Sniper kills school girl

Wounds 10, takes his own life

By RICHARD DE ATLEY
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — A sniper opened fire on a crowded elementary school playground Friday, killing a young girl and wounding 10 other people before killing himself in the nearby house where he was holed up, authorities said.

Heavily armed police found the man's body when they stormed the house nearly four hours after the shootings, which began as classes at the 49th Street Elementary School were letting out for the weekend.

"He took his own life," said police spokesman Sergio Cruz.

The man was identified as Tyrone Mitchell, 28, his fiance said his parents and other relatives died at Jonestown in 1978 and that she and Mitchell would have gone to Jonestown, too, but were held up by a passport problem.

Police fired tear gas canisters into the two-story white frame house and battered down the door. They had evacuated the neighborhood and surrounded the house, stationing officers on nearby rooftops, shortly after the shooting erupted at 2:23 p.m. from the dwelling near the public school, located in a middle-class area five miles south of downtown.

Several guns, including at least one shotgun and one high-powered rifle, were found inside the dead man's home, according to Capt. Rick Batson, area commanding officer of the department's Newton Division. The gunman "apparently had taken his own life" with a bullet, Batson added.

Lead Ritter, deputy chief of operations for the Los Angeles Police Department, said 10 people were wounded. One was a playground supervisor who went to the aid of the children and another was an adult bystander.

Ritter identified the gunman as Mitchell and described him as "a well known suspect with the Newton Police Division with a heavy record of drugs and actions of irrational behavior."

When asked if police had a motive for the shootings, Batson said, "Absolutely not at this point." Playground supervisor Albert Jones, 50, said, "I attempted about three or four times to go over and see if I could help a little girl and every time I attempted to go over across the street and I would duck back.

"And so the last time I attempted to try go over, that's when I got hit, and I felt the sting the minute I got hit."

Los Angeles coroner's office personnel remove the body of Tyrone Mitchell from his house.

Jones had a shot gun pellet removed from his right foot at Orthopaedic Hospital.

Mitchell's fiancee, Mary Lou Hill, 29, said his parents and other relatives died at Jonestown in 1978.

She said Mitchell lived with his uncle in the upper floor of the house and that the uncle wanted him to move out after he bought a gun. She also said she and Mitchell had quarreled a few days ago because "I told him I didn't want to get married right now."

School nurse Stephanie Mednick was at school when the shooting began.

"All I heard was shots fired," said Ms. Mednick. "All the kids fell to the ground." Ms. Mednick said she treated six youngsters shot during the spree, "some critical, some good."

The injured children were taken to nearby Martin Luther King Jr. Hospital and Orthopaedic Hospital. None was immediately identified.

Samuel McClain, who lives near the school, said he heard 15 to 20 shots and, after a short time, heard another round of gunfire.

"They were on the school grounds playing, and whoever it was was just shooting into the crowd and into the building."

His wife, Bessie, added, "We heard the shots and we went out on our porch... all we could hear was a lot of screaming and yelling.

Iran issues threat

Aimed at U.S.

By ALEX EPTV
The Associated Press

Iran and Iraq reported new battles on their southern warfront Friday and Iran accused the United States of "hatching a plot" aimed at the vital Strait of Hormuz in the Persian Gulf.

Iran claimed its forces seized new territory along the Baghdad-Basra highway, but Iraq insisted its army was "in full and firm control" of the strategic highway.

Iraqi communiques claimed that more than 6,500 Iranian soldiers had been killed or wounded in the third day of the Iranian offensive. Iran said it had inflicted more than 5,000 casualties on the Iraqi army.

The Iranian news agency and Tehran Radio quoted President Ali Khamenei as warning of an American plot in the Persian Gulf.

"In order to make up for its disgrace in Lebanon, the U.S.A. is hatching a plot in the Persian Gulf and the Hormuz Strait," Khamenei said. "We have always said from the start and will continue to say that so long as our ships can pass through the Hormuz Strait we will not do anything to anybody, but should U.S. fleets and their supporters wish to do anything in the strait, their fate would be decisively worse than their fate in Lebanon."

He also was quoted as saying, "If the Americans want to compensate for their disgrace in Lebanon with adventurism and support of Iraq, it is impossible for us to permit even a drop of oil from the Gulf, and if necessary we will destroy all American interests in the region."

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes was asked if he was encouraged by Khamenei's statement that Iran will not initiate any action to close the strait and he said, "We would hope it's true."

Gooding Hospital losing its patients

By JANENE BUCKWAY
and ANNETTE CARY
Times-News Writers

GOODING — Only one patient remained in financially troubled Gooding County Memorial Hospital on Friday after the 4 p.m. checkout time.

However, Dr. Duane Cutright, the hospital's administrator, said he was not unduly concerned.

"Because one day the patient load is down, it's not necessarily a problem," he said.

Cutright said he had no plans to reduce the staff from the three nurses and the clerical staff that was on duty Friday afternoon.

"You can't tell when people will get sick or have emergencies. You have to staff all the time," he said.

The hospital has treated 12 or 13 patients per day on the average in January and so far in February, he reported. The hospital has enough beds to treat 24 patients.

"It is very unusual to only have one patient," head nurse Kathy Lee said. But she reported that one more patient had been admitted to the hospital by Friday evening.

At the February hospital board meeting, Cutright reported that "occupancy was pretty good and our admissions are up from the past year." However, the financial report showed the hospital still had a net loss of $2,019 in January, putting the loss for this fiscal year at $86,146 to date.

In January, the rate for semi-private rooms was raised from $136 to $145 to help offset the deficit. But the county commissioners still are investigating ways to borrow money.

One possibility is issuing tax-anticipation notes to area banks. Then, the county could authorize a one-time, one-year emergency tax levy, outside the limitations set by the One Percent Initiative, but not to exceed 10 mills. The levy would not require voter approval.

Revenue from the levy would be used to repay the tax-anticipation notes.

Another possibility is a property-tax override election, which would require a two-thirds majority to pass.

Panel bottles up plan to raise taxes

By QUANE KENYON
AP Capitol Writer

BOISE — A proposal to increase Idaho's sales tax from 3 to 4 percent won't resurface in the House Revenue and Taxation Committee — at least for the present.

"It appears there aren't enough votes to get it approved, so there's little point in bringing it up," said Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, that panel's chairman.

Holt Antone and House Speaker Tom Stivers said Friday they felt the vote would be 9-0 on the sales tax bill, thus defeating it.

Meanwhile, the panel, on a 9-8 vote, drafted a letter to the Legislature's budget committee, directing that committee to start voting on the state budget again.

But budget considerations will be based on the official state revenue estimate, and not on any new tax revenue.

On Thursday, the Revenue and Taxation Committee debated a bill boosting the sales tax to 4 percent.

IDAHO LEGISLATURE 1984

TOM STIVERS
Claims he's got the votes generating about $60 million more than the current 3 percent base rate. Antone proposed putting $4.8 million per year into the state Water Pollution Control Fund, which finances sewer and water system improvements. He also proposed adding $10.8 million per year to sales tax revenue going to cities and counties, with more than $44 million going into the state's general tax fund.

Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, led a successful effort to change the proposal to send more money to cities and counties.

The redrawn proposal was to come up for discussion Monday, but Antone said he won't put it before the committee again until there's an indication it might pass.

Most budget bills have been stalled this session pending major tax decisions. But Stivers told a news conference Friday the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee would resume work on the budget Monday.

"We will start setting the budgets Monday," he said. Stivers said an expected $20 million state surplus from this year might be used to balance next year's budget.

Stivers says he has the votes to kill a 1 percent increase in the sales tax.

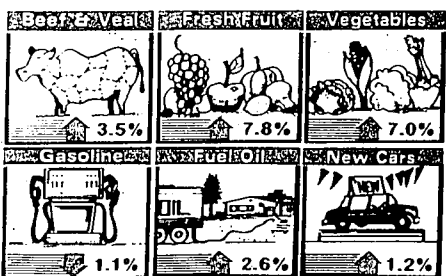

"I can count, and I have the count in the committee to stop the bill, Stivers told a Friday news conference.

Stivers said he had no firm idea whether a sales tax increase would pass the full House, if it got out of committee, but "it's abundantly clear, it won't get out of committee."

Stivers said he's committed to keeping promises made last year and returning the rate to 3 percent July 1.

He said he doesn't want to use a surplus to balance the budget, because that will cause problems in the future. But given a choice between new taxes and using the surplus, he favors using the surplus.

Jump in food prices behind stiff increase in inflation rate

By SALLY JACOBSEN
AP Economics Writer

WASHINGTON — Soaring food prices, caused mostly by unusually harsh weather, boosted consumer prices 0.6 percent in January, the biggest increase in nine months, the government said Friday.

Led by sharply higher costs for meat, fruits, vegetables and eggs, food prices jumped 1.6 percent. The last increase of that magnitude occurred in August 1980.

Prices for food bought at grocery stores skyrocketed 2.4 percent, matching the increase of February 1977, the Labor Department said in releasing its new report on the Consumer Price Index.

It also said costs of local telephone service mushroomed a record 5.2 percent, largely because of regulatory changes accompanying the breakup of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Despite the big jump in prices, most analysts didn't expect a fresh surge in inflation and were predicting that prices would rise about 5 percent this year.

Inflation stood at 3.8 percent last year, the best showing since 1971-1972, when President Nixon imposed price controls. It was 3.9 percent in 1982 after registering 12.4 percent in 1980 and 8.9 percent in 1981.

David Wyss, economist at Data Resources Inc., a consulting firm in Lexington, Mass., called last month's increase "pretty much a one-time event," caused mostly by December's freezing temperatures.

The price measure, he said, "should settle back down to the 0.4 percent range through most of the rest of the year."

At the White House, spokesman Larry Speakes said, "Despite the January increase, prospects remain excellent for continued low rates of inflation."

But forecaster Donald Ratajczak of Georgia State University said he was "getting a little nervous" about inflation because increases in the January food report were widespread, leading him to think that supermarkets were perhaps boosting their profit margins a bit.

And, William Dunkelberg, economics professor at Purdue University in Indiana, said a fresh study he conducted found 25 percent of small businesses planning to raise their prices in the first quarter of this year, up from the 21 percent recorded in the last quarter of 1983.

The fresh increase, he said, was the largest picked up by his survey of 2,199 small businesses since April 1982.

"It suggests that we can't just forget about inflation," said Dunkelberg, a consultant for the 560,000-member National Federation of Independent Business. "Everybody thinks inflation is beat but it's not."

Police arrest 40 in train protest

By BRIAN AKRE
The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — About 40 protesters were arrested Friday after they blocked a train they said was carrying nuclear weapons from Texas to a submarine base in Washington state.

The tracks at the Union Pacific railroad yard were blocked for about 2 1/2 hours before police cleared the tracks of the fast protesters at mid-afternoon.

The 18-car train then headed north across the Columbia River into Washington state.

The demonstrators sang "We Shall Overcome" in a cold rain as they were arrested. Some walked voluntarily to a waiting Multnomah County sheriff's department bus, while others had to be dragged. They were charged with criminal trespass.

Mounted police, Union Pacific railroad police and some plainclothes officers kept an eye on the demonstrators while waiting for the bus to arrive.

About 175 protesters in all were at the scene, but there was no violence.

The train arrived in Portland about noon after protesters along the coast had gathered and escorted Oregon held peaceful vigils and demonstrations as it passed through their communities.

About 50 people held hands and observed a moment of silence as the train passed by the Amtrak station at The Dalles along the Columbia River at 10:18 a.m. About a half-hour later, an estimated 40 people gathered at a station in the town of Hood River as the train headed toward Portland.

The protesters, many carrying signs, call it the "death train."

Seven people held a candlelight vigil in the eastern Oregon border town of Ontario as the train entered the state around 1 a.m. Friday.

The Oregon protests followed several in Idaho Thursday, including one that resulted in seven arrests at Nampa.

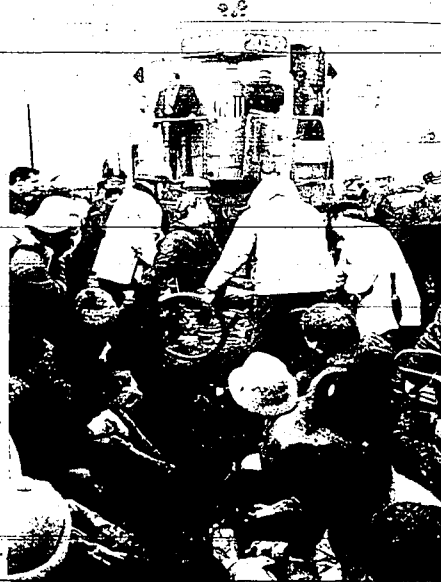

Canyon County Sheriff John Prescott said the seven arrested in Nampa were to be charged with trespassing during a demonstration that drew about 80 people.

"They can protest and sing songs and demonstrate all they want," Prescott said, "but we're not going to let them block the train."

Other protests were held in Pocatello and Shoshone without incident.

Protesters claimed the train carried warheads—manufactured in Amarillo, Texas, to be placed on missiles aboard Trident submarines at a base at Bangor, Wash.

The federal Department of Energy refused to disclose the cargo.

Lease bid covers president's ranch

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, who has made development of the nation's energy resources a theme of his administration, was told Friday that the Interior Department is considering leasing the government-owned oil and gas rights to his California ranch.

In what was a surprise to White House and Interior officials in Washington, the department's Bureau of Land Management for the past five weeks has been processing an offer for the mineral rights under Reagan's mountaintop retreat.

Also surprised was the Sacramento father-and-son team who filed the application. They said they didn't learn that the president's ranch was part of the tract they went to lease until just a week ago.

"The White House has been informed if and they said go ahead," said bureau director Robert F. Burford. "In this particular instance, the president considers himself to be a citizen and wants to be treated like any other citizen would be treated."

The lease, if approved in full by the bureau, would give private developers the right to drill exploratory wells on about 480 acres of the president's private 688-acre ranch 20 miles north of Santa Barbara. Reagan purchased the ranch in the Santa Ynez mountains in 1973. Since assuming office as the president three years ago, he has spent 172 days there vacationing.

The government retained the mineral rights to millions of acres in the West — including the land where Reagan's ranch is located — when the property was first sold to settlers and others after it was obtained by the United States.

One of the Reagan administration's primary goals has been to encourage development of the nation's energy resources by leasing government-owned mineral rights.

A Sacramento title firm that specializes in oil, gas and geothermal leases filed an application Dec. 29 with the bureau for an oil and gas lease to a 7,005-acre tract in the Los Padres National Forest.

But it wasn't until last week that BLM officials in California realized that the tract included the 480 acres of Reagan's ranch to which the government now owns the mineral rights.

Students play hardball with Mondale

By JERRY ESTILL
The Associated Press

It was one of those days when Walter F. Mondale. If it wasn't Democratic presidential rivals Gry Hart and Ernest Hollings linking him to the Democratic election disaster of 1980, it was a high school government class peppering him with unexpectedly hardball questions.

Hart, who finished second to Mondale in the Iowa caucuses earlier this week, pressed the attack Friday by saying he would be a stronger than Mondale as a challenger for President Reagan in the November general election.

"Why? he was asked at a news conference in Hampton, N.H."

"Because the voters of our party and other voters do not want a rerun of the 1980 election," he said. "We already had the election and lost it."

Mondale was running for re-election as President Carter's vice president four years ago and Reagan won in a landslide.

"I can put Ronald Reagan on the defensive instead of the other way around," said Hart. "I will be liberated from defending past policies."

At about the same time, Mondale was being pulled into a sticky question-and-answer session with students at Memorial High School in Manchester, N.H.

They didn't throw anything at him he hasn't fielded before, but it just wasn't the kind of encounter a candidate usually has when dropping by a high school. By the time it was over, some of the Mondale aides traveling with the candidate had gone beyond surprise and were laughing at the unexpected turn of events.

The teacher, an unrepentant Bill Benson said afterward that he had helped his students sharpen their questions.

"I have no qualms about putting the politicians on the spot," he said. "They come here asking for your vote."

Among the questions the teen-agers asked: "How can you be objective to labor-law legislation if your hands are tied to the AFL-CIO?" "Doesn't your private opposition to a grain embargo you criticized Sen. Edward M. Kennedy of opposing openly prove you're a hypocrite?"

In Laconia, N.H. Sen. Ernest Hollings also said the Democrats might as well forget about winning in November if they nominate Mondale.

"If they don't choose somebody different from Mondale, it's going to be all over," he said.

Referring to a Mondale assertion that Reagan leads by "amnesia," Hollings said: "The president knows what the problems are. He remembers the 12 percent inflation and 20 percent interest rates of the Carter-Mondale administration." It's Walter Mondale who wants the voters to have amnesia."

Sen. John Glenn was in Boston, winning pledges of underlying support from his backers there despite a surprisingly poor fifth-place showing in Iowa and concern about how he will do in next Tuesday's New Hampshire primary.

"I know that I endorsed him early and I'll be with him forever," said Massachusetts Attorney General Francis Bellotti.

Agent Orange creates vets' health problems

WASHINGTON (AP) — Veterans who sprayed Agent Orange in Vietnam and sometimes got doused in it are not suffering from an abnormally high rate of major diseases, but they have some inexplicable health problems that must be watched, the Air Force said Friday.

Among the problems found in the veterans or reported by them are unusually high rates of benign skin cancers, liver disorders, minor birth defects in their children, leg ulcers that could be an early indication of hardening of the arteries and fatigue.

anger, fear and anxiety. Moreover, the early death rate of their offspring is far higher than normal.

In addition, the veterans generally think they are in worse health than a like group of men who did not participate in the spraying project, the study showed.

Nonetheless, the Air Force told a Pentagon news conference, the results are "reassuring" from the most exhaustive study yet conducted among servicemen who were exposed, to the herbicide and the toxic substance dioxin which contaminated it.

Dioxin causes cancer in laboratory animals.

The report said no cases of chloracne — a severe skin disease associated with dioxin — were uncovered and no cases of a rare liver disorder, porphria cutanea tarda, were thought to be caused by the substance. A third disease sometimes associated with dioxin — cancers of the soft tissues — also was not detected.

The Air Force believes the 1,269 pilots and crew members who sprayed the herbicide were far more exposed than the hundreds of thousands of troops that may have encountered the spray on the ground or drunk water containing it.

"A degree of concern is warranted," a civilian doctor who took part in the study, biomathematician Richard A. Albanese of the Air Force School of Aerospace Medicine in Texas, told reporters, noting the higher incidence of some diseases.

"I cannot account for such differences by chance; on the other hand, I cannot explain their cause," he said.

Minor gains in negotiations to solve deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House and congressional negotiators gained a little momentum Friday in their struggle to find agreement on President Reagan's call for a $10 billion "down payment" against budget deficits.

The focus of the session was a proposal by Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., to pare back sharply the growth in military spending that the president has recommended.

Nonetheless, increasingly frustrated legislators said the answer will have to come ultimately from Congress.

The group held its third meeting, lasting about two hours, in the Executive Office Building adjacent to the White House.

Afterward, Rep. Trent Lott, R-Miss., who is representing House Republicans at the talks, said, "We went through two meetings of posturing and demagoguing. Today, we really got down, maybe, to looking at approach."

He cautioned, "I don't mean to imply that we're about to come to any conclusion or that we will ever be able to, but there seemed to be a degree of more seriousness and a little more give and take."

House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, and Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii — have been pressing the Reagan administration to respond specifically to a Wright proposal to slow the growth in military spending.

Reagan has asked Congress for defense spending authority of $305 billion for fiscal 1985, which starts

Oct. 1. That is a 13 percent increase over current spending, after discounting for inflation.

Meanwhile in Tempe, Ariz., former President Ford offered a four-point program for controlling the deficit, including cuts in defense spending over the next five years.

MERLIN, Ore. (AP) — A gunman Friday shot and killed his former wife and the owner of a pizza parlor where she worked before wounding himself in the head, authorities said.

one of the victims as the owner of the restaurant, Jack Armstrong. Witnesses said he had opened the restaurant about a month ago.

The victims were apparently shot sometime Friday, although authorities did not know it, and were dead when deputies negotiated by telephone with the gunman, Josephine County Under Sheriff Jim Carlton said.

Authorities said they had no name for the woman who was killed. The man who shot himself was identified only by the first name of John. Carlton said, however, that she was the former wife of the hostage taker.

At one point Friday afternoon shortly before he shot himself, the gunman walked outside Jack's Pizza Shack and looked over deputies surrounding the restaurant. Then he walked back inside, officers rushed in. One poked his head out and said, "Code four, code four, he shot himself."

The man was taken to Josephine Memorial Hospital with gunshot wounds to the head. The bodies of the two victims remained inside the restaurant awaiting examination by a medical examiner.

Authorities tentatively identified

Police had cordoned off the small restaurant and had been conducting negotiations with the gunman by telephone.

Plea bargain settles case of sexual assault

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Charles Manners has pleaded guilty to sexually molesting a 9-year-old girl last summer in Twin Falls.

In exchange for the admission, three charges of rape against Manners, involving the same girl, have been dismissed by the Twin Falls County prosecutor.

The "deal" was reached during the luncheon recess of a preliminary hearing held Friday in magistrate court in Twin Falls.

Manners, 49, a former Twin Falls veterinarian, then pleaded guilty later Friday afternoon in Fifth District Court to a charge of having lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor under 16.

The rape and the lewd-and-lascivious charges all stemmed from incidents that allegedly took place in June.

As part of the plea-bargain agreement, a sexual-abuse charge against Manners in Blaine County also will be dropped, said the defendant's attorney, Jim Meservy of Twin Falls.

Manners was accused of molesting the 10-year-old sister of the Twin Falls victim in Pocatello in July. On Thursday, Manners had been bound over to district court in Pocatello on that charge.

"From his standpoint, he (Manners) didn't want to plead guilty," Meservy said. "Based on the evidence that the state had and the proposal offered, it was an agreement that he could accept and one he was willing to go along with."

The plea-bargain also includes a sentencing recommendation.

The prosecutor's office will suggest a sentence of four months in the rehabilitative program at the North Idaho Correctional Institution at Cottonwood, says Dennis Voorhes, a deputy county prosecutor. The prosecution also will recommend that Manners be placed on a lengthy probation and in a psychiatric treatment program.

The maximum sentence for a lewd-and-lascivious conviction is life in prison.

A sentencing hearing will be held later. Billy Eubank, of the FBI's crime lab in Washington, D.C., was the first witness to be called by the prosecution at the start of the preliminary hearing Friday morning. Eubank testified on blood typing and secretion tests on semen found at the scene of one of the alleged incidents.

The mother of the girl also testified.

Then after lunch, the agreement was completed. Meservy said there had been previous discussions on the subject.

An arraignment in district court then was scheduled for later Friday afternoon. Although there usually would have been a few weeks wait, both parties agreed the arraignment should be held the same day.

"We thought we might as well take care of it while we were all able and present," Meservy said.

At the arraignment, Manners admitted the charge to Judge Daniel Meehl and "to conduct such that the judge could find that he was guilty of the offense," Meservy said.

Meehl ordered that a pre-sentence investigation be done before formal sentencing is held.

At the earlier preliminary hearing, magistrate Judge Charles Brumbach had denied Meservy's request to dismiss the lewd-and-lascivious charge.

A U.S. district court had ruled the state's law on lewd conduct was vague and unconstitutional, Meservy argued.

But Voorhes replied that even under the federal court ruling, the charge still could be filed.

Brumbach said the federal court was right about the vagueness of the statute. But he agreed that the charge could be pursued by the prosecution. As a result, he denied Meservy's request.

Airlines make pitch for local service

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport needs a carrier that will promote air travel to Boise vigorously and keep on flying to the state capital in the future, the chairman of the airport board told airline representatives Friday.

"Our concern is that the market (will) grow and be developed... and that we get solid, reliable service to and beyond subsidy," Dick Shotwell said.

He found little disagreement among the four airlines competing for a federal subsidy to fly the route during the next two years.

Representatives of Sky West Airlines, Horizon Air, Eagle Air Service and Cascade Airways all told the airport's board on Friday that they intend to boost air traffic with promotions. Each also said they want to jettison the federal subsidy as soon as the route turns a consistent profit.

Each airline has submitted formal bids for a federal subsidy to provide service between Twin Falls and Boise. The federal Civil Aeronautics Board is willing to underwrite two round trips a day between the cities because the route is considered essential air service.

After Friday's meeting, Shotwell said the airport board will propose a carrier next week to its parent bodies — the Twin Falls City Council and the Twin Falls county commissioners. They, in turn, will pass on a recommendation to the federal agency.

Sky West has entered the lowest bid so far, offering to fly the route for $153,387 and for less if weekend service is reduced.

Otherwise, Sky West, Cascade and Horizon Air are offering roughly comparable route systems and sizes of planes. All would use 17- to 19-passenger propeller-driven aircraft. Eagle Air Service, a local charter carrier, would fly 9-passenger propeller planes.

However, each airline tried to distinguish itself from the other competitors, with specific arguments that their representatives made in short speeches to the board on Friday.

Sewer hassle isn't over yet

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Although the city of Twin Falls has been awarded $2.2 million in damages from two manufacturers of equipment installed in its 1976 sewer plant, it still may be far from collecting any money in the case.

Even though a six-person jury in federal district court in Boise reached a verdict in favor of the city on Feb. 10, many legal questions remain unresolved, and several potential challenges to that verdict may remain untested.

Among the unresolved issues is whether the city will appeal a ruling by Judge Ray McNichols, that limited the amount of damages against one of the defendants in the suit, California-based Envirotech Systems Inc.

Also unresolved is whether Envirotech, or the other chief defendant, Neptune-Microflow of Corvallis, Ore., will appeal the main verdict.

Any of these appeals would be filed in the Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals in San Francisco. They could delay a final verdict as long as two or three years, say lawyers from the Twin Falls firm of Hopworth, Nungester and Felton, which has been representing the city in the case.

But even before any appeal motion can be filed, several other issues must be resolved.

A number of post-trial motions already have been filed on which McNichols will have to rule. And lawyers for the city have submitted a claim for court costs, and they plan to file a brief for attorneys' fees from Envirotech.

From the city's point of view, the greatest setback in the case came in December — midway through the 49-day trial — when McNichols issued a ruling that limited potential damages against Envirotech to the purchase price of the sludge-handling equipment the company provided the city.

Trial costly

TWIN FALLS — Staging a 49-day trial in federal court is an expensive proposition.

Just how expensive, however, is indicated by the following — it cost $17,364 just to pay a six-person jury, with alternates, to render a verdict.

This sum represents $30 per day for each of the 10 jurors who were involved for the first 30 days, plus $35 per day for the nine who continued to the end.

Jurors in federal court also receive 20.5 cents per mile for traveling expenses. This amount was reduced by having all jurors live in the Treasure Valley. Local residency also eliminated the need for overnight subsistence pay.

The cost of running the court, providing the jury and paying court personnel is paid by the U.S. government, through regular appropriations from the Justice Department budget.

As a final note, federal district Judge Ray McNichols, who presided at the trial, makes $76,100 per year.

For temporary classrooms

Gooding school gets money from feds

By the Times-News
and The Associated Press

GOODING — The U.S. Department of Education has agreed to temporarily reimburse Idaho for part of the cost of temporary classrooms being used at the State School for the Deaf and Blind in Gooding.

But the federal agency will not pay any part of relocating the condemned high-school building, according to Gov. John Evans.

Two double-classroom buildings were purchased when the high school was condemned after the October earthquake. At that time, the state paid $39,600 for the temporary buildings, and $50,000 more came from insurance payments, through the state Division of Insurance.

The federal agency has agreed to reimburse the state for the $39,600 until a new building is constructed — if it is done soon.

But because state officials already had decided that the deteriorating high school needed to be replaced in another four or five years, the state will not receive federal disaster funds to pay the building's $2 million replacement cost.

However, federal funds may yet pay up to $80,000 to demolish the old high school, built 64 years ago. And the federal government also may contribute $10,000 to repair the school's career-education building, constructed in 1911.

Superintendent Keith Tolzin says that already deteriorating window sills, doorways and foundations on the outside of the career-education building were further damaged by the earthquake.

The $10,000 would be used to repair the exterior features and repair cracks and crumbling mortar between the bricks.

Eventually, state officials would like to spend $8.5 million to replace several buildings on the Gooding campus, thereby cutting operating expenses and utility costs. No further action has been taken on that proposal.

By March of 1986 at the latest, the temporary classrooms will have to be sold to repay the $39,600 federal reimbursement to the state.

Tolzin says the space provided by the temporary classrooms is adequate, but less than the amount of space that was available in the condemned high school.

what the city does.

If the city appeals the limitation ruling, Envirotech will defend that ruling, he says first until the city appeals. It is not clear that we'll appeal," he says.

Similarly, Thomas Banducci, a lawyer with the Boise firm of Eberle, Berlin, Kading, Turnbull and Gillespie that represents Neptune Microflow, says his client is undecided as to a future course of action.

Banducci says most of the lawyers involved are recovering from what was a mentally and physically grueling trial.

Nevertheless, several actions have been lodged in federal court in Boise.

Among these are routine motions by both sides contesting certain aspects of the trial, and the two companies have filed motions for a new trial, which are also fairly routine, attorneys for the city say.

One motion may not be that routine, however. This is the city's motion for "pre-judgment interest." It could in effect nullify the verdict against Envirotech substantially.

The jury's verdict, in effect, meant that in 1978, Envirotech should have refunded the city for the parts of the sewer plant it sold. It could in effect nullify the verdict against Envirotech substantially.

As a result, attorneys for the city say that under Idaho law, the company should pay interest on this money — at a rate of 8 percent from March 1978 to July 1, 1981, and at a rate of 12 percent from then to the date of judgment.

The lawyers say this interest would amount to $703,620, which would push the total award against Envirotech to $1.9 million.

In addition, city lawyers have submitted a bill for $222,000 for expenses.

GREG FULLER

Dentists challenge examination procedures

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — A Jerome attorney has filed a class-action complaint in federal district court in Boise, seeking to change the state's examination procedure for dentists wishing to practice in Idaho.

Greg J. Fuller said Friday that he is representing six dentists and other unnamed individuals who took the state's dental exam in 1982 or 1983.

The complaint — against the State Board of Dentistry and its individual members — lists the six plaintiffs — Dr. Douglas L. Smith, Dr. LeGrand Bingham, Dr. Chris E. Hayes, Dr. Harold D. Atkinson, Dr. Anthony P. Joyce and Dr. Thomas L. Losacco — all took the state dental exam in June or September of 1982, or June or December of 1983.

They later were informed they had failed the examination, but under the regulations of the Idaho Board of Dentistry, they were given no opportunity to review the test scores, the suit states.

All of the men now are practicing in other states where they have passed similar exams, except for Smith, who is a dentist in the Air Force.

Fuller says that Idaho is one of the few states that has its own dental board, composed of dentists practicing in Idaho.

"Nearly all other states operate with a regional board, with persons from other states coming in to conduct the examinations," he says. "We feel the Idaho system represents a conflict of interest."

"If the dentists on the state board learn there are several new dentists who wish to practice in their communities and thus cut into their own dental business, it leaves plenty of room for a conflict-of-interest case, at least where those new dentists are failing the exams."

The plaintiffs are seeking to revise state law as it applies to dental exams. They also are asking the court to require the State Board of Dentistry to recognize exams given and passed in other states.

"All of these dentists are either former Idaho residents or residents of other areas who are denied the right to come to Idaho and practice their profession," Fuller said Friday.

The plaintiffs are asking the dental board to recognize regional examinations and allow a dentist who has been approved in another state and who has practiced at least five years to practice in Idaho without taking another exam.

The suit also is seeking compensatory damages of $300,000 for each plaintiff, plus court costs and reasonable attorney fees.

Further, the plaintiffs have asked the court to retain jurisdiction in the case until the defendants are in full compliance with any order the court may enter.

Named individually as defendants are state board members Dr. John T. Mooney, Dr. Kenneth E. Stosch, Dr. H. Max Thompson, Dr. Richard B. Neuser, Dr. D.H. "Skip" Pierce, Jann Zollinger, R.D.H. and Dr. Richard E. Meiers, the past chairman of the state board.

Fuller says that in 1972, a similar situation developed with the Idaho Bar Association, when many prospective attorneys were flunking the bar exams. Court action was taken, and the Idaho bar exam now is offered on an unbiased basis, he says.

Deadline for History Dav nears

TWIN FALLS — March 3 is the entry deadline for submitting projects to the area Idaho History Day fair, which will be held at the Blue Lakes Mall in Twin Falls on March 17.

Magic Valley students in grades four through 12 can submit papers, projects, dramatic presentations and media shows, based on the theme "The Family and Community in History."

The Idaho State Historical Society is sponsoring the contest "to help students experience the excitement of history through original research and to deepen their awareness of history as an integral part of their lives."

Entries will be judged on how well the theme is carried out, presentation and historical quality. The students must demonstrate original work in their projects, Carney says.

The winners of the area competition will be eligible to compete in the state fair on April 28.

Entries for the fair in Twin Falls should be sent to: Kathleen Carney, 5665 S. Bannock Highway, Pocatello, 83204, with a $1 entry fee and a completed entry form. Entry forms also are available from Carney.

Shoppers can get free snacks

TWIN FALLS — South Central District Health Department dental hygienist Eloise Mercer will be at the Blue Lakes Mall in Twin Falls from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. today, providing shoppers with samples of nutritious snacks and talking with parents and children about dental awareness.

Mercer is making the presentation in conjunction with the activities of Education of Avaricious Health, being sponsored by the Twin Falls Education Association.

Former Green Beret to speak

TWIN FALLS — Alan Davidson, a former Green Beret sergeant, will speak on how the United States can stop financing communism this Wednesday, Feb. 29.

According to Davidson, years of trading with and providing assistance to the Soviet Union has helped that nation enormously with its military build-up.

The speech, to given at 8 p.m. at the Holiday Inn in Twin Falls, is sponsored by the Magic Valley Tax Reform Immediately Committee.

Tickets are available for $2 in advance or $3 the night of the speech.

For more information, call 734-2255.

Jerome to host investing class

JEROME — Idaho State University will offer a non-credit course for beginning investors in Jerome, starting March 5.

"The class will make students aware of the wide variety of investments available in the marketplace and the risks and rewards associated with each investment," says Mike Hutchings, who will be the course instructor. "Discussion will focus on loans, ownership, tax shelters and retirement plans."

Hutchings is a financial consultant in Twin Falls. The class will meet for four Mondays, from 7 to 9 p.m., in the Jerome County Courthouse downstairs meeting room.

The course will cost $20, and registration will close next Friday. To register, call the ISU Resident Center in Twin Falls at 734-4478.

ISU offers two classes

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley residents have until March 15 to sign up for two spring Idaho State University classes to be held in Twin Falls.

"Classroom Language Problems" will include descriptions of speech, hearing and language problems commonly found in elementary and high-school students. The cost for the class will be $20 for three undergraduate credits or $27.50 for graduate credits.

The course will meet for three weekends, beginning March 23. An advanced seminar in American government will feature recent findings and literature about special-interest groups, poverty, crime, military budgets and affirmative action legislation.

The cost for this course will be $40 for one undergraduate credit or $52.50 for one graduate credit. It will begin April 6 and will last for two weekends. To register for either course, call the ISU Resident Center in Twin Falls at 734-4478.

For 7-year-old conviction

Jerome man wins appeal right

JEROME — A 33-year-old Jerome man, serving a 10-year sentence for voluntary manslaughter, has gained the right to appeal his 1977 conviction.

Gov. Elmer L. Andersen has granted the appeal. Flores was convicted of the Nov. 13, 1976, slaying of Manuel Cezar Sells in a Jerome bar. He was sentenced in October 1977.

In his latest appeal, he said that he and his attorney, James May of Twin Falls, immediately after the trial to appeal the conviction.

May allegedly told his client that it probably would not be worth the risk, since if he won the appeal, he might have to stand trial on the original charge — first-degree murder.

At his trial, Flores was acquitted of charges that he had assaulted a second person, Arlen B. Ray of Jerome, with intent to commit, but the jury convicted him of voluntary manslaughter on the other charge.

Flores petitioned the court to have his conviction reinstated on the grounds that his attorney made a mistake in advising him not to appeal seven years ago.

At a hearing Tuesday in Fifth District Court in Jerome, Marc Havas of the attorney-general's office admitted that the evidence indicated clearly that an error was made by Flores' attorney.

At the conclusion of the hearing, Judge George Granata of Burley vacated and then re-entered the original judgment, so that Flores can appeal. Granata informed Flores that he must make appeal within 42 days.

After the hearing, Flores was returned to the state prison to continue serving his sentence, pending the filing and outcome of the appeal.

In Buhl murder case

Attorney seeks change of venue

TWIN FALLS — A hearing will be held next Friday on a request to move the murder trial of a Castelford man out of the Magic Valley due to the publicity the case has received.

Attorney Jeff Stoker of Twin Falls filed a change-of-venue motion recently in Fifth District Court on behalf of 31-year-old Keith Rosenzweig.

Rosenzweig faces two counts of murder for the shooting deaths of Cathy Alice Gittel, 30, and Michael Wayne Lee, 22, of Twin Falls, at Gittel's residence in Buhl on June 18.

Rosenzweig, who is free on bond, is scheduled to go on trial April 30.

In his request, Stoker claims that the news coverage of the case has inhibited the possibility of his client obtaining a "fair and unbiased jury."

The attorney included in his request copies of articles from "The Times-News" and "The Buhl Herald" about the shootings.

As an alternative to a change of location, Stoker has asked that prospective jurors be called from outside the Magic Valley and the general circulation of "The Times-News."

Stoker also is asking that prospective jurors be questioned individually because of the chance that some have been exposed to the pre-trial publicity.

Stoker has filed another motion asking that a statement made by Rosenzweig to a Twin Falls County sheriff's deputy be excluded from the trial. The statement was obtained in violation of the defendant's constitutional rights, the attorney claims.

As an alternative to a change of location, Stoker has asked that procedure be followed.

Parole violation brings Cottonwood stay

JEROME — Debbie Rundle, 27, of Jerome, has been ordered to spend 10 days at the Northern Correctional Institution at Cottonwood for a parole violation.

Her husband, Mark Rundle, currently is serving a prison sentence for manufacturing and selling marijuana.

Mrs. Rundle, the mother of five children, who was arrested at the same time as her husband on the same charges, was given two-years probation on those charges.

At a hearing this week in Fifth District Court in Jerome, assistant prosecutor Kay Tomer stated that 10 days into her probation period, Mrs. Rundle was arrested for driving while intoxicated and possession of marijuana.

Judge Phillip Becker told the defendant he probably should apologize to her: "I gave you a probation I knew you could not keep."

Public defender Randy Stoker, who represented Rundle, said he could make no recommendation as to a solution to handle the problem.

In ordering the woman to Cottonwood, Becker said there are persons there to help her with her drug and drinking problems, and possibly help her complete her high-school education.

Obituaries

Kenneth Dudley

HANSEN — Kenneth Dudley, 65, of Hansen died early Friday morning at his home.

Born April 15, 1918, in Benham, Utah, he married Opal Stephens in Burley, May 29, 1946. After living in Burley for many years, he had lived for the past 33 years in Hansen, where he had worked for the W.B. Savage Ranches Inc. since 1960.

Mr. Dudley served in the Army Air Corps during World War II. He was a member of the Hansen Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

Surviving are: his wife of Hansen; two sons, Steven Ken Dudley of Twin Falls and Kenneth C. "Chuck" Dudley of Halley; nine grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; a brother, Heber "Tex" Dudley of Burley; and a sister, Ella Fairchild of Tacoma, Wash.

He was preceded in death by seven brothers and seven sisters.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 10 a.m. at the Kimberly Mormon State Center, with Bishop Morgan Stanger officiating.

Friends may call at White Mortuary in Twin Falls today and Sunday from 5 to 9 p.m., on Monday until 9 p.m., and at the church in Kimberly Tuesday from 9 a.m. until the time of the service. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

The family suggests that memorial contributions be made to the Mountain States Tumor Institute in Boise.

Ruth C. Kunkel

TWIN FALLS — HOH Chandler Kunkel, 88, a pioneer Salmon Tract resident, died Thursday at Hazeldean nursing home in Twin Falls.

Born June 19, 1895, in Chicago, she moved to a farm near Jerome in 1913. She attended Albion State Normal School, where she received her teaching certificate. She taught school in Lava Hot Springs, Orchard Valley, Hazelton and Hollister.

She married Dale D. Kunkel in Twin Falls on Aug. 22, 1917. He died on April 12, 1968.

Mrs. Kunkel was a member of the Hollister Community Church, the Hollister chapter of the Eastern Star and was a charter member of the Hollister Grange. She also did volunteer work for Red Cross blood drives.

Surviving are: four sons, Dale Scott Kunkel of Burbank, Calif., Paul Kunkel of Ogden, John Kunkel of Pocatello and Dale Kunkel of Phoenix; a daughter, Lois Roth of Salt Lake City; 15 grandchildren; 18 great-grandchildren; a great-great-grandchild, and a sister, Dorothy Greenough of Twin Falls.

She was preceded in death by a son and a grandson. The funeral will be held Monday at 1 p.m. at White Mortuary in Twin Falls, with the Rev. Robert Van Nest officiating. Burial will be in Sunset Memorial Park in Twin Falls.

Friends may call at the funeral home today from 5 to 9 p.m., on Sunday from 3 to 9 p.m., and on Monday until 12:30 p.m.

Jerome woman

gets probation for bad check

JEROME — A Jerome woman was placed on two-years probation Thursday when she appeared for sentencing on a charge of writing a "bad" check.

Rhonda B. Aragon originally had pleaded innocent to the charge. But after a plea-bargaining session, she admitted writing a $33.31 check with insufficient funds last Oct. 22 at a Jerome store.

Fifth District magistrate Judge Roger Burdick placed her on probation, but ordered that she make restitution for the check and also pay for public-defender services at a rate of $25 per hour.

He further ordered that Aragon not maintain a checking account during her two-year probation period.

Airlines

Cascade representative Jerry Jenkins said the Spokane-based airline provides essential air service without subsidy for nine small Pacific Northwest cities. After 15 years of service — it is the second-longest established carrier serving Idaho, he said.

Jan Redding, the director of corporate affairs for Horizon Air, said the Seattle-based carrier has built a secondary hub at Boise, which allows smooth connections to large numbers of flights.

Horizon Air also has moved a full-time marketing representative into Salt Lake City to handle southern Idaho, said Bob Jergenson, a senior vice president for operations.

Jerry Atkin, the president of Sky West of St. George, Utah, said his carrier operates with lower per-seat costs than the other applicants, giving it a better chance of turning a profit on the route sooner.

Sky West also staffs a maintenance base at Pocatello, which allows it to service planes more often than some other carriers, Atkin said.

Joseph Alvey, chief of operations for Eagle Air, said his carrier wants to lower fares to the point where they will be competitive with ground travel.

Eagle wants to serve the Twin Falls-Boise markets, "the world," said Alvey, referring to the larger route systems of the other competitors.

The airline representatives said fares to Boise are likely to range between $80 to $100 for a round-trip ticket purchased in advance. However, joint fares with other carriers for continuing flights can cut the costs for the Twin Falls-Boise leg substantially, they said.

Glenns Ferry increases cost of cemetery lots

By DIANA HOOLEY
Times-News correspondent

GLENN'S FERRY — Things are looking up in Glenns Ferry, but the cost of dying has increased.

At the recent city council meeting, Mayor Dayle Messerly said things are beginning to "look real good... the city is in better economic health."

Messerly was referring to the opening of a new business, Idaho Circuit Technology, and projected job openings at the Honey Seed Co., due to the stronger dry bean market.

Despite the improving economy, ways to increase city revenue were still a topic of concern at the council meeting. One item debated was the cost of city cemetery lots, which the council later voted to increase.

Butch Anderson, the head of the city's maintenance crew, told the council the city did not "have the money to maintain the cemetery the way it should be."

Clerk Eddie Bostle said $7,500 had been budgeted this year for cemetery maintenance. In addition to this money, Bostle said city residents are charged $75 to buy a lot, and non-residents are charged $125.

The council discussed creating a cemetery district that could tax Hammitt, Glenns Ferry and King Hill for cemetery costs, instead of Glenns Ferry residents only.

But it was generally agreed there would be no incentive for non-residents to vote for a cemetery district and the extra taxation.

"We can't afford to spend $1,000 for a revenue election where passage is doubtful," Messerly said.

The council then passed a motion to raise the cemetery fees. Residents of Glenns Ferry now will pay $125 to buy a lot, and non-residents will pay $350.

The cost for opening a grave will increase from $100 to $175, and if a funeral is held on Saturday or a holiday, the extra fee for the grave opening will increase from $30 to $50.

Minico High School shifts to seven periods

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Minidoka school board has decided to go to a seven-period day next fall at the high school.

Superintendent Gene Snapp says seven periods will allow students more latitude in the scheduling electives, and also it will reduce overall class sizes by scheduling overflow classes into more than one period.

At its meeting this week, the board also revised its extracurricular policy.

Students will have to pass three classes per year with a 2.0 grade-point average, a "C," in order to be eligible to participate in these activities, Snapp says.

The present policy allows eligibility to occur with a 1.0 grade-point average.

In other business:

- The board appointed a committee to develop methods by which the cost of the school's 90 percent attendance policy, which will be implemented next school year.
- The board rehired all principals for the 1984-1985 school year.
- The Minico High School graduation date was set for May 23.

Bliss school ready to follow 90%, superintendent says

BLISS — The Bliss school board has been told that implementation of the state's new 90 percent attendance rule looks assured for the district.

At the recent board meeting, Superintendent Edward Schenk said the district will make "a concerted effort to live up to the rule."

"We'll have the option of extraordinary circumstances to fall back on," he added.

In other business:

- Steve Nance, the Future Farmers of America advisor, asked the permission to change the location of the bike parking area.

He said the FFA would like to make a small picnic area on the site of the present bike lot at the east of the gym. The picnic site would include grass, evergreens and small tables, Nance said.

The FFA also volunteered to build a picnic table for the area in front of the school. Nance said travelers often stop in the summer and picnic on the shady school lawn.

The board approved the proposal. Also approved by the board was an FFA request for a storage shed.

- The board renewed Schenk's contract for the coming year.

Richfield school chief rehired

RICHFIELD — A. Jay Jones will continue as superintendent of the Richfield schools.

At its meeting earlier this month, the school board extended his contract for another year. Jones has been superintendent of the Richfield School District for the past five years.

In other business, the board accepted the resignation of vocational-agriculture teacher Orrie Baysinger, who also is the Future Farmers of America advisor.

Baysinger told the board in his letter of resignation that he is leaving for personal reasons.

Baysinger has been working as the FFA teacher in both Richfield and Dietrich.

Jones said sharing instructors between districts is fairly common in smaller school districts.

"It's the only way the small schools could have some of these programs."

Richfield paid half of Baysinger's salary, and Dietrich paid the rest.

Jones said Richfield has begun accepting applications for a vo-ag teacher, but negotiations with Dietrich concerning a similar arrangement have not taken place yet.

Twin Falls may get a new radio station

By PAT MARCANTONIO
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A group of Lewiston businessmen plan to begin operating educational FM radio stations in Twin Falls and six other Idaho cities this summer.
 The Rev. Richard C. Moore, the pastor of the Bible Baptist Church in Lewiston, says the Idaho Educational Broadcasting Foundation has filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission to operate the stations, which would all have the same programming.

The foundation, of which he is the spokesman and a member, is dedicated to education and reaching as many persons as possible, he says.

"We were concerned that there was not enough educational programming. We wanted to make it available in our state," Moore said this week.

The businessmen, who also are members of the Baptist Church, started the foundation last year. However, the organization is non-profit and not affiliated with the church, Moore says.

It is the foundation's plan to operate the stations on donations and the sale of advertising. The cost of putting the stations on the air has not been released.
 The foundation will contract with a Los Angeles broadcast company to provide the programming. The broadcast day will include educational seminars on a wide range of topics, from accounting to languages, Moore says. The seminars will be run in segments during the day and then in their entirety during the evening.

Commentary and news also will be aired, Moore says.

Filled out the balance of the day will be instrumental easy-listening music that will appeal to those 35 and older, he says. Some of the music will be religious in nature, Moore says.

The broadcast signal will be relayed by satellite to stations in Twin Falls, Idaho Falls, Pocatello, Lewiston, Boise, Payette and Sandpoint. The signal then will be sent to broadcasting towers.

The foundation has applied for 300-watt stations. With that power, the stations will have a 25- to 30-mile range, Moore says.

Altogether, the foundation will employ five to six persons to answer correspondence and sell advertising. The advertising will be institutional in nature, Moore says. Businesses will sponsor whole programs with mention of their names, not any details about sales or other specialties, he says.

If the foundation's application is approved by the FCC, the stations should be on the air by July 4, he says.

House repeals INEL tax exemption

BOISE (AP) — The opponents brought up everything from patriotism to regional politics. But despite it, the House voted 38-22 Friday to end a special sales tax exemption enjoyed by contractors at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory.

It was the fourth straight year that the House voted to end an exemption that legislators claim costs the state $1 million to $1.2 million per year in tax revenue.

But Rep. Claude Judd, D-Orofino, summed up the feeling held by many legislators.

"I'll support it, but I don't have any hopes of it becoming law."

That's because the measure now heads to the Senate, where it has languished and died the last three sessions.

Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, heads the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee, and has used that panel to kill the bills three years running.

It's a standing joke around the Legislature that Watkins throws unpopular legislation into the trunk of his car and it isn't seen again for the rest of the session.

"It's time we passed this bill. And I hope we can keep it out of the trunk of a gentleman across the rotunda" (Watkins), said sponsor Rep. Chris Hooper, R-Boise.

Hooper said when the eastern Idaho nuclear research center started, it was granted a sales tax break to help get it started. It no longer needs the exemption, he said.

Other research centers, many run by the federal government, don't get that break, he said.

Tax officials said a "head tax" from INEL generates about $700,000 per year. If contractors paid straight sales tax, that would bring in about $2.2 million per year.

Watkins has proposed a "compromise" which he said would double the "head tax" from INEL.

"INEL probably is in more jeopardy now than ever before," said Rep. Martin Trillhaase, R-Idaho Falls. "It's important that we give it any possible encouragement."

Lottery plan misses by 3 votes

BOISE (AP) — After debate on the problems legalized gambling might bring to Idaho, the Idaho House on Friday voted down a proposal to clear the way for a state-run lottery.

The vote Friday afternoon was 44-25 in favor, three votes of the required two-thirds majority of 47.

Only two Democrats voted against the lottery, eastern Idaho legislators Dwight Horsch of Aberdeen and Mel Hammond of Rexburg. They were joined by 23 Republicans.

Voting for the proposed constitutional amendment were 16 Democrats and 28 Republicans.

Sen. Vernon Larnen, D-Pinehurst, prime backer of lottery legislation in the Senate the last couple of sessions, said he may introduce a new lottery bill in the Senate.

"I'll make that decision by the end of next week," he said.

Larnen said he was caught by surprise by the House debate, which he didn't expect to come until next Thursday.

Sponsor Rep. Patricia McDermott, said Idahoans deserve a chance to vote on the lottery proposal, because great interest has been expressed in it.

If the proposal had cleared both House and Senate, it would have been placed on the general election ballot this fall.

Rep. JoAn Wood, R-Rigby, said voters already have expressed their sentiments on legalized gambling, by the people they elect as legislators.

"When they send us to represent them from the different districts, they depend on us being the kind of people who represent them—Yes, I think they know we will safeguard their interests and concerns when we come here," she said.

Filing opens on March 19

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — Idaho county clerks, don't bother taking nominating petitions from election candidates starting Monday morning.

Almost overnight, state election laws have been changed. And filing won't open until March 19.

Acting with unaccustomed speed, it took the Idaho Legislature little more than 24 hours to prepare and pass a bill moving the filing period from Feb. 27, which is Monday, back three weeks.

forming them the filing deadline had been changed.

"We also sent all 44 of them copies of the new law," said Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa.

But Ysursa said he didn't think the three-week delay in the filing period would cause many problems.

Until this year, he said, candidates had only one week to file nominating petitions. Candidates originally had 10 weeks to file, he said, and the latest change cuts that to seven weeks.

And when the Legislature delivered the bill to Lt. Gov. David Leroy Friday afternoon, he signed it into law.

"This will buy the Legislature a little more time," said Leroy.

With the action, the secretary of state's office immediately began calling Idaho's 44 county clerks, informing them the filing deadline had been changed.

"We also sent all 44 of them copies of the new law," said Deputy Secretary of State Ben Ysursa.

But Ysursa said he didn't think the three-week delay in the filing period would cause many problems.

Until this year, he said, candidates had only one week to file nominating petitions. Candidates originally had 10 weeks to file, he said, and the latest change cuts that to seven weeks.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: The daytime is good for being direct and swift in pushing about and attending to whatever will make conditions about you more in line with what your plan of life most desires.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Make changes that you feel will be helpful to you. Get in touch with a person who can give you assistance.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Reach a better understanding with your mate during the daytime and then go out together in the evening.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) See partners who can help you the most in the future; state your aims clearly, then keep promises you made to them. Be charming.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to Jul. 21) Seek some new manner of getting your work done more efficiently and study your newspaper for ideas. Be with a practical partner in the evening.

LEO (Jul. 22 to Aug. 21) Perfect your hobbies. Don't forget marketing for the weekend. Come to a better understanding with your mate.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) Talk over with every family member your wishes and expectations in the future and become to a fine understanding.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Gird about and see as many persons as you can, but plan to stay at home in the evening. Get Saturday shopping done.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Handle financial affairs very well during the daytime, and then take time in the evening to visit your friends or relations.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Get busy at personal matters. The evening is best for handling practical matters. Visit friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Fine day to buy new items for your wardrobe. Then get about socially in the evening. Be active.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You can be very active with your friends during the daytime, but tonight make fine plans for the future.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Handling outside affairs during the daytime brings fine results. Gain the support of some influential person.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will be one who will want to have a good education and will work for tuition, if necessary. Give every opportunity to express the self. One who will definitely become a bigwig here.

Talks now up to West

MOSCOW (AP) — The Communist Party newspaper Pravda said Friday all Soviet proposals made at nuclear arms negotiations remain in effect, but "the ball is in the Western court" on resumption of the now-suspended talks.

Pravda analyst Vitaly Korionov addressed the dispute over limiting nuclear arms in Europe in a lengthy editorial that repeated the standard Kremlin position on the negotiations.

Korionov charged "the break-off of the talks was pre-planned in Washington and it was precisely the U.S. that undermined them."

New battles break Lebanon cease-fire

By MONA ZIADIE
The Associated Press

BEIRUT, Lebanon — The Lebanese army battled anti-government militiamen in downtown Beirut and the central mountains with tanks and artillery Friday despite a new Saudi-mediated truce declared earlier in the day.

The battles erupted at nightfall, eight hours after the cease-fire went into effect at 11 a.m. (2 a.m. MST).

In southern Lebanon, Israeli troops clashed with Shiite Moslem villagers, and Israeli officials said two villagers were wounded. The Israelis denied reports from residents that four villagers were killed.

The Israeli military also denied a Beirut radio report that five Israeli soldiers were killed in a grenade attack in the southern port city of Sidon.

Blasts of crashing shells echoed across the capital as Shiite militiamen and army troops fought along the "green line" dividing Beirut into Christian east and Moslem west. Shells struck in several Christian neighborhoods in east Beirut and northern suburbs.

Druse and army gunners duelled with rockets and artillery in the area of the towns of Aley and Souk el-Gharb, about nine miles east of Beirut in the mountains.

Privately owned and state-run radio stations said diplomatic efforts were under way to avert the collapse of the cease-fire. The radios referred to the battles as "violations" of the truce.

Fighting the previous night had subsided as the cease-fire went into effect, although scattered blasts of artillery and sniper fire had persisted throughout the day.

Police said Friday 12 people were killed and 27 wounded in overnight battles that preceded the cease-fire.

Moslem and Druse leaders opposed to Christian President Amin Gemayel's administration complained they had not been officially notified of the cease-fire. But the militia leaders said they had ordered their fighters to stop shooting.

Government sources said the truce, announced by Saudi mediators in Damascus, early Friday, was designed to create an atmosphere in which politicians could negotiate a settlement.

However, just after the cease-fire began, former President Camille Chamoun, leader of the "Lebanese Front" coalition of right-wing Christian groups, said he would not go along with cancellation of the May 17 Israeli-Lebanese troop withdrawal accord.

Syria and its Lebanese Moslem and Druse allies have demanded abrogation of the accord. The Moslem and Druse militias seized west Beirut and coastal areas south of the capital in offensives earlier this month that shattered the Lebanese army and undermined Gemayel's administration.

Chamoun said there could be "no trust in and no cooperation with the government if it cancels the May 17 agreement."

Hanoi fires verbal barrage

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam claimed Friday that China has killed or wounded 1,000 Vietnamese in cross-border attacks since the two nations fought a two-month war in 1979.

airspace 2,000 times and nearly 1,500 Chinese "scouts and commandos" have been detected entering Vietnamese territory.

A "Vietnamese government" commission, in a report carried by the official Vietnam News Agency monitored in Bangkok, also accused China of taking 100 Vietnamese captive, destroying thousands of homes and killing or setting thousands of farm animals.

The accusations were made in a report by the "commission for investigation of Chinese expansionists and hegemonists' war crimes against Vietnam," the news agency said.

The commission's report accused China of 7,500 "armed provocations" since early 1979.

During this period, it said, Chinese aircraft on reconnaissance missions have intruded into Vietnamese Vietnam and China have traded accusations of border provocations since China launched a limited cross-border strike in early 1979 to "punish" Hanoi for invading Cambodia and driving the Khmer Rouge, China's ally, from Phnom Penh.

The communique said that China still holds more than 10 places it occupied during the war, and has annexed several other areas by "re-planting" at many hill regions. It said China gave these areas Chinese names and turned them into defensive strongholds for use in a future war with Vietnam.

Kimberly, Declo victims of night of upsets

By CHRIS HAFT
 Times-News writer

WENDELL — Being seeded high in a tournament is like wearing jewelry. It looks nice, but it really doesn't mean a darned thing.

Friday night's action at the Fourth District A-3 boys basketball tournament reaffirmed that notion. The Filer Wildcats rampaged to a 59-52 victory over top-seeded Kimberly, then the Glens Ferry Pilots scrambled past the No. 2 Declo Hornets 58-54 to complete the crazy evening.

In tonight's loser-out games, Declo meets Gooding at 6:30 and Kimberly confronts Shoshone at 8:15.

On the junior varsity level, Filer topped Valley 71-58 and Glens Ferry subdued Wendell 56-47.

this time they were the victims of a decisive surge.

With the score tied 41-41 early in the fourth quarter, Filer scored six straight points on Elmer Peters' three-point play. Greg Jarolimke's baseline layin out of a spread-court alignment and a Jarolimke free throw with 3:22 left.

Kimberly had opportunities to challenge Filer in the final two minutes. However, the Wildcats emerged unscathed each time. With 1:31 to go and Filer leading 49-46, Kimberly's Tom Perrell, 6-3, forced a jump ball with 5-11 Wildcat Andy Sackett. Ferrell controlled the tip, but the ball traveled to Peters, who scored.

With 45 seconds left and Filer still up by three, 51-48, Sackett missed the front end of a one-and-one. But the rebound bypassed all Bulldogs and landed in the hands of Jarolimke, who restored the Wildcats' five-point edge. That virtually decided the outcome, though an orgy of free throws — two each by Peters and Scott Turner — with 21 seconds left, resulting from a Kimberly foul and a technical on the Bulldog bench made the finish more definitive for Filer.

As they did against Gooding in the tourney's opening round, the Wildcats excelled on defense, limiting Kimberly to 30 percent (19-for-61) shooting. Meanwhile, Kimberly's defense, which usually harasses opponents in an insane, failed to frazzle Filer, particularly in the second half.

"The way they handled Kimberly's pressure is as good, if not better, than what I expected," Filer Coach Loyd Garey said.

Additionally, the way Filer handled Kimberly underneath the basket exceeded anybody's wildest dreams. After getting dominated in the first quarter-and-a-half on the boards, the Wildcats reversed matters, thanks mostly to Peters and Jarolimke. "Their (Kimberly's) inside game is one of the finest I've ever seen, and those two shut it off," Garey said.

The pair also shone offensively. Peters netted 18 points, going six-for-eight from the field and canning six of seven free throws. Meanwhile, Jarolimke averaged a team-high 20 points, many coming on short bank shots.

"He has come into his own the last three or four weeks. That's one of the reasons why we've done so well," Garey said of Jarolimke. "You don't really notice Greg on the court. A lot of times I go home and talk about him to my wife and she doesn't even know he's played. But he does so many things so excellently."

The same could be said for Kimberly's Scott Livingston, who had a game-high 24 points. Unfortunately for the Bulldogs, who dropped to 18-2, foul trouble kept the 6-2 senior on the bench for what seemed like one-third of the game, crippling their inside effort.

Glens Ferry 58, Declo 54

Seven unanswered points in the game's final minute enabled the Pilots, 15-7, to outlast Declo.

Trailing 54-61, Glens Ferry narrowed the difference to one on Bruce Holubetz's jumper with 58 seconds left. After Declo's Matt Hanzel missed the second of two free

Minico puts damper on Twin Falls' hopes

Field goal in final seconds defeats the Bruins

By LARRY HOVEY
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Point to Ken MacKenzie, game to the Spartans and advantage Minico.

That's the setup after one game in the District 4 Class A-1 boys' basketball playoffs as MacKenzie hit a field goal with two seconds left Friday night, lifting the Spartans to a 46-45 decision over the second-ranked Twin Falls Bruins.

Minico, which now holds a 2-1 advantage and the only "foreign court" win in the overall season, can take a trip to state by winning on its home court Tuesday night.

The game was a decision-making burden for both coaches as Twin Falls rushed out to a 13-2 lead in the first quarter and then simply forgot to shoot in the second period, taking only five six-foot goal attempts.

The Bruins fell behind in the third period but then, riding the scoring of junior Jason Meyerhoeffer, had as much as a four-point lead in the closing two minutes and 20 seconds.

and he said 42 (Croft)," replied Minico mentor Craig Dexter.

So it was 6-4 against 6-4 — but Croft was perhaps the best leaper on the floor and the Spartans figured it that way. But glaring on the scoreboard was the fact that Twin Falls had just three fouls in the second half — meaning it could give up a common foul which only would return the ball to Minico out of bounds.

Dexter's ideas first:

"In a situation like that you're not going to design a specific play because you don't know if they're coming out in man or zone. The first thing after that is controlling the tip. The second is who to foul in case they get the tip or the ball back and then finding out who has less than four fouls and can give one," Dexter said.

"The kids got into the formation we wanted and we had changed it a little. It was a cross court (diagonal) pass from (Greg) Schow to MacKenzie and he dribbled it home."

The description was apt, since the ball bounced off the heel of the rim three times before falling in. But those bounces also took an extra second or two off the clock.

Astorquia's ideas:

"No, we didn't mention it (the foul to give) to the kids. We discussed it on the bench and decided to play it straight up. We had our two biggest kids right with him and they did the right thing in not trying to check the shot because I'm sure with all the fouls that would have been called. He just got the roll."

Both teams played hard defensively but Minico couldn't find the basket until Johnson scored with 1:26 left in the first quarter. Twin Falls took it out to 13-2 and there were visions of the second meeting, which the Bruins won by 15.

"Hell, no," Astorquia said — emphatically when asked if going conservative with the ball had been a plan. "I have no idea what they were doing in the second quarter and that was the whole game. We just quit attacking and totally stopped looking at the basket. We ran our offense very poorly and became very stagnant."

"After the first quarter I told the kids we had to put some defense in front of them and shake ourselves up. We wanted to finish the game taking 16, 17, 18 shots because we can score well with that many if we play good defense. We had outshot them 20-16 in the first half."

"We struggled for five minutes of the third quarter trying to get going offensively again and we finally did when we got a couple of things out of our press. In the fourth quarter we finally got the tempo back about right for us but by then Minico was playing right with it. I think the turning point was Johnson's three-pointer. We were up four and I think they were starting to wonder a little," Astorquia said.

McKenzie ended the night with 18 points, 16 of those in the second half

Wood River decks Tigers with final-second score

By BRAD BRELAND
 Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Tony Schrock scored with one second left as the Wood River Wolverines sent South-Central Idaho Conference champion Jerome down to defeat 49-48 in the District 4 Class A-2 boys' basketball tournament here Friday.

Schrock's shot came after Jerome's Jeff Burnham put Jerome ahead 48-47 with a basket just inside the 3-point line with 12 seconds left.

"Schrock" was the secondary player in that last play," said Wood River Coach Dick Riebel. "But the play was broken and he came all the way to the other side and made the shot. Most coaches say 'oh no' when the last-second shot is put up, but I knew that one would go in."

Schrock wasn't as sure as his coach about the basket.

"(Gary) Hulsey came flying through everybody trying to block the shot," he said. "I still can't believe it went in."

Wood River took a one-point lead after the first period, despite Hulsey scoring eight of the 10 points for the Tigers.

The Wolverines broke out in the second quarter and took a 13-10 lead, but Burnham hit the next five points for the Tigers, including a 3-point goal to give Jerome a two-point lead.

But Wood River outscored Jerome 12-2 in the middle of the quarter and led 25-17. The Tigers battled back and cut the deficit to four points at the half.

Hulsey keyed a third-quarter comeback and tied the score 27-27 with two free throws. The two teams saw-sawed throughout the period until Burnham hit a 3-point shot at the buzzer, cutting Jerome's lead by one at the end of the quarter.

Wood River took charge in the fourth period, building up a 45-42 lead with three minutes left, but Jerome fought back and pulled ahead 46-45 on a basket by Hulsey with 1:25 remaining.

Danny Wells went to the line for the Wolverines and hit two free throws to give Wood River the lead, but that's when Burnham responded with his shot.

"We were trying for the high-post screen on the last play," said Riebel. "But when a Jerome player tipped the ball and Dale (Karst) got it, he found Schrock for the winning basket."

Mike Williams led all scorers in the contest with 21 points for the Wolverines.

Hulsey scored 20 points for the Tigers.

Wood River moves on to play Burley in the championship game on Tuesday.

GOODING — Carey will be one of the Northside Conference's two representatives at next week's District 4 Class A-4 tournament in Jerome. But Bliss, a 67-53 loser to the regular-season conference champion Panthers on Friday night, must wait tonight to determine whether it will be the other.

The Bears will take on Camas County, a 69-59 victor over Dietrich on Friday, tonight at 7:30 in the Gooding High gym. The winner of that game will meet the Southside tournament champion in the first round of the district playoffs next Wednesday night at 8:30. Carey will face the

Murtaugh grabs upset, Hansen stops challenge

HURLEY — Murtaugh stunned Raft River 40-38 in overtime and Hansen, getting 34 points from Steve Elman, beat back an upset-minded Hagerman 70-65 as those two teams stayed alive in the District 4 Class A-4 southside sub-district basketball tournament Friday night.

The results will send Murtaugh against Hansen at 7 p.m. today at Burley High gymnasium, and that will be followed by a showdown of unbeaten at 8:30 p.m. between Castleford and Oakley. The Castleford-Oakley winner will clinch a trip to the district finals in Jerome next week while the loser will go against the Murtaugh-Hansen winner at 8 p.m. Monday to fill the other spot in the district four-team finals.

That tournament is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday nights in Jerome, with the top two teams advancing to the state A-4 tournament in Moscow on March 8-10.

Rozier, Maulers help launch expanded loop's 2nd season

By The Associated Press

He signed with the Stallions following a mediocre season, injured Terry Bradshaw's replacement with the NFL's Pittsburgh Steelers.

The Pittsburgh Maulers, with Mike Rozier, the Birmingham Stallions with Joe Cribbs and the Houston Gamblers without Billy Sims blow out of the starting blocks Sunday, the opening day of the United States Football League's second season.

Rozier is this season's Heisman Trophy winner-in-residence with the new league, which made off with the previous winner, Herschel Walker, by signing him when he was still an undergraduate. It was one of the opening salvos in the war with the National Football League.

The USFL took a few other shots at the big boys by signing several other big names. The signing of Sims turned out to be a dud when he also signed with his old team, the Detroit Lions, and a judge ordered him to stay in the NFL.

But the new league won the right to split Cribbs away from the Buffalo Bills. Just as they won the hearts of NFL quarterbacks Doug Williams, Brian Sipe, Vince Evans, Cliff Stoudt and some lesser lights.

In pro football, the way to a man's heart is through his wallet. ... What that will translate into fans' dollars at the turnstiles or improved television ratings remains to be seen.

Last year, Walker gave the league instant identity, but he couldn't carry the New Jersey Giants. They finished 6-12 in 1983. So Donald Trump, the club's new owner, spent millions to surround him with a worthy supporting cast — Sipe, defensive back Gary Barbaro and half a dozen other former NFL starters.

They open their season in Birmingham, which will be counting not only on Cribbs but on Cliff Stoudt.

The Washington Federals, which tied Arizona for last year's poorest record, 4-14, acquired quarterback Reggie Collier from Birmingham. He and running back Craig James, one of a wave of Washington casualties in 1983, start off in Jacksonville, where the Bulls, an expansion team, are hoping Matt Robinson, a well-traveled NFL journeyman quarterback, can carry Coach Lindy Infante's pass-oriented offense.

The New Orleans Breakers, who spent their first season in Boston and had woeful stadium problems, open against the San Antonio Gunslingers, whose biggest battle was a legal one, to get into Alamogordo Stadium.

The Denver Gold, the only USFL team to finish in the black last year, remained relatively tight with the buck and, after making some motions to sign Steve DeBerg away from the NFL's Denver Broncos, they'll sign Craig Penrose at quarterback. They open the season in Los Angeles, where the Express is confident of signing Brigham Young's Steve Young but, for now, is sticking with Tom Ramsey at quarterback.

Pepper Rodgers, the coach of the expansion-Memphis Showboats, is going with former Alabama quarterback Walter Lewis. The Showboats have a tough opener, at home, against Philadelphia's The Stars, led by the Doghouse Defense, were the league's winning team at 15-3 last year. They lost 24-22 to Michigan in the championship game.

The Panthers, with last year's passing champ, Bobby Hebert, don't open the season until Monday night, when they take on Chicago. This year's Blitz was last year's Arizona Wranglers. Coach Gary Lous will have an added advantage, a quarterback with the Chicago Bears. But the Blitz never did get Walter Payton.

Leonard to try May comeback

BOSTON (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard announced Friday that his eyes were in good condition after treatment and he would make his postponed comeback May 11 at the Worcester Center.

The 27-year-old former welterweight and middleweight boxing champion had been scheduled Saturday to fight Kevin Howard, but that bout was postponed when Leonard decided to undergo "preventative surgery" on his right eye Feb. 13.

Leonard retired from the ring in May 1982 because of a detached retina in his left eye. He announced his decision to return to boxing in December 1983. Leonard, who won a boxing gold medal at the 1976 Olympics, said the preventative procedure was a success and he was elated to get a new lease on boxing.

Leonard said he learned his right eye was healthy Friday morning, when he was examined by Dr. Edward Ryan, who treated the fighter at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary in Boston.

Heavyweight paces ISU to tourney title

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Idaho State heavyweight Artie Bagley defeated Lonnie Burt of Montana State, 3-0 as the Bengals grabbed an 84-00 3-5 win over defending champion Weber State to claim the 1984 Big Sky Conference wrestling crown Friday night in Ogden.

Bagley became only the fifth wrestler in Big Sky Conference history to capture four individual titles and the first heavyweight to do so.

Weber State took an 83-75 81-00 lead after Weber State's 19-00 round, Ryan Western, captured his first conference title with a 4-1 decision over defending champion John Bauman of Boise State.

But Bagley's decision gave the Bengals the three points they needed for the victory. It was the closest margin of victory in the 21-year history of the tournament.

Tracy Yeates, Boise State's 118-pound top ex-NFLer, Toust Tyler to support 1,000-yard rusher Arthur Whittington.

Yeates defeated Jerry Norman of Weber State in the finals 6-4 and also won over Tony Laddell of Northern Arizona.

Yeates ends the regular season with a record of 22-5-0.

Dave Lundskog claimed his third Big Sky conference title in a row for Weber State, pinning Jim Marks of Montana at 1:55 in the first round.

It was the only fall in the championship rounds.

The Wildcats got a surprise win in the 167-pound category where Jay Winward defeated defending champion Randy Wynn of Idaho State.

Another surprise weight was at 177, where Todd Paska of Idaho State and Gary Todd of Weber State, who were both unseeded, advanced to the final round where Paska took a close 3-2 decision.

Wirtzels of Idaho State and Bauman of Boise State received "wild card" berths, joining the 10 other champions in advancing to the NCAA Championships March 8-10 in East Rutherford, N.J.

Embargoes hurt U.S. reliability

The United States is viewed as an unreliable world supplier of agricultural commodities, particularly after the 1980 embargo, the report said. The ITC's four-member panel said the U.S. reputation began to decline when Presidents Richard Nixon and Gerald Ford moved to limit U.S. exports over a decade ago.

In 1973, Nixon declared a brief embargo on exports of soybeans until a system of export licenses allowed renewed foreign sales. In 1974 and 1975, U.S. grain shipments to the Soviet Union and Poland were cut off as it sent troops into Afghanistan.

because of "short supplies" in this country. The ITC report noted that other nations took up the slack when the United States chose not to export farm goods.

When the United States stopped grain shipments to the Soviets in 1980 to the countries of the European Community more than doubled their sales of grain to the Soviets, the report said. Their shipments rose from 1.5 million tons (55 million bushels) in the 1980-81 season to 3.8 million tons (65 million bushels) in 1982-83.

Wyoming miners seek cost figure

LANDER, Wyo. (AP) - Iron ore miners laid off when U.S. Steel closed its Atlantic City operation in 1983 say they are seeking information about the mine's costs because they believe they contradict the company's explanation it closed the mine because of noncompetitive costs.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again, I think the information will be detrimental to the company's position," Glenn Hoop, president of the United Steelworkers of American Local 6255 in Lander, said recently.

"I've said it before and I'll say it again, I think the information will be detrimental to the company's position," Glenn Hoop, president of the United Steelworkers of American Local 6255 in Lander, said recently.

U.S. Steel officials confirm that a grievance proceeding was started under the union's contract with the company, but they have declined further comment.

"We just don't handle grievances through the press," said spokesman Jack Bolow.

The Atlantic City operation was closed in 1983, and about 500 workers permanently put out of work, after the company said it must reduce costs at the mine to keep it profitable, and the union members said they couldn't accept as many cuts as the company wanted.

The company said the iron ore being shipped to Utah from Wyoming would be replaced with iron ore from a Minnesota operation.

But union officials said the company actually would have to pay more for the Minnesota ore, and now are seeking information to verify that.

"We just don't handle grievances through the press," said spokesman Jack Bolow.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"I shall tell you a great secret, my friend. Do not wait for the last judgment; it takes place every day." — Albert Camus.

Against most game contracts, one doesn't usually lead an ace, holding A-x-x-x in the suit. However, when time is deemed to be an important factor, a look at dummy might point the way to an unusual but logical defense.

South's jump to four spades convinced Henry Baer of Dallas (West) that time was not on his side. So, instead of making the passive lead of a trump or a diamond, Henry decided to have a look at dummy and so led the ace of clubs.

What he saw was quite revealing. On the club ace, East dropped the discouraging four and South, the queen. Henry now knew that South had the K-Q of clubs and a very good spade suit. Could South also hold the ace of hearts? Not very likely. With that concern, South's prospects would have been in sight and there would have been no reason for South to pre-empt.

At trick two, Henry logically led Jack heart to give another heart to East's ace. Later East got the trump ace, and the game went down one trick.

Note that a diamond lead would have given South a quick heart discard and his vulnerable game. An unthinkable trump lead would have kept hopes

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"If you have an opportunity to sell me a home, please call me at the end of the line." - Sara Jeannette Duncan.

The end came sooner than expected for North. His unilateral decision to sacrifice against a small slam gave the opponents a plus score for a time they were holed for a sure mint.

At the seven-herb sacrifice,
South gave up only one spade trick and two diamond tricks for a loss of 500 points. South was doubled and not vulnerable. Not a bad price to pay to prevent a vulnerable slam!

A good price, actually, but only when the opposing side makes. In today's case, North was a bit impulsive in his decision to sacrifice. An intelligent final decision on the sacrifice was just as available to South as it was to North. In today's case, North should have passed to six spades.

Instead of bidding seven hearts for a sure mint,
South would have doubled to demand an unusual lead.
North's club lead would have given South an immediate ruff, and South's heart would have scored the underlead his heart ace for two down, but few have this

ROY RAYMOND SEZ . . .

IT'S LEAP YEAR!

LOOK BEFORE YOU LEAP

Look at the others, then look at our advantages, look at our selection, look at our Low Prices. Look at our service department. Look at our Sales Staff . . .

THEN LEAP INTO A ROY RAYMOND FORD!

All of our cars and trucks are given complete service, winterized and safety inspected before they are sold to you. In addition, they are tested by the most modern equipment available . . . the DYNAMETER. Ask the salesman to show you the Dyno Printout describing the mechanical and electrical condition of the vehicle.
