Water plan backed On Swan Falls

By SUSAN GALLAGHER The Associated Press

BOISE — Legislation to help settle the Swan Falls water rights dispute has won the guarded endorsement of a water users' committee.

The plan to remove the majority of 7,500 water users from Idaho Power's lawsuit over water rights at Swan Falls Dam earned a 64 endorsement Friday after committee members heard concerns about Idaho Power's motives in the proposal.

But an Idaho Power vice president said the relative risks faced by the company and water users are being overlooked.

"We're willing to gamble a whole lot," Logan Lanham told a committee of the Idaho Water Users Association.

"All you have to do is gamble a little." But Ken Dunn, director of the Idaho Water Resources Department, said the utility's motive for the legislation is to lessen the Idaho Public Utilities Commission's control over the company.

"That's the driving interest as I see it," Idaho Power's desire to get out from under the PUC, Dunn said. Greg Painter of Idaho Power called the claim "baloney."

The proposal that will be presented to the Legislature next week could eliminate the PUC's authority to handle certain complaints from Idaho Power stockholders. Stockholders in the past have filed lawsuits claiming their interests were violated because Idaho Power didn't defend its water rights.

The Idaho Supreme Court ruled in 1983 in those lawsuits that Idaho Power's rights at Swan Falls dominate those of other water users.

Since then, the utility filed another lawsuit to protect itself from claims it wasn't protecting its water rights. Company officials said they're hoping for prompt passage of a bill allowing most defendants to be dropped from

State officials disagree Study pushes second prison

By The Associated Press

BOISE — Increasing prospects of inmate lawsuits over crowded conditions is prompting Idaho Corrections Director Al Murphy to propose a $6 million plan to expand and renovate the state's corrections system.

But while Murphy called the state's current facilities "junk," he said he neither sees the possibility of or the need for a $20 million expansion program recommended in an analysis of Idaho prison facilities.

He did, however, agree with the study's assessment that unless prison conditions are improved and overcrowding eased the state will be the target of lawsuits.

"We're going into conditions of confinement suits this March," Murphy said Friday before the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council. "The prison is junk. It's the worst correctional facility I've ever been in."

The state is already conceding defeat in a lawsuit filed by female inmates at the Orofino facility, he said. They went to court to obtain the same work and educational opportunities provided male prisoners at other facilities, Murphy said.

At the same time, Gov. John Evans criticized the ambitious proposals of the 70-page Idaho Facility Plan, calling it "instead for more money to build luxury homes, work-release centers and rehabilitation."

The proposals in the study by Justice Systems Inc., a George-based consulting firm, included construction of a $12 million, 500-inmate prison and closing of the minimum-security correctional facility at Cottonwood.

Evans called the new prison an expensive way to solve current problems of overcrowding, and Murphy simply said, "We can afford it, we wouldn't get it, and I'm not sure it's needed."

He also firmly rejected the study's recommendation that the prison facility at Cottonwood be shut down, and his expansion and renovation program calls for improvements at the former Air Force radar site in northern Idaho.

"I think we should try to do other things first," Evans said, pointing out that incarcerating criminals costs $10,000 to $12,000 a year, more than the state pays to educate a child.

While acknowledging that overcrowding is a serious problem, the governor added, "Once prison facilities are built, we will fill them."

The prison study, which will be presented to lawmakers into this month, said that inmate population, now at about 1,100, could nearly double to 2,150 by the end of this century. It based that projection on state population estimates, incarceration rates, crime forecasts and the number of crime-prone people in the 16-35 age bracket.

Murphy questioned the spiraling inmate estimates, saying he believes inmate population will begin stabilizing in about six years.

A more modest approach, he said, will meet the space needs of the next few years.

Murphy's proposal, which he will recommend to the state Corrections Board, calls for some immediate renovation and expansion to bring inmate capacity up just above 1,200 by year's end and then some new construction to boost it to over 1,450 inmates by 1987.

Convicts freed, then killed in apparent governmental plot

By KENNETH L. WHITING The Associated Press

JAKARTA, Indonesia — The figures may be debatable, but thousands of former prisoners and others with criminal records have died in a wave of vigilante-style, anti-crime killings that has swept Indonesia in the past 17 months.

So many bullet-riddled bodies have been pulled from West Java's Indramayu River near Tasikmalaya that people were shunning fish in the local market.

Since the killings began, hundreds of convicts, offered amnesty because of prison overcrowding, have refused to leave their cells. Others accepted freedom reluctantly after trying to secure written guarantees for their safety on the streets.

The number of dead is uncertain. Five months ago, before newspaper editors said they were told by the government to stop writing about the "mystery killings" and "mysterious gunmen," the death toll was put at 550.

By Oct. 1, official sources said 1,000 had been killed. In November, the Legal Aid Institute said there were 2,000 dead. And last month, a former public prosecutor estimated that 4,000 had died.

Adnan Byrnyng Nasution, a one-time public prosecutor and founder of the Legal Aid Institute, says "a special task force" of army and police is responsible for the killings.

But government officials publicly deny his allegations.

"They blame underworld gang warfare and say some victims died while resisting arrest. It is not true that those killings have any connection with the policy of the government," said Information Minister Harmoko.

But privately, one official admitted, "It's not policy, but ad hoc shock therapy."

Harmoko's statement indicated that President Suharto's government is becoming uneasy with the international attention the killings have attracted.

But a year ago, authorities bragged of the work of the "gigadan angels" who were welcomed by the public for ridding the streets of vicious thugs.

In July, Al Murtopo, a retired general and now deputy chairman of the government's Supreme Advisory Council, told reporters that the killings were carried out "in accordance with the enforced stipulations" of the Defense and Security Ministry.

One government official, who declined to be identified, said the "gigadan angels" were ordered after the skyrocketing crime rate was perceived as a threat to national security.

In a meeting earlier this week, Dutch Foreign Minister Hans Van Den Broek said he appealed to Foreign Minister Mochar Kusumatmadja to end the killings "in the foreseeable future." Similar expressions of concern have been lodged by the United States.

Consumers pay extra $1.8 million December's cold snap

By RANDOLPHE SCHMID The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Heating bills jumped 41 percent in that December cold snap, costing Americans nearly $1.8 billion more than usual to stay warm in just the last two weeks of the month, according to government estimates issued Friday.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration estimated that heating American homes and factories between Dec. 18 and 31 cost $6.33 billion.

"That's $1.78 billion more than would be expected in the same period of a normal year, according to the agency's assessment" and Information Services Center.

The agency said it did not break down the added cost according to homes, businesses and factories. But, with about 234 million Americans, according to Census Bureau figures, that amounted to an average added heating cost during the period of $7.62 for each person, both at home and at work.

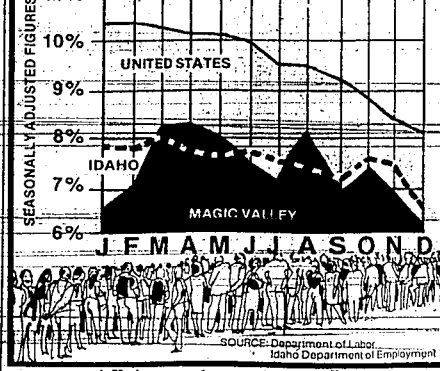

Heating costs were near normal in the Pacific region during the last two weeks of December, when the cold was most intense nationally. In all other regions costs were well above normal.

For the full month of December, national heating demand was the second highest in history, topped only by December of 1963, officials said. Heating costs for the first two weeks of December had been slightly below normal at $3.7 billion.

Records of monthly heating requirements were recorded this year in Washington, Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Illinois, Missouri and Arkansas.

Unemployment falls to two-year low

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment rates in Idaho and the Magic Valley dove to their lowest points in at least two years during December.

Nationally, the jobless rate also continued its downward drift, signaling the best recovery in the labor market in more than 30 years.

The U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics on Friday pegged the seasonally adjusted unemployment rate at 8.2 percent for December. That was 2.5 percent — and 4 million workers — better than in December 1982, when unemployment peaked at a post-Depression high of 10.7 percent, an agency official said.

Idaho and the Magic Valley both recorded sudden drops in unemployment. Idaho's Department of Employment reported a 4.6 percent jobless rate for the state, down from 7.4 percent last month. It was the lowest rate since September 1981.

Spokesman Randy Furness said the improvement was better than anticipated, even with the seasonal hiring expected during the holidays.

The figures point "to a rather healthy Christmas season for Idaho retailers," he said.

In Twin Falls, Lon McDonald, a labor-force analyst for the state department, said the Magic Valley also shared in the glad tidings. He placed the December unemployment rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties at 6.3 percent, 0.8 of a percentage point less than in November.

"We had a big drop," he said. "One must go all the way back in December 1981 to see a rate at this level."

The figures, which are adjusted for seasonal hirings, forecast that 33,460 people were employed in the three-county area. However, there were still 2,310 workers unemployed in the three counties, McDonald said.

While seasonal adjustments built into the figures helped pull the rate down, McDonald also suggested that brisk Christmas retail activity was a factor in prompting December hirings.

Nationwide, the labor market is bounding back at the fastest pace. See JOBLESS on Page A2

Challis school to be torn down

CHALLIS (AP)—Schools destroyed in Challis and Arco in last October's earthquake could be torn down by mid-March to make room for new schools, officials say. The U.S. Department of Education has agreed to pay for demolition and new schools for the area after finding that damaged buildings can't be repaired. Challis School Superintendent Terrell Donich said the district will receive up to $85,000 for the demolition work.

Inmate slashed in prison fight

BOISE (AP)—An inmate at the penitentiary south of here received six stitches after he fought with a cellmate and was slashed by a sharp weapon, Warden Darroll Gardner said. Gardner refused to identify exactly what type of weapon was used against Richard Loomis, 40, in the incident Friday. Both Loomis and Douglas Coffin, 35, were held in pre-hearing detention after the fight.

Plane crash spews drugs, cash

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP)—Investigators spent a third day Friday searching through the now-coveted wreckage of an airplane where cocaine and thousands of dollars in cash were found after a Dec. 23 crash. Tony Mink, 36, a former Boise native and the pilot of the plane, and his 14-year-old son Brian survived five days of isolation in a remote area of the desert. Mink's 35-year-old wife, Charlene, died the morning after the crash. Since the rescue, authorities have found $19,200 in cash aboard the plane and 14 grams of cocaine in a package in the area nearby. They also have learned Mink was arrested in the Bahamas in 1980 for allegedly ditching a marijuana-laden airplane in the ocean and that his pilot's certificate was revoked in 1981. Bruce Van Matre, head of the Albuquerque office of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration, said Thursday investigators have continued to search at the crash site because "there are indications that there was possibly a larger quantity of drugs involved."

He said it's only "speculation" that more drugs were aboard the plane. He added that if drugs still are in the area, they may not be found until the spring snowmelt.

Reagan won't fire friend Wick

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Reagan on Friday defended longtime friend Charles Z. Wick as an honorable man and said he would not be fired as director of the U.S. Information Agency for secretly taping recording telephone conversations. In a brief exchange with reporters, Reagan expressed sympathy with Wick for "forgetting sometimes" to tell the person at the other end of the line that the conversation was being recorded. Wick has done a splendid job... and he's going to continue there," Reagan said. Wick's surreptitious taping is the target of four investigations, two of them by congressional committees. Two top White House aides—counselor Edwin Meese III and chief of staff James A. Baker III—said they thought it was unethical to tape a conversation without telling the other party. Baker is among those whose conversations with Wick were secretly recorded. A House Foreign Affairs Committee source said the committee has received a memorandum written in 1981 by the USA general counsel's office advising Wick to ask the permission of other parties before taping recording telephone conversations.

Test-tube quadruplets survive

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—A mother who tried for 10 years to conceive a child delivered the world's first test-tube quadruplets Friday. The infants, all boys, were reported in excellent condition and the parents "were excited." A team of 23 doctors and nurses at the Royal Women's Hospital delivered the babies by Caesarian section. "We are delighted with their condition," said Dr. Neil Roy, one of the physicians involved in the deliveries. "They really are in excellent condition." Mondale targets health costs

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG
AP Political Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla.—Accusing President Reagan of "planning to repeal Medicare by stealth," Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale on Friday proposed establishment of federal limits on health costs. Under the Mondale plan states would be free to set up whatever mechanisms they chose to keep health expenditures within the federal guideline.

Details of the proposal were outlined by Mondale aides just before he visited elderly residents of an apartment complex in St. Petersburg and Mondale was making it the theme of a luncheon speech in Tallahassee. Mondale told the senior citizens he believed the Reagan administration is "planning to go after Medicare right after the election, just like they went after Social Security right after the last election." He said Reagan was "planning to repeal Medicare by stealth" and cited an administration budget proposal he said would increase the cost of an average stay in the hospital by 70 percent. Medicare is the federal health program for the elderly. "The Mondale health proposal would address all health costs, not just Medicare—and other government programs. In his speech, Mondale predicted that total spending for health care would reach an annual level of $750 billion by 1990.

that action. The bill also could allow other irrigators to make filing requests to the court. The Supreme Court ruled belongs to Idaho Power. Legal constraints dictate a March 31 filing deadline, the company said. Also at Friday's meeting, Attorney General Jim Jones said it may be best to resolve the Swan Falls issue through a court order instead of strictly through a legislative contract. Jones said legislation likely will be challenged through the courts, and questions about the supply of irrigation water and other uncertainties will be prolonged. That has been the outcome with legislated solutions to water-rights disputes in other states.

Jones also said he will develop a legal argument for the elderly interest demands that water be used for Idaho's benefit to the greatest extent possible. He said water that passes through the state unused, merely because Idaho Power is protecting its rights, could constitute a violation of the public trust.

since the 1949-50 recession. In 1951, the jobless rate fell by 37 percentage points. The drop of 2.5 percentage points in 1983 was slightly better than the rally after the 1959-60 recession, said Bureau of Labor Statistics analyst Deborah Klein. But there also is some evidence that the recovery has been quick because fewer people than expected have moved back into the labor force in search of work, said Janet L. Norwood, the commissioner of labor statistics. Private economists also have said that the jobless rate could rise this spring when out-of-work Americans start looking again. In December, close to 102.3 million Americans had jobs. The highest ever, the agency reported. The number of unemployed Americans stood at 9.2 million; more than 12 million were out of work last December. Job gains were reported for almost all categories of workers. Last month's declines were concentrated in workers who had been off for some time, the agency said. However, unemployment rates still were at 20.1 percent for teenagers and 17.8 percent for blacks. Hispanic unemployment showed a good improvement, down to 11.6 percent, from 2.3 percent in November. Rates for whites, for adult women and for adult men ranged from 7.1 to 7.4 percent. Officials now are predicting a fluctuating unemployment picture as the market enters the winter. In the long run, the Reagan administration is forecasting a 7.8 percent average rate in 1984. In Idaho, Furniss said normal cut-backs in the timber, agriculture and food-processing industries traditionally boost unemployment from January through March. "We'll see it continue to fluctuate, but as long as interest rates stay close to where they are, or if they drop, that will keep growth in the basic sectors of the Idaho economy going," he said. Preliminary figures place Idaho's average jobless rate for 1983 at 7.5 percent, down from 1982's level of 8.7 percent, Furniss said. "That points out a basic upswing in the state's economy," he said.

Today's weather

Low clouds, fog with some drizzle

Twin Falls, Jerome-Gooding, Burley, Elmer areas.
Widespread low clouds and fog, with some drizzle or freezing drizzle, in valley areas today. Increasing clouds above the fog today, leading to a slight chance of showers tonight and Sunday. The snow level will fall to 6,000 to 7,000 feet tonight. Low Saturday night will be in the upper 20s to low 30s, with the highs on Saturday will be in the upper 30s to low 40s, highs on Sunday in the 40s.
Camas Prairie, Hiley, Wood River Valley.
Fog and low clouds continuing in some valleys today, with clouds increasing above the fog in the afternoon. Light winds. Highs in the middle to upper 30s. Variable cloud cover in the valleys with a few snow showers, mainly over the mountains. Highs 35 to 40; lows 20 to 25.
Northern Nevada and Utah:
Widespread areas of fog and low clouds over Utah today, decreasing a little Sunday. Isolated patches of freezing drizzle. Lows 20 to 30; highs 30 to 35. Over Nevada, areas of dense valley fog and low clouds, with only partial clearing in the afternoon, through Sunday. Increasing high clouds tonight with a slight chance of rain or showers Sunday for the far north. Highs 45 to 55; lows tonight in the 20s.
Synopsis:
A large upper-level high-pressure system dominated the weather Friday in the Pacific Northwest. The best chance for showers will be in northern Idaho today and over the southwest tonight, as the system moves inland. As the system weakens, the fog and low clouds in the southern valleys will remain through most of today. The valleys could further be cleared of fog by Sunday, if the storm does not collapse totally. The southern valleys remained trapped under a temperature inversion Friday, with dense fog in many locations. Visibility of a half-mile or less were reported at many stations. Cloudy skies were reported nearly everywhere around the state except in Sun Valley and many other high mountain locations, where sunshine was the rule. Temperatures remained warm in the areas where the warm air already reached the surface, with readings at many locations in the 40s. On the other hand, the south was cool, with most locations in the upper 20s to low 30s. Lewiston's 50 was the warmest reading reported. Most overnight lows were in the upper 20s to low 30s. The coldest reported temperature was 18 degrees at Strevell and Bear Lake. Precipitation was primarily confined to the north-central mountains, where amounts ranged from a tenth to a quarter-inch of rainfall. However, Powell reported .41 inch. The extended forecast for the Magic Valley and Southern Idaho calls for Monday through Wednesday to be mild. Mostly dry on Monday, with a chance of rain in the valleys and snow in the mountains on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Jackson dogged by finance questions

By EVANS WITTE
The Associated Press

BOSTON — Jesse Jackson was on the campaign trail again Friday, hoping his success in winning the support of Navy fliers will convert to political currency but dogged by questions about who paid the bills for that Syrian trip.

At a news conference enroute to New Hampshire, Jackson said: "We went to Syria as guests of the Syrian government. We came back as guests of our government. If there were any bills that were picked up inadvertently, and not at our request, any outstanding bills will be paid for by our delegation or by our supporters."

Jackson said his entourage paid its own share to Syria and noted that it returned on U.S. military aircraft after securing the Navy fliers' release.

He said any Syrian payment of his group's hotel bills while in Damascus was inadvertent and that the Syrian government will be reimbursed from funds raised on Jackson's behalf for that purpose — not from his campaign fund.

Suit unsettled late Friday was whether the flier be freed from Syrian captivity — Lt. Robert Goodman Jr. will appear with him at a Saturday afternoon homecoming rally in New Hampshire.

That joint appearance had been planned in Portsmouth, N.H., where Goodman grew up — but there were signs on Friday that Pentagon officials were wary of letting an officer appear at a rally arranged by a presidential campaign staff and that Goodman might not return to his home state until Saturday evening.

Jackson described as trivial any confusion over a joint appearance with Goodman in New Hampshire.

"We will not allow any actions to affect the sense of celebration," he said. "We don't want to stain that moral mission."

Aides said Jackson plans to go to Portsmouth on Saturday whether or not Goodman is on hand for the festivities.

Pilot returns to own home

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Navy Lt. Robert O. Goodman Jr., freed after a month of captivity in Syria, returned Friday to his own house and a joyous, banner-waving welcome from neighbors and fellow airmen.

"Hey, this is my front door. This is fantastic," Goodman said when he stood on the porch of his two-story colonial-style home in a Virginia Beach subdivision.

Goodman, 27, hugged several of his neighbors, who had decorated his house with banners reading "Welcome Home Rob" and "Some people will do anything to come home early," a joking reference to his being shot down Dec. 4 over Syria.

Factions continue fight as civil-war end sought

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Druse and Shiite Moslems battled soldiers near the capital and in Southern Lebanon on Friday as mediators negotiated with Lebanon's warring factions to complete a civil war disengagement.

The state radio said Syrian-backed Arabians and Red Knights militiamen in the port of Tripoli fought Islamic fundamentalists until declaration of a cease-fire. There were no reports on casualties in the second day of street fighting.

Lebanese troops exchanged mortar fire, artillery and rocket-propelled grenades with Druse gunners in the hills above the Beirut airport base of the U.S. Marines and with Shiite militiamen in the suburbs. Christian and Druse gunners traded artillery and rocketbarrages for most of the day in the southern Kharroub region near the Israeli defense line at the A'wall River.

The Druse accused Christian militia of "dangerously escalating shelling attacks" and threatened to bombard Christian-populated centers in Beirut.

On Thursday, Lebanese government and military sources said Saudi Arabia had nearly completed mediation of a security plan for Lebanon that would separate the country's warring factions, and that it was acceptable to Syria and Israel.

There was no official announcement of the agreement Friday, but reports from Damascus said Syrian Foreign Minister Abdul-Halim Khaddam and chief of staff Maj. Gen. Hikmat Shihab have joined Saudi mediator Rafik Hariri in efforts to wrap up the disengagement plan.

Feds target organized crime's land

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president's Commission on Organized Crime plans to investigate whether new methods can be developed for seizing properties that mobsters control but don't officially own, the panel's executive director said Friday.

"If you view organized crime as an economic force as I do, you attack it by removing the profit motive," said James D. Harmon Jr., a longtime federal prosecutor of organized-crime figures in New York City who took charge last month as executive director of the 15-member commission.

"It's been my experience that major organized-crime figures don't accumulate large amounts of property in their own name. Their cars are leased or they have condos in Florida owned by other persons," Harmon said.

He said that the government could now seize that property under the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act only "if you can prove they own the property, but that's very hard to do. Our traditional property-law concepts can't handle this problem."

Harmon spoke with reporters in his new Washington office, the same room — which was occupied by Watergate special prosecutor Archibald Cox during the mid-1970s. He outlined plans for the commission's two-year study.

The panel is to report to the president by March 1, 1986. It is charged with identifying the members of both traditional organized crime and emerging organized criminal groups such as motorcycle gangs and ethnic criminal organizations, such as the Mexican Mafia, the Aryan Brotherhood and others.

War declared on pamphlets

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, surrounded by trash bags stuffed with documents, announced the elimination Friday of 1,800 government publications, such as pamphlets on "Controlling Bedbugs" and "Living With Radiation."

"The termination or consolidation of redundant and superfluous publications and unnecessary printing facilities will reduce costs to the taxpayer by $85 million annually and eliminate 150 million copies of publications," Meese told reporters.

"About one of every four government publications is being discontinued," Meese said.

The government no longer will issue publications telling people how to control chicken lice or clean their kitchen ranges and metal furniture. Nor will it tell them about silverfish and firebrats (a wingless insect) or solar heating for milking parlors.

gone are "Simple-Plumbing Repairs," "The Common Liver Fluke in Sheep," "Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Unloads South (and West)," "School Drug Abuse: A Policy Guidelines," "Fundamentals of Tax Preparation," "Standards for Preparation of Title Evidence," "The Columbia River Treaty" and the reprinted "Guide to Department of Education Programs."

U.S. deserter becomes hero

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — To the U.S. Marine Corps, Mark Anthony Broyd is a deserter. But to Rochester police, he is a "honest and sincere" man who tackled a purse-snatcher in a snowy playground on the day after Christmas.

Broyd, 18, went AWOL from the U.S. Marine Corps Recruit Depot in San Diego in October. On Thursday, a week after he became a local celebrity, he turned himself in to Marine officers in Rochester.

"Amist all the praise I was receiving I'm not worthy of it for I have lied," Broyd said in a letter before turning himself in.

Anaconda reopening unlikely

BUTTE, Mont. (AP) — Metal prices aren't high enough to resume mining operations here, Anaconda Minerals Co. Montana Operations Manager Frank Gardner says.

And Gardner said Anaconda is studying whether to dispose of a Butte landmark, the Hennessy Building.

The company suspended its mining and milling operations here last Sept.-30 and now has a skeleton staff of 70 employees in Butte.

Gardner said the option of restarting operations here isn't "being looked at very favorably" in light of continuing depressed copper prices.

The copper price Friday was 65.30 cents a pound, which Gardner said was far from sufficient to resume operations, even in light of a new contract with the company's 13 unions. The company has said the contract gives it more flexibility in using its workers.

Gardner also said the current $4 a pound level of molybdenum isn't sufficient to resume operations.

Dupont receives $42 million

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP) — Iran has paid the Du Pont Co. $42.7 million in its largest settlement to a U.S. company other than a bank for property nationalized after the 1979 revolution.

The Iran-United States Claims Tribunal in The Hague, Netherlands, approved the settlement Dec. 19, and the chemical giant received the money last week, company spokesman Christopher Peery said Thursday.

The settlement completes Du Pont's for its investment in Polyacryl Iran Corp., a joint venture by Du Pont and Iranian investors.

PIK rated top '83 farm story

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Newspaper agricultural reporters say an administration program to reduce price-depressing surpluses by giving crops to farmers who reduced acreage was the top farm story of 1983.

The payment-in-kind program, run by an administration that advocated a free market for farmers, was the largest government involvement ever in agriculture and produced the largest acreage cutback in history.

Members of the Newspaper Farm Editors of America were polled by the Cedar Rapids (Iowa) Gazette. The writers picked the dairy issue as the No. 2 story of 1983.

Stock market climbs near record levels

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market climbed to near-record heights with its third straight gain Friday in another hectic session.

Prices clustered around Thursday's closing levels through the morning as some traders counted on a late market recovery. But by mid-afternoon Wall Street's early-1984 rally was rolling again.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial, off about 3 points at the outset, was up 4.40 at 1,266.64 by the close.

That gave the average a 26-point gain for the first week of 1984; and lifted it only a fraction of a point below the all-time closing high of 1,287.70 it reached last Nov. 29.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 137.59 million shares, down from Thursday's record of 159.99 million but still the sixth largest of the year.

Merrill Lynch rose 1 1/2 to 35 1/2; Fibro-Salomon 1 3/4 to 34 1/4; First Boston 3/4 to 46 1/4; E.F. Hutton 1/4 to 38 3/4; and Paine Webber 1/4 to 38 1/2.

The old American Telephone & Telegraph gained 3/4 to 63 1/4 and the "new" AT&T rose 1/4 to 19 1/4.

Waste Management was up 2 1/4 to 38 3/4, and Levi Strauss fell 2 1/4 to 30 1/2.

Precious metals stocks also declined as the price of gold dropped $7.60 to $367.80 an ounce on the Commodity Exchange in New York.

The Federal Reserve System, established on Christmas Eve 1913, consists of the seven-member Board of Governors; the 12- District Reserve Banks and their branches; the Federal-Open-Market-Committee, composed of the board of governors, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York president and a rotation of four other Fed Bank presidents; and the system member banks.

Rose says IRS harassed Hansen, Mormons

By The Associated Press and HAL BERTON Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Lincoln County Prosecutor Doug Rose says he has filed a complaint with the U.S. Civil Rights Commission in an effort to expose alleged illegal interference by the Internal Revenue Service into Rep. George Hansen's 1976 election campaign.

In the complaint, Rose alleges that an Internal Revenue Service official leaked documents to an Idaho Democratic Party official to try and defeat Hansen.

The actions of the IRS official, the complaint states, resulted in the federal government "interfering in the electoral process."

That action, and an April 1983 indictment of Hansen by the U.S. Justice Department on charges that he failed to comply with a federal financial disclosure law, has resulted in the violation of Rose's civil rights, the complaint states.

"I am denied my vote in Congress because my representatives are forced to devote time and money to repel the illegal attacks against him," Rose writes in the complaint, which he mailed Thursday to the Seattle office of the Civil Rights Commission.

William Jacobs, the district director for the IRS office in Boise, flatly denied the allegations involving his agency.

"The revenue service does not do that," he said Friday.

Lincoln County Commissioner Everett Ward said Friday evening that he had no knowledge of the complaint, but that it was not filed on behalf of the county. He said that the county employs Rose on a part-time basis, and that the attorney also maintains a private practice.

Friday evening, Rose told The Times-News that the complaint is the indirect result of an investigation he carried out on behalf of Hansen last spring in Washington, D.C.

Rose said that he hopes the Civil Rights Commission eventually will vindicate Hansen's long-standing claim that he has been harassed by the IRS.

The commission is a federally funded agency that investigates possible civil-rights violations.

At Hansen's request, Rose said he donated two weeks of his time — late in April and early in May — to research the background of Arthur Emmens, an alleged blackmailer from Dallas, Emmens' attorney, according to Rose, helped trigger a Justice Department probe into Hansen's finances.

During his time in Washington, Rose says he worked both out of Hansen's office and partly as a "free-lancer," but he says he stayed in touch with Hansen, and James McKenna, a Hansen staff aide.

"After working in Washington, I felt real good about him (Hansen)," Rose said.

Upon his return to Idaho, Rose said he read a book authored by Hansen and collected a thick file of documents concerning government actions involving Hansen.

After obtaining one document, which he says details the leak of confidential information to a Democratic Party official in 1978, Rose said he decided to file the suit.

This document, according to the complaint, indicates that IRS agent Evan Wride disclosed confidential tax information to Robert C. Huntley.

Arson suspected in blaze

TWIN FALLS — Arson is suspected in a truck fire that occurred early Friday morning at Bill's Automotive and Muffler Shop, at 2105 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls.

An Idaho State Police officer noticed smoke coming from a truck at the business and notified Twin Falls police at 1:40 a.m., according to a police report. A city fire engine was dispatched.

Firefighters spent a little more than an hour at the scene, said Clare Harkins, the Twin Falls fire marshal. The damage was confined to the interior of the truck's cab, he said.

"Someone evidently poured fuel on the truck and set it on fire, according to the police report."

The truck was a 15-foot rental moving van, said Bill Price, the owner of the business. Damage has been estimated at $9,000.

Fortunately, there was no damage to the two other trucks that were parked two feet away on both sides of the burned truck, Price said.

"The thing that really saved us was the state police officer who drove by and saw the smoke," Price said.

The case still is under investigation.

Snow exceeds norms 219 percent

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The snow and water content at measuring stations in the South Hills report an average that is 219 percent above normal for this time of year.

According to Twin Falls Soil Conservation District officials, all of the stations — known as snow courses — now have set records for both snow depth and water content.

The Magic Mountain station, for example, has 71 inches of snow and 20.4 inches of water. This is 252 percent of the normal amount of snow measured over the past 35 years.

In 1972, another heavy year for snow, the Magic station recorded 63 inches in its Jan. 1 report. Last year, the station reported 40 inches of snow and 10.8 inches of water at this time.

The Magic Mountain watershed provides irrigation water for the Salmon and Roseworth farming tracts, where irrigation water is frequently in short supply.

The most recent snow measurements were made Dec. 28 and 29.

They show that the upper Deadline Ridge station had 75 inches of snow, compared to 55 inches last year. Water content there was 21.9 inches; last year it was 17 inches. The average amount of water for this time of year is 12.3 inches, putting the course at 188 percent of normal.

Other measuring stations show:

- Old Deadline Ridge — 65 inches of snow and 21.4 inches of water, compared to 44 inches of snow and 13.9 inches of water last year. The current amount is 220 percent of the average 9.7 inches of water recorded over the past 30 years.
- Pole-Creek — 63 inches of snow and 16.9 inches of water, compared to 38 inches of snow and 11.4 inches of water last year. This year's amount is 204 percent of the 8.23 inch water-content average for the past 27 years.
- Goat Creek — 64 inches of snow and 16.3 inches of water, compared to 38 inches of snow and 9.3 inches of water last year. This year's amount is 202 percent of the 8-inch water-content average for the past 27 years.
- Shoshone Basin — 33 inches of snow and 9.3 inches of water, compared to 19 inches of snow and 4.5 inches of water last year. This year's amount is 202 percent of the 3.29 inch water-content average for the past 13 years.

Taxpayers must decide how to pay for indigents

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls County residents must "decide" and act how much medical care they can afford, not just how much they want, says Twin Falls County Commissioner Judy Felton.

Felton appeared Friday at a forum sponsored by the Sawtooth Press Club — to discuss the problem of medical care for indigents, or more specifically, how to pay for it.

Other speakers were state Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, and Magic Valley Regional Medical Center administrator Bill Burns.

Felton says she did not expect that Idaho's counties will receive help in battling the problem from the Legislature in coming months. And she says the county's hospitals are doing all they can do — cooperate.

"Instead, she says county residents must take the "best step" — one of balancing a desire to provide specialized care to all in need of it, with the limits set by the high cost of such a commitment.

In Idaho, counties are the source of last resort for people deemed too poor to pay their medical bills. When hospitals can't obtain payment elsewhere, by law they can turn to county governments.

JUDY FELTON Expects little from Boise

REP. DONNA SCOTT Legislation proposed

In recognition of this burden, the Legislature last year granted counties the authority to tax property owners outside the formula set by the One Percent Initiative, to create a special indigent fund.

This year, Twin Falls County has certified a special $500,000 indigent levy. Last year, large chunks of county money were used to pay for the special hospital care needed by premature infants.

Felton says the media has done a good job of presenting one side of the story — that of the medically indigent infants. But she says the problems of cost have not been fully explored yet.

She cited the example of arid county resident who came to the commissioners in December, saying he could not pay his property taxes.

"We only ask you to consider there are lives at either end of the scale," she said.

Felton thinks Twin Falls County property owners have reached the limit of what they can afford for indigent medical care. The question should now become how best to spend that limited resource, she says.

After the meeting, Felton said this may come down to the unpleasant choice of deciding whether to spend large amounts on costly procedures that save two or three lives, or saving more lives with far less extraordinary procedures.

She told the group of about 25 at the luncheon, which included Lt. Gov. David Leroy, that the media should play a leading role in presenting the issue in a way that people can come to a consensus on what is essentially a moral issue.

Once county residents make up their minds, "we will be their bookkeepers and health-facilitators," she said.

Scott pointed out that medical indigency is far different from indigency in a general sense. As the cost of specialized care rises, more people may find themselves suddenly stuck with a large bill they can't pay.

She said that several remedies may be considered by the Legislature in coming months.

These include funding neo-natal and catastrophic care through Medicare and Medicaid; limiting the number of days in a hospital stay, creating a state fund for individual neo-natal bills of more than $10,000, and adopting some sort of program similar to that in place in Oregon, where doctors must donate a number of hours.

Scott said the great danger of the present system is that large bills are paid by somebody else. "You don't concern yourself with the details when someone else is paying," she said.

Burns said public hospitals, such as MVRMC, are caught in a squeeze. They must treat patients regardless of their ability to pay. Yet, to be responsible to the public they serve, they must seek payment.

Furthermore, "the federal government has done nothing to reduce medical costs, only restrict what it will pay for," Burns said.

He said last year MVRMC wrote off $180,000 in indigent expenses.

Panel splits on state school renovation

By The Associated Press

BOISE — Plans for an $8.5 million construction and renovation program at the State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding are dividing members of the Permanent Building Fund Advisory Council.

Because of the debate, the council has put off until at least later this month a decision on whether to recommend that the Legislature authorize financing of the work through the Idaho State Building Authority.

Rep. Lawrence Knipe, R-Idaho, warned Friday that the delay could make it difficult for lawmakers to approve the necessary resolution before they adjourn this spring.

The plan calls for construction of a new high school and elementary school on the Gooding campus, as well as renovation of other buildings to avoid the "warehousing of students."

Many of the buildings fail to meet current "life-safety" codes, and school Superintendent Keith Tolson says the high school has been unsound structurally for years. The Oct. 29 earthquake, however, aggravated structural problems to the point that the building now has been condemned.

"We're being a special school that serves the handicapped ought to be exempt in meeting their needs," Tolson told the council Friday. "We are not."

Based on current projections, Tolson said the resident student population will increase from about 140 today to 190 by the end of the century.

And he said the number of non-resident students probably will jump from 250 to 600 in the same period.

Although the high school is the only immediate hazard that must be replaced, Tolson said the other structures "next" require replacement eventually will be needed to meet increasing enrollment, and he said the state would save money by doing all the work at the same time.

Brin Chase, the state's public works director, said the project would save the state $12 million over 20 years through reduced maintenance, utility and personnel costs.

"The plan that's been suggested," said council chairman Tom Bourke, "would save the state a considerable amount of money over building it piecemeal."

Chase estimated that the piecemeal approach will add $2 million in construction costs to the price tag.

But Jerry Hess, another council member, said he was concerned about the state embarking on such an expensive project when the federal regulations on treating blind and deaf children, easily could change. He recalled edicts from the federal government in the past that completely have reversed state and local policies.

Hess and member Drury Brown also questioned whether the council should commit such a large portion of its limited funds to one project when there are so many other projects throughout the state that need financing as well.

"We've made a mistake in some of the things we've allocated money to in the past," Brown said.

Commissioner named

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News writer

BOISE — Gov. John Evans has appointed Alan Reynolds to the Blaine County commissioners' office.

Reynolds, 40, will fill the seat vacated by former Commissioner Dan Mackley, who resigned Jan. 1, after spending nearly two-and-a-half years on the board.

A real-estate broker in San Valley, Reynolds will serve as the north-Blaine County representative on the three-man board.

"It's always good to have the governor call and say he has confidence in you," Reynolds said after his appointment. "I'm curious and sort of excited" about the job.

Reynolds served as the county's planning and zoning administrator from 1975 to 1979, when he left to enter the real-estate business.

He has a master's degree in land-use analysis from the University of Montana.

Reynolds also has served on the county's stream-alteration committee for the past year. That committee has been reviewing the county's practices in allowing alterations to the Big Wood River and other waterways.

Because of his former relationship with the county government, Reynolds says he should not have any problems working with the county's two other commissioners, Robert Gardner and Ripert House.

Gardner served on the county's planning and zoning commission with Reynolds. He was the zoning administrator.

"Reynolds says he has become acquainted with House from his work on the stream committee."

The Blaine County Democratic Central Committee submitted Reynolds' name to the governor, along with those of Tim Crawford, a Ketchikan city councilman, and Royce Asher, a former Sun Valley city councilman and a mayoral candidate for that city in 1979.

Evans announced the appointment late Friday afternoon.

'Constitutionalist' loses again

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Zane Cunningham of Jerome had another setback this week in his claim that state judges lack constitutional authority to license drivers or cars.

Cunningham, 22, of Route 2, Jerome, was sentenced Thursday in Elmore District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls to serve a two-year probation for failing to register his car.

He said Thursday evening that he will appeal the conviction.

Cunningham was arrested on Sept. 15 by Twin Falls police, according to court records. He pleaded innocent to the charge and represented himself Thursday at the trial.

Before the hearing, Cunningham had been jailed for two days.

Fritz Wunderlich, the Twin Falls city attorney, said that he received a letter from Cunningham, indicating that he would not attend the trial. A bench warrant then was issued, and Cunningham was arrested and jailed.

Cunningham has based his defense on a challenge to the state's right to license vehicles, under a section of the Idaho Constitution, the words are "a matter of right" for anyone not registered for business or commercial purposes, he says. Since he does not fall into that category, he has a "free man's" right not to register, he says.

In addition, the U.S. Constitution guarantees his right to "free travel and movement," he says. "When you are regulated, you haven't got that."

Using a similar argument, Cunningham unsuccessfully fought similar charges last summer in Jerome County. At that time, he was arrested for failing to register his vehicle, court proof of insurance or a driver's license.

Cunningham was convicted of those misdeemeanor charges, and has appealed.

Cunningham, who is a former ranch supervisor, also filed a civil suit earlier this week in federal district court in Boise against Fifth District Court Judge Daniel Nessel and magistrate Judge Charles Brumback, both of Twin Falls.

Cunningham claims the two judges deprived him of his liberty and property through their part in handling the earlier charges. He is seeking $800,000 in damages.

Brumback had disqualified himself from the recent case against Cunningham in Twin Falls.

Cunningham's father, Milton, also filed suit in the same court against Jerome city and county law-enforcement officers. He is seeking $300,000 in damages because, he says, his son was jailed for three days before he was told what the charges were.

Legion aims to save kids

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL — American Legion members in Wendell are taking action to protect children from being kidnapped.

The educated children — and their parents — the veterans will present a 20-minute movie at the Legion hall today.

The film, "Don't Go With Strangers" will be repeated several times, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Sherry Craig, of the American Legion Auxiliary, says the film is a series of dramatizations of children and would-be abductors.

A child recently was kidnapped in Nampa, she says, and it could happen in Wendell.

"It's just as far away from home as you think, sometimes," Craig intended for family viewing, the program runs through the following situations that children could encounter:

- A young man who appears to be having engine trouble persuades a boy to climb inside his van-to try to start the engine.
- A man posing as a police officer tells a young girl that her mother has been in an auto accident and he was sent to get her.
- A man in a park asks two girls for help in finding his lost dog.

About a dozen situations are dramatized, each with the same conclusion: "A child-willingly accompanies an adult who could turn out to be a killer.

After a comment, the situations are re-enacted, showing how children should behave in potentially dangerous situations.

The program indicates that children probably are approached by would-be molesters far more often than police statistics indicate.

Also at the program today, Wendell police Chief Mike Tambini will offer a voluntary fingerprinting program for children whose parents have consented to the program.

In cooperation with the elementary school and the Legion, Farmers National Bank of Wendell has donated a safety-deposit box to keep the fingerprints for emergency use. The city is donating the stamp pad and fingerprint cards.

Craig says the American Legion welcomes church groups and other organizations to borrow the film and put on the program, to increase public awareness of kidnapping dangers.

Six burglaries may be connected

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HALLEY — A string of burglaries of rural supply stores is being investigated by authorities in Blaine, Camas and Butte counties.

Five of six burglaries, which took place over three days, beginning on New Year's Eve, — three in Blaine County and two in Camas County — probably are related, says Blaine County Sheriff Dennis Haynes.

Haynes says two burglaries in Blaine County are definitely related because items taken from one burglary were left at the scene of the second.

The first burglary took place at the Silver Creek Supply store in Picabo on New Year's Eve, or early the following morning, Haynes says.

Haynes says the burglars entered the Picabo store through a back window that was not connected to the store's alarm system.

After disconnecting the alarm system to the rear of the store, Haynes says, the burglars took several watches and three chain saws, valued at $1,700.

The remaining five burglaries are believed to have happened on the night of Jan. 3, or early the following morning, Haynes says.

The first of those took place at the S and H Auto Parts store, at 333 S. Main St. in Halley, where burglars took an assortment of tools and acetylene tanks used for metal cutting torches, says Dan Norton, the Halley police chief.

Later, "the burglars who hit the auto-parts store entered Picabo Supply again, the second time the store was entered in three days, taking equipment through the same window as the earlier burglaries."

This time, Haynes says, they took clothes, cigarettes and a flashlight. However, they also made an unsuccessful attempt to break into the store's safe with a torch and left behind an acetylene tank identified as one taken from the Halley store.

Haynes believes the two Picabo burglaries were committed by the same people.

Also, Haynes says that the two burglaries in Camas County and one in Butte County also may be related to the Blaine County crimes.

"It appears that all the burglaries are tied in," he says.

In Camas County, Haynes says, the burglars took a Fairchild store also were broken into, probably on the same night as the Halley and Picabo break-ins. No details on the two Camas break-ins were available, however.

In Butte County, the Lost River Co-op in Moore, a small town seven miles north of Arco, was broken into, most likely the night of Jan. 3.

Darrell Richards, the Butte County sheriff, says burglars entered the store after breaking the side window, taking numerous tools and making into the store's safe with an ax, taking about $1,000 in cash.

"Of the six break-ins, Haynes says only the Butte County burglary may not be related to the others. He says his reason for doubting that it is related to the others is the distance the burglars would have had to travel in one night.

However, he says, because of the long holiday weekend, some of the burglaries may have occurred earlier than Jan. 3, but were not discovered until later.

Haynes says authorities have a suspect or suspects they are checking on, but he declined to give any more details.

Feedlot owner withdraws request

JEROME — David L. May, who requested a conditional-use permit in November to expand his beef feedlot location south of Jerome, has withdrawn the application.

Jerome County zoning administrator Al Hephworth said he received the notice from May late Thursday.

May now operates a feedlot on a 14-acre piece of property, owned by his father, James May. The property is seven miles southwest of Jerome.

He had asked for the new permit so he could increase the current 120 head of cattle on the lot to 420 head and expand the lot to accommodate the additional animals.

Homeowners in the area had protested May's proposed expansion. A hearing before the Jerome County Planning and Zoning Commission brought a strong objection.

The zoning board tabled action on the permit when it was learned some adjacent property owners did not receive word of the hearing until just a few days before it was to be held.

director, replied, "Definitely not. The laws we enforce affect a whole lot of people."

Huntley, a Pocatello attorney, became a member of the Idaho Supreme Court last year.

Huntley declined to comment on the complaint Friday.

"I decided that by interfering in the electoral process in Idaho — and trying to sway the voters, the IRS had violated my civil rights," Rose wrote in the complaint.

According to Rose, Hansen has been supportive in efforts to compile the civil-rights complaint, and he said the Idaho congressman, a Republican, was provided with an advance copy of the complaint.

"I did not and told him what I was doing," Rose said. "I didn't want to blind-side him."

According to Rose, Hansen disagreed with only one section of the complaint, where Rose alleges that the IRS attempted to stand on its own.

Rose said he did not return telephone calls to The Times-News on Friday. But McKenna, Hansen's legal aide, expressed surprise when informed of Rose's complaint.

McKenna said that Rose did not help research Hansen's defense against the Justice Department.

"We've hired attorneys in Washington that we are going to close to $300,000 — where would this guy fit into the picture?" McKenna said. "It doesn't make sense."

McKenna does recall meeting with Rose last spring. However, he insists that their discussions did not involve Hansen's legal defense.

In a second section of the complaint, Rose alleges another type of discrimination, which he says is suffers as a result of his Mormon faith.

Rose says in the complaint that he has submitted documents to the commission that detail alleged IRS discrimination against Mormon investors who donated mining leases to the Mormon-controlled Brigham Young University in Salt Lake City and Ricks College in Rexburg.

A sworn statement by Paul J. DeSosses, an Idaho Falls-based IRS agent, indicates that the leases do not meet the two educational institutions were singled out for special scrutiny, to determine whether they constituted fraudulent tax credits.

Non-Mormon leases were largely left alone, according to Rose's complaint.

Rose says in the complaint that such actions have resulted in civil-rights violations of Mormon citizens of Idaho.

DeSosses said Friday he does not know Rose, nor has he filed to him. He said he filed a complaint with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission in July, alleging religious discrimination, and Rose may have used statements from that file.

Citizens can comment on planned landfill

EDEN — Residents in the Eden and Hazelton areas have until Jan. 16 to voice comments on a proposed location of a Land Management office in Shoshone on the proposed location of a landfill one mile northeast of Eden.

The Jerome County commission has applied to lease a parcel of BLM land that would be used for a landfill for the east end of the county.

The county commissioners have been looking for an additional landfill site in the east-end area for some time, because the present site is at capacity.

Commissioner Carl Montgomery of the Eden area recommended that the commission make an appointment to lease the proposed site from the BLM.

He says it would offer easy access from both Eden and Hazelton, and it would have adequate soil depth to provide cover for waste products well into the future.

Public comments on the proposed lease should be mailed to: Robert Luntz, Box 2-B, Shoshone, 83352, and should be marked "E-10038, Eden landfill."

QUESTION...

Under what circumstances is an amount due for funeral expenses available under the Railroad Retirement Act?

ANSWER...

An insurance lump sum is available to survivors of an employee with ten or more years of railroad service, if there is no one in the family eligible for an annuity based upon the employee's earnings.

The lump sum payment is first made to an eligible surviving spouse. If there is no eligible spouse then the payment is made to the funeral home and to the person who paid the funeral expenses if the employee acquired his 120th month of railroad employment before 1975.

For employees with 120 months of service before 1975 the lump sum is close to $1200.00. For those who complete 120 months after 1974 the benefit and conditions under which it is paid are based upon Social Security regulations and cannot exceed $255.00.

CSI offers two religion courses

TWIN FALLS - The third and fourth parts of "Exploring the Sacred Religions" series will be offered this semester at the College of Southern Idaho.

The second class, which will start March 5, is called "Spiritual Development." It will look at the psychological and social aspects of spiritual growth.

Subjects to be discussed will include the spiritual nature of man, the concept of spirituality, the process of individual spiritual growth, prayer and meditation, and the pattern of mankind's collective spiritual evolution.

Subjects to be covered will include man's quest for spiritual perfection, the interpretation of religious prophecy, various concepts of life after death and the creative power of the word of God, he says.

Falwell sees Jackson as VP nominee

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) - The head of the Moral Majority said Friday he thinks Jesse Jackson may win the Democratic vice-presidential nomination, but he predicts the Republicans will keep control of the White House.

The Rev. Jerry Falwell says that Jackson's success in obtaining the release of a Navy airman from Syria has boosted his chances of winning the second slot on his party's ticket.

Q. It isn't true that the Japanese suicide pilots of World War II, the kamikaze pilots, were volunteers who could quit anytime they wanted?
A. Volunteers, yes. But once in, they were in. Quitters were shot as traitors.

Q. In what country do the women routinely lift their own unwanted children?
A. You may be referring to the Yanomamo tribe - along the Brazilian-Venezuelan border. There it used to be customary for a mother to kill first-born daughters, cherish a first-born son, then kill any additional unwanted children, male or female.

Q. What's a "portmanteau" word?
A. A word made from two other words. Libs "brunch" from breakfast and lunch. Of "smog" from smoke and fog. Or at least, that's what the "Alice in Wonderland" writer Lewis Carroll called such words.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Today is the time for you to hold on to the worthwhile standards with which you have become inoculated for otherwise there can be considerable confusion in your life which upsets others.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) A good day to concentrate on the ideas that keep you from off the beaten path.

Steer clear of woes. Try not to argue with your mate.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Be more thoughtful of those around you, and this can become a more pleasant day for you.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Take no risks where higher-ups are concerned. You feel there is much that can be accomplished in the outside world. Drive with care.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) You want to make new plans but be sure you have all the information you need before doing so.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) A good day to analyze where you stand financially, so concentrate on the practical. Don't make unwise remarks where your mate is concerned.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 21) Give an associate, helping hand even though it may cause you a little inconvenience.

Take time to plan a vacation member of your family and show you are devoted. Do some necessary shopping.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Care in driving is most important today when others are apt to be quite reckless. Don't criticize a friend.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) If you spend lavishly today, you can soon regret it. Get your property improved. Don't get taken in by profiteers.

LIBRA (Sept. 22 to Oct. 22) You need to get more order into your environment; stop procrastinating about this. Pay little attention to a bothersome associate.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) You may find it difficult to relax and be persistent. Show your mate you're truly devoted. Do some necessary shopping.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)

Take time to plan a vacation member of your family and show you are devoted. Do some necessary shopping.

Board sets aside WPPSS mothballing

By LES BLUMENTHAL
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — A special board of arbitration Friday ducked the thorny question of whether a decision to mothball a Washington Public Power Supply nuclear power-plant was proper, and tossed the issue back to a federal judge.

Both the region's four private utilities and the Bonneville Power Administration — who were bitterly at odds over the construction slowdown — claimed victory after reading the panel's 1 1/2-page decision.

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Bilby of Tucson, Ariz., is expected to hold hearings within a month. Bilby, who appointed the arbitrators, has not indicated when he would rule.

While the court battle has been playing out, there is growing concern among WPPSS officials about whether the utilities may decide to stop paying their shares of the mothballing costs on WPPSS plant No. 2.

The utilities have turned down the latest budget for the plant, which included mothballing costs, but are still paying under protest. The utilities have refused to guarantee in writing that their payments would continue, maintaining that would be an admission that they agreed with the mothballing. In December, several members of the WPPSS executive board expressed fears that if the utilities finally agreed to mothballing, the plant could ultimately be terminated. The executive board has scheduled a special meeting in Richland next week to discuss the situation.

The arbitrators' decision raised numerous questions about the fate of the plant and its financing. The arbitrators said that because the supply system was unable to sell $1 billion worth of bonds to finance completion of the plant, the mothballing decision was a "prudent utility practice."

The arbitrators added, however, that if "sufficient funds from other sources were available," work on the project should have continued.

The private utilities have insisted that there was a source of financing available — BPA rates.

BPA says that would result in an unacceptable 20 percent increase in the wholesale rates it charges the region's utilities.

"They threw the clod of dirt back on Bilby's desk," said Chris Curtis, a spokeswoman for Puget Sound Power & Light, one of the four private utilities.

Hungry moose roam city

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — As if starving deer weren't enough, now hungry moose are roaming the streets of communities in the Cache Valley of northern Utah.

A young moose calf first sighted on Logan's Center Street Wednesday was corralled several hours later in a residential neighborhood.

Veri Hanchett, conservation officer with Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, said officers were able to tranquilize the moose, which was subsequently transported to the division's Hardware Ranch in Blackfoot-Fork-Garyton, where elk are fed every winter.

But Hanchett said another moose observed periodically in downtown Logan since Thursday morning is apparently still on the loose.

Sheriff's case studied

BOISE (AP) — Attorney General Jim Jones says he'll be asked to determine whether any criminal complaints should be filed in a case involving a plane program administered by the Ada County sheriff's office.

Jones' office on Friday issued its review of a special audit into Sheriff E.C. "Chuck" Palmer's aviation account.

The Ada County commissioners had asked Jones to determine whether any criminal wrongdoing had occurred.

The commissioners authorized the outside audit following the October 1983 crash of a county-maintained plane.

The craft was being piloted by Palmer's son Mike, 30, when it crashed near Challis during an skimming and proficiency-training flight.

One of the three passengers later died of complications from a leg fracture.

The Attorney General's report did not address the October flight itself. Jones' office questioned the way a $39,000 insurance settlement stemming from the 1981 crash of another Ada County plane was handled.

According to the report, the then-county commissioner in 1981 authorized use of the insurance money toward the purchase of a new plane without depositing it into the county general fund first, and then appropriating it.

Controls upset by mudslide

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — New movement in the massive mudslide blocking Spanish Fork Canyon has forced state officials to decide to remove flood-control devices at a tunnel through the slide, Utah Gov. Scott Matheson said Friday.

Officials also have decided because of the movement to abandon plans to lower the Spanish River to its original level, Matheson told reporters at a news conference.

The decision will leave the river running over about 11 feet of silt covering the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad's switching tracks, and force the railroad to decide whether to discontinue its Marysvale branch running north-south through the slide, or choose another location for the track.

Because the river won't be lowered, it could flood part of U.S. 89 at times during the year, so officials have decided to build a 1,100-foot-long bridge over the 200-foot-high slide to connect the road to U.S. 6, Matheson said.

The cost of the bridge is expected to be between $12 million and $15 million, and the plans to award contract within six months, said Larry Lunnen, director of the Utah Department of Public Safety.

Station fears incest movie

FOCATELLO (AP) — Focatello's ABC affiliate in Pocatello is considering taking a movie about incest out of its scheduled prime-time slot Monday night, according to Brian Hogan, the station's general manager.

But two local child-abuse experts say they understand the movie is important and tastefully done, and they think it should be seen by as wide an audience as possible.

"Something about Amelia," which stars Ted Danson as a father who has an incestuous relationship with his 13-year-old daughter, is scheduled to air at 8 p.m. MST Monday.

Hogan said his initial inclination was to air the film at 10 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 14, because that would give parents a better chance to prevent their children from viewing the movie.

He said he was also concerned the movie might incite more incest.

A. Volunteers, yes. But once in, they were in. Quitters were shot as traitors.

Q. In what country do the women routinely kill their own unwanted children?
A. You may be referring to the Yanomamo tribe along the Brazilian-Venezuelan border. There, it used to be customary for a mother to kill her first-born daughters, cherish a first-born son, then kill any additional unwanted children, male or female.

Q. What's a "portmanteau" word?
A. A word made from two other words. Like "brunch" from breakfast and lunch. Or "smog" from smoke and fog. Or at least that's what the "Alice in Wonderland" writer Lewis Carroll called such words.

Board sets aside WPPSS mothballing

By LES BLUMENTHAL
The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD — A special board of arbitration Friday ducked the thorny question of whether a decision to mothball a Washington Public Power Supply nuclear power plant was proper, and tossed the issue back to a federal judge.

But the region's four private utilities and the Bonneville Power Administration — who were bitterly at odds over the construction slowdown — claimed victory after reading the panel's 114-page decision.

U.S. District Court Judge Richard Bily of Tucson, Ariz., is expected to hold hearings within a month. Bily, who appointed the arbitrators, has not indicated when he would rule.

While the court battle has been playing out, there is growing concern among WPPSS officials about whether the utilities may decide to stop paying their share of the mothballing costs on WPPSS plant No. 3.

The utilities have turned down the last budget for the plant, which included mothballing costs, but are still paying under protest. The utilities have refused to guarantee in writing that their payments would continue, maintaining that would be an admission that they agreed with the mothballing.

In December, several members of the WPPSS executive board expressed fears that if the utilities stopped paying, the plant could ultimately be terminated. The executive board has scheduled a special meeting in Richland next week to discuss the situation.

The arbitrators' decision raised numerous questions about the fate of the plant and its financing.

The arbitrators said that because the supply system was unable to raise $1 billion worth of bonds to finance completion of the plant, the mothballing decision was a "prudent utility practice."

The arbitrators added, however, that if "sufficient funds from other sources were available," work on the project should have continued.

The private utilities have insisted that there was a source of financing available — BPA rates.

BPA says that would result in an unacceptable 20 percent increase in the wholesale rates it charges the region's utilities.

"They threw the clod of dirt back on Bily's desk," said Chris Curtis, a spokeswoman for Puget Sound Power & Light, one of the four private utilities.

Hungry moose roam city

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — As if starting deer weren't enough, now hungry moose are roaming the streets of communities in the Cache Valley of northern Utah.

A young moose calf first sighted on Logan's Center Street Wednesday was corralled several hours later in a residential neighborhood.

Vert Hanchett, conservation officer with Utah Division of Wildlife Resources, said officers were able to tranquilize the moose, which was subsequently transported to the division's Hardware Ranch in Blacksmith Fork Canyon, where elk are fed every winter.

But Hanchett said another moose observed periodically in downtown Logan since Thursday morning is apparently still on the loose.

Sheriff's case studied

BOISE (AP) — Attorney General Jim Jones says he'll be asked to determine whether any criminal complaints should be filed in a review of a plane program administered by the Ada County sheriff's office.

Jones' office on Friday issued its review of a special audit into Sheriff E.C. "Chuck" Palmer's aviation account.

The Ada County commissioners had asked Jones to determine whether any criminal wrongdoing had occurred.

The commissioner's authorized the outside audit following the October 1983 crash of a county-maintained plane.

The craft was being piloted by Palmer's son Mike, 30, when it crashed near Challis during an elk spotting and proficiency training flight.

One of the three passengers later died of complications from a leg fracture.

The attorney general's report did not address the October flight itself.

Jones' office questioned the way a $30,000 insurance settlement stemming from the 1981 crash of another Ada County plane was handled.

According to the report, the then-county commission in 1981 authorized use of the insurance money toward the purchase of a new plane without depositing it into the county general fund first, and then appropriating it.

Controls set by mudslide

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — New movement in the massive mudslide blocking Spanish Fork Canyon has forced state officials to decide to remove flood-control devices at a tunnel through the storm.

Scott Matheson said Friday.

Officials also have decided because of the movement to abandon plans to lower the Spanish Fork River to its original level, Matheson told reporters at a news conference.

The decision will leave the river running over about 11 feet of silt covering the Denver & Rio Grande Western Railroad's switching tracks and force the railroad to decide whether to discontinue its Maryvale branch running north-south through central Utah or choose another location.

Because the river won't be lowered, it could flood part of U.S. 89 at times during the year, so officials have decided to build a 1,200-foot-long bridge over the 200-foot-high slide to connect the road to U.S. 6, Matheson said.

The cost of the bridge is expected to be between $12 million and $15 million, and the state plans to award a contract within six months, said Larry Lumsden, director of the Utah Department of Public Safety.

Station fears incest movie

POCATELLO (AP) — Pocatello's ABC affiliate — KPVI-TV — is considering taking a movie about incest out of its rotation prime time slot Monday night, according to Brian Hogan, the station's general manager.

But two local child-abuse experts say they understand the movie is important and tastefully done and they think it should be seen by as wide an audience as possible.

"Something About Amelia," which stars Ted Danson as a father who has been accused of incest with his 13-year-old daughter, is scheduled to air at 8 p.m. MEST Monday.

Hogan said his initial inclination was to air the film at 10:30 p.m. on Saturday, Jan. 14, because that would give parents a better chance to prevent their children from viewing the movie.

He said he was also concerned the movie might incite more incest.

1,500 protest killer's release

By LISA LEVITT
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Dan White, who gunned down the city's mayor and a supervisor five years ago, was paroled from prison Friday to a secret location in the Los Angeles area, while in San Francisco about 1,500 people staged a noisy demonstration to protest his release.

Members of a protest committee, including gay activists still bitter about the slaying of supervisor Harvey Milk, an avowed homosexual, had called for a series of demonstrations in San Francisco against White's release.

release, about 1,500 people massed in Union Square, chanting, ... blowing whistles and banging pots. They carried signs that read, "Dan White is an all-American murderer," "Dan White is condemned by God's Law," and "Eat a F*cking Beat the rap," a reference to White's defense claims that he had been affected by junk food.

An effigy of White dressed in white prison garb dangled from a flag pole above the crowd. "We're here to protest the injustice of a justice system that does not work," said Jay Hanke of the Committee to Protest the Injustice. "Being mad is all we have."

"Yesterday was the last day Dan

White could spend knowing he would live through that day," said a bearded man in a man's habit who calls himself Sister Boom Boom. "Dan White starts a life sentence, and it's not going to be a long one."

A group called the Committee to Protest the Injustice had urged a citywide work stoppage Friday to express anger over White's short prison sentence for the 1978 killings. An evening rally was planned for San Francisco's predominantly gay Castro District.

The Department of Corrections said White, 37, was released at an undisclosed location in Los Angeles County, where he will live in a rented apartment.

Gossage: Five years, $5.5 million

By MIKE CLARK
The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — Free agent relief pitcher Rich Gossage agreed Friday to a five-year contract with the San Diego Padres, ending what he termed weeks of sleepless nights.

Terms of the contract were not disclosed, but it is understood that Gossage will be paid $5.5 million over the life of the contract. The contract also calls for a one-year option in the sixth year.

Gossage, the backbone of the New York Yankees bullpen for six seasons, told a large news conference at San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium that he is looking forward to playing baseball again.

"This negotiating," Gossage laughed, "I'd much rather pitch than negotiate."

Gossage, 32, said he devoted some three months to the search for his new employer, and much of the last three weeks was devoted to nocturnal agonizing.

"Many nights I would wake up and just lay there for an hour mulling over the contract," Gossage said. "Even when I wasn't awake, I must have been thinking about it."

Gossage said a major factor in his choice of San Diego over, among others, the Atlanta Braves, was the youthful but talented Padre corps of starting pitchers.

"Now the starters will be able to go as hard as they can for as long as they can," said the hard-throwing right-hander.

Gossage dismissed any talk concerning possible adjustment troubles in moving to the National League.

"I've got to throw it and they've got to hit it," he said. "I've never fooled anybody in my life."

The signing of Gossage marked the second time in as many seasons that the Padres had landed a standout from the stable of agent Jerry Kapstein. Last year, the Padres landed long-time Los Angeles Dodgers first baseman Steve Garvey.

"I don't want to talk about the monetary terms other than to say that it's a lot of money for somebody who deserves to be making a lot of money," said Padres President Ballard Smith. "Last year, I said he got the last dollar for Steve, and this year I'll say again that he got the last dollar for Rick."

Smith said that Gossage left the money talk to Kapstein, but did get involved on matters concerning the team.

"We spent a lot of time with (General Manager) Jack McKeon and (Manager) Dick Williams and other players on our team talking about our team. Rick let it be known that he didn't want to go to a club that didn't have a chance to win, win in 1984, and, two, didn't have an opportunity to be successful for the next five years that he would be with the club.

"We spent a lot of time discussing our personnel and I feel very good for that reason that Rick decided to come here because I think he feels and we feel that we're in a position to win the National League Western Division in 1984."

Gossage spent six seasons with the Yankees after signing with New York as a free agent in 1977. He won 41 games, lost 28 and saved 15 saves Gossage, 23 and 23 mark and 23 saves Gossage, 23 and 23 marks after a tumultuous 1983 campaign that he would no longer toil in the employ of New York owner George Steinbrenner. He had previously complained that Steinbrenner's frequent intrusions into on-the-field operations.

Last year, he was reportedly unhappy with Manager Billy Martin. The signing of Yogi Berra as Martin's replacement seemed to talk that Gossage would return, but Gossage soon dashed those hopes.

Gossage downplayed his split with the Yankees, saying his six seasons with the American League club were "years that I wouldn't trade for anything." He added that many Yankee fans sent letters — "letters, not just little notes," asking him to stay in New York.

Gossage was anxious to sign a contract by Jan. 15, by which time he would have been subject to a secondary draft for free agents still available at that date.

CSI gets past tough WWC

By LARRY HOVER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — They got into the trenches to decide this one.

College of Southern Idaho, taken off guard somewhat by a tenacious man defense, pulled out all the stops Friday night, to defeat Western Wyoming's Spartans 83-67.

Earlier in the night, Northwest Wyoming pulled away from an early tie and went on to defeat Treasure Valley's Chukars 75-60.

The teams switch opponents to night, with the Chukars meeting Western Wyoming at 7 p.m. and CSI going against Northwest Wyoming, about 8 p.m.

CSI's margin of victory was a desirable to the effort Western Wyoming made on both ends of the court — and particularly in the rebound battle. Through most of the game, CSI was pressed to maintain its eight to 10-point advantage in the second half, as the Spartans refused to be intimidated by the lead. Although the Spartans led for most of the first half, it wasn't until the fourth quarter that they had a workable lead advantage.

"It probably was as good a man defense as we've faced this year, and we weren't looking for it," said Coach Fred Yrekle. "Everything we'd heard about Western is that they used a two-three or one-three-one type zone defense."

Although the ball was contested all over the court, the in-fighting was severe on the boards and inside. Western opened with the expected zone, and CSI took it to the glass on its first two offensive thrusts.

Just under seven minutes into the contest, CSI moved up 17-8 but Western refused to wilt and came back on the inside playing of Dr. Sken and Jerry Hatfield. The game tensed up when Western shifted to its man with the score favoring CSI 21-13 and the Spartans chopped to within five points.

About a minute later the Eagles hit a scoring spurt in which Bob Shropshire, Fred Emerson and CSI's Fred Emerson soars for two against Western Wyoming.

Bruins dump Poky, 80-64

By CHRIS WAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Displaying shooting deadlier than anything you'd see in one of Clint Eastwood's "Dirty Harry" films, the Twin Falls Bruins thumped Pocatello 80-64 Friday night to win their Gem State Conference opener.

The Bruins, 5-1 overall, finished with slightly above-average 45.7 shooting percentage (32 of 70), but nothing was average about their 57-percent first-half marksmanship, which enabled them to blitz the Indians 27-10 in the first quarter, score eight bombing points in the final two minutes of the second quarter and essentially settle matters.

Complementing Twin Falls' incendiary early effort was junior Doug Peterson. The 6-3 substitute entered the game early in the first period and contributed almost ceaselessly thereafter, collecting 14 points and 11 rebounds — eight of those rebounds in the first half.

"I think he (Peterson) carried us early, and then everybody kind of hit his stride," Twin Falls Coach John Astorino said.

Astorino explained that the zone defense Pocatello employed at the outset succeeded in denying the ball to Bruin scoring ace Andy Toolson in the high post, Peterson's insertion into the high-post spot had Toolson to roam the low post, and that's when the bullets started flying.

With Twin Falls leading 9-4, Toolson tallied seven consecutive points. Minutes later, the difference now was the Bruins went on a 19-2 binge that Toolson roared the low post, and Darren Stuart's three-point goal ended on Jason Meyerhoffer's lay-up shot opening the second period.

The 19-point advantage didn't go much throughout the rest of the quarter until two minutes remained. And Braden's fast ending faded to 17 points. That's when Bob Buhl began the eight-point fusillade, which, after Buhl's jump shot, Peterson scored underneath at 1-17. Tim Crossen chipped in with a rainbow jumper at 1-13 and Joban's dunk made the 19-11 lead.

Spartans thump Blackfoot, 65-42

BLACKFOOT — Brad Croft scored 20 points and Carl Bailey added 19 here Friday night as the Minco boys routed Blackfoot 65-42 in the Spartans' Gem State Conference basketball opener.

The Spartans, now 4-1 for the season, broke open a tight game in the third quarter by sealing off the middle and forcing the Broncos to take low percentage shots.

Blackfoot's 6-foot-4 center, Tom James, led eight points in the game, and high-scoring forward Mark Lach got just four.

"I was just happy with the whole team's effort," said Minco Coach Craig Dexter. "We came out and played sloppy ball in the first half and got behind, but in the third quarter we fought off the press and came right back."

Blackfoot led by as much as two and three points throughout much of the second quarter and held a 22-14 advantage at intermission. By the Spartans outscored the Broncos 19-7 in the third stanza and Blackfoot never got closer than 12 points thereafter.

"They just kept forcing it in in the third quarter and we picked up about 10 rebounds," said Dexter. "That's the first half we played, we were lucky to come out of it as well as we did. I wasn't satisfied at all with our performance in the first half."

The Spartans will host Twin Falls tonight.

Carey wins Northside shootout with Camas

By SCOTT TUDHOPE

FAIRFIELD — David and Goliath — how would you like to have both on the same club?

Carey Coach Scott Peck seemed to be in that enviable situation Friday night as point guard Brad Tingey scored 42 points while big Mark Conrad muscled for 25 points and 25 rebounds as the Panthers defeated Camas County 84-75 Friday night in a Northside Conference boys' basketball confrontation.

Tingey, who has averaged 34.5 points per game this season, started slowly the first two minutes, allowing teammate Will Neal to score. Camas County took the basket four quick layups, helping the Panthers to a 17-point first-quarter lead.

Peck said the game went as he had planned. Double coverage of Neal, a 6-4 forward, and Conrad's tenacious, added up to a big night for the 6-3 senior.

"Conrad won the ballgame for you," said Camas County Coach Ed Blankenhorn to Peck after the game. "We just can't expect to

USFL Maulers hope to sign Rozier

By PETER MATTACE
The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH — The Pittsburgh Maulers of the United States Football League said they expect to sign Heisman Trophy winner Mike Rozier to a USFL contract within 10 days and that further talks with the Nebraska running back may be held this week.

Mike Trope, Rozier's agent, said his client's value now — before he's been drafted by the National Football League — is as high as it will ever be.

Trope and the Maulers, however, were still dickering over a number of items, most notably Trope's contention that Rozier is worth as much as $1.5 million as a follow Heisman winner. Hirschel Walker was last season when he joined the New Jersey Generals after his junior year at Georgia.

Maulers General Manager George Heddleston said the expansion team, which drafted Rozier Wednesday, "never agreed to match Hirschel's contract." Despite that, Trope said: "I think they really want the kid."

"We know he's going to be expensive," Heddleston said. "But we still think we can do a deal and do it soon."

Heddleston hinted there may be further negotiations this weekend in the San Francisco area, where Rozier is attending Saturday's East-West Shrine game as a spectator. Rozier, who rushed for 2,148 yards and 29 touchdowns this year, was expected to play before he hurt his ankle in Monday's Orange Bowl, which the Colts lost to Miami 31-30.

Trope, the Los Angeles-based agent who has represented seven of the last 12 Heisman Trophy winners, said Rozier is "definitely in the category" of Walker, who reportedly signed a three-year, $3 million contract with the Generals.

"I'm not going to tell you what we've asked for, but it's a very substantial" Trope said.

Heddleston, who said he hopes to sign Rozier before the running back leaves Jan. 14 for the Japan Bowl, said Walker's name came up in negotiations, which began in a Miami Beach hotel in December at the Orange Bowl.

"One of Trope's earliest remarks to me was, 'You are aware of what Hirschel Walker got last year,' and we said, 'Yes,'" Heddleston said.

RUBI — Michelle Bonar and Gina Smutny scored 14 points apiece Friday night to lead the Twin Falls girls to a 49-38 victory over the Mountain Home Tigers in a South Central Idaho Conference girls' basketball contest.

The win boosted the Indians into the conference lead with an unblemished conference record.

The Tigers dominated the first half of the game with Teri Caldwell scoring 12 points. Mountain Home used their height advantage scoring on inside shots, while Buhl had to settle for shots from outside.

to the basket and cutting the Tiger's lead to a point.

Gina Smutny scored with five minutes left and the Indians took their first lead in the game.

One minute later, Heidi Brenden boosted the Indian's lead to three points as Bonar scored 30 seconds later and Buhl led 38-38.

The Indians went into their passing game with two minutes left in the game. Some clutch free throws by Bonar, Smutny and Lori Easton down the stretch gave the Indians the victory.

In the second half, I think that's the best game I've ever seen all year," said Buhl Coach Janet Smutny.

In the second half, the Indians adjusted their defense from zone to a man-to-man and held the Tiger to 14 points in the half.

"I think the adjustment we made for defense made the difference," said Smutny.

The victory raised the Indians' record to 7-4, while Mountain Home suffered their first conference loss and fell to 9-3.

Six more Idahoans drafted by USFL

By The Associated Press and The Times-News

NEW YORK — Six more Idaho football players have been drafted by the United States Football League teams in the last nine rounds of the USFL college draft.

The six are Michel Bourgeau, a defensive tackle from Boise State, by the Chicago Blitz in the 11th round; Steve Seaman, an offensive tackle from the University of Idaho, by the Oklahoma Outlaws in the 12th round; Brian Allen, a wide receiver from Idaho, by Oklahoma in the 15th round; Kurt Vestman, a tight end from Idaho, by the Pittsburgh Maulers in the 16th round; Paul Peterson, a quarterback from Idaho State, by the Washington Federals in the 19th round; and Rodney Webster, a running back from Boise State, by the Los Angeles Express in the 19th round.

In addition, four other Big Sky players were chosen by USFL teams in the late rounds. They are Brian Salonen, a tight end from Montana, by the Houston Gamblers in the 11th round; Jim Kalafat, an inside linebacker from Montana State, by the San Antonio Gallos in the 15th round; Alphonse Williams, a wide receiver from Nevada-Reno, by the Denver Gold in the 18th round; and Brad Rowland, a defensive end from Northern Arizona, a territorial selection by the Arizona Wranglers.

On Wednesday, four players from Idaho were taken in the first eight rounds of the draft. They are Ken Hebert, a quarterback from Idaho, by the Jacksonville Bulls in the second round; Matt Courtney, a cornerback from Idaho State, by Jacksonville in the fourth round; Carl Qualls, an outside linebacker from ISU, by Jacksonville in the fifth round; and Ken O'Neal, a tight end from ISU, by the Michigan Panthers in the eighth round.

Other early-round selections from the Big Sky were Pete Mandley, a wide receiver from NAU, a territorial selection by Arizona; Derek Kennard, an offensive tackle from Nevada-Reno, by Los Angeles in the third round; Sam Slater, an offensive tackle from Weber State, by Pittsburgh in the fifth round; Tony Zengelas, a placekicker from UNR, by Los Angeles in the fifth round; Anthony Carley, a fullback from UNR, by Michigan in the seventh round; Otto Kelly, a tailback from UNR, by Pittsburgh in the eighth round; and Dennis Rogan, a tailback from Weber State, by the Denver Gold in the 11th round.

44-year-old Phil Niekro signs for $1.4 million

By JOHN NELSON
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Knuckeball pitcher Phil Niekro, cut at the end of the 1983 season by the Atlanta Braves, became the oldest active player ever to wear a New York Yankees uniform Friday when he signed a two-year contract with the team.

Niekro, who will be 45 a day before the season opens, was introduced to New York at a news conference and said he would continue to pitch until "somebody can take the job away from me."

The oldest previous active Yankee was Johnny Conway, who was with the team in 1944 at the age of 43.

Niekro, who had spent all of his 19 years in the major leagues with the Braves, signed a contract believed to be worth $1.4 million plus incentives. That would take him through the 1985 season.

Niekro just spoke with the team doctor, and he was worried concerned that (Niekro) has only four or five years left," joked General Manager Murray Cook.

"Niekro was less facetious when asked how long he expected to continue playing. "I can't answer that," he said. "All I know is I feel great, and as long as I can keep pitching, the managers and owners have to keep putting me out there."

Niekro was cut by the Braves apparently because owner Ted Turner felt the pitcher was too old. "I know I'm still valuable as far as winning in the big leagues goes," Niekro said. "I don't believe in age."

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"There's such a thing as moderation, even in telling the truth..." - Vera Johnson.

The defender who always ruffs with his lowest possible card may be respected for his truthfulness, but most declarers will remember his lack of guile.

South took the trump and ruffed a club in dummy. With which card should East overruff with the jack, South is sure to make his game. He will take the percentage play of the trump finesse and will hold his losses to two diamonds and one overruff.

What happens if East deceptively ruffs with his king? You can bet the hoststead that South's trump finesse for the jack of trumps. South will win East's spade exit in dummy and instead of finessing dummy's 10 of trumps, he will play his ace and queen, hoping to drop a doubler jack from a partner.

West discards on the second trump and when South stars-at in this disbelief, East is ready with a sympathetic quip. "Sorry, I guess I pulled the wrong card," will do the job quite well.

Our Biggest Deal Is You.

Drives like $20,000.
Costs like $7,390.

Drive a German sedan that costs around $20,000 and you'll feel how well it handles a road.

Drive the Volkswagen Jetta and you'll get the same kind of feeling.
You'll just get it for about $12,500 less! Which makes buying one almost as much fun as driving one.

The 1984 Jetta. It's not a car.
$7,390.* It's a Volkswagen.

*MSRP. Excludes tax, license, title, and dealer fees. Dealer sets actual price.
