Winds wreak havoc

Trees go down

By PAT MARCANTONIO Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Winds knocked trees down on houses, cars and power lines and generally wreaked havoc in the northeast part of Twin Falls Friday afternoon.

No injuries were reported, but there were plenty of calls to Twin Falls police about property damage, reported Tim Qualls, the Twin Falls public safety director.

The calls began at 5:15 p.m. and continued steadily for the next half hour, Qualls said. There were several reports of trees that landed on houses and parked cars.

City crews helped remove the fallen trees, Qualls said. Dick Greenwood of 1787 Borah Ave. E. reported that his 25-foot tall Spruce tree was struck down by the winds.

"I thought it was a hurricane," Greenwood said.

He also reported that his neighbor's patio cover was ripped off.

The winds also caused outages to about 150 Idaho Power Company customers for two hours, said Grant Turner, the company's division services supervisor in Twin Falls.

The winds blew limbs into the power lines and caused blown fuses, Turner reported. About 10 trees fell and took power lines with them, he added.

Although most of the damage was centered in the northeast section of TWIN FALLS, there also were reports of damage east of Main Avenue.

High winds also caused outages to

Gary Stuart of 368 Teton St. almost had his house sold, but now he's not so sure after a large tree toppled on it during Friday's windstorm about 100 customers northeast of Jerome and near the Thousand Springs area in Hagerman, Turner said.

Scott Tansey from the National Weather Service in Boise reported that the destructive winds were caused by thunderstorms in the area.

In the Magic Valley, the only reports of damage caused by the winds were from Twin Falls, he added.

Tansey had no estimates of how fast the winds were traveling. Reports to the weather service from the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport were misleading, because winds at the airport only measured 20 mile per hour, Tansey said.

Thunderstorms rip Southwest; tornadoes hit Midwest

By CYNTHIA GREEN The Associated Press

Lingering thunderstorms probed flash-flood watches Friday in the Southwest, where heavy rains left a New Mexico town awash in up to 6 feet of water.

Meanwhile, lightning sparked fires scorched 18,000 acres in Oregon, and the tornado-blown Midwest cleaned up after 20 mph winds.

A storm system which dumped a third straight day of rain on southeastern New Mexico and western Texas was stalled Friday, by police, civil defense director David Hooten said.

Water remained in some areas Friday, the weather service reported. New Mexico Gov. Toney Ahaya declared a state of emergency in Hobbs and nearby Sunland Park where 10 homes were evacuated because of flooding, said John Rammling, director of special services in the governor's office.

Anyva, told officials to take whatever action is necessary to assist citizens, Rammling said.

Anyva also declared Hobbs a disaster area, making the town eligible for up to $500,000 in state funds to restore public facilities damaged by the flooding, said press secretary David Roybal.

The continued bad weather forced the governor to cancel a flight Friday afternoon to Hobbs, where he had planned to survey damage, Roybal said.

FBI prepares to probe Hatfield's finances

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department authorized the FBI on Friday to begin a criminal investigation into whether Sen. Mark Hatfield supported a proposed $10 billion African oil pipeline because of a $40,000 payment to his wife, federal law enforcement sources said.

The sources said a formal letter requesting a preliminary investigation of the Oregon Republican was sent by Justice officials to the FBI in mid-afternoon.

The Justice Department probe, anticipated since the FBI recommended such a step at mid-week, comes on top of a Senate Ethics Committee review that Hatfield himself sought in a move he said was designed to clear his name.

Meantime, a key figure in the case, Greek financier Basil Tsakos said he has "nothing to hide" in dealings with Hatfield concerning the proposed pipeline or the $40,000 payment he made to the senator's wife.

Hatfield, 62, has said the $40,000 was paid to his wife, Antoinette, for her services in helping Tsakos find an apartment at the posh Watergate complex, decorate it and look for other investment property.

He said there never has been any connection between his wife's real estate dealings and his Senate duties. Hatfield, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, is seeking re-election in November to his fourth term.

Tsakos and his Trans African Pipeline

Corp. issued a statement Thursday, through attorney William Casselman, saying they have "nothing to hide concerning either the project or any connection with Sen. and Mrs. Hatfield."

Casselman, the statement said, has been instructed to arrange a meeting with "appropriate U.S. government authorities" to answer any questions "so full disclosure of the truth can be made."

A company source, who agreed to speak only if granted anonymity, said the lawyer already had contacted the Justice Department, volunteering to cooperate with any probe.

Also on Friday, Hatfield's re-election committee announced the senator will hold a news conference Monday in Portland, Ore., to discuss the investigations into business dealings between the senator's wife and Basil Tsakos, Wally Hunter of Hatfield's re-election committee said he didn't know whether Hatfield's wife would attend the news conference.

The Washington Post, meanwhile, in a story in Saturday editions, said that Hatfield took out more than half a dozen large personal loans recently.

The loans included one of more than $250,000 from a former congressman, John R. Dellenback, Dellenback told the Post he believed most of the loan was related to the financing of his Georgetown home and that most of it was repaid earlier this year.

Post said that according to Hatfield's disclosure statement, he and his wife owed from $925,000 to $1.6 million to more than a dozen banks, friends and associates as of last Dec. 31. About the same time, according to Tsakos, Wally Hunter of Hatfield's re-election committee said he didn't know whether Hatfield's wife would attend the news conference.

Still saying he supports the pipeline project, Hatfield has acknowledged introducing Tsakos to federal officials and foreigners. The U.S. government has not taken a position on the pipeline, which would run through Africa linking Saudi Arabian oilfields to the Atlantic.

But at the State Department, officials acknowledged that two high-level officials, including Assistant Secretary of State Chester Crocker, listened to "a presentation on the TAPCO (Trans African Pipeline) project" in 1982.

P&Z commission OKs IFF request

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — By unanimous vote, the Twin Falls County Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday night approved Idaho Frozen Food's conditional use permit.

It will allow the company to continue operating a potato wastewater treatment plant on 550 acres of Snake River Canyon land that is zoned for outdoor recreation.

The decision by the 10-member board, granting the permit with several minor conditions, came after almost three-and-one-half hours of often heated testimony. Reaction Friday ranged from satisfaction to outrage.

Twin Falls County Commissioner Marvin Hempleman said he thought the issue had been "well thought out" by the zoning commission. The decision will almost certainly be appealed to the commissioners by the Meander Point Homeowners Association, but Hempleman predicted the commissioners would not change it.

Odenwald said he was pleased there had been no surprises at the hearing, and hoped the permit would end a financial and managerial drain on his company.

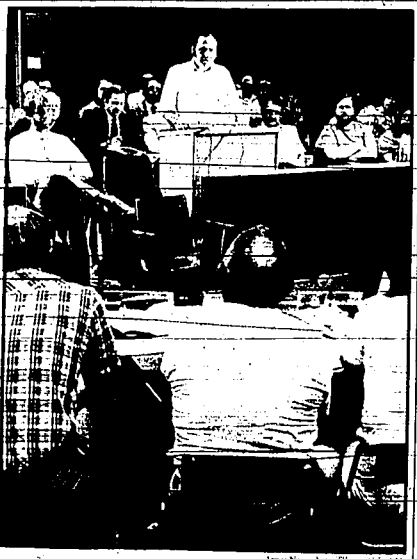

The company had applied for the permit following consultations with the commissioners this spring. The commissioners felt the permit offered an adequate response to a November district court order directing them to reconsider zoning approval for the system.

The order was based on a ruling that they had ignored the county zoning ordinance when they first allowed the system in 1982.

Ed Laats, spokesman for the Meander Point Homeowners Association, the successful appellant to the November ruling, said the zoning commission had ignored both his group's suggestions and the legal issues in the case.

He called the zoning commission a "rubber stamp," and said although several of its members had misgivings about what they were doing, "nobody wanted to stick his neck out."

"They weren't even trying to

Congress House passes aid to Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress Friday passed a nearly four-week recess for the Republican National Convention, leaving a number of potentially charged items for its return session in September, including the overall federal budget, defense spending and immigration law revision.

All three measures ran afoul of presidential election-year politics. Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker, R-Tenn., called for a rare, top-level meeting among House and Senate leaders after Labor Day to try to craft a compromise on the budget and defense issues. Still, despite earlier predictions by some congressional leaders that little would be accomplished, the brief session between the Democratic and Republican conventions produced a flurry of legislative activity.

Lawmakers prepared to leave for their August break after rushing through a compromise granting scaled-down emergency military aid for El Salvador.

Range fires close Interstate 84

MOUNTAIN HOME (AP) — Range fires raced across thousands of acres in southeastern Idaho Friday, turning the area into a smoke-filled tinderbox and forcing closure of Interstate 84 from Hammett to Mountain Home.

The Bureau of Land Management estimated 15 fires were raging Friday night as officials scrambled to determine the size of the blazes and dispatch firefighters.

One fire near Mountain Home had scorched 4,500 acres by mid evening, the BLM said.

Traffic on Interstate 84 was routed onto Old Highway 30 that parallels the freeway.

Reagan seeks China tax plan

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan on Friday asked the Senate to ratify an income tax treaty between the United States and China designed to avoid double taxation.

In a message to the Senate, the president said the agreement provides "clear rules as to the tax consequences of investing or working in the other country."

It also reduces the tax that residents of one country must pay to the other on such income as dividends, interest, and royalties. And it provides limited exemptions for visiting teachers, researchers and students.

Pershing 2 missile test fired

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Pershing 2 missile test-fired here Tuesday met all test objectives in hurling a dummy nuclear warhead to an ocean target area 981 miles away, the Army Missile Command reported Friday.

"Missile flight performance was normal in all respects," the command said after analyzing test data.

The 35-foot missile, which is being deployed with NATO forces in West Germany, had been alternately frozen and thawed and bounced over more than 1,000 miles of rocky roads to simulate several years with troops in the field.

Woman frees son before leap

NEW YORK (AP) — A retired city police sergeant convinced a distraught woman to release her 4-year-old son moments before she jumped 150 feet to her death from a bridge while her three children looked on in horror.

"Don't jump, please don't jump," James Bolte begged Peggy Washington, 38, of New Rochelle on Thursday afternoon. But after dropping her youngest son, Dennis, inches from the bridge rail, she plunged into the East River, according to police spokesman Sgt. Peter Roane.

Mrs. Washington's husband, John, said Friday his wife had been depressed and had been seeing a psychiatrist.

Mrs. Washington had told Dennis and her other children, Yvette, 7, and John, 10, that she was taking them to visit friends in the city, according to authorities. She was driving toward the borough of Queens in the southbound lane of the Bronx-Whitestone bridge at about 4 p.m. when she stopped her station wagon and got out on the roadway.

Gunman frees inmates at trial

MIAMI (AP) — A man shouting "I'll kill you" pulled a gun on a police officer in a courtroom Friday, allowing two defendants to escape, and the loaded gun misfired four times in a tense struggle, authorities said.

No one was hurt in the 10 a.m. incident in the courtroom of Circuit Judge Richard Feder at the Metro Justice Building, said Ronald Colmenero, a spokesman for the Metro-Dade Police Department.

The gunman, identified as Brendey Marshall, was arrested by authorities as he tried to flee the courtroom, Colmenero said. He was charged with attempted murder.

Marshall lived at the same Miami address as one of the two men who fled, Matthew T. Marshall, 20, who was in court facing charges of kidnapping, armed robbery and sexual battery, but it was not immediately known whether the two were related, authorities said.

Also at large was Michael Pomeroy, 18, of Miami, who was facing 35 counts of armed robbery, authorities said. Both had been held at the Dade County Jail without bond and were in the courtroom waiting to be assigned attorneys.

Klansmen cited for violence

ATLANTA (AP) — Five Ku Klux Klansmen were arrested Friday for allegedly breaking into homes at night and assaulting an interracial couple and a white woman believed to be associating with blacks, the Justice Department announced.

The indictments were handed up Wednesday night by a federal grand jury here and announced Friday in Washington by U.S. Assistant Attorney General William Bradford Reynolds, head of the Justice Department's civil-rights division.

Justice Department officials said the indictments marked the biggest case they and FBI agents have yet brought involving what they called an emerging form of Klan violence — break-ins and beatings at the homes of people believed associating with other races.

Deputy Assistant Attorney General Daniel F. Ritzel, who is supervising the prosecution, said: "The Department of Justice is sending a signal to the Ku Klux Klan and any other racial hate groups that we will hit them with criminal prosecution whenever we find them engaging in acts of racial violence that violate federal law."

Libya slays embassy leaders

LONDON (AP) — Four of the 30 Libyans involved in the 10-day London embassy siege in April have been executed in Tripoli on orders of Libyan leader Col. Muammar Khadafi, the Daily Express reported Saturday.

The British tabloid quoted an unspecified intelligence report as saying the four were executed for crimes against the state after a secret trial. It said the report named them as Dr. Omar Sodani, Ali Abuzel, Matouk Matouk and Abdul Ghadri Baghdadi.

The paper stated: "Officially they were found guilty of failing in their objective while 'on active service' in Britain — to seek out and quell activities of Khadafi dissidents in exile."

"We need to give this man a chance," said Fabelo.

The House earlier rejected, 340-57, a move by Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., to slash the Senate-approved figure to $40 million.

Thomas H. Pickering, U.S. ambassador to El Salvador, interviewed outside the House chamber, said, "Obviously we are very pleased" with the outcome.

The House refused last month to add any money to the $126 million already approved for Salvadoran military aid in the fiscal year ending Sept. 30. A House-Senate conference committee failed to settle the difference between the two houses on Thursday.

Rep. Michael Barnes, D-Md., chairman of the House Foreign Affairs subcommittee on the Western Hemisphere, supported the Long amendment, saying $10 million of already appropriated military aid remains to be spent in El Salvador.

Adding $40 million, Barnes said, would give the Salvadoran military a million dollars per day of U.S. money for the remaining 60 days of the fiscal year. "This is more money than a lot of us wanted, but it is the best we are going to get," said Barnes, like Long an opponent of the administration's policies in El Salvador.

Rep. Jack Kemp, D-N.Y., arguing for the $70 million figure, said Duarte had just told him by telephone from El Salvador that his money was "a vital security need" of his country.

"Let's not pull the rug out from under President Duarte," said Kemp. "Let's give him a chance."

The battle over El Salvador is expected to continue when Congress returns Sept. 5 from its nearly four-week recess for the Republican National Convention and the traditional Labor Day break.

The House Appropriations Committee on foreign operations, chaired by Long, has already approved $123 million for military aid in the fiscal year starting Oct. 1. But Long said he might seek to reduce this amount if more aid were granted for the current spending period.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., said evidence presented by Gen. Paul Gorman, commander of the U.S. Southern Command, "apparently has persuaded a lot of members in the House to support additional funds for the Salvadoran army."

Gorman has been showing lawmakers and reporters photographs and other evidence to bolster the Reagan administration's contention that the Salvadoran rebels are getting Soviet and Cuban arms funneled through Nicaragua.

O'Neill described Gorman's presentation as "a lot of hearsay evidence" and said it did not prove the administration's case.

He added, however, "He is a very captivating man, believe me. There is no question he is a factor."

Sen. Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, the top Democrat on the Senate subcommittee that screens foreign aid spending, said $29 million of the proposed compromise would be spent for 230 trucks, eight helicopters and one C123 transport airplane to enable Salvadoran soldiers to pursue guerrillas to their hideouts.

The House passed gave final approval to legislation expanding the superfund hazardous waste cleanup program to $10.2 billion, a sixfold increase in the money needed to deal with the problem of toxic wastes seeping into the nation's drinking water supplies.

The bill was approved 323-33 after two days of debate in which congressmen endorsed the goals of the program, but cast a questioning eye at companion efforts to increase the rights of individuals to fight hazardous waste dumps and obtain compensation for injuries.

While one of these rights — the ability to sue the government to force action — remained in the final version, attempts to limit injured people sue polluters (in-federal court) or receive compensation from the superfund itself were defeated.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

Left in limbo were efforts to reach agreement on defense spending and the 1985 federal budget, two major measures Congress must deal with after it returns on Sept. 5.

Efforts to reach agreement on a defense bill are deadlocked in a battle over spending levels and over the MX missile between the Republican-controlled Senate, which generally favors the more ambitious program advocated by President Reagan, and the Democratic House.

The inability to reach agreement on defense spending levels also is holding up progress on an overall budget blueprint for the fiscal 1985, which begins Oct. 1.

Baker, the Senate majority leader, announced on Friday that he and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., would "meet" soon after Congress returns with all the principals on both the defense and budget issues to try to end the deadlock.

"I will sit down with the speaker and my colleagues on both sides of the aisle, and we will try to find a defense number."

A Republican leadership aide, who spoke only on the condition that he not be identified, said the proposal for the new Democratic on the Senate subcommittee that screens foreign aid spending, said $29 million of the proposed compromise would be spent for 230 trucks, eight helicopters and one C123 transport airplane to enable Salvadoran soldiers to pursue guerrillas to their hideouts.

"The main players are on board right now. It will be an attempt to arrive at a (defense spending) number to start working from," the aide said.

Another victim of presidential politics is a bill for a sweeping overhaul of the nation's immigration laws. The bill, which would grant amnesty to many illegal aliens now in the country while imposing stiff sanctions on employers who hire undocumented foreign workers in the future, had passed both the Senate and the House.

But efforts at reaching a compromise between the two versions came to a grinding halt after Democratic presidential nominee Walter F. Mondale promised to help work to defeat it. And President Reagan, who earlier supported the legislation, signaled misgivings over elements of the House-passed version.

work with us. It was all IFF," he said.

The test-the-board was supposed to make Thursday whether the system was "compatible" with other allowed uses of the county outdoor recreation zone.

Most of the discussion on the issue, however, concerned the problem of odors from the system and the importance of odor-free Foods to the economy of the county.

Deputy Prosecutor Dennis Voorhees refused to comment Friday whether he felt the commission's decision adequately squared the IFF system with the county's outdoor recreation zone.

Boise attorney Lance Salladay, who represented the homeowners, argued that waste disposal is inherently incompatible with outdoor recreation. But Voorhees contended the right permit conditions could make the system "an otherwise non-compatible use" — compatible.

The commission chose to place only minimal conditions on the permit. They were contained in a motion from member Lyle Frazier, which — like the main motion — was approved unanimously, with little discussion.

"The conditions are that responsibility for monitoring possible odors and groundwater pollution from the system is deferred to the state Department of Health and Welfare, that the company is required to landscape the system and that it is required to provide recreational amenities, if these are not built by 1987, as part of the proposed Augurpositional to the system.

"An IFF employee spokesman said 'You can't turn people's jobs off and on as if they were a faucet.'"

The homeowners had proposed a summer shutdown for the system and a ban on future expansions as conditions for the permit.

But Odenwald said neither of these were feasible, because the company has plans to expand to several "new" product lines and cannot go back to the city system in the summer.

Lants said the homeowners desire was to keep the system from growing "like a cancer."

He said however, it was becoming increasingly difficult to fight the county, "when their own planning director is biased."

Salladay had interrupted an explanation of applicable zoning laws by county zoning administrator Lee Taylor to complain it sounded more like a pitch for the company.

Taylor, however, said Friday he was just explaining the facts.

Lafferty offers denial

Says Mormon leaders framed him, ruined him

By TOM GARDNER
The Associated Press

RENO, Nev. — Ronald Lafferty, accused of the slaying death of his sister-in-law and her toddler daughter in Utah, says the charges against him are false, but he will never get a fair trial in his home state.

Lafferty claims the Mormon Church runs the state and has targeted him because he has been excommunicated. He also says he still loves the church, but charges its leaders have strayed from the teachings of Joseph Smith.

Lafferty, 42, and his brother Dan, 36, were arrested by FBI agents Tuesday in Reno. They are fighting extradition to American Fork, Utah, where they face murder charges in the July 24 slayings of Brenda Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter Erica.

Brenda Lafferty grew up in Kimberly, Idaho.

"All I can say is the charges brought against me are false charges," Lafferty said Friday. He would not discuss the murders nor his relationship with the victims further to avoid prejudicing his case.

"I've got to be very careful. It doesn't matter what you say. If the wrong people get hold of it, they twist it and use it to their own advantage and it doesn't matter whether it's the truth," he said.

"They have proven to me, at least in the state of Utah, that there's no justice in the system, that they will do politically whatever they want to do and we're just pawns in a game ..."

Lafferty accused the Mormon Church of having a vendetta against him and his brother, who was excommunicated first, because they challenged some of its doctrines.

Church officers "undermined" his marriage, which ended last year, by telling his former wife and their six children that Lafferty was doomed to hell because of his excommunication and they would be, too, if they continued to associate with him, he said.

"I love the church with all my heart ... but I love the church as it was set up by Joseph Smith. I believe Joseph Smith was a prophet, but I don't believe that the leadership of the church today are prophets. They've deceived all the members of the Ron Lafferty blames LDS church for loss of his wife, wealth and the church is out of order," he said.

Lafferty said his problems with the church began with his brother's excommunication.

Dan Lafferty was "banished" from the church following his arrest on police charges. Ron Lafferty said he was trumped up because his brother was running for sheriff.

"It was just a ploy by the sheriff's department ... to destroy his reputation because he was a threat to them. He was called in by the church, who runs government and runs that state, and he was excommunicated from the church because he wouldn't back down from his principles on constitutional law."

Lafferty said when he went before the church to question its action, "They told me I must disassociate myself with my brother and must think the way they wanted me to think. I told them I couldn't think other than the way my conscience dictated to me. I had to think the way I had to think," he said.

At this point, Lafferty said church officers then began using his family as leverage to get me to think the way they wanted me to think."

In one meeting with church officials, Lafferty said he told them the book by Mormon leader Ezra Taft Benson, "God, Family, Country," supported everything the stood for. "They looked at it and sort of shrugged their shoulders," he said. "I said, 'You're after the wrong man. You're telling me out of one side of your mouth to follow this man, and out of the other side of your mouth, you're telling me not to.'"

Lafferty said the "harassment" continued until he went to talk with an assistant to Benson, who had a copy of the book on his desk.

"I reached for the book and he jerked the book away — wouldn't let me look at it. That's when I realized that something was really crazy up there."

Lafferty denied Utah police reports linking his with a polygamist sect.

"I am part of no group. I didn't want to belong to any group or be tagged-as-a-member-of-any-group. When I was excommunicated ... I visited a number of groups but I do not belong to any group."

Poverty, bigotry lead to bloody riots

By JANE SEAGRAVE
The Associated Press

LAWRENCE, Mass. — For more than a century, the promise of freedom and jobs has lured immigrants to Lawrence's textile mills and shoe factories. But the newest workers — from Puerto Rico, Cuba and Colombia — say they have found poverty and bigotry instead.

"They say we are all on welfare, but that really isn't true," said Felix Majla. "We work, we bring checks home, they treat us like pigs."

Hispanic residents say it is that kind of prejudice, combined with a lack of police protection and poor housing conditions, that fueled two nights of violence between Hispanics and whites.

A state of emergency was declared and a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed in this factory town Friday after tensions between whites and Hispanics boiled over into a second night of rioting and firebombing.

"I am satisfied that a riot or other civil disorder may occur and that a curfew is necessary," Mayor John Haddad said in announcing the curfew, which bars all activity in a three-by-four-block area of the declining, blue-collar Tower Hill neighborhood.

Under the order, only police and emergency vehicles will be allowed on the street from 8 p.m. to 6 a.m. "places of amusement" and entertainment "were closed and a ban on liquor sales, began Wednesday, was continued. Violators will face up to six months in jail and $500 fine.

In Boston, Gov. Michael Dukakis appealed in both English and Spanish for an end to the violence.

"It is time for the healing to begin," Dukakis said at a news conference. "If you work, you're taking the job away from someone else," she said. "If you don't work, you're on welfare."

Isabel Melendez, director of Spanish programs for the city's Community Action Council, says

Hispanics are weary of being painted as cheap labor or welfare cheats.

implications of the Red Sea but it is not confirmed," he said. "We have to have solid proof before we do anything."

President Hosni Mubarak said Egypt would use the power given it in an 1888 agreement to close the canal to whichever country is responsible for the explosions. Abu-Ghazala said Egypt also reserves the right to "retaliate in any other way that we think is proper."

Asked about an article in the state-owned Al-Ahram newspaper accusing Libya and Iran of responsibility, Mubarak said: "I think they may be both, though the Iranians have said they are not responsible."

Both Abu-Ghazala and Prime Minister Kamal Hassan Ali said the explosions were probably related to the Iran-Iraq war. Iran may have been CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — French and U.S. minesweeping units headed for the Red Sea on Friday and Egypt, which suspects Iran and Libya of laying mines in the seaways, said it would close the Suez Canal to any country proven to be responsible.

Egyptian Defense Minister Abdel-Halim Abu-Ghazala told reporters in Cairo that officials are studying "some unusual sailing patterns" by ships before the start last month of explosions that are believed to have damaged 14 ships.

"We are studying the timing of the explosions in relation to the timing of passage through the Suez Canal of certain ships. There is some suspicion that they are Libyan and Iranian ships but we don't have any proof," he said.

Producer blasted for contacting jury

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The judge in the John Z. De Lorean drug trial issued a stern order Friday in the midst of jury deliberations forbidding anyone to try to contact the jury, after it was disclosed a television producer telephoned the homes of six of the jurors.

Thirty-five minutes later, the jury concluded its third day of deliberations without reaching a verdict and was escorted out of the U.S. Courthouse by U.S. Marshal Julio Gonzales and a battalion of court security officers.

The jurors, who have spent a total of 13½ hours deliberating, will return to their labors on Monday. They have not been sequestered because neither the defense nor prosecution asked for that measure, which is common during jury deliberations.

The disclosure about the TV producer prompted U.S. District Judge Robert Takasugi to call defense attorneys and prosecutors into his chambers, and then to hold a brief court session at which he issued a stern order forbidding anyone to try to contact the jury.

"All persons are prohibited from contacting or attempting to contact jurors during the deliberations in this case, including attempts to establish interviews following the verdict," the judge said.

Defense attorneys Howard Weitzman and Donald Re to reporters they had been summoned to the courthouse by the judge after jurors reported the phone calls seeking interviews after the verdict.

"They said the phone calls came from 'Good Morning America,' an ABC-TV show.

"We were informed that Allan Margolin from 'Good-Morning America' tried to contact at least six jurors to arrange interviews after the verdict," said Weitzman. "This an idiotic, irresponsible person."

In New York, John Goodman, a producer for "Good Morning America," said of Margolin, "As far as I know he never spoke to any jurors at all. Apparently, he talked to family members of the jurors."

"He was out covering the trial for 'Good Morning America' and as far as I know he wasn't acting on any orders. This is the first I've heard of it."

Reputed 'men haters' give up to authorities

VIRGINIA BEACH, Va. (AP) — Two women described by a policeman as "men haters" surrendered Friday and were held for return to Pittsburgh in the shooting of two Turkish students, one of whom died.

Police said the two men were shot Tuesday night after picking up two women at a state park. The survivor told authorities of a double date that "went sour."

Sara Jane Richardson, 20, of Imperial, Pa., and Charmaine Lynn Pfender, 18, of Pittsburgh, called police from a relative's apartment here to surrender early Friday.

At a hearing before General District Judge Alan E. Rosenblatt, they waived extradition and were returned to the city jail.

No formal charges had been filed in either state.

Police Inspector Floyd Neving of Allegheny County, Pa., said the women should be returned to Pennsylvania by Monday. Five county detectives were being sent to Virginia Beach, 350 miles away, "to investigate in that area," he said.

"We don't know what motivated them to do that (surrender). We're very glad that they did," Neving said of the two women.

Ms. Pfender and Ms. Richardson have been close friends since high school and have been "lesbian lovers for about a year," said Ms. Pfender's sister, Gloria.

She said her sister had "taken men for a ride before."

"I heard about it from her. She and Sara would take the guys out there and either leave them there or have the men take their pants off and leave them. Crazy stuff. High school stuff," Gloria Pfender told The Pittsburgh Press.

Gloria Pfender also said her sister had "gone violent" against some men; especially her father, whom she said her sister had threatened.

Police said two women wearing blue softball uniforms picked up the two men at Point State Park. Footprints of baseball cleats were discovered at the murder scene, officers said.

VA lowers ceiling on rates for home loan mortgages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Veterans Administration is lowering its interest-rate ceiling on basic home loans backed by the agency from 14 percent to 13.5 percent, effective Monday, officials said Friday.

VA Administrator Harry Walters said the reduction, the first since last November, was made possible "by an improved mortgage market that is showing more optimism among investors that inflation has subsided and that the economy's growth rate has leveled to a more sustainable pace."

The most recent government statistics showed average rates at 15.2 percent in early July for conventional home loans not backed by the government. But other interest rates have eased since then, and most economists expect them to decline further in coming weeks.

Felix M. Beck, president of the Mortgage Bankers Association of America, whose members handle most VA-backed loans, said, "The drop in the VA rate was justified by market conditions that reflect the economy at manageable growth levels and the money supply within the target range."

"In addition, with inflation relatively calm, hopefully we can look for further reductions in interest rates that could spur greater activity in the real-estate marketplace," he added.

However, Beck said, "the federal budget deficit still looms as a threat to interest rates because of the inflationary expectations it causes."

The VA announcement said the reduction would mean a savings of about $24 a month on a level-payment agency-backed loan averaging $61,000.

Judge guilty of tax evasion

RENO, Nev. (AP) — U.S. District Court Judge Harry Claiborne was found guilty Friday of two counts of income tax evasion, making him the first active federal judge convicted of a crime committed while in office.

Claiborne, 67, of Las Vegas, said he faces up to six years in prison and a total of $10,000 in fines, in addition to the cost of the federal probe that brought the convictions. He vowed to appeal.

"The measure of a man is how he handles adversity and I've handled everything else like that in my life. head-on. I'll pursue the appeal and continue the fight until my name is cleared," Claiborne said.

The federal court jury that found him guilty on the tax charges found him innocent of a charge of lying on a judicial disclosure statement.

Presiding Judge Walker E. Hoffman set Oct. 3 for sentencing, and said he would hear defense motions Oct. 2 for a new trial. If the motions are denied, defense attorneys said an appeal of the conviction is a certainty.

If the conviction stands, Claiborne would face possible impeachment and removal by Congress, a procedure that would begin with the House Judiciary Committee and end with a Senate trial.

'Bilking' official promoted

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. Information Agency official who charged taxpayers for a $17,371 Mississippi River cruise was promoted last year while the government was seeking partial repayment of the tab, officials confirmed Friday.

Christopher Paddock, a foreign service officer assigned to USIA, was promoted in December 1983 while appealing an order to repay part of the money he spent to take his family on the riverboat cruise in 1982, said Jim Bryant, a USIA spokesman.

The appeal is still pending before the Foreign Service Grievance Board and until the matter is resolved, Paddock is not required to repay the money the government says he owes, Bryant said.

"The mere fact there is a financial dispute between the agency and Mr. Paddock would not have been a legal justification to deny him a promotion for which he had been recommended by a selection board," Bryant said.

Paddock was promoted from FS-2 grade to FS-1, which carries an annual salary ranging from $50,495 to $65,642, Bryant said.

"My case is presently under consideration by the Foreign Service Grievance Board and I cannot make any comment on it at all," Paddock said.

Arts funding head gives talk in Boise

By MARI-LYN HAUKESS
For The Associated Press

BOISE — The chairman for the National Endowment for the Arts says educators need to develop a "comfort level" for the arts by developing special school programs. Frank Hodsell visited Boise Friday on the eve of a national exhibit opening at the Boise Gallery of Art. Hodsell, who took the chair of the National Endowment for the Arts in 1981 after his appointment by President Reagan, was the first endowment chairman to visit Boise in more than 10 years. A poll of the nation's educators shows support for the arts, Hodsell said. He said that's surprising at a time when emphasis has been placed on math, English and science. "But he quoted the Carnegie Foundation as saying the arts represent 'the soul and mind of our culture.' 'The National Endowment of the Arts goal is to bring the arts to the nation's schools, especially in rural communities where access is limited. Conferences are being scheduled throughout the country, including Salt Lake City, to ask teachers and principals how that goal might best be accomplished. He said educators from neighboring states would be invited to the Utah conference. The endowment also has entered into an agreement with the Getty Trust to produce films on the arts by students at home and in schools, he said. Citing the private sector as the financial backbone of the arts, Hodsell said the endowment will continue counting on that support to enable its $162 million annual budget to bring the arts to as many people as possible. "The display in Boise, entitled, 'We Come to Where We Were Supposed to Be: Folk Art of Idaho,' includes more than 130 items."

Beavers hurting residents

KELSO LAKE (AP) — Residents in the Kelso Lake area feel that beavers there are getting the best of them. Dams built by beavers have raised the lake and creek levels and flooded some land, including hayfields, residents say. In addition, they say the animals are also gnawing valuable fruit trees. The beavers have proliferated in recent years since the price for beaver pelts has dropped. James Victorino, who owns a summer camping area known as Kelso Lake Resort, said the floor of his small store is sunken in two spots from water that flooded the site two years ago. "And he said what was once 880 feet of beachfront property is now mostly swamp. Just because the lake level has overtaken the shores. "My biggest complaint is I cannot utilize any portion of the property," he said. Victorino said he believes the lake level has risen because beavers have built dams below the lake and at its outlet. Additional beaver dams and culverts has cut off water flow from Kelso Lake into Grant Lake, he said. Pete Jensen also said the high water from beaver dams has hurt his hayfield. The dams have backed up enough water from upstream creeks to soak his field, making it impossible to cut, he said. "When they raise the creek, the water runs into the hayfield," he said. "This year was wet in June, so it won't dry out now."

High costs don't derail work center

BOISE (AP) — The state will proceed as scheduled with construction of a new prison work release center in Nampa even though the apparent low bid on the project is $20,000 more than hoped for, state Corrections Director Al Murphy says. Scott Hedrick Construction of Boise submitted the apparent low bid of $36,000 for the 60-bed facility, to be the state's second work release center.

"I was hoping it would come in around $46,000," Murphy acknowledged Friday, a day after the bids were open. "But I don't think there'll be any problems. I find it (the additional money) within the department." While financially strapped because of years of what officials claim has been underfunding aggravated by recent budget holdbacks, Murphy said there are several other projects under way within the corrections system that are now expected to come in under budget. He said the money saved on them will be diverted to pay for the additional anticipated cost of the work release center. The center is scheduled to open next July, housing nonviolent inmates as they end their sentences and prepare to return to society.

St. Anthony businessmen angry about road

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — A U.S. Highway 20 road construction project here has dragged on two summers, raising ire of local businessmen and residents who say they've lost business and been inconvenienced by the project. At a meeting here Wednesday night, state and local officials fielded complaints from local residents, including several who claimed damage from blasting associated with the project. Bannock Paving Co. has a contract of about $3.9 million to widen U.S. 20 to four lanes and make other improvements. District Engineer Jerald Dick said Friday the work is continuing, and the new road should be open for traffic late this fall. Mayor Merrill Rose said he called the Wednesday meeting to get the state to look at damage caused by the project, and also at the economic loss caused by the construction. Dick said those attending the session were encouraged to carry their damage claims to the insurance carrier for Bannock Paving. The mayor said he knew of at least two businesses and two homes had some structural damage from the blasting used to clear the way for the project. Another home was blown off its foundation, he said. Local residents got the run-around when they tried to do something about the damage, Rose said. They went to the highway department, but were sent to the contractor, who sent them to a subcontractor. "Rose said local businessmen favor the project because they know the benefits it will bring. But there were complaints that the project dragged on two summers, when similar projects were wound up in one year, and the St. Anthony project should have received more priority."

Judge may toss beauty queen charge

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A judge said Friday she expects to dismiss one of two misdemeanor charges against former beauty queen Joyce McKinney, accused of harassing a man she was charged with kidnapping and raping in 1977. Ms. McKinney, 33, was accused in 1977 in England of having kidnapped Kirk Anderson, then a Mormon missionary, chaining him to a bed with fur-lined manacles and forcing him to have sex with her. She fled the country before British authorities could bring her to trial and they did not seek extradition. The 1973 Miss Wyoming, USA was arrested here June 16 after Anderson, 25, complained to police she was harassing him by shadowing him at home and at work. Ms. McKinney, who expected her pre-trial right not to appear at Friday's 5th Circuit Court hearing on a motion to suppress, has pleaded innocent to charges of disturbing the peace and falsely identifying herself to arresting officers. However, Judge Eleanor Lewis told defense attorney Ronald Yenglich that although she would take his motion under advisement, she was strongly inclined to dismiss the disturbing the peace count. "Right now, just looking at the memorandums, I don't think they have properly charged disturbing the peace," she said. However, the judge said she felt Assistant City Prosecutor Don George had laid proper foundation for the charge of false identification. The judge made the comments after hearing testimony from Salt

Lake Police Officer John Longson, one of two officers who arrested Ms. McKinney outside the Western Airlines Commissary where Anderson worked. Longson, who moonlights as a commissary employee and said he was a co-worker and friend of Anderson's, related the details of Ms. McKinney's arrest — despite a flurry of objections by Yenglich seeking to narrow the focus of the narrative. Longson said Anderson, "shaken, upset and worried," approached him at 7-p.m. June 16, complaining he was being followed. "He was concerned about coming to personal harm ... from a person he identified as Joyce McKinney," he said. Anderson again came to Longson three hours later. He said there was a suspicious vehicle parked outside the building with two people in it. After contacting police dispatch and asking for back-up, Longson said he changed into his uniform and left to investigate. Longson said as he approached the auto, its lights came on and it attempted to leave. He stopped the vehicle, and another officer, David Jensen, arrived. The driver of the vehicle identified himself as Jerry Pate, while Ms. McKinney said her name was Susan Castriani, and produced a New York driver's license with that name, Longson said. "She said she wanted to see a friend ... Kirk Anderson," Longson said. She just wanted to see him from a distance, to see what happened to him." Ms. McKinney, of Asheville, N.C., has maintained she was only interested in Anderson's welfare for a book or screenplay she was writing about the 1977 incident. After Anderson identified the woman as Ms. McKinney, Longson handcuffed and arrested her. Later in jail, he said she admitted her true identity. Under cross-examination by Yenglich, Longson acknowledged he failed to read Ms. McKinney her rights before questioning her or arresting her. Anderson and his wife briefly appeared at the hearing, but left when attorneys agreed their testimony was not needed. Ms. McKinney and Keith May, also charged in the alleged England kidnapping, skipped bail in 1977. When picked up in 1979 on passport charges, British authorities declined to seek extradition. Ms. McKinney first met Anderson at Brigham Young University where he went on a mission to England for the Mormon Church.

Hi-Fi shop killers have appeal in court

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge Friday took under advisement arguments in what could be the last move through the federal courts in the 10-year-old Ogdén Hi-Fi shop killers - Dale Pierre Selby and William Andrews. U.S. District Judge David K. Winder set no date for his decision on an appeal by the two inmates to overturn their death sentences. "I'll be in touch with you," Winder told attorneys after arguing more than two hours of arguments that focused on the constitutionality of the defendants' 1974 conviction and ensuing appeals. Winder has the option of overturning the death sentences outright and remanding the case to the state courts for reconsideration or granting a defense motion for a federal hearing to reconsider evidence in the case. "All we're asking for is a fair and equal hearing," D. Gilbert Alhay, attorney for Selby, said following the hearing. Two other victims, Courtney Naisbitt, 18, and Orren Walker, also were tortured and shot, but survived. Last November, the Utah Supreme Court upheld the death sentences of Selby and Andrews, opening the door for a final federal appeal. Should Winder deny the defense motion, Selby and Andrews can appeal to the 10th Circuit Court and, ultimately, to the U.S. Supreme Court. Defense attorneys argued that Selby's and Andrews' death sentences were upheld by Utah courts under a legal standard no longer valid.

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jurors were deliberating a second day Friday in a federal lawsuit by 71 investors who claim Home Savings and Loan employees helped AFCO Enterprises cheat them in a pyramid investment scheme. The six-man, six-woman panel received the case late Thursday after getting instructions from U.S. District Judge John Kane of Colorado. The jury eventually chose to go home for the night, and resumed deliberations Friday. During the six-week civil trial, investors testified that AFCO had tricked them into taking out second mortgages on their homes in late 1981. They said AFCO promised to pay the loans for them, plus give them 10 percent earnings. The money was purportedly for investments in AFCO time-share condominiums. The investors said Home Savings representatives discovered AFCO had not kept his promise when Home Savings began foreclosing on their property. Weston also said Home Savings representatives were willing partners in the AFCO scheme. Plaintiff's attorney Gary Weston argued Home Savings should not be responsible for the investors' losses, since most of them had signed loan documents without really reading them. Also, he said the homeowners were careless in trusting AFCO. The investors said Home Savings representatives backed dated loan documents, in effect, remove the three-day period in which investors could have legally rescinded their loans. They also claim some bank officials accepted bribes to aid AFCO, and improperly notarized forged loan documents. AFCO goes on trial Aug. 27 on 22 counts of fraud, accused of defrauding investors from Utah and out-of-state of some $20 million. During the trial, plaintiffs testified AFCO had gained their confidence by claiming several prominent Mormons were involved with AFCO's Sherwood Hills resort near Logan and Glenmoor Village condominiums in West Jordan.

Jury mulls fraud case for 2 days

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jurors were deliberating a second day Friday in a federal lawsuit by 71 investors who claim Home Savings and Loan employees helped AFCO Enterprises cheat them in a pyramid investment scheme. The six-man, six-woman panel received the case late Thursday after getting instructions from U.S. District Judge John Kane of Colorado. The jury eventually chose to go home for the night, and resumed deliberations Friday. During the six-week civil trial, investors testified that AFCO had tricked them into taking out second mortgages on their homes in late 1981. They said AFCO promised to pay the loans for them, plus give them 10 percent earnings. The money was purportedly for investments in AFCO time-share condominiums. The investors said Home Savings representatives discovered AFCO had not kept his promise when Home Savings began foreclosing on their property. Weston also said Home Savings representatives were willing partners in the AFCO scheme. Plaintiff's attorney Gary Weston argued Home Savings should not be responsible for the investors' losses, since most of them had signed loan documents without really reading them. Also, he said the homeowners were careless in trusting AFCO. The investors said Home Savings representatives backed dated loan documents, in effect, remove the three-day period in which investors could have legally rescinded their loans. They also claim some bank officials accepted bribes to aid AFCO, and improperly notarized forged loan documents. AFCO goes on trial Aug. 27 on 22 counts of fraud, accused of defrauding investors from Utah and out-of-state of some $20 million. During the trial, plaintiffs testified AFCO had gained their confidence by claiming several prominent Mormons were involved with AFCO's Sherwood Hills resort near Logan and Glenmoor Village condominiums in West Jordan.

District asks surfing ban
BOISE (AP) — After the nephew of philanthropist Velma Morrison was killed on a river raft by the rope of bridge surfer, local highway officials are pressing for a ban on the increasingly popular water sport. "Since we have been given notice by the public of a hazard, some action should be taken," said Charles Winder, president of the Ada County Highway District. "I feel this is a great hazard and this kind of activity should be prohibited entirely." Mrs. Morrison, 63, said in a letter sent to Winder and other city and county officials. During a raft trip last weekend down the Boise River, which flows through the city, Mrs. Morrison said there were "10 or more young people with ropes tied to the bridge doing some type of water sport. "One of the ropes of the skiers caught around my nephew's throat and jerked him off of the back of our raft down under and in the swift water," she wrote. The boy was not injured.

BOISE (AP) — Boise Police Chief Jim Montgomery plans disciplinary action against a police officer involved in a damage claim against the city. A district court jury awarded Sandra Hancock, 24, $5,000 damages on her claim that she was improperly beaten and choked by Lt. Bill Bradlock. The woman alleged she was falsely arrested by Bradlock, and injured when he tried to make her leave a Boise party 15 months ago. She asked $60,000 damages plus punitive damages of twice that amount. A 4th District Court jury earlier this week awarded her $5,000, which Montgomery said will be paid by the city's insurance carrier.

Beavers hurting residents
KELSO LAKE (AP) — Residents in the Kelso Lake area feel that beavers there are getting the best of them. Dams built by beavers have raised the lake and creek levels and flooded some land, including hayfields, residents say. In addition, they say the animals are also gnawing valuable fruit trees. The beavers have proliferated in recent years since the price for beaver pelts has dropped. James Victorino, who owns a summer camping area known as Kelso Lake Resort, said the floor of his small store is sunken in two spots from water that flooded the site two years ago. "And he said what was once 880 feet of beachfront property is now mostly swamp. Just because the lake level has overtaken the shores. "My biggest complaint is I cannot utilize any portion of the property," he said. Victorino said he believes the lake level has risen because beavers have built dams below the lake and at its outlet. Additional beaver dams and culverts has cut off water flow from Kelso Lake into Grant Lake, he said. Pete Jensen also said the high water from beaver dams has hurt his hayfield. The dams have backed up enough water from upstream creeks to soak his field, making it impossible to cut, he said. "When they raise the creek, the water runs into the hayfield," he said. "This year was wet in June, so it won't dry out now."

Arts funding head gives talk in Boise

By MARILYN HAUKE PRUSS
For The Associated Press

BOISE — The chairman for the National Endowment for the Arts says educators need to develop a "comfort level" for the arts by developing special school programs.

Frank Holsell visited Boise Friday on the eve of a national exhibit opening at the Boise Gallery of Art.

Holsell, who took the chair of the National Endowment for the Arts in 1981 after his appointment by President Reagan, was the first endowment chairman to visit Boise in more than 10 years.

A poll of the nation's educators shows support for the arts, Holsell said. He said that's surprising at a time when emphasis has been placed on math, English and science.

But he quoted the Carnegie Foundation as saying the arts represent "the soul and mind of our culture."

High costs don't derail work center

BOISE (AP) — The state will proceed as scheduled with construction of a new prison work release center in Nampa even though the apparent low bid on the project is $20,000 more than hoped for, state Corrections Director Al Murphy says.

Scott Hedrick Construction of Boise submitted the apparent low bid of $366,000 for the 60-bed facility, to be the state's second work release center.

"It was hoping it would come in around $466,000," Murphy acknowledged Friday, a day after the bids were open. "But I don't think there'll be any problems. I find it (the additional money) within the department."

While financially strapped because of years of what officials claim has been underfunding aggravated by recent budget holdbacks, Murphy said there are several other projects under way within the corrections system that are now expected to come in under budget.

He said the money saved on them will be diverted to pay for the additional anticipated cost of the work release center.

The center is scheduled to open next July, housing nonviolent inmates as they end their sentences and prepare to return to society.

St. Anthony businessmen angry about road

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — A U.S. Highway 20 road construction project here has dragged on two summers, raising ire of local businessmen and residents who say they've lost business and have been inconvenienced by the project.

At a meeting here Wednesday night, state and local officials fielded complaints from local residents, including several who claimed damage from blasting associated with the project.

Bannock Paving Co. has a contract of about $3.9 million to widen U.S. 20 to four lanes and make other improvements.

District Engineer Jerald Dick said Friday the work is continuing, and the new road should be open for traffic late this fall.

Mayor Merrill Rose said he called the Wednesday meeting to get the state to look at damage caused by the project, and also at the economic loss caused by the construction.

Dick said those attending the session were encouraged to carry their damage claims to the insurance carrier for Bannock Paving.

The mayor said he knew of at least two businesses and two homes had some structural damage from the blasting used to clear the way for the project. Another home was blown off its foundation, he said.

Local residents got the run-around when they tried to do something about the damage, Rose said. They went to the highway department, but were sent to the contractor, who sent them to a subcontractor.

Rose said local businessmen favor the project, because they know the benefits it will bring. But there were complaints that the project dragged on two summers, when similar projects were wound up in one year, and the St. Anthony project should have received more priority.

Judge may toss beauty queen charge

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A judge said Friday she expects to dismiss one of two misdemeanor charges against former beauty queen Joyce McKinney, accused of harassing a man she was charged with kidnapping and raping in 1977.

Ms. McKinney, 33, was accused in 1977 in England of having kidnapped Kirk Anderson, then a Mormon missionary, chaining him to a bed with fur-lined manacles and forcing him to have sex with her.

She fled the country before British authorities could bring her to trial and they did not seek extradition.

The 1973 Miss Wyoming-USA was arrested here June 16 after Anderson, 29, complained to police she was harassing him by shadowing him at home and at work.

Hi-Fi shop killers have appeal in court

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge Friday took under advisement arguments in what could be the last move through the federal courts in the 10-year-old cases of convicted Hi-Fi shop killers Dale Pierre Selby and William Andrews.

U.S. District Judge David K. Winder set no date for his decision on an appeal by the inmates to overturn their death sentences.

"I'll be in touch with you," Winder told attorneys after hearing more than two hours of arguments that focused on the constitutionality of the defendants' 1974 conviction and ensuing appeals.

Winder has the option of overturning the death sentences outright and remanding the case to the state courts for reconsideration, or granting a defense motion for a federal hearing to reconsider evidence in the case.

"All we are asking for is a fair and equal hearing," D. Gilbert Athay, attorney for Selby, said following the hearing.

Selby and Andrews were convicted in 1974 of the torture slayings of three people, Carol Naisbitt, 52, Michelle Anstey, 16, and Stanley Walker, 20, in Ogden Hi-Fi shop. The victims were forced to drink caustic liquid and one, Ms. Anstey, was raped before they were shot to death.

Two other victims, Courtney Naisbitt, 18, and Orren Walker, also were tortured and shot, but survived.

Last November, the Utah Supreme Court upheld the death sentences of Selby and Andrews, opening the door for a final federal appeal.

Should Winder deny the defense motion, Selby and Andrews can appeal to the 10th Circuit Court and ultimately, to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Defense attorneys argued that Selby's and Andrews' death sentences were upheld by Utah courts under a legal standard no longer valid.

Jury mulls fraud case for 2 days

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jurors were deliberating a second day Friday in a federal lawsuit by 71 investors who claim Home Savings and Loan employees helped AFCO time-share condominiums.

Plaintiffs' attorney Gary Weston told jurors Thursday that homeowners discovered Affleck had kept his promise when Home Savings began foreclosing on the property. Weston also said Home Savings representatives were willing partners in the AFCO scheme.

In his closing argument, Home Savings attorney Kent Murdock argued Home Savings should not be responsible for the investors' losses, since most of them had signed loan documents without reading them. Also, he said the homeowners were careless in trusting Affleck.

The investors allege Home Savings representatives back-dated loan documents to, in effect, remove the three-day period in which investors could have legally rescinded their loans. They claim some bank officials accepted back-dated AFCO, and improperly notarized forged loan documents.

Affleck goes on trial Aug. 27 on 22 counts of fraud, accused of defrauding investors from Utah and out-of-state of some $20 million.

During the trial, plaintiffs testified Affleck had gained their confidence by claiming several prominent Mormons were involved with AFCO's Sherwood Hills resort near Logan and Glenmore Village condominiums in West Jordan.

Soviets make call for peace

MOSCOW (AP) — Three cosmonauts on Friday called on fellow citizens of the Earth to maintain a peaceful space frontier, and Soviet space program officials detailed plans for a photographic mission to Venus and Halley's Comet.

Commander Vladimir A. Dzhanibekov, flight engineer Svetlana Savitskaya — the first woman to walk in space — and researcher Igor P. Volk used their news conference to press for an end to the arms race.

Ms. Savitskaya, who also became the first woman to make two space trips when the Soyuz T-12 blasted off on July 17, told reporters she wants people to work together to preserve the beautiful picture of Earth she saw from the cosmos. The cosmonauts completed their 13-day mission July 29.

The 36-year-old veteran test pilot said she hoped her planet's inhabitants would always be there to greet "aliens who would come and look at our Earth."

Space officials accompanying the cosmonauts gave new details of the Soviet Union's plans for a photographic mission to Venus and Halley's Comet. Vladimir Kotelnikov, a vice president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, provided no specific date for the Venus-Halley's Comet mission, but said an interplanetary vehicle would drop a "descending craft" on Venus and then head for the brilliant comet streaking through the solar system.

"Comets are very mysterious to us, we know little of them," said Kotelnikov, adding that Japan and the European Space Agency also plan to send spacecraft aloft to watch the comet.

Ecuador's president vows aid

QUITO, Ecuador (AP) — Hours before his inauguration Friday, President-elect Leon Febres Cordero pledged bread and jobs to the people of Ecuador, along with assistance to lift this nation out of economic crisis.

Vice President George Bush joined Presidents Raul Alfonsin of Argentina, Jaime Lusinchi of Venezuela, Belisario Betancur of Colombia, and Hernan Siles Suazo of Bolivia, and about 70 foreign dignitaries, for the Friday evening ceremony.

Bush arranged private meetings with the four presidents on Friday and will meet with Febres Cordero on Saturday, U.S. officials said. Bush also arranged a luncheon meeting Friday with Ecuador's outgoing President Osvaldo Hurtado.

It is the first time in 24 years that power is to be transferred constitutionally in this South American nation of 8.5 million people.

Febres Cordero, a conservative businessman, told a news conference as he awaited inauguration for his four-year term, "receive a country in a state of crisis — an acute — hurried center-left administration. Febres Cordero predicted that Ecuador's economic problems could be overcome with "a regime of austerity and morality." He repeated his winning campaign pledge to provide bread, jobs and housing for the people.

Explosion rocks Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A chain-reaction explosion set off by a militiaman's careless handling of a grenade ripped through a 10-story building Friday, killing two men and wounding 11.

Five explosions rocked mostly Muslim-west Beirut overnight, and the army command warned of "attempts to sabotage the security plan" aimed at extending state control beyond the capital.

Police said two men were killed and 11 wounded in Belr Al-Abed, a southern suburb of Beirut, in a building that houses a security office and an arms depot of Lebanon's dominant Shiite Muslim Amal militia.

The police and Amal said the blasts began when a hand grenade went off accidentally as a militiaman was "toying with it." That explosion set off a nearby box of grenades. State radio said the final explosions set off a series of blasts in an Amal arms depot in the basement of the building.

The militiaman who set off the first grenade was killed, along with a colleague.

The overnight explosions in west Beirut damaged shops but caused no casualties, police said. One blast was caused by explosives planted in a clothing shop, while the others were caused by rocket-propelled grenades and hand grenades thrown from speeding cars.

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet television's KGB General Konstantinov saved the National African nation of Nagonia from a CIA plot Friday, ending a spy thriller that enthralled Muscovites for two weeks despite complaints that it was long on talk and short on action.

In the last of 10 episodes, Konstantinov netted the CIA "resident" in the U.S. Embassy after a two-night stakeout on a rooftop of a central Moscow building.

He won the release of the KGB's valiant agent in Nagonia, produced proof of the CIA's plot to overthrow Nagonia's pro-Moscow military government, and crushed a CIA operation in Moscow.

The series was called "Tass Is Authorized to State," a phrase taken from the official government pronouncements issued by the state news agency when purported spies are expelled or diplomatic protests made. It was broadcast over the national TV channel and was widely publicized in the press.

The show was the talk of the town, although some Moscow residents complained the plot's twists and turns were too simplistic, and many episodes involved too much talk and not enough action.

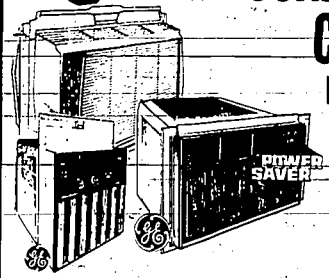

Despite some shooting, chasing and other action, the series was mostly devoted to the political lessons that are standard to many Soviet films — that the United States interferes in the internal affairs of nations friendly to the Soviet Union, the CIA poses an active threat to the Soviets, and foreigners are not to be trusted or befriended.

The plot of "Tass Is Authorized to State" involved Nagonia's plea for Soviet help in thwarting a CIA-plotted coup.

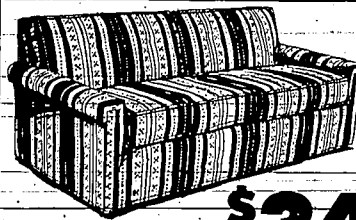

As head of the counterintelligence division of the KGB, Konstantinov discovers there is a "mole" or turncoat spy in Moscow providing the CIA with information on Nagonia.

During the film CIA agents blow up a Russian freighter heading for the fictional nation, and the "mole" commits suicide with a "poison pen" rather than be arrested by the KGB.

Families work to establish new Jewish enclave in Hebron

By MASHA HAMILTON
The Associated Press

HEBRON, Occupied West Bank — Three families are working to establish a new Jewish enclave in Hebron on a dusty hill ringed with heavy barbed wire and surrounded by Arab homes.

It is the second Jewish settlement in Hebron, a city of 70,000 Arabs that is claimed as a religious site by Jews and Moslems.

The Jewish settlers — three couples and one child — brought in house trailers under cover of darkness Wednesday night. The next day they put out flower pots and set up housekeeping, complete with water and electricity, as Arab prayer chants emanated from a mosque 100 yards away and their Moslem neighbors watched.

The settlement was accomplished with the approval of Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's government, which sent a half-dozen armed Israeli soldiers to help set up the barbed wire and to protect the Jews. Two blue-and-white Israeli flags marked the area.

"We moved in under cover because we thought it would be safer," said Uri Karzen, 23, who emigrated from Chicago seven years ago. "But we believe most of the Arabs understand the Jews have reclaimed their city."

Hebron, about 30 miles south of Jerusalem, is the site of the tomb of the patriarchs Abraham, Isaac and Jacob. Jews say it is their oldest city, but the Moslems also say Abraham is their forefather and the city is theirs.

The city has been the site of frequent friction between Jews and Arabs since Israel captured the West Bank from Jordan in the 1967 war. And the newest Jewish settlement has angered and frightened neighboring Arabs, some of whom say they fear losing their homes.

"There is nothing we can do. I am frightened even talking to you, because they might put me in jail," said a Hebron man whose home is 50 feet from the Jewish settlement. He refused to give his name.

"These trailers sit between several Arab houses. In any area where the settlers put their feet, the Israeli defense forces follow," said Mustafa Natsheh, who was deposed as Hebron's mayor in 1983 and replaced by an Israeli military appointee.

"The people can't live in this atmosphere," he said. "They will protest in any way possible."

The ownership of the property occupied by the Jewish settlers was not clear. Karzen said the site was leased by an Arab tenant who didn't develop it and gave up his rights to the land. But Arabs who live nearby said they believed the land was theirs, and that they are afraid their homes might be taken next.

Voters flock to register for special election

EMERY PETERSEN
Wonders about opinions

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls residents turned out by the hundreds Friday to register to vote in Tuesday's special city election.

Voters will consider a nearly $2 million bond for a joint city-school district swimming pool and the consolidation of the Police and Fire Departments.

According to city finance director Bryce King, a total of about 600 people registered during the day, bringing to 1,200 the total number registering this week.

He said the unprecedented surge might push the total number of registered city voters close to 5,000. All day Friday a steady stream of residents appeared at City Hall. At times, phone lines were also jammed as others called in to find out whether they were registered.

As many as 40 residents jammed the City Hall lobby at one time during the lunch hour stampede and a 5:20 p.m. after-work rush, King said.

Feelings were mixed among pool supporters as to whether the interest bode well or poorly for their venture.

Councilman Gale Kleinkopf said he hoped the late interest represented a reaction to a Twin Falls School District-Board-of-Trustees letter mailed to each registered voter and explaining their pro-pool position.

Mayor Emery Petersen would say only that the late registration indicated "a great interest" in the issue. He said he had heard conflicting theories on whether the interest was in favor or in opposition to the pool project. "It's really like to know what's in those people's minds," he said.

King said several trends appeared to be at work among the late registrants.

On the one hand many more were young people than usual, he said — an indication of possible support for the pool.

But on the other many were older people, and many more than usual gave addresses in the city's 9th and 10th precincts near Harmon Park, an indication of possible opposition. King also said many refused to accept pool brochures, which he was handing out. He said this might indicate people had already made up their minds against the project, and did not want to have them changed.

Kleinkopf said he would have felt better about the rush if the pool committee had one more week to explain the project to voters.

He said he had never seen an issue in which so many people had made their minds up so early without listening to subsequent debate.

King said 150 absentee ballots were handed out Friday, bringing to 225 the total number of people voting by this method.

In last fall's city council election only 72 absentee ballots were handed out, King said.

GALE KLEINKOPF
Hopes trustees' letter helped

Gov. John Evans was in Filer Friday to help dedicate the town's new 620,000-gallon water tank.

Evans visits Filer's water storage tank

FILER — Gov. Evans drove into Filer Friday to chat with the townspeople and congratulate them on completing work on a water storage system.

Money for the project came from a federal grant administered through Evans' office. When the town's 40-year-old tank began to fail, city leaders took a rusted chunk of the tank's side to Boise to ask Evans' administrators for the grant.

It was convincing evidence, Filer was granted $346,700, enough to build a new water tank, replace water lines on Stevens Street and Fair Avenue and build new lines around the elementary school, so fire hydrants can be added.

Idaho was one of the first states to apply for the grants, Evans told the crowd of about 20 townspeople gathered in front of the tank. After serving as mayor of the small town of Malad and later becoming governor, he recognized the need in strongly support the infrastructure of Idaho towns," he said. "All over the state we see roads, sewer and water systems that are deteriorating," he said.

The federal grants for economic development give the towns an opportunity to replace failing facilities, "creating an atmosphere to attract business," he said.

"We dedicate this tank to the future of Filer and the future of economic development," he said, cutting the ribbon stretching to the new tank. The tank has been operating since late February. But the pump house system, which automatically regulates the water flow from the town's three wells, will not be started until next week.

The new system will relieve some of the stress on the city's maintenance crew, which has had to regulate the wells manually. It has already improved water pressure to sections of the town where some people had complained they had to use pails of water to flush toilets.

Better pressure should also ensure better fire protection. In reply to Evans' questions about the old tank, Mayor Perry Dyke said it may be leased to farmers to store beans or grain or to be cut in two and used for storage by the city.

Governor stresses need for more grasshopper spray funds

By The Associated Press

Gov. John Evans urged the federal government on Friday to put up more money to spray for grasshoppers, because Idaho farmers still face "severe economic losses" from the pests. At almost the same time in Washington, Rep. Larry Craig introduced legislation calling for a new fund to cope with plant and animal pests on federal land — such as the hordes of grasshoppers which are threatening southern Idaho farm land this summer. The Agriculture Department put up some $400,000 for spraying, but Evans and other state leaders say the amount is woefully inadequate. In a letter to Agriculture Secretary John Block, Evans said more spraying is necessary or many southern Idaho farmers could be wiped out. "The high elevations of southern Idaho are just now beginning to experience the infestation of grasshoppers migrating from federal to private lands," Evans said. "Private landowners and the state of Idaho have taken responsibility for their respective lands. I hope the U.S. Department of Agriculture will continue its program of taking care of federal lands. Idaho farmers have been complaining that the federal government was slow to respond to complaints that hordes of grasshoppers were hatching on federal land and spreading to nearby farmland. In an Idaho appearance this week, Block acknowledged that his agency may have been slow to recognize the problem. Craig introduced his proposed Public Lands Pest Management Fund Act. It calls for an initial fund of $10 million to cope with animal and plant pests. Money would be put into the fund as needed in subsequent years. Craig wants to divert money from the $900 million Land and Water Conservation Fund, which is funded by federal taxes on offshore oil drilling and oil deposits on federal land. The Idahoans also said he has formed a coalition with other Western congressmen to combat the problem of insect pests emanating from federal land. Craig said the new Western States Federal Lands Pest Control Coalition sent a letter to Block, asking for stepped up activity to curb insects and noxious plants on federal lands. The federal government should be ready to survey for insect pests and spray as necessary by this time next year, Craig said. He said he's asking governors of Western states to support the effort. To date, Evans has asked Block to declare six southern Idaho counties areas of natural disaster because of the grasshoppers. They include Adams, Washington, Elmore, Owyhee, Power and Bannock. Parts of Gooding, Jerome, Mindoka, Cassia and Oneida counties also are infested and formal disaster declarations are pending, the governor's office said.

A major victory for local irrigators

House passes bill to fix Jackson Dam

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A dam safety bill containing $82 million to rebuild the Jackson Lake Dam in Wyoming headed to President Reagan's desk Friday for signing after passing the House by a voice vote. The bill's congressional passage was a major victory for Magic Valley irrigators who use Jackson Lake water, said Ted Diehl, manager of the North Side Irrigation Co. and John Rosholt, legal counsel for the Twin Falls Canal Co. "It's an excellent deal, and I'm really pleased," Rosholt said. "We've been working on this thing for probably four years." The bill had been stalemated in the Senate for more than a year by a bitter dispute over how much of federal dam repairs should be picked up by the projects' beneficiaries, Rosholt said. The final bill calls for beneficiaries of the Jackson Lake dam to finance 15 percent of the repair bill. This money would be repaid to the federal government over a 50-year period, without any interest accruing, Rosholt said. For Twin Falls Canal Co. irrigators, the payback would amount to an additional 15-20 cent assessment per acre-foot, according to Rosholt's estimate. Diehl termed the payback provision "something new and with." "We need the water real bad," he said.

Diehl said the payback provision would cost North Side Canal Co. irrigators about $65,000 annually over the next 50 years. The 947,000-acre-foot Jackson Lake Dam provides key storage water for Magic Valley irrigators. About three-quarters of the lake's storage capacity is owned by the Minidoka Project, Twin Falls Canal Co. and North Side Canal Co. Irrigators it provides a critical water supply in dry years. Bureau of Reclamation engineers report the dam's foundation is unstable and could collapse during a severe earthquake, triggering catastrophic downstream flooding. Reclamation-National Park Service environmental impact study on the dam's reconstruction is now nearing conclusion. Wyoming environmentalists are protesting the effect of the project on the Jackson Lake area. In recent months environmentalists have sought a compromise, under which the lake would be lowered to a safe level, and irrigators compensated for their loss of stored water. But with the passage of the appropriation bills, Rosholt believes the debate over the dam's reconstruction has been settled. "The bill prohibits the expenditure of money (for the dam) in any other location. We either build it there, (at its present site) or don't build it at all," Rosholt said. He hopes the dam's reconstruction could begin by the fall of 1985.

Gooding fair enjoys 'official' designation

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The Los Angeles Olympics have an official beer, official candy and cameras and now an official fair and rodeo. With tongue-in-cheek humor, a newly lettered poster on the door of the 4-H building at the Gooding County Fairgrounds proclaims "Gooding County Fair and Rodeo — Official Fair of the 1984 Summer Olympics."

shows some imaginative rocketships and moonscapes. —Visitors to the art gallery can vote for their favorite picture, and a prize will be awarded to the painting receiving the most popular votes. Elmer Butler of Hagerman has an eye-catching exhibit in the craft show. He has fashioned miniature replicas of a stagecoach, a double seat surrey, a conestoga wagon and other wagons from metal using his welding skills. Wendell sixth-grade students have exhibited their "Western History" display, which includes art work, models and written reports. The patchwork of the fair continues with the animal exhibits and Friday fairgoers were treated to a donkey serenade when a young escapee from the fair's "Mule Alley" brayed his disappointment as a group of teens herded him toward his stall. The noisy run-away was returned to his place without incident and the animal showing contests continued. The fair and PRCA-approved rodeo winds up today with "Gooding Day" and the crowning of a new Gooding rodeo queen at the final performance of the rodeo landscape paintings, but also

Two perish in head-on auto collision

JACKPOT — A Twin Falls man and Jackpot casino worker hitchhiking home, died after a head-on collision Friday morning on U.S. 93 about four miles north of the Nevada border. Roger Boyd, 20, of 290 Ash St. N. in Twin Falls, was pronounced dead at the scene, reported Idaho State Police officer Mike Burgess. The cause of death was massive chest injuries, said Jim Wood, the Twin Falls County deputy coroner.

The other victim was identified as Thomas Lloyd Hunt, 24, of 224 Eighth St. E. in Jerome. Hunt died at the scene of massive head injuries, Wood said. The accident occurred at 6:45 a.m. Boyd, a Times-News employee, and his passenger, 22-year-old Deanna Garland of 290 Ash St. N., who works at Cactus Pete's Casino, were returning from Jackpot when they picked up Hunt at the Idaho-Nevada border. Hunt, who had just completed his shift at the casino, was heading to Jerome, Burgess said. Garland said Boyd and Hunt were acquainted. Boyd and his passengers apparently fell asleep on the trip home. His compact car then crossed the center line and struck a southbound, 24-foot motorhome, driven by 50-year-old Stanley Wilkinson of Fountain Valley, Calif., Burgess said.

Garland, Wilkinson and his wife, 48-year-old Carolyn Wilkinson, were taken by ambulance to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center. Garland was reported in satisfactory condition Friday evening. The Wilkinsons were treated and released. Boyd's vehicle was a total loss. There was $1,000 damage to the motorhome. Fair State Police and Twin Falls County sheriff's deputies responded to the accident.

Roberts guilty of murder

ELKO — A Nevada state highway foreman, accused of shooting a Jackpot woman, has been found guilty of second-degree murder in Elko District Court.

A jury brought back the verdict against Doug Roberts, 49, after about three hours of deliberation Friday, according to a spokeswoman for the Elko County Prosecutor Jim Wilson.

The second-degree conviction in Nevada, coupled with the use of a deadly weapon, carries a sentence of 10 years to life, she said.

Roberts had been charged with murdering 38-year-old Ranae Luddy, a Cactus Pete's Casino employee.

Luddy's body was found March 7 in a mobile home behind Barton's Club 93. She died of a single gunshot wound, which police suspected was fired from a .38 calibre handgun at close range.

Roberts served as the Nevada highway maintenance foreman in a district extending from Wells to the Idaho border.

The trial took a week, with the prosecution resting Wednesday night and the defense at about 3 p.m. Friday.

The case for the prosecution included the testimony of Charles Johnston, whose trailer Luddy's body was found in.

Roberts was represented by Elko attorney Gary Woodbury, who was unavailable for comment Friday night.

Under Nevada law Roberts will not be eligible for parole for five years. Sentencing will take place in about 90 days.

"I think if every city in the U.S. were as solvent as Bliss, they'd be happy," he commented.

The council voted unanimously to accept the same 1983-84 budget for the next year, with modifications within the various checking accounts.

Other business:

- Standal said the Y-Inn Bar is about six months behind in water bill payments. Zollinger said he and councilman Edde Butler will contact the business manager and have the bill paid by Sept. 10. If not, added the mayor, the water will be shut off.
- Standal reported the owner of the old Fifth Wheel cafe has placed the building will be burned by the local fire department and then leveled with a bulldozer. This work has not been scheduled yet, the clerk noted.

Jerome traffic signs to change

JEROME — Motorists in Jerome may need to watch for some traffic sign changes in the next few days.

On recommendations of Police Chief Darryl Cameron, the Jerome City Council voted Monday night to remove a stop sign on Avenue G at the intersection with Birch Street.

The council agreed the intersection would be more effective with no stop or yield signs and agreed to remove all signs and leave an open intersection.

"The intersection is part of a truck route that runs along West-G, but council members said very few trucks utilize the route.

A petition from residents living on South Fir Street between E and F avenues asked the city to install stop signs on both sides of a railroad crossing in that location.

The council also approved this request, after discussing reports of fast traffic along Fir Street and a vicinity of trucking at that crossing. It, however, turned down a request for "children playing" signs on grounds that other residential areas of the city have similar circumstances and it would not be practical to put such signs around the entire city.

Man slaughter testimony ends

JEROME — Testimony in the preliminary hearing of vehicular manslaughter charges against a Burley man ended Tuesday, but a decision on the case is pending.

Pierre Leo Whitehawk, 29, is charged with manslaughter and driving while under the influence of alcohol in the May 26 traffic death of Jamie Burt, 8, of American Falls.

Whitehawk's vehicle was traveling west on State Highway 25 when it collided with the Burt vehicle, which was traveling south on U.S. Highway 93.

Witnesses who testified for the state included the victim's father, Jack Burt, and other members of the family.

The victim was thrown from the Burt vehicle and died at the scene. Her mother, Cindy Burt, and both drivers were injured.

Fifth District Magistrate Roger Burdick asked for briefs from the defense and the state and will hear final arguments in the case later. He will decide if the defendant is to be bound over to district court for trial once briefs are filed.

Bliss stays with last year's budget

TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

BLISS — The Bliss City Council chose to follow last year's budget instead of approving a proposed 1984-85 budget that included a 5 percent increase in county property taxes.

The council, at a recent budget hearing, juggled various city accounts to cover reduced funding from the state Highway Department and closely compared the proposed new budget with last year's budget.

The council approved a $23.10 budget for the city although Councilman Douglas Andrews suggested the proposed additional funds could be used to generate some activities for youths in Bliss.

Money not budgeted, says city clerk Anita Standal, will be invested in time certificates.

"We have it as sort of an insurance on our water works," she said, explaining the antiquated system needs replacement.

Zollinger said the extra money the city has saved is adequate, and the 5 percent tax increase, however slight, it might be to individual taxpayers, was not necessary at this time.

Standal said the Y-Inn Bar is about six months behind in water bill payments. Zollinger said he and councilman Edde Butler will contact the business manager and have the bill paid by Sept. 10. If not, added the mayor, the water will be shut off.

Standal reported the owner of the old Fifth Wheel cafe has placed the building will be burned by the local fire department and then leveled with a bulldozer. This work has not been scheduled yet, the clerk noted.

Suspect bound over to court

JEROME — James Stultz, 45, was bound over to Fifth District Court Thursday for trial on one count of lewd conduct with a minor child.

Stultz, a Jerome real estate representative, was arrested July 16 on a complaint by Jerome City police. He was originally charged with two counts of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor child.

Magistrate Court Judge Roger Burdick ordered the defendant held for district court following a brief preliminary hearing that began at 2 p.m. Thursday.

At the opening of the hearing, Defense Attorney Greg Fuller immediately asked that witnesses and reporters be excluded and the request was granted by Magistrate Roger Burdick.

Stultz was released earlier on a $2,000 bond and the court continued the bond pending setting of a district court arraignment.

The race will be followed by a picnic at the Glens Ferry boat dock. There is no charge for entering the race, but $1 will be charged for the picnic to pay for refreshments.

In past years everything from inner tubes to Volkswagens have been pressed into service for the race.

Other area cheerleading workshops have replaced the camp, a college spokesman says.

Wendell gets rid of dogs

WENDELL — A Wendell resident is tired of "loudmouth dogs" that keep her awake at night and do their duty in her yard.

The resident, who asked to remain anonymous, told the Wendell City Council Thursday about the two black dogs of Andy McDewitt on Fourth Avenue Street.

"I've clean up the piles and have the noise," she explained. "It's not fair."

Councilman Lloyd Little said several other neighbors have also registered complaints about the same dogs.

Mayor Otto Lemke instructed Police Chief James Howe to give McDewitt 72 hours to get the dogs out of town.

In other council business:

- The council approved a job description for the city fire chief/marshal. The job, added Little, is not limited to the description. Also, the council authorized the chief must notify City Hall when he leaves town and when he returns.
- In his police report, Howe noted there have been eight felony investigations in the last three weeks. All, he said, were for insufficient fund checks written by former Jerome and Wendell residents.
- The Hagerman Valley Senior Citizen Center requested $500 of revenue sharing funds from Wendell. This donation, wrote the center, would pay for Wendell Senior Citizens to be transported to Hagerman for meals there. Council tabled the matter pending further investigation of expenses involved.

Bishop aims remarks at Catholic politicians

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In remarks that appeared to be aimed at Geraldine A. Ferraro and other prominent Catholic Democrats, the head of a Catholic bishops group said Thursday that it is illegal and unacceptable for politicians to say they support moral convictions from public policy.

It is not rational for candidates to say "their personal views should not influence their policy decisions," Malone's statement said.

Ferraro appoints blacks to top posts

By ANN BLACKMAN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Before setting off to the West coast for her first solo campaign swing, Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine Ferraro filled out her campaign staff with the appointment of two blacks to top positions.

Michigan's Barbara Roberts Mason, a prominent education and labor activist, was designated a senior policy adviser and Charles Atkins, an attorney who joined her campaign two weeks ago as a political-issues consultant, was promoted to deputy campaign manager.

Atkins worked in the Carter White House and served as deputy director of the Democratic platform committee headed by Ms. Ferraro.

Ms. Ferraro praised Ms. Mason, of Lansing, calling her "an incredible woman." She's very good on issues and very politically astute.

Ms. Ferraro left Washington Friday morning for New York to spend the early part of the weekend before leaving for California Sunday.

The Rev. Jesse Jackson criticized Ms. Ferraro last month, calling her first appointments of two white women and a white man "unfair and unacceptable." Ms. Ferraro said at the time that if black leaders would give her time to make more appointments, "they're going to be perfectly happy" with her choices.

Anne Wexler, a Washington government relations consultant who is Ms. Ferraro's senior political adviser, said Friday that Ms. Ferraro will spend five days traveling through California, Oregon and Washington state "because they are targets of this campaign."

"We think we can win them and we're going after them," she said.

Ms. Wexler said that the three states, all carried by former Democratic presidential candidate Gary Hart, "are filled with lots of voters considered targets for us — the young, upwardly mobile."

Ms. Wexler said also that Ms. Ferraro had cancelled tentative plans to attend the closing ceremonies of the Olympic Games in Los Angeles after her staff and Olympic officials "mutually agreed that their attendance might put a political tone on the ceremonies and distract from the credit to the athletes."

At a national association meeting of district attorneys in San Diego, Ms. Ferraro will discuss government policies that have to do with crime and stress her experience as a former prosecutor and an assistant district attorney, Ms. Wexler said.

Patricia Bario, just appointed as Ms. Ferraro's press secretary, said Ms. Ferraro will use the trip to focus on the central theme of the Mondale-Ferraro campaign, that the Democratic candidates are "a team concerned about the future."

Mickey Kantor, head of the Mondale-Ferraro campaign in California, said Ms. Ferraro will meet with senior citizens in Sacramento and stress high technology jobs in San Jose.

Asked what chances the Democrats have of beating President Reagan in his home state, Kantor said, "It's an uphill struggle for us in California, but she can make a big difference."

Ms. Ferraro also announced the appointments of Steven Engleberg, a Washington attorney and policy advisor to Mondale, as issues director; Madeleine K. Albright, a member of the National Security Council in the Carter-White House, as senior foreign policy director; and Eleanor G. Lewis, her congressional administrative assistant for three years, as executive assistant.

Other Ferraro campaign appointments include: Tony Podesta, president of People for the American Way, who served as scheduler for the presidential campaigns of Edward M. Kennedy in 1980, former Sen. George McGovern in 1972 and former Sen. Eugene McCarthy in 1968, as director of scheduling.

Blandina "Bambi" Cardenas Ramirez, a member of the U.S. Civil Rights Commission, was appointed political coordinator.

TV to treat GOP like Democrats

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — The Republican convention may be more varied than usual event, but ABC, CBS and NBC, recognizing that their pictures of harmony helped improve Walter F. Mondale's standing in the polls, say the GOP will get about as much prime-time exposure as the Democrats did.

The Republicans plan to make that as easy as possible. "We're gearing a lot of what we do to what we see as the needs of TV," said Gary Holtzman, director of communications for the Republican National Committee. "We don't have controversy, we don't have a contest, but that doesn't mean we can't put on a good show."

The networks, acknowledging that less news will come from the Republicans in Dallas Aug. 20-23, say their coverage content and hours shouldn't vary much from last month's broadcasts of the Democrats in San Francisco.

CBS and NBC plan two hours a night (9-11 p.m.), while ABC hasn't announced its plans. But Jeff Gralnick, executive producer of political programming for ABC, said ABC's coverage "won't differ much in total number of hours."

One night in San Francisco, ABC, believing that the Democrats were behind schedule, replaced convention coverage with an episode of "Hart to Hart" only to leave that rerun in mid-air for a speech by Speaker of the House, Thomas P. O'Neill.

Gralnick said that bolting from the convention and quickly returning were "both correct decisions," and seemed to hint that ABC also might leave the Republicans during a slow period. "Television networks are remarkably flexible pieces of business," he said.

The most recognizable coverage difference will be in the number of floor reporters. ABC has gone from four to two; CBS from four to three, while NBC will stay with four.

"The Democrats had four kinds of delegates and they had disagreements," said Joan Richman, executive producer of CBS' election coverage. "This convention doesn't have that."

The Democrats want the networks to provide identical coverage in another area — party films. The Democratic National Committee sent a letter Friday to the three networks saying that since TV didn't broadcast the Democratic films about Mondale, Harry Truman and Eleanor Roosevelt, it shouldn't carry the movie on President Reagan.

"If our film presentations were somehow unorthodox of prime-time coverage, we can imagine no different result at the Republican convention," the letter said. The DNC said it expected that "sausage for the goose" will be sauce for the gander.

The networks don't see their equal-time decisions as an obligation but, instead, speak of fairness and comparable news content.

VIPs get red carpet treatment at convention

DALLAS (AP) — About 300 people at the Republican National Convention have been officially designated as VIPs and some will get full-time chauffeurs, express hotel check-ins and check-outs and more, convention organizers say.

"They all won't get everything we've got to offer, but we're going to try to do something special for each and every one of them," said Jim Oberwetter, VIP chairman for the Republican Host Committee.

The host committee has limited the VIP list to those playing key roles in the convention and its production.

The national committee has assigned a full-time subcommittee to oversee the process and some lists are still being drawn up, Oberwetter said Thursday. The convention will be held from Aug. 20 to 23.

Fifty-four Republican members of the U.S. Senate and the 166 GOP representatives from the House will get automatic membership.

Also on the VIP list are entertainers Wayne Newton, Vicki Carr and Ray Charles. Former Gov. Bill Clements, who will speak, also has been designated a VIP.

For their $10,000 donation, 30 "Gold Sponsors" also made the list. They will receive passes to the convention, reserved parking spaces, VIP seating at the Aug. 23 prayer breakfast and tickets to the presidential ball.

The "Republican Eagles," who donate more than $10,000 a year to the Republican National Committee, will be treated to everything from take parties to parties and specially-reserved hospitality suites.

But not everyone who wanted to be a VIP has been included and a few feathers have been ruffled.

"Everyone in the convention is a VIP through one means or another, and there are a lot of people who are noteworthy who don't have a role in this convention," Oberwetter said. "We're only able to deal with those that do. All the others are basically on their own."

"We've had some individuals who would like it to be otherwise, and we're as polite and diplomatic as we can be in explaining the facts of life," he said.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"To solve a problem, it is necessary to think. It is necessary to think even to decide what facts to collect."
 — Robert M. Hutchins.

Counting winners is only the first step in developing a plan of play. Often there's more thinking to be done. In today's slam, it's easy to count-up to 12 winners; it's also easy to overlook two losers.

Dummy's heart queen wins the first trick and it appears that the slam depends upon the winning trump finesse (six spades, two hearts, three diamonds and one club). Dummy's trump 10 is led for the finesse and wins the trick. A second finesse allows South to draw trumps. Diamonds are led, but West holds up on the first two leads. With no entry to dummy's fourth diamond, South is forced to try the club finesse and the slam falls one short. Where has South gone wrong?

At trick one, South should overtake dummy's heart queen with his ace-to-lead-a-diamond-to-dummy's jack. Trumps are then picked up and South drives out the diamond ace by playing his 10 and gets no diamonds: West wins but he gets no club trick. Dummy's heart king provides—the crucial—entry—to dummy's fourth diamond, on which South discards his low club.

Counting winners is a good first step; planning for needed entries is just as important.

Decker's golden dream falls

By BERT ROSENTHAL
 The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Romania's Marieta Pulea, the world cross country champion, won the first women's 3,000-meter race in Olympic history Friday night after American Mary Decker was knocked out of the race in a mishap with Zola Budd.

Decker, the American champion, fell to the track after tripping over Budd, the controversial South African-born member of the British team, who was leading at the time.

At first, it was announced that Budd had been disqualified. That was later reversed and she was placed seventh. Pulea's victory was overshadowed by Decker's fall with about 1,300 meters remaining.

Decker, competing in her first Olympic Games after years of hard luck and injury, led through the first three laps, but had been passed by Budd just before the spill occurred.

Then, when she tried to regain the lead, Decker appeared to get cut off by the inexperienced, 18-year-old Budd, was running barefoot, as usual.

Decker went flying off the track, landing face first onto the infield, apparently in tremendous pain, her Olympic hopes crushed.

She had made the American team in both the 1,500 and 3,000, but decided to run the longer race, saying she would prefer to win one gold rather than two silver.

She wound up with nothing but tears.

As she was helped off the field after the 34-year-old Pulea had crossed the finish line, Decker was crying profusely.

Also when the race ended, a male spectator came racing onto the field, wearing a grass skirt and carrying a flag that said "Zola." He then went over and kissed the teen-ager from South Africa, who had been whisked to Britain earlier this year and gained British citizenship in less than two weeks so she could compete in the Games.

After the brief embrace, the fan was hustled off the field.

It was a bizarre climax to a hectic, furious race that also saw another of the favorites, Brigitte Kraus of West Germany, also go out long before the finish.

"Zola tripped me," a sobbing Decker said. "She cut in front of me and it was a matter of pushing her or me falling. When I went down, I felt something in my left hip, I tried to get up but I couldn't. I wanted to get back into the race."

Decker was led off the field by her fiancé, Richard Slaney, and at one point, she said she might protest.

"In yet another unusual race, Benita Fitzgerald-Brown of Dale City, Va., became the first American in 52 years to capture the women's high hurdles, clocking 12.84, equalling her personal best, for the 100-meter event.

Fitzgerald-Brown, formerly of the University of Tennessee, held off Britain's Shirley Strong at the finish. Strong, the 1982 British Commonwealth Games champion, was timed in 12.88.

Kim Turner of Detroit and Michele Charbonnet of France then came across the finish line with identical times of 13.06. At first, it was announced that they had tied for the bronze medal, but much later, at the awards ceremonies, only Turner was awarded the medal for third place.

The U.S. had not won a medal in the women's high hurdles since 1932, when Mildred "Babe" Didrickson and Evelyne Hall finished 1-2.

Ulrike Meyfarth, the women's Olympic high jump champion in 1972, when she was only 16, regained the title Friday night.

Meyfarth set an Olympic record, clearing 6 feet, 7 1/2 inches, breaking the mark of 6-5 1/2 established by Italy's Sara Simeoni, the 1980 gold medalist.

Simeoni, in her fourth Olympics, also bettered her previous record, soaring 6-6 1/2 for the silver medal.

Joni Huntley of Portland, Ore., earned the first women's high jump medal for an American in 28 years, taking third at 6-5 1/2, a personal best.

Rolf Dannenberg, a 31-year-old West German, won the men's discus gold medal with a throw of 218-6.

Mac Wilkins, the 1976 Olympic gold medalist, won the silver medal at 212-6 and his arch-rival, 37-year-old John Powell of Cupertino, Calif., the 1976 bronze medalist, got another bronze with a toss of 214-9.

American Mary Decker cries out in anguish after falling in the 3,000-meter finals Friday.

Zola tripped me... she cut in front of me and it was a matter of pushing her or me falling. When I went down, I felt something in my left hip, I tried to get up but I couldn't. I wanted to get back into the race.

Zola Budd runs past as attendants minister to Decker.

Budd takes a breather after finishing seventh in the race.

Decker falls into infield as Budd struggles to keep balance.

U.S. basketball team breezes to gold

By DICK JOYCE
 The Associated Press

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Michael Jordan regained his shooting touch and the unbeaten United States team captured the Olympic men's basketball gold medal Friday with a 96-55 whipling of Spain.

Jordan, the 6-foot-6 college Player of the Year from North Carolina, had made only 9 of 29 from the field in his last two games. But on Friday, he led the Americans with 20 points and helped destroy a 2-3 zone employed by the Spaniards.

U.S. Coach Bobby Knight collected his first technical foul early in the first half and the Americans took off shortly after that to win its ninth gold medal in 10 attempts and its first since 1976.

The triumph before a crowd of 15,067 at The Forum was another example of American domination of the sport. The U.S. women won the Olympic gold medal Wednesday night with an 85-55 thrashing of South Korea.

For the men, the finals were their eighth straight victory. The closest any opponent came was West Germany, which lost 78-67 in the quarterfinals.

The United States is now 7-1 in Olympic basketball play, having failed to win the gold only in 1972 on a controversial 51-50 loss to the Soviet Union. The Soviets led an Eastern Bloc boycott of these Games. The United States boycotted the Moscow games in 1980 when Yugoslavia won the gold.

The Yugoslavs won the bronze this time with an 88-82 victory over Canada Thursday night.

The silver for Spain, which finished with a 62 record, was its first in Olympic basketball.

Jordan enjoyed his best game in the tournament in an earlier 101-68 victory over Spain when he hit 12 of 14 floor shots. Friday night, he hit 14 points in the first half — 7 of 10 from the field — in leading the Americans to a 32-29 lead at halftime.

Wayman Tisdale, the two-time

All American — from Oklahoma, finished with 14 points. Sam Perkins, Jordan's Carolina teammate, had 12 and Indiana's Steve Alford 11.

Knight, the fiery University of Indiana coach, drew a technical for protesting a goal tending call against Sam Perkins on a shot by Juan Antonio Corbalan. The Spaniards followed with consecutive baskets by Jose Marias Margall and Juan Antonio San Epifanio, reducing the U.S. lead to 15-11.

Then the Americans went on a 27-8 tear over the next 10 minutes to build their advantage to 42-15. During the run, the Americans scored 14 points in succession.

Appeals committee rules against boxer

By TIM DAHLBERG
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — Evander Holyfield, easily the dominant boxer in the 176-pound division, lost his opportunity for an Olympic gold medal on a referee's "stop" command he claimed he didn't hear.

A committee of the International Amateur Boxing Association (AIBA) Friday rejected a protest by the U.S.A. Amateur Boxing Federation and upheld Holyfield's disqualification.

He was disqualified for hitting after the referee had ordered both him and his opponent, Kevin Barry of New Zealand, to stop punching during their fight Thursday night. "There is no question in the minds of the protest committee," said Col. Don Hull, the president of AIBA. "They reviewed the film and it is clear that there was a violation and that an illegal blow incapacitated the referee. The referee enforced the rules."

The other 176-pound semifinal winner, Anton Jospovic of Yugoslavia, will get a gold medal on a walkover because of the decision by referee Gilgore Novicic, also of Yugoslavia. Jospovic will not have to fight for the gold because Barry, who would have been his opponent, was incapacitated by the illegal blow to the head and cannot fight again for 28 days. Barry will get the silver medal.

Holyfield, a soft-spoken fighter from Atlanta, will still receive a bronze medal, said Hull, because there was no "terrible misconduct" on his part.

"He had earned the medal by being in the semifinal," Hull said. The protest committee met for several hours Friday afternoon. Listening to the American protest and reviewing videotapes of the fight, the protest committee was chaired by Professor Anwar Chowdhry of Pakistan. Its other members are Lynn Mills of England, Stanley Moore of Guyana, Carl Heinz-Wehr of East Germany and Taid Houlich of Tunisia.

Holyfield was in command of his semifinal fight against Barry and appeared on the way to the finals when, with only 13 seconds left in the second round, his gold medal dream came apart.

The two fighters were beginning an exchange when Novicic called "stop," at which point both boxers are supposed to stop fighting immediately.

But Holyfield instead launched a left hook that smashed into the face of Barry's face and the New Zealander crumpled to the canvas. "I wasn't aware of the break. I was already in the middle of a combination," a distraught Holyfield said. "Both of us were punching at the time."

Videotape replays of the action clearly show Holyfield threw the punch after the referee shouted the halt command. But the referee was to the side and a little behind the fighter at the time he issued the command.

Loring Baker, head of the United States Amateur Boxing Federation, said the American protest centered on "the contention" the referee should have stopped the bout earlier because Barry was flagrantly holding onto Holyfield. "Had the referee done his job properly, the fight would have stopped before the foul occurred," said Baker.

The referee's action ignited the crowd of 11,729 at the Sports Arena, which boomed and cheered loudly for about 20 minutes. A few objects were thrown in the ring, but there were no injuries.

Holyfield, who was calm and reserved while answering questions from the press immediately after the bout, said Barry told him, "You won the fight fair and square."

Barry held Holyfield's hand up in victory after the two fighters were called to the center of the ring and Barry's win was announced.

Olympics

More gold for U.S. wrestlers

By D. BYRON YAKE
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — In freestyle wrestling, Bruce Baumgartner and controversial Dave Schultz won gold medals Friday at the Summer Olympics.

The United States even gained a gold medal in boxing, where the finals won't be held until Saturday, because Paul Gonzales' championship bout opponent in the 106-pound class was sidelined by a broken thumb.

There were disappointments as well.

The U.S. water polo team, in the championship game for the first time, had to settle for second place when it finished — a 5-5 tie with Yugoslavia. The gold medal was awarded on the basis of a better goals-against average.

Their first freestyle wrestling matches, easily won their qualifying matches, with Dave then taking the gold in his 185-pound division. Baumgartner added a fifth gold medal — the best U.S. performance ever in freestyle wrestling — with a 10-2 victory over Dave Malle in the super-heavyweight class.

That gave Americans their fourth gold in wrestling, a record.

The Shutles were watched by special judges in their matches because they had injured opponents in earlier bouts and were accused by International Wrestling Association officials of "excessive brutality."

Mark's victory Thursday was reversed after officials ruled he had used an illegal arm lock when the elbow of his Turkish opponent was broken. A Yugoslav wrestler beaten by Dave came out of their bout with an injured knee. On Friday, Dave Schultz moved to the gold-medal bout in the 163-pound division with a 5-0 victory over Han Myung-Woo of South Korea. Dave will face West Germany's Martin Knosp for the championship. And Mark Schultz also won, beating Kenneth Reinsel of New Zealand 16-7. That match was interrupted once when the off-mat judge warned Schultz about the way he was applying an arm lock.

All five Americans wrestling Friday afternoon won — Andy Rein at 149½ pounds, Lou Blanch at 220 and Barry Davis at 125½, in addition to the Schultz brothers.

Raiders overcome Redskins in rematch

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marc Wilson's third touchdown pass, a 26-yarder to rookie Sam Seale with 30 seconds remaining, lifted the Los Angeles Raiders past the Washington Redskins 21-20 Friday night in a National Football League exhibition matching last January's Super Bowl.

The Raiders' winning drive started on their own 21 with 1:15 remaining. Passes of 33 yards to Seale and 13 yards to Jeff Simmons set up the winning loss.

Earlier, Wilson hit Cle Montgomery on a 37-yard touchdown and Joe McCall for a 26-yard score as the Raiders fought back from a 20-7 deficit to repeat their Super Bowl victory over the Redskins.

The Raiders evened their preseason record at 1-1, with Wilson completing 11 of 20 for 239 yards, including his three touchdowns.

The Redskins had taken the lead on a 101-yard kickoff return by rookie Jimmy Smith and Mark Moseley field goals of 22 and 36 yards. Smith, a fourth-round draft pick out of Elon College raced through the heart of the Raider defense to give the Redskins a 17-7 lead in the second period.

The game, played before only the second preseason sellout in the last 10 years here, was a rough contest, with the two teams assessed 259 yards on 24 penalties.

The Redskins, who never led when the Raiders humbled them 38-9 in the Super Bowl, took advantage of a Raider mistake to draw first blood midway through the first quarter.

Mark Moseley recovered a Kenny King fumble, giving the Redskins possession at the Los Angeles 31. Six plays later, Mark Moseley split the uprights from 22 yards for a 3-0 Washington lead.

After Chris Bahr was wide right on a 52-yard field goal attempt, the Redskins showed the lightning attack that produced a record 541 points last year.

The defending National Conference champions moved 65 yards on two plays as Joe Theismann first hit Art Monk for 45 yards and then connected on a 21-yard scoring strike to tight end

Clint Didier as the Redskins upped their lead to 10-0 with three minutes remaining in the first period.

The play proved costly for Washington, however, as Didier suffered a broken bone in his right leg and will be lost to the team for up to six weeks.

The Raiders, their own worst enemy in the first half as they were penalized 10 times for 93 yards, closed in on a 37-yard Wilson-to-Montgomery touchdown pass in the second quarter.

The touchdown was set up when Wilson completed a 43-yard pass to Dokie Wilson on a third-and-21 from the Raider 20.

Wilson entered the game after starter Jim Plunkett was forced to the sidelines with a bruised knee.

On the ensuing kickoff, Smith brought the salivary crowd of 49,034 to its feet with his 101-yard return.

The Redskins moved ahead 20-7 in the third quarter on Moseley's 36-yard field with 6:21 remaining in the period. The Raiders closed the gap to 20-14 before the fourth quarter began as Wilson hit McCall for 26 yards and scored.

Two plays earlier, Wilson's 29-yard touchdown throw to Wilson was called back for holding.

In other football news, Baltimore city officials are working to lure a United States Football League team to Baltimore, and the league champion Philadelphia Stars are high on the list of candidates. The Evening Star reported.

The newspaper quoted Stars' owner Myles H. Tenbaum as saying he would seriously consider moving his team to Baltimore if the USFL switches from a spring and summer to a fall schedule.

Gooding leads change

By BRAD BRELAND

GOODING — In the second night of the Gooding Rodeo, five of seven categories saw new leaders.

Thursday's leader mounting up through Friday's competition was Jeanette Jucker of Buhl in barrel racing and Bill Ailer of Pocatello in steer wrestling.

In bareback riding, Dewey France, Hyrum, Utah, scored a 70 to take first place, edging Marysville, Utah's Tom Henrie at 68. Call roping leader became Steve Geisler, Idaho Falls, with a 10.7 while hometown product Walt Parke placed second at 11.6.

Jon White, Burns, Ore., assumed the saddle bronc lead with a 68. Brent Prescott, Kimberly, is the current runner-up with a 65. In bull riding, only Nampa's Monty VanKorn was able to ride and his 79 was enough to take the lead.

The team of Rocky Nelson and Dan Rogers assumed the team roping lead with a 9.2.

Friday night's steer wrestling leader was Jerry Jones of Las Vegas but his time of 6.1 left him behind Aler. Wendell's Lana Parker, a former Miss Rodeo Idaho, was timed in 17.80 for the best barrel-racing time but also remained behind the pace set Thursday night by Jucker.

Darrington wins Twin Am

TWIN FALLS — Karen Darrington carved out a par 72 Friday to successfully defend her Twin Falls Women's Amateur Golf Championship.

Darrington added the 72 to her opening round of 75 to a 145 total, giving her an eight-stroke victory over former champion Virginia Udjhjem, Twin Falls, Julie Hamblin and Shaune Robinson tied for third at 156. Robinson put together Friday's second best round — a 74 — to move up in the final standings.

The protest committee met for several hours Friday afternoon. Listening to the American protest and reviewing videotapes of the fight, the protest committee was chaired by Professor Anwar Chowdhry of Pakistan. Its other members are Lynn Mills of England, Stanley Moore of Roberta Robertson of Jerome came from well off the pace with an 83 to claim the first flight gross prize with a 171. That left her three strokes ahead of Betty Grant, Twin Falls, with Mildred Lynch, Burley, and Kathy Anderson, Twin Falls, tied at 176. Gloria Lee, Thursday's first-round leader, collected the net title with a 129, followed by Grace Bennett, Twin Falls, 130; Bernice Howa, Twin Falls, 133 and Lois Hansen, Twin Falls, 137.

Vera White, Twin Falls, led the second-flight-from-start-to-finish, taking the crown with a 175. Charlotte Brunell was second with 182 while Debra Hansen and Carole Kasel, Twin Falls, followed at 183 and 185, respectively. Jan Hatch was the net winner with a 126, six ahead of Alice Hamblin and Sandy Tarter. Rita Detweiler claimed fourth at 136.

In another second-day comeback, Missy Wignall came from off the back to win the third flight at 189, one ahead of Jean-Meliss, Twin Falls. Freda Ward, Twin Falls, and Anna Dean Coulam, Twin Falls, rounded out the list at 196 and 197.

Majorie Matkins's 129 was good enough for net honors, followed by Julie Blandford, Twin Falls, 135; Norma Pleckins, 136, and Clo Davis, Twin Falls, 137.

The fourth flight prize went to Kelly Howa, Twin Falls, at 206 with Mary Ferrell, Twin Falls, at 207, Janet Cummins, Twin Falls, 208, and Helen Huser, Twin Falls, 214. In net, Phyllis Moore, net away at 129, chased across by VI Becker at 132. Betty Claiborn 135 and Wilma Champlin, 137.

Kite, however, might be forgiven for a lack of concentration. He's waiting anxiously for a phone call from Austin, Texas, where his wife, Christy, is expecting to give birth to twins soon.

"Sometimes twins come early," Kite said. Hallberg, 25, who was the only four-time All-American in golf history while playing at Wake Forest in the late 1970s, won the Isuzu-Andy Williams San Diego Open last year. This year, he finished second at San Diego and was third at the Greater Hartford last month.

S. Korea gears up for Olympics of 1988

By BARBARA LANGE
Deutsche Presse-Agentur

SEOUL, South Korea — "Olympic Sam," the eagle mascot of the 1984 Los Angeles Games, is about to leave the stage, making way for a comical little tiger — the mascot of the 1988 Olympics in South Korea.

"Depicting a tiger as a pretty and lovely animal was not easy," designer Kim Hyun said of the as yet unnamed mascot.

But naming a mascot is the least of the South Korea's worries when they ponder the enormous task of securing the future of Olympic Games' now threatened by political boycotts.

"We hope and believe that there will be no boycott in 1988," one South Korean official said Friday. "Now China has officially said that it will participate, the prospects that the Soviet Union will come, too, are very good," the official said. "We also hope that North Korea will participate," he added.

The three nations he mentioned have no diplomatic relations with South Korea. International Olympic Committee President Juan Antonio Samaranch recently confirmed that no consideration was given to withdrawing the 1988 Olympics from Seoul in favor of a more "neutral" site.

The selection of Seoul appeared to be in jeopardy after the Soviet Union shot down a South Korean jumbo jet with 269 persons on board last September.

However, Seoul has promised to work toward improved sporting contacts with the Soviet Union and China over the next four years. Relations with China already have improved. A group of South Korean tennis players visited Peking in March for the first time, and Chinese baseball players later visited South Korea.

Seoul has estimated that preparing for the Olympics and the Asian Games in 1986 will cost $6.5 billion. The lion's share of this is for new hotels and improving the city's sewage system.

In addition to its 285 athletes, South Korea sent 219 officials to Los Angeles to learn points on organizing, managing, and providing security for the Summer Games.

The Los Angeles Olympics Organizing Committee have cooperated with the South Korean officials and at the same time gave friendly advice to reduce the scope and number of sporting events.

Hallberg sets pace in Buick Open

GRAND BLANC, Mich. (AP) — Gary Hallberg, finding confidence under an Indiana Jones-type hat, fired a Sunday-par 67 in Friday's second round to go to 111 under 133 and take a one-shot lead over Lee Trevino, John Adams and Payne Stewart in the Buick Open.

Eighty-four players from the starting field of 154 were the cut at number 142 — on the rain-soaked 7,014-yard, par-72 layout at Warwick Hills Golf & Country Club.

One of the players who failed to survive the cut, however, was British Open champion Seve Ballesteros, making his first appearance in the Buick Open. The muscular Spaniard shot a 72 for a 143 total, missing the cut by one.

The tournament's other "major" winner, U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller was in 3 under 141 after shooting a 1-over 73 on Friday.

Another casualty was defending champion Wayne Levi who carded rounds of 72-73 and failed to make the cut which came at the low 70 players, plus ties.

The lead heading into the second round had been shared by Hallberg, Adams, Tom Kite and Jodie Mudd.

Mudd came back with a 69 on Friday to go into a four-way tie for third at 135 while Kite soared to a par-72. Also at 135 were Russ Cochran and Scott Hoch.

Kite, however, might be forgiven for a lack of concentration. He's waiting anxiously for a phone call from Austin, Texas, where his wife, Christy, is expecting to give birth to twins soon.

Meyerhoeffer takes Canyon Springs stop

TWIN FALLS — Jason Meyerhoeffer, between national junior tournament dates, fired a two-over par 74 to lead scores in the Canyon Springs stop on the Magic Valley Junior Golf series Thursday.

Meyerhoeffer, who failed to make the cut in the USA Junior in Minneapolis last week and is headed for the Insurance Youth Classic in Mississippi next week, finished seventh strokes ahead of Brian Stringfellow, Ketchum, and Kyle Wilson, Buhl, Stringfellow won the playoff. Tim Peterson, Jerome, had an 83 and Kerry Klassen, Twin Falls, and 89 to round out the 15-17-year-old boys division.

Heidi Baumgartner, Jerome, shot a 50 over nine holes to pace the girls division.

Kelle Jones, Twin Falls, had a 67 to win the 13-14 girls while Justin Drake, Twin Falls, edged the boys with an 84 over 18. Matt Ennis, Boise, had 85 and Twin Falls' Darin Myers and Jason Johnson had 86s.

In the 11-12 girls, Lara Cantrell, Buhl, won with a 63. Kade Wilson, Buhl, led the boys division with 46, two ahead of Brett Barry, Twin Falls. Jody Hurst, Ketchum, had a 50.

In the six-hole 9-10 division, Summer Boyd, Twin Falls, had a 48 while Gentry Wuthrich, Twin Falls, scored a 39. Eric Bloomfield, Ketchum, Jeff Jones, Gooding, and Barnaby Casey, Ketchum, all had 41.

Dates Fryberger, Ketchum, had a 24 in the three-hole eight-under boys, four ahead of Matt Smith, Kimberly Aaron Johnson, Twin Falls, had 31 while Patrick Casey and Ryan Casey had 36 and 37, respectively.
