

Kennedy pleads guilty in drug case

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Robert F. Kennedy Jr. pleaded guilty Friday to felony heroin possession involving an incident aboard an airplane flight to Rapid City.

Prosecutors earlier said they thought the 39-year-old son of the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy would plead innocent.

Circuit Judge Marshall Young ordered a presentence investigation, which will be done by a Rapid City probation officer. Kennedy will be sentenced March 16.

Kennedy was charged after he was taken off a Republic Airlines plane last Sept. 11.

When Young asked Kennedy about the incident, he replied: "At that time I had two tenths of a gram (of heroin) in my possession."

Young said laboratory results verified that.

John Fitzgerald, one of Kennedy's lawyers, said that at the time Kennedy "was coming to South Dakota for treatment realizing he had a (drug) problem."

The maximum penalty for a conviction is two years in jail and a $2,000 fine, but Rod Hahnitz, Pennington County state's attorney, said a first-time offense usually results in a suspended imposition of sentence.

Kennedy admitted himself to a New Jersey drug treatment center on Sept. 13 and was discharged Feb. 7 with no trace of drugs in his system, Fitzgerald told the court.

Kennedy, who said he pleaded guilty voluntarily, is undergoing six months of post-release treatment, Fitzgerald said, and "is presently working for a national resource fund, basically a legal fund devoted to environmental concerns of the citizens of New York" as a volunteer.

When asked later, neither Fitzgerald nor Kennedy would comment further about the volunteer work or any other aspect of the case.

Kennedy was accompanied by his wife Emily. His attention was focused on his lawyers and the judge and she stared at her feet and into space in the courtroom.

Kennedy's court appearance, which lasted about 25 minutes amid tight security, had been postponed while he was receiving treatment. It originally had been for late last month, but fog on the East Coast kept Kennedy grounded there and forced a rescheduling.

Iran, Iraq in key battle

By The Associated Press
Iran and Iraq fought a major battle Friday 100 miles east of Baghdad in which hundreds of soldiers were killed, bringing total losses in two days of fierce combat to more than 4,000, according to communiques from both sides.

Iran claimed its forces were closing in on a main highway to the Iraqi capital and had killed 1,000 Iraqi soldiers in a three-hour engagement near the center of the 700-mile front. Iraq claimed it had contained the enemy advance and inflicted heavy losses on Iranian forces.

A U.S. official said Thursday in Washington that about 500,000 Iranian and Iraqi troops were massing on the central front.

Iran launched what it called a massive offensive on the fortified center of the front at midnight Wednesday.

Reagan decries critics of Mideast plan

By MAUREEN SANTINI
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan said Friday it was "unfair" for critics of his administration's policies to contend that U.S. efforts to negotiate peace in the Middle East have collapsed.

"I call it unfair," Reagan said as he dropped by a White House press briefing session on women's issues.

Later, at a luncheon for elected women officeholders from the Midwest, the president acknowledged the Middle East peace process "has been painfully slow. But we must continue to search for peace and stability as long as there is a chance of bringing it about."

He said the United States has been striving for peace in that region for 35 years. "The most recent outbreak of violence reaffirms the importance of pushing our efforts to find a peaceful solution to the fundamental problems of the region and we're trying to do just that," he said.

In his earlier comments, Reagan said that Syria "for its own selfish purposes, has been the stumbling block to preventing some of these proposals, with regard to broadening the base of the (Lebanese) government."

Reagan, who approved a plan Friday to begin withdrawing U.S. Marines from Beirut, to Navy ships offshore this weekend, also said the multinational force, of which the Marines are a part, has served a useful purpose.

"There's a majority of the people there (in Lebanon) who are not fairly represented in the government and the Gemayel government has been proposing plans for altering that and trying to get a consensus government, that would give proper representation to all these other people," Reagan said.

"The very fact that that's come about, I think, is due to the presence of the multinational force," the president said.

Critics of administration policies have said U.S. influence in the Middle East is waning because of Lebanese President Amin Gemayel's decision to scrap the U.S.-brokered security pact with Israel and to accept "an eight-point plan offered by Saudi Arabia. They also say the removal of the Marines suggests that U.S.

policies in Lebanon have not worked.

Last year's Israeli-Lebanese pact in effect made Lebanon the second Arab government, after Egypt, to sign a comprehensive security agreement with Israel, one that recognizes the Jewish state's right to exist in secure borders.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes also took issue with suggestions that the United States was no longer the major powerbroker in the region. "We do remain a major player," he said, citing ongoing diplomatic contacts.

Speakes said the administration would not announce in advance specifically when Marines were leaving Beirut and how many of the approximately 1,400 Marines would be leaving at any one time.

Lebanese Christians flee advancing Moslems

By RUTH SINAI
The Associated Press

SIDON, Lebanon — Hundreds of Lebanese Christians fleeing advancing Moslem militiamen Friday pulled their possessions into cars and trucks and drove south across the bridge over the Awali River into Israeli-occupied territory.

Israeli sources estimated 15,000 Lebanese have moved into the Israeli controlled zone of southern Lebanon since the latest civil war battles started in the coastal area south of Beirut on Monday.

Druse and Shiite Moslem rebels linked up in an offensive this week that routed Lebanese army troops from a key crossing south of Sidon. He stood by his car at the side of the bridge as Israeli soldiers searched his car, overflowing with colorful sheets, blankets, women's clothing, a sewing machine, lampshades and more.

"When the Israelis held the area, we could play football without fear. Now you don't know from one day to the next where the trouble will start," Hazeh said.

Israel pulled out of central Lebanon in September and moved its troops southward to reduce its casualties and costs.

The troops were entrenched along the Awali but in the past week two patrols crossed the line and moved up tell near his house.

the coast in an effort to prevent the return of Palestinian guerrillas to the areas under guerrilla control before the Israeli invasion in June 1982.

"If Israel helps us, we'll go back home. We have all our hopes on Israel now," said Haim Azzi, who came from the town of Hamaile, about two miles to the north.

An Israeli lieutenant colonel spoke to reporters as he escorted them to one of the schools giving shelter to what he called "Mercedes refugees."

"One day they come south, then they run on back home and pick up some more stuff from their houses and drive back down here.

Complaints deluge agency over 'Dial-a-Porn'

By NORMAN BLACK
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A man in New Jersey describes all telephone sex services as "cesspools for our children to get trapped in." A New York couple argues the First Amendment could never have been meant to protect "Dial-A-Porn." A Georgia woman uses adjectives such as "despicable" and "disgusting."

Those people and more than 25,000 others have given the Federal Communications Commission an earful about telephone services — known generically as "Dial-A-Porn" — that allow callers to listen to women simulating sex.

The FCC asked for public comment last December. But no plan at the agency predicted the subsequent deluge of mail.

"Complaints, stacked in boxes for perusal by FCC attorneys, come from all parts of the country. They are generally brief and to the point. Most are written by mothers. And their message is virtually uniform: don't try to regulate 'Dial-A-Porn' services; ban them."

Writes David Britten of Watchung, N.J.: "There is no reason to permit this filth to be broadcast over any communications lines. It does not benefit anyone, except the smut-peddlers producing such trash, but what it does do is open up new cesspools for our children to get trapped in."

"We were dismayed to see charges on our phone bill to the 'Dial-A-Porn' number... in New York," say Eldon and Carolyn Duerksen of Mishawaka, Ind. "Upon questioning, we discovered that our children had gotten the number from friends, who had gotten it from other friends, etc., and called it without our knowledge. We were appalled that such a thing would be allowed to continue."

"I believe this so-called 'service' is destructive and harmful to the morals and mental strength of our country," says Roy C. O'Bryant of Atlanta. "Poison should not be placed before adults or children to eat."

Hart blames Mondale for Beirut Marines' deaths

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (AP) — Democratic presidential front-runner Walter F. Mondale came under new attack Friday when Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado said "there might be 300 young Americans alive today" had Mondale not waited so long to call for removal of U.S. Marines from Lebanon.

"The front-runner in this race waited until the last day of 1983 to join in that call to bring the Marines home," Hart said while campaigning in Cedar Falls, Iowa. "If every leading Democrat in this race and in our party had joined in the fall of 1982 to call for the removal of those Marines, there might be 300 young Americans alive today."

Hart made his comments while on a 15-city campaign swing through the state whose precinct caucuses Monday night will be the first public step toward selection of delegates to the 1984 Democratic National Convention.

Entering the final weekend before the caucuses, the political spotlight was on Iowa as the Democratic candidates readied a final push for the state's precinct caucuses, but many of them were already looking ahead to the New Hampshire primary.

"I believe I'll do well, but we'll find out how well on Monday," former Vice President Walter F. Mondale told junior high school students before flying to New Hampshire, Mondale is regarded as the clear front-runner in Iowa.

Mondale's campaign also looked for help to the candidate's neighboring hometown to the north as Minnesota Gov. Rudy Perpich, Lt. Gov. Marlene Johnson and other Democrats planned to lead busloads of supporters on a last-minute "Fritz Blitz" to knock on doors Saturday to ask people to back Mondale.

Sen. John Glenn of Ohio planned to fly to the state on Saturday to embark on a four-to-five-day motorcade that an aide described as "a last pump-up-the-troops trip."

His campaign issued a statement in Washington calling on President Reagan to deny a pending Swiss request for shipment of 200 kilograms of plutonium to Switzerland for use in a reactor.

"If the president grants the Swiss request, he will violate the spirit and I believe the letter of the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Act and he may also hasten the day when scores of nations, and even terrorist groups, will possess nuclear weapons," Glenn said.

Businessmen sued for federal fraud

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department sued three businessmen Friday for more than $1.8 million which it says they defrauded from the government during the construction of natural gas tankers and nuclear submarines by General Dynamics Corp.

Acting Assistant Attorney General Richard K. Willard, head of the department's civil division, said the suit was filed in U.S. District Court in Boston.

Named as defendants were: James H. Gilliland, former assistant general manager of General Dynamics' shipyard in Quincy, Mass.; George G. Davis, former vice president of non-defunct Frigitemp Corp. of New York City; and Gerald E. Lee, former board chairman of Frigitemp.

All three, along with F. Takis Veliotis, a former executive vice president of General Dynamics, had been named in a 17-count criminal indictment in September, 1983. That indictment alleged that Davis and Lee embezzled an estimated $5 million from Frigitemp from 1974 through 1979 and paid Veliotis and Gilliland some $2.7 million of that in kickbacks for awarding subcontracts "on the sly" to Frigitemp.

The civil suit alleged that Veliotis participated with the other three in an elaborate bribery and fraud scheme in the 1970s to rig awards for sub-contracts on 10 liquefied natural gas tankers built for private clients, and on Trident ballistic missile submarines and Los Angeles-class nuclear attack submarines built for the U.S. Navy. Five of the 10 tankers were built with construction subsidies from the U.S. Maritime Administration.

Justice Department spokesman L. Brad Marman said Veliotis was not named in the civil suit because the government is not certain where he is. The government's court papers, however, said he is believed to be in Greece.

Veliotis is a fugitive from the criminal indictment, but he has Greek citizenship and Greece does not extradite its nationals.

"The civil suit sought $615,000 plus damages for the alleged scheme's impact on the Maritime Administration. The figure covers only three of the tankers, because the owners of the other two have repaid the subsidies although they were not required to do so."

"The civil suit also sought $1.2 million which the government alleged represented the amount of kickbacks paid to Veliotis and Gilliland from June 1978 to September 1979.

Jackson says he probably won't visit Nicaragua

ROCHESTER, N.H. (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson said Friday he probably will not accept an invitation to visit Nicaragua next week, but might change his mind if the leftist government satisfies his concerns about human rights and free elections there.

After referring to his success in persuading Syria to release a downed American flyer, Jackson told "The Associated Press" that the Managua government was "quite insistent" that he visit Nicaragua on Tuesday, the fifth anniversary of the Sandinista revolution.

"The Democratic presidential hopeful, campaigning in the here for the Feb. 28 primary, said he met Thursday night in Manchester with Francisco Campbell, a top assistant to Nicaragua Ambassador Antonio Jarquin.

He said he told Campbell he was "grateful for the invitation" and "wanted to delay it," but Jackson said "they were quite insistent that we come now. They were quite intense in their interest."

Jackson said he stressed to Campbell "our concerns ... about a date certain for the election" to replace the Sandinista government "with an elected one" and (that) the elections be open elections.

"We also have human rights concerns," Jackson said.

Vice president calls Democrats the 'woeful eight'

CONCORD, N.H. (AP) — Vice President George Bush criticized the "woeful eight" Democratic presidential candidates on Friday and asked New Hampshire voters to give President Reagan a "vote of confidence" in the earliest primary state.

Bush's visit coincided with the beginning of an advertising campaign urging Republicans and independents to vote for the president as a show of support in the Feb. 28 primary, where he faces no major opposition.

Democrats have had the spotlight in New Hampshire for 18 months and Bush said that from listening to the "woeful eight" Democratic candidates "charging around this state and Iowa and others, one would think there is no hope, no chance for anything." Bush made the comments at a news conference and Republican rally in Concord, N.H.

The vice president said there has been "remarkable economic recovery from the paralysis and stagnation and drift of the Carter-Mondale years."

In foreign policy, Bush said the United States now is stronger and more respected than it was under Carter's "weak, vacillating foreign policy (that) had brought respect for America's leadership in the free world to an all-time low."

At a news conference before a dinner, Bush told reporters that the mission of U.S. Marines in Beirut has not been successful, but he would not call it a failure.

AT&T asks reconsideration of 'access charge'

By NORMAN BLACK
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The American Telephone & Telegraph Co., saying it faced "serious financial harm," said Friday it would ask federal regulators to reconsider a recent order postponing telephone "access charges."

"We cannot believe the Federal Communications Commission intended any such unreasonable results as this," said AT&T Chairman Charles L. Brown. "We intend to file an emergency petition asking reconsideration of this order in light of its impact on our 1984 interstate (long-distance) operations.

"We owe it to our shareholders, other investors and our customers to let them know that continued tinkering with pricing policies in Washington is causing serious financial harm to a business which is vital to the nation."

Separately Friday, the FCC declared unjustified and illegal a new rate structure proposed by local phone companies that would have increased dramatically customer fees for private business lines.

The agency, in a 400-page order, said the nation's Bell companies and other independent local phone companies had failed to justify what it described as "widely divergent and substantially higher rates for various types of connections required by long-distance companies as well as business customers for private line services."

The FCC gave the nation's 1,500 local phone companies until March 15 to submit new rate schedules, saying it would still try to meet its original April 3 deadline for reviewing new fees. The decision was a decided victory for a host of large phone customers who use private lines — funding from Western Union and Dow Jones to Muzak and the American Library Association.

AT&T had expressed its displeasure at the FCC's decision last month to postpone access charges for residential customers until June 1, 1985.

World Leader jailed in Manila

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A judge ordered opposition leader Salvador Laurel jailed Friday after soldiers said they found a gold-plated pistol in his suitcase as they took him from boarding a flight to the United States.

Laurel said the gun was "obviously planted" as part of a government scheme to prevent him from going to the United States to talk about conditions in the Philippines and to raise funds.

Celia Laurel, wife of the opposition leader, attempted to board the Pan-Am flight to San Francisco and deliver her husband's speeches, but was prevented, on orders from the military, Laurel said.

If convicted of illegally possessing a firearm, Laurel could be sentenced to life imprisonment. Arraignment was scheduled for Saturday and Judge Dionisio Capistrano ordered Laurel's trial to begin Monday.

After the jail-warden in Manila suburb of Pasay City said he had no room for Laurel there, the former senator was held in the air-conditioned office of the local police chief.

Laurel is president of the United Nationalist Democratic Organization, an alliance of 14 opposition groups.

Hours before the departure of the flight he tried to take, Laurel reversed his stand and announced that his coalition would run candidates in the National Assembly election May 14, even though President Ferdinand E. Marcos had not met all of opposition demands for election returns.

Other opposition leaders on Friday began a campaign to boycott the elections, saying Marcos would never allow his opponents to win but would use the balloting to make his 78-year-old authoritarian rule seem representative of the people.

At a three-hour nighttime inquest, Laurel refused to post bail of 20,000 pesos ($1,420). He argued that there was "no probable cause" for his arrest because the gun was "obviously planted" in his luggage at the airport.

Prosecutor Ernesto Bernabe pleaded with Laurel to post bail. "My conscience and my conviction do not allow me to yield on this point," Laurel said, and demanded a speedy trial.

Bernabe filed formal charges of illegal possession of firearms, which carry a penalty of 17 years to life in prison.

Authorities said that inside the suitcase was a Belgian-made 9mm automatic Lager with no bullets. The gun, they said, was wrapped in tinfoil and inside a leather case.

At the inquest, Bernabe took sworn statements from several soldiers and civilian employees of the Aviation Security Command who claimed they decided to open Laurel's suitcase after an X-ray machine detected a gun.

'Hot' letter called a fake

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A U.S. Embassy official Friday blamed Soviet "disinformation" agents for a letter on embassy stationery that urged neutral Austria to cooperate with NATO in case of a Soviet nuclear attack.

Press attache H. Michael Bennett called the letter, which caused a diplomatic flap between Vienna and Washington, "a fake which is part of a systematic disinformation policy." He also cited several other "concrete" examples of forgery that U.S. officials blame on the Soviet Union and its allies.

Defense Minister Friedhelm Frischenschlager, to whom the letter was addressed, said he was sure that phony U.S. Ambassador Helene von Damms said her signature was forged on it.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Brian Carlson said, "It is probably not an accident that this second-hand piece of disinformation was published shortly before the state visit of President (Rudolph) Kirchschlager," who is scheduled to arrive in Washington Feb. 27.

"It would seem to be another attempt to use forgeries and falsehoods to drive wedges between the U.S. and our friends," Carlson said. "U.S. respect for Austria's neutrality is a matter of record and is not open to question."

According to a photostat copy, partially reprinted Friday in the Vienna daily Kurier, the letter was dated Jan. 26, 1984, and said: "I should like to be sure that you kindly examine the ways and means in which the Republic of Austria could assist the West in the event of a Soviet nuclear attack.

"Above all it should be taken into consideration that an effective interception of your air space control system into that of NATO entails obvious advantages for common defense."

U.N. fears deserts causing 'global catastrophe'

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — A goal of curbing the spread of the world's deserts by the year 2000 is no longer possible, and "global catastrophe" could result, a top United Nations expert says.

"Desertification," the deterioration of productive land into deserts, continues without letup at the rate of 14.8 million acres a year, according to Goufar Karrar, chief of the desertification branch of the U.N. Environmental Program based here.

At that rate, Karrar told journalists Thursday, "We could lose one-third of the world's existing arable area by the end of the century."

In 1987, 84 nations agreed in Nairobi on a "plan of action" to arrest the spread of deserts by the year 2000. But Karrar, a Sudanese microbiologist, said that goal is no longer feasible, primarily because of governments' inadequate financing and lack of political will.

"We have to look at this as a colossal problem," said Karrar, whose agency released a packet full of grim statistics.

Desertification currently affects about 100 nations, most of them in the underdeveloped world and many of them in Africa, said a UNEP report.

The spread of deserts threatens 35 percent of the earth's land surface, or about 45 million square miles, and 20 percent of its population — about 850 million people — the report said.

"Seventy-five percent of this area and 60 percent of the population are already affected," the report added. "If the present march of desertification continues, by the year 2000 the situation will have become a global catastrophe."

Karrar said, "There isn't actually anywhere in the world that is immune from desertification," which UNEP defines as "the diminution or destruction of the biological potential of the land" which "can lead ultimately to desert-like conditions."

The scientist quoted a survey by another U.N. agency, the Food and Agriculture Organization, which estimated that the annual loss of food production caused by desertification amounts to $26 billion.

Utility-rate bill goes to vote

BOISE (AP) — Legislation effectively voiding an Idaho Supreme Court decision that critics say could force massive utility rate increases was sent to the full House Friday for a final vote.

The Senate-passed bill, approved by the State Affairs Committee without dissent, bars the Public Utilities Commission from permitting utilities to bill customers for construction work in programs, or CWP, except in cases of "extreme emergency."

"Something has to be done or this commission, in compliance with the court order, will implement CWP with devastating effect... in the short term," said Public Utilities Commissioner Richard High.

The legislation, which cleared the Senate overwhelmingly earlier this month, could come to a final vote in the House next week. It has the solid support of Gov. John Evans.

"Consumer advocate groups, in the absence of action, will be on the ballot with an initiative" to overturn the high court's ruling, predicted Perry Swisher, another PUC member. The commission has warned that if the Supreme Court's order is permitted to stand, it will be forced to grant rate increases ranging from 15 to 70 percent to the major electric utilities serving Idaho.

The utilities have claimed the PUC has misinterpreted the court ruling, and while not directly opposing the legislation, their representatives have said it isn't needed.

Fain given death for child killing

CALDWELL (AP) — The man convicted of kidnapping and killing a 9-year-old Nampa girl in 1982 has been sentenced to death. Third District Judge Jim R. Doolittle Friday sentenced Charles L. Fain, 35, to be executed for his conviction on charges of first-degree murder and kidnapping in the February 1982 death of Darany Johnson. Fain also was sentenced to life in prison for lewd conduct with a minor.

He was convicted on those charges last November.

Johnson was abducted on her way to school and her body was found three days later in the bed of a small creek near the Snake River. Officials said she had been sexually assaulted and listed the cause of death as drowning. Canyon County Prosecutor Richard Harris sought the death penalty for Fain because of the heinous nature of his crimes.

Doolittle set March 26 as the date for Fain's execution, but the sentence will automatically be appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Teachers worried by education-reform bill

BOISE (AP) — The executive director of the state's largest teacher organization urged lawmakers to talk to teachers "this weekend" about a sweeping education reform bill he says has teachers concerned.

"Talk to your teachers and see what they feel," Don Rolite told the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee on Friday.

The bill, which has passed the House, includes $20.3 million to bring the salaries of teachers and other certified school personnel closer to the national average of $28,603.

Idaho's average teacher salary is $17,549. The funding would bring Idaho 60 percent of the way towards the national average. The other 40 percent would be appropriated in the following legislative session, although there is no way to commit next the next legislature to vote for it.

"I don't think there's a bill in my memory that's come before the Idaho Legislature that's given us as members of our organization as much trouble as this one," Rolite said.

Funeral set for Idaho's former first lady

BOISE (AP) — Funeral services will be held Tuesday in Idaho Falls for Jean Clark, former first lady of Idaho. Mrs. Clark, widow of former Idaho Gov. Chase Clark, died Thursday in her Boise home at the age of 92.

Church said Thursday that never heard his mother-in-law speak an unkind word about anyone, and called her "a gentlewoman to her very core."

Church, who lives in Bethesda, Md., has been undergoing chemotherapy treatment for a pancreatic tumor. Because of his illness, he and his wife won't be able to attend the services.

Mrs. Clark was born to pioneer parents in 1867 at Antelope, near Mackay, and her first home was a four-room log cabin. She attended a one-room schoolhouse and traveled to class by wagon, sleigh and on horseback.

Sen. James McClure speaks to the GOP while Rep. George Hansen, left, and Twin Falls lawyer John Roshoff listen.

McClure delights 'faithful'

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sen. James McClure laid the blame for the country's fiscal woes at the hands of congressional Democrats Friday night.

And in his assessment of the nation's foreign-policy status, he harangued the nation's news media for unfair coverage of Central American conflicts.

But to the delight of about 250 persons in attendance at the annual Lincoln Day dinner, held by and for Twin Falls County Republicans, he had nothing but raves for his own party and for President Reagan.

"One thing Ronald Reagan has done for us in the last three years is he's returned to us confidence in the future," McClure said. But the state's senior senator identified several areas where such confidence may not be fully warranted.

He told the group that although the federal debt reached the $1 trillion mark just three years ago, it will take only three more years for the debt to hit $2 trillion. And as a result, financing costs now are the single fastest-growing item in the federal budget, he said.

"Congress does not have the courage or the capacity to deal with that."

But McClure said that the Senate—where the Republicans hold a majority of seats—will give the House another chance at an option that already has been offered and defeated—a balanced-budget amendment.

McClure said House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, D-Mass., can take credit for the previous defeat of the proposed amendment.

In its next version, the balanced-budget amendment's restrictions will be even tougher, he predicted. In addition to requiring a balanced budget, McClure said the next proposal also will include a clause that specifies a certain percentage of the gross national product as an upper limit on the total budget.

"Tip is honest. He believes what he's saying," McClure said. "He believes the American public ought to receive more from their government," McClure said—but disagreed.

"We need to have a limitation on the amount of money the federal government can spend."

The federal government presently levies taxes that claim 19 percent of the GNP, but it spends at a rate that constitutes 24 percent of that measure of the nation's production, he said.

McClure said it does not matter whether the government taxes or borrows to make ends meet, because both methods of financing "crowd out" private enterprise from obtaining the capital it needs to operate and expand.

And he called it a crime to saddle future generations with the interest obligations from the debt that the country is amassing today.

"I'll vote for some increase in taxes because that deficit will surely destroy us."

But McClure also sought to dissociate Reagan and the Republicans from that problem. It's not Reagan's deficit, he said.

"How could Ronald Reagan send to the United States a budget with a $185 billion deficit?" he asked rhetorically.

"It is a statement of what he expects the Congress will do this year. It's not discretionary expenditures that the president can affect," he added. "Congress has refused to go along with him on limiting the growth."

McClure said Reagan has sent two of his own budgets and one revised budget, left over from the Carter administration, to Congress without success.

On foreign policy, McClure told the group that it is not time to back off from the threat of the Soviet Union and their stooges seeking to install revolutionary governments—like the ones in

No staff cuts for hospital

Administrator promises workers

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Regional Medical Center will make no cuts in staff hours or wages, administrator Bill Burns announced in a memo to workers on Friday.

Burns had been considering the cuts to keep hospital operations in the "black," after the facility averaged fewer patients per day in January than it had in the last 10 years.

However, Burns said Friday that so far in February, the use of the hospital is down only 4 percent from what had been projected at the beginning of the fiscal year.

The average number of patients per day has jumped from around 90 in January to 103 for the first two weeks of February, Burns said.

"I've been going over the figures, but I haven't been able to identify any reasons for the increase." However, a rash of flu cases around the Magic Valley may have contributed, he said.

Better weather, at least during the first week of February, might also have increased the number of patients checking into the hospital. Burns originally had attributed the low number of patients earlier this winter, in part, to cold, snowy weather that stopped area residents from being active.

That meant less spreading of disease and fewer accidents caused by falls — a trend the hospital would trace in other snowy winters, Burns said. He also had said that more stringent insurance policies were keeping patients away.

"The insurance carriers are not paying from $1 anymore," he said.

In his memo Friday, Burns indicated that while employee hours and wages would not be cut, access to hospital departments, individual departments could continue to cut hours as needed to meet their own budgets.

And recent cost-cutting measures will remain in effect, he said.

At the beginning of the month, Burns placed a freeze on hiring and most travel, and reduced the hours worked by the 24-hour security force at the hospital.

He also tightened the hospital's sick-leave policy to prevent abuse by workers who called in sick as soon as they had a day or two of paid leave accumulated.

Burns says he also is looking at other areas within the hospital to save costs.

For instance, the hospital might be able to reduce X-ray, pharmaceutical and surgery inventories. And better scheduling could reduce fees paid to anesthesiologists and other specialized personnel, he believes.

In his memo, he stressed that the hospital still needs to find ways to increase the number of patients treated, besides cutting costs. He asked the staff to look for ways to be more "caring, efficient, effective and productive."

Wind-driven snow shuts down schools

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Winds that began whipping new snow across county roads and highways Thursday night forced the closure of a number of area schools Friday and kept highway crews at work around the clock.

Floyd Dayley, the manager of the Twin Falls Highway District, said his crews were working hard Friday, but the roads were closing in behind the plows.

He said some school buses were able to make their routes Friday morning.

The list of schools that closed or could not open Friday grew in comparison to Thursday's closings.

The College of Southern Idaho was closed, as were the Mindoko County schools and everything in the Cassia

County School District except Malta and

The schools in those small, outlying communities are usually the first affected by the weather, but Friday, school officials said the roads in the Magic area were almost bare.

However, buses were unable to fight their way through the drifts built up by night-long winds in the rural areas around Burley, Oakley, Declo and Shoshone, where students there an extra-long weekend.

Schools in Shoshone, which were closed Thursday, reopened Friday, but elsewhere in Lincoln County, Richfield and Dietrich remained closed.

Filer and Hollister schools also were closed Friday, as were Gooding and Wendell in Gooding County and the Valley School District in Jerome

Firm sells coupons while aiding Eagles

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Reno company now is calling Twin Falls residents by phone to sell a coupon book containing gift certificates from area merchants.

Officials from National Cash Saver Programs, which is operating a phone room at the Alley motel in Twin Falls, say some of the proceeds from the sales are going to the Twin Falls Eagles post.

John Shepherd, the Eagles president, confirms that his organization has lent its name to the promotion, in order to earn money for charities it supports.

But the amount it receives from the sales will be far less than the cost of the coupon booklet, both Shepherd and Alan Beers, the president of National Cash Saver Programs, say.

In January, Beers told The Times-News that the coupon books were being sold to consumers for $35 apiece.

The Eagles organization will receive $2 of that amount for its charities, both Beers and Shepherd say. The company keeps the rest of the money for expenses and as profit.

In the past two days, National Cash Saver Programs has dropped the price of the coupon book to $24.95, says Ron Bushman, the supervisor for the soliciting staff. It also is giving each buyer a free watch, he says.

The phone solicitors explain the terms of the sale, and if a customer is interested, a company representative will deliver the book and collect payment in person. The watch is given to the customer at the time of purchase, Bushman says.

The Better Business Bureau of Treasure Valley, the nearest Bureau to Twin Falls, shows no record of complaints on National-Cash-Saver

Officials search for radioactive tables

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — State health officials have examined some 200 restaurant table stands throughout the state, including a dozen in Twin Falls, for signs of radioactive contamination.

Only six containing radioactive materials have been found, all in a Boise restaurant, and they posed no serious health hazard.

But six more tables in a Ketchum restaurant will be checked next week, says Bob Funderberg, the radiation-control supervisor for the state Department of Health and Welfare.

A dozen of the tables, which were distributed by a St. Louis company to a Twin Falls distributor, were examined last week in a warehouse. Funderberg says. The Twin Falls distributor, whose name was not released, had sent about 50 of the tables to Idaho Falls and a half-dozen to a Ketchum business that was not identified.

Tests for radiation on the tables in Twin Falls and Idaho Falls proved negative, Funderberg says. The tables in Ketchum were supposed to be surveyed this week, but snowy roads prohibited a crew from completing the tests.

However, it's unlikely the tables in Ketchum are radioactive because they came from a different shipment than the contaminated tables found in Boise, Funderberg says.

Health crews are monitoring the base of the table stands for radiation.

The source of the contamination was a radioactive lead container that had been melted into scrap metal at a Mexican company, Funderberg says. The container had held cobalt-60, which is used for medical therapy.

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission, which alerted the state, discovered the contamination in another shipment of the metal. The agency also found that the metal had been used in the stands, Funderberg says.

The level of radioactivity in the tables in Boise was not dangerous, Funderberg says. It was about five times the measure of normal radioactivity that comes from natural sources, he says.

"You would have to sit on top of a table for 500 hours to receive the same amount as from one chest X-ray," he said.

However, the department has to continue checking because the radioactive levels were not uniform in the tables, Funderberg adds. One could have contained 60 or 1,000 times more radiation than the norm.

"We want to make sure there are none higher."

Funderberg says the state also is checking into possibly contaminated tables that came from a North Carolina supplier. Six tables that were distributed to a Salmon restaurant—showed no signs of radioactivity.

The tables that were contaminated will be sent back to the manufacturer, Funderberg says.

Employee group may take wage issue to voters

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Voters in Jerome County may be asked to decide if the county's employees should have higher salaries and better benefits.

Greg Fuller, the attorney for the Jerome County Employees organization, said this week that the workers' union, the Jerome County Commissioners in the near future with a proposal to alleviate the deficit and pay and benefit scale that the employees contend exists.

Following up on recommendations made at a meeting with the employees in January, Fuller says the first step will be the formation of a number of committees to approach the problem from different directions.

Fuller said Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies in their drive for salary increases and other benefits last year.

"We plan to do basically the same type of thing we did in Twin Falls County," he says. A committee of workers will be asked to consider the possibility of an initiative drive, which would try to put the pay question on the ballot. Fuller says no decision has been made, but a resolution for such an initiative will be drafted, and then the employees will vote on it.

If the initiative proceeds, a citizens committee, excluding county employees, would be named to circulate the petitions to collect the required number of signatures to put the issue on the ballot.

Another step, Fuller says, will be for employees to do a survey to determine how their salaries compare to the pay scales of other counties. The survey also will compare sick-leave, overtime, vacation, retirement and medical benefits.

A third committee will be asked to research county spending during the past several years and determine priorities for allocation of revenue. Fuller says this committee also will exclude any of the workers.

Still another committee will be asked to help inform the public that pay and benefits for Jerome County employees are considerably below the normal living standard. Fuller says.

According to Fuller, the public will be told that the workers are not asking for increased taxes. Rather, they are advocating a reallocation of spending by the county's commissioners.

The workers are asking, he says, that salaries be given a higher priority than some other items in the budget.

"They feel this is not just something they want, but rather something they justly deserve," Fuller says.

Skateland is victim of theft

TWIN FALLS — Skateland, at 2100 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls, and 13 video games inside the rink were broken into sometime Thursday, according to a Twin Falls police report.

Anita Farrel of Kimberly reported the burglary Thursday afternoon. Someone removed cash from the Skateland office and the machines, which are owned by Magic Valley Canteen of Twin Falls. There were no signs of forced entry, the report states.

The total loss was reported at $922.

Albertson's and employee sued

TWIN FALLS — A former Twin Falls resident has filed suit against Albertson's grocery store in Twin Falls, alleging that one of its employees pushed him through a window in December 1982.

Steve D. Solomon, who now resides in Boise, has named Albertson's Inc., a Delaware corporation, and Mike Sweat in the litigation, which was filed Thursday in Fifth District Court in Twin Falls.

Solomon alleges that the incident took place on the night of Dec. 13, 1982. Sweat, a store clerk, "without legal provocation, became angry" and grabbed Solomon by the neck, throwing him through a window, the plaintiff claims.

Solomon is seeking $10,126 for damages and medical expenses from Albertson's and Sweat.

NOW chapter to meet Monday

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley chapter of the National Organization of Women will hold a get-acquainted luncheon Monday noon at Chelsea's restaurant in Twin Falls.

The organization's lobbying efforts at the Legislature will be discussed. Upcoming projects for the chapter also will be on the agenda.

Any interested in the organization is invited to attend.

Petition circulates for Parker

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — Ross Parker has a lot of friends in the Hagerman Valley.

Some of these friends showed their support for him Friday by signing a petition to commend his character.

Parker, who released trout last month from a trout farm because he said they were starving, faces felony charges for the action.

The citizens who started the petition include Celia Adamsen, Bob Tupper, Merle Ovesley and Bill Stenemetts.

The petition at a Hagerman senior-citizen dinner, it has about 50 signatures so far.

"They're all in sympathy with Ross and they all want to help," commented Wanda Durosoy, the manager of the Hagerman Senior Citizen Center. However, she emphasized that the petition was not sponsored by the center and did not originate there.

"The petition is to show Ross has some friends behind him," Duncumbe said. "He's a good guy and they think it's a shame that people trying to do some good are prosecuted."

"There was only one lady that didn't approve of it and didn't sign it," Durosoy said.

The petition states:

Dear Judge (Phillip) Dacker:

We, the undersigned, residents of Gooding and Twin Falls, citizens with the same vote as the feelings of our communities toward Ross Parker.

Mr. Parker is known as being a public-minded outdoorsman who is active in community affairs. While we cannot condone Ross Parker's specific actions, we would point out that Mr. Parker's actions were taken in a human spirit, not in an attempt to break the law, but an honest attempt to prevent needless suffering to the trout involved.

We are all aware of the state of Idaho and private individuals' efforts to prevent wild animals from starving due to harsh weather conditions. We feel that Ross Parker's actions were an honest, although misguided, attempt to provide some relief to the fish involved.

Ross Parker is a fine, public-spirited individual, who is an asset to the community, and we would ask that you consider the man and his value to the community when judging his actions.

The petition also will be circulated in Wendell and Buhl.

Three hurt in wreck on Idaho 75

TWIN FALLS — Weather contributed to numerous accidents Friday and caused motorists to slide into ditches and medians.

Three persons went to the Blaine County Medical Center on Thursday night as a result of a head-on collision on Idaho 75.

Another accident, 23 miles south of Twin Falls on U.S. 93, resulted in several thousand dollars damage but no injuries on Friday afternoon.

In the first accident, an Idaho State Police officer said a pickup truck driven south by Mark Hamilton, 23, of Twin Falls, collided with a northbound vehicle about 7:10 p.m. Thursday, just south of Timmerman Hill.

Hamilton, who has been cited for passing in a no-passing zone, was attempting to go around a southbound vehicle. He struck a northbound car driven by Karen Sue Spaulding, 40, of Phoenix.

Both vehicles were demolished. Hamilton was treated at the hospital and released. Spaulding and her passenger, Ross Bishop, 52, of Midvale, Utah, were hospitalized. They were listed in stable condition Friday night.

Friday afternoon an empty semi went out of control on U.S. 93 and knocked off 19P Sgt. Ed Strickfaden said one lane of traffic was blocked for about two hours.

A gust of wind caught the empty trailer about 2:45 p.m., causing it to slide sideways on the icy highway, he said. The truck then crashed into a guardrail. Damage to the truck has been estimated at $4,000 to $5,000.

But the Better Business Bureau of Reno, where the company is headquartered, has recorded 11 complaints since 1981. Two resulted in adjustments, five were disputed by the company in replies and four never received replies from the company, according to a bureau spokeswoman.

The coupon books contain certificates for free service or products from 35 area merchants, Bushman says.

The Better Business Bureau suggests that consumers check the coupons in the books before purchase, to make sure they would use them.

Shepherd says he has received no complaints from consumers about the books.

One merchant has declined to honor the certificate printed for the business because it described the wrong free item. However, the owner also has offered to substitute the correct item for customers.

County. Schools in Jerome were open. Interstate 84 was closed Friday afternoon from its junction with I-86 to the Utah-Idaho State Division of Highway officials said it was snowing and drifting there.

Also closed was Idaho 81 from Malheur to Declo.

Drifting was reported Friday afternoon on highways north of Shoshone and into both Nevada and Utah.

Roads to area ski resorts were reported questionable at best.

A plow was working on the road to Pomerelle, and one lane of traffic was open. Plowing was expected to continue as needed today.

However, the Magic Mountain road was reported drifting closed by late afternoon, and Dayley said he had no men or equipment available to work on the road.

The National Weather Service was predicting a few more scattered snowstorms today in the mountains, but it held out hope for warm and sunny weather by Sunday.

QUESTION . . .

My dearest friend has just lost her husband. How can I help?

ANSWER . . .

Religious leaders and psychologists appear to agree upon six ways you can help:

1. Assure your friend her situation is not unique.
2. Don't pretend nothing has changed — if it has!
3. Encourage her to talk about her loss.
4. Remind her of the relationship her husband had with his family and the contribution he made to his community.
5. Don't try to do this alone. Enlist the aid of family, friends and professionals.
6. Remember your role is that of a friend — not a counselor.

Heyburn council sets wine fees

By LISA DAVLEY
Times-News correspondent

HEYBURN — The Heyburn City Council has approved a license fee of $150 a year to sell wine by the glass and a $200 fee to sell wine by the bottle.

The fee was approved at a recent council meeting at which the final reading of the wine ordinance was heard. According to the ordinance, establishments selling wine by the bottle and by the glass must obtain both licenses.

In other action:

• The council granted city attorney Steven Tuff permission to attend an upcoming Washington Public Power Supply System conference. The meeting is to gain cooperation and funding for a computer data system that will house more than 20 million pages of WPPSS legal documents.

The cost of the program is estimated to cost between $2 million and $3 million, he said. According to Tuff, the data will help determine Heyburn's involvement in the WPPSS controversy.

The council granted Tuff permission to offer $10,000, but no more than $15,000, toward the cost of the project from city funds.

Councilwoman Bessie Hurlst cast a dissenting vote. "I don't want to be involved with WPPSS. I don't want anything to do with it."

Concerning a potentially dangerous pond on 15th Street, between R and Q streets, Art McGill, the city superintendent, reported that efforts have begun to remove the water.

He also said the city plans on filling the pond with dirt to prevent any drownings.

The councilman David Mayes had voiced concern about the possible hazard posed by the pond.

John Bradley, an attorney from Paul, question the council about the possibility of permanently shutting off access to 12th Street.

Representing Al Temple of A and J Auto, Bradley said 12th Street runs directly through Temple's business.

Temple offered three alternatives to the council. One was for him to purchase the street front the city and shut off the access. The others would be for the city to abandon or relocate the street.

Nicaragua and Cuba."

And he accused the news media of paying lip service to those interests, as well. He said that on the topic of U.S. involvement in Nicaragua and El Salvador, he is frequently asked: "How can you support a government that has right-wing death squads?" — a reference to U.S. support of the El Salvador government.

But "our press doesn't call theirs (Nicaragua's) death squads of the left. They call them guerrillas," he commented.

McClure said that Nicaragua alone doesn't threaten the United States. But he said "the new imperialism brought by Soviet Union and Cuban mercenaries" does.

He said those countries threaten the security of many Central American governments, including Mexico — a country he characterized as lacking in "political and economic justice."

He said the fall of Mexico and other Central American countries to communist regimes would result in "millions of aliens crossing our border."

McClure was joined at Friday evening's event, held at the Turf Club by Idaho's other top Republican officials, Sen. Steve Symms and U.S. Rep. George Hansen also addressed the group.

State officers who appeared included Lt. Gov. David Leroy, Attorney General Jim Jones, and Secretary of State Pete Cernusca.

Hagerman pastor has given sermons around the world

Pastor Jim Davis and his wife work as a team

By APRIL LEYTHAM
Times-News correspondent

HAGERMAN — "God help us to stand for something or we'll fall for anything," pastor Jim Davis said during a recent sermon at the Hagerman Christian Center.

"I like to smack the giants and let them know where I stand," he says. Davis has been smacking "the giants" in his preaching around the globe for a long time.

From his booming voice to his imposing height, Davis is a giant of a man. He is a fundamentalist, a Bible-preaching pastor.

"Jim is a special man. There is no one like him," says his wife, Pauline. "He has the ability to talk to anyone so they understand his message."

Born in Delaware, Okla., Davis married the former Edith Daniel of Gooding in 1951. But they have more than a marriage; the Davises are a team in every sense of the word.

"We have a deep love and respect for each other," Mrs. Davis says. "We're partners and friends. Jim dislikes details, and I love working in the church, so he does the preaching and I do the organizing."

They both agree about women's lib. "I believe my wife has been liberated for 32 years," he says.

But Mrs. Davis says, "I feel the women's lib movement takes away far more rights than it gives. Men should love their wives as Christ loves the church."

Mr. Davis holds firm views about husbands' attitudes toward wives. He delivered a sermon once on how husbands could cheer up their wives. "I'll tell her you love her often. Show your appreciation of her, talk to her, court her all over again. Take over spiritual leadership in the home."

Pastor Jim Davis and his wife, Pauline, pose in front of the pulpit at the Hagerman Christian Center, one of many pulpits from which Davis has spoken Davis has a quick sense of humor, but he has a serious side, too. "My life has been based on the cornerstone of my faith in Jesus Christ." His ministry of 30 years reflects that statement.

"I preached my first revival in Long Pine, Neb., at the age of 22, for Sheldon Stigel, now the pastor of the Twin Falls Christian Center."

Davis continued to do evangelical work throughout the Pacific Northwest for two years before coming to a church in Wilder.

While in Wilder, Mrs. Davis started a girls choir that traveled to area churches to give concerts. After two years in Wilder, the couple returned to evangelical work in the Northwest for another two years.

Gooding then became their home for the next six years. They were pleased to return to their home church, where they were married and he was ordained.

Their next move was to Sandy, Ore. During the next seven years, the Sandy congregation grew from 125 to 475 and a new church was built.

During this time, five men from the Sandy church went to the Marshall Islands and built a church, using their own money and time. They asked Davis to dedicate the church, and while in the Marshall Islands, he became aware of the need for an evangelical ministry there, he says.

So Mr. and Mrs. Davis packed up again and headed overseas. For the next three-and-a-half-years, they evangelized in the Marshall Islands, Indonesia, South Korea, India and the Pacific Northwest.

During this period, Davis preached at what he says is the largest church in the world—The Yoido Full Gospel Church in South Korea has a membership of more than 100,000.

"The church held 10,000 people at a time, and we held eight services a day," Davis recalls. "After every service, they would literally shove the people out, then open the doors and 10,000 more people would run in."

"We enjoyed Indonesia the most of all the areas we visited," Davis says. "The people were receptive and the language relatively easy."

"There are literally thousands of orphans in Indonesia. Girls are usually taken in to do housework, but boys are left on their own," he says.

The Davises ended their evangelical mission in the Northwest. They pastored in Sweet Home, Ore., for two years before leaving for Hagerman.

"God chose Hagerman for us," Mrs. Davis says. "There was a great need for our ministry here."

The Davises have been living and preaching in Hagerman now for three years. "We love the people here," Mrs. Davis says.

Mr. Davis has a favorite story about one of his many trips that reflects his philosophy.

"We were returning from the Marshall Islands, which is an American trust, so I didn't take my passport.

"When we landed in Hawaii, everyone had to go through a gate marked immigration.

"I explained why I didn't have my passport to the official. He asked me to write down my full name, date and place of birth.

"The official brought out from under the counter a huge book. It contained the names of every United States citizen. Taking my piece of paper, he opened the book and searched for my name.

"Upon finding the place, the official carefully compared the paper against the book, then closed the book and said, 'Pass.'

"I thought of the judgment day when the Lord will look through the book of life, and I'm glad he will find my name written there."

New discussion group aims for religious understanding

TWIN FALLS — Many people avoid talking about religion. But discussion of the topic is the bread and butter of a new group.

The Spiritual Renaissance Association of the Magic Valley was formed about a month ago, as a discussion group and to bring programs to the area about various religions, says member Rich Gilbert of Jerome.

The group's overall purpose is to promote understanding.

"If we can't understand a person's religion and culture, we can't understand him and grow to love him as our brother," Gilbert says. "We need to understand each other on a community level."

The first program sponsored by the group several weeks ago involved a panel discussion by community religious leaders about world peace. The theme was the "Day After," referring to the recent movie shown on television about a nuclear war.

The group was formed by some persons who attended a class on world religions at the College of Southern Idaho. "And it grew from there," Gilbert says.

Meetings are held every Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

For more information on the group, call Bert Cobb at 324-8339 or Francis Hitchcock at 733-4870.

Bruins down Highland, shatter own records

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — It was a night of precedents for the Twin Falls High School boys' basketball team here Friday.

The Bruins defeated Highland 44-41 to set up a chain of firsts and records:

- Clinching of their second straight Gem State Conference basketball championship;
- Andy Toolson breaking the school's one-season scoring record with 397 points;
- Setting the stage for this team to become the all-time win-loss record holder in the school's history when it hosts Blackfoot in the season finale tonight;
- Marking the first time since 1964-65

the Bruins have managed back-to-back victories on the Highland court.

Lost in all these historic matters was the fact that junior Jason Meyerhoefer came up with a key offensive rebound and three free throws in the closing six seconds, to nail down the victory, the 17th for the third-ranked Bruins in 19 games this season.

After Darren Stuart opened the game with a 3-point goal, Twin Falls led until Highland's Eric Van Orden hit two free throws with 5:36 remaining in the game to give the Rams a 36-34 lead. A charity toss by Chris Schrade made it 36-34 before Toolson tied it up again and Tim Crossman hit a rainbow with 2:15 on the clock to restore the lead to the Bruins.

Twin Falls got the ball back and wasted 1:17 before Toolson scored his record-breaking field goal on a back-door lay-up with 58 seconds left. Highland's Troy Bird replied immediately to set up the final 30 seconds.

The Bruins' Todd Jones started it at the free throw line, hitting the first and missing the second. Meyerhoefer rebounded and with six seconds left hoisted Twin Falls to a 5-point lead with a pair of charlottes. Bird hit a 3-pointer to reduce that deficit to two, and there were two seconds left when Meyerhoefer hit his final free throw.

Toolson, who also holds the school's single-game scoring record, said he was not aware he had set the season mark because "I had no idea how many I had. Was that the one?"

"Coach (John) Astorquia told me I was near the record a couple of days ago, but I didn't know how far I was behind until I read it in the paper today," Toolson said. "I didn't know how many points I had either."

"Jason was the man of the hour late in the game for us," Astorquia said. "After we took the lead on that back-cut, they tried that long shot that went out of bounds. I thought Jason had deflected it, but (they) gave it to us. Then he hit the free throws that won it."

"The only thing we did well tonight was play good man-to-man" defense," the Bruin coach continued. "We wanted to keep senior center Bill Parrish out on the perimeter and we were able to do that in the second half. That took Parrish out of the game and made it a lot easier for us because he had seven rebounds in the first half."

Astorquia praised the defense of Crossman and Jones.

"We put them on (Brett) Higgins and Bird in the closing few minutes because they are Highland's great threats. Both of them did a great job of being in their faces when they had the ball and denying them well."

Astorquia said the problems Highland presents Twin Falls because of its physical makeup were present again Friday night. The Bruins took off well, hitting 17 points in the first quarter — including several fast-break lay-ins. But in the second period, Twin Falls' offense dropped to four points.

"That was my fault, because going to the zone did it," Astorquia said. "By going to the zone we neutralized Highland's rebounding, but it did take us out of the break."

The victory improved the Bruins' conference record to 12-1. Highland fell to 7-10 for the season and 6-8 in conference.

It's an all-Magic Valley state final

By The Times-News

It will be an all-District 4 final in the championship game of the Idaho Class A-3 High School Girls' Basketball Tournament tonight.

Kimberly defeated Grangeville 34-32 in overtime while Declo edged Prairie High School of Cottonwood 60-56 in the semifinal games Friday night, setting up the sixth Kimberly-Declo contest of the year at 8-30 in the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

Kimberly 34, Grangeville 32

In one of the closest and most physical games played yet in A-3 girls state, Kimberly narrowly escaped defeat with a 34-32 overtime win over Grangeville.

The victory didn't come without some incredibly tense moments for Kimberly Coach Terry Downey as a point with 17 seconds to go in overtime, the Kimberly saw Grangeville's two top scorers, Lis Forsman and Shelly Cox, recover a loose ball at midcourt.

Pounding down the court, Forsman handed off to Cox. All the senior guard had to do was make the easy lay-in and a trip to the state finals would be Grangeville.

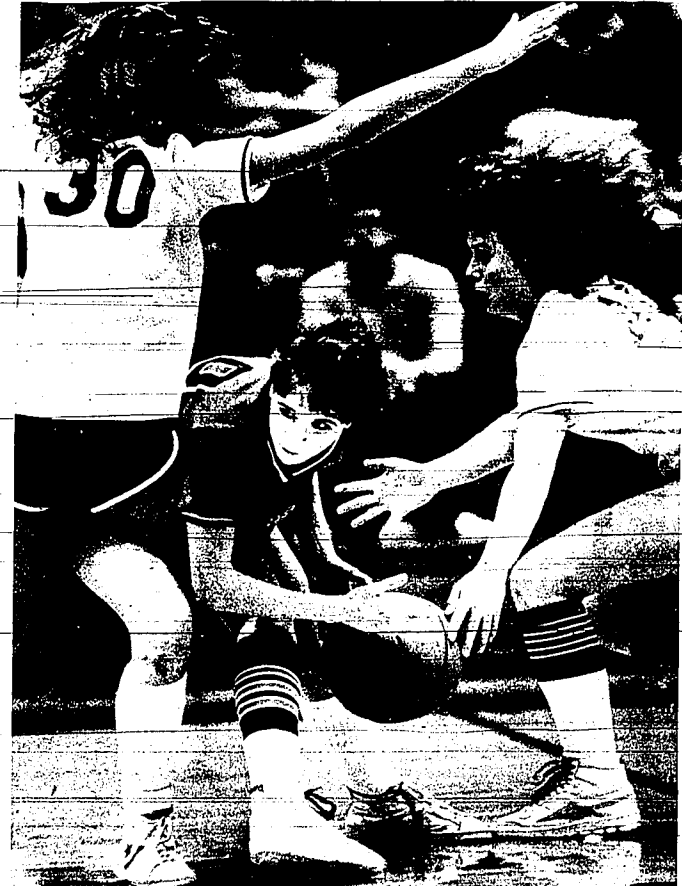

But it wasn't to be. Cox's shot fell short. Kimberly's Lenny Stearns made the rebound, and with it led the game. Grangeville was forced to

Jerome's defense triumphs

Burley falls, 39-32

By CHRIS HAFT
Times-News writer

BURLEY — It was like going to see a duel at high noon and witnessing a chess game instead.

Most of the right moves Friday night — were made by — the grand masters of Jerome, who defeated Burley 39-32 and heads the Bobcats for the No. 1 seedling in next week's Fourth District A-2 Tournament.

Jerome turned "the Bobcats" into mere pawns with its defense. Relying primarily on a man-to-man and switching occasionally into zone alignments, the 13-7 Tigers defused Burley's dangerous perimeter shooting. Whenever the Bobcats tried to go inside, they were met by 6-5 center Gary Hulsey, who blocked an unofficial total of five shots.

"There's no coach who can teach defense that well — our kids just decided they wanted to do it," Jerome Coach Ben Allen said.

Embodiment of Jerome's effort was senior forward Ron Farnsworth, who guarded Burley scoring ace Greg Boyd whenever the Tigers employed their man-to-man. Farnsworth hounded Boyd relentlessly, forcing him to nine points, but with two coming in the second quarter.

"Ron did a super job," Allen affirmed. "He's our best defensive player. From the aspect of technique he might not be the best, but he never gives up."

In the decisive second half, which began with Burley leading 24-23, the Bobcats made just four of 24 shots from the floor. "And most of them were good shots," Burley Coach Gary Swan said. The Bobcats became particularly fallow in the fourth quarter, going scoreless during the final six minutes.

At times, the Bobcats' inaccuracy appeared to be matched by their timidity. Swan partially attributed both traits to Hulsey. "We did not take the ball into the middle against him," he recalled that Burley missed four shots on its first possession of the game. Swan also theorized that his players grew more restrained as the avry shooting continued. "We didn't shoot the ball well, and we were very tentative about shooting it," he said.

The Tigers' marksmanship was much better; they sank just five of 15 tries from the floor after halftime. However, while Burley couldn't score at all in "the late" fourth quarter, Jerome scored a little, and that was enough.

With 3:19 left and Jerome holding a 34-32 lead, Hulsey, whose 14 points led all scorers, hit a shot from around the key. The Tigers grew sloppy in the waning minutes, as Farnsworth and Troy Prairie committed traveling violations and Dee Hertel missed a breakaway lay-in.

District 3 rivals meet for A-4 state title

By The Times-News

Cambridge, a veteran of Idaho Class A-4 High School Girls' basketball tournaments, and Melba will collide for the championship of this year's edition tonight.

Melba earned the finals with a 34-31 victory over Highland High School of Craigmont, while Cambridge routed Leadore 61-35 in the other semifinal game.

The state championship will be decided tonight at 6:45 in the College of Southern Idaho gymnasium.

Melba 34, Highland 31

Melba's Tracy Campbell hit four free throws at the end to quash a comeback by Highland and won 34-31 in A-4 semifinal action.

Campbell's sterling effort was nearly not enough when Highland's Marla Miller's attempt for a 3-pointer just fell short. That would have tied the game at 34. As it was, on the followup shot LeaAnn Pratt's rebounding lay-in was ruled no good because of a foul underneath by Melba's Nan Nelder.

Pratt's free throw missed and Melba earned its way to the all-District 3 finals.

Top scorer for the winners was Shelly Highland with 11 points, while Joy Willson led in the losing effort with 16 points.

period brought out the best in the 5-foot-6 senior center, when she hit five field goals on her way to a game-high 20 points.

The clubs feverishly traded buckets to start the second half, but Leadore was outclassed when it came to the inside game. Going outside was no easy chore either, and eventually the percentages caught up with the Mustangs. Despite a trio of Leadore players hitting double figures, Cambridge widened the lead and will face Melba tonight in the finals.

Nezperce 39, Raft River 18

A 12-minute scoring lull made things easy for Nezperce — but not to the point that Raft River still could not have pulled the game out as late as seven minutes to play.

Raft River scored with two minutes left in the first quarter while trailing 8-4, and didn't pick up another point of any kind until 4:29 remained in the third period. However, Nezperce waited patiently. Neither team had a field goal in the second quarter. Nezperce picking up three free throws.

Although Nezperce moved ahead by 17-6 in the third quarter, Raft River trailed only 17-10 going into the final eight minutes.

Kim Lustig hit four points and Jill McLeod added a field goal as Nezperce started pulling away. But the bulk of the Indians' points came after Coach Rich Killmer inserted his reserves.

CSI needs win over Ricks for chance at hosting regionals

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

REXBURG — The options apparently are down to this: either the College of Southern Idaho beats Ricks here tonight or its chances of hosting regionals are down to mathematical but not all more.

There are some ways for the Region 10 playoff return to Twin Falls this week, but they would require both North Idaho and Treasure Valley to beat the Vikings later in the season.

"The chances of that happening aren't good. I would expect that Ricks will have as much difficulty winning and that's the most comfortable feeling you can have in sports," Trenkle said. "If Ricks beats us Saturday night, we will have won the last spot or lost it on our own. No excuses."

The teams have met twice this season — both in Twin Falls — with Ricks taking the first one during the K and T Steel tournament in December and CSI pulling out a 20-point decision in the second two weeks ago.

"There was only one difference, really, in the two games," Trenkle said. "In the first one we didn't hit our free throws coming down the stretch and we did in the second one. I would imagine that free throws could well be the difference again Saturday."

Ricks presents some problems for CSI because it has four excellent shooters, good height and good depth.

The most accomplished gunner is 6-foot-5 Alan Campbell, who plays anywhere on the court and can put it down from 25 feet with no problem. Usually 6-6 Roland Smith rings in with a lot of points and he has been particularly effective in scoring against CSI.

In the first two games, CSI was able to hold 6-4 Craig Sjutte to slightly below his scoring average and Bryan Fink, 6-8, has hit in double figures but not punished the Eagles as much as he has other teams.

"I don't think we can do a lot different than we did last time against them," Trenkle said. "I suspicion that both Campbell and Smith are going to get the points — they will be an ability to keep the other two from putting into the scoring parade or allowing the other player on the floor to."

"I think up there we must be a little more attentive to the game's tempo because Ricks generates a lot of emotion off its transition game. But at the same time, I think that going up the court we might be a little quicker and I think we'll want to look for the break at every good opportunity."

"And because I think the game is going to be very close, we have to limit our mistakes," Trenkle said.

Trenkle said he doesn't know how to gauger the results of two games in Rexburg; last week, Ricks rallied on all scorers, but a shot from around the key. The Tigers grew sloppy in the waning minutes, as Farnsworth and Troy Prairie committed traveling violations and Dee Hertel missed a breakaway lay-in.

• See JEROME on Page C2

Before the CSI men take the floor, the Golden Eagle nation will meet Ricks at 5:15 p.m. Since losing both games to North Idaho plus one to Clackamas, CSI has little hope of gaining the tournament home-court advantage.

Bruins try mightily, but can't hold off Meridian

By DALE GRUMMETT

COEUR D'ALENE — Twin Falls fanned itself as the giant killer Friday, but the giant had apparently died enough for one tournament.

Defending state champion Meridian, trailing by nine points late in the third quarter, rallied to defeat Twin Falls 57-50 in a loser-out consolation game of the Idaho Class A-1 High School Girls' Basketball Tournament.

The loss eliminated the Bruins, but the drive home was made less imposing by a performance Friday that was vastly improved over their 50-23 loss to Idaho Falls in the opening round on Thursday.

The Bruin guard Alma Hernandez submitted a fine outside shooting display, swishing four 3-point shots and finishing with 22 points.

"It's a feeling of her," Bruin Coach Paul Stover said. "She's better from that range than she is up close."

Hernandez went 3-for-3 in 3-point attempts in the first quarter as Twin took a 13-8 lead, and Heidi Hansson dished lay-ins in the third period helped the Bruins stretch their advantage to 39-30.

But Meridian guard Kim Marier, who finished with 18 points, sparked a

Twin Falls trailed only 51-48 with less than a minute remaining, but Meridian's Linda Johnson scored three free throws and a lay-in to secure to win.

"We lost our composure," Stover said. "We're not a talented basketball team. We have good athletes, but they're not basketball players per se."

"But I'm very proud of my kids," he continued. "We didn't have any fans here at all. We felt a little lonely out there."

Buhl falls flat in consolation game with Rigby

By DALE GRUMMETT
Special to The Times-News

COEUR D'ALENE — Buhl and Rigby seemed intent on staging a mutual exercise in futility here Friday, but only Buhl maintained that spirit until the bitter end.

Rigby guard Shannon Dahl scored 14 points and ignited a second-half rally as the Trojans thumped Buhl 46-22 in a consolation loser-out game at the Idaho Class A-2 High School Girls' Basketball tournament.

The loss eliminated Buhl, which followed Thursday's respectable loss to Post Falls with a sluggish, cold-shooting performance on Friday.

The Indians shot only 9-for-39 from the floor and were out rebounded consistently by the smaller Trojans.

"That's probably the poorest we've played all season," Buhl Coach Janet Smutny said. "Obviously we're a good shooting team."

And although Rigby shot only 16-for-50, Smutny was reluctant to allow any credit.

"We were just so flat on defense," she said. "It wasn't that they didn't want to win. It was just one of those days when you wish you hadn't gotten up in the morning."

Buhl was still within 24-17 early in the fourth quarter, but Rigby then reeled off 15 straight points, including seven on free throws.

Oakley pressed and Plummer some early problems and two late field goals by Leslie Bedke stayed off a closing flurry that left the final score closer than the game was played.

In between, the ballhandling-scoring of Cherrilyn Severe and the rebounding scoring of Ondra Whitte held the Hornets cruising generally with 10 to 14-point advantages.

Oakley broke away late in the first quarter and crested its advantage at 28-10, midway through the second when Cherryl Judd scoring of a steal.

Through the third period Oakley stayed ahead — handsily — but that started changing with four minutes left.

Plummer climbed back to within 45-35 on a Trish Allen field goal and she picked up four more points while Deanne Kolar was adding to charts.

That closed the gap to 47-41 and Bedke then came up with two crisples off give-and-goes with Whitte to offset Plummer field goals from Kolar and Carla Palmer.

Palmer scored a crumple of a steal to make it 51-47 with 35 seconds left.

the line, and with that Kimberley was on its way to state.

Pratt Payne led the scoring for Kimberley with 13 points, while Grangville's Forsman led in the losing effort with 13.

Declo 60, Prairie 56
Red-hot free throw shooting and a deny-all defense helped Declo turn back Prairie 60-56 to earn the Hornets their first trip to the state finals since girls' basketball began at the Magic Valley.

Declo's Starkey Wolf nailed two critical charity tries when the score was separated by only two points. Cindy Gillett did the same, while the rest of the club closed the middle to Prairie penetration.

The win puts Declo with Kimberley, a common sight in the valley, as this will be the fourth post-season match for the two Canyon Conference clubs. That, said Declo's Lynn Prayers, doesn't bother him one bit.

"Hey, that's all right," he said. "We'd like to keep all the trophies in the Magic Valley."

Declo's character was pushed to its limit in the fourth period when leading scorer Lynn Darrington and defensive specialist Cathy Wheeler fouled out. That left two vacancies under rough conditions. Declo's pair of Laurie Matthews and Jill Gillett contributed handsily to the cause, giving the Hornets little to worry about on that account.

What Payne and Declo fans did have to be concerned about, however, was Prairie's offense, which in starts and jumps pushed the Pirates back in the game.

Non-Christian 60, Teton 37
Tall Julie VanBeek, sent Nampa Christian off the blocks, red-hot with 11 first-quarter points and dimmutive guard-Michelle-Skyles kept it going as the Trojans sent Teton home.

VanBeek, who dominated the boards and had several blocked shots inside, wound up with 22 points while Skyles, a 5-2 whippet, picked up 25 points, hitting 13 of 19 at the ball line.

Under VanBeek's guidance, Nampa Christian took a 13-5 first-quarter lead and stretched that to 18-5 on five straight Skyles points to open the second. Teton stayed within 12 at intermission but the Trojans continued to move steadily away in the closing half.

Malad 46, Butte 36
Malad laughed out of a low-scoring first period to win a game at the expense of Butte County in the consolation round of A-3 play, 43-36.

The clubs' defenses went into high gear the first eight minutes of play, which resulted in a Malad lead of just 5-4.

In gear the second period, Malad stretched the lead to 21-16, then watched as Butte County chopped into it, lowering the margin to just one point. Malad's Deb Daniels' team, leading 12-point effort paid off eventually, though, and Malad made up for its opening loss in fine style, taking the game by seven.

Tonight's Boise State-Idaho rematch vital for Broncos

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News Sports Editor

With Idaho and Idaho State effectively out of the running to host a first-round game in the Big Sky Conference basketball tournament next month, Boise State's chances would dwindle.

The Broncos (13-9 for the season and 4-5 in conference play) will host the Vandals (8-14 and 3-6) tonight in a game that could put Boise State squarely in the top four in the league — the four best teams that will entertain the worst four in the phase one of the tournament. A win would also guarantee the Broncos a winning season, something that hasn't happened at Boise State in seven years.

So considering that Idaho's only road victory this season was a forfeit over ISU and that the Broncos have just finished overhauling Montana and Montana State, what's the problem?

History. Idaho has won the last seven meetings between these two teams, including a 61-57 victory in Moscow on Jan. 21. In fact, beating up on the Broncos has become kind of a tradition in Idaho basketball.

"There is no question that Idaho is struggling at this time, but that just scares me a little more," says first-year BSU Coach Bobby Dye. "They have some very solid players on the team and like they exhibited against us up there, they can play with anybody on any night. (Point guard Stan) Arnold is a fine player that is the leader of the team. He can hurt you in a lot of ways, as can (forward Pete) Prigge. We have to be aggressive over the entire court. We cannot afford to take Idaho lightly."

Boise State, which still has a road victory over Reno and "Pug" and a homestand against Idaho State and Weber State in its schedule, will either have to win tonight or next weekend on the road to get into a position to host. The Broncos are currently on a fourth-place tie with ISU in the conference standings behind Weber State (7-2), Montana (7-3) and Montana State (6-4). But since ISU was disqualified from hosting a first-round playoff game, that honor will go to the No. 5 team in the final league standings — the Bengals finish in the top four. That puts Nevada-Reno, currently 4-6 and in sixth place in the conference, in a good position to challenge BSU for the final spot since the Wolf Pack will play four of its last five games at home.

After snapping a three-game losing streak with home victories over the Montana teams last weekend, Boise State is finally looking like a contender. The Broncos' offensive production, a major trouble spot all season, is up from seventh in the conference to fifth, averaging 68.2 points per game. Attribute that to Frank Jackson, the Broncos 6-foot-3 junior point guard, who has switched from setting up shots to making them. Jackson, now averaging 10 points a game, is shooting 52 percent from the floor and still ranks eighth in the Big Sky in assists. Senior guard Vince Hinchen's scoring punch has increased as well, now averaging 18.5 points per game — tops in the conference — while the Broncos' defense continues to give up fewer points than any team in the league except Montana. As a team, the Broncos are shooting 50 percent from the field — best in the Big Sky.

But the Broncos' rebounding remains woeful. BSU, beaten up on the boards by Prigge in its previous encounter with the Vandals, is down to 31 boards per game, on the average.

The Vandals will need that advantage. Idaho is the most generous team in the league on defense, allowing opponents to hit 49 percent of their shots from the field and score an average of 72 points a game.

Idaho State, meanwhile, will try again for its first road win of the season tonight in Ogden, Utah, against Weber State. The Bengals, now 10-16 for the year following a 27-point road loss to Nevada-Reno and a nine-point setback at Northern Arizona last weekend, will have their work cut out for them. The Wildcats have not lost in the Dec Special Events Center this season and have won five of their last six games.

RUPERT — Kent Mackenzie, Greg Schow and Brad Croft all scored in overtime Friday night as the Minors Spartans took a 67-61 victory over Pocatello in a Gem State Conference boys' basketball game.

Minico held the lead throughout the contest, but Pocatello's Kip Helgeson hit a 3-point goal at the buzzer to send the game into overtime.

Minico controlled the tip in the overtime period, but turned it over and Pocatello went into a stall.

The Indians ran the clock down to 1:30, then tried a cross-court pass. Mackenzie intercepted and drove for the layup.

"The Indians tried a 3-pointer, but missed and was forced to foul," Schow and Croft each converted a pair of free throws at the end of the game for the victory.

Mackenzie led all scorers with 24 points and Croft had 19.

The Spartans ended the season with a 15-4 record.

Pocatello won the preliminary contest 51-38.

Economy healthy but Wall Street worries

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The U.S. economy posted a healthy 4.9 percent annual growth rate in the final three months of 1983, the government said Friday.

That pleased the Reagan administration but renewed worries on Wall Street that current high growth will spell economic trouble later this year.

The Commerce Department reported that the inflation-adjusted gross national product performed even better in last year's final quarter than its preliminary estimate of 4.5 percent made last month.

The revision to 4.9 percent did not change overall GNP for the year, which was up 3.3 percent over 1982 in the best annual increase since 1978.

The report on GNP — the measure of the nation's output of goods and services — was the latest in a string of bright economic indicators. The government reported earlier in the week that retail sales, and housing construction surged in January while Americans' personal income and production by U.S. industries both showed healthy increases.

"It's been one of the best weeks in terms of economic activity that the economy has had in a long, long time," said Donald Straszheim, vice president of Wharton Economics, a private consulting firm.

The Reagan administration agreed. "It's clear to us that the nation is set on a strong economic course for 1984," said presidential spokesman Larry Speakes. "We are poised for economic expansion of the kind that will put people permanently back to work."

However, some economists raised concerns that the surging economy and its demand for credit could clash with a policy of the Federal Reserve Board to restrict the money supply to keep inflation in check.

They said recent large drops in stock market prices reflected the same concern.

"The stock market is worried about an overheated economy, higher inflation and higher interest rates," said Michael Evans, head of Evans Economics.

Allen Sinai, chief economist at Lehman Brothers-Kuhn Loeb, said the upward revision in the fourth quarter GNP and the reports on January business activity "raise once again the concern that the economy is growing too fast."

Kathleen Cooper, senior financial economist at Security Pacific National Bank in Los Angeles, said if economic growth did not slacken the Federal Reserve was likely to start tightening monetary growth in mid-year. She predicted "substantial upward pressure" on interest rates by early 1984.

Miss Cooper said real GNP would grow by 6 percent in the first three months of this year, a prediction echoed by several private economists. The Reagan administration is predicting growth of 5 percent in the first quarter with real GNP going up 4.5 percent for the whole year.

The 3.3 percent increase for 1983 followed a decline of 1.9 percent in 1982, the worst drop since 1946, and a 2.6 percent increase in 1981.

When measured from the fourth quarter of 1982 to the fourth quarter of 1983, the increase was an even more substantial 6.2 percent, the best four-quarter performance since 1976-77 when the improvement was 6.5 percent as the country pulled out of an earlier recession.

The revision for the fourth quarter still left the performance of the last three months behind the booming pace of 9.7 percent and 7.6 percent in the second and third quarters last year as the recovery from the recession was picking up steam.

There were several promising signs of continued growth in the revised GNP report for the final quarter last year. Personal spending grew at a healthy 5.7 percent rate, including a strong 18.3 percent increase in purchases of durable goods such as cars and appliances.

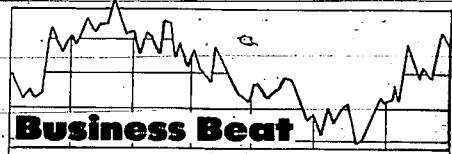

Business investment spending was even higher in the fourth quarter, growing by a rate of 29 percent, the best showing since the first three months of 1965. It followed an 18.7 percent increase in business investment in the third quarter.

Economists said this was particularly encouraging since this segment is expected to keep the economy growing this year after consumer demand starts to slacken.

One of the gloomy spots in the report was the continuing deterioration in U.S. foreign trade. The report said net exports of goods and services fell by $5.1 billion. While this was a revision from the earlier projected decline of $8.9 billion for the quarter, it still pointed to the drain on economic growth coming from high import levels.

Simplot buys frozen foods company

BOISE (AP) — The J.R. Simplot Co., seeking to expand its retail frozen food sales, has purchased a California frozen food company for nearly $46 million.

"The business will continue to operate on the same basis and in the same manner as it has been operated by Dalgety Foods Inc. to assure continuity of supply and services to Dalgety's valued customers," James E. Conrad, food division president for the Boise agri-business firm, said in a statement.

Dalgety Foods Inc. operates seven fruit and vegetable processing plants in California, Washington state and Mexico.

Dennis Jones, a Simplot Food Division vice president, said the purchase will broaden the division, which already operates frozen-potato processing plants in Oregon, Idaho and North Dakota, employing about 4,000 people.

With the acquisition, Simplot Food Division will move into the retail food market. It has sold frozen french fries and other potato products to restaurants, hospitals, schools and other businesses.

The new subsidiary, which will be called Simplot Foods Inc., has assumed operations of Dalgety's plants in Wenatchee, Grandview and Fernald, Wash., and in Salinas, Santa Maria and Los Angeles, Calif. Simplot Foods Co. will also operate a former Dalgety plant in Mexico.

The plants process strawberries and many veg-tables, including peas, corn, Brussels sprouts, lima beans and broccoli.

The Dalgety Foods unit produced frozen fruits and vegetables for labels sold in supermarket chains and for hotels and caterers. The company, based in Salinas, also provided Simplot with frozen foods to sell to its customers for many years.

Dalgety Foods is a subsidiary of Dalgety Inc. of San Mateo, Calif. That company, in turn, is the U.S. arm of Dalgety PLC, an international agri-business company based in London.

Dalgety officials said they are pulling out of the frozen-foods business because of low profits. Excess frozen fruit and vegetable crop yields make the industry unstable, they said.

Mine closure hits town hard

MOAB, Utah (AP) — The temporary closure of three Atlas Corp. uranium mines and mill here will be "absolutely devastating" to many in this southeastern Utah community, but city leaders are trying to put on an optimistic face.

Atlas announced Wednesday it would shut down its Moab operations pending improvements in the sales market and prices for uranium.

— About 175 Atlas employees here will be laid off by March as a result, adding to the area's already high 14.6 percent unemployment rate.

Mayor Tom Stocks said a golf course, up to 550 condominiums and a small convention center were planned for construction in the area.

Ken Sleight, owner of a fruit-runnery and pick-trip company based in Moab, said tourism would have to pick up the slack for the declining uranium industry.

He said the area, with two national parks nearby, offers much to the visitor.

'Where's the beef?' star a sensation

By MICHAEL HOLMES
The Associated Press

DUBLIN, Ohio — A commercial for the Wendy's fast-food chain with an elderly woman demanding "where's the beef?" has been a hit with viewers, and company officials hope it makes hamburger of the competition.

Since the ad first hit the airwaves Jan. 9, it has prompted fan clubs for one of the actresses, inspired a taunt at high school basketball games — and even spawned a beef from a Michigan state agent.

In the nationally televised commercial, three elderly ladies are shown standing at a Brand X hamburger counter. Two of them admire an enormously oversized bun on which sits a tiny patty of meat. The third lady indignantly and repeatedly demands, "Where's the beef?"

The idea was to point out that Wendy's "single" hamburger has more beef "despite its modest name" than some bigger-named competitors, said David Quicksall, public relations manager for Wendy International, based in this Columbus suburb.

"We thought it would be popular; it's a catchy slogan. But it has taken off in a spectacular way," Quicksall said.

"Even our competitors are using it. Some have 'the beef' in here" on their menu boards," he said. "We know this isn't an issue of pressing national importance. We're just trying to have some fun."

The Michigan state Office of Services to the Aging last week criticized the commercial as demeaning the elderly, but Quicksall said it wasn't meant that way. He said Wendy's considers the ad commercial a positive portrayal of an elderly woman demanding her rights as a consumer.

Clara Peller, the Chicago-area resident who portrays the angry woman, has become an overnight sensation, Quicksall said.

"Her likeness on T-shirts. There are fan clubs starting up. She's becoming a cult hero," he said.

"But she's kind of an enigma for us. She's kind of reserved about it all. I think most people would jump at the chance to be on TV talk shows, but she's kind of reticent. She's a very private person."

Peller's performance earned her plenty of fans. "The people around here try to imitate her voice. They're just tickled to death by it," said Ardith Lynch, director of the Martin Janis Senior Center in Columbus.

The commercial's popularity also affected Watterson High School in Columbus. When an opposing basketball team enters the gym, students chant, "Where's the beef?"

It explained Principal John Durant, "It's a light-hearted way of saying, 'We're here, we are the midgets, where are your big players?'"

Railroad files damage claim

DELTA, Utah (AP) — Union Pacific Railroad is seeking more than $100,000 from Millard County to pay for damage to tracks and a railroad bridge in the collapse of the DMAD dam last June.

The railroad filed suit in federal court Tuesday against the county, contends that safety specifications used for construction of the dam near Delta were defective and caused the dam to fail. The notice also accuses county commissioners of failing to release water from the dam to prevent a collapse.

The county has 90 days to respond to the notice. If no response is given, the claim is assumed denied and Union Pacific can seek compensation through a lawsuit.

Royal Crown buyout arranged

ATLANTA (AP) — Royal Crown Cos. Inc. said it signed a definitive agreement to be taken private through a $382 million leveraged buyout by Miami financier Victor Posner.

The agreement, which was expected, calls for a company controlled by Posner to pay $40 for each of the soft-drink company's 8.2 million common shares.

Posner's company, Chesapeake Financial Corp., already owns about 2.3 million of those shares, or 28 percent.

But as part of the agreement, Chesapeake also will effectively help capitalize the newly acquired company by buying its own shares as well, Bruce Greer, a lawyer for Posner, said.

The transaction's cost also includes the refinancing of certain Royal Crown debt, and the redemption of preferred shares earlier issued by three Royal Crown directors, Royal Crown said.
