Hearing set for Blackfoot pair

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — A Blackfoot couple was ordered held without bond Monday pending an Aug. 14 preliminary hearing on charges of first-degree murder for the death of a newborn baby whose body was found in a trash dumpster near an Idaho Falls motel three weeks ago.

Cindy Rae Schlickiser, 21, and Ervin Val Parsons, 28, both of rural Blackfoot, appeared before 7th District Judge William Black in Idaho Falls following their arrest Monday at a motel in Idaho.

Idaho Falls Police Detective Sgt. Roger Smart said warrants were issued for the two last Thursday.

The infant was found dead by a janitor July 17 in a dumpster near the Westbank Quality Inn. The death aroused wide-spread indignation when an autopsy determined the eight-pound boy was full-term, healthy at the time of death and had lived about 24 hours before being strangled.

Burton to receive Swiss burial

CELIGNY, Switzerland (AP) — Actor Richard Burton will be buried Thursday in private ceremonies in Switzerland rather than in his native Wales, a family friend said Monday.

Brooke Williams told reporters at Burton's villa in this small village that the funeral would be held in the local Presbyterian church, but that a time had yet to be set.

Elizabeth Taylor, who was married twice to Burton was not expected to attend the funeral for the actor who died of a massive brain hemorrhage Sunday at the age of 58, according to Burton's longtime agent Valerie Douglas.

A spokeswoman for Miss Taylor in California said she was too stricken to comment.

Jackson concerts will be held

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Promoters of three Michael Jackson concerts here decided Monday night to hold the events, reversing a decision to postpone them because death threats against the lives of Jackson and his brothers were received, officials said.

Typewritten letters containing death threats and racial slurs against the Jacksons were received or obtained Monday by both the Knoxville Journal and the Knoxville News-Sentinel.

Although publicists for the Jacksons' national "Victory" tour refused to confirm the death threats were received they said in a statement "security considerations" was the reason the concerts were postponed.

Last night however, national promoters of the tour said they would go on as scheduled this weekend.

Amtrak train hits auto, 2 die

COLUMBIA FALLS, Mont. (AP) — A westbound Amtrak train struck an automobile that had gone through a railroad crossing Monday night, killing both people in the car, authorities said.

No one was hurt in the train, the Empire Builder, which stayed on the tracks, said Corky Derby to a spokeswoman for the Flathead County Sheriff's Office.

The collision occurred at 9:40 p.m. MDT in the Vetville area on the west side of this northwestern Montana town of 24,100 people.

According to three witnesses, the arms were down at the railroad crossing and the warning lights were flashing, but the car went around the arms and collided with the train, Ms. Derby said.

"As far as we know, no one in the train was hurt," she said.

The Empire Builder was en route from Chicago to Seattle.

Last month, 11 people were killed in five separate incidents involving Amtrak trains.

'Dignity' of migrants defended

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid opened a U.N. conference on population growth Monday by raising the issue of illegal Mexican migration to the United States. "The human dignity of migrants cannot be waived," he said.

About 3,000 delegates and observers from 140 countries are registered for the week-long conference at the Fine Arts Palace.

De la Madrid did not specifically mention legislation in the U.N. Congress that would affect millions of Mexicans living as illegal aliens in America, but said: "Whether it concerns our citizens in our own country, or abroad, or foreigners in our country, the human dignity of migrants cannot be waived."

Panda adept though baby dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saddened that the pregnancy of giant panda Ling-Ling ended in a stillbirth, National Zoo officials found solace Monday in the panda's maternal behavior and sought an explanation for her cub's death.

The delivery seemed normal but the five-ounce male showed no signs of movement and did not cry after it was born at 10:34 p.m. Sunday, zoo officials said.

Ling-Ling cradled the baby and licked it, maternal behavior that encouraged zoo officials, who were concerned the cub would die.

Infant, she said.

Zoo spokeswoman Leslie Horing said a preliminary autopsy showed a normally formed and developed cub, but some bleeding was found in the lungs.

another section represented the nuclear (re)power in arenas today.

Twenty-nine protesters were arrested on trespassing charges when they went over or under the fence, depot spokesman Robert Zemanek said.

In St. Paul, Minn., 13 women were arrested when they lay in front of a truck trying to leave a Sperry Corp. plant, which they said manufactures nuclear weapons parts. They were among 150 people attending a rally organized by a women's peace camp stationed nearby.

Four members of the environmental protest group Greenpeace sailed across New York Harbor before dawn and climbed scaffolding surrounding the Statue of Liberty, unfurling a huge banner calling for an end to nuclear weapons testing. After clinging to their perch for five hours, they came down and were arrested.

Six people were arrested during a demonstration at the General Electric Space Center at King of Prussia, Pa. The six, who were among about 20 people demonstrating outside the plant, were cited for criminal trespass, officials said. The plant was chosen because GE is the nation's fourth largest military contractor, said the Rev. Dean Snyder of the Brandywine Peace Community.

About 50 demonstrators, including World War II veterans, gathered outside Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Fairborn, Ohio, for a silent 90-minute vigil.

"It seemed like an appropriate thing to do on the anniversary of the bombing of Hiroshima," said Walter Reeves, 66, an Air Force veteran who took part in the World War II firebombing of Dresden, Germany.

A Methodist minister and a dozen other demonstrators handed out leaflets in downtown Detroit and said they planned to continue noontime activities through Thursday, the anniversary of the follow-up atomic bombing of Nagasaki, which brought Japan to surrender.

Some 50 demonstrators lay on the floor at a shopping concourse at the Pentagon in Washington, pretending to be victims of a nuclear attack, candidates, Mondale said, that he was willing to make his stand publicly while Reagan was not.

Reagan responded at a news conference that he has no plans for a tax increase. He quickly added, however, that "you would have to look at the tax structure" if the deficit persists "after all our best efforts" to reduce federal spending.

Vice President George Bush repeated that point while answering reporters' questions Sunday in Seattle. "We are not going to raise taxes — not income taxes. We want to keep the recovery going," he said.

Questioned again Monday about Reagan's plans on taxes, Bush said, "I would think any president would keep his options open on this or other things. We are going to struggle not to do that — raise taxes."

Reagan, meanwhile, again denied having any "secret plan" to raise taxes as Mondale charged.

"I said it before and I'll say it again," Reagan told reporters Monday. "No matter how many of you try to put in a hedging line, we have no plan for, nor will I allow, plans for a tax increase."

There is a great deal of agreement among economists, business leaders and politicians that spending cuts and economic growth alone will not produce sufficient reductions in the deficit, and that a tax increase will be necessary in 1985. But some Reagan loyalists come down squarely on the other side of the debate.

growth rates that we are assuming," Larry Speakes, deputy White House press secretary, said in Santa Barbara, Calif. "We will be putting out our own mid-year economic review the latter part of this week and it will project much lower deficits."

He said the administration's review was late because of unspecified "technical reviews" and because officials wanted "to get the second Federal Reserve Board's announced policy.

"Interest rates are expected to remain high this year, and then to move down slowly during 1985, while inflation is projected to rise moderately next year, because the favorable impact of an appreciating dollar is expected to diminish."

CBO cautioned that even without a major tightening of the money supply, "the tension between (fiscal tax- and spending) and monetary policy will persist and could combine with growing private demands for credit to bring about higher interest rates than (previously) forecast by CBO."

Today's weather

Sunnier skies, warmer temperatures

Twin Falls, Burley-Rupert, Jerome-Gooding.

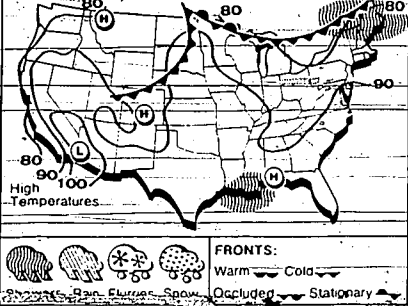

Sunny and warmer today and Wednesday except isolated afternoon thundershowers over the mountains on Wednesday. Lows tonight to 40. Highs today 83 to 87 and Wednesday 87 to 91.

Northern Nevada and northern Utah: Northern Utah forecasts partly cloudy today, while northern Nevada indicates sunny and warm days through Wednesday.

Camas Prairie and the lower Wood River Valley: Fair and warmer today. Highs near 80. Lows 60 to 65. Sunny Wednesday except for the chance of an afternoon mountain thundershower. Warmer with highs 85 to 90.

Shelby: Cooler and drier air spread across Idaho Monday in the wake of a Pacific frontal system. High pressure will reside over Idaho both today and Wednesday with only isolated shower or thunder activity in the southern portion of the state.

The Forecast / 8 p.m. EDT, Tuesday, August 7

Southern Idaho was a bit warmer with readings uniformly in the 80s. Highest for the state Monday was Caldwell with a temperature of 88 degrees.

Radar and satellite information shows a few thundershowers are developing in eastern and southeastern Idaho. These showers are expected to dissipate rapidly after sunset. Skies should be mostly sunny statewide both today and Wednesday with a warming trend once again.

The extended forecast for southern Idaho shows fair Thursday through Saturday with temperatures near normal. Highs in the 80s to low 90s. Lows in the upper 40s to 50s.

The agricultural outlook for southern Idaho indicates that precipitation over the next five days will be limited to a few mountain thundershowers. Valleys are expected to remain dry with conditions for the cutting and drying of hay and small grains being good. Light morning dew is expected each day near sunrise, drying by 9 a.m. Daily pan evaporation rates will be between 3 and 4 tenths of an inch. Winds for spraying will be variable 6 to 10 mph both today and Wednesday.

FAA announces plan to cut congestion in the airways

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration, trying to blunt criticism that it isn't doing enough to reduce airway congestion and flight delays, announced plans Monday for new computer equipment and said it is reviewing whether more controllers might be needed to direct traffic.

But FAA Administrator Donald Engen cautioned that flight delays are not expected to ease soon in parts of the country such as the Northeast where the airways are heavily traveled.

"I don't see quick improvement in the Northeast sector," Engen told a news conference.

He gave no indication that the FAA had made progress in convincing airlines that they should change their scheduling to reduce delays. Likewise, he said the FAA has no plans to allow more airborne "holding" of aircraft, which the industry says is needed to ease the delays.

Engen said he has planned meetings with the chief executive officers of most of the airlines later this month in Denver and Atlanta to discuss FAA air traffic control plans, the flight delay problem and whether airlines can shift schedules to ease congestions.

The FAA has acknowledged that the number of delays has increased sharply since the first of the year and over comparative periods a year ago because of greater demand for air travel, a concentration of flights during peak hours and continued restrictions on the aircraft flow.

While Engen said the airlines have been "very cooperative" on the delay issue, other FAA officials have complained that the industry is most at fault for the delays because they try to crowd too many flights into popular travel periods and into busy airports.

Engen in the past has said the airlines should re-schedule some of their flights, but he acknowledged Monday that the carriers face possible antitrust problems if they attempt to do so.

The air carriers have said they are prohibited from shifting schedules without antitrust immunity. Airline officials also have made clear that they are reluctant to move flights away from peak periods unilaterally for fear of losing business.

Engen said he and Transportation Secretary Elizabeth Dole are pursuing the antitrust question, but he declined to go into detail.

Meanwhile, the FAA announced it had taken 20 new initiatives aimed at easing the flow of air traffic, including the installation of new computer equipment and software to allow controllers to manage aircraft more efficiently.

Feds to inspect Amtrak operation after rash of railroad accidents

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government, reacting to a rash of passenger-railroad accidents in which 11 people were killed last month, announced Monday an in-depth examination of Amtrak's operations and a nationwide inspection of tracks used by the railroad.

John Riley, head of the Federal Railroad Administration, said inspectors will concentrate on examining Amtrak's dispatching and signaling procedures along the Boston-Washington Northeast Corridor, where more than half of the railroad's passengers travel.

In addition, Riley said a special car that detects track misalignments will be used to make a close check of the more than 22,000 miles of track used by Amtrak trains nationwide. Most of that track is owned and maintained by other railroads.

But Riley acknowledged that the new actions may uncover little that could have prevented the accidents last month. Three of those crashes involved railroad crossing accidents and another has been attributed to a sudden rail washout during flash flooding.

Riley, joined at a news conference by Amtrak Chairman W. Graham Claytor, said the investigation is not a top-notch operation but that the recent accidents warranted closer examination of Amtrak's rules and procedures.

Claytor welcomed the investigation, saying, "I am satisfied that we are running the safest railroad in the United States." He promised total cooperation with federal officials in their inspections, which are expected to last three to six weeks.

Amtrak over the years has been praised by transportation safety experts, who say railroads generally provide the safest mode of travel. But in July, an unusual rash of fatal accidents plagued the government-subsidized passenger line.

The investigation marks the derailment of Amtrak's Montrealer on July 7 in Vermont when a ravine crossing washed out during a sudden storm. Investigators have said a faulty radio system prevented the crew from being warned of the severe weather conditions.

Toy recall legislation approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House passed by voice vote Monday a bill enabling the Consumer Product Safety Commission to recall dangerous toys or other articles used by children as quickly as it recalls other hazardous products.

Currently, the commission can recall most defective consumer products as soon as it is determined that a product poses a substantial risk of injury to consumers.

But toys and other articles used by children, such as cribs, playpens and walkers, are subject to more cumbersome and time-consuming recall procedures under the Federal Hazardous Substances Act.

Under the FISA, the safety commission has to sue to get a recall banning the toy before it can be recalled. This banning procedure often takes two to three years.

The legislation would permit a recall of toys or other children's articles as soon as the CPSC determines they pose a substantial risk of injury.

Similar legislation, which is supported by the Reagan administration, is pending in the Senate.

Seventeen toy-related deaths were reported to the commission in 1982.

Company shuts down copper plant

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phelps Dodge Corp., plagued by a 13-month strike and falling copper prices, said Monday it was closing one of its major operations and laying off 500 workers for at least three months.

The furloughs will begin Sunday at the company's mine and mill at Ajo, officials said.

"The announcement didn't come as a surprise, we're surprised they stayed open this long," said Alex Lopez of the United Steelworkers, chief negotiator for a 13-union coalition.

Remaining on the job at Ajo would be about 350 employees, including 115 who will continue operating the smelter, some salaried employees and some maintenance and repair workers, Phelps Dodge said.

Phelps Dodge, the nation's second largest copper producer, behind Kennecott Corp., has continued to operate since the strike began July 1, 1983, using non-strikers and new hires.

As a town, Ajo is a wholly owned subsidiary of Phelps Dodge Corp. It has no city council, no mayor — no local government other than the corporation. Water and electricity are supplied by the company, which owns most houses and other buildings in the community of 5,400 about 40 miles north of the Mexican border.

De Lorean trial sees final arguments

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean was portrayed by a prosecutor as "the architect of his own destruction" but by a defense lawyer as "a victim of the people whose duty it was to arrest him" as the two sides presented closing arguments Monday at his cocaine conspiracy trial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Robert Perry projected videotapes on a large screen as he urged the U.S. District Court jury to convict De Lorean, who he said needed money from the alleged cocaine distribution deal to finance his auto company in Northern Ireland.

Perry argued that the government "sting" that led to De Lorean's arrest was "creative narcotics enforcement, nothing else."

Defense lawyer Donald Re, beginning his arguments, responded: "The evidence will show De Lorean was manipulated, was maneuvered and was conned."

"John De Lorean in this case was a victim, a victim of the people whose duty it was to protect him from criminal activity," Re said.

Re urged jurors to consider entrapment, but only as a secondary defense for De Lorean, who is charged with conspiring to distribute $24 million worth of cocaine. If convicted on all counts he could face 67 years in prison.

"Our position is he didn't commit a crime. There was no agreement," Re said. "However, if the government so proved, it is our position he was a victim of entrapment."

Urging jurors to condemn the government's actions in the case, Re called the Olympics under way in Los Angeles and said, "Each of us has a right to be proud of what happens in this country."

"John De Lorean is entitled, according to the facts in this case, to be found not guilty," Re concluded. "You are the only people left who can right the wrong done in this case—the only people who can set the system before the case goes to the jury."

In the midst of Re's argument—a hastily recess was called when De Lorean's wife, model Cristina Ferrarelli Howard Weltzman, and a rare, was taken ill and a nurse was finally by prosecutor James Walsh summoned.

More kids reporting sex cases

NEW YORK (AP) — Eighteen more children have reported being sexually molested in a day care center, raising the total to 37 with scores yet to be questioned, officials said Monday.

"The more they talk to, the more they're coming up with," said Edward McCarthy, spokesman for District Attorney Mario Merola, terming the cases isolated by investigators so far "the tip of the iceberg, only."

McCarthy said the children, aged 4 to 6, raised only the names of the three PRACA Day Care Center employees arrested Thursday on sexual abuse charges. Two were being held in protective seclusion, the third was free on $15,000 bail.

The center reopened Monday under police guard and city supervision, but just nine of the 135 children enrolled showed up. Angry parents had surrounded the center and broken windows after the arrests.

Snail darter status drops to threatened

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The snail darter on Monday lost its status as an endangered species, a designation cited by environmentalists to hold up a $130 million dam project on a river where the three-inch fish was discovered.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service officially downgraded the snail darter from endangered to threatened, as officials said the reclassification reflects its newfound proliferation.

"The fish doesn't merit the endangered status. That's not to say it's on the rebound. It just means we're more informed on where it is," said David Clinger, a spokesman for the agency in Washington, D.C.

Do you get cold sores? Or canker sores, if that's what they're called. Some medicines say they're linked to anxiety. Or at least, sometimes. Emotional stress turns loose the virus, they insist.

Prison is no place for a young man, true, but its population is long on young men, nonetheless. Take New York State's prisons. Fifteen percent of the inmates are between 16 and 20. And 72.7 percent are between 21 and 39. Always a lot of argument about whether punishment deters crime. Don't know, but something does. Otherwise, the prisons would be top-heavy with old men, not young. Crime is something men can outgrow, evidently.

Report: Sakharov still in hospital, wife charged

MOSCOW (AP) — Disident Andrei Sakharov has ended his hunger strike but is being held in a hospital in Gorky, sources in Moscow said Monday. They said his wife, Yelena Bonner, has been formally charged with crimes punishable by up to three years at hard labor.

The sources, friends of the Sakharovs who spoke on condition they not be named, said Sakharov had ended his fast, which he began May 8, in an effort to win permission for his wife to go to the West for medical treatment. They did not know when he called it off.

The 1975 Nobel Peace Prize winner "is well," and is being held in a hospital in Gorky, a city 240 miles east of Moscow that is closed to foreigners, the sources said.

They said they based their information on a brief communication Sunday with Mrs. Bonner, who had not been heard from since mid-May when she reported by telegram that Sakharov was taken from their home by authorities and put in a hospital.

U.S. raps Soviet treatment of visitors

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department accused the Soviet Union on Monday of gross violations of its consular agreement with the United States and warned American travelers to Leningrad they may be subjected to harassment, detention and "embarrassing searches."

"This is a dangerous attitude for the Leningrad authorities to take," said Alan Romberg, the department's deputy spokesman. "And it is one which is clearly in gross violation of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Consular Convention... We consider it a serious matter."

"The Soviet authorities have not responded in a satisfactory manner to our urgent requests that they act immediately to correct this situation," Romberg said, adding that the problems in Leningrad have been particularly severe.

The spokesman commented in issuing a travelers advisory warning

Americans planning to visit Leningrad that "their rights as foreign tourists and the protections afforded them under the U.S.-U.S.S.R. Consular Convention are not being respected by the Soviet authorities."

"There have been several cases of unlawful detention of tourists by the Soviet security organs following innocent contact with Soviet citizens," Romberg said.

He said that while detained, the Americans were denied their rights under the consular agreement to communicate with an American consular officer and to be visited by such an officer "without delay."

"American tourists also have been subjected to arbitrary, and in many cases unjustified, embarrassing searches of their personal effects when arriving or departing from Leningrad's International Airport," Romberg said.

Shamir, Peres to continue talks

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israel's Prime Minister-designate Shimon Peres and Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir agreed Monday to keep trying to work out a power-sharing formula for a joint government.

Officials of the Shamir's Likud bloc indicated that Shamir had not given up the idea of being prime minister, even though President Chaim Herzog has asked Peres to form a government.

Herzog appealed for a national unity coalition after both Peres and Shamir became deadlocked to get a parliamentary majority on their own after last month's inconclusive elections.

The Likud officials suggested the least Shamir would settle for was a premiership rotating between Labor and Likud leadership.

After Monday's talks, Peres said he believed Shamir would honor Herzog's decision Sunday to appoint Peres to form a government, but gave no indication Shamir had agreed to join a Peres-led government.

"I don't think the Likud will continue" to challenge Herzog's decision, Peres told reporters.

Gaffes hurt Canadian PM

TORONTO (AP) — Prime Minister John Turner's campaign has been battered by top-level disension, unfavorable poll results and Turner's own gaffes, giving a boost to opposition leader Brian Mulroney just four weeks before Canada's Sept. 4 election.

Turner, who succeeded fellow Liberal Pierre Elliott Trudeau on June 30, called an election barely a week later, encouraged by polls that put his party about 10 points ahead of Mulroney's Progressive Conservatives.

Since then, almost nothing has gone right for Turner. The latest blows came back-to-back over the weekend, which was a three-day break in most of Canada, with and Aug. 6 holiday.

First a poll commissioned by CTV, a private television network, gave the Tories a 45-36 lead over the Liberals among decided voters, with 17 percent favoring the left-of-center New Democrats.

Then on Saturday, Turner's nat that put his party about 10 points ahead of Mulroney's Progressive Conservatives.

Jews mourn temple's destruction

JERUSALEM (AP) — The faithful of Jerusalem prayed at the Wall Monday on the annual day of mourning for the destruction of Jerusalem's ancient Jewish temple and the internal conflicts that contributed to its downfall.

"I trust that the memory of the disaster which befell our nation this week some 1900 years ago in this city, because of polarization and hatred, will strengthen us," said President Chaim Herzog on Sunday as he appointed Labor Party leader Shimon Peres to form a government.

Herzog asked Labor Party leader Peres to form a government of national unity with the Likud bloc of caretaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir to bridge the divisions that plague Israel and led to July 23 elections in which neither of the two major parties won a clear majority.

Tisha B'av, the ninth day of the Jewish lunar month of Av, is the greatest day of mourning in the Jewish calendar.

Siamese twins well after operation

By MICHAEL WHITE
The Associated Press

Prisoner overpowers guard, then escapes

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A Utah State Prison inmate remained at large Monday after overpowering a guard during an examination at the University of Utah Medical Center and then stealing a motorcycle, authorities said.

Ronnie Lee Gardner overpowered his guard and took the guard's weapon after a doctor requested that Gardner's shackles removed for the medical examination, said Paul Sheffield, assistant director of the state Department of Corrections.

Another guard outside the examination room was unable to shoot at the fleeing Gardner because bystanders were in the way, Sheffield said.

Gardner later abducted a man near downtown Salt Lake City, traded clothes with him and took the man's motorcycle, Sheffield said. He said the victim was found tied up at about 150 South and Ninth East.

Sheffield said the hostage whose identity was not available, was "roughed up," but the extent of his injuries were not known.

Gardner was serving time in the prison at Draper for robbery and burglary convictions. His visit to the medical center was his third for treatment of problems with nausea and vomiting, Sheffield said.

SALT LAKE CITY — Five-month-old Siamese twins joined at the tops of their heads were "faring well" Monday following the fifth in a series of operations aimed at separating them, a spokesman for the University of Utah Medical Center said.

Hospital spokesman John Dwan said if no complications ensued in the aftermath of Monday's three-hour operation, actual separation of the girls would take place the first or second week of September.

"They weathered it well. They are faring well," Dwan said after the surgery.

The twins, known publicly only as Ashley and Patricia, went into the operating room at 8:30 a.m. for surgery to insert skin extenders — silicon bags that gradually will be filled with antibiotic fluid — to stretch the skin over their skulls.

Dwan said the purpose of the extenders is to provide enough skin to cover the tops of the girls' heads when they eventually are separated. He said the procedure will take about five weeks to complete.

"The skin quite a bit so they will have enough to cover the top of their heads," Dwan said. "So I think we're ready now as soon as we can get the skin stretched."

The operation was performed by plastic surgeons Clifford C. Snyder and Louis Morales. The skin extenders originally were scheduled to be inserted last week. But the operation was postponed after tests indicated the twins suffered low white blood cell counts.

Dwan said the date of the final separation "will depend on how the girls, born March 9 to a Utah couple stationed at an Air Force base in Southern California, recover from the plastic surgery." But he said the plastic surgery is less dangerous than previous operations, which involved separation of other, minor blood vessels and some brain tissue.

He said the final surgery might include separation of other, minor blood vessels and some brain tissue.

Roberts headed the surgical team which separated twins Lisa and Elisa Hansen in 1979.

Auditor says state income on the rise

BOISE (AP) — State revenue is running higher than expected in the first month of Idaho's new budget year, state Auditor Joe Williams says.

Officials, headed by Gov. John Evans, feared state revenue would fall during fiscal 1985, which began July 1. Evans ordered state agencies last month to cut spending by 3 percent to meet the expected shortfall.

But Williams said Monday that the state general fund received more than $40 million last month. That's far ahead of the 1983 tax collection of just under $30 million.

Williams said all classes of revenue were up, but sales tax collections apparently made up the bulk of the increase.

A detailed breakdown of the tax revenue collections "would not be available for a few days from the state Tax Commission, he said.

Husband's other wife came as shock

DEAR ABBY: I am writing about my long and painful experience as the "wife" of a Filipino immigrant. I met this charming man, fell in love with him, and was courted by him for over a year before he married me in a church wedding.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Now I find out that my "husband" is married to a Filipino woman who is the mother of many children by him. She and her entire family knew that he had entered into a marriage with me, but they kept his secret so his wife in the Philippines could continue to get the money he sends her for their children's education. He promised to support her forever in return for her silence.

Abby, have you any words of wisdom on the responsibilities of grandparents?
— WAITING IN LYNCHBURG, VA.

DEAR WAITING: No, Bill! I have a few words of wisdom for you. Although some grandparents consider it a privilege to baby-sit their grandchildren, all the responsibilities of child care belong to the parents. So quit "teasing" your father about how you expect him to baby-sit and he won't have to tell you "jokingly" not to count on him.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I were married recently. We had both been married to former spouses for over 40 years; owned our own homes and had accumulated a lot of household goods. We both sold our large homes, got rid of most of our stuff and moved into a small apartment.

We invited friends and relatives to our wedding to help us celebrate our joy. We requested "no gifts" because we didn't want anything, didn't need anything, and have no room for more.

"things" in our apartment. Everyone gave us a gift! Most of the things had to be given away. We received our wedding invitation, reproduced in different ways from eight guests. We received three wedding samplers, done in needlework, litigious enrolls and lots of ornamental brie-a-brac we have no room for. It really spoiled our day.

Abby, please tell people that when "no gifts" is stated, to please respect the wishes of the guests of honor, as they have good reason for that request. Thank you.

DEAR BRIDE: People who give gifts out of the goodness of their hearts cannot — and should not — be dissuaded. Quietly dispose of whatever you don't want. One woman's trash is another woman's treasure.

A cliffhanger: same time, same newspaper

There was a time when the last column I wrote before my vacation was nothing to bring you to the edge of your seat about. I just did my usual thing and then added, "See all of you readers in three weeks."

Emma Bombeck
At wit's end

Then television came up with a perfect solution to hanging onto its audience throughout the summer: the cliffhanger.

As for "Dallas," the production company was so protective over which one was sitting in J.R.'s chair when it was riddled with bullets in the final episode, they filmed four versions of it with all the principals in the hot seat.

People couldn't eat during the summer months wondering who shot J.R., and there wasn't a day went by when someone wasn't calling the studios begging to know who'd be next in line for "Dynasty." (And that was only the cast.)

Which brings me to my last column before I break for three weeks. You're going to have to help me here, folks. If there's a picture at the top of this column, block it out in your mind and substitute a dazzling woman of 50 or so wearing bright red lipstick and a large-brimmed hat, who has just stored a column in her computer terminal that Art Buchwald, Andy Rooney and Russel Baker would know for.

This year, they've done it again. We have Philip and Angela from "Falcon Crest," whose plane went down and we don't know which one of them bought the farm. There is a rumor that it was Philip, who really liked working steady and may just show up at his own funeral this agent Foul play has already been attempted. The wheels of my shopping cart locked unexpectedly last Wednesday. My mother was held captive for five hours by an Amway salesman. My tire went flat in front of a drive-in bank window and I was nearly stoned to death by those behind me.

Joneses' 50th anniversary slated

FILER — Mr. and Mrs. Jess G. Jones will be honored at an open house Sunday in observance of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Jess Jones

Friends and relatives are invited to call between 2 and 4 p.m. at the Filer Senior Haven.

The couple was married Aug. 3, 1934 in Glasgow, Mo., and came to Idaho in 1937. They have lived in the Magic Valley since then.

Jenningses observe 65th

TWIN FALLS — Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Jennings celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary July 22 with a family picnic at their home in Twin Falls.

The event will be hosted by their children: Bobby Jones of Filer; Jack Jones of Kimberly, and Mrs. Jim Skene of Twin Falls, and their spouses. The couple has eight grandchildren — and two great-grandchildren.

The couple was married July 26, 1919, at Beaver City, Neb., coming to Idaho the following year. They farmed near Jerome until moving to Twin Falls in August 1930. They have lived here since.

Jennings worked for the city of Twin Falls for 11 years and was a ditch rider when he retired in 1962. They have five children, Edna Owens, Wenatchee, Wash.; Helen Hand, Twin Falls; Mildred Gilman, Dexter, Ore.; Melvin Jennings and Carroll Jennings, both Twin Falls; 15 grandchildren, 37 great-grandchildren and 11 great-great-grandchildren.

Wallpapering pointers offered

By BARBARA MAYER, Associated Press
You've decided to put up wallpaper, but with so many sample books on the market and wall coverings steadily growing in popularity, the choices can be rather dizzying.

Country, floral, big scale, little scale, vinyl or grasscloth: How do you choose?

Lyn Peterson, president of Motif Designs, a wall covering producer, advises using common sense and following some basic guidelines.

First, she says, research your room. Consider the room's function and the amount of time the family will spend in it. Is it a primary room like a master bedroom or kitchen? Or is it a secondary space, like a guest bathroom that is not used so frequently?

For primary rooms, she recommends colors and patterns that are easy to look at and live with. Save the bold adventurous styles for secondary rooms and passageways.

Next, consider color. The entry of the sun into the room is an important consideration when selecting colors. Bold, bright colors tend to become harsh in bright sunlight. Strong contrasts are more effective in dim light.

"Don't decorate a space you haven't lived in — or at least visited at 9 a.m., 12 noon and 3 p.m. on sunny and cloudy days," says Ms. Peterson. Personal tastes also should influence color selection. Take a look in your closet. If there is no green in the wardrobe, chances are good that you won't be happy with it on your walls.

One more tip: Warm colors tend to bring a wall in and make a room feel warm and cozy. Cool colors give a sense of expansion.

Measuring carefully is the next step. To know how much wallpaper to buy, you have to measure accurately. A good rule of thumb, says Ms. Peterson, is to measure the distance around the room. Treat doors and windows as if they didn't exist and include them in the measurements.

Rock music, aquarium fish make agitating combination

By ZAN THOMPSON
The Los Angeles Times

I like music, almost every kind. Piano late on a rainy night at the end of a love affair. Or at the beginning.

Flamenco guitar, preferably in Spain, or barring that, anywhere there is a turntable.

Andre Segovia building a heartbreak of smoky chords at the age of 67, still working, still playing with ice pick precision and quick runs like a springtime brook.

I like gospel singing and Dixieland, high school bands and alma mater hymns. The Mormon Tabernacle Choir and the Clamoke Seven. Great music making it's wicked, whirling sound through misty trees, though that's hard to come by now, satyrs and centaurs having fallen on lean times and Pan himself consigned to backyard plaster statuary along with gnomes and ducklings in threes.

I am not much for opera with the exception of Madame Butterfly and probably only familiarly and the teary plot make me like her.

I am not much for Wagner even though he provides the only times when performers can wear breast-plates and those great helmets with the horns.

It's good news that the University of California, Los Angeles, is looking for a new school song although I never thought "By the Blue Pacific's" "Rolling Water," sounded like "On Wisconsin," until it was mentioned in the paper.

But as generous as George and Ira Gershwin were when they gave "Strike Up the Band" to UCLA, it has never been quite right. Kind of like a picture of the Grand Canyon by moonlight painted by your aunt which you can never quite throw away because of the sweet thought behind it.

I also like concertinas and harmonicas by a campfire and life and drum corps. What I do not like is that high decibel rock that is deafening a generation and driving their elders to surliness and behavior. Especially, I do not like it at eight o'clock in the morning.

However, that is what happened to me the other morning. Dear little thing that I am, I had volunteered to drive my friend, Kay Murphy, to the dentist. She was going to have two wisdom teeth removed and had been told that she would need a ride home,

Commentary

Inasmuch as the anesthetic would send her to farthest Hoo-Hoo Land in a few minutes, a lady came into the waiting room, left Kay away and left me with the "Jack and Jill" magazines. Unfortunately, they were issues I had already seen and I soon became more of a low-level rock music. It made the small waiting room horrible with sound.

The speaker was a small box faced with fabric, sitting on a top book shelf. Below the shelf was an aquarium of obviously deaf fish, swimming back and forth.

The lady had disappeared behind the sliding window. I walked over and looked at the speaker thinking perhaps it had a volume control knob on the side. They never do.

But near the aquarium was a dial. Maybe it was connected to the speaker. I turned it about half a turn. The fish began to run back and forth like they were in a feeding frenzy.

Either I had changed them with an electrical current which might electrocute the poor things or I had rolled the water some way.

I sat down with "Jack and Jill," watching the fish whiz around while my conscience gnawed at me. I finally went up to the lady's closed sliding window. Why do they keep the window closed; do you suppose? What are they doing in there?

I tapped softly on the glass with my fingernails and the lady opened the window a slit and peered out; the way they do in Edward G. Robinson movies about men named Rocco.

"Could you please come look at your fish?" I asked.

"My fish?" she said. It was a conversation with no future. I had to explain the whole thing, how I did not like hard rock music and had turned the dial.

She came over and touched my shoulders like a woman sorely put upon and came out of her cage and around the corner into the waiting room.

"Oh, you just gave them some food," she said. And went back behind her shuttered window.

In a half hour, a nurse came out and asked if I wanted to come back and talk to my friend Kay who was waking up. I went into a small room where my normally ebullient friend was cuddled on a cot. She fluttered her eyes and I said, "Can you walk?"

"I don't know. I haven't tried," said the patient.

"I think we should go. I got in trouble with the fish."

Kay looked at me with kind of a detached benevolence. Still partially in the seductive embrace of the anesthetic. "Fish?" she asked. I was surprised that she didn't understand the situation instantly because she is normally very quick.

We left as soon as possible and I took her home and after a while, I went up the hill to my own house. I could not exercise the fish. Suppose I had given them too much food? Suppose my turn of the dial had set in motion some computerized device in Des Moines that was part of a nationwide network and my fish were going themselves on a constant flood of mana from the top of the tank. The fish would become obese and unable to swim properly and, oh, god, die.

Or the equally horrible alternative. The timer was thrown out of kilter by my wilding and they were being fed nothing, turning into skeleton fish, their normally bulging eyes sinking back in their heads.

Finally, I could stand it no longer and I called the dentist's office.

"Could you please go look at your fish and see if they're all right?"

I heard her say off-receiver, "Get this. Some woman wants to know if the fish are all right."

I tried to explain that I am a bird-and-bunny person and would not want to cause the fish any trouble. She said, "I'll look."

Then she returned and said the fish seemed fine. And that is the end of the story except do you really think the lady behind the window showed enough concern? Are those fish swinging wildly between starvation and obesity?

Actually, I don't care much about fish but I am emotionally involved with those stupid feds. That's no life, anyway, living in a dentist's office under a speaker playing "The Grateful Dead" at least the window lady doesn't know my name and Kay is true blue. She'll never tell. She's a loyal friend and, when occasion demands as silent as a well, as a fish.

King Carl passes up history

CARL LEWIS
Two down, two to go

By HAL BOCK
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — It took considerably longer this time, but Carl Lewis, boosted by a crowd hoping to see a world record, captured his second gold medal of the 1984 Olympic Games Monday, winning the long jump easily.

On Saturday, Lewis began his assault on the four events in which he is entered by capturing the 100-meter dash. It took him just 9.9 seconds to get that job done.

He spent much more time on the track Monday night as a dozen long jumpers battled for Olympic gold. Each was allowed three jumps to start the event, but Lewis settled the issue on his first attempt.

He soared 28 feet, one-quarter inch, equalling the gold-medal effort of Lutz Dombrowski of East Germany in 1980 — the second best leap in Olympic history. The record, of course, is the astounding 29-2½ by Bob Beamon in the 1968 Games at Mexico City.

Lewis fouled on his second attempt, and passed on his remaining four.

He hardly reacted at the end of the competition, a far different response from his emotional flag-waving sprint following the 100-meter victory.

Also far different was the response of the crowd at Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum. It boomed as Lewis walked off the field, apparently unhappy that he "passed up a chance to break Beamon's world mark.

But if there was any booing during the medal ceremony later, it was drowned out by cheers.

After the second jump, Giovanni Evangelisti of Italy held second place with a leap of 26-6½ and America's Larry Myricks was third at 25-5½.

Lewis passed on his third jump, content to let his first effort stand as the day's standard. In Sunday's qualifying, he needed just one jump, reaching 27-2¾.

Gary Honey of Australia went 26-10 on his third jump to push into second place, dropping Evangelisti to third and Myricks to fourth. Myricks came back with a leap of 26-9¼ on his fifth jump to move into third place.

On his final jump, Evangelisti went 27-½, as did Honey. Lewis again passed on his final chance, giving Myricks the opportunity to pass him. But Myricks jumped poorly and it clinched the gold for Lewis.

Honey took the silver on the basis of a better second jump and Evangelisti the bronze.

After the first three jumps, the field was cut to eight, each allowed three more attempts.

Earlier in the day, Lewis had qualified for the semifinals in the 200-meter dash by winning his two heats. He was timed 21.02 in the first trip and 20.89 for the quarterfinal.

But he said he was really thinking more about the long jump.

"I'm glad I'll be able to come back and complete some more because that's what I like to do," he said.

So while the other sprinters took the evening off, Lewis was back on the long jump strip a few hours later, almost a secondary figure on the track, thrust in the background during races and gold-medal award ceremonies in four other events.

The sun was high over the Coliseum when Lewis, Myricks and the others took their places. And it was long gone when they had finished, taking their final jumps in darkness.

For Beamon, there was relief. He said he was excited and pleased his record will last another four years.

"The record is like an old friend to me," he said, "but it's not a friend that I expect to keep long."

The victory was the 37th consecutive long-jump triumph for Lewis, who has not lost in this event since 1961 when he was beaten in the National Indoor championships by Myricks.

His winning Olympic effort, however, was well short of his personal bests of 28-10½, which he has accomplished twice.

Still ahead are the 200-meter dash Wednesday and the 400-meter relay on Friday. If he succeeds in both of them, he will match the four-gold feat of Jesse Owens, who swept the same events in the 1936 Games at Berlin.

Andersen's finish raises questions

frightening finish of an ailing competitor, an Olympic medical official said Monday that marathon runners should not be disqualified if doctors examine them during a race.

The competitor, Gabriela Andersen-Schless, who finished Sunday's first Olympic women's marathon despite being partially paralyzed with dehydration stroke, agreed.

"That would be one of the ideal situations if you could have a medical doctor take a look and decide if they'd let you continue or not without disqualification," she said at a news conference Monday.

Dr. Tony Daly, vice president of health services for the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, said the committee would ask the International Amateur Athletic Federation to change its rules to permit doctors to examine runners who appear to be in trouble.

"The IAAF are reasonable people," Daly said at an earlier news conference. "I'm sure they will change the rule, but certainly not by the men's marathon," scheduled for next Sunday, the last day of the Summer Games.

"There should be a way to evaluate an athlete to determine whether she should continue," he said.

"As she entered the Los Angeles Memorial Coliseum with about 500 meters left in Sunday's race, Andersen-Schless staggered. She

Andersen-Schless was treated for about two hours at the Coliseum where she was sprayed with a hose, had cold towels placed on her body and was fed intravenously to restore her body fluids and reduce her temperature. For two more hours, team doctors were with her at the Olympic village.

She said she felt fine Monday and planned to run for 15 to 20 minutes after the news conference.

"The worst part was when I got into the Coliseum," she said. "It was a lot hotter."

Dr. Gene Osher, the marathon's senior medical officer, said that when Andersen-Schless came into the stadium he ran to her and looked at her closely. He noticed that she wasn't running straight but was making progress.

"She motioned me away, indicating to me she wanted to continue the course. I noticed at the time she was perspiring," Osher said. "She had a good deal of sweat on her body, which is an excellent sign that her heat control mechanisms were still working."

"It was my decision (to let her continue). I made it," he added. "I think it was a good one. I think what has happened afterward indicates it was the proper decision."

Andersen-Schless said her lack of medical knowledge made it difficult for her to determine if she should have been removed from the track. The Swiss team doctor said that because he wasn't allowed to examine her during the race, he didn't know if she should have remained in

"I can't discuss this clearly because I was not in front of her," said Dr. Bernhard Seesser, who

Kingdom stuns Foster for gold medal in hurdles

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

Related story — C3

LOS ANGELES — Roger Kingdom of Pittsburgh upset world champion and fellow American Greg Foster in Olympic-record time Monday night as the United States grabbed gold and silver medals in the men's 110-meter high hurdles.

Kingdom, who was clocked in 13.20, did not realize he had won until he watched a replay on the huge screen atop the Los Angeles Coliseum. Then, he jumped for joy, and he and Foster, who is from Maywood, Ill., took a Victory lap around the track.

Kingdom, the 1983 Pan-American Games champion, broke the Olympic record of 13.24 set by Rod Milburn of the United States in 1972. The clocking had been equalled by Foster in Sunday's first-round heat, and again by Foster and Kingdom in Monday's semifinals.

Milburn was the ninth consecutive U.S. winner in the hurdles, but the Americans had not won the gold since then, until Kingdom registered his upset over Foster (timed in 13.23).

Arto Bryggare of Finland prevented a U.S. sweep and he won the bronze medal in 13.40.

"Afterward, Foster said he had false-started."

"I stopped in my tracks, but they didn't call it back," said Foster. "I think it was obvious it was a false start. It should have been called back, but it was not."

Joaoquin Cruz of Brazil also set an Olympic record in winning the men's 800 meter gold in 1:43.00.

Olympic and Games records were set by American Valerie Brisco-Hooks in winning the women's 400-meter gold medal.

The 24-year-old Brisco-Hooks, out of competition for various stretches from 1979 until this year, including time out to give birth to a son 2½ years ago, led 112 American finish in the 400 with a time of 48.83 seconds.

It was the first gold and silver medals in the event for the United States since the event was introduced into the Olympics in 1964. The only previous U.S. medalist was Kathy Hammond, who won a bronze in 1972.

Brisco-Hooks, married to a professional football player, also had set the American record earlier this year, but it was taken away by Chandra Cheeseborough in the U.S. Olympic Trials with a clocking of 49.28.

Cheeseborough, sixth-place finisher in the 500 in the 1978 Games, was runner-up to Brisco-Hooks in 49.05, also under the old American record.

Kathy Cook of Britain won the bronze medal, clocking 49.42.

This was an event in which the boycott of the Soviet bloc nations

Canadian diver takes away McCormick's gold

By WILLIAM R. BARNARD
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Sylvie Bernier won Canada's first gold medal in Olympic diving history Monday, holding the lead for the last eight rounds of the 10-dive finals to edge Kelly McCormick of Columbus, Ohio, by 3.24 points in women's springboard diving.

Bernier was awarded 530.70 points to 527.46 for McCormick, who won the silver medal. Chris Seufert of Ann Arbor, Mich., posted the highest score in two days of competition on her last dive to hold on to third place with 517.62 points and win the bronze.

"I never looked at the scoreboard," Bernier, 20, said. "I was listening to my Walkman. But after my last dive I had an idea because I heard that Kelly needed a 70 (to win)."

Bernier said she was "happy and proud to be the first Canadian to win a gold. It just feels great."

The only previous medal Canada ever won in Olympic diving was a bronze medal in springboard by Irene MacDonald in 1956. Ironically, the gold medalist that year was Patty McCormick, Kelly's mother, who won four diving golds in the 1952 and 1956 Games.

Bernier took over the lead for good from China's Li Yihua in the third round when the Canadian had 8.0, 8.5 and one 9.0 score from the seven judges with a reverse dive from the pike position, the leading qualifier in Sunday's preliminaries, finished fourth behind Seufert with 506.52.

The competition for the gold was decided on the eighth dive, when both Bernier and McCormick tried reverse 2½ somersaults from the tuck position.

Bernier, whose best finishes in a major competition were third places in last year's World Cup and Pan American Games, scored 60.38 on that dive.

McCormick, diving right after Bernier, then had her worst of 20 dives in the two days of preliminary and final competition. She had only one score as low as 6.5 in 17 dives to that point, but she had all 6.0 and 6.5 scores on the reverse 2½ somersault to fall 14.68 points behind Bernier with two dives to go.

"I got a little ahead of myself," McCormick said of her poor eighth dive. "I should've relaxed more. I missed my second spot."

Divers, when doing somersaults, use "spins" as reference points to orient themselves before hitting the water.

"But I'm not disappointed," McCormick said. "It's an honor to get into the Olympics and win a medal."

U.S. trade deficit balloons

WASHINGTON—The U.S. foreign trade deficit ballooned in the second quarter as farm sales dropped sharply and the country's appetite for foreign oil picked up, the government reported Monday.

MALCOLM BALDRIGE Optimistic for 1985

The April-June deficit total was put at a record $26.3 billion, slightly above the old record of $25.4 billion posted in the first three months of the year.

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige predicted improvements in exports this year would be held back by the strong dollar, but he said prospects for 1985 were brighter.

high value of the dollar, which makes imports—relatively cheap—and U.S. goods harder to sell on foreign markets.

It reported that U.S. exports declined a tiny 0.1 percent from April through June with non-agricultural exports up 2 percent as computer and chemical companies made strong gains.

Shipments of soybeans dropped 12 percent and corn sales were down 10 percent during the second quarter, the government said. It noted that the price of soybeans rose by 5 percent and corn prices by about an average 2 percent during this period.

A separate Commerce Department report last month put the second quarter trade deficit at an even higher $29.9 billion. The new report cites a lower figure because such factors as military trade and the cost of shipping and insurance are not included.

Last week's market rally stays strong

NEW YORK—The stock market closed Monday, getting a little more mileage out of last week's rally despite some stepped-up selling late in the session.

The upside got its start as a belief spread on Wall Street that long-term interest rates had passed their peak and were headed lower. That view has been reinforced by a series of recent statistics signaling an apparent slowing of the pace of economic expansion.

In the stock market, point-plus gainers among the blue chips included General Motors, up 1/4 at 74 1/2; Ford Motor, up 1/4 at 42 3/4; International Business Machines, up 1/4 at 121 1/2, and Sears Roebuck, up 1/4 at 35 3/4.

National Mortgage fell 2 1/4 to 13 1/2 in trading that included a 1.17 million share block at 14.

Revised bankruptcy law works against many fake claims

Early in October, only a few weeks from now, a major new bankruptcy law goes into effect in our country.

1978. Critics of that earlier law claimed it made bankruptcy too attractive to third-priority debtors and led to an explosion in the number of filings.

The new law represents a compromise between these two views. "We didn't get all we wanted, but this represents a good compromise," says Frances Smith, a spokeswoman for American Financial Services Association, a trade group of creditors.

The broad outlines of the bankruptcy law don't change. You, as an individual, can still declare bankruptcy in one of two ways.

you. Among them: Bankruptcy judges can dismiss Chapter 7 petitions if they determine that discharging debts in bankruptcy represents a substantial abuse of the system. The reasons for that decision are left to the judges' discretion.

JUSTICE BURGER v.s. SWENSEN BURGER

It's a shame that Justice Burger has not been more reliable, dependable and consistent to justify the expense of those who pay his bills, (taxpayers). About all they get for their money is a flood of abortions, more rights for criminals and new discrimination to make up for old discrimination. If Justice Burger and his associates spend most of the time feeling like Rodney Dangerfield (no respect), what can we say?

When you put out your money for Swensen Burgers, you get quality you can depend on, consistent flavor and texture and reliable freshness. Swensen Burger is ground fresh several times daily.
