Quake rocks mountain states

People respond in fear, courage

By HAL BERNYON
Times-News writer

CHALLIS — When the earthquake struck, Harry James was loading cattle onto a truck six miles south of Challis.

"The truck started swaying one way — and the cattle chute another. When I looked up to the west, it seemed like the mountains were moving and there were clouds of dust from rock falls."

James returned to his home, beside a steep hillside on the north edge of Challis. He found a large boulder had smashed into one wall, and his car had been damaged by another. Fortunately, his wife had been able to evacuate the house without injury.

Some 22 miles southwest of Challis, in the small mining town of Clayton, Vivienne Kistfather, a teacher at the elementary school, was in a classroom "when the walls shook real hard and a rock hit the outside of the building."

"The rock bounced off the building and knocked some bricks loose. Then, we lost all of our power."

In Mackay, Ken Holt, had stopped off for a cup of coffee before beginning another day's carpentry work when "the ground started to shake like crazy."

Holt fled with other cafe customers to a street littered with bricks and shards of broken glass.

The epicenter of the powerful earthquake that rocked these three southeastern Idaho communities was located along the base of Mount Borah Peak, 15 miles north of Mackay.

A helicopter tour of the epicenter area revealed a rift more than 12 miles long, which was opened up by the quake along the sagebrush-covered lower slopes of the Lost River Range.

The rift — which lowered the ground by more than 15 feet in some plates and destroyed some sections of roadway — bore vivid testimony to the seismic forces that rumbled through Idaho and seven other states.

The quake tumbled the walls of brick and stone buildings, sent fir trees crashing to the ground near the campsites of frightened hunters and even opened up a new artesian well on top of a butte north of Mackay.

More tragically, it claimed the lives of two young children in Challis as they walked down the main street on their way to school. The two children were buried under tons of concrete blocks.

Beverly Bowers, an employee of a nearby store, said she ran into the street after the quake and found a massive pile of blocks and clouds of dust at the scene of the disaster.

Strong shock kills 2 children

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY

CHALLIS — The second-most forceful earthquake ever recorded in the Intermountain region shook seven states and British Columbia at 8:07 a.m. Friday, leaving two school children dead.

One woman was hospitalized and there were reports of additional minor injuries resulting from the quake, which was centered 15 miles north of Mackay.

Seismologists recorded the quake at between 6.9 and 7.2 on the Richter Scale — the most extensive in the United States in 25 years.

An aftershock registering 5.5 on the Richter scale was reported to have occurred at 1:51 p.m. Numerous other minor aftershocks also were reported.

The two children reported dead by the Challis Medical Center — Tara Leaton, 7, and Travis Franck, 6 — were buried beneath four feet of rubble that fell from the second story of an old stone building in the town of 1,200.

The children were walking to school on Challis's main street when a section of the front wall of the building, housing J.P.'s Bargain Store and several apartments, collapsed on them. It took paramedics and residents at least 15 minutes to remove their bodies from the debris.

The children were taken to Challis Medical Center where they were pronounced dead by a medical assistant, said receptionist Helen Malone. The center's physician, en route to the center, was trapped in his car by one of the many reported rock slides in the area, she said.

Other Challis buildings sustaining damage were the Junior High and houses along Bluff Avenue. One home fell victim to large rocks rolling down the south face of a bluff on the north side of town. The rocks ripped a hole

Destructive shock waves caused little trouble at INEL site

IDAHO FALLS (UPI) — The destructive earthquake that jolted seven Western states Friday was centered only 50 miles from a nuclear research laboratory, but the site is stable, a nuclear engineer said.

However, a spokeswoman for an anti-nuclear organization said the quake raised new doubts.

Work at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory stopped, its equipment was shut down and some employees were evacuated following the early morning quake, measured between 7.2 and 6.9 on the Richter scale. Officials at the lab, where research is conducted with 15 reactors, said there was no quake damage and employees returned to their jobs later in the day.

Val Finlayson, a nuclear engineer familiar with the lab and a vice president for the Utah Power and Light Co., said that he contacted the lab in southeast Idaho and learned "the building shook and it was evacuated but later work resumed."

Finlayson said the lab lies on a cushion-like geological formation that protects it from two active fault zones running along two sides of the stretch of desert on which the lab was built in 1949.

The location "is an excellent site because it is located on the Snake River Plain," which he said was not within the danger zones of the faults. It was apparently one of those faults running through Challis, that shifted creating Friday's quake.

The quake severely shook Challis, causing the deaths of two children and inflicting heavy damage to buildings.

Janice Berndt, a spokeswoman for the Snake River Alliance, an anti-nuclear group based in Boise, said that although the INEL claims its reactors are stable, she is worried about storage of radioactive liquid waste.

She said the quake could have caused cracks in the 15 tanks that contain about 2 million gallons of radioactive materials.

"There's a lot of unanswered questions," she said. "There might be problems with waste buried in the ground. The earth could have moved, you never can tell."

The center of the quake in Custer County was about 50 miles from the reactor lab, which is situated on flat, desert terrain about 90-miles wide between the two earthquake fault zones.

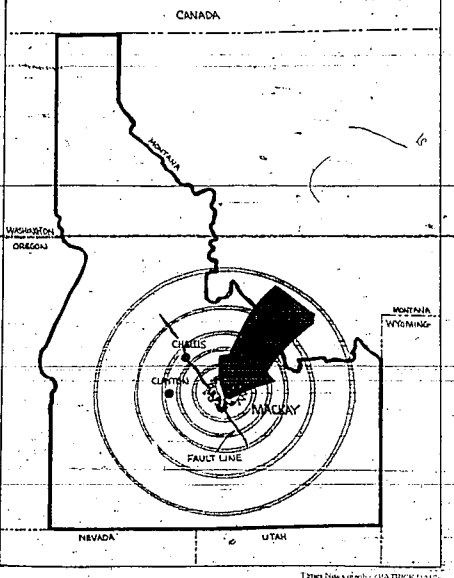

One of the lab's 15 nuclear reactors is the only breeder reactor in use to generate electrical power, Finlayson said. He said it serves the facilities of the lab.

The lab employs 9,000, mostly scientists and engineers. Among its projects were the development of the engines used on nuclear-powered submarines and more recently, experiments to simulate the 1979 Three Mile Island accident to determine a way to remove the power plant's damaged core.

Lab officials sought, and apparently received recently, a reclassification, downgrading its earthquake vulnerability, meaning it has less stringent federal codes to observe.

The lab has been recommended by U.S. Energy Secretary Dan Rostenkowski as the best location for a new $4 billion tritium-producing reactor, to produce elements for nuclear warheads, against the wishes of opposing scientists who cite possible contamination to underground water supplies.

The earthquake's epicenter reportedly was near Mt. Borah

If quake hit L.A., death would abound

LOS ANGELES — An earthquake in Southern California comparable to the one that struck Idaho on Friday would unleash devastating damage and kill up to 23,000 residents in the Los Angeles area, a federal report estimates.

A preliminary study on the effects of an earthquake registering 7 to 7.5 on Richter scale in the Los Angeles and Orange County coastal areas also concludes that up to 100,000 people could be injured and damage could reach $2 billion.

Jim Alexander, of the state Office of Emergency Services, says contingency plans are being made for an earthquake of that magnitude on the Newport-Inglewood fault, which runs through the heavily populated western portions of Los Angeles and Orange counties.

"In heavily populated areas the damage would be greater," Alexander says.

The most damaging quake to strike Southern California occurred on the Newport-Inglewood fault, when a 6.5 quake destroyed portions of Long Beach on March 10, 1933, killing 120 people and injuring thousands.

The Federal Emergency Management Agency concluded in its study that a quake registering 7.0 would kill 4,000 people and hospitalize 18,000 people if it struck at 2:30 a.m. The same quake occurring at 4:30 p.m. would claim 23,000 lives and hospitalize 91,000 people. Potential property damage is estimated at $63 billion.

Animals go wild

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Birds that stopped flying, horses running wildly and cows that stopped giving milk were all reported following Friday's earthquake.

Scientists have long been aware of the effects seismic activities have on animals, and the Magic Valley got a firsthand look with the "strong tremor" that rumbled through the valley.

Several Lincoln County dairymen reported their cattle began to run wildly, trampling fences and breaking out of catch pens. They said their cows refused to give milk as the earth began shaking.

Vert Rasmussen said he had not noticed anything unusual earlier in the morning, but the animals in the milking parlor "went wild" as the tremor passed.

According to ards residents, cattle and sheep could be seen running aimlessly in their pastures.

Horse owners in the Mackay area, near the quake's center, said their animals bolted and ran "like they had been spooked," just before the quake hit.

Senate votes invasion limit Invokes the War Powers Act

By ROBERT SHEPARD
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate voted overwhelmingly Friday to declare that the Vietnam-era war powers act applies to the Grenada invasion, giving President Reagan 60 days to withdraw troops or get congressional approval to keep them there.

Later it got embroiled in an emotional debate on the U.S. role in Grenada and whether Marines in Lebanon were the victims of inadequate security.

Amendments that triggered that debate eventually were withdrawn, however, allowing the Senate to resume work on the main bill it had been considering — a crucial measure to raise the national debt limit.

In the House, Speaker Thomas O'Neill charged the president had been looking for two years for an excuse to invade the tiny Caribbean island and oust its pro-Cuban government.

"That's gunboat diplomacy. And that's wrong," the 72-year-old speaker told reporters, marking an end to his self-imposed silence on the Grenada landing.

"I truly feel that the president has been looking for a period of two years to do what he did the other day," he said.

The Senate amendment, offered by Sen. Gary Hart, D-Colo., was approved on a 64-20 vote. It was the same as one approved Thursday by the House Foreign Affairs Committee on a strong 22-2 bipartisan vote.

The amendment was added to a crucial bill raising the national debt limit. The bill must receive final congressional action by Monday for the government to meet its debts.

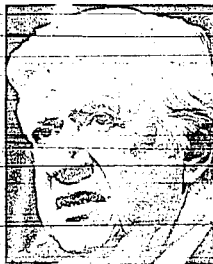

The House already has passed a debt limit bill that does not include any war powers amendment, and the issue will have to be resolved in a conference committee.

Hart said the amendment "flatly requires the president in the next 60 days to justify American military presence in Grenada, if that is their desire."

"It deals only with Congress's powers under the War Powers Resolution, he said. "It does not direct itself to the wisdom of our policy" in Grenada.

Administration officials have said they intend to get the 2,700 U.S. troops out of Grenada "as soon as possible" but refuse to set a time limit. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger suggested the troops might have to remain for weeks.

The administration has refused to acknowledge that the timetable provision of the war powers act applies to the Grenada operation, reflecting the executive branch's long-standing position that the 1973 law infringes on the president's constitutional powers as commander in chief.

Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., noted the administration has not formally challenged the war powers act in court and therefore "it remains applicable."

The amendment won the support of Senate Foreign Relations Committee Chairman Charles Percy, R-Ill., who said it shows "we take the War Powers Resolution seriously. It is the law of the land."

Sen. John East, R-N.C., opposed the amendment, however, saying the act threatens to prevent the president from taking "decisive, effective action" to prevent a hostage situation such as occurred in Iran.

The Senate and House committee measures state that the War Powers Resolution became applicable Oct. 25, the day U.S. forces invaded the tiny Caribbean island.

Also in the Senate Friday, members urged President Reagan to refuse to return the 600 Cubans captured on Grenada unless Fidel Castro accepts the Cuban criminals in U.S. jails who were part of the 1960 Miami boatlift.

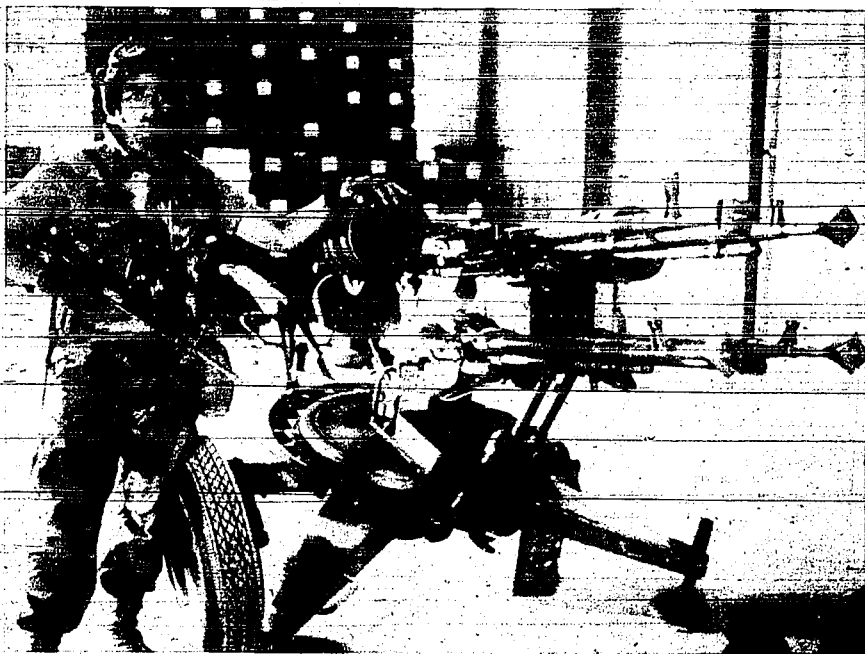

The non-binding proposal by Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Fla., was adopted by voice vote and attached to a bill that would extend the national debt limit.

The proposal said: "It is the sense of the Congress that the president should insist that as a condition for repatriation of Cuban nationals captured by U.S. Armed Forces in Grenada, the government of Cuba should agree to the return to Cuba of all Cuban nationals in the United States who are found to be deportable under the immigration laws of the United States."

"I bet I could produce for you the 1,022 telegrams positive and 63 negative and what would you expect?" Spokesman said.

The White House also touted an ABC News poll showing support for Reagan's policy in Lebanon rose from 56 percent before the speech to 80 percent afterward. Approval for the Grenada action increased from 64 percent to 86 percent. The percentage who disapproved of U.S. policy in Lebanon dropped from 45 to 20, while the percentage opposed to the invasion of Grenada fell from 26 to 14.

Vice President George Bush defended the invasion in Houston. "Somebody has to have the moral leadership to come with these countries... and say we'll be at your side," he said. "It not the United States, who?"

Grenada resistance digs in

By NICK MADIGAN

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada — U.S. troops backed by F-18 jets and mortar fire battled Cuban soldiers entrenched in the mountains of Grenada Friday. The Pentagon said 11 Americans had been killed and 67 wounded since the Caribbean island was invaded four days ago.

As the fighting continued, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said the first American troops could begin leaving the island later in the day.

The admiral commanding the invasion forces said they had captured all major military objectives on the island but that the fighting could go on for days or weeks.

The Soviet Union said U.S. warplanes had fired on its embassy in the capital during the invasion and said such incidents could have "serious consequences."

The Pentagon denied the accusation. Friday's fighting was centered on the southern half of the 133-square-mile island between the Point Salines airfield, captured by U.S. forces when they invaded Tuesday, and the mountains to the north and northeast.

"They are still hiding up in the hills and were trying to flush them out," said Air Force Lt. David N. Hincee, a ground support coordinator at the Cuban-built airport that has become headquarters for the more than 3,000-man seven-nation invasion force.

Mortar and machine-gun fire went on throughout Thursday night and into Friday and was audible in the capital of St. George's.

Groups of F-18 jets flying in formations of two and three strafed the hills surrounding Point Salines and American officers said the Cubans appeared to be withdrawing further into the mountains.

The search for the Cubans went on through Thursday night. American helicopters equipped with powerful searchlights could be seen in the darkness buzzing over the countryside.

Also resisting the invaders were members of Grenada's Peoples Revolutionary Army and the volunteer militia, who reportedly were terrorizing civilians.

"They're killing civilians up there," said a tearful Ann Gilbert, a Grenadian from the village of Fontenoy. She said Grenadian soldiers threatened to kill all residents of her village for refusing to shelter them.

"They said they were going to come back tonight and kill everyone. We can't go back home," she said.

Villagers streamed out of their homes, carrying children under their arms and a few belongings they packed hastily. They reported the threats to an American Marine at a checkpoint on the road to St. George's, the capital. There were no immediate reports on deaths or injuries.

In announcing its latest casualty figures of 11 dead and 67 wounded, the Pentagon said seven other American soldiers were missing.

The Pentagon said the Cuban resistance was "much greater than expected" and that "the fighting is still in progress."

"My understanding is that two battalions of Rangers are coming out later this afternoon," Weinberger told reporters at Montserrat, Canada where he is attending a NATO meeting. "And that's fully consistent with the timetable we hoped could be achieved and accelerated and followed."

Weinberger also said talks were to begin next week for the creation of a provisional government on the island.

Reagan claims heavy support after his speech on invasion

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The White House reported an "unprecedented" outpouring of public support for President Reagan Friday following his nationally televised defense of the U.S. troop presence in Lebanon and Grenada.

Aides gave President Reagan a flag-waving sendoff for his weekend at Camp David.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said in 2½ hours after Reagan's Thursday night television address on the crises in Grenada and Lebanon, the White House switchboard was "jammed" with 4,272 telephone calls supportive of his policies and a scant 320 expressing opposition.

"The telephone response to the speech was unprecedented in this administration," he said.

Telegrams ran almost 20-1 in Reagan's favor, he also said, despite criticism of the invasion in foreign capitals and Capitol Hill. But White House officials conceded the tide of support could recede if American troops suffer excessive casualties in Grenada or become bogged down in a protracted fight.

When the decision was made late Tuesday for Reagan to go on television, Speakes said, "we did expect to finish the military operation" on the Caribbean island by Thursday evening.

Armed with excerpts from telegrams, telephone calls and statements of TV commentators, Speakes portrayed the speech — perhaps Reagan's most important to date — as an overwhelming political success.

"Obviously, he's gratified that there's this much agreement," Speakes said of the president. "He was pleased to see that the public response was favorable."

Scores of flag-waving White House staffers and their friends cheered Reagan as he left the White House for a weekend stay at the Camp David, Md., presidential retreat. Speechwriter Dana Rohrabacher held a sign reading: "Your finest hour."

Far removed from the White House cheerleading, the response on Capitol Hill suggested a divided Congress with Democrats criticizing the military action.

House Speaker Thomas O'Neill, breaking a self-imposed silence on the subject, said the invasion was "gunboat diplomacy. And that's wrong."

But O'Neill acknowledged that Reagan, "the great communicator," has won over the public.

The White House released a selection of favorable comments that had been received without allowing reporters to verify the material.

In one call, an Ohio woman quoted her Marine son as saying: "I should die for my country. It is not because of stupidity. It is for a cause." Speakes said.

A California couple phoned to say, "We finally have a real man in the White House," he said.

Asked why he would not read a sampling of negative reaction as well, Speakes, who has had sharp exchanges with reporters in recent days, replied, "I realize that positive news is painful to you."

"I bet I could produce for you the 1,022 telegrams positive and 63 negative and what would you expect?" Speakes said.

The White House also touted an ABC News poll showing support for Reagan's policy in Lebanon rose from 56 percent before the speech to 80 percent afterward. Approval for the Grenada action increased from 64 percent to 86 percent. The percentage who disapproved of U.S. policy in Lebanon dropped from 45 to 20, while the percentage opposed to the invasion of Grenada fell from 26 to 14.

Vice President George Bush defended the invasion in Houston. "Somebody has to have the moral leadership to come with these countries... and say we'll be at your side," he said. "It not the United States, who?"

Some Marine remains may never be identified

By SCOTT MacLEOD
United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The number of U.S. Marines and sailors killed in the bombing of an American military headquarters could top 250 and some of the bodies were so badly mutilated they may never be identified, a spokesman said Friday.

The grim forecasts came as Lebanese police questioned a possible suspect in the twin bombings last Sunday at the Marine center and a French barracks.

Security sources said the man, who was not identified, was arrested Thursday in a grocery store in Beirut's Moslem - Bir - Hassan neighborhood located between the Marine and French buildings razed by the deadly attacks.

"He is believed to have Iranian connections" and to be a follower of Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the sources said.

At the Marine compound near Beirut International Airport, Marine spokesman Maj. Robert Jordan, said rescue workers pulled to more bodies Friday from the rubble of the razed Battalion Landing Team building.

"The Pentagon has listed the casualty count at 226 Americans killed and 79 wounded, but Jordan estimated that the remains recovered so far constituted at least 230 bodies. He warned the actual number could rise to well over 250 dead because some body bags filled over the six days of digging through tons of jagged concrete — may contain the remains of more than one man.

Jordan said some bodies were so blown apart by the ton of explosives detonated in a speeding truck they may never be identified — a potentially heartbreaking setback for grieving relatives, many of whom have not been formally notified whether their sons and husbands are dead.

"The trauma of the explosion is virtually going to make it impossible to identify many individuals," said Jordan. "Certain individuals just don't exist in any form anymore."

Jordan said rescue workers have dug through three collapsed floors of the four-story building and only have the ground floor and basement left.

He said the around-the-clock search operation would continue "for at least one more day and then we can set it to a less intense pace."

Lebanese government officials had no immediate comment on the report of the arrest of the possible suspect.

Security sources said he was a low-level leader of a small militia, apparently one of the many operating in the densely populated Shiite Moslem slums of east Beirut.

Lebanese sources said the arrest was possible through the questioning of five persons jailed after the April 18 U.S. Embassy car bombing in which 63 people died.

The mood among the Marines in the 1,600-man contingent of the multinational peace-keeping force was more relaxed, with their alert at condition 2, less than the highest state.

A memorial service for the dead troops, scheduled Friday, was delayed until all the dead were recovered.

Eight of the wounded servicemen arrived Friday at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington from a military hospital in Wiesbaden, West Germany.

"I'm damned glad to be here," Lance Cpl. Michael Bultson of Mt. Vernon, Va., with his head wrapped in bandages, told reporters as he stepped off the plane.

More than 1,000 Marines who survived the attack called home on toll-free phones to reassure worried relatives.

Set clocks back

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The nation's annual exercise of setting clocks and watches back one hour takes place early Sunday morning, when daylight retreats from America.

While speaking, the nation is expected to set its alarm clocks, pocket watches and digital timepieces back one hour at 2 a.m. local time on the last Sunday of October.

Most people will make the change before they turn in Saturday night, thereby recapturing the hour's sleep that got away on the last Sunday in April.

"For remembering the return to standard time, the adjustment is a little bit of a change. Spring forward, fall back" is invaluable.

Senate fails with debts; session called

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate, facing a midnight Monday deadline, got bogged down Friday in "turkey shoot" over foreign policy and failed to pass a bill needed so the government can pay its debts and avert a $20 billion penalty.

The Senate scheduled a rare Saturday session to try to pass the bill raising the national debt limit.

Sen. Russell Long, D-La., senior Democrat on the Senate Finance Committee, urged senators to withhold amendments to the bill if they do not deal with the national debt. "If only in the interest of saving the taxpayers $20 billion."

The Senate failed to accomplish much Friday as senators offered a host of amendments to the bill covering a wide range of non-money issues, from Cuban prisoners in Grenada to the American forces in Lebanon and Grenada.

"It's sort of a turkey shoot," Senate Finance Committee Chairman Robert

Dole, R-Kan., complained to his colleagues. "Everybody's got their own turkey and they want to attach it to this bill."

"So let's talk about about war powers and a nuclear freeze," Dole, sponsor of the debt limit bill, said sarcastically. "We know a lot about a freeze" in the tax-writing finance committee.

The bill would raise the Treasury's borrowing authority to $1.45 trillion — which would carry the government through January — from the current limit of $1.389 trillion. The increase is needed so the government can borrow more money to pay its debts.

In the past, when the debt limit deadline approached, the Treasury would warn that failure to extend the debt ceiling on time would result in the government not being able to meet the federal payroll or to make Social Security and unemployment benefit payments.

White House, press feud over Grenada access

WASHINGTON (UPI) — White House spokesman Larry Speakes clashed bitterly with reporters for the fourth straight day Friday over the administration's handling of news coverage of the U.S. invasion of Grenada.

While denying he was justifying censorship, Speakes said the first report by a journalist reaching

Grenada "was wrong as heck" and a "hum story."

Speakes has been under fire from reporters since the American invasion Tuesday for having unintentionally misled them about the impending action, the government's refusal to let reporters onto the island for two days — and only then under strict military control — and on ch-neting information supplied by the Pentagon.

Speakes' daily briefing for the White House press corps again broke down into bickering Friday as Speakes defended the administration's actions.

"Now, the media's there, and the first story out of there last night was just as wrong as heck," Speakes said.

"It was a UPI bulletin prelude that indicated there was a major firefight going on ... and it was totally erroneous, and the guy was there and the guy saw some aircraft come in and he totally overreported."

"Why aren't reporters allowed to cover the war?" Speakes asked, repeating an oft-asked question.

100-year-old ex-lawman accused of slayings

GRANTS, N.M. (UPI) — Autopsies were performed Friday on the bodies of two men who authorities said appeared to have been shot and possibly hanged by a century-old, former lawman and cattle rustler.

Gus Raney, a wispy bearded centenarian, is accused of killing Emery Smith, 60, and his son, Erik, 21, both of Aptos, Calif. Their bodies were found on Raney's isolated ranch.

Charged with two counts of first-degree murder, Raney was held Friday under $100,000 bond.

Raney, called a local legend in the Grants area and described by some as "Pecos Bill, Paul Bunyan and Wyatt Earp all rolled into one," was arraigned Thursday.

Autopsies were performed on the victims Friday and authorities said results were expected to be released late Friday or Saturday. Officers said it appeared the victims had been shot and hanged. They said the victims may have been dead for as many as four days.

The bodies were found on Raney's ranch Wednesday by Cibola County Sheriff R.W. Driggers while investigating a missing-persons report.

Assistant District Attorney Warren Harris said Emery Smith had visited Raney almost annually for the past 18 years.

Democrats compare contenders

MANCHESTER, N.H. (UPI) — Presidential contenders seeking support Friday from New Hampshire Democrats found that party leaders wanted something in return — support for an early New Hampshire primary.

The candidates campaigned on the eve of a Democratic state convention during which they will participate in a forum before an expected 1,000 delegates — and be charged $1,500 each for the privilege.

The presence of the candidates offered state party leaders clout in a dispute with national Democratic rule makers over the date of New Hampshire's 1994 primary.

New Hampshire Secretary of State William Gardner has set the state primary election for Feb. 23 to get a one-week jump on Vermont's straw poll and preserve New Hampshire's first-in-the-nation primary status.

"We reviewed the legislative history, and we think the secretary of state's establishment of that date was correct," said state Attorney General Gregory Smith. He said it complies with a state law requiring the first-in-the-nation status.

FBI drilled after killing

HOUSTON (UPI) — A police detective Friday said two U.S. Secret Service men did witness the slaying of a doorman at a condominium but said the police department cannot comment why the two made no attempt to arrest the suspect.

Gregory D. Chafin, 25, of Westerville, Ohio, was gunned down outside the St. James Condominia Thursday in what police described as a "ruthless, calculated" killing. Police Friday had no motive or suspect in the slaying.

Police said two plain clothes Secret Service officers in Houston arranging security for a visit of Vice President George Bush witnessed the killing, but took no action to intervene, arrest the suspect or copy the license plate number of the suspect's car.

"We will not discuss the acts of the Secret Service people who were out there on the scene," said homicide detective J.C. Mosier. "They were there and did witness the incident and, for whatever reasons, were unable to apprehend the suspect or get a license number."

Union wages falling behind

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Union contracts during the first nine months of 1993 resulted in an average yearly wage increases of 2.9 percent, the lowest three-quarter average in the 15-year history of such data, the Labor Department said Friday.

The department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said the September averages were low because about one-fifth of the 1.9 million workers covered by settlements took wage cuts, and another one-fifth received no specific wage change over the duration of their contracts.

The 494 contracts, involving at least 1,000 workers each, showed first-year wage increases averaging 1.7 percent, second-year hikes of 3.9 percent, and third-year increases of 3.2 percent.

Soviets say Reagan acted like terrorist

By STEVEN R. REED
United Press International

MOSCOW — President Reagan acted like a terrorist in sending U.S. forces into Grenada, the official Soviet news agency Tass said Friday.

"Reagan and Co. act on the international scene like terrorists and organizers of criminal actions, the purpose of which is to establish U.S. diktat over sovereign countries and peoples," Tass analyst Yuri Kornilov wrote.

"The nature of the approach of Reagan's team to international affairs has now been laid completely bare," he said.

"If one regime or another does not meet Washington's standards, the U.S. leadership, trampling underfoot every norm of international law and the U.N. charter, as is the case in Grenada, sends against it the Marines, bringing death and slavery to sovereign countries and peoples."

A U.S. State Department official said the United States would not listen to lectures about intervention from the Soviet Union because of its record in Hungary, Czechoslovakia and Afghanistan.

Another Soviet reaction, carried by the Novosti news agency, said it was wrong for the Reagan administration to justify the invasion of Grenada to protect the American medical students on the island.

"One should recall that on Sept. 1, 1939, Nazi Germany engineered the invasion of Poland on an excuse just as flimsy, when it staged an attack on one of its border radio stations," Novosti said.

The commentary said Reagan tried to justify the unjustifiable during his television address on Thursday night. It said none of his arguments could be substantiated.

"First of all, his assertion that he was awakened in the wee hours of the morning to consider a request of six U.S. puppet states to invade Grenada is ludicrous, as the U.S. naval fleet was already moving into position for the invasion," Novosti said.

Scientist discovers ancient altar

HAIFA, Israel (UPI) — An archaeologist said Friday he "very probably" has found the altar that Moses and Joshua commanded the biblical Israelites to build on Mount Ebal.

The discovery, called without parallel in the Holy Land, was made by archaeologist Adam Zartel, of Kibbutz Ein Shemer, during three seasons of excavations sponsored by Haifa University.

The site is near the top of a 2,700-foot mountain overlooking Wadi Pharaoh in an enclosed military area in the occupied West Bank.

In an interview, Zartel said that he had found a large stone object standing in the middle of a compound that he unearthed. The object was filled with ashes and sheep bones — presumably debris left from sacrifices that were offered on the altar.

Zartel said the altar was built in the 12th century B.C., a period that followed closely the Israelites' exodus from slavery in Egypt and conquest of the Promised Land of Canaan, now Israel.

In the Old Testament, Deuteronomy

27, it says Moses instructed the Israelites to build "an altar of stones and offer burnt sacrifices to God."

The eighth chapter of the Book of Joshua, which describes the conquest of Canaan, says that Joshua built the altar soon after the Israelites crossed the Jordan River from the east.

Zartel said there was no way to be absolutely certain but the site "very probably" is the altar of Moses and Joshua. He said no other archaeological sites have been found on Mount Ebal dating to the biblical period.

Searchers may have located ship

PEKING (UPI) — Searchers in the stormy South China Sea Friday found a lifeboat and a sunken object that officials said could be the Glomar Java Sea, the U.S. oil drilling ship missing with 81 Americans and Chinese aboard.

The search also widened as two Vietnamese naval vessels joined Chinese and American rescue planes, ships and helicopters battling high seas and heavy rains left over from Tropical Storm Lex.

The official Xinhua news agency said a Chinese helicopter spotted a white lifeboat that "may belong to the American vessel" and that ships had been sent to retrieve it.

One of the 14 Chinese ships taking part in the search also detected a large "unidentified object" under 300 feet of water in the area off China's southern coast where the Glomar Java Sea sent a distress signal Tuesday, Xinhua said.

It said the object measured 320 feet by 165 feet and was 66 feet high but "so far has not been proved to belong to the American ship."

"We have no idea yet if it's the Glomar Java Sea but that's one possibility," said Bill Weller of Atlantic Richfield, the Los Angeles-based oil company which had leased the ship from Global Marine Inc. of Houston.

A spokesman for Global Marine said more than half of the 81 people on board the stricken vessel were Americans. Xinhua said 46 "foreigners" were aboard but it was not clear if they were all Americans.

Arrests, curfews quell West Bank protests

NABLUS, Israel-occupied West Bank (UPI) — Rock throwing and a student demonstration led to several arrests and curfews on the occupied West Bank, Israeli officials and Palestinian sources said Friday.

Israeli police arrested several members of the student council at Bethlehem University on the grounds they held an exhibition last week with "inflammatory" Palestinian material.

Rocks were thrown at an Israeli bus passing the Dehaishe refugee camp near Bethlehem Wednesday, and an Israeli army spokesman said a "closure," or limited curfew, was imposed along the Jerusalem-Hebron highway for several hours. Two passengers were injured slightly.

Palestinian sources said Israeli settlers tried to break into Dehaishe after the buses after a stone struck and slightly wounded a woman.

Refugees at the Balatta camp near Nablus raised the Palestinian flag and a photo of Palestine Liberation Organization leader Yasser Arafat and threw stones at an Israeli vehicle. The army said one person was hurt.

Tanaka refuses to leave parliament seat

TOKYO (UPI) — Confronted by ex-premier Kakuei Tanaka — the "Shadow Shogun" — apparently rejected a request Friday from his protégé, Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone, to resign from Parliament to end a bitter political crisis.

The crisis that has led to a deadlock in the Diet, Japan's parliament, came two weeks before a scheduled visit by President Reagan to the country.

Nakasone confronted Tanaka for more than an hour inside a hotel room in Tokyo but no details of their conversation were released. The two men walked out somber-faced from the meeting.

Government sources said Wednesday that Nakasone was going to ask Tanaka at the meeting to resign from Parliament.

The face-off, the first between the two men since Tanaka received a four-year sentence earlier this month on a bribery charge, followed a two-week stalemate in the Diet, or parliament, stemming from opposition demands that Tanaka quit his membership in the Lower House.

"Nakasone is in a big pinch," said a senior official of the ruling Liberal Democratic Party.

The prime minister said only, "I can't tell you" when asked whether he brought up Tanaka's resignation issue at the meeting.

Geologists: Quake just a mountain builder?

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

CHALLIS — Tremendous as it was, Friday's earthquake may be just another step up in the raising of Borah Peak, Idaho's tallest mountain.

A long rift in the earth and measurements from several seismic stations have placed the epicenter of the severe quake along the base of the 12,600-foot peak, an Idaho geologist who surveyed the area said Friday.

Other scientists said the quake appeared to be rather shallow, about four to five miles beneath the surface. That would fit patterns of quakes in the area during recent times, they said.

The shaking is not over yet. The earth will continue to shudder for days or weeks while it adjusts to a new position and new pressures, experts from both Idaho and Utah warned.

After flying over the shock zone, Edmund Williams, the director of the Boise College Seismograph Network, said he and another geologist found the epicenter right where the instruments had indicated. The quake took place along an existing fault at the foot of the mountain and left behind a telltale rift, called a scarp.

"It's a ledge, sometimes like a staircase, but it's 12 miles long and 10 to 15 feet high," Williams said. "The scarp starts right about 15 miles north of Mackay and extends along the base of the mountain."

Teams of other scientists from the U.S. Geological Survey's earthquake center in Denver and from other institutions were rushing to the area late Friday to monitor the aftershocks and the effects of the hefty quake.

Bill Richter, a seismologist from the University of Utah, was one of five university scientists preparing to carry portable sensors into the area. "We're going right to the epicenter area," he said. "We'll probably be there for several weeks."

John Minch, a geophysicist for the National Earthquake Information Service, said a half-dozen geologists and technicians from the federal earthquake center also were flying into the area.

As they left, their instruments still were recording waves of smaller shocks.

The largest, measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale, rumbled through the area at 1:15 p.m., about five hours after the initial quake. It was smaller than the first shock, which measured 6.9 on the scale, but there were dozens, perhaps hundreds, of others.

"The aftershocks are averaging about one every two minutes at this time," said Williams late Friday afternoon. "This morning, there were two or three a minute. The pen on the seismograph are just writing one earthquake on top of another."

Many will be less than a magnitude of 2, undetectable to most people. Yet in the hours after the main event, people still could feel one or two of the larger reverberations every hour, Williams said.

Each number on the open-ended Richter scale indicates a ten-fold increase in the force of the quake. Scientists consider a quake with a magnitude of 5 as having the potential for considerable damage; one measuring 7 is a major quake, capable of widespread, heavy damage.

While experts may not have expected the size of Friday's quake, they were not surprised that it occurred.

The general area is geologically complex and a significant fault runs right down the Lost River Valley, said Roy Breckenridge, a specialist in geologic hazards with the Idaho Bureau of Mines and Geology.

Eleanor Williams was just getting out of her car, parked next to the Mackay Drug Store, when the earthquake hit. Part of the building collapsed, sending concrete blocks and masonry crashing down on her car. Williams received cuts and bruises from the falling rubble, but she escaped serious injury. She was reported in satisfactory condition in the Lost River Hospital at Arco.

Area residents relate Quake caused folks to panic

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls woman and her son who were in Challis at 8:05 a.m. Friday described the scene there as total panic.

"People poured out of the buildings and into the street. They were screaming and running. About the only way I can describe it is panic," said Richard Sharral, 19, of Twin Falls.

He and his mother, Ann Sharral, and a friend, Joanna Schmidt, had driven from Twin Falls to Challis on Thursday evening for a Friday court appointment.

"We were just finishing breakfast in a cafe (about two or three miles from downtown Challis)," said Mrs. Sharral. "It was very frightening. The first thing that happened was that all the lights went out, and immediately the floor began shaking. Glassware slid to the floor, things fell off the walls and the chandelier began swinging."

Her son said he was thrown against the back wall of the cafe and then into the table by the initial shocks. Both he and his mother said there was no doubt in their minds but that they were in the middle of an earthquake.

RICHARD SHARRAL Was visiting from Twin Falls

"My first thought was to get out of the building," Richard Sharral said.

Once outside, he found the ground was rolling and seemed to rise and fall as much as a foot with each shock. He estimated the rolling continued for more than a minute, but it seemed longer.

Disaster declared but help available

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

CHALLIS — Gov. John Evans has declared parts of Custer County an "extreme disaster area."

He flew to Challis, Mackay and Arco on Friday afternoon to survey the damage.

Damage in the area is "in the millions of dollars," his press secretary, Jean Terra, said late Friday night.

Yet, Evans found the people in "good spirits and helping each other." Terra said. Within an hour of the earthquake, every home in the area had been visited by a neighbor to make sure nobody had been hurt, Evans reported.

Traveling with the governor Friday were Gen. James Brooks of the Idaho National Guard, a doctor and an engineer. Brooks remained in Challis to see if more state aid is needed.

A spokesman for the governor says his "disaster declaration" mostly will "free-up state agencies to help as needed with the disaster."

Already, the Idaho National Guard has sent a helicopter into Challis National Forest to check for collapsed mines, and Mountain Home Air Force Base flew paramedics into Challis Friday morning.

The state Health and Welfare Department also flew a doctor and medical equipment into Challis, although so far, the doctors have not been needed.

However, since aftershocks may continue for several days, most medical personnel planned to stand by.

Rangers in the Challis area still were driving Forest Service roads Friday evening to look for blocked roads and hunters who may have been hurt by falling boulders in the rocky area.

Latest quake almost as large as 1959 disaster

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The tremors that shook parts of seven Western states Friday nearly equaled in intensity the region's most forceful recorded quake, a 1959 earthquake near West Yellowstone, Mont.

But fortunately, the toll of human lives in Friday's earthquake was well below the 29 official deaths and other suspected fatalities that occurred in 1959. Officials have confirmed two deaths in Idaho from Friday's quake.

In the earlier quake, an estimated 60 million tons of rock and rubble crashed down a 1,300-foot cliff into a campground near Yellowstone National Park on the night of Aug. 17, 1959.

The falling rock resulted in gale-force winds that stripped clothing and sleeping bags from survivors and victims alike. Some persons reportedly were hurled into the air by the winds.

That quake measured 7.25 on the Richter scale, just higher than the 6.9 to 7.2 readings reported for Friday's quake.

The 80 million tons of fill in the 1959 quake created a new natural dam in the Madison River. The new lake formed by the earthen dam — appropriately called Earthquake Lake — is downstream from the Hebgen Dam.

The Montana quake capped some geysers, triggered other geysers and altered the regular timing of Old Faithful's eruptions.

Hebgen Dam sustained damage to its concrete core after a 20-foot-high column of water sloshed from Hebgen Lake over the top of the restraining wall.

Seismologists recorded 270 aftershocks in the 24 hours that followed the 1959 quake. Rubble was piled as high as 400 feet over one road surface; another road slipped into Hebgen Lake in four different locations.

Quake causes little damage in valley, but produces stories

By PAT BEAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Friday morning's earthquake did not do much damage in the Magic Valley, but it left in its wake dismayed homemakers, chilly Ketchum residents, an embarrassed high school girl, happy Minidoka County students, broken chimneys, a stalled train, a rocked rock house and plenty of anecdotes.

"The only injury reported was to a Camas County High School student who was taking a shower at the school when the building began to shake a few minutes after 8 a.m.

She slipped, hit her head and was found unconscious where she had fallen. The injured student was taken to the Blaine County Medical Center, but she was released after being treated for a minor head concussion.

The girl was overheard saying her pride was more injured than was her head.

Structural damage was reported in Fairfield, but numerous rocks were thrown on highways. County workmen, however, quickly cleared the roads.

Students in Minidoka County all got the day off from school. Both the East Minico and West Minico junior highs sustained what appeared to be serious structural damage and the superintendent sent all students home as a precautionary measure.

West Minico Principal Michael V. Chesley said, "We rang the fire bell at 9:10 a.m. and evacuated the building."

He said a check of the building showed numerous hairline cracks in the north end of the building, several of which went from the ceiling to the floor.

"It appears that a couple of support beams in the gym are cracked, and that a support beam in the band room has pulled away from the ceiling," Chesley said.

Superintendent Gene Snapp said a structural engineer from Boise would be on hand today and that a decision would be made at that time as to whether school would be held in the two buildings on Monday.

Ironically, the two schools that suffered the damage are the district's newer schools, both built in 1970, and the old school that had been condemned sustained no damage.

At Castleford, the high-school students were sent home at noon as a precaution. The 60-year-old school, which officials have been trying to replace because of structural defects, appeared to survive OK, but officials were taking no chances. "An existing crack in the chimney did appear to be larger, school board member Mary Anne Bilek said.

The 60-year-old Bliss school also suffered some damage, but it was reported to be only "four minor cracks."

With the exception of bricks broken off chimneys, probably the most common damage in the valley, Shoshone's major complaint came from homemakers who had to face broken fruit jars on basement floors. Area grocery stores also faced minor cleanup of items that were flung from shelves. Several stores reported damage in the neighborhood of $100 to $200.

In Hagerman, it was reported that a rock house rocked, but no major damage was sustained. City clerk Lee Graham said her double-wide mobile home felt like it was being tossed around by the wind.

Girolanne Cortabartre, also of Hagerman, said she stood in her bedroom doorway and watched a framed picture fall off her television.

"At first I thought someone was pounding on the side of our house. But then the floor started moving and the dishes started rattling," she said. June Holm of Wendell said the 39-second quake "felt like forever. My whole house just shook. I knew what it was right away."

In Ketchum, which was nearer to

Latest quake almost as large as 1959 disaster

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The tremors that shook parts of seven Western states Friday nearly equaled in intensity the region's most forceful recorded quake, a 1959 earthquake near West Yellowstone, Mont.

But fortunately, the toll of human lives in Friday's earthquake was well below the 23 official deaths and other suspected fatalities that occurred in 1959. Officials have confirmed two deaths in Idaho from Friday's quake.

In the earlier quake, an estimated 80 million tons of rock and rubble crashed down a 1,300-foot cliff into a campground near Yellowstone National Park on the night of Aug. 17, 1959.

The falling rock resulted in gale-force winds that stripped clothing and sleeping bags from survivors and victims alike. Some persons reportedly were hurled into the air by the winds.

That quake measured 7.25 on the Richter scale, just higher than the 6.9 to 7.2 readings reported for Friday's quake.

The 80 million tons of fill in the 1959 quake created a new natural dam in the Madison River. The new lake formed by the earthfill dam — appropriately called Earthquake Lake — is downstream from the Hebgen Dam.

The Montana quake capped some geysers, triggered other geysers and altered the regular timing of Old Faithful's eruptions.

Hebgen Dam sustained damage to its concrete core after a 20-foot-high column of water sloshed from Hebgen Lake over the top of the restraining wall.

Seismologists recorded 270 aftershocks in the 24 hours that followed the 1959 quake. Rubble was piled as high as 400 feet over one road surface; another road slipped into Hebgen Lake in four different locations.

Quake causes little damage in valley, but produces stories

By PAT BEAN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Friday morning's earthquakes did not do much damage in the Magic Valley, but it left in its wake annoyed homemakers, chilly Ketchum residents, an embarrassed high school girl, happy Minidoka County students, broken chimneys, a stalled train, a rocked rock house and plenty of anecdotes.

The only injury reported was to a Camas County High School student who was taking a shower at the school when the building began to shake a few minutes after 8 a.m.

She slipped, hit her head and was found unconscious where she had fallen. The injured student was taken to the Blaine County Medical Center, but she was released after being treated for a minor head concussion.

The girl was overheard saying her pride was more injured than was her head.

No structural damage was reported in Fairfield, but numerous rocks were thrown on highways. County workmen, however, quickly cleared the roads.

Students in Minidoka County all got the day off from school. Both the East Minico and West Minico Junior highs sustained what appeared to be serious structural damage and the superintendent sent all students home as a precautionary measure.

West Minico Principal Michael V. Chesley said: "We rang the fire bell at 8:10 a.m. and evacuated the building."

He said a check of the building showed numerous hairline cracks in the north end of the building, several of which went from the ceiling to the floor.

"It appears that a couple of support beams in the gym are cracked, and that a support beam in the band room has pulled away from the ceiling," Chesley said.

Superintendent Gene Snapp said a structural engineer from Boise would be on hand today and that a decision would be made at that time as to whether school would be held in the two buildings on Monday.

Ironically, the two schools that suffered the damage are the district's newer schools, both built in 1970, and the old school that had been condemned sustained no damage.

At Castleford, the high-school students were sent home at noon as a precaution. The 65-year-old school, which officials have been trying to replace because of structural defects, appeared to survive OK, but officials were taking no chances. An existing crack in the chimney did appear to be larger, school board member Mary Anne Blick said.

The 60-year-old Blick school also suffered some damage, but it was reported to be only "four minor cracks."

With the exception of bricks broken off chimneys, probably the most common damage in the valley, Shoshone's major complaint came from homemakers who had to face broken fruit jars on basement floors.

Area grocery stores also faced minor cleanup of items that were flung from shelves. Several stores reported damage in the neighborhood of $100 to $200.

In Hagerman, it was reported that a rock house rocked, but no major damage was sustained. City clerk Lee Graham said her double-wide mobile home felt like it was being tossed around by the wind.

Glorianne Cortabillarte, also of Hagerman, said she stood in her bedroom doorway and watched a framed picture fall off her television.

"At first I thought someone was pounding on the side of our house. But then the floor started moving and the dishes started rattling," she said. June Holm of Wendell said the 30-second quake "felt like forever. My whole house just shook. I knew what it was right away."

In Ketchum, which was nearer to

Eaton wins chamber's new award

TWIN FALLS — Curtis Eaton, the president of the Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co., has been named the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce's Person of the Year.

The honor was announced at 6:30 a.m. Friday to 350 sleepy Twin Falls business people at the chamber's first "Ambassador Success Breakfast."

Chamber member Mike McBride said the new contest and breakfast were started because "the daily grind has forgotten what a great place this (Twin Falls) is, how talented we are and how good life is."

In a recent Times-News article, Eaton agreed with McBride's sentiments. "I am a humble and God-fearing man, that is deeply grateful for the opportunity of living, working and raising a family in Twin Falls, Idaho," he said.

Over the years, Eaton, a lifetime Twin Falls resident, has been involved in a wide variety of civic affairs, serving at various times as president of the Idaho Outfitters' Association, the Idaho Bankers Association, the Idaho Council on the Arts, the Education and a downtown Twin Falls redevelopment group.

CURTIS EATON
Honored for his success

Finalists for the success award were: Johnny Urrutia, a Twin Falls High School math teacher; Marion Peterson, the credit manager for Horrett's Jewelers; Jack Muldoon, the manager of Finney Wise Druggery and Earl Faulkner, the owner of The Paris.

The breakfast began with a rousing chorus from the Twin Falls High School marching band and ended with a rousing success song by Fred Ball, the president of the Salt Lake City Chamber of Commerce.

Ball attributes his success in part to being open to change. "If you want to be successful, don't be cast in bronze, be flexible," he said.

Briefly Y holds party

TWIN FALLS — The YFCA in Twin Falls will hold an overnight and Halloween party this weekend for children 5 to 12.

Parents may bring their children to the Y in their Halloween costumes at 7:30 p.m. Saturday. Entertainment will include the movie "House of Dracula," cartoons, games for apples, swimming, video tapes and party games. Children will need sleeping bags, swimsuits and towels.

Spooks available

GLENN'S FERRY — For those ghastly souls willing to walk among phosts and goblins, the Glenn's Ferry Chamber of Commerce and the Glenn's Ferry High School girls varsity basketball and track teams are sponsoring a spook house at the old rock school building at 7:30 to 10 p.m.

To enter the haunted-school house, students will be charged 50 cents and adults $1.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — Auditions for the College of Commerce Idaho's production of "Fiddler on the Roof" will be held next Monday through Friday from 3 to 6 p.m.

No auditions will be held today, as was reported Wednesday. The auditions will be held in the Fine Arts Center auditorium. For more information, call 733-9554, extension 256.

Damage

The quake's epicenter, many residents did not spend their time standing in their homes watching things fall around them. Instead they made a mad dash — most still in their night clothes — for the outdoors. The nippy temperature at that time of the morning in Ketchum was below 30.

Debra Gay of Ketchum, a transported Californian who went through the California quake of 1971, said she knew what was happening immediately. "I thought the whole mountain was coming down," she said. "It was as bad as the California quake. It's just fortunate that we don't have the high-rises and large population, or there would have been a lot of dead and injured people."

Local gas, power and phone companies reported no significant damages.

Lake City to Challis to cook food and hand out essentials, like soap and toothpaste to the homeless. Red Cross disaster teams from Idaho Falls and Spokane, Wash., also will be assessing the damage.

None of the major dams in the area sustained any visible damage, said John Keys of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation. Workers checked about 40 dams in a 400-mile radius of the earthquake's epicenter at the base of Mount Borah, he said.

In the next few days, state officials will be checking to see if bridges still are structurally sound. If rock slides polluted the Salmon River and if new boulders in the Middle Fork of the Salmon River will create a hazard for rafters.

Two airplanes were sent up to check for signs of injured or trapped hunters in Wild Horse Canyon and other steep rocky areas. And rangers on the ground searched for hunters near parked vehicles. The Custer County sheriff also was setting up check stations to stop hunters and request that they call home to calm worried relatives. The Twin Falls Red Cross was swamped with out-of-state inquiries about Idaho friends and relatives. They found cracked and damaged buildings. They watched as rescuers dug through the rubble for the two young children who were killed when one wall collapsed. It was a grim situation, they said.

The buildings in Challis are old and are nearly all made of stone. We were surprised that more people were not killed or injured," he said.

The trio found the Courthouse, post office and schools closed. Only the town's two cafes remained open, he said.

Geology

Two extensive earth formations meet in the Challis area. One, called the basin and range area, underlies Utah, Nevada and the southern Idaho plains. The other, called the Idaho Batholith, is a mass of granite mountains that have been rising out of the earth for the past millions of years.

Where the two meet, fractures occur at stress points in the Earth's crust, and rock is shifting constantly, Breckenridge says. The entire area is geologically active.

Chuck Melssner, a geology assistant at Boise State University, said a Sept. 9 in a remote mountain region nearby. It measured 2.9 and caused no damage or injuries. The Redfish Lake area near Stanley felt five small earthquakes during a week's stretch in March.

The exact forces that caused Friday's shock will not be known until the scientists complete studies at the site. Breckenridge says: They also could help explain why the quake was felt over such a large area, many hundreds of miles in the West and in Canada, he says.

Williams said the placement of the rift over an old fault indicates that the earthquake is more of a local affair — another episode in the growth of Borah Peak. Friday's quake is how mountains are made, he said.

"We don't know whether the mountain moved up or the valley moved down," he said, "but Mount Borah is 10 to 15 feet higher above the valley floor than it was this morning."

Church observes Luther's birthday

TWIN FALLS - The 500th anniversary of the birth of Martin Luther will be celebrated Sunday across the nation - and in Twin Falls.
Members of the Our Savior Lutheran Church, at 1708 Heyburn Ave. E., will hold a special service at 9:30 a.m. pastor D. Lother Pletsz says.
The Sunday service will parallel Luther's beliefs, which were the impetus for the Reformation in the 16th century.
Luther worked to have Christian services, then said in Latin, conducted in the language and the music of the people. Pletsz says. During the Sunday service, chorale music of that period written by Luther will be sung in English by the congregation, instead of using the usual contemporary hymns, Pletsz says.
Although Luther's birthday is Nov. 10, it is being celebrated on the Sunday usually designated as Reformation Sunday. The day is recognized as the time when Luther posted his controversial beliefs, Pletsz says.
The public is invited to attend the service.

Christian school expert will speak

TWIN FALLS - An expert on Christian school management will lead a seminar and a workshop for Christian teachers this week at the Grace Baptist Church in Twin Falls.
Carl D. Herberster, a Christian school specialist from Bob Jones University in Greensville, S.C., will speak today on "Developing a Blueprint for Your Christian School." The seminar will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the church, at 738 Eastland Drive N. The public is invited.
Herberster also will speak during Sunday school at 9:40 a.m. and during the morning and evening services on Sunday.
An ordained minister and former businessman, Herberster has written several nationally published articles, two junior-high math textbooks and co-authored a book on effective Christian school management.
Herberster has served as a teacher and principal of a Christian school.
Next Thursday and Friday, the educator will conduct workshops for Christian teachers at the Twin Falls Christian Academy. The workshop is being sponsored by the Grace Baptist Church and is open to any teacher or interested person.
The sessions will begin at 9 a.m. The workshop will cost $5.

Universities divide their course roles

POCATTELLO (UPI) — With little controversy, the state Board of Education approved Friday role-and-mission statements that outline academic programs each Idaho university will emphasize.

Presidents of the state's three universities and one college signed the past month reviewing the staff recommendations, and decided to go along with basic provisions, Ms. Phillips said.

She said the plan was praise from the presidents and board members because it will avoid academic duplication and create a more coordinated statewide higher education system.

Under the plan, Boise State University will be the primary institution for business and economics, social sciences, public affairs, performing arts and interdisciplinary studies.

University of Idaho will be the lead institution for agriculture, forestry, mining, meteorology, engineering, architecture and international programs relating to law and foreign languages, she said.

Idaho State will be in charge of health professions and related physical sciences.

The proposal initially generated concern among college presidents, who feared a migration of students from programs at some schools to the lead university for that subject.

But the presidents, after meeting together, decided not to oppose the role-and-mission statements, Ms. Phillips said.

Board member Janet Hay praised the plan, saying the panel had tried for more than a decade to establish a more comprehensive system.

DeMeyer to work off DUI sentence at county

CALDWELL (UPI) — Former Deputy Idaho Attorney General Virginia DeMeyer will serve part of her manslaughter and drunken driving sentence by performing community service work for Canyon County, officials said Friday.

"We have been offered the services of a qualified person with abilities that will be of benefit to Canyon County," county commissioners said in a statement issued as the Canyon County Courthouse was being evacuated because of possible damage from Friday's earthquake.

The statement said the state Probation and Parole department had requested the county permit Ms. DeMeyer to fulfill the public service work portion of her sentence in her own county.

The statement did not say what Ms. DeMeyer's specific duties would be, but added she "will be working with programs where her abilities can best be used."

Although the Idaho State Bar Association earlier this month suspended Ms. DeMeyer's license to practice law for 45 days while her felony convictions are under review, the commissioners said she could serve in a paralegal capacity.

Extortion case goes on

BOISE (UPI) — A federal judge has rejected a Kuna woman's request for acquittal on extortion and conspiracy charges even though one of the jurors in the case had doubts about her guilt.

"The jury's verdict must have finally, and that finally must result at the time of the return of the verdict and the dismissal of the jury," Judge Marvin Callister said Thursday in the case of Lynae Dawn Putnam.

Ms. Putnam was convicted Sep. 21 along with co-defendant Donald Holmes of attempting to extort $30,000 from a Colorado man.

But juror Myrt Nutting said he had doubts about the verdict.

"Contrary to my true belief at the time, I cast my ballot for a guilty verdict to achieve a unanimous verdict, and because my will had been overcome by the fact that I was the only juror who entertained and does entertain that belief," Nutting said in an affidavit.

But Callister said the other jurors had not forced Nutting to vote for a guilty verdict, and added the entire 10-man, two-woman jury had agreed on the conviction in open court.

"Accordingly, the court finds no reason to grant the motion for judgment of acquittal or for a new trial," the judge said. "The evidence was and is sufficient to sustain the verdict."

Holmes, an Idaho State Prison inmate, was serving a 30-year term for rape, and Ms. Putnam were each convicted of two counts of extortion and conspiracy for exporting $30,000 from Michael Ratell, Colorado Springs, Colo.

Prosecutors said Holmes called Ratelle June 13 on a prison telephone and demanded that he mail money to an Eagle post office box leased by Ms. Putnam. Officials said Holmes threatened to kill Ratelle's friend, inmate James Heidenreich, if the demand was not met.

Mercury pollution reviewed

CARSON CITY (UPI) — Some $28,000 in federal funds will be used for a study on what to do about the high mercury level found in the waters of the Carson River, state Environmental Protection Chief Louis Dogdson said Wednesday.

He told the Legislative Interim Finance the level is in excess of federal standards. "The problem arises because of the huge amounts of mercury that came from the upstream mines and mills some 100 years ago.

The study will examine whether it might be best to conduct a dredging operation to remove the mercury or what other actions might be taken. Mercury can contaminate the water and fish in the river and through the years there have been warnings about its presence in the Carson River.

Economic indicators for September soar

By DENIS G. GULINO
United Press International

WASHINGTON—The government's index of leading economic indicators rose 0.9 percent in September.

That is the strongest advance in four months despite a downturn in the housing industry, the Commerce Department reported Friday.

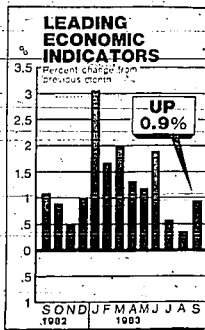

It was the 13th straight improvement in the government's most sensitive economic trend detector, but the figures reflected developing weakness in the help-wanted housing industry, burdened by high mortgage interest rates that helped drag building permits down for two months.

In a separate report, the department said the nation's September merchandise trade balance was $9.8 billion. Although less than August's monthly record of $7.2 billion, it was still enough to make the nine-month total for 1963 larger than the previous annual record for the trade deficit, officials said.

Officials blamed the strength of the dollar compared to the currencies of other trading partners for making American goods less attractive overseas, costing jobs in export industries despite the recovery.

The five indicators that contributed to the month's improvement were offset by surging new business formations and outweighed the month's five negative indicators.

The August index originally was reported as a slight decline, but later data on inventory spending changed it to a small 0.3 percent uptick, still the smallest gain in a year.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, "The recovery continues to chalk up a strong record of performance."

Private economist Jerry Jasnowski, speaking for the National Association of Manufacturers, said, "The stock-building process will continue to drive the economy well into 1964."

Jasnowski, like other forecasters, has revised upward his outlook for the last three months of the year so that in terms of gross national product it will be only slightly less vigorous than the second and third quarters.

"The fourth quarter should witness growth in the 7 percent range," he said, compared to a 7.9 percent annual rate in the third quarter and a 9.7 percent pace in the second quarter.

Along with new business formation, the indicators that improved in September were those measuring the average work-week, new claims for unemployment insurance, orders for factory equipment and stock prices.

On the down side with building permits were orders for consumer goods, the pace of deliveries, raw materials prices and the money supply.

The composite index of leading indicators reached 160.2 in September compared to a 167 level in 1962.

An accompanying index of coincident indicators, designed to measure the current economy, rose 1.6 percent in September.

The overall improvement in the leading economic indicators index in the July-September quarter was just 2.8 percent, less than half the gains made in the first three months of the year.

The index is supposed to be an early warning mechanism of dramatic changes ahead for the economy. It did poorly during the recession, however, seeing upticks that did not happen.

Clock runs out on Jerome harriers

Tigers' X-country dominance ends, but girls start their own tradition

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

BOISE — Wood River's girls claimed a state championship and perhaps the longest championship streak in Idaho's history came to an end on Friday.

Wood River, getting strong efforts from its third through fifth runners, turned back pre-race favored Weiser for the girls' Class B championship as defending champion Maureen McGinnis placed third to lead the attack.

Jerome's 10-straight championship streak to its fourth place in the Tigers slipped to fourth place in perhaps the best overall field in this division has seen since being formed

'They've been gunning for us for a long time, now it looks like we can start gunning for them.'

—Jerome Coach Tim Dunne

In the late 1960s, Senior Lance Gines placed third for the Tigers.

In the A division, Highland came through with both team titles as expected with Frank Horn of Capital and Nicholle Louther of Highland grabbed individual honors.

Twin Falls' girls ran fourth overall, seeing a chance for second place faller when luckless Teesie Szubert fell midway through the course and never was able to recover. Rachelle Thompson topped Twin Falls with ninth place. The Twin Falls boys, with Rod Uribe getting a ninth, placed fifth.

Wood River posted its good news in the first race, the Wolverines coming across in good shape and leading coaches Dennis Dempsey and Bob Shay to start tell each other "we might have won it" before the last runners had finished the course.

McGinnis, nipped by Nampa Christian's duo of Michelle Skyles and Jill Tilzey, was first for team scoring purposes since Nampa Christian didn't have a complete team. Michelle Jacques was eighth.

They were followed across by Ronda Christenson in 16th, Julie Gardner in 19th and Kim Rogers 25th.

"We fell coming in it was going to be a two-team race," said Dempsey, referring to Weiser. "We felt that Maureen and Michelle would run well so we kept after the other five girls, telling them this championship would rest on what the third, fourth and fifth runners did. All of our girls did very well. And Kim Rogers really came through. We had seven in before Weiser's fifth girl came across."

McGinnis finished perhaps 25 yards behind the Nampa Christian duo after those three had run tightly bunched over most of the course.

"It was up there," McGinnis said, pointing to a cul-de-sac that had the runners going up a rather steep hill, swinging around on a sidehill and then pounding down a cart path on the Shadow Valley Golf Course. "That was the difference. They just handled the hill better than I could."

Jerome Coach Tim Dunne took Friday's loss as stoically as he'd taken all 10 victories.

"We didn't go hard enough in that first mile, it seemed," he said of the team's effort. "But there were some quality kids here and more good teams than we've seen in this division for a while."

"We kinda saw the handwriting on the wall earlier when we ran against Madison and Middleton during the year. But our kids worked hard and I'm not disappointed with them. I think maybe we keyed a little too much on Madison and when we couldn't beat them, Middleton got in ahead of us, too."

Turning a little philosophical, Dunne said with a smile "they've been gunning for us for a long time, now it looks like we can start gunning for them."

The most unhappy of the Magic Valley contingent was Szubert, who has been running No. 1 for the Bruins all season.

Bruins drop first of year

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

NAMPA — Twin Falls lost its undefeated boast and had to come up with a dramatic comeback to squeak into the final round of the Idaho girls A-1 volleyball championship Saturday.

Meanwhile, fourth district A-2 champion Buhl strode into Saturday's championship round with a pair of easy victories.

The Bruins saw the undefeated boast die at the hands of Nampa and then had to battle back to beat Idaho Falls and Nampa in tie-breakers to advance to this morning's finals in the Northwest Nazarene College gymnasium.

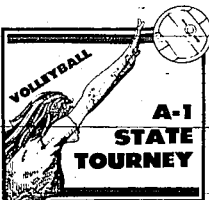

Twin Falls was the only team coming into the A-1 meet with a flossy 23-0 record and appeared headed for an easy victory when it thumped Nampa 15-2 in the first game. But the Bruins came back to win the second 15-10 and then out-fought the Bruins in a 60-minute marathon 15-14.

The length of that game may have proved Twin Falls' sear as in the next session, Idaho Falls topped Nampa 15-9, 15-10. Twin Falls then stayed alive by beating Idaho Falls 15-5, 15-0.

That left the pool all even at 1-1 and forced playoffs to see which would advance to today's finals rounds.

Idaho Falls and Nampa squared off first with Nampa taking a 5-0 lead and building on that margin for an easy 15-4 decision. Twin Falls then faced Idaho Falls, a team the Bruins had beaten three straight times counting regular season. Surprisingly after the defeat to Nampa, Idaho Falls stunned Twin Falls with an 8-0 deficit in quick succession as the Bruins ran into defensive letdowns.

But the Bruins drew back when Kris Reynolds took her turn at serving and junior Mallina Miller came up with some great spiking. Twin Falls struggled to an 11-11 tie but nearly lost its momentum with a dropped ball in the front row. But Reynolds' spike provided the deciding point as the Bruins eliminated Idaho Falls 15-13.

Since both Twin Falls and Nampa were safely in today's finals, the final game was a formality. But both teams were looking for momentum, giving the game some meaning to the coaches.

After fighting to an early 4-1 tie, Twin Falls went on a breakaway. With some of their finest spiking of the day, Twin Falls' Karrie Wiley and Jill Skeem teamed up to provide the offensive power while Reynolds and Miller backed them up at the base line.

Nampa nearly closed the gap but even with Lori Souza power hitting spikes, the closest it could get was 7-6. With Miller serving, the Bruins cruised to a 15-6 win.

Buhl hustles past nemesis Madison

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

NAMPA — There was very little drama for Buhl in Friday's opening round of the Class A-2 State Volleyball Tournament.

Buhl Coach Pat Thornberry who watched her charges avenge a conference loss to Madison 15-12, 15-6 and then beat Payette 15-3, 15-13.

"The girls had a positive attitude and good steady-play," the coach said.

Helping was 100 percent serving in the first game with Lori Easton providing most of that and Jayme Paulson and Michelle Bonar leading the attack at the net.

"It just seemed like Madison couldn't get a thing going," Thornberry said.

Buhl might have taken that first win over Payette with a grain of overconfidence because the Ladins had to battle to win the second. But good setting by Stacy Walker and the spiking of Bonar and Pam Hamilton allowed Buhl to carry the victory 15-13.

"The first game was relatively case. In the second game we had a few problems serving," Thornberry assessed.

Buhl is slated to play the second pool runner-up at 11:30 a.m. today with the winner advancing to the final this afternoon.

Miami relies on youth

The playoff hopes of both the Miami Dolphins and the Los Angeles Rams will rest in very young hands today.

Miami is 5-3 and shares first place

Gooding gets big one over rival Kimberly

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — That the Kimberly Bulldogs and the Gooding Senators played each other once was unfortunate enough. That the Fourth District sisters met twice reflected how evenly matched — and complicated — the A-3 State Volleyball Tournament became Friday.

A myriad of ties forced both pools into playoff rounds, with Gooding eliminating Kimberly, 15-9, in the decisive little game at the College of Southern Idaho.

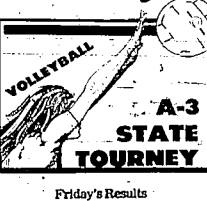

That outcome gave the Senators the Pool I runner-up spot and an 11:30 a.m. date today against Pool II champion McCall-Donnelly.

Friday night's extra sessions were necessitated when the three teams in both pools finished 1-1 in scheduled play.

A drawing was conducted to set up the playoff format. One team got a bye while the other two played a single game against each other. The winner would earn the pool championship; the loser had to face the team with the bye. The victor of the second playoff game became the pool's runner-up, while the loser suffered elimination.

Gooding spoiled its chance to go home relatively early by losing its initial playoff to the Malad Dragons, 15-13. The Senators, who had

Greenleaf cruises; Dietrich eliminated

By The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Thanks to Greenleaf Friends Academy, Friday's opening day of the A-4 State Volleyball Tournament at College of Southern Idaho was only half as messy as the A-3 section.

The Grizzlies advanced by downing the Clark County Bobcats, 15-12, 15-10 and the Malad Tigers 13-15, 15-5, 15-5. Dietrich, the Fourth District's lone representative, was eliminated by Cambridge 15-7 in a playoff round. The pool including the Blue Devils, Cambridge and Troy had to go into a playoff round when each team finished scheduled action with a 1-1 record.

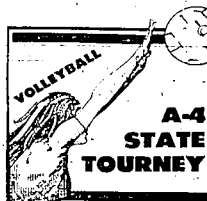

While the Blue Devils drew a bye, Troy defeated Cambridge, 15-6. This sent the Bulldogs against Dietrich in a loser-out affair.

Cambridge, propelled by Kristin Riebel's hitting and Robin Kretling's serving, jumped to a 6-0 lead. Dietrich halved the Bulldogs' bulge, but Cambridge scored five of the next six points to assume a safe cushion.

Leading 11-7, the Bulldogs put Dietrich away with four consecutive scorching serves from Kretling.

For Dietrich Coach Ben Stroud, seeing his Blue Devils victimized by serving was somewhat unsettling. They suffered a similar fate in last year's tournament.

"Two years in a row, I thought I learned my lesson last year," he said, shaking his head. "We worked on (returning) the serve a lot. But I'll be darned if it did it again."

Friday's Results Regular session
Greenleaf d. Clark County, 15-12, 15-10; Dietrich d. Troy, 15-6, 10-15, 15-13; Cambridge d. Dietrich, 15-11, 15-13; Greenleaf d. Mullan, 13-15, 15-5, 15-5; Mullan d. Clark County, 15-10, 15-7; Troy d. Cambridge, 15-10, 15-13.

Playoffs

Idaho Falls gridders outlast Bruins

IDAHO FALLS — The Idaho Falls Tigers, feasting off five turnovers; out-dueled Twin Falls 36-29 in a Gen. Slutz conference game last night.

While the turnovers kept the Tigers in the chase for a second berth in the state A-1 playoffs, they were bitter pills for Twin Falls which amassed nearly 400 yards in total offense and gave up all but three fumbles and two pass interceptions.

In a seesaw battle, it appeared the Bruins would blow Idaho Falls away when it rolled into a 14-0 lead in the first quarter. Two quick turnovers let the Tigers erase that and breeze into a 22-14 halftime lead. But Twin Falls appeared to dominate in pulling into a tie in the third quarter. Even after that, there were two more lead exchanges until Greg Beck's 39-yard field goal thrust the Tigers ahead to stay with 2:49 left in the game. A late fumble and interception allowed Idaho Falls to pad the final count and run out the clock.

It was just a matter of Idaho Falls being better in its two quarters than Twin Falls was in its. Twin Falls controlled the ball in the first and third periods. Idaho Falls had six plays for two punts in the first period and three plays and one punt in the third. However, Shaun Carter romped 80 with a kickoff to offset two Bruin scores after half time.

An Idaho Falls punt set up Twin Falls' first scoring drive. The Bruins taking over at midfield and marching home in five plays. The big gainer was a 19-yard keeper by quarterback Doug Petersen before Scott Morgan swept 11 yards for the score. Nate Burkke kicked the first of three conversions.

After another Tiger punt and a 15-yard penalty, Twin Falls rolled 75 yards to make it 14-0. Federico scored from 17 yards out.

Up to that point, Twin Falls' defense was dominating — although in the early second quarter the Tigers clicked on a long pass from Greg Talamantez to Don Hansen for a first down at the 17. The Bruins held there, taking the ball back at the 31 but three plays later, Federico, who rushed for more than 150 yards, coughed up the first of his three fumbles at the 38. Four plays later, Carter swept 51 from the three and a pass to Troy Hunsman added the two-pointer.

Shortly after the kickoff, Fritz Schultz picked off a Petersen pass and returned it from midfield to the Bruin 10. Two plays later, Talamantez plunged in from the one and Beck's extra point kick sent the Tigers ahead 15-14.

They padded that with 48 seconds left in the half: Twin Falls got off a short 39-yard punt to midfield. On reverse, lateral and forward pass play, Talamantez wound up with a 51-yard strike to Kevin Pettit that carried in to the Twin Falls and Beck converted.

Twin Falls controlled the third quarter, taking the kickoff and marching behind the running of Federico to a first-down inside the Tigers 5. Federico fumbled that chance away but the drive paid off when the Twin Falls defense forced the Tigers to punt. It carried only to the Tiger 43 and Twin Falls immediately turned Federico loose on two runs for the 27. At that point, the Tigers stiffened to force a fourth down but Petersen beat it on a screen pass to Federico, who romped 19 yards to paydirt. Petersen then hit Bob Burwell who made a leaping catch deep in the end zone for the tying two-point conversion.

But that he lasted only seconds. After one kickoff was nullified by a penalty, Carter gathered in a short boot on his own 25 — and scooted the length of the field — breaking on tackle along the way. Beck's kick strayed wide, giving Twin Falls an opening.

The Bruins seized on it immediately. Federico ripped for 39 yards in two runs and then Petersen and Burwell hooked up on a 27-yard scoring pass. Burke gave Twin Falls its last lead at 23-26.

Idaho Falls came right back with a 31-yard bomb to Pettit to threaten, beating a fourth down play on a spot by the official that had the Twin Falls coaching staff protesting vehemently.

After a first down, Idaho Falls looked at fourth and 10 and this time Beck drilled his 39-yard field goal.

Immediately after the kickoff, Twin Falls pushed quickly out to midfield, only to fumble again. The cake icing came on fourth and 10 when Talamantez hooked up with Pettit for a 26-yard touchdown play.

The Tigers then intercepted a screen pass and ran out the clock inside the Bruins 15.

"I think the girls are a lot more relaxed now that our undefeated record isn't that big of a deal," said Bruin Coach Kathy Anderson. "The games were really funny. You saw how we won 15-0 against Idaho Falls and really had to work hard to beat them again. It's a game of momentum."

Twin Falls will play Highland at 10 a.m. today while Nampa will go against Sandpoint, last year's state champion. Those two winners will play for the championship this after-lost the Dragons 17-15 in the tourney opener, failed to hold leads of 11-5 and 13-9 in the extra game.

This pitted Gooding against Kimberly, which had secured the Pool 1 bye. The Bulldogs began their play by winning 14-1, 15-1, but the Senators forged the three-way tie by stifling Kimberly, 15-9, 15-11.

In the extra game, Kimberly narrowed a 5-1 deficit to 6-4 before a procession of side-outs ensued. The Senators then took control matters at 8-9 on the serving of Francene Greenhagh and the spiking of Teresa Wright.

A neat dink by Julie Clemons, however, gave the Senators a lead which they continued to increase. Ultimately, a side-out gave them the situation they wanted: a 12-9 advantage. Clemons serving and the hard-hitting Angela Hohorst at the net. The combination proved effective, as two Hohorst kills sandwiched a difficult Clemons serve, enabling Gooding to survive.

Kimberly Coach Jean Emerson was understandably upset with the mismatch team befall through the playoff system.

"You can't have teams drawing out of a hat at the state tournament and having two of the top teams in the state in the same pool," she said.

Gooding and the end of her statement. "But that's the way it goes," she said.

Turning her thoughts to the playoff game, Emerson felt her Bulldogs lacked their usual initiative.

"I think we just kind of sat back and let them take it to us," she said. "If we take it to them and play a game like we can play... my girls were looking like they were playing like they were playing and putting it over the net."

Gooding Coach Jelene Toome, flushed with victory and impressed at finishing 16 hours of training at the CSI gymnasium, agreed with Emerson's assessment.

"I seemed to me Kimberly wasn't moving on the floor as I've seen them do before," Toome said. "I don't think they spiked well... it was just during the district tourney."

Toome admitted the Senators had displayed inconsistency throughout the day, but ultimately praised their desire.

"It was just determination," she said. "We got the lead here (against Kimberly), and we decided we wouldn't let it in this game."

McCall-Donnelly took the Pool II title by edging the Sugar-Salem Diggers, 17-15. While Gooding was playing Kimberly out of the tourney, the Diggers were doing the same to Kamiah, 15-13, reversing a 15-11, 15-4 defeat the previous year in the regularly scheduled evening match.

Earlier, Malad topped Gooding before losing to Kimberly. Against the Senators, the Dragons grabbed an early first-game lead, but the Senators held their own 9-8 tie. However, Malad triumphed after seesaw duels. In the second game, Malad assumed a commanding 9-2 lead, essentially settling matters.

Not yet vintimized by their evening lethargy, Kimberly cruised through both games against the Dragons.

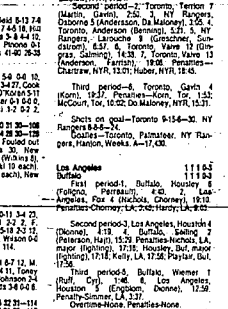

Additionally, McCall-Donnelly beat Kamiah 16-12, 4-15, 15-13 and lost to Sugar-Salem 5-15, 15-11, 15-13.

Kamiah held a 10-0 lead in the opener against McCall-Donnelly. Kamiah saw its lead dissipate and the Vandals took the lead for the first time 13-12 and went on to breeze to a 15-12 victory. The Kubbs dominated the second game, once took an early lead in the final game, but the Vandals battled to a 9-9 tie. McCall-Donnelly took its first lead, 12-11, but Kamiah led it up at 13-13. But the Vandals took the next two points and the match.

76ers open in style

By United Press International

Bobby Jones converted a technical foul throw with 12 seconds remaining and Andrew Toney added two foul shots nine seconds later Friday night as the Philadelphia 76ers opened their NBA season with a 117-114 victory over the Washington Bullets.

The game was officiated by the league's Supervisor of Officials Darrell Garretson and former NBA referee Bernie Fryer. Several of the league's regular officials picked outside-the-spectra before the game, judged by National League umpire Eric Gregg and Jerry Crawford.

The 76ers led 114-108 with less than a minute remaining but Jeff Ruland scored six points within a 42-second span and the Bullets tied the score 114-114 with 12 seconds to go. However Ruland was charged with the technical after his game-tying basket.

Philadelphia led 57-51 at halftime but the Bullets closed to within 90-89 with 3:42 left on a disputed foul-goal by rookie Deane Davis. Philadelphia coach Billy Cunningham protested the game at that point, claiming Davis had scored after the whistle had stopped play, but Garretson ruled otherwise.

Miss Malone and Andrew Toney each had 27 points for Philadelphia and Julius Erving added 23. Frank Johnson had 28 points and Ruland 23 to lead the Bullets.

Detroit 127, Boston 121

In Pontiac, Mich., Ish Thomas hit a 22-foot jumper with 47 seconds left for the go-ahead basket and the Detroit Pistons posted a season-opening victory over the Boston Celtics. The victory was Chuck Daly's first as Detroit's coach and spoiled the Boston coach's debut of one-time Celtic star K.C. Jones.

Los Angeles 117, Kansas City 107

In Kansas City, Mo., Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and Jamaal Wilkes scored 25 points apiece to lead the Los Angeles Lakers to a season-opening victory over the Kansas City Kings. Jabbar and Wilkes combined for 16 points over the game's final seven minutes to carry the Lakers from a 96-85 deficit to the runaway victory. Each of the former UCLA All-American players had eight points as Los Angeles outscored Kansas City 22-11 over that span.

New Jersey 126, Atlanta 103

In East Rutherford, N.J., Otis Birdsong hit on 12-of-14 shots from the field on route to 27 points to lead the New Jersey Nets to a season-opening triumph over the Atlanta Hawks, spilling the head coaching debut of Mike Fratello. The Nets decided the game in the opening quarter when they ran off 19 straight points after Atlanta took a 13-10 advantage. Now Jersey led 34-17 at the end of the period as Birdsong scored 12 points.

New York 113, Cleveland 106
In Richfield, Ohio, Bill Cartwright tossed in 24 points and Rory Sparrow chipped in with 16, including eight in the final five minutes to pace the New York Knicks to a victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers in the NBA season opener for both clubs. After a free throw by Geoff Huston cut the New York lead to 22-20 with 53 seconds left in the first period, the Knicks reeled off six straight points in the next 40 seconds on a pair of baskets by rookie Darrell Walker and a layup by Cartwright.

Milwaukee 104, Indiana 83

In Milwaukee, Marques Johnson scored 24 points and Sidney Moncrief added 20 as the Milwaukee Bucks opened their NBA season with a victory over the Indiana Pacers. The Bucks jumped off to a 27-13 lead after one period over the cold-shooting Pacers and never let Indiana back into the game.

Denver 133, Utah 125

In Denver, Dan Issel, becoming only the eighth player in professional basketball history to score 25,000 career points, tallied 34 points to help the Denver Nuggets to a victory over the Utah Jazz in the season opener for both clubs. Kiki Vandeweghe added 37 for the winners—and NBA scoring champion—and Elgin Baylor had 23.

Portland 107, San Diego 83

In Portland, Ore., Wayne Cooper scored 21 points and Jim Paxson added 20 to lead the Portland Trail Blazers to a victory over the San Diego Clippers in the NBA opener for both teams.

St. Louis was decided in the second quarter when Portland reserves scored 23 of the Trail Blazers' 29 points. This gave Portland a 56-43 lead at the half.

Portland improved its advantage to 85-57 after the quarter and widened it by 21 points in the final period. Cooper also pulled down a game-high 13 rebounds.

San Diego was led by Terry Cummings, last season's NBA Rookie of the Year, with 20 points. Norm Nixon scored 14 for the Clippers in his first game since being acquired from the Los Angeles Lakers.

The game marked the return to Portland of San Diego head coach Jim Lynam, who was an assistant for the Trail Blazers last year.

Former Trail blazer guard Bill Walton traveled with the team, but did not suit up. Walton, because of past injuries, is not playing back-to-back games at present. He is expected to play Saturday night against Denver in San Diego.

Golden State 110, Seattle 109

In Seattle, Joe Barry Carroll scored 27 points and Purvis Short added 22, helping the Golden State Warriors edge the Seattle SuperSonics season opener for both teams.

The Warriors held a comfortable 10-point lead at 108-98 with 2 1/2 minutes to play when Carroll fouled out of the game.

Seattle then reeled off eight straight points before Short sank two free throws to make it 110-106 with six seconds to go. Steve Hawes hit a three-pointer with two seconds left for the final margin.

Seattle center Jack Sikma led all scorers with 32 points, but missed two crucial free throws and a short turnaround jumper during the Sonics' last-gasp comeback. Al Wood had 18 points for Seattle, but only two of those came in the second half.

After getting by Troy, the Blue Devils fell behind 5-0, but Dietrich battled back to take a 6-5 lead. The Bulldogs took a 10-8 lead and Dietrich tied it at 10-10, but Cambridge rolled past the Blue Devils thereafter. In the second game, Dietrich jumped to a 4-0 lead but Cambridge surged and forged a 9-9 deadlock. Moments later Cambridge took its first lead of the game, 11-10, and cruised past the Blue Devils to win the match.

Strow admitted his team was a little flat against Cambridge. "We had some real tough matches against Troy and Cambridge," said the coach. "The opportunities were there against Cambridge, but the match against Troy might have taken something out of us."

Against Greenleaf, Mullin took an early 5-0 lead in the first game.

NBA talks with officials at impasse

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A bargaining session scheduled to end the NBA referees' ongoing salary dispute never came to pass Friday, and picket lines were to mar the opening night of the pro basketball season.

Richard Phillips, general counsel for the National Association of Basketball Referees, said negotiators waited one hour for NBA officials, who never showed up for a meeting scheduled for noon MDT Friday.

An league spokesman said NBA representatives called ahead to warn they would be delayed, but the referees "saw fit to leave before they arrived."

He said no new contract talks were scheduled.

The scheduling map left the game officials without a contract as nine games were set to open the NBA regular season.

At contract talks Thursday, the union asked for a salary of $32,000 for first-year officials, said Merril Lane, a lawyer in Phillips' office. Brian McIntyre, director of public relations for the NBA, said the league is proposing a starting salary of $28,000.

Generals fire Chuck Fairbanks

SOUTH HACKENSACK, N.J. (UPI) — Coach Chuck Fairbanks has been dropped from his coaching and administration duties by the New York Jersey Generals of the United States Football League. It was announced Friday by clubowner Donald J. Trump.

Trump said that Fairbanks will be retained as a consultant for the Generals during the ownership transition period in preparation for the 1984 season.

Trump recently purchased the Generals. "Fairbanks, who was president and head coach of the club last season, coached the Generals to a 6-12 record in their first season despite the much-heralded presence of All American and Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker of Georgia in their backfield."

Palmer signs 1-year contract

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Baltimore Orioles' right-hander Jim Palmer agreed to a one-year contract Friday, ending speculation the three-time Cy Young Award winner would opt for free agency.

Ron Shapiro, the Baltimore-based agent who represents Palmer and a number of other Orioles, said the contract was reached without headaches and haggling.

"I'm very, very happy Jim will be staying in Baltimore because that's what he wants and that's what the Orioles want," Shapiro said. "They (the Orioles) proved that the last couple of days."

"Jim is delighted to remain an Oriole and intends to show he can make a major contribution again."

The Baltimore News American, quoting sources, said the contract called for a $400,000 base salary with bonus money tied to incentive clauses covering starts and innings pitched.

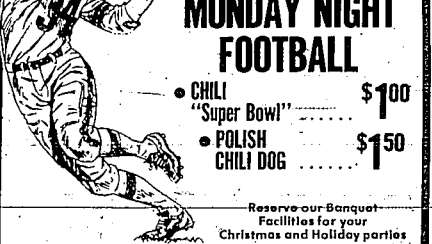

The club would not furnish details of the agreement and Palmer, who is in Arizona, could not be reached.

Altobelli skipper-of-the-year

NEW YORK (UPI) — Joe Altobelli, who managed with as little fanfare as his world champion Baltimore Oriole World Series heroics played during the season, is the UPI's American League Manager of the Year.

The 51-year-old Altobelli, who in 1983 took over the Orioles after 14 years of leadership by the flamboyant Earl Weaver, received 13 votes in balloting by baseball writers in all sections of the country.

Tony LaRussa of the Chicago White Sox finished second with eight votes and Bobby Cox of the Toronto Blue Jays was third with five.

Torrid Rangers cooling off

By United Press International

Rick Valive scored a pair of power-play goals in the second period Friday night to lead the Toronto Maple Leafs to a 5-3 victory over the New York Rangers.

With eight goals in his last four games, Valive ran his season total to 13.

Valive scored the winning goal with just 51 seconds remaining in the second period on a 15-foot shot after receiving a pass from John Anderson, who picked up a loose puck behind the net.

Stewart Gavin clinched the verdict for Toronto when he tallied an empty-net goal with 23 seconds remaining.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the first period on a power-play goal by Mike Rivers at 9:23.

At 5:50 in the second period, Toronto tied the score when Greg Terrion put in a rebound of a Terry Martin shot for his seventh goal of the season. The Rangers regained the lead on a 30-foot snapshot by Mark Osborne.

Anderson scored a breakaway goal to tie the score at 2-2, but the Rangers went back in front again, 3-2, on Pierre Larocque's ninth goal of the season.

Valive tied the score 3-3 on a power-play goal at 14:38 of the period. Rangers' goalie Glenn Hanlon injured his neck at 19:00 of the second period in a pileup in the crease. He received medical attention and remained in the game, surrendering Valive's power-play goal. Hanlon was then replaced by Steve Weeks.

Los Angeles 3, Buffalo 3

In Buffalo, N.Y., Ken Houston scored two goals Friday night, including the tying score with seven minutes left in regulation, to help the Los Angeles Kings to a 3-3 tie with the Buffalo Sabres. The teams played to a scoreless five-minute overtime period as a pair of rookie goaltenders, Buffalo's Tom Barraso and Mike Blake of the Kings, turned away nine shots in the extra session.

Calgary 7, Winnipeg 1

In Calgary, Alberta, Ed Boers notched the first hat trick of his career and Mike Eaves had five assists to lead the Calgary Flames to a rout of the Winnipeg Jets. With Calgary leading 7-0, Boers fought off defenseman Wade Campbell to jani the puck past goaltender Brian Hayward and ignite a surge of four second-period goals that forced Hayward from the game at the end of the period.

Vancouver 5, Hartford 4

In Vancouver, B.C., center Patrick Sundstrom scored at 1:03 of the overtime period to lift the Vancouver Canucks to a victory over the Hartford Whalers in a hard-fought game that was tied four times.

Hartford's Steve Stakos downed the left wing to take a pass from Tiger Williams, who was high in the slot, and fired a quick wrist shot that beat goaltender Greg Millon to the short side to extend the Canucks' unbeaten streak to four games.

Strow admitted behind the entire game, Hartford forced a 4-4 tie at 16:03 of the third period when Ron Francis scored off a rebound by Sylvain Turgeon during a scramble in front of the net with Canucks playing two men short.

Canucks' Gary Lupul broke a 3-3 tie with a controversial goal at 3:49 of the third period when he flipped the puck over Millen after Canucks Tony Tanti knocked the puck to the ice during a goalmouth scramble. Referee Bob Hall disallowed the goal but moments later changed his decision and allowed the goal to stand after consulting with his linesmen.

The Canucks took a 2-1 lead at 4:13 of the final period when Darcy Rota blasted a snapshot from 40 feet out on the night wing, but Hartford came back to tie the count again on Greg Malone's score at 6:11.

Vancouver captain Stan Smyl restored the lead at 6:29 and Blidie Stoughton replied for the Whalers by sweeping behind the net and slipping the puck past netminder John Garrett at 7:10.

Tanti set up the Canucks' only goal of the first two periods when he stole the puck behind the net and fired it to Lupul, who shot without missing stride to give Vancouver a 1-0 at 2:53 into the contest.

Hartford center Mark Johnson finished off a pretty passing play on a 2-on-1 break with Risto Sillanpaa to score his fifth goal in five games.

Surprised Lye leads at Pensacola

PENSACOLA, Fla. (UPI) — Mark Lye, amazed at the difference a day makes, shot a 1-under-par 70 Friday in the second round of the $250,000 Pensacola Open to maintain a 2-stroke lead at 137.

"I was in a play well enough to be leading," said Lye, who was eight under par in the opening round. "It's just one of those days. It's amazing the difference a day makes."

Behind Lye at seven-under 135 were Lon Hinkle and Lynn Litt. Hinkle hit six birdies and three bogeys for the day to make 68 on the par-71, 7,039-yard Perdue Bay Country Club course. Lott added a 6-under 65 to his first-round 70.

At six-under 136 were Mark McCumber, Jon Chaffee, Doug Tewell, Mark Hayes and defending champion Calvin Peete, who needs to shoot 133 to tie with Hinkle on the 10th and 11th holes and then slumped on No. 12, missing a three-foot putt to bogey.

"I was thinking what it would be like to run away with it until I missed that putt," Lye said.

He then bogeyed at No. 16 and No. 1 before sinking a 15-foot putt to par No. 2.

every day," said Lye. "You have to play four steady rounds, you can't play conservative at all. You have to keep playing aggressive through the whole tournament," he said.

Lye started out strong on the back nine with birdies on the 10th and 11th holes and then slumped on No. 12, missing a three-foot putt to bogey.

"I was thinking what it would be like to run away with it until I missed that putt," Lye said.

He then bogeyed at No. 16 and No. 1 before sinking a 15-foot putt to par No. 2.

THE MORMON QUEST FOR GODHOOD

THIS INCREDIBLE...

A SENSATION...
A SENSATION...

"THE GOD MAKERS, THE MORMON QUEST FOR GODHOOD"

This hard hitting film unmasks the myth of Mormonism, from Family Home Evening, through the actual Secret Temple Rituals. It is the action packed story of the Mormon Quest for Godhood! A candid documentary told in interviews with officials and members of the Mormon Church as well as with former members... those who have seen The Other Side of Family Home Evening! Filmed live in the very centers of the Mormon experience!

If you have ever wondered what went on inside the Mormon Temples that was so secret only a very select few of the Mormons themselves could even participate, you will not want to miss this film. If you are a Mormon who still hasn't been judged worthy enough to enter the Temple, you will find this film worth seeing.

Richard Boer director of Ex-Mormons for Jesus will be there for a question and answer time immediately following the film. Mr Boer was a member of the Mormon Church for over 40 years. Ex-Mormons for Jesus is an international Christian Ministry of Ex-Mormons who have a very active evangelical work among the Mormons.

Tell your Mormon friends that if they follow the advice of their leaders not to attend a showing of the God Makers, they have forfeited their Free Agency, and their leaders have adopted Satan's plan to destroy their Free Agency!!!!
