Winds fuel firestorms

By DAVID L. LANGFORD
The Associated Press

Santa Ana winds gusting to hurricane velocity Friday fanned flames through the brushlands of California where at least 24 homes burned, 110 were evacuated and half a million lost electricity in two days of firestorms.

The hot, dry winds blowing out of the desert at up to 100 mph toppled trees, flipped trucks on their side and ripped down power lines. At least three people were killed, including the driver of a van that was hurled several hundred feet over a cliff, a Yosemite park worker who was crushed by a tree and a man who was electrocuted by a downed power line.

High wind warnings also were posted Friday on the eastern slopes of the Rockies. Winds were clocked at 62 mph at Big Timber, Mont., and 70 mph at Cut Bank, Mont.

In the Pacific Northwest, where hundreds of people have been out of their homes in a week of flooding, rain and snow melting in warm temperatures dumped more water into the swollen rivers.

In California, where winds gusted to more than 90 mph during the night at Laguna Peak, about 45 miles southeast of Los Angeles, several fires burned out of control after charring more than 2,000 acres.

Water-dropping helicopters lifted off at dawn to take a stand against one that had burned over 640 acres and destroyed or damaged 18 homes about 15 miles north of Los Angeles near Pasadena's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Los Angeles County Fire Capt. Gordon Pearson said that fire also forced the evacuation of 20 homes and was headed toward a line of expensive houses in the La Canada-Flintridge area.

"One of the houses is about half gone," he said. "On one of them, only the walls are still left."

Claude Norhill, 54, who managed to save his home in La Canada, said, "There were embers and sparks flying around like hell."

In Rancho Cucamonga, winds gusting to 80 mph spread fires that destroyed three houses and two mobile homes early Friday in the hilly area 30 miles east of Los Angeles. Two hours later, a fire at the Pines Mobile Home Park destroyed two mobile homes, three cars, a motorcycle and some outbuildings.

Foothill fire district Capt. Richard

Feurstein said two civilians were injured in the fires and several firefighters were overcome by smoke.

In Modjeska Canyon, east of Orange, 80 homes were evacuated as more than 440 firefighters tried to circle a fire that had blackened 1,100 acres. By Friday morning officials said the fire was 80 percent contained.

Joyce Rickman, a resident of Modjeska Canyon, said she saw the fire start near where prison inmates had been burning off brush.

"I saw it on the edge and said, 'My God, it's going to take off,' and it did. It became a full-blown firestorm."

About 500 residents of Pinescrest, a vacation area 130 miles east of San Francisco, were isolated by downed trees and power outages Thursday. Falling trees damaged at least three dwellings and a ski lodge.

House passes an amendment

By QUANE KENYON
AP Capital Writer

BOISE — A conflict between the state and federal constitutions — which has made it almost impossible to redistrict the Idaho Legislature without long political hassles — may be on its way out.

The House voted Friday 49-19 for a proposed constitutional amendment to resolve that conflict. And if the Senate does the same, Idaho voters in November will be asked to give their approval.

A rural legislator, Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, sponsored the resolution and said it will give "a realistic approach" to ease the redistricting battles which have raged since 1965.

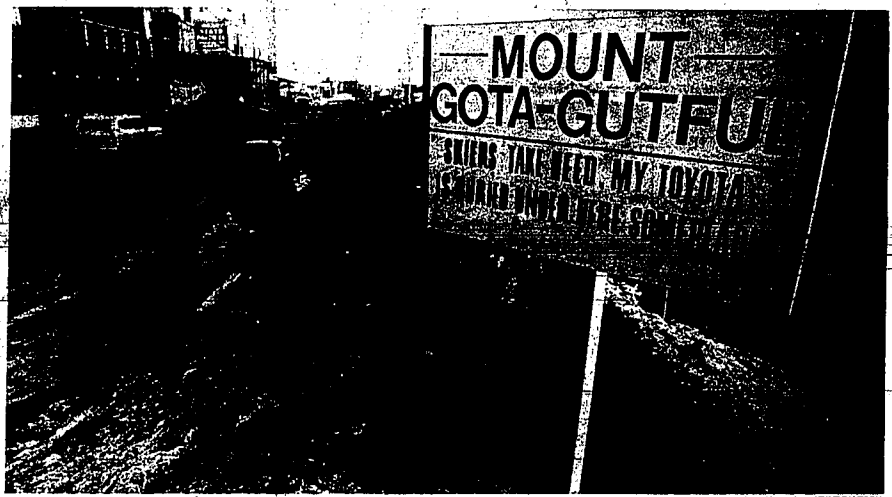

Some 40 Republicans joined nine Democrats to pass the resolution. Opposing were 18 Republicans and nine Democrats. It will take 24 votes from the 35-member Senate for approval, a two-thirds majority.

The House count was two votes more than the 47 needed for approval. Most Ada County House members voted against the resolution. The exceptions were Lyman Gene Winchester, James Golder and Gary Montgomery. Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey was absent.

The Legislature this year has been working on a new redistricting plan to replace a 1982 plan ruled unconstitutional by 1st District Judge Dar Cogswell. And Cogswell invalidated the plan mainly because it divided counties between legislative districts. Sessions said the constitutional change will not affect this year's

Trade imbalance a dismal situation

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — America's trade deficit soared to a record $39.4 billion in 1983, the government reported Friday.

One analyst said the problem already has cost the nation more than a million jobs, and federal and private economists alike feared the imbalance will top $100 billion this year.

The trade deficit last year was 62 percent higher than the record $24.7 billion set in 1982, and would have been even worse had not oil prices declined, the Commerce Department said.

The trade situation looked bleak all over. In the important category of manufactured goods, the deficit hit $38.2 billion, almost four times what it was in 1982 and a category where the United States was running a surplus in 1981.

The nation posted a record $21 billion trade deficit with Japan — traditionally the country which contributes the most to the U.S. imbalance. But America also ran up a $1.6 billion deficit with the countries of the European Common Market, the first such deficit since 1972.

For December, the overall trade deficit narrowed to $8.3 billion from November's $7.4 billion, but analysts attributed the improvement to two temporary factors — a dip in oil imports and a surge in aircraft sales

Prosecutor finds problems at hospital

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

GOODING — Irregularities in the administration and purchasing practices of Gooding County Memorial Hospital constitute "technical violations" of Idaho law, says Gooding County Prosecutor John Arkoosh.

But "at this point in time, we are going to decline to prosecute," Arkoosh said Friday.

The prosecutor's comments came at the conclusion of an investigation into the hospital's purchasing and administrative procedures — an investigation carried out in part before a magistrate's court of inquiry, a special legal proceeding. But the hospital's problems are not confined to technical violations of the law, Arkoosh says.

The facility is in arrears on more than $300,000 in accounts payable, he said Friday, and the hospital is running at least a month behind paying its bills, he says.

"We're looking at the options to get that deficit financed," he says. "Legally, we're supposed to close it down."

Arkoosh says that although purchases by the hospital and the county commissioners have violated the state's purchasing laws, the violations were not the result of criminal intent — an element required for successful prosecution.

Specifically, Arkoosh says that the hospital or the county committed technical violations of state purchasing laws when:

• The county commissioners purchased a building in Wendell for $42,000 without securing three appraisals. He says the commissioners also violated the law by failing to record the transaction in the minutes of a commission meeting.

• The hospital acted as its own contractor, spending another $30,000 on the building for renovation and remodeling, without securing bids.

• The hospital purchased a Wendell medical practice, including its accounts receivable, from Dr. Douglas Smith.

Arkoosh says the hospital's failure to secure a lease agreement from the Sisters of St. Benedict for the Walker Center does not violate state law. But he says not securing a lease does not reflect well on the board's ability to administer the hospital.

"They (the Walker Center) have as much right to be there as you or I would if we went out and built a

RONALD REAGAN Should he or shouldn't he?

There are good reasons for Reagan not to run

By JAMES GERSTENZANG
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Pretend for a moment Ronald Reagan really hasn't decided whether to run for re-election. He could find ample reasons to go either way.

All signs indicate that he will tell the nation in a five-minute televised speech Sunday night that he wants to stay in the White House four more years. The only surprise would be if he didn't.

Why wouldn't he run? There are some arguments he might make to himself.

First, Reagan will be 73 years old on Feb. 8. That would mean that should he serve a full second term, he would be nearly 78 years old when he leaves office.

His re-election would mean that the next four years, when most people his age are retired, and perhaps in declining health, would be spent in what is considered one of the most demanding jobs in the world.

Should he step down, he and his wife could have the considerable perquisites of former White House residents while living a life of retirement in California, without any of the responsibilities of Washington.

There are other reasons — some with undertones of possibly affecting how history books will be written — that could cut both ways.

Proud of the fact that no country has turned communist during his watch over the presidency, Reagan is facing an uncertain situation in Central America, with no clear indication that the government in El Salvador will be able to withstand the pressure of the left-wing guerrillas. That challenge, of course, could lead Reagan to stick it out for another four years to put his stamp on the resolution of the conflict.

In the Middle East, he has claimed genuine progress in moving toward his goal of a stable Lebanon able to stand on its own, free of foreign forces. But an end to the deployment of the U.S. Marines is not in sight. Should the president decide to retire, he might just remove the issue of Lebanon from the U.S. political campaign.

Ditto arms control. With his advisers convinced that the Soviets would prefer to deal with any candidate other than Reagan, progress on arms control in 1984 is considered unlikely. Negotiations with the Soviet Union over reducing medium-range nuclear-tipped missiles in Europe and long-range, strategic nuclear weapons in the U.S. and Soviet arsenals have broken down, with no signs that they will become unstuck again.

The president could step away from the political race and focus on the relationship of the superpowers.

If Reagan looks at his record with the House and Senate and where it might be headed, he could also decide to bow out. His honeymoon, longer than that of most presidents, helped him win the budget and tax cuts he sought during his first year in office, but his track record has not been as good in recent months. Should the Democrats make gains in the Senate, and hold

Ex-official denies leaking data

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former high Interior Department official Friday denied a report that he gave confidential data to a coal company attorney before the sale of leases in Wyoming's Powder River Basin.

David Russell, who at the time of the sale in April 1982 was the deputy assistant secretary in charge of coal matters, testified before the Commission on Fair Market Value Policy for Federal Coal Leasing that "I did not discuss the numbers with anyone in the private sector nor did I confirm numbers suggested to me."

Reagan batting average scored

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressmen Democrats issued a 116-page political scorecard on Friday that gives President Reagan a "batting average of a mere .20" when it comes to keeping his promises and makes clear they will hold him to that assertion all along the 1984 campaign trail.

"America's basic industries — steel, auto, textiles, and others — have experienced the worst slump in 50 years and are still operating at greatly diminished capacity, despite one year of supposed recovery."

Bipartisan solution sought on deficits

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan declared Friday that he was serious about bipartisan talks to find ways to trim $100 billion from federal budget deficits, and was not engaged in "political posturing" to trap Democrats in an election year.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ind., questioned whether the Democrats really want to negotiate a reduction in deficits. The Democrats insisted, in response, that they want to see some specifics before making any commitments.

"During a White House breakfast meeting with House Republicans, the president said, 'I want you and your Democratic colleagues to know that I'm serious about negotiating a down payment on the deficit. This is not a political posturing, as some suggested.'"

Reagan also insisted he would not limit the areas of discussion. "I'm not ruling anything out as being in the border of legitimate debate," the president said. "But I do think that we should try to concentrate on the less contentious issues. If we all focus on what's do-able, we can get something done for the American people."

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said administration officials will "go into these discussions without any preconceived notions. ... We're looking for agreement. We're not playing politics, we're looking for agreement."

However, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. and Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd, D-W.Va., have declared they will not enter discussions until they have seen the new fiscal 1985 budget proposals that Reagan will send to Congress next Wednesday, and bear specific suggestions for budget savings from administration officials.

"If there's any substance behind the smoke, we want to see it," said Christopher Matthews, spokesman for O'Neill.

In addition, the Democrats have said the president must be willing to discuss tax increases and cuts in military spending, which Reagan has adamantly opposed.

Asked whether Reagan is ruling out any kind of tax increase, Speakes replied, "The president is talking about (excluding) tax increases that would do harm to the recovery."

Japanese trade trouble target of talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe, seeking to bolster "the most important bilateral relationship in the world," told President Reagan Friday that Japan will strive for substantial progress on nagging trade and economic problems over the next few months.

Reagan and Vice President George Bush both warned Abe that Congress may pass protectionist legislation to curtail Japanese exports to the United States unless solutions are found.

Abe and Bush, according to Japanese officials, told Abe it is important progress be made quickly to avoid the emergence of U.S.-Japanese trade disputes as issues in this year's U.S. presidential election campaign.

On another matter, it was learned that U.S. officials want to explore with Abe the possibility of using Japan as a confidential channel for sending private messages to the warring leaders of Iran and Iraq. In connection with that war, Abe relayed a message

President Reagan meets with Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe from Iran's revolutionary government that "unless the vital interests of Iran are damaged, they are ready to assure safe navigation in the Persian Gulf," reported Yoshio Karita, a spokesman for the Japanese foreign ministry. American officials have expressed concern that the long and bitter war between Iran and Iraq might spill over into the oil-rich gulf region. Japan and the United States are major consumers of Persian Gulf oil. On the issue of trade between Japan and the United States, Japanese quotas on the import of U.S. beef and citrus fruits have become a symbolic issue for many U.S. officials seeking to gain open access for U.S. products to Japanese markets. Karita told reporters at the end of a full day of meetings that Abe told Bush during a working lunch at Blair House that Japan will aim to settle that dispute or make "substantive progress" on it by the expiration of the current agreement in March. But he said the foreign minister stressed repeatedly to Reagan, Bush, Secretary of State George Shultz and other officials that Japan also is seeking "flexibility" from the United States in arriving at settlement of the issues between the two nations.

Baker fuels prayer bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., Friday introduced a constitutional amendment to allow prayer in public schools and other public buildings.

"I believe that being able to pray in schools is a fundamental right that should be enjoyed by all children. I do not wish to force anyone to hold any religious beliefs. I only seek to allow those children to pray who wish to," Baker said.

President Reagan called for such an amendment in his State of the Union message Wednesday night.

A constitutional amendment requires a two-thirds majority vote by both houses of Congress and must be ratified by 38, or two-thirds, of the states.

Baker introduced the same school prayer amendment in 1981. It received a two-thirds vote in the Senate, but not in the House.

Two other school prayer amendments are pending in the Senate. Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., has a proposal which would allow oral prayer, but prohibit the government from writing an approved prayer.

Sen. Orrin G. Hatch, R-Utah, has proposed allowing payment of silence or meditation in schools.

The U.S. Supreme Court prohibited worship in public schools in decisions in 1962 and 1963.

State worried about parolee

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The state Attorney General's office said Friday it may ask corrections officials to review the imminent parole of a convicted murderer who said he can't guarantee he won't kill again.

"We are looking into the matter ... trying to determine if evidence exists that would support a judicial effort to keep him in prison," said Assistant Attorney General Steve White said of Theodore Strelaski.

"Earlier, a spokesman for the state Corrections Department in Sacramento said Strelaski will be freed on schedule.

"No matter what he says or feels, there's no way the prison system can keep him in," said spokesman Phil Guthrie. "Once he has served that time, he gets out and automatically becomes a parolee."

Strelaski's hammer murder in August 1978 of a Stanford professor, partly because the teacher had laughed at his wing-tipped shoes, caused considerable outrage. Now, he is renewing the furor with a series of interviews in which he says he is "noncommittal on whether I will go back to Stanford and kill again."

"You can hypothesize any number of situations in which any human being could kill another," Strelaski, 47, told the San Jose Mercury News while in Soladod Prison. "I can't reassure you I won't kill Reagan ..."

"You kill one time to make a point. You don't make twice the point by killing twice. It's an 85 percent-15 percent thing. You get most of the effect on the first shot," he said.

15-year-old witness in custody for 10 months

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — A 15-year-old girl has been in custody for 10 months as a witness in a child-molestation case and may be held for the rest of the year to protect her life and prevent her from fleeing, a prosecutor said Friday.

The girl, who was not identified, is believed to be in jeopardy because of a death threat made against her and a prosecutor in the case, said Orange County Deputy District Attorney James Rellity.

The teen-ager, whose parents and four brothers live in Lake Elsinore in neighboring Riverside County, "has a history of being a runaway. She had run away (from home) at least six times," he said.

Attorney Marshall Schulman, representing one of the defendants, has contended the girl has been held illegally and should be freed. Rellity denies the accusation.

Although protective custody is occasionally used to ensure the safety of witnesses, this case is unusual because of the girl's age and the length of time she has been held.

The teen-ager is being held as a material witness in a 156-count felony case against six men accused of sex and perversion crimes involving her and another girl, now 18.

Rellity said he doesn't expect those cases to be over until the end of 1984. The prosecution and defense are now arguing pretrial motions.

The girl soon will be moved from Orange County Juvenile Hall, where she has been held since March, to an undisclosed location out of state. She will return when it is time to testify.

He said a defendant, Nicholas Scollard, 61, told an undercover officer in jail last month that he and his associates were considering killing the girl and Deputy District Attorney Jan Sturia, who was prosecuting the case at the time.

Union pay hikes low

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 3 million workers whose wages were negotiated by unions in 1983 accepted contracts limiting pay raises to an average 2.8 percent over the next two or three years, making them the lowest settlements on record, the government said Friday.

In the first year of the new contracts signed by unions and management, the average pay boost was 2.8 percent, the most since the 10 years the Bureau of Labor Statistics has kept those records.

The pattern of shrinking wage increases that has characterized collective bargaining settlements for two years continued in 1983, even though the economy was recovering from a deep, 18-month recession.

The Labor Department report followed by one day the collapse of talks in Los Angeles aimed at settling a strike involving Continental Airlines and the Air Line Pilots Association.

Last fall, in another transportation industry dispute, the Almgarnated Transit Union struck Greyhound Lines Inc. before the union accepted a settlement slashing the wages of 13,900 drivers, mechanics and terminal workers by 7.8 percent over three years. The workers had been asked to take a pay cut of more than 9 percent.

The average annual first-year increase of 2.6 percent reported for last year was well below the 3.6 percent annual rate of inflation in 1983.

However, about two-thirds of the 3 million union members achieved labor settlements that will improve their paychecks in the final one or two years of the contracts, the report said.

Hookers plan national meet

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Prostitutes from around the nation plan to hold a convention here through days before the Democratic National Convention starts to publicize the increased violence they say they are suffering on the streets.

The 50 to 100 prostitutes who plan to attend the Second International Hookers' Convention on July 13 will lobby the Democrats for the legalization of the oldest profession, said Margo St. James, founder of COYOTE, a prostitutes' rights group.

COYOTE is an acronym for Cast Off Your Old Tired Ethic.

As a way to personalize their cause during the Democratic convention July 16-20, St. James said Bay area prostitutes will offer "alternative housing, particularly to women delegates — so we can informally lobby them."

For $10 a night, the prostitutes will provide delegates a room in their own homes. The delegates must provide their own sleeping bags, Ms. St. James said.

Student games upset public

SEATTLE (AP) — Officials of Seattle University have shot down a campus game called KAOS, or "Killing As an Organized Sport."

The game, in which squirt gun-armed players commit mock "assassinations" of other players, was aimed at increasing student activity on campus. But Aric Schwab, secretary vice president of SU's associated students and a prime backer of KAOS, met with school officials Thursday and they agreed to end the game.

The game began Wednesday with 109 students playing. But more than 60 people called the school to oppose it.

The game is being played at a number of other campuses nationwide. In Washington state, KAOS has been played at the University of Washington and Pacific Lutheran University.

Schwab said a public forum on KAOS will be held Thursday at the library auditorium to discuss the game. He said it might be modified and resumed after that.

Husband of slain American certain killers were rebels

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The husband of an American woman shot to death on a highway in war-torn eastern San Salvador said Friday he had "no doubt" the killers were left-wing rebels.

Curtis Henderson Lewenz, a 35-year-old mechanic from California, referred to the incident as an ambush.

He told a news conference he was driving the couple's converted school bus and slowed down when he saw two men with rifles at the side of the road, but did not stop until shots were fired.

Linda Louise Cancel, 22, of Culver City, Calif., was killed in the attack Thursday morning by a single bullet in the right side of the chest. Lewenz, Ms. Cancel, her two young children and a Salvadoran customs agent were en route to Costa Rica when the shooting occurred on a stretch of the Pan American Highway known as the Military Route.

"The guerrillas, oh yes, they did it — I have no doubt," Lewenz said when asked if the killers were rebels.

His news conference was held at the home of a U.S. Embassy official.

"I started to go down the hill and I noticed on the left two young guys," he said. "They were wearing the kind of shirt that you see in Vietnam, a camouflage shirt, and they were carrying rifles."

"And the police (the customs agent) in the car said 'Despacio' — which means go slowly — and then I went slowly. At that point, three or four shots rang out very quickly. My wife was shot, and then the policeman got very excited and said 'Stop.'"

Lewenz said he and the agent got out of the vehicle and saw a third, older man with "a very ugly face" approach with a rifle. "I said in Spanish, 'Usted-mata-mi-esposa. Porque?' — and my Spanish as you can see is Spanish." That phrase translates as, "You kill my wife. Why?"

The man did not respond, only pointing his rifle, Lewenz said, and he returned to the bus and quickly drove away. No one else was injured in the incident.

Ms. Cancel was pronounced dead at El Amatillo, 23 miles from the site of the shooting, by a Roman Catholic priest who gave her last rites. U.S. Embassy officials said she had died shortly after being shot.

Report says Vatican aided Nazis

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department on Friday made public a formerly top secret report alleging that Vatican officials helped Nazis escape from Europe after World War II.

The report, which was dated in 1947, said the Vatican's motives apparently were "the propagation of the faith" and that church officials asked few questions of those they helped.

"It is the Vatican's desire to assist any person, regardless of nationality or political beliefs, as long as that person can prove himself to be a Catholic," it said.

The report was prepared by a former U.S. diplomat in Rome, Vincent La Vista. It was recently declassified by the State Department and given Friday to reporters who requested it.

Officials, who insisted on anonymity, said they didn't know what, if any, follow-up action was taken as a result of the report. La Vista left the U.S. foreign service in 1949, according to State Department records.

The report said the Vatican was "the largest single organization involved in the illegal movement of emigrants" after World War II, assisting a wide variety of persons, including German Nazis and Italian fascists.

Among those who were helped by the Vatican, La Vista wrote, was a person he described as "the notorious Dr. Nix," identified elsewhere in the report as Willy Nix, head of the Free German Committee in Rome and well-known as a Nazi smuggler.

Sandinista warns of attack

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega, in a radio address to the nation, said election plans here were being used by the United States as a cover for a "massive invasion" that could come "at any minute."

"The theme of the upcoming elections is being used by the United States to distract the attention of the people, with the objective of launching an invasion against Nicaragua and El Salvador at any moment," Ortega said.

Ortega, head of the ruling three-man junta, made the comments Thursday night on the "Face the People" radio program.

He said Nicaragua's main problem is "not the elections," but military intervention.

The Sandinista government has claimed repeatedly that the United States and its Central American allies plan to attack Nicaragua, and those assertions have been more strident since U.S. troops invaded Grenada Oct. 25 and ousted a leftist military government.

Ortega and others have mentioned the joint exercises being conducted in neighboring Honduras by U.S. military units and the Honduran armed forces as a possible springboard for an invasion of this country.

U.S. officials have denied that allegation, and say the exercises are designed only to improve the Honduran armed forces' defensive capabilities.

But the officials acknowledge that covert military aid is being given to Honduras-based Nicaraguan rebels battling Sandinista troops in northern Nicaragua.

The junta has promised to hold elections for a president, vice president and legislative assembly in 1985 and said it would provide details about the elections Feb. 21.

Our Lower Level flooded — so we must liquidate sofas, chairs, tables, rugs and more with slight water damage.

Warm weather proving useful in easing floods

TWIN FALLS — The warmer temperatures of the past few days have not brought about flooding problems, but rather, they are helping clear out ice in area rivers, says Superintendent Donald E. Tracy, of the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation office in Burley.

Tracy said Friday that the Snake River channel is clearing out at Milner Dam, and although ice is moving, there have been no ice jams develop.

"I am optimistic about the warming trend," he says. "If the temperatures stay in the 20s and 30s, I think we will be in good shape."

"We were a little concerned when it began warming, but the beauty of it is that it's opening up the river, and the longer we can have the moderate weather, the fewer problems we are going to see building up for the future."

The flow of the Snake River on Friday was reported at 14,000 cubic feet per second, Tracy said.

That was higher than last year's unusually heavy flow of about 12,000 cubic feet per second, and about four times the frequent January recordings of between 2,500 and 4,500 cubic feet per second.

However, Tracy says the cold, dry month of January has meant low precipitation, especially in the upper-elevation watershed areas.

For example, at Lewis Lake, on the upper portion of the Snake River in Wyoming, there was only about 3 percent of the normal total January precipitation, as of Jan. 15. Tracy says other upper Snake River regions are only at about 7 percent of their normal precipitation levels for this month.

However, this doesn't mean the accumulated moisture is low, he says, because storms earlier this winter dumped precipitation as high as 150 to 200 percent of normal.

"But if February continues as dry as January has been, we may find ourselves wishing for some more snowstorms," Tracy says. "The final outcome depends on the March and April measurements."

Right now, all reservoirs are open and saving space for the anticipated spring run-off, he says. Most reservoirs are having an inflow of water to the Snake River, which is keeping the level of the river unusually high for the winter months.

If precipitation remains low in February, Tracy says, some of the space-saving may be reduced.

There isn't any shortage of snow on the Snake River watersheds, he says, and the water outlook is good, but the trick is to keep the storage at a constant level and still have storage space for the spring run-off.

The warming trend has not been around long enough to send any major amount of melting snow into reservoirs and streams. Officials in Blaine, Gooding and Cassia counties say they have not seen any threats of flooding this week.

Groups recall entry into atomic age

By DAVID MOFFAT

TWIN FALLS — Friday marked the 33rd anniversary of the first nuclear explosion at the Nevada test site, and peace activists in Twin Falls and Ketchum staged events hoping people would not forget.

In Twin Falls, about 12 members of the Magic Valley Snake River Alliance gathered in City Park to light candles in a circle around a "peace tree" the group planted last summer.

And in Ketchum, 19 adults and children marched six blocks carrying candles to protest what one called the "total insanity" brought on by the nuclear age.

The late-afternoon demonstration in Twin Falls may have been small, but group spokesperson Kathy Kreilkamp said, "For a long time, we have not measured our success by the number of people who turn out."

"We are here to offer a service. If two people driving by stopped and thought about what we were doing, we were successful."

"Peace is a personal thing," she said. Just because people don't turn out in greater numbers does not mean they are not practicing it in their homes, at work and in church, Kreilkamp said.

After reading a poem, and standing in silence, the group stood in the cold for about 20 minutes, watching the candles burn out.

In Ketchum, participants left the city's old city hall, off Main Street, marched one block and stood for a few minutes at the intersection of Sun Valley Road.

They then marched two blocks west on Sun Valley Road, a block north, and returned to the old city hall, to view a slide show called "The Bus damage upsets school

But educators, parents win out

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

RUPERT — Mindoka County School District officials used spare buses and cooperative parents to transport 600 children to school on Friday, because vandals had put 14 buses out of commission.

Despite the extensive damage, some of the buses were back on the road by Friday afternoon.

The vehicles were vandalized sometime Thursday night, while they were parked in a fenced compound across the street from Washington Elementary School, at Seventh and C streets in Rupert, said Floyd Merrill, the assistant school superintendent.

Someone apparently climbed over the eight-foot fence because there were no signs of tampering with the locks on the gates, he said.

The destruction was discovered at 7 a.m. Friday by the bus drivers. All 14 of the buses in the compound had been damaged in some way.

In one bus, all the seats had been slashed. Mostly, however, the vandals slashed the engines. Electrical wiring had been cut and fan belts and radiator hoses had been severed, Merrill said.

Some of the vandalism was detected easily when the buses did not start. In other cases, the drivers had gone a little way from the compound when the engines began to sputter, Merrill said.

"Nothing like this has ever happened before. And we hope it doesn't happen again," he said.

No damage estimate was available Friday, but it may run into several thousand dollars, said Lou Freese, the district's director of transportation.

After the vandalism was discovered, the district placed eight spare buses into service to transport the children to school. Also, an appeal was broadcast over area radio stations, asking parents to bring their children to school. Some buses from other routes were used. The disabled buses usually carry children from an area northwest of the city, Merrill said.

"Everybody pitched in," Freese said.

Some of the children were late to school," Merrill said, but there were

United Way funds exceed projections

By CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — For the first time in years, the United Way of the Magic Valley not only has reached its projected goal, but it has surpassed it.

The organization received more than $190,000 in contributions for 1983, more than $5,000 past its goal of $185,000. It was announced this week.

No decision has been reached by the United Way board as to how the excess money will be spent, but according to President Richard Boyd, the money could be:

- Distributed to the United Way's member agencies.
- Held over for the 1984 campaign.
- Used to upgrade equipment at the United Way's office.

"I would like to see it go back to the agencies that really need it, even though only $5,000 would not mean a substantial amount of money for those agencies," Boyd said Friday.

"What will probably be done is that we will ask the allocations committee to reconvene, and they will decide where the money is most needed," Boyd said.

"We have never gone over our goal before, so we really haven't had the luxury of having to decide where to allocate it," said Sandy Thomas, the United Way executive director.

"In the past, our agencies have received a cut, instead of an increase," he said.

The board will review the different alternatives at its next monthly meeting.

Illness hits pupils, benches sports event

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — Sports events are held despite rain, snow or great distances, but illness has stopped basketball at Shoshone High School this weekend.

Superintendent Kenneth Crothers said that 40 of the 167 students enrolled at the junior and senior highs were absent Friday due to illness.

High school secretary Alice Webb said that only two varsity basketball players were in attendance Friday — and one of them went home ill at noon.

Friday's game with Valley High School has been postponed until Feb. 7, and the game scheduled for this evening with Gooding will be held on Feb. 13.

In addition, a school dance scheduled for today has been canceled, and tonight's Booster Club chili supper has been rescheduled for next Saturday.

High-school Principal Keith Trappett, who himself has been out with the flu, says at least 35 students have been out each day for the past four days, and three teachers besides himself were absent Thursday and Friday.

Webb says that absenteeism at the high school had been greater than at the elementary school throughout the week, but by Friday, "they were catching up."

Crothers says there are no plans to close the schools at this point.

"We hope students will start getting well over the weekend."

Lincoln County public-health nurse Dorothy Alexander says that she and school officials had discussed the possibility of closing school Thursday, but the absenteeism rate was only 20 percent that day.

She has no authority to require the schools to close, only to make recommendations, Alexander says.

"We checked with Dr. (R.G.) Neher (a Shoshone physician), and he said there were two or three things — colds, possible flu and an intestinal problem — going on and that closing the school really wasn't necessary," she said.

According to Alexander, state guidelines provide for closing school if a single disease is causing high absenteeism or is epidemic.

Teardown starts hospital's renovation

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Two swinging sledge hammers launched the construction Friday morning of the third phase of an extensive renovation project at St. Benedict's Hospital in Jerome.

John Forbes, the manager of Tupperware's Jerome plant and a member of the St. Benedict's Hospital Foundation, swung the first blow — to knock out a wall into the emergency-room area on the main floor.

Ingrid Hudspeh, the director of nurses, represented the hospital staff with a second blow.

Forbes was invited to help start the work because his firm was one of the key financial contributors to the project.

Tupperware has donated $17,500 toward the project, which will involve a complete rebuilding of the emergency room.

He and other members of the foundation worked to raise the entire $42,000 the hospital will spend on the project.

Jim Evans, the hospital's personnel director and public information officer, says this phase of the ongoing renovation will give the facility one of the most modern emergency rooms in the Magic Valley.

When completed, this area of the hospital will have quadrupled in size, he says.

"There will be four bays for emergency treatment of patients, replacing the present crowded facility that has not been enlarged since the hospital was built in 1954," Evans says.

During those 30 years, the hospital has upgraded its emergency equipment, which has left less and less working space, he says.

In the new emergency-room quarters, there will be an office for nurses and a sleeping room for the on-duty physician. The emergency room is manned 24 hours a day by nurses and a physician.

Forbes says his company maintains a strong community interest wherever its plants operate, and Tupperware believes in doing its share to assist the communities.

"Most of our employees live and rear their families in Jerome. We want to help Jerome offer top-quality medical services to these and other families," Forbes said.

Hudspeh said she felt better after striking a few blows to bring down the emergency room. For most of the year, hospital personnel have worked along with construction and technical crews during the first two stages of the renovation program, she said.

The emergency room is expected to be completed by spring, but Evans says, the difficulty is, emergency services must be continued while the work is under way.

County nets money for food, shelter programs

By CHRISTOPHER WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — The federal emergency food and shelter program has selected Twin Falls County to receive nearly $5,000, to supplement and extend its existing food and shelter programs.

The government awarded the money to Twin Falls County on the basis of several different guidelines, including unemployment, population and poverty level.

This is strictly a one-time award," says Sandy Thomas, the executive director of the United Way. "If the federal money will be dispersed by a committee which has been picked by the United Way."

"The reason we were chosen to divide the money is because we deal with so many non-profit organizations, and we don't have as much red tape to go through as other groups," Thomas said Friday.

"The main idea of this is to get the job done."

The committee distributing the money will be made up of representatives from several area associations, including: Bob Voss of the Association of Churches, county Commissioner David Cover, Irene Basom of the Red Cross, Candy McElfresh of the South Central Community Action Center, John Grohler of the Salvation Army and R. Curtis Anderson of the United Way.

According to Thomas, these organizations wanting to apply for a portion of the grant must do so within the next five days. They also must meet the following guidelines:

- Have the capability to provide emergency food and/or shelter services.
 - Be non-profit.
 - Have a voluntary board and an accounting system.
 - Practice non-discrimination.
 - Provide reports to the local board to show where the money has been spent.
 - Close out the program no later than May 15.
- In addition to these requirements, all awarded money must be spent by March 31.
- More information can be obtained by calling the United Way office at 733-4022.

Accident brings DUI charge

TWIN FALLS — A Focattello man who suffered multiple injuries in a four-vehicle accident on U.S. 85 near the Nevada border Thursday night has been cited for driving while intoxicated.

An Idaho State Police officer said Friday that Robert J. Sefton, 26, of Focattello, was northbound on 85, about 7.5 miles north of Twin Falls, at 6:10 p.m. when he collided with a southbound vehicle on a curve.

Sefton was in satisfactory condition Friday night at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls.

Cpl. Rick Wright said Sefton's small sedan crossed left of center as it rounded the curve. The left front bumper of his car caught an oncoming pickup truck in the left front door.

The southbound pickup was driven by Manuel M. Costa, 40, of Maneta, Calif., who was towing another vehicle.

The impact caused Costa's pickup and the car it was towing to jackknife in the center of the road.

Following Costa in a station wagon was Kathleen Ann Costa, 31, also of Maneta, Calif. The Sefton vehicle continued north and collided with Kathleen Costa's vehicle.

Wright said Sefton, who was not wearing a seatbelt, suffered multiple injuries.

The Costa and her three children were all taken to the hospital, where they were treated for minor injuries and released.

Pilot listed as 'satisfactory'

BURLEY — A 32-year-old Burley pilot, who survived a crash landing Thursday night in Minidoka County, was reported in satisfactory condition Friday night at Cassia Memorial Hospital in Burley.

Kenneth Elberg brought his light plane down in a field about four miles east of the Burley airport after the engine failed. He suffered head, neck and possible internal injuries.

Alone in the plane, which was en route from Idaho Falls to Burley, he was able to lower the flaps of the plane and use a brace that he had in the plane to cover the windshield and prevent his crashing through the glass.

Inmate doesn't like his uniform

TWIN FALLS — A 28-year-old Twin Falls man, arrested Thursday night on a misdemeanor charge, has been charged with a felony, after he allegedly ripped up his jail uniform and wore the remains of it.

After being arrested for trespassing at a home, Billy Duane Skaggs, 28, of Route 4, was placed in a holding cell at the Twin Falls County Jail at 10:30 p.m.

According to a complaint filed against him in Fifth District Magistrate Court. About 20 minutes later, the jailers heard a noise and found Skaggs wearing his jail uniform. The coveralls had been ripped beyond repair, the complaint states.

Skaggs also faces a felony charge of damaging jail property. Skaggs was arraigned Friday on the felony charge and two additional misdemeanor charges.

According to court records, Skaggs allegedly caused damage to a hotel room in Twin Falls on Dec. 21, and did not notify authorities of an accident on Dec. 2. He pleaded innocent to all charges.

Skaggs has been released on his own recognizance.

Rollover injures Filer man

TWIN FALLS — A Filer man was injured Thursday night when his vehicle rolled over at Pole Line Road and Grandview Drive in Twin Falls.

Linda Eaton, 29, was reported in satisfactory condition Friday at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center.

According to an Idaho State Police officer, Eaton was driving west on Pole Line Road at 11:30 p.m. when his vehicle hit a patch of ice and six inches of water from the road water main. The vehicle spun out of control and rolled.

No damage estimate was available Friday.

Kimberly board will meet

KIMBERLY — The Kimberly school board will hold a special meeting this Wednesday to decide if Superintendent George Powell's contract should be renewed for another year.

At a special school board meeting on Jan. 14, board member Steve Grupp made a motion to extend Powell's contract. But the motion failed to receive a second.

Since then, board Chairman Keith Jensen has been distributing a flyer, praising Powell and his achievements during his three years as superintendent.

Jensen says residents are encouraged to attend the Wednesday's meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the school, and they will be given time to speak.

The group, whose goals also include medical care, compensation of victims and a comprehensive test-ban treaty, were planned to host-ban those who have suffered as a result of radiation exposure.

A decision is expected soon from a federal district judge in a lawsuit brought by 1,122 residents living downwind of the test site where the first bomb was exploded, according to the group.

Rupert police said Friday afternoon no reported absence as a result of the incident.

Repair work by three district mechanics began soon after the discovery, Freesee said. By Friday afternoon, some of the buses had been repaired and were used, along with the spare vehicles, to take the children home.

Born Moslem, Mormon leads Mideast aid plan

By PETER GILLINS
 United Press International

OREM, Utah — Children in Palestinian refugee camps may soon find help coming from an unlikely source — a Mormon Arab who knows what it's like to be a mistreated minority.
 Omar Kader, 40, a Mormon bishop, is leaving his job as assistant dean of the School of Social Studies at Brigham Young University to head a charity called the United Palestinian Appeal based in Washington, D.C.
 The charity, which admittedly stole its name from the United Jewish Appeal, hopes to raise money from multi-national corporations doing business in the Middle East to fund schools, hospitals and other facilities in refugee camps.

The organizers of the charity chose Kader, who looks vaguely like actor Omar Sharif, because of his unique background — Moslem and Mormon, a strange mix of both eastern and western cultures.
 Kader was born in Orem, the son of Palestinian immigrants, and was raised as a Moslem on a farm where Arabic was the primary language.
 "I didn't speak a word of English when I entered kindergarten," he recalls.

He soon learned that life is hard for a Moslem boy growing up in a Mormon town.

"Being a minority in Utah is really tough. We were the niggers of Provo and Orem. In fact, they used to call us that, and I didn't know what they meant. It took the longest time to figure out they were being racist and anti-black."
 But Kader survived and made the most of the cultural mix. He studied Arabic and became an expert on the Middle East, where he still has a large family. He also became deeply involved in Utah life, earning a teaching position at Mormon-owned BYU.

At age 24, Kader converted to Mormonism, married a Mormon girl and is rearing his family in the Protestant sect.

Peace begins in the home

TWIN FALLS — A session on "Parenting for Peace and Justice" will be held today from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. at the Twin Falls United Methodist Church, 360 Shoshone St. E.

The basic idea is that peace and justice can start at the home, says the Rev. David Upp of Filer. While parents may be interested in peace and justice on a community and global scale, the concepts can show up in parenting, he says.

For instance, justice can be reflected in a household by using a democratic process for family decision-making, Upp says. At such a meeting, the family could teach the larger purpose of peace and justice by deciding to send money to other people in need.

As for peace, a family can talk about alternatives to physical punishment, Upp says.

The seminar is sponsored by the church. The speakers will be Russ and Marilyn McCoy of Pocatello.

The cost of the session will be $7.50. Child care will be provided. For more information, call the church at 733-5872.

Seminar will aid ministers with taxes

TWIN FALLS — Since members of the clergy are not exempt from paying income taxes, the Twin Falls Ministerial Association and Twin Falls County Association of Churches will sponsor an all-day tax seminar for professional ministers.

The seminar will be held Wednesday, Feb. 8, in Twin Falls from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. in Room 117 of the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The speaker will be Earl Riddle of Portland, who is certified tax consultant who specializes in clerical matters, says the Rev. David Upp of Filer.

The fee for the seminar is $10, which is tax deductible, Upp says.

TWIN FALLS — Area churches will join together for an area "stingspiration" at 6 p.m. this Sunday at Community Christian Church, off Grandview Drive South in Twin Falls. The theme will be "Mid-Winter Melodies." Local groups and individuals will perform.

L.M. Boyd What's what

Any science major will tell you Nicolaus Copernicus was the bright Pole who first theorized that the earth traveled around the sun instead of vice versa. Something else he did: As commander of Allenstein castle during a 16th century plague, he coated baked goods with a paste from curried milk in the hope it would purify the food. It didn't. But the troops liked it. Copernicus became the father of buttered bread.

FATHER OF MOTHER

In 1967, the father of Robert Berston died, leaving Robert a $100,000 trust fund, but leaving nothing to Robert's mother, whom the father had divorced in 1946. Robert wanted to provide for her, though, and found the simplest way to do so legally was to adopt her. So he executed that option to become the father of his own mother.

Wary residents of Salmon keep watch on swollen river

SALMON (AP) — Conditions along the swollen Salmon River were stable Friday as residents still on alert for possible flash flooding filled their cars with belongings.

Hydrologist Scott Kiser of the National Weather Service said an ice jam upstream from the town of Salmon either could flow past the community or become wedged and cause further flooding.

Officials will be monitoring the weather this weekend and by Monday probably will have a clearer idea of the likely outcome, Kiser said.

Flash flooding could worsen if shoreline ice breaks loose and piles against the accumulation already about 19 miles long, said Robert Thuring of the Army Corps of Engineers in Walla Walla, Wash.

Two channels were cut Friday after water backed up behind a damaged levee.

Floodwaters continued to saturate farmland, but there were no reports of new residential flooding, officials said.

"It's just going to be a matter of time until we can tell what might happen," Kiser said.

"We've got quite a bit of melting here in the city," said Dean Jackson of the Salmon Search and Rescue Unit.

The temperature Friday afternoon rose to 42 degrees, but Jackson said concerns about a rapid thaw were quelled by upstream temperatures about 10 degrees cooler.

"We shouldn't be getting any big surges of water," he said.

"If it gets warmer we're in trouble and if it gets colder we're in trouble," he said of a possible rapid thaw or further freezing of ice in the river.

Estimates of the number of residents affected by flood alerts ranged up to 200. Officials said several people were evacuated Thursday night, adding to the several hundred who fled their homes a week ago.

Dragged by auto, man dies

CALDWELL (AP) — A hearing will be conducted Monday for a Caldwell woman who was stopped by police with a man's body dragging from her car window.

Police said the body was dragged for as far as eight miles before the car was stopped Monday night.

Chief Richard Dormois identified the victim as James Davis Jameson, 49, Caldwell. An autopsy performed Friday at Mercy Medical Center found that Jameson died to death, Dormois said.

Verna Lee Simons, 40, was taken into custody, but requested counseling and so was not questioned extensively, Dormois said. He described the relationship between Jameson and Mrs. Simons as "acquainted."

"After she asked for counseling that's all we could get from her," he said. "We've got a lot of questions we'd like to ask."

Police received several calls about 10 p.m. Thursday from motorists reporting an eastbound car on Interstate 84, with a body attached by one arm through the passenger window, dragging along the pavement.

Police stopped the car at the intersection of 10th and Grant streets in Caldwell at 10:10 p.m., Dormois said.

Dormois said there was a woman in the driver's seat. Jameson's body hung from the car, one arm trapped in the partially rolled-up passenger window. The man's legs had been mangled.

Dormois said police had a report there was an altercation prior to the incident.

He said Mrs. Simons would be held in the Canyon County Jail over the weekend.

Some drugs for racing approved

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Racing Commission has approved new regulations permitting the limited use of therapeutic drugs in horses racing at state tracks.

Commissioner Cy Chase said the rules adopted Friday are in line with regulations on medication now in effect for the racing industry in other western states.

The action, intended to enhance competition at Idaho tracks, formalized a rule adopted on an emergency basis last summer.

"If we don't conform with these other states, you won't have the competition," said Chase, a former state senator from St. Maries.

The regulations allow only therapeutic drugs, which Chase described as no different than aspirin for humans, to be administered to race horses and then no more than 24 hours in advance of a race.

At a hearing on the controversial issue earlier this month, representatives of the racing industry were split on the medication question.

Backers of the regulations pointed to the difficulty of drawing horses to the track in Coeur d'Alene from nearby Washington state, where painkilling drugs are permitted.

Evans questions plan for Lucky Peak power

BOISE (AP) — Amid complaints from many water users in the Boise Valley, Gov. John Evans is questioning a proposal to build an irrigation district to build a power generator at Lucky Peak Dam and sell the electricity to the city of Seattle.

Evans said Friday he will wait to take a formal position on the issue until after he has received reports from the state Department of Water Resources and the Idaho Water Resource Board.

The department is reviewing the situation now, he said, and the board will take it up at its meeting next week.

But Evans added, "I have great reluctance about whether it should be done. That (power) should be reserved for the people of Idaho."

The Boise Project Board of Control had endorsed the proposal for construction of an 80-megawatt hydroelectric project at the dam under a federal power license held by just five of the 41 irrigation districts getting some or all of their water from the Lucky Peak Reservoir.

Under the plan, the Seattle City Light Company will pay the five districts some $1.3 billion over the next 50 years for the power produced by the facility.

But officials of the districts left out of the deal claim any revenues from the hydro project should benefit all those who support the dam and reservoir through irrigation fees, not just the districts holding the power license.

Salmon power tops agenda

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Future hydroelectric development in the Salmon River Basin — and specifically some 46 pending project applications — will come under discussion at a meeting of the Northwest Planning Council here.

Sessions are scheduled Feb. 1-2 at the North Shore Convention Center. The Northwest Power Act requires the administrator of the Bonneville Power Administration and other federal agencies which manage, operate or regulate hydroelectric facilities in the Columbia River Basin to consider the council's fish and wildlife plans.

The Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has been asked to consider the cumulative effects of hydropower development, when deciding whether to approve projects, including those on the Salmon River.

Stivers pans Evans citing 'interference'

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE — Republican House Speaker Tom Stivers, demanding a clear separation of powers in the state, is accusing Gov. John Evans of "blatant interference" with lawmakers because the Democrat testified at a public legislative hearing on education reform.

"We're in very dangerous water when we start having the chief executive of the state of Idaho requesting to testify on a bill before a committee," Stivers said.

"I don't think that a proper separation of power," the Twin Falls legislator said, "is a blatant interference in the legislative process. We've gone far enough down the road on this collusion of powers."

The governor said he decided to appear before a legislative committee because of the importance of the bills to the reform package at issue.

But speaking to the Idaho Press Club on Thursday, Stivers labeled as unprecedented Evans' appearance the previous evening before a joint session of the House and Senate Education committees.

The only similar occurrence, he said, was when former Gov. Cecil Andrus addressed the Public Utilities Commission on a utility matter in the early 1970s.

Senate President Pro Tem James Risch, R-Boise, appearing with Stivers, declined to go as far as the speaker did in challenging the governor's actions. But Risch also said he felt it best that the legislative and executive branches maintain strict separation on such matters.

Evans, touring the southeastern part of the state when Stivers made his accusations, had earlier acknowledged that his appearance at the public hearing was unusual.

"However, because of the overriding importance of education to the future of our state, I wanted to reaffirm my commitment to providing the best education we can possibly provide to Idaho's children," the governor said at that time.

In seeking adoption of the schools package, that includes $20 million for higher teacher salaries, Evans said there had to be a strong and cooperative working partnership between the executive and legislative branches of government as well as between the political parties.

"I don't think it's proper for outside influence, outside force, being in those legislative hearings," Stivers countered, claiming the governor has emissaries who can appear on his behalf.

The speaker also said he believed it improper for Evans or those in his administration to lobby legislators on behalf of proposals the governor supports.

"That is the legislative process and shouldn't be interfered with," Stivers said. He declined, however, to say he would formally forbid future appearances by the governor before committees.

"The word will get to the governor," he told reporters. "I would think judgment and reality would enter in there somewhere."

Farmer kills hungry deer

OREM, Utah (AP) — A fruit farmer here has killed more than 20 hungry deer straying into his orchards near the mouth of Provo Canyon, angering his neighbors and fueling safety concerns in a dispute authorities say they are powerless to halt.

The Utah Division of Wildlife Resources on Friday was trying to determine if the farmer, Vern A. Stratton, legally had complied with provisions of a state law giving farmers and ranchers the right to destroy big game animals if their crops are threatened.

The Orem Police Department, meanwhile, also was watching Stratton to ensure he was not venturing off his 40 acres of apple, cherry and pear orchards near the Osmond Studios to shoot deer prevented by deep snow from reaching their regular winter feeding areas.

The killings have occurred even though Stratton's property rests within city limits, where the discharge of firearms is prohibited by city ordinance. But city officials say the ordinance is superseded by state law.

Deer throughout northern Utah are struggling through what biologists are calling the worst winter in decades for Utah's big game herds. It's a season so extreme that the division has launched a massive emergency feeding program to prevent the starvation of thousands of deer.

The three-week-old program has been declared a success so far by Division Director Douglas Day and, ironically, a feeding trough for the famished mammals rests on private property near Stratton's orchards.

Three telephone attempts to reach Stratton for comment were unsuccessful. But Ted Peacock, Orem's public safety director, said he had spoken with him earlier Friday.

"He told me he has no intention of shooting any more deer," Peacock said. "He said he'd continue trying to drive them off his property."

Delbert Atkinson, a regional enforcement officer for the division, said Friday that Stratton's neighbors had shot "from 17 to 22 deer up to last night" although the farmer told Peacock he had slain only one animal himself and 12 other deer were killed by other people.

Peacock said Stratton told him he annually has problems with deer and after six weeks of unsuccessfully trying to drive the animals out, sought assistance from the division.

The law provides that a farmer whose crops are threatened by big game animals may contact the division for help in removing them. If the effort is unsuccessful in "a reasonable amount of time," the statute gives him the right to destroy any animals on his property.

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Conservation League and two consumer-advocacy groups are opposing legislation intended to lower the priority of Idaho Power Co.'s claim to Snake River water.

The Idaho Citizens Coalition and Idaho Consumer Affairs Inc. joined the league Friday in opposing a measure that cleared its first legislative hurdle two days earlier.

The plan that won a courtesy introduction to the Idaho House on Wednesday would place the water needs of irrigators and other users above those of Idaho Power's demand for hydroelectric generating capability.

The legislation, announced by the governor and attorney general, addresses a controversy that has been burgeoning since the Idaho Supreme Court ruled in 1982 that Idaho Power has rights upstream from Swan Falls Dam.

"Advocates of the legislation would have us believe the question is who is to control economic development in southern Idaho — the state or Idaho Power," Al Polberg of the Idaho Citizens Coalition said at a news conference.

"Statements such as this cloud the issue so that people don't recognize their own interests in the issue."

He said electricity rates will jump and water quality will decline if the legislation passes and heightens the prospects for further development of the Snake River Plain.

Conservation League Director Pat Ford said subordinating Idaho Power's water rights to make resources available for irrigation and other uses could foster undesirable development in the state.

He called for appropriation of Snake River water to remain unchanged pending development of a comprehensive water plan that takes quality-of-life considerations into account.

Gov. John Evans on Friday refuted claims about higher utility costs that some say will add $50 million annually to rates.

"That just is not going to happen..." Evans said. "I do not anticipate in the near future an increase in utility rates."

Attorney General Jim Jones has said the forecasted rate increase reflects a worst-case situation that would never happen.

But Ford said some of Jones' remarks have reflected his "ravenousness to the issue."

Bruins beat Pocatello in overtime

Toolson sets school record

By STEVE GRUMP
Times-News sports editor

POCATELLO — Handy Andy Toolson put down 42 points Friday night for a Twin Falls all-time record, but both he and Coach John Astorquia said the supporting cast was just as important.

Whether or not they were, Andy Toolson's school 42 points led the Twin Falls Bruins to a 63-61 overtime victory over Pocatello in a crucial Gem State Conference contest.

Toolson's effort eclipsed by five the former mark established by Gary Simmons, later a University of Idaho All-American, in the 1953-54 season. The second best effort to Friday was 36 points, scored in the 1959-60 season when Bart Strong led Twin Falls to an upset win over eventual state champion Idaho Falls.

But without the overtime, Toolson wouldn't have reached it. He had 36 at the end of regulation but all eight Bruins points in the extra session.

"This was a team effort whether Andy got 42 points or 61," said Astorquia after one of his ball clubs (including Minico) scored just its second victory in 14 years in the Pocatello gymnasium. "Andy will be the first to tell you that."

"I really didn't realize how many points I had," said Toolson. "I knew it was a good offensive game for me, I guess maybe the best I've ever played, but it's also one of the best this team has played. Give them the credit, too."

Toolson scored all eight points in the overtime to turn back an Indian rally that had tied the game at the buzzer and threatened to turn the momentum around. The Bruins, trailing by as many as 10 points in the first half and down by seven with two minutes remaining in the third period, put on a display of shooting, defense and rebounding to take the lead by five points with 1:47 remaining in the game.

But Toolson and Astorquia had a feeling they wouldn't get out of the Idaho gym that easily.

Pocatello's Steve Sengbusch went to the free throw line with four seconds remaining and the Indians trailing 55-52. His first free throw bounced off the rim and Pocatello Coach Jerry Koester called time out.

"Yeah, we figured it was coming," said Astorquia. "We figured they'd try to get the ball off the rim and out to one of their guards. As it happened, they got it out to (6-1 Junior forward Clint) Williams, who hit a 22-foot jumper at the buzzer.

"We figured they'd go for the three-pointer," said Toolson. "But I thought after the shot went down that we still had a couple of seconds left. I thought we'd get a chance to in-bound the ball and win the game."

The Bruins got so much chance in regulation time, but Toolson scored quickly on a 16-foot baseline jumper to give Twin Falls a two-point lead. Pocatello's Kip Heigerson countered seconds later on a driving layin and drew the foul, converting a three-point play to put the Indians ahead 58-57 with 1:57 left in overtime.

Toolson scored again when he put back his own rebound and Heigerson countered with a 1:18 remaining to give Pocatello its last lead of the game. Toolson scored his third bucket of the extra session with 1:10 on the clock, and Heigerson fouled under the Pocatello basket a few seconds later — tied it with the first of a one-and-one, free throw opportunity with 55 seconds showing.

But the second shot missed and bounced into the hands of the Bruins' Doug Petersen. Twin Falls patiently worked the ball down the floor, getting it to Toolson just outside the paint with 35 seconds to play. Toolson drove and put down his 42nd point with 30 seconds remaining, giving the Bruins a lead that held up.

"I think we did a better job this time on Toolson, believe it or not, than we did the last time out," said Koester. "But it's hard to make a case for high school kids to contain somebody like that. If you put somebody quick out there on him he can always beat them because of his (6-5) size. If you get somebody big out there, he's usually quicker than they are."

Pocatello, using a combination of man and zone defenses, almost did the job in the first half. The Indians denied the Bruins their first field goal until almost midway through the first quarter and took a 14-8 lead by the beginning of the second period.

But the Bruins switched up some assignments, and Toolson hit a series of field goals to bring Twin Falls back into the game.

"I think they really hurt us more with zone than they did with the man," said Astorquia. "But by the middle of the second quarter, I felt pretty comfortable with our matchups. Toolson hit two quick baskets and that got us back into the game." Toolson continued that pace into the second half, scoring eight points in the third quarter. But it was teammate Darren Stuart who finally put the Bruins ahead with a 21-foot jump shot with 12 left in the third period at 45-43 lead. They carried that into the fourth quarter.

"Darren hit some really timely shots for us, but really almost everyone that played tonight contributed at some important times of the game," said Astorquia, citing crucial rebounds by Petersen and Jason Meyerhoefer in the fourth quarter and some key defensive plays by Eric Anderson, Bob Burrell and Todd Jones.

Twin Falls missed chances to put the game away late in the fourth quarter, however, when they blew the first shot of three one-and-one free throw situations in the final two minutes. Pocatello pulled to within three points on a field goal by Heigerson with 1:30 remaining, set-

Sims thought Lions talk had fizzled

Testifies in contract litigation

By MARTI AHERN
Associated Press Writer

DETROIT — Running back Billy Sims testified Friday that he signed a contract with the Houston Gamblers of the United States Football League because he believed that negotiations with his present team, the Detroit Lions, had broken off.

Sims also said he would not have allowed his former agent, Jerry Argovitz, to negotiate contracts for him "had he known that Argovitz had gotten a $3,900 finders fee for investing Sims' money. Argovitz is now co-owner and president of the Gamblers.

Sims said he signed the Gamblers contract last July because he was not aware until mid-November that the National Football League Lions had made an offer.

"At the time I signed I was under the impression that the Lions didn't want me," he said. "The negotiations had come to a halt."

Sims signed with the Lions in late December after Argovitz sold the Houston contract to another agent and because "I didn't feel the Gamblers contract was valid," he said. "I felt I was misled about the proposals that the Lions made when I signed (with Houston)."

Sims' contracts with the Gamblers and the Lions are the subject of a U.S. District Court trial. The running back filed suit against Argovitz, claiming the Gamblers contract should be voided because Argovitz misrepresented him.

Sims testified that Argovitz had invested nearly $90,000 of his money in two real estate projects and received the $3,900 as a finders fee. The running back said he had known of that exchange when it happened, he would have fired the agent "because of kickbacks and distrust."

However, Sims told U.S. District Judge Robert E. DeMasco that he had had to let Argovitz handle his money, and signed contracts without reading them because "I felt his word was good."

Sims testified he wasn't concerned about Argovitz' dual role as agent and team owner because "he was my advice and counsel — we had been together for so many years, why should I drop him now?"

Sims testified he did not realize that when he paid Argovitz $175,000 for negotiating the Gamblers contract, the agent was selling his business and would no longer be his manager. Under their contract, Argovitz' fee was to be reduced 2 percent if he did not manage the running back.

Asked if he knew that Argovitz had $2.5 million invested in the Gamblers and was to get $275,000 a year in addition to 5 percent of the team's net receipts, Sims replied, "If I had known about it before I signed, I wouldn't have signed."

58-45 advantage.
At that point, Haley and Cisowski hit field goals and Derrick Hopkins added two free throws to lift the Eagles to a 64-45 lead. In the closing minutes, Gary Jensen and Brian Schroeder hit points that expanded the lead to 21 before Brad Tinker landed the final basket of the game.

CSI triumphs over Eastern Utah in tough play

PRICE, Utah — Dewey Haley scored 12 first-half points and handled the ball in the face of rugged pressure Friday night as College of Southern Idaho put down Eastern Utah 74-56.

The Eagles, locked in a rugged and physical game through the second half particularly, took a 4-0 lead on points from Ralph Barreras and Larry Brown and never trailed.

CSI enjoyed a particularly successful shooting night, making 28 of 47 (67 percent) from the floor and 18 of 20 from the free-throw line. Bob Shrophshire controlled the boards with 32 rebounds for the Eagles.

CSI, with a majority of the players ill with flu and sore throats, continue on the road tonight, going to Rangely, Colo., to meet Colorado Northwestern.

Haley, one of the players ailing, hit all six of his shots in the first half and added four more in the second half.

His play elicited praise from Coach Fred Trenkle, particularly a 30-second span in the second half.

"Dewey had a driving dunk and a CEU kid clobbered him from behind. Not 30 seconds later Dewey came right back with another and just threw it down into the face of a player. He wasn't going to be denied. It was an awesome display," the coach said.

"We knew it was going to be a tough game down here. I was a little worried about getting our players up for it. We started a little sluggish because I think we were a little travel weary. But after that I felt we played a pretty good game against a good team," Trenkle said.

After moving out to that 4-0 lead, CSI was held close for the next six minutes. Guard Jeff White hit a couple from the outside and Jeff Jones added four more points as Eastern Utah stayed within three at 13-10.

CEU was still within five when CSI hit the first spurt of the contest. Haley and Barreras start it with putback buckets and Lowell Cisowski shook loose down the middle for another field goal. Barreras added a free throw as CSI took a 12-point advantage.

CSI still had 13 points to spare at halftime when Haley scored just before the buzzer.

In the second half, buckets by Dave Boswell and White led Eastern Utah out to within nine points before Barreras and Larry Brown took the lead back out to 13. That was the magic margin for the next 10 minutes as well, just under five minutes left, CSI held a 58-45 advantage.

At that point, Haley and Cisowski hit field goals and Derrick Hopkins added two free throws to lift the Eagles to a 64-45 lead. In the closing minutes, Gary Jensen and Brian Schroeder hit points that expanded the lead to 21 before Brad Tinker landed the final basket of the game.

Bruin girls surge past Bonneville in league contest, 61-46

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Adding determination to an adequate first-half performance, the Twin Falls Bruins surged past the Bonneville Bees in a Gem State Conference girls game Friday night, 61-46.

The Bruins played well enough before intermission, building a 31-25 halftime advantage. But then Twin Falls redoubled its effort, intensifying its defense and establishing a steady offense to even its league record at 7-7 and improve to 11-7 overall.

"We struggled a little bit in the first half, but the second half was a very consistent effort on our part," Twin Falls Coach Paul Stover said. "We controlled the game; in the first half we were just content to stay ahead. It didn't matter whether we led by one or 10 points. In the second half we decided we wouldn't play around any more, just go to work, and that's what we did."

The most efficient Bruin worker was senior guard Heidi Hansen, who finished with 18 points, 12 in the first half. Hansen enjoyed much of her success shooting middle-distance jumpers.

"Heidi has been struggling a little bit with her shot, and it affected her confidence," Stover said. "Tonight she was taking the same type of shots she has been taking, but they fell in."

One of those that fell in, a bank shot with 7:17 left in the third period, started a 13-4 Bruin rally that stretched a 31-27 advantage to a commanding 44-31 edge. Twin Falls' Alma Hernandez ended that binge by dropping in a three-pointer at 4:07 and two free throws with 1:47 left.

Hansen introduced the fourth quarter with a short jumper that increased the margin to 48-34. But Bonneville's Tracy Hemming, who had 12 points at halftime but went scoreless the third quarter, pumped through three straight shots, displaying form, that would make an NBA All-Star proud and narrowing the gap to 48-40.

But the Bruins responded with eight straight points on Tricia Swarding's two free throws, Hansen's follow shot, Tammie Hallmark's basket under derneath and Karle Willey's layup off a Hansen assist. Willey's hoop came with 3:41 to go and essentially settled matters.

gave Twin Falls its 13th sizeable lead. After Hansen broke a 1-1 tie with a basket and a free throw, Bonneville's Zo Ann Randall hit a short jumper. But Willey, who contributed 17 points, converted a three-point play, and Mid Lin Miller canned a short jumper for a 21-15 Bruin lead midway through the quarter.

Wildcats explode in second quarter to sting Declo, 75-58

FILER — The Filer Wildcats exploded for 27 points in the second quarter and went on to stun Declo 75-58 Friday night.

Coch Loyd Garey's Wildcats, trailing 17-12 at the end of the first quarter, caught a spark when Scott Turner hit a three-point goal and came back with two more long jumpers. But through the middle minutes of the quarter things remained close as both teams flew at each other with man defenses. But in the closing three minutes, Filer's terrific hand finally won out. Six Wildcats scored in the second period with Greg Hall at 7, Ben Sackett at 6 and Andy Sackett at 8 joining Turner in the blow away.

Also helping the Wildcats in that span was a nice effort at the foul line. But thereafter, Filer could not find another free throw hardly, winding up with a woeful 12-25 total.

Filer held an 11-point lead at intermission and Declo was never able to get closer than nine after that. It was points all night in the Filer gym as Declo's frosh won their game 74-56 and the Hornet sophomores won 75-57.

Kimberly 54, Wendell 43

WENDELL — "The missed free throws cost us the game."

That's how Wendell Coach Larry Gwartny summed up his feelings after the Coyotes lost to the top-ranked Kimberly Bulldogs 54-43 Friday night in a Canyon Conference encounter.

Kurt Holcomb led all scorers in the game with 14 points and Brent Atkinson added 12.

"We had our chances in the game, but we couldn't make the shots when we needed them," said Gwartny.

Brain Gough had 13 points for the loons and Richard Schrafft posted in 11.

Wendell won the preliminary contest in 11.

Burley 76, Buhl 36

BURLEY — The Burley Bobcats apparently got over the mid-season blues that helped them to a three-game losing streak.

With top gun Greg Boyd in bed with the flu, the Bobcats smoked for 25 points in the second quarter and roared past the Buhl Indians 76-38 Friday night.

Burley led 13-9 going into the second period but "we got our running game going," said Coach Gary Swan. By halftime, the Bobcats had mounded a 32-26 lead.

The Bobcats travel to top-ranked Rigby tonight for a major Cross State Conference battle and Swan said the participation of Boyd is moot. "We hope to have him for at least part of the game but we just don't know," Swan said.

Jerome 51, Wood River 46

JEROME — Troy Prairie and Gary Hulsey scored the critical points in the closing minutes to carry the Jerome Tigers to a hard-fought 51-46 decision over Wood River Friday night.

Actually, a defensive play by Jeff Burnham may have been the key to the game as he got a hand on a Wood River pass. "The loose ball was retrieved by a hustling Wolverine who was called for traveling, turning the ball back to Jerome which led 45-44 at the time."

On the mid-court, in-bounds play Jerome went into a line-with-prairie-breaking free to the bucket. He took the pass over the shoulder and layed it in. Wood River's Dale Karst replied with two free throws.

Jerome then worked the ball for nearly 30 seconds before putting up a close-in jumper that rimmed out. Hulsey was then for the follow points that clinched it and with five seconds remaining Prairie led the cake with two free throws.

The victory, which kept Jerome undefeated in the South Central Conference standings and the race for top seeding in the district A-2 tournament next month, dashed a good comeback by the Wolverines.

G. Ferry 50, Gooding 48

GLENN'S FERRY — Posting its third win in seven days, Glenn's Ferry put together a torrid second half scoring drive to get past Gooding, 50-48.

Not only was it a charm to win its third straight game, but the Pilots have done it at the expense of league opponents, starting with Shoshone a week ago, then adding Filer to the list. It wasn't easy. Down by nine at the half, the Pilots pulled within five at the end of the third period. Paced by Pilot Brad Iensbark who had 10 points, Glenn's Ferry hit 12 of 19 field goal tries in the second half, complementing their dogged defense.

"The difference," said Lynn Penner, Glenn's Ferry's statistician, "was Glenn's Ferry's defense in the second half. It was strong."

The Pilots' overall mark climbs to 7-5, (4-3 in the league), while Gooding slips to 6-7 and 3-3 in the conference. Declo is the Pilots' next challenge tonight, while Gooding takes on Shoshone.

Oakley 70, Raft River 61

MALTA — Cory Woodhouse's 37-point explosion and a near-perfect effort from the free-throw line propelled the Oakley Hornets to a 70-61 victory over the Raft River Trojans in Magic Valley Conference action Friday night.

The Hornets captured 21 of 23 attempts from the line, including 16 of 17 in the final quarter.

Ironically, Woodhouse, who drained three three-point shots, had the only two missed Oakley charlies. But there wasn't much else wrong with his performance.

"You can't leave him alone," Raft River Coach Olani Wallace said. "You have to push him out another two or three feet from the three-point line. He's very quick with his jump and he shoots it very well."

Jex Heaton led Raft River with 23 points, garnishing his effort with four three-point bombs.

The Trojans won the junior varsity preliminary, 49-45.

Filer ends regular season on wins

GOODING — The Filer Wildcats wound up their regular wrestling season by beating Oakley and Gooding in a triangular match Friday night.

The Wildcats lost just one match in downing Oakley 52-6 and came back to beat — Gooding — 37-23. Gooding retained Oakley 47-35 in the other match.

All three teams are now pointed toward district tournaments which will be held Thursday at Jerome.

Rice upsets 16th-ranked Arkansas

HOUSTON (AP) — Mike Cunningham scored 19 points to lead Rice to a 65-62 upset victory over 16th-ranked Arkansas in a Southwest Conference basketball game Friday night.

Arkansas, 15-3, held a 39-31 advantage with 17:05 left in the second half before the Owls reeled off 13 unanswered points. With 9:02 left, Cunningham hit four shots to give the Owls a 51-43 lead.

The Razorbacks pulled within 53-51 with 5:35 left. But Tyrone Washington hit two shots and Ivan Pettit pumped in four free throws to secure the Owls' first victory in the last 19 games against Arkansas.

Washington and Tony Barnett each had 14 points for the Owls, 7-10 overall and 3-4 in conference play.

Rice shot 52.6 percent from the field and 50 percent at the free throw line, while Arkansas hit 53.5 percent from the field and 80 percent at the line.

Person leads Auburn drive

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Chuck Person, the league's leading scorer, hit a field goal and four consecutive free throws in the final 7 1/2 minutes before Auburn trimmed No. 10 Louisiana State 80-78 Friday night to take a half-game lead in the Southeastern Conference basketball race.

Auburn, 12-5 and 6-2, overcame a 64-59 deficit in the final 7 1/2 minutes behind the dominating play of Charles Barkley and then blew a five-point lead of its own before Person broke a 74-74 deadlock with 39 seconds remaining by hitting a 17-footer from the top of the key.

The victory gave Auburn a half-game lead over idle, third-ranked Kentucky, which entertains No. 18 Georgia on Saturday. LSU, which had won 12 of its previous 14 meetings with Auburn, fell to 12-4 overall and 5-3 in the SEC.

Barkley, who had a school-record eight blocked shots in the game, started Auburn's rally with a pair of dunks, the second of which he turned into a three-point play after stealing the ball under his basket and dribbling the length of the court before hammering it home.

Auburn led 74-69 with three minutes to play, but a series of turnovers opened the door for LSU, which gained a tie on two free throws by John Tudor and three by Leonard Mitchell, the game's leading scorer with 23 points.

School consolidation?

Are smaller schools better? Will a town die if it loses its high school? Does school consolidation really save money?

These emotional subjects and others are part of the consolidation problem which again is being widely discussed in the Magic Valley and in the Idaho Legislature.

Education reporter, Annette Cary has spent the past two months studying the issue and how it affects communities throughout the valley. Read her reports, beginning Sunday in the Times-News.

STARTING SUNDAY, JANUARY 29

Don't miss this important series!

Volunteer help in feeding sought

BOISE (AP) — With 800 tons of surplus federal grain now in state hands, Gov. John Evans is calling for citizen volunteers to aid Idaho fish and game officials in helping wildlife survive the harsh winter.

"We're now looking for a special plea for help from all Idahoans," the governor said Friday. "It's a long winter. We need help."

Evans' request came after the U.S. Department of Agriculture released 800 tons of surplus wheat and barley — for use in the emergency wildlife feeding program.

While some of the grain will be turned into pellets for use in the Fish and Game Department's traditional big-game emergency feeding program, Evans said tons of it will be distributed free to citizens for feeding game birds.

"The department already does not have the manpower to find small covers of game birds that may need our help," he told reporters. "This is where hunters and those who simply enjoy the experience of watching game birds can be of great assistance."

Anyone wanting to help can get free grain on Saturday at the Fish and Game Department office in Pocatello and Idaho Falls, he said.

Department Director Jerry Conley said the state is now spending about $5,000 a day on emergency feed for more than 13,000 deer, elk and antelope, primarily in the southeastern corner of Idaho. The total bill for the winter is likely to exceed $400,000, but the state has received some $34,000 in private contributions along with donations of feed and labor.

"We're on top of the big game, but we're going to have to feed for another 45 days," Conley said, adding that the massive effort "should carry birds through in pretty good shape without any big loss."

As for the game bird population, he said, "We think it's not too late, and we can do a lot of good with this kind of (volunteer) program."

Evans pointed out that the surplus grain and volunteer efforts are only solutions to the immediate problem. He renewed his support for Idaho Fish and Game Commission proposals to finance future emergency programs through a $1.50 fee on deer, elk and antelope hunting tags and authorize the department to spend funds from the basic fish and game account without legislative approval.

Sub-district tournaments start tonight

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

Girls Basketball

At a glance, the top A-4 girls teams should be readily identifiable. There's Richfield in the Northside Conference, which won nine of 10 league contests. The Magic Valley Conference boasts Raft River and Oakley, who tied for first place with 8-2 league marks.

But it's not that simple, as the Northside and Southside sub-district tournaments beginning tonight may prove.

Oakley Coach Bob Lee, having enjoyed prosperity this season, hasn't forgotten how the mighty can fall and the meek may rise at the Southside tourney. Last year his Hornets finished a mere fourth during the regular season but won the district championship.

"Every year at this time I just hold my breath," he said. "I don't know what will happen. The season record is usually not a good barometer to decide the district champion. The girls start out far apart and move together in ability as the season progresses."

Camas County Coach Ed Blankenship regards the Northside event in a similar manner. "It should be fairly tight," he said. "I couldn't even begin to tell you what might happen."

What certainly will happen is tonight in Fairfield, Carey will face Gooding State at 6 p.m. to open the Northside tourney. Dietrich meets Bliss in the nighttime. Camas County, however, has a bye, while the Gooding State-Carey winner at 8 p.m. Monday before Richfield, which also got a bye, faces the Dietrich-Bliss victory at 7:30. At Oakley, the host Hornets open Southside competition by facing Hansen at 5 p.m. Murtaugh confronts Castelford at 6:30 and Raft River meets Hagerman at 8.

Action continues through next week, with the Northside deciding its sub-district champion Thursday night and the Southside doing so on Wednesday. Both events conclude next Saturday with second-place games, the winners rounding out the Fourth District tourney field.

Surprises or no, surprises, the Northside favorites include Richfield, Camas County and Carey. Richfield had owned a spotless league record until Camas County upset the Tigers 38-37 Tuesday night on Margie Lomen's buzzer at the buzzer.

"That was a strange game," Blankenship said. "They had us down by 14 points early in the third quarter, but we finally started to play a bit of basketball. The difference was they couldn't hit their foul shots and their offense bogged down. I'd like to think it was our great defense but I don't know if that was the case or not. I think maybe their girls relaxed a little bit when they got that lead; they played fairly well up to that point."

Meanwhile, at the Southside, Lee believes that the strongest team might not be either of the two front-runners, but the third-place squad: Castelford.

"Their momentum is in a much more positive direction than any other team in the conference right now," Lee said of the Wolves, who have won seven of their last eight games. "If a team expects to be the No. 1 or No. 2 seed, they'll have to beat Castelford."

"Their defense is much improved over the first of the year, and they play an intelligent game," Lee continued, extolling the Wolf virtues. "They aren't concerned about how many points they score — if they can beat you 2-0 they'll do it. And without question they're the finest rebounding team in the conference."

Idaho State signs pair of JC players

POCATELLO — Idaho State University apparently won't be going after another junior college quarterback for next season.

Coach Jim Koetter announced this week the signing of two JC transfers — neither of them quarterbacks — and said there are unlikely to be more.

Koetter said that since the Bengals had relatively few transfers to graduation this year, ISU will concentrate on recruiting freshmen for next year. That means that Idaho State will not go after transfers like Mike Machurek and Paul Peterson, who compiled prolific passing statistics for the Bengals the past four seasons.

College Football

ISU currently has two quarterbacks, Don Horn, a sophomore who has been in the program for three years and has played very sparingly, and Boyd Suberland, a freshman. A third potential signal caller, former Idaho Falls High School star Eric Walker, is on an LDS mission and may not return to the program.

The Bengals have signed Bill Mahan, 5-foot-9½, 175-pound defensive back from California's El Camino College; and Larry Wobig, a 6-3, 181-pound wide receiver from Ricks College.

Wobig, who attended Bonnevillie High School in Idaho Falls, was an all-Gem State Conference performer. Wobig caught 42 passes for 655 yards and five touchdowns last season at Ricks.

Mahan, a native of Turrance, Calif., had 30 unassisted tackles, 42 assists, interception and four punt returns for 35 yards last year at El Camino.

Machurek, who set most Big Sky Conference passing and total offense records of their last eight games. "If a player expects to be the No. 1 or No. 2 seed, they'll have to beat Castelford."

"Their defense is much improved over the first of the year, and they play an intelligent game," Lee continued, extolling the Wolf virtues. "They aren't concerned about how many points they score — if they can beat you 2-0 they'll do it. And without question they're the finest rebounding team in the conference."

And he said Thursday that he's looking forward to meeting Marvin Hagler in the ring for the middleweight championship "two or three years down the road. I am not going to rush myself."

"Marvelous Marvin Hagler is a true significant and great champion and I respect him greatly," Leonard said. "I'm sure you've read and heard that we've been making verbal assaults on one another and we're really friends. But when the date comes about, it will be one of the greatest fights in the history of boxing."

Meanwhile, Leonard says he plans to fight once every three months and predicted he would regain his welterweight crown "by the fall."

"I feel I'm not just a fighter, I'm an entertainer and I like to put on a good show," Leonard told 1,000 cheering fans on Thursday. "And I think Feb. 25 against Kevin Howard will definitely be a great show. Hopefully he'll cooperate."

"I've been training now for approximately two weeks. My weight is great. I weigh about 150 pounds and I look forward to coming here."

The 10-round bout will be the first for the former world welterweight champion since he announced his retirement two years ago.

Stewart leading San Diego Open

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Payne Stewart, wearing the knickers that have become his trademark, charged past Ray Floyd with a 7-under-par 65 and took the second round lead Friday in the $400,000 Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open Golf Tournament.

Stewart, a tournament-winner in each of his past two seasons, made his move with a back-nine 31 on the difficult South course at Torrey Pines and finished 36 holes with a 133 total, 11 shots under par.

"I feel very confident with the way I'm hitting the ball," Stewart said. "I've made only one bogey in 36 holes and hit 32 greens in two rounds."

"I feel like I have an awful lot of control of my game right now."

Two of the tournament's leading attractions, were not only out of control but out of action. Johnny Miller withdrew with a foot injury, and Tom Watson, a winner in his last time out, struggled to a fat 74 at the South course and missed the cut for the final two rounds with a 142 total.

"I just didn't hit it very well at all. And when I had to make a putt, I missed it," Watson said.

Floyd, who held the first round lead with a 64 on the shorter, easier North course, left one in a bunker on the third hole of the South course, made a double bogey, and had to rally to salvage a 70.

"I feel I should have gotten a little more out of the round," the veteran Floyd said. "I feel like I wasted a lot of shots out there. But, after making a double bogey right off the bat, I guess it wasn't a bad round."

He was tied at 154, 10 under par, with Don Pooley, Brad Bryant and Chip Beck at the tournament's halfway point. Pooley, who said he's "playing about as well as I ever have," and Beck each had a 68 on the South. Bryant had 69 on the South.

The group at 133 included Andy Bean, Gary McCord, Fred Couples and Ron Streck. Streck had a 67 and Bean a 68 on the North course while Couples played the South in 68 in bright, warm, sunny weather.

World Open late last season, holed putts of 15 and 25 feet on his front side, then assaulted the leaders with his 5-under-par 31 on his final nine holes.

Lewis beats 28-10 in last Millrose leap

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Lewis, in the unaccommodated position of having to come from behind, shattered his world indoor best in the men's long jump by 9¼ inches and equaled his best leap outdoors Friday night.

Mills soared 28 feet, 10¼ inches in the Millrose Games at Madison Square Garden.

Lewis' performance was more remarkable in view of the fact that he did not appear to be jumping at his potential in the first five rounds of the competition.

The 22-year-old from Willingboro, N.J., considered the most consistent long jumper in history and the 1983 world champion, was in second place, behind veteran Larry Myricks, entering the final round of the long jump.

Then Myricks got off his best jump of the night, 27-6. Now, the pressure was on Lewis, the last jumper in the competition.

And like a world champion, Lewis rose to the occasion. With a perfect takeoff, he matched the distance he had achieved in last year's national outdoor championships.

There has been only one better jump in history — Bob Beamon's 29-2½, in the 7,400-foot altitude of Mexico City during the 1968 Olympic Games.

Lewis' 28-10½ last year came in Indianapolis, and his 28-10½ Friday night came in his first long jump competition of the 1984 indoor season.

"Usually I'm in control of an event," said Lewis. "I wasn't in control," he added. "The main thing was that I was able to come back to do well when I had to. I wanted to make it on my fifth try. I didn't want the pressure of having to make it on the last one."

Last year, at the Millrose Games, Lewis put together a series of five jumps over 27 feet, regarded as the best series ever indoors or outdoors.

His magnificent performance Friday night overshadowed everything else at the 77th annual Millrose Games, before a crowd of 18,210.

Among the other winners were Greg Foster in the men's 60-yard high hurdles in 7.07 seconds, Emmitt King in the men's 60-yard dash in 6.12, Chandra Cheeseman in the women's 60 sprint in 6.8, and Stephanie Hightower in the women's hurdles in 7.47.

Also, James Robinson in the men's 800 in 1:49.66, Robin Campbell in the women's 800 in 2:05.81, Stanley Redwine in the men's 100 in 1:09.07, Tony Darden in the men's 500 in 36.73, Michael Paul in the men's 400 in 47.60, and Grace Jackson in the women's 400 in 53.87.

KEEPING AMERICA ON THE GROW

Eddie Albert, Actor, Conservationist

America is number one in agriculture because of a simple idea. In the past, we invested in our young people. Today, they lead the world in agriculture. Programs teaching production, horticulture, processing, sales and service, natural resources, forestry and agri-mechanics are essential. Through such educational programs, young people learn to use the modern technology of agriculture to feed our nation and the world.

We have to keep America on the grow. We have to invest in the people and technology that ensures our world leadership in agriculture.

That's why your support of vocational and technical education in agriculture, and the Future Farmers of America in your community, is so important.

Together, we're Keeping America on the Grow.

U.S. trade deficit sets record

Protectionist clamor swells

By STEVEN P. ROSENFELD The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Three U.S. industries sought government protection from imports, Japan's foreign minister came to Washington to seek a solution to trade disputes and the Commerce Department confirmed that the nation's foreign trade gap widened to record levels in 1983.

Analysts said that if the clamor for protectionist measures in eroding new barriers to foreign-made goods, U.S. consumers will be faced with higher prices.

Domestic producers of steel, copper and shoes all petitioned the International Trade-Commissions this past week to restrict foreign competitors' shipments to the United States for the next five years. The petitions claimed inroads by imports had decimated profits and eliminated jobs at home.

Analysts noted that under the timetable for handling such requests, the commission must make its recommendation to the president by September, forcing a decision on whether to erect new trade barriers on the eve of the 1984 election.

Meanwhile, Japan, which has been imposing its own limits on shipments of cars to the United States for the past three years, dispatched Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe to the United States to discuss other sources of trade friction with President Reagan and key members of his administration.

The trade figures released Friday helped focus attention on the plight of U.S. businesses trying to compete in world markets.

The Commerce Department said the trade deficit rose 62.5 percent in 1983 to a record $68.4 billion, and economists said it was likely the gap would exceed $100 billion this year.

Imports rose 5.8 percent to $289.5 billion last year while exports fell 5.5 percent to $200.5 billion.

The week in business

David Ernst, an international economist at Evans Economics Inc. in Washington, said four factors are behind the deterioration of U.S. trade and the clamor for protection.

Ernst said a strong dollar has made U.S. goods more expensive in markets abroad, while foreign products appear to be bargains.

At the same time, the U.S. economy was rebounding earlier and stronger than economies of major trading partners, resulting in increased demand for goods in the United States and sluggish buying abroad.

Meanwhile, he said, huge foreign debt problems in developing nations, notably in Latin America, have eliminated sales in many traditional major markets for U.S. heavy equipment.

And because of the world oil glut and declining revenue in oil-producing nations, U.S. sales have been hampered in another lucrative market.

Joseph Carson, an economist at Merrill Lynch Inc. in New York, said many industries have been hurt by growing foreign competition and are looking for government protection while they attempt to rebuild.

But by imposing quotas or raising fees for foreign businesses seeking sales in the United States, the government would be encouraging higher prices for consumers at home and perhaps discouraging U.S. industries from finding ways to become more efficient, he said.

Richard Peterson, chief economist at Continental Illinois National Bank & Trust Co. in Chicago, said he can sympathize with industries seeking protection when they think they are being treated unfairly in competition abroad.

But Richardson added that building trade barriers could trigger retaliation for U.S. businesses, trying to regain lost ground in markets overseas at a time when economic growth around the world is brightening prospects for exporters.

"I don't really see any gains from protectionism," said Ernst. "We all lose."

In other business and economic developments this past week:

• The Labor Department said consumer prices rose 3.8 percent in 1983, the second straight year in which inflation was held below 4 percent and the lowest rise in prices since 1972, when government wage and price controls were in effect. A companion report said the average weekly wage rose 2.5 percent last year, after adjusting for inflation. One factor helping hold down prices last year was moderation in labor contract settlements. The department said contracts negotiated by unions last year limited pay raises to an average 2.8 percent over the past two or three years.

• The Royal Dutch-Shell Corp. the world's second largest industrial concern behind Exxon Corp. offered about $5.2 billion to buy the 30 percent of Shell Oil Co. it does not already own. Texaco Inc. raised its offer for Getty Oil Co. by $237 million to push the price tag to $10.1 billion in what would be the biggest takeover ever in U.S. history.

• The nation's automakers reported sales of new cars rose 24.3 percent in mid-January from a year earlier, the strongest performance in five years. The Commerce Department said orders received by factories for durable goods fell 1.1 percent in December from November, but ended the year with a gain of 16.9 percent — the best showing since 1978.

• The Treasury Department said the federal deficit was $63.3 billion after the first three months of the current fiscal year, down from $68.3 billion a year earlier.

Wall Street waits, closes week mixed

By CHET CURRIER The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market finished mixed Friday as traders awaited President Reagan's weekend announcement of his plans for the 1984 election.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, helped by some late buying of blue chips, broke a seven-session losing streak. But most other, broader measures of market trends remained on the minus side.

Dow Jones average of 30 blue chips, down 41.77 points over the past seven trading days, edged up 31 to an even 1,200.00.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange tapered off to 103.72 million shares from 111.10 million Thursday.

In Friday's trading Houston Natural Gas gained 2 1/2 to 59 and Coastal Corp. climbed 3/4 to 37 1/4. Coastal began a $65-a-share tender offer for a big chunk of Houston Natural Gas's stock. The news sparked buying of some other natural gas issues as well. Arka was up 1/4 at 26 1/2 and Piedmont Natural Gas 1/4 at 23 1/2.

Some of the new regional telephone stocks also had a good day. Bell South picked up 2 1/2 to 96 1/2 and Bell Atlantic 1 to 73 1/4, with both issues hitting new highs since they began trading on a new issued basis last November. Ameritech rose 1/4 to 68 1/2; U.S. West 1/4 to 61 1/2; and Nynex 1/4 to 63 1/2. However, Pacific Telesis dropped 1/4 to 59 1/2 and Southwestern Bell was off 1/4 at 62 1/2.

Airline stocks, by contrast, went mostly lower, adding to their recent losses prompted by signs of a stronger oil market. UAL fell 3/4 to 36 1/2; AMR 3/4 to 35 1/2; Delta 1/4 to 41, and Pan American 1/4 to 9 1/2.

Superior Oil gained 1/4 to 41 1/2 on sharply higher fourth-quarter profits. The daily tally on the Big Board showed about three issues declining in price for every two that rose, and the exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks slipped .11 to 94.77.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 121.23 million shares.

Airline defaults force careful planning

What are your chances of recovering your money or having your ticket honored on another carrier on which you've booked a flight gone broke or encounters serious financial trouble?

Sylvia Porter

Grin still — despite recent efforts by consumer protection agencies, some travel groups and Congress to help you in instances where airlines have gone bankrupt, filed for reorganization, otherwise run into deep financial trouble.

When you buy a plane ticket, you assume a seat on the airplane. If the airline cancels its plans and ceases operations, you probably also have assumed that you'll get a refund or, at least, a seat on another airline.

As matters stand today, though, you, a would-be passenger, have scant protection. You have been (still may be) victimized — by enduring endless waits to be re-scheduled on another airline or enduring endless waits while the bankruptcy courts distribute remaining assets to unsecured creditors, including ticketholders.

This is a disgraceful situation that cries out for correction and the Civil Aeronautics Board, some parts of the airline industry, travel groups and Congress — all of them — are trying to devise workable plans.

The airline industry already has its own default protection plan that is supposed to accommodate passengers when a competitor bows out. This program provides that participating airlines will honor tickets issued by travel agents or the bankrupt competitor within one year of purchase.

When Braniff International went out of business in 1982, a total of 31 airlines honored nearly 65,000 tickets worth about $2.5 million.

In contrast, when Continental Airlines filed for reorganization in September 1983, few airlines helped grounded passengers. They claimed that since Continental was still in business, they weren't bound by the industry agreement, an interpretation not shared by the CAB, American Society of Travel Agents, other consumer groups. However, several major airlines have pulled out of the plan, including such big lines as Eastern and American.

When Hawaii Express went bankrupt in December, only three of the eight carriers who fly the defunct airline's only route — Los Angeles-Honolulu — belonged to the plan.

When Air Florida recently ran into difficulty, Eastern immediately announced it would not honor its tickets. Eastern has since reversed that decision under heavy pressure as Air Florida's troubles have abated.

Under today's up-downside-ways situation, what steps can you take to protect your money and your plans?

• Pay for your ticket by credit card. That's the key, advises the CAB, for you can claim a billing error in the credit-card company because services for which you were charged were not provided.

• Don't pay by cash or check. If the airline goes bankrupt, you may never get a refund or, at best, you may get a few cents on the dollar. About 17,000 passengers may wait years before collecting from Laker Airways, which folded in 1982.

Phone a local American Automobile Association (AAA) club to locate a travel agent who is participating in the AAA's Airline Default Protection Plan. Since May 1983, AAA travel agents guarantee repayment of the purchase price of your ticket at an AAA agent. You don't have to belong to use an AAA club, says W. Allan Wilbur, public relations director of 88 of the 168 clubs over the country. The cost — about 10 cents per ticket — is absorbed by the travel agency. More than $900,000 was refunded on Continental Airline's tickets.

• Passengers may become preferred creditors in airline bankruptcy proceedings under a bill introduced in Congress by Rep. Pat Schroeder, D-Ohio. Also, if management failed to make a good-faith effort to reimburse ticketholders or otherwise help the bankruptcy judge could appoint a new management team. This would force airlines to provide some protection.

Meanwhile, protect yourself. Don't trust promises.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff: I received your letter... I was allowed to withdraw my queen of trumps but was delighted to be in the race against it!

Good Support, Baltimore, Md. ANSWER: Since the one-over response promises a minimum of six points and game requirements are 26 points, opener must make up the difference - about 20 points.

Dear Mr. Wolff: I was dumpty and had a K-card suit headed by the A-K-Q. Partner started to run the suit at no-trump but when a defender discarded, it was obvious to me that defender revoked.

ANSWER: No, it is not. A proper objective is to search out a possible fit for partner. If responder denies four hearts by introducing a four-card spade suit, a possible heart fit may remain uncovered.

Dear Mr. Wolff: How many points does one need to jump to game in partner's major suit after a one-over-one response?

ANSWER: The rebid in a new suit promises a wider range than an initial rebid, between 13-18 points. It is not a forcing bid and responder may pass with a poor initial response.

"Vote for the man who promises the least he'll be the least disappointing." Bernard Baruch.

South got the least out of today's trump suit. He was in such a hurry to draw trumps that he overlooked a cinch play.

South won the spade ace and the score was settled quickly. South played his high trumps and dustily conceded down one.

It's not unusual to find a trump break, a trick or 4-1 trump break. What West had alerted you with his weak jump overcall."

With or without West's bidding, South managed his trumps poorly. After the trump ace drops West's trump nine, South has nothing to lose by leading a low trump, to dummy's 10.

East wins dummy's trump 10 with his kick. He leads a spade for South. To lead, the trump position is now exposed and South crosses to dummy in either direction. (Take the marked trump finesse (K-8 over Q-7)
