Lafferty brothers arrested in Reno

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Two brothers charged in the slaying deaths of their sister-in-law and her infant daughter were arrested Tuesday in a Nevada casino, authorities said.

Ronald Watson Lafferty, 42, and Dan Charles Lafferty, 36, were taken into custody without incident at Reno's Circus Circus casino, FBI Special Agent-in-Charge Terry Knowles and American Fork Police Chief Randy Johnson said at a news conference Tuesday.

The brothers had been the focus of a manhunt throughout the West since July 24, when the bloodied bodies of Brenda Wright Lafferty, 24, a former Kimberly resident, and her 15-month-old daughter, Erica, were found in the family home by her husband, Allan Lafferty, brother of the suspects.

The victims had been slashed across the necks with a sharp instrument, police said.

Ron Lafferty, described by neighbors as an excommunicated Mormon and member of a polygamist sect, had been divorced last year, and that Brenda Lafferty's support of his ex-wife during the proceeding may have triggered the slayings, authorities said.

The brothers were arraigned on capital murder and other charges late Tuesday before U.S. District Judge Edward Reed in Reno. Bail was set at $250,000 for each.

At one point, the judge expressed irritation as the brothers smiled during the proceedings.

"You think it's humorous?" Reed asked Dan Lafferty.

"It's interesting, is this the format you read to everyone? I see you reading there," Lafferty replied, referring to documents on Reed's desk.

A vital link in the arrests was "a journal, a diary" located by authorities in Wyoming, Johnson said. Of the journal, the police chief would only say, "We developed some information from it that led us to believe they were indeed in Reno."

"This is one of the most complex cases I've ever investigated with the two victims, four suspects and the religious cult angle," he said.

The Laffertys, and two other men taken into custody July 30, were charged with two counts of first-degree murder. If convicted, they could face the death penalty.

Neighbors said Ron Lafferty, a former Highland City councilman, belonged to a splinter polygamist sect. His ex-wife left Utah with the couple's six children after their divorce.

Johnson said Tuesday the slayings apparently were triggered by the support Brenda Lafferty gave her sister-in-law during the divorce.

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints once advocated polygamy but banned the practice in 1890. Those who practice plural marriage now are excommunicated.

Two other men sought in the deaths — Richard Knapp, 24, of Wichita, Kan., and Charles A. Carnes, 23, of Belen, N.M. — were arrested July 30 in Cheyenne, Wyo. Besides the two capital homicide counts, Knapp and Carnes were charged with two counts of aggravated burglary and two counts of criminal conspiracy.

Authorities allege Knapp and Carnes, along with the Laffertys, also conspired to kill others. American Fork police found a handwritten document which commanded the killing of Knapp, Carnes and two former slayer officials who had a part in Ronald Lafferty's excommunication. It has not been determined who wrote the document.

Bush's break draws wrath

BOISE (AP) — Vice President George Bush took a break from his western campaign swing Tuesday, rafting Idaho's famous Middle Fork of the Salmon River, but not before rousing the spirit of local Republicans and their river guides.

At a $10-a-head fundraiser for senior Sen. James McClure, Bush drew cheers from a partisan audience of 1,500 Monday night when he credited the "strong and principled" leadership of President Reagan for the nation's economic upswing.

But commercial river runner David Mills of Salmon was less than enthusiastic about the vice president's outing, calling it a taxpayer-paid vacation handled by Forest Service guides who plan to show Bush the least scenic and popular parts of the river.

"Even though he is the vice president of the United States, he's still out here on vacation. In fact he's out here to raise money for McClure," said Mills, owner of Rocky Mountain River Tours. "As a businessman, it kind of makes me angry."

McClure, who invited Bush to Idaho and will travel with him, originally planned to arrange for "moving" a commercial outfitter, Mills said.

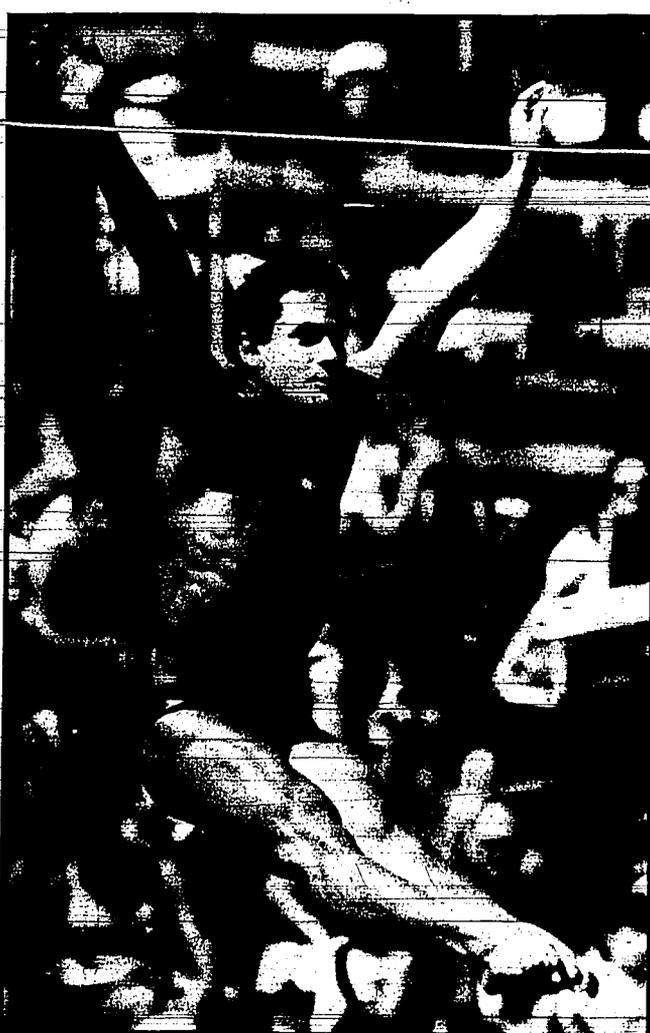

Outfitter Norm Guth, who took President Jimmy Carter on a river run in 1978, said McClure had asked him informally in June whether he wanted to lead the trip, but that was the last he heard of it until he learned that the Forest Service was taking Bush.

"I guessed they had a better price," laughed Guth, now a member of the state Fish and Game Commission.

But McClure and Jim Goller said that no outfitter had been contacted and that either Bush or the Secret Service made the decision to use the Forest Service.

Challis National Forest Supervisor Jack Griswold, whose staff escorted Bush on the Middle Fork, declined comment on Bush's route or the decision to use Forest Service guides.

Bush's raft trip covered about 50 miles of the middle stretch of the Middle Fork, about half the length of that branch of the Salmon River. Mills said. He said Challis National Forest Middle-Fork river manager Ted Anderson told him the Bush-McClure party would fly to Indian Creek, then to FIVING Bee Ranch, then fly back to Boise.

Legal activists call for probe into disclosure exemption

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of conservative legal activists called Tuesday for a House ethics committee investigation of Rep. Cosentino Ferraro's use of an exemption to avoid disclosing her husband's financial holdings.

Ms. Ferraro characterized the complaint as an attempt to "politically embarrass me" and added: "I am not embarrassed."

The Washington Legal Foundation suggested at a news conference that Ms. Ferraro broke the law by claiming the exemption.

Paul R. Kamenar, executive legal director of the foundation, said the House Republican Study Committee made arrangements for the news conference in a room just down the hall from Ms. Ferraro's own congressional office, but denied that his organization was "a front for any

Ms. Ferraro, in a news conference of her own, said, "I don't believe I violated the law" and defended her use of an exemption on her annual congressional disclosure forms since 1979 to avoid disclosing the assets of her husband, wealthy New York developer John A. Zaccaro, or her children.

"I still feel I qualified," she said. "I will not be changing that."

But she reiterated her promise to disclose by Aug. 20 both her and her husband's finances, including their tax returns.

Kamenar, whose group has fought the Occupational Safety and Health Administration and sued John Hinckley Jr. on behalf of a Secret Service agent wounded in the 1981 attempt on President Reagan's life, urged Congress to reprimand Ms. Ferraro or take "other appropriate action." Ferraro's office found to have violated the 1978 Ethics in Government Act.

Kamenar said it "strains body."

Iran lauds attacks; U.S. seeks mines

By The Associated Press

Iran on Tuesday praised the recent attacks on commercial ships in the Red Sea and said mines had been sown there by the same "Moslem extremist group" that claimed responsibility for the suicide bombing of the U.S. Marines in Beirut.

But it denied involvement in the attacks.

The White House said such praise was "outside the norms of civilized behavior."

The United States announced it was sending a squadron of minesweeping helicopters and a support ship to the Red Sea, at Egypt's request. Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch said the roughly 200 U.S. military personnel were under orders to find and destroy mines, but not to prevent the sowing of new explosive devices.

Burch said four RH-53D Sea Stallion helicopters and a support ship will be deployed in the Gulf of Suez. It said the force will cooperate with the Egyptians "to carry out mine countermeasure operations designed to enhance security of navigation in the area."

U.S. officials said the helicopters drag devices in the water that detect and destroy mines.

American Embassy officials in Cairo said the minesweeping helicopters were expected to arrive in Egypt within a week. Burch said two giant C-5 transport planes had already taken off with the first of the four helicopters.

He said there was "circumstantial evidence" — witness reports of sea captains and other authorities — that mines had been planted in the Red Sea.

Egypt also has requested minesweepers from Britain, and is also in touch with France. Egyptian officials have said.

In the Saudi Arabian port of Jidda, a survivor of the Oceanic Energy, the latest ship damaged in what was believed to be a mine explosion, said a Taiwanese crewman was missing and

Shoshone school bond vote falls short

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

SHOSHONE — A $40,000 Shoshone school bond levy failed by 7 votes Tuesday.

The measure needed a two-thirds majority to pass. There were 165 votes in favor of the levy, 94 against it.

School superintendent Tim Adsit said he would recommend that the school board authorize a recount of the ballots "because the vote is so close."

He also said he would recommend a very close evaluation of the election oath forms signed by each voter. "We need to make sure that every one who voted lives within the geographic boundaries of the district," he said.

The district has 20 days in which to order a recount.

"If nothing changes the outcome of the vote, Adsit said, he would recommend a new election on the issue in six months, as allowed by state law.

The $40,000 was to be used for major repair or remodeling of the district's two school buildings, replacement of school buses and replacement or purchase of equipment.

The district had planned to use the funds to upgrade the heating systems and improve energy efficiency of the buildings as well as add computer equipment.

The $40,000 per year facilities force was to have been in force for four years and was a renewal of a 10-year levy that expired this spring.

Adsit said the district has a second

$15,000 facilities levy that expires in a couple of years, but $14,000 of this year's fund has been spent to replace a school bus and conduct the engineer's study of the earthquake damaged high school gymnasium.

Tuesday's vote leaves the district with $1,000 in the school facilities fund for the remainder of the fiscal year.

An engineer has recommended that the gym be monitored constantly for continued deterioration and that plans for replacing the structure be considered.

Supplemental funds approved in Jerome

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Voters of the Jerome School District No. 261 gave a 77 percent approval Tuesday for a $150,000 supplemental levy to purchase school books and other instructional materials.

The first supplemental levy to be requested in Jerome in as long as school officials can recall drew a total of 547 votes, with 424 yes and 123 no ballots counted. Only a 51 percent approval was needed to pass the levy.

Superintendent Stephenson Youngerman said Tuesday night that the election results are a credit to the people of the district and also to the school staff.

"The principals and teachers are to be credited for the accomplishment," he said. "It was the principals who convinced me it

Mondale claims Reagan will juggle budget deficit figures

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Challenging President Reagan "to tell the truth about our future now," Walter F. Mondale charged Tuesday that the Reagan administration will present "cooked budget" estimates to try to minimize the political impact of the large federal deficit.

Mondale also called on Reagan and Vice President George Bush to debate, since they appear to disagree on the need for new taxes in 1985.

"As you may know, I've called for six debates with Mr. Reagan. Today I'm adding a seventh," Mondale told a crowd at the Toledo docks. "I believe that Ronald Reagan and George Bush should have a national debate on television."

"Mr. Bush, who just came from a lunch with Mr. Reagan (on Monday), said Reagan is going to raise taxes. He must know something. I would like to know what it is," Mondale added.

After meeting with Reagan on Monday, Bush said the president was keeping his options open on taxes.

On the first stop of a three-day campaign-trip, the Democratic presidential nominee talked about the eroding U.S. trade balance, which he blamed on the federal deficit and high interest rates.

With the Liberian freight "Trident Venture" as a backdrop, Mondale said, "We are sucking in a tidal wave of foreign imports."

"If Mr. Reagan had set out to deliberately ruin every American business that competes with foreign producers... he wouldn't have come up with a better policy than is now in place."

The ship, its cargo unloaded, sailed while

Mondale spoke.

Mondale repeated his attacks on Reagan and the deficit later Tuesday during a speech to the annual convention of the Communications Workers of America.

"Mr. Reagan is keeping his plan to raise taxes a secret until after the election and everyone in this room knows why," Mondale told the 4,000 CWA delegates.

He said Reagan wants to impose a national sales tax of the equivalent of the current income tax.

Mondale said Reagan's promises to raise defense spending, but not taxes and balance the budget at the same time are an effort to make the $200 billion-plus deficit in 1989 just go "poof — disappeared."

He asked whether the Reagan deficit projections will be "a honest solid reflection of the facts that we face or if it is what you might call a Pinocchio projection of the future."

The storybook character Pinocchio's nose got longer every time he told a lie.

Mondale also renewed his call for a debate between Reagan and Bush. "And I'll pay for the microphone and let's see who's telling the truth about taxes," he added.

Inmates lay claim to Seattle murders

RICHARD CARBONE
Takes claim for killings

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Two jail inmates say they killed at least 16 women in the Northwest, some of them possibly included in the notorious Green River slayings case.

Washington state authorities said Tuesday they were skeptical of the claim.

Robert Matthias, 25, said Monday in a newspaper interview that he killed "16 and possibly more" women. In a separate interview, Richard Carbone, 32, said he killed two women and helped Matthias murder nine others in Washington and Oregon.

Both are in jail in San Francisco on charges unrelated to the Green River killings.

Matthias described his victims as street hustlers, "the type of people I hated the most. They could have stolen your wallet if you turned your back on them. They had a way of mocking people."

The slayings of 26 young women in the Seattle area have been attributed to the so-called Green River killer, named for the southern King County river where the first five victims were found in the summer of 1982.

Authorities say 15 other young women reported missing in the area might also have fallen prey to the same killer or killers. Many victims were young prostitutes.

Green River Task Force detective Paul Smith of Seattle interviewed Matthias on Tuesday and planned to interview Carbone later in the day.

Two other Green River investigators joined Smith in San Francisco.

King County (Wash.) Police Capt. Frank Adamson said the interview had failed to impress authorities.

"(He) has not gone up on our thermometer," said Adamson, who heads the 41-member task force. "There's some notoriety in claiming one commits crimes."

However, Adamson added that the two men remained "A" category or "highest" category suspects because they had confessed to slayings.

"In terms of information to date, I think we have to be at least very skeptical of what they have to say," Adamson said. "It's possible they have (something), but we have to investigate."

In an interview Monday at the Hall of Justice, Matthias told the San Francisco Chronicle: "Do I think I am the one they're looking for? I'd almost have to say 'yes.'" He nodded affirmatively when asked whether he had dumped any of his victims in the Green River.

Florida boy ignores warnings, dies in jaws of alligator

PORT ST. LUCIE, Fla. (AP) — Signs urging "Beware of Alligators" were posted at a park where an 11-year-old boy died in a 12½-foot gator's jaws and game officials warned Tuesday that Florida waterways are home to "hundreds of thousands" of the reptiles.

An autopsy on Robert Crespi, who was swimming in the St. Lucie River

Monday when he was grabbed and dragged underwater, found that he died "as a result of drowning," not from wounds inflicted by the animal, said Al Hallowquist, chief investigator for the medical examiner.

The boy was the sixth person to die in an alligator attack in Florida since 1957.

School asbestos figures higher

WASHINGTON (AP) — Far more public school children attend classes in buildings with potentially hazardous asbestos than was previously thought, according to new surveys by the Environmental Protection Agency.

The agency also estimated that somewhere between 14 percent and 26 percent of most buildings to which the public has access — including apartment houses with 10 or more units — contain that form of asbestos. State and local government buildings were not included in that study.

The surveys have not been released, but agency officials discussed their findings Tuesday.

The findings showed an estimate that 15 million pupils are taught in 31,000 school buildings containing asbestos, about 25 percent of all such buildings. Those structures are staffed by 1.4 million workers.

The most widely used previous estimate of asbestos exposure in schools came from the National Education Association — 3 million pupils in 14,000 buildings staffed by 650,000 people. The NEA estimated the number of pupils in buildings where asbestos could be crumbling and its fibers carried in the air, so its figure is not directly comparable to EPA's.

There are about 39.4 million public school pupils in the United States.

Airborne asbestos, if its fine fibers are breathed, can cause a variety of serious lung disorders, including cancer. The material was widely used as insulation in buildings from the mid-1940s to the mid-1970s.

Border Patrol breaks up smuggling ring

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — U.S. Border Patrol agents apprehended 66 illegal aliens brought across the border early Tuesday by four Mexican nationals and one U.S. citizen, breaking up a "large-scale smuggling ring," authorities said.

The illegal aliens were nabbed about 3 a.m. near Ysleta, a small community in El Paso's lower valley, after they had entered the United States and were trying to leave the area in three vehicles, said Bill Harrington, assistant chief patrol agent for El Paso.

A U.S. citizen and four Mexican nationals alleged to be "arrangers" of the smuggling ring also were arrested at the scene and are to appear before a U.S. magistrate Wednesday to face charges of conspiracy to transport illegal aliens, Harrington said.

Other people, including some in Florida, are believed to be involved in the operation, he said.

Tuesday's pool vote will reflect priorities

The Twin Falls City Council and School Board have worked many hours developing a plan for a joint, year-round, geothermal pool which goes to the voters next Tuesday.

The plan is not perfect, but at this point, it is reasonably well thought out and deserves careful consideration.

The major qualification we have—and it is one each voter will have to decide for himself or herself—is whether the pool should be at the top of the city's and school's separate priority lists.

In our opinion, the school district particularly has pressing needs which the administration has so far not addressed adequately. The question for the voters is whether the pool should come ahead of them. For the record, those needs include:

Raising teacher pay. Twin Falls is among the lowest districts in the state in the dollar amount per teacher it is passing through to teachers from the Legislature's 1984 pay bill.

Staffing the new elementary school. As of today, just 13 months before it is to open, the district has no stated plan on how it will find the funds to hire the 20 or so teachers needed to staff the building without just nullifying them from other classrooms. Twin Falls voters approved the elementary school a year ago; they are entitled to know how the district will make use of it.

Operating costs. This spring saw the first override election ever in the Twin Falls school district. Others loom in years to come. Physical education space is important, but should it come ahead of roof repairs, basic maintenance and textbooks?

Other capital improvements. In the next few years, the school district will need to ask for additional capital improvements, including replacement or substantial repair to Lincoln and Bickel schools, a new administration building and perhaps a new high school.

These needs are all real and will have to be met. Given them, does it make sense now to pour money into a pool?

These questions suggest others: Is the pool a wise purchase at this time? Is it a good investment for the future of Twin Falls? Given other needs, are we making the best use of our educational dollar by building a pool?

Proponents of the plan say yes. They cite the obvious need for both recreational facilities and physical education. They invoke a sense of "vision" for the community, saying people should take the long view of the city's overall needs. Those are valid and compelling points.

Furthermore, both the school board and the council have done much in the past few months to improve the project by refining its costs and trimming away superfluous aspects.

They have demonstrated that the pool has a good chance to either break even or operate with a small annual deficit. They have made a good case for cooperation in the use of a geothermal well, school district land and year-round scheduling.

Wisely, they have dropped, apparently for good, the twice-defeated idea of another gymnasium.

To be sure, there are unanswered questions: How can we assure that children in elementary school learn to swim as part of a new physical education curriculum to replace the one which is now wholly inadequate? Put another way, how can we make sure the pool will not become just a facility for a high school swim team and other water sports enthusiasts?

What will be the fate of the YFCA pool, which will certainly be affected by a new, modern facility?

Despite these concerns, we think the district board and the city council have done much right here. The proposal is as sound and as well thought out as it can be, given the unknowns.

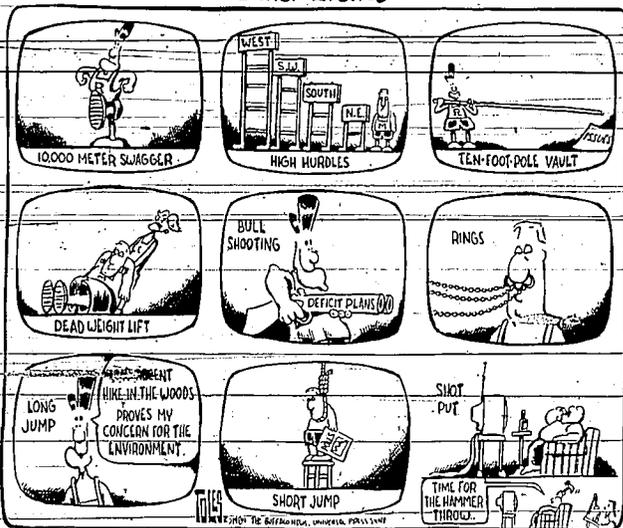

If the plan passes, it will be because people think it should be on the top of both the city's and the district's priority list.

If it fails, we think both parties should get on with other concerns. The city should build a modest seasonal pool on its own or with the school district, perhaps one which could be covered later on.

And the school district should address other priorities, such as making sure the district is run efficiently and well; that teachers are adequately paid; that we have enough of them to staff the new school; we are already committed to building; that we can find the money to fix roofs and buy books and do so without months of delay; and that the district can concentrate on the business of educating our children's minds, first and foremost. Those tasks need to be addressed in Twin Falls, with or without a new pool.

Vote yes on pool proposal

We strongly support the proposed pool bond and would like to ask the voters to consider the following before voting:

1. This is a very sensible proposal because it would accomplish several important things at once. It would allow year-round swimming in a climate where outdoor pools are useful, at the most, for 3½ months. It would utilize available geothermal water from the school which would result in substantial operational savings. It would help the school district meet state mandated increases in PE requirements. It would serve as a major public recreational center for all citizens. For what it would provide it would be relatively cheap, costing only $10.80 to $19.13 per year for homes valued between $10,000 and $70,000.

Some have fairly pointed out that we need a new county jail, or that there are roads that need to be repaired, or that there are other school needs. These needs and others are real, and they will be met, but they shouldn't excuse a community from providing adequate recreational facilities.

Let's be honest, this is the richest nation on earth, able to provide multi-billion dollar defense systems, multi-billion dollar supports for agriculture and other interests. Locally, we are able to support any number of worthy and perhaps not so worthy causes (ranging from Boy Scouts and Churches to casinos).

We can afford to do the things we should, let's not cheat ourselves or sell ourselves short because we are unwilling to pay $15 more per year in property taxes or because we don't understand exactly how the school and city will work together in a project like this.

2. If we pride ourselves on being a progressive city, concerned about our citizens and the future, this pool should be seen as an excellent investment. A signal to our young people, to our neighbors, to companies thinking to locate here—that the people of Twin Falls have vision and are willing to risk a little to make their city a good place to be.

Please vote yes on August 14!

Don't flout the law in Twin Falls

The case of Bad Bob the Badger will serve forever as a lesson to the furry desperados of this world: Justice is swift and sure in Twin Falls, Idaho.

You remember Bad Bob, the fiendish little devil who embarked upon a reign of terror just a week ago. But a slug from a police service revolver ended his sinister scheme, and we, the grateful townsfolk, once again lead tranquil streets.

You remember the incident, don't you? It was nearly sundown on Tuesday last, that's when the trouble began. Bad Bob snarled into Canyon Springs Inn. We can only guess as to what sort of mischief he was plotting in his devious brain.

What foul deeds did he intend? Was it looting or just plain larceny? Was he on a mind to rape and pillage? Or did he plan to sit at the bar, suck in cheap whiskey and spit out vile epithets at the barkeep?

We'll never know, because Bad Bob the Badger left the bar early on that dark day. We only have the word of one witness, who said he mumbled something about prices as he slipped through the door.

Bob waddled to a nearby pizza parlor. We do know the motive for that action. It is an established fact that badgers hang around pizza joints to steal slices of pepperoni.

They skulk in pizza parlor parking lots wallowing for innocent customers. They leap from their hiding places and confront their quarry with

At the time of the attacks on U.S. ships the Maddox and C. Turner Joy, I was Navy Hospital Corpsman stationed aboard the hospital ship USNH in Haven (AH-12), docked at Naval Station, Long Beach, Calif. Some of the wounded men from the second attack (the C. Turner Joy attack) were brought to us. Their facial expressions, burns, and bloodied bandages are still very real to me.

A happenstance meeting

It was a casual meeting. Happenstance. Couple of college profs had met an Idaho editor in cafe, then were joined by a Democrat and an Eastern feminist, an attractive girl with an overbite and sharp green eyes.

Their topics led from disarmament, a laudable cause; to farming, of which none of them knew much; to education, in which the lack of sufficient funding was lamented; to, inevitably, George Flanders.

"I hate his insides," the feminist stated audaciously, her overbite quivering, green eyes flashing.

"I don't know," the Editor sighed. "I'd miss George, he's such good copy, but I think he'll be beaten." He said it rather dubiously, which was odd considering it was the 1,027th time he'd either said it or written it.

The Democrat, a veteran of years of political trouncings in south Idaho politics, never the less spoke up gamely. "Even these Idaho voters must realize the man's a crook, we'll get him this time."

"Who is your candidate?" the feminist rowned. "Stu. Let's see, starts with an S... oh, yes, Stallings... R. Stallings."

"Richard!" the editor nodded. "A fine, decent, honest man, but a bit quiet."

An instructor sniffed. "Here in Idaho further education is necessitated to harken a comprehension within the citizenry as to equivalent socio-political structuralings throughout the nation."

The green eyes lit up. "Like in Massachusetts?"

"Precisely. Constitutional languaging, as you know, let's uniformed segments of the proletariat equivocate against their electoral priorities."

As the instructor looked around, he noted that the overbite was fixed in a satisfied grin, the editor and the other instructor nodded sagaciously, but the Democrat sat with a doleful look on his face.

"Well," the instructor added, somewhat befuddled by the Democrat's behavior. "I've got three people in a two-thirty class." He rose and they left. As did the feminist. Then the editor.

The Democrat looked over at a nearby table where two Republican cattlemen were seated.

"Hear what he said, Jake?"

"Yep, sure did."

"What's the say?"

The old conservative smiled faintly, paused, then nodded. "Said that we ought oughta vote for George."

The Democrat pinched his lips. "Hummm! And I bought his coffee!"

Article not very inspiring

To Sarah Murphy, Times-News correspondent:

In reference to your article of Aug. 5, couldn't you come up with something inspiring, or edifying, or even amusing? I find neither in your article.

As to Enrique Terrieque who came to the United States four year's ago, as a wet-back from Mexico, a wet-back is a wet-back. And a law-breaker, even if he has "dark flashing eyes" and a "puckish grin."

Terrieque's laughing reference to Mexicans swimming the Rio Grande in order to enter the United States illegally, is more a mockery of our immigration law. And if he thinks that Americans see it as a joke, then he failed miserably.

menacing shrieks: When the alarmed customer drops his jumbo, six-item, double-cheese pizza, the badger steals it.

Then he lurks in the shadows to snarf pepperoni slices from the goo, all the time cackling from the very depths of his black soul.

That's what Bad Bob planned, and that's just what would have happened had not policeman Gary White arrived on the scene. While fired the first shot in what was to become a running, two-day gun battle that eventually stilled the larcenous heart of Bad Bob the Badger.

I have my own hypothesis as to why White's first shot failed to let the fleeing felon. Some might say the good constable just missed, but that cannot be. One of Twin Falls' finest couldn't miss such a shot. The safety of the city—if not the free world—was riding on his marksmanship.

No, I think Bad Bob outran the bullet, which should give you some idea as to just how serious was the threat he posed to our burg.

But White's valiant effort served its purpose. His shooting skills so rattled Bob that the animal made his first mistake: He went for his hideout in broad daylight.

Police immediately moved into action to capitalize on Bad Bob's bad judgment. His hole was barricaded. Searchlights were ordered. Sirens wailed. The SWAT team motored to the scene. Mothers hustled their children to safety as the badger prepared to badger the hole-in-the-ground gang into submission to the long arm of the law.

The cops had to act fast. Some morning, there would be linemen working at the scene of Bad Bob's hideout. It is well known that badgers, terror-sized kin of the griz, like to beat up construction workers.

When it came, the retribution of the law was swift and sure. Someone flushed Bad Bob out of his hole-with-water. Someone else despatched the fellow with the splat of a slug between his beady little eyes.

His life of crime was ended.

Listen up, you badgers of the world, and listen you cousins in crime: Learn well the lesson of Twin Bob.

You craven coyotes, piffling polecats, rapacious raccoons, larcenous lynx, marauding muskrat, felonious foxes and you bad, bad badgers, listen to this: The day you flout the law in Twin Falls, Idaho is the day you meet your maker.

Reagan: Time to build space station

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying the economic benefits of America's space program far outweigh the cost, writes in a magazine article that it's time for this country to take "the next bold step" in space — construction of a space station.

"We stand on the verge of realizing one of mankind's most ambitious dreams, that of building a permaently manned base in space," the president writes in a bylined article scheduled to appear in the September issue of Popular Mechanics. "Such a space station will assure U.S. leadership in space into the next century."

Reagan's article, a copy of which was sent to news organizations Tuesday, will be on the newsstands about the time that the Republican National Convention begins in Dallas. The magazine's Anne Beckerstein said "we were in negotiation with the White House for over a year and the fact that the story appears at this time is mostly coincidental."

The president endorsed a space station in his State of the Union message in January. Such a station, to be in orbit by 1992, is expected to cost $8 billion. The space station's request for $150 million in the fiscal year that begins in October has been approved by Congress and signed by Reagan.

Reagan writes that the space station, "a major part of our strategy for conquering the frontier of space," will be a base for scientific and commercial activities, will promote international cooperation and will encourage American industry

Missile passes test in battle situation

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Pershing 2 missile hurled a dummy nuclear warhead 361 miles to an ocean target Tuesday after surviving five months of torture tests designed to simulate the worst possible conditions of a European battlefield.

The 35-foot missile, which is being deployed with NATO forces in West Germany, had been alternately frozen and thawed and bounced over more than 1,000 miles of rocky roads on its mobile launcher.

Just two minutes before liftoff, technicians rolled back a portable refrigerator that had encased the rocket for five days, freezing it at a constant 5 degrees below zero. The 8 a.m. liftoff was flawless as the slender missile darted into a clear sky, trailing a plume of smoke from its solid-fuel motors.

The U.S. Army Missile Command reported that both stages performed as planned and released the warhead into the Atlantic Ocean on schedule. "Everything at this point looks very good," said Army spokesman Dave Harris. He said it would be several days before complete test results are analyzed.

Harris said that by freezing the Pershing 2 since Thursday, Army troops simulated the coldest temperatures the weapon might encounter in West Germany, where deployment of the first of 108 of the 1,200-mile-range weapons began in December.

He said there had been some concern that the cold might affect the physical characteristics of the solid propellant.

"We proved today we can eliminate the electric blankets," Harris said, referring to covers the Army has been using to keep the earlier-model Pershing 1A missiles warm in winter weather.

The cold treatment had affected another Pershing 2 launched here May 16 after undergoing the same rough handling. Initial data indicated a good flight; but two weeks later the Army announced that the warhead section had tumbled out of control as it dived into the target zone.

Government employment rising again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of people working for government has resumed the gradual increase under way since World War II, following two years of unusual declines, the Census Bureau reported Tuesday.

Employment by federal, state and local governments totaled just over 16 million as of last October, up from 15.9 million a year earlier, the bureau said. The nation's overall work force was nearly 102 million in October, Labor Department figures show.

Government employment levels had dropped sharply in the two previous years following cutbacks in the Comprehensive Employment Training Act programs, which provided federal funds to state and local governments to employ young people in need of training and job experience.

Now, said Meredith L. DeHart of the bureau's government division, government employment appears to have resumed the steady growth pattern that has been evident since World War II.

Local governments remain the biggest public employers, with 9.3 million workers as of last October, up 0.2 percent from 1982. State governments employed 5.3 million, up 1.8 percent, and the federal civilian work force rose 1 percent to nearly 2.9 million.

A. Rust.
 Through the streets of old Germany went the pushcart purveyors of shirts and socks, crying "I have that!" Or in their German, "Habe das." And when they settled in stores, they remained known by a variation of that street call, "haberdasher."

Hansen's appeal set after election

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — An attorney for convicted Congressman George J. Hansen says the congressman's appeal probably won't be heard until early next year, long after the Nov. 6 general election.

Hansen was convicted in April of violating federal personal financial disclosure laws. He was sentenced to serve up to 15 months in prison, and fined $50,000.

The Idaho Republican was convicted by a district court jury in Washington, D.C., but he has appealed to the circuit court of appeals.

An aide to Hansen's Democratic opponent, Richard Stallings, said Tuesday it appears Hansen doesn't want his appeal resolved before the election because he's afraid of losing.

But Hansen said the appeal probably wouldn't be decided before the election, even if he were to file a motion to expedite his case.

Stallings aide Paul Pugmire said it appears Hansen could accelerate the case if he so desired. "I've heard many attorneys say his chances of winning on appeal are bleak," Pugmire said.

Hansen said his attorneys explored whether to file a motion to expedite the case, but "We found there wasn't any guarantee that expedition was going to get anything done before the election anyway."

Hansen attorney Jim McKenna said the court's briefing schedule released last week includes a Sept. 17 deadline for Hansen's court briefs, an Oct. 17 deadline for the Justice Department to respond and an additional two weeks for reply briefs. He said the case will go before the appellate court in January.

"Until last Wednesday we were hung up on an entirely different matter," said McKenna, because the House was considering Hansen's reprimand. The House voted last week to reprimand Hansen for the violation, although Hansen later claimed the action actually resulted in a victory for him.

McKenna said he also has "misgivings about rushing this thing along," because Hansen may get "less than satisfactory consideration of the matter."

Hansen argued after his lower-court conviction that the court was too hasty when it considered his motions.

Evans asks for wilds talks

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans said today he wants all interested parties to negotiate a new wilderness recommendation for Idaho.

Evans said at a Boise news conference that he is hopes negotiations would produce a new wilderness proposal that Congress might pass this session.

Idaho needs to resolve its long-running wilderness controversy as quickly as possible, Evans said in calling for negotiations conducted on a region-by-region basis. The regions should correspond to Idaho Fish and Game Department management districts, he said.

Evans declined to talk about specific acreage recommendations, but he said each area of the state should be re-examined to decide wilderness questions. The governor has proposed 1.2 million acres of additional wilderness, but he said today that he "will seriously consider a compromise recommendation."

He said he hopes the state's Republican congressional delegation also will seriously consider any new negotiated proposal. D-Orono, State Sen. Marguerite McLaughlin, D-Orono, said she organized a negotiations session in her area and felt considerable progress was made.

She said the entire question of wilderness is a very divisive matter because Idaho residents want to both preserve their way of life and protect jobs involved with the timber and mining industries. But she said most people seem to agree the wilderness question must be resolved.

"We need to work together to come up with a plan that will terminate this issue," she said.

Evans said he was advised that Idaho Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, and Rep. John Selberling, D-Idaho, met last week and agreed to work on a plan acceptable to both sides.

Teacher pay hikes may hinge on evaluations

BOISE (AP) — It will take another $23 million to fund the final stages of a public school improvement bill passed by lawmakers this spring.

And a chief sponsor of the legislation, Rep. Linda Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, said Tuesday that the Legislature's willingness to put up the money may depend on new teacher evaluation programs in each school district.

Bateman is cochairman of a legislative committee reviewing progress toward carrying out provisions of the School Reform Bill, passed by the Legislature early this year. It called for a two-year effort to boost Idaho teacher salaries closer to the national average.

The Legislature earmarked $20.5 million for the first step of the salary increase, and the committee was told that most districts appear to be using the money as intended. Bateman said it will cost about $13 million to complete the teacher salary hikes, and another $10 million to fund a new "career ladder" concept that goes into effect in the fall of 1985.

The state's school districts will devise their own systems for evaluating teacher performance and rewarding teachers' performance and superior in classroom performance. State education officials are working on guidelines for the local evaluation programs.

Bateman said the proposed guidelines will be submitted to the state Board of Education by January with May being the deadline for final action by the board. The board must also approve the district programs.

Parties split state campaign fund

BOISE (AP) — Three political parties will share more than $100,000 in contributions from Idaho taxpayers, Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa announced today.

But the amount taxpayers designated for the parties is down nearly $50,000 from last year.

The Idaho Republican Party will get nearly $55,000, Democrats get about $50,000, and Libertarians get gets $34,000. Two years ago, the American Party received nearly $5,000 from the checkoff fund. But Cenarrusa said the party lost its ballot status in Idaho because it didn't field any candidates this year.

Taxpayer contributions can be made in several ways. A method allowing dollars to go to specific parties generated $38,362 for

Republicans, $34,000 for Democrats and $2,211 for Libertarians. A second option provides for donations based on how the party's candidate for governor did in the last election. That method produced $15,888 for the Democratic Party and

UI scientists experimenting with weed-control insects

BOISE (AP) — Idaho entomologists are experimenting with ways to use insects in the battle against weeds that cost Idaho farmers $400 million a year in lost profits.

Larvae of insects such as the sand weevil eat the seeds of the musk thistle, reducing production of weed seeds. A similar insect can help control the spread of Canada thistle in the same way.

Scientists believe research into the use of insects could be a cost-effective alternative to sprays.

In Bingham County, herbicides to control wild oats are sprayed annually on about 75 percent of the area's fields. About 20 percent of grain fields are sprayed twice a year.

Bingham County Agent Brian Finnigan estimates it can cost farmers about $25 an acre to buy and spray herbicides.

Of 31 weeds on a noxious-weed list mentioned in a University of Idaho film, none are native to Idaho.

Some, such as Dyers wood, came to the West as commercial plants. Others drifted onto animals' hides or were carried by the wind.

Finnigan said new weeds introduced in Idaho can spread rapidly because they usually are more vigorous than crops or native plants.

Man sentenced for murder of wife

BOISE (AP) — A Vietnamese native living in Boise has been sentenced to a maximum 15 years in prison for the stabbing death of his common-law wife.

Kiet Vi Giang, 22, was sentenced in 4th District Court Tuesday for the death of Nu Ngoc Dam, 28.

Giang pleaded guilty to second-degree murder in a bargaining agreement with the Ada County prosecutor's office.

Woman dies after visit to graveyard

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — An 85-year-old woman apparently visited her husband's grave before quietly dying in a Coeur d'Alene cemetery.

Alma Skresvig went to the Forest Cemetery adjoining the Coeur d'Alene home for the Aged early Monday evening to visit the graves of her husband and sister, according to Beverly Bailey, administrative secretary of the home.

Her body was found on a little footpath with gravestones all around her, near the grave of her husband, Ms. Bailey said.

"At one point she visited the cemetery quite regularly," Ms. Bailey said. "But she hadn't been over there for quite a while, until last night."

Mrs. Skresvig, who came to the nursing home in 1981, took the recent death of her sister "quite hard," she added.

The 72 residents of the home have not talked much about Mrs. Skresvig's death, which apparently was from natural causes.

"We've had other residents die and they usually talk about it," said Ms. Bailey.

Residents of the home are free to come and go as they please. Home personnel did not find Mrs. Skresvig when they went to get her for dinner at 7:30 p.m. Her body was found a short time later.

Soviets hurrying carrier work

LONDON (AP) — Three satellite photographs showing the Soviet Navy's first nuclear-powered aircraft carrier, under construction in a Black Sea shipyard, indicate that work has been speeded up on the 75,000-ton flattop, Jane's Defense Weekly reported Tuesday.

The photos, published in the weekly, show the carrier being constructed in two halves at the Nikolayev shipyard-44.

Western defense specialists believe the carrier, which they believe will be called the Krenalin, is the first of up to eight Soviet carriers equal in size to the USS Enterprise, the largest American carrier.

Sakharov's wife sends letters

MOSCOW (AP) — Yelena Bonner, wife of dissident Andrei Sakharov, has sent two letters to friends here saying she expects to stand trial this month and that she has not heard from her husband since May 7, Moscow sources said Tuesday.

The sources, who asked not to be identified, said they saw one letter and spoke with the person who received the other one from Mrs. Bonner. She and Sakharov are confined to the closed city of Gorky 250 miles east of Moscow.

They said they believed the letters were genuine and they had been sent through the Soviet mail system.

Iranians deny hijacking plot

BONN, West Germany (AP) — The Iranian Embassy on Tuesday denied allegations that Iranian diplomats in West Germany plotted the hijacking of an Air France jetliner.

An embassy spokesman in Bonn said the accusations by the Office of the People's Mujahadeen of Iran, a group of exiled Iranians based in Paris, were "evil slander."

The spokesman, who spoke on condition he not be named, said: "This group belongs to the terrorist organizations of Iran. It is no wonder that such groups spread lies against the government in Tehran."

Peres searches for coalition

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister-designate Shimon Peres met Tuesday with leaders of small political parties in hopes of finding enough partners to form a coalition government.

The Labor Party leader, who talked with representatives of four small parties Monday, started his Tuesday meetings with the centrist Yehud (together) Party of Ezer Weizman.

Population work aid urged by bank leader

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The president of the World Bank told the U.N. International Conference on Population on Tuesday that increased financial aid to population programs would make "a vast difference" in the future of the world.

Although Bank President A.W. Clausen made no direct reference to the "controversy" over the Reagan administration's policy that suggests poor nations can cope with population growth through economic progress, he strongly endorsed continued population planning and assistance.

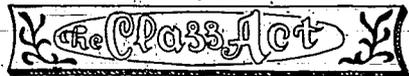

Even a small increase in donations, he said, could "make a vast difference... to population growth, to maternal and child health, and thus to the future we share. Surely all donors can recognize that fact, and respond accordingly."

Clausen said a World Bank report on population presented last month in Washington offers evidence "that the international community must work together in a renewed effort to slow population growth. Such an effort is critical to the drive to accelerate economic and social development."

The U.S. policy paper prepared for the conference says too much government control and planning in Third World countries held back economic growth that could have led to a decline in the birth rate. It emphasizes "sound economic policies" over population policy.

In his speech to the full conference of about 140 nations, Clausen said, "Rapid reductions in population growth, and indeed rapid improvements in living standards, plainly require a combination of economic and social development with family planning."

Blaine board puts levy to voters

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — In the shadow of the death of Superintendent Dick Jones, the Blaine County School Board Monday placed a $3.9 million building program before county voters on Sept. 6.

If approved, the district will begin a five-year program next summer to make improvements to all six of its schools by adding 29 new classrooms and remodeling existing structures. Although Jones died of a heart attack only the day before, the trustees moved quickly because the levy must be certified by Sept. 15 to draw from the 1985 tax collections. The election will be the culmination of two years of work by Jones and the district's other administrators to address the needs of the district during the next 10 years. Enrollment is expected to swell by an annual rate of 2 percent during that period. In assembling the building program, the trustees opted for a plant facilities levy over a construction bond, because it will not have to pay interest on the levy.

Wood River Valley

It was estimated that interest on a construction bond would cost taxpayers an extra $2.3 million.

The four trustees voted unanimously for the levy and said they believed it was the best program for the district.

"I don't think we've left any stone unturned as to how the money should be raised or the amount we need for the improvements," said Trustee Peter Hood.

By moving ahead, the board dropped the building project on the shoulders of high school Principal Phil Homer, who was named to replace Jones on an interim basis.

Although somewhat reluctant, Homer accepted the challenge.

"It's definitely going to be hard for me," Homer told the board. "But I think I will be helped by colleagues. I will carry it out." Bellevue School Principal Claude Ballard, who worked with Jones on the building program, said Jones believed strongly in the need for the program and urged the board to move ahead with it.

If approved, the levy will place $550,000 a year in a reserve fund for the building of classrooms and other improvements. The money will pay for the following improvements:

• In 1985, eight new classrooms, two bathrooms and storage space, and the purchase of land for future growth, at Bellevue elementary. Also, the ninth grade will move to the high school from Wood River Junior High School.

• In 1986, seven new classrooms, two bathrooms, storage space and a new roof at Halley elementary, and the building program, said Jones expansion of the science facilities at the high school.

• In 1987, six new classrooms at Halley, bathrooms and storage at Carey.

• In 1988, six new classrooms at the high school, and two new classrooms, a media center and equipment at Hemingway elementary.

• In 1989, expansion of the locker rooms, multi-purpose room and gymnasium and a new agricultural classroom at Carey, and expansion of the multi-purpose room and office complex at Bellevue.

Among the major maintenance improvements are new roofs of most of the schools.

Paths will be open from noon to 6 p.m. on Sept. 6 at Bellevue Elementary School, Carey School, Halley Elementary School, Hemingway Elementary School in Ketchum and the Sun Valley City Hall.

Pool bond to get push

City helps foot bill

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Proponents of the nearly $2 million pool bond issue to be voted on Tuesday plan an intensive campaign in the next few days to convince voters of the merits of the project.

Included will be the mailing of a pro-pool brochure to every registered voter in the city. Plans also call for newspaper advertising and radio spots in the last few days before the election.

One proponent, Twin Falls City Councilman Wade Kleinkepp, says the city does not expect the total promotion expense to exceed $1,500.

Some of this expense will be covered by the city; some will be covered by donations from businesses and individuals, he says.

Among businesses that have agreed to pitch in so far are Henningsen's Cold Storage, Babel's Cleaners and the accounting firm of Evans, Condie & Holmstead, he says.

The most visible promotion effort, on the part of a pro-bond committee, spearheaded by council members and members of the Twin Falls School Board, will be the brochure.

School district information specialist Jane Baker says the brochures bearing the slogan "Let's pool together" have been printed. About 3,800 will be mailed to registered voters. The rest will be handed out at meetings and other occasions, she says.

The cost of printing the brochures was around $100, Baker says. City finance director Bryce King estimates another $100 to $150 will have to be spent to bulk mail these to voters.

Although the remainder of the budget for the effort has not been set, Baker says she and committee member Donna Brize have been discussing quarter-page newspaper ads, which cost $250 and will bear the

Waste water system on trial

Homeowners' concern about potato sewage forces hearing

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The zoning controversy about Idaho Frozen Foods' potato waste water disposal system will surface Thursday at a public hearing before the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission.

At issue will be the company's application for a conditional-use permit for the system, located on 550 acres owned by the company in the Snake River Canyon near the mouth of Rock Creek.

Fourth District Court Judge Robert Rowett told the county last November its August 1982 decision allowing the system in the outdoor recreation zone violated the county zoning ordinance.

The company applied for the permit in early June as a result of discussions with the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners on how to settle the court's objection.

The system now includes a number of infiltration basins, but the company would like the permit also to cover sprinkler irrigation of sloping areas.

The appeal to Rowett of the original county decision allowing the system was made by the Meander Point Homeowners Association.

This time around, that group has asked the county to grant the permit only with a number of restrictions, including closure of the system during the three summer months, prohibition of further expansion, landscaping and an agreement by the company to abide by a set of fixed state Department of Health and Welfare standards. The company has said at least the first of these restrictions is unacceptable.

In addition, Lance Salladay, a Boise attorney for the association, says he does not believe a permit will square the system with the county zoning ordinance. He says the county must take the broader step of amending its definition of the recreation zone to allow waste disposal facilities.

In a related action Friday, Rowett heard the application of the homeowners for $16,235 in attorney's fees and court costs related to the November decision.

In a brief summarizing the association's position, Salladay argued the association had been acting as a "private attorney general, protecting the public interest" by demanding county officials abide by their own ordinance.

Company attorney Steve Tolman and Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Baker argued the homeowners had submitted no evidence to support that claim, however.

In addition, Tolman said the public benefit would actually be served better by allowing the system, since only a handful of property owners were pursuing the suit.

Homeowner spokesman Ed Laats says the group has amassed a considerable debt, which it would like to pay before replying to a joint appeal of the November decision to the Idaho Supreme Court by the company and the county.

At the end of last month, the state high court granted the association an extension on filing its brief.

Rowett has 30 days to make a decision on the attorney's fees.

Thursday set for Gooding

GOODING — Gooding County's annual three-day celebration of the farming, ranching and homemaking tradition "kicks off" Thursday.

Organizers of the Gooding County Fair and Rodeo — the largest annual event for the towns of Hagerman, Bliss, Wendell and Gooding — hope the free admission price will draw many people to visit the special events and 4-H Future Farmers of America and community exhibits.

Fair organizers have decided on the theme "Patchwork of Summer" for this year, because the fair will feature a patchwork of exhibits and events from the county's four communities.

Jones asks state high court to clarify cogeneration ruling

By HAL BEINTON
Times-News writer

BOISE — State Attorney General Jim Jones has petitioned the state Supreme Court to clarify a controversial July 12 ruling that apparently alters the terms of cogenerators' power contracts.

This fixed-rate term for 30-year contracts has been a key element of the Magic Valley's recent boom in the independent power industry.

In an Aug. 1 petition, Jones said "it is impossible to determine from a reading of the (court) decision what it has affirmed and what it has modified."

This confusion has made it impossible for the state Public Utilities Commission to regulate the cogeneration industry and is hampering the growth of the cogeneration industry, Jones said.

The court's July 12 decision sought to specify how fixed-rate contracts between cogenerators and utility companies could be scrutinized by the PUC.

The ruling apparently authorized

Amalgamated wants to sell its surplus steam energy

By HAL BEINTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Amalgamated Sugar Co. wants to sell Idaho Power Co. surplus steam energy from coal-fired boilers at its Nampa and possibly its Twin Falls beet processing plants.

The steam power is waste energy produced at the tail end of the sugar processing season, when the power demand drops, but high-pressure steam generation remains constant, says Ray Galyean, a company electrical engineer.

The sugar company's interest in the power sales was sparked by a 1978 federal law requiring private utilities to purchase electricity from independent producers at a price fixed by the state's public utility commission.

In Idaho, the cogeneration rate has been set at 6.2 cents per kilowatt hour. This rate is higher than the current costs charged to Idaho Power customers but less than the cost of power from new facilities that might be built by the utility.

At the Nampa plant, the power sales could take place during an up-to-four-month period in the late spring and early summer, Galyean said. At the Twin Falls plant, the power sales season probably would only last for less than two months, he said.

If a contract can be reached with Idaho Power, the Nampa plant should start selling about 1.5 megawatts of surplus power by the spring of 1986. Galyean said there is a "strong possibility" that the Twin Falls plant will also be retooled to produce power, if new equipment is installed.

Larry Taylor, an Idaho Power Co. spokesman, says that the utility may be reluctant to purchase the Amalgamated Sugar power, because it is available only during the spring and early summer months.

During those months, the utility is usually saddled with large seasonal surpluses and cogenerated electricity might have to be dumped on regional power markets at well below its purchase cost, Taylor said.

The Amalgamated Sugar power is not something we would be eager to have," Taylor said Tuesday.

But John Lemke, Amalgamated Sugar's general counsel, said that transforming the excess steam into useable power is a good idea.

"If we can receive a reasonable rate for our surplus energy, the plan makes a lot of sense," Lemke said.

utility has signed.

In his Aug. 1 petition, Jones argued that a PUC contract review would violate a clause in the federal constitution that prohibits the "impairment of contracts." He also argued that a contract review would constitute "discriminatory treatment" of cogenerators, which is prohibited by federal law.

Jones' court petition has been joined by three similar petitions filed by the Shampoor Co., Potlatch Corp. and Amalgamated Sugar Co. The three companies seek either a clarification or rehearing of the July 12 ruling.

Cogenerator developers say that the court ruling has hurt efforts to finance new projects by reducing investors' confidence in receiving a fixed rate of return from cogeneration projects.

"I've got two different opinions from two attorneys," said Jack Stueber, who is based in independent hydro developer. "All of this uncertainty is going to put a real dent in the industry for awhile."

periodic PUC reviews of cogeneration contracts to see whether their rates should be revised up or down, depending on whether the power market was in a period of glut or shortage. PUC Commissioner Cobley Ward said it was unclear whether the ruling applied to all cogeneration contracts or only those signed after the Supreme Court's July decision. It was also unclear whether the ruling applied only to "involuntary" contracts that Idaho Power was required by federal law to enter, or all cogeneration contracts that the

Swann tax charge appeal fails

JEROME — Ephraim Swann, 60, of Jerome, lost his appeal Tuesday to a conviction of failure to file income tax returns for six years.

Swann appealed the Magistrate Court conviction in Fifth District Court by filing a "writ of error," which was heard by District Judge Phillip Becker Tuesday.

Swann, who represented himself, was asked by the court to present evidence as to why an appeal should or should not be granted.

But his argument was cut short by the judge, who said it was improper evidence. Becker also ruled Swann did not file a proper appeal and dismissed the appeal request.

Swann was sentenced in May to spend 10 days in the Jerome County jail and pay a $300 fine for failure to file income tax returns for the past six years.

Pence files suit after surgery

BOISE (AP) — A Twin Falls man claims doctors at the Veterans Administration hospital in Boise left a sponge inside him last year when he underwent abdominal surgery.

Robert Pence says in a lawsuit filed in U.S. District Court here Monday that he had an operation at the VA hospital in March of 1983. He claims he was sick after the surgery and had another operation one month later during which doctors found a sponge left behind from the first surgery.

His suit asks $250,000 in damages and attorney fees.

Man charged for pot purchase

TWIN FALLS — Marvin Gene Stigall of Twin Falls was fined Monday to pay the state Department of Law Enforcement $150 — the amount narcotic agents used to buy marijuana from him last fall.

The reimbursement was part of a two-year probation imposed on the 22-year-old Stigall by Fifth District Judge Daniel Meehi at a Monday hearing. Stigall already has served four months at a state rehabilitation program at Cottonwood after he was convicted of selling marijuana in Twin Falls on Sept. 30.

Contractor sues roads district

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — A Mountain Home contractor has accused the Glens Ferry Highway District of taking business away from private companies by taking on nonpublic contracting work.

Ron Dodge, president of Wilson and Dodge Inc., has asked 4th District Judge Robert Rowett to bar the highway district from continuing the practice. Rowett has set an Aug. 16 hearing date on the complaint.

Dodge contends district crews and equipment have been used to build private roads and deliver sand and gravel for private use.

The most recent example, the suit alleges, is the district's construction of a cement parking lot for the Corner Market in Glens Ferry. Dodge claims his company lost $13,000 because the government, not a private contractor, performed the work.

Attorneys for Dodge contend state law prohibits political entities like highway districts from engaging in private contracts.

Mead named to state board

BOISE (AP) — A Twin Falls man is the newest member of the Board of Public Utilities. David L. Mead was appointed to the position by Gov. John Evans Monday. He succeeds John Van Orman of Jerome, who resigned.

Mead, a 54-year-old banker, will serve until next January. He's an officer of Idaho First National Bank, manages a Twin Falls plant and firm and is a past chairman of the Twin Falls Planning and Zoning Commission.

Seven earn CSI certificates

TWIN FALLS — Seven students completed the eight-week certified nursing assistant course this week at the College of Southern Idaho.

The program was conducted by the college under a grant from the Job Training Partnership Act for disadvantaged persons.

Karrie Siplon, nursing department chairperson, said the students also were taught job-seeking skills and career exploration in health areas where less than two years of training is required. She said many of the students will be employed by local nursing homes and others will continue their education at CSI.

CSI session for older students

TWIN FALLS — The Center for New Directions at the College of Southern Idaho will hold an informal coffee at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 16. The session is for older students who are returning to school after being away for several years.

The center staff and students who have experienced the problems will be on hand to answer questions about how to enroll, what to wear, what to call a professor younger than yourself and similar problems.

The coffee will be held at the center, 1069 Washington St. N., College of Southern Idaho campus.

Konrad's quote corrected

BURLEY — Jerry Konrad, owner of Kam Phligas of Burley, was incorrectly quoted in a Sunday Times-News article as saying he had netted Cassia County School District vehicle purchasing proposals from Adams Petroleum, owned by Larry Adams of Burley.

Konrad said he had seen district buses buying diesel fuel from Adams, whose business is located across the street from Konrad's.

Adams, who operates out of offices in Burley and Twin Falls, says he does not sell propane fuel.

BLM district seeks advisors

ELKO — The Elko Bureau of Land Management District is seeking three nominations for members of its agency advisory council.

The seven-person advisory council is staffed by volunteers who advise the BLM on programs and policies affecting the Elko District.

All appointments to the positions are made by Interior Secretary William Clark based on recommendations by the local district and state BLM office.

In the Elko District, which includes the lands around Jackpot, nominations are sought for members to represent transportation and public officials and non-renewable resources.

Nominations should be sent to the BLM Elko District, P.O. Box 81, Elko, Nev., 89801.

For more information, contact Michele Good at the BLM's Elko office.

Rangeland volunteers sought

ELKO — The Bureau of Land Management's Elko District wants volunteers to help monitor the condition of rangeland vegetation in the western part of Elko County.

Volunteers must be able to withstand high temperatures for extended periods of time. All necessary equipment will be provided to volunteers. However, they must bring their own food and beverages.

Volunteers should apply for the job at the Elko District office at 2002 Idaho Street in Elko. For more information, telephone Stan Kemmerer at 738-4071.

BLM officials say the job is an excellent opportunity to learn about the flora of northern Nevada.

Spray attack on 'hoppers' expanded into Rupert area

TWIN FALLS — Federal agriculture officials today are expanding insecticide spraying into the Rupert area and across central Minidoka County, where grasshoppers are attacking farmers' crops.

Elmer Russell, chief of the plant services bureau for the Idaho Department of Agriculture, said three government-owned deserts along private cropland will get their first doses of the insecticide malathion during the next few days.

Local aerial applicators today are scheduled to treat a 5,000-acre swath of land stretching south from Lake Walcott Reservoir in northern Cassia County. The area, which is east of Rupert, is among those most heavily infested with the insects.

Pest control specialists from the U.S. Animal and Health Protection Service also have authorized spraying at the south edge of the BLM scrubland across central Minidoka County. The strips take in between 25,000 and 30,000 acres and should extend close to Kimama in eastern Lincoln County, Russell said.

Officials have added 10,000 acres of Power County in the Lake Channel and Pleasant Valley areas to the croplusting operation.

However, they have eliminated 39,000 acres of BLM land near Bruneau, because there was not enough time to allow honey beekeepers to move their hives out, Russell said.

Cropdusters have been spraying a 13,540-acre area east of Hammett in Elmore County since Monday.

APHIS, an agency of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, began fighting the grasshoppers with insecticides this week after Agriculture Secretary John Block last week declared southern Idaho to be in a state of agricultural emergency.

The federal government has brought in malathion from stocks in Oregon and is spending $400,000 to pay spraying costs of local applicators.

The operation eventually is expected to cover about 100,000 acres in half-mile-wide strips of government-owned desert along private farm fields.

Project Mutual upgrades lines

RUPERT — Project Mutual Telephone Co. is yanking down eight miles of aerial lines and burying higher capacity ones between the towns of Aecquia and Minidoka as part of an upgrading of phone cables.

The telephone cooperative also will complete a multi-year, $2.5 million modernization of the phone company's switching systems when it installs new electronic equipment in Aecquia this summer, general manager Jeff Adams said Tuesday.

The new cables going underground this year should increase capacity between the two towns from 200 subscribers to 600, he said.

"We are up against the wall," he said. "We are about at the point where we cannot give more (new) phone service."

The Acquia end of the cable also will get new electronic switching equipment and a building this year, completing a company-wide modernization, Adams said. Currently, calls are switched mechanically.

"It's not that it (switching equipment) wears out; it's just that it becomes technically obsolete."

Ketchum council approves budget

KETCHUM — A $2.3 million operating budget for the 1985 fiscal year was passed Monday by the Ketchum City Council after only a small amount of opposition during a public hearing.

After being presented with a petition to help fund the Blaine County Community Education Program, the city decided to shift $1,260 from its One-Wagon maintenance fund to meet the request.

The council initially balked at spending the money, because it believes city residents are paying city and county taxes, said Jim Jaque, city administrator.

No other comments were made on the budget.

The budget also includes $2.65 million in capital improvement, but those funds are provided either through grants or impact fees paid by developers.

names of prominent supporters. Radio ads also are a relatively inexpensive way to get the word out if there is enough money, she says.

King says the city has a special account for the pool promotion effort, which currently contains $250, but that the city has agreed to cover all promoter expenses other than those covered through the donations.

He sees no problem with the council spending city money on the campaign. The money will come from his budget.

If the city plans to spend the approximately $2,000 required to hold the election, it would be advised not to spend more to inform voters, she says.

But Pam Shropshire, a member of Idaho Neighbors Network, a group opposed to the pool, says its wrong for city money to be spent when there is considerable opposition to the project in the community.

Her group plans to spend only about $30 on an anti-pool campaign, mostly for paper, she says.

According to City Attorney Fritz Wunderlich, there is no state statute prohibiting the use of city money on the campaign.

Controlled by computer, the electronic switching is more reliable and allows sophisticated testing of customers' phone lines. In many cases, the tests can detect trouble before it occurs, Adams said.

The company also installed the electronic gear at Minidoka and Norland this spring at Rupert last year and at Paul in 1980.

This year, Project Mutual plans to spend about $900,000 on modernization and maintenance programs, he said.

Steelhead fishermen get bonus

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Fish and Game Commission has approved a fall steelhead season that includes a "bonus plan."

Commissioners Monday decided that fishermen will be given 10 additional tags for steelhead in the Salmon River after the initial permits are used.

Changes also were made in the regulations governing which fish may be kept from the mouth of the Salmon River to White Bird Creek. Sportsmen will be able to keep steelhead with dorsal fins measuring 2 inches or less in that area.

In other parts of Idaho, the regulation will remain at two fish at 14 inches.

Fish and Game Information Officer Hugh Wilson said the change on the Salmon River was made to bring Idaho into conformity with Oregon and Washington.

The shorter dorsal fin indicates a steelhead is a hatchery fish, Wilson said. Steelhead bred in a hatchery have a shorter dorsal fin because the constant banging against tanks rubs down the fin, he said.

Commissioners have imposed the dorsal-fin regulation to build up numbers of natural steelhead.

The bonus plan was implemented because Idaho is expecting a record run of hatchery steelhead this year, commissioners said.

About 138,500 A-run steelhead have been counted at Bonneville Dam, up from 95,900 counted at the same time last year, said Dave Hanson, department anadromous fisheries manager. Fish and Game officials are projecting a record-run of 195,000 to 200,000 steelhead.

A-run fish return to the Salmon River, while B-run steelhead return to the Clearwater River system, Wilson said. Counts on B-run steelhead will begin around Aug. 25, he said.

Hanson said the season approved Monday, which runs from Sept. 1 to Dec. 31, could be changed if counts between now and late August don't meet projections.

Commissioners say they're concerned that a liberal commercial fishery planned in Washington may vastly reduce the amount of steelhead that will return to Idaho.

Hanson said the commercial fishery is expected to net 10,000 steelhead, but commissioners said they are concerned the figure might reach 50,000.

Commissioners instructed the department's attorney to lay the groundwork for a possible lawsuit if the fishery threatens the anticipated number of steelhead returning to the Gem State.

S. Korea's boxers may quit Games

In protest of U.S. victory

By TIM DAHLBERG
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Upset by a decision his fighter lost to American Jerry Page, a top South Korean official said Tuesday his boxing team may pull out of the Olympic Games.

Soo-In Oh, vice president of the Korean Amateur Boxing Federation, said team officials planned to meet later in the day to make a final decision.

"We are now seriously considering pulling out," said Oh. "The judging has been unfair."

But the president of the federation appeared to back off of the threat when asked if his team had anything to gain by leaving the competition. "I think not and I will make the decision," said Seung-Youn Kim.

The South Korean complaint was the second of the day that judges were favoring American boxers in fights that went to decisions. Cardiff boxer Steve McCrory, who made the same claim after his fighter lost to American Steve McCrory.

Oh said the South Korean team has officially protested the judging of Tuesday morning's bout between Page and Dong-Kil Kim, which was won 4-1 by Page.

The Protest Committee of the International Amateur Boxing Association (AIBA) met Tuesday night. Col Harvey Schiller of the United States, director of competition for this tournament, said a decision would be announced Wednesday.

If the IABA disallows the protest, Oh said, the South Korean boxing team may be withdrawn. "I'm not saying we decided yet," said Oh. "That is one of many factors we are considering."

Kim, the second-ranked fighter in the world at 129 pounds, appeared to have pulled out the fight against Page with a strong finish in the third round. But a four-ringside judge favored the American by one point each, while only one picked the South Korean.

The judges who voted for Page were from Uganda, New Zealand, Colombia and Nigeria. An Italian judge voted for Kim.

Oh complained that the judges generally have favored American boxers throughout the Olympic boxing competition, and said his feeling is shared by officials of several other countries.

"Generally speaking, I have heard many people say the judging has been unfair so far," said Oh. "We feel that most decisions are made in favor of Americans."

No U.S. fighter has lost a decision through 28 fights. The only American loss came on a knockout.

Gonde, the Malawi coach, made his charge after his 112-pound fighter, Peter Ayeseu, was beaten on a 5-0 decision by McCrory.

"When you're fighting an American it's always 5-0," said Gonde. "You can't just say 5-0 like one guy is just standing and another is hitting."

Gonde complained that some of the decisions should be 4-1, or 3-2, because both fighters are scoring blows.

scoring can be misleading because a 5-0 score means that all five ringside judges favored one fighter.

"It does not take into account how closely each individual judge scores the bout. In the McCrory decision, the judges had him ahead by from four to six points, but in some decisions they have had Americans ahead by one point.

Until Gonde complained, U.S. fighters were 5-0 winners in all their fights that went to decisions.

The victories assured both Page and McCrory of no less than bronze medals.

Advancing with them to the semifinals were Pernell Whitaker, the 132-pound class world champion; Paul Gonzales, 106; and Virgil Hill, 165.

The Korean team has a 19-4 record here, with the latest victory coming Tuesday night with Chul Sung Chung knocking down Leopoldo Cantancio of the Philippines and stopping him in the third round at 1-12.

Whitaker, of Norfolk, Va., who will box Chung in the semifinals, did almost all the fighting in scoring an easy 5-0 decision over Reiner Gels of West Germany Tuesday night. Whitaker staggered the German with a leaping left to the head in the first round and made him take standing 8-counts in the third.

The 5-foot-8½ Gonzales, of Los Angeles, used his reach and left jab to box his way to a 2-1 verdict over aggressive John Lynn of Great Britain, also at night. Lynn caught Gonzales with several good head of shots, but was unable to put his punches together.

Gonzales will fight in the semifinals against Jose Marcelino Boliva of Venezuela, who outpointed Carlos Moola-Tarcena of Guatemala 5-0 Hill, of North Dakota, got a 4-1 decision, which was greeted by a mixed reaction. But Hill's winning HILL, who won 4-1, got in an occasional hard punch to the head in the first round.

McCrory's semifinal opponent will be Eyyup Can of Turkey, who scored effectively to the head with both hands and had a big third round to upset South Korean Yong-Mo Heo "I don't know anything about of the Turk. "I'll find out though."

Hill's semifinal opponent will be Mohamed Zaqui of Algeria who won a 4-1 jury decision over Moses Mwaba of Zambia. The judges voted 3-2 for Mwaba, but the jury reversed the decision. All 3-2 verdicts go to the jury, which must vote at least 4-1 for a reversal.

Louganis perfect in opener

By D. BYRON YAKE

LOS ANGELES — Greg Louganis of the United States earned a pair of perfect scores in platform diving preliminaries at the Summer Olympics Tuesday, while the American baseball team was losing in the finals at press time.

In the bottom of the eighth inning in the game for the gold medal in baseball, officially a demonstration sport at these Games, the U.S. trailed Japan 6-1.

The United States won the gold medal in equestrian team jumping, while sailors from the United States, New Zealand and Spain clinched gold medals in three of the seven yachting classes. The yachting medals won't count in the countries' totals, however, until competition ends Wednesday.

The U.S. teams have dominated the Summer Games which the Soviet Union and most of its allies are boycotting, and the boxing team is expected to add a large number of medals when the finals are held on Saturday.

Louganis, meanwhile, was soaring through the first round of five preliminary dives and getting a pair of perfect scores of 10.0 — one for a reverse dive from the pike position, the other for a forward dive from the straight position.

He finished the morning session with 249.77 points, far ahead of second-place Li Hongping of China, who had 229.83. Six more dives were set Tuesday night, with the finals Wednesday. In the Pacific Ocean, just off Long

U.S. women capture their first basketball gold

By GEORGE STRODE

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — The United States, with Cheryl Miller scoring 16 points and leading a bounding defense that forced South Korea to shoot from the outside, cruised to an 85-55 romp Tuesday night and won its first Olympic women's basketball gold medal.

Miller, a 6-foot-3 junior who has led the University of Southern California to two national titles, worked inside, shot outside, hounded the South Koreans on defense and led the American's rebounding domination.

The unbeaten U.S., relying heavily on Layups, posted its second triumph over South Korea in six days.

It outscored the losers 16-2 in five minutes for a 28-14 lead in the opening half, and in typical fashion, scored different U.S. women scored in the streak. Only Anne Donovan, one of four 1980 Olympians on this team, scored two baskets in the sport.

The American women, working inside against the 2-3 South Korean zone, often got two, three and four shots in a single possession. Meanwhile, the United States used its intimidating man-to-man defense to force South Korea to shoot from long range. The losers frequently

And only Hwa-Soon Kim, the tournament's leading scorer, who had 15 points to finish with 101 for the tournament, and An-Young Choi, with 20 points, could hit with any consistency.

Janice Lawrence, a 6-foot-3 center who led Louisiana Tech to two national women's titles, used her quickness and jumping ability for 14 points, all from close range.

Substitute Cindy Noble, a 6-5 Tennessee product, contributed 10. The Americans, who came into the game winning by an average margin of 33 points, swept into a 42-27 halftime lead with Lawrence's 10 points leading the way.

In the second half, it was just a matter of how big the final margin would be, sending South Korea home from its first Olympic basketball competition.

When the South Koreans called a timeout with 13:38 left, and the score 58-38, a Forum crowd of 11,280 roared its approval. The fans waved American flags and chanted, "USA, USA, USA."

Meanwhile, the bronze medal went to China, which defeated Canada 63-57 in the first game Tuesday night.

Song Xiaobo paced the Chinese with 16 points while Xiu Lijuan had 13. Li Xiaojin 11 and Cong Xuedi 10. It was the first time the Chinese had participated in the Olympic women's basketball tournament. Canada finished last in 1976, but boycotted the 1980 Moscow Games.

China finished 3-3 in this tournament while Canada was 2-4.

Bev Smith, a 6-foot forward, paced Canada with 13 points, one more than Debbie Hubbard, a 5-8 guard.

A field goal by Cong broke the sixth tie of the game and put the Chinese ahead to stay 24-20 with 6:49 left in the first half.

In the second half, Canada never got closer than two points.

Even the South Korean coach, Seung-Youn Cho, conceded the gold medal to the undefeated Americans prior to the championship. The United States thumped the South Koreans 84-47 in their preliminary round meeting last week in this six-nation tournament.

To be honest with you, we are playing for the silver," Cho said after South Korea defeated China Sunday

Chinese women crush Americans

LONG BEACH, Calif. — China put an unhappy ending to several years of strenuous training — by the United States Tuesday night, defeating the Americans 16-14, 15-3, 15-9 to win the women's volleyball gold medal at the Olympics.

China, which entered the Olympics as the reigning world champion, burst the Americans' bubble before a disappointed capacity crowd of about 12,000 at the Long Beach Arena.

Nevertheless, the silver medal earned by the U.S. was the first medal the Americans collected since volleyball was introduced as an Olympic sport 20 years ago.

The previous best finish by an American team was fifth in the 1968 Games.

China thus made a successful debut in Olympic volleyball. The Chinese hadn't competed in the Games since 1952.

Earlier Tuesday night, Japan rebounded from the one-sided loss it suffered to China in the medal round by beating Peru 13-15, 15-4, 15-7, 15-10 to earn the bronze medal.

Seven members of the U.S. gold medal squad played on the 1980 team that qualified for the Moscow Olympics. But 1984 became the team's goal when the American boycott of the Games was announced.

The team missed reaching its goal by one match.

China, which blew substantial leads in three games of a 15-13, 7-15, 16-14, 15-12 loss to the Americans in pool play last Friday, did the same thing in the first game of the championship match. But the Chinese got away with it.

Seven straight points gave China a 14-9 lead after five consecutive points by the Americans led the score. However, China faltered twice while Hou Yuzhu was serving to win the 38-minute game.

As evidenced by the score, the second game was no contest. China took a 4-0 lead, gave up a point, then ran off seven straight points to take an insurmountable advantage. The game lasted only 18 minutes.

Cubs sweep Mets to extend East lead

By The Associated Press

Keith Moreland didn't want to hurt anybody and Ed Lynch said he wasn't throwing at Moreland.

Pitcher Lynch hit batter Moreland with a pitch Tuesday in Chicago that cleared the bases in the second game of a double-header in which the Chicago Cubs swept the New York Mets 8-6 and 8-4.

Moreland slugged a three-run homer in the first game followed by a two-run blast by Ron Cey in the first game and Cey capped a five-run rally in the fourth inning of the nightcap with a two-run double.

Immediately after Cey's double, Lynch hit Moreland with a pitch. Moreland charged the mound, tackled Lynch and both benches cleared.

"I wasn't trying to hit him," said Lynch. "It was a fast ball in off the plate and he was leaning over. I was trying to set the tone for the at-bat—I can understand his feelings. He's a competitor and so am I."

Moreland said he didn't want to get involved in the controversy.

"I have no hard feelings. I didn't want to hurt anybody," said Moreland. "I just wanted to get my pitch across that I don't like being thrown at."

Met Manager Dave Johnson explained: "They're swinging some Boston bats and we have one of the best pitching staffs in the league and they're roughing us up. Even their shock troops."

"I don't think it's flagrant to hit someone in the leg when you're getting roughed up."

After Moreland was hit by Lynch and both teams were issued warnings by the umpires, Cub pitcher Scott Sanderson hit Kevin Chapman with a pitch in the fifth inning and Sanderson and Cub Manager Jim Frey were ejected.

"It's an unfortunate thing," said Frey. "We know these things happen. We have to assume they did what they had to do under the circumstances. We did what we had to do under the circumstances and the umpires had to do what they did to get things under control."

"I think the umpires handled it well," added Frey. "I don't think they thought Sanderson tried to hit him but they had to do something to get everybody's attention."

The sweep made it five straight victories for the Cubs, who have now won 11 of their last 13 games and opened a 3/2-game lead over the second-place Mets in the National League East.

Tim Stoddard, 8-4, relieved after Sanderson's ejection and was credited with the victory in the second game. Lee Smith gained his 25th save.

stroked an inside-the-park homer and Albie Simmonds hit one out in a four-run third inning as Phillies beat the Expos.

Los Angeles 2, Atlanta 1

In Atlanta, a two-out single by Steve Yeager in the 11th inning scored Terry Whitfield from second base, giving the Los Angeles Dodgers a victory over the Atlanta Braves.

Cincinnati 8, San Diego 7

In Cincinnati, Nick Esasky's bases-loaded sacrifice fly in the bottom of the ninth inning scored Dave Parker with the winning run and sent the Cincinnati Reds to a victory over the San Diego Padres.

St. Louis 2, Pittsburgh 1

In St. Louis, Danny Cox allowed only three hits over seven innings and Terry Pendleton's sixth-inning triple drove in the winning run as the St. Louis Cardinals gained a triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

San Francisco 9, Houston 2

In Houston, Jeff Leonard went 5-for-5 with three RBI and Mike Krukow won his fifth straight game as the San Francisco Giants defeated the Houston Astros.

Twins keep edge in West over Angels

By The Associated Press

Mickey Hatcher got his third hit of the game in the sixth inning and scored on a sacrifice fly by Randy Bush, giving the Minnesota Twins a 2-1 victory over the Oakland Athletics Tuesday night in Oakland, Calif.

Frank Viola, 12-10, pitched a four-hitter for his eighth complete game and did not walk a batter for the Twins, who began play one-half game ahead of second-place California in the American League West. Steve McNamara, 7-9, was the loser.

Hatcher's leadoff double in the first inning set the tone for the game. He moved to third when Kent Huck filed out on a fly and came home on Bush's fly to deep right.

Minnesota's Tom Brunansky hit his 21st homer of the season in the second inning but Dave Lopes tied the score 1-1 by hitting his eighth homer in the bottom of the inning. Brunansky's homer was his fourth in five games while Lopes connected in his first plate appearance since spending a month in the hospital.

The Twins have won three games in a row and nine of their last 12.

Detroit 7, Boston 6

In Boston, Lance Parrish belted a two-run homer, his second of the game and third of the evening, with two out in the 11th inning leading the Detroit Tigers and unbeaten Aurelio Lopez to a victory and a split of a two-night double-header with the Boston Red Sox.

With one out in the ninth, Alvin Trammell grounded an infield hit through the middle of Rich Gale, 1-3, the first out of pitcher Cner Lemon for Trammell, but Parrish drilled a 2-1 pitch high into the screen in left for his 25th homer.

Boston 12, Detroit 7

In the opener, Bill Buckner and Tony Armas belted grand slam home runs in the first two innings, tying an old major-league record, and the Red Sox rolled to a victory over the Tigers.

Buckner also had a solo homer in the second while Armas drove in Boston's first run with a first-inning grounder, giving them each five RBI's. The major-league record for grand slams in a game is two. The Red Sox have done it five times, but this marked their first time since 1960.

New York 7, Chicago 0

In New York, Red Gaudry cooled off Chicago on four singles and struck out 13, his highest total in more than five years, while Brian Bayett and Dave Winfield homered as the New York Yankees blanked the White Sox for a split of a two-night double-header.

Chicago 6, New York 3

In Chicago, opener Frank Thomas smothered a double, an RBI triple and a two-run homer that put Chicago ahead in the fifth inning and Greg Luzinski homered to extend his RBI streak to 10 games.

Cleveland 5, Baltimore 4

In Cleveland, Tony Bernazard, hitless in his previous 22 at-bats, delivered a tie-breaking single in the sixth inning and Chris Barlow drove what proved to be the winning run with a sacrifice fly as Cleveland defeated the Baltimore Orioles and ended a six-game losing streak.

Winner Bert Blyleven, 11-5, allowed seven hits and struck out eight before giving way to Ernie Combs, who one out in the eighth. Gary Roenicke's grounder drive in Baltimore's fourth run drove Camacho nailed down his 14th save.

Kansas City 8, Milwaukee 5

In Kansas City, Mo., pinch-hitter Daneborg slammed a two-run homer and George Brett also hit a two-run shot in a five-run Kansas City eighth inning as the Royals rallied to beat Milwaukee, extending the Brewers' losing streak to 10 games.

Borg belted his fourth home run and Brett hit his ninth off reliever Pete Land, 4-6, as the Royals won their fifth game in a row and 15th in their

Ovett still ailing after 800

Faylor to challenge Twin Falls' best

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One outsider and a couple of status changes figure into the pre-tournament dopest on the eve of the Twin Falls Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

The two-day tournament highlighted by the traditional gross-net 10-team elimination derby Thursday afternoon, opens Thursday morning at Twin Falls Municipal and will conclude Friday afternoon.

The "outsider" is Sharon Faylor, a five-handicapper out of Nampa who is on a four-day amateur tour in Idaho. Faylor will follow her two days of competition here by defending her Boise City Championship Saturday and Sunday.

The status changes that may change a little come from the defending champion, Karen Brown, who made the change to Karen Darrington in June and hence hasn't had the practice rounds she'd been noted for. Additionally, Shauna Robinson, another consistent contender in this event, has had her practice time limited by motherhood.

But two others, Julie Hamblin and Virginia Undtjem, might be primed for making a run at the title this year. Hamblin holds a three handicap and generally plays Twin Falls' Mury well.

Undtjem has won this title several times and may be coming into this year's event at a peak.

"Virginia is playing very well right now and that's because she's been working on her game. I haven't seen her work this hard for the past few years and her scores are reflecting it," said host Professional Don Hamblin.

Others who could show up high on the payoff list are Shirlee Straughlin and Jackie Gasser of Twin Falls; Terria Simpson of Burley and Della Wilson of Buhl.

The field will be treated to continental breakfast both days of the tournament plus a steak fry following competition Thursday night. Hamblin said all entry fees will be returned to the field in merchandise prizes with the meals provided by the hosting Twin Falls Ladies Golf Association.

The scotchball derby will begin at 1 p.m. Thursday, teaming the No. 1 gross with No. 10 net, No. 2 gross with No. 9 net, etc. The team members will alternate shots. The worst score on each hole will be dropped until only the champion remains.

Manicotti by VP candidate

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

When Walter Mondale named Geraldine Ferraro his running mate in the coming presidential election, he said, "Gerry has excelled in everything she's tried, from law school at night to being a tough prosecutor to winning a difficult election, to winning positions of leadership and respect in the Congress."

But what Mr. Mondale didn't say is that Geraldine Ferraro also excels as a cook. After graduating from law school and marrying John A. Zaccaro, she did a little legal work in her husband's real estate office, but most of her early married life was spent bringing up their three children.

It wasn't until the youngest was old enough to go to school that she resumed legal work.

She had plenty of practice preparing the dishes her husband and fourth-generation Italian-American and youngsters enjoyed. Nowadays the Zaccaros have a live-in housekeeper.

One of the dishes Congresswoman Ferraro likes to cook is Manicotti. Her recipe will appear in "Salute to Italy: Celebrity Cookbook," which the J.C. Penney Company, Inc. will publish in September, 1984. It will be available at many of the nationwide Penney's stores.

The variety of contributors to the book is fascinating. Among them: Princess Marcela Borghese; New York Gov. and Mrs. Mario Cuomo; Joe DiMaggio; Chrysler president Leo Iacocca; Gina Lollobrigida; Sophia Loren and Elsa Martinelli, opera stars Anna Moffo, Renata Scotto and Luciano Pavarotti; New York City's famous foodshop family, the Balducos; and Giuliano Bugialli and Marcella Hazan, the two cookbook authors who teach Italian cooking both in the United States and Italy.

Here is my adaptation of Geraldine Ferraro's delicious, lastingly Manicotti. She makes a Bolognese-style tomato sauce for her Manicotti but says, "You can use any of the prepared sauces."

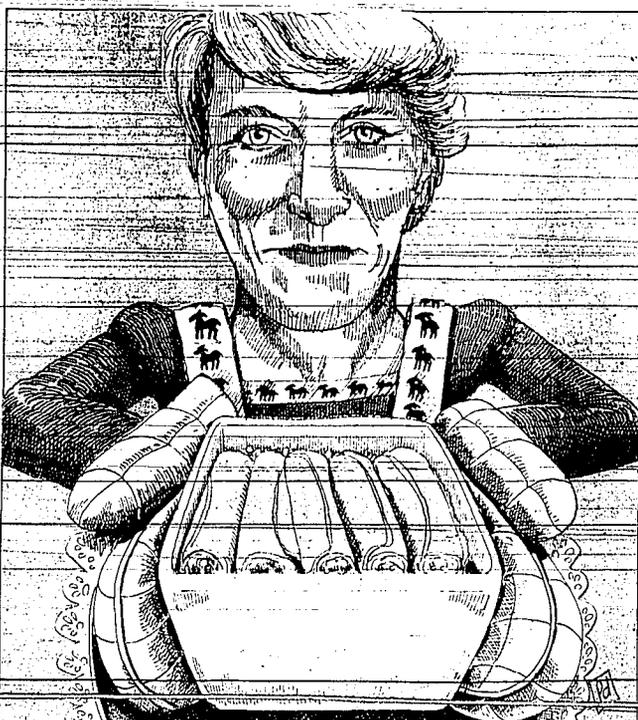

FERRARO'S MANICOTTI

Filling, recipe follows
4 large eggs
1 cup water
1 cup all-purpose flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
Vegetable oil
1 pound whole-milk mozzarella cheese

Tomato sauce
Make Filling and refrigerate
In an electric blender at high speed whirl together eggs, water, flour and salt until smooth. Oil and heat a slope-sided, non-stick skillet (about 6 inches across the bottom), hold it off heat and into it immediately pour 3 scant tablespoons batter and rotate to spread batter evenly.

Cook over moderately low heat until firm; do not brown. Turn and cook lightly on other side. Oil skillet for each pancake only if necessary. Makes 14-16.

Four or five only Tomato Sauce over the bottom of a 3-quart shallow baking dish (13" by 8" by 1 1/2" inches) to cover it. Arrange the stuffed pancakes in the dish; cover with more Tomato Sauce; sprinkle with extra Parmesan cheese. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until bubbling hot in center — about 30 minutes. Pass extra Tomato Sauce (heated) and extra Parmesan. Serve 2 or 3 Manicotti per portion, depending on whether you are offering them as a first course or a main course.

FILLING: Beat together 1 large egg and 1 large egg yolk, 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 ounces whole-milk ricotta cheese, 1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese, salt and pepper to taste.

Berries prove versatile

By TOM HOGG
The Associated Press

My first food book, written 11 years ago, was devoted to one of my favorite fruits: berries. In researching the history of these delicious sweets, I was struck by the versatility of the blueberry, which the first colonists learned about — from the American Indian.

The settlers quickly began making preserves and desserts with the blueberry, but the Indians taught them other uses that you don't hear much about anymore.

In 1616, Samuel de Champlain, the French explorer, encountered a group of Indians beating dried blueberries into a powder and adding it to a parched meal called Sigautille. And when Lewis and Clark made their historic journey into the Northwest Territory, a local tribe served them venison cured by pounding blueberries into the meat.

But the settlers used blueberries mostly for desserts, rarely in the main dish. Today, however, the blueberry is used for breakfast, lunch and dinner, not to mention late night snacks.

For breakfast, they are eaten topped with milk or cream, on cereal and in muffins and pancakes, as well as in jams and jellies.

The berries are becoming popular again. They contain only 42 calories per cup. A shimmering blueberry salad, encased in gelatin, is often served. So is a mold of the berries mixed with cottage cheese and sour cream.

For dinner, game hen stuffed with blueberries is a favorite. Also, blueberry relish, a mixture of the berries, apples, plums, olives and sausage, is delicious on meat dishes.

For a late night pickup, blueberry snack bars are good. I have even seen a recipe for blueberry pizza, which did not entice me.

Here's a recipe for stuffed Cornish hens.

8 Cornish game hens
Salt and pepper
1/2 cup oil
1/2 cup lemon juice
1/2 cup bitters
4 cups fresh blueberries
4 teaspoons sugar
1/2 cup butter
1 small bay leaf
Sprinkle game hens inside and out with salt and pepper. Mix oil, lemon juice and bitters and brush game hens with mixture inside and out. Fill each bird with 1/2 cup blueberries and 1/2 teaspoon sugar. Sew or skewer opening and place in shallow roasting pan. Spread soft butter over breasts of birds and place in hot oven on butter. Roast in preheated 350-degree oven for 1 hour. Discard bay leaf. Serve 8. Good with a chilled white wine.

Summers can wreck logistics for food planning

Some days I seem to be smack in the middle of the empty-nest syndrome, but wait 24 hours and they all come back with friends.

It makes it especially hard trying to buy food ahead. Will I need enough to feed four or will it be more like 10 plus people where I'll hook at the charcoal broiler and mumble something like "where's the beef?"

This year in the family, there are three distance runners, two racquetball players, one in heavy construction, two on strict diets, one competitive swimmer... well, you get the idea, and probably have the same food logistics problems.

What do we do about it? How can we keep those active people fed on their schedules and not make our day into one of constant slavery in the kitchen? Most of my ideas are not original but have worked for me. My credentials? A mother of four, the oldest is 22, the youngest 14, and all of them are coming home for a few months this summer making happy times and absolutely wrecking my food budget.

Nancy Joy Jones
Valley cooking

First, I took an inventory of all freezer and locker meats. You know what's left — all those packages marked ribs or a smear followed by the word meat.

Once I did that and couldn't figure out the contents until I turned it over and saw it was cold-skinned rattlesnake... never did figure out a recipe for that.

Anyway, take your inventory and see approximately how many pots of soup you can make. Figure more people per pound than you ordinarily would and make a space in your freezer for all these soup makings: In this space, add stuff every day and freeze it. By stuff, I mean stems of broccoli; leftover tomato and onion; mustn't forget stems, even the scrubbed peelings of carrots and potatoes. Also save bits and dabs of gravy... and you can even be thrifty enough to save the water off of vegetables you have cooked... only sometimes that takes up more room than it's worth.

Okay, now look at your calendar and decide what day you will be the most busy... when one has a ballgame, one has a swimming meet, etc... you know which is your worst.

Anyway, the night before, thaw one or two packages of that meat — don't worry if they don't match. Early in the morning of the busy day brown the meat in a little oil and simmer all day. You can add some salt and pepper at this time.

Later in the day, skin off the top with a ladle and add "stuff" from your cache. Be a bit judicious in your choices. Make sure all is bite-sized or smaller, use things that "go together," tomatoes and onions, cabbage and carrots. Then add a carbohydrate... potatoes or lentils or barley or rice, you get the idea. Simmer above and add some seasoning. This is such a general recipe that I'll just suggest a few variations. Try oregano and/or basil on tomatoes, coriander on pork or lamb-based soups, marjoram for poultry soups. Look out the backs of your herb and spice cans and you'll get some ideas.

I realize this sounds rather vague but put this plan to work and do it once a week regularly and you'll find it works for you and not just in summer.

A good fast-soup recipe if you only have a couple of hours to simmer is East Bean Soup. You'll need a leftover ham hock.

1 sliced carrot
1 big onion or 2 small, chopped
6 cups canned chicken broth or chicken bouillon, mixed with water
1 celery stalk
Parsley, fresh or dried
2 or 3 cans white beans
Saute onion and carrot in 1 teaspoon butter or margarine. Add ham hock and other ingredients. Simmer two hours, add a little butter, reheat and serve. Makes four servings.

Foods are part of healthful lifestyles

Athletically active people develop an appetite for healthful foods like these

Americans have a new awareness of physical fitness and health. From the executive who totes a gym bag to work and runs the racquetball court at lunch, to picnickers who park a meal and bicycle to a special spot, today's lifestyles emphasize healthful activity.

Our eating habits have been influenced by the nation's interest in a more active lifestyle: Consumers are eating more whole-grain products, fresh fruits and vegetables and looking for foods which accommodate their busy schedules.

Featured here is a selection of recipes which fit into today's lifestyles. For "early" morning exercisers or avid snackers, tote along Whole-Wheat Apple Muffins or Golden Apple Granola. Both are made with whole wheat flour, crunchy chopped nuts and fragrant spices and laced with Golden Delicious apples.

Picnickers will love Apple-Chicken Sandwiches and Apple-Citrus Bean Salad. Tender chicken and Golden Delicious apples are mixed with toasted almonds and spicy curry powder in the sandwich filling.

For Apple Citrus Bean Salad just combine three varieties of beans with juicy Golden Delicious apples, celery and a vinaigrette dressing; marinate and serve.

And for those who want a quick-to-prepare lean entree, try Golden Apple-Stuffed Fillets. Delicate whitefish fillets are stuffed with a sweet, savory filling of shredded apples and carrots, complemented with a medley of seasonings — parsley, lemon juice, ginger and white wine.

GOLDEN APPLE GRANOLA

4 cups old fashioned rolled oats
3 cups chopped Delicious apples
1/2 cup whole-wheat flour
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 cup apple juice
1/2 cup chopped dates
1/2 cup oil
1 teaspoon vanilla
Combine oats, apples, flour, walnuts, brown sugar, cinnamon and salt; mix well. Heat apple juice — add dates and let stand 15 minutes or until softened. Mash and blend well; slowly beat in oil and vanilla. Pour mixture over dry ingredients; stir to moisten evenly. Crumble in thin layer on greased large baking sheet. Bake at 350 degrees F. 10-15 minutes. Reduce heat to 250 degrees; bake 1 hour. Stir; bake 1 1/2 to 2 hours longer or until mixture is dry. Stir every 45 minutes. Makes 6 to 7 cups

WHEAT APPLE MUFFINS

1 cup each, flour and whole-wheat flour
1/2 cup sugar
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon ground allspice
1 cup lowfat milk
1/4 cup oil
1 egg, beaten
1 cup finely chopped apples
1/2 cup chopped nuts (optional)
Combine flours, sugar, baking powder, salt and all-spice. Add milk, oil and egg; stir only until ingredients are blended. Fold in apples and nuts. Fill 12 greased muffin cups almost full. Bake at 400 degrees F. about 30 minutes or until wooden pick inserted near center comes out clean. Makes 12 muffins.

CHICKEN SANDWICHES

1 cup chopped apple
1 cup diced cooked chicken
Mayonnaise
2 tablespoons each: minced parsley and toasted almond slices
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/4 teaspoon curry powder
12 slices whole-grain wheat bread
6 lettuce leaves
Combine apple, chicken, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise, parsley, almonds, lemon juice and curry powder. Spread bread slices with small amount of mayonnaise; spread 1/2 cup filling on each of 6 slices. Top each with lettuce leaf and bread slice. Makes 6 sandwiches.

Salad Variation: One-half cup filling for Golden Apple Chicken Sandwiches can be served on lettuce leaves as a salad. Makes 4 servings

APPLE CALICO SALAD

1 can (16 oz.) each: red kidney beans and garbanzo beans, drained
1 package (10 oz.) frozen cut green beans, thawed and drained
1/4 cups diced Delicious apples
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons minced green onion
Vinaigrette
Combine all ingredients. Marinate at least 4 hours; stir several times while marinating. Makes 8 to 10 servings.
Vinaigrette: Combine 1/4 cup each: oil and white wine vinegar; 1 teaspoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon celery

Shade trees really reduce that heat in summertime

REXBURG — During the hottest part of the summer I wish I had a few more shade trees around my house. Now is the best time to decide exactly the best place to plant them.

West Facing Windows can produce a lot of heat in the afternoon. A large shade tree directly west of the window can greatly increase the comfort level inside the house. In fact, even "without" windows, shade will reduce the late afternoon temperature on the west side of the house.

A shaded patio or lawn area can be delightful for picnicking or relaxing. A shade tree can be planted on the East or south, or west side depending upon the time of day you plan to use it.

Shade trees planted in front of your home near the outer property line can make an effective frame. On the windward side of the house they become a windbreak.

I asked Dr. Kim Black for recommendations on shade trees for Idaho. He has been teaching and observing shade tree performance in the Intermountain area for many years. These recommendations are for some of the hardiest and best adapted trees which are easily grown by those without a lot of experience. Most of them are readily available from most nurseries and can be planted anytime this summer.

For all round performance, Dr. Black's three most highly recommended trees are Littleleaf Linden, Norway Maple and Green Ash.

Littleleaf Linden is one of the most dependable, and pest free medium size shade trees, growing eventually to about 40 feet. It creates dense shade and retains a uniform compact shape with very little training or pruning.

Norway Maple also is a dense shade tree, but grows a little faster and somewhat larger than Littleleaf Linden. The Schweitzer variety with purplish red leaves turning to bronze is one of the hardiest and most attractive Norway Maples.

Green Ash grows at about the same rate as Norway Maple and reaches a height of 50 to 60 feet. Be sure to get one of the seedless varieties such as Marshall Seedless to avoid the mess of dropping seed pods.

A number of other shade trees are also well adapted to the Intermountain climate. The horsechestnut becomes a very large tree producing dense shade, but the shedding flowers and fruit can be objectionable.

Silver Maple, a large fast growing shade tree, is more easily damaged by wind than some of the others listed above. Thornless Honeylocust and Hackberry are two very good medium size shade trees, reaching a height of 35 to 40 feet. I like the light, open shade pattern of the Honeylocust.

Bur Oak is the only oak which tolerates our climate and soil conditions very well. Although slower growing than others listed, it is a very attractive tree. European White Birch is also a very beautiful tree with its white bark and weeping branches. It can have more pest problems than some of the other trees and needs plenty of water.

Local nurserymen can recommend other shade trees which are also well adapted.

Refund form trading is rewarding

By MARTIN SLOANE United Feature Syndicate

One of the most enjoyable parts of trading refund forms by mail is the friendships that often result.

Jo Ann Dalein lives in Bethlehem, Pa., has four children ranging in age from 3 to 21, and has been an avid trader for six years. In this time she has done a lot of refund form trading and she now trades regularly by mail with 30 refunders from all over the country.

Two years ago Jo Ann placed a classified "Refund Forms to Trade" advertisement in a trading magazine and one of the people who answered it was Linda Sanders of Youngs Island, S.C. This is how Jo Ann describes her trading with Linda:

"We started trading refund forms once a month, and with each envelope of refund forms we got to know more about each other and our families. Linda has a 2-year-old, so there was a lot to write about — in fact, as time went on, I enjoyed her letters as much as our form trading. After a few months I think she knew all the brands my family liked. I knew her tastes as well."

"We turned out, Linda was originally from Bethlehem — she had moved to Youngs Island after she got married. One day Jo Ann received a trade from Linda and in it Linda mentioned that she was coming up to Bethlehem to see her family. Jo Ann quickly wrote back and asked her to please drop by for a visit.

Jo Ann was excited — most refund traders never get to meet their trading partners face to face. "When Linda walked through my front door, it was as if long lost friends had been reunited," says Jo Ann. "Our families met and then I gave Linda a tour through my POP collection, which I keep in a spare room. All my POPs are in cartons in alphabetical order. My collection is huge because I hate to throw anything away!"

Supermarket shopper

"I showed Linda my filing system for refund forms, which separates them into five categories: 1) Food and Household Products; 2) Personal Products; 3) Baby Products; 4) Pet Products; and 5) Miscellaneous."

Jo Ann says that Linda was interested in the way she organized her "trades in progress." Jo Ann has a large expanding file, and each pocket of the file contains the refund forms she is planning to send out to a trading partner.

The tour ended in the kitchen, where Jo Ann showed Linda her "POP Bowl." Says Jo Ann: "We laughed when we exchanged stories about how we had trained our families to save every refund form."

Then Linda and Jo Ann sat down for some serious refund form trading. "One of the reasons I have enjoyed trading with Linda is her honesty and thoughtfulness," says Linda, "and as we sat looking at each other's refund forms, I couldn't help but smile."

Linda looked at me and smiled right back."

Recipes

1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/2 teaspoon pepper; mix well. Makes 1/2 cup.

APPLE STUFFED FILLETS

1/2 cup chopped onion
1 tablespoon oil
1 cup each: shredded apple and carrot
1/2 cup chopped parsley
2 tablespoons lemon or lime juice
1/2 teaspoon each, salt and ground ginger
1/2 teaspoon thyme, crushed
1 pound sole, cod or other white fish fillets
1/4 cup dry white wine
Salt and pepper
Sauté onion in oil until tender. Add remaining ingredients except fish fillets, wine, salt and pepper. Spread mixture evenly over length of fillets; carefully roll up. Place skin side down in oiled microwave-proof dish. Pour wine over rolled fillets; season to taste with salt and pepper.
Cover with waxed paper; microwave on even 8 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork; turn once halfway through cooking time. Makes about 5 servings.

Convection Method: Prepare and roll up fillets as above; measure thickness. Bake at 450 degrees F., allowing about 10 minutes cooking time per inch of thickness measured at its thickest part after stuffing or until fish flakes easily when tested with fork. Baste once or twice during cooking.

Reader says yearbooks are for parents, too

DEAR ABBY: I differ with you on your views about children who don't want their parents to read their yearbooks.
You stated that the yearbook belongs to the child and should not be read by parents without the child's permission. Well, baloney! I paid for that yearbook, and if my son isn't brave enough to tell his friends to watch what they write in his yearbook, that is his problem. I will certainly look at his yearbook if I feel like it.
I also told him that I didn't want

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

him writing filthy or trashy in other people's yearbooks.
—DON'T USE MY NAME
DEAR ABBY: When I was in my last year of junior high school, a boy I had known since grade school wrote a filthy expression across my picture. I tried to erase the words and ended up still readable, so I had to cut them out with a razor blade.

When I asked the boy why he did it, he said he was just kidding. I was ashamed to show my yearbook to anyone because of the stupidity of one person. To this day I've never shown my yearbook to my parents or anyone else.
—D. IN DENVER
DEAR ABBY: The question of privacy in yearbooks came up in our family the same week you mentioned it in your column.
I saw my granddaughter's yearbook and was appalled to see the yearbook was written by some of her classmates. One boy she said she hardly knew except to say hello to her. I only wish I had taken you upon your proposition. I really do want to make love to you. There's still time. Give me a call, Steve.
My granddaughter is a good student, well-liked and was never in any trouble that I knew about. When I told her I was shocked at some of the writings in her yearbook, she said, "Oh, Gram! You're so old-fashioned. Don't believe any of that stuff. The kids just make up things to write so they'll sound cool."

Well, Abby, I guess I'm just a 62-year-old fossil. What do I know?

Curves are attractive, but not in your spine.

Calcium can help straighten you out! It's true. The proper amount of calcium in your diet can help keep your bones strong and may actually prevent a painful bone disease called osteoporosis.

What is osteoporosis?

Osteoporosis is also known as the "Brittle Bone Disease". This painful and often crippling condition affects both men and women. However, due to normal hormonal changes, it is most common in women over 40. When osteoporosis strikes, bones become so thin and brittle that they break very easily.

The key: Keep up your calcium.

Osteoporosis develops slowly. So slowly, in fact, that it may take years before you realize that you have it, and then, it's too late. There is no cure for osteoporosis. But, through proper diet, it may be prevented. So, give yourself a break, that's easy on your bones. Be sure you're getting a nutritious, balanced diet, which includes plenty of real dairy foods.

Dairy foods-The #1 source for calcium.

The recommended dietary allowance (RDA) for most people is 800 mg of calcium. But most doctors agree that women need even more calcium to avoid hormone-related calcium loss. Studies show that, between the ages of 35 and 50, women need as much as 1500 mg of calcium per day.

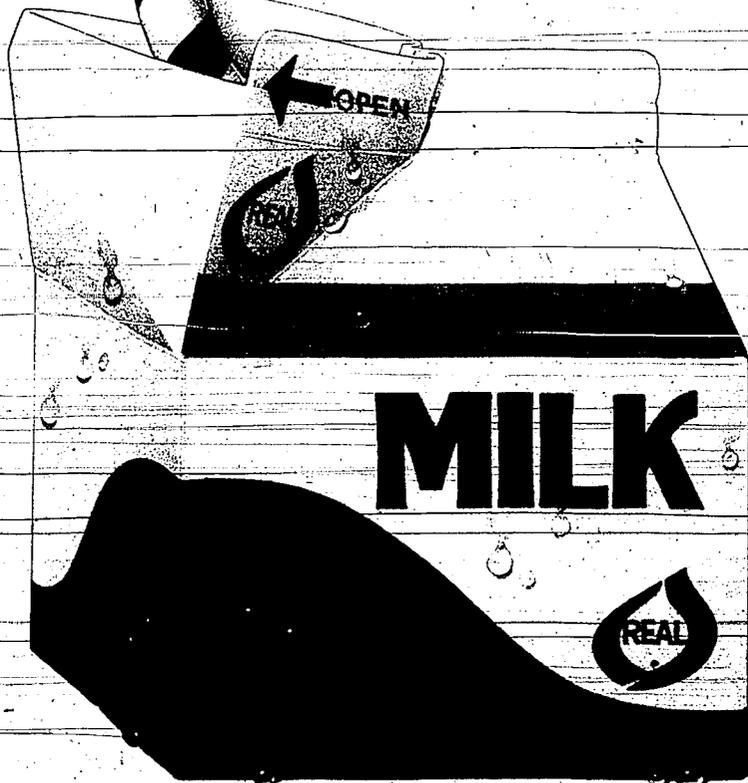

What are some good calcium sources? Dairy products are the most calcium-rich foods you can eat.

Here's a sampling of the calcium content of some dairy foods:

FOOD		CALCIUM
WHOLE MILK	1 CUP	291 mg
SKIM MILK	1 CUP	302 mg
PLAIN LOWFAT YOGURT	1 CUP	415 mg
CHEDDAR CHEESE	1 OZ.	204 mg
SWISS CHEESE	1 OZ.	272 mg

Osteoporosis can be prevented if you know the score on calcium. So support your bones with the good nutrition of dairy foods and they'll support you.

Don't be a calcium loser.™

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff:
LHO bid four clubs, which was described as ace-asking. My partner doubted to suggest a club lead and was promptly redoubled. The opponents made an overtrick. After a long argument, my side maintains that the redouble was illegal and that the redoubler was obligated to show cards. We lost the argument and the game. Which side do you say is right?
Two Strikers, La Grasse

ANSWER: Partner doubled on strikes. Respond to the Gerber four club bid whatever he chooses; he is not obligated to answer about aces after the double.

Dear Mr. Wolff:
Partner opens three hearts and I bid three no-trump. Is there any hand he can hold that justifies his correction to four hearts?

ANSWER: A pre-emptor is supposed to have described his hand with his first bid. Therefore he is not expected to bid again when his partner makes a non-forcing bid. That sort of hand justifies the correction. I would guess only those hands with which he might have opened four hearts instead of three (an eight-card broken suit) and is happy to have a second chance.

Dear Mr. Wolff:
What about overcalls of one no-trump? How frisky can one afford to get after one of the opponents has shown a strong balanced hand?

ANSWER: At rubber bridge, one must be careful about sticking one's neck before it.

out. A disaster or two can negate an entire afternoon of good cards. At duplicate bridge, it may be a different matter because one disaster should not ruin an otherwise excellent session. In any game, an overall should hold reasonable promise of buying the contract for a good score.

Dear Mr. Wolff:
Opponents were playing opening three no-trump bids and I ventured, promising a long solid minor. My partner doubled a three no-trump opening, but we had not discussed our defensive strategy. How should I have interpreted the double?

ANSWER: A dangerous area. Knowing that the declarer has a seven-card suit ready to run, the defenders have no room for error. A standard defensive treatment is for doubles to be for penalties and four clubs for takeout. Without agreement, I would have to guess (after studying my hand), but I would lean toward a pass.

Dear Mr. Wolff:
I bid one spade and partner responded one notrump. I rebid two spades and he rebid two no-trump. Does his bidding make sense?

ANSWER: Partner should have a maximum one no-trump response and about 9-10 scattered points with a doubleton spade. His bid should be a game try rather than an effort to steal the dummy.

Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12363, Dallas, Texas 75225, with self-addressed stamped envelope for reply.
