casey; Casey has said he never saw them.

In an interview with the Post, Casey denied that he had received any Carter debate briefing material from Corbin or anyone else. "I never knew this material was in the campaign ... It's totally false," he said.

The Post said Corbin's alleged claim to Wyngaard has been known in the White House since last June, and has figured in the dispute between Casey and Baker over which top Reagan campaign official first received the Carter briefing papers.

Baker has said he got the Carter papers from Casey; Casey has said he never saw them.

The newspaper also reported that investigators view the disclosure as potentially significant because it is the first evidence that someone voiced knowledge about the Carter debate papers before the episode was revealed in the press.

Corbin, who has longstanding ties with Democratic politics, had been a volunteer in Sen. Edward Kennedy's 1980 bid for the Democratic nomination. No one submitted his name to be reached for comment on the allegation.

The disclosure, first reported in the Washington Post Friday, is the latest in the investigation of how Reagan's 1980 campaign got hold of Jimmy Carter's political strategy papers.

A House subcommittee and the FBI are investigating the incident. The bureau's probe is not expected to be completed for at least a month.

Emergency ban called for popular pesticide

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Environmental Protection Agency called an emergency ban Friday on the powerful cancer-causing pesticide EDB, saying the widely used chemical is contaminating ground water supplies in several states.

The action culminates nearly a decade of debate over the pesticide, which produces cancer, genetic damage and reproductive disorders in laboratory animals. Formally known as ethylene dibromide, EDB first was identified as a cancer-causing substance nine years ago by the National Cancer Institute.

The emergency suspension is the most restrictive measure the EPA can take under law. It will halt the sale and distribution of EDB for soil fumigation on a wide variety of crops, including citrus and fruit trees, soybeans, pineapples, cotton, tobacco, peanuts and 30 other fruit and vegetable crops.

EDB soil fumigation products "now in the possession of users may be used until Sept. 1, 1984."

In taking the emergency action, EPA cited significant new evidence that EDB is contaminating ground water supplies in a number of states, "the agency said in a statement. "Tests have found the chemical in ground water in California, Florida, Hawaii and Georgia."

Noting farm workers and people handling products treated with EDB are exposed to significant levels of the substance, the EPA said it also is imposing interim regulations requiring "use of protective clothing and respirators, as well as engineering and operational changes to reduce the exposure levels in and around fumigation facilities."

The decision also phases out by Sept. 1, 1984, use of the chemical for "quarantine fumigation" of citrus fruits, tropical fruits such as mangoes and papaya, and other fruits and vegetables that can host tropical fruit flies.

At the same time, the agency issued an order canceling use of EDB for fumigation of stored grain, felled logs and spent fumigation of grain and flour-milling machinery to prevent or remove insect infestation.

Some "minor uses" of EDB will continue including fumigation of stored beehives and hive platforms to control wax moths, use on vaulted stored clothing and furniture, and the Agriculture Department's Japanese Beetle control program.

EDB has been a registered pesticide since 1948. More than 300 million pounds are produced each year in the United States, but only 20 million pounds are used as a pesticide.

El Chichon meets El Nino?

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (UPI) — The El Chichon volcano that erupted 18 months ago in Mexico and warmed the earth's stratosphere is now going to cool things off, a scientist with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday.

In an interview with UPI, Dr. Brian Toon of NASA's Ames Laboratory said scientists accurately forecast that the cloud from the El Chichon volcano would produce a warming change of up to 10 degrees in the stratosphere — about 12 miles up — in the summer of 1982.

However, he said, it will be much more difficult to predict or observe the next changes on the earth's surface temperature change.

The reason is that "El Chichon meets El Nino." This coincidence, according to the NASA weather scientist, may be an unprecedented event.

El Nino is the pool of warm, Pacific water that this year acted strangely and brought unexpected snowfalls to the West Coast and a warm winter to the East Coast.

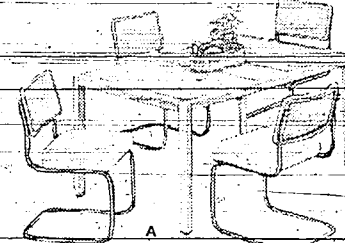

The cloud from the April, 1982, eruption of El Chichon now is circling the whole northern hemisphere. In the spring of 1982 it was concentrated over the tropical Pacific where El Nino formed.

Some scientists think the cloud may have been responsible for El Nino's unusual behavior, said Toon.

Mormon meeting under way

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI)—The Mormon Church's 86-year-old annual General Conference will begin today, but church officials are unsure whether "ailing" church President Spencer W. Kimball will attend.

"It's not known whether President Kimball will be attending any of the conference sessions," church spokesman Don LeVeire said Friday. "He attended none of the sessions in April because of his advanced age and weakness and his physical condition," he said. "We don't know until the conference begins whether he will be physically able to attend any of the sessions."

The two-day conference, to be held in the Salt Lake Tabernacle, will begin today and Sunday at 10 a.m. and conclude at 2 p.m. A priesthood meeting also is scheduled for today.

The 86-year-old president of the world's 5.2 million Mormons is quite frail, due to his advanced age and surgeries two years ago to remove blood clots and scar tissue from his brain.

Kimball's 86-year-old first counselor, Marion G. Romney, may miss his first conference due to ill health; it is recovering from two hospitalizations this past summer for pneumonia, heart ailments and urinary-tract difficulties.

But LeVeire said Kimball and Romney both attended a temple meeting last week. "That was the first time since the 1970s they had been together since February," he said.

Gordon B. Hinckley, Kimball's second counselor, will preside over the conference, at which the church's Council of the Twelve Apostles and other leaders will speak to an expected overflow crowd at the Tabernacle.

Church members from as many as 50 other countries are expected to attend the event.

To accommodate the foreign visitors, three to five interpreters will be on hand during each session to interpret in the following languages: Cambodian, Filipino, Indonesian, Polish, Greek, Cantonese, Danish, Dutch, Finnish, French, German, Italian, Japanese, Korean, Laotian, Mandarin, Navajo, Norwegian, Portuguese, Samoan,

SPENCER KIMBALL May not attend conference

Spanish, Swedish, Tagilant, Tongan and Vietnamese.

Ten of the above languages will be transmitted live over telephone lines to members gathered in church buildings in 20 locations in the United States and abroad. For the first time this year, a Russian interpreter will be available.

Tabernacle choir is 'solid gold'

In good standing of the church.

The choir is also a financially successful enterprise, and its more than 100 recordings support the choir and its travels; Otley says. Three of these records are gold albums.

"The royalties pay for the music and all of the collateral operating expenses, including the rent," says Otley. "We need to use it for in terms of just keeping the choir afloat," he says.

Otley would not venture a guess at how many records the choir has sold.

"CBS Records billed the choir as the largest-selling recorded choir in the world," he says. "We have three gold records and only eight have been given in our category in the entire existence of the American record industry."

"The top sellers are 'The Messiah' by Handel, the album 'The Lord Is My Shepherd' — both with the Philadelphia Orchestra — and 'The Joy of Christmas,' with Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic.

"We also do a radio broadcast on CBS radio every Sunday morning," Otley says. The program is called "Music and the Spoken Word."

"The choir has been on network radio continuously for more than 51 years," he says. "But broadcast is not a church service but a program of inspiration, and is open to the public each week, as are our rehearsals every Thursday evening."

Catholic and Lutheran theologians reach understanding on how sinners are saved

By DAVID ANDERSON
UPI religion writer

WASHINGTON — Lutheran and Roman Catholic theologians said Friday they have reached a "fundamental consensus" on the issue that erupted the Protestant Reformation of the 16th century — how sinners are saved.

In a 21,000-word statement, a panel of 20 officially appointed theologians and scholars said they have agreed on the doctrine of "justification by faith" — an issue that historically has pitted a Lutheran understanding of salvation by "faith alone" against a Catholic understanding that includes "merit" and "good works."

The landmark document, the product of five years of joint study, declares: "Our entire hope of justification and salvation rests on 'Christ alone.'"

"We do not place our ultimate trust in anything other than God's promise and saving work in Christ."

Justification by faith — the idea that salvation comes to a person by God's grace alone and not through any merit or good works of the individual — was a key issue in the Protestant Reformation, which led to the breaking away of Martin Luther's followers from the Roman Catholic Church.

The statement is highly technical in parts and contains 218 footnotes, as the theologians try to sort out complex doctrinal arguments and theological formulations of the 16th century.

Some Lutheran and Roman Catholic theologians said the major agreement in the document is that Catholics affirm that ultimately, the trust of believers for salvation is on God, through Christ, alone and not the works of the law.

But Catholics, while accepting justification by faith as an "authentic" teaching of the church, generally said it does not deny good works are infused by God's grace through the Holy Spirit.

Lutherans during the Reformation all the complicated system of merits used by the Catholic Church placed too great an emphasis on works as a way to salvation. Catholics feared that the Lutheran insistence on justification by faith through grace alone discarded human virtue and good works that can be done through God's grace.

In the statement, the theologians declare this no longer is a "church-dividing" issue, but they acknowledged that while there is growing "convergence" on the issue, there is still not total agreement.

The statement is the seventh in the ground-breaking dialogue between the two churches, and involved one of the most heated issues. It comes at a time of renewed public interest in history of the Reformation, as the 500th birthday of Luther will be marked Nov. 10.

Lutheran officials said the reformation era was not easy to spell out, and the matter is further complicated because there are internal differences as well within each church.

But they appear to be more a matter of emphasis than substantive differences.

The statement said both denominations believe "the justified can, and must, perform good works."

But then, as on some other issues, the theologians qualify what they have said, adding that Lutheran and Roman Catholic teachings on merit may be compatible "but the two sides have difficulty finding a common language."

"Lutherans are primarily intent on stressing the saving character of the unconditional promise 'God will rescue us from human beings and on preventing Christians from being left to their own resources,'" the statement says. Catholics, in contrast, "want to make sure the full range of God's gift (including merit) is acknowledged."

The major obstacle in agreement, the statement says, is a technical one called the "critical principle" — a principle that judges all other teachings, practices and instances of the church.

Differences on this "seem irreconcilable" at this time, the statement says.

Lutherans traditionally have accepted justification by faith as the critical principle, "the artist by which the church must stand or fall."

"Catholics are wary of using one doctrine as the absolute principle by which to purify from the outside, so to speak, the Catholic heritage," the statement says. "They insist 'the gospel cannot be rightly interpreted without drawing in the full resources available from within the church.'"

CD rate ceilings end today

By GARY KLOTT
United Press International

The interest rate ceiling and other government restrictions on bank certificates of deposit will be lifted today.

The move promises to give Americans the opportunity to earn more on their savings.

Early indications show rates on savings certificates will rise about one-half to 1 percentage point. Previously, banks had to tie CD rates to Treasury Bill yields.

For example, a number of banks across the country will be offering a rate of 10.5 percent on the popular six-month CDs, up from the 9.36 percent maximum rate that could be paid this past week under government ceilings.

Under the latest move by government regulators toward the eventual deregulation of all bank accounts, banks are not only free to offer higher rates on CDs, but the new rules also eliminate the minimum deposit requirement of $2,500 and the government-designated maturities of 3 months, 6 months and 30 months terms.

In addition, the new regulations authorize banks to lower the penalty on premature withdrawals to 1 month's interest on CDs with maturities of 32 days to one year, and 3 month's interest on maturities of more than one year. The previous penalties were 3 months and 6 months.

In the rush to attract new business, many bankers are using their newly loosened flexibility to offer higher rates and more attractive terms.

"The next week will produce a confusing and bewildering array of deregulated certificates, all with different rates, different terms, different minimums and different early withdrawal penalties," said Robert Heady, publisher of the Bank Rate Monitor, which tracks bank account rates.

"The banks are still playing cat and mouse on the rates," said Heady, "but the most popular new product will be 6-month and 1-year CDs, with $1,000 and $2,500 deposit minimums for CDs of one year or less and $500 minimums for over one year."

Thus far, there are no signs of any interest rate war about to develop over the new CDs, at least nothing compared to the fierce battles that ensued following the debut last December of the Money Market Deposit Account.

Bankers felt safe in offering high promotional rates with the money market accounts because by law the rates could only be guaranteed for 30 days. A rate war would be far more costly to bankers with CDs, where rates can be locked in for years.

In Atlanta, where rates as high as 25 percent were offered to promote money market accounts last year, bankers are being far more restrained with CD promotions.

"We anticipate a rather quiet introduction of the new products," said spokesman Jan-Hoffman of Atlanta's Citizens and Southern Bank.

In addition, many banks attracted more than enough new deposits from the money market account introduction.

"Most people don't think there's a great deal of money left out there," added spokesman Wayne Taylor of the Bank of Boston.

Most bankers expect the money to flow in from expiring CDs, and as a result some banks are trying to win new business by showering customers who have money elsewhere with bonuses.

Chase Manhattan Bank of New York is offering customers with an expiring CD $10 just to talk about the new CDs, with no obligation to actually reinvest at Chase. In California, Bank of America is offering a $50 bonus for anyone who brings in $5,000 from another institution to buy a CD.

Many banks will be stressing flexibility rather than much higher rates. Pittsburgh-based Equibank is allowing customers to pick when they want the CD to mature, down to the exact day.

"If you have a wedding coming up next June, you can get your money back May 31," said Equibank spokesman Mike Kelly.

In Texas, Interfirst Bank is offering both fixed-rate and variable-rate CDs with minimum deposit requirements set at only $500.

Livestock drag September farm prices down

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Prices of raw farm products fell 1.4 percent in September as declines in livestock prices more than offset continued increases in soybean prices and moderate hikes in other drought-stressed crops.

The decline was a marked contrast to a sharp jump in August prices.

Much of the price increase in crops burned by the worst drought in a half century occurred in August, when prices rose by 6.1 percent, the largest month-to-month increase since July, 1980. The last time a drought occurred a large section of the nation.

In the latest report, the department revised the August hike, which was reported earlier as a 4.6 percent increase.

Soybean prices in August jumped by the largest monthly margin in a decade. And another 9.6 percent increase in September raised soybean prices to $8.46 per bushel, which was the highest amount since 1977, when a price of $9.24 was recorded.

Both the drought and the largest average cutback in history have cut the corn crop by 48 percent. Drought has cut the soybean crop by one-third.

The September report said lower prices for oranges, cattle, hogs and potatoes contributed most to the decline and higher prices for soybeans, lettuce and apples were partially offsetting.

up just 2 cents to $3.37 per bushel.

77¢-44¢ per 100 pounds, but prices fell $2.30 in September. Cattle prices were off $1.50 to $2.30 per 100 pounds.

Higher prices for feed and burned pasture have forced sales of some animals. Although consumer supplies are now plentiful, these factors are expected to force a drop in meat supplies next year.

The department also raised the upper end of its range of expected food price inflation for 1984, noting food prices could go as high as 8 percent to 8.5 percent.

"For 1984, the drought will contribute only 1 to 1.5 percentage points to the forecast 4 percent to 7 percent rise," it said.

A new 'golden age' arrives

Mega-mergers' creating handful of giant railroad systems across West

By The Times-News and combined wire services

More than 20 years ago, the late John Barriger — one of the nation's more innovative railroad executives — predicted that the United States would one day be served by a half dozen super-railroads.

What made that prognostication interesting was that at the time there were about two score major railroads operating full steam, plus hundreds of smaller roads and short lines across the nation.

A lot of his contemporaries considered the idea far-fetched.

Barriger, who achieved considerable note among railroad administrators and in financial circles in the years after World War II by rescuing the Monon and Katy lines from fiscal quicksand, is now deceased.

But his forecast is moving steadily closer to fulfillment.

It took another long stride in that direction this past week when the Santa Fe and Southern Pacific announced their plans for a merger under the umbrella of a giant holding company.

If their proposed merger is approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission, the western United States will be served by three rail giants and a handful of smaller roads.

In addition to the Santa Fe-Southern Pacific combination, the surviving giants of the West are the Union Pacific, which merged with the

Analysis

Missouri Pacific and Western Pacific a year ago, and the Burlington Northern, a three-road joining completed in 1970.

The largest independent railroad left in the West is the Rio Grande Western, serving Colorado, Utah and a small segment of New Mexico, under the flag of its parent organization, the Denver-based Rio Grande Industries.

Naturally, the question of the Rio Grande's future arises. It would appear that its absorption by one of the super-railroads is only a matter of time.

The Santa Fe-Southern Pacific merger was announced jointly in Chicago and San Francisco, where the two companies have their respective headquarters. But relations between the two lines were not always amicable. In fact, in years past their commercial rivalries were at times extremely heated, particularly when the SP was attempting to preserve its southwestern domain against the approaching Santa Fe in the late 1800s.

The Southern Pacific is a descendant of Collis P. Huntington's Central Pacific, created in the 1860s, along with the Union Pacific, to build a transcontinental railroad. That project was completed with the driving of the golden spike at Promontory, Utah, on May 10, 1869.

The SP subsequently was the first railroad to cross the southwest, heading eastward from California for Texas and Louisiana. It also expanded northward to a terminus at Portland, Ore.

The other partner in the latest merger, Santa Fe Industries, evolved from the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway. The Santa Fe started from Topeka, Kan., in late 1868, building toward Santa Fe, N.M., along the general line of the historic trading route called the Santa Fe Trail.

It reached California in the 1860s, and by 1883, it had extended its main line eastward from Kansas City to Chicago. Also in the 1880s and 1890s, the Santa Fe cracked the SP monopoly on rail service to California, and also reached the Gulf of Mexico — objectives once valued by its founder, Cyrus K. Holliday, but considered flights of oratorical fancy by many at the time.

acquiring Conrail — formally, the Consolidated Rail Corp. — and creating a Pacific transcontinental railway.

Reports of such a move were circulating several months ago, and Santa Fe officials indicated that preliminary negotiations for such a merger had taken place. Little further news has surfaced recently, however.

At the Peabody-Century combination, these other major mergers have followed:

- Burlington Northern, created from the Burlington Route, Great Northern and Northern Pacific. It is the nation's longest railroad, at 28,900 miles.
- Norfolk Southern, formed in March 1982, by the Norfolk and Southern and Southern systems, which had in turn absorbed other smaller regional railroads.
- UP, Missouri Pacific and Western Pacific, with 11,700 miles.
- CSX Corp., including the old Chesapeake and Ohio, and Baltimore and Ohio routes — among others, with 28,400 miles in the East and Midwest. It ranks second in mainline mileage.

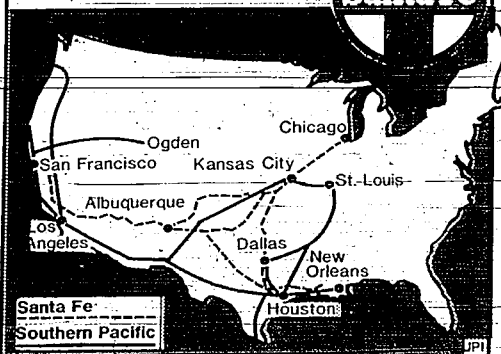

west, the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific interchanged freight and passengers there.

In recent years, the single-system approach to transportation of freight has led to routing shipments over "home" trackage, and also was a factor in the inclusion of Western Pacific in the UP-MP setup. Western Pacific's line into the San Francisco Bay area and its range of expected food price inflation for 1984, noting food prices could go as high as 8 percent to 8.5 percent.

"For 1984, the drought will contribute only 1 to 1.5 percentage points to the forecast 4 percent to 7 percent rise," it said.

PLANNED RAILROAD MERGER

Combined Santa Fe and Southern Pacific Railroads Will Cover Approximately 25,000 Miles In 14 States

The latest merger is the second attempt between the two lines. In 1980, a $1.2 billion takeover plan proposed by Santa Fe fell through because government approval would have taken too long. That move followed almost on the heels of the announcement of the Union Pacific-Missouri Pacific-Western Pacific merger plans.

The Staggers Rail Act of 1980 changed the situation, however, giving the ICC a 31-month deadline for approving rail mergers.

"Before the act, it was hard to make any management plans because companies never knew if the approval would come through or not," Chris Knapton, a spokesman for the Association of American Railroads, told United Press International after the merger announcement.

"Now our business is very definitely on the upswing. It's the new golden age."

"That 'golden age' began when the New York Central and Pennsylvania merged in 1968.

These lines and several other eastern roads wound up as part of Conrail, which may be the ultimate target of John J. Schmidt, Santa Fe's chairman and chief executive officer, who is now chairman of the new holding company.

Some industry observers believe Schmidt wants to use this merger as a first step toward acquiring Conrail — formally, the Consolidated Rail Corp. — and creating a Pacific transcontinental railway.

Reports of such a move were circulating several months ago, and Santa Fe officials indicated that preliminary negotiations for such a merger had taken place. Little further news has surfaced recently, however.

Gooding shocks unbeaten Valley

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

GOODING — Combining a sufficient offensive attack with remarkably efficient defense, the Gooding Senators remained tied for first place in the Canyon Conference Friday night with a 17-12 victory over the previously undefeated Valley Vikings.

The decision lifts Gooding's league record to 3-0, a mark Declo shares, while Valley falls to 2-1. Both Gooding and Valley are 4-1 overall.

The Senators rebounded from what could have been a disastrous turn of events to drive for the winning touchdown on Mark Jones' 1-yard run with 11:22 left in the game.

That shifted the burden to Gooding's defense. And the Senators handled the responsibility admirably, stopping Valley three times in the final minutes after the Vikings had either moved into or started in pro-missing field position.

Not that curtailing a Viking drive was anything new to the Senators. In the first quarter they halted Valley five yards away from a touchdown.

"Never mind that the phrase 'team effort' has become a cliché. That's what sustained Gooding.

"When you have a win like that, everybody's done something good," Senators Coach Bob Milligan said, exhausted yet exhilarated.

Everybody on Gooding's defense certainly did. Undaunted by Jones' touchdown, which ended a 71-yard, 13-play drive, Valley surged deep into the Senators' territory, quarterback Marlin Mussmann picking up first downs with an 18-yard keeper around left end and a 6-yard squirt up the middle on third-and-2.

That 6-yard run put the Vikings on the 16, from where they advanced without running a play as Gooding's Jeff Faulkner jumped offside. But three plays gained just 1 yard; and on fourth-and-4 from the 12 Mussmann's pass to Jeff Henry went incomplete. Allen Cheney and Donny Kirrtland dashed the Viking receiver.

Valley's defense quickly forced a punt, returning page 47. But the Vikings moved just four yards, relinquishing the ball with three minutes to go.

With 46 seconds left, Gooding was called upon again to stop the Vikings, who had held the Senators on downs and regained the ball on their own 44. But Mussmann's bomb to Tracy Bruckner was surrounded by Ben Yare and Kevin Bickel — full incomplete. After a holding penalty, Mussmann scrambled for 20 yards to the Valley 49, but on the game's last play Kirrtland intercepted Mussmann's desperation heave for Henry on the Gooding 40.

Twin Falls gets past punchless Spartans

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

RUPRIVE — Statistically, Twin Falls had a very big night. Senior Cory Federico romped for 207 yards, changing the second-best total in the school's history. Defensively, the Bruins held Minico without a first down (except by penalty) until the final 3:30 of the game.

But in reality, Twin Falls couldn't call this 15-6 decision "in the bank" until a 10-yard pass fell incomplete in the end zone with 1:47 remaining.

Twin Falls kept itself in trouble through the first three and one-half quarters. It seldom had a possession "without a penalty" and "pass" interception, returned 40 yards by Greg Schow, had the Bruins behind through most of the first half.

Minico simply didn't muster any offense until just when it appeared Federico's jarring, twisting 20-yard touchdown gallop with 3:35 to play had moved the Bruins out of trouble. However, after Nate Burke's extra-point kick sailed right, the options still remained with the Spartans.

And Coach Red Halverson went back a year or two for the first one. He immediately installed senior Von Peterman as the triggerman in a shotgun offense. He fit Mike Minico used the formation during the game. From his own 27, Peterman passed the Spartans to the Bruin 10, the big play being a 38-yard bomb to Terrence Smith, who almost got it all.

Peterman then hit two quick out passes, one for a yard and the next for a minus two. His third pass slipped through the fingers of a would-be Bruin interceptor. With the game on the line, he lofted the fourth-down aerial into the corner, leading Kevin Halverson. The ball bounced off Halverson's chest and sent up a chorus of complaints from the Spartan faithful.

"It looked to me," said Coach Halverson as objectively as possible, "that the Twin kid knew he was beat, which he was, and just reached out and saved him. But we didn't get the flag."

After that, Twin Falls gave the ball three times to Federico for another first down and then ran out the clock. When the two coaches met in the middle of the field, Bruin Coach Bill Jones had one question.

"What were you going to do if you'd scored? Go for the win or the tie," he asked concerning the one and two-point possibilities.

"I was going for overtime," Halverson replied with a smile.

He explained that later by noting the sudden effectiveness of the shotgun formation buoyed his expectations that the Spartans could score in overtime.

"We went away from the shotgun or single wing, thinking we could get some running." But after tonight, I think passing is our game. We didn't have a generated first-down mark, what, the last three minutes? We're going to the shotgun."

Federico's 243-yard performance lifted him to second in individual rushing for a game — at least in the past 25 years. The high is 267 by Mike Allison when he was a sophomore. That effort eclipsed the 236-yard mark Doug Schow had established against Great Falls in 1962.

"Cory had a helluva game. He's been giving up his body for us every week and every play," said Jones.

"It was a great evening exhibition," Jones continued. "I think we had penalties on just about every possession and most of the time they were instrumental in stopping ourselves. Our linemen jumped four or five times and the backs were called for motion three or four times. But I think some of that was the frustration our kids have felt the past couple of weeks. We've (coaches) been getting on them pretty hard."

Twin Falls made the first threat of the game, after a 14-yard punt gave it possession on the Minico 30. After advancing to a fourth and two at the six, however, the Bruins elected to try a field goal and Burke kicked it left of the upright.

The teams then traded possession twice to get into the second quarter. After being punted into a hole, Twin Falls twice picked up penalties and fired a sideline pass from its 10. Schow made a leaping catch near the sideline, then cut diagonally across the field. Once at the 10 he knew he was in and sent up the No. 1 sign. The point-after kick went wide.

Minico returned the favor on the first play of the second half when Robert Ryan broke through to foul up the handoff and Sean Molyneux fell on the tumble at the Spartans 33. Federico's 14-yard run offset one of those penalties and on the 12 he handed three times to final pull Twin Falls even. Burke booted the extra point.

After that, due to a Twin Falls fumble at its 25, Minico held field possession but couldn't capitalize. With nearly eight minutes left, Twin Falls uncorked its final march. Jeff Lambert contributed 15 yards in two rushes while Federico had runs of 15 and 10 before getting the score with a twisting run in which he was hit three times and spun completely around once.

Twin Falls ..... 15 0 7 6-13
Minico ..... 6 0 0 0-0-5

2nd - Federico 1 run (kick failed)

Dodgers finally nail down NL West title

By JEFF HASEN
United Press International

LOS ANGELES — The Los Angeles Dodgers, who captured the National League West title in the sixth inning when Atlanta lost to San Diego, defeated the San Francisco Giants 4-3 Friday night behind Fernando Valenzuela's 15th victory of the season.

The Dodgers will meet the Philadelphia Phillies in the NL championship Series, beginning Tuesday night in Los Angeles.

The Dodgers, stymied in San Diego in two attempts to capture the title Thursday night, became champions in the top of the sixth when the Braves lost to the Padres 3-2. A crowd of 42,928 gave the Dodgers a standing ovation and the game was momentarily delayed as the Dodgers hugged each other in the dugout.

Following the top of the sixth, the Dodger starters returned to the dugout and were greeted with high-fives as the game was again delayed by a long ovation.

The Dodgers then emerged from the dugout and applauded the fans while manager Tommy Lasorda blew kisses to fans and the Dodger executives seated upstairs.

Los Angeles took a 2-0 lead in the second on a two-run single by Ken Landreaux. With two out, Greg Brock and Dusty Baker walked but, after Pedro Guerrero loaded the bases with an infield hit, Landreaux stroked a single to center off loser Scott Garretts, 2-2.

The Dodgers boosted their lead to the fifth on an RBI groundout by Baker and in the sixth, backup shortstop Dave Anderson, pinch hitting for Bill Russell, continued the celebration with a leadoff homer.

San Francisco scored two runs in the seventh. Chili Davis reached on an error by Anderson and scored on a double to center by Joel Youngblood. A single to left by Tom O'Malley brought in Youngblood.

San Francisco scored its third run in the eighth when Darvell Evans hit his 30th homer of the season.

Valenzuela, 15-10, allowed six hits, struck out seven and walked one in seven innings before giving way to Orel Hershiser, who pitched the last two innings for his first save.

The pennant-clinching capped a strange season for the Dodgers, who had to overcome a great deal of adversity.

"You name it and it's happened this season," said Lasorda. "It has been an interesting year to say the least."

The problems started last winter when third baseman Ron Cey, a cornerstone of the infield for 10 years, was traded to the Chicago Cubs and Steve Garvey, a bulwark at first base for 10 seasons and the team's most popular player, opted for free agency and signed with the San Diego Padres.

Many baseball people felt the Dodgers could not recover from such losses, but Lasorda had confidence in the club's young players being able to do the job.

Los Angeles used Greg Brock to fill Garvey's shoes and moved Pedro Guerrero — who this year began the first Los Angeles Dodger to lead consecutive seasons of 30 or more home runs — in from the outfield to take over at first base.

Marshall took over Guerrero's spot in right field and had a fine season despite being benched by Montreal's Jeff Reardon early in the year.

Another youngster, Jack Pimlico, proved invaluable to the Dodgers as he covered for Cey and Mike Scioscia went out with injuries.

The Dodgers also prevailed despite the problems of their ace reliever Steve Howe, who spent part of the season recovering from drug and alcohol problems at the CareUnit Hospital in Orange, Calif.

Howe's second suspension took place Sept. 23, hours before the Dodgers entered an important three-game series in Atlanta with a 4 1/2-game lead. On the advice of his doctor, he will not pitch again this season and remains uncertain if he will ever pitch again for the Dodgers.

The Braves had a 6 1/2-game lead in August following a dramatic ninth-inning Bob Watson home run off Howe. An Atlanta newspaper proclaimed, "It's Over."

But the Dodgers held a meeting to regroup in Cincinnati, the Braves lost slugger Bob Horner, arguably the team's most dangerous clutch hitter, for the season with an injury and Atlanta went on a fatal slide.

But the Dodgers held a meeting to regroup in Cincinnati, the Braves lost slugger Bob Horner, arguably the team's most dangerous clutch hitter, for the season with an injury and Atlanta went on a fatal slide.

"Everything came together, the veterans and the youngsters," said Russell, the team's veteran shortstop. "Brook and Marshall had some bad slumps but Tommy stuck with them. He has that great ability of making somebody believe in himself, even when things are going poorly. But this year, it took more patience than in the previous years. He should be manager of the year."

The turning point came in a three-game series with the Braves at Los Angeles in early September. The teams split the first two games of the three-game series and the Braves held a three-run lead entering the ninth inning of the rubber game. But the Dodgers rallied for four runs run by a suicide squeeze by rookie R. J. Reynolds — and won the game, 7-4.

The Dodgers won one of three games in Atlanta on the next-to-last weekend of the season and took a 3 1/2-game lead into the final week of the season. A dramatic extra inning victory against Cincinnati last Monday in which the Dodgers rallied from a ninth-inning deficit to tie the score in the third proved to be a big triumph as the Dodgers survived a closing surge by the Braves.

Time for Twin Falls to join Southern Idaho Conference?

TWIN FALLS — So what's the opinion here, of Idaho dividing the state's A-1 schools into two divisions for playoff purposes?

Glad you asked.

In the first place, Idaho's proclivity for legislating winners finds very little favor in this sector.

Dividing an already too-small A-1 division into two for the simple expediency of crowning yet another state champion is a bit much — even viewed from the financial standpoint.

In the second place, let it also be noted that this corner was in no way in favor of Twin Falls leaving the Southern Idaho Conference and affilating with the Gem State Conference. It was simply a football play, and football is a game that Twin Falls should have proven to everyone's satisfaction by now in which it is not inclined to pay the extra price required to become competitive, i.e., work in the weightroom and off-season regimen.

Larry Hovey

It has been the position here that since no more than a handful of Twin Falls athletes are overly interested in playing the game to that degree — football should not be the detriment. It has become to the other sports in regard to both weather and competition.

The crowning point, however, is that not only has Idaho again added tarnished "championship hardware" to its list (six schools will become "state champions" next fall), but the individual schools have been allowed to choose their own beds.

Does it then follow that a couple, three times whipped, a team will be allowed to change classification at its whim?

The plan adopted by the board of control of the Idaho High School Activities Association already overlooks the fact that Madison of Rexburg probably will be A-1 next fall, perhaps not by one point but included so by the fact it may petition for membership in the Gem State Conference as early as next Monday.

When that happens — and everyone expects it by the start of next year — what then of the effect of the board that has already decided to play "one or two" Boise metro teams? It simply adds up another open date for the current Gem State members.

Now what of the fact that the A-1 schools now must adapt to a schedule "convenient to the metro schools?" They can't play Borah, Boise, Meridian and Capital in the first two weeks of the season. It makes a mockery, then, of a conference race in which there will be decided scheduling advantages one way or the other. It definitely puts the conference idea behind the playoff scheme.

There is one thing that could modify this position slightly. That would be the edict that a team winning the Division II state championship one year, must play in Division I the next fall.

That Twin Falls stayed in the top tier for playoff purposes reverses the trend that has shown itself in the school for the past 10-12 years.

But the alignment of the newly-created "B" division (rest assured, fans, no school will itself be caught in a B division anything — it surely will have to be A-1 or I-AA) is unusual to say the least.

How Skyline High of Idaho Falls can appear in a B division when discussing Idaho high school football is a major question. The Grizzlies have not had a losing season in the past 11 years — and that covers time when Skyline was a member of the Southern Idaho Conference. With two years missing, Times-News records show Skyline at 49-31 since the 1973 season.

Compare that, now, to Minico at 25-76, Pocatello 29-51, Twin Falls 21-61 and Idaho Falls 35-111. The only thing most can take the Griz in any of the games to be played in the B division from next fall on. You'll be bank more than you'll spend.

The major question to be asked locally is this: Would Twin Falls be better off back in the Falls 35-111 and the Southern Idaho Conference? Historically, the stability of eastern Idaho affiliations has been akin to the San Andreas Fault. The Idaho Falls schools have been in and out of more conferences the past 23 years than 48 cent peace meditations — and the growth of Madison into the A-1 ranks puts the 180-mile trip to Twin Falls twice a year under the accountant's icy glare.

Carey comes from behind to dump Indians

CAREY — Senior Mark Conrad contributed 20 tackles in force and 72 yards rushing on offense here Friday to give Carey a 20-6 Sawtooth Conference football victory over Shoshone.

Carey, ranked fourth in the state among eight-man teams this week by United Press International, improved its season and conference records to 5-4. The Indians are now 2-3 for the season and in league play.

Shoshone scored first against the defending Sawtooth champions on a 40-yard pass from sophomore quarterback Wade Cooper to Doug Ivic. The Panthers didn't get on the scoreboard until late in the second quarter, when quarterback Brad Tingey connected with Dabny VanHook for two yards. Tingey then

But the Panthers came out in the third quarter with a 60-yard scoring drive, most of it on carries by Conrad and junior fullback Kendall Beck. Tingey hit VanHook for 13 yards and the touchdown, and the conversion attempt failed.

Carey scored again in the fourth quarter on a nine-yard run by Peck. The conversion attempt fell short.

Peck ended the game with 60 yards rushing on offense and 11 tackles on defense, while Van Hook contributed 15 tackles, 100 yards with his two touchdowns.

The Indians missed a number of scoring opportunities in the second half, getting inside the Carey 5-yard

Camas 41 Richfield 26

RICHFIELD — The Camas County Mustangs exploded for six straight touchdowns, four by Mike Faulkner, and coasted to a 41-26 victory over Richfield in a Sawtooth Conference game Friday afternoon.

Faulkner notched the first two scores on runs of 17 and 40 yards in the first quarter. After Brandee Gormley caught a 43-yard touchdown pass from Lonnie Fankhouser, Faulkner resumed his bingely grabbing passes of 70 and 62 yards from Fankhouser for scores.

Fankhouser himself scored on a 55-yard run moments later, giving the Mustangs an insurmountable 30-0 lead before Terry Hamplon ended Richfield's drought with a 14-yard touchdown plunge.

The outcome spoiled Richfield's homecoming, but Coach Leroy Johnson felt that it was the other way around. "With homecoming, we didn't have our mind in the haligame," he said.

Fankhouser threw just seven passes, but he completed six, three for touchdowns. Bright spots for Richfield included Justin Bell's 75-yard touchdown pass to Glenn Hitt and scoring runs of 14 and 27 yards. Mike Johnson's 19 tackles and eight assists and Wade Wickham's eight tackles and four assists.

The decision evens Camas County's conference and overall records at 2-2. Camas County is now 4-4-1.

Richfield is now 1-4-1. Camas County's record is 4-4-1-2. Camas County 41 pass from Fankhouser (run failed). Camas County 29 pass from Fankhouser (run failed). Camas County 35 run from Faulkner. # Padres put Braves out of NL race

By United Press International

The San Diego Padres used bases empty home runs by Kevin Reynolds and Juan Bonilla in the second inning Friday night to de-throne the defending National League champion Atlanta Braves, 3-2, and give this year's title to the Los Angeles Dodgers.

When the final out was recorded, the Dodgers, who were listening to the game on radio 90 miles away at Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles, began hugging each other and jumping up and down excitedly in their dugout during their game with the San Francisco Giants.

The Tigers will meet the Philadelphia Phillies, the NL East champions, in a best-of-five series for the pennant, beginning Tuesday night in Los Angeles.

It marks the fifth NL West title for the Dodgers and their fourth in the last seven years. Los Angeles has met Philadelphia in two previous playoffs and beaten the Phillies both times. The Dodgers' last previous title came in 1981, when they won the World Series. Last season Los Angeles was eliminated from the race on the last day, but not by the Braves.

McReynolds hit his home run with one out in the second off starter and loser Phil Niekro, 11-10, and Bonilla drove his into the left field seats one out later. The home runs were the fourth of the year for both.

The Braves took a 2-0 lead in the top of the first on Dale Murphy's 30th home run, following a walk to Claudio Washington.

San Diego scored once in the bottom of the first when Bobby Brown beat out a bunt down the first base line. Alan Wiggins grounded out to Randy Jouson at third and Brown baced to third on the play. Tony Gwynn then drove a deep sacrifice fly to center.

drove in a run aplece to support Denny, who worked six innings to notch his sixth straight victory and raise his record to 19-6. It was Denny's 13th victory in his last 14 decisions and he lowered his earned run average to 2.37, second-best in the league. Al Holland finished for his 23th save.

The Phillies, who won for the 13th time in their last 14 games, scored a run in the first off Larry McWilliams, 15-8, on a double by Pete Rose and Lezcano's two-out single. Philadelphia, which managed only three hits, loaded the bases in the fifth on a walk to Kiko Garcia, a single by Bruce Bochy and a hit batter. Matthews then drew a walk to force in Garcia.

At St. Louis, George Hendrick delivered three doubles and drove in four runs to lead the Cardinals to victory. Nell Allen, 12-14, went the distance for the victory while Reggie Patterson, 1-2, took the loss.

Houston 3, Cincinnati 2

At Houston, Craig Reynolds smashed his first homer of the season and spot starter Mike LaCoss allowed only two runs and three hits in seven innings to lead the Astros to victory. Houston's Jose Cruz went 2-for-4 to raise his average to .323, increasing his chances to catch NL batting leader Bill Madlock of Pittsburgh, who is batting .324.

Montreal at New York was rained out.

Gooding

"Our defense was great," Milligan said. "These kids played their hearts out."

The Senators' hearts probably jumped out of their throats with 4:17 left in the third quarter, when Valley's Jeff Hutchins fell on Todd Simis' deflected punt in the end zone to give the Vikings a 12-10 lead. Stationed in his end zone, Simis couldn't quite hold on to a high snap, but tried to punt anyway after piking up the ball. Hickey was deflected and bounced around in the end zone before Hutchins fell on it.

That shift in fortune agitated Milligan considerably. "I knew we could come back and score," he said.

"I knew we had the potential to do it. "But I was scared to death then."

At the outset, before anybody had a chance to get scared, Gooding took a 3-0 lead, taking the opening kickoff, moving to the Valley 4 and setting for Kirtland's 20-yard field goal with 7:34 left in the first quarter.

Defied by a pass interference penalty, Henry's diving catch for a 24-yard gain and Mussenman's 19-yard run around left end, Valley moved to the Gooding 14. But on third-and-1 from the 5 Steve Stockman tackled T.J. Kincaid for no gain, and on fourth down a quartet of Senators stopped Black, trying to plunge through the middle, inches short from first-down turf.

"That could have been the difference in the ballgame (had Valley made the first down)," Viking Coach Forrest Fomesbeck said.

"I don't think they had any running game up the middle whatsoever," Milligan said. "Most of it was pretty much cut off."

Valley couldn't cut off the Senators on their ensuing possession, a 96-yard, 20-play marathon that climaxed in Simis' 4-yard fly to tight end Bryan Darcy with 4:57 to go in the half. Jones' conversion kick gave Gooding a 10-0 lead.

The scoring pass was only the third throw for the Senators on the drive, as Jones, who finished with 130 yards in 33 carries, Simis and Jesse Rodrigues ran for most of the yardage with help from Gooding's dominant offensive line. "They knocked us off of the line at the scrimmage in the first half," Fomesbeck admitted.

Valley responded with Mussenman's 19-yard strike to Henry, who sped up the left sideline, got a step ahead of Ricks, gathered in the pass and scored with 13 to go in the half. That narrowed the difference to 10-6 and was the last shred of offense production until late in the third quarter, when Gooding began his winning drive.

Bliss — The Ketchum Community School edged Bliss 2-1 in a soccer match Friday afternoon.

After a scoreless — and considerably wet — first-half, Ketchum broke the deadlock five minutes into the second half. It increased its lead to 2-0 minutes later. Bliss retaliated with a goal by Richie Graves, but Ketchum held on.

Galleary Larry Wilkins was heroic in netting Bliss, stopping three penalty kicks.

Bliss Coach Jerry Cough praised Ketchum for its sure-footed effort. "It was a slick, sloppy field, and there was lots of falling down. I think we were overusting," he said. "They (Ketchum) kept constant pressure on us, and they really dominated us in terms of positioning. They positioned

Profitable evening for Stieb

By United Press International

The Blue Jays have long been eliminated from the pennant race, but nevertheless it proved to be a very profitable night for Dave Stieb.

Stieb fired a three-hitter to record his 17th victory and Cliff Johnson clubbed a three-run homer to cap a four-run inning Friday night that led Toronto to an 8-0 victory over the Minnesota Twins.

Stieb, who collected a $50,000 bonus when he reached the 275-inning mark at the end of the sixth, retired the first three batters he faced and struck out his fourth shutout of the year and improved his record to 17-12 as he lowered his ERA to a club record 3.04.

Toronto opened a 4-0 lead in the fourth. With Damascus Garcia at third and Barry Bonnell at second, Jesse Barfield hit a bounce to Frank Viola, 7-14. Garcia was caught in a rundown but was awarded home on third baseman Gary Gethler's interference. Milwaukee 6, Detroit 2.

At Detroit, Cecil Cooper, Ted Simmons and Robin Yount homered to pace the Brewers. Bob Gibson, 3-4, notched his first victory since Aug. 2. Pete Ladd tossed 2 1/2 innings off one-hit relief for his 24th save.

Boston 10, Cleveland 0

At Boston, Wade Boggs went 3-for-4 and knocked in three runs and Dennis Eckersley, 9-13, pitched a five-hitter over seven innings to leading the Red Sox. Boston chased loser Neal Henton, 1-7, with a six-run second to take a 7-0 lead. Boggs raised his league-leading batting average to .322.

At Arlington, Texas, Buddy Bell singled while the bases loaded and came out in the 10th inning, hitting the Rangers. Billy Sample led off the 10th off Doug Corbett, 1-1, with his fourth hit of the game to start the winning rally. Tom Henke, 1-0, pitched three innings of one-hit relief to the Twins.

New York 6-2, Baltimore 4-3

In Baltimore, Cal Ripken batted in two runs and Jim Palmer gave up just two hits over seven innings, helping the Baltimore Orioles defeat the New York Yankees and salvage a split of the double-header.

The victory snapped a four-game losing streak for the American League East champions.

In the opener, John Montefusco, acquired from San Diego Aug. 26, held the Orioles to eight hits before giving way to George Frazier in the eighth in leading the Yankees to triumph.

Kansas City at Oakland was rained out. That game will be played as part of a double-header on Sunday.

QB English can play for Tulane

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — A state appeals court Friday reinstated a temporary restraining order that would allow English to play in Saturday's contest against Vanderbilt.

The 4th Circuit Court of Appeal, in a 2-1 decision, ruled English would suffer irreparable harm if he were not allowed to participate in the game.

Colbert charges back, tops Texas Open field

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) — Jim Colbert charged out of seventh place Friday with an 8-under par 62 and emerged with a one-stroke lead over a determined Wally Armstrong in the second round of the Texas Open.

Colbert, from Las Vegas, Nev., hit six birdies and an eagle giving him a 12-under par 128, the lowest 36-hole total on the PGA tour this year.

"It was like it hit bubble gum one inch from the hole," he said.

Armstrong credited his play to a new putter and the relaxed feeling he has about retiring after the 1992 tournament. "I don't think I've ever been so relaxed in my life," he said. "I seem to be finally on top of my golf instead of it being on top of me for 10 years."

Australian leads LPGA tournament

SAN JOSE, Calif. (UPI) — Australian Jane Critter, playing the best golf of her career, led the last three weeks' shot a 3-under par 73 Friday to lead those players who finished before rain postponed first round play at the LPGA's San Jose Classic.

Critter — who finished eighth in Seattle two weeks ago and ninth last week in San Diego — birdied four holes on the par-73 Almaden Golf and Country Club course to surge into a 2-shot lead over defending champion Patty Sheenan and Sue Erll.

Gary McCord and Tony Sills finished three shots off the pace with a 6-under-131a while Len Elder and Steve Hurt finished at 132.

Twin Falls harriers win J-Club

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls boys and girls track and field individuals in the top 10 to collect team championships. But the individual honors for the Jerome J-Club Cross Country Invitational were taken by Maureen McGinnis of Wood River and Lanea Glines of Jerome.

Twin Falls won the girls' division with 33 points, just ahead of Wood River at 35. The Bruin boys beat runner-up Minico 32-61.

Glines, better known from last spring as a middle distance runner, jumped into the lead on the first turn in the course and led throughout.

"This is the best he's run this year but he ran like that for us last year," said Coach Tim Dunne.

Dunne said he was somewhat disappointed in his boys' showing but added "we have a couple out right now. One with injuries who should be back in the next week or two and the other will make his first start for us in the conference."

Dunne's major concern remains the Clara B state title, on which Jerome has had a deathlock for the past 11 years. "Madison is very strong this year. They finished third at Burley and beat Twin Falls off there. You saw how Twin beat us today," he said.

Bruin Coach Jerry Kleinkopf felt considerable relief with the day's events.

"Because of Highland running in just about every other meet we're scheduled to run this year, this was our only chance to go for a victory. I thought our boys ran well today. They had good grouping. But next week it's back down to Pocatello where we'll see Highland again," he said.

In the girls' division, Twin Falls avenged an earlier loss to Wood River although the Wolverines grabbed the top two individual places with McGinnis and Michelle Jacques.

"Kim (Hannan) ran very well today for us (getting third overall) and Tiesie (Szubert) picked up a couple of places in the last 200 yards to make the difference," said Kleinkopf. "The rest of the girls ran well. We had only one who appeared to have an off day."

For the Pocatello schools, Blackfoot, the three Idaho Falls schools, Minico and noon Madison, Twin Falls will become a bye-causing appendage of the farthest extremity.

The Bruins will, to be sure, get their lumps in football by going west. But with or without scheduling advantages, the Twin Falls High's peak in football has been seven wins in regular-season games since 1972.

From a weather and competitive standpoint, the metro schools offer more to be sure (with the historic exception of basketball). Certainly, the Bruins will keep losing in football, but there is little reason to believe that Twin Falls' collective athletic program has grown stronger since leaving the SIC. Records may indicate only the legislated advantages.

One thing that is certain is that the violence of cyclic swings has been considerably more noticeable. And this is above the usual cavalier, pseudo-sophisticated — or whatever you call it — attitude of Twin Falls.

The lathery of the Twin Falls school spirit, at least as manifested by consistent excellence on the field and attendance required to accommodate that spirit, has not been tilted by Coach Bill Jones' 1981 record and second-place state showing in football the past three years nor by the school-tying winning record and second-place state finish of John Astorquia's basketball team.

Perhaps, then, it is time to try another tack. Rejoining the SIC is the only alternative available right now.
