China offers treaty For Taiwan

By LARRY RYCKMAN
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — Chinese Premier Zhao Ziyang on Thursday promised leaders of the largest Chinese community in the United States that Taiwan would retain military, economic and political independence if it agrees to reunification with mainland China.

Zhao, 64, speaking to more than 300 business and political leaders of San Francisco's Chinese community, outlined conditions of reunification that he said would assure the autonomy of Taiwan.

"It will not be a case of the mainland's swallowing up Taiwan or vice versa," Zhao said. "We have proposed that after reunification, Taiwan and the mainland shall be both part of the People's Republic of China, and Taiwan will become a special administrative region."

"This means that Taiwan will enjoy full autonomy and enjoy some exclusive powers that don't exist in other municipalities and autonomous regions of China," Zhao said.

Dressed in a brown Western-style business suit and tie, and wearing anti-static apron, Zhao asked members of the audience for suggestions on how reunification could be achieved and urged them to help by speaking with Chinese leaders in Los Angeles and Seattle.

Zhao said that if Taiwan were absorbed into the People's Republic of China, Taiwan "can have independence" in the economic sphere and would not be assessed any taxes by the mainland.

He also said that the Taiwan government could have "an independent judiciary" and could "employ its own Armed Forces."

The mainland will send no representatives to Taiwan, neither troops nor administrative personnel.

Zhao did not answer any questions from the crowd and shook hands with several of those attending as he left the hall in the Fairmont Hotel for a meeting with Chinese students at the consulate.

After returning from the consulate, Zhao was scheduled to speak to the World Affairs Council of Northern California, in remarks prepared for the council, Zhao cautioned against a superpower rivalry developing in the Pacific and urged that all countries respect principles of territorial integrity and sovereignty.

Zhao arrived in the San Francisco Bay area from Washington at 1:10 p.m. PST on a plane loaned to him for the cross-country trip by Pres-

Fund forecast passes Evans' Legislators predict state income

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE (AP) — Banking on a brighter economic outlook than Democratic Gov. John Evans, the Republican-controlled Joint Revenue Projections Committee has estimated 1985 state receipts at $471 million.

That compares to Evans' estimate of just under $461 million for the budget year that begins July 1. "I think it's in the ballpark," the governor said, later in the day.

"Our information is up to date," Rep. John Brooks, R-Gooding, chairman of the joint committee, said in defending the projection. "These estimates are based on two months ago. Things change."

But the projection, which still must be endorsed by the full Legislature, was adopted by the committee on a party-line vote. Democrats repeatedly held out for lower estimates in many revenue categories.

"We (the committee) are more optimistic than all the experts we've listened to," said Sen. Vernon Lamm, D-Pinehurst, in criticizing the estimate. He opposed the estimate along with Democratic Sen. Gall Bray of Boise and Reps. Louis Howarth of Elgin and Harold Reid of Craigmont.

Evans said the estimate was higher than he expected. "Obviously, they have come to Boise with great optimism on the revenues that will be available," he said.

Evans said he is also optimistic, but "I'm more conservative than they are."

"They are the appropriators. We will do everything we can to support their estimate," he said.

Evans said the difference between the two estimates was not significant.

In addition, the committee agreed to revamp the revenue projection for the current budget year to $35.4 million, meaning a surplus of $2.5 million going into the next spending year. Both figures are about $3 million higher than the governor's revised estimates.

The surplus is the amount left uncommitted after the state finishes its 1984 general revenue budget of $425 million and repays school districts some $60 million for over money it borrowed to balance the 1983 budget.

Evans, fighting to win retention of at least part of the temporary sales tax increase, has placed any 1985 revenue projection over $470 million at "the most optimistic level."

The governor says the state needs to spend $500 million in the 1985 budget year to make the needed improvements in Idaho's educational system

not water's best use
Claims Jim Jones

By QUANE KENTON
AP Capital Writer

BOISE — If there isn't enough water in southern Idaho for both hydroelectric generation and future farm and industrial development, then using the water for electricity should take a back seat, Attorney General Jim Jones says.

"We can't find alternatives to having drinking water, water for irrigation or to run our processing plants," said Jones. "But Idaho Power has alternatives for generating power."

Jones was interviewed Friday for KTVB's weekend Viewpoint program.

The attorney general, who has been sparing with the state's largest utility over water rights, said that dispute must be settled.

"The question is, should we let the utility run the southern half of the state of Idaho, or should we let the state run it?" asked Jones.

He said if court rule Idaho Power has control of Snake River water, it will mean no industrial expansion, no new farm development, no jobs.

"If the southern Idaho economy stagnates, he said, there will be no need for Idaho Power to expand its generating facilities."

"It is in our best interests to have a growing, robust economy, not one directed by Idaho Power," he said.

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Henry Kissinger said Friday that President Reagan and Soviet leader Yuri V. Andropov should appoint special envoys to quietly pursue a reduction of East-West tensions.

He said he would not be a candidate for the job. The former U.S. secretary of state said such talks should not include Soviet activity in Central America, however, because it would wrongly legitimize the Soviet Union's presence in that region.

Kissinger also said he would not lobby in Washington on behalf of a report on Central America by a Reagan-appointed commission, which he led. The report said Soviet and Cuban activity in Central America threatens U.S.

Soviets' weapons violations subject of study — A3 interests.

Kissinger said personal representatives from the White House and Kremlin should be authorized to conduct private, exploratory conversations on their leaders' behalf, preferably without publicity.

Each representative should have access to leaders on both sides and begin "a global review of their entire relationship," Kissinger said.

Kissinger made the proposal in a speech at a Brussels conference sponsored by the Georgetown University Center for Strategic and International Studies, and he expanded on it at a news conference.

In response to questions by reporters, Kissinger said he would not be a candidate for such an assignment, despite playing similar diplomatic roles in Moscow and Peking for President Richard M. Nixon.

"It would raise too many hackles among conservatives in the United States," Kissinger said. "It would not be a wise choice in an election year."

He said he hadn't discussed the idea with Reagan, but "many weeks ago I put that idea to other senior members of the administration and they didn't throw me out of the room."

President Nixon advocated a similar approach in a recent magazine interview.

Kissinger said East-West discussions needed to reach the level of "a fundamental dialogue," and "not simply to bandy numbers back and forth at arms negotiations."

Militia unleashes on Marines; civilians killed

BEIRUT, Lebanon — U.S. Marines, responding to heavy attacks by rebel militiamen, unleashed a barrage of fire from tanks, mortars and rockets Friday on the outskirts of Beirut. French and British peacekeeping units are withdrawn from the country.

Assad was quoted as saying before the meeting that "Peace in Lebanon cannot be established under the American gun barrel."

Rumsfeld's talks with Assad, the Soviet Union's closest Arab ally, were aimed at easing tensions in Lebanon, where Syria controls a large area of the north and east.

Friday's hostilities in Lebanon were the worst since Dec. 16, when Lebanese civil war combatants agreed in a Damascus meeting to spare population centers further bombardment.

Waste dump fires managers

GRAND VIEW (AP) — EnviroSAFE Services of Idaho has hired additional staff members and supervisors after firing two senior managers, a company spokesman said.

EnviroSAFE fired Rick Martin, general manager, and Jim Riddell, technical services manager, who was in charge of quality control, on Jan. 4, said company spokesman David Ralston.

The officials were fired because of recent controversy surrounding two Teton County waste dumps, Ralston said.

"It's the way the cookie crumbles, I guess," Riddell said. "It was a tough job, and I'm kind of glad to be out."

Reagan considers deficit panel

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is increasingly likely to call for a special commission to deal with the sticky problem of the government's red-ink spending, officials said Friday.

President Reagan had not yet made a final decision on the proposal, according to several officials, who would only talk on condition they not be identified.

But, one high-level official said, "I think it is likely" such a commission will be proposed to offer suggestions on trimming back the deficits, now running close to the $20 billion mark.

Reagan's plan turned to blue-ribbon commissions to resolve other difficult problems in his administration, such as MX missile basing, Social Security solvency and most recently a policy for Central America.

Blaze kills Idaho Falls man

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — An early morning mobile-home fire here killed an Idaho Falls man Friday.

Roger Wilson, 25, was pronounced dead at the scene. His body was found in the trailer's front bedroom.

Neighbor Dick Hobbard said the fire burned the front end of the trailer, which was about 25, and Marlys Raback, 18, managed to escape.

Both were later taken to Idaho Falls Consolidated Hospitals Parkview facility where they were treated for smoke inhalation and released, a hospital spokesman said.

Seven Bonneville County firefighters used two engines and a tanker to put out the blaze.

China seeks old WPPSS plants

SEATTLE (AP) — Preliminary discussions are under way between China and the Washington Public Power Supply System over the potential sale of the supply system's two terminated nuclear power plants, WPPSS officials confirmed late Friday.

The officials representing the Chinese government have visited the sites of the two plants and also have been in contact with Tennessee Valley Authority officials.

"Preliminary discussions have taken place," said Steve Irish, WPPSS spokesman for the supply system. "No sale has been finalized."

Irish was reluctant to discuss any details of the negotiations but sources who asked not to be identified said the Chinese are interested in buying equipment, material and engineering information.

Such a sale could reach into the hundreds of millions of dollars.

The two plants, one at Setop west of Olympia and the other at the Hanford Nuclear Reservation in Eastern Washington, were terminated two years ago when the supply system was unable to borrow the money needed to continue construction.

Killer saved from execution

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Convicted murderer James Hutchins won a stay of execution from the North Carolina Supreme Court on Friday, moments after the U.S. Supreme Court had apparently cleared the way for him to be put to death by lethal injection.

In a dramatic climax to a day of legal maneuvering, the state court announced it was blocking the execution at 5:20 p.m., 40 minutes before the deadline for carrying it out. North Carolina law requires that a condemned prisoner be put to death between 6 a.m. and 6 p.m. on the execution day.

Senator reportedly has cancer

LOWELL, Mass. (AP) — Sen. Paul Tsongas refused to disclose the ailment that prompted his decision not to seek a second term, but his hometown newspaper Friday quoted sources as saying he is suffering from cancer of the lymph nodes.

Tsongas announced Thursday that he would not run for re-election because of his health but has not told his staff the nature of his illness.

He just said it was chronic, while serious ... but not life threatening," Majority Leader Thompson, Tsongas' national press secretary, said Friday.

Teenagers go on rampage

By TSE PUJ SHAN
The Associated Press

HONG KONG — Thousands of teenagers rampaged through the streets of Hong Kong's twin city of Kowloon for hours Friday night attacking police, burning and overturning cars and looting shops.

At least 34 people were injured, including four policemen. Police reported arresting about 150 people before the riots were broken.

The violence erupted on the second day of a strike by taxi drivers, which ended soon after the riots began. Hong Kong's top policeman blamed "unruly elements" who took advantage of confusion created by the strike.

Mobs pelleted police with stones and bottles. The crowds were estimated at 5,000, but about half appeared to be onlookers or people cut off from home by police blockades.

At one stage about 1,000 youths surrounded a police station.

Police in riot gear pushed the mobs back with bursts of tear gas shells. They were assisted by plainclothes detectives welding metal pipes and wooden sticks who waded into the crowds.

The rioters left streets looking like battlefields — smoldering fires from cars and garbage cans, smashed buses and broken shop windows. Burglar alarms shrieked throughout the area.

Witnesses said some of the rioters climbed aboard empty buses, whose drivers and passengers had fled, and drove them into railings or rammed them into each other.

Others on foot played cat-and-mouse with police, withdrawing into alleys when police mounted a charge and then regrouping elsewhere.

Police appeared to residents in the area to keep to their houses and said that all doors and gates were locked. But by 1 a.m. Saturday, only a few hard-core youths remained on the streets, jeering at police from a distance.

Police Commissioner Roy Heng said in a broadcast statement that the violence in Kowloon on the mainland had nothing to do with the land strike, adding that "unruly elements had taken advantage of the situation to commit a series of criminal acts."

dent Reagan. He was greeted by about 50 people, including Mayor Diane Feinstein and members of the local Chinese community.

"It was a great day here," said Bill Wu, co-chairman of the city's Shanghai Cultural Committee. "It means San Francisco means something to the Chinese. It's their own city, and we're proud of it."

A 15-foot-long banner reading "West Coast Chinese-Americans Welcome Zhao Ziyang of the People's Republic of China's Visit!" in Chinese and English was waved at Zhao, who walked to the crowd and shook hands with several people before boarding his car for a whirlwind tour of San Francisco.

Zhao's motorcade sped across the Golden Gate Bridge to a viewing area on the Marin County end of the span. Alcatraz and the city, gleaming in the afternoon sun, were visible to him and he shook hands with tourists sharing the view.

After crossing back into San Francisco, the motorcade visited Fisherman's Wharf, Chinatown and the financial district before delivering the premier to the Fairmont Hotel, his headquarters during the visit.

Security was tight as Zhao arrived, with local reporters "frisked" before they boarded a bus to the airport and balm squad dogs being used to inspect the limousines that transported the premier into the city.

and to aid financially struggling local governments, and he said that can only be done with the sales tax remaining at 4.5 percent.

But House Speaker Tom Slivers, R-Twin Falls, who's been driving a distinct line between his position and the governor's on fiscal matters, said the revenue estimate falls "in an area I think we can live with" without the higher tax.

He said the sales tax can be dropped back to 4 percent as scheduled and the state will still have the resources "to do a lot of things that need to be done. As I said before, not all of it in 1984, but it's a start."

(Among the Republicans, however, the co-chairman of the Legislature's Joint Budget-setting committee, remains at odds over the revenue estimate's impact on the sales tax issue.

Somewhere in the area of $500 million to $750 million, and that will require retention of at least some of the temporary sales tax increase or reliance on the surplus from this year or a combination of the two.

Only the state universities and the Associated Taxpayers of Idaho have come up with revenue estimates higher than the one put together by the joint legislative committee on Friday.

The major differences between the committee's 1985 revenue projections and the governor's was in anticipated sales tax and corporate tax receipts.

The committee is projecting $3.8 million in sales tax payments, $3.8 million more than the governor, and $38 million in corporate taxes, $2.5 million higher than Evans.

But the panel was below the governor's estimates for individual income tax receipts. It put that figure at $25.2 million while Evans is expecting $24.7 million.

Storms hit northern Europe

By ROBERT GLASS
The Associated Press

LONDON — Storms driven by hurricane-force winds battered northern Europe Friday, killing five people in the British Isles and washing Denmark with sleet and hail before sweeping across the Netherlands and West Germany.

A ferry from Harwich, England, bound for Esbjerg, Denmark, with 153 passengers aboard was reporting hiding out the storm in the North Sea.

A Norwegian helicopter rescued eight crewmen from the Danish North Sea oil drilling rig Dan Bravo, whipped by 115-mph winds in 50-foot seas.

Winds of 100 mph swept a 154-ton French trawler, the Anne Sophie, onto rocks off the southern Irish coast and a British air force helicopter lifted eight fishermen to safety from the 20-foot waves.

In the British Isles, high winds tore the roofs of buildings, blew buses off roads and drove people from flooded homes.

Swedish officials said three nuclear power plants were knocked out of service by line faults.

The sleet and hailstorms in Denmark halted at least 33 domestic and international ferry routes.

A helicopter and rescue ship took five people to safety from a small boat listing at 40 degrees near the island of Bornholm off West Germany's coast, officials said.

The hurricane-force winds swept Britain from England's southwestern tip to northernmost Scotland.

Road accidents caused by the storm killed five people, and four others were injured when the roofs blew off their homes. Friday's deaths brought to eight the number of lives lost in three straight days of storms in Britain.

Scores of roads were blocked by fallen trees. Storms temporarily blacked out between 15,000 to 20,000 electricity customers in central and southern Scotland.

Russian transgressions revealed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has transgressed strategic arms treaties in several major instances, and has committed "probable" violations over a range of accords, including bans on toxic and chemical weapons and limits on underground nuclear testing, administration officials said Friday.

One senior official, asking not to be identified, said a classified report to Congress would outline seven categories of Soviet abuses of various agreements, including the SALT I and SALT II strategic arms limitation treaties.

He listed them as:

- Installing an anti-ballistic missile radar system.
- Testing a new intercontinental ballistic missile.
- Preparing another banned ICBM.
- Masking data on missile tests needed to verify compliance with treaties.
- Providing toxins, or biological weapons, to allies in Southeast Asia.
- Using chemical weapons in Afghanistan.
- Underground test explosions of magnitudes beyond treaty limits.

The official said the report was fashioned "after a careful administration review over many months."

"Our objective," said the senior official who discussed the report Friday, "is not to engage in anti-Soviet behavior or to score debating points, but to protect the integrity of the arms control process."

The report was ordered in a State Department money bill last October. In the wake of claims by Senate conservatives that the Soviets weren't living up to SALT I and SALT II,

Invasion means rebirth for medical school

ST. GEORGE'S, Grenada (AP) — The Grenada crisis that could have killed the American-run medical school here has given birth to new projects for school officials, including plans to play a major role in the building of a new, improved, turn-of-the-century school.

"It looked like the school might have no future at all for awhile. Now we're stronger than ever," said Charles Modica, 36-year-old chancellor of St. George's University School of Medicine, as students returned recently to classes for the first time since their evacuation by U.S.

invaders in late October. Modica, founder of the 7-year-old school, said the school had more applications than ever, but is keeping enrollment at about 600. However, he hopes to add permanent campuses in Barbados and New Jersey to facilities here and on nearby St. Vincent.

"The easy thing — and the worst thing — we could do right now is let in a lot more students," he said.

Modica's school gained worldwide attention when President Reagan gave protection of the 600-plus students as one of the reasons for the Oct. 25 invasion that toppled a radical army junta.

Wholesale-price rise smallest in years

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation on wholesale prices melted to a scant 0.6 percent last year, the best showing in two decades, as food prices rose only slightly and energy costs plunged, the government reported Friday.

Analysts stretched for superlatives in describing the 1983 increase shown in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index for Finished Goods.

"Marvelous," said Martin Feldstein, chief White House economist.

"Sensational," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for the investment firm Lehman Brothers Kuhn Loeb in New York.

"A remarkable economic achievement," said Jerry Jastrowski, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

And presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said the figures were evidence of a break in the nation's vicious cycle of increasing inflation.

The increase in wholesale prices for December alone was only 0.2 percent.

Separate government reports said retail sales and industrial production also increased only modestly in December. Economists said that meant the national economic recovery was slowing a bit; one more reason to think inflation will stay low for some time to come.

Most analysts believe wholesale inflation will be, at least, somewhat higher this year, perhaps 2 percent to 4 percent assuming the recovery continues and there is no repeat of the big oil-price declines that pulled last year's total down. But they also see no big price surge coming up, at least not before big federal budget deficits begin making a bigger impact on the economy next year.

Sinai, for example, said the 1983 news was "not a one-time event. Once again, the surprisingly good result on inflation underscores that we have cracked for a long, long time. Inflation as a major problem in the U.S. economy will be a thing of the past.

Many economists say a combination of events brought inflation down from the much-higher rates of a few years ago. Those events — including the price-lamping effects of the recession, bountiful harvests and an unexpected temporary world surplus of oil — can't all be expected or perhaps even desired to continue forever.

However, prices may have been stable enough for long enough to make business managers, labor negotiators and most other people believe inflation may be down for good, an important psychological factor in actually keeping it down.

Jury gives Christine Craft victory

JOPLIN, Mo. (AP) — Former TV anchorman Christine Craft was awarded $25,000 in damages by a federal jury Friday in the retrial of her suit claiming the station made fraudulent promises when she was hired.

The seven-woman, five-man jury awarded Ms. Craft $25,000 in actual damages after about three hours of deliberation. The jury then went back into session, emerging less than an hour later to award Ms. Craft $100,000 in punitive damages.

Ms. Craft said she had been told she was being hired for her skill, not her appearance, but that later the station found her "too old and too unattractive" and removed her from the anchor desk.

Donald W. Giffin, representing the defendant, Metromedia Inc., former owner of KMBZ-TV, said later he expects Metromedia to appeal.

Ms. Craft, 39, had sought $500,000 in actual damages and $5 million in punitive damages as she battled Metromedia in the courtroom a second time. A jury in Kansas City last summer awarded her $300,000 on the fraud complaint — $375,000 in actual damages — $125,000 in punitive damages — but that was thrown out by U.S. District Judge Joseph E. Stevens Jr., who said it was "excessive" and ordered a new trial.

Ms. Craft testified at the second trial, which started Jan. 4, that she accepted the job as a co-anchor at KMBZ after former News Director Ridge Shannon and General Manager R. Kent Replogle told her she was being hired for her journalism skills.

Storm ravages the Carolinas

By The Associated Press

Freezing drizzle laid a sheet of clear ice across the Carolinas on Friday and police couldn't keep up with the calls as cars spun out of control and wrecked and pedestrians lost their footing and cracked bones.

At least one person was killed in a plethora of highway crashes in western North Carolina, where many schools were closed.

"I couldn't even guess at the number of accidents we've had so far," said Frank Higgins, communications supervisor of the North Carolina Highway Patrol. "My recommendation to motorists is to stay home."

"The situation was just as bad south of the border in northern South Carolina.

"Whole roads are blocked up everywhere," said one officer of the South Carolina Highway Patrol as schools closed in four counties.

88-year-old pens a winner

XENIA, Ohio (AP) — After a hectic week of interviews and appearances on national television, newly discovered author Helen Hoover Santmyer bowed to the infirmities of her 88 years Friday and "went back to bed."

Employees at the Hospitality Home East nursing home in this Ohio town had awakened Miss Santmyer early last week to interview on the CBS Morning News.

The night before, she appeared on NBC, and her story appeared this week in newspapers across the nation.

The cause of Miss Santmyer's newfound celebrity is her 1,344-page novel, "And Ladies of the Club." It was written over almost half a century as her counterpart to the unfurling portrayal of small-town America in Sinclair Lewis' book "Main Street."

It's been 6 months, but no word on reactor

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—It has been over six months since Department of Energy Secretary Donald Hodel's announcement designating the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory as the "preferred site" for a weapons-grade nuclear reactor.

But Energy Department officials still are not sure when a major environmental study of the reactor will finally get under way. This study is required before President Reagan makes a final decision on where to build the $1 to $1.6 billion project known as the new production reactor (NPR).

On August 8, Hodel said the study would include an examination of the project's possible impacts on three potential sites: the INEL, the Hanford Wash. nuclear reservation, and the Savannah River, S.C., nuclear complex.

At that time, INEL officials said the study probably would be started in the fall of 1983. According to an agency memorandum, the study was to include public hearings and in-depth analyses of the project's possible effects on radioactive waste storage systems, water, quality, archeological sites and the regional economy.

The study would also seek to determine the environmental impacts of two different reactor designs.

But opposition from Rep. Melvin Price, D-Ill., who is chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, has forced the Energy Department to postpone the study indefinitely, reports Pete Dirkmatt, an INEL environmental official.

Price's committee refused to approve funds for the study last year and urged the Energy Department to narrow the scope of the project to a single preferred site.

"The last I heard, the House Armed Services Committee still does not agree that DOE should write an environmental impact study," Dirkmatt said earlier this week.

"We are complying with the wishes of the committee, but we haven't stopped things dead in the water," Dirkmatt added.

At the present time, INEL researchers are collecting already available information concerning water quality, air quality, population distribution and other environmental data that might eventually be incorporated into the environmental study, says Dirkmatt.

Scientists also are conducting additional research into the different types of reactor systems contemplated for the project.

Dirkmatt said the preliminary studies will help the EIS study get off to a fast start when funding is finally approved. In the meantime, most of the study's staff has been transferred from INEL to Energy Department headquarters in Germantown, Md., outside of Washington, D.C.

Tamie Berndt, a spokeswoman for the Snake River Alliance, says she is concerned the Energy Department has decided to conduct the preliminary studies without benefit of public input.

"We are wishing that they (the Energy Department) would do something official, otherwise we won't have any idea whether the things that we think need to be looked at will be included in the study."

"We think it is essential to look at all three potential sites before any final decisions are made," she added.

Adam Klize, a House Armed Services Committee staff aide, said Friday that congressional hearings on the NPR will not begin until late February, and he was unsure whether funding for the study would be approved at that time.

"There might be a decision not to make a decision," he said.

Lance Salladay, Meander Point Homeowners Association lawyer, says, "We have a tumor in the Snake River Canyon."

Lawyers talk in IFF dispute

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The dispute over Idaho Frozen Foods' waste disposal ponds remains far from being resolved, but at least the parties were talking during a meeting before Twin Falls County Commissioners Friday.

Although the company and the Meander Point Homeowners Association failed to agree, the discussion came fairly close to being "free and robust" exchange of views Deputy County Prosecutor Dennis Voorhees had hoped for earlier in the week.

"Afterwards, Voorhees said he was particularly pleased Lance Salladay, a Boise attorney who represents the homeowners group, had offered fairly clear proposals as to how to resolve the matter."

In a surprise move, Commissioner Judy Felton issued a statement that she would remove herself from deliberations, because her husband's law firm represents the city of Twin Falls in the suit over the city sewer plant that peripherally involves IFF.

The dispute concerns the company's waste ponds near the confluence of the Snake River and Rock Creek, which were built after the county commissioners issued the company a permit in 1962.

When the homeowners appealed the decision to Fourth District Court, Judge Robert Rowlett ruled the county had violated its own zoning ordinance.

On Friday, Salladay said in the past, the county has been more inclined to speed the IFF project through the regulatory process without concern for the legal implications of its actions. At the same time, he said he was ready to accept the existence of the facility.

But several issues must be resolved, he said. One is the short-term implications of having a major industrial facility operating in apparent violation of the county zoning ordinance, a misdemeanor which could carry a fine of $300 per day, he said.

Another is the future of the canyon. If attempts are made to squeeze the IFF facility within the zoning ordinance, he said, these might allow future industrial sites there as well.

He argued the commissioners should be concerned "not about what we can do for Idaho Frozen Foods today, but what we can do for the county tomorrow." There must be areas of the county other than the Snake River Canyon that are suitable for waste treatment, he said.

Robertson countered by saying that, in the light of the court ruling, the county had a rezoning problem on its hands.

He explained how the county could allow agriculturally-related industries to locate in its agricultural and outdoor recreation zones after getting a conditional use permit.

"The whole exercise of zoning appears to me to be a balancing of economic interests," he said. A compromise can be worked out between the need for such industry and the need to protect scenic and recreational values, he said.

The two lawyers disagreed on a number of issues.

Among these was the compatibility of an industrial facility with the recreational use of the county's canyons.

Salladay said waste disposal and recreation are about as diametrically opposed as possible.

Once you use a site for waste disposal, it's gone for any other purpose."

Robertson, however, cited Rock Creek Park and the Canyon Springs Golf Course as examples of recreational sites coexisting with industrial plants.

Because of new law School studies later schedule

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Twin Falls School Board will consider postponing opening school until after the County Fair next year.

Although a calendar committee has not yet formed, the board says a later start could eliminate possible problems created by the 90 percent attendance rule. The State Board of Education will not permit students who have missed more than 10 percent of class time for any reason to receive credit for that class next year.

Four-H leaders told the board at the monthly meeting Tuesday night that club members jeopardized to miss some school scheduled during the week of the fair to receive the full benefit of their work in 4-H.

Twin Falls High School teacher and 4-H leader Eleanor Burkhardt told the board all students would benefit if school was postponed until after Labor Day week.

"It's chaotic. We have to move very slowly. Those that are at school are so squirrely, we can't teach. Others are half asleep because they were at the fair the night before."

Board member Gene Champlin said he wants starting school a week later, in part because students have taken unfair advantage of excused absences for the fair.

"They don't have to be there all day," he said.

At the Feb. 14 meeting, board members will hear from other leaders of community and extracurricular activities that conflict with school time. They may then draft a policy naming some activities exempt from the 90 percent ruling due to "extraordinary circumstances," says superintendent Gary Piller.

In other business at the Tuesday board meeting:

- The board granted early retirement to Delores Dudley, a teacher for 18 years at Twin Falls High School. Until becoming ill this summer, she served as head of the high school English department and was named teacher of the year by students.
- "You know she has to be special when an English teacher gets a standing ovation in an assembly," board Chairman Bob Knighton said. Other teachers have been contributing sick days to Dudley, Piller said.
- The board agreed to rent a storage building, known as the old highway building, to Campbell Co. for $600 a month. The board will require that the company provide proof of liability insurance.
- A request that the company be given first right of refusal to buy the building in April was denied.

Repairs worry city with cracking roof

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

WENDELL—The main truss supporting the roof of City Hall is seriously cracked and needs to be replaced.

At the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday, Charlie Doty, the city superintendent, said this deteriorating support beam is cracking ceiling and wall plaster in the building.

"The truss looks to me like it's kind of hucked," Doty said. "I think it's giving away."

To replace the beam, he added, will be a major project because the huge truss supports all the ceiling joists. A new truss would have to be installed through a removed gable and a hole in the roof.

The Council members said the damage may have been caused by the earthquake last October.

Doty said he first noticed the crack last month while he and the city crew were lowering the ceiling of the gymnasium and remodeling the police room at City Hall.

City Clerk June Holm said she recently became more aware of the cracks while inspecting smoke-damage caused by the City Hall's coal furnace.

An elbow-pipe joint on the furnace apparently came loose, she explained, covering the entire hall—including the library and city offices—with a blanket of soot on Jan. 1.

"When I came here (Jan. 2) the whole building was filled with smoke," Holm said.

During subsequent cleaning, the clerk said, she removed and growing cracks were observed on the ceilings.

ISU offering telecourses College credit via television

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Some Magic Valley residents will start to earn a little college credit today without ever leaving the easy chair parked in front of their televisions.

Today marks the start of Idaho State University telecourses. The school has tried to offer classes by television before, but without much success, says Marjorie Slotten, coordinator of the ISU Resident Center in Twin Falls.

However, the university has been enticed to rejoin the state program after other Idaho schools showed a trend toward growing enrollment in television courses.

"It's just starting to roll in Idaho after three years of trying," says Myron Tisdell, program manager for the state public broadcasting system.

He says 18,000 people across the state watch the courses offered for credit, even though they do not receive credit for the classes. Enrollment in the courses has risen from about 15 students in each course three years ago to about 30 this year, says Tisdell.

Students earn credit for the classes by watching two half-hour programs aired back-to-back every weekend on public television stations in Idaho. Most are shown again later in the week for students who missed the weekend show or want to brush up on some of the finer points, Tisdell says.

"If papers or other homework are required, the students mail them to the professor, Tisdell says. In return, the professor mails tests to the students.

"It's no different than any other open-book course," says Tisdell.

Fees for the courses vary, but most include the price of a textbook which is mailed to the students. Besides the ISU courses, Boise State University and Lewis and Clark State College classes also are shown on KAAD, Channel 4 for most Magic Valley residents.

Residents in the Burley and Rupert area can see classes from all three universities on Channel 10.

Registration for the ISU classes has been low so far, says Slotten. But she believes many prospective college students are waiting to see the program before signing up.

Tisdell says Magic Valley residents can choose from eight lower-division classes, all starting this weekend:

- Understanding Human Behavior is a three-credit psychology class offered by ISU. It shows at 11 a.m. Saturdays and costs $165 or $50 for senior citizens.

• American, The Second Century is a three-credit history course offered by ISU. It airs at 10 a.m. Saturdays and costs $165 or $50 for senior citizens.

• Personal Finance and Money Management is being offered by ISU for two business department credits. Cost is $97 and it airs Saturdays noon.

• A Computer Program gives students an introduction to computers for $120. LSCS will give students three credits for the class airing Saturdays at 4:30 p.m.

• Focus on Society offers an introduction to sociology by LSCS for three credits. It airs Saturdays at 1 p.m. and costs $120.

• Humanities Through the Arts airs Sundays at 1 p.m. BSU offers the course for $97 and gives two credits for the class.

• The New Literacy is another computer orientation course offered by ISU for $97. It airs Saturdays at 2 p.m. and two credits are offered.

• Oceanus is a biology course offered by BSU for $97. It airs Sundays at 3 p.m.

It's tough to give money away

By LISA DAYLEY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT—Three years ago the federal government offered the north side of Rupert a $1.5 million block grant—but would you believe the city now is having a difficult time "giving the money away," says Rupert Mayor Bill Whitton.

The grant, to be distributed over a three-year period of $500,000 each year, was awarded by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. The money was specifically to go toward upgrading and improving housing in the older section of the city.

As the third year of the grant begins, Whitton says giving the money away has not been all that easy.

"The feeling in the target neighborhood is that the municipality's obligation is to provide streets, water and similar services. Land owners would rather see the funds spent in this manner. They want to improve their homes themselves."

"I've toured the neighborhood several times and have seen a major face-lifting of the area. Those residents saw that the city cared and got the initiative to improve

Bill Whitton

Handles improvement grant

Whitton.

He said any homeowners who are accepted into the program and deemed able to return the money to the government will be charged from 1 to 3 percent interest.

"Whitton said to be considered, individuals are required to live in their homes for at least five years. If the house is sold before then, the occupants must pay the money back," he said.

Because the city is only spending "nickels and dimes when there are dollars so spend," Whitton says he approves and the Idaho Division of Economic and Community Affairs, which administers federal grants, about transferring $98,000 of the grant money to the water department. But the proposal was rejected due to the nature of the grant, he said.

Whitton said the grant was meant solely for the residents on the north side of Rupert, and that his proposal would have helped all of Rupert and not just one specific section.

The mayor says he plans to launch another campaign to encourage the residents of that section of Rupert to use the available funds for the improvement of their neighborhood.

Cause remains unknown

Night fire damages business

EDEN — Jerome County officers continued Friday to seek the cause of a fire that resulted in an estimated $60,000 to an Eden business Wednesday night.

The fire, reported at 8 p.m. Wednesday, destroyed the Certified Welders and Manufacturing Co. building and its contents.

Jerome County Deputy Sheriff Ray Clark said investigation determined the fire appeared to have started in the northwest corner of the building and spread through the entire structure before it could be controlled.

Clark and Deputy Jeff Poole of the Jerome County east end were assisted by Sheriff Eliza Hall and Chief Deputy Larry Webb in probing the remains of the business in an attempt to pinpoint the cause.

They said the northwest portion of the building contained the electrical supply box for the entire building and also a heating stove. A quantity of rubber tires was stored in the same area, Clark said, and apparently contributed to the rapid spread of the flames.

By the time the Eden Volunteer

Fire Department arrived, the building was engulfed with flames and could not be saved. Destroyed along with the structure were a hay truck, owned by an unidentified customer, and numerous tools and equipment items.

Owner of the business, Elmer Stephenson, discovered the fire about 8 p.m. and summoned firemen.

The building, about 40 by 80 feet in size, is located on Main Street, which is also State Highway 25. Stephenson told officers he had only liability insurance on the business.

Telephone company folding

BURLEY (AP) — Dial International, a discount long-distance telephone company serving southern Idaho, will discontinue service effective Jan. 15, after a court suit by subscribers.

The letter says subscribers will be sent a final bill or a refund form within 30 days after service is cut off. Dial International, which is owned by Rick Montoya of Burley, promises to make good on all its debts, said Trish Fawcett, who works for Montoya's "Rick's Answering Service" in Burley.

Mountain Bell Telephone spokesman Steve Guerber said his company made considerable concessions in determining the long-distance rates offered to Montoya. And Guerber said Mountain Bell did not require the deposit in full.

"He simply could have gotten a bank to guarantee the rest," Guerber said.

Dial International was formed in last summer. Fawcett said, and advertised itself as, "the lowest-cost long distance phone service in Idaho." It currently has 1,500 to 2,000 subscribers, Fawcett said.

"Rick feels like he was hassled by Mountain Bell, and he didn't want to pursue it (the long distance business) anymore," Fawcett said. "They (Mountain Bell) wanted a $6,000 deposit for each long distance line, and Rick felt that was a little unreasonable."

The company operates by leasing WATS lines from Mountain Bell, then "sub-leasing" them, as it were, to consumers.

Deposit rates set by the Idaho Public Utilities Commission, but Mountain Bell can, on the basis of credit references, adjust those rates. According to Guerber, Mountain Bell took into account Montoya's past credit rating and lowered its deposit requirements "considerably."

"He's had an answering service in Burley for six years, and he felt his credit should have been good enough that his deposit would not have been so large," she said.

Heyburn woman dies after crash

HEYBURN — A Heyburn woman died Friday in Salt Lake City of injuries suffered in a two-car accident near Heyburn Sunday afternoon.

Minidoka County Coroner John Fisher said Yerna Robertson, 23, of Heyburn, died Friday afternoon in the Salt Lake City hospital. She was taken Sunday evening. She had remained in critical condition since that time.

Fisher said the died of massive head injuries. He said there are no charges pending and no inquest planned.

Mrs. Robertson was a passenger in the car driven by her husband, Kyle Robertson, 31, of Heyburn. She was one of four persons injured when a pickup truck driven by Benjamin Leno, 68, also of Heyburn, struck the Robertson vehicle at the intersection of O and 21st streets in Heyburn.

Investigating officers said Leno apparently drove through a stop sign. According to Heyburn Police Chief Robert Vasquez, Leno was charged with a stop sign violation at the time of the accident investigation. No other charges are contemplated, he said.

Robertson and the couple's son, Clinton Robertson, 2, were taken to Pocatello Regional Medical Center in critical condition Sunday. Pocatello hospital officials reported that Kyle Robertson was out of intensive care unit and in fair condition Friday. They said his son has been dismissed from the hospital.

Leno was hospitalized in Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert and later released.

Transit bus, car collide head-on

SUN VALLEY — A low-speed, head-on collision between a car and a public transit bus Friday injured the driver of the car.

A car driven by Andy Lesher, 17, of Sun Valley, went out of control on a hill on Elkhorn Road and slid into the Ketchum-Sun Valley Transit Authority bus, said Dave Wheeler, a patrolman with the Sun Valley police.

Lesher was taken to Moritz Community Hospital and treated for lacerations caused when his head hit the windshield. One of three passengers on the bus, Delores Bolger, 33, of Los Angeles, complained of a hurt knee, but was not hospitalized.

Lesher was driving downhill on Elkhorn Road in front of Dollar Mountain at about 20 mph when he saw the bus. Wheeler reported, he became frightened, put on his brakes and the car slid into the bus, the officer said.

The bus was nearly stopped when the accident occurred because driver David Wland had seen the car go out of control and was slowing down. The accident happened at 12:15 p.m. Damage to Lesher's car was estimated at $2,000, while the bus damage was estimated at $9,000. Lesher was not charged with any traffic violations, Wheeler said.

The accident occurred at almost the same place as a one-car rollover the previous afternoon.

A four-wheel-drive vehicle driven by Allison Van Lear, 23, of Sun Valley, slid sideways on the ice, hit a snow bank and rolled onto its top.

Van Lear, who was driving at a speed of 20 to 25 mph, was not injured. She also was not cited, but her vehicle was totaled.

Former police chief gets withheld sentence

TWIN FALLS — Former Paul police chief Frank Segovia was given a withheld sentence Friday for admitting that he broke a car window with a rock at a Hansen bar on Nov. 7.

Fifth District Magistrate Judge R. Michael Redman withheld the sentence for six months, with the stipulation that the 33-year-old Segovia keep his record clean.

Segovia will return to court after that period and could ask that the charge be dismissed, according to court records. Redman also ordered Segovia to pay court costs.

Segovia had been charged earlier with attempting to choke 37-year-old Eleanor Tolman of Paul at the Hansen bar. But, the Twin Falls County prosecutor's office amended the charge Thursday to malicious destruction because of some trouble with witnesses.

According to the new complaint filed with the court, Segovia broke Tolman's window. He pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charge.

At the Friday hearing, Segovia's lawyer Robert Nielsen of Rupert had requested a withheld sentence. The Twin Falls County prosecutor's office was not represented at the proceeding.

Segovia had resigned as Paul police chief because of the original charge.

Another area of difference was the effectiveness of the conditional use permits.

Robertson said he believed a conditional use system could work because he had faith local government could test for "appropriateness" and could be flexible.

Allowing one company a conditional use permit does not set a precedent for any other, he said. Each case may be considered on its own merits.

But Salladay said conditional use systems are weak, because they rely on the honorableness of the permit holder and the willingness of the governing body to enforce its agreement.

Such a system can be appropriate in a residential or commercial setting, he said, but not in a cases of waste disposal, where it is impossible to predict all the problems that can arise.

"A creative attorney can find any number of loopholes to circumvent the conditional use process," he also said.

In the end, though, Salladay and Robertson appeared to agree a conditional use system could be the key to solving the immediate problem of what to do with the IFF waste ponds.

Salladay said the primary condition should be that the system not expand any further. He also said the homeowners would like the system to be closed from June 1 to mid-August, the peak or season.

Robertson said the key could be landscaping.

Salladay raised the idea of a "one-day" zoning ordinance that would open a window through which the IFF system could pass, and then close, forbidding all others.

Methodist reorganization adds new category of ordination

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United Methodist Church, the nation's second largest Protestant denomination, is considering a radical reorganization of its ministry to create a new category of ordination — the "permanently licensed" minister.

The board is scheduled to meet and act on the proposal Oct. 15-16 and, as expected, it approves the report, the recommendation will go to the General Conference next May in Baltimore.

Methodist rethinking of the concept of ordination, generally understood as the process by which people are called to a particular or specialized ministry within the life of the church, is part of a wider movement throughout both the Protestant and Roman Catholic churches that is re-emphasizing the role of the laity and lay church professionals.

Historically, ordination has generally been reserved for those who perform the pastoral and liturgical functions of a church, especially the sacramental ministry of presiding at baptism and Holy Communion.

At present, the majority of (lay) diaconal ministers are women," according to Rosalie Bentzinger, the top staff person of the Division of Diaconal Ministry of the Board of Higher Education and Ministry, and they exist in "a limbo of sorts," regarded neither as clergy or laity.

has taken the form of what has been considered "women's work" and, therefore, (is) not valued," she asked.

Superintendent decries fundamentalists' role

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion writer

Efforts by fundamentalists to return state-mandated prayer to the public schools, make "creation science" a part of school curricula, and censor textbooks used in the classroom are endangering already legal opportunities to teach about religion, according to a New York school superintendent.

1983 and 1983 decisions banning state-sponsored prayer and Bible reading, have been pushing a variety of proposals to return religion to the public schools.

Under the proposal, the new order of deacons and the elder would be equal while performing slightly different functions.

Under the proposal there would be few changes in the current definition of the elder or clergy.

Representatives of the Division of Ordained Ministry, one of three divisions within the board, voted against the proposal and have said they will file a minority report which favors continuing the office of deacon as a non-ordained transitional step

What's what

Those who know their snakes say no asp is lived in Egypt during Cleopatra's time. They say what she probably held against her bosom - if any snake be included on that roster - was the Egyptian cobra, which kills quickly and painlessly.

"Women are pictures, men are problems," said Oscar Wilde. "If you want to know what a woman really means, look at her, don't listen to her."

Insurance underwriters list the Hollywood stunt athletes as better risks than firemen or police officers. Evidently, the stunters necessarily calculate the dangers more exactly, and defend themselves more carefully against same. For example, one of the top fall guys recently was quoted: "I don't know any of us who'd drive when drunk. That's crazy." Don't know what to make of that line. Shrug.

RED HAIR
Oddsmakers calculate everything; i.e., chances are one in 19 you've got red hair.

If Alexander Hamilton had had his way, the name of this country would be "The United States of America." Singular.

Under the law of Maine, buildings made of round logs are tax exempt.

In Ethiopia, "A" is the 13th letter of the alphabet.

TRAPS
Q. What's the difference between a "pitfall" and a "deadfall"?
A. Pitfall, a hole in the ground with a cover camouflaged so unwary prey might walk into it. Deadfall, a trap rigged to let something heavy, such as a log, fall on the victim who trips the mechanism. Might add, some scholars contend mankind might not have survived without these two earliest sorts of traps.

Dueling is only legal in Uruguay if both participants are registered blood donors.

In Vermont, remember, it's illegal to paint your horse.

High court ponders hypnosis

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has been urged to make a milestone ruling on whether prosecutors can rely on testimony from hypnotized witnesses.

But Solicitor General Lynn Thomas urged the court Friday to sidestep that issue, because there's plenty of evidence and testimony to convict Randall Bainbridge in the robbery and killing of Dixie Wilson.

laminated" by planted suggestions.

Mrs. Wilson, an attendant at a Garden City gas station, was stabbed and shot to death and sexually molested.

Two Boise men, Bainbridge and Lacey Sivak, were convicted of the crime in separate trials. Bainbridge was ordered to serve the rest of his life in prison with no possibility of parole. Sivak is under a death sentence.

Because the prosecution dwelled so much on the bad character of the defendant and the good reputation of the victim, it prejudiced the jury and it was not a fair case.

Because the judge improperly admitted a statement from Bainbridge to police officers, after the man asked to see his probation officer first.

Because the trial wasn't moved elsewhere to offset massive pre-trial publicity.

The Supreme Court took under advisement an appeal filed by Bainbridge over his conviction and fixed term of life imprisonment in the case.

His attorney, Stewart Morris, argued that testimony from hypnotized witnesses should be thrown out, because it could have been "con-

Thomas urged the court against trying to lay down guidelines for prosecutors. He said hypnosis is not an exact science, and the court could run into "potentially serious problems" on the issue.

Morris also urged the court to overturn the conviction.

"And because the sentence was excessive."

Thomas said Bainbridge's own testimony placed him at the scene of the crime and his statements to other witnesses indicated he and Sivak intended to pull the robbery.

Mormon leaders to attend funeral

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Mormon Church leaders will be among the speakers at the Monday funeral of Mark E. Petersen, who was second in line to succeed the Spencer W. Kimball as the church's president.

Petersen, 83, died late Wednesday of complications related to cancer. He was a member of the 12th Council of Twelve Apostles for almost 40 years. The services will be held at noon in the church's Salt Lake Tabernacle on Temple Square here.

President Gordon B. Hinckley, second counselor to Kimball, will conduct the funeral and will be among the speakers, church officials said.

Ezra Taft Benson, president of the Council, also will speak. Benson, first in line to succeed Kimball at his death, is a former U.S. secretary of agriculture.

Boyd K. Packer, and Thomas S. Monson, also of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, are scheduled to speak. The invocation will be delivered by Howard W. Hunter, a member of the council, and the benediction by Marvin J. Ashton, also a council member.

Burial will be in the Salt Lake City Cemetery following dedication of the grave site by Elder James E. Faust of the Council of the Twelve.

A church spokeswoman said she had received no word on whether Kimball, who has been ill for some time and rarely leaves his apartment, will attend the funeral.

Petersen had had cancer for some time, but had entered Cottonwood Hospital in the Salt Lake City suburb of Murray just a week ago, church spokesman Don LeFevre said.

County jail 'dangerous'

BOISE (AP) — Two attorneys who claim the Ada County jail is "extraordinarily dangerous" for juveniles want a federal judge to ban further incarceration of youths there unless they are charged with violent crimes.

Of the 666 juveniles held in the Boise jail from January 1981 through last March, only 2 percent were charged with violent crimes and should have been jailed, the attorneys said in briefs submitted to U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols Thursday.

"There is a strong possibility that those confined in the jail will suffer irreparable injury," attorneys Bill Mauk of Boise and Elizabeth Jameson of the San Francisco-based Youth Law Center said in their briefs.

Mauk and his Jameson want a preliminary injunction banning the jailing of juveniles.

The request is part of a $150,000 class-action suit filed last year against Ada County Sheriff E.C. "Chubby" Petersen.

Both Yellen and Petersen were 17 when they were jailed.

The suit also seeks to prevent further juvenile jailings, which Mauk said still are occurring.

In the documents filed Thursday, Mauk and Ms. Jameson said jail officials provide inadequate monitoring and supervision of youths. Medical and psychological services are poor, and written jail policies conflict with actual practices, the attorneys said.

Most of the juveniles incarcerated at the jail could be detained in their own homes, group foster homes or shelter homes, the lawyers said.

Consultants the attorneys contacted to examine the jail found "shocking deficiencies" in jail operations, including dangerous cell conditions.

Non-regional approach taken for redistricting

BOISE (AP) — Although the guidelines are murky, a special legislative committee set out Friday in search of a new Idaho redistricting plan that will meet federal requirements without violating the state constitution.

"We have quite a responsibility," Sen. Mark Ricks, R-Reburg, co-chairman, told the panel at its opening session.

"Whatever we do, it's going to have an impact on somebody." The panel of eight Republicans and six Democrats was appointed earlier this week.

The committee opted for a non-regional approach to its work.

The panel did not act on a suggestion by Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, for four subcommittees representing northern, central, southern, and eastern Idaho.

"I think that's where we got into trouble last time," said Rep. James Staibach, D-Sandpoint. "I think we ought to just go as a group."

"I really think that's the only way we're going to come together," said Ricks.

The Idaho Supreme Court last week threw out Idaho's 1982 redistricting law because it violates the state constitution by dividing counties to create legislative districts.

If the Legislature and Gov. John Evans don't get a new law enacted, this year's elections will be held under a plan ordered by 1st District Judge Dar Cogswell.

That plan enlarges the Legislature from 105 to 125 members, and creates floating districts covering large areas.

Toxic waste rules proposed

BOISE (AP) — As a special committee firmed up recommendations for strengthening hazardous waste regulations, one lawmaker urged the state to learn from past problems.

The committee, created after violations were discovered at an Owyhee County hazardous waste site, came up with about 20 suggestions it will ask various standing committees in the House and Senate to consider for possible legislation.

The committee will meet within a week to review the final list.

Sen. Terry Reilly, D-Nampa, a committee member, said the time was right to look back at the events of the past year.

Board seeks mining, forest inspectors

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
 Times-News Capital Bureau

BOISE — Idaho is passing up the opportunity to supplement state tax dollars with timber-sale money because it undercuts the state's Department of Lands, according to members of the State Land Board.

In a special meeting between the Legislature's Joint Finance and Appropriations Committee and the land board, Attorney General Jim Jones, a member of the board, said the state has been unable to sell its maximum allowable cut of timber during the past two years because of inadequate funding for the department.

"It's kind of like the pump. You've got to put some money in to get some out," he said.

Jones says the state's Public School Endowment Fund lost nearly $3.4 million in foregone revenue last year because insufficient supervision caused a timber harvest at below the maximum cut level of 34 million board feet.

Additionally, the state's general fund lost over $170,000 in interest that could have been earned above the costs for additional state forested, he says.

"For every one dollar spent, the endowment fund gets $13," Jones says.

The land board's meeting with the budget-setting committee is a first, according to Senate Finance Committee Chairman Dave Little, R-Emmett.

"It's the first time the land board itself just sat down with us. Usually it's the department director," Little says.

But while Little appreciates the contact with the land board, he's not sold on their methods.

"We're not so sure more timber cruisers or foresters is the answer. I feel there could be more efficient practices instituted," he said. And he doesn't think the land board's request for more mine inspectors is fully justified, either.

"We've got so darned many inspectors out there. The woods are full of inspectors. We need some way to coordinate them," he says.

Jones says additional mine inspectors are needed to perform the inspections required by law and to protect the state from being sued for liability for environmental damage caused by improper mining practices that might have been detected with proper inspection.

Jones says the land board wants funding for two additional mine inspectors. The state presently employs only one person in that capacity, he says.

Little says representatives of the mining industry should appear before the committee if the issue becomes a question of funding additional inspectors or installing new mining permits.

The committee also queried land board members on the state's ownership of grazing lands and on its unpaid bills with the federal government for fire protection.

Little says the state should sell its grazing lands and invest the proceeds — an action that would produce more income than the present administration of those lands: He says the cost of administering grazing permits and of protecting against range fires is almost as much as the state receives in grazing fees.

He said the state owes the federal government $273,000 for past fire service on state lands and will have to pay another $140,000 for a fire protection contract for the fiscal year that begins July 1.

Tough Tigers can't contain No. 1 Trojans

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

JEROME — It was that riveting kind of game where each trip downcourt appeared crucial and players never smiled.

Smiles came in the end, though, and they belonged to Rigby. Frothing worthy of their No. 1 A-2 ranking, the Trojans weathered 32 minutes of ceaseless Jerome effort Friday night and defeated the Tigers, 60-52, in a Cross State Conference boys' basketball game.

So hard did the Tigers fight that they earned a 23-26 halftime lead. But Rigby survived, scoring 10 straight points early in the third quarter to gain the first sizeable lead either team had held.

Of course, Jerome remained undaunted and furiously narrowed the difference to two early in the final period. And again Rigby responded effectively, this time by tallying eight of the next nine points. The Tigers didn't stop baffling after that, but they never came closer than seven.

The weapons of the Trojans' arsenal that Jerome Coach Ben Allen recognized as most destructive — their high-powered offense and their press — ultimately made the difference as Rigby gained its 10th victory in 11 games. Jerome fell to 7-4.

"We started getting turnovers off the press; we got a little lead, and that helped us go," Rigby Coach Elliot Anderson said. "I thought we ran our offense better in the second half, except when we saw (Gary) Hulsey — we kind of went spooky then."

If Hulsey, Jerome's monstrous 6-5 center, was spooky in limiting Rigby's 6-6 Todd Peterson to two first-half points and 18 overall (four after matters were decided), then the Trojans' instant shift from defensive to dominance was downright frightening.

It began after Troy Prairie opened the third quarter by following in a missed shot to give the Tigers their biggest lead, 31-28. But Troy Shippen's two baskets, a bomb with 6:55 to go and a layin after stealing the ensuing in-bounds pass, put Rigby within one.

After Shippen's second bucket, Jerome broke Rigby's press and found Hulsey wide open. But his ferocious attempt at a slam dunk went off the back rim, the ball caroming all the way to halfcourt and out of bounds.

Granted this break, the Trojans completed their surge on Preston Berry's layin, Peterson's turnaround fadeaway jumper and Shippen's layup after another steal at 5:33 — 10 points in less than a minute-and-a-half for a 36-31 Rigby lead.

The Tigers, who had played mostly zone defenses in the first half, were in a man-to-man throughout Rigby's rally. Allen had felt that Rigby would adjust its offense at halftime to better attack Jerome's zone, but...

"The kids worried so much about the couple of turnovers they made that they got beat in man," said Allen, who also cited Rigby's sudden supporting press. "They came out and were very, very well prepared for our anti-press. We came out and worried about other things because their press didn't hurt us in the first half."

Ron Farnsworth, who led all scorers with 17 points, sustained Jerome for the rest of the quarter by collecting three baskets. But the period ended poorly for the Trojans, as Peterson grabbed Greg Pickett's missed shot and scored at the buzzer, thrusting Rigby ahead 46-37. "That was about the only time I felt the kids let down defensively," Allen said.

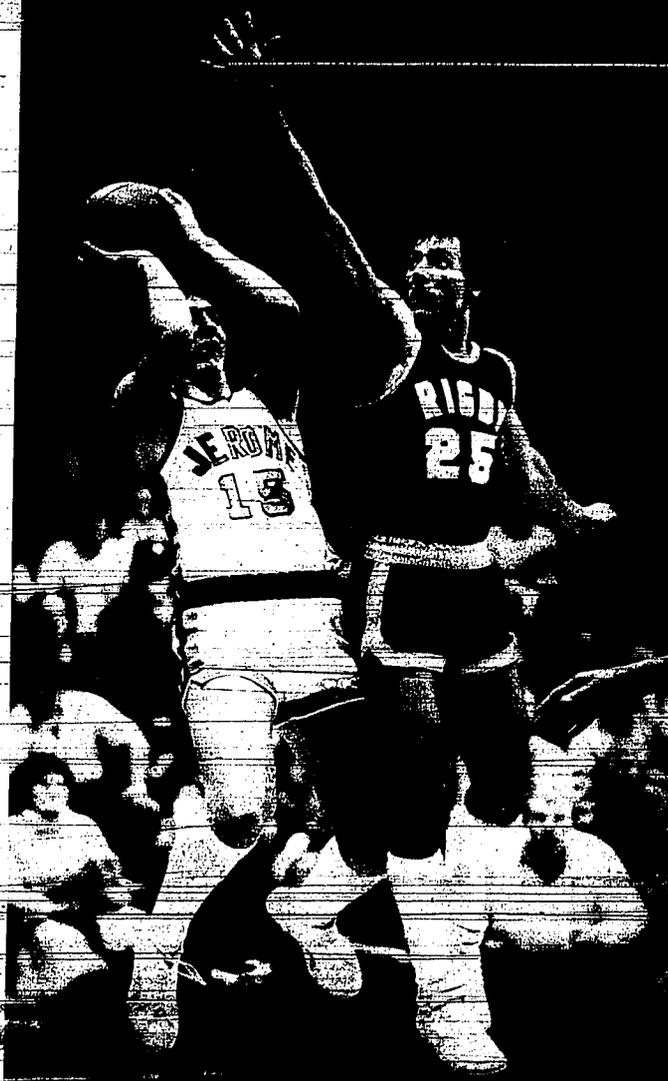

In no way did Jerome let down offensively. Jeff Burnham, whose 13 points included three three-point baskets, started the fourth quarter with a long jumper and a three-bit. Hulsey grabbed a 30-footer at 6:15, bringing the Trojans within 46-44.

But Rigby's Bruce Field calmly sank two jumpers, and after Jerome committed a turnover on a fast break, Peterson drew a foul from Hulsey on a follow shot at 4:20. His two free throws expanded the Trojans' cushion to 52-44.

After Hulsey made the second of two free throws, Shippen grabbed an offensive rebound and made a layin with 3:25 to go for a 54-43 difference. Simultaneously, Hulsey, who had blocked a shot seconds before, grabbed a 19-foot jumper through the force of his extension, sent a resounding "boom" throughout the gymnasium.

Hulsey suffered no injury and the game only briefly. But nothing was brief about the second quarter, last change. "I thought we held our composure pretty well," Anderson said in an understatement.

Jerome's composure wasn't all that bad in the second quarter. See RIGBY on Page B2

Bruins flout IFHS

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls clamped a defensive lid on Idaho Falls' scoring ace Todd Hansen and rolled to a 71-43 Gem State Conference boys' basketball victory here Friday night.

The defense remained sharp over the first three quarters and it was on Idaho Falls' end that the Bruins won the game, although they amassed 71 points.

Offensively, Twin Falls ran in spurts and never had the excess it has displayed in other games.

That assumption was confirmed by Coach John Astorgula who said "it was a little rigid, especially in the second half and fourth quarter. But I felt we played good team defense and the defense helped us score quite a few points on steals and turnovers."

"The other thing that was obvious was that Bruin scoring ace Andy Toolson was struggling, not showing the flow he's had in previous outings. That, too, along with the reason, became known after the game."

Toolson's "inconsistency" in attending Utah State, and the Utah squads were on hand Friday night. The result was Toolson's concentration was wavering and he had his poorest scoring night of the season with 12.

"Andy didn't know he was there," Astorgula said, with a broad grin, then added seriously "but Andy played well defensively. We had him on Hansen man-to-man and the others sagging in to help. Hansen came in averaging 22.7 per game and he wound up with 15 — but five of those after I took Andy out for the last six minutes of the fourth quarter. We got two five-point calls on Hansen and just generally played him every well. I thought, Idaho Falls has been beating the teams that were letting Hansen have the ball wherever he wanted it."

That last five minutes of the game happened on the scoreboard and Idaho Falls held a 64 lead. But Darren Stuart hit two field goals, Doug Peterson added another and junior Todd Jones, with his biggest night on the varsity, added two more field goals to send Twin Falls ahead 14-6 at the quarter.

Three minutes into the second period any semblance of a contest was over. Greg Waters opened the quarter with a Tiger field goal before Tolson hit once, Stuart twice — one a three-pointer — and Peterson scored off the glass to make it 25-10.

Idaho Falls clipped back to within 10 points at 29-19 but again Twin Falls

Torrid Minico blows away Bonneville

By SCOTT TUDEHOPE
Times-News writer

RUPERT — A common cry from coaches is that when facing a clearly inferior club, the better basketball team relaxes, lowering itself to its opponent's level.

That didn't materialize Friday night, as the Spartans out-rebounded, out-buzzed, and in short, out-played Bonneville.

And yes, Minico outscored the Beas as well, winning the league contest 74-53.

Leading the Spartans' barrage was senior center-forward Brad Croft, who collected 23 points and six rebounds.

Croft started the scoring with a three-point combination, burning Rod Halford underneath on a short turnaround jumper. Fellow senior

Kimberly, Declo eke out Canyon cliffhangers — B2

Clint Williams added another field goal and with Minico's ferocious defense in place, the Spartans raced to an 11-point lead.

While Croft did his stuff underneath, guard Carl Bailey found his mark just inches outside the three-point line. Bailey popped in a trio of three-pointers, expanding the margin to 14 seconds into the second period.

Bonneville's turnover problems, thanks in large part to tight Minico defense, kept coming back to haunt the visitors.

Third-period play was the most profitable for Minico. Picking up 25 points, the Bonneville 16, Minico Coach Craig Dexter substituted an entire squad — allowing seven of his players to score. That confidence in his bench, he said, makes a difference.

"If there was one thing I'd like to emphasize after tonight, it was our balance," said Dexter. "Our depth is what impressed me."

Coasting into the final period with a 31-point lead, Minico went into a passing game to chew some time off the clock. Bonneville clipped away at the deficit, but even Traoy-Walker's baseline work couldn't help Bonneville.

The Spartans move to 7-1 for the season and 4-0 in league play. Bonneville drops to 3-6 overall and 1-2 in the conference.

In the junior varsity preliminary, Bonneville prevented a sweep, winning 54-43. Shawn Sifers led with 15 points.

Castelford wins MVC showdown in Malta

MALTA — The Castelford Wolves pulled away in the closing quarter to post a 59-45 decision over the Raft River Trojans Friday night in a Magic Valley Conference boys' basketball showdown.

After deadlocking at 16 in the first quarter, Raft River, riding the scoring of Jax Heaton, took the lead and stayed there until cold shooting overtook both squads in the third period. Raft River managed just five points in that quarter but it was until Mark Tverdy scored with 32 seconds that Castelford took the lead. The Wolves then turned two pass in-ceptions into quick buckets to get their fast break going and Raft River couldn't challenge again.

The victory improved the No. 3-ranked Wolves' season record to 9-2, 3-0 in conference. Raft River is now 5-6 for the season and 3-2 in conference.

Castelford won the preliminary.

Don't look for N. Arizona to abandon the Big Sky soon

Although the rumor mill is grinding out grist of a change in the Big Sky Conference, Commissioner Ron Stephenson maintains they can be no more than rumors.

Once again the report is that Northern Arizona University is considered a good bet to leave the alignment for a couple of reasons. The first being the retirement of Hank Anderson as athletic director. Anderson, then a coach at Gonzaga University in Spokane, was one of the co-founders of the Big Sky, which at that time was put together for the purpose of gaining an automatic bid to the NCAA basketball playoffs.

Anderson moved on to University of Montana and then became athletic director at NAU several years ago.

Because NAU sits on the extreme south end of the league, Anderson's retirement obviously has given rise to speculation that NAU will bolt the Big Sky and seek more convenient and less expensive travel accommodations.

That — the matter of travel expense — is the other major reason many see NAU leaving.

As an added incentive to speculation, there is the recent wish of Eastern Washington to get into the Big Sky. The Washington school plans to every Big Sky team except Nevada Reno in football this year and is pretty much an assurance on Big Sky teams' pre-conference basketball schedules.

Since eight is the ideal number for a conference, the speculation then led to the point that NAU would get out and Eastern Washington would get in — especially since Eastern already was firmly placed on most Big Sky football schedules.

"I really haven't heard any talk about that for the past couple of years," Stephenson said when asked about the rumors. "In fact, I haven't heard since I became commissioner. Prior to that it was a rumor that came up every once in a while."

"I suppose it still could happen, but having to work with the people in the NAU athletic department and with the NAU president, I think they are pretty well convinced now that regardless of where they go they will have a big traveling budget," said the commissioner.

"The question is where would they go?" he continued. "If they joined the several colleges in Texas they wouldn't gain anything in travel. The smaller schools in California aren't going to let them in because it would increase their travel.

"When travel and accommodations began going up during the inflation of a few years ago, a lot of people started looking around for other places to go that would save them money. But I think now, everyone is pretty well satisfied that if you are going to have an intercollegiate program in the West, you are going to travel."

"People really don't understand our travel in the west," the commissioner continued. "The year Idaho State beat Eastern Kentucky for the national football championship, Eastern Kentucky's total season football travel budget was $11,000 — and included the playoffs. A team like Northern Arizona is looking at $30,000 just to fulfill its conference football schedule."

"NAU's membership in the Big Sky doesn't work that great a hardship on the other members," Stephenson said. "Of course, it's a long trip for a team like Idaho or Montana to go to Flagstaff, but they only do that every other year in football and just once in basketball. A lot of them have trips equally as far for non-conference games."

Stephenson said nothing has happened to change his feelings on the matter. He said he's not sure if the league's new members' simply for the sake of expanding.

"But I assume the Eastern Washington situation is part of the reason you may have heard this rumor," he said.

Passing up NFL draft

Courtney close to decision, ISU's Qualls to sign with USFL team

POCATELLO (AP) — Carl Qualls of Idaho State University, drafted by the Jacksonville Bulls in the fifth round, said he will sign a three-year contract with the team today.

Teammates Matt Courtney and Paul Peterson, also drafted by USFL teams, said they hadn't decided what to do.

"It's a three-year deal," Qualls said. "And it has a real big bonus. That's the big thing (bonus), the thing that made me make my decision. With that bonus they're going to give me a real good look."

Qualls said the contract has several incentive clauses.

Courtney said he expected to make a decision today whether to sign with Jacksonville, the team which drafted him in the fourth round, or stay in school and wait for the NFL draft, scheduled for May 1-2.

with the Washington Federals, the USFL team which drafted him in the 19th round, wait for the NFL draft, or consider a possible offer from the Edmonton Eskimos of the Canadian Football League.

The Eskimos own the rights to Peterson but have yet to present a contract offer and Peterson said he doesn't know if they will.

All three players have enrolled for the spring semester at ISU.

A fourth Bengal drafted by a USFL team, tight end Tom O'Neal, is not enrolled. He was a pulled muscle in his left shoulder.

Qualls, who expects to play line backer for the Bulls, said two of his incentive clauses include receiving money for making the Bulls' roster and returning to school.

Qualls said his agent, Wayne Hooper of Oakland, saw six NFL draft reports which said Qualls would probably be a seventh to 11th round draft pick in the NFL.

"I couldn't have picked a better place to go play football," Qualls said. The Bulls begin training camp next week. The USFL season starts in February.

Courtney said he is close to reaching a decision with the Bulls. "I'm considering it seriously. My agent is negotiating. I'll have a decision made this week."

Golden Eagle women top Colorado NW

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Michell Hillland had a final first half appearance and a first half of points in the second Thursday night.

The Mountain Home sophomore hit 10 second-half points to provide the difference as the College of Southern Idaho's women topped Colorado Northwest 72-52.

Hillland hit nine of 10 attempts from the field and also had assist feeds for two more buckets to become the most conspicuous player on the court. But sharing in the spotlight was sophomore Gale Phillips who had a 10-point run to steady the staggering Eagles in the first half. The most consistent — although she missed several close in follow and turn shots — was Frith Widner who scored a game-high 23 points.

Hillland started making her presence felt four minutes into the second half when Coach Lloyd Hardesty gave her a second chance "because she didn't play in the first half — in fact, several of them didn't." But this time Hillland hit a close-in shot, one off the baseline, a nifty hook and then a 15-footer from sidcourt to help the Eagles run into a 15-point lead.

They stretched steadily ahead after that but the final margin equalled their biggest lead of the night.

In the first half CSI fell behind by 9-3 as Gigi Gintz and Julie Good provided most of the scoring. But Phillips came in with about 11 minutes left in the half and immediately hit two field goals. Gintz gave Northwestern a 14-13 lead before Phillips hit twice more. After that the teams traded the lead three times and there were two ties before Widner hit six straight CSI points to shove them ahead to stay.

CSI took a three-point halftime lead and eight more Widner points held them into a 35-28 lead four minutes into the second half. It was at that point that Hillland entered the game and picked up the scoring burden.

Retailers pace major selloff after early rally collapses

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market took its biggest drop of the new year Friday, selling off after an early rally collapsed.

Retailing stocks posted some of the day's most notable losses after the government reported a surprisingly small increase in retail sales for December.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up almost 7 points in early trading, sunk down 9.21 to 1,970.10 by the close. The average finished the week with a net loss of 16.54 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange reached 101.79 million shares, up from 99.41 million Thursday.

An early rally came to an abrupt halt as the Dow Jones industrial average approached the record closing high of 1,927.20 set last Nov. 29. By midday, the stock market seemed to be focusing on the possible negative implications for corporate profits of slower growth in the economy.

In the retailing group, J.C. Penney dropped 1 1/2 to 5 1/2; K mart 3/4 to 32 1/2; Sears Roebuck 1 1/2 to 37 1/2; F.W. Woolworth 1 to 3 1/2, and Federated Department Stores 1 to 5 1/2.

On the other side of the ledger, savings and loan issues were strong with interest rates falling. Financial Corp. of America rose 1/4 to 2 1/2;

Great-Western Financial 1/4 to 2 1/2; and H.F. Ahmanson 1/4 to 2 1/4.

Digital Equipment jumped 3 1/2 to 78 1/2 before trading was halted late in the session. As the market closed the company issued a quarterly earnings estimate that was well above analysts' expectations.

Comdisco lost 1 1/2 to 14 1/2 on top of a 5 1/2-point drop Thursday, when the company said it had lower earnings in its most recent quarter.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials fell 1.02 to 187.94, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was down .73 at 167.62.

The NASDAQ market index for over-the-counter market dropped .78 to 286.85.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Expediency may tip the scales when arguments are nicely balanced." Benjamin Nathan Cardozo.

"The less I have in high cards, the less I bid," brags the man who sees the world through a funnel. He doesn't realize that for every good rule there is always the exception.

The North player who passes South's one no-trump opening needs to kindle his imaginative spirit. With such a worthless hand as dummy, how can SOUTH be expected to win many tricks, leading continuously from his own hand? The luckiest thing that might happen is that South escapes a double.

The practical North makes expedient use of the Stayman convention, intending to pass whatever South bids. Surely, North's hand will be of more help at a trump suit than at one no-trump.

At two diamonds South wins the club ace and ruffs a club in dummy. The heart finesse wins and another club is ruffed in dummy. A spade is led from dummy to East's ace and East exits with a trump. South wins, cashes the spade king and the heart ace and ruffs another club in dummy. South is now out of gas and the defenders take charge. No matter, South already has scored eight tricks and instead of down at least 200,
