If first you fail, try a commission

By MIKE FEINSLBER The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When Ronald Reagan faces a vexing problem, his inclination seems to be to appoint a high-profile, bipartisan commission to look at it and come back, 90 days later or so, with a solution.

Reagan starts test of election tides

ATLANTA — President Reagan, testing reaction to his first political outing of the 1984 campaign season, declared Thursday that "we've come too far, struggled—too—hard, and—accomplished too much to turn back now."

The quick, two-speech trip to Atlanta—about six hours including flying time—was the first one paid for by the Reagan-Bush '84 reelection campaign committee and came three days in advance of Reagan's formal, televised declaration of his political plans for 1984.

The first appearance, at a rally put on by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the Amway Corp., was billed by the sponsors as non-partisan because the chamber does not endorse candidates.

But there could be no doubt the crowd liked Reagan. Assistant Press Secretary Mark Weinberg said 14,200 people jammed into the Omni sports arena and it looked like a "sea of blue."

The president was introduced to ear-piercing screams and yells and a standing ovation that lasted right through the playing of "Ruffles and Flourishes" and "Hail to the Chief." When it died down enough for Reagan to speak, he decried, "If you had done this a few years ago when I was making 'So Time for Borzo' I would still be there."

In the prepared part of his speech, Reagan said, "Together, we have charted a new course since 1980. And because we took those bold steps, I believe America is stronger, more prosperous and more secure today than three years ago."

He was interrupted by applause 42 times, including five standing ovations, during the first speech. The longest came when he called for voluntary prayer in public schools. But he saved his most overtly political remarks for a session an hour later with the Southern Republican Leadership Conference, which included GOP officeholders, candidates, and activists from 14 Southern states.

The Republican leaders greeted Reagan with the chant, "Four More in '84." "I'll take that under consideration," said Reagan, using the occasion to poke fun at the eight-man Democratic field and their recent televised debate in New Hampshire.

"There were so many candidates on the platform there were not enough promises to go around," he said.

President's chopper grounded

WASHINGTON (AP) — The helicopter carrying President Reagan was forced to make an emergency landing at a naval base Thursday shortly after taking off from the White House when a red cockpit light warned of possible problems, a White House spokesman said.

Reagan was never in any danger and transferred quickly to another helicopter to continue his trip to Andrews Air Force Base and then on to Atlanta for his first campaign trip of 1984, said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

"When we left the White House this afternoon, shortly after takeoff, the pilot noticed a red warning light in the cockpit indicated possible trouble. We landed at Anacostia Naval Air Station, and the president was switched to another helicopter," said Speakes.

Speakes said he did not know the nature of the problem indicated by the light nor whether the problem might simply be a faulty indicator light.

Administration seeks talks on deficits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Donald T. Regan said Thursday that when a bipartisan commission studies ways to slash the record budget deficit, "nothing is negotiable" except that the administration sees no need for major tax increases or big defense budget cuts.

Congressional Democrats meanwhile were cool to President Reagan's election-year Wednesday night to enter negotiations with a bipartisan delegation from Congress aimed at finding ways to trim the budget deficit by $100 billion over three years.

After an appearance before the congressional Joint Economic Committee, the morning after the president's State of the Union address, Regan told reporters that "everything is on the table" when a deficit-cutting commission meets.

The treasury secretary quickly added that the administration prefers to start the effort by closing tax "loopholes," reducing domestic spending and eliminating waste in government.

Reagan himself said Wednesday night that his goal is "prompt agreement on a bipartisan deficit-reduction plan," but he was adamant in opposing any retreat from his costly military buildup or a major tax boost.

Reagan's first target would be to slash about $100 billion from deficits expected to total in the $600 billion range over the next three years, starting with a projected deficit of $184 billion in the current fiscal year which ends next Sept. 30.

The commission proposal, said Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, senior Democrat on the Senate Budget Committee, is either "a great opportunity or a very good political ploy."

Rep. James Jones, D-Okla., chairman of the House Budget Committee, said he would prefer a House-passed initiative, now awaiting Senate action, that calls for an economic summit meeting of the president and congressional leaders of both parties that would have to draft a deficit-slashing program within 45 days.

Congress losing patience on Marines in Beirut

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an effort to ease growing congressional pressure for pulling U.S. Marines from Lebanon, Secretary of State George P. Shultz shuffled about Capitol Hill Thursday amid warnings from the lawmakers that their patience was wearing very, very thin.

Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., Shultz briefed Democratic and Republican senators about the Lebanon situation.

In the afternoon, he swung over to the House side for another closed session with House members.

at all on what to do," Baker told reporters after his session with Shultz.

Baker said there was "general agreement" that a way had to be found to remove the troops, but no agreement as to how it was to be accomplished.

replacing U.S. troops with a United Nations force, Baker said, "I don't have any problem with that at all, but I'm not ready to propose it."

He said he had "no inherent objection" to U.N. forces taking over the duties of the current multinational force, of which the Marines are a part.

Church school rules argued

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — A commission recommended Thursday that Nebraska abandon most certification requirements for religious schools, saying it could ensure educational standards with annual tests for pupils.

The four-member Christian School Issue Panel, appointed by Gov. Bob Kerrey after a long dispute between state officials and fundamentalists, suggested that church schools be exempted from curriculum and teacher certification requirements if other conditions were met.

Panel members acknowledged the state's responsibility for the quality of education, but said the certification requirements violated religious freedom.

At news conferences, Kerrey called the report a "document of peace" that would build a foundation to resolve the dispute.

"This is an opportunity for us as a people to test how well our representative democracy works," Kerrey said. State officials have fought for years with the Faith Christian School in Louisville, which has defied the teacher certification law and court orders supporting it. Warrants seeking for questioning the Rev. Everett Silvein, who runs the school, and eight others have been outstanding since November.

The fathers of six Faith Christian pupils have been jailed for contempt since Nov. 23 for refusing to answer questions about their role in the school, which has remained open. Another father was released recently after submitting to questioning.

Idaho Power seeking equal treatment

Swan Falls dam, power plant focal point of water rights discussions

The governor and attorney general have accused Idaho Power of trying to gain complete control of the Snake River by quietly removing subordination clauses from existing federal licenses. What is Idaho Power's response?

Idaho Power never has asked to be treated any differently from other water users under Idaho law. Upper Salmon Dam and Shoshone Falls Dam, the two facilities where the governor and attorney general accuse the utility of secretly removing subordination clauses from its water rights in this century. The utility received water rights at those facilities the same way any other person or company obtains water rights under state statutes — by applying for a state water license and by putting the water to beneficial use.

Federal licenses for these dams were not required until the federal government declared the upper Snake River a navigable waterway in the mid-1950s. Idaho Power applied for federal licenses for Upper Salmon and Shoshone in 1959. The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) did not grant licenses until 1979.

When the two licenses were granted, they both contained subordination articles that had been requested by the U.S. Department of the Interior. Within 30 days of receiving the licenses, Idaho Power applied to FERC for removal of the articles because they conflicted with other articles that recognized the state's exclusive authority on water rights. These articles state, "This license shall not be construed as affecting in any way any claim the Licensees may have concerning its water rights acquired pursuant to State Law."

In 1981, FERC issued its decision on the appeal, confirming the principle that the federal license "does not control or affect the parties' water rights or any claims arising therefrom."

The attorney general's charge that Idaho Power developed a strategy in 1979 to tighten its grip on the Snake River because of a Supreme Court decision that didn't occur until late 1982 is erroneous. Idaho Power has made no effort to remove subordination clauses from the Helix Canyon license where subordination was a condition of putting water to use.

The fact state government chose not to involve itself in the process beyond fishing concerns may indicate it too believed Idaho law determines water rights in Idaho. Does anyone in state government seriously argue that any federal agency should have the authority to impose restrictive conditions on a long-established state water right?

Didn't Idaho Power secretly apply for more water rights at Swan Falls in a further effort to tie up the river?

The attorney general's suggestion that Idaho Power practiced deception when it applied for additional water rights at Swan Falls Dam in early 1982 without making a public announcement is also fact basis. The company's intentions to rebuild Swan Falls and double its generating capacity have been well publicized. In order to generate more electricity, the turbines will use additional water rather than spilling or wasting the water. In Idaho, the license and the water permit and that is why the company applied to the Department of Water Resources for the right to use additional water. The department director admits he was fully aware of the application, notice of which was published in local newspapers as required by law.

What about charges that unless Idaho Power's water rights are subordinated, southern Idaho's economy will be harmed because water won't be available for communities, industry or agriculture? The economic study of the Swan Falls Interim Study Committee of the Legislative Council conducted by the University of Idaho, addresses that question at some length. In brief summary, the report says, "We recognize that the present situation where non-municipal and industrial users must secure a water right represents a new cost that must be paid by firms locating or expanding in Idaho. However, similar costs would be faced by firms locating in other western states, and these water costs are generally a small part of the cost of setting up a new business. We argue that non-subordination is not causing water availability problems that will significantly disadvantage Idaho as an industrial location."

In another chapter, the report says subordination of Idaho Power's water rights could result in electric rate increases between 14.7 percent and 52 percent for irrigators and between 4.7 percent and 12.6 percent for all other electricity users, depending on how the costs of lost generation and new irrigation loads were distributed among utility customers. And the report points out, "Idaho has among the lowest electric rates of any state, which contributes to its comparative advantage as an industrial location. Significant rate increases would erode that advantage."

But didn't the Stouffer Food processing plant decide not to locate at Twin Falls in large part because they couldn't have any assurance of a water right at the Twin Falls dam? That's what the attorney general claims.

In Chapter Six of the Legislative Council's economic report, the investigating economists wrote, "A recent experience in Twin Falls where water was cited as one reason why a food processing firm decided to locate in Utah rather than Idaho has focused interest on these issues. In the Twin Falls case it appears that water availability was not the determining factor (a package of water rights had been tentatively secured). The location decision was apparently more influenced by a number of other incentives to locate in Utah, than it was by water."

It should be noted that a cheaper electric rate offered by the Utah city was one of the main incentives offered to Stouffers.

Guest opinion

Larry Taylor

There seems to be an underlying implication in this controversy that Idaho Power has broken its Helix Canyon subordination agreement with the state and now wants to control the river.

The meaning of subordination at Helix Canyon was the preface issue of the Idaho Supreme Court decided in November, 1982. Testimony regarding what Idaho Power, Governor Len Jordan and others said is all part of the record in that case. The Supreme Court decided that Helix Canyon subordination applies only as far up the river as the company's first vested water right, which is at Swan Falls.

What about charges that Idaho Power wants to control development in southern Idaho? Idaho Power wants no more than what it is entitled to under state law. It certainly has no desire to control the Snake River. Nor does it want to be the state's water broker. Again, according to the Legislative Council's economic report, non-competitive water users upstream from Swan Falls are likely to obtain their water from existing consumptive users. Idaho Power is not a consumptive user.

The report suggests improved use of water in agriculture would go long way toward providing major inputs on hydroelectric operations which would drive up electric rates and deter expansion of the state's economy. Foreseeable industrial expansion in southern Idaho would not have a significant impact on water in the Snake River watershed.

The attorney general indicated Idaho Power was mainly trying to look out for its shareholders while fighting subordination.

Idaho Power shareholders would earn virtually the same whether the company's electricity was generated by coal or by water. It is the consumer of electricity who stands to lose if the company's water rights are successfully subordinated.

That is why Idaho Power is determined to see to it that its customers are compensated if there are to be significant new depletions from their hydroelectric system.

Wage law changes would save on costs

Some legislators are calling the issue a "dead horse," but we think the time is right for the Legislature to review and modify the state's Little Davis-Bacon Act, to exempt school construction and other public-funding projects. We also think Gov. John Evans should reconsider his opposition to changing the law.

Under current law, contractors of state publicly funded projects must pay the "prevailing wage," but the law's interpretation means that the wages generally are set at top union scales. There is no discretion for regional or county-by-county variations.

The effect is to add to the costs of public projects. On a project the size of the new Twin Falls elementary school, at $2.5 million, the savings could be several hundred thousand dollars.

Proposals now in the Legislature would exempt projects like the Twin Falls school by allowing prevailing wage to be defined with reference to individual counties.

In effect, it would let contractors lower their costs by using labor at lower, non-union wages. A carpenter, for example, would be paid $13 per hour, instead of the $22-per-hour union rate. The savings over an entire project could be a third of the labor costs.

There are valid arguments on the other side, to be sure. One is that the quality standard of the work needs to be maintained. Another is Evans' argument that the prevailing-wage concept should not be construed to allow cheap labor to flood into the state and remove jobs that ought to go to Idahoans.

But in our view, many Idahoans are not being employed now who could be if the wage concept were adjusted to allow for local variations. That is the idea behind modifying the law.

Senate Minority Leader Kermit Kiebart, we think, is on the right track in trying to modify the law without falling into the pitfalls. We hope legislators and the governor will work with him on finding a solution to a problem that is costing taxpayers a lot of unnecessary money in these tough times.

Arlene may be teaching adults big lesson in 'leadership'

BOSTON — If they ever give a college-board test for students of hypocrisy, I am sure that the teen-agers of Marion Center, Pa., will score way up in the 700s.

Teen-agers are always the great hypocrisy spotters in our culture. But the past few months, they've had a lot of extra practice in this area in rural town.

Ellen Goodman

The central characters of the case that has put Marion Center on the sociological map include 17-year-old Arlene Pfeiffer, her five-month-old daughter Jessica, the school board and the National Honor Society.

Arlene, a high-school senior, was class president for three years, student-council president last year and a member of the honor society since tenth grade.

But in August, she gave birth to Jessica and decided to keep her. In November, Arlene was kicked out of the honor society by her high school. In January, the school board agreed to her removal. Now Arlene is taking her case to the Human Relations Commission and the EEOC.

What is at issue is not her grades — they have remained high — but two other qualities the honor society demands: "leadership and character." The question is whether an unwed mother has lost her "character," whether she would "lead" others in the wrong direction.

It is easy to follow the trail of hypocrisy in this move against Arlene, easy as a multiple-choice questionnaire. To begin with, the school didn't strip Arlene of her honor society epaulets because she had sex but because she "got caught." About 37 percent of the 18-year-old teen-agers in this country have had intercourse. Arlene was judged to have less character than those who didn't get pregnant.

Then too, if Arlene had not had her baby, she would surely have kept her membership. A little less than half of the teen-pregnancies end in abortion. So she was judged to have less character than a girl who chose abortion.

Perhaps it would even have been all right if Arlene had given her baby up for adoption. Or if she had married. No one, for that matter, has accused the character of an unwed teen-age father.

Indeed, it is difficult to identify exactly what piece of Arlene's behavior — sex, pregnancy, motherhood, singleness, none of the above — the school wants to punish. This difficulty speaks to the confusion of the adults in this situation.

It may well be that these adults — teachers, board members — are suffering from simple hypocrisy. Surely the teen-agers in town see it that way. But there may also be a more deeply rooted ambivalence that centers around the word "leadership."

A generation ago, unwed pregnancy produced a shotgun marriage, an illegal abortion, or a six-month stay out of town. A decade ago, a teenager whose teen-ager could be barred altogether from school.

Now those of us who shepherd kids through the high-risk years know that early parenthood is still the surest, most direct route to a diminished future. But we are told that some of our best parents who have kept their babies were inspired by fairy tales of Hollywood love-children.

Many of us now share an underlying anxiety that if we make unwed motherhood appear acceptable, we may make it more possible, and then more likely, if we pin a medal on Arlene Pfeiffer, does she become a role model?

"They said," recalls Arlene Pfeiffer, "that by 'leadership' I might lead others to do it — to get pregnant. But I don't go around saying 'Stand in line and get pregnant.' Nor do girls follow the leader into pregnancy."

For all our anxiety, we have no evidence to prove that lifting a sanction produces a bumper crop of babies. On the contrary, we know that teen-agers don't get pregnant because they want to. Study after study after study has concluded that they simply take chances.

The saga of Arlene Pfeiffer who mothers by night and gathers honor grades by day, who lives at home with parental support and child-care, is an exception. It is largely because of our own failures. We've done a poor job of discouraging early sexual activity. A poor job at getting teen-agers to take more responsibility. A poor job at communicating the real handicaps of early childbearing.

As for Arlene, she is pursuing fairness through all the flak of hypocrisy and ambivalence in Marion Center, Pa. I think she's giving the adults a lesson in "character" and "leadership."

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Letters/ Nation founded under God now taking him out of everything

Bible teaches a better way

I was quite upset on reading the article about the Gideons distributing the Bible to the school kids in Jerome. It was just another incident in a long line that seems to be bent on taking God out of everything.

I do not understand this. This country was founded under God — on our money it says "In God we trust." In a legislative session that began with a prayer, they voted prayer out of the schools.

I remember about some town somewhere in the Midwest, I think that because they put up a nativity scene in the town square or whatever, it was fought against by the ACLU and I think they had to remove it, and wasn't it in Boise that there was a big fuss raised because there was a sign with the 10 commandments on it?

What is this country coming to anyway? Where are we headed? I can understand the necessity of keeping church and state separate, but I surely don't think that our founding fathers meant to separate us from God. God is underdominational as is the Bible. If the girl's father didn't want her to have the Bible she could have handed it back or left it on the desk.

I believe everyone has the right to practice his religion as he wishes, even the so-called "Aryan Church" (which really riles me) but what gets to me is the "Mormon Tears" of this world scream about the rights being violated and they are doing the very thing they bellow about. They step on the rights of Christian people everywhere. I thought in a democratic country that rule is by the majority and voted on. Why should Christians' rights be violated? I think a little more Bible reading might just stop the situation in some places where they have to station a cop in the classroom to protect the teachers from bodily harm. After all, the Bible teaches a better way. Think on it!

When you say things like "Failure of Our Will Has Caused Defeat" (Editorial), Times-News, Jan. 24) you sound like Billy Graham saying we have put God out of the government.

Klansman explains beliefs

Much has been said about the cross lighting that took place on Jan. 15.

We the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan would like this opportunity to lay to rest those misconceptions.

Most people fear those things that they don't understand. We will try in this short space to enlighten you.

The light of the cross as it is lit is a symbol of the Jesus the Christ.

Christ being the light, dispels the darkness.

Jesus said I am the way and the light. (New Testament.) What did Christ mean by this. Jesus the incarnate of the ever-living Yahweh, our Yahweh said "I have come not to destroy the law, but to fulfill." (Webster: to complete.)

The circle that surrounds the cross is the symbol of never-ending life. Those who step out of that circle into the darkness are lost.

Therefore, we as the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan and members of the church, recognize only the authority of Jesus the Christ (our Yahweh) as the only author of law.

Our forefathers recognized his authority, because they took his word and transported it into the law of our land. If one takes the Holy Bible and reads the law given in the first five books of the Bible, you will see the constitution is taken from that law.

The lighting of the cross goes way back in Aryan heritage to the days it was used in Ireland by the people to warn of an enemy that was approaching.

The Klan can be traced back even further. All the way back to the days of King David, when he had the blood clan around him. These people, like his blood, a people of gentle pure seed, make up the circle. This is part of our Christian heritage.

There is no hate involved in lighting the cross. Only love of race. The hate comes from the enemies of Jesus the Christ, for they recognize the warning of the lighted cross.

WASHINGTON — Front-runner Walter F. Mondale outpooled seven campaign rivals combined Thursday, winning 75 Democratic National Convention delegates to a 164-member slate picked by House Democrats.

"This is a spectacular beginning and we're confident he's going to go all the way," Mondale aide Richard Moe said after the party's leadership finished picking the final 54 delegates.

"For the first delegate selection process of the season we could not be more pleased."

Mondale far outdistanced second-place finisher John Glenn, who won 17 delegates in the unofficial count.

Sen. Alan Cranston had 11 delegates, followed by the Rev. Jesse Jackson's seven, all Black House members.

Sen. Gary Hart trailed with five delegates, while former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew had four, and Sen. Ernest Hollings had three.

There were 42 uncommitted delegates selected, and the eighth contender, former Sen. George McGovern, was shut out.

Most of the 54 delegates selected during the day were blacks, women and Hispanics, as the party sought to comply with rules requiring minority representation at the convention. It was the culmination of a well-organized campaign by the Mondale organization, which courted House members over several months. Moe and two other Mondale backers stood outside the closed-door meeting of the party's leaders, just as they and the rest of their team had waited outside a dozen other meetings earlier in the week.

Moe trumpeted the results as an indication that "by an overwhelming margin, he's (Mondale) the one they want to work with as president."

Moe claimed 68 firm delegates, fewer than the 75 in the unofficial count, but said private commitments pushed Mondale's actual strength in the delegation to 99.

"Many of these are going to surface in the next couple of weeks," he said. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. is expected to endorse Mondale, perhaps next week, according to sources. O'Neill himself told reporters this week he might endorse a candidate formally shortly after the full party caucus rallies the 164-member slate next week.

But even as Mondale demonstrated his strength among the party's political leaders, campaign rival Hart said the former vice president was weak with the voters.

"There are not a lot of voters out there who would die for Walter Mondale," the Colorado senator said in an interview with wire service reporters. "There is an enormous political vacuum out there."

Florida executes 66-year-old killer

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Quoting Christ's words on the cross, Florida's oldest death row inmate died in the electric chair Thursday for arranging the killing of a private detective, becoming the third man executed in the state in less than five years.

"The only thing is, 'Forgive them, Father, for in their ignorance they know not what they do,' and that's it," Texas wore the last words of Anthony Antone, 66, heard in a clear voice over a microphone in the death chamber.

He was pronounced dead at 7:08 a.m., seven minutes after the first surge of 2,000 volts coursed through his body. His anonymous executioner, wearing a black hood, received $150 for the job.

Antone was the 12th person executed in the United States since the Supreme Court reinstated capital punishment eight years ago. He is the only one put to death for a killing he did not commit himself.

About 25 people, including a Nobel Peace Prize winner, gathered outside Florida State Prison to protest the execution, which was delayed two days under a temporary stay while his lawyers unsuccessfully appealed to the nation's highest court.

Antone was convicted of arranging the 1975 contract murder of Richard Cloud, a former Tampa vice detective who was gunned down when he answered his doorbell.

"Two others charged in the case, including the confessed triggerman, were found dead in their jail cells, their deaths ruled suicides. The driver of the getaway car testified against

Critics: Executions a political tool

STARKE, Fla. (AP) — Critics of Florida's multiple executions accuse Gov. Bob Graham of exploiting capital punishment for political gain, but supporters praise his tough stand against crime.

The electrocution Thursday of Anthony Antone for arranging the murder of a private eye was the third in the Sunshine State since the U.S. Supreme Court ruled in 1976 that executions could resume.

Florida is the only state to have executed more than one man since then. The state was also the first to execute a killer against his will — John Spenkling on May 25, 1979, for slaying a traveling companion.

With Antone's execution, Florida also became the first state to put a convict to death for a killing he didn't carry out himself. Antone, 66, had been found guilty of acting as a middleman in the gangland slaying of a former vice squad detective.

Twelve men have been executed in the United States since revival of the death penalty. Fast-growing Florida, with its transient population and tough crime laws, has the country's largest death row, with 210 inmates — about one-sixth of the 1,200-plus prisoners awaiting execution across the nation. More than half of them are locked up in Florida, Texas, California and Georgia.

Florida Attorney General Jim Smith has said that perhaps five inmates will be executed in the state this year. Antone's execution came only eight weeks after Robert Sullivan died for the slaying of a restaurant worker south of Miami.

Antone and is serving a 35-year sentence.

Antone had maintained innocence, claiming he was only the "fall guy."

Gov. Bob Graham, who has signed 68 death warrants since taking office in 1979, said in a statement released after the execution that Antone "committed the most calculated and premeditated forms of murder, a contract for the deliberate assassination of a law-enforcement officer. Eight years later, justice was accomplished."

Prison officials described Antone as "calm but not communicative" after he was told the Supreme Court on Wednesday night had cleared the way for the execution, ruling his arguments had been weighed and rejected before.

Antone sought the reprieve on grounds that he was a victim of ineffective counsel. The justices' 7-2 ruling marked the third time they had refused to tamper with Antone's case.

A 1982 execution date had been overturned. Prison spokesman Vernon Bradford said Antone did not request a last meal and turned down an offer of a steak-and-egg breakfast.

Whooping crane becomes 'martyr'

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A rare whooping crane which died of lead poisoning this week may become a "martyr," inspiring a federal ban on lead shot for hunting, an official with the National Wildlife Federation said Thursday.

U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officials said that between 100 and 200 pieces of lead were found in the gizzard of the crane, which died Monday. It had been found in a game refuge after it had been shot.

"This may in fact be the catalyst to change the whole complexion of this issue," federation wildlife resource specialist Scott Feierabend said in a telephone interview from Washington. "It's unfortunate that it requires something as sad as the loss of a whooping crane to focus attention on the problem and maybe get something done about it."

About 100 whooping cranes survive in the wild and 97 live in captivity. The death was the first of a whooping crane attributed to lead poisoning, said Fish and Wildlife spokesman Alan Levitt in Washington.

Jay Hair, executive vice president of the 4.1-million-member federation, met Thursday in Washington with Interior Secretary William P. Clark, seeking a national ban on lead shot, Feierabend said.

Feierabend said Clark told Hair he wanted to wait until a full examination of the dead bird was completed before making any decisions on lead shot.

Space station endorsed

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer

WASHINGTON — Life-saving medicines that could cure diabetes, certain types of cancer, kidney and other diseases could be produced on the $3 billion permanent manned space station endorsed by President Reagan, a space agency official said Thursday.

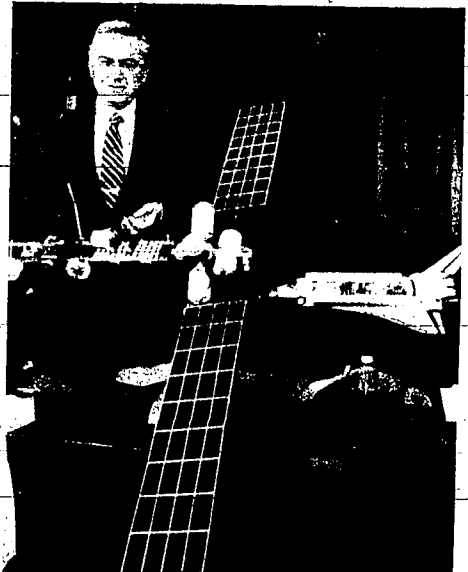

Manufacturing processes aboard the orbiting laboratory also could develop superstrong materials for aircraft and other uses on Earth, said Bud Evans, chief of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's task force on commercialization of space.

Also, astronauts and instruments aboard the station could help industry locate mineral and oil deposits on Earth, Evans told a news conference. "We are going to build a new place to work in space," he said. "We are moving from exploration to exploitation. You might call it 'business goes into orbit.'"

In his State of the Union address Wednesday night, Reagan directed NASA to develop a manned station within 10 years, not only as a symbol of U.S. leadership in space but to open up a vast new commercial enterprise beyond Earth.

"A space station will permit quantum leaps in our research in science, communications and in metals-and-life-saving-medicine-which can be manufactured only in space," the president said.

NASA Administrator James M. Beggs called the president's commitment "bold and imaginative" and said it will keep America a decade or more ahead of the Soviet Union in space technology.

Asked about the Soviets' announced intention to orbit a large station before an American platform can be orbited, Beggs replied: "Our technology is much better than theirs. We are a decade ahead of them, and with the president's initiative, we will remain a decade ahead."

Beggs said $3 billion is the cost of putting a station into orbit by 1991 or 1992, and that additional funds will be needed to maintain and expand the facility. Initially, the station will house six or eight men and women but could be enlarged eventually for 30 or more people.

School consolidation?

Are smaller schools better? Will a town die if it loses its high school? Does school consolidation really save money?

Those emotional subjects and others are part of the consolidation problem which again is being widely discussed in the Magic Valley and in the Idaho Legislature.

Education reporter Annette Cary has spent the past two months studying the issue and how it affects communities throughout the valley. Read her reports, beginning Sunday in the Times-News.

Cuban navy gains modern warships

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has increased the size of Cuba's navy and MiG-23 fighter force for the first time in several years, U.S. intelligence says.

A 2,300-ton Soviet-built frigate and a 2,100-ton diesel-powered submarine were delivered in recent days in Havana, said the sources who spoke only on condition they remain anonymous.

In addition, the sources said crates believed to contain fuselages of three new MiG-23 Flogger jet fighters were seen early this month at an airfield southwest of Havana.

These planes are the first of their type sent by the Soviets to Cuba since 1962 and will bring to about 35 the number of these modern fighters in the Cuban air force, the sources said.

The Koni-class frigate is the second such warship provided by the Soviet Union for Cuba's growing navy. The first Koni frigate joined the Cuban fleet in August, 1981.

The additional Foxtrot submarine is the third vessel of that class provided by the Soviet Union to Cuba. The two earlier attack subs arrived in Cuba in 1979 and 1980.

The Cuban navy totals about 125 ships, mostly missile-armed attack boats, torpedo boats and patrol ships. Although the Cuban navy is tiny when compared with that of the United States, it is the largest of any owned by nations in the Caribbean area. A number of small Caribbean island states have expressed concern about expanding Cuban naval and air power.

The Cuban navy, trained by Soviet naval advisers, has joined from time to time in exercises with visiting Soviet warships in the Gulf of Mexico.

The United States is sensitive to any hostile naval presence in the Caribbean and Gulf of Mexico because, senior naval officials have said, significant U.S. ship lanes run through those waters.

Druse troops' return may revive plan

By FAROUK NASSAR
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — President Amin Gemayel's administration Thursday bowed to demands by Druse leader Walid Jumblatt that the army reinstate Druse soldiers who refused to fight in civil war last September.

The reinstatement is designed to help revive a Saudi-sponsored security plan "stalled" by demands from Jumblatt, said Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan.

An estimated 500 to 800 Druse servicemen had refused to fight in the three weeks of fierce battling that pitted the army and Christian rightist militias against leftist Druse militiamen. The Druse sect's creed is based on Islam.

The Druse soldiers were relieved from active duty with the army, but will be reinstated by the army high command within 48 hours, Wazzan announced.

Promotions for the Druse soldiers — another demand by Jumblatt — will then be considered, Wazzan said following a conference with Gemayel and Foreign Minister Eil Salam at the presidential palace in suburban Baabda.

The prime minister said the action was taken in response to an appeal by Saudi Arabia's King Fahd.

The Lebanese government, backed by Saudi Arabia, is pushing a pacification plan designed to set up buffer zones that would separate the country's warring factions.

Wazzan said, "We have been dealing with a plea from his Majesty King Fahd to bypass certain considerations and move toward the enforcement of the security plan despite the delicacy of the problem of promoting inactive army officers."

There was no immediate response from Jumblatt or his Progressive Socialist Party.

War in Chad flares up

PARIS (AP) — The downing of a French jet in Chad and an attack on a government post have reopened the civil war that has been stalemated since the French 'intervention' last summer.

France blamed Libya for the loss of the plane and pilot in Wednesday's attack. But Libya, which supports the rebels of former Chad President Goukouni Oueddei, said the attack was carried out by Goukouni's forces and warned against any intervention by "foreign parties."

An armored column from northern rebel-held territory crossed into government-held territory Wednesday, shot down a French Jaguar fighter-jet and its pilot, and hit a Mirage F1 fighter, the French government says. The pilot was the first French fatality since French forces entered on the government side Aug. 9.

In N'Djamena, Chad's Information Minister Mahamat said he said the attack on the government garrison at Ziguaye was carried out by a "large Libyan column."

The French Defense Ministry announced Thursday night that a unit of French marines had conducted reconnaissance missions at dawn Thursday around the government post.

A ministry communique also said, "French aircraft are conducting permanent patrols despite a violent sand storm that had struck the surrounding area."

The French intervention force sent to halt a rebel drive last summer, stopped the rebels and an estimated 3,500 Libyans, but never attempted to drive the intruders back into Libya.

Since then, an unwritten truce has been in effect, with French forces deployed along the 15th parallel across the middle of Chad. The rebels and their Libyan backers remained north of the line, and the government troops of President Hissene Habre — supported by France and the United States — remained south. The United States sent weapons last summer but said it would not become involved militarily.

Soviet press blasts Reagan peace message

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet press on Thursday bitterly denounced President Reagan's State of the Union address, rejecting his message of peace as "meaningless" and labeling his review of foreign and domestic policy election-year fabrication.

In commentaries issued by the official Tass and Novosti news agencies and broadcast over the state-run radio, the Soviets attacked the president on every aspect of the annual address with the feror and personal criticism that have come to characterize Soviet commentary on the White House.

The commentaries devoted much attention to foreign policy, in a clear effort to use the speech as evidence in support of the Kremlin's campaign to place the blame for world tensions on Reagan. But they also targeted Reagan's domestic policies — stressing the record U.S. budget deficits and the unemployment rate — and charged that his call for development of a manned U.S. space station was "one more link in the outer space militarization program."

Reagan's speech, "made in a spirit of electioneering, was an attempt to picture in a favorable light the results of his three-year rule and justify his policy, marked by extreme aggressiveness in the international field and total disregard for the needs of the common people in the domestic policy field," Tass said.

The news agency said Reagan's assertion that the U.S. economy has recovered under his administration was "groundless."

"In advertising his supposed economic achievements," Radio Moscow added, "even Mr. Reagan was compelled to admit unprecedented growth in the U.S. budget deficit."

Radio Moscow said the speech — which preceded Reagan's anticipated re-election campaign announcement by four days — had "the distinct features of an election campaign document."

Turning to foreign policy, Tass said that portion of the State of the Union speech "was notable for demagoguery and hypocrisy."

"The president was trying to justify his militaristic policy by claiming that 'the United States is safer ... and more secure in 1984 than before,'" Tass said. "In real fact, the threat to general security has increased and the leaders of the United States bear all responsibility for such a turn of events."

Tass repeated the standard charge that the United States forced the Soviet walkout from the Geneva medium-range arms reduction talks by starting deployment of NATO rockets in Western Europe last November.

In its reaction to Reagan's speech, Novosti, the No. 2 government news agency, also focused on U.S.-Soviet relations and the suspended Geneva talks. Commentator Alexander Malyskhin charged that Reagan is pursuing a "policy of confrontation."

Leftist Guyana fears attack

GEORGETOWN, Guyana (AP) — President Forbes Burnham says his government is determined to remain left and non-aligned despite what he claims are U.S. efforts to undermine Guyana's socialist system.

In an interview with The Associated Press, Burnham said U.S.-Guyanese relations are at a low point, and asked if they could improve. "Grenada, why can't they invade us?"

Burnham, who for 20 years has governed this idaho-sized nation on the northeast shoulder of South America, charged that the United States is trying to force Guyana to dismantle its socialist structure.

He accused the United States of using "economic pressure" to force his government into "submission and cited as evidence a U.S. veto of a $42 million International Development Bank loan for an irrigation and drainage project, cancellation of aid loans, and alleged U.S. provocation of strikes last May and June by 7,000 bauxite workers.

Bauxite, the raw material of aluminum, plus sugar and rice are the mainstays of Guyana's economy, which is nearly bankrupt, mainly due to low international commodity prices. The bauxite industry, including a U.S. subsidiary, was nationalized in 1975.

Burnham said the poor relations with the United States did not "arise from any hostility on our part."

Water solution endorsed

By SUSAN GALLAGHER
The Associated Press

BOISE — Most of the 7,500 defendants in Idaho Power Co.'s Swan Falls lawsuit would be dropped from the case under a bill an Idaho House committee endorsed Thursday.

But the measure that mirrors an Idaho Power contract the governor refused to sign last year was sent to the House floor with only a narrow endorsement.

The bill could be "strychnine with a little bit of sugar coating," said Rep. Lyman Winchester, R-Kuna, one of the legislators who wanted to delay action.

But supporters such as Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said water users mired in uncertainty over the Swan Falls water-rights controversy deserve relief.

She said before the vote by the House State Affairs Committee that the legislation simply will narrow the Swan Falls issue. Long-term studies and other action on the controversy won't be precluded, she said.

The legislation stems from the lawsuit Idaho Power filed last year to defend "the utility's" water rights against demands of irrigators and other Snake River water users upstream from Swan Falls Dam.

The suit arose after the Idaho Supreme Court ruled Idaho Power has Snake water rights and is entitled to defend them.

A contract drawn up between Idaho Power and the state last year would have removed most of the 7,500 defendants from the suit. But Gov. John Evans refused to sign it after constitutional issues were raised.

Irrigator Derrell Savage, Hagerman, backs bill before panel

Testimony on the legislation advocated by Idaho Power won support from water users before the committee's vote. The Idaho Citizens Coalition, a consumers' group, announced its objections to the handling of the Swan Falls issue will be discussed at a news conference Friday.

Attorney General Jim Jones told the committee he questions the legislation's true intent. He said a court order spelling out obligations of Idaho Power and other water users in a settlement would be better than legislation.

"You'd have the power company's John Henry right there on the dotted line," Jones said. The legislation is vague, doesn't bind Idaho Power adequately and is sure to be challenged in court, he said.

But irrigator Derrell Savage supported the bill, "recognizing maybe it isn't the whole piece of cake needed to straighten out the water mess the state is in." Savage is a farmer who manages the Bell Rapids Mutual Irrigation District in south-central Idaho.

Panel studies dairy taxation

Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — State taxes on Idaho dairy producers could be reduced to offset increases in new federal dairy taxes, under a proposal approved Thursday by the House Agricultural Affairs Committee.

Vicky Patterson, a lobbyist for the Idaho Dairymen's Association, told the committee that the state Dairy Products Commission levies a 1 percent tax on dairy producers, to be used in efforts to promote the use and consumption of Idaho dairy products.

She said under the recently passed federal dairy legislation, a tax on producers also will be levied for promotional purposes. The legislation approved by the house committee would allow a reduction in the state tax to offset the effects of the newly imposed federal tax, she said.

Other action Thursday, the committee:

- Recommended to the full House a bill that would allow the state Brand Division to issue special permits for special breeding show or other classes of livestock to be transported across state lines.
- Introduced legislation to raise fees to $5, from $2, for licenses for artificial insemination. The fee has not been raised since 1947.
- Introduced legislation to raise the licensing fees for weighmasters to $10, from $2.50, and to eliminate the requirement that weighmasters be bonded. The fee structure has been in effect since 1949.
- Introduced legislation to allow grain to be forwarded by a licensed warehouse with the approval of the director of the state's Department of Agriculture.

Hansen's trial set on federal charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — A March 19 trial date was set Thursday in U.S. District Court for Rep. George V. Hansen, R-Idaho, on criminal charges of supplying false financial information to Congress.

The jury trial, set by federal judge Joyce Hens Green, was expected to take about two weeks.

Last April, the Justice Department obtained a four-count criminal indictment charging Hansen with making false financial statements for 1978 through 1981.

The indictment said he omitted mention of a $61,500 personal loan to himself and his wife, Connie, by conservative billionaire Nelson Bunker Hunt in 1980, an $87,475 profit made by the Hansens with Hunt's aid during a three-day plunge into silver futures in 1979, and a $50,000 personal loan made in 1981 to Hansen, a member of the House Banking Committee, by a bank president in Grundy, Va., who was later convicted of a $2.2 million swindle.

Hansen has argued that he did not have to report the items. He said some of the transactions involved only his wife and that some loans to him were used to finance a citizen taxpayers' group which he formed in 1981.

When he was arraigned last April, Hansen called the government's charges a trumped-up retaliation for his past accusations that the Internal Revenue Service abused the rights of citizens.

Power plan upsets Simplot

BOISE (AP) — Industrialist J.R. Simplot says he's proud of his role in the issue of who should build a power plant at Lucky Peak Dam in southwestern Idaho.

But the Idaho potato tycoon adds: "As a former director and large customer of Idaho Power, I'm sorry I had to get in the middle of this."

Simplot also says he wishes he could be around to help sell the power when the contract expires in 50 years.

Simplot, 76, said on Wednesday that as a former director of Idaho Power Co. and a large-volume user of electricity, he would have preferred the power stay in Idaho.

The Boise Project Board of Control recommended Tuesday that the five irrigation districts the board represents build the project with Seattle

City Light, a municipal utility in Washington state.

Financial consultants involved in the negotiations said the 50-year contract could bring as much as $1.5 billion in income to the districts.

"I feel good that the irrigation districts are going to be able to keep the falling-water rights to Lucky Peak Dam and are going to get good revenues from the project," Simplot said in a statement issued by his office.

He said he could understand the board's decision to choose a bidder that needs the electricity. And Simplot said he understands the board's desire to act quickly before a federal license to start construction expires June 1.

Ted Hadley, Twin Falls teacher (above), and Lynette Hart of Halley have been honored with $1,000 prizes

Local works win laurels

For symphonic composition

By KARYN RIEDELL
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Lynette Hart of Hadley and Ted Hadley of Twin Falls have won the top prizes in the Magic Valley Symphony's first composition contest.

Each has received $1,000 for their efforts.

Hart's "Autumn Symphony" will be performed Feb. 14 by the symphony, and Hadley's "Commemorations" will be featured during the symphony's May 4 concert.

Originally, only one $1,500 prize was to be awarded, but the symphony committee decided to award two $1,000 prizes instead.

The compositions were selected on the basis of length, difficulty, suitability, musical sense, format and orchestration.

Hart, 33, was born in Twin Falls, grew up in Newport and now lives in Halley, with her husband, Richard, and their 5-year-old son, Reuben.

In Halley, Hart plays in local country-rock bands and teaches piano lessons. Although her main instrument is the piano, she also plays the mandolin guitar and the concertina.

Between 1970 and 1975, she was on the road, touring primarily in the Western states. Today, her life is more settled, and she describes Halley as a "solid, warm community."

"Skiing and backpacking keep me sane. My husband and I are both active, outdoor people."

Hart began composing five years ago. In 1980, she won honorable mention in a national song-writing competition sponsored by "Sheet Music Magazine." The composition, "Sarah," was written for guitar and voice.

She has also written music for film, modern dance, ballet and television. In 1978 and 1979, she composed original scores for several documentary films by Randall Morgan: "Seasons of the Earth," which was narrated by Robert Redford, "A Rice Place to Live" and "Rockcreek Crossing."

"Autumn Symphony" is the first symphony she has written.

"The big excitement for me is to hear the piece performed. It's really hard to find a symphony to play your piece. The pieces I've written before have been for octets or smaller groups."

"Commemorations" also is

Hadley's first piece for a full orchestra.

Hadley, 32, was born in Sandpoint. He currently lives in Twin Falls with his wife, Patty, and their three children. He describes himself as "Idaho born, bred and educated."

"Since 1974, he has been a band teacher in the Twin Falls public schools. He currently assists Del Slaughter at Twin Falls High School, where he is also the marching instructor, and he is the band director at the two junior highs.

"Twin Falls is the nicest community in Idaho for support of the arts and opportunities for musicians," Hadley says. "Twin Falls has a community orchestra, a chorale and a Broadway group. In Boise, there is more competition for spots."

Hadley has played in the Magic Valley Symphony for 10 years and served as emergency conductor for one concert. He has played in the orchestra of several Northwest Opera productions and directed the production of "The Old Maid and the Thief."

Hadley also has served as musical director for 10 of the Broadway musicals performed by The Dilettantes. This year's "Annie" will be his 11th show.

Hadley, who plays piano, organ and French horn, is also a founding member of the Snake River Bass Quintet and Quintessence, a local woodwind quintet.

"I'd like to get into composing for band and for the brass and woodwind chamber group," he says.

Hadley has composed for the string orchestra before and for band — but never for a full orchestra. "As far as combining winds, percussion and string, this is my first time."

In 1978, Hadley was a featured composer when the state of Idaho put together a number of radio programs in honor of the bicentennial. In 1974, he graduated from the University of Idaho, where he majored in music theory and composition, with a second emphasis in instrumental and vocal music education. In 1977, he received his master's degree in music.

"It generally takes six hours to compose 30 seconds of good music. To compose for a full orchestra, it took me eight hours to write 30 seconds of music."

"The symphony was not a strain to compose, but it was a lot of hard work."

Symphony awards grants

TWIN FALLS — The winners of the Magic Valley Symphony's scholarship competition also have been announced. The winners of the college division were: Jed Moss, pianist, first place; Nancy Bondurant, bassoonist, second place; and Karen Connolly, violist, third place. The awards were for $900, $800 and $400, respectively.

The winner of the high-school division was pianist Julie Edwards. She received a $200 scholarship.

According to Patty Hadley, the symphony's business director, the auditions for the competition were held Jan. 2. Daniel Stern, the conductor for the Boise Philharmonic Orchestra, was the judge. The May 4 concert of the Magic Valley Symphony will feature solo performances by some, if not all, of the scholarship winners.

The competition was held in celebration of the symphony's 25th anniversary.

"We sponsored the contest because we wanted to do something different, which would be really exciting and beneficial," Hadley said.

Wolf epic unusual for wilderness film

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Never Cry Wolf" is not your typical man-in-the-wilderness story.

A young biologist, named Tyler, is sent to the terrifying and spectacular arctic wilderness to study the wolf and determine whether the animal is destroying caribou deer.

Left with cases of worthless regulation forms and crates of frozen asparagus, Tyler throws himself into his work because it becomes a matter of survival as much as a scientific study.

He is alone, an observer of the potentially dangerous wolves. The animals are phantoms until he finds a den, which becomes the first subject of his study. As winter disappears into spring, Tyler befriends Ootek, an Eskimo knowledgeable in the old ways, and his son, Mike, an Indian of a newer and harsher generation.

During his study of the wolves' lives, Tyler reviews his own purpose and mankind's own place in a savage frontier that often has been forgotten, misundersood or exploited. Even after his own education, Tyler says,

"In the end, there were no simple answers. No heroes, no villains, only silence."

The pivotal character of Tyler easily could have been a nerdy fellow, what with his inexperience and shy manner. But actor Charles Martin Smith holds him straight — with human foibles, humor and determination.

Smith, better known for playing Todd in "American Graffiti," gives a performance that has the substance of steel. He takes Tyler from a placid outsider to a forceful intervener.

Adding to the natural and spontaneous mood of the whole film are the two real-life Eskimos who portray Mike and Ootek. The only disappointment is Brian Dennehy, who plays the pilot as apassal and leaves it at that.

Based on the book by Farley Mowat, "Never Cry Wolf" is full of priceless moments, under the steady hand of director Carroll Ballard, who

Wolf study in film turns into case of survival for character

Bringing Silkwood back to life in text

By KARYN RIEDELL
Times-News correspondent

"The Killing of Karen Silkwood: The Story Behind the Kerr-McGee Plutonium Case," by Richard Rashke.

Richard Rashke's book on Karen Silkwood is a superb example of investigative journalism.

It is evident from the title of the book that Rashke clearly has a thesis — that Silkwood was killed because of her investigations of health and safety at the Kerr-McGee nuclear plant where she worked.

But although Rashke does suggest that Silkwood was murdered, he manages to be objective in his account of the events before and after Silkwood's death, including the investigation and the trial.

The book is filled with dialogue that makes the incidents come to life. All of the dialogue is based on interviews, depositions and trial transcripts. The section on notes and sources at the back of the book provides thorough documentation. A table of contents would have been a big help, however, since there are so many references to individuals and agencies, and it is difficult to keep track of them all.

Review

The first quarter of the book, called

"The Killing," recounts the events leading up to the death of Karen Silkwood.

The second quarter concerns the investigations conducted by the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Worker's Union, the FBI and Congress. The last half of the book, "The Courts," interest increased significantly in the spring of 1974, when she became worried about health and safety at the plant. At this time, Kerr-McGee had depended on production, leading to 12-hour shifts, seven-day work weeks, rotations from day to night

Clubs try video gambling, as officials worry

By ROBERT MACY
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS, Nev. — Despite differences among gaming regulators, Nevada is slowly snatching its one-arm bandits, opting for flashy video machines they hope will transform today's video generation into tomorrow's gamblers.

Gaming's video revolution began with a whimper in 1975 when a rather primitive video poker machine was unveiled. Today, 23 percent of the state's 86,000 gaming machines are video and industry officials say the figure could eventually reach 80 percent.

The video boom has drawn mixed reviews from the people who regulate Nevada's No. 1 industry.

"Gaming needs to grow, to keep up with the challenge of the times," says Jim Avance, chairman of the powerful Gaming Control Board. "With video in every aspect of our lives, it doesn't surprise me that it becomes a part of gaming as well."

Fellow board member Richard HYTE says video proliferation presents a problem to the state. He took on the issue when the state approved a new video machine, "Gold Fever," for field testing in November.

"Gold Fever" features an animated prospector digging for gold, with a selection of three mines offering riches, a fire-breathing dragon or extinction by dynamite. The player makes the right choice, he can quit with his winnings, or move on to a second and third level. There's the potential of winning $1,000 on a $3 investment.

HYTE says "Gold Fever" is the first time the state has approved for trial a gaming device that did not have traditional gaming symbols such as cards, dice or fruit. He says he is worried the game "will be a challenge for every kid in the state to play it at least once."

Gaming Commission Chairman Paul Bible agrees that "Gold Fever" could be "like a swimming pool without a fence around it." Officials at the four casinos where the machine is being tested have been warned to pay close attention to whether children are attracted to the machine, even though minors are not allowed in casinos by Nevada law. Avance discounts fears that young people will see the machine as just another video game, noting it will be restricted from supermarkets and convenience stores where banks of slots and video poker machines abound.

Avance says times have changed — and Nevada needs to change with the times. "When I was a kid my folks played penny-ante poker using match sticks or beans," he says. "That was our form of entertainment. Now kids have video. It's a different world."

Video gaming devices can be found everywhere in Nevada, from casinos to restaurant counters and built into bars — assuring customers the chance to while away some money while eating or drinking.

"Gold Fever" is one of a number of video gaming devices manufactured by Reno-based International Gaming Technology Inc. The company builds some 10,000 machines annually, with gross sales in the $80 million range. IGT president George Drews admits to zoring in on the video generation.

"We would like to have something for the video generation when they come of age. We think it will take something a lot more interesting than just the ordinary reel-type slot machines."

"We think it's absolutely essential that we offer changes for the players, particularly this new generation of players that spent their early years with video games."

Video poker machines were the first major change in gaming machines in 40 years and have proven to be immensely popular, Drews says. Today they represent more than 20 percent of the machines being played in the state.

Some feel the machines are less intimidating than walking up to a poker table, especially for the novice learning the gaming ropes. "These poker machines produce earnings far superior to ordinary slot machines. It would have been a assure setback to the state if their introduction had been prohibited," Drews says. "The manufacturers and casinos should be encouraged to come up with every type of gaming device they can, and let the marketplace decide."

It doesn't quite work that way. Once the field test is completed for machines such as "Gold Fever," state gamblers study the appeal to players, maintenance records, the money it earns, payoff percentages and whether it can be cheated easily. The gaming officials have the final say on whether the machine goes into production.

HYTE says the test period, even if it's perfect, "won't address the basic philosophical concerns" with such machines.

"Do we want to add another element of amusement, or do we want to stay with the traditional gaming mechanisms?" HYTE asks. Bill Friedman, president of the Coastways Hotel and Casino where two of the machines are being tested, has a ready answer.

Video machines are "the future of our industry," he says. Drews agrees: "If we don't reach today's video generation, the number of casino players will fall off to nothing."

Success expected for adult-humor show

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — All signs point to success for "The Howard Stern Show," the comedy about continuing friendships, that debuts on CBS Sunday night.

The humor is adult. The timeslot, behind "60 Minutes," is enviable. But its biggest benefit is having Alan Alda as its godfather.

Alda is creator, executive producer, contributing writer, occasional star and network intimidator for this project, which began as a hit movie and has survived, in style and substance, as a situation comedy — no small feat. Give credit to the former Hawkeye Pierce of "M*A*S*H" and the current Mr. Atari of Madison Avenue. Alda has the clout to stifle the CBS producers who have not fared well in comedy in recent years.

"Nobody (at CBS) questions Alda," said Jack Weston, the series star and a holdover from the movie. "They're all afraid. They don't want to rock the boat. He's for us, he's for his life." Alda's demands, all revolving around the product, are not the egotistical tantrums for larger trailers or more close-ups that are life and death to some less talented but more swelled heads.

For example, he was guaranteed the time to do the show right, the same concession Bob Newhart received when he returned to CBS last season.

In addition, there won't be any cues to laugh from professional merry-makers. "Alan didn't want a laugh track, and he got what he wanted," said Stefanie Kowal, the series' producer.

Laugh tracks are an insult anyway, but they would be more awkward and unnecessary here. First, the show is very witty, and, second, the humor flows naturally, often conversationally. If the characters' personalities, hang-ups and sensitivities.

There's also an abundance of clever repartee among friends, who care enough to hit each other with some hurtful truths.

Ms. Kowal said the only rebuff Alda received was his request that the show be filmed in New York. The series has Danny (Weston) moving to California to reunite with several old friends (former New Yorkers who weren't in the film California, however, has no discernible seasons.

But since the metaphor in Alda's film — in which three couples took vacations together in the spring, summer, fall and winter — referred to the seasonal flow of friendships, the movie's essence is maintained in Sunday's one-hour opener. Future shows will be 30 minutes long.

The movie, which was broadcast, most conveniently on CBS last Monday, had Alda playing a New York lawyer married to Carol Burnett. Weston played the lovably self-centered dentist, who was married to Rita Moreno. Len Cariou and Sandy Dennis were a couple whose marriage had unraveled.

Ms. Kowal did not rule out guest appearances by anybody, except Miss Moreno, whose part is now played by Marcia Rodd.

Jack (Alda), who won't be in most episodes and will be missed, begins Sunday's show by bidding farewell to his best friend, Danny. Danny is anxious about the cross-country move, as he would be about a walk across the street. He's a handyman.

He gives his guesses to Jack, washing his hands of New York. "I love this city," he says, spying an excavation site. "Call me when it's finished."

Music holds modes of the Third World

By PATRICK ERCOLANO
The Baltimore Evening Sun

Two years ago the English record label PVC released "Music And Rhythm," a double album of 21 songs marked by Third World musical influences. Featuring renowned and lesser-known musicians from the United States, the United Kingdom, the West Indies and India, the LP helped fund a July, 1982, London festival that attempted to focus attention on the traditional and contemporary arts of non-Western cultures.

PVC, with an assist from the ubiquitous Warner Communications Co., has just released a single album of highlights from "Music And Rhythm." The new LP is called, not too surprisingly, "The Best Of Music And Rhythm" (8922).

A major attraction of this unusual and entertaining album is its all-star lineup. Peter Gabriel, the Police's Stewart Copeland and Indian violinist Shankar combine on a sonorous seven-minute piece "Across The River." The British band XTC chips in with "It's Nearly Africa" from the "English Settlement" LP. Head Talking Head David Byrne's "His Wife Refused," from his score for the Twyla Tharp ballet, "The Catherine Wheel," typifies the strongly rhythmic feel of the heads' most recent music.

Pete Townshend contributes the oddly alluring "Across The River" with instrumental help from the Who's old rhythm section of John Entwistle and Kenny Jones. The six number "Mirror In The Bathroom," one of the English Beat's best-known tunes, is taken from that band's "Wh'appen" album.

Perhaps less known than the Townshends, Gabriels and Byrnes are the popular music world are the other artists on the album. Mighty Sparrow's 1976 track "Music And Rhythm" exemplifies the happy calypso sound, while "Sweet Mother" by Prince Nico and Rockfall Jazz typifies Africa's jangling juju music. Rico Rodriguez's witty reggae tune "What You Talkin' Bout" ("You must be crazy, you don't like the reggae beat") is pushed along by swinging horn charts. Ekome, an Afro-Caribbean dance troupe from Bristol, England, performs "Kpan Logo," as six drummers back up nearly a dozen chanters.

Novelist discusses writers he followed

By DAVID MINTHORN
The Associated Press

BERLIN (AP) — With his drooping black mustache and bulky gray wool vest flaring from his shoulders like a coat of armor, German novelist Guenter Grass talks about the literary giants who helped to shape his fiction.

"The author of 'The Tin Drum' says his work was influenced by the tradition of European 'grand novels' that culminated with James Joyce. But he also learned technique from the works of such American writers as Herman Melville, John Dos Passos and William Faulkner.

"Starting with Rabelais ... from 'Don Quixote' and 'Gargantua' to James Joyce's 'Ulysses' — these are my models," Grass said in an interview at his West Berlin home.

The 57-year-old author, who ranks with Nobel laureate Heinrich Boell as Germany's greatest postwar novelist, singled out Germany's Alfred Döblin as his great teacher, especially in "aesthetic and spiritual areas."

Boellin died in 1957.

But it is South America that Grass regards today as "one of the most creative areas in literature." Peering over half-spectacles and puffing a cigar, Grass said he reads Gabriel Garcia Marquez and Mario Vargas-Llosa "with great sympathy, as I believe they to my books. We have respect for each other's work."

"We have a comparable vision of realism — an extended fantasy and power of imagination for the mythical and myth-forming in human existence," he said.

Grass has been a prolific writer since he first burst onto the literary scene with his 1959 novel, "The Tin Drum," which debunks the Nazi movement. The main character, a dwarf named Oskar, is endowed with the power to play havoc with Third Reich matches by an inspired pounding on his toy drum.

"The international best seller was followed by 'Cat and Mouse' in 1961 and 'The Dog Years' in 1963, which similarly exposed the brutal foolishness of the Nazi movement. The novels are set in wartime Danzig, now Gdansk, Poland, where Grass grew up.

Other novels, plays and books flowed from his pen in the '60s and '70s, when Grass actively campaigned for the Social Democratic party. His books have earned him a following among left-leaning students and young adults.

"By 1981, I had completed a writing process that started with 'The Tin Drum.' There were only brief pauses between each book," he said. "I wanted a rest, and I haven't written anything literary for three years."

During that time, Grass has pursued what he calls his "first vocation." He's been sculpting. "It has been good for me," he said.

A gold statue of a naked young woman, ink drawings and other sculptures decorate his third-floor studio that overlooks a grassy garden in West Berlin's Friedenau residential area.

Dow drifts lower for 7th day in row

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dow Jones industrial average posted its seventh straight loss Thursday as stock prices drifted lower in a busy session...

Analysts said the market seemed to have shrugged off Wednesday's rumors that President Reagan might unexpectedly decide against running for a second term...

Technology issues posted some of the day's biggest losses. Digital Equipment fell 3 1/2 to 86 3/4; Hewlett-Packard 1 1/2 to 41; Computerium 1 1/2 to 41 1/2; and Motorola 3 1/2 to 109 1/2.

Gem State Conference leaders

Twin, Minico face key tests

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

The Twin Falls Bruins and Minico Spartans, co-leaders in the Gem State Conference, round the corner and head for home this weekend.

The Magic Valley entries in the eight-school alignment share the lead at one loss each hit the midpoint of the season with Twin Falls traveling to test Pocatello Friday and Blackfoot Saturday. Minico beat Blackfoot Wednesday night and winds up this weekend at Skyline.

If the two should escape those tests, it will set up a showdown Feb. 3 when they collide in Bruin Stadium.

"It could be rafter time," said Twin Falls Coach John Astorquia, referring to the crowd.

"It would be great for our area to have our two teams playing for the title," said Minico's Craig Dexter. "If we both get there with one loss, it could be for the conference."

Minico devastated the Bruins in their earlier meeting in Rupert but dropped back into a tie when Pocatello nipped the Spartans 42-40 two weeks ago.

Twin Falls, ending a five-game, eight-day run, would have a slight scheduling edge over the last half in this homecourt-happy sport. The Bruins will play four of their last six games on home turf while Minico has four

JOHN ASTORQUIA
It could be rafter time of its last seven on the road.

But before any talk of showdowns, both must get past this weekend's tests.

"Blackfoot is a team you have to worry about even if your record doesn't approach ours," Astorquia said of the 9-3 Broncos. "Before the season started everyone thought they would be serious contenders. They have the ingredients with height a little better than most and depth of tail guys coming off the bench, good guards and some proven shooters from last year. So far they haven't had any consistency but they've beaten Bonneville, Skyline and Idaho Falls and, most impressive, Madison by 15 points.

"They have two excellent athletes in Marty Eacey and Tom James," he said. "It's just a case of catching them on the wrong night. If they get it rolling, they can beat anyone in the league."

After Blackfoot comes Pocatello for the 10-2 Bruins — and that means the fabled "snakepit," where the Bruins have had less than lttful fortune over the years.

"The game plan I'd like to have is to shoot the ball as well against them this time as we did the first time," the coach said of his teams 90-point effort.

"Pocatello has started all underclassmen this year and that is the type of team that can improve most rapidly," Astorquia said. "Pocatello's players all have a solid winning background through junior high and sophomore competition. They have the talent so it just became a matter of them picking up the varsity experience."

"They haven't done badly because until Bonneville knocked them off last week, they were tied with us and Minico — and they're the only ones who have beaten Minico," Astorquia said. "I would have to expect them to be probably 10 or 15 points better than when we played them in the league opener because they have those extra games under their belts and they'll be at home. We beat them 16 at our place so you can see we figure this one will be very close."

In the middle of the toughest stretch of the schedule, Astorquia said he has been pleased with his team's defense but is wondering about the Bruins' inability to get off to a quick start.

"Defensively I think we've been pretty solid, pretty consistent throughout our games," he said. "We've had to make some adjustments like switching between zone and man against Highland but our guys have done it well."

Concerning the slow starts of the past three games, Astorquia said, "I don't know what it is. It appears we are getting the same shots that we have all season and later in the game — but they just aren't going down. Because we've been playing good defense and rebounding pretty well at the same time, it can't be because the guys aren't mentally prepared. It's just a little quirk that has hit us and it will go away unless we dwell on it and get the players to thinking about it. The best part is that our second-quarter scoring has been very good in all three games so the halftime scores have averaged out pretty well for us."

A Skyline player blocks Tammie Hallmark's (45) pass.

Bruin girls ignite against Skyline

TWIN FALLS — Karle Willey hit the first three shots of the game, igniting Twin Falls girls' finest offensive display of the season in a 54-46 decision over Skyline Thursday night.

Willey, who ended with a game-high 16 points, was joined in the scoring column by seven other Bruins. Heidi Hansen tanked 10 points and Alma Hernandez, hitting back-to-back three-pointers midway through the first half, added 12 as Coach Paul Stover had the luxury of enjoying night-long leads that ranged up to 17 points.

"It was our most consistent offensive effort all year," said Stover. "In fact, it might have been our best overall effort all year. I felt we had it under control the whole game."

Stover acknowledged that Willey's three-for-three opening effort may have sparked the team.

"Generally she's the key to the team. When she plays well, we play well," Stover said. "But we've struggled so much with our shooting since Christmas that I have the feeling anyone hitting three straight would have done it for us."

"The frustrating thing is these are the same shots we've been missing since Christmas. Tonight they just went down for us."

But Stover said he was equally as pleased with the rest of the Bruins' game.

"I thought we did a very good job of rebounding against a big and aggressive team," he said. "I've been proud of these girls all year. There's not a lot of basketball talent by they play hard. I've been pleased with their effort every night."

Vandals break 10 points in last minute

MOSCOW — Idaho's Vandals hit 10 points in the closing 53 seconds Thursday night to break away from Northern Arizona and into a 69-61 Big Sky Conference victory.

Senior guard Stan Arnold started the scoring binge just after NAU had cut to within 61-59 on a jumper by Dave Allen. Arnold took the inbounds pass and smoked down the court, driving for an easy crumple and then going to the foul line to complete a three-point play. After Davis replied for NAU, freshman Tom Stalick hit two free throws with 45 seconds to play and Arnold came back with two more chitties as NAU was forced to foul.

Stalick then scored another crumple on a Vandal fastbreak and Frank Garza wound it up with a jumper with seconds left. Idaho then stood back and let NAU have the final bucket.

ISU loses to Montana State, Weber upsets Montana — C2

The eight-point advantage didn't indicate the game was tied 15 times and the lead switched hands five times.

Northern Arizona, getting 10 first-half points from former College of Southern Idaho forward Mike Elliott, held two to four-point leads through much of the first half although Idaho charged up at times for ties and held the lead twice.

The Vandals played a lot of zone in the first half and the Lumberjacks were able to break Elliott and Allen loose repeatedly inside for easy buckets.

Idaho threatened to break away six minutes into the second half when Freshman Watkins hit twice and Stalick and Arnold added two points each. But that six-point lead melted quickly when NAU switched to a zone and Jeff Altman, who lead all scorers with 20 points, pulled the Lumberjacks even in three trips down the floor.

After two lead changes, Frank Garza and Arnold scored two points each to send Idaho ahead for the rest of the night.

Idaho won it by increasing its second half shooting from 44 percent to just over 50 percent. The Vandals were 29-57 from the field and 11-13 at the foul line while NAU was 26-48 in field goals and 9-10 in free throws. The Lumberjacks led in rebounding 28-25 but gave that back by committing 17 turnovers to Idaho's 11.

No accord between Seaver, White Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — Lengthy discussions between the Chicago White Sox and Tom Seaver's attorney in New York Thursday failed to produce an agreement between the American League club and the three-time Cy Young Award winner.

Further negotiations were put off for two weeks while White Sox president Eddie Elnhorn travels to Yugoslavia for the Winter Olympics.

Seaver reportedly wants a substantial raise over the $300,000 salary he was to receive from the New York Mets, who failed to protect the 39-year-old right-hander from the free agent compensation pool. The White Sox grabbed him last week after losing pitcher Dennis Lamp, a Type A free agent, to the Toronto Blue Jays.

A White Sox spokesman said Elnhorn and co-owner Jerry Reinsdorf had two three-hour meetings with attorney Bob Lawrence, who advised Seaver after each session by telephone at his Greenwich, Conn., home. Chuck Shriver said Elnhorn acknowledged during the meeting that the team was willing because of the special nature of the situation, to add enhancements to his existing contract.

Elnhorn was quoted as saying, however, that "we are still apart on what he would like and what we are willing to offer."

Nether Elnhorn nor Reinsdorf were available for direct comment, and Shriver said neither would disclose what they were willing to offer.

"Eddie Elnhorn has gone to Europe and we are scheduled to meet again in two weeks," said Seaver at his home. Asked if the delay bothered him, Seaver repeated, "Eddie Elnhorn has gone to Europe and we are scheduled to meet again in two weeks."

If Seaver decides not to report to the White Sox, his only alternative is to retire. If that happens, the White Sox are not entitled to another pick from the compensation pool.

But Reinsdorf was described as optimistic Thursday that Seaver will join the club.

"We are still very anxious to have Tom in Chicago," he was quoted as saying, reiterating that "we do not want to trade him."

"We still want him to be part of the best pitching staff in baseball and are still confident he will be part of the pitching staff in 1984."

Seaver has won 272 games in his career. He spent the first 10½ years with the Mets, where he was known as "The Franchise." The Mets traded him to the Cincinnati Reds in June 1977, for four players and reacquired him for three players in December 1982.

Meanwhile, Dave Johnson, new manager of the Mets, characterized Seaver's loss as one that will "hurt us immediately."

"But in the long term aspect, whoever we might have lost instead of Seaver might have hurt us more," Johnson added. "We have several young pitchers on this team and many of them benefitted being with Seaver last year."

Seaver reportedly is holding out for substantial pay hike

Coach pleased with Hobart, eyes Idaho college recruits

TWIN FALLS — There is absolutely no doubt in the mind of University of Idaho football Coach Dennis Erickson that the new USFL expansion team in Jacksonville has a quarterback to build its team around.

Erickson, of course, admits to being a little prejudiced but a recent trip to Japan has reinforced his belief that Ken Hobart is better than even he's been telling people.

"I got a look at some of the so-called good ones when I was over there for the Ben Bowl," Erickson said Wednesday night. "Ben Bennett" (of Duke who set the NCAA record for a career passing mark) and Jeff Hostetler (who raised West Virginia into the national rankings and two bowl games) and a couple of others. Of them all, the only one I saw that was better was (BYU's) Steve Young — and not a lot better.

"From a passing standpoint, it was obvious that both Young and Hobart had stronger arms than the other quarterbacks there. And the biggest difference among them was the mobility that Young and Kenny have. They were much more mobile than the others, moved much better."

While there is word on a national wire service that Hobart is asking for a three-year contract with a $100,000-per-year guarantee, Erickson only smiles.

"They're talking a lot more than that. It's over a million."

Erickson said he likes the idea of Hobart traveling to Jacksonville to take part in the early spring camp because "once he gets down there, they'll rate him a lot higher. I don't think they understand the kind of passer and runner they have in Kenny. And another thing, although they are listing these other quarterbacks at 6-2 and 6-3, none of them appears to be much over six feet. Put them side by side with Kenny and he's bigger than any of them although Young is slightly taller.

"I just think once Kenny gets down there and throws the ball and shows his mobility in the pocket that they'll come to terms pretty quickly and closer to what Kenny is asking for," Erickson said. "I think he'll sign in the next day or two."

With that behind him, Erickson said the recruiting trail has again been competitive and rough.

"We'd better be getting close to getting commitments from some of them," he said of the recruits. "We're only about three weeks from national letter day."

Erickson said the Vandals probably will be signing 18 incoming freshmen with just about all of them coming from the Pacific Northwest.

The Vandals have turned to the junior college ranks for four players — two wide receivers, a defensive lineman and a linebacker.

He said this follows his policy of building the program on high school recruiting and using the junior college ranks for "instant help" as vulnerable spots show up among the returning squadmen.

The Vandals had 21 freshmen last year and redshirted some of them.

No better time to talk football than now so he advised of the new rule changes in store for next fall as amended by the National Federation of State High School Associations.

The major change is aimed at reducing the number of "legal" clips which may occur only within the free blocking zone, allowed on initial contact only and may not continue after the position of the ball is established or the ball has left the zone. Safety, of course, is the major consideration.

Unsportsmanlike conduct will be treated as a specific foul and of itself. Previously, it was possible for a false start and unsportsmanlike conduct to be offsetting, in reality giving the defense a "free shot" at the end of a play if it knows the infraction already is against the offense. Unsportsmanlike conduct 15-yard penalties will be assessed from the "succeeding spot" or that position where the ball would have been put into play had the infraction not occurred.

Roughing-the-passer penalties will remain 15 yards with an automatic first down added.

The team winning the coin toss prior to the start of the game will now be allowed to defer its choice until the second half.

In overtime sessions, the defensive team may no longer score by snapping up a fumble or intercepting a pass and running into the opposite end zone. The offensive team's possession simply will end at the point of

Montana State pins first league loss on ISU

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Phil Layher scored 14 points to help Montana State pin the first Big Sky Conference loss of the year on Idaho State 62-59 Thursday night.

Layher put MSU ahead 43-34 with 15:45 left in the game, but Idaho State rallied to cut the margin to 47-46, with 9:44 remaining.

The Bengals stayed close into the final minute before Layher scored on a drive to the hoop with 37 seconds left and Chris Brazier added two free throws 19 seconds later. The points gave Montana State breathing room in the final seconds.

Joining Layher in double figures for Montana State were Jeff Epperly with 13 points, Brazier with 11 and Tony Hampton with 10.

Victory left MSU at 9-9 overall and 3-2 in the Big Sky. Idaho State fell into a first-place tie with Weber State at 5-1 in league. It is 0-2 overall.

BSU 81, Reno 69 (2 OT)

BOISE (AP) — Senior Forward Vince Hirschorn and junior Guard Mike Hazel teamed up for 10 points in a second overtime period to lead Boise State past Nevada-Reno 81-69 Thursday night.

Boise State evened its conference record at 2-2, and Reno lost its fourth straight game.

moved to 11-6 overall, while Nevada-Reno dropped to 1-4 in conference play and 8-10 overall.

Boise State controlled the tempo throughout most of regulation play, building a 56-47 lead with 6:40 remaining on the strength of inside play by forward Ray Hayes.

Late in the game, UNR nibbled away at the Bronco lead. High tethers the score at the end of regulation play, 61-61, with a twirling baseline jump shot at the buzzer.

In the first overtime period, Hayes and UNR's John Welch traded field goals, with eight seconds left, Hirschorn was fouled.

His first free throw bounced off the rim, and Bruce Bolden slammed a shot home to tie the score at 67-all as the buzzer sounded.

Boise State took control in the second overtime period as Hirschorn and Hazel put the game away for the Broncos.

Weber St. 67, Montana 59

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — Forward Randy Worster's 10-point effort propelled Weber State to a 67-59 Thursday night victory over Montana.

Worster had missed a 10-foot shot with 14 seconds left in regulation, but 6-foot-3 forward Charles Carradine tipped it in to give Weber a 49-47 lead.

Montana guard Marc Glass, who scored a season-high 23 points, drilled a 16-foot jumper with two seconds remaining to send the game into overtime.

Weber State, now 12-3 overall, pulled into a first place tie in the conference with Idaho State. Both are 3-1.

Montana, losing for the first time at home in 11 outings this season, fell to 15-3 and 3-2 in the Big Sky. It is tied with Montana State for third place.

Shawn Campbell kept Weber close throughout the first half on short jumpers over Montana's 6-foot-10 center Larry McBride. He also held McBride scoreless.

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Devin Durrant, the nation's leading collegiate scorer, tossed in 38 points to lead Brigham Young to a 74-61 victory over Wyoming in a regionally televised Western Athletic Conference game Thursday night.

Durrant scored 22 of his points in the first half. He was the only Cougar to put the ball in the basket during the final 10 minutes of that half, scoring 18 straight points.

Wyoming led briefly at 8-4 with 16:48 remaining in the first half and played a four-corner offense briefly.

In conference test, Castleford bombards Hagerman, 69-35

CASTLEFORD — Alan Sample and Rich Owen combined for 39 points Tuesday night as the third-ranked Castleford Wolves bombarded Hagerman Pirates 69-35 in a Magic Valley Conference contest.

Sample scored 22 points for the winners while Owen chipped in 17. Darren Howard added 12 points for the Wolves, who boosted their record to 9-0 in the conference.

Troy Rodgers led the Pirates' attack with 20 points. Castleford also won the preliminary game.

Carey 59, Bliss 49

CAREY — The Carey Panthers took control of the boards and control of the game Tuesday night as they defeated Bliss 59-49 in a Northside Conference contest.

The victory for the Panthers boosted their conference record to 7-0, while Bliss dropped to 4-3. Richie Graves had 25 points for the

Richfield 69, Gooding St. 42

GOODING — The Richfield Tigers held the Gooding State Indians to five points in the second period Tuesday night and cruised to a 69-42 Northside Conference victory.

Justin Bell led the Tigers' attack with 14 points while Terry Swainston added 13 points. Sam Weber had a pair of three-point goals and finished the game with 15 points for the Indians.

Skabronski aids Gooding morale

GOODING — Talk about a morale builder, Skabronski just last week struggled to get his season mark to the .500 level, using the 36-point scoring arm of Karla Skabronski to blow out Canyon Conference hopeful Declo 66-48 Thursday.

The league win reedies the Senators for Monday's district opener with Shoshone, a meeting set for 7 p.m.

Skabronski eclipsed by five her own school record for most points scored during a game.

That helped Gooding's Julie Clemens grab a game-high 15 rebounds, but didn't stop Declo's Lori Matthews from taking 12 of her own.

Wood River — Angela Kasperman staged a free-throw shooting clinic Thursday night, leading the Valley Vikings to a 63-30 victory over Glens Ferry's Pilots.

Kasperman hit 11 of 12 free throws for the night and eight straight in the first quarter as Valley kept taking the ball to the key and Glens Ferry kept fouling Kasperman.

By the end of the first period, Valley had a 16-5 lead and Glens Ferry was unable to seriously challenge.

Glens Ferry won the preliminary 30-25.

Carey 27, Bliss 20

CAREY — A Northside Conference game marred by turnovers ended with Carey taking home its seventh league victory, 27-20 over Bliss.

"It was a slow game," said Carey Coach Blaine Tingey. "There were a lot of turnovers, which was kind of surprising at this stage in the season."

Hitting double figures for the Panthers was Dedi Youren, with 11. High rebounding honors with 17 went to Ann Reid and Donna Young.

Tied at six in the first period, Carey headed it the locker room with a 16-10 halftime lead. The lead inflated to 10 by the end of the third eight-minute segment, putting the game out of reach of the hapless Bears.

Carey's victory ties it with Camas County for first seeding in Saturday's tournament at Fairchild.

FAIRFIELD — Salvaging a mostly lackluster affair, the Wood River Wolverines surged for 13 fourth-quarter points to topple the Camas County Musters 31-24 in a non-league contest Thursday night.

Wood River's Jack Wright led all scorers with 15 points, including seven of 10 from the free-throw line. Otherwise, not much could be said about the contest, according to Camas County Coach Ed Blankenship.

"Both teams were really flat," he said.

Castleford 34, Hagerman 31

CASTLEFORD — The Castleford Wolves held off a late rally by the Hagerman Pirates to take a 34-31 Magic Valley Conference victory.

The Wolves took a six-point lead at the half, but the Pirates battled back to tie the game at the end of the third quarter. Castleford outscored Hagerman 11-8 in the final period to take the victory.

The win boosted Castleford's conference mark to 6-4, while the Pirates fell to 1-9.

Jerome forged ahead in the final quarter, thanks to Crisk's and other players' charity shots. Dennett Fisher had 10 points for the Tigers, who benefited from balanced scoring, as four other players tallied six points or more. Knigge paced all

The top 10 men and women players from each of the clubs will participate. The event is scheduled from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., with women's finals slated for 3 p.m. and men's finals for 4.

The public is invited to attend.

Gilbert continues win string

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Second-year pro Brad Gilbert continued a string of upsets at the $375,000 U.S. Pro Indoor Tennis Championships by defeating ninth-seeded Johan Kriek 7-6, 6-2 in a third-round match Thursday.

Gilbert, playing the South African for the first time, blew three set points in the first-set tiebreaker before winning 11-7-4.

Fourth-seeded Jimmy Arias and No. 11 seed Tomas Smid of Czechoslovakia advanced to the quarterfinals by surviving three-set matches Thursday afternoon. Unseeded Wojtek Fibak of Poland was also victorious.

Bradley, Rizzo vie in classic

DEERFIELD BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Defending champion Pat Bradley and challenger Pat Rizzo each fired a 5-under par 67 and shared a one-stroke lead Thursday after the first round of the Mazda Classic of Deer Creek golf tournament.

Tied for second at 68 in the $200,000 event, the opener of the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, were Sharon Barrett, Brenda Goldsmith, Myra Van Hoose and Sally Little.

Bradley, a 10-year pro who finished as the Mazda series leader last year, missed a chance for sole possession of the top spot when she bogeyed the 18th hole.

Veterans enter re-entry draft

NEW YORK (AP)—Veterans Enos Cabell and Oscar Gamble have gone through the secondary phase of baseball's re-entry draft with fewer than four major league clubs expressing interest in them and now are free to negotiate with any team, the commissioner's office said Thursday.

Cabell, a first baseman-third baseman, batted .311 with five home runs and 46 runs batted in during 121 games for the Detroit Tigers last year, while Gamble, an outfielder-designated hitter, hit .261 with seven homers and 28 RBI in 74 games for the New York Yankees.

MVP Ripken joins ranks in arbitration

NEW YORK (AP)—Shortstop Cal Ripken Jr. of the Baltimore Orioles, the American League's most valuable player last year, joined the list of major league players filing for salary arbitration Thursday.

But his agent and the club were optimistic that the two parties would come to an agreement.

Ripken joined a group of more than 70 players who filed for arbitration before Thursday's midnight deadline.

Among the others previously filing were 1983 American League Cy Young Award winner LaMarr Hoyt of the Chicago White Sox, 22-game winner Rich Dotson of the White Sox, AL batting champion Wade Boggs of the Boston Red Sox, AL base-stealing champion Rickey Henderson of the Oakland A's, relief pitchers Steve Howe of the Los Angeles Dodgers and Jesse Orosco of the New York Mets, third baseman Pedro Guerrero of the Los Angeles Dodgers, and first baseman Kent Hrbek of the Minnesota Twins and Willie Upshaw of the Toronto Blue Jays.

Under the binding arbitration system, a player and his team submit a salary figure and present their cases before an arbitrator who chooses either number, with no compromise allowed. The date of the arbitration hearing, which must be mutually agreed upon by both sides, must fall between Feb. 1 and Feb. 20.

However, a player may sign before his scheduled hearing date.

That is expected to be the case with Ripken.

His agent, Ron Shapiro, and Orioles General Manager Hank Peters said they were optimistic that Ripken's dispute would not have to go to arbitration.

Ripken earned an estimated $200,000 with the Orioles last season, his second full year in the majors, when he led the American League in hits with 211, in doubles with 47, in extra base hits with 78 and in runs scored with 121. He also batted .318 with 27 home runs and 102 runs batted in for the World Series champion.

It has been estimated that Ripken will be paid more than $3 million in a four-year contract.

"We're close, but not there yet," said Peters.

Ripken's signing apparently will determine Boggs' asking price.

Boggs, who batted .361 for the Red Sox last season, earned a reported $110,000 in 1983. He apparently is waiting to see what Ripken gets before deciding what he will ask in his new contract.

Meanwhile, one player who had filed for arbitration, first baseman/outfielder Danny Heep, signed a one-year contract with the New York Mets. Heep batted .253 in 1983 and led the major leagues in pinch-hit home runs with four. The financial terms of his contract were not disclosed.

Floyd conquers his 'nemesis' with 8-under-par

SAN DIEGO (AP)—Ray Floyd conquered the course he called "my nemesis" with an 8-under-par 64 and assumed one-stroke control Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 Kenny-Andy Williams San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

The veteran-Floyd, twice a PGA champion and once a Masters titleholder, played without a bogey and without a 5 on his card in his effort over the North course at Torrey Pines.

The 6,667-yard layout is the shorter and easier of the two courses used for the first two rounds of this event, but it's also a troublesome track.

"Over the years, it's been my nemesis," Floyd said. "I've lost this tournament in playoffs two times. And that was after playing the north in '83 and '82. And if you're playing well, you feel like 68 is about par there."

"If you expect to do well in the tournament, you feel you have to have a really good round there," he said.

The 156-man field plays one round on each of the two par-72 courses before the field is cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday at the 7,002-yard South course, which winds down to cliffs overlooking the Pacific and is more exposed to the winds.

Gary McCord and Brad Bryant, a pair of journeymen seeking their first titles, were a single stroke off the pace at 65. Both played the North.

Bryant benefitted from what he called "my best putting round in six or seven years," while McCord made most of his score with birdies on all the par-5 holes.

Loren Roberts, with a 66, was the only one of the first-day leaders who played the South—and he had to score his career-first hole-in-one to get there. Roberts' ace came on a 3-iron shot that trickled into the cup on the 18th.

Also at 66 were Gibby Gilbert, Don Pooley, Chip Beck and Steve Liebler. Fuzzy Zoeller, who scored his first professional victory in this event, had a 67 on the North.

Craig Stadler and Tom Watson, winner of the first event of the season and twice a San Diego champion, had 68s. Watson played the North, Stadler the South.

Johnny Miller, with a 72 on the North, and Lanny Wadkins, with a 73 on the South, were well back.

Major deals perk early in off-season

By KEN MURRAY
The Baltimore Evening Sun

If this is the off-season, then it must be time to contemplate a few trade rumors, right? Sure enough, a week in Tampa has cultivated three prospective major deals:

San Diego running back James Brooks for Buffalo nose tackle Fred Smerlas. Assuming the Bills can't prevent Joe Cribbs from defecting to Birmingham and the USFL, they need a running back. Brooks apparently fell in disfavor with the Chargers when he refused to return punts in a game against St. Louis. And everybody knows the Chargers need defensive help.

Tampa Bay tight end Jimmie Giles for New Orleans' No. 1 draft choice. The Bucs have been shopping Giles around with the asking price of a first-round pick. The Saints are thinking more along the lines of a second-rounder.

Houston fullback Earl Campbell for Washington defensive end Dexter Manley. Reportedly, the Oilers already have rejected this trade — they don't think Manley plays as well as he talks. Campbell, meanwhile, would be an interesting addition to the Redskins, who have John Riggins. Even with new coach Hugh Campbell on the scene, Campbell still wants out: "I'm tired of hearing every week how I'm washed up, too dumb to read holes — can't block, can't catch the football."

HERSCHEL WALKER
Swift clocking over 40

Turns out new Bengal Coach Sam Wyche was willing in the wings when Forrest Gregg split for Green Bay last month. Cincinnati General Manager Paul Brown admitted he'd been thinking of Wyche even before Gregg left. "We knew what we were going to do and we've known it for quite a while," Brown said. "We knew Sam was going to be the first guy we talked to the next time we had an opening."

Quarterback Jim Finkelstein was good enough to win his second Super Bowl for the Raiders this season, but a few years ago, he wasn't good enough to help the Colts. Ted Marchibroda turned thumbs down on Finkelstein after a tryout and settled instead for the famous Jerry Golsteyn. Hanging out to every penny he can, Tampa Bay owner Hugh Culverhouse photocopied Christmas cards to his employees this year. Speaking of generosity, irascible Colt owner Bob Irsay hasn't given his office help a raise in three years.

Redskin Mark Moseley on why he feels more a part of the team than most placekickers: "I speak English." ... The pressure is on general manager Ladd Herzog in Houston, where Oiler fans still haven't forgotten — nor forgiven — the Bum Phillips firing. Herschel Walker was clocked at 4.22 and 4.25 in the 40-yard dash at the New Jersey Generals' training camp this week.

Washington Federal's starting center, Tony Lolo, a bust as a Colt draft pick in 1982, checked into the Fed's training camp at a robust 331 pounds. Georgia Frontiere, owner of the LA Rams, instructed coach John Robinson to trim down in order to enhance the organization's image. Hub?

Tight end Dan Ross is trying to get out of his Louisiana Breakers' contract and the USFL club is willing to oblige. Trouble is, Ross wants an NFL team — preferably New England — to match his USFL contract, which isn't likely. Ross, whose hometown is Everett, Mass., played the last five years in Cincinnati. Asked about his dislike for lifting weights, Raider linebacker Ted Hendricks replied, "I lift, but only for physical appearance so I don't look bad at the beach." ... Cut by the Colts last season, Zach Dixon went on to lead the NFL with 1,171 yards in kickoff returns for Seattle. All but two kicks for 23 yards were for the Seahawks.

With Cliff Studd gone to the USFL, Terry Bradshaw is limbo until at least June 1 with a sore arm and Mark Malone gimping on a bad knee, the Steelers are said to be interested in quarterback Matt Cavanaugh of San Francisco and Jim Zorn of the Seahawks. Naas Botha, the South African rugby hero who had a tryout as a punter with the Cowboys last summer, may get a chance to placekick for the Patriots. The LA Rams are dangling former first-round draft pick Barry Redden, a running back, for trade. They want a No. 1 in return. Miami Coach Don Shula was less than pleased with the play of linebackers A.J. Duhe and Earnie Rhone this season.

Olson heads field in Millrose games

Track

NEW YORK (AP) — Billy Olson, confident that he can regain the world indoor best in the pole vault without burning himself out during the indoor season, heads a strong entry list in the 77th Wanamaker Millrose Games tonight at Madison Square Garden.

"I know I can get the record back," Olson said of the indoor best of 19 feet, three-quarters of an inch set by Sergey Bubka of the Soviet Union Jan. 14. Olson had held the mark of 19-0 1/2 since last year when he became the first vaulter to clear 19 feet indoors, at Toronto.

"I know I can jump higher than that," Olson said, referring to Bubka's leap.

This year, Olson has been slow untracking. He no-heightened in his first two meets in Canada, then cleared 18-3/4 last Friday night at Los Angeles and 18-0 1/2 Saturday night at Johnson City, Tenn.

At Los Angeles, however, he took three shots at 19-1, and on at least one attempt, he appeared to be several inches over the bar, but knocked it off on his way down.

"I have been experiencing timing and technique problems at the top of my jumps," explained Olson. "My timing has been just a little off and my technique is not yet as good as it should be. But it felt good to get that kind of lift."

The bearded Olson enjoys vaulting indoors more than competing outdoors. He has won the Mobil-USA Indoor Grand Prix title each of the past two years and is defending champion in the Millrose Games.

"I get moved as soon as I walk into an arena," said Olson, who is called "Indoor Billy" and "The Wooden Villager."

"I hear the crowd and they seem to relate to me — I'm going at the indoor season as preparation for the Olympics (at Los Angeles July 28-Aug. 12)," added Olson.

He is not planning, however, to go at it as strenuously as in the past, having cut his schedule from 12 meets to nine. He does not want to be burned out for the Olympics.

In the 1980 U.S. Olympic Trials, he finished fifth at 18-0 1/2 and did not make the "hacker" Olympic team that didn't participate in the Moscow Games because of the boycott ordered by President Carter.

"I just choked," he admitted. "I made 17-6 by a mile and 18 feet by a mile, but when the bar got up higher, I was just missing, somehow, somehow. I don't want that to happen again. Making the Olympic team is No. 1 on my agenda this year."

The pole vault promises to be one of the most competitive events in the Millrose Games. In addition to Olson, the field includes Americans Earl Bell, Dan Ripley, Mike Tully, Jeff Buckingham, Brad Pursley, Dave Volk, Joe Dial, Dave Kenworthy, Jeff Ward and Dale Jenkins, plus Pierre Quinon and Patrick Abada of France, and Felix Bohni of Switzerland.

The meet's entry list also includes six gold medalists from last year's World Track and Field Championships — Carl Lewis (long jump), Calvin Smith and Emmitt King (60-yard dash), Greg Foster (60-yard high hurdles), Bert Cameron of Jamaica (400-meter dash), and Ingrid Auerswald of East Germany (women's 60-yard dash).

Lawyer sees interest conflict in Sims signing

DETROIT (AP) — Prominent sports attorney Robert Woolf of Boston testified Thursday that Jerry Argovitz had a clear conflict of interest when he signed Detroit Lions running back Billy Sims to the Houston Gamblers.

Argovitz is a part owner and president of the Gamblers.

Woolf's testimony came in a trial before U.S. District Judge Robert E. DeMascio that will determine whether Sims will continue to play for the National Football League's Detroit Lions or go to the Gamblers, an expansion team in the United States Football League.

Sims signed contracts with both teams last year, but has said he now prefers to remain in Detroit.

The 1978 Heisman Trophy winner is suing the Gamblers and Argovitz, who was Sims' agent at the time the former University of Oklahoma star signed with the Gamblers. Sims' current attorneys are trying to show that the Houston contract, signed July 1, should be voided because Argovitz was in conflict of interest and negligent in his representation of the running back.

Woolf, who has negotiated more than 1,800 contracts for 400 athletes in virtually every sport in America, testified as an expert witness. Prior to his appearance on the stand, Woolf had been permitted to study a packet of material related to the case.

The material included letters in early June between Lions attorney Frederick C. Nash and Argovitz, an offer from Argovitz to the Lions which defined a comprehensive offer, a copy of the July 1 contract Sims signed with the Gamblers, a July 8 letter from Nash to Argovitz and the Dec. 16 contract Sims signed with the Lions.

Marvin Smith, a partner of Sims' chief attorney, Elbert Hatchett, asked Woolf if the evidence indicated the Lions had been dragging their feet in negotiations prior to the time Sims signed with the Gamblers.

"It looks to me like the Lions made a bona fide offer," Woolf replied. "It's obvious (from copies of the correspondence) they are coming together. They were quite far apart, then by June 22 they are quite close together and appear almost in agreement."

"What they asked is almost what the Lions offered."

In earlier testimony, Argovitz disclosed that he collected a $3,900 finder's fee in return for investing $156,000 of Sims' money in two Houston building projects in 1981. He also collected a $175,000 signing fee from Sims after the contract was reached with the Gamblers.

Woolf said he considered both of those actions to be a conflict of interest.

"Ordinarily, a fee is not taken from the client until the client has earned the money," Woolf testified. "I would say it is frowned upon. It's possible the player would get hurt and not even earn his money. I would say it's abnormal."

Asked about the ethics of Argovitz acting both as owner and agent, Woolf said:

"I think that would be a flagrant conflict of interest. You can't serve two masters. I think you'd have to disqualify yourself."

Woolf said he thought it would be important to tell a player of any possible conflict, and said such disclosure should be full — including salary, percent of ownership and participation of income.

THE ACES™ BOBBY WOLFF

"In three words I can sum up everything I've learned about life: It goes on."
Robert Frost.

It takes four words to sum up everything I've learned about bridge. People go down unnecessarily. West led his club ace and led a club to dummy's king, refusing to break any new suits for South. South played the jack and ace of trumps and then played his diamond nine to dummy's king. A losing diamond finesse came, next and South lost two hearts, a club and a diamond for one down. South could have assured his game by forcing West into an embarrassing lead. After drawing trumps, ending in dummy, South should lead a diamond to his jack. This loses to West's queen, but all is well. West has no safe exit, losing a trick regardless of what he leads. If he leads a heart, he gets only the ace, while a diamond surrenders three diamond tricks via a free
