Bolger vowing to fire strikers

By The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — On the eve of the third anniversary of the disastrous strike by air traffic controllers, Postmaster General William F. Bolger vowed Thursday to fire any postal worker who walks off the job in an illegal nationwide or wildcat strike.

Bolger's comments were the strongest threats to unionized government workers since President Reagan fired 11,000 unionized air traffic controllers after they went on strike Aug. 3, 1981.

In an interview with the Washington Times, Bolger said that his warning is "about as clear as I can make it. If they commit an illegal act in either wildcat or nationwide strikes, I will fire them."

But "we're not trying to break this union," he noted in an appearance on NBC-TV's "Today" show.

The postmaster general's comments, confirmed by U.S. Postal Service spokesmen, has sparked sharp criticism from union leaders. Vincent Sombrotto, president of the 200,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers, blasted Bolger for succumbing to a "police state mentality."

"It doesn't take any courage to threaten to fire workers," Sombrotto said. "It really takes courage to sit down and negotiate in a good-faith manner, and he's unable to do that."

The Postal Service's 600,000 unionized employees have been working without contracts since July 20.

Greater wilds area proposed

By The Associated Press and The Times News

WASHINGTON — Two Democratic congressmen have proposed 3.4 million acres of additional Idaho wilderness in a bill conservationists are praising and the timber industry is calling ridiculous.

Reps. Peter Kostmayer of Pennsylvania and Jim Moody of Wisconsin introduced the bill late Wednesday in the House Subcommittee on Public Lands and National Parks.

Sen. James McClure, author of a 526,000-acre proposal, called the "new bill" an "11th-hour proposal that should be shelved with the same haste that it was introduced."

"I strongly object to this last-minute meddling in the legislative process," McClure said.

Thursday. "This is clearly an attempt to derail months of serious discussion, and I hope it won't be taken seriously by those who have been negotiating in good faith for so long."

A Kostmayer aide said the bill outlines wilderness boundaries similar to those recommended by the Idaho Wildlands Defense Coalition, and was drawn up after the congressmen toured Idaho roadless areas last month with Rep. John Selberling, D-Ohio, the subcommittee chairman. Selberling recommends 1.2 million to 2.9 million acres be added to the national wilderness system in Idaho.

In south-central Idaho, the bill would add a 653,000-acre White Clouds-Bozinger Mountains wilderness, a 330,000-acre Sawtooth and Boise National Forest wilderness that would include portions of the Smokies, a 182,000-acre Pioneer Mountains wilderness, and a 131,000-acre Borah-Peak wilderness.

Tom Robinson, Boise staff member for The Wilderness Society, said he is happy that "there's another proposal on the table that comes closer to representing the greater public interest, the greater national interest, as well as what we consider to be the best interests of Idahoans."

Robinson viewed the Moody-Kostmayer bill as an unorthodox political maneuver designed to strengthen Selberling's bargaining position with the Idaho delegation. "It's never really been done before," Robinson said. "They (Reps. Kostmayer and Moody) probably thought this might help Selberling in bargaining with the Idaho delegation."

would help the House subcommittee forge a specifically consensus on an Idaho wilderness bill.

"It's hard to say what's going to happen now. It doesn't look like there will be any (subcommittee) mark-up this week or next week," he said.

Robinson said there is a good possibility that no Idaho wilderness bill will be approved this session of Congress.

Joe Hinson, director of the Idaho Forest Industry Council, appeared to agree with Robinson in his assessment of the tactics underlying the bill's introduction. He said the 3.4-million-acre figure is a "play" intended to make 2 million acres seem reasonable.

Hinson, who is in Washington this week, said that effort will fail, and he predicted only a true

Evans seeks truce on Snake; Jones claims utility blew it

By BOB FICK

The Associated Press

BOISE — In what he hopes will create an atmosphere conducive to compromise, Gov. John Evans says there may be a chance that Idaho Power Co. and Attorney General Jim Jones will declare a truce in their escalating war of words over Snake River water rights.

But Jones said Thursday that the utility's rejection of a truce offer last month has effectively nixed any early end to his plans for countering its campaign against subordination of its water rights to those of other users.

Idaho Power had no immediate comment.

In suggesting the possibility of a truce earlier in the day, Evans said both sides had given him assurances they would consider a 30-day moratorium on public statements in the festering dispute.

"If we can just lower the tempo of the conflict, that will help a lot," the governor told reporters.

In a related development, Sen. James McClure, while still refusing to take sides in the water rights fight, predicted little or no major development in the state until the dispute is settled.

control of the state by controlling its vital water resources.

Idaho Power, after heading off subordination during this winter's legislative session, launched a series of media advertising campaigns against the proposal, opening the barrage just a few weeks before the May primary when legislative candidates were selected.

Since then, it's conducted two other campaigns, the latest began last month and scheduled to end Aug. 8, Jones said.

Evans acknowledged that Idaho Power Chairman James Bruce said he would not consider beginning any truce until after the current advertising campaign ends, but he said that with a moratorium it might be possible for all sides to reach a consensus settlement.

While the governor refused to back away from his own support for subordination, he said there are alternatives to it that could permit a settlement of the dispute, but he declined to discuss them while there remained a chance for viable negotiation.

But Jones said the company has effectively had a free field for the last three months to spread what he called a consensus settlement.

Park rangers hunting killer bear

The Associated Press

YELLOWSTONE NATIONAL PARK, Wyo. — Park rangers and bear experts ventured cautiously into a closed section of Yellowstone National Park on Thursday, looking for a bear that killed a sleeping camper and then vanished amid 125 square miles of wilderness.

The bear was the first to kill a human at the park in 12 years.

The victim was identified as Brigitte Frodenhagen, 25, of Basel, Switzerland, who had been given a permit to camp Monday night in the backcountry, and was expected to return Tuesday afternoon. A search party found her mangled body near a campsite at White Lake on Wednesday, officials said.

An area of about 125 square miles in the east-central part of the 2.2-million acre preserve immediately was closed to visitors, and specially selected rangers made plans to trap the bear with a baited culvert trap.

"They will trap (the bear) and a further determination will be made depending on what information they have at that point," park spokeswoman Amy Vanderbilt said.

She said a number of factors would be considered, including whether the same bear had been involved in incidents in the past.

There was no immediate report of the searchers' progress in the area, which is crossed by only a few rocky, almost overgrown trails, Vanderbilt said.

She said the experts would compare claw and track marks to make sure any trapped bear was the killer. When they ventured out Thursday, the hunters had no idea whether the bear they were seeking was a black bear or a grizzly bear, because both live in the area.

House again bans covert U.S. aid

By The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — For the fourth consecutive time, the House voted Thursday to ban the use of covert U.S. funds for military operations by CIA-backed rebels fighting the leftist regime in Nicaragua.

Republicans argued emotionally against the ban, contained in a 1985 intelligence authorization bill approved 294-118. But although they threatened to offer an amendment to delete the ban, they did not follow through with their plan.

Instead, they indicated that they will try to get the money added — as it has been in previous years — when the bill goes to a House-Senate conference committee.

Rep. Henry J. Hyde, R-Ill., charged that denying continued aid to the rebels, known as contras, was tantamount to the United States turning its back on forces that it had trained and armed.

"They say prayer can move mountains," Hyde said. "That's all we're leaving the freedom fighters in Nicaragua — prayer and the mountains."

But Rep. Edward P. Boland, D-Mass., chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, argued, "We all want peace, but the secret war is a strange way to buy peace."

Covert funding for the rebels long has been a source of friction between President Reagan and Congress and has been the focal point for much of the debate on Central American poli-

Poverty now afflicting more than 35 million Americans

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The number of Americans in poverty climbed over the 35 million mark last year, the Census Bureau said Thursday in releasing a report sure to become an election-year political football.

And response came quickly, with House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., saying "today we have the smoking gun of unemployment."

Administration officials sought to soften the impact of the figures with an accompanying study that said there are only a few more people than it seems — if you use a different method to measure them.

But O'Neill asserted that "Under (President) Reagan, the poor are getting poorer." In Santa Barbara, Calif., deputy White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the report "points out the need for a constant effort to reduce poverty in the country. We are firmly committed to that goal."

He said the report showed poverty has leveled off from the disastrous increases of 1979 and '80, which he blamed on the economic policies of former President Jimmy Carter, a Democrat.

While the administration's political opponents stressed the poverty rate, social action groups promptly attacked the alternate income measurements as an attempt to redefine poverty out of existence.

The poverty rate for 1983 was 15.2 percent, meaning that 35,266,000 Americans — an increase of 868,000 — fell below the official definition of being poor, said Gordon Green, the Census Bureau's assistant population division chief for socioeconomic statistics.

That is up from a rate of 15.0 percent in 1982 when 34,269,000 Americans fell below the poverty line, he said.

Fitzwater maintained that when the "high interest-rate-high-inflation policies of the last administration sent economic growth into a four-year stall, poverty went from 11.7 percent in 1979 to 13 percent in 1980 and 14 percent in '81. Those policies also led to the recession, which raised the poverty level to 15 percent in 1982."

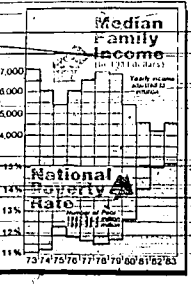

The presidential spokesman said the 1983 increase was "a 'yet' effect" — the drop in unemployment, now at 9 percent. "More than a million new jobs have been created since this report was written and the prospects for a drop in the poverty rate appear very good," he said.

"In 1982, when Reagan policies sent the poverty rate to 15 percent, the administration said that the trend would be 'dramatically reversed' in 1983," O'Neill told reporters. "To day, we learned just the opposite has happened — Making the rich richer and the poor poorer has not helped the average American family."

Rep. Robert Matsui, D-Calif., reacted similarly, saying, "Almost one year ago (budget director) David Stockman told my subcommittee that he was 'absolutely confident' that the poverty rate would decline for 1983. Mr. Stockman was once again wrong and he and his administration are going to be held accountable."

Matsui said the actual amount of poverty is even higher than the level reported because the figures "ignore the increasing tax burden of the poor." A Census report issued a month ago indicated that taxes paid by Americans earning less than $10,000 have increased, while those in higher income groups fell last year.

Filibuster stalls amendment

WASHINGTON (AP) — A one-man filibuster against "National Ache Week," "Working Mothers Day" and similar congressional declarations blocked Senate action Thursday on a constitutional amendment to require a balanced budget.

The Republican-controlled Judiciary Committee, aiming to keep up pressure to pass the amendment, will try again to act on the measure next week. President Reagan, who has made the amendment one of his election-year goals, last week pointedly urged the Democrat-controlled House to act quickly on the constitutional amendment.

Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, an opponent of the amendment, brought the GOP-led drive to a temporary halt.

U.S. worries over ship lane

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two ships were damaged by the explosions of suspected mines at the southern end of the Red Sea, deepening U.S. concern over what could be a widening threat to shipping in those waters, Pentagon sources said Thursday.

The new reports of mysterious explosions came after the United States received word from Egypt that three merchant ships, none of them American, had been damaged, possibly by mines, over the weekend in the Gulf of Suez. That gulf is at the upper end of the Red Sea, a key waterway for ship traffic between the Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean.

Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch told a briefing Thursday that the United States had sent a 15-man survey team to Egypt at Cairo's request, to try to determine for certain whether there was a definite threat to shipping from mines.

Guerrillas offered asylum

SOYAPANGO, El Salvador (AP) — A top military official said a band of heavily armed guerrillas who seized a bank and took at least 100 people hostage Thursday would be given asylum at the Spanish Embassy if they release their captives.

Col. Rinaldo Golcher, director of the Treasury Police, said Spanish and Salvadoran officials were working out details of an arrangement to provide the gunmen with safe passage from the embassy out of the country.

He said the guerrillas had agreed to release women hostages first and then the men. He said he did not know exactly how many hostages were in the bank.

Police find explosives cache

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man accused of following an Olympic bus while carrying explosives led police Thursday to a house where they found more explosive devices, 100 pounds of black powder and 20 guns, but authorities discounted any organized plot against the Games.

Police Chief Daryl Gates said four homes in the Hollywood-Farmdale area were searched and the occupant of the house was arrested for investigation of possessing destructive devices.

He said neither man was involved in any plot to attack Olympic athletes or facilities but simply had an "affection" for explosives.

Salt Lake causeway opened

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Scientists began close monitoring Thursday of Great Salt Lake brine flowing through a breach punched through the Southern Pacific Railroad causeway dividing the lake.

The state Wednesday completed the breach, which is designed to ease flooding along the south shore by lowering the water level about 10 inches.

The level of the lake's south arm has been higher than the north arm because the south receives more runoff from melting mountain snow. Water is flowing from the south into the north arm at a rate of 14,000 acre-feet per day. The flow will gradually diminish as the water level equalizes.

Home burns following storm

SPOKANE (AP) — A 94-year-old home fell victim to a severe thunderstorm that crashed through Spokane, while power lines went down and some streets flooded.

The home east of Spokane was destroyed in a lightning-caused fire Wednesday night. Crews attempting to douse the fire had to retreat from the inside and let the home burn, said Dan Stuss of Fire District 9.

Firefighters had to return to the scene Thursday morning when the fire reignited. Damage to the home was estimated at $80,000.

Ash triumphs in Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Former state Sen. Victor Ashe easily won the Republican nomination Thursday for the Senate seat being vacated by Majority Leader Howard Baker and will face Democratic Rep. Albert Gore Jr. and an independent conservative in November.

Ashe, a Knoxville legislator endorsed by Baker and the state GOP, was challenged in the primary by Jack McNeill, a Memphis lawyer, and Hubert Patty, a perennial candidate from Maryville.

But McClure said he "does not believe that people 'who lack in-depth knowledge of the many complex land issues of a particular state should try to force themselves into the process at the last minute, and that's clearly what's happening here.'"

Kostmayer said he realizes McClure and Craig must represent their districts.

"I like them both," he said. "I don't want to start a fight with them."

The Democratic-led House previously has moved this, while the Republican-controlled Senate in general has followed the Reagan administration's lead. Although the Senate Intelligence Committee has not yet acted on its 1985 authorization bill, it is expected to agree to the full $28 million in aid the administration reported has requested.

In June, however, the Senate stripped $21 million in immediate rebel aid from a special appropriations bill that also contained money for summer jobs and American youth. Last year House and Senate conferees reached a compromise that included $24 million in aid to the Contras.

House Democrats on Thursday overwhelmingly favored the fiscal 1985 authorization bill by 230-22, while Republicans opposed it 96-64. Because much of the bill is classified, the total dollar amounts it authorized were not made public.

White Republicans argued that the continued funding is vital to preventing the spread of Communism in Central America. Democrats contended that supporting the rebels is against the democratic tradition and gives Nicaragua's Sandinista regime an excuse to oppress citizens.

Rep. J. Kenneth Robinson of Virginia, the ranking Republican on the House Committee, accused the Democrats of "hemispheric myopia."

"One would have hoped that the majority could see the Marxist threat as it builds and spreads... from Nicaragua to El Salvador and Nicaragua's other neighbors," Robinson said. "However, it is not yet clear enough for them with defective vision to see it."

Transplant recipient improving

LONDON (AP) — Thirteen-day-old heart transplant patient Hollie Rofey, clinging to life in her germ-free incubator, gained slightly Thursday after emergency abdominal surgery but was reported in "very critical condition."

"She has a lot better color than she had yesterday," hospital administrator Tom Cosgrove said. "She's moving about a little and she's awake, which is nice."

Hollie is the youngest person ever to receive a transplanted heart. The tiny organ implanted in Hollie's chest on Monday was "working extremely well."

Monday's two-hour emergency surgery performed Wednesday night, said Cosgrove:

The infant had been reported recovering well from the heart transplant surgery until an abdominal problem developed Wednesday, forcing a second operation in which three doctors repaired a hole in her bowel.

"I've spent my adult life trying to make certain that the federal government doesn't try to tell us how to manage our water," he said. "That's a state question like to be settled on the state level and I just won't allow myself to get drawn into that question."

While opposed to local cost-sharing in federally backed irrigation projects, McClure says even with that plan the water rights controversy has made things so uncertain that it's doubtful any developers will take the plunge until the dispute is resolved.

"You can see these controversies coming, but you wouldn't necessarily see the answers," he said. "It's a certain, more complex issue than we would have had a few years ago."

Lance quits Mondale after only 19 days

By DAVID ESPINO
The Associated Press

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Bert Lance, a former close aide to Jimmy Carter, resigned Thursday as general chairman of Walter F. Mondale's Democratic presidential campaign, only 19 days after he was appointed. "I don't know why Lance submitted his resignation," said Dayton Duncan, a Mondale spokesman. Lance met earlier in the day with Robert Becker, a top Mondale aide. Lance talked with Mondale by telephone and submitted his resignation by letter.

BERT LANCE
Resignation no surprise

"Thus I am requesting — solely directed by my own initiative that you allow me to relinquish the title of general chairman of the Mondale-Ferraro campaign," Lance wrote. Lance's appointment was arranged hastily one week prior to the Democratic National Convention after Mondale considered, then dropped a plan to install him as chairman of the Democratic National Convention. Party officials protested that possibility, and Mondale, flinching from a confrontation, settled on the job of general campaign chairman.

But the protest came because many party officials were concerned over Lance's ties to former President Carter and the fact that the former budget director resigned amid charges of irregularities in his personal banking dealings. He was never convicted of any wrongdoing.

Even as Lance was installed as general chairman, the protests continued and there were suggestions, including one from House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., that the Georgia state party chairman play only a "regional role" in Mondale's campaign.

Mondale's aides never specifically laid out what role Lance would have.

And there were printed reports earlier in the week that Lance was considering quitting because he felt ignored in the Mondale-Ferraro campaign blueprint that was being drawn up.

Mondale's press secretary, Maxine Isaacs, said Lance had not notified the campaign directly of any such concern.

But Mondale twice side-stepped an opportunity on Wednesday to say that he wanted Lance to remain in the post.

"Nothing has changed," Mondale said when asked whether he wanted Lance to remain. "But we're going to define a whole range of things over the next week or so."

Democrats offer promises

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Walter F. Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro, closing out their first joint campaign swing under a blazing sun, promised a Democratic administration Thursday that would open doors for all Americans and create a "stronger, more just and hopeful society."

"America has never honored people who close doors," Mondale told a large, enthusiastic crowd. "It's always honored those who have opened them."

"We need again an administration that will use the power and the influence of the White House to open up these doors and move forward to a stronger, more just and hopeful society."

As they concluded their three-day campaign debut, the Democratic political partnership also renewed their demand for a series of campaign debates with President Reagan and Vice President George Bush, and renewed their attack on the administration's economic policy.

Visiting a computer classroom at Houston Community College, Mondale said that under the president's policies there is a "secret deficit" in world trade. "We're in full international retreat," he said.

Although the trade deficit is a matter of public record, Mondale's remark suggested that it is a "secret" in the sense that it is not widely discussed and that he planned to bring it into the spotlight during the campaign.

At the college, 50-year-old Mary Gray, told the Democratic candidates that she had been out of work for 22 years. "It's tough coming back, isn't it?" asked Ferraro.

"You better believe it," Gray replied.

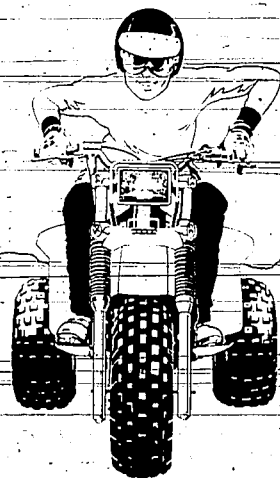

Sandi Hesser, 29, told Ferraro that that almost every time she has a job interview she is asked "whether I'm going to have a family. . . I think there's still a large degree of this image that women cannot be professionals and still be competent," she said.

"Want me to give you a letter of recommendation?" Ferraro said.

In San Antonio, as elsewhere on their campaign swing through Mississippi and Texas, Mondale and Ferraro drew a sizable, enthusiastic crowd despite temperatures well over 90 degrees. But it was Ferraro who again drew the loudest cheers.

Carter's ghost lurks in return of Lance

The on-again, off-again romance between Democratic presidential candidate Walter Mondale and Jimmy Carter's confidante and occasional high-roller banker Bert Lance now appears to be off again.

Lance, apparently plucked at being relegated to a minor role in the campaign structure, is thinking of quitting entirely.

As they say about pay offers, Mondale ought to take this opportunity and run. He ought to thank Lance for his brief but valuable service and name someone else to whatever role it is or was Lance was filling.

The result would be some ribbing from the Republicans, who aren't exactly unaware of Lance's shortcomings, but the whole thing would blow over in a week. Lance could return to his Georgia obscurity and Mondale and Geraldine Ferraro could get on with the campaign.

This, however, is probably too much to ask. A more likely scenario is Lance fading from power and view, but retaining some honorific title with the Mondale campaign and thus continuing the link from the Carter administration.

Mondale apparently is unaware of just how damaging that link will be. Carter had a pure heart and for that, history may judge him kindly.

But his was one of the closest examples of a failed presidency we have had in this century; only Hoover and Nixon come to mind.

By the end of October 1980, the American people had cut the natural ties which every president generates as a leader. Another few weeks would have resulted in an even more lopsided Reagan victory.

This is not to suggest that Reagan is immune in 1984. He can be defeated, but to do so, Mondale and Ferraro need every break they can get, and there must be some dramatic turn in world or national events — a change in Reagan's health for example — for them to pull it off.

But if there's one thing they don't need, it's a continuing reminder of the 1980 disaster, and that's what Lance brings. Here's a case in which they ought to let the wounded wander out of camp.

Postal workers need multiple skills

It disturbs me, that every time a labor organization achieves an equitable wage and standard of living, some envious individual or group complains that "see-and-so" is getting more than he is.

Specifically, I am referring to the editorial in the Times-News on July 27, which labeled American postal workers as "overpaid, and barely above the level of unskilled labor." I think the public is entitled to all the facts, and not just the prejudiced views of those who are envious of our jobs.

First of all, one should know that when an employee is hired into the postal service, they are hired most generally as a part-time, flexible employee. When they say, flexible, that is exactly what they mean. An employee remains in this status for a period of several months to several years. Many employees are in a part-time status until the end of their career. No one to my knowledge, is hired at a beginning salary of $23,000 per year.

While employed in a part-time status, one is not guaranteed 40 hours of work per week. One week you might work 8 hours, at another time you might work 50 or 60 hours in a week. I might point out, that a large number of our employees are in this status — thus faced with the uncertainty of what kind of paycheck he may receive. These employees also do not benefit like many other workers, by receiving pay for national holidays (unless they work that particular holiday). No work, no pay, simple as that. They are subject to be called in on any day, and at any time of the day or night.

As far as being labeled as "privileged government workers", I refute that statement also. We are probably the only group of American citizens that were not afforded all the "redemptive" opportunities. To cite an example or two: we are not allowed to go on strike, as workers in other industries are. The Hatch Act (a law dreamed up to the detriment of government employees) prohibits us from taking an active part in any partisan politics or political campaigns.

Guest opinion

And now for the good part! Unskilled? I would really like to know your definition of a skill. Clerks in the postal service are required to learn and memorize a very complicated and complex scheme of numbers, addresses, zip codes and other identifying data, in order to sort mail accurately in a minimum amount of time. Sorting machine operators must read the address and zip code on a letter, translate the zip into another numerical code, and then key it on the keyboard, all in a time frame of approximately 7/10 of a second. All employees are required to learn and perform more than one job and are usually required to be multi-skilled.

A beginning mail carrier must learn how to carry several different city routes (one is difficult enough). They are also required to do more than carry mail down the street and stuff it into mail boxes: They are required to be familiar with mail classification procedures, sorting, and a myriad of other administrative tasks. A postal employee is not trained for one specific job, but must become diversified to remain employed.

Our maintenance personnel, mechanics and electronics technicians are as competent and as highly trained as any on the civilian job market. I sincerely feel that receiving an equitable wage, is not only for being multi-skilled, but fair compensation for working conditions and pressures that are out of the ordinary. Keeping in mind that postal employees do not get Christmas vacations, most other professions do. The postal service is one of few organizations that operate with a crew 24 hours a day, 365 days per year, with the exception of 8 hours on Christmas day. There are constant deadlines to meet, problems to solve, and the pressures of the job are abundant. Postal workers have one of the highest incidences of hypertension among the American work force.

Let me note with interest, that when the local, alleged uneducated, unskilled mailman is trudging through the snow, in subzero weather, nobody seems to be envious of his job. When the local mailman stops by the doctor's office to receive his series of rabies shots resulting from a dog bite — suddenly no one wants to be in his shoes. It seems that it is only on payday that people suddenly become interested in his job. A final point — how can you, in good conscience, compare us or our salaries with those of the teaching profession? We are two completely different professions, both serving the public. Trying to do the best job we can: It is common knowledge that our teachers are under paid, and I would think that someone in our bureaucracy would be embarrassed to the point that they would do something about it. I firmly believe, however, that reducing my salary, is not going to help our teachers.

Why not divert the energies wasted in attempting to reduce postal employees wages, into some constructive legislation to obtain decent and equitable wages for our many fine educators of this country?

Financial threats may obscure ideals

Occasionally, lofty ideals are relegated to a less obtrusive position of priority when they threaten one's personal finances.

Such appears to be the ongoing exercise of Idaho newspapers — represented by the Idaho Newspaper Association and its executive director, Bob C. Hall.

The issue that is losing priority is disclosure of money in politics, the reporting of which is an important function of the state's news organizations.

In the wake of the abuses of money and power which were perceived to have occurred before and during the Watergate era, Idahoans — like residents of several other states — approved a "Sunshine Initiative" in 1974. Its purpose was "to promote public confidence in government and... (to avoid) secrecy by those giving financial support to state election campaigns and those promoting or opposing legislation."

The law requires lobbyists, political action committees and political campaign committees to disclose the amounts of money they have spent to influence legislators or to affect the outcome of a ballot issue. The information is now regularly presented to Idahoans by news organizations, particularly newspapers.

But money spent to affect the outcome of a political issue can fall through the cracks of the Sunshine Law.

Attorney General Jim Jones recently pointed to an advertising campaign being conducted by the Idaho Power Co. in an attempt to influence public opinion on the Swan Falls water-rights issue as such a case. That water-allocation issue is perhaps the most divisive one facing the next Idaho

Rick Shaughnessy

Legislature. It hamstrung state lawmakers in their last two regular sessions, with debate on the issue always emotional and frequently degenerating into name-calling.

Jones has been in the middle of the scrap and in opposition to Idaho Power since the issue surfaced in the Legislature in 1983. Because of his role in this ongoing battle, Jones' motives for opening public discussion on strengthening the Sunshine Act may legitimately be questioned.

Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, an Idaho Power ally on the Swan Falls issue, says Jones is trying to "muzzle" Idaho Power from informing its customers of the effect on electric rates a subordination of the company's water right would have. However, Peavey, a driving force behind the 1974 initiative, says expanding the Sunshine Act to require disclosure of issue-oriented advertising campaigns "might be a good amendment." He adds "I don't understand why (Idaho Power officials) don't disclose voluntarily."

But enter Hall, upholder of the First Amendment in Idaho. Hall criticized Jones for requesting Idaho newspapers to disclose confidential information about the ad campaign — a justifiable position which an organization representing Idaho newspapers could have thoughtfully and articulately stated.

Hall didn't. "My major concern is in the chilling impact this action had on free speech through legislative financial communications," stated Hall in a letter to Jones. What chilling effect? The ads continue.

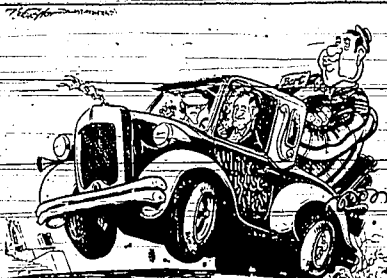

You'll recall that this is the same Bob Hall who last April censored copies of the Lewiston Morning Tribune that were intended for lawmakers and lobbyists by removing a column written by political reporter Jim Elsher.

The situation "The Best" worst for the Legislature" threatened to hamper Hall's lobbying efforts aimed at increasing the rates newspapers receive for "legal" advertisements, Hall said at the time. He apologized.

Hall says he is more distressed at the prospects of amending the state's Sunshine Law to require disclosure of issue-oriented campaigns than he was at Jones' inquiry. "We resent unnecessary and unwarranted... spurious fishing trips," he says, adding that such additional Sunshine requirements could at some point lead to mandatory public disclosure of newsroom budgets since newspapers regularly provide coverage and opinions upon public and political issues.

Hall fits in well with the 47th Idaho Legislature which watered down the lobbyist disclosure section of the state's Sunshine Law. It appears Jones might help open government advocates' pick-up some lost ground during the sessions of the 48th Legislature.

Keep rest area open

We read your Times-News on the Sunday, July 21, concerning the possible closing of the rest area in the Hagerman vicinity. We the undersigned would like our names added to the petition of 217 names recently presented to the Hagerman City Council asking the State Highways to reconsider this project.

We use the rest area whenever we travel through Nevada and southern Utah or southern California. Every time we stop there are several people in there stopping only to rest for a while. Since there is a sign when roads "Not Recommended for Overnight Camping" we can't see how it could affect Burt Holmes' business. We feel he should look at other areas on his own property for the reason he is losing business — pricing, cleanliness, restrictions, etc.

Velero replaces most of the ties between generations

BOSTON — My young friend does not need me to teach her how to tie shoelaces.

Between her first and third birthday, laces have become nearly extinct on shoes her size. They were done by Velcro.

The role that I had once over years of teaching — left over eight-under and pull — has also become extinct, done in by Velcro. This girl won't experience the frustration or the accomplishment of learning this task. Nor will I experience the frustration or accomplishment of teaching it. But no matter. Life is easier with Velcro.

My young friend does not need me to teach her to tell time either. Children do not tell time anymore. They are told it by the watches on their wrist. The big hands and little hands that I had decoded with my child, nieces, cousins, and the children of friends are being replaced inexorably with digits. It is easier with digits.

I don't rail against these artifacts of progress. I am a fan of Velcro, and absolutely neutral on the subject of digital numbers. But the non-needs of my three-year-old friend have given me some odd thoughts about old ties and old times. I feel suddenly like a loyal and competent employee whose work has been cyberneticized. I am skilled with skills that are unnecessary.

I know there is something essentially modern in my dilemma of defunctness. Clocks and shoelaces are not major losses to me or to this little girl, but they are small examples of what happens routinely in our culture. Technology changes so quickly, we hardly have a chance to teach our children what we know before it becomes irrelevant.

Once, crafts were handed down from one generation to another until families were named after them — Millers, Smiths, Taylors. Now skills have a shelf life shorter than our own. The state of the art is transient. So we have transferred the oldest kind of emotional relationship, the elder as guide, parent as teacher. We are no longer as sure that a younger generation can be prepared for the world by an elder generation.

In a dozen, hundred ways, "Improvements" disrupt the lines of inheritance. In high-tech societies it is no longer the elders who hold the secrets, no longer the young who are to be initiated. Knowledge is more egalitarian. Indeed, in the Silicon Valleys of our culture, it is the young who decode mysteries.

I don't want to overstate my case of ties and times. Perhaps I cannot teach a 3-year-old shoe-tying, but I have a 16-year-old daughter with an automobile learner's permit. We practice hill starts as I once did with my parents, and still on a shift car. Most of us have taught someone younger how to throw a ball, bake cookies, hammer a nail or thread a needle.

Still it seems to me that discontinuity is a real tradition among us. The tradition of grandparents who are experts in the intricacies of carriage-driving just when cars appear. The tradition of elders who have mastered elegant script when typewriters are invented. Friends who are experts in multiplication tables when calculators become common. We can all remember the catalog of 19th-century homemaking skills passed down from parent to child, and now reduced to a single lesson in comparison shopping.

Over time, how many of the functions of families were whittled to a core. Families lost much of their economic glue, the fierce tribal security need for staying together. Families function now, for stronger and weaker, mostly as the emotional and caretaking center of our lives.

Similarly, less technical teaching goes on in familial ways. We no longer really expect one generation to pass on its daily technical curriculum to the next. The informal teaching that goes on in our lives today is about subjects outside technology, and outside time.

We show our children, grandchildren, young friends how to smell a ripe cantaloupe, pick up a frog, watch for poison ivy, and understand each other. We learn to make generational ties — or should I say generational Velcro — by sharing ourselves rather than our crafts. The one skill that is not obsolete is understanding of nature, especially human nature. Most of the experts on human behavior are amateurs.

So I won't teach my small friend how to tie shoes or tell time this year. But maybe, by hanging out together, now and again, I'll pass on to her what I learned from my elders: some small things about connections that are timeless.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

De Lorean never testifies

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John De Lorean's attorneys rested their case in his cocaine trafficking trial Thursday without calling the automaker to the stand. The government said it would present no rebuttal witnesses, and attorneys said the case would go to the jury Tuesday or Wednesday.

"We rest," attorney Howard Weitzman announced after an emotional finale in which a former Drug Enforcement Administration agent fought back tears on the witness stand as he said he believed "the government" would go to any length to prosecute Mr. De Lorean.

After 60 days of testimony during a 21-week trial, the way was cleared for final arguments to begin Monday.

The tall, silver-haired De Lorean smiled as he left the courthouse Thursday but refused to comment about not testifying.

Sandinista drug ring cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Nicaraguan diplomat told Congress Thursday that high-ranking Sandinista officials smuggle drugs into the United States, partly to feed their people with revenues gained from the "suffering and death" of American youth.

Antonio Farach, the former No. 2 official in the Nicaraguan embassies in Venezuela and Honduras, said the revenue-raising scheme is a "moral justification" for the illegal trafficking. But drugs also are considered a "political weapon" that will "deliver a blow" to American youth.

Farach, 33, who defected last fall, testified through an interpreter before the Senate Labor and Human Resources subcommittee on drug abuse.

Killer's wife given early hint

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Mental health officials told James Huberty's wife a day before he killed 21 people in a McDonald's restaurant that she should call police about her husband's threat to kill someone.

Police Chief Bill Kolender said Thursday.

Kolender made the statement at a news conference at which he also disputed the accounts of some victims who said that quicker action by police might have saved some lives in what became the worst one-day mass killing by a single gunman in the nation's history.

The chief said that on July 17, the day before the rampage, Tina Huberty called the National City Family Mental Health Clinic in the morning to ask whether her husband had made an appointment there.

House won't cut fuel budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House refused Thursday to cut $1 billion from the government's program to develop synthetic fuel refineries but agreed to a $5 billion reduction in the effort to make the United States independent of foreign oil.

The House voted 236-177 against a proposal to rescind $10 billion from the $13.2 billion in unspent money now held by the U.S. Synthetic Fuels Corp. But in doing so, it adopted the $5-billion reduction the program's supporters had proposed as an alternative.

The vote appeared to signal that the House, while upset with the workings of the corporation and the generous subsidies it was offering oil companies, was not prepared to abandon the government's commitment to alternative energy sources.

Soviets buy more U.S. grain

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union, which began a sustained U.S. grain-buying campaign more than a month ago, has bought an additional 700,000 metric tons of corn and 200,000 tons of wheat, the Agriculture Department said Thursday.

Officials said all of the grain, except for 100,000 tons of corn to be shipped by the end of September, was ordered for delivery after Oct. 1, the start of the second year of a long-term supply agreement with the United States.

The Soviets have bought more than 7.6 million tons of corn and wheat since the current surge of purchases began on June 29. Most of the grain has been kept for delivery in 1984-85.

Firm to pay for jet repairs

ST. LOUIS (AP) — McDonnell-Douglas Corp. will pick up the estimated $25-million tab for repairs to prevent cracks in the tail section of the F-18 Hornet jet fighter, the aircraft manufacturer said Thursday.

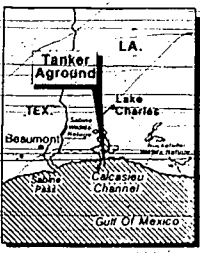

The company said provisions for contingencies in the F-18 project undertaken for the Navy were adequate to cover the estimated costs so that no special write-off would be required.

PORT ARTHUR, Texas (AP) — A 50-mile-long oil slick threatening the Texas coast "went haywire" and drifted back out to sea Thursday.

However, experts predicted a half-million gallons of the molasses-like "goo" would wash ashore this evening near Galveston Bay.

The oil, which spilled from a British tanker grounded off the Louisiana coast, was expected to hit north-Galveston jetties about 6 p.m. Friday, away from popular beach resorts but close to environmentally sensitive estuaries and choice fishing grounds on Galveston Bay.

"Our ability to predict is not very accurate," said Jerry Galt, an oceanographer with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. He said radio transmitters were dropped into the slick to send data to a computer that arrived at the prediction.

"It is going to be nasty to clean up wherever it comes ashore — with lots of oil on the beaches," said Dr. Roy Hahn, director of Texas A&M University's oil spill technical assistance team.

The possible damage which would result from the slick entering shallow bay and marsh areas would be even more destructive," said Leland Roberts, resource protection branch chief for the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department. "An oil spill could pose a considerable threat to bird life."

"The oil doesn't drive up and park like a truck — it seeps," said Galt. "The 5-mile-wide slick had moved within three miles of High Island by Thursday morning before winds began pushing it back out to sea, said Coast Guard spokesman Keith Spangler. By Thursday afternoon, the slick was about eight miles from the coast."

"It went haywire on us," Spangler said. Contractors were ready with loads of straw and dirt-moving equipment, anticipating they would have to begin mopping up beaches when the Y-shaped slick moved ashore.

Meanwhile, residents of High Island — who depend on the Gulf for their livelihood — could only watch and wait for the oil to come ashore.

Rich-Cluse, 31, manager of the Dirty Pelican Pier, said he feared the oil would kill the fish — and his business.

"You can fish in it, but you're not going to catch anything," he said. "The oil will kill the fish. It's sad, to tell you the truth."

The slick was strung out like a ribbon for 50 miles from the ship, ranging in width from three to five miles, Galt said.

The spill would be the largest to strike the Texas shore since a 1979 slick from a Mexican oil well blew out in the Bay of Campeche.

Troubled nuclear plant given license

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Diablo Canyon nuclear plant, bedeviled by earthquake fears and design foul-ups that delayed it for a decade, won permission Thursday from a divided Nuclear Regulatory Commission to begin generating electricity.

The commission voted 3-1 with one abstention to approve a full-power license for the first of two reactors of the beleaguered $1.1-billion plant on the Pacific Coast near San Luis Obispo, Calif.

Mothers for Peace, a San Luis Obispo group which has led the legal fight against the plant for 12 years, said it will challenge the commission's action in the U.S. Court of Appeals in Washington as soon as the order is issued.

"The Nuclear Regulatory Commission lacks the political will to say no to a $1.1-billion mistake," said Nancy Culver of the San Luis Obispo group. "Today's decision sends a clear signal that, even the most error-ridden and controversial plants, those plagued by every kind of mistake and mismanagement, will be licensed by the NRC."

NRC Chairman Nuzzio Palladino said the effective date of the full-power license will be delayed two weeks to prevent the plant's owner, Pacific Gas & Electric Co., from taking the reactor above 5 percent power while opponents appeal the commission's action.

Richard Davlin, a spokesman for PG&E, said the company plans to put the plant into full power commercial operation in the next 75 to 100 days. However, he said it could actually start producing electricity at about 12 percent power in about a month.

"The commission's vote came after government safety officials said their investigations since last September turned up no significant safety threats among 1,406 allegations of problems at the plant."

"What we looked for were generic breakdowns, and they haven't been found," said Harold Denton, director of the commission's Office of Nuclear Reactor Regulations. "The number of changes required as a result of these allegations could be counted on one hand."

Denton acknowledged there have been several incidents in which

"whistleblowing" workers at the site have been harassed or intimidated after going to the NRC with problems and that the Department of Labor has upheld some of those cases.

But, he said, "We do not see a pervasive pattern of purposeful intimidation. Nor does it appear to be affecting the quality of the plant."

Joining with Palladino in approving the license were Commissioners Fred Bernthal and Thomas Roberts.

The abstention came from Lando Zech, a retired Navy admiral who joined the commission only last month.

Ford seeks raise changes

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Ford Motor Co. told the United Auto Workers union Thursday that it wants to replace guaranteed raises with profit-sharing as a way to help the company through bad times.

Ford's placement of the statement on the main bargaining table was not unexpected, but it put the company's stamp of approval on a concept it has been pushing for several years.

Ford and General Motors Corp., which also is in negotiations with the UAW, have come to see profit-sharing as a way to pay less money to workers when their up-and-down industry goes into a sales slump.

Judge given national award

BOISE (AP) — U.S. District Judge Raymond C. McNichols of Boise has received the 1984 Outstanding Federal Trial Judge award from the Association of Trial Lawyers of America.

McNichols accepted the national award for judicial excellence last week at ATLA ceremonies in Seattle. He was nominated for the honor by the 50-member Idaho Trial Lawyers Association and ultimately received the award based on his "remarkable ability to get to the point and narrow the issue in many complex cases assigned to him," an ATLA statement said.

McNichols has presided over some 2,000 cases during his 20 years on the bench.

Peer program set for youth

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — By the end of August virtually all students confined at the St. Anthony Youth Services Center will participate in a new behavior modification program based on peer influence.

The Positive Peer Culture program recently adopted at the state reform school "is designed to tap the power of the youth peer subculture," Larry Brendtro said Thursday at a news conference held in conjunction with a youth rehabilitation conference.

Brendtro, a South Dakota educator who wrote a book on the peer culture concept, said the program teaches young people to help one another.

"The idea is to create a climate of caring — caring becomes fashionable, hurting becomes unfashionable," Brendtro said.

Traditional behavior programs involving adult leaders sometimes cast defiant youths against the grownups who are trying to guide them, Brendtro said.

But he said troubled young people who have related to their similarly troubled peers in delinquent acts also learn they can relate to help build self-esteem.

Officials said many of the students at the facility hold poor self-images and have considered themselves worthy only of other social castoffs.

Officials at the news conference said students who have gone through the program doubled their rates of academic achievement and displayed a healthier outlook on life.

Drivers license to speed up

BOISE (AP) — A process that used to take up to three months will take only a few minutes after Sept. 1, much to the relief of Idaho motorists whose driver's licenses are about to expire.

Each of the state's 44 county sheriff's offices will begin issuing instant driver's license renewals. The speedy process is not without cost, though. In order to pay for necessary equipment, the Legislature this year added $2 to the current $10 cost of a obtaining a license.

The increase will cover the cost of leasing photographic equipment from Polaroid Corp., which will charge the counties 80 cents per license. Idaho sheriffs sought the increase.

Only state residents will be able to get same-day service. Persons seeking an Idaho license for the first time will have to wait while their application is reviewed by Idaho Motor Vehicle Bureau staff in Boise.

Although the most noticeable change from a consumer's viewpoint, it merely obscures a substantial change in license registrations under way statewide.

Between now and December 1985, the state also will install computers in each of the 44 courthouses to link them with the Motor Vehicle Bureau. That link will be used to issue driver's licenses and vehicle registrations.

The $2 million project began earlier this year when computers were installed at Gem County. Computers will be installed at Canyon and Bonneville counties in September.

Firewood offer being abused

GRANGERVILLE (AP) — Mounting abuse in the free firewood program in the Nezperce National Forest in northcentral Idaho may force an end to the program, Forest Service officials say.

According to spokeswoman Mary Zabinski, there have been more instances of abuse in recent months than ever before. Most involve cutting trees in commercial sale areas or areas closed to the public, commercial sale of the wood gathered under the program and cutting green trees.

The Forest Service, however, hopes to head off the need to end the program by educating the public about the problems created by those activities, both for the natural resource itself and for the local economy.

Evans backs probe into Envirosafe

BOISE (AP) — The Owyhee County Commission's call for a congressional investigation into federal enforcement efforts against a Grand View hazardous waste dump has picked up the backing of Idaho Gov. John Evans.

"I didn't think the county commissioners were unreasonable," Evans said Thursday, one day after the commission voted to ask Congressman Larry Craig to initiate the probe of the Environmental Protection Agency.

They charged EPA with effectively ignoring scores of complaints filed by the county alleging repeated violations of hazardous waste disposal regulations at the dump operated by Envirosafe Services of Idaho.

EPA has denied the charge, contending it is continuing to review the complex issues involved in the dump's operation and plans to have a decision within the next few weeks on whether any violations have occurred and if any penalties will be assessed.

Scott Fisher, a spokesman for Craig, said the congressman wanted to review the information being provided by the county commission before deciding what steps to take next.

But Evans said that while the state has been working with EPA on the continuing Envirosafe controversy, "We've been frustrated too.

Although he said Envirosafe officials promised early this year to correct all problems at the dump, "It's been an ongoing infraction after another, and I think they should be held accountable."

"The county commissioners have tried every way to be involved in the process. They're frustrated," the governor said. "We'll do whatever we can to support their position."

He said he believed EPA's operations should be monitored to insure that federal regulations are followed at the waste site and violations are punished.

College fee waiver's popularity growing for out-of-state students

LEWISTON (AP) — Response has been good so far to a program allowing students from Washington and Idaho to attend college in the other state without paying out-of-state tuition.

The program, approved this past spring by education officials in both states, will take effect in the fall. It provides for a $1,900 fee waiver per year for all 150 students.

Officials in each state said they expect the 75 slots allotted to each state will be filled without problem or, in some instances, already have been taken.

For example, Dan Davenport, director of financial aid at the University of Idaho, said about 100 students from Washington have applied for a fee waiver through the tuition reciprocity program.

Under the program, U can take 40 students on fee waivers and all 40 positions have been filled, he said.

"The vast majority were freshmen or community college transfers," Davenport said.

The school based its acceptance requirements on grades, college preparatory tests and activity involvement and also required that the students be new to the Moscow campus.

Lewis-Clark State has also filled its 20 positions, with new full-time students selected on a first-come, first-served basis, LSCS president Lee Vickers said.

Kim Phillips, spokeswoman for the Idaho Board of Education, said Thursday that Idaho State University has eight openings under the program and Boise State has seven.

Each school is allowed to set its own criteria for admissions, she said.

Jackie Johnson, senior policy associate for the Washington Council for Post-Secondary Education, said each Washington college is developing its own policy for the program. Washington State University is the only school to submit its policy so far, she added.

TV innovator dead at 54

BOISE (AP) — Jack Schlaefle, general manager of the Idaho Educational Public Broadcasting System, has died after a long bout with cancer. He was 54.

Schlaefle, who had been involved with Idaho public television since its inception in 1971, died early Thursday.

After serving as general manager of the Boise station for 11 years, Schlaefle was given the task in 1982 of setting up a statewide public television system. That system now includes stations in Moscow and Pocatello.

U.S. drops sanctions against Poland

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — The United States has decided to drop two sanctions imposed after Poland declared martial law in 1981. In response to the recent general amnesty under which hundreds of Polish political prisoners have been freed, the official news agency PAP reported Thursday.

Washington will lift a ban on scientific and cultural exchanges and restore U.S. landing rights to the Polish state airline LOT, the agency said.

The report said the United States also had informed the Polish government that it will withdraw its objections to Poland's membership in the International Monetary Fund if the amnesty is fully implemented.

PAP said U.S. Charge d'Affaires John Davis informed the government Thursday about the decision. A U.S. Embassy official confirmed the PAP report, but expressed surprise that the news agency had announced it before officials in Washington.

Administration sources at the State Department in Washington and with President Reagan in California declined comment on the PAP report.

The U.S. decision apparently leaves in effect two of the strictest economic sanctions against Poland — refusal of new credits to the communist government and cancellation of the most-favored-nation trading status.

The American statement will certainly be precisely studied and considered by our government from the point of view of the interests of Polish state and society. Polish television said in an evening news broadcast.

The general amnesty, approved by Parliament on July 21, will free 652 political prisoners and nearly 35,000 common criminals.

Almost 500 of the political prisoners have been freed so far, according to the latest government figures. Among those still in jail are five prominent figures in the outlawed Solidarity union — federation and four union advisers, members of the disbanded workers' rights group known as KOR.

The United States had conditioned any easing of the restrictions imposed following the Dec. 13, 1981, imposition of martial law that vision said in an evening news suppressed Solidarity.

Americans told Sakharov is working

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet academics say dissident Andrei Sakharov, who reportedly began a hunger strike three months ago, is "working hard" on scientific projects, a member of a visiting U.S. group said Thursday.

Marcus Raskin, a senior fellow of the Washington-based Institute for Policy Studies, said Sakharov's case had been raised at least three times with the Soviets during meetings this week.

Hijacked jetliner sits damaged after passengers freed

Hijackers give up after bomb blast

By The Associated Press

Three hijackers of an Air France jet surrendered Thursday at Tehran airport after freeing 46 hostages and blowing up the cockpit of the empty Boeing 737.

One spokesman for Iranian radio and television said by telephone that some shots were fired.

"They (the hijackers) started to shoot out (of the plane) and keep the guards around the airplane (away). They took all the passengers out from the airplane, the passengers and crew, and they exploded the cabin of the airplane," he said.

The 44 passengers — and two crewmen were uninjured after the two-day ordeal of terror and the hijackers, as yet unidentified, were "taken away" according to officials at the Iranian airport who would not give their names.

American businessman John Scott said later, "We ran about 500 meters (yards) across the dusty runway and then they told us to get down, so we were all scattered out . . . and they kept us lying down waiting for the aircraft to blow."

The three gunmen commandeered the plane Tuesday during a Frankfurt to Paris flight and stopped at Geneva, Beirut and Cyprus before reaching Tehran, where the hijackers "demanded" France release five Iranian prisoners.

Scott, formerly of Connecticut but presently based in Sharjah, Dubai, said he was "very elated — very good to be alive."

The gunmen first said they would shoot one French hostage per hour, then threatened to blow the plane and passengers up by 4:30 p.m. Tehran time (7 a.m. MDT) if their demands were not met. At least one American was among the passengers.

British nurse Jane Wallington, freed earlier with the rest of the women and children, called the ordeal "horrible." She said she was traveling with Scott.

Iranian officials "reacted" by telephone from Beirut said the hijackers surrendered soon after the deadline.

"One minute the hijackers seemed to be getting calm. The next they were running about carrying bombs in one hand and lighters in the other, threatening to blow us all up," she told the British news agency Press Association from her hotel.

Space weapons talks called test by Soviets

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet commentator stressed Thursday that the imposition of a moratorium on the testing and deployment of space weapons remains a major Soviet requirement for holding talks this fall.

McFarlane was responding to statements made Wednesday at a news briefing in Moscow by Alexander A. Bessmertnykh, head of the Soviet — Foreign — Ministry's United States desk.

He called it a "litmus paper" that would test Washington's sincerity.

Alexander Malyskhin, writing for the government news agency Novosti, also echoed the Kremlin's insistence that it will not send negotiators to Vienna in September to discuss anything but a total ban on the military use of outer space.

McFarlane "confirmed once again that the U.S. position on the problem of preventing the militarization of space makes impossible the talks on this subject," Malyskhin said.

Malyskhin focused on U.S. National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane's comment Wednesday that the Soviets are "not serious about their own proposal" to hold talks with the United States on banning the military use of space. The Soviets proposed the negotiations in late June.

The Soviets rejected the latest U.S. position on the negotiations, saying it opened up no prospects for holding the talks," Bessmertnykh said. However, a U.S. Embassy source insisted the U.S. position "exhibits a serious approach to negotiations."

Stinking guests cause worry for host

DEAR ABBY: Last summer, a very dear friend of mine who lives in France sent her two daughters, ages 16 and 17, to be my houseguests for the summer. They were very intelligent, good-looking girls. Although they showered every day, they used no underarm deodorant, and their B.O. was noticeable.

Without making an issue of it, I gave them some deodorant and told them what it was for. They thanked me politely, returned the deodorant and said, "We never use it." The friends I had introduced them to were put off because of their B.O. The girls are returning soon for another visit. Should I mention it again? And if so, how can it be done without offending them or their mother?

— NAMELESS IN FLORIDA
DEAR NAMELESS: By all means mention it again — only this time call or write their mother, and inform her that in the United States, underarm deodorant is essential — to good grooming. Tell her that last summer when you noticed her daughters needed a deodorant, you offered them some, but they rejected it.

Your friend should be grateful, not offended. Far better to risk offending your friend than to have your young houseguests offend others and be avoided.

DEAR ABBY: "Frustrated" in Maine" asked how to make her son-in-law wear a shirt when he came to the dinner table shirtless.

She may want to try my solution: The first time my newlywed husband came to the table shirtless, I promptly left the table and returned topped.

However delighted he might have been, he got the picture, even though it was a double exposure.

— TAN IN SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA
DEAR TAN: You're lucky. He

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

might have been titillated to the point of no return.

DEAR ABBY: I'm 25, have been married and divorced and have dated a lot of men. The man I'm dating now has many good qualities: He's kind, generous and very loving. We get along great and have talked of marriage.

Now for the problem: "Igor" needs to know the names of every man I've been to bed with. He wants to know how many times, where, and all the intimate details. Not that there were that many, but he keeps pressuring me for this information.

I have told him it's all past history and it's none of his business. He keeps saying he "needs" to know all the facts, then he can forget all about it and we can go on with our lives.

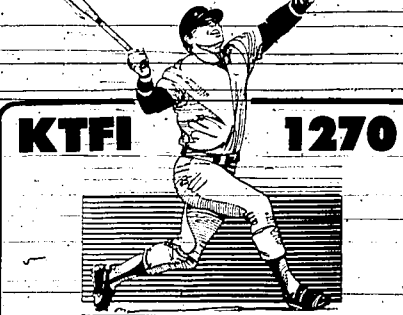

I've never asked him about the women he's been intimate with before he met me. (I'd rather not know.) Why does he need to know these things about me?

— PRESSURED BY IGOR
DEAR PRESSURED: He may need to know in order to throw it up to you at a later date. Or perhaps he gets a vicarious thrill hearing the details. In any case, you were right to tell him the players. If "Igor-Beaver" continues to pressure you, insist that he get professional help to find out why he needs to know the names and numbers of all the players.

Wounded in nuclear war face grim time

By BRENDA C. COLEMAN
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — A major nuclear war involving the United States would not only kill half the population but would destroy so many of the nation's medical resources that only a tiny fraction of the injured could be treated, a new study says.

For every 603 people injured, only one doctor would survive, and for every 64 patients needing hospital beds, only one would be available, according to the study by Dr. Herbert Abrams, a Harvard Medical School radiologist.

Eighty percent of all hospital beds personnel, blood, drugs and medical supplies would probably be destroyed, because medical resources are centered mainly in densely populated areas that would be major targets, the study said.

Remaining doctors and medical supplies might not be located in areas where they would be needed most, said the study in Friday's Journal of the American Medical Association.

About 93 million people — less than half the U.S. population — could be expected to survive such a war, and 41.9 million of them would be injured, it said.

"Twenty-three million Americans will have radiation sickness of varying degrees of severity, while 14 million will have suffered trauma and or burns," Abrams said.

"Among the 9.8 million blast victims, probably 6 million will have open wounds. There will be hundreds of thousands of head, thorax, abdomen, and extremity injuries," he said.

Adding to the problem of many and varied injuries would be non-fatal radiation exposure, which lengthens healing time and increases susceptibility to infection, he said.

Conditions for the estimated 5 million severe burn victims would be particularly nightmarish, Abrams said. All of the country's 1,046 burn beds probably would be destroyed, because most of the 135 burn care facilities are located in major cities, he said.

Friday, August 3, 1984 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho A-9

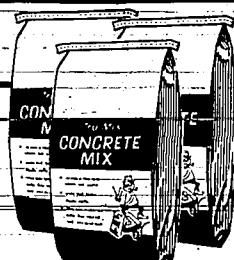

He noted that death rates rise rapidly among burn and trauma victims as treatment is delayed, a certain prospect if transportation is disrupted and radiation levels are high, he said.

Estimates in Abrams' study are based on a 1976 federal civil defense report that designed a hypothetical scenario of a massive nuclear war in which the United States would be exposed to 6,550 megatons of nuclear explosives.

Targets of attack in this scenario, in order of priority, would be military bases and equipment, industrial centers and population concentrations of 50,000 or more, Abrams said.

Governor calls for formation of strike force to battle infestations

Gov. John Evans is calling for a strike force organized like the National Interagency Fire Center in Boise to combat infestations of grasshoppers and other insects on federal land in the Intermountain West.

"We should have an ongoing program that is able to respond within a few days — not a month — to deal with these sorts of problems," said Evans' aide Mike Brush on Thursday.

Idaho officials are drumming up support among other affected states for a congressional appropriation to create an interagency pest control center, he said. It would pool equipment on one place and dispatch it to insect infestations or other emergencies, operating like the Boise fire center, Brush said.

"During the past four weeks, swarms of grasshoppers have moved from dried-out desert lands owned by the U.S. Bureau of Land Management and other federal agencies' into private crops seeking green food," U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block earlier this week declared a state of emergency in Idaho and five other states. He also released $400,000 for a spraying program to fight the grasshoppers on federally owned land in Idaho.

But the action came much too late to satisfy Evans, who repeatedly has blasted Block for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's delays in making money available. He went beyond previous demands Thursday and said the federal government pay back uninsured farmers who suffered losses when grasshoppers chewed up their crops.

"These are grasshoppers hatched out on federal land," said Evans. USDA officials "have been irresponsible in not taking care of their own land," he charged.

In the wake of Block's disaster declaration, officials from the Idaho Department of Agriculture, the federal Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service and the Bureau of Land Management Thursday continued mapping out "hot spots" that should be bombed with insecticide.

Elmer Russell, chief of the state's Bureau of Plant Services, said areas now targeted for spraying include the Bell Rapids tract in western Twin Falls County, an area east of Rupert and north of Interstate 84 in Blaine County; some territory between Mountain Home and Hammett in Elmore County; desert near Bruneau in Owyhee County and the Lake Channel area in Power County.

However, the $400,000 available will cover only 100,000 acres at most, far less than the 600,000 acres state officials think should be treated.

The grasshopper damage has varied from area to area. Russell said Thursday that the state doesn't have any reliable estimates of the extent of damage. But some farming areas have been hit very hard; others have escaped relatively unscathed, officials say.

On Thursday Evans asked Block to declare federal disasters for Owyhee and Washington counties. A declaration for Elmore County already is on Block's desk. Other affected counties are reading requests, too, Brush said.

Meanwhile, in Washington, Sen. James McClure is trying to add provisions to the 1985 Agricultural Act ordering APHIS to control pests on federal lands for the next year. It also would place $500,000 in reserve specifically for fighting grasshoppers and Mormon crickets, another insect assaulting Western crops this year.

Since the mid-1930s, APHIS has had the responsibility for pest and noxious weed control on federally owned territory. However, in the past few years, the agency has been trying to shift the responsibility — and costs — to the federal agencies that hold the public lands, such as the BLM and Forest Service.

Block also has declared an agricultural emergency for Utah, North

Block will visit Idaho

WASHINGTON — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture John Block will tour grasshopper-infested areas in Idaho on Monday, Sen. James McClure's office has announced.

Block, who has been criticized by Gov. John Evans for delays in releasing federal money to control the pests, also plans to talk with farmers at one of his stops, said H.D. Palmer, McClure aide.

No detailed itinerary was available late Thursday, he said.

Dakota, South Dakota, Montana and Colorado. All have reported infestations either of grasshopper or of crickets.

Fire ravages market, lounge

TWIN FALLS — A fire of an undetermined cause damaged Marty's Market and the South Park Lounge on South Park Avenue Thursday morning in Twin Falls.

An unknown person alerted the fire department about 1:03 a.m., said Wayne Campbell with the fire division of the Twin Falls public safety department. Two engines and nine firefighters were dispatched and remained at the scene until 4:32 a.m.

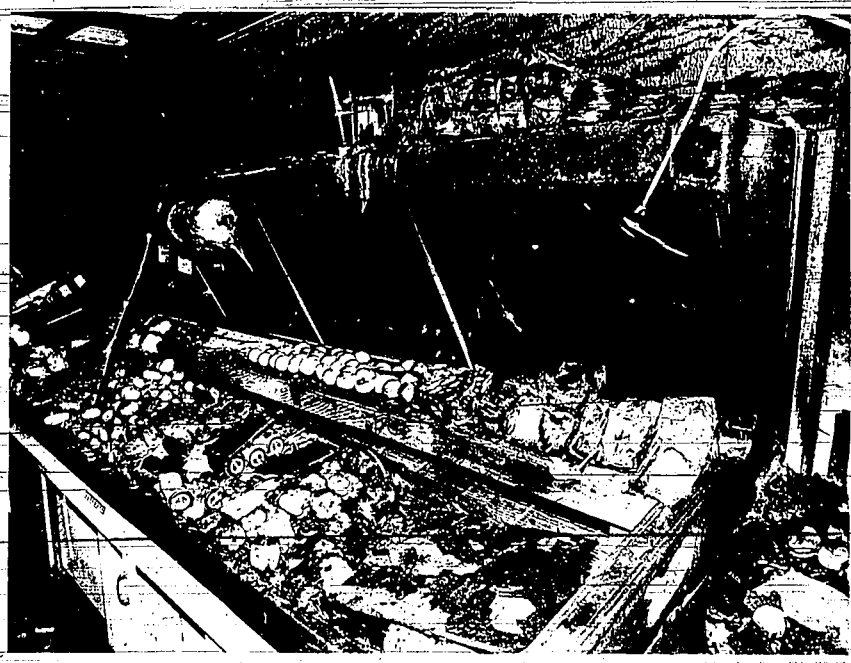

The fire started in and was confined to a storage area at the rear of the store. Flames spread to the attic of the lounge, which shares the same building, Campbell said.

Damage to the entire store was caused by heat and smoke, he added. The fire at the lounge was confined to the attic, but smoke spread throughout the bar.

No estimates of damage to either business were available.

Store owner Martin Richter of Twin Falls and building owner, Jim Foster of Twin Falls, could not be reached for comment.

The cause of the fire still is under investigation.

Interior damage, which was greatest at the rear of the store, above, was mostly caused by smoke and heat

Utility angered by power vandals

$5,000 reward

JEROME — A $5,000 reward is being offered by Pacific Power Co. of Washington for information leading to arrest and conviction of vandals who caused a total of $25,000 in damages when they shot out insulators on a main power line in Jerome County.

The Jerome sheriff's office was contacted by Idaho Power Co. last week with a report that someone had shot out an insulator on a steel tower of the line transporting power across Idaho and into Washington.

A fire occurred at the base of the tower, and by the time the rural fire department had put out the fire, there was no possible evidence were no longer visible.

Officers said the tower where the damage occurred is located eight miles north and two miles west of Jerome. Damage was estimated at $25,000.

However, the major loss, said Pacific Power representative Mike Mulrooney of Bend, Ore., was the disruption in the flow of power over the main line between 5:45 p.m. July 22 and 9 a.m. July 24. Mulrooney said the outage meant the company was not able to deliver approximately 100,000 kilowatt hours of power.

Mulrooney said the insulator was destroyed when a number of .22 bullets were fired into it.

Department proposed at city budget review

City manager pursues community development

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — City Manager Tom Courtney's plan to start a community development department next year came under fire at a Twin Falls City Council budget review session Monday.

Although the council generally favored the idea of the department, several councilmen said they felt its scope was too large.

In particular, the dispute centered on hiring a new department head at a salary of $31,440 and on shifting three of the city's building inspectors to the department.

The new department head would take the title of community development director, now held by LaMar Orton, and would oversee Orton who would become zoning supervisor.

The inspectors would be shifted out of the fire department in which they have been located for several years.

But Councilman Doug Vollmer questioned why the city needed all three inspectors when building activity is way down over the late 1970s, a time when the city only employed one inspector.

Mayor Emery Petersen also questioned putting the inspectors in the new department.

And the idea a specialist from outside the area might be hired to oversee the new department also came under fire.

The future of the new department was left in limbo at the end of the meeting, with Petersen asking Courtney to draw up a proposed organizational chart.

According to Courtney's draft budget, "The department will coordinate development activities starting with the initial zoning request through review of detailed building plans, issuance of permits and final building inspections. Additionally, the department will be responsible for long-term planning and development of a capital improvements program."

In defense of the new department, for which a total budget of $180,638 was proposed, Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said he thought the city would save a considerable amount by preparing for such events as annexations.

Councilwoman Mary McClusky said the city could do a much better job of attracting grants if someone were in charge of keeping abreast of changes in federal programs.

The director additionally would be responsible for running the city's industrial development bond program, assigned to attract new industries to the area, Courtney said.

Petersen asked Courtney what qualifications he would be looking for in the new director.

Courtney said the director would probably need an advanced planning degree and experience in architectural work.

The council is considering a proposed budget of nearly $12 million. It will be the topic of a work session Monday at 4 p.m. and a public hearing at 7 p.m. Final action is due next month.

Suicide note leads police on baffling hunt

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — As tourists enjoyed the panorama of the Snake River Canyon Thursday afternoon, sheriff's deputies searched under the Perrine Bridge for the body of a suspected teenage suicide victim.

After more than five hours of probing, however, no body was found.

The Twin Falls County Sheriff's office continued its investigation by phone into the mystery of what happened to John William Flanagan.

The story began about 11:30 a.m. when Twin Falls Chief Deputy Harold Jensen was off-duty and showing the Perrine Bridge to some relatives, said Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn.

Underneath the south side of the bridge, Jensen found an adult's maroon ski jacket said with no identification and a message written in ink on a piece of cardboard wrapped in plastic.

The message said, "I miss you daddy. I love you very much. Here's a coat to keep you warm. I was here on my 14th birthday, July 31, 1966. Love John William Flanagan."

Suspecting suicide, Twin Falls and Jerome county deputies began a search underneath the bridge, which has been the site of several suicides. Four men from the Jerome County Search and Rescue Unit made their way by rope down the rugged canyon wall. They stopped intermittently to hunt for any remains among the green bushes and jagged rocks.

More deputies searched the river's edge and others used scopes and binoculars to check the north wall of the canyon. Munn

Meanwhile at the office, deputies were attempting to find out more about Flanagan. His name was traced through the state driver's license bureau but to no avail. Also, there had been no reports of a missing person by that name in the county.

In another search of the bridge area, deputies found bus tickets with Flanagan's name and a list of Idaho phone numbers.

By piecing together the new evidence, Munn surmised that Fort Worth, Texas, authorities may have given Flanagan a bus ticket to San Antonio on July 14. Fort Worth authorities said the kind of ticket used by Flanagan usually was provided to runaway teenagers to get them back home.

From San Antonio, Flanagan rode by bus to Kerrville, Texas, on July 17.

After tracing one of the discovered phone numbers, deputies concluded that Flanagan may have found his way to Boise.

On July 30, a youth calling himself "John Williams" wandered into a Boise car lot and wanted help from a car dealer. The youth asked the dealer to find the locations of Indian reservations in the state. "Williams" said he wanted to find a truck driver named "Shorley."

The car dealer described the youth as being about 5-foot 9-inches tall, 145 pounds with sandy-colored hair, hazel-blue eyes and wearing a yellow T-shirt and jeans. The teenager also had a backpack and wine-colored ski jacket.

The car dealer and his friend, a captain with the Ada County sheriff's office, did help the teenager find the numbers to the reservations. The car dealer then gave the youth, who said he was headed to Pocatello, a lift to a truck stop in Boise.

Munn said his office would contact authorities at Bannock County and the Fort Hall Indian reservation, to help locate Flanagan. Texas authorities also will be called to help determine if Flanagan was from the San Antonio area, where he told the car dealer his mother resided.

The remaining hunt for Flanagan will be done by phone. Deputies have done all they can at the canyon area, Munn said. Because of the depth and "blackness" of the Snake River, an underwater search would have been futile, he said.

Without knowing Flanagan's whereabouts, there still is the possibility of suicide, Munn said.

"We are considering there is truth in the statement on the note," Munn said. "But we are hoping he (Flanagan) did pursue his direction to Pocatello and his search for 'Shorley.'"

19-year-old given five years in prison for theft, burglary

TWIN FALLS — A 19-year-old man was sentenced to five years in prison this week in Fifth District Court.

Jay Allan McClimans of 501 Jackson St. in Kimberly was convicted of stealing a car from the Southern Car Sales in Kimberly on May 20 and breaking into Latham Motors in Twin Falls on April 29. At a Monday hearing, he received "five-year" prison sentences "on each count. The sentences will run at the same time."

Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehl did not fix the sentences at five years, so McClimans will be eligible for parole.

Before Meehl pronounced the sentence, Public Defender Kathy Epeldt asked the judge to take McClimans' age and potential for parole into consideration.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Baxter, however, said McClimans' criminal record is the worst he had seen in her eight weeks in office.

Meehl also ordered McClimans to enroll in a drug rehabilitation and job training program if he is paroled.

In other cases heard in district court:

- John Ostrander, 27, of 527 Second Ave. E. in Twin Falls pleaded guilty Monday to forging a stolen check at a Twin Falls grocery store in April. As part of plea negotiation, a charge of attempted forgery was dismissed.

Ostrander was accused of attempting to pass a stolen check at a Twin Falls drug store three days later. The checks belonged to the parents of Ostrander's wife, Kathy.

Mrs. Ostrander, 24, who also faced the two forgery charges, pleaded not guilty to both.

- David Galvan, 29, of Twin Falls received a withheld sentence on Monday for attacking a man with a wooden candle holder last September.
- Galvan's attorney, Golden Bennett, said a felony conviction would prevent his client from obtaining a surveying license he currently was pursuing.

Judge Daniel Hurbitt said the offense was a serious one, but agreed with the defense recommendation for a withheld sentence.

If Galvan remains out a trouble, he can return to court and ask that the case be dismissed. If not, then he will be sentenced on the aggravated battery conviction.

Hurbitt did order Galvan to pay a total of $2,839 in restitution for the victim's injuries.

- Donald Leon Lawrence, 38, of Route 5,

Twin Falls pleaded guilty Wednesday to threatening a man with a knife outside the Rock Creek restaurant in Twin Falls April 3.

Lawrence previously pleaded innocent to the charge of aggravated assault. The charge of plea was the result of a negotiation where a charge of injuring jail property would be dismissed. Lawrence was accused of placing mattress stuffing in the toilet of his cell at the Twin Falls County Jail on April 15.

Lawrence was returned to jail following the hearing. A pre-sentence investigation will be prepared.

Strong wind storms halt power to homes

TWIN FALLS — Strong winds and heavy but brief rain storms that hit several Magic Valley areas Thursday night left a number of homes and businesses without power.

An Idaho Power dispatcher reported power was out in the area of Grandview Drive and South Park Avenue and along about a mile section to the west. The failure, about 9 p.m., resulted when lightning struck the pole causing it to burn. Power to about 20 to 25 customers was off for up to an hour.

Police in Twin Falls received a report of power lines down on Eighth Ave. E., but no major damage resulted.

Cassia County sheriff's officers also reported several power outages in the county and an extremely heavy rain storm about 9 p.m. Most of the service was restored within a few minutes. Problems generally involved tree limbs falling across lines or lines blowing down according to officers.

Defendants enter court pleas in theft, assault, fraud cases

JEROME — One defendant pleaded guilty and two others said they are innocent during Fifth District Court arraignments in Jerome Tuesday.

Cheri Fries, 18, of Twin Falls pleaded guilty to grand theft. She was accused of taking two $100 bills and a stereo from the Dr. Terry Ered home in Jerome County while she was working on a house painting crew at the Fred residence. A pre-sentence investigation was granted and sentencing will take place following the report.

Ronald Lee Tackett of Hazelton pleaded not guilty to a felony aggravated assault charge. He is alleged to have threatened J.R.

Hamilton of Hazelton with a knife on a recent occasion.

Police in Twin Falls received a report of power lines down on Eighth Ave. E., but no major damage resulted.

Cassia County sheriff's officers also reported several power outages in the county and an extremely heavy rain storm about 9 p.m. Most of the service was restored within a few minutes. Problems generally involved tree limbs falling across lines or lines blowing down according to officers.

Cross-country Model-T tour coming to valley

KIMBERLY — Magic Valley members of the Veteran Motor Car Club of America have made plans to welcome a group of Model-T Ford Club International members at the Kimberly city park Aug. 8 when their country tour reaches Twin Falls County.

Russell Howell of Jerome said the entourage of about 33 Model-T Fords will begin arriving in Kimberly shortly before noon and the 75 or so drivers and passengers in the tour group will attend a picnic lunch in the park.

The occasion is the 50th anniversary of the Model-T and of the 1909 Transcontinental auto race that was won by one of the cars.

The commemorative tour group, like the original 1909 racers, left New York City bound for Seattle. The anniversary tour began July 19 and will end Aug. 12.

The vintage auto's origins range from 1909 to 1927. A number of Magic Valley Model-T owners will be on hand to welcome the tour group to Magic Valley and find out how their fellow Model-T enthusiasts fared on the long drive across the United States.

Howell said the tour will be in Pocatello Aug. 7 and will leave there to arrive in Kimberly for about a two-hour lunch stop. The little Fords are following as closely as possible the same route taken in the Transcontinental Automobile Race of 1909.

Stops are being made in the same towns as those of 1909 and tour officials are especially anxious to meet anyone who recalls the first transcontinental race.

U.S. nets more gold

Swimmers boost medals to 14, set world record

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — U.S. swimmers, with another relay world record and two 1-2 sweeps led by Mary T. Meagher and George DiCarlo, boosted their Olympic gold total to 14 Thursday after 19 events.

Stemming the tide of the American gold harvest were Victor Davis of Canada, who broke his own world record in the 200 breaststroke, and Petra Van Staveren of the Netherlands, who established an Olympic mark in the women's 100 breaststroke.

The world marks by Davis and the U.S. men's 400 freestyle relay team, anchored by 100 freestyle gold medalist Rowdy Gaines of Winter Haven, Fla., were the seventh and eighth swimming world records set in the Games in seven different events.

Chris Cavanaugh of Mountain View, Calif., Mike Heath of Dallas, Matt Bland of Moraga, Calif., and Gaines were pushed to a world mark of 3 minutes, 19.93 seconds by a team from Australia and the crowd cheers of "U.S.A. U.S.A."

But Gaines extended a slight lead in the final leg, which he swam against Australian Mark Stockwell, the 100 freestyle silver medalist.

The Australians, who set an Olympic mark of 3:19.94 in the prelims, settled for a silver in the final in 3:19.66. Sweden was far behind, but won a bronze medal.

It was the second relay gold medal for Heath, who also had an individual silver medal in the 200 freestyle. Meagher, swimming's "Madame Butterfly" since setting world records at 100 and 200 meters in the event, won her first Olympic gold in the 100.

Meagher's winning time of 59.35 seconds was slower than her world record of 57.93 and her Olympic mark of 59.05 she set in the preliminaries. But the crowd of 16,000 and the 19-year-old from Louisville, Ky., the last of her parents' 11 children, didn't seem to care.

Finishing second was Jenna Johnson of La Habra, Calif., in 1 minute, 19 seconds, while Karin Selck of West Germany captured the bronze.

"I knew she had a great first 50," Meagher said of Johnson, who led by one-half body length after 50 meters. "But it was a matter of keeping my composure in the second 50."

Meagher said that during the final strokes of the race, she told herself, "Oh please, oh please."

DiCarlo, of Denver, won the 400 freestyle in 3:51.24, breaking the Olympic record set in 1980 by Vladimir Salnikov of the Soviet Union.

But DiCarlo, of Denver, was not at his best and he was far off the world record of 3:49.32 held by Salnikov, who DiCarlo had hoped to challenge for distance freestyle supremacy, before the Soviets announced their

George DiCarlo of Denver raises hands after winning the gold and setting new record in 400-meter freestyle boycott of the Games. DiCarlo's American record is 3:51.03 and Salnikov's world mark is 3:49.32.

"I was racing people the whole race rather than going for a time," DiCarlo said. "I didn't feel all that fast this morning and that just reaffirmed in my mind the need to get out as fast as I could. I saw them (the other swimmers) on the last lap the whole way."

Ironically, in the consolation final for swimmers with the ninth through 16th-fastest qualifying positions, Thomas Fahrner of West Germany bettered DiCarlo's gold-medal time and took away his Olympic record. Fahrner, a bronze medalist in the 200 freestyle and a silver winner in the 800 freestyle relay, was timed in 3:50.91.

However, Fahrner was ninth in qualifying in 3:55.25 and consolation final swimmers are ineligible for Olympic medals regardless of their performance. An emergency meeting of international swimming federation officials resulted in a ruling that Fahrner would be credited with the Olympic mark.

Fahrner said when he swam so poorly in the prelims "I decided then to swim faster in the finals than the winner. When I saw DiCarlo's time, I was convinced I could beat it. I should have swum as hard as I could this morning instead of trying to take it easy and just qualify." John Mykkanen, at 17 the youngest male member of the U.S. swim team, was second in the final in 3:51.49, while Justin Lemberg of Australia won the bronze in 3:51.79.

Davis, silver medalist in the 100 breaststroke, easily broke his own world standard in the 200. His time of 2:13.34 surpassed his previous record by 1.21 seconds. Far behind were silver medalist Glenn Berghen of Australia in 2:15.79 and bronze medalist Pieter Dagon of Switzerland in 2:16.79. Richard Schroeder of Santa Barbara, Calif., was fourth. # Gymnast Vidmar just about golden

By DAVID MINTHORN
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Koji Gushiken of Japan overtook America's Peter Vidmar on the fifth of six exercises Thursday night and won the Olympic gold medal in men's all-around gymnastics by a razor-thin margin.

Vidmar, 23, of Los Angeles got the silver two days after keying the U.S. team's stunning upset victory over China for the team gold medal.

Chinese star Li Ning, 20, the pre-competition favorite, faltered on the floor exercises and settled for bronze. Gushiken finished the three-part competition with 118.700 points, scoring a perfect 10 on the vault in the final — one of three ultimate scores on the last night.

Judges granted four of 10 perfect marks during the three days of competition. Vidmar, a handsome blond graduate of UCLA, finished fractionally behind with 118.575 points after getting a 10 on the high bar. He began the final event atop the standings but was unable to bary Gushiken's brilliant performance, which included two 9.95s and three 9.90s.

Li caught Vidmar on the second rotation and stayed tied with him until slipping back to third place with a 9.80 on the parallel bars on the fifth event. He finished with 118.575 points.

The silver for Vidmar and bronze for Li were the first Olympic medals in the all-around event won by an American and Chinese.

"I was really psyched. You can always have regrets about your performance, but 0.25 is the smallest margin you can lose by," Vidmar told reporters.

The wily 2-foot-4 Gushiken was so happy about his unexpected triumph that he left the floor with tears streaming from his eyes.

Teammates said he was unable to speak to them immediately after the last exercise because he was so emotionally drained by the effort.

Gushiken later said he considered the gold medal vindication for his absence from the 1980 Moscow Olympics, when Japan joined the boycott.

"I was very much disappointed because I was a member of the team. I left Japan determined to win two golds since I missed Moscow," he told a press conference.

Gushiken can add to his gold medal total in the apparatus finals on Saturday.

The Japanese tore an Achilles tendon eight years ago and also suffered a broken ankle during a career that has spanned 16 years. He said the gold made up for his past problems.

Blatnick follows cancer win with gold medal

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — American Jeff Blatnick, who wrestled with cancer two years ago, Thursday night beat Thomas Johansson of Sweden to win the gold medal in the over-220, super-heavyweight division in the Olympic Greco-Roman competition.

Blatnick beat Johansson 2-0 before a wildly cheering partisan crowd at the Anaheim Convention Center, driving the Swede to his knees twice in the final minute of the match to record his winning points.

The 27-year-old from Niskayuna, N.Y., was choked with emotion, tears streaming down his face when he said, "I'm a happy dude. Steve and I are just an example of what the United States is coming to in Greco."

Blatnick was referring to teammate Steve Fraser, whose gold medal Wednesday night in the 198-pound class was the first-ever Olympic medal by the U.S. in Greco-Roman.

In July, 1982, Blatnick was diagnosed as having Hodgkins Disease, a form of cancer. He underwent an operation for removal of his spleen, as well as radiation therapy and was back wrestling three weeks after the surgery.

Naming several other wrestlers, as well as team coaches and friends, Blatnick said emotionally, "they deserve a piece of this medal. I wish I could break it up."

"I'm really happy that we could do this. I just like all the kids coming up can do the same thing," added the newly Olympic champion, who has been an assistant coach at Nebraska and at North Dakota State and has most recently made his living working for a mechanical piping construction company in Selkirk, N.Y.

A few days before the competition started, he talked about his experience with cancer.

"If I can be an inspiration to anybody, that's great," he said then. "You find a certain attitude in most wrestlers. They're a bit eccentric. We get through some kind of tough training routine. Wrestling is as intimate as you can get in sports as far as bodily contact."

South African creates twists Idaho's own tennis tourney heats up

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's hometown tennis tournament could take on a different flavor this year.

Gwynn Sammel, a South African who once played at Wimbledon, has been seeded first in the women's open singles division of the Idaho Closed-Tennis Tournament, ahead of two-time defending champion Kathy McRoberts of Pocatello.

The tournament will begin today at three different Twin Falls tennis complexes. Sammel, who teaches tennis at the Warm Springs Tennis Club in Ketchum, burst on to the Idaho scene in June when she won the women's singles championship of The Times-News Twin Falls Open in convincing fashion, whipping Bobette Carpenter of Pocatello, 6-2, 7-5 in the semifinals and dismantling Wendy Olson of Pocatello 6-0, 6-1 in the final match. She has continued her hot streak through July in a series of Wood River Valley competitions.

McRoberts, who plays tennis at the University of Utah, has won the last two women's singles championships in this tournament, which is limited to Idaho residents. Last year she beat Jocelyn Monroe of Boise for the Idaho Closed title, 6-0, 6-0, after Monroe had upset top seeded Mimi Dega of Boise in the semifinals.

In men's open singles, two-time defending champion Ed Perkins of Boise is back, but he's seeded behind Boise's Nacho Larracochea. That's because Larracochea, a 33-year-old Idaho tennis veteran, beat the much younger Perkins in the semifinals of the Twin Falls Open.

Larracochea then went on to take the title over Boisean Kim Gourley, 7-5, 6-3. Gary Allen and Cisco Limbuco, both of Boise, are seeded third and fourth, respectively, in the men's singles division.

More than 125 players were registered for the tournament as of Thursday night, according to tournament manager Sean Timmons. Competition is scheduled to get under way tonight with men's and women's A singles and mixed doubles matches, and then continue with the other events through the quarterfinal rounds on Saturday.

The semifinals in the open singles events are scheduled to start at the Frontier Field courts at 8:30 a.m. with finals to follow. Semifinals and finals in all events will be played on Sunday, weather permitting.

Matches will also be played at the Twin Falls High School and Harmon Park courts. Besides men's and women's singles and doubles, men's and women's A singles and open, A, B and 35-and-over mixed doubles, events will include men's and women's open doubles, men's and women's A doubles, men's and women's B singles, men's and women's 35 singles and doubles, men's and women's 45 singles and men's 55 singles.

The top Twin Falls player in the tournament is Susan Whitney, the state's premier women's 35 singles player. Whitney won the singles championship in the A division last year.

Walters and Perkins, who have won the last two men's open doubles titles in this tournament, are again the top seeds in that event, followed by Larracochea and fellow Boisean Mike Swepe. In women's open doubles, there are no seeds, because only three teams are entered; they will play a round-robin competition.

The Idaho Closed, one of the two major tennis tournaments played in the state each year, is being held in Twin Falls for the third consecutive year. The state's other major tournament, the Idaho Open, will be played over Labor Day weekend in Sun Valley.

Much sought athlete agrees to attend CSI

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho has received a verbal commitment from a basketball player who CSI men's Coach Fred Trenkle calls "the closest thing we'll ever get here to Riley Sobers."

Trenkle said late Wednesday that 17-year-old Ledell Weekley, a 6-foot-6 swingman from Baton Rouge, La., had agreed to attend CSI next year. Eackles, a McDonald's All-American, had been recruited by a number of the nation's college basketball powers in the Southwest, including San Jacinto of Houston. He had also been sought by several four-year schools.

Trenkle said, who offered him a scholarship after a redshirt season. "This kid is a blue-chipper," said Trenkle, who saw Eackles play two years ago when Eackles was an assistant coach at the University of Arkansas. "He can shoot, he can play under the basket, he can bring the ball down — he can do it all. He was considered the 14th best player in the country at his position last year before the season started and is the only one of these top players to go into Juco ball. Sobers, who will begin his ninth NBA season next fall, was a National Junior College Athletic Association All-American at CSI for the 1972-73 season. He went from CSI to Nevada-Las Vegas, where he was second-team All-American in his senior year, and then to the NBA's Indiana Pacers, Chicago Bulls and, currently, the Seattle SuperSonics.

Eackles averaged 30 points a game in his senior season at Broadmore High School in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, but a junior season in which he averaged 25 a game. He was a member of Louisiana's basketball congress international team that finished second at the BCL tournament between Eackles' junior and senior years.

Trenkle said he expects to receive Eackles' signed letter of intent in a few days. He will arrive in Twin Falls within the next three weeks.

Trenkle said he hopes to sign one more player, which would bring the Eagles' personnel strength up to 12 players for next season.

Gem squad retains Idaho Cup

POCAHELLO—For the second straight year—but only third time in series history—Idaho's amateurs claimed the Idaho Cup Team Title Thursday.

Playing Pocatello's Riverside course, the top 10 amateurs—based on points won in various tournaments over the year—defeated the top 10 amateurs from 1983 in Northern Chapter sanctioned play.

The final tally was 34-26 and the major difference was the amateur's solid showing in the first event—the chapman. Usually a feast for the pros, Wednesday's chapman wound up with the amateurs holding an 114-33 advantage. It was just a matter of holding that lead through the best-ball and match-play categories. The amateur led grew to 191-105 after the best ball and the pros won the match play portion: 154-145 Thursday to establish the final margin.

"I felt that this was the first time in the four years I've been on the team that we had retaining players," said Twin Falls' Perry Hanchey.

Garry-Bud Caldwell proved the top amateur point winner by taking five out of a possible six. Hanchey and Twin Falls' other contribution to the amateur team, Jim Purves, added six between them.

Lewis begins drive to match Owens' medals

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — The long-awaited attempt by multitalented Carl Lewis to match Jesse Owens' four-gold-medals begins today with the opening of the Olympic track and field program in the huge Los Angeles Coliseum.

The 92,516-seat stadium is expected to be filled for each of the 10 sessions of track and field — spread over eight days — with the gifted Lewis as the major attraction.

Other already-famous Americans on view include Mary Decker in the 3,000-meter run and Edwin Moses in the 400-meter hurdles.

Lewis, 23, will be shooting for golds — and the glory and riches that will accompany them — in the same four events in which Owens earned his medals and his fame in the 1936 Berlin Games.

He is the strong favorite in each of his three individual events — the 100-meter dash, the 200-meter dash and the long jump — and is the anchorman on the United States' 400-meter relay team — also — the overwhelming choice to win.

Should Lewis win the four golds, he might find himself in the same worldwide esteem as pop singer sensation Michael Jackson. And he has said that after the Games he plans to demand Jackson-style salaries.

Contract offers — including one to play the young Owens in a movie about his life — already have poured in, but Lewis' agent, Joe Douglas, has rejected them, preferring to wait until after the Games before making any commitments.

Lewis, however, already has cut a record, appropriately called "Going for the Gold." It has yet to become a blockbuster hit, having just been released, but four gold medals undoubtedly would boost its sales.

Lewis oozes confidence when he is asked whether winning four golds is possible.

"It's very attainable," he said. Few doubt him.

To accomplish it, he will have to run 11 races — four each in the 100 and 200, and three in the relays — and jump in the qualifying round and final, within a six-day period.

Lewis' kickoff event is the 100, with the first two rounds set for Friday.

Friday's schedule also includes finals in the women's shot put and men's 20-kilometer walk, the first four events in the women's heptathlon, qualifying in the men's triple jump, the first rounds of the men's 400-meter intermediate hurdles, the men's 800, the men's 10,000, the women's 800 and the women's 400.

Mihaila Loghin of Romania and Claudia Losch of West Germany are the favorites in the women's shot put, and Fátima Cantó is the No. 1 choice in the walk final.

Since the Games began in 1896, the United States has dominated track and field competition, winning 225 gold medals — more than the next 19 countries combined.

And it has won 532 medals, more than the next seven countries combined.

At every Olympic Games in which the Americans have participated, the U.S. has won the most gold medals in men's track and field, the most silver medals, and only three times has another country won the most bronze medals.

SU, in recent Olympics the American gold medal harvest has waned, slipping to six each in 1972 and 1976, and eight at course in 1980 when the U.S. boycotted the Moscow Games.

This time, it is the Soviet bloc nations who are boycotting, opening the way for the United States to dominate again and for the American women to win their first gold medal since 1964, when they captured three Four years ago, the Soviet Union led the way with 11 golds and 21 medals. East Germany had 11 golds and 29 medals. No other country had more than four golds and 10 medals.

Of the 1980 winners, seven are trying to repeat — Scotland's Allan Wells, men's 100; Italy's Steve Melnea, men's 200; Britain's Steve Ovett, men's 800; Britain's Sebastian Coe, men's 1,500; Britain's Daley Thompson, men's decathlon; Italy's Maurizio Damilano, men's 20-kilometer walk; and Italy's Sara Simeoni, women's high jump.

Overall, there are 41 events, 24 for men and 17 for women. Three of the women's events are new to the Games — the 400-meter hurdles, the 3,000-meter run and the marathon.

Women adjust to loss of golden dream

By RICHARD HOFFER
Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — If there was magic in the air, it was left over, gone stale, polluted by defeat. The U.S. women's gymnastics team would not draw the same purity of breath the U.S. men did the night before when they won this country's first Olympic gold medal.

The U.S. women, although they flew high, did not fly quite high enough to escape the ozone layer of disappointment. They did not, as dreamed, win a gold medal.

They did win a silver, though, coming in second, one point behind the Romanians, new Olympic champions. For the United States, this is only a disappointment in light of their own great hopes and in comparison with the men's miracle finish over the Chinese in their team competition Tuesday night.

As the U.S. women have long been regarded as the most earth-bound of athletes in world gymnastics, they have not won a team medal since 1950; their medal finish is remarkable in its own right.

It is true that it was accomplished in the absence of the Soviet Union, a gymnastics program that has dominated this sport, winning every Olympic team competition since it was embraced by the Olympic family in 1952. The Soviet team, the defending world champion, just might have nudged their longtime rival Romanians from the top step of the podium had they been here. But then, they were invited weren't they?

If it is impossible to say whether Romania is truly the best in the world, it is at least possible to say the United States is getting better, a lot.

floor to the best. The U.S. team finished seventh in those championships last year, and although four of the top six teams refused to come to the Olympics, the United States still managed to improve its position in world rankings by overcoming the Chinese, the other high-ranking team to come.

The United States' score of 391.20 was a full point behind Romania's but a big 4.60 ahead of the Chinese.

The United States came into Wednesday's optional exercises in University of California, Los Angeles, Pauley Pavilion trailing the favored Romanians by just .45 of a point after compulsorys. In women's gymnastics that is a good lead but not an insurmountable one.

However, the Romanians, from the first apparatus on, enlarged that margin. They did not yield so much as a tenth of a point until the final apparatus when the United States, led by Julianne McNamara's second perfect score of the evening, outscored them.

The Romanians actually clinched the victory by outscoring the United States on the balance beam by 1.60 points.

SUN VALLEY — Robin Cousins, the Briton who won the Olympic gold medal in men's figure skating in 1980, will perform at Sun Valley Saturday night as part of the resort's summer skating series.

Cousins, 27, won the world figure skating championship three times before taking the Olympic gold at the Lake Placid Games. Since 1980, he has spent 2½ years touring with Holiday on Ice and 1½ years on the world professional skating circuit.

The show is scheduled to begin at 9 p.m. at the Sun Valley Skating Center. Tickets are $12 for seats on the Redwood Terrace of the adjacent Sun Valley Lodge, or $9.50 for general admission. Children are admitted for $6.50. Cost for a dinner buffet and the ice show is $28 for adults, $18.50 for children.

Dinner begins at 7 p.m.

The Saturday evening series runs through Labor Day, and has already included 1984 Olympic gold medalist Scott Hamilton and 1980 Olympic bronze medalist Charles Tickner, as well as American figure skater Elaine Zayak.

In addition to the 36-hole championship event, a scotch ball derby will be played on Aug. 9.

There is a $25 registration fee. Golfers may register at the Municipal shop.

Gooding football meeting set

GOODING — The Gooding High School football team will hold a pre-season team meeting Monday night, according to head Coach Bob Milligan.

All prospective football players and their parents should attend the meeting, slated for 7 p.m. in the multi-use room in the high school.

Raiders linebacker retiring

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Los Angeles Raiders linebacker Ted Hendricks, who flunked a recent physical because of an abdominal tear, has decided to retire after a 15-year career, the Sacramento Bee reported Thursday.

Hendricks, a member of seven Pro Bowl teams who holds the National Football League record for blocked kicks with 26, ended last season with the longest consecutive game-playing streak in the NFL with 216 games.

Masseur ousted at Games

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Japanese masseur who gave a forbidden herbal drug to a member of Japan's volleyball team was banned from the Olympic Games for 12 years Thursday, and the Japanese team was given a "severe warning" over the incident.

But the International Olympic Committee took no action against the player who it said unknowingly took the drug.

A communique from the nine-member IOC Executive Board said a urine test on volleyball player Mikiyasu Tanaka showed traces of the forbidden drug ephedra.

Rookie leading golf classic

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Rookie Willie Wood, using a back-up wedge and a borrowed putter, scrambled to a 5-under-par 67 and tied Loren Roberts for the first round lead Thursday in the $50,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Golf Classic.

"I didn't really play that well, but I scrambled real well and that's a surprise," said the 5-foot-7, 135-pound Wood, called "Wee Willie" by his fellow pros.

Wood, a runner-up at the recent Anheuser-Busch Classic, missed seven greens, and played those holes even par. His chipping and putting saved par five times, he chipped in for birdie once and made a single bogey.

Wood's putter and sand wedge — the principal tools in his scrambling game — and had to use a spare sand wedge he carries and a putter that was borrowed from a member's bag.

He located his regular putter and wedge in the locker-room moments after he'd finished his round.

Lapidus returns from injury

NORTH CONWAY, N.H. (AP) — Jay Lapidus of Princeton, N.J., once a rising tennis star, defeated Alberto Tous of Spain 6-3, 6-2 Thursday in the $25,000 Volvo International Tennis Tournament for his best showing since an injury sidelined him two years ago.

Lapidus, who is ranked 191st on the Association of Tennis Professionals computer, reached the round of 16 for the first time since injuring a knee in 1982. Ranked in the top 40 at that time, the Princeton graduate dropped into the 400s before beginning the climb back Wednesday by defeating 17-year-old sensation Aaron Krickstein, the fourth-seeded player.

Christo's work gets attention, but is it art?

By JOE NEAVE
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — His work is the fodder of which documentaries are made. Photographers and the press love him dearly.

He is Christo, the artist who encircled Florida Islets in pink plastic and constructed the California Running Fence and he recently visited the Sun Valley Center for Arts and Humanities to show his drawings and procure funds for his next project.

Part of his success in raising the vast amounts of capital needed for such projects as Running Fence (24 miles of fabric held upright by cables) comes from Christo's ability to convince folks that this is art he's talking — not some wacko tacking up of bedsheets in an effort to earn money from the rubes.

Christo's sincere belief in his own work I do not question, but it must be something of a strain on the buyers of his plans and drawings when they consider how easily the emperor could lose his clothes.

Christo at any moment could come out and say, "Just kidding, guys. This is no synthesis of nature and art. It's just something to do when I get up in the morning."

Imagine the furor! But since Christo is so obviously sincere about the aesthetic value of his installations, the likelihood of such good clean fun is not great.

Review

The proportions of his work make good press, and Christo's writings in Newsweek, Vogue, Art News and other national publications has solidified his celebrity status.

Because he is wallowing on the crest of popularity, patrons are all the more willing to welcome his presence. Can't blame them, of course; where Christo goes, notoriety is sure to follow.

His stuff is sufficiently outrageous to satisfy those with the dough that their contributions are fueling the "latest" and "most important" artist. And as Sun Valley is the one place in Idaho where a number of dozens live off of dividend checks, it is small wonder that Christo made his appearance here rather than canvassing Kupert or Rexburg for funds.

Even in fashion-dragged Sun Valley, his art will still come under attack, but attack by those who own several thousand shares of Exxon is preferable to the indifference of stolid yeomanry.

Modern art is a tough racket. Christo's wife, Jeanne-Claude, apparently handles much of the business end, and a large part of his popularity must be blamed on her shrewd management and marketing of Christo and his work.

Christo is the sort of art which demands a philosophy as its selling point. One looks at Michelangelo's David and knows that its beauty is timeless. To discover the beauty of Christo's art one must read his project prospectus. While there is no harm in the appreciation of an artist's work being deepened by an explanation of his goals, it isn't a symptom of greatness to need the excess verbiage. Art should, to a greater extent than Christo's does, speak for itself.

The essence of Christo's work is to block off, surround, wrap, cover, close and restrict. For years he was best known as the maker of small, amorphous bundles containing no one knew what. He has since blossomed into the man who would drape a blanket over the entire West Coast, if given the money to do it.

Reared in Bulgaria, Christo seems full of an eastern European's knowledge of barriers. Long residency in the United States has not weakened this Kafkaesque morbidity.

His installations appeal to many because of sheer size. The scale of the pieces is impressive — the most impressive facet of his work — but for mere mass and surface area, one can always visit the Glen Canyon Dam, no mean blot on the landscape itself.

What Christo offers is a sort of instant pyramid, a temporary barrier of such enormity that it is as much an exercise in logistics as a work of art. His pieces tend to the vulgar. They cannot stand apart, but rely for their drama wholly on the landscape in which they are installed. Generally, they look cheap in comparison.

Yet Christo is, paradoxically, more successful at forcing people to see in a new way than he realizes. When his latest installment is pulled down and buried, burned, or whatever he does with the materials so none can exhume them and erect a forgery, things brighten up right away.

He is most artistically successful in the removal of his artwork because when the wrapping is gone, the valley unblocked, the island de-circled, one realizes what a trivial prurial it all was in the first place compared to the unfettered earth which he tried to partition.

For this much we can thank him; in a backhanded sort of way, as we might thank the manufacturers of Toilet Balls for the cavity that makes us all the more appreciative of our remaining sound teeth.

It is success to Christo's efforts, misguided though they are. The more grandiose his project the better. He can ring the state in magenta.

Christmas lights or swathe Mount Baldy in quilts — so long as he removes all trace of his installment when the event ends.

Then, after the photographers are sated, the television crewmen lured away by fresh disasters, the installment burned or buried, we'll have time to stop and consider the object of his ministrations in a new light. Seeing it whole once again, we will love it all the more.

Buhl folk artists use unusual touch

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

BUHL — A group of folk artists from Buhl, best known as the Punkin Holler Gang, will have their rather unusual work prominently displayed in an upcoming Boise show sponsored by The Idaho Commission on the Arts and The Boise Gallery of Art.

The exhibition, "We Came to Where We Were Supposed To Be: Folk Art of Idaho," opens Aug. 11 and will continue through Sept. 16.

Project director for the exhibit, Steve Siporin, says the show will eventually tour seven sites in Idaho, plus Spokane, Wash., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

"Many people are not familiar with the term 'folk art' and sometimes assume it refers to antiques or to native artists," Siporin says.

"Folk Art," he explains "is actually the traditional artistic activities of groups that share the same ethnic heritage, language, occupations, religion or geographic area."

"These arts serve both to identify and to symbolize the group that originated them," he adds.

Siporin says there are over 130 items in the exhibit from some 70 different artists. Some objects are historical, but the majority have been made in the last 25 years, he says, noting that a variety of occupational and ethnic groups as well as Native Americans are represented.

Siporin says the exhibit includes quilts, embroidery, Native American beadwork and basketry, wood carvings, saddles, metalwork and handmade rugs.

Among the handcrafted artwork will be the Punkin Holler Gang's humanized characters from the animal world as well as life-sized human characters.

Two of the Buhl artists' figures — a human-styled cow and donkey — have been chosen for the cover of the invitation for the Aug. 11 reception to be attended by Frank Hodsoll, chairman of the National Endowment for the Arts.

Gladys Bickelhaupt, better known as "the mayor of Punkin Holler," says her group is displaying six characters in the exhibit.

Many Buhl and Twin Falls area residents are familiar with the works of the Punkin Holler Gang from exhibits at the Twins Falls Community Fair, where the animal figures have been seen sitting around a gambling table, and from other displays, parades and celebrations.

Bickelhaupt says every autumn her group sets up a large display of the characters at her house a mile south of Buhl and that people, including bus loads of senior citizens and Scouts, come from all over to photograph and enjoy the display.

"We do this as a community service," she says of the rather unusual projects the group has been working on for 18 years.

"We like to loan them to nursing homes because seniors get such a kick out of them," she adds.

The Punkin Holler Gang members include Bickelhaupt, Donna Monroe, Blanche Larragan, Muriel Christofferson, June Simmons and Harvey Bickelhaupt, who they call "the critic." The late Lucille Huston, longtime-school principal at Buhl, was a founding member.

Siporin says many of the folk art objects to be exhibited are regularly used by their owners, thus filling practical needs as well as aesthetic ones. The exhibition categories reflect the uses and contexts of the objects, he says.

The categories are: "Working on the Land," "Beauty in the Home," "Whimsy and Recreation" and "Ceremony and Celebration."

The results of this inventory will ultimately be placed in the Idaho Folklife Center at the State Library, he says.

Critic says art must make a statement

By ROBERT H. DOYLE
Times-News correspondent

SUN VALLEY — Jeff Kelley, art critic in residence at the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, sees art sculptures among derelicts, dredges and mining machinery.

A former shift foreman at an underground gold mine in Orville, Calif., he says such equipment, although raw and undisciplined, are sculptures nevertheless.

"I want art to make a grand statement, preferably something I've never seen before," says Kelley.

"That's why I find western genre art institutionalized — always the land or its people the featured subject. What I'm looking for are new ways of addressing the same issue, artists who look at the land in new terms, even using the land itself as a medium."

Taking that statement into consideration, it's safe to say that Kelley is at home with an artist like Christo, whose work is presently being featured at the Sun Valley Center.

Christo is the creator of the renowned "Running Fence," a stretched fabric structure which spread across miles of Marin County, Calif., pastureland.

Conversely, the school of realist-western artists who hold painter Frederick Remington in awe, fail to hold Kelley's interest.

"Artists once used brush and chisel, but since we're in the Modern Age why not use a bulldozer and drill?" says Kelley.

"For contemporary art, use contemporary tools... there's nothing that says that art can't be usable."

Little wonder that Kelley finds utility as well as art in a mine shaft elevator.

Artist responding to art in order to help others make more sense out of what they see. "The end result is greater enjoyment by the art viewing and purchasing public, regardless of personal likes and dislikes on the part of the critic, the viewer, or the artist."

"Critics are people who really like art, and in the process of writing and talking about art, become exponents of the craft," says Kelley.

"I have opinions, certainly, but I'm in no way associated with the power to determine what is good and what is bad, but I am experienced and my life is spent around art and artists," says Kelley, who writes as many as four art reviews a week.

Kelley's residency at Sun Valley is sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts, the Idaho Arts Commission and the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

For the next two months he will lecture, conduct seminars, tour galleries in the Sun Valley, Twin Falls and Boise areas, and serve as guest editor of the next edition of the Idaho Arts Journal, in which he is putting together a special section entitled, "The Northwest and Environmental Art."

He says he is particularly pleased to be in southern Idaho, for he feels one of the major features of a maturing art community is the development of critical dialogue which he facilitates.

The seminar topics he plans to introduce are varied, but he did mention that "Gold Mining from an Artistic Approach" might be included.

Those interested in meeting with Kelley, or attending one of his seminars, should contact the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

Should they wish more information regarding his itinerary, they may call 622-3371 or write, Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities, Box 656, Sun Valley, ID 83353.

Arts council probe; working arts center

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — The Wood River-Valley Arts Council is launching a funding drive for a study on locating a performing arts center in Blaine County.

"The money the arts council raises will match a $2750 grant from the Idaho Arts Commission to fund a study to evaluate the site options and design for such a facility," says Galt Severn, president of the council.

So far, Severn says, both Ketchum and Sun Valley officials have indicated they would like such a facility in their cities. And The Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities and the Sun Valley Co. have indicated they would be willing to help with the facility's establishment.

The arts council received its first donation of $600 from the Elk Horn Resort and Horizon Airlines, both of which are at least partially owned and managed by Milt Kault.

Severn says the council is now contacting other possible donors.

Despite the interest of both Ketchum and Sun Valley in wanting the center, Severn says the council will pick the best site for it based on the outcome of the study.

"We have to put it on the site that's most feasible," she says. • See COUNCIL on Page C3

'Hill Street' leading the TV pack with 18 nominations for Emmys

By JERRY BUCK
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — "Hill Street Blues," NBC's gritty police drama, captured 18 Emmy nominations Thursday to lead the TV awards competition for a fourth year, while "The Day After," ABC's vision of nuclear nightmare, led NBC's bar-room comedy "Cheers" for second.

"The Day After," watched by a record audience for a TV movie, and "Cheers" received 12 nominations each as NBC — a distant third in the ratings last season — led all networks with 88 nominations.

Eight regular or guest stars of NBC's "Hill Street" received acting nominations, including Michael Conrad, who died last November. Conrad was a two-time winner for his role as the imposing but kindly Sgt. Phil Esterhaus.

Ted Danson and Daniel J. Travanti each won two best-actor nominations — for regular series and for dramatic specials. Jane Fonda, who made her TV debut, and Ann-Margret were among those locked in a tight race for best actress in a limited series or special. Eddie Murphy and Joe Piscopo of "Night Court" were two of those nominated for best variety or musical performances.

"Fame," the drama about a performing arts school which went into syndication after it was dropped by NBC, was in a three-way tie for fourth with NBC's hospital drama, "St. Elsewhere," and ABC's remake of "A Streetcar Named Desire." Each had 11 nominations.

Three nominations each went to CBS' "Cagney & Lacey," which was revived this year following audience protest of its cancellation, and to NBC's "Buffalo Bill," which received critical acclaim but low ratings and was dropped.

ABC's "Something About Amelia," the story of a family troubled by incest, picked up eight nominations, including best actor in a limited series or special for Danson as the incestuous father. Glenn Close, who played the mother, received a best actress nomination, while 14-year-old Roxana Zal, as the daughter, was nominated for best supporting actress. The show was nominated as best drama-comedy special. Danson was also nominated as best lead actor in a comedy series for his role as the womanizing bartender in "Cheers." Travanti was nominated as best actor for his role as Capt. Frank Furillo in "Hill Street" and as the father in "Adam."

Isabel Sanford, star of CBS' "The Jeffersons," and one of the nominee announcers, was overjoyed at her sixth nomination. She won three years ago as best actress in a comedy series.

"I feel great," she said Thursday. "I wasn't expecting to be nominated this year. I didn't think I'd done anything phenomenal, but I voted for myself and Sherman!"

Sherman Hemsley — co-star CBS followed NBC overall with 87 nominations, and ABC was third with 72. PBS had 30, syndicated programs got 25 and one went to Operation Prime Time, which produces special programs for independent stations.

"The Day After," about the aftermath of an atomic attack on Kansas, drew an estimated 100 million viewers when it was broadcast last November.

Lemmon recalls the old days

By CHARLES CHAMPLIN
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD—There are a couple of stories Jack Lemmon still likes to tell about his first days in Hollywood in 1953. He had just come west from New York, where he had done hundreds of hours of live television, to make his first film, "It Should Happen to You," co-starring with Judy Holiday.

JACK LEMMON.
Popular, veteran actor

Three William Morris agents, into whose care he had been entrusted by the New York office, took him to the Polo Lounge for drinks. They were dark suits and sincere lies and talked among themselves with urgent, cryptic confidence about Lew and Jules and Harry and Jack and Max and Sam and various Eddies. Lemmon listened in silence and, after an hour, excused himself to go to the loo.

He returned to the banquet where three men in dark suits and sincere lies were still talking with urgent confidence about Lew and Jules and the various Eddies. It was some time before Lemmon realized that he had inadvertently joined three different agents.

What bemuses him to this day, 30 years later, is that his own chaps did not notice that he was gone, and the three other agents were not even startled by the stranger in their midst. He never did ask who the various Eddies were.

Lemmon has often told of his first rehearsal for the film with director George Cukor. "Less, less, less!" Cukor cried after each Lemmon recitation. "Don't you want me to act at all?" Lemmon finally asked in frustration.

"Dear boy," Cukor said, "you're beginning to understand." He had not intended to stay. "I was sure my place was in the theater," Lemmon says. But he loved that first film and, working with Cukor, Judy Holiday and a Garson-Kanin script, had the feeling that he had started at the top, which was not far wrong.

In a real sense, Lemmon, despite three Oscars and a reputation as one of the most gifted and versatile actors in the business (with a range from farce to tragedy), has hardly changed at all.

He still has the excitement, spontaneity, idealism and vulnerability of the new boy in town. He has grown neither reclusive nor arrogant. He rejects roles that seem merely profitable and, unlike some of his starchy contemporaries, accepts projects that offer little, if any financial reward. Simply because he feels passionately about the importance of the material.

"Save the Tiger," made for under a million dollars, was made only because Lemmon agreed to do it for virtually nothing. His portrayal of Harry Stoner, a middle-aged businessman whose life is falling apart, is probably the best work he has ever done and earned him one of the most deserved Academy Awards in their history. It also confirmed that there is earned him his first Oscar as best supporting actor. Lemmon was one of the last of the studio contract players under a system already reeling beneath the twin assaults of television and capital-gains tax laws that made it more profitable for established stars to become independent corporations.

"I miss Harry Cohn; I miss the moguls," Lemmon says. "They were fighters and they were tough, and they had marvelous instincts based on a lot of experience." Despite the legends, Cohn was well liked fatherly to Lemmon.

Lemmon's contract called for him to do two pictures a year for Columbia but left him free to do outside films, or to do as many as four plays in his seven-year hitch.

"I never did complete those two-year commitments," Lemmon says. "I've probably still got a commitment or two over there, at a ludicrously low price." "Technically, I didn't have choice of material at the studio, but Harry never forced me to do one I didn't want to do. I'd go to him with a script and tell him the reasons I couldn't do it, would I do it well."

"He'd say, 'OK. If you don't like it, we won't get your best work out of you, so we'll forget it.' But then, Harry would say, 'Now I want you to go and tell the writer and the director what you've just told me about the script and why you don't want to do it.'"

"Boy, if you want to grow up in a hurry, just try having to do that a couple of times," Cohn, Lemmon says, treated him beautifully, possibly in part because he was impressed that Lemmon had gone to Harvard. "I'm not sure he ever really believed it. I think he called the college to double-check that I was telling the truth."

Lemmon was at some risk of being typed as a light comic actor when his friend Blake Edwards cast him in "Days of Wine and Roses."

"That was the first of the real toughies to get made," Lemmon says. "Nobody wanted it. It's a downer, everybody said. 'Who'll care about a story of two young alcoholics, with a sad ending.'"

Finally, Jack Warner agreed to take a chance on it, but only if Blake would give it an upbeat ending. Blake swore he would. But we shot the original ending and the next day I flew to Paris and left an forwarding address, so they couldn't find me. Then Warner saw it all together and said, 'OK, leave it; otherwise, they're just walking off into the blanking sun.'"

What marks all the best work Lemmon has done are some trace elements of the man himself, some perceived traits that as clown or tragic figure, the persona within the character is likable, decent, intelligent, vulnerable, worth knowing; disorganized possibly, flawed almost certainly, but forever worth knowing.

Some blend of the actor and the character is best," Lemmon agrees. "You can't always say where or why the mood happens, but it does. You can't hide yourself totally even if you try."

Council

"We're just not going to close the door to any possibility." Temporarily, the arts council is using the old Ketchum City Hall on Main Street for performances, which the city has offered to lease to the council for location of a permanent facility. However, the old building is inadequate and must be replaced to meet performers' needs, she says.

The arts council recently conducted two studies that Severn says have established the need for a permanent performing arts center in Blaine County.

The first study concluded that at least a 300-seat performing arts center is needed in the county to service the existing arts community. Severn says the arts community is rapidly expanding and an even larger facility eventually will be needed.

The second study said the arts

now plays an "important and growing economic role in Blaine County."

The Ketchum City Hall site and land owned by the Sun Valley Center will be among the sites evaluated by the council in the study, Severn says. The Sun Valley Center's land is designated exclusively for arts-related uses.

In the past, artists have used the old Ketchum City Hall, the valley's movie theaters, the Sun Valley Center Gallery in Ketchum and the Wood River High School auditorium for performances. However, Severn says they are either inadequate or available only on a limited basis.

She says one study showed that a performing arts facility could be used up to a minimum of five nights a week at the level of the performing arts now in the community.

Spielberg returns to TV via 'Amazing Stories'

By JAY SHARBUTT
The Los Angeles Times

HOLLYWOOD — Steven Spielberg, who began in TV and went on to direct such film hits as "Indiana Jones and the Temple of Doom," "E.T.," and the first "Jaws," is returning to the medium as executive producer of "Amazing Stories," a new half-hour series that will premiere on NBC in the fall of 1985.

The prime-time program was announced Monday by NBC and Universal Television. Universal, with whom Spielberg began his career in 1968, is co-producing the series with its production company, Amblin Entertainment.

Although spokesmen for NBC and Universal said that they had no idea what the new show would be about, it was described by the head of Universal's parent company as an anthology series, with each segment having a self-contained plot.

"As the show's title says, it's going to be amazing stories of the type only Steven can do," said Al Rush, president of the MCA Television Group. He said that there no pilot is at present to have a host for the series.

Rush conceded that some may compare Spielberg's "Stories" to the late Rod Serling's "Twilight Zone" or Serling's supernatural "Night Gallery" series.
