146 Marines die in bombing

Islamic group takes credit for Beirut attacks; 31 French killed

By SCOTT MacLEOD
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — At least 146 U.S. Marines and 31 French troops were killed Sunday by terrorists.

They crashed two trucks packed with thousands of pounds of explosives into a Marine headquarters and a French peace-keeping post three miles away.

The suicide attacks by two drivers wounded at least 75 other Marines and 12 French troops. It was the heaviest loss of life in a single incident involving U.S. servicemen since the Vietnam War.

A previously unknown group calling itself the Free Islamic Revolution Movement claimed responsibility for the simultaneous pre-dawn attacks in a telephone call to the Beirut office of the Agence France Presse news agency.

Massive explosions a minute apart destroyed both buildings, crushing hundreds of sleeping Marines and French paratroopers beneath tons of burning rubble.

"The number of wounded will go higher," a Pentagon spokesman said.

Maj. Robert Jordan, a Marine spokesman in Beirut, said between 200 and 300 people were trapped inside the wreckage when the bomb exploded.

"I have not seen carnage like this since Vietnam," said Jordan, a veteran of the Southeast Asia conflict.

Outside the Marines' post, letters from home, American newspapers, a rock cassette, "Hooligans" by The Who, a paperback novel titled "Deathwind of Vedun," and snapshots of a Marine weightlifter were littered for hundreds of yards.

In an anonymous telephone call to Agence France Presse, the Free Islamic Revolution Movement said the attack was carried out in support of a Greater Syria and the "strengthening of the Islamic revolution."

"This kind of thing just hardens our resolve, and we will continue to do what we came here to do, and that is provide assistance for a free and independent Lebanon," Col. Timothy Geraghty, Marine commander in Beirut, said.

Pentagon officials said a 10-ship task force with 1,900 Marines and another battle group headed by the aircraft carrier Independence were ordered to resume their voyage to the Mediterranean, where they are to relieve forces now deployed in and around Lebanon.

Both groups had been diverted to the Caribbean to underscore a determination to protect some 1,000 U.S. citizens on Grenada following last week's coup on the island.

Additionally, a unit of Marines moved out of Camp Lejeune, N.C., Sunday on their way to Beirut to replace the men who were killed. The number of men in the unit was not disclosed.

Lebanese President Amin Gemayel cabled his condolences to President Reagan and French President Francois Mitterrand, saying the deaths of the peacekeepers were "evidence of the previous sacrifices" the United States and France have made for peace and liberty.

There are 1,600 Marines based in Lebanon along with French, Italian and British troops as part of a multinational peacekeeping force.

Leave or turn forces loose, Symms says

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Idaho Sen. Steve Symms said Sunday President Reagan should either pull the U.S. Marines out of Beirut or allow them to go on the offensive to pacify resistance to the Lebanese government.

Similar reaction was expressed by Rep. Larry Craig, while Sen. James McClure said he hopes the bombing will not destroy American resolve to bring peace to the region.

Symms, a Republican, said he was heartbroken over the huge loss of life in Lebanon early Sunday when a bomb explosion killed at least 140 U.S. Marines.

"I'm absolutely heartbroken. Battalions that fought in World War II did not have as many casualties as that," he said.

Symms said the United States should have allowed Israel to "clean Lebanon up" before it withdrew its forces. He said if the Israeli invasion forces had been allowed to pacify Lebanon hundreds of American lives would have been saved.

"Ever since June of 1982 I have lodged complaints as to why the United States did not let the Israelis clean up the area," Symms said. "But now that we're there, the commander in chief, Ronald Reagan, absolutely has to allow the Marines to defend themselves at all costs or pull them out."

Symms also said he wants to know what kind of orders the Marines were under in Beirut "to let that truck get through the checkpoint."

"It's my gut instinct that there must be too much restraint, the truck that tried to break that checkpoint should have been exploded outside of the gate," the senator said.

"We have to be in or out," Symms said. "We either have to make up our mind to get in there and protect our men at any cost, or get out."

Craig said the U.S. Marine contingent in Beirut should be evacuated to offshore naval ships until a realistic policy on Lebanon is agreed to by Congress and President Reagan.

"Our commitment to the Lebanese government in its effort to establish peace and security can be maintained," Craig, R-Idaho, said. "But only from a position of strength that our offshore facilities provide."

A spokesman for Sen. James McClure said Sunday the Idaho Republican has extended his deepest sorrow to the families that lost their sons in the Beirut bomb blast that killed at least 140 U.S. Marines.

McClure's press secretary, Bill Livingston, said McClure hopes the bombing will not destroy American resolve to bring peace to the region.

McClure did not originally favor President Reagan's decision to deploy troops in such a volatile area, but has Beirut airport, leaving a crater 30 feet deep and 120 feet across.

Three miles away in west Beirut, rescue workers recovered the bodies of 31 French paratroops and 12 more wounded soldiers from the ruins of an eight-story building that housed the French 6th Regiment Infantry paratroops, Lebanese Civil Defense officials said.

Lt. Col. Philip de Longeaux, spokesman for the French force, said as many as 85 French soldiers were in the building when the bomb reduced it to a 10-yard-high mound of rubble.

Gunmen in a Shiite Moslem neighborhood north of the Marine base at Beirut airport opened fire with submachine guns and rocket-propelled grenades on rescue workers trying to pry the wounded from mounds of concrete and twisted steel.

Fires erupted in the rubble, raising the danger of chain explosions of leaking gas and ammunition buried beneath. Marines with pickaxes, sledge hammers and shovels pulled away rubble, trying to reach victims who could be heard moaning for help hours after the blast.

Even after night fell, more than 15 hours after the blasts, pulls of dust and explosive fumes hung over the disaster sites as rescuers working beneath floodlights dug frantically through the rubble in the hope of finding survivors.

Reagan vows U.S. will stay in Lebanon

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, vowing U.S. peace-keeping forces will not be driven from Lebanon, Sunday called the suicide bombing raid on U.S. Marines in Beirut a "despicable act" and sought to improve their safety.

At the conclusion of the second top-level White House meeting of the day, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan directed Marine Commandant Paul Kelley to go to Beirut to "undertake a full review" of protective measures after a "deliberate and heinous" terrorist attack left at least 146 Americans dead and 75 wounded.

Later, the Pentagon said Kelley was to leave this morning for Beirut to "conduct a full survey designed, among other things, to identify locations for the Marines to occupy that will reduce their vulnerability to hostile attack."

"We intend to respond to this criminal act when the perpetrators are identified," Speakes said. "Our actions will be resolute and consistent with stated policies and objectives."

The statement came after Reagan, faced with the worst loss of American military lives since the Vietnam War, met for more than four hours and into the evening with his top national security advisers to explore who was behind

President orders flags at half-staff

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan Sunday ordered American flags flown at half-staff on all public buildings and military facilities across the country through Monday, Oct. 31, as "a mark of respect" to the U.S. and French troops who died violently in Beirut.

In a proclamation, Reagan said he directed that the flag be flown at half-staff for the same length of time at all government buildings, ships, and U.S. embassies and other diplomatic and military facilities abroad.

Reagan cut short a golfing weekend at Augusta, Ga., returning to Washington Sunday morning. He arrived shortly after dawn lightened the rain-laden clouds over the White House and delivered a brief, somber statement to waiting reporters.

"There are no words that can express our sorrow and grief for the loss of those splendid young men," Reagan said, holding his umbrella against the chill rain.

"Likewise, there are no words to properly express our outrage... at the despicable act," he said.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger pointed an accusing finger at Iran and Iranian-backed Islamic extremists for twin raids Sunday against U.S. and French troops, both part of a multinational peace-keeping force.

Speakes, without pinning blame on any factor involved in the turmoil in Lebanon, said the attacks were "designed to weaken our determination" to bolster the Lebanese government.

"Those who sponsor these attacks believe that they can intimidate the government of Lebanon, its people and their friends in the international community," Speakes said in a statement of administration policy.

"They are wrong. We will not yield to international terrorism," he added.

As he did at a news conference last week, Reagan insisted the latest shock to the search for peace will not cause the United States to back away from its commitment to Lebanon.

"I think we should all recognize that these deeds make so evident the bestial nature of those who would assume power... that we must be more determined than ever that they cannot take over that vital and strategic area of the earth," Reagan said.

Hundreds join nuclear freeze rally in Boise

By STEVE GREEN
United Press International

BOISE — Several hundred Idahoans gathered in downtown Boise Sunday to demonstrate their support for a nuclear weapons freeze and to protest the planned deployment of U.S. Pershing missiles in Europe.

A coalition of peace group leaders led the demonstrators from the Union Pacific train station to the Old U.S. Post Office near the Idaho Statehouse.

Four-year-old Sonja Peckham of Buhl said she came to Boise "for peace." But the girl did not know what "peace" meant.

Her mother, Kathy Peckham, said she hopes her daughter will protest nuclear weapons as long as they exist.

"I have a personal commitment to do something," Peckham said. "I heard about the bombing in Beirut when I got up this morning. It's just another indication of how tense the world is."

The protesters formed a human chain that surrounded the building, which occupies a city block.

Organizers then asked for a moment of silence to signify their unity against the national defense positions of Idaho's all-Republican congressional delegation, whose Boise offices are located in the postal building.

Protest organizers estimated the crowd to number 350 to 400.

People from around the state carried signs with slogans like "Nagsaw, Idaho will not bomb Moscow, USSR," and "Sandpoint, Idaho will not bomb Leningrad, USSR."

One couple attached a sign to their leashed dog that said "Pet For Peace."

Anita Skewes-Cox, spokeswoman for the Idaho Peace Coalition, and a member of Ketchum's Groundwater Alliance, said the protest was "extremely successful."

"We don't want the missiles deployed in Europe or a new nuclear power reactor in Idaho," Skewes-Cox said. "There is a growing segment of people in Idaho who are pro-peace."

In a telephone interview from his Washington office, Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, said he has always supported a limitation on the deployment of nuclear weapons.

"It's a goal this nation should strive for," Craig said. "But the question that has always been argued is how best to do it and make it mutual between the United States and the Soviet Union."

"I will never support any position that would disarm this nation and leave its people indefensible while allowing the Soviets to continue their massive arms buildup," he said, adding that a nuclear freeze would have to be verifiable.

The protesters, who dumped mock missiles into trash cans, came from all parts of the state. Many had been in Boise for Russian Awareness Week at Boise State University and a meeting of the Idaho Conservation League.

A group calling itself CARP, a coalition of college students advocating a strong United States defense posture, joined the demonstrators with signs protesting the shooting down of a Korean Airliner by a Soviet fighter earlier this year.

Members of the Groundwater Alliance passed nuclear freeze petitions among the crowd, which they said would be delivered to Idaho's congressional delegation.

Beirut bombing

Reagan needn't go to Congress again

By JIM ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Despite the bombing deaths of more than 100 Marines in Beirut Sunday, nothing in the War Powers Act or subsequent agreements requires President Reagan to go back to Congress to keep U.S. troops in Lebanon.

The law, passed in November 1973, over Richard Nixon's veto, is in the form of a joint resolution short but complex enough to be the source of a running debate between Congress and the White House.

Three Democratic senators, two of them presidential candidates, said Sunday Reagan is violating the War Powers Act.

"President Reagan should report to Congress under the War Powers Act as he should have done in the first place," said Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

Another presidential hopeful, Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., said, "The president is still in violation of the War Powers Act. He should either come to Congress or get out. This deployment of American boys in this type of situation borders on the criminal and is doing us no good at all."

Said Sen. Donald Riegle, D-Mich: "It was a serious error to provide an 18-month authority for U.S. troops to stay in Lebanon. I believe a short deadline -- not more than 60 days -- must now be established to force a political compromise and bring about the orderly and safe withdrawal of U.S. troops."

The purpose of the War Powers Act, according to its preamble, is "to fulfill the intent of the framers of the Constitution and ensure that the collective judgment of both the Congress and the President will apply to the introduction of U.S. Armed Forces into hostilities . . . and to the continued use of such forces."

Congressional power comes into play when U.S. forces are sent into "hostilities" in the absence of a presidential declaration of war.

The Lebanon situation, in an agreement hammered out this summer, already is defined as a hostile situation and Congress has agreed Reagan was justified in sending in the Marines. In return, Reagan accepted an 18-month limit on the commitment of Marines to a peacekeeping force.

The agreement has not been tested in the courts or in the cauldron of political pressure.

Battalion at U.S. post goes on alert

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) —

Grim-faced Marines moved out of Camp Lejeune Sunday afternoon to replace their comrades killed in a suicide attack against the Marine Corps headquarters in Beirut.

The Marines, each carrying an 80-pound pack, an M16 and a duffel bag with personal belongings, began moving out at mid-afternoon, heading for the nearby Cherry Point Marine Corps Air Station and an airlift to Lebanon.

As they left, families and friends of the Marines already in Beirut waited anxiously for word of the living and the dead. As rain fell throughout the day, people watched television scenes from Beirut, hoping to see their men alive.

Camp Lejeune is the Marine Corps' largest base on the East Coast and the home base of Marines stationed in Beirut.

Marines of the 2nd Battalion of the 6th Regiment of the 2nd Marine Division were mobilized Sunday morning, and began preparing their equipment and vehicles. Each jeep was weighed, a tipoff that the force was preparing to go by air.

"We have a mission to do," said Lt. Col. Edwin Kelley, commander of the battalion. "We are going with a level head and do the job we are assigned to do. We are ready."

A Marine battalion usually is made up of 300 men, but Kelley declined to say how many men were assigned to his unit.

But Maj. Gen. Alfred Gray, Camp Lejeune commander, said the force would be roughly equal to the number of Marines killed and wounded in Beirut, plus whatever extra forces are needed to re-establish the Marine presence in Beirut.

Gray said the deaths of the Marines had only increased the commitment of people at the base to the U.S. role in Lebanon.

"We could muster thousands of Marines and sailors who would want to go tonight if they were needed," Gray said.

Gray said morale at the base remained at "almost a fever pitch."

"While there is concern and compassion and while there is anger, there is absolutely . . . cohesion," said Gray, who made a trip to Beirut earlier this year.

Gray described the deaths as the work of "barbarians . . . a Godless type of thing."

Kelley agreed with Gray that the morale of his men was high.

"Whatever happens we'll be ready," he said.

Lance Cpl. Lewis Moulton, one of the Marines headed for Beirut, said the deaths left him "mystified," but not anxious for revenge.

"I get angry, but when I'm told to do one thing, I don't do anything else," he said. "But if anyone gives me different orders, I won't be the last one out there."

The Marines in Beirut had been scheduled to return to Camp Lejeune around Thanksgiving. A replacement group, the 22nd Marine Amphibious Unit, left Camp Lejeune Tuesday but was diverted to Grenada in the event they were needed to protect Americans there.

The Marines dispatched Sunday had returned from Beirut four months ago after a six-month tour of duty. Several Marines said that the previous experience gives them a good idea of what they will face when they return.

Marine guard wipes tear from eye after bombing

Weinberger hints Iran behind blast

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger ruled out withdrawal of U.S. troops from Lebanon Sunday and suggested Iran may be behind the truck bomb attack that devastated a Marine barracks in Beirut.

Weinberger also ruled out dispatching additional U.S. ground forces to Lebanon in reaction to the suicide mission that killed at least 135 Marines.

"We're trying to work out ways in which we can reduce the vulnerability and improve the position, therefore, of the Marines," Weinberger said.

"And at the same time," Weinberger stressed, "there's no suggestion that we should not fulfill our commitment — that we have to do it in our own national interests, that we can't walk away and leave the Soviets and all the terrorists that are walking around there."

The defense chief, grim and appearing drawn from lack of sleep, said "circumstantial evidence" points to Iran's being responsible for the attack and rejected suggestions the Marines' position at Beirut already was not sufficiently secure.

"As for responsibility for the attack," Weinberger said, "There is certain evidence, circumstantial evidence, based on prior activities and some things that have been coming in this morning, that circumstantially look like Iranians are involved."

"But it's very early, very preliminary. It's not a final conclusion," he said.

Appearing briefly on CBS' "Face the Nation" after an urgent meeting with President Reagan and other top officials, Weinberger said, "Many of us have our own ideas about who is responsible . . .

"There is a lot of circumstantial evidence, but certainly there is much to point to Iran. Just as there was much to point to Iran (in the bombing) on our embassy."

Nunn wants Marines out

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., said Sunday the United States should immediately beef up its forces to Beirut to prevent further escalation of Marine ranks, then phase out the American presence.

"This has been a disaster waiting to happen," Nunn said of Sunday's bombing of a Marine barracks in Beirut that left at least 120 Americans dead.

"Immediately, we need to shore up our defenses, and secondly, we must start a phased withdrawal with U.N. forces taking our place," said Nunn, top Democratic member of the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Nunn, interviewed on NBC's "Meet the Press," said he felt U.S. forces should be drastically increased to help the Marines protect themselves and cover a full withdrawal.

Nunn also said he felt America's role in the civil war had been poorly defined.

Restraint still needed

The nation's economy is undergoing a "testing period" in which it would be dangerous to relax the anti-inflation effort. Specifically, that means restraints in wages and prices.
That timely warning came in a recent series of speeches by Paul A. Volcker, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.
He pinpointed high federal budget deficits as the greatest single threat to a balanced and sustainable recovery. But he also is urging businesses and workers to avoid seeking excessive price and wage increases — he said he is afraid that Americans have not yet adjusted to low inflation.
While the consumer price index increased only 2.6 percent in the 12 months ending Sept. 1, some people are acting as if the index were still going up at a 5 percent annual rate, he said. Moderation and restraint in wages and prices can help the nation preserve the impressive gains achieved so far.

An error by Kissinger

After having announced that the (Central America) commission would not confer with people "engaged in guerrilla warfare" (Henry Kissinger) held a meeting with Alfonso Robelo Callejas, leader of the revolutionary Democratic Alliance, the Nicaragua rebel group which takes CIA money and converts it into attacks on the forces of Nicaragua's Sandinista government. Robelo is, in other words, an official U.S.-sponsored guerrilla and so is exempt from Kissinger's self-imposed fiat.
Kissinger should have stuck to his butter. If he wasn't going to meet with renegade gunmen, he shouldn't have made an exception for Robelo. Kissinger's digression could badly compromise the aura of impartiality the commission needs if its ultimate recommendations about long-range policy in Central America are to have any credibility.

Private war between states escalates

I really didn't mean to do it. The whole issue started innocently enough, but events have gone awry. The long and short of it is: I have started a war.
Now I'm going to make it clear right up front that I'm gosh awful sorry about involving the rest of you in this. It started out as a personal battle, but the diatribe has escalated to the point that I am afraid I have placed all of you in jeopardy.
Because of that, I feel duty-bound to inform you about what to expect.
As most readers probably have forgotten by now (Lard knows I had), I wrote a column in July taking some license in commenting on the singular geography of the great state of North Dakota. I happened to be out of politicians to belittle that week.
It is terribly easy to think of all manner of vicious things to say about that frozen wasteland, and besides, I figured folks who lived there would be used to serving as a national laughingstock. Dozens of Montana have been telling NoDak jokes for years. As far as I know, that exchange has not yet become life threatening.
At any rate, my column was duly submitted to our readers. Minor repercussions ensued and the matter was dropped.
But my effort somehow found its way to North

Dick Manning

Dakota. It took four months, but once the population mastered a general understanding of my humble words, the mulch was definitely in the Mixmaster.
Further, some devious soul has attended to having the offending column published in North Dakota in every midsize, village and town that is not yet buried in snow. That provided for maximum exposure. I assume that entire towns gathered around the cracklebarrel and used the village pench to fire-off well-wished NoDak epithets.
As you may expect, none of these epistles were particularly flatterring. But so far, none of this involves you folks. The letters were simply a source of personal entertainment.
But a week or so ago, a certain Erik Sakariassen of Bismarck, N.D. advised me the following: "North Dakota is the home of 1200 Minuteman nuclear warhead, intercontinental ballistic missiles. Contrary to popular belief, we do know how to use them. An apology is in order."

Now you see the problem. They are going to nuke me. And, as you know, a nuclear warhead is a relatively impressive weapon. If they nuke me, they will probably take out a few of my neighbors.
I was left with no choice but to declare war on North Dakota and set about the business of preparing a credible nuclear defense for Idaho.
I realize this is not going to be easy. I haven't the foggiest idea as to how to go about assembling an ICBM. If any of you have any cruise or Pershing missiles gathering dust in your basements, I would appreciate knowing about them as soon as possible.
In the meantime, I have taken some precautions. I wrote a letter to North Dakota telling the state that I have moved to Idaho Falls. If there is an early first strike, we will probably lose all of Southeast Idaho, but when you think about it, can you really call that a loss?
I realize I have put all of you in a bad position, but if we knuckle down and pull through this thing together, we will be a better state because of it. Just think of this war with North Dakota as sort of a practice run. Once we get the hang of it, we can always obliterate Utah.

Joint pool project beneficial

Though I don't reside in Twin Falls, the swimming pool issue now being considered has been catching my eye for some time.
First of all, I moved to Idaho from another state. Our local high school district decided to build identical swimming pools at each of the three high schools and did so back in 1959-1960. The pools are indoors, heated, with infra-red overhead heat along the deck areas. During warm weather, large sliding glass doors at each end open onto outside, walled-in sun-deck areas where bathers can enjoy the sun between showers.
The school immediately initiated a mandatory swimming program for all students of each high school. In addition, on certain days, lunchtime and after school swimming is available. Year around, the pools are open on varied schedules to offer a great variety of programs. One night each week, paraplegics and other handicapped or disabled persons have exclusive use of the pool.
The interesting thing is that our school district was the last district in the state to build pools and it was over twenty years ago. The local junior college, established after World War II, built their pool, complete with spectator balconies, etc. in the early 1950s and I've seen network television broadcasts of swimming and diving competitions held at that college.
It seems a little strange that in 1983, people in a city the size of Twin Falls still haven't learned to pool their resources (city, county and schools) and build such a practical structure, something that will be beneficial to nearly everyone in the community?

Those on outside will pay

Regarding the Twin Falls swimming pool:
Heck, I can recall when we all gave money to have a "Convention Center" in Twin Falls. It was to be a place where the various clubs could have a meeting place, and larger conventions could be held in Twin Falls. A complete set of the blue prints were printed in the Times-News and the usual thermometer was made up to show how much the community was giving to achieve this noble goal.
What happened?? A noble goal was established with our money... we got the college... but still no meeting hall for the groups.
Recreation in Twin Falls is composed of those pressure groups who can convince the city fathers that they are to be the sole or most worthy of the recreation facilities. For example, all but the smallest city parks are full of soft ball diamonds, lights, work crews, et al. If you want to play softball... "Join the club" is your answer. A family reunion ball game is out of the question.
Now, again we are to have a new pool, the special interest groups are patting each other on the backs in anticipation. We now can have competitive swimming, but I again have to have mom drive him to Siligars.
The next call will be for RV pads, dog runs, etc. for all those visiting swim teams and families. This all for the good of the commerce of Twin Falls, and, of course, you moms and dads of the kids on the outside of the fence will pay.

Stiffer requirements needed

On Oct. 18, you quoted Superintendent Ferguson of Dietrich that he "tries to let students know in advance what courses are required for certain careers, but he cannot make anyone sign up for a science course. 'It's still America,' he says."
Since when is it un-American to make high school students take science courses? The schools should be able to dictate how many science courses are needed in order to graduate and be on the way to becoming educated citizens, whether they attend college or not.
Figures show that many students change their minds about a chosen career, even in college. High school years are too early to have such a burden of choice forced on them. Idaho schools provide stiffer scholastic requirements years ago than now, and now is when we need them.

Reviews require lucidity

This letter is in regard to the review of the concert by Lawrence Curtis and Mark Neiwirth at the College of Southern Idaho last Sunday. The review by the Times-News arts critic appeared in the Oct. 17 issue of the paper.
As a performing artist, I appreciate reviews and an arts critic in this area. The purpose of a critic is to offer valid opinions and to report cultural events with a credible mixture of objectivity and subjectivity. I do appreciate the many complimentary things the Times-News arts critic has said about me in print during the past year. But many readers have been confused by several vague statements by the critic.
The arts critic stated that the program was of a "pretentious" and "unnecessary" kind and that the audience was "musically young and vulnerable."
All publicity previous to the concert stressed that it would be a program of twentieth century music. That a large audience attended the concert attests to the fact that there is indeed interest in music of this kind.
A recent movement in Magic Valley, thanks in large part to the Times-News, is furthering cultural awareness. I believe the movement is quite successful. I also believe that people should be made aware of many different realms of music-making.
Lawrence Curtis and I made the statement by performing this concert that a world of music exists which happens to have been written in the twentieth century. I pride myself with having exposed audiences around the state to some unfamiliar "classical" music written between 1922 and 1997. But not all "classical" music was written between these dates.

 election time is not that far away and this legislation will be passed in plenty of time for a special session. It's sponsors to benefit from the political acrobatics of such an action. Very few Congressmen will be able to afford not to vote for the holiday.

The real question is, how much longer are we Idahoans going to continue to send people to Washington who do nothing for us but are interested only in holding office. Very few Congressmen will be able to afford not to vote for the holiday.

It's come to the point where an Idahoan, once he leaves his home state, is forced into the position of apologizing for the caliber of his federal representation. The only individual we have ever sent to Washington who didn't end up categorized as either "harmless" or "jerk" was Frank Church — and he was summarily dumped by the very people who stood to gain the most from his reelection. It's tough enough for an Idaho Congressman to get the time of day in Washington — maybe it's time we send someone back there who can read a clock.

communist leaders had fled. When Soviet tanks massed across the borders, Hungarian Prime Minister Imre Nagy asked the U.N. secretary general for emergency help. Precious hours and days passed while the U.N. debated the issue. No help came and the Soviet tanks rolled into Budapest and all hope of freedom died. The Russians slaughtered thousands of Hungarians. The very real potential for uprisings in Poland and other enslaved nations died along with it.

Abortion a harsh issue

Somehow it just doesn't seem right to go so much trouble to appeal the cases or stay the executions of criminals who have been convicted three times and are on their third appeal, or have admitted to murder, some of which want to die anyway.

It doesn't make sense to force someone to take medical treatment when they themselves, in sound mind, have stated "I don't want it." A person who can speak for themselves can't say, "I want to die." Yet, our babies want to live, they just can't tell us. Our society will fight to the end for a confessed murderer, but will actually allow a law that legalizes the murder of innocent babies, who have done nothing to harm anyone.

Where do you draw the line between life and death? Are people that condone abortion trying to say that a fetus is not life until the "instant" it is born? It sounds to me like their theory is: If they want the child and it is born alive at four months gestation, they would do anything to save it. But if they don't want the child and it is aborted alive at six months gestation, they let it die and say it wasn't life.

Why is it so easy to decide to abort and so hard to decide not to become pregnant in the first place? If we can't or won't make use of modern contraceptives, if we can't or won't control ourselves at the wrong time of the month, we can at least not take the results of our actions out on a human being that had no say about these actions.

Why would a woman carry her baby for six months, two-thirds of the gestation, and vie for abortion instead of letting her child live, in exchange for three more measly months of her time? Because she is selfish. She doesn't want the baby but she doesn't think she can stand knowing she has a child out there somewhere. But I guess she thinks she can live with waking up some day down the road realizing what she has done.

I know I sound harsh, but let's face it, abortion is a very harsh issue. How can we candy coat it?

I plead with you: If you are contemplating abortion, don't do it! Carry your baby. Let your decision be whether it will live with or without you, not whether it will live or die.

Guerry already punished

With the exception of Chad Lopez's family, no one could have felt more grief over his death than I did. I am a friend of his mother's and I also have an 8-year-old boy. Therefore, my empathy and sympathy are greater than most. The accident that occurred was of such great personal interest to me that I spoke of it to many people. I learned immediately that on hearing he had struck Chad, Mr. Guerry was utterly devastated. Since then, I've heard nothing but positive remarks about Mr. Guerry from those who know him. Such as "a caring, well-liked, respected man."

In view of these facts, what more could the law do to punish Mr. Guerry? His own remorse and heartache will surely be a burden for him always. Those of you who are determined that justice be served had better throw down your stones, and quickly move from your glass houses. Before you condemn Mr. Guerry, walk a mile in his tormented shoes.

Hansen should pay visit

After the exchange of letters that I have previously had with Congressman George Hansen, I have waited patiently for him to come back to Idaho. Both during the six week summer recess and now the 10-day Columbus day recess. To the best of my knowledge, he has not appeared in Idaho, but has remained in Washington.

As we all know, these periods are left open for congressmen and senators to hold hearings, travel to necessary places, but primarily to come home and find out what the people are saying and thinking. Anyone who claims to represent the grassroots in Idaho should, at least, be among the people periodically.

There has been no media coverage indicating that Congressman Hansen has been in any committee hearings or done anything of any value during these recesses. Value, that is, to the voter of the state of Idaho. To those hard core Hansen supporters, I am truly curious as to the reason for the support of Congressman Hansen. Obviously, there is no objection to his financial and legal difficulties. Don't you think it is desirable if he at least comes home to see you so that you can tell him what you think and that he can adjust his actions accordingly?

Reagan faces several tough Beirut options

By JIM ANDERSON
 United Press International

Analysis

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's options in response to Sunday's Beirut bombing range from doing nothing to radically increasing the role and number of Marines in Lebanon.

The more likely choices lie in between, but even those have shortcomings. These are the basic choices Reagan and his advisers face:

- Total pullout. This has been rejected by Reagan and Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger. If only because it would signal terrorist organizations that U.S. policy can be influenced by savage acts of violence.
- Partial pullback. This would mean the Marines either would reduce or eliminate their force on the ground at the Beirut airport, perhaps being shifted to ships offshore and by periodic patrols.
- It would reduce the possibility of casualties, but retreating in the face of casualties is not the Leatherneck tradition.
- It would also increase pressure on other potential targets for terrorism, including U.S. diplomats and other elements of the multinational force.
- Expanding Marine positions to make them more defensible. This could be done by taking over some of territory held in the neighboring villages by Muslim militia, and would probably require fighting, perhaps by Lebanese armed forces.

It also would raise concerns in the United States that the administration is prepared to change something like the U.S. involvement in Vietnam in order to salvage military honor in Lebanon.

• Turn some work over to the United Nations, or another form of peace-keeping force.

This would involve going to the U.N. Security Council, where the Soviets could cast a veto. It also would involve trying to persuade the Lebanese factions, which have been able to agree on little including a site for discussing their differences, to accept such a force.

It also would involve persuading some nation to put its troops in harm's way after the Marines have decided Lebanon is too dangerous.

• A much wider U.S. involvement. This would satisfy some outraged emotions, but would require the administration to go back to Congress for support or permission, which Reagan is not likely to get.

• Retaliation. That requires the United States be absolutely certain who was responsible for the attack — and that may never occur.

Introducing Custom Calling in Oakley for the calls that can't wait.

Now, important calls for Oakley customers won't have to be kept waiting. That's because our new phone system has now made Custom Calling available to customers whose numbers begin with prefix 862. Your phone rings differently, and has a new dial tone and busy signal. And you'll have to dial all seven digits to complete local calls. But these small changes now make it possible for your phone to do more than ever before.

With Custom Calling you can get features like Call Waiting. It lets you put one party on hold and talk to another when an incoming call is signaled. With 3-Way Calling, you can talk to two parties at the same time. Call Forwarding lets you automatically forward your telephone calls to a number where you can be reached. And Speed Calling lets you dial a pre-coded number on your phone simply by tapping out one or two digits.

For just a few dollars more each month, you can choose any or all of these conveniences for your phone service.

If you would like more information on how Custom Calling can work for you, call your service representative at these toll-free numbers: 1-333-8448 for residence customers; 1-333-2944 for business customers. For service that won't keep you waiting.

Hansen's 75th anniversary eludes planners

By ANNETTE CARY
 Times-News correspondent

HANSEN — The 75th anniversary of Hansen slipped by unnoticed this summer, as residents were planning a birthday celebration for next year.

Only recently did three residents who are compiling a history of Hansen to commemorate its 75th anniversary realize the town had its dates confused.

But Frances Harris, Donna Egler and Mary Edgar say they still plan to finish a slide show to present at the post-diamond anniversary celebration next summer.

In addition, the town has tentative plans to hold a historical pageant, barbecue and parade, and to plant a time capsule near City Hall sometime in August.

The commemorative slide show, along with a 200-page manuscript of Hansen's history and about 25 oral-history tapes, are being funded by a $2,000 grant from the Idaho Association of the Humanities.

So far, Harris has discovered through old newspaper clippings that the town was started on Aug. 5, 1908, not 1909, as was reported by Charles Wabamott in "Reminiscences of Early Days."

She says that for several years before 1908, Thomas Rauch tried to start a town on land he owned in the Hansen area. But site operator S.T. Hamilton would not let the sites be surveyed and sold until the railroad came and a depot was built in 1908.

At that time, there was no water in the area, say the three women. Yet, people bought lots in anticipation of the construction of Milner Dam.

In the meantime, they raised sugar beets, hay and grain around the town, using dry-land farming techniques. And they hauled water up from the Snake River Canyon, using a system of platforms and pulleys. Others traveled seven miles to Rock Creek for water.

Many of the early settlers were Rauch's friends, whom he persuaded to come from Goldendale, Wash. Later, a colony of settlers from Berryville, Ark., moved to the new town.

The researchers say so many farmers from

Arkansas settled in Hansen in the town's first 10 years that a facetious sign outside the city limits read "Welcome to Little Berryville."

The town was officially named after a popular local rancher, "Uncle John" Hansen, Harris says.

Hansen grew quickly, she says. By 1915, it boasted two hotels, a bank, three grocery stores, two drugstores, a lumber mill and many other businesses to serve the people in the farming community.

College of Southern Idaho history professor James Gentry says Hansen's rapid business growth and later decline is typical of small Western towns.

"Once the highways and large backloop roads came through, people start doing their shopping in the next larger town," says Gentry, who will help compile the slide show. He also is interested in the "turning points" that may prove Hansen different from other Magic Valley communities.

"What happened when the freeway came through? How about the development and decline of large-scale railroad usage?—What was it like to live there, and how did it change?" he asks.

One of the biggest mysteries facing the researchers is why Hansen was built only three miles from Kimberly and only a few more miles from Murtaugh. Usually, developers spaced new towns about 10 miles apart along the railroad, Harris says.

Emergency calls

Single phone number now brings aid for Jerome area deaf

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
 Times-News writer

JEROME — Deaf persons in Jerome and the surrounding area now need to remember only one telephone number to summon any type of emergency assistance.

Anyone with a home TDD or TVY unit — a telecommunication device — can call St. Benedict's Hospital and print out his or her message to hospital personnel. A staff member then will call an ambulance or summon the police, fire department and other emergency services, as needed.

The hospital's new equipment was tested during a training session last week.

Persons with similar sets in their homes are being asked to call the hospital or the office of Dr. James Irwin to test the equipment.

Irwin, who recently opened a family-medicine practice in Jerome, purchased similar equipment several weeks ago. This gave hospital officials an opportunity to evaluate it, and they decided to add the equipment to the hospital.

The training sessions were held at Irwin's office so hospital clerks could have two units to receive and send calls.

Jim Evans, the hospital's public-information officer, says that when a deaf person dials the regular hospital number, 234-4301, the special telephone equipment used by the deaf will make a clicking signal. The hospital switchboard operator then will connect the call to the hospital's printer.

When the connection is made, the deaf person prints his or her message, and the switchboard operator or clerk responds that it has been received or asks additional questions about the situation.

There is a printed tape from the machine that maintains a record of the calls. Hospital employees also will keep a complete log of calls.

Because few emergency services have the equipment to communicate with deaf persons, it is difficult for them to call police, fire or other social-service agencies, Evans says.

Cindy Fernald, Irwin's secretary, says there are similar printing units at the State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding and also at the Gooding County sheriff's office, but few others around the Magic Valley.

She completed training on the equipment prior to the opening of Irwin's office and assisted in training hospital staff members.

To accept a call, an operator places the telephone on the printer, fitting the mouthpiece and earpiece into two small cup supports. As the individual types out the message on the sending unit, it prints out on a dial above the keyboard of the receiving unit. It also appears on the paper tape that comes from the equipment. The keyboard is similar to a typewriter.

During the day, the hospital's unit will be kept at the switchboard. At night, it will be transferred to the emergency room, where clerks will take over the answering service.

'Well-child' clinics set up

GLENN'S FERRY — The Glenns Ferry Area Rural Health Clinic recently signed an agreement with the Central Idaho Health Department to provide "well-child" clinics on the second and fourth Tuesday afternoons of each month.

These clinics are the only such clinics offered in Elmore and Owyhee counties.

The rates for these services will be reduced from the typical cost of $24 to $29 charged by a private physician. The costs through the clinic will range from no charge to $25 depending on income, with most families falling somewhere in the $5 to $10 range.

Services provided during these exams include health and developmental history, physical exam, developmental assessment and whatever lab tests are appropriate for the age of the child.

The first session will be held this Tuesday from 1 to 5 p.m. Appointments are necessary, and fathers are encouraged to participate. Other arrangements may be made if attendance during regularly scheduled clinics is impossible.

Call the clinic at 366-7416 for more information or to schedule an appointment.

Travel panel meets today

TWIN FALLS — The Magicland Travel Committee will meet at 1 p.m. today to review a tourism marketing plan for the area — being assembled by its new advertising consultants — in order to seek a state grant to pay for the program.

The meeting will be held at Anderson's Camp, located off I-84 at the Eden exit. The meeting is open to the public.

Classrooms open to parents

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly School District will hold an open house for parents of students in grades seven through 12 this Tuesday from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at the junior high and senior high.

Report cards for the first semester will be at the schools' offices for parents to pick up.

All teachers will be in their rooms, to get acquainted with parents and answer questions.

"This (the open house) will replace parent-teacher conferences," says high school Principal James McCallan. "In the past, we've kept the kids out of school the whole day and haven't gotten very good responses. This way, the kids won't have to miss any school."

Refreshments will be served in the high-school library.

Officers hurt making arrest

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls police officers suffered minor injuries while arresting a 26-year-old man at the Pocket billiards lounge, 1522 Kimberly Road, Saturday evening.

Police Chief Tim Qualls said Alan Wayne Christenberry, of 1312 1/2 Eighth St. E. in Twin Falls, has been charged with resisting arrest, battery of a police officer and trespassing, as a result of the fracas.

Qualls would not release the names of the injured officers or any other details about the incident.

Buhl home burglary probed

BUHL — The Twin Falls County sheriff's office is investigating the burglary of a Buhl-area residence.

Deputy Sheriff's records, Cal Raymond Greeno, of Route 3, Buhl, reported that several miscellaneous items were stolen from his home between Oct. 14 and Thursday. Two doors were pried open and several rooms were ransacked, according to the report.

Chief Deputy Harold Jensen says the damage and loss probably will amount to more than $500.

YFCA

Series of classes slated to open today

TWIN FALLS — An exercise class for pregnant women, a program in "Slim Living" and water workouts for arthritis sufferers are among a series of classes that will be offered at the Magic Valley YFCA, beginning Monday.

One exercise class is designed for women who are going to have a baby or recently have. Emphasis will be placed on exercises that strengthen the pelvic region, the abdomen and the lower back.

The instructor will be Bonnie Alkema. The cost will be $24 for non-members and $12 for members.

"SLIM" classes will meet at 7 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

"Slim Living" is described as a practical day-to-day approach to weight control, one that allows participants to work at their own pace.

Techniques for reducing stress, a blood-pressure check and measurement of body composition are part of the nine-week program. Participants' progress is charted through daily records and a food-intake chart.

The class is free for YFCA members. For non-members, the cost will be $15. The class will meet on Tuesdays at 9:45 a.m. and Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m.

Barb Crumrine and Brenda Eschenburg will be the instructors.

"Twinges in the Hinges" is a moderate water exercise program for adults with arthritis.

Non-stressful, easy movements that involve stretching and toning exercises are part of the six-week program, according to YFCA officials.

The class will meet on Thursday at 10:30 a.m. The fee for non-members will be $15 and $7.50 for YFCA members.

Barb Crumrine will be the instructor.

Also beginning Monday will be the Y's regular series of fitness, swimming and gymnastics classes.

For more information, call the YFCA at 733-4384.

Women injured in South Hills

Motorists rescued from steep canyon

By BOB FREUND
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two motorists were carried off the slopes of a canyon deep in the South Hills late Saturday night, more than four hours after their pickup truck plummeted from a road.

The driver, Mary Ellen Smith, 31, of Twin Falls, was reported in fair condition Sunday at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. Her passenger, 24-year-old Jacquelyn Davidson of Boise, was listed in serious condition, a hospital official said.

The women were thrown out of the truck as it rolled off Oakley Road and down the side of Telephone Canyon at about 6 p.m. Saturday, according to Sgt. Gary Kaufman of the Twin Falls sheriff's office. They were found 400 feet below the road; their truck slammed into trees about 800 feet down, just above the Third Fork of Rock Creek.

"If the girls hadn't gone out (of the truck) where they did, they probably would have been killed," said Kaufman, who helped direct rescue efforts at the scene.

The site of the crash was about 35 miles south of Hansen and about five miles east of Porepore Springs Campground in Cassia County.

Kaufman said the crash occurred when Smith apparently was blinded by the setting sun. The road along that ridge is extremely narrow, he said.

"They drove off the edge of the road with one wheel and couldn't get back on the road," he said.

The women's husbands, who were following the truck, went for help, but an hour passed before police were notified. When they got to the scene, paramedics and other rescuers slid down the steep slopes to aid the women.

Smith reportedly had a compound fracture of the ankle and other injuries, and Davidson had apparent back injuries, Kaufman said.

But the rescuers couldn't bring the injured women across the hill, he said.

"We took litters down," he said. "We took them down to the Third Fork and up the other side to a trail." From there, it was a three-quarter-mile hike to an ambulance waiting at the road.

"By the time we got them off the mountain, it was in the general area of 10:30," Kaufman said.

Kaufman, Sgt. Jim Wood of the sheriff's reserve force, paramedics and Forest Service rangers Roland Powers and Evelyn Satrape got help at the scene from 11 other campers and wood-cutters in the area, he said.

"If the 11 people that showed up weren't there, we would probably still be there getting them out," Kaufman said.

Drug awareness workshop opens tonight

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, in cooperation with several other agencies, will present a drug-awareness workshop today and Tuesday.

The workshop will be held from 7 to 9 each evening in the hospital's obstetrics conference room.

The workshop is being coordinated by Trisha McGee, the hospital's new outreach counselor for persons with drug dependencies. McGee works for the Walker Center in Gooding.

The other agencies that are aiding with the workshop are Magic Valley Alcoholism Recovery Center-Port of Twin Falls and the Intermountain Hospital of Boise.

The presentations will focus on issues related to drug and alcohol dependence, such as defining a mood-altering chemical and determining when the use of these drugs becomes an addiction. Included will be an examination of how chemical addictions can affect a family and how family members can get help in dealing with the situation.

"We immunize our children and ourselves against many diseases," McGee says. "We hope the community will take this opportunity to immunize themselves and their loved ones against dependency diseases, by injecting some knowledge and new awareness of what is becoming a grave epidemic in our society."

Candidates for seats on board sought

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley YFCA is looking for individuals who would be interested in serving on the Y's board of directors.

Five board positions will be open when elections are held in December, says Y board President Jim Tarter.

Anyone interested should send a resume by Oct. 28 to Tarter, Steve Hartgen at The Times-News or the YFCA at 1751 Elizabeth Blvd. A paragraph relating why the person is interested in serving on the board, plus his or her level of participation in the organization should be included.

Board members serve for three years.

A nominating committee will present its recommendations for candidates to the board in November. The entire YFCA membership will vote on the candidates in December.

There are 18 members of the board, which is the policy-making body for the non-profit organization.

Hospital seeks chief and surgeon

By LUCY OSBORNE
Times-News correspondent.

GOODING — Gooding, County Memorial Hospital is searching for a new administrator and a new surgeon.

The hospital board, in collaboration with St. Benedict's Health Systems of Ogden, Utah, is seeking a replacement for Ed Myers, who recently resigned as administrator to accept an out-of-state position.

With the addition of the Walker Center to a wing of the Gooding hospital, St. Benedict's Health Systems, which owns the alcohol and drug treatment center, will share responsibility in coordinating administration of the hospital.

The board also voted to ask Dr. James Molchan to resign as chief of staff at Gooding Memorial.

Molchan, the hospital's surgeon, apparently has shifted much of his work to other hospitals. St. Luke's Regional Medical Center in Boise has received a request from Molchan for staff privileges there, according to board members.

With the decrease in Molchan's surgery at Gooding, the board decided there is a need for a new surgeon. Recruiting firms will be contacted to help in the search, it was decided.

In other business at last week's meeting, the board discussed the high cost of weekend emergency care.

Board members noted that the hospital is not recovering enough from patient fees to cover the $60,000 to $80,000 it costs to contract for weekend staffing of the emergency room.

The board is considering making a proposal to the medical staff. Doctors on duty will be asked to cover a portion of weekends, with the balance being contracted.

Also, the board approved the addition of Dr. David Johnson of Shoshone to an "active" position on the medical staff.

At Saturday concert

Sensitivity was lacking in 'duets'

By WILLETTA WARBERG
Times-News arts critic

TWIN FALLS — Two concert musicians presented an energetic and demanding, but often insensitively performed, collection of "duets" by J.S. Bach, Dimitri Shostakovich and Johannes Brahms at O'Leary Junior High School on Saturday night.

Violist Christopher McKellar and pianist Marjorie Becker Janove played the complex scores OK.

But it was unclear whether McKellar and Janove thoroughly understood the inspired compositions that they tried to interpret.

Visually, the young artists seemed serious about their program; sonorously, they seemed neutered.

Bach's "Gamba Sonata," No. 3 in G minor is a rich, vital work from an intense musical figure of the late 17th and early 18th centuries. Janove managed to make the piano sound somewhat like a combination of sounds from the instruments of Bach's time — the clavicord, harpsichord and organ. With the piano lid down, greater "duet" balance could have been enjoyed. For that matter, the piano lid should have been down throughout the entire program.

The air-duct blasts in the auditorium made listening to McKellar's upper registers quite difficult.

There seems to be a serious disease among young performers these days. For some reason, they feel it necessary to sound good by playing either too fast or too slow, and to generally ignore musical punctuations and nuances.

McKellar suffers from this ailment. But maybe it is because of his professional affiliation with orchestras and the need to play with the pack that accounts for his "muffled."

Shostakovich's "Sonata for Viola and Piano" was the composer's last composition — he wrote it during dreafull chaos in his country, Russia. This work is filled with fervent emotions. No such musical temperament was displayed in this performance Saturday. Why bother to perform if it cannot be interpreted as Shostakovich intended. It certainly was not meant to be boring.

Neither the Brahms "Von Ewigler Lieder" nor "Sonata for Viola and Piano" in F minor showed the turbulent passion the rapturous composer Brahms enjoyed. Where was the interchange of melodic line between viola and piano?

This sonata performance, although technically all right, was painful to listen to because it lacked the ecstatic expression Brahms notated for the work.

Hopefully, McKellar and Janove can realize what eloquent music-writers such as Bach, Shostakovich and Brahms meant in their scores. And with a good many more solo concerts over the next few years, they will begin to relax in front of big audiences and let their music tell the truth.

Civil court blotter

The following civil cases were filed last week in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls:

• Idaho Livestock Leasing Services Inc. vs. Mr. and Mrs. Henry W. Herrington of Gooding County. The plaintiff alleges the defendants leased several head of cattle from it and have failed to pay the rental payments. The complaint is asking for $1,180.85 in past-due rent, plus late charges, and other damages of $5,000 for failure to properly breed certain cows, the expenses incurred during the repossession of the herd, and $1,500 in attorney fees and court costs.

• Ronald H. Victor, the father of Brett Victor, a minor, vs. Keith Raymond Lookingbill and Kelly Lookingbill. The plaintiff claims that his son was injured when a pickup, owned by Kelly Lookingbill and negligently operated by Keith Lookingbill, went off the road. The suit is requesting $200,000 general damages, plus any additional medical costs, and reasonable attorney fees.

• Abraham and Vivian Dume vs. Glen Dwight Perrell. The plaintiffs allege that through negligent and careless driving, the defendant's vehicle hit Mrs. Bame's automobile from behind when she was turning into a parking lot. They are seeking $4,750 for damages to their vehicle, $1,311.50 for medical expenses, $50,000 general damages and reasonable attorney fees.

• Tom Tostenson of Chiloat, Calif., and Mel Schulson of Welches, Ore., who operate the Oregon Fire Adjustors, vs. Idaho Restaurant Service Inc. of Twin Falls. The complaint states that the defendant's business, which was insured by National Farmers Union Property and Casualty, was destroyed by fire in March 1981. When the defendant was unable to settle the claim with the insurance company, it retained the plaintiff's assistance to obtain a settlement. In 1982, the defendant filed a suit against the insurance company and did reach an agreement prior to the trial. Tostenson and Schulson claim they have not been paid for their services and they are asking for a court judgment for damages.

• Safeco Insurance Co. of America vs. Interstate Mack Inc. The plaintiff alleges it provided a bond to the defendant for the cost of a sales tax in California. The complaint claims that the plaintiff paid these taxes after failure of the defendant to do so. The suit seeks reimbursement of $10,230.34, plus interest, and attorney fees of $3,400.

• Anderson, Kaufman, Ringert and Clark vs. Cook-Electric Inc. The plaintiffs claim the defendant has defaulted on a promissory note and are asking for $15,000, plus interest, and $3,500 in attorney fees.

• Sam W. Lancaster vs. Norman Mason. Lancaster claims that he performed work and services, and purchased supplies for Mason during the period of 1979 through 1983, and has never been paid. He is requesting payment of $10,162, plus interest, and attorney fees of $3,500.

• Professional Investors' Life Insurance Co. vs. Aqua Life Corp., Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ellis, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth R. Ashley, the Southern Idaho Production Credit Corp. and Elmer E. Peterson. The life insurance of Richmond, Va. The plaintiff is requesting foreclosure on real property that the defendants purchased. The suit seeks payment of $127,253.61, plus interest, for the purchase agreement allowed, permission to hold a sheriff's sale, and the proceeds to be applied to the default, and $7,500 in attorney fees.

The following judgment was made last week in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls:

• The court handed down a default judgment in favor of the plaintiff in the civil case of Robert L. Loren and Verlyn Simpson, doing business as Simpson Brothers. The judgment orders the defendant to pay the plaintiff $7,538.12, plus interest, still owed on an account for goods and services, $2,512.70 in attorney fees and the costs of the suit.

The following civil cases were filed last week in Fifth District Magistrate Court:

• Kenneth W. Roy and Ray Sabala, doing business as Sabala and Roy Realty, vs. Gary R. King and Valez B. and W. Peterson. The plaintiffs state that King delivered to them $200 in earnest money for a property purchase agreement involving the Petersons. They also state that the sale has not been made, the agreement's time limit has lapsed and the money remains in the realty's trust account. They also allege that both King and the Petersons now are demanding that the money be returned to them. The plaintiffs are asking for a court order for the money to be transferred to the clerk of the court, or another custodian, releasing them of any responsibility or liability. The suit also asks the court to require the defendants to settle the dispute and to restrain the defendants from bringing a court action against the realty company.

• Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith Inc. vs. Gary L. and Marlene M. Luelck. The plaintiffs claim that through an error, $1,417 was deposited to the defendants' individual retirement account, and although the defendants knew or should have known that this money did not belong to them, they withdrew it and diverted it to their own use. The suit seeks the repayment of the $1,417, plus interest.

• Lloyd D. Seelye vs. Michael

Paton. Seelye claims he purchased a mobile home and land from the defendant, who was still involved in an installment contract for its purchase from Clarence and Orr Belle Chick. He also states that when he had made the total payment, the defendant failed to complete his contract with the Chicks. He is asking for the repayment of $9,540, plus interest, and $4,000 in attorney fees.

• Dr. Richard V. Smith vs. Elmer Padilla. The plaintiff is seeking $248.55, plus interest, for services and $300 in attorney fees.

Hansen

The researchers also want to know what happened to the many business buildings that used to front Main Street. Already they know that many burned down in sporadic fires through the years.

One original building was moved across town and now houses the Town Tavern, and part of the railroad depot was moved to Addison Avenue in Twin Falls.

The original bank building and a farm implement-dealership building remain off Main Street. But today they house the post office and City Hall.

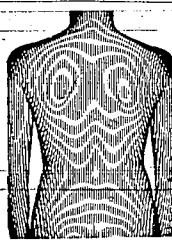

The researchers also plan to look into Hansen's more recent history. Century is particularly interested in the effect of a new mobile-home court and housing development that tripled Hansen's population between 1972 and 1976.

Egeler says it was partly these new residents who prompted the researchers to start the project. "It's something that needed to be done for awhile. New people were coming in (to the Hansen library where Egeler works) and asking about Hansen. They wanted to know how it started, what happened where they live," she says.

Harris, Egeler and Edgar say anyone with information about Hansen's early years or pictures that can be copied for the slide show should call the library. And individuals who want to help plan the August anniversary celebration can call Rick Hartwell at 423-9912.

YOUNG SAL

Q. I've read that astronaut Sally Ride is infinitely younger than any other American woman born exactly when she was. How come?
 A. Speed relates to time, according to the Theory of Relativity. Astronauts at high velocity age more slowly than humans at worldly speed. Conversely, I gather, if the earth stood still, people would grow old in a hurry.

Q. Idaho has the most millionaires per capita, right? How have most of Idaho's millionaires made their money?
 A. Sale of farmland.

Q. How long have we had roadside billboards?
 A. Ever since the Civil War.

DAILY HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: You are instinctively aware of the right and the best things for you to do and if in any way uncertain, be still a moment and listen to your powerful perceptions. Be prepared for the unexpected.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Much activity about new interests occurs today that can bring you greater income. So handle everything carefully.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Concentrate on promises made to others and then do not get confused over some worry. Keep priorities straight.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Go after your aims in a definite way and gain them but later don't expect too much and be glad with the progress you have made.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Early in the morning you can work out a deal secretly with a friend, but later you may have to compromise more.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Be with allies in the morning for whatever wheeling and dealing has to be done, but later be sure to use tact with them.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Begin the week properly and be more enthused about your career work on the outside. Higher-ups are watching.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Delve into those new interests that occurred to you over the weekend, since you are thinking most logically right now.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Do whatever your mate expects you to do first, and then be concerned with outside duties and get good results.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You can see clearly what is best to do in the morning, but later don't deviate or you lose out where it counts the most.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have excellent ideas on how to handle work at hand and you can put them in motion easily now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Plan for the moments that will give you relief from tensions, then get busy at your routines.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Doing what will please those at home from time to time is wise, but tonight avoid a quarrel there.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one of those delightful young persons who early in life will be a fine student and also popular and happy, and this will bring opportunities to get ahead faster in life than most. If taught to accept chances accorded him or her.

Strikes by Chinese possible

PEKING (UPI) — Chinese trade unions passed a new constitution Sunday and hinted at using small-scale strikes to protect worker interests from state abuses.

In what trade unionists called a "victory against leftist errors," the new 36-article constitution de-emphasized the special goals of the state and working class and underscored labor's shared interests.

About 150 million people are classified as factory and enterprise workers in China.

The new charter, passed by the 10th National Trade Union Congress, replaced the 1978 workers' constitution.

Marcos doesn't want a No. 2

MANILA, Philippines (UPI) — President Ferdinand Marcos, hinting at a possible power struggle, said Sunday that he will "squelch" moves to restore the position of vice president.

Members of Marcos' own ruling New Society Movement known as KBL and opposition leaders have recently urged re-establishment of the No. 2 slot in the 1984 presidential election.

"I squelch this move immediately since it has not been authorized by any party caucus of the KBL or any of the party leadership," Marcos said in a news conference.

"We are too deeply concerned with too many problems to be changing the concept of government right now," said Marcos, who has been president of the Philippines for 10 years since 1965.

Prime Minister Cesar Virata said that the Philippines' international creditors were also concerned about the succession question and asked him to clarify the issue during meetings with American bankers last week in New York.

Abducted teacher released

DETROIT (UPI) — Peoples Revolutionary Army soldiers on the island of Grenada have released a former Detroit teacher who was abducted from her home last week, her husband said Sunday.

George D. Colman, currently in Detroit working on a project at Wayne State University, told the Detroit Free Press his wife, Michele Gibbs-Russell, called him from Grenada late Saturday after she was released by Peoples Revolutionary Army soldiers.

Colman said he was "worried to death" before his wife called Saturday to say she had been released because she convinced her captors she was not involved in the island's politics.

Guatemalan editor set free

GUATEMALA CITY (UPI) — A prominent editor kidnapped two weeks ago by leftist guerrillas was set free Sunday after his newspaper paid $500,000 in ransom and published a manifesto for his release.

Pedro Julio Garcia, general manager of the independent newspaper Prensa Libre, said Saturday night during an emotional reunion with family, friends and colleagues at the newspaper's office that he "was released because all the demands were met."

"I was freed because I want to say that it proves, once again, that the most important thing in the world is to have friends," he said.

Garcia was kidnapped Oct. 9 by 16 members of the Guatemalan Workers Party, or PGT, the outlawed Guatemalan Communist Party.

Beirut attack 'pains' pope

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope John Paul II, shocked by the massacre of American and French soldiers in Beirut Sunday, said this "new act of war" filled his soul with "a feeling of great pain, of horror and of exasperation."

The pope spoke before 80,000 pilgrims and tourists thronging St. Peter's square for his regular Sunday noon Angelus prayer appearance. Many of those in his audience probably had not yet heard of the Beirut bombings, although they were broadcast in early radio newscasts.

The pope then invited the thousands of pilgrims in the square to join him in prayer "for the young who have died, for the other victims and for the comfort of their families."

Crisis keeps grip on Brazil

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (UPI) — Saddled with the world's biggest foreign debt, Brazil's desperate economic crisis has thrown a dark shadow over plans to return to democracy after two decades of military rule.

"The economic crisis is thwarting progress in bringing back democracy," wrote political analyst Janio de Freitas Sunday in the Folha de Sao Paulo, just four days after Congress threw out a wage-cut bill and President Gen. Joao Figueiredo imposed a 60-day state of emergency in Brasilia, the capital.

"It is a veiled state of siege," said commentator Carlos Chagas.

Nicaragua lambasts Reagan

MANAGUA (UPI) — Nicaragua accused President Reagan of institutionalizing international terrorism by supporting rebel attacks and is considering evacuating all 23,000 residents from a key port city as a safety measure, the government newspaper said Sunday.

Junta Coordinator Daniel Ortega said a rebel attack Oct. 10 on Corinto, a Pacific port 36 miles northwest of Managua, endangered the lives of the city's residents, reported Barricada, the official newspaper of the Sandinista Front.

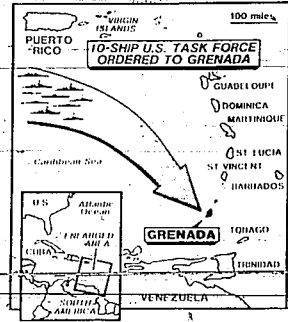

Speaking to peasants Saturday in Matagalpa, 90 miles west of Managua, Ortega said, "We are thinking in terms of moving the entire population of Corinto because it is exposed to being blown up, to disappear because of these attacks."

Peruvian police hunt leftists

LIMA, Peru (UPI) — Hundreds of police Sunday conducted house-to-house searches for leftist guerrillas who killed at least five people and injured a dozen in synchronized bomb and machine gun attacks in Lima Saturday.

Dozens of suspects were reported arrested during the early morning sweeps, which were concentrated in the slums surrounding the Peruvian capital.

Grenada intervention mulled

PORT-OF-SPAIN, Trinidad (UPI) — Caribbean leaders Sunday discussed the possibility of U.S.-backed military intervention in Grenada, where the Cuban-trained army killed Marxist Prime Minister Maurice Bishop in a bloody coup that left 17 dead and 69 injured.

In Grenada, military council member Maj. Basil Gahagan told UPI by telephone that the 16-man council was bracing for possible invasion by a 10-ship U.S. naval task force carrying 1,900 Marines.

Portuguese sources said the task force, diverted from its course to Lebanon, would "swing by" the Caribbean island. The sources gave no information on when the ships would arrive.

Seventeen people died in Wednesday's shooting spree at army headquarters in Fort Rupert, Radio Free Grenada announced.

Heads of government of the 13-nation Caribbean Community, all former British colonies, argued heatedly through the night in Trinidad about the possibility of staging a military intervention of Grenada with U.S. aid.

Grenada is about 90 miles north of Trinidad, off the northern coast of South America. Sources close to the discussion told UPI that the pro-western nations of Trinidad, Barbados and Jamaica were pushing for intervention while Belize and socialist-led Guyana were opposed.

"There was a lot of shouting" during the six-hour session, which broke off at 3 a.m. Sunday and resumed in mid-morning, sources said. Caribbean decisions must be approved unanimously to take effect.

Two U.S. diplomats met with 800 people connected to St. George's University school of medicine to "count heads" on how many wanted to leave Grenada, business manager Gary Solly said.

Canadian High Commissioner Noble Power, based in Barbados 150 miles to the east, said he planned to charter an airplane to take out approximately 20 Canadians when Grenada's airport reopens today at the end of a four-day curfew imposed by the revolutionary Military Council.

Power said his staff had called each of the approximately 85 Canadians in Grenada at least twice, but said many of them were either off the island or did not want to leave.

NATO may thin out nuclear arsenal

By BARRY JAMES
United Press International

BONN, West Germany — NATO's Nuclear Planning Group meets in Ottawa, Canada, this week to discuss the possible withdrawal of some older, short-range nuclear weapons from Western Europe.

Defense ministers attending the meeting Thursday and Friday will be considering a secret report drawn up by a group of planners collectively known as NATO's High Level Group.

The group, which is chaired by U.S. Assistant Secretary of Defense William P. Perry, has been working behind the scenes to rationalize and modernize NATO's stockpile of tactical nuclear weapons, including bombs, artillery shells, missiles and landmines.

NATO has an estimated 4,000 tactical nuclear warheads in Europe. Some reports say the Ottawa meeting may decide to reduce this total by up to one third, and certainly by several hundred.

NATO officials say many of the warheads are obsolete — in other words, big and dirty, — dangerously exposed to surprise attack and so deployed that they could only be used on friendly territory.

Strategic experts say systems such as atomic mines and nuclear-tipped surface-to-air missiles have become virtually unusable and could be withdrawn without weakening NATO's defenses.

The problem is how to get maximum propaganda effect out of such withdrawals at a time when the alliance is under heavy criticism by the anti-nuclear movement over the planned deployment of longer-range cruise and Pershing-2 missiles at the end of this year.

When NATO decided in December, 1979, to deploy the missiles, the United States unilaterally withdrew 1,000 tactical nuclear warheads — a move that went virtually unnoticed by European public opinion at the time.

The deployment decision additionally calls for the removal of one older warhead for every one of the 572 cruise and Pershing scheduled to be placed in the absence of an agreement at the U.S.-Soviet talks in Geneva — on intermediate-range nuclear weapons.

The NATO debate about reducing the stockpile of tactical atomic warheads coincides with Soviet threats to base new short- and medium-range missiles in the satellite countries of Eastern Europe in retaliation for the cruise and Pershing deployments.

NATO's Supreme Commander, Gen. Bernard Rogers, has been urging member governments to make more money available for the improvement of conventional defenses in order to delay the moment that nuclear weapons might have to be used in a conflict.

Officials say that some of NATO's existing atomic warheads are so vulnerable to being overrun or attacked that they might have to be used early in a conflict or be lost.

Contadora down to its last chance

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — Disappointing results from the latest Contadora peace initiative for Central America left even members of the group predicting the next meeting may be its last chance to obtain negotiated peace in the region.

The organization — made up of Venezuela, Colombia, Mexico and Panama — has been seeking a negotiated settlement in strife-torn Central America since its formation last January.

The most recent round of talks, which ended Saturday, were billed by Panamanian Foreign Ministry spokesman as "the most serious attempt yet" at achieving the group's basic objectives of disarmament and the withdrawal of military advisers from the region.

In this round of talks, the foreign ministers of the Contadora group, named after the resort island off the Panamanian coast where they met for the first time, hoped to give some strength to their 21-point "Document of Objectives."

The outstanding objectives included in the document finished at the group's Sept. 8 meeting and reportedly approved by Central American governments, are a call for all military advisers to leave the region, an immediate ceasefire and eventual disarmament.

"The next meeting could be the last," said a member of the Panamanian foreign ministry, when instead of a concrete, applicable plan to put before Central American foreign ministers in the next round of meetings set for mid-November, the group emerged with another weak document saying only that the process had "advanced."

One Western diplomat in the region described the group's efforts as "all talk and no do."

Acknowledging the deteriorating regional situation, the communique "exhorted the governments of the region to fulfill their promises of the Document of Objectives.

"The intensity and number of armed incidents, the acts of terrorism and sabotage, the destabilizing actions, the accusations and mutual recriminations and the flow of arms have all increased," the pessimistic document said.

"The violations of human rights, and foreign intervention has proliferated dangerously, especially in the military area," the document said.

The immediate goal — that leftist Salvadoran rebels stop fighting the U.S.-backed government and guerrillas halt their attacks on the Marxist Sandinista regime in Nicaragua — is still a long way off.

Nor has there been any visible progress in achieving the withdrawal of some 200 U.S. military advisers from El Salvador and Honduras and of Cuban and Soviet advisers from Nicaragua.

When the group was first formed, the essential problem was the festering civil war in El Salvador.

Pentagon worries over expired law

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon officials are seriously concerned that the expiration of a little-known law could stall strategic nuclear weapons production and severely hamper military movements in times of crisis.

The Defense Production Act of 1950, which routinely has been renewed by Congress every year or two for the past 33 years, expired Sept. 30 because of a holdup in congressional committees that have been debating amendments to it.

The act affects the production of everything from atomic weapons to the planes and submarines needed to carry them, deals with foreign military sales to allies which depend on the good-will of the United States to fulfill its pledges and authorizes the deployment of military forces in peace and war.

The immediate impact of the law's expiration has been the inability of the Pentagon since Oct. 1 to insert a routine clause in each of its defense contracts that gives defense production priority over consumer goods.

While the priority rating in the marketplace in peacetime is not designed to take "the candy away from the consumer," as the official said, it ensures that contractors obligate themselves to meet production schedules.

More significantly, the "underlying skeleton" for the priority rates is that it serves to guarantee the nation's defense industry will be able to boost production of weapons and other material in the event of war, the official said.

There are two priorities for defense production under the law: DX for "highest national urgency priority rated weapons programs" and DO, for "other military goods and equipment. The DX rating affects about 25 percent of all defense purchases.

Among the DX-rated items are the MX missile, B-1 bomber, Trident missile submarine and the M-1 tank. "We no longer have priorities," the official said.

House takes up arms bill

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan, adroit at winning showdowns with Congress, faces a major challenge to his military weapons buildup this week when the House acts on MX missile production, nerve gas and the B1 bomber.

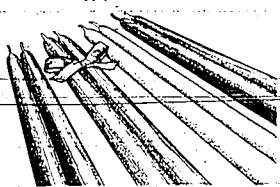

Reagan will have to use all his noted powers of persuasion to convince the House to include the controversial weapons systems in the $246.2 billion military money bill approved by the Appropriations Committee last week.

Otherwise, Reagan will have to rely on the Republican-controlled Senate to rescue major items in the fiscal 1984 Pentagon budget.

With only four work weeks left before the Nov. 18 adjournment target, congressional leaders are starting to cram the schedule and Senate GOP leader Howard Baker has not ruled out Saturday sessions.

Nevada-Reno is taking all of the fun out of Big Sky Conference football race

By United Press International

Nevada-Reno is in the driver's seat in the 1983 Big Sky Conference football title race, but Wolf Pack coach Chris Ault says his team still has a long way to go and we're not out of the woods yet.

The Wolf Pack demolished Weber State 41-3 Saturday, leaving Nevada-Reno as the only team unbeaten this fall in Big Sky play. Idaho State is the only team with one loss in conference play, and Reno has already beaten the Bengals.

And, following Nevada-Reno's impressive win over the Wildcats, Ault says, "The critical thing is that I don't think we've peaked yet and we're still getting better."

In other Big Sky games Saturday, Boise State shutout Montana State 42-0, while Idaho defeated Montana State 46-7 at Cal Poly-San Luis Obispo, and Northern Arizona fell 28-14 at Pacific.

Anthony Conley rushed for 109 yards and three Reno touchdowns in leading the NCAA Division I-AA 16th-ranked Wolf Pack over No. 17 Weber State.

and freshman quarterback Eric Beavers came off the bench to pass for two more TDs.

Beavers proved to be a more-than-adequate replacement for injured starter Joe Pizzo. He ran for 32 yards and completed eight passes for another 74 yards with no interceptions.

"When we lost Pizzo in the second quarter, you could feel the confidence swing toward Weber State," Ault said. "But Eric did as good a job coming off the bench as I've ever seen any player do."

And Weber State Coach Mike Price said, "When Beavers came in I thought, hey, we're in good shape now. Then he just played great. He's a winner. It was embarrassing. I feel sorry for our players."

Weber State scored first on freshman Craig Winberg's 35-yard field goal. But after Conley ran 2 yards for Reno's first touchdown, it was all over for the Wildcats.

Idaho appeared headed for an easy win over Montana, leading 21-3 after one period. But the Grizzlies then turned the game into a battle, coming back to trail just 23-21 going into the final period.

And Montana was moving for another score when Idaho cornerback Darryl Henry intercepted a pass that started the Vandals on a 17-point scoring spree in the final quarter.

Henry's interception was a very big play for us. It was the turning point in the game," said Idaho coach Dennis Erickson. "We finally got a break that led to some points for us."

Ken Hobart led Idaho to the win, passing for 283 yards and four touchdowns. And running backs Mike Shill and Marlon Barrow also each scored a TD for the Vandals on the ground.

Kelly Richardson led Montana, passing for 194 yards and three touchdowns.

The Boise State defense beat, giving up 254 yards in total offense, but it didn't break in preventing Montana

State from scoring. And BSU freshman quarterback Hazzen Chaoates ran for two touchdowns and passed for a third score in leading the Broncos offense.

Northern Arizona fell behind 21-0 at Pacific in losing its fourth game of the season. Mike Mendoza passed for 242 yards and two NAU touchdowns, but he also threw four interceptions.

Idaho - State quarterback Paul Peterson passed for a trio of fourth quarter touchdowns, but the Division I-AA 9th-ranked Bengals bid to take the lead failed when Cal Poly recovered an on-side kick with just 35 seconds left and ran out the clock.

Reno is now 4-0 in the Big Sky, while Idaho State is 3-1, and Montana and Weber State 2-2. Idaho is 2-2, followed by Boise State 1-2, Northern Arizona 1-3 and Montana State 0-5.

Overall, Idaho, Idaho State and Weber State are all 5. Montana is 3-3, Nevada-Reno 4-1, Boise State and Northern Arizona both 3-4, and Montana State 0-8.

Raiders hand Dallas its first setback

By MIKE RABUN
United Press International

IRVING, Texas — Chris Bahrs' fourth field goal of the game, a 26-yarder with 20 seconds remaining, lifted the Los Angeles Raiders to a wild 40-38 victory over Dallas Sunday night that handed the Cowboys their first loss of the season.

Los Angeles' quarterback Marc Wilson, making his first appearance this season as a starter, threw for three first-half touchdowns and completed all five of his passes during the march that led to Bahrs' winning field goal.

The Cowboys, 7-1, rallied from a 10-point deficit at the end of the third quarter to take a 38-34 advantage with 13:05 left as linebacker Mike Hegman returned Wilson's fumble seven yards for a touchdown.

But Bahrs ended a 75-yard march with a field goal of 26 yards with 9:40 to go and then kicked the game winner after an interception by Los Angeles cornerback Red Watts deep in Raiders' territory.

The win elevated the Raiders to 6-2 record and kept them a game in front of Denver in the AFC West. Dallas' lead in the NFC East was reduced to one game over Washington.

The win elevated the Raiders to 6-2 record and kept them a game in front of Denver in the AFC West. Dallas' lead in the NFC East was reduced to one game over Washington.

Wilson received the first-round draft choice from Brigham Young, was named on Wednesday by coach Tom Flores to move in front of Jim Plunkett. Wilson responded by completing 25-of-49 passes for 318 yards and led Los Angeles out of a 38-point second quarter with a 31-24 halftime advantage.

Wilson lobbed a 2-yard scoring pass to Derrick Jensen late in the second quarter after scrambling halfway down the field. He then threw a 17-yard touchdown to Frank Hawkins with 2:10 left in the first half and then found tight end Todd Christensen with a 1-yard score on the final play of the half.

Bahr contributed a 37-yard field goal in the opening period and added a 24-yarder in the third quarter while Hawkins scored on a 23-yard run in the second period that tied the score 17-17.

Dallas countered with a successful drive play to take the lead in the first quarter — a 15-yard pass from running back Ron Springs to quarterback

Danny White. The Cowboys added second-quarter scores on a 2-yard run from quarterback Steve Watson and by Rafael Septien on a 15-yard throw from White to Butch Johnson.

Dallas scored 14 quick points early in the fourth quarter on a 17-yard throw from White to Doug Donley and Hogen's fumble return.

The Raiders piled up 519 yards to Dallas' 319 while White hit on 19-of-39 passes for 240 yards.

Los Angeles turned the ball over six times, the last of those being a fumble by rookie Deon Williams at the Dallas 35 that seemed to doom the Raiders' hope for a win. But four plays later, White was intercepted by Watts to set up the winning field goal drive.

During that march, Wilson hit Williams with two 3-yard passes, connected two more to Christensen and found Marcus Allen with another completion.

The back-and-forth first half was symbolized by the odd turn of events that allowed the Raiders to take a 31-24 halftime lead.

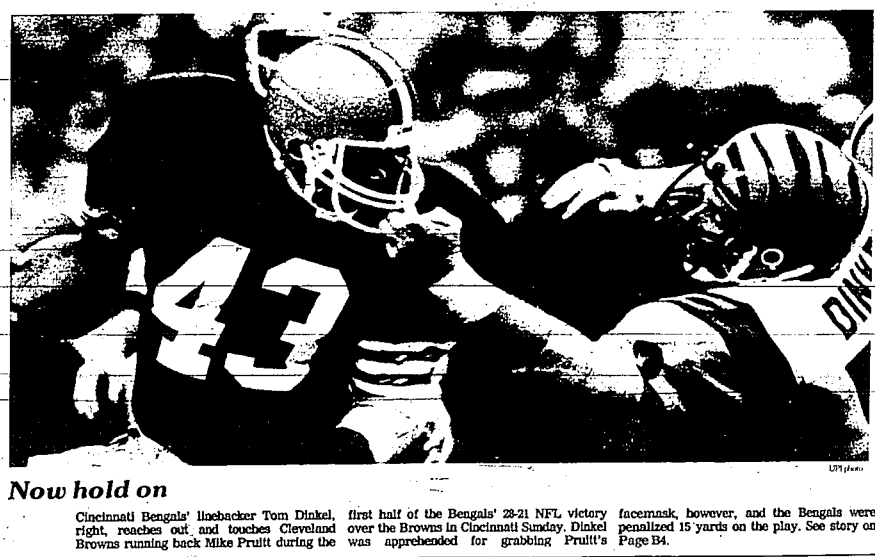

Of the eight possessions in the second quarter, points were recorded on six of them.

The game was deadlocked at 24-24 when a Dallas go-ahead bid was thwarted with 52 seconds remaining in the half by an odds McKinney interception by the Raiders' 22.

Making use of all three of their time outs, the Raiders moved to the Dallas 30, and with nine seconds left the Raiders lined up what appeared to be a 47-yard field goal try by Bahr.

But Wilson, holding for the kick, rolled out and tried to throw deep. Wilson, under a heavy rush, threw well short of his target, but Dallas' linebacker Dickerson interfered in the end zone to give the Raiders the ball at the 1-yard line.

With just one second left on the clock, the Raiders chose to go for the touchdown and made good on the gamble, with Wilson hitting Christensen just inside the goal line.

Patriots blank Bills

By DICK USIAK
United Press International

ORCHARD PARK, N.Y. — Ron Meyer says he knew all along that he had a solid football team.

Meyer, head coach of the New England Patriots, had his team prove his point Sunday as they shut out the division-leading Buffalo Bills 31-0 to throw the tight AFC Eastern Division race into more turmoil.

"We fell all along that we were a pretty solid team," said Meyer, whose club evened its record at 4-4, "and we're capable of making a run at the playoffs."

The Patriots looked like a playoff contender in the game, which was highlighted by Steve Grogan's two 75-yard passes to tight end Derrick Ramsey and a 50-yard scoring run by Tony Collins.

"We've just got to keep our heads together," said Collins of the close race. "We're right in it right now." The loss dropped Buffalo to 5-3 on the season, tying the Bills with the Miami Dolphins for the lead in the division and snapping a two-game winning streak, after victories at Miami and Baltimore.

"We just didn't play well today," said Bills' rookie coach Kay Stephenson. "We've got to come back."

The Patriots took a 7-0 lead at 13:07 of the second quarter when Grogan threw a 24-yard pass to Ramsey over the middle to complete a 94-yard, 10-play drive. The march was keyed by Grogan's 38-yard pass to Stanley Morgan.

New England took a 14-0 lead just 54 seconds into the fourth quarter when Grogan again found Ramsey on the receiving end of a 2-yard pass to cap an 81-yard, 12-play drive.

The Bills, however, took the ensuing kickoff and drove downfield, but Derrick Ramsey's pass intended for Frank Lewis at the New England 4-yard line was picked off by Roland James and returned to midfield.

Collins went up the middle on the next play, breaking through the Buffalo defense on his 50-yard touchdown run at 4:57 of the final quarter to give New England a 21-0 lead.

On the Bills' next possession, another Ferguson pass intended for Lewis was intercepted by James. The Patriots eventually settled for a 22-yard field goal by Fred Steinfort — a former Bill who was waived earlier this season — to up the margin to 24-0.

James intercepted another Ferguson pass late in the final quarter, which led to New England's final touchdown — a 2-yard run by veteran running back Mark van Eeghen with 1:05 left.

Collins — from Penn N.Y., located just east of Buffalo — enjoyed his sixth career 100-yard rushing game, carrying the ball 23 times for 147 yards.

Grogan, the fourth-rated passer in the AFC coming into the game, completed 17-of-29 passes for 251 yards. Ferguson, the second-ranked passer in the conference, hit on just 15-of-38 passes for 188 yards.

The shutout was the second experienced by the Bills this season, the first coming in a 14-0 loss to Miami in the season opener at Rich Stadium.

TF native's horse wins at nationals

TWIN FALLS — A stallion owned by a Twin Falls native and her husband is the talk of Arabian horse breeders throughout the country today.

When the judging was over Saturday at the U.S. National All-Arabian Show, Becky Peters Zisk and her husband, Sanford, were taking home the national championship pured Arabian stallion.

Peterson, 47, and her 5-year-old show horse, kept its undefeated record by winning the top prize against several hundred contenders at the championships in Albuquerque, N.M., William J. Peters, Becky's father, said Sunday.

The National Sampsong League gets under way

By FRED LIEFF
United Press International

NEW YORK — "Don't get me wrong," said one coach. "I think he's going to be one of the NBA's all-time greats. But unless he puts on a lot more weight than he has now, he's going to have a tough time."

"A lot of 6-foot-6 and 6-foot-7 men are playing at 230 or 235 and they don't have to go up against those big centers."

The player in question said: "I know playing in the NBA is going to be rough, but I might make it rough for them, too. I'm not going into this thing with blinders on."

Ralph Sampson? Not exactly. He was in elementary school in Harrisonburg, Va., and still dunk-less.

The year was 1963. The coach was Richie Guerin, then of the Atlanta Hawks. The player was Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, then Lew Alcindor.

Comparisons have stalked Sampson and Abdul-Jabbar, like a 24-second clock. Could Abdul-Jabbar, fresh out of UCLA, hold his own against the likes of Willis Chamberlain and Nate Thurmond? Or against Wes Unseld and Willis Reed? For the most part, the questions have been answered.

And now, with the NBA set to open its 38th season Friday night, it is Sampson's turn. Does he have enough muscle and grit to drive in the NBA? To what extent can he carry a club otherwise hopelessly inept? And, of course, the comparisons: with Moses Malone and Artis Gilmore; and Bill Walton and Abdul-Jabbar himself.

But while Sampson is clearly the headline act this season there is also:

- the Philadelphia 76ers bidding to become the first team to repeat as champions since the 1956-57 Boston Celtics.

- Abdul-Jabbar looking to overtake Chamberlain as the all-time scoring king.
- a full-scale coaching shakeup in which nine men take over new teams.
- interesting developments at Los Angeles, Boston, San Diego, Chicago, Seattle, Indiana, Milwaukee and Utah.

- a drug crackdown that could banish offending players from the league.
- a revised playoff format that renders the regular season as meaningless as a first-quarter score.

Sampson is coming off one of college basketball's most storied careers. Three times the 7-footer from Virginia was wooed by the pros and three times he turned them down. But now he is armed with a $2 million contract and, in a professional and pecuniary sense, has come home.

The Rockets, who won just 14 games last season, open against San Antonio on Oct. 29. And in Gilmore, Sampson's nascent jumper and inside power moves face a sturdy test. But the first unqualified glamour showdown takes place over Thanksgiving when the Rockets meet the Pacers and Malone.

The showcasing of Sampson will be a one-run performance — this season. Magic Johnson and Larry Bird captivated the basketball imagination when they joined the NBA in 1979. But not since Abdul-Jabbar in 1969 has a college player made such a sweeping entrance.

"Houston will be the most fun team to watch in the NBA this season," says Rick Sund, personnel director of the Dallas Mavericks. "He's the best player I've ever scouted and I see nothing but greatness for him."

Greatness takes on added measure this season for Abdul-Jabbar. The Los Angeles center needs 1,610 points to pass Chamberlain (31,419) as the league's top scorer of all time. If he scores at last year's pace (21.6 a game) and plays every game, the record will fall about April 1.

Other milestones should be reached. Elvin Hayes of the Houston Rockets, in his last year, likely will join past Paul Silas (1,254) and John Havlicek (1,270) for most games played. And Julius Erving of Philadelphia and Dan Issel of Denver should pass the 25,000-point mark for a career.

Besides Sampson, there are a number of rookies to watch this year. Steve Nisensevic of Indiana, Rodney McCray of Houston, Byron Scott of Los Angeles, Sidney Green of Chicago, Russell Cross of Golden State, Thurl Bailey of Utah, Antoine Carr of Detroit, Dale Ellis of Dallas and Jeff Malone of Washington.

Keeping up with the coaches will be no small task. Three have switched teams since last season — Bill Fitch from Boston to Houston, Stan Albeck from San Antonio to New Jersey and Kevin Loughery from Atlanta to Chicago. Four have advanced from assistants to head coaches — Mike Fratello at Atlanta, John Bach at Golden State, Mo Melhoni at San Antonio and Jim Evans at San Diego. And two former head coaches go at it once more — Chuck Daly at Detroit and K.C. Jones at Boston.

CROSSCOUNTRY

Rod Dixon, at right, beat huge field in New York Marathon

Twice is a charm for New Zealander

By TONY FAVIA
United Press International

New York Marathon

NEW YORK — Rod Dixon was lurching back until just the right moment, and he was hungry like the wolf.

"It's always clear to be the hunter rather than the hunted," said Dixon, the two-time Olympian from New Zealand, after using a dramatic burst in the final mile Sunday to overtake Geoff Smith and win the 14th New York City Marathon in 2 hours, 8 minutes, 59 seconds.

"Of course, I knew I was running out of distance, and with a mile to go I realized I was picking up my legs faster than he was. I almost felt I had that second wind. I think my track background told me my legs had to turn over faster and they did."

"He knew I was there and I knew he was there. It was sort of like a piece of elastic — he would pull away and then I would catch up."

"Dixon, 33, experienced hamstring problems from the first five miles of the race and, after a surge brought him to third place coming off the Queensborough Bridge at the 16-mile mark into Manhattan, he said he "slipped again and fell."

"But at 23 miles, I felt like I hit a patch in the muscle and the tension was released."

Dixon was running only his second marathon, while the 29-year-old Smith set a record for the fastest full-time marathon ever run with his run time of 2:09:08.

Smith, 29, said he began to realize just how hard the marathon is in the final miles.

"At 16 miles I felt like there was nobody else in the race and at 20 I felt the same," Smith said. "But then entering the park (Central Park), people started yelling at me they're catching you. That's when I started to panic. I knew Rod was catching up, and while my upper body felt good, both my hamstrings were cramping."

Smith had held the lead since passing Gidmas Shahaanga of Tanzania on the Queensborough Bridge, or about the 15.4-mile mark. Shahaanga, normally a 10-kilometer runner, then tired badly and was overtaken for third place by Ron Tabb, the runnerup in the Boston Marathon this year.

Dixon had been one of the world's premier distance runners for more than 10 years. He won a bronze medal in the 1,500 meters at the 1972 Olympics and was fourth in the 5,000 at the 1976 Olympics, finishing just 0.7 of a second behind gold medalist Lasse Viren.

He gradually moved to the road and took to longer distances, running a world record half marathon in 1981 and completing his only previous marathon — in May 1982 — in 2:11:21. This year he decided to attempt the New York Marathon and trained heavily in the woods surrounding his Pennsylvania home.

Dixon had predicted he would set a world record in the race, but his time was 46 seconds behind Alberto Salazar's standard set in the 1981 New York Marathon.

Smith finished second in 2:09:08 and Tabb's third place time was 2:10:46.

Smith and Shahaanga both showed surprising endurance in pacing the race through "exceptionally" fast splits.

Shahaanga was in the leading group almost from the beginning of the 26-mile, 35.5-yard race through New York's five boroughs. His 10-mile time was 48:06, which was exactly a minute ahead of Salazar's pace. But the 26-year-old, who was fifth in the 10,000 meters at the world championships this year, began to fade on the upgrade of the Queensborough Bridge.

Smith then took over while Dixon gradually moved up from seventh place to third as the runners headed up First Avenue in Manhattan. He led in Shahaanga at the 20-mile mark and then began his duel with Smith. His hamstring problems looked to hinder any chance he had of winning until Smith lost his energy in the final strides.

After crossing the finish line, Dixon knelt down on the damp pavement, with a light rain which had been falling since the beginning of the race still cooling him, and kissed the ground and then stood up with his arms raised in the air in triumph. The race began with a warmer-than-expected 59-degree temperature along with misty rain.

Grete Waitz of Norway, the 30-year-old world champion, won the women's division for the fifth time in six years, although without serious competition she could not challenge Joan Benoit's world record set in Boston this year. Waitz led the entire race and held off moves by Lorraine Holler, Julie Shea, Margaret Groos and Italians Alva Milana and Laura Fogli. Waitz finished in 2:27:00, more than four minutes of the world record.

Fogli finished second in 2:31:59 and Priscilla Welch of England was third in 2:32:31. Milana was fourth in 2:34:57.

"I had never run under such wet conditions but other than that I had no specific problems," Waitz said. "Sometimes there were 100 many feet around me and they were slowing me down though."

Following Tabb in the men's race were: John Tuttle of Auburn, Ala., in 2:10:51; John Graham of England in 2:10:57; Shahaanga in 2:11:05, and Rudy Chipur of Bloomington, Ind., in 2:11:13.

Ricardo's FG puts Vikings atop division

By United Press International

NFC Central

Several offensive and defensive stars carried Minnesota for four quarters Sunday, but it took the right leg of Benny Ricardo to lift the Vikings to a 20-17 overtime triumph against the Green Bay Packers.

Ricardo's 22-yard field goal with 5:05 elapsed in the extra period left the Vikings at 6-2, two games ahead of the Packers in the NFC Central.

The Packers won the coin toss at the start of overtime but were unable to make a first down. After Bucky Scribner punted, Minnesota drove 45 yards to the Packers' 13 before Ricardo connected for the 17th time in 19 attempts this season.

"We were fortunate we lost the coin flip because they weren't able to do anything and had to punt into the wind," said Minnesota quarterback Steve Dils, who completed 16-of-27 passes for 295 yards. "And when we kicked the winning field goal, we got the windings Sunday, and it worked."

The Vikings' offense was also led by Ted Brown, who rushed for a career high 177 yards on 29 carries.

"We said we were going to try to run the ball a lot more than we have in the past," he said. "Sure, I got tired but I didn't let it affect me while I'm playing. I get tired on the sidelines."

Minnesota's defense harassed

Green Bay quarterback Lynn Dickey all day, sacking him seven times and intercepting three of his passes, as well as recovering Eddie Lee Ivory's fumble on their own 2-yard line.

They surprised the Packers by using a four-man line and five defensive backs much more than they have in the past.

"You have to salute the Vikings," said Green Bay head coach Bart Starr. "They were well prepared and they played well. The nickel defense was a good play and their entire front four put heat on us all day."

"It looked like we were overpowering them," said Doug Martin, who had five of the sacks. We're in the driver's seat. It's going to be tough to stay there, but I think we can handle it."

The Packers led the score 17-17 with just two seconds remaining in regulation with Lynn Dickey hit Mike Meade with a 4-yard touchdown pass, capping an 11-play drive that saw the Packers move 80 yards in 1:44. They were aided by two Minnesota penalties.

Brown's touchdown with 4:42 left in the period gave the Vikings a 17-3 lead. The play capped a 13-play, 73-yard drive that consumed 7:11. Brown got 39 of those yards on eight carries.

Chicago 7, Philadelphia 6

In Philadelphia, Vince Evans hit Dennis McKinnon with a 20-yard touchdown pass in the first quarter and the Chicago defense made it stand up in a steady rain, lifting the Bears to triumph over the Philadelphia Eagles.

Evans, making his second straight start after taking over the quarterback chores — from Jim McMahon, found McKinnon on a quick-snap pattern and the rookie from Florida State bounced off a tackler at the 5-yard line and bolted into the end zone.

The touchdown pass for the Bears, 3-5, capped a 94-yard drive that was aided by a 43-yard pass interference penalty against the Eagles' Brenner Wilson. Evans scrambled 17 yards on a fourth-down play to keep the march alive and the scoring pass came three plays later.

The Eagles, 4-4, who managed only 24 yards of total offense in the first half, scored on their first possession of the third quarter on a 24-yard field goal by Tony Franklin. Franklin added a 33-yard field goal with 6:02 remaining but the Eagles could not come up with the go-ahead score.

Redskins rebound at Lions' expense

NFC East

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Washington Redskins used a committee to replace injured fullback John Riggin Sunday, and they worked.

Joe Washington ran for a career-high 147 yards and caught a touchdown pass and Reggie Evans scored his first three NFL touchdowns on short runs in the Redskins' 33-17 victory over the Detroit Lions.

Washington carried 22 times, just under Riggin's normal load, while playing most of the game. Evans took over on short-yardage situations, and got the most of his 11 carries for 4 yards.

"Whether it's John or Joe or Reggie out there, we are confident with all those guys," said Redskins coach Joe Gibbs. "They have completely different styles, but they get the job done."

Working in a driving rain, Washington gained yardage on every carry. The Redskins had just two plays that lost yardage, both pass plays.

"I feel I can run on wet ground or wet (artificial) turf," said Washington. "It really doesn't matter. Going back to my days in high school, my father (and high school coach) would get on me to keep my feet high and my legs moving."

"It was so wet out there I couldn't even see the yard markers. On a day like this, though, I think I concentrate a little more on keeping my feet under me."

Evans scored on three of his first four carries. Using a special teams player, he carried the ball just twice for six yards before Sunday.

"In the pre-season, I carried the ball a lot in short yardage situations," said Evans. "I think that's one of the reasons the coaches kept me on the team."

"This was the first time I had an opportunity to contribute other than on special teams. The times I carried were in crucial situations and I think I proved I can play under pressure."

The Redskins held Detroit to just five carries, ran 13 yards for one Detroit touchdown and Ulisses Norris caught a 2-yard scoring pass from Gary Danielson. Eddie Murray added a 37-yard field goal for the Lions, 3-5.

The Redskins held Detroit to just 222 yards of offense, 81 on the ground. Detroit's Eric Hipple completed just 5-of-17 first-half passes for 37 yards and an interception before being replaced by Danielson, who was 8-for-17 for 124 yards, one touchdown and one interception in the second half.

Theismann, meanwhile, completed 15-of-23 passes for 247 yards and the two touchdowns.

After the Redskins built a 28-3 halftime lead, the Lions broke through losses for a third-quarter score, capping the Lions' only sustained drive of the day.

Mark Murphy picked off Danielson's pass at midfield three minutes later and the Redskins drove to Moseley's field goal with 2:17 left in the third quarter. Earlier, Moseley missed from 43 and 42 yards.

Evans, a second-year pro who spent 1820 on injured reserve, scored his third TD on the first play of the fourth quarter. Touchdowns by Dexter Manley hit Danielson, who fumbled, and Tony McGee recovered at the Detroit 5-yard line to set up the score.

Norris caught Danielson's two-handed underhand pass for the Lions' only touchdown with 5:44 left. Danielson and Norris combined on a 41-yard pass play to set the score.

QB Marino lifts Miami over Colts

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Impressive rookie Dan Marino threw two touchdowns passes and the stingy Miami defense forced four turnovers Sunday to lead the Dolphins to a 21-7 decision over the Baltimore Colts.

Making only his third professional start, Marino kept the Colts off balance with a baffling mix of runs and passes and the help of a driving rainstorm that turned the playing field into mud.

Andre Franklin and Tony Nathan muscled into the Baltimore line 28 times for 92 yards, but that was enough to keep the Colts guessing.

Meanwhile, a make-shift Dolphins' defense was strong when it counted, allowing the Colts more than 900 yards in total offense but forcing four key turnovers.

The Miami victory coupled with New England's triumph over the Buffalo Bills, left the three teams tied for first place in the AFC East, all with 5-3 records. The Colts dropped to 4-4.

The steady rain, which turned Memorial Stadium's natural grass field into a sea of mud and foam, cost the Colts twice in the first quarter.

Twice Baltimore moved the ball on the ground against the Dolphins, but twice halfback Curtis Dickey fumbled the slippery ball away.

breeding stallion in the county, said Peters, who lives near Twin Falls when he is not living in Las Vegas.

The horses are judged for stature, musculing, poise, disposition and other qualities.

"The stud fee before he won it was $10,000, and now it will go for $20,000," Peters said. "Perlane is in the process of being syndicated for $7 million, he said."

Peters said Becky and her sister, Susan, started showing horses when they were young girls in Twin Falls.

"We started them on Arabian stallions when they were kids," he said.

Stewart's 67 enough for Disney Classic win

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (UPI) — Young Payne Stewart earned his biggest pay day as a professional golfer Sunday, firing a final-round 67 to capture a two-stroke victory in the $400,000 Walt Disney World Classic.

Stewart's 57-under effort resulted in a $2-million paycheck and a giant leap from 49th on the PGA money list, where he entered the tournament with $105,834.

"I'm real excited," said Stewart, who finished with a 72-hole total of 10-under 269. "At the beginning of the day, I wasn't thinking about winning $2,000. But now I am."

"I guess the IRS man is going to be coming after me now."

Stewart, 26, shot a final round that included six birdies and three bogeys, but his biggest accomplishment was an eagle 3 on the par-5 10th hole.

Englishman Nick Faldo and Mark McCumber finished tied for second, two shots behind Stewart at 1,271. Faldo and McCumber had a 67.

Scott Hoch, who started the day tied with Stewart for the lead, shot a 2-under 70 and finished three shots behind Stewart.

Gary Koch (67), Larry Nelson (68), Craig Stadler (67) and Morris Hatalasky (69) ended four strokes behind Stewart at 273. Canadian Dave Barr (70), Leonard Thompson (68) and Denis Watson (65) were five shots off the pace.

Watson fired the day's best round and tied Stewart briefly, but Watson bogeyed No. 18 and fell from the leader board.

Stewart played an erratic front nine Sunday, collecting four birdies and two bogeys. The second bogey came on the ninth hole and dropped him into a tie with Watson.

But Stewart made the par 5, 526-yard No. 10 hole the turning point. He managed an eagle 3, boosting him into a two-stroke lead that he never relinquished. That advantage rose to three shots as he birdied the 11th and 14th holes and withstood a late charge from Faldo.

"I was going well, but every time I looked up, he was three in front again," said Faldo, who qualified for the PGA tour next year by virtue of his second place finish.

Stewart, who was born and still lives in Springfield, Mo., bogeyed No. 18 but it was merely academic since he entered the final hole with a three-shot buffer.

Perlane now will be eligible to compete in the world championships in Paris, Peters said.

Bruins Boosters board will meet on Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls High School football coach Bill Jines and members of his varsity football team will be guests at Tuesday's board meeting of the Bruin Boosters.

The no-host breakfast is scheduled for 7 a.m. in the Aspen Room of the Canyon Springs Inn. All interested persons are invited to attend.

Defending champ wins Ironman

KAILUA-KONA, Hawaii (UPI) — Defending champion Dave Scott, Davis, Calif., Saturday won the grueling three-event Ironman Triathlon for the third time with a record clocking of 9 hours, 5 minutes, 56 seconds, bettering his own mark by 2 minutes, 27 seconds.

Davis, who won the triathlon in 1980 and again last fall, took the lead during the marathon, which followed a 2.4-mile swim and 112-mile bicycle race.

Scott Tinley, San Diego, who won the Triathlon hold early last year and finished second to Davis in last fall's event, was second with a time of 9:06:33. Tinley was the leader after the bicycle race.

Another San Diegan, Mark Allen, winner of the Nice, France, triathlon, was third with a time of 9:21:05 and Marc Thompson, Sherman, Texas, finished fourth in 9:49:05.

All did not go so smoothly during the race. Triathlon officials reported someone had put tacks along the course of the bike race, forcing some of the top triathletes out of the competition.

Triathlete Jerry Mays of Hamilton, Canada, was hit by a car while riding in the bicycle race. His condition was unknown.

Costumes can pose hazard

By JEANNE LESEM
UPI Family Editor
"Furry bear-like Ewok costumes inspired by the latest Star Wars movie are charming, but I'm not sure people are aware of the danger they represent," says textiles expert Cheryl Nelson.
Ms. Nelson said they pose a potential fire hazard for children who go trick or treating at Halloween.
In a telephone interview from the University of Minnesota in St. Paul, the Extension Service-textiles and clothing specialist said costumes made with fake fur fabric can be very flammable because of the large amount of air incorporated in the fabric surface.

She said a colleague who supervised graduate student research on flammable-nightwear alerted her to the potential risks.
She urges parents who are unsure about the flammability of a fabric in their children's costumes to test burn a strip 1/4 inch by 2 inches. Do this in an ashtray or hold the strip with kitchen tongs over a sink to see how quickly the flames spread upward.

Power trip fantasy

By SHARON RUTTENBERG
UPI Science Writer
CHICAGO (UPI) — Dressing up in Halloween costumes gives children a rare chance to experience power, and their candy collection helps sweeten the return from fantasy to reality, a psychoanalyst says.
The costumes are external reflections of inner feelings, said Mark Gehring of Michael Reese Hospital and Medical Center.
"Power is important to children because it gives them a sense that they exist and that they're significant," he said in an interview. "Just like adults, children live in a world in which their insignificance is often apparent to them. So they seek to feel that they mean something."

Dressing up as Superman or a "Star Wars" character might make a child feel strong and powerful.
"Kings and queens, princes and princesses are often seen to be popular figures of this type — fairy tales and folk tales that reach into the child's world," Gehring said.
"I don't see kids dressing up like Henry Kissinger," he said, because the political figure is outside the child's realm.

Valley happenings

Open house tonight

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls High School P.T.S.A. will hold its annual open house tonight. Parents and other interested adults will meet in the cafeteria at 7:30 p.m. and then visit their children's classes. Refreshments will follow, according to Chjps and Nick Barlow, P.T.S.A. co-presidents.

Crafts fair planned

Here's why many women prefer pants Somebody Needs You

Monday, October 24, 1983 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho B-7

DEAR ABBY: I'm a reasonably attractive bachelor who enjoys the company of young women, but I'm having a hard time trying to find one who still wears a dress.

The other night when I called for my date for dinner and a movie (not a drive-in), she met me at the door wearing blue jeans! I asked her if she had a dress, and she said, "Yes, but then I'd have to shave my legs!"

Abby, I shaved my face to go out with her. Why can't she shave her legs to go out with me?

What is it with women these days? Why do so many of them prefer pants?

If you can answer this, you're a genius.

— HATES WOMEN IN PANTS

DEAR HATES: I'm no genius, but I asked a number of pants-wearing women why they preferred pants. Some typical responses:

1. Pants are much more comfortable than a dress.
2. My legs aren't too terrific, so why

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

advertise it?

3. Pants are warmer when I need warmth.
4. If I have a run in my hosiery, it won't show.
5. With pants I can wear a shirt or blouse that hangs down over my big behind to hide it.
6. Almost everybody else wears pants, and I don't want to be the oddball.

DEAR ABBY: When a funeral director signed "Dead Serious" requested that you ask people to quit making jokes about his profession, instead of being sympathetic, you added a few more. Abby, you showed the sensitivity of an armored tank and the shallowness of onlookers! I am also a funeral director, and I've heard just about every mortician joke in the book.

When I walk into a place, I am asked, "What are you doing here — looking for business?"

Then someone else pipes up with, "Hey, everybody, act alive. Look who's here with his meat wagon!"

Abby, how would you like to come into a place and be greeted with, "Well, if it isn't Heartache Hannah!" or "Lovely Abby with all the answers... ha, ha, ha!"

Now do you get my point, or should I hit you with my shovel? My name is not "Digger" or "Planter" — just call me...

— DAVE IN IOWA

DEAR DAVE: Though somewhat corny, there may be a kernel of truth in your complaint. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: When you printed the letter from the mortician who was fed up with jokes about his job, such as "I'll bet people are just dying to do business with you" and "How's business? Dead, huh?" I think you did him more harm than good when you replied, "All men are created equal."

I am only 13 years old, but I know a put-down when I hear (or read) one.

— A.C. IN GLENDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR A.C.: I apologize to all morticians who were offended. They should not have been. The final put-down is "HEHS."

P.S. Credits to the mortician who wrote: "Don't let it bother you, Abby, most people in this business have a good sense of humor. Sign me..."

"Somebody Needs You," a public-service column that appears each Sunday in The Times-News, is designed to match those in the community who need volunteer help with those who can provide it.

Volunteers are needed at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center to help with the hospital's menu service, and to help with the library cart, delivering candy and magazines to patients. Call Jo Teater at 733-2166.

There is currently an opening for a volunteer craft coordinator in Twin Falls. This job will consist of planning craft projects and then assisting senior citizens in the actual work. The hours are flexible, with craft-time to be held twice a month. Call Karen Mack at 733-9554, extension 338, if you are interested.

Area youth groups are in need of adult leaders and helpers. If you have an hour or two to spare each week, why not help some young men and women learn citizenship, responsibility and new skills? Call Karen Mack at 733-9554, extension 338.

If you wish to expand your knowledge of food preserving, and then spend time sharing your knowledge with others, the "master preserver" program, offered through the Extension Service, will be of interest to you. Beginning in January, the training will consist of 30 hours of intensive instruction in the various methods of food preserving — canning, freezing, drying, etc. Graduates of the course then will be asked to spend an additional 30 hours working with individuals and groups during the growing and preserving season. Enrollment is limited, so early registration is advised. For more information, call Myrna Kastner at 733-9590.

If your organization needs a volunteer, call Bruce Bennett at the College of Southern Idaho at 733-9554, extension 338, to have it appear in this column.
