Evans urges leadership, teamwork

In annual address

By QUANE KENYON
AP Capital Writer

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans told Idaho's lawmakers Monday the state can't wait passively for progress and prosperity; it will take "both leadership and teamwork" to achieve it.

Evans, in his annual "State of the State" message, gave the Legislature a six-point platform to meet what he listed as the state's most pressing needs.

But lawmakers said they'll have to set priorities on those goals. And a key legislator, Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, R-Boise, said she doubted the Legislature will fund one of Evans' proposals, to create a new Department of Commerce.

Remap — B3

"There's nothing wrong with having a Department of Commerce," she said, "except it will cost additional dollars."

- Here are highlights of the governor's proposals:
- Funding for public schools "that will make them second to none."
- More money for colleges and universities, to show the rest of the country that Idahoans place a high value on higher education.
- Creating a new Department of Commerce to compete for the new industry and expanded international trade.
- More support for local government.
- Funding state agencies so they can provide "necessary and essential" services.
- Changing the state's tax structure to make it "more fair and equitable."

The governor drew no response from a joint House-Senate session when he talked about creating a new Department of Commerce. But almost every time Evans mentioned improving Idaho education, the legislators applauded.

The governor said there have been several studies in the last year, all pointing up the need to improve the state's educational system.

"While there are some differences in how best to attain that goal, there are common threads that run through all of the studies and recommendations — particularly the finding that we must improve faculty salaries throughout our educational system."

"I urge all of you to thoroughly examine these reports and recommendations and to join in the effort to make Idaho's public schools, colleges and universities, and vocational-technical schools, second to none."

Evans generally didn't recommend specific legislation, but did give broad outlines of his legislative goals.

Lawmakers said they liked that approach.

"The best part was where the governor said Idaho's future is bright," said Rep. Jack Kennevik, R-Boise, majority floor leader. "He gave us some goals we all can work for."

"It will take the Legislature to determine what priorities we will put on his goals."

BOISE — Magic Valley legislators say they heard a plea for more cooperation between the governor and the Legislature in Gov. John Evans' "State of the State" address.

The governor's address — to a joint session of the 47th Idaho Legislature — was the first such meeting since lawmakers refused his request to address a special session of the Legislature last spring.

That refusal, referred to by Evans as a "snub," was seen by many as the culmination of a session of intense ill will between the two branches of state government.

"It looks to me like he'll be easier to work with this year," said Rep. Noy Brackett, R-Twin Falls. "Last year, he vetoed something like 23 bills. I'm not saying he shouldn't have vetoed some of them, but that's a lot of vetoes."

"It's a human nature to want to not fight, but if you've backed into a corner, you have to respond," he said, explaining the cool reception the governor commanded following last year's recent legislative session.

"I hope we can work more cooperatively with the governor," said Rep. Vald Chaburn, R-Albion, who is beginning his 28th year in the Legislature.

"I think 800-the-legislature and the governor learned some good hard lessons during the last session, and I think they'll both be amenable."

But being amenable doesn't mean writing a blank check, Chaburn said.

"What the governor mentioned is, I think, deserving of attention. But it's kind of like most everything else: You can only buy what you can afford." He said of the six goals contained in Evans' speech on Monday.

Included among his goals are increased funding for both public schools and higher education, establishing a Department of Commerce for industrial and commercial recruitment, and additional financial support for local governments.

"The goals are legitimate," said Speaker of the House Tom Stivers, R-Twin Falls. "But I think the goals, when you add them all together, are beyond our reach. We've found by the news that being realistic."

In recent weeks, Stivers has made clear his desire to allow the temporary sales tax increase — passed during the 1983 legislative session — to expire. He also has pledged to not raise additional revenues by creating new taxes to fund state government.

Stivers said he, too, saw a plea for cooperation in the governor's message, but he said, "I'm not aware of a desire not to cooperate."

And he said that last year's rift between the governor and the Legislature may be overemphasized. "I don't think there were any wounds opened up, no hard feelings, just a difference of opinion."

Sen. Laird Noh, R-Kimberly, said that Evans may have attempted a bit more diplomacy in Monday's address than he has in previous speeches.

Supreme Court clears way for Hansen trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has rejected U.S. Rep. George Hansen's argument that the Justice Department improperly indicted him on charges he violated personal financial-disclosure laws.

Monday, the justices refused to overturn lower-court rulings rejecting Hansen's claim. That clears the way for trial on the charges.

Hansen said the ruling clears the way for "direct legal action" against the charges. The seven-term veteran Idaho congressman, who is seeking re-election this year, is the first person ever to be charged with violating the 1978 federal law that requires such yearly disclosures.

In a prepared statement, Hansen once again lashed out at the Justice Department charges, calling them "unfounded and malicious," and he said they were filed against him because of his battles against government agencies.

"The real issue in my fight with Justice Department bureaucrats is not whether I filed my reports correctly, which I did, but whether they are playing politics to get me for breaking up secret and illegal government efforts against innocent citizens," he said.

Hansen contends the law on financial disclosure does not authorize criminal prosecution of offenders, and he argues alternatively, that as a member of Congress he is constitutionally immune from being prosecuted under the law.

Jim McKenna, a legal aide to Hansen, told The Times-News on Monday that "the preferred route" in obtaining a legal victory over the Justice Department would have been for the Supreme Court to dismiss the charges.

This route, McKenna said, would have cost less money and would have established the fact that congressmen cannot be indicted by the financial-disclosure requirements of the Ethics in Government Act.

But now that this effort has failed, McKenna says Hansen welcomes the chance to confront the Justice Department charges head-on, during a yet-to-be-scheduled trial in Washington, D.C.

"This way will be considerably more expensive, but we will be able to beat the case on its merits," McKenna said. "If we had beat them the other way (through a favorable Supreme Court decision), people might say there were truth to the charges, but he got off on a technicality."

Hansen's lawyers also have said that as an outspoken critic of the Internal Revenue Service, Hansen has "been targeted for selective prosecution."

The indictment, returned by a federal grand jury in Washington on April 7, charges Hansen with violating the law by failing to disclose personal loans of more than $200,000, made to him and his wife in 1978 and 1981.

The indictment also charges him with failing to report profits of more than $7,000 made in 1979 silver transactions.

If convicted, Hansen could be sentenced to five years in prison and be fined $10,000 on each count.

Hansen had sought to have the indictment dismissed by U.S. District Judge Joyce Heus Green.

He raised the constitutional-immunity and selective-prosecution arguments, as well as contending that the financial-disclosure requirements are not subject to criminal sanctions.

The judge ruled against Hansen on all three points.

Hansen then sought to raise the three arguments in an appeal to the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington.

The appeals court agreed with the trial judge that the filing of financial-disclosure statements is not legislative activity covered by that portion of the Constitution that pro-

Panel says hunger not big problem

By MARGARET SCHERF
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A White House task force said Monday it cannot substantiate "allegations of rampant hunger" in America and recommended that Congress make participation in federal food assistance programs optional for the states.

"We cannot doubt there is hunger in America," said the 13-member panel in its report. But, it added, "We have not been able to substantiate allegations of rampant hunger."

And, it said, "For the vast majority of low-income people, the private and public parts of the income-maintenance safety-net assistance efforts are available and sufficient for those who take advantage of them."

While the report saw no need for major new programs, it made a series of recommendations, including one opponents said could change the nature of the food stamp program.

The task force, meeting for the first time after seven hearings around the country, quickly approved sections of the report dealing with the definition and extent of hunger — which the report said was impossible to document. It voted 9-3, with one member absent, to recommend turning federal food assistance programs into optional block grants to the states.

"The task force recommends that Congress make participation in existing federal food assistance programs optional for the states," the report said. "States which choose to establish autonomous programs will instead receive one

Payments in cash stymie tax system

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Donald Regan said Monday the Reagan administration will include in its fiscal 1985 budget plan a call for new efforts to capture some of the billions of tax dollars lost to people in the "underground economy" of cash-only transactions.

Regan, speaking to reporters after a ceremony at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, expressed concern about the "explosion in the amount of currency in circulation in this country."

"I have to think that a lot of it is this so-called tax gap or underground economy," he said. "There's an awful lot of cash being used in this economy, and I'd like to get to the root of what's causing that and then try to slow it down."

"If there's going to be a cash economy, we're not collecting our share of that," Regan said.

The Internal Revenue Service estimates that tax cheating and unintentional errors may have cost the government $31.5 billion in lost taxes in 1981. An additional $9 billion is lost from such illicit sources of income as gambling, drugs and prostitution, it believes.

The IRS calls this shortfall the tax gap, or the difference between what was paid and its estimate of the correct amount due. Some of that comes from the so-called underground economy — the business transactions that many Americans conduct legally and illegally in cash, which they fail to report to the government for tax purposes.

Regan said he intended to discuss the problem with President Reagan as the administration began making final decisions on the budget proposals Regan will submit early in February for the fiscal year starting Oct. 1.

He said administration concern about the problem would be reflected in the new budget plan.

Later, a Treasury spokesman, Stephen Hayes, said that Regan "did not intend to signal a major new administration initiative" in this area.

Plane crashes on interstate

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A DC-3 cargo plane crashed in flames Monday night near Interstate 70 adjacent to Lambert-St. Louis International Airport shortly after midnight, injuring both crewmembers aboard, authorities said.

The plane, en route to the highway and had apparently missed a residential area, said an airport police spokesman.

Airport officials and the Missouri Highway Patrol said separately that the plane was carrying a propeller airplane, which apparently was owned by a Canadian cargo line.

One of the crewmembers was seriously injured and the other sustained minor injuries, officials said.

No one on the ground was believed injured and no buildings were reported damaged. The plane went down at about 9:33 p.m. MST shortly after takeoff, officials said.

Film makers face charges

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Conspiracy and recklessness on the "Twilight Zone" movie set led to the deaths of actor Vic Morrow and two children, a prosecutor said Monday as director John Landis and four others pleaded innocent a second time to involuntary manslaughter.

The defense later showed videotape of the accident as filmed from several cameras.

Landis, associate producer George Folsey Jr., production manager Oscar Blattmann, special effects coordinator Paul Stewart and helicopter pilot Dorsey Wong entered their pleas as a preliminary hearing began before Municipal Court Judge Brian Cranon.

BLM investigates oil firms

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — The U.S. Attorney's office and the Bureau of Land Management are investigating whether private companies are illegally draining millions of dollars in oil and gas from federal and state lands in Wyoming, the two agencies announced Monday.

"We are looking into it and trying to collect enough information to see if a full-fledged investigation is warranted," said U.S. Attorney Richard Stacy.

Stacy's office has been interested in the possibility of violations for several months and has requested additional information from the BLM, which administers the federal mining leases. About 50 percent of the land in Wyoming is owned by the federal government.

A memorandum Stacy sent to the BLM on Nov. 5 described the problem — wells need to be sealed and land draining oil or gas that belongs to the government — as one of "potential enormity."

Idaho whoopers boost flocks

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Whooping cranes nurtured at Grays Lake in eastern Idaho have contributed to what the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service says is an impressive increase in the whooper population.

The agency said the documented whooping crane population has risen from 15 in 1941 to its current 148 in the United States and Canada.

Some eggs and chicks from wild and captive flocks have been taken to Grays Lake National Wildlife Refuge in eastern Idaho, where they are reared by foster parent sandhill cranes.

In 1983 the Idaho program added 10 chicks to the 14 older whoopers already in the Grays Lake flock, the Fish and Wildlife Service said in a news release announcing the 10th anniversary of the federal Endangered Species Act.

Nixon and McGovern confer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon and the Democrat he defeated for the presidency in 1972 met in New York for more than a hour Monday in what a Nixon aide characterized as "a wide-ranging discussion on foreign policy."

Former South Dakota Senator George McGovern, who carried only Massachusetts and the District of Columbia as the Democratic nominee in 1972, is making a run for president again this year.

It was Nixon's 71st birthday and the former president observed it at home with his family.

CBS News reported Monday evening that Nixon and McGovern discussed a possible joint trip to Moscow. But Nick Nixon, Nixon's assistant, said, "At the present time we don't have any trip out of John F. Kennedy and Dulles on the boards." John F. Kennedy is the principal airport for overseas destinations from New York, and Dulles from Washington.

Rep. Mel Hammond, D-Reburg, said the governor's speech generally "exceeded the legislature, rather than specific." He called for making breakthroughs in some areas. It was a positive speech," Hammond said.

The House Revenue and Taxation Committee "probably will take a run at" one of the governor's proposals on tax changes, said Rep. Steve Antonio, R-Rupert. He's chairman of that committee. The governor drew applause when he urged the lawmakers to give local units of government local-option taxing authority.

Antonio said his committee probably will consider again whether to end a sales tax granted counties at the Idaho-National Engineering-Laboratory, and it might have a better chance this session. But Antonio said "chances are slim" that the Legislature will pass another Evans proposal, to apply the sales tax to services.

Mr. Gurnsey, co-chair of the Finance-Appropriations Committee, said he agreed with Evans that "if we have the right business climate, a sound educational system and essential services, all will benefit."

She said Evans' request for a general fund budget of $500 million is "not realistic" and she expects a final figure of about $500 million, or $30 million less than asked by Evans.

"The governor gave a very broad speech. He didn't get into controversial specifics."

"If you're going to have a cooperative session, sometimes it's good to stay away from specifics," Noh said.

He said the governor's statements and those were particularly conciliatory on the issue of legislative reapportionment.

That issue is of prime concern to the 105 lawmakers, many of whom are uncertain if the districts they would represent should they seek re-election this year.

"It is my sincere hope that we can put our differences aside and approach the challenge of reapportionment in a spirit of cooperation," Evans told the Legislature.

ruled on all the legal arguments raised by his appeal.

single appropriation to fund these programs."

"That would represent a major change in the giant food stamp program, which generally acts to minimize variations in welfare payments among the states. In states with low cash welfare programs, poor people now can get the larger allotments of food stamps."

"States or local governments are often better able to identify people and their particular needs than the federal government," the report said. Yet, under the present system, the federal government must dictate blanket eligibility criteria for all the states."

The optional program was opposed by organizations representing mayors, county and governors. It was endorsed by Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., who called the report "an insult to every American who has ever visited a soup kitchen."

"In its cold, clinical, bureaucratic language, this document, issued in the first days of 1984, has earned a place in George Orwell's vision of the dystopian society of 1984," Kennedy said. "It is a transparent cover-up of the serious and worsening problem of hunger in America. In effect, this commission says to the hungry: 'Let them eat black grants.'"

The National Governors Association said "it's not such a plan because it 'serves to place a cap on the federal share of the program so that federal funds will no longer change readily as the number of eligible needy persons increases or decreases in an individual state.'"

Govs. Richard D. Lamm of Colorado, a Democrat, and Thomas H. Kean of New Jersey, a Republican, said in a letter to the task force, "The block grant moves away from enforceable national standards and could appear to be the beginning of a process to turn back this federal responsibility to the states."

"This administration loves to sweep poverty programs under the rug that it creates 'block grants,'" said a statement issued by Rep. Paul Simon, D-Ill. "The idea is, sweep it under the rug today, and pull the plug tomorrow. It is a misguided approach, because hunger is a national problem, and solving it should be a national effort. The war on hunger should be fought coast to coast and not state to state."

The position also was expressed by panel members John Driggs, a bank board chairman and former mayor of Phoenix, Ariz.; Kansas City Mayor Richard L. Berkley; and Sandra Smoley, a member of the board of supervisors of Sacramento County, Calif. They worried that the federal money going to the states would not rise along with unemployment and food prices.

Berkley said during a break in the task force meeting that he and other members had not had time to fully read a draft report on which they were voting and that information supporting the recommendations had not been provided fully by the panel's staff.

"I also questioned the origin of some of the material submitted by the staff. Some of the recommendations are ones I don't think have necessarily come from the particular testimony that has been heard," said Berkley, a Republican.

But panel members backing the food program plan stressed its optional nature and said money going to the states would increase automatically with inflation and unemployment increases.

Mr. Smoley said that despite the promises, she feared what would happen "beyond the task force."

A panel member supporting the proposal, Midge Decker, a New York writer, said witnesses at task force hearings spoke of "a total lack of flexibility" under the federal run program.

Aide-backs off statement on recommendation

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan would be inclined to ignore an upcoming recommendation by the Kissinger Commission on Central America that future military aid to El Salvador be conditioned on improved human rights behavior by that government, his spokesman said Monday.

But in an abrupt turnaround after news stories about his remark appeared, the spokesman, deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes, said Reagan had not received the report and would keep an open mind. "Asked initially whether Reagan would reject linking aid to El Salvador to progress on human rights, Speakes said, "He would be inclined so, yes." Speakes noted that the administration will voluntarily submit a report to Congress on the human rights situation in El Salvador next Monday.

In the evening, however, Speakes said that "in light of various news stories this afternoon, I want to make it clear that the president has not received the report of the bipartisan commission on Central America and will have an open mind on the commission's recommendations.

"Statements on the certification process on El Salvador which I made today reflect the president's viewpoint prior to receiving the report. He will consider all aspects of every recommendation before making a final decision.

"This includes any recommendations that may be forthcoming on conditionality of aid to El Salvador on the human rights record."

After Speakes' initial comments, one member of the special panel, Robert S. Strauss, declared that "the administration is already publicly walking away from significant elements of the report" before it has even been made public.

Reagan plans stiff increase in military aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is planning to seek an additional $140 million in military assistance for El Salvador this year, the largest single weapons aid request yet for the beleaguered Salvadoran army, officials said Monday.

If approved by Congress, the new proposal would push total U.S. military aid to the Salvadoran army to more than $200 million for 1984. By comparison, the United States provided $81.3 million in military aid last year.

An administration official, who spoke on condition they not be identified, said the new aid package would include additional troop-carrying helicopters, to improve the army's mobility. Last week, leftist Salvadoran guerrillas destroyed a key bridge, limiting the army's ability to reach the eastern third of the country by truck.

"If you agree that they need more mobility, they can use it now, not two years from now," said one senior official, explaining the proposed large jump in military aid.

While two officials said the package would include El Salvador's first large troop-carrying helicopters, a Defense Department official said it will contain only more UH-1H "Hueys," which carry 11 soldiers each, because the larger twin-rotor "Chinook" helicopters are more difficult to maintain.

In a December visit to El Salvador, Vice President George Bush told Salvadoran leaders that the administration was prepared to seek a substantial increase in aid if army officers linked to rightsist death squads were expelled from the country. Bush set Tuesday as a deadline for action.

Lavelle draws jail sentence

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Former Environmental Protection Agency official Rita Lavelle was sentenced Monday to six months in prison and fined $10,000 for lying to Congress. The judge told her she had struck at the very core of the public trust, and lamented that "You still cannot admit the injury you caused to all of us as citizens."

Ms. Lavelle, 36, showed no emotion as the sentence was handed down but later told reporters, "This entire ordeal has been an unbelievable nightmare." She said she would appeal the conviction.

U.S. District Judge Norma Johnson rejected a defense request that Ms. Lavelle be spared prison time and instead be allowed to teach or perform other volunteer work for Catholic Charities in her home state of California.

The former assistant EPA administrator was convicted last month of lying to Congress about her handling of the government's $1.6 billion hazardous waste cleanup program. She could have been sentenced to up to 20 years in prison and fined $12,000. Defense attorney James Blerbower asked for leniency, saying his client had already suffered enough. Ms. Lavelle, one of more than 20 officials who left the EPA last winter, was the only one to be indicted and was the first Reagan administration appointee to be convicted of a crime.

But Ms. Johnson told Ms. Lavelle, "You violated the public trust and your perjury strikes at the very core of the trust that has been conferred to you. You still cannot admit to yourself the injury you caused the federal government and the injury you caused to all of us as citizens."

The judge said Ms. Lavelle had "refused to set the record straight" even though she knew that her conscientious about her former employer, Aerojet-General Corp., were false.

Ms. Lavelle had sworn under oath to two congressional committees last February that she had not known until June 17, 1982, that Aerojet had dumped wastes at the Stringfellow Acid Pits in California.

Ms. Lavelle was convicted on four counts of lying about Aerojet's involvement. The convictions included two counts of perjury for lying about the date in testimony before two congressional committees, one count of lying in a sworn statement and one count of trying to obstruct a congressional investigation by sending the statement to Congress.

Ms. Lavelle was acquitted on one charge of lying when she denied using her office to help Republican congressional campaigns.

Baby Doe rules set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration revised its "Baby Doe" regulations Monday to give special hospital review committees primary responsibility for assuring medical attention for handicapped infants, and make the government "protector of last resort."

Health and Human Services Secretary Margaret M. Heckler and Surgeon General C. Everett Koop, a pediatric surgeon for more than 30 years, announced the new version of the much-debated rules, which will go into effect 30 days after they are published.

The revised regulations are intended to strike a balance between the views of the medical community opposing federal intervention and those of some advocates of the disabled and anti-abortion groups which support an activist federal role.

The new rules accept a proposal advanced by the medical community under which hospitals voluntarily would establish infant care review committees to tackle tough decisions about the kind of treatment to be given handicapped newborn babies.

The regulations suggest that the committees include medical personnel, an attorney, a member of the community and a representative of a disability group.

The earlier version of the regulations, which three medical groups successfully challenged in court, called for posting placards prominently in hospitals with a warning against discriminatory denial of food or medical attention to handicapped infants.

The placards also would carry a toll-free hotline number where anyone could report suspected cases.

An I.R.A. From IB&T.

You work hard for your money. And no matter what work you do, there comes a time when you need your money to work as hard as you do.

That's the time to see IB&T about an I.R.A. — an Individual Retirement Account.

Even if you already have a retirement plan where you work, you can deposit up to $2,000 in an I.R.A. before April 15, and deduct that amount from your 1983 income taxes. You get immediate tax savings now, and you begin building for a retirement you'll look forward to.

If it's time to get tough with your money, it's time to see IB&T about an I.R.A.

USIA chief turns over tapes

WASHINGTON (AP) — USIA chief Charles Z. Wick surrendered his telephone tapes and transcripts to Congress on Monday, apologized to those he secretly recorded and admitted he had put out wrong information about the whole affair.

"I now understand that taping of others without their consent is unfair, invades their privacy and can lead to other, more dangerous practices," he said.

Wick turned over 81 transcripts and four tape cassettes to two congressional committees which oversee the United States Information Agency. Wick did not disclose who the conversations were with.

USIA runs the Voice of America and is charged with promoting the U.S. image overseas.

The USIA chief, a close personal friend of Ronald Reagan since his Hollywood days, also disclosed that until just before Christmas secretaries listened in on some of his conversations and made stenographic notes of what was said. Those notes were among the materials sent to Capitol Hill.

Contadora group adopts peace plan

By JOSEPH F. HAZIER
The Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Panama — Five Central American foreign ministers have agreed to a peace plan that seeks to end violence in the volatile region through free elections and reductions of arms and foreign military advisers. The agreement reached Sunday is a modification of a proposal submitted two weeks ago by the Contadora nations of Venezuela, Panama, Mexico and Colombia. It capped a year of mediation efforts by these countries, who first met in January 1983 on Contadora Island off the Panamanian coast.

The pact calls for an inventory of arms, bases and soldiers in each of the five Central American countries — Costa Rica, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala — and the subsequent control and reduction of these to bring "a reasonable balance of power in the region."

The military advisers issue requires a census in each country and adoption of a calendar for reduction "with a view towards elimination" of the advisers.

Dropped from the Contadora proposal was, among other things, a call for a moratorium on new arms acquisitions after Feb. 29.

Commissions are to be set up by the end of January to prepare studies and recommendations.

A third commission would monitor compliance with the various points, but the overseer lacks enforcement powers and depends heavily on the good faith of the nations involved.

Each of the five Central American countries can have two members on each commission.

The plan provides for identifying all support financing or "aid" of "irregular groups or forces dedicated to the destabilization of Central American governments."

The two points appear aimed at leftist guerrilla movements in El Salvador and Guatemala and at American-backed Nicaraguan rebels who operate from Honduras and are trying to oust the Nicaraguan government.

El Salvador's guerrilla war has picked up since the Contadora mediation began, and this has other governments in the area worried. The Nicaraguan rebels have also increased their activities from hit-and-run attacks to larger military movements, especially along Nicaragua's border with Honduras.

The agreement also calls for laws leading to free elections, respect for human rights and other efforts to bring democracy to the area.

Much of the detail apparently will depend on the work of the three commissions.

Other projects envisioned include efforts to get more foreign aid to help the region's ailing economies, promotion of joint investment projects and increased programs to aid refugees and facilitate their return to their own countries.

Representatives of all nine countries shook hands and embraced each other around the oval negotiating table after the agreement was read late Sunday night by Panamanian presidential spokesman Jose Hernandez.

Foreign Minister Miguel d'Escoto of Nicaragua called the agreement "the most important step taken since the initiation of the Contadora process."

Edgardo Piz Barica, his counterpart from Honduras, said the pact took into account both the document presented by the Contadora group and one proposed Friday night by El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica, which put more emphasis on electoral and human rights reforms.

Grenade kills soldier

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen fired a rocket-propelled grenade and automatic rifles at a guard post outside Beirut, Lebanon, on Monday, killing one French paratrooper and wounding two others.

French spokesman Lt. Col. Philippe de Longeaux said the gunmen fired from a side street at the post in front of the Ministry of Defense headquarters to France's ambassadors and now headquarters of the 2,000-man French contingent of the multinational force in Lebanon.

The Defense Ministry in Paris confirmed the attack and the casualties. No group immediately claimed responsibility.

The death was the 83rd French fatality in Beirut since the deployment of the four-nation multinational force in September 1982.

Only five minutes after the assault on the French post, another blast rocked predominantly Moslem west Beirut. Police said a rocket-propelled grenade exploded near a clinic in the Saouaya neighborhood, about 900 yards from Prime Minister Shafiq Wazzan's office, but caused no damage or casualties.

Meanwhile, the foreign ministers of Syria, Lebanon and Saudi Arabia made off a two-day conference in Riyadh without announcing the fate of the Saudi-mediated security plan to separate Lebanon's warring factions.

Abdul-Halim Khadim of Syria said on his return to Damascus that the talks ended "with the possibility of reconvening the Geneva conference on a national dialogue" among Lebanon's factions. The Geneva talks began last November.

Lebanese representative Elle Salem said in Beirut that the talks were useful and he hoped they would lead to an end to the fighting.

Bribes cause for execution

BEIJING (AP) — A tobacco factory manager known as the "cigarette tiger" who exacted thousands of dollars in cash bribes and gifts from suppliers has been executed in the southern city of Canton, China's state-run press reported Sunday.

The execution of Zhang Yiqing and the imprisonment of five accomplices, including his son, received front-page treatment in the national Workers Daily and Guangming Daily newspapers.

They called the case "a deep lesson," and said Zhang had cost the state nearly $3 million.

It was the latest disclosure of a major "economic crime" and the Communist government warned that officials who bribe, cheat, embezzle or extort face severe punishment, including death.

Canton's economic insect has been punished, the Workers Daily said in its report of Zhang's execution on Friday. "Canton party organizations at every level should use this case as a lesson to make party members, officials and industrial professionals wake up and resist the corrosive influence of bourgeois ideology."

The Guangming Daily's account said Zhang used his position as head of a Canton cigarette factory to amass more than $46,000 in bribes, plus television sets, refrigerators and other gifts from 1980 to 1982.

It said Zhang originally was corrupted in 1980 by a Hong Kong businessman identified as He Jingwen, who reportedly gave Zhang a color television set and the equivalent of $1,000 in Hong Kong currency for the exclusive right to sell Zhang's factory foreign tobacco to be processed into cigarettes.

What's what

Sir, the last time you bought a new suit, whose idea was it that you should do so, yours or your matrimonial mate's? Recent studies by the fabric folk indicate a large majority of women still believe men — and particularly, they — look best in suits. And it is women, in two out of five instances, who engineer the purchase of those suits.

You know that actress who plays Madge, the Manicurist, in the liquid soap TV commercials? Jan Miner, by name. She has collected more than $1 million in residuals for such appearances over the last 20 years.

About 40 percent of the money pulled in by TV evangelists comes from the retired citizenry.

POET AND MURDERER

Q. The great French poet Francois Villon — how did he die?

A. Nobody knows. He was into poetry and crime.

He wrote much, stole habitually, and murdered repeatedly. And he disappeared.

Q. What was George Gershwin's first published song?

A. A little ditty entitled "When You Want 'Em, You Can't Get 'Em, When You've Got 'Em, You Don't Want 'Em." He was 18 years old. The year was 1916.

Q. Is the Salvation Army a "church"?

A. Not according to its members. No baptism. No Holy Communion. It calls itself a "movement" or "community."

MYSTERY

There's a story here somewhere, but all I have of it is a busted tale datelined New York City: "Headless body found in topless bar..."

A local ordinance in Lang, Kan., prohibits anyone there from driving a mule down main street in August unless said driver wears a straw hat. Can you explain the why of that one?

In Hawaii's Honolulu, the house is exactly "average" if it's sale price is $139,963.

Address mail to L.M. Boyd in care of this newspaper.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A very good day to start energy to put in effect new courses of action that are important to your progress. Get busy and make as much initial progress with this as possible. Take a good rest in the evening.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Go after your personal aims in a positive way.

Contact your best friends. Think along very constructive lines.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) A fine time to contact advisers and gain their finest suggestions. Your mate will then view you in a far better light.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Be with good friends but also make new contacts. Be inspired to new goals that are worthwhile. Stop wasting your time with stragglers.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Use different tactics with higher-ups and gain that promotion that means much to you. Now is the right time to get ahead much faster.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) New situations are developing so make sure you take advantage of any opportunities that are within easy grasp. Keep an eye on your wallet.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) A new idea can rethink the bond between you and your mate. Regain the happiness you may have lost for a while.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Make changes in association matters. A new attitude can be beneficial. Take no risks where your reputation is concerned.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) If you are more enthusiastic and patient at work you could raise your income. Listen to the ideas of co-workers.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get into the amusements that appeal to you most. Be more willing to do what your mate expects of you; this is very important.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Give more thought to neglected home and kin. Show family that you are concerned about their welfare.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) A good day to get in touch with those you have been thinking about for some time. The evening is best to visit with friends and relatives.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Act quickly upon an idea about how you can add to your income. Get into the modern swing of things and save yourself some money.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be someone who will be a modern, pleasant, and very aggressive, to give as much education as you possibly can. Teach early to finish one project before starting another. Much inventiveness here.

"Neither Ron nor I wanted anyone to feel 'sorry' for us," Marlene Bricker wrote in a letter published by The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette Saturday. "We may have experienced a setback, but nothing catastrophic in comparison to other families we know."

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Actress Amanda Blake, who was Miss Kitty on the "Gunsmoke" television series for 20 years, will get a horse instead of a ring when she marries city councilman Mark Spaeth.

"Being married to your best friend, that's happiness," Blake said in an announcement released Sunday. "I will be the fifth marriage for the 55-year-old actress, best known as Miss Kitty the saloonkeeper in the longest-running western in TV history. The series ran from 1963 to 1975."

"She wants a horse instead of an engagement ring, so I'm going to buy her a horse," Spaeth said. "He said no date has been set for the wedding, but it probably will be in late April."

Savings bears bitter payoff

DEAR ABBY: I am the divorced mother of two small children. When I married eight years ago, my parents gave me a large, expensive wedding. I am being married again and refuse to let my parents give me another wedding.

My fiancé has a nice little home for us. He is not wealthy, just conservative. We're getting married in my parents' home with only immediate family members and six couples who are very close friends. After the ceremony we will go to a small neighborhood restaurant for dinner.

I invited the guests by photo and told them all that they would be paying for their own meals. Everyone seemed to think it was O.K.

I am enclosing this letter I just received from one of our "close" friends:

"Dear ( ): We regret to inform you that we cannot accept your ill-mannered invitation. To invite people to a wedding and expect them to pay for their own meals afterward shows a definite lack of class, taste, dignity and pride."

"It is really too bad that you can afford to build a brand-new house, but can't see your way clear to pick up the tab for your wedding guests. You two have some nerve! You are just plain cheap and selfish and ought to be ashamed of yourselves."

Abby, were we wrong to ask our guests to pay for their own meals? And what should we do now?

—SECOND-TIME BRIDE
DEAR BRIDE: I think you went overboard trying to conserve when you asked your guests to pay for their own meals.

If it's not too late, please pay for your guests' dinners and economize somewhere else. The "close" friends who wrote that letter were cruel. A simple meal would have sufficed.

When I see a woman of "The Rocker" type... and a beautiful woman come to Jim Rockford with a sad story... why she wants to hire him as a detective, I always yell, "She's hiring you, Jim!" Does Jim listen to me? She hires him. Then he gets together by a couple of thugs who have been hiding in his trailer.

I yell at my car when it stalls at intersections. I yell at the wire cutters when they fall on the floor and get all tangled up. I yell when the door of my clothes dryer won't come open, and I yell at it when it won't stay closed. I have had some very heated arguments with my computer when it doesn't do what I want it to.

Am I crazy? I think not. It's nature that talks to inanimate objects. I also talk to myself sometimes. I'm a fascinating conversationalist and a good listener. Sometimes I argue with myself, and there are even times when I'm not of sound mind when I yell, but I always keep my mouth shut.

'Endearment,' 'Yentl' lead list of Golden Globe award nominees

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — "Terms of Endearment," a mother-daughter comedy-drama, and "Yentl," Barbra Streisand's one-woman show about a Yeshiva student, each won six nominations Monday for the 41st Golden Globe awards.

The awards are presented by the Hollywood Foreign Press Association, which divides its awards into drama and musicals or comedies. Drawing five nominations apiece were "The Dresser," "Flashdance," "Silkwood" and "Tender Mercies."

Miss Streisand accounted for three of the mentions for "Yentl," as producer, director and actress. The film also was named for Mandy Patinkin's acting, the musical score and the song "The Way He Makes Me Feel" by Michel Legrand and Alan and Marilyn Bergman.

Her are the major nominees: Motion picture, drama: "Reuben, Reuben," "The Right Stuff," "Terms of Endearment," "Yentl." Motion picture, musical or comedy: "The Big Chill," "Flashdance," "Trading Places," "Yentl" and "Zelig." Actress, drama: Jane Alexander.

"Testament"; Bonnie Bedelia, "Heart Like a Wheel"; Shirley Maizel and Debra Winger, "Terms of Endearment"; Meryl Streep, "Silkwood."

Actor, drama: Tom Conitt, "Reuben, Reuben"; Tom Courtenay and Albert Finney, "The Dresser"; Robert Duvall, "Tender Mercies"; Richard Farnsworth, "The Grey Fox"; Al Pacino, "Scarface"; Eric Roberts, "Star 80" (Foreign Press Association President Judy Solomon explained that there was a three-vote tie for fifth place among the 72 votes cast for dramatic actor).

Actress, musical or comedy: Anne Bancroft, "To Be or Not To Be"; Jennifer Beals, "Flashdance"; Linda Ronstadt, "The Pirates of Penzance"; Barbra Streisand, "Yentl"; Julie Walters, "Educating Rita."

Actor, musical or comedy: Woody Allen, "Zelig"; Michael Caine, "Educating Rita"; Tom Cruise, "Risky Business"; Eddie Murphy, "Trading Places"; Mandy Patinkin, "Yentl." Foreign film: "Carmina," "The Dresser," "Educating Rita," "Fanny and Alexander," "The Grey Fox."

Supporting actress: Barbara Carrera, "Never Say Never Again"; Cher, "Silkwood"; Jess Harper, "Tender Mercies"; Faye Hart, "The Year of Living Dangerously"; Joanna Pacula, "Gorky Park."

Supporting actor: Steven Bauer, "Scarface"; Charles Durning, "To Be or Not To Be"; Gene Hackman, "Under Fire"; Nicholas "The Prince of Darkness"; Kurt Russell, "Silkwood." Director: "The Untouchables"; Ingmar Bergman, "Fanny and Alexander"; James L. Brooks, "Terms of Endearment"; Mike Nichols, "Silkwood"; Barbara Streisand, "Yentl"; Peter Yates, "The Dresser."

As always, the Golden Globe nominations, which usually offer a preview of Academy Award contenders, contain an eyebrow-raiser or two. For instance, some would classify "Reuben, Reuben" as a comedy and "The Big Chill" as a drama. The awards will be presented on Saturday, Jan. 28, at the Beverly Hilton Hotel, with the show syndicated for television by Dick Clark Productions.

Court to rule on Jaycee ban of women

By RICHARD CARELLI
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court said Monday it will decide whether states may force the Jaycees, a national organization dedicated to developing America's future leaders, to admit women as full members.

The justices agreed to hear an appeal by Minnesota officials who want to apply the state's law barring discrimination in public accommodations to the Jaycees' membership policy.

The court's decision could lead to the sexual integration of other men-only groups besides the Jaycees, and might affect groups whose memberships are based on race, color or national origin.

Minnesota's appeal was backed by the National Organization for Women and other feminist groups who say the Jaycees are depriving women "of the advantages provided by the traditional avenues of economic and political opportunity."

Jaycees lawyers said the "alarming" legal power sought by Minnesota threatens the membership policies of "hundreds of organizations" such as the Knights of Columbus, the Polish Women's Alliance, the Sons of Norway and B'nai B'rith.

The court, issuing hundreds of orders as it returned from a four-week recess, also took these actions:

- Let stand the Abscam bribery and conspiracy conviction of former Rep. Frank Thompson, D-N.J., who after 26 years in Congress is serving a three-year term in federal prison.

- Agreed to decide, in a case from Ohio, whether people stopped by police for traffic offenses always must be told that anything they say could be used against them.

- Ignored a Reagan administration plea aimed at overturning the Detroit Police Department's affirmative action plan, which promotes blacks and whites in equal numbers.

The court, without comment, refused to hear arguments by five white police officers and their union that the plan unlawfully discriminated against them. Justice Department lawyers had aided with the whites.

In the Jaycees case, the Minnesota law at issue makes it illegal "to deny any person the full and equal enjoyment of the state's services, facilities, privileges, advantages and accommodations of a place of public accommodation because of race, color, creed, religion, disability, national origin or sex."

The United States Jaycees, founded as the U.S. Junior Chamber of Commerce in 1920, has 7,000 chapters across the country. About 300,000 men aged 18 to 35 are members. Women are allowed to associate members, but they may not vote, in Jaycees elections or hold office.

In the mid-1970s, the group's restrictive membership policy was attacked unsuccessfully by feminist groups in a series of lawsuits alleging violations of constitutional rights.

Since then, the Jaycees chapters in Minneapolis and St. Paul have admitted women as full members. As a result, the national organization based in Tulsa, Okla., threatened to revoke those chapters' charters.

Hillside killer gets life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A judge sentenced convicted Hillside Strangler Angelo Buono to life in prison without possibility of parole Monday but said he wished he could order Buono and his partner in murder, Kenneth Bianchi, put to death.

"I believe the two of you will only get your thrills reflecting over and over on the torture of your victims. I believe the two of you are incapable of feeling any remorse."

Buono, 50, was convicted of nine of the 10 murders of young women that terrorized Southern California in 1977 and 1978. Bianchi, 32, his adoptive cousin, pleaded guilty to five murders, plus two in the state of Washington, and is already serving seven consecutive life terms.

Glenn calls for end of nuclear material export

By CAROLE FELDMAN
Associated Press Writer

Sen. John Glenn, declaring that the time has come to "stop drifting passively toward nuclear disaster," called Monday for a ban on exports of nuclear materials to countries developing atomic weapons programs.

During a campaign swing through Iowa, the Democratic presidential hopeful accused President Reagan of carrying out a policy "which amounts to passing out deadly weapons which could one day be turned against our own people."

"Imagine a world in which Khadafi of Libya and the Ayatollah Khomeini of Iran have nuclear weapons," he said. "If that happens, we will face a world in which unstable fanatical leaders can start a world war. And we will face the prospect of being held hostage by state-supported nuclear terrorism."

He said several nations stand at the threshold of developing nuclear weapons programs. The Ohio senator also called for talks with the Soviet Union on a comprehensive ban on nuclear weapons testing.

Current treaties ban nuclear weapons testing in space, the atmosphere and undersea. Underground testing is not outlawed.

Glenn made the speech on his first 1984 campaign tour of Iowa, where the presidential contenders face the voters for the first time in caucuses on Feb. 20.

Glenn's aides concede that he still lags behind the Democratic front-runner, former Vice President Walter F. Mondale, in the state. In an attempt to garner more support, Glenn is launching a media campaign in Iowa and in New Hampshire, the site of the nation's first primary.

Glenn and Mondale were in New Hampshire last weekend, addressing a conference on acid rain.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson told voters in Detroit, the U.S. automobile capital, that he opposes limits on Japanese imports and other trade protection measures.

Former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew is the only other Democratic presidential candidate that has come out against trade protection for the U.S. automobile industry.

China leader plays tourist

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (AP) — Smiling and waving at tourists, Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang toured this restored 18th century city Monday in an open horse-drawn carriage on the second stop of his visit to the United States.

One protester waved five small Taiwanese flags and yelled in Chinese, "Long live the Republic of China," as Zhao rode by, but he paid no attention to her.

Zhao, the first Chinese premier to visit the United States since the People's Republic of China was formed in 1949, when the Nationalist government fled to China, was to fly later to Washington for two days of talks with President Reagan and other officials.

He arrived at Langley Air Force Base in Hampton late Sunday on a flight from Honolulu for a day of rest in Williamsburg, a popular stop for visiting world leaders.

Zhao began his hour-long tour at the salmon-colored, brick colonial Capitol, where the Virginia House of Burgesses, the first representative legislature in America, met in the 1700s.

Zhao sat in the original speaker's chair and joked, "Now I'm the speaker."

He boarded a reproduction of an 18th-century carriage drawn by two horses and rode down Duke of Gloucester Street, accompanied by Selva Roosevelt, U.S. chief of protocol; Charles R. Longworth, president of the Colonial-Williamsburg Foundation; an interpreter, and a military aide.

The premier smiled and waved at residents and tourists along the street, lined by picket fences and restored 18th century homes and shops.

Lincoln clerk fined $2,500

For misuse of county's money

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Former Lincoln County Clerk Linda Stevenson will spend five years on probation and pay a $2,500 fine for misusing county money.

She also has been barred from ever holding a public office again.

She was sentenced Monday in Fifth District Court in Shoshone by Judge Phillip Becker.

Stevenson, 35, resigned as clerk in November, when she pleaded guilty to a $10,000 indictment for misappropriation of county funds, amounting to $976.

At first, Becker sentenced Stevenson to spend 10 years in prison on the first count and five years on each of the other nine counts, with all of the sentences to run simultaneously. But he then suspended the prison term and sentenced her to five years of probation on each count, also to be served concurrently.

"We feel good because she got probation," said her attorney, Greg Fuller of Twin Falls.

It was especially good in light of the court's attitude about getting "tough" on public officials who violate their trust, Fuller said.

During the sentencing hearing, county Commissioner Burrell Williams testified on behalf of Stevenson. Williams urged probation, Fuller said.

Two other county employees, Virginia Larsen and Dana Sturgeon, also testified as character witnesses for Stevenson.

In addition to probation, Stevenson was ordered to repay the county commissioners the $976 within the next year.

She also was ordered to pay the $2,500 fine during the five-year probation period.

Failure to repay the county or to pay the fine will constitute a violation of her probation, Becker said.

Stevenson declined comment following the sentencing, which took place in the Lincoln County Court-house, the site of her former office.

She was arrested at her office in September, following an investigation by Special Investigator Keith Beck Roark, the Blaine County prosecutor, who named special prosecutor Douglas Rose disqualified himself.

The charges stemmed from forged and fraudulent claims filed by Stevenson as well as the misappropriation of funds, from April 1981 through August 1983.

Craig Zweifel uses a blow pipe to work with a bubble of molten glass heated to about 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit

Craftsman breathes life into glass

By CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — Tucked away outside of Ketchum, behind a two-story, gray shingle house, is a studio where magic is made.

Fiery red-orange molten glass blossoms into glistening, decorative, delicate ornaments, vases, perfume bottles and other works of art.

The wizard behind these happenings is professional glass-blower Craig Zweifel.

"I was fascinated the first time I saw it (glass-blowing)," Zweifel says. "Visually, I was just captivated by it."

In his backyard studio, Zweifel, brother-in-law Robbie Fretund and two other apprentices produce more than 3,000 pieces of hand-blown glass items each year.

"It is in fine galleries and gift shops, such as the Hanson Gallery in Dallas and the Jorice Gallery on Second Avenue in New York," Zweifel says.

"The Jorice Gallery probably has the most diverse selection of glass of any place I've ever seen."

Zweifel also has work displayed in catalogs and department stores such as Saks and Macy's. In Idaho, his work can be found in the Gem Expo and the River Run Gallery, both in Ketchum.

The actual production of hand-blown glass has its ups and downs, Zweifel says.

"A lot of times, people like the way it (blowing glass) looks but once they get in front of the heat, they don't like it."

The furnaces that heat and melt the glass reach temperatures of 2,200 degrees to melt the glass and about 1,900 degrees to be able to work with it.

"I don't really know, exactly, the temperature we work with the glass at," Zweifel says. "Mostly, we can tell by the color and consistency of it. The hotter it is, the souper it is."

"Once the glass is at a workable temperature we work with the glass at," Zweifel says. "Mostly, we can tell by the color and consistency of it. The hotter it is, the souper it is."

Tourist promoters get aid from state

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BOISE — The Idaho Travel Council has given area tourism officials more than $94,000 to promote the Magic Valley and the Ketchum-Sun Valley areas through the rest of the calendar year and into the summer travel season.

The state agency, which distributes money from the state's 2 percent boarding tax, approved on Monday promotional efforts that will:

- Print more brochures for areas such as Hagerman and Twin Falls.
- Publicize Magic Valley attractions in advertisements in 11 magazines.

- Distribute more copies of the state's glossy vacation guides.
- Hire writers doing articles for national publications.

- Advertise two major area events, the Burley Boat Regatta and Jerome Air Show, in metropolitan markets in nearby states.
- Design information packets on motorcycle tours to the Sawtooth National Recreation Area.

- Join with other parts of the state in promoting the outfitting and guiding industry.

The Magicland Travel Committee, which represents the Magic and Wood River valleys, has been awarded $94,000 from a request of $29,146, said Karl Tueller, the travel bureau chief for the Idaho Division of Economic and Community Affairs.

However, the Magicland committee was denied money for administrative expenses requested by its proposed advertising firm, Williamson and Reinhard-Cline and Associates of Boise. The agency was to prepare a promotional strategy for the region and do certain administrative tasks, such as answering inquiries from the public.

Tueller said the state travel committee does not allow general, supplemental fees for these types of ongoing services, preferring instead to pay professional fees for specific projects.

Carl Boyer, the chairman of the Magicland Travel Committee, could not be contacted Monday evening for comment on the awards.

The Magicland Travel Committee is composed of area individuals from travel-related businesses and chambers of commerce.

Blaine board clears path for health spa

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — A comprehensive plan change that will allow the development of a European-style health spa near Hailey has been approved by the Blaine County commissioners.

"However, approval for the rural recreation designation came over the strong objections of the county's planning administrator and newly appointed Commissioner Alan Reynolds.

The approval, granted Monday, will allow the developers, a group of Germans called the Tengernisse Land and Cattle Co., to build a rezoning of the property on which they want to build a hotel, spa and other recreational facilities for tourist use.

In objecting to the change in the comprehensive plan, Reynolds agreed with zoning administrator Marjeth Sandler's assessment that the developers did not need the change for their entire 1,790-acre parcel to accommodate the uses they envision.

Reynolds and Sandler objected for two reasons. First, the rural recreation designation for the parcel, located in Democrat Gulch, about five miles west of Hailey, does not conform with the language of the county's comprehensive plan, they say. The plan allows for the development of recreational housing and tourist facilities "directly adjacent to recreational access points."

Reynolds and Sandler said they thought that language would preclude changing the designated use for the entire parcel.

Second, they said, they did not think that any plan submitted by the developers could be tied to another owner if the land was sold.

Once the land is rezoned under the new comprehensive plan designation, the developers must submit short- and long-term plans for development of the property.

Wood River Valley

The developers argued Monday that their plan would be tied to the land even if it was sold. However, Reynolds and Sandler disagreed.

"I would be inclined to not be in favor of RR (rural recreation) for the total ranch," said Reynolds, who was sworn in as a county commissioner Monday morning.

He was appointed to the position Friday by Gov. John Evans, to replace Dan Mackey, who resigned Jan. 1.

Reynolds served as the county's planning and zoning administrator from 1975 to 1979, and he was instrumental in writing both the county's comprehensive plan and zoning ordinance.

Despite their objection to the requested comprehensive-plan change, neither Reynolds nor Sandler said they objected to the project.

Both said the planned geothermal development, resort hotel, spa and Nordic ski trails were appropriate for the location and would serve to strengthen the economy of Hailey.

But they said they thought the developers could meet their plans with a smaller rural recreation designation and under existing zoning on the rest of the property.

Under Sandler's alternative proposal, the small recreation designation would be needed for the hotel and spa, which are not permitted under the present zoning.

The remaining bulk of the land — zoned residential-agricultural and unproductive agriculture — would allow the proposed lakes, marinas, ski trails with overnight huts, ranching and 25 single-family homes as conditional or accessory uses, they argued.

However, Commissioner Robert Gardner said that he agreed with a unanimous recommendation from the Blaine County Planning and Zoning Commission that the entire parcel be changed to a rural recreation designation.

Gardner said he thought any development plan approved by the county "ought go with the land if it was sold before development."

"It would be my thinking that the plan runs with the land, unless the commissioners or PZZ lets them, the new owners' out of it," Gardner said.

However, he said his main reason for not objecting to the change was to not disagree with the planning commission, on which he served for a number of years before being elected to the county commission in 1982.

Gardner moved to accept the new designation, but with instructions to the planning commission that it consider a smaller actual rezoning for the recreation district than the entire ranch. He said the developers should justify a greater need for the larger rezoning than they had demonstrated up to now.

"It sounds like they can pretty much accomplish their proposal under the existing zoning, except for the hotel," he said.

Buhl resident accepts seat on hospital board

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Hawkins of Buhl will become a Magic Valley Regional Medical Center board member.

Hawkins joins Marge Ashenbrenner and Jean Clik in accepting appointments to the hospital's board of directors. These three will replace Woody Fleece, Don Sherry and Melba Cook, whose terms are expiring.

Last month, when his appointment was first announced, Hawkins had said he wanted to talk with the county commissioners before deciding whether to accept the position.

Commissioner Judy Felton says the commission appointed Hawkins because of his strong business background and because he is well-known in Filer and Buhl.

Hawkins served on the Buhl City Council for six years and has been active in American Legion Baseball in Buhl, where a team is named after him.

Six years ago, he started a bean warehouse in Filer.

"That's why we decided to choose him," Felton says. "He was progressive enough to start his own business and make a success of it."

JOHN BARKER Behind legislative seminar

Barker reserves day to lobby for school reform

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capital Bureau

BOISE — The Legislature will break step on Thursday.

Rather than spending the day in their standing committees, lawmakers will spend a full day in one of six special committees, during which they will be apprised of a plan to improve the state's system of higher education.

Behind the seminar approach to educating legislators on education is Sen. John Barker, R-Buhl, the chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee.

The program will be conducted on Jan. 11, a day before the education package recommended by the Idaho Task Force on Higher Education, a citizens committee financed by the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry.

Barker, who began his 18th year in the Legislature with Monday's opening gavel, already has announced his retirement, effective when his term expires at the end of the year. Reflecting on his experience in the Legislature, he says the time is ripe for educational reform.

And while he will not be using the issue in campaign on during the 1984 election, he does confirm that implementing such a plan would be a fitting swan song for a legislator who has devoted much of his energy to educational issues.

"Looking down the road several years from now, I'd at least like to say I had something to do with getting it started," he says.

"Both in higher education and in public schools, you'll see some (additional) funding put in, accompanied with some reforms of the systems," Barker predicts of the 1984 legislative session. "We need to do something to settle the long-range problems."

The task-force proposal contains the type of reforms that Barker says are necessary in Idaho.

"I'm going to adopt a very positive, encouraging attitude that we can do all of these things," he says.

The task-force plans call for an expanded system of community colleges, instituting admission standards at the state's universities, charging tuition, improving faculty salaries, and establishing a separate board of regents to govern higher education.

The task force announced its proposals in April. Boise Cascade executive Vice President John Cillito, the task force's chairman, said the goals of the committee were "to assure that Idaho maintains the highest quality of post-secondary education and meets the needs of Idaho for the coming decades."

During Thursday's planned activities, education experts who assisted the task force in drafting the proposal will meet with the groups of legislators to explain the reasons for the recommendations and the expected results of implementing them, Barker says.

And while the focus of the seminar will be on the task-force proposal and higher education, Barker will ask the Legislature's Special Committee on Education Reform to outline the various aspects of its study and its plan for reforms in the public schools.

"They go hand in hand," Barker says of the two areas of education. Particularly, the problems that colleges and universities face with the need for remedial programs can be traced to the inadequacies of public schools and the need for the reform there, he says.

"The problems are there. We are really hopeful we can work this out."

Accident victims are still 'critical'

HEYBURN — Three members of a Heyburn family remained in critical condition Monday, after a two-car accident Sunday in Heyburn.

Kyle Robertson, 31, and his 2-year-old son, Clint, are being treated in the intensive-care unit of Pocatello regional medical center.

Robertson's wife, Verna, no age available, was reported in critical condition Monday at the LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City. She was hospitalized for severe head injuries.

The other driver in the accident, 68-year-old Benjamin Leno of Heyburn, was reported in stable condition Monday at Minidoka Memorial Hospital.

The accident occurred Sunday at O and 21st streets. According to Larry Moore, a Heyburn police officer, Leno failed to stop at a stop sign and then collided with a car driven by Robertson.

Leno has been cited with failing to stop, Moore said Monday.

Hospital

That takes quite a bit in this day and age.

She also says that Hawkins is committed to the hospital in county-owned facility, through his mother, who was a long-time nurse at the hospital.

"I'm going into it with my eyes wide open," Hawkins says. "It's going to take time to find out just what happens with the hospital."

He says the board needs to make sure patients are satisfied, especially after the recent remodeling and expansion project.

"We need the patient to make it go," he says. "That's where we'll make the money to pay for it. With the economic situation we've gone through, it's got to have affected the hospital."

Three new board members will meet with hospital administrator Bill Burns before they attend their first board meeting Jan. 23, Felton says.

Hypothermia caused girl's death

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A woman found dead in Ketchum last week died of hypothermia, which was aggravated by alcohol intoxication, an autopsy has shown.

The autopsy shows there were no other factors in the death of 19-year-old Sherri Ann Knauf, R-15 Mikel, the Blaine County coroner said Monday.

Knauf of Bay Village, Ohio, was found at about noon on Jan. 4, after she disappeared from friends the night before. A college student in California, she was vacationing in Sun Valley with friends.

She probably had been dead for several hours when she was found, Mikel said.

The coroner said that having alcohol in the system worsens hypothermia by dilating the small blood vessels in the skin and causing more heat loss than normal.

Under normal conditions, he said, the vessels contract to protect from heat loss.

Knauf had been drinking with friends when she disappeared at about 8:30 p.m. on the evening of Jan. 3. She was found by a jogger the next day in deep snow along Warm Springs Road, on the west edge of Ketchum.

Chief and Knauf, the Ketchum police chief, said Knauf, who he described as being quite intoxicated at the time, may have been confused and lost after leaving her friends.

She had walked about a mile away from the bar that she was at, and she may have been trying to get help from a nearby house when she went down a 15-foot bank off the road, Nevland

She walked out of her boots and socks when going down the bank and then became trapped in the deep snow.

Nevland says hypothermia probably began setting in as soon as she went over the bank.

Knauf was wearing light winter clothing that night, when the temperature dropped to 19 degrees above zero.

Nevland says that it does not have to be that cold for a person to suffer from hypothermia, and that there have been close calls in Ketchum before.

His officers often find people passed out on alleys and behind downtown buildings during the cold weather, he says.

"It's surprising that it (a death from hypothermia) doesn't happen here more often than it does."

"Robbie's objective is to first of all get the right amount of glass on the blow pipe," Zweifel says. "He cools it and forms it into a shape that is semi-oval."

Freund then distributes silver chloride over the glass. The chloride evaporates, leaving the silver to give the piece its final luster.

"The gathering process that Robbie does takes half of the total time to make the piece."

After the silver is applied, Zweifel takes over.

"I apply an overlay of dark-colored glass and then make the pattern. We have various patterns we do on the pieces, and some take longer to make than others."

When the pattern is completed, Zweifel starts the first bubble into the glass and through a process of reheating, cooling and blowing the piece is gradually created.

"It is really just a dance, and you have to learn the steps."

"I guess glass 'blowing' is kind of a misnomer. Most of the real time is spent preparing the piece, and very little is spent blowing."

Glass-blowing is not a profession to be taken lightly. It is expensive to get started. Zweifel estimates that he has about $70,000 wrapped up in his business, including the studio and the furnaces, which he built himself, and the tools he uses.

Besides these initial costs, the gas bills for his continually running furnaces average between $500 and $600 per month.

There also are dangers involved, including the obvious ones of cuts and burns; and also long-term possibilities of overexposure to heat and poisonous chemicals.

"I'm sure there are some long-range dangers in glass-blowing," Zweifel says. "Almost all glass has arsenic in it as a minor flux. There is also a good chance of heavy metal poisoning from a lot of the chemicals used."

"I think that only time will tell in proving the dangers. I'm not going to stop blowing glass because I'm afraid of it. I am sure I will pay for it sooner or later, but there are dangers in anything you do."

Although the expenses and risks run high, there are obvious rewards, both financial and personal.

Zweifel's pieces sell for from $25 for a hand-blown Christmas tree ornament to $1,000 for several one-of-a-kind pieces he has done. These prices afford Zweifel, his wife Lynn and their two children a comfortable living in Ketchum, or "let-set city" as he puts it.

"Really, it is either feast or famine. Sometimes, we make so much money

Idaho Knigge, 2 others miss first session

Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Three legislators — two from the Magic Valley — missed the opening of the 1984 Legislature. Reps. John Brooks, R-Gooding; Lawrence Knigge, R-Boise; and Chris Hooper, R-Boise, were reported absent and excused during Monday's roll call, taken before Gov. John Evans delivered his "State of the State" address to a joint session of the House and Senate.

Speaker of the House T.W. Silvers confirmed that Brooks and Hooper each were attending funeral services for their fathers.

Knigge, who was arrested in downtown Boise early Saturday morning for drunken driving and other business to attend to today," Silvers said.

He said the four-term lawmaker is expected to be in attendance today, when the Legislature's committees begin considering proposed laws and attempts to contact Knigge since his arrest have not been successful. His DUI arrest was the second in less than a year. In September, Knigge served two days in Twin Falls County Jail, the result of his conviction for a May 23 drunken-driving arrest.

The death of Brooks' father forced the five-term lawmaker to leave Boise last week during deliberations of the Joint Select Committee on Revenue Projections, which he chairs. That committee is expected to conclude its hearings and adopt revenue projections for the 1984 and 1985 fiscal years when Brooks returns.

Remap high on agenda

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature began its 1984 session Monday facing a redistricting dilemma that could delay the May primary and possibly force cancellation of the presidential portion.

Republican leaders from both chambers in the GOP-controlled Legislature said a delay of the May primary seems almost inevitable because of the state's redistricting mess.

The Idaho Supreme Court last week struck down the state's 1982 redistricting law. The high court said that if the Legislature can't draft a new law, elections will be held under a controversial plan ordered by 1st District Judge Dar Cogswell.

The Legislature would have to get a new law in place by the time candidates start to file on Feb. 27.

The redistricting question focuses on several issues: Whether the Legislature will try to draft a new plan, and who will draft it; whether to appeal the ruling to U.S. District Court; whether the primary will have to be postponed and what that will do to the presidential primary.

"I really think a delay is inevitable," Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said. Asked whether the presidential primary would have to be canceled in that case, he said, "I guess that's what it'd come down to."

Gov. John Evans opens the annual legislative session Monday

The presidential primary must be held in May because the national parties draft their rules by the first week of June; Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa said.

Ysursa predicted that if lawmakers postpone the state portion of the May primary until the remap problem is solved, the presidential portion will be cancelled.

He said the last time Idaho had two separate primaries was in 1978, the first year the state had a presidential primary, and "It was just as costly as heck."

Power rates hot topic

BOISE (AP) — A controversial State Supreme Court ruling that could mean dramatically higher power rates in Idaho quickly took its place on the list of subjects the 1984 Idaho Legislature will debate.

Gov. John Evans Monday urged lawmakers to pass legislation nullifying the effects of the ruling, saying the ruling will mean increased costs for businesses and individuals.

And Sen. Vern Lannen, D-Pinehurst, arranged for representatives of the Idaho Public Utilities Commission to explain the ruling to legislators Tuesday.

Evans said he has been working with the PUC and several concerned legislators to find a legislative solution to the issue.

The high court last month ruled that the PUC must allow utilities to include the cost of construction work in progress (CWIP) in their rate bases.

The PUC said that would mean rate increases of from 4.6 percent to more than 78 percent for ratepayers in the state.

The commission said the high court ruling gave commissioners no choice but to allow the rate increases once the utilities apply for them.

The PUC issued an order allowing utilities to apply for the higher rates on Jan. 25.

But Idaho Power Co. and Washington Water Power Co. claim the PUC misinterpreted the high court ruling, and have asked for a stay of the order, and reconsideration.

Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, said "I'm sure the Legislature will consider the issue," but said he doesn't have enough information yet to take a stand on the issue.

Lannen, asked about CWIP-related legislation, said, "I think we need some fast."

Indians draw up wish list

FORT HALL (AP) — A pair of bills and a taxation study concerning Idaho's five recognized Indian tribes will be presented to state lawmakers during the current legislative session, says Fort Hall tribal attorney and state Rep. Larry Echolaw.

Echolaw said the Legislative Council on Indian Affairs on the subject met three times following the 1983 session and has come up with two bills for consideration in 1984.

The first is the proposed Antiquities Protection Act, which he said would enhance remedies under both Idaho criminal and civil law for protecting Indian burial sites in Idaho.

"It really will extend beyond just Indian burial sites," Echolaw said. "It will encompass all Idaho burial sites and enhance state law in providing remedies against persons convicted of violating or desecrating burial sites." Echolaw said the bill also proposes that the state consult with tribes if a burial site is discovered so that they have a say in how the remains are reinterred.

Tribal members hope to see the term "Indian tribe" further defined under the State Tribal Relations Act being proposed for adoption.

Echolaw said the bill's intention is to define the Indian tribe in terms of state law allowing them to authorize agreements with state agencies.

"It seeks to define the ability to authorize agreements or compacts between the state and the political subdivisions within the tribes," he said. "It will aid in allowing the tribes to settle problems as they need attention, such as law enforcement jurisdiction, zoning, land use and taxation."

President of BSU assesses position

BOISE (AP) — In their drive for excellence in higher education, Boise State University President John Keiser says colleges and universities must guard against divisive and "disintegrative factors" pressing in on them.

Among those factors, Keiser said Monday in his annual address on the state of BSU, is the prospect for establishment of additional community colleges in Idaho.

He said that would only "subdivide, disintegrate, the state and this region even more than it is."

To meet its commitment to offer educational opportunities to all who are qualified, Keiser said Boise State is planning major uses of technology, particularly the computer, on its campus.

"The world is increasingly in the hands of those who have mastered the elements of the modern information delivery systems," he said.

While quickly pointing out that computers and other technological advances are not ends in themselves, he said failing to use them in education would be ignoring a key tool available to colleges and universities.

He admitted that trend is expensive, but he also said it is crucial to lifting Idaho's educational system from the extremely low ranking it has among the states.

Backing the state Board of Education's proposed budget increase now before lawmakers, Keiser said it must be granted and the only way to do that is to keep the temporary sales tax increase of 1.5 percent in effect beyond its current mid-year expiration.

"The sales tax simply must not be reduced if the state expects related developments to continue to produce and to attract persons with the ability to pay any taxes at all," he said.

"Those who think it should be reduced will simply drive wealth, opportunity and new jobs out of the state in both the long or the short run."

Report says air, water quality better

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A state-prepared environmental quality profile about Idaho's air and water quality have improved over the past five years but still need work.

The profile was compiled by the Division of Environment to provide guidance in developing an agreement with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for the next fiscal year.

The report identifies environmental problems and describes activities being conducted under the provisions of state and federal acts dealing with water and air quality, drinking water and solid and hazardous waste.

The department will take public comment on environmental quality until Feb. 29. Authors of "Idaho Environmental Quality Profile 1983" say they want to know if there are environmental problems that deserve a higher priority than those described in the report.

Since air quality standards were established by the EPA in 1978, Idaho has made remarkable progress in improving air quality in its seven nonattainment areas," the report said.

"There are now only four nonattainment areas and of that total, the state believes there are now sufficient monitoring data to redesignate one of those areas to attainment and greatly reduce the size of two other areas."

The cities of Kellogg and Pocatello no longer exceed federal standards for sulfur dioxide emissions, and Kellogg no longer exceeds standards for total suspended particulates.

Kellogg's success is largely due to shutdown of the Bunker Hill lead smelting plant two years ago. The Silver Valley has been designated an unclassified area until the smelter's future is determined.

Air quality problem areas remaining in the state include:

- Suspended particulates — There are three areas in Idaho currently designated as nonattainment for total suspended particulates: Lewiston, Pocatello and Soda Springs.
- Sulfur dioxide — Closure of the Bunker Hill Mining and Smelting Complex at Kellogg and a 25 percent reduction in emissions from the J. R. Shimpert fertilizer plant at Pocatello have curtailed the state's sulfur dioxide problem. Beker Industry's fertilizer plant at Soda Springs also is subject to a compliance order.

Lead levels dropped drastically after the Bunker Hill plant closed, but in drier summer and fall months dust in the Silver Valley area still is monitored for lead levels.

Carbon monoxide — Ada County exceeds primary standards for carbon monoxide. Boise and Ada County have passed ordinances that will require a mandatory inspection and maintenance program for motor vehicles starting in July.

"Water quality conditions in Idaho's rivers vary across the state," the report said. "Conditions can generally be related to the predominant land use in the area or the extent of local development or both."

"The central and northern regions of the state exhibit particularly high water quality. Geographic areas experiencing degradation are the southeast, southwest and the Palouse area of the Panhandle region."

The three rivers with the most severe pollution problems are the Lower Bruneau, the South Fork of the Coeur d'Alene and the Lower Boise. Rock Creek in Twin Falls County also has major problems, according to the report.

Overall water quality ratings given for the state's six hydrologic basins are: Bear River, poor; Upper Snake River, fair; Southwest Basin, fair; Salmon River, good; Clearwater River, good; and Panhandle Basin, excellent.

Kellogg auto dealer promotes sales to Japan

KELLOGG (AP) — In a venture that may seem like carrying coals to Newcastle, Dave Smith wants to sell American cars to the Japanese.

Smith, who turned his Kellogg car dealership around in the past year and a half using the telephone to sell automobiles to buyers in the U.S. western states, said there is a large demand for U.S.-built cars in the Japan.

Frankly, he's surprised more U.S. cars aren't sold in the automobile-rich

Asian country.

"They say necessity is the mother of invention and we've had to think like exporters for the last year and a half to be successful," he said.

"We're already involved in interstate commerce," Smith said in a recent telephone interview. "So, you might say the logical extension of that would be to market overseas."

Smith said he plans to return to Japan next month to work out the specifics of selling General Motors and Chrysler automobiles in the land of Toyota and Nissan Motors.

If negotiations are successful, he plans to start test marketing his cars there by mid year, Smith said.

Selling cars in Japan isn't really that much different from his current method of operation, which uses newspaper advertising and telephone sales in the West, Smith said.

"The idea has been so successful that the Kellogg dealership's sales increased 400 percent and goals about

Movie on incest aired

POCATELLO (AP) — The manager of a television station here says he decided a network movie about incest was sufficiently tasteful to air during prime time.

"I thought some low life might get some lift out of this—because crime, we were not going to air the movie during prime time," said Brian Hogan, general manager of KPVI-TV, the ABC network's Pocatello affiliate.

"Something About Amelia," aired by the network Monday night.

Hogan said he watched the film Monday morning after it arrived at his station, and he decided to air it at 8 p.m. that night.

The station also planned to broadcast the latest numbers of social welfare agencies as a service to families that have experienced incest and want to seek help, he said.

"The flap over this movie wasn't whether we would sweep the issue under the rug," Hogan said.

He said that if he had determined it could be perceived as "humiliating or arousing," the film probably would have been shown at 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

"Something About Amelia" stars Ted Danson as a father who has an incestuous relationship with his 13-year-old daughter.

Power outages strike

MCCAMMON (AP) — Warming temperatures played havoc with power lines over the weekend, leaving some areas of south Bannock County without power for almost eight hours.

Similar outages occurred in the Soda Springs and Owyhee areas.

McCammmon Arlene Robin and their surrounding areas lost power around 10 a.m. Sunday. Service was restored within three to four hours except for an area west of Interstate 15 between McCammon and Arlene, where power didn't come back until 6:45 p.m., leaving some residents backed out for almost eight hours.

Clay Poole, supervisor at the Lava Hot Springs office of Utah Power & Light Co., said the problem was caused by ice buildup on transformers and power lines.

Poole said moderating temperatures the last few days have aggravated the problem. When a warming trend moves in, it starts to melt the ice accumulations. As the ice begins to drop from the lines, it causes the lines to swing and start snapping.

He said the trees near Soda Springs area was hit harder than the south Bannock County area.

Disaster hotline will close

ARCO (AP) — A special disaster assistance hotline for victims of Idaho's Oct. 29 earthquake will shut down on Friday, the Federal Emergency Management Agency says.

Spokesman Mike Sweeney said Monday the agency feels everyone who needs assistance has had sufficient opportunity to contact FEMA.

But he said filers mailed out this week to residents will list other numbers they can call if necessary.

The 1982 quake killed two Challis children and caused at least $12 million in damage, most of it concentrated in Butte and Owyhee counties.

FEMA operated disaster assistance offices in the two counties late last year, closed them down by early December.

Sweeney said FEMA received 251 requests for assistance from quake victims, but the financial total hasn't been determined yet.

Hungry elk cause problems

TONA (AP) — Idaho Fish and Game Department crews began feeding elk in the Tona area over the weekend in an attempt to draw the herd away from local farms and back into the Willow Creek drainage, officials said Monday.

The Bureau of Land Management gave the state agency permission to use 200 acres of public land near the end of Telford Road as a place to feed the elk, said Tracey Trent, wildlife specialist for the department's Idaho Falls office.

About 70 to 80 were pushed onto the hay right away, and another 30 or more that my people saw up on the hill may have joined them this (Monday) morning," he said.

Trent said there are indications the number of elk in the area is decreasing. About 450 were counted during an aerial inspection last Tuesday, but fog has prevented more flights.

The remaining elk are being fed to protect hay stacks and to move the elk up on the hill away from the railroad tracks and highways.

Foggy conditions Thursday night apparently contributed to the death of 23 elk in Tona. A Union Pacific freight train hit the elk between Telford and Tower roads along a spur line that passes through the town.

The elk killed were mostly cows and young calves, and included a couple of spike bulls.

Declo, Kimberly duel again

BOOTT/TUDEHOPE Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It's two-thirds time. Two-thirds of the way through the season, Kimberly and Declo, the Central Conference's number one and two teams, respectively, will meet tonight for the second time this season. This time it will be on the Bulldogs' court.

Darrington will square up against the Bulldogs' 1-31 zone, which has kept opponents to an average of just 30 points a game, while Declo's more accustomed to scoring 53 points per outing.

more important, 6-2 in the league, Gooding's chances for at least a second-round berth in the district playoffs seem to be good.

Rozier

 Trope said he was retained as Rozier's agent "moments after the (Orange Bowl) game." But he noted that as long ago as 1980, when "Hestman Trophy winner Jimmy Cannon of Louisiana State was negotiating with both the NFL and the brand new American Football League, players had agents while still in college."
 "But that's not the case here," he said.

Maulers President Paul Martha and Heddleston, blessed with the financial support of team owner and wealthy shopping mall magnate Edward J. DeBartolo, said in Miami several hours after the Orange Bowl.

The discussion continued through the next day, Tuesday, with Rozier twice sitting in on the talks, Heddleston said. The deal was signed and agreed upon about 4 p.m. Tuesday and Rozier "was quite happy," Heddleston said.

 "He was down because of what happened (in the Orange Bowl)," Heddleston said. "But he wasn't emotionally distraught."
 The Maulers wanted to announce the signing of the NFL draft in New York on Wednesday, but Rozier asked for several days to discuss the deal with his parents, meet with his girlfriend and carry out a commitment to the East-West Shrine game in San Francisco, Heddleston said. Several minor contract details weren't worked out until the weekend, he added.

Rozier successfully passed "with flying colors" a series of physical exams, including X-rays of his injured ankle, at Miami's Mount Sinai Hospital last week, Heddleston said.

Rumors still abound about Cowboys' sale

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas oilman Max Williams ran into his friend Roger Staubach at a Christmas party and Staubach said, "If I were still playing, I understand you'd be my boss."
 So it goes in Dallas' football circles, where rumors are running rampant over who will buy the Dallas Cowboys of the National Football League.

Williams told the Dallas Times Herald he wasn't interested in the team, but figured the rumor might tag him as a potential buyer because of his long-time friendship with Cowboys coach Tom Landry.

Tex Schramm, the Cowboys' president and general manager who is handling the sale for majority owner Clint Murchison Jr., acknowledges that some of the names bandied about in the news reports are among the prospects.

Several are obvious candidates — wealthy and prominent Dallas businessmen with longtime interests in sports, people such as auto dealer W.C. Bankston and Mary Kay cosmetics president Richard Rogers.
 Others are less well-known, such as George Barbar of Boca Raton, Fla., a Lebanese-American developer who says he is going to build a new $90-million stadium for the Miami Dolphins.

Asked whether he could afford to build the stadium and buy the Cowboys, Barbar said, "We can do more than that if we want to. We love sports very much."
 Schramm confirmed that Bankston, Rogers, Barbar and another rumored sponsor, California developer Alex Spanos, have expressed interest in "varying degrees."

"There are plenty of (candidates) interested with plenty of ways of financing it," Schramm said. "It isn't the type of thing that you put out the daily bulletin on. Virtually all the people who are interested are individuals who do not want their names associated with it until or unless they eventually do buy the team."

Murchison bought the team for $50 million in 1960, and the reported asking price is $90 million. Murchison has been ill for several years, and that coupled with the desire to settle the estate of his brother, who owned 45 percent of the team, led to the decision to sell the franchise.

'Skins expect an exciting Super Bowl

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Washington Redskins and the Los Angeles Raiders play in the Super Bowl as they did when they met during the regular season, it's going to be some game.

JOE GIBBS
 Particularly recalls Plunkett we like to play that way too.

Their regular season meeting, on Oct. 2, left 54,000 fans at Robert Kennedy Stadium, drained with the excitement of it all, and the players bruised from the fighting and clawing on the field.

The Redskins expect no less on Jan. 22 when the two teams battle for the National Football League championship at Tampa, Fla., in Super Bowl XVIII.

"Nobody is going to back off in this one," said quarterback Joe Theismann on Monday. "It will be like two rams banging heads. Nobody will give an inch."

Memories remain fresh, or raw, from the October game when the Redskins rallied from 15 points down late in the fourth quarter for a 37-35 victory.

"It seemed like there was a fight after every play," said Redskins linebacker Keith Miller. "It was typical Raider game with them coming out trying to intimidate people. Of course

The game, which took 3 1/2 hours to play, featured 16 penalties, eight for each team.

"It took over an hour to play the first quarter alone," Theismann recalled. "After every play they were dropping flags and separating players. If I was an advertiser I think I would have done the Super Bowl. This game will take forever and need a thousand commercials."

"It was a very physical, hard-fought game with the momentum going back and forth," Theismann continued. "I also remember the whirlwind finish and a great catch by Joe Washington in the end zone."

Slipping behind Raider linebacker Rod Martin, Washington made a diving catch for the winning touchdown with 33 seconds to play.

Raider quarterback Jim Plunkett is the man who sticks out in the mind of Redskins coach Joe Gibbs.

"Once Plunkett got rolling the Raiders really threw the ball on us," Gibbs said.

Plunkett riddled the Redskins secondary for 372 yards and four touchdowns.

"He is not as mobile as a lot of quarterbacks but he is so big and strong he is hard to bring down," Gibbs said. "The other thing Plunkett can do is duck under the rush. When he does he doesn't look to run but is still looking to pass and make that big play. The big play is definitely the Raider philosophy."

The October game featured one big play after another by the Raiders. Trailing 10-0, Plunkett threw a 60-yard touchdown pass to Cliff Branch to get the Raiders on the scoreboard in the second quarter.

In the third quarter, Plunkett threw touchdown passes of 25 and 22 yards to Calvin Muhammad and the Raiders went ahead for the first time 21-20.

Even the special teams contributed to the big-play offense with Greg Pruitt running back a punt 97 yards for a score.

"We made Greg Pruitt an All-Pro that day with that one run," said Redskins special teams captain Pete Cronan.

The Raiders' running game was hampered, however, by the absence of the injured Marcus Allen.

"I think the Raiders feel that having Allen this time will give them a great edge," Gibbs said.

Raiders don't seek slugfest with Washington

EL SEGUNDO, Calif. (AP) — The Los Angeles Raiders, in the Super Bowl for a fourth time in 16 years, got the heavyweight rematch they wanted. But Coach Tom Flores has no plans to "slug it out" with the Washington Redskins, defending Super Bowl champions.

"You want to play the best and right now the Washington Redskins are the best team in the National Football League," said veteran offensive guard Mickey Marvin.

"I don't know if it's going to be Rocky IV but it's going to be a good game," said Flores. "We can't stand there and try to slug it out."

"It's to our advantage that we've played them. We know how they play. We blew a big lead, but we did some good things," he said.

The Redskins, with the best record (16-2) in the NFL for the second year in a row, pulled from a 35-20 fourth quarter deficit Oct. 2 to stun the Raiders 37-35.

But Los Angeles safety Mike Davis says the Raiders were far from full strength for the earlier meeting.

"Marcus Allen missed the game, we had three players in the secondary hurting, and Cliff Branch got hurt during the game," he said.

The Raiders, Super Bowl champions three years ago as a wild-card team, advanced to the NFL's playoffs event by topping Seattle 30-14 Sunday, avenging two regular-season losses to the young Seahawks.

Flores said the Raiders, now 14-4, "probably came up with the best-balanced offensive performance of the year. And our defense was so strong we overcame turnovers and bad field position."

Stopping the Redskins will require more than containment of John Riggin, Washington's powerful 240-pound fullback, he said.

"Riggins is a big part of their game. When we played them last time he got his share of yardage. But they beat us through the air. We have to stop Riggins like we had to stop (Seattle) rookie sensation Curt Warner," he said.

A fierce Raiders' defense limited Warner to 26 yards in 11 carries and intercepted five passes.

"Washington is more of a power running team. Warner is a cutback runner. With Riggins, the Redskins just try to destroy you, knock you off the line of scrimmage,"

Flores said. "When you think you've got him bottled up inside, he breaks outside, like Miami found out last year (in the Super Bowl)."

"It's going to be a war zone," said Marvin.

"There's going to be a lot of shrapnel flying," added Davis.

The Raiders escaped Sunday's AFC title game with no serious injuries. Linebacker Charlie Hannah and Steve Sylvester are nursing head and neck injuries, and tight end Todd Christensen twisted a knee, but should not be affected by it.

Wide receiver Dokie Williams, who was held out of Sunday's game with a hamstring injury, should be ready for the Super Bowl, Flores said.

Pennzoil prepares challenge for merger of Texaco, Getty

By ROBERT BURNS
The Associated Press

NEW YORK (AP) — Pennzoil Co. outmaneuvered in the bidding for Getty Oil Co. by Texaco Inc.'s $9.9 billion offer, said Monday it was preparing a legal challenge to the Texaco-Getty marriage on antitrust grounds.

Texaco, meanwhile, formally launched a $125-a-share tender offer for 26.5 percent of Getty shares held by the public. Texaco announced over the weekend that it had gained control of the 52 percent of Getty shares owned by the Sarah C. Getty Trust and the J. Paul Getty Museum in agreements costing Texaco $5.14 billion.

If the merger is completed, the $9.9 billion deal will stand as the largest in history.

J. Hugh Liedtke, chairman of Pennzoil, said over the weekend that his company would challenge the Texaco-Getty deal on grounds that it violates antitrust laws. Pennzoil indicated Monday it would file suit in Delaware today.

Bob Harper, a spokesman at Pennzoil's Houston headquarters, said Monday the company was preparing to file at least two lawsuits. Besides the antitrust charge, Pennzoil will seek to recover damages from Getty for what it considers a breach of contract.

Pennzoil and Getty had announced a preliminary agreement last Wednesday that called for Pennzoil and Gordon Getty, sole trustee of the Sarah C. Getty Trust, to convert Getty to a private company. The deal, which Pennzoil would contribute $2.6 billion and the Getty trust would be paid approximately $12.50 a share, was valued at $5.2 billion.

Idaho stock prices higher

BOISE (AP) — Idaho livestock prices in December were generally higher than a month earlier but still trailed prices paid nationally, according to the U.S. Agriculture Department.

The December price situation for crops was mixed with improvements from a month earlier for barley and potatoes and declines for wheat and beans.

But again, according to USDA's Crop and Livestock Reporting Service, Idaho prices for most of these commodities generally trailed those at the national level.

Prices received by state producers for steers, heifers, fresh apples and barley were the only ones to exceed the average nationwide.

While reducing the pig crop substantially during the second half of 1983, Idaho pig producers still had a 14 percent larger inventory of pigs and pigs as December began than they did in 1982. The inventory stood at 120,000 head with market hogs up 16 percent and breeding stock 6 percent higher.

In December, Idaho ranchers received substantial increases in the month earlier in the prices for beef cattle, which hit $51.30 a hundredweight, on the strength of nearly a $5 increase for steers and heifers to $61.30 a hundredweight.

Cow prices fell off $2.40 to $30.50 a hundred.

The surge in steer and heifer prices boosted the Idaho level 50 cents above the average for the nation.

Calf and lamb prices were up about a dollar a hundredweight each and milk prices edged a dime higher.

Except for cow prices, all livestock categories were commanding higher receipts at the end of 1983 than 12 months earlier.

On the crop side, alfalfa hay at $73 a ton and apples at just over 22 cents a pound were unchanged from November and higher than at the end of 1982.

Barley at $2.84 a bushel and potatoes at $4.70 were both higher than in November and a year ago, but only Idaho barley prices were running above the national average.

Dry beans at $19.10 a hundredweight trailed both November state and December national prices but was well above the price of less than $11 a year earlier.

In what may have been a response to reports that Idaho wheat farmers plan to increase plantings for the coming year, prices, all despite a huge surplus, December wheat prices fell another 13 cents a bushel to $3.27. That is well below the 1982 price of $3.63 as well as below the national average price of $3.46.

Hubot meets patrons of electronics show in Las Vegas

For only $3,495

Hubot stands ready to help

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — For someone who's too lazy to get a beer from the refrigerator, help may soon be on the way from Hubot — a $3,495 robot.

Hubot, unveiled last week at the Consumer Electronics Show here, is a svelte, 44 inches tall and features a black and white television, a cassette deck, a personal computer and synthesized speech.

"We're positioning this as the ultimate appliance of the 1980s," said Robert Sachs, vice president of Hubotics. "It's smart, he's fun and he's mobile."

Hubot can be programmed to take certain routes through a house, or be operated through a joystick. The company plans to build the robot equipped with burglar and fire alarms, an arm and hand so it can pick up objects and a vacuum.

"When the articulating arm is available later this year, it will be able to open a refrigerator door with the aid of suction cups and grab a can of beverage and bring it to its owner," Sachs said.

Hubot, to premier at large department stores in May, will also have a drink tray so it can serve guests at parties.

Sachs said the company hopes to sell 2,000 of the robots this year.

"We're aiming at the upscale market, the person making $50,000 a year or more who is lifestyle oriented and wants the newest thing," he said.

High court to decide if SEC notice required

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court Monday agreed to decide whether targets of Securities and Exchange Commission investigations must be told whenever the agency seeks information from others through subpoenas.

The justices, told the effectiveness of secret investigations conducted by numerous federal agencies is at stake, said they will review a federal appeals court decision requiring such disclosure.

The SEC's appeal said the lower court ruling "threatens seriously to impede important investigations conducted by the SEC and more than 35 other agencies that have never previously been required to notify persons or firms under investigation who subpoenas are issued to third parties."

The 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals ruling last April 25 in a case, SEC v. In re, Jerry T. O'Brien Inc., a registered stockbroker, sued the SEC in 1981 in an unsuccessful attempt to prevent the scheduled testimony of one of its customers.

A federal trial judge denied all relief sought by O'Brien. The 9th Circuit court upheld most of that ruling, but said the firm had a right to be told when others were subpoenaed for information about it.

In seeking Supreme Court review, government lawyers said the April ruling "is not supported by any constitutional provision, statute, rule or judicial decision (and) is contrary to a half-century of unbroken administrative practice."

They said the SEC has had to hold in check many investigations in one or more of the nine states in which the 9th Circuit court ruling is binding law — Alaska, Arizona, California, Hawaii, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Oregon, and Washington.

GM directors discuss reorganization plans

NEW YORK (AP) — General Motors Corp. directors met Monday, reportedly to discuss a plan that would combine GM's five familiar divisions into two — one for large cars and one for small.

Under the reported proposal, the company would keep its Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile, Pontiac and Chevrolet subsidiaries. But the divisions no longer would make cars of all sizes individually.

Instead, Pontiac and Chevrolet would make and market small cars while the other divisions would be in charge of large family and luxury cars.

GM executives have refused to confirm or deny the realignment reports, but GM sources and industry analysts said the plan was under consideration.

Leon H. Sullivan, pastor of Zion Baptist Church in Philadelphia and one of GM's 24 directors, refused to say if the reorganization was on the agenda.

"Lots of things are happening today," he said as he entered the board suite. "Let's see what happens."

The board members avoided reporters after Monday's meeting. GM scheduled a news conference in Detroit for the top, but spokesmen would not discuss the topic.

GM has made no secret about the appointment in 1982 of John DeBinko to head a reorganizational study. He was with GM's Delco-Moraine division and observers say the proposed reorganization is a result of that study.

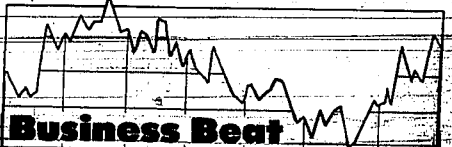

Auto industry analysts predicted the big-car division will be headed by Lloyd Reuss, 47, currently head of the Buick division, and the small-car operations by Robert Stempel, 50, head of Chevrolet.

Maryann Keller, an auto industry analyst at the investment firm of Vilas-Elscher Associates Ltd. in New York, said the realignment would address "one of General Motors' problems for a long time — a large bureaucratic structure."

"The new structure appears to be one with specific chains of command, which should make the whole organization more in tune with what's going on and better able to make competitive cars... If it works the way it should work," Keller said.

The nation's largest automaker was formed 55 years ago by combining several independent auto companies and the manufacturing and marketing setup still looks a lot like it did in the formative years.

Michael Luckey, an auto analyst at Merrill Lynch Economics, said the realignment also could help GM in catching up with Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp. in reducing white collar staff.

Volcker, Regan to testify

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker and Treasury Secretary Donald Regan will testify Jan. 16 at a hearing in the Salt Palace.

The hearing by the Senate Banking Committee, chaired by Jake Garn, R-Utah, will concern Garn's Financial Services Competitive Equity Act and amendments proposed by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., to the Depository Institutions Holding Company Act.

Garn said the bills deal with expansion of depository and non-depository institution's powers.

"Everything from real estate and insurance activities to the way credit card information is used as well as check hold policies is discussed in this bill," Garn said.

Show sets attendance mark

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The Winter Consumer Electronics Show, an extravaganza of electronic wizardry, set a new attendance record Monday, surpassing a mark of 83,000 who attended the summer show in Chicago.

"This is definitely the biggest CES show ever," said spokesman Allan Schlosser. "The final attendance will be well into the 80s."

By mid-afternoon Sunday, 82,874 had registered at the show, which began Friday and runs through today.

The 1983 Winter show in Las Vegas drew slightly more than 78,000. Some 1,300 companies are displaying products at this, the 32nd winter show.

ATT hints at lower rates

WASHINGTON (AP) — American Telephone & Telegraph Co. says it can cut its interstate long-distance telephone rates this spring more than it originally planned.

The company, in a 230-page filing with the Federal Communications Commission, also said it was prepared to cut almost by half a proposed increase in rates for private phone lines used by businesses. Instead of an average 15.3 percent increase in private line rates, AT&T said it was now requesting an average 7.9 percent increase.

AT&T also said it thought it could reduce its business WATS rates more than it originally planned.

Report disappoints traders

NEW YORK (AP) — Analysts said traders were disappointed in the Federal Reserve Board's report that the nation's money supply declined $600 million in late December.

The Fed said its M1 measure of the money supply fell to adjusted $321.5 billion in the seven-day period ended Dec. 28 from a revised $321.1 billion the previous week. The previous week's figure originally was reported as $322.3 billion.

M1 includes cash in circulation, deposits in checking accounts and non-bank travelers checks. For the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $319.7 billion, a 2.1 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate of gain from the previous 13 weeks.

Steel plant head promoted

OREM, Utah (AP) — Warren Bartel, manager of U.S. Steel's Geneva Works here since 1982, has been named general manager for the firm's Western operations.

He replaces Robert Raybuck of Provo, who was appointed general manager of U.S. Steel's Fairfield Works at Fairfield, Va., last week. Bartel will oversee operations of U.S. Steel's plants in Utah and California.

Reagan looking for woman to fill coming Fed vacancy

By ROBERT FURLLOW
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, hoping to spruce up his image with women, is about to appoint one to the economically influential Federal Reserve Board, according to Fed watchers inside and outside government.

No one is saying exactly who will replace Nancy Hays Teeters, the first female Fed governor, whose term expires on Jan. 31. But there is wide agreement that her successor — appointee No. 63 to the Federal Reserve's 70-year-old board — will be female.

"I don't see how, given the political difficulties the president has found himself in with women, he could replace the only female governor with anyone other than another female governor," said Thomas Thomson, a former Fed economist who is now chief economist for Crocker National Bank in San Francisco.

Administration officials, though acknowledging the president may have some image problems with women, are less willing to talk about any role politics might play in choosing someone to work on critical monetary policies.

However, White House spokesman Martin Fitzwater agreed the president's candidate "is likely to be a woman."

He and other White House aides said they had no information a final decision has been made, though one said the list has been narrowed to only a few.

The seven-member Federal Reserve Board, appointed by the president but operationally independent of him, wields tremendous economic power through its control of the money and credit available to the U.S. economy. Many analysts say it is the strongest monetary cabinet by the Federal Reserve, not the halfhearted policies of the administration, that should be credited or blamed for the drop in inflation and the deep recession that marked Reagan's first two years in office.

Similarly, a 1982 relaxation of that control is seen as a major reason for the 1983 recovery.

Mrs. Teeters, considered the most liberal of the current Fed governors, had pressed for such easing earlier and more persistently than most of her colleagues. But she has gotten no thanks from the Reagan administration that believes monetary discipline is necessary to avoid a resurgence of inflation.

Thus, there is virtually no possibility the president would reappoint her, as he did Fed Chairman Paul Volcker last summer.

Two possible replacements mentioned often by Fed observers are:

- Karen Horn, president of the Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland. In addition to being the only female Fed bank president, she has served as treasurer of Bell of Pennsylvania, giving her the business experience that many in Congress say new governors should have.
- Marina von Neumann Whitman, chief economist for General Motors and a member of the president's Council of Economic Advisers during the Nixon administration.

There has been at least one report that both women have been resisted. White House offers, at least so far, but neither they nor the administration is saying so publicly. Either would undoubtedly have to take a pay cut to accept the job at just under $70,000 a year.

Nearly a dozen other women show up in lists offered by private economists. However, as Thomson said, economists tend to name other economists they know "and I'm not sure that's what we will say, 'Mary Who?'" when the announcement is made, he said.

William Dunkelberg, an economic consultant who was on several lists of possible for a vacancy two years ago, said he believes the administration "is working very hard to get a woman."

"And I suspect they will also get one from the business sector," he said, a development that likely would be welcomed by the National Federation of Independent Business, for whom he works.

Dunkelberg said government officials he talks to say they want "someone with some tough-tenacity and guts," who won't try to change broad monetary policies because of one or two unexpected economic reports.

If a replacement for Mrs. Teeters hasn't been named and confirmed by the Senate by the end of the month, the law calls for her to remain in office until a replacement is ready. Fed terms are normally for 14 years, but Mrs. Teeters was appointed by then-President Carter in 1979 to serve out the final years of an unexpired term of another Fed governor who resigned.

Cars, cans, coffee makers on recall list

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID The Associated Press. WASHINGTON — Nine million automobiles, 72,000 cans of tomatoes, more than 100,000 coffee makers and a wide variety of other products were involved in recalls in 1983 as government agencies sought to protect the American consumer. The campaigns seek to get defective or dangerous products returned or repaired, but success varies widely depending on the product involved and the public attention generated by the recall.

Merchants moan about ill effects of bridge work on Idaho highway

McCALL (AP) — Businessmen along Idaho 55 from Horsehoe Bend to McCall say a construction project on the highway that causes delays for travelers has cut sharply into the tourist trade this winter. But with a little advance planning, drivers from the Treasure Valley can travel the highway without a delay, the merchants say.

Home fuel prices rise, gas declines

By RITA BEAMISH The Associated Press. LOS ANGELES — The big freeze over most of the nation has driven gasoline prices down while pushing up the cost of home heating oil, industry analyst Dan Lundberg says. The cost of heating oil has jumped in a range of 15 cents to 3.0 cents a gallon since early December, depending on the region of the country, said Lundberg.

Home pressure readings helpful

DEAR DR. LAMB—My wife takes several pills for high blood pressure and sees the doctor every few months. We bought a blood-pressure instrument at one of our local pharmacies. However, her doctor says the instrument is not accurate. I understand that it may not be as sophisticated as the one in the hospital. How good are accurate are the instruments available at pharmacies?

DEAR READER—It depends entirely on the kind of instrument you have purchased. If it's similar to those in doctors' offices and you learn to use it with a stethoscope, it can be reasonably accurate. Of course, that depends entirely on how well you have learned to use the instrument. Some of the electric devices simply aren't as accurate. They are reading in recording a diastolic reading (lower blood pressure).

One way to find out the accuracy of your instrument is to take it to your doctor's office and take your wife's pressure with it at the same time he takes the pressure with his instrument. We even do that with some of the blood-pressure instruments that have a gauge on them rather than a mercury column.

Despite the drawbacks of some of the home devices, I think they do more good than harm. At least they help people open their blood pressure and become aware of the range of the pressure. They are sometimes helpful in guiding patients during treatment, again depending upon the type of device used and the skill of the person using it.

You will be interested in the normal range and effects of blood pressure, so I am sending you The Health Letter 15-8, Your Vital Blood Pressure. Others who would like this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of his newspaper, P.O. Box 151, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10101.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I'm a 47-year-old woman, a diabetic and have been taking insulin for the past six years. I have horrible muscle spasms in my chest, abdomen, legs and even my toes. Could you tell me how to relieve these cramps? I'm taking Dyazide and Apresoline for high blood pressure.

DEAR READER—First, you need to know what is causing the spasms. You may be low on sodium or potassium. You should see your doctor and let him do some tests to see if your body chemistry is in balance.

Dyazide usually doesn't deplete potassium as some diuretics do. The only way to tell is to have a blood test.

Apresoline, used to control high blood pressure, rarely causes muscle cramps, but it can cause neuritis. Some of these effects can be prevented by taking pyridoxine (vitamin B<sub>6</sub>).

Please don't discontinue any of your medicines without your doctor's consent. Let your doctor guide you after determining the most likely cause of your problem.
