Younger Lafferty maintains his innocence

By TOM GARDNER
The Associated Press

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Dan Lafferty joined his brother Monday in maintaining he is innocent of murder charges filed against him in Utah and said "the time is at hand when the true criminals will be made known."

Dan Lafferty, 36, and his brother Ron, 42, are being held in Reno, where they are fighting extradition to Utah to face charges in the slaying deaths of their sister-in-law and her small daughter.

"We have been abused and falsely accused and portrayed to be dangerous criminals which we are not," Dan Lafferty said in a statement read by his brother. "We are not guilty of any of the crimes for which we have been accused over the past few years. If in the present matter, my life were to be taken, so be it. I would go with a free conscience."

"I have a great hope, however, that our lives won't be taken. I believe the time is at hand when the true criminals will be made known, when the things done in secret will be known to the world and the things done in the closets will be made known on the housetops," he said.

The brothers said in an extradition hearing last week they did not want to return to American Fork, Utah, to face charges in the July 24 slaying deaths of Brenda Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter, Erica.

Ron Lafferty said in an interview Friday that the charges were false, but would not discuss them further. He said the Mormon Church would see neither he nor Dan, both excommunicated church members, received a fair trial.

In his statement Monday, Dan Lafferty said, "A few years ago, I was a man who was prospering in all those things which the world calls success, yet I was confused and wondering why I didn't have a comfortable conscience."

"After considerable study and prayer, I made a commitment to truth and justice without compromise. I know that my brother, Ron, has also made this commitment," he said.

"It wasn't long until I had lost most every worldly possession, including my reputation, and learned the truth of the prophet Isaiah's statement that to choose to do right would make you the prey."

"The important thing I found was that in exchange for worldly treasures, I gained a clear conscience, which is by far the greater prize."

Ron Lafferty said earlier that his brother was excommunicated from the church after being convicted of two felony counts he contends were trumped up by Utah deputies because Dan Lafferty was running for sheriff.

Ron Lafferty says his excommunication came after he first challenged church officials for banishing his brother, then questioned several basic doctrines of the church's teaching.

He added that while he believes in plural marriage, which he said the church had taught him, he has never practiced it and belonged to no splinter polygamist sect as claimed by Utah police officials.

Hatfield donates $55,000

By The Associated Press

PORTLAND, Ore. — Sen. Mark Hatfield, R-Ore., saying he had made an "error in judgment," joined his wife Monday in turning over $55,000 to charity.

It was the same amount Mrs. Hatfield received from a Greek businessman whose trans-Africa pipeline the senator promoted.

"My insensitivity to the appearance of impropriety was a mistake," said Hatfield, now campaigning for reelection to his fourth term in the Senate.

At a news conference, Hatfield and his wife, Antoinette, denied any direct connection between Mrs. Hatfield's real estate work on behalf of Basil A. Tsakos and the senator's help in supporting Tsakos' proposal to construct a pipeline from Saudi Arabia across the Sudan, the Central African Republic and Cameroon.

"A public official should conduct himself in a way which avoids even the appearance of impropriety," Hatfield said, making his first public explanation of the payments from Tsakos to Mrs. Hatfield in 1982 and 1983.

"I know that there was nothing unethical or illegal about my support for the pipeline," he said, but he added: "I have made an error in judgment."

Others, Hatfield said, "cannot see into my mind and have speculated that my support was related to my wife's fees."

The Justice Department has launched a criminal investigation into allegations linking the money Mrs. Hatfield received with the senator's backing of the proposed $12 billion, privately financed pipeline.

Pliker contends board member undermines his position

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In a letter from his lawyer, Twin Falls School Superintendent Gary Pliker has accused one of his bosses, board member and former board Chairman Robert Knighton, of undermining his administration.

Knighton denies the charge. He has responded to it by hiring his own attorney, Mark Stubbs, who has sent a written demand to Pliker's lawyer, Greg Fuller.

Pliker's accusation was made in a letter from Fuller to Knighton last week. Copies were sent to other Twin Falls School District board members.

"Pliker feels Mr. Knighton is undermining his position with administrators, the school board, and personnel," Stubbs said. "We replied, that is not the case."

Knighton declined to release a copy of the letter from Pliker, but said it contained "certain allegations disagreeing with my analysis of his job performance and other personal things."

Stubbs said the letter makes no direct threat of legal action. But it does include a general discussion of remedies of the alleged problem, including the mention of a lawsuit.

Efforts to reach Pliker on Friday, during the weekend and on Monday were unsuccessful.

Reached Monday, Fuller said his client does not rule out the possibility of a lawsuit.

—He said he hopes the situation can be resolved without bringing it to court, but he said that if disagreements between Knighton and Pliker reach an impasse, Pliker may be forced to go to court.

Fuller said the letter was prompted when "things were said outside the board that should have been worked out within." He declined to comment directly on the letter, saying that he and Pliker had discussed the matter.

They decided the issue was a • See PLIKER on Page A2

Reagan 'joke' backfires

Open microphone inquiry in works

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan did make a joking remark in which he said America would bomb the Soviet Union "in five minutes," and a "White House official said there will be an inquiry into why the president's microphone was on when he said it."

The official, who is in a position to know, said there is considerable dismay in the White House over the incident, in which Reagan made the comment as a joke prior to "delivering his weekly radio address on Saturday from his ranch near Santa Barbara. Everyone present thought the microphone was off when Reagan made the comment, but it was on and two news networks recorded it."

The official confirmed the accuracy of the quote, which was later aired by CBS.

It was: "My fellow Americans, I've pleased to tell you today that I've signed legislation that would outlaw Russia forever. We begin bombing in five minutes."

Democratic presidential candidate Walter F. Mondale, meanwhile, said he realized the remark was intended as a joke, but added, "I don't think it's very funny."

"People must understand that words like those live. And whatever was intended, and I assume it was a joke, many may not accept it as such."

"A president has to be very, very careful with his words so that they, all of them, communicate what we want to communicate," the former vice president told a news conference in Minneapolis.

"When the world hears these sorts of things, maybe some will dismiss it as some kind of joke," Mondale said. "Others may think it means something."

White House officials publicly continued to refuse any comment, contending, in the words of spokesman Larry Speakes, that any remark the president made prior to the actual broadcast was "off the record." In the broadcast itself, Reagan criticized the House Democratic leadership.

Since news accounts of the Reagan joke were first reported on Sunday evening, there has been a storm of criticism abroad and from critics in the United States who have argued Reagan is overly confrontational in his dealings with the Soviet Union.

Consolidation, pool balloting today

Voters set to decide controversial issues

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls voters will go to the polls today to decide two issues: the consolidation of the city Fire and Police departments and a nearly $2 million bond to pay for an indoor city pool at Twin Falls High School.

Polls will open at noon and close at 8 p.m. Unlike recent elections for Twin Falls City Council, voting will be done by paper ballot, not machine.

A last-minute surge of registrations boosted the total number of city voters to 4,710 at the end of last week. That compares to 3,558 who registered for last November's council election.

Of the two special election issues, the bond for the 50-meter pool seems to have generated the greater amount of interest.

The pool is proposed jointly by the city and the Twin Falls School District.

Although the city would own and manage it, it would be used both for public recreation and for school district physical education programs.

The pool's total cost is $2.7 million. Plans call for the $750,000 not covered by the bond to come from the city's capital improvements fund.

The consolidation of the Fire and Police Departments into a single Public Safety Department was accomplished in principle by the council March 1. The stated goal was to try to use manpower more efficiently in years to come.

While completing consolidation is supposed to take several years, a number of police officers have already been cross-trained in firefighting techniques, and four former police officers have been hired as "public safety officers," and been assigned to the fire division for firefighting training.

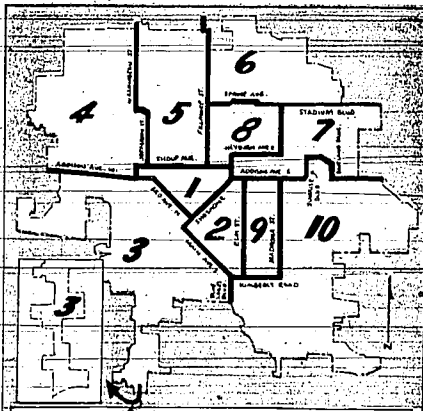

Although the initiative is on the ballot because city firefighters gathered enough signatures to place it there, the firefighters agreed to refrain from campaigning for it as part of a new contract with the city that protects their jobs, benefits and possibilities for promotion.

Idaho's weak initiative and referendum law does not bind the council to follow the vote of the people on the matter, and several city officials have referred to the vote as being "advisory."

Because the firefighter petition calls for a ban on consolidation, a "yes" vote on the matter is a vote against the city plan.

Voting is done in the city-by-precinct. There are 10 of these, the boundaries of which have not changed since last year.

Residents should consult the accompanying chart and voting place list to find where they must go to vote.

Mild earthquake hits Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — A moderate earthquake struck south-central Alaska on Monday evening, breaking dishes and causing other minor damage in Anchorage as buildings swayed and street lights flickered. No injuries were reported.

The quake, which hit about 7:02 p.m. MDT measured at 5.7 on the Richter scale of ground motion and was centered 60 miles northeast of Anchorage in the Chugach Mountains, said Alec Medbery, a spokesman for the Tsunami Warning Center in Palmer.

The quake was felt from as far north as Fairbanks, about 300 miles north of Anchorage and as far south as Cordova, about 150 miles southeast of Anchorage, he said.

"There was minor damage, broken dishes and things like that," Medbery said. "We would call the quake moderate."

No reports of injuries were received at the headquarters of The Alaska State Troopers, a dispatcher said.

Ferraro talks on crime laws

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Geraldine Ferraro told district attorneys on Monday that while the Reagan administration talks tough on crime, she and Walter F. Mondale have not only condemned "criminals, we've put them behind bars."

The Democratic vice presidential nominee charged that a "fide of lawlessness" has swept the nation, and she placed the blame on the Reagan administration.

In a strongly worded speech to the National District Attorneys Association, Ms. Ferraro stressed her own experience as an assistant district attorney in New York and Mondale's background as attorney general of Minnesota.

Reagan meets Italian leader

LOS ANGELES (AP) — President Reagan met Monday with Italian-Foreign Minister Giulio Andreotti and they agreed that efforts to guarantee safe passage through the Red-Sea should involve as many nations as possible, a senior administration official said.

"There was an agreement that the response to Egypt and other countries, including Saudi Arabia, for international assistance in mine-sweeping should demonstrate international solidarity," he said.

Andreotti met later with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

Hellar calls for INEL probe

BOISE (AP) — Congressional candidate Bill Hellar said Monday an accident involving a container of radioactive material at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory points up the need for more research on how to handle such incidents in the future.

Hellar said at a Boise news conference that he had heard tipped that some sort of nuclear material had been involved in an incident at INEL last Wednesday.

INEL officials quickly confirmed the incident, but said there was no spill of radioactive material, and no public health hazard, when a 135-ton shipping container tipped off a flatbed truck and fell to the ground.

The container remained at the spot Monday afternoon. "It weighs 135 tons," said Troy Wade, Idaho manager for the Department of Energy, which operates INEL. "It's not something you just pick up and walk away with."

Gaynor in stable condition

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Janet Gaynor, winner of the best actress Oscar at the first Academy Awards ceremony in 1929, was in stable condition Monday at a hospital that has been treating her for an undisclosed illness.

A nursing supervisor at Desert Hospital confirmed that the 77-year-old actress was admitted early last week under her married name, Janet Gregory, but would not say exactly when or why she was hospitalized.

Rainstorms soak East Coast

Ron Lafferty also said he still loves the Mormon Church, but believes current leaders have strayed from the doctrines of Joseph Smith. He also blamed them for undermining his marriage.

Lafferty's wife has moved from Utah with the couple's six children. American Fork police Chief Randy Johnson has speculated the killings may have been triggered by the support Brenda Lafferty — a native of Kimberly, Idaho — gave her sister-in-law during the divorce.

personal matter, and it does not affect the education children in the district receive.

The board needs a chance to discuss the letter and talk with both Piler and Knighton before he can comment, Champlin said.

Board member John McNeves refused to comment, as did Gary Fay, saying "disagreements about personally can be discussed on someone else's time, not my own."

In Knighton's response, Stubbs outlines Knighton's position that there is no justification for Piler's letter.

Board member Calvin Lamborn said he did not think Piler's letter was appropriate.

Earlier this summer, the board solicited evaluations of Piler from other district administrators and principals. Many of those evaluations were said to be critical of Piler's management style and the tone of his administration as superintendent.

"In January," the letter sent by Stubbs reads, "Mr. Knighton voted to renew the contract. At that time, there was evidence of reasonable and acceptable performance by Dr. Piler. Since then, he (Piler) has received specific instructions from the board."

He said that if Knighton had wanted to undermine Piler, he would not have voted in January to renew his contract for three years.

Piler became superintendent of the Twin Falls district last summer. Prior to that, he was assistant superintendent in the district for four years.

Soviets to import more grain

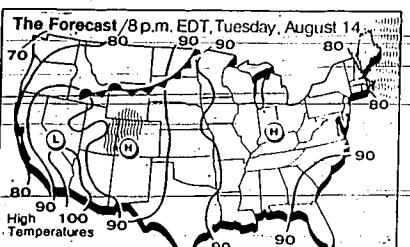

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union, which has experienced "continued deterioration" of this year's grain crops, may import a near-record of 43 million metric tons of grain in 1984-85, substantially more than had been forecast previously, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

A month ago, Soviet grain imports were indicated at 38 million tons for the international marketing year that began on July 1 and ends next June 30. In 1983-84, according to USDA figures, the Soviet Union imported 32.9 million tons from all foreign sources. The record was 45 million tons in 1981-82.

The Soviets have recently bought large amounts of U.S. wheat and corn, mostly for delivery in 1984-85.

Ferraro statements on loans differ from attorney's story

By CHARLES R. BABCOCK
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — A former Federal Election Commission attorney said Monday that he advised Rep. Geraldine A. Ferraro, D-N.Y., in 1978 that it would not be permissible for her congressional campaign to accept loans of more than $1,000 from each member of her family.

The statement by David Stein contradicts sworn statements by Ferraro's husband, John A. Zaccaro, and her campaign treasurer that they relied on Stein's advice that it was proper to make large family loans to the campaign. A total of $134,000 in family loans was made to Ferraro's first campaign in that year.

The FEC accepted the word of Zaccaro and campaign treasurer David Blankstein that they had relied on Stein's legal advice when it fined them only $750 in settling a case on the excessive loans a year later.

But Stein, 36, said in a statement issued Monday that he met informally with Ferraro and campaign organizers once in the spring of 1978 and recalled: "I remember voicing my doubts as to the propriety of such loans by members of the candidate's immediate family in so far as these loans related to the federal election campaign act. Although I do not remember my precise words, the sum and substance of what I said was that I did not believe it would be permissible."

The finances of Ferraro and her husband have become an issue in the campaign. She told reporters Sunday that her husband's income tax returns would not be made public, reversing a promise she made last month.

Stein left the FEC a few months before the meeting and was then and still practicing law in New York.

"I am not politically involved in any way and I regret that I have been brought into this controversy," he said. Stein declined several times Monday to elaborate on his statement.

In his sworn affidavit to the FEC of Feb. 9, 1979, Zaccaro explained the large family loans to his wife's campaign. Referring to the meeting with Stein, Zaccaro said, "Concern was expressed by those present that there be strict compliance with all federal regulations concerning campaign receipts and expenditures. We were then advised by Mr. Stein that the proper method of funding the campaign in order to avoid any of the limitations imposed by federal law was to have members of the candidate's immediate family loan the committee the necessary funds. Relying on this advice, the loans were made to the campaign.

Blankstein filed a similar affidavit, saying he also was advised by Stein. "In view of Mr. Stein's past employment, I believed he was fully familiar with federal regulations governing campaign receipts and expenditures and relied upon his advice in accepting such loans from Mr. Zaccaro."

An FEC official said the commission had no reason to doubt the sworn statements and thus did not seek corroboration from Stein.

Asked about Stein's statement Monday, John Sasso, Ferraro's campaign manager, said, "I can't account for it." He said that Zaccaro's statement to the election commission "was accurate and complete about the advice he was given. That's it."

He added that other witnesses were present at the meeting with Stein, including several members of her campaign staff whose names were not immediately available. Sasso said the campaign organization was seeking more information about the meeting from those present.

Stein was first quoted as disputing the sworn statements of Zaccaro and Blankstein in the Aug. 18 issue of Human Events, a national conservative weekly newspaper. He was quoted there as saying, "I would take a polygraph on my contention that I told her not to do it."

Curfew lifted in Lawrence

LAWRENCE, Mass. (AP) — City officials lifted a dusk-to-dawn curfew Monday but left intact a state of emergency that helped restore peace to a neighborhood struck by two nights of fiery rioting between whites and Hispanics.

"We're easing up on everything. There won't be so much police presence and we're letting people come out of their houses," said Alderman Raymond H. Johnson, the city's public safety director.

No problems were reported Monday night. At 8 p.m., the hour curfew started the previous three nights, groups of three and four people clustered quietly on Oxford Street, where much of last week's violence occurred.

Taylor and Burton entitled to privacy

We're generally of the mind that people in public life, like movie stars, pay a legitimate price for their stardom in the public attention they create. But we have to admit that the ghoulish treatment given Elizabeth Taylor when she went to visit Richard Burton's grave was beyond what anyone ought to have to endure.

Miss Taylor, who was stormily married to Burton twice, tried to visit his grave in Switzerland Sunday, apparently not knowing that photographers had staked out the grave site in the hopes of such a visit.

An aide asked them to leave, which they refused to do. Instead, Miss Taylor retreated as the cameras clicked.

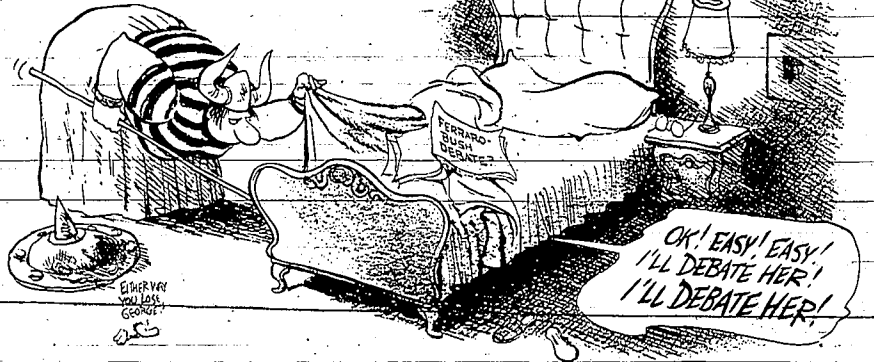

We'll probably be treated to some of these pictures in the National Giggler magazines this coming week, maybe with Miss Taylor's picture craftily superimposed on that of the deceased Burton's. The treatment is sure to be tasteless, sensational and probably lurid.

Now obviously, we're not big on restrictions on the news media who often have to go to great lengths to gather the news. From a First Amendment perspective, we recognize, as do many other people, that there are different strokes for different journalistic folks.

But we sure hate to be lumped with the purveyors of this kind of trash who put this kind of invasion of privacy in the same category as legitimate newsgathering.

Personal grief, it seems to us, is one of those areas where the media has a particular responsibility to act with deference and respect, even in the case of public figures. Miss Taylor, in our view, is entitled to that out of basic human decency.

It may be time in American journalism for us in the press to recognize such limits, and to impose them on ourselves. For if we don't, there are plenty of people who are willing to impose them on us.

Ferraro faces problems in a TV age

Clearly, Geraldine A. Ferraro brings strengths to the Democratic ticket. Nevertheless, history suggests that the campaign will be a difficult one.

Ferraro's strengths are obvious. She can galvanize the gender gap and appeal to urban Catholics that the Democrats need in the industrial states. As an Italian-American, she can help the ticket in New Jersey and Connecticut, two key states the Democrats have conceded to the Republicans in the past few elections. And as a dynamic personality, Ferraro will accentuate the "age issue." After all, President Reagan would be 78 years old at the end of a second term.

But as the first woman on a national ticket, Ferraro faces some unique problems. First, political pioneers tend not to do well in presidential races. The first Catholic to seek the presidency, Alfred R. Smith, lost in a wave of anti-Catholic resentment. The first serious black candidate, the Rev. Jesse L. Jackson, faced similar problems. No matter how ready Americans are to elect the first woman to the presidency or vice presidency, chances are that a large number will pass on the idea the first time around.

Second, although Ferraro may be getting a warm reception in the polls, that may fade. Remember what happened to Gary W. Hart, this year's earlier novelty. In March, voters were flocking to Hart, but by May, his "new ideas" seemed as old as Mondale's.

By November, today's exciting idea of a woman on a national ticket will seem commonplace. In the age of television and shorter attention spans, "new ideas" have a life of about six weeks.

Ferraro faces other problems: Despite this country's obsession with winners, we usually elect presidential candidates who have run for high office before, and lost. Reagan ran unsuccessfully in 1976, and briefly in 1968. Mondale had a brief abortive run in 1976, and, of course, ran nationally two times with Jimmy Carter. In fact, Carter and Sen. Barry M. Goldwater are the only two candidates since 1960 to have won nomination without having made at least a brief previous try for national office.

Why do losers do better in the age of television? Because a candidate usually cannot handle the constant scrutiny of press attention the first time around. It takes time to learn how to answer questions at a press conference, and to avoid making the kind of gaffes that can cripple a presidential campaign. Just ask Hart, who is still wondering how his campaign was crippled by a few off-the-cuff remarks about having to spend so much time in New Jersey. As talented as she is, Ferraro does not have that experience. The same electorate that finds a commitment to "tell it like it is" admirable in a Howard Cosell sees it as disturbing in a presidential candidate.

For better or worse, presidential campaigns are no longer covered as issues contests, but as gaffe competitions: What did Carter mean by "ethnic purity"? Should he have given the Playboy interview? Did Gerald R. Ford slip when he called the Poles a free people? These questions have little to do with leadership, but they often determine presidential elections.

Ferraro will be under more scrutiny than any other candidate in history. It will be surprising if she does not commit errors similar to those of other first-time candidates. Already, her husband's finances and real estate holdings are being scrutinized. More of the same is sure to follow. Readiness for the presidency is one thing. Readiness for the national political press is quite another.

Laws would address parents' failure to support children

Today in America, the single parent family is a fact of life. One in every five children now lives with only one parent.

And with more children in single parent homes, America has seen a tragedy unfold and multiply: the failure of absent parents to help support their own children.

Out of 8.4 million women raising children alone in 1981, only 39 percent had legal orders for child support. And even among those, less than half received the full amount due them.

In fact, no study has ever found a state or county where more than half of absent fathers fully comply with court ordered child support.

For far too long, absent parents who fail to support their children have gotten away with it.

Sometimes they've moved across state lines. More often, they've simply refused to pay, letting administrative inaction, court congestion and legal delay do the rest.

In many jurisdictions, child support cases have had a lower priority than traffic violations.

And while mothers and children have waited for justice, too often they have fallen into deprivation. Of the 8.4 million women-headed families, almost a third were living in poverty.

To help un-stuck the deck for children who deserve support, Congress created the federal-state child support enforcement system in 1978. Under this system, important progress has been made. We've set new records in collections every year since 1979.

But the amount that goes uncollected is still staggering. Out of the $10 billion legally due to children nationwide in 1981, almost $4 billion went unpaid.

Our child support system needs strengthening. That is why I spearheaded a uniquely bipartisan effort to add sharp enforcement teeth to our existing law. And that's why Congress has just acted to update and upgrade our child support enforcement laws.

The changes we've made fill in gaps in our child support system. They give the states more muscle, and more incentive to ensure that absent parents make their payments—in full and on time.

The law draws on a decade of experience. It requires all states to use the proven, low-cost techniques that have worked in the most effective state programs.

For example: • Wage Withholding — Under the new law, every state must use wage withholding whenever support payments fall behind. • Tax Refund Offsets — The law provides for withholding of overdue support payment from state income tax refunds. It also provides for IRS to withhold from federal tax refunds for non-welfare cases. IRS already will hold refunds for overdue support in welfare cases.

• Faster Legal Processes — In some states today, it can take months just to schedule a hearing date for a child support case. Legal delays can deny children the very necessities of life. Under the new law, every state must have expedited procedures for child support orders.

The new law makes other changes as well. It puts new emphasis on high performance by state and local programs, and it restructures federal financing to reward effective performance.

It puts new emphasis on serving all families, non-welfare as well as welfare. In addition, the new law helps states overcome one of the chief stumbling blocks in years past: collecting payments from parents who more to a different state. And it requires state guidelines to help determine fair and adequate support awards.

The new changes, advocated by President Reagan and now passed by Congress, are an excellent reform package. Now comes implementation by the states.

State legislatures must quickly pass their own bills putting the new provisions into effect. In addition, my department will help states improve program management.

Millions of American children have, for years, had to swallow a double dose of deprivation: Justice delayed and justice denied. This new law changes both the climate and the mechanics of child support enforcement in our country.

With prompt action and commitment by the states, these reforms should brighten the present and the future of American children from coast to coast who deserve the economic justice the new law provides.

Letters/Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital defended as a private venture

Clinic is a community asset

I write this letter in response to several articles printed in your paper concerning the prospect of making Magic Valley Regional Medical Center a private hospital. I would also like to respond to the alleged comments attributed to Mr. Bill Burns and to some members of MVRMC medical staff which state that the privatization of MVRMC would increase their competitive status to a level which would greatly curtail, if not totally eliminate, the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital.

The Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital is a private business that pays all the usual taxes. It was constructed by private funds and it is supported by private funds. It has over 200 full-time employees. Its professional staff consists of all aspects of our community. Its annual gross receipts are approximately $8 million, most of which are returned to the local economy as wages, purchased goods and services, and other expenditures. This means that after the turnover effect of these funds, the total contribution to the Twin Falls economy from this business is in the range of $6 million per year. Closure of the Twin Falls Clinic would have far-reaching financial consequences that could affect the entire Twin Falls economy.

To those who would argue that if the Twin Falls Clinic were to close, MVRMC would absorb and distribute those funds, I would say that patients now are exercising their right of free choice of the hospital in which they want to be treated. If that choice were eliminated, many would choose hospitals in other communities.

I realize the pressure our local health care system feels from the new federal laws and regulations, but to turn that system into a welfare state, still devouring the best while only being counterproductive and decrease the quality of service that both institutions now deliver.

The Twin Falls economy is an agricultural economy and our agricultural base is under a great deal of economic stress. We need every aspect of our community at its productive maximum. Our elected and appointed officials, which includes the Hospital Board, must be reminded that they represent all citizens of Twin Falls County, and they should examine and question any proposal which has as its goal, the curtailment or elimination of any business in this community. They should consider all aspects and consult all parties before taking action. The welfare and continued growth of our entire community should be their goals.

IFF silences opposition

For Idaho Frozen Foods to make big profits is the only thing that matters.

Who cares if the canyon is an eyesore, stinks and the habitat is ruined for the wildlife and people that live there? Why not let Idaho Frozen dump, uncontrolled and out of sight, its waste water problems into the canyon? Why should the county or area citizens interfere?

At last week's county zoning meeting, I stated that the Idaho Frozen waste water treatment project was having several problems, from operation and maintenance to relandscaping the area. I said this was my own observation from working down next to the Idaho Frozen waste water treatment site. I didn't say that Idaho Frozen couldn't find a solution to their waste water problems and run their potato processing plant year around. What is apparent is that in its present state, the project has several problems. This was my observation, not Idaho Frozen's, JUB Engineering's, Co-generation's or Sho-Rock's (the company I worked for in the canyon).

The next day after the open hearing, I was informed by a co-worker that all crew members of Sho-Rock had been terminated. My attendance at the open hearing was the reason for the termination of the crew members.

When I asked where the order had originated, I couldn't find out, but it appears to me to have come down from someone at Idaho Frozen, JUB and Co-generation and that anyone who questions their activities is in for reprisal. As for you Idaho Frozen employees, no one wants to see you lose your jobs, but what kind of job security can you have from companies who are like this?

If anyone is interested in seeing for themselves Idaho Frozen's waste water site, which is behind a locked gate down in the canyon, you can see it from the canyon northside edge. Take the old road to Jerome just across the Perrine Bridge, go down by the Jerome County Club golf course to the four-way stop, and turn south toward the canyon for about one quarter mile to the edge of the canyon. There it is, down below.

Cable TV needs diplomacy

Seems every time a little wind comes up in the area (Twin Falls); Ciblevision goes on the blink. It's also very strange that super-specials (quite often) become blank at suspense or very dramatic moments.

There has been assorted excuses as to why they keep losing the picture or signal (audio). Whomever the male individual is (my description is unprintable here) around 5 p.m. is certainly not trying to represent the best interests of the company that butters his bread.

After complaining that one gets tired of repeated excuses, this individual said: "Would you like us to disconnect you?" I might mention here, that the remark was made after I said, "I think I'll get a dish."

Regardless, if he had any diplomacy or good public relations manners, he could have used an approach that would tend to infuriate the subscriber.

I would like to suggest that management have a staff meeting and teach a little diplomacy or good public relations toward their clients.

Report it, don't create it

It used to be I only wrote to you regarding how unfair the Times-News has been in the persecution of Congressman George Hansen as you refuse to accept the American principle that you are innocent until proven guilty. This includes all appeal rights. Cassius Clay is a classic case in point. When the U.S. Supreme Court found him innocent, it was impossible to undo the damages he sustained.

In recent weeks the Times-News has run several articles on the unfortunate death of Marilyn Arbaugh in Jerome. The way the articles are written, you leave no doubt in anyone's mind that one J. D. Charbonneau kidnaped, raped, and burned her car, then ten days later shot her fifteen times.

If your paper is so sure of all the facts in the case, why do we need courts, judges, juries, prosecutors and defense lawyers? Seems to me you should set aside one room at the Times-News with a hanging block and complete the job.

All you have accomplished to date with your inflammatory articles is to make it totally impossible to find a local, unbiased jury when the case comes to trial.

Your paper would be better served by reporting news rather than trying to create it. This is especially true of a tragic incident such as occurred in Jerome. Reporting hearsay from known and unknown parties about a murder case is hardly responsible journalism.

I believe I'm becoming a victim of the "Pavlov Dog Syndrome." If I read it in the Times-News, it must be wrong. Feeling this way I can't help believing there is more to the death of Marilyn Arbaugh than we are hearing. We shall see, what we shall see.

GOP platform writers argue tax hikes, abortion, ERA

DALLAS (AP) — Republican moderates closed ranks Monday behind President Reagan's pronouncement that he would consider raising taxes as a "last resort," but a key conservative on the GOP Platform Committee said mixed signals from the White House are hampering efforts to write a tax plank.

Reagan's latest statement on the no-tax-increase issue won him the backing of Sen. Robert Dole, who led a number of GOP moderates previously critical of the president's flat commitment to not raise taxes.

"That's a fair policy," Dole, chairman of the tax-writing Senate Finance Committee, said of the president's clarification. "You don't need to convince Ronald-Reagan not to raise taxes. Only as a last resort do you look at revenue changes."

However, conservatives ignored Dole's warning that platform drafters should not tie the president's hands and pressed for stronger language to rule-out any form of tax-increase. Even so, they softened their own stance, offering an escape clause for a possible tax hike sometime in the future.

PHYLLIS SCHLAFLY
Argues on ERA platform

Rep. Jack Kemp of New York told platform writers: "We must emphatically and unambiguously close the door upon tax increases, however defined, both now and in the foreseeable future."

The disagreement over the extent to which the party should commit itself not to raise taxes flared as the party's 106-member Platform Committee began a series of meetings on the party's "policy" document, which will be presented to the Republican National Convention next Tuesday.

Monday, seven subcommittees heard testimony from officials, organizations and members of the public on what the platform should contain.

Phyllis Schlafly, a leading opponent of the ERA, testified that to endorse the ERA is to endorse abortion, lesbian rights and a unisex society.

Most concern was focused on the tax issue.

The subcommittee on human resources heard an appeal from Rep. Olympia Snowe, R-Me., urging restoration of GOP support for the Equal Rights Amendment, withdrawn when the 1980 platform was drafted.

Meese reports 3 loans repaid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential counselor Edwin Meese III, whose nomination to be attorney general is on hold pending a review by an independent prosecutor, reported Monday that he repaid two loans that are under scrutiny and covered a third by taking a second mortgage on his home.

Meese supplied the information in his annual financial disclosure form on the third day of a 90-day extension permitted under the Ethics in Government Act. Normally, the forms are filed in mid-May.

Lebanon border checked

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The U.N. peacekeeping force in southern Lebanon is investigating a report that Israel has moved up its front line there by two or three miles, a spokesman for force said Monday.

Timur Goksel, the spokesman, said the Lebanese government also has asked the observers to investigate a report that Israel fenced off a Lebanese tributary of the Jordan River.

U.N. observers have not been able to investigate fully because Israel has refused to allow them into the area in question. In southernmost Lebanon, Goksel said. He added that the government made the request last week.

The leftist Beirut newspaper, As-Safir, said the Israelis recently moved their lines forward about two to three miles and fenced off parts of the Wazzani creek, a move the paper called "water sources theft."

Sources close to the administration of President Amin Gemayel said Monday that Israel had reversed the action three days ago and dismantled a 500-yard fence along the Wazzani.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the reversal followed protests against the action by Israel's main Lebanese ally, Antoine Lahad, commander of the "South Lebanon Army" militia.

In other developments related to the presence of foreign troops in Lebanon, Gemayel's political adviser, Michel Samaha, who returned from two days of talks in Damascus with Syrian Vice President Abdul-Halim Khaddam in Damascus, met with reporters.

Soviets: U.S. using situation in Red Sea

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Soviet Union and Iran accused the United States on Monday of exploiting the explosions in the Red Sea to expand its military presence in the region. Egypt's president said he thinks Libya laid the mines in the sea lanes.

In the latest report of a mine attack, Lloyd's of London's Shipping Intelligence Department said "a reliable source" said the 63-ton Soviet fish-carrier Bastion "hit a mine" Aug. 6 — one of 16 vessels hit so far. Four British minehunters will start searching for mines in the Gulf of Suez on Wednesday, the British Embassy in Cairo said.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said four U.S. Sea Stallion minesweeping helicopters were due to reach the Red Sea aboard the transport Shreveport, by midweek, as requested by the Egyptian government.

"Two French minesweepers and a support vessel were also en route to the Gulf of Suez to join in the international effort at Egypt's request," and Italy is considering sending help.

U.N. chief urges fairness

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The U.N. secretary-general on Monday urged fair use of resources and continued expansion of the world's economy as developing nations struggle to check population growth.

Javier Perez de Cuellar addressed delegates to the U.N. International Conference on Population, which began here last week.

"Only within the context of an expanding global economy based on a rational and equitable utilization of resources" will the world be able to confront problems caused by population growth, he said.

Representatives from 149 nations are attending the conference.

"If development slows or halts as has been the case in widespread regions during the past years, the successful implementation of farsighted and ambitious population policies in these regions is automatically placed in jeopardy," Perez de Cuellar said.

He added: "It would be tragic if expanding population policies, painstakingly developed over the last several years, which are beginning to yield results, were to be called into question because of economic pressures."

Sri Lanka army hits village

ANURADHAPURA, Sri Lanka (AP) — The Tamil town of Mannar in troubled Northern Province was set ablaze and official sources said Monday that the army set the fires, leaving 3,000 people homeless, and shot indiscriminately at civilians at two other villages.

The sources said the army was retaliating for a bomb attack on a military convoy by Tamil rebels fighting for an independent homeland.

Tamil rebels bombed the Kays police station 10 miles outside Jaffna at dawn, but officials said the attack was repulsed and five guerrillas were killed. No police casualties were reported.

Insurgents and a convoy of troops fought a gunbattle near Elephant Pass, a narrow strip linking the Jaffna peninsula with the main island, and 10 of the rebels were killed, a Defense Ministry statement said. It said nine were captured but made no mention of army casualties.

Reports reaching Anuradhapura, 170 miles north of Colombo, capital of Sri Lanka, said Mannar was set ablaze Sunday and was still burning Monday. The town, 50 miles south of Jaffna, is on the Gulf of Mannar separating Sri Lanka and India.

"Only four to five buildings have been left standing in Mannar," one source said.

National Security Minister Lialth Athulathmudal confirmed that houses were set afire in Mannar and said an inquiry was under way to determine who was responsible.

He told a new conference in Colombo on Monday. "A police investigation is on to find out whether a mob that set fire to houses in Mannar comprised members of the Sri Lanka army."

Kayaker dies in river mishap

BOISE (AP) — A Boise kayaker who once lloved in Twin Falls died after his boat became entangled in rocks in the South Fork of the Payette River.

Mark Phillips, 38, died Sunday about 11 miles east of Garden Valley at the confluence of the Payette River and Little Gallagher Creek, Boise County officials said.

Sheriff Lynn Bowerman said the man became pinned between rocks and was unconscious when friends reached him.

Phillips' friends pulled him to shore and administered cardiopulmonary resuscitation for more than an hour, but were unable to revive him, Bowerman said.

Boise County Coroner DeVola Tibbets said it had not been determined if Phillips drowned or died of injuries suffered in the accident. An autopsy was planned. Phillips' obituary appears on page B2.

Church's papers arrive at BSU

BOISE (AP) — The maps, research papers and other documents of the late Idaho Sen. Frank Church have arrived at Boise State University, where a special library room has been built to house them.

The material Church donated to BSU before his death in April arrived in 1,000 boxes delivered to the university on Monday.

Librarians estimate it will take two years to index the collection. The school, also home to the Frank Church Chair of Public Affairs, has built a 2,500-square-foot library addition that will house the material gathered during Church's 24-year Senate career.

Inmates protest pen situation

BOISE (AP) — Six Idaho State Penitentiary inmates claim in a federal court lawsuit that facilities at the prison are intolerably overcrowded and underfunded.

The inmates filed a legal action on behalf of all inmates on Monday, asking a court to order the state to improve prison conditions.

Inmates Michael Walker, Thomas Lee Stone, John Graves, Frank Kitchen, Dave Fenton and Curt Withington claimed their constitutional rights are being violated by the state prison system.

It's at least the third inmate lawsuit filed in recent months with essentially the same complaint.

School attendance woes seen

THOMAS (AP) — Officials of the Snake River School District that serves one of the state's prime agricultural areas predict problems enforcing Idaho's new 90 percent attendance rule during the October harvest.

"That's going to create some problems, no question about it," said Superintendent John McLaren. "The big problem is going to be harvest. That's where we're going to get hit that first semester."

Parents will keep their children out of school for field work, even though Snake River district children receive a two-week harvest "vacation" for that purpose, McLaren said.

Gas utility receives cash offer

BOISE (AP) — Intermountain Gas Industries Inc. of Boise has received a cash tender offer of $26 per share for its common stock, company treasurer Russell Worthan said.

The proposal by Plateau Resources Inc., Boise, was announced Monday. It expires Sept. 11.

"At this point, we're looking at the offer with respect to whether it is financially viable," Worthan said.

Intermountain Gas Industries is the parent of Intermountain Gas Co. The natural gas utility serves most of the southern Idaho.

In May, Intermountain's board unanimously rejected a negotiated merger offer of $24 per share proposed by Rocky Mountain Natural Gas Inc. The Colorado company offered 50 percent cash and 50 percent in an exchange of stock.

Intermountain officials said after meeting with financial advisers and attorneys that the Colorado offer was not in the best interests of the company. Its shareholders or ratemakers.

For the fiscal quarter ending July 23, Intermountain Gas reported earnings of 59 cents per common share, or 29 cents below the figure for the same period last year. Company officials attribute the drop to warmer weather that reduced demand for natural gas.

Earnings for the first nine months of the fiscal year were $4.74 per common share, up 63 cents from a year ago.

Intermountain Gas reported $133 million in revenue during 1983.

Stallings speaks

Candidate takes aim at Hansen

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

TWIN FALLS — Second District Congressional candidate Richard Stallings said Monday that he is tired of an election campaign dominated by his opponent, George Hansen's financial and legal problems.

But that focus is likely to continue in the weeks ahead. Stallings, a Democrat, will launch a radio campaign questioning Hansen's congressional performance and his claims of innocence about four felony charges.

"I will not sit back and let George Hansen portray black as white. When he says that he has been exonerated, he is trying to fool the very people he pretends to serve," Stallings said in a prepared statement read at a news conference at Twin Falls airport.

Stallings said the radio campaign is, in part, an effort to pressure Hansen into clearing the air about his finances. "Hansen makes more financial disclosures," Stallings says, "he will refuse to debate the seven-term incumbent congressman."

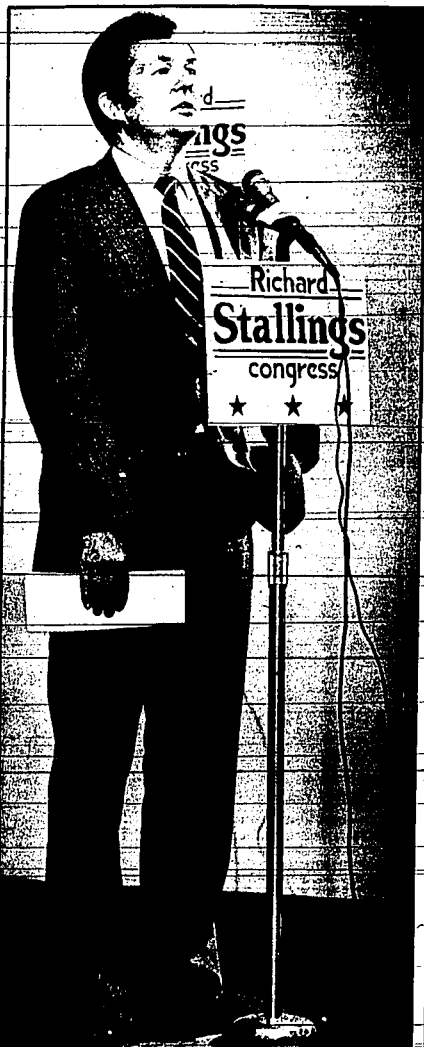

Hansen was found guilty by a federal jury of four counts of violating the Ethics in Government Act and was reprimanded in a lopsided vote by the House of Representatives. He is appealing the conviction.

"I want to go on record here and now that I want to debate Mr. Hansen on the issues, but I will do that only when I can be assured that a debate would be about the issues," Stallings said. "I refuse to be drawn into a discussion of his innocence or guilt. He had his day in court. Until the air is cleared of the questions he brings to the race, a debate could never benefit the voters."

Stallings said the Democratic vice-presidential contender, Geraldine Ferraro, needs to make a full disclosure of her family's financial affairs. Ferraro has been attacked by conservative groups that allege her past failure to disclose her husband's finances may also have violated the Ethics in Government Act of 1978.

"There's no double standard. What's good for George is good for George," Stallings said.

The Ricks College history instructor said it is difficult to discuss high interest rates, foreclosed farms, INEL's future, business bankruptcies and unemployment "when George Hansen's personal problems dominate everyone's attention. Only Mr. Hansen can answer the questions about his personal conduct, and he has refused to do so."

Richard Stallings appears at a Twin Falls press conference Tuesday. He is running for Congress against George Hansen.

Negotiations stalled on IFF compliance

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Negotiations toward a new compliance order to govern operation of Idaho Frozen Foods' potato wastewater disposal system in the Snake River Canyon have stalled and will go to a hearing examiner in September.

Irreconcilable positions lie behind the inability of the company and the state Department of Health and Welfare to agree, according to spokesmen for both sides.

The state wants the company to agree to specific performance standards, violations of which may be enforceable by civil penalties — including fines, says department attorney Jack Hockberger.

Company president Lee Odenwald, however, says the company should not be forced to agree to an order that gives the state the right to collect fines.

And while the company has no problems with a "realistic" set of performance standards that do not penalize its competitive status in the industry, standards should not be set in stone, because of the uncertain value of monitoring results and the inadequate knowledge of how the system may influence the quality of Snake River water, he says.

Both Hockberger and Odenwald characterize this situation as friendly, though deadlocked.

Odenwald says it arises from "a difference of opinion." When the state tried to collect fines from the company for violations of its previous agreement this spring, the company sued successfully in Fifth District Court to block having to pay. Since then, the state has softened its stance. See COMPLIANCE on Page B2

County, Buhl split licensing

By DAVID MOFFAT Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners has agreed to split with the city of Buhl the cost of special-computer equipment needed to retain that city's vehicle registration and drivers license offices.

Commissioner Marvin Hempleman says the specifics of the deal allowing the "satellite" bureau to remain were determined at a meeting between the commissioners and the Buhl Chamber of Commerce Monday morning.

Buhl will pay $5,000 per year for three years until the equipment has been paid for under a lease-purchase plan with the state, he says.

The county will pick up the rest of the cost. He estimates in the first year the total will be $9,700, meaning the county will pay the same amount as the city.

But in following years, the city will pay slightly more than the county, because installation costs during the first year are estimated to be between $500 and $1,000, he says.

The equipment includes a new computer terminal, a special drivers license camera and two printers — one for licenses and one for registrations. The equipment is needed to hook up with a new central record keeping system, which will be run by the Department of Transportation in Boise.

Hempleman says the decision on paying for the extra equipment had to be made Monday, because the deadline for ordering the equipment was fast approaching.

Buhl city leaders had objected to the county's original plan to drop the satellite station. County officials originally said they had no choice because, the state was planning to buy only enough equipment to give each county one central licensing and registration location.

The county's officials were challenged, however, after several counties — including Canyon County with its two major cities, Nampa and Caldwell — protested. The new state policy allows counties to retain their satellite stations if local money can be found to buy the additional equipment needed to connect them to the central system. The first equipment to arrive should be the special cameras, which will enable drivers to receive licenses the same way they qualify for them, says Hempleman.

This equipment should be in place by September, he says. It will be another year before the rest of the new system is fully operational, he says.

Youths to fete Smokey the Bear

TWIN FALLS — Camp Fire boys and girls will help Smokey the Bear celebrate his 40th birthday at Rock Creek Park west of the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center Thursday.

The party — beginning at 11 a.m. — will include songs, a cake, 45 campers from the Ma Tre Val Council and a guest appearance by Smokey.

On Friday evening, also at the Rock Creek Park, the Camp Fire kids will again fete Smokey at a party beginning at 8 p.m.

The Twin Falls celebrations will coincide with similar celebrations in Capitan, N.M., where the original Smokey was first rescued from a fire in nearby mountains by Ray Bell.

The flesh and blood Smokey was chosen by Forest Service officials to

New Mexico Department of Game and Fish.

Plucked from a charred snag, the injured cub was flown to Santa Fe, N.M., veterinarian who treated the cub for shock and burns on his paws and rump. He was later donated to the National Zoo of Washington, D.C., where he lived a long and apparently happy life with a mate named Goldie.

The cubless couple eventually adopted an orphaned cub that became known as Little Smokey.

Little Smokey took over the top job in fire prevention symbolism when the aging Smokey was officially retired in a 1975 ceremony.

The flesh and blood Smokey was chosen by Forest Service officials to symbolize a fire-fighting bear first created in 1944 by the U.S. Forest Service and the Wartime Advertising Council.

Artist Albert Staehle, who was known for popular renditions of cocker spaniels on magazine covers, was chosen to paint the first Smokey anti-fire poster.

Smokey was a minor sensation from the start. Forest Service officials report. Newspapers and magazines gave the fledgling bear extensive coverage and corporations donated radio advertising to help spread his fire prevention message.

For more information about the Twin Falls celebration, contact Ed Waldapfel, 733-3008.

Buhl woman dies in truck mishap

CASTLEFORD — A 28-year-old Buhl woman died of injuries she received in a truck rollover early Monday morning five miles south of Castleford on the Jilly Grade Road.

Janetta Ortiz Ruvalecaba of 117 N. Broadway St. was pronounced dead at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, said Jim Wood, deputy county coroner. The cause of death was a ruptured liver.

According to an Idaho State Police report, Ruvalecaba was a passenger in a truck driven by her husband, 26-year-old Manuel Ruvalecaba of Castleford. Ruvalecaba failed to negotiate a curve. The truck went down a 60-foot embankment and rolled once.

The woman was ejected from the vehicle. Authorities were notified of the accident at 3 a.m. Emergency crews attempted to revive the woman at the scene and later transported her by ambulance to the Twin Falls hospital, Woods said. About an hour and a half after the accident was reported, she was pronounced dead, he said.

The driver was treated for minor injuries. Another passenger, Manuel Vila Garcia, no age available, of Castleford, was not injured.

Jackpot casino preparing bus service to Twin Falls area

By HAL BERTON Times-News writer

Twin Falls from Jackpot. If a company-operated bus service is set up, it would probably run six times a day during casino shift changes, Mezzetta said. The company-run service would be operated by the casino's management firm, Neilson & Co. It would probably be open only to casino employees who reside in Twin Falls, Mezzetta said.

A second option still under consideration by Neilson is to work with an independent bus firm to set up a service open to both casino workers and customers.

Mezzetta said he was recently contacted by an entrepreneur proposing an independent bus service, and that he had asked for more information.

Mezzetta said he "gets asked daily" by casino employees about the status of the proposed bus service.

Asked why no action had been taken sooner to start a casino bus shuttle, Mezzetta said, "I don't think anyone ever realized how many people really live in Twin Falls, and commute down there. Cactus Pete's alone has close to 300 people living in Twin Falls."

A Twin Falls-Jackpot bus route would have to be approved by the federal Interstate Commerce Commission before it could begin operation, says Dana Howard, a state Public Utilities Commission spokesman.

Over the years the 41-mile stretch of U.S. 93 between Jackpot and Twin Falls has developed a deadly reputation for car wrecks. Inclement weather, drunken driving and a perilous curve near the Nevada border have combined to take a fearsome toll.

In 1983, 10 people died on the highway, which has left its mark on casino employees of both Cactus Pete's and Barton's Club 93. "I feel like I'm taking a chance every time I drive it (in winter)," said Margie Reitz, Barton's employee. "It's solid ice almost every day."

The most recent fatal accident on U.S. 93 occurred Friday morning, when a car driven by Roger Boyd of Twin Falls collided with a van driven by 52-year-old Stanley Wilkinson of Fountain Valley, Calif.

Boyd and Thomas Lloyd Hunt, a Cactus Pete employee who was hitchhiking a ride back to Jerome, both died in the accident.

Rains don't dampen spirits at opening of Jerome Fair

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

JEROME — An afternoon rain shower dampened the Jerome County Fairgrounds for opening day of the fair and rodeo, but not the enthusiasm of the young 4-H and adult exhibitors.

Young livestock growers were showing their sheep and swine in the rain and several of the judges worked under umbrellas.

One youngster called the change in the weather "great," because it meant no problems in keeping his swine projects cool in the August heat that usually prevails during Jerome County Fair Week.

The purple, blue, red and white ribbons were beginning to show up in a number of the buildings.

One of the largest art shows the fair has seen was judged Monday afternoon by John Horejs and Gary Anderson of Burley.

A self-portrait in watercolor earned artist Robert Graham of Jerome the roselle for best of show. Honigs said it was one of the best such works he had seen.

Graham also won a best of class in landscapes with a snow scene that could have been a residential street in most any town after a heavy snow fall.

A new type of art for the Jerome display, this year was the mirror work by Wayne Stansell of Jerome.

The judges gave Stansell best of class for a giant wall hanging of a pair of mirror eagles and their chick at a nesting area.

Bonnie Kersey of Jerome won best of class with a painting of a flower garden scene, and Dianne Moncur's mountain scene won the judges choice in beginner-classroom-art work class. A ballet dancer caught in action by a pencil work done by Cole Garrison was best in the miscellaneous class for beginners.

Paul council OKs cable fee hike

PAUL — The Paul City Council approved a proposal to increase the cable TV rates for the city, but only after being assured the hike would not take place until the system had been upgraded.

The rate increase proposal was made at last month's council meeting, when plans to upgrade the system for the Burley-Rupert area was discussed.

Paul Hill, local manager of Cable View TV, assured the council at its recent meeting that the chief technician will concentrate on the Paul area first by replacing trunk lines and the electronic equipment.

Tires fly through farm

JEROME — Mrs. Bert Callen told the Jerome County sheriff's office that when she saw a set of wheels and tires shooting through the trees on the Callen farm early Monday, she thought they had dropped from an airplane.

Board to meet

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls School Board members are scheduled to grapple with the 90 percent attendance rule at the monthly board meeting tonight.

Obituaries

Thomas L. Hunt

JEROME — Thomas L. Hunt, 24, of Jerome, died Friday of injuries sustained in an auto accident north of Jackpot, Nev.

Born March 25, 1960, in Fort Morgan, Colo., he received his early education in Idaho Falls prior to coming to the Jerome area with his family in 1976.

He was active in his alumni association, and belonged to the National Association of Accountants. He was a past member of the Administrative Management Society.

Kenneth H. Werner

HANSEN — Kenneth H. Werner, 63, a former resident of Buhl and Hansen, died Aug. 3 at his home in Chesterfield, Mo.

He graduated from the University of Idaho in 1945. He was a C-47 transport pilot in the Berlin Airlift in 1948 and 1949, then transferred to Strategic Air Command for 11 years, flying B-47 bombers and tankers.

He was a member of the LDS Church. Surviving are: his wife of Burley; two sons, Stanley Passey of Burley and John Passey of Salt Lake City.

Compliance

stance, withdrew its first complaint and filed a second, calling on the company only to sign a new agreement with the state.

A company should not be allowed to break a compliance order with impunity when other companies follow similar orders, he says.

He will then prepare a report with recommendations to the state citizens board overseeing the Department of Health and Welfare.

He's in fifth gear, but she's in 'park'

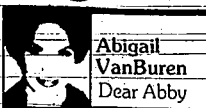

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I, who have been married a little less than two years, recently had a frank discussion about our sex lives. He told me he loves me, is always aroused around me and wants sex at least three times a week. I told him I love him, too, but I am not constantly aroused in his presence and once a week is enough for me. I lied. (The truth is twice a month would be enough for me.) He has told me that he doesn't want me to fake how much I am enjoying it. He would be horrified if he knew how much faking I have done.

This is the first major conflict to come up in our marriage, and I don't know what to do. I think a good compromise would be once a week, but sometimes I cringe when he touches me because I'm usually not interested.

Help! Thanks for being an impartial party.

ent that sex is far more important to your husband than it is to you. That is not to say that you are "wrong" — or he is. You put it well when you sign yourself "mismatched."

In order for a marriage to endure, it must be based on honesty (no faking). A marriage counselor could direct you to a competent sex therapist. Ideally, you and your husband should see a counselor together. But if he refuses, go alone.

Don't just sit there, do something scandalous

It's been coming for a long time, but I didn't put my finger on the problem until the other night.

Every time a news story breaks, I find myself knowing more about it than I care to know. It's the Washington scandal, I see the "scandalee" on television, in the newspaper, in magazines, authoring a paperback book, on radio talk shows, on a poster and a few weeks later on "Hollywood Squares."

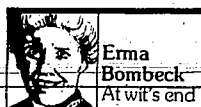

The other night as I watched two TV reporters interviewing one another, it hit me. We don't have enough major news stories to go around.

Suppose it's a slow news day and a congressman is suspected of paying $130,000 a year to a secretary who couldn't find her office.

We get to see the congressman with his head in an attache case hiding from the cameras, lurking behind the blinds of his apartment and shouting obscenities to the press as he runs to the elevator. After I have seen his mother, his birthplace and the typewriter that was never unpacked in the office, we are treated to an interview with a psychiatrist who explains mid-life behavior; an interview with the head of the secretaries' association, plus a few tabloids that will examine the contents of the congressman's garbage.

The answer is simple. Those of you living ordinary, uneventful lives are just going to have to get off your apathy and start supplying news to fill the demand.

Heaven knows, Elizabeth Taylor, Tip O'Neill, Sandra O'Connor, Prince Charles, Princess Di, and John

The next time you feel like staying home and doing something uneventful, just think about the 1,769 daily newspapers in this country that are counting on you, the 1,013 television stations with 20 hours of

Book proposes phonetic reformation

By James J. Kilpatrick
The Associated Press

Off and on for the past 500 years, students of the English language have boiled over in exasperation at our crazy spelling: Bent on bringing sense where there is no sense, they have proposed various reforms. The latest of these crusaders is Paul Mitrevski, M.D., whose little booklet, "Why and How to Make English Phonetic," recently came my way.

Dr. Mitrevski lives in Huntington Beach, Calif. I say hooray for him. He has worked out a logical, rational, orderly system for the reform of English spelling. Under the Mitrevski plan, every letter in a new phonetic alphabet of 31 letters would have "one sound only, and one sound always." He would jettison the letters "q" and "x" as serving no useful purpose; he would add six new letters formed by diacritical marks; and he would invent one wholly new letter to represent the "uh" sound in such words as "ago."

Voilà! The system would rid our language of those worrisome "ough" tangles. Out with the "dg" confusion of "edge" and "badge"! The letter "c" henceforth would carry the constant sound of "ch" as in "church." Future generations would cure; they would get things off their chest. Let us hear a chorus of admiration for Mitrevski!

But let us also be mindful of eons from the past. English orthography is not about to be reformed by revolution. George Bernard Shaw gave the matter his best shot; he got nowhere. Col. Bertie McCormack, the Chicago Tribune behind such sensible spellings as rite, brite and overnite; they never took. By tiny increments we move over the centuries from "publick" to "public." Little by little we replace "Ye Olde Shoppe" with "The Old Shop." But wholesale reform? No way. The Mitrevski system suffers from but a single fault: It is much too orderly for a disorderly language.

The problems most frequently encountered these days are not problems of spelling anyhow. They are confusions that result from words that sound alike but are spelled differently and have different meanings. For lamentable example: The Indianapolis Star went to a magician's show, but found nothing "which made one sit on the edge of the seat with bated breath." The Port St. Lucie (Fla.) News explained that the difference between red and white wine "is in the grape peels." The Los Angeles Times lets us know that columnist Art Buchwald "has just been cited by the National Braille Institute." The Rochester (N.Y.) Democrat & Chronicle, not to be outdone, provided a list of "parking sights" for a visit of fall ships. In a 24-point headline, the San Antonio (Texas) Light tried "To Sort Out the Sorted Tale of Wall Street Journalism Scandal." The Richmond (Va.) Times-Dispatch, in 48 points, described a movie as "Another in Series of Hair-Brained Sagas." A book reviewer in the Manhattan (Kan.) Mercury said that a new edition of William Buckley's "Up From Liberalism" provides a "quarter-of-a-century peak" into our political psyche; this same reviewer noted that John Dos Passos "wrote the forward" to the original edition. At the Mobile (Ala.) Press-Register, the author of a sketch of TV star Tom Selleck had serious problems: "Accept for a brief coarseness in the history of American theater, he concentrated on sports." At the Miami Herald, the Chinese defector and tennis player Hu Na was speaking in "pigeon English." At Newsday an actor had "feat of clay." Also at Newsday, a police officer's use of excessive force was seen as a "breach of fundamental rights." But this month's first prize for homophonous foul-ups goes to Our Sunday Visitor for its "Focus on Washington" column. Here we learn that Minnesota's Sen. David Durenberger "wants the Republican platform to support nuclear parody with the Soviet Union."

Elevator riders subject of study

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — How do two strangers typically react to each other in the close confines of an elevator?
Perhaps with "civil inattention," a ritual first described by Erving Goffman and studied in the environment of elevators by University of Rochester psychologist Milton Zuckerman.
According to this ritual, strangers exchange brief glances and then look away, explained Zuckerman, adding, "It's a way of acknowledging the presence of others without turning them into objects of curiosity."

Zola: I'm not to blame

By The Associated Press

Mary Decker and Zola Budd, principal figures in one of the biggest controversies of the just-concluded Olympics have arrived home half a world apart in contrasting welcomes, with the warmth of Decker's helping to wipe out the tears of disappointment.

Decker, who dreams of a gold medal—in the 3,000 meters—was crushed by a brush with Budd that left her sprawled in the infield at the Los Angeles Coliseum, arrived early Monday in Eugene, Ore., where more than 250 fans awaited her. They cheered, applauded and kept applauding as Decker told them:

"I knew the people here were supportive, but I didn't know they cared that much."

Budd, who faded to seventh after the spill, arrived in London, where she was spirited away by police.

A senior airport official said, "Zola was taken out of the airport by a back door under police guard because of the death threats which we have come from America. Police took the matter seriously and gave her an escort from the airport."

But Budd did stop long enough to tell reporters: "As far as I am concerned, it is all over and tomorrow is another day. All I want to say about the whole thing is that I know I didn't do anything wrong."

"I would like to race Mary Decker again if I got the chance."

The 18-year-old Budd had just taken the lead from Decker, her girlhood idol, in their long-awaited confrontation Friday when the American was thrown off balance and fell.

Budd, who runs barefoot, was spiked on the left heel while Decker charged she was tripped—Budd, a South African who emigrated to Britain in March to run in the Olympics, was booted by the crowd and was visibly upset.

The 26-year-old Decker had world championships last summer in both the 3,000 and 1,500 meters, but had never run in the Olympics in a star-crossed 15-year career, said she wasn't angry at Budd. But she continued to blame her young rival.

"It was an accident," she said.

"People are taking sides politically. It was caused by another runner. I'm not angry at the other person. I'm angry that the situation happened."

"I really think she's the best runner. It's a hard thing that happened," said Shelly Den, 21, who was at the airport to greet Decker. "We just want to say that she's the best and hope she does well (at the next Olympic Games) in 1988."

Decker reiterated her frustration with newspaper accounts that blamed the fall on her and her anger at sportscasters who built up the race as a duel between her and Budd, ignoring Romanian Maricica Pulca, who won the race.

Decker said she will continue running competitively despite the latest dashed dream, and despite numerous injuries, the latest a hip injury suffered in the spill.

Reagan hails athletes

By STEVE WILSTEIN
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES — President Reagan, declaring the Olympic Games "a triumph of fellowship, a triumph of spirit," honored American medal winners Monday while thousands of athletes from around the world hugged each other and said goodbye.

Reagan, who chided the Soviet Union and other boycotting nations as "the only losers" of the Games, told the athletes "you gave us moments we'll never forget."

Among those moments, he said, were Mary Lou Retton's perfect 10 in gymnastics, Carl Lewis' four gold medals and wrestler Jeff Blatnick's gold medal triumph despite once having suffered from cancer.

"There was Blatnick dropping to his knees in thanks," Reagan recalled.

From the warmth of the opening ceremonies, when Romania was greeted with a rousing ovation for defying the Soviet boycott, to the spectacular closing show, the moments of the XXIII Olympiad were strung together like pearls in the memories of those who came:

- The gymnastic brilliance of China's Li Ning and Romania's Ecaterina Szabo;
- Joan Benoit's triumph in the first women's marathon;
- Connie Carpenter-Phinney's road cycling gold before 250,000 spectators;
- Mary Decker's collision with Zola Budd;
- Greg Louganis' acrobatics in diving;
- Gabriela Andersen-Schiess' dramatic, stumbling finish in the marathon;
- Alfie Marsh's struggle before collapsing after the steppechase;
- Evander Holyfield's silent dignity after he was disqualified for an unintentional foul.

There were dozens of such moments: A record number of spectators — 5,797,923 — saw the Games and a record number of nations — 140 in total, Americans won 174 medals — a record 83 gold plus 61 silver and 30 bronze.

Samaranch: Soviets won't boycott in '88

By JOHN FEINSTEIN
The Washington Post

LOS ANGELES — Twelve hours after The Games of Los Angeles ended, President Juan Antonio Samaranch of the International Olympic Committee predicted Monday that there would be no boycott at Seoul in 1988, even though the Soviet Union and China do not recognize South Korea politically.

He also said that under no circumstances would the Games be moved from Seoul, which is scheduled to open its new Olympic Stadium next month.

"We are aware of the problem with the Soviet Union and China and with the other countries that do not have diplomatic relations with South Korea," Samaranch said. "But the Games will not be moved. We signed an agreement and we will not break it. The Games will be held in Seoul and all of the national committees in the Olympic movements will support them."

Samaranch pointed out that China and Taiwan had participated in these Olympics together and saw that as a hopeful sign. He also said that Seoul would be staging Youth Games in the near future and that they "will be a test" to see if a boycott might be a problem in 1988.

The IOC is scheduled to meet in Lausanne, Switzerland, in December. There, it will again discuss the possibility of sanctions against nations that do not participate in an Olympics. It has been proposed that a country that misses an Olympics for any reason will not be allowed to participate in the next one.

"I hope we will take some positive step in Lausanne to force all the national committees to take part in all Olympic Games," Samaranch said. Beyond that, he refused to discuss what steps the IOC might take to ensure Games not be affected by boycotts as the ones in Moscow and Los Angeles were.

In a final joint press conference with Peter Ueberroth, president of the Los Angeles Olympic Organizing Committee, Samaranch declared himself delighted with the just-concluded Games.

Bomb found on Turks' bus

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A sharp-eyed police officer discovered a pipe bomb aboard a bus carrying the baggage of the Turkish Olympic team Monday and disarmed it moments before it was to explode, authorities said. The discovery of the bomb and threats from "hookeys" who heard about it forced the evacuation of about 6,000 people from three terminals at Los Angeles International Airport, police said. The athletes had already gone into the terminal when the bomb was discovered, and there were no injuries, said Police Chief Daryl Gates. He said several Olympic security guards were aboard the bus, adding that the device could have caused "severe damage."

Officer Jim Pearson was checking around the area and noticed something shiny that shouldn't have been there, Gates said. He did not say where the device was found.

Police Officer John Weick described the device as "about eight inches long and about five inches in diameter. It was a cylindrical object with what looked to be some kind of timing device on one end."

Gates said Pearson "pulled the device out of where it was located, determined it was about to go off." "He has some knowledge of that kind of device," Gates said.

The officer then carried the pipe bomb to the terminal, put it down and pulled some wires loose "and ran," apparently successfully disarming it, the chief added. The bomb squad disposed of the device.

A man answering the telephone at the Turkish Consulate in Los Angeles declined comment and hung up without identifying himself.

The device was dismantled on a taxiway between the new Pacific Southwest Airlines terminal and an adjacent one housing Pan American Airlines, said police Officer Margie Mastro.

"You are looking at a very happy president," he said, wearing sunglasses. "The Games in Los Angeles have been great and successful. Never before in an Olympics have I seen so many spectators." He singled out the soccer final at the Rose Bowl (attendance 101,799) as a highlight for him.

The LAOOC Monday released final attendance figures, saying that 5,797,923 tickets were sold during the 16 days. The figure for the Moscow Games was 5,466,321. Ueberroth repeated Monday that there would be a surplus but said specific dollar figures would not be known until about Sept. 7, when the LAOOC should be through paying its bills.

Samaranch also discussed several other post-Olympic subjects. They included: Security. "What can I say regarding the security here?" he said. "I'm very happy with the measures that were taken. Many people said these Games were supposed to be dangerous and nothing happened."

Open Olympics. Waffling as he has in the past, Samaranch said, "We have to live with the times and these are the 1980s. We will not allow a new discrimination in sports. We must allow all athletes to have their rights regardless of the political system they come from. But we have to go step by step. I think the level of play here was very very high." In short: The term "amateur" will continue to broaden but an outright open Olympics is still a ways off, despite predictions to the contrary by USOC President William Simon Sunday.

Baseball — A demonstration sport here, Samaranch said it was No. 1 on his list of sports to be made official. But he said it would not happen before 1992, and that at that time badminton would also be considered.

Sanctions loom after Atlanta-San Diego baseball battle

By The Associated Press

Players from both teams say there could be more trouble in the aftermath of a baseball war between the Atlanta Braves and San Diego Padres that resulted in 13 ejections and the arrest of five fans at Atlanta-Fulton County Stadium.

"They may have brought a wildcard," San Diego's Bobby Brown warned. "If they want to play baseball, that's fine. If they want to fight, we'll fight."

And Atlanta's Bob Watson, a former Marine drill instructor, said, "They haven't heard the end of it. If they want to, let's go." Sunday's game between the two clubs, who don't meet again until Sept. 21, started when Atlanta's Pascual Perez hit Alan Wittgins of his first pitch. It ended in a 5-3 Atlanta victory that was overshadowed by two more hit batsmen, three bench-clearing incidents — the final two nearly uncontrollable as fans got into the fracas. Both managers, two San Diego coaches and nine players were ejected.

"I took baseball down 50 years," said umpiring crew chief John McSherry, who said he nearly forfeited the game to San Diego in the ninth inning. "It was the worst thing I have ever seen in my life. It was pathetic, absolutely pathetic."

McSherry said he had spoken with National League President Chub Feeney, and a written report and videotapes of the game would be sent to the league office. Feeney was in Philadelphia for the start of baseball's summer meeting Wednesday, and NL spokesman Blake Cullen said the league would not review the tapes before Thursday.

Cullen was in Cooperstown, N.Y., for Sunday's Hall of Fame induction and the annual Hall of Fame game

Monday, in which the Braves participated. Cullen said he did speak with Braves Manager Joe Torre on Monday "to get his side of the story."

Ferez contended that he hit Wittgins by accident when the ball slipped from his fingers. Padres Manager Dick Williams didn't agree.

"There was no question in our minds but what Perez hit Wittgins on purpose," Williams said. "He had hit only two batters in 135 innings this year. It was totally deliberate. If he says the pitch to Wittgins slipped, then we'll stick to the pitches we made to him."

In all, Perez was thrown at three times before being hit in the eighth inning by Craig Leferts. Padres starter Ed Whitson threw at Perez twice. In the second and fourth innings, without hitting him. The first brushback was behind Perez's head, drew an official warning from plate umpire Steve Ripley and cleared both benches briefly. The second Whitson brushback knocked Perez down, and Whitson and Williams were both ejected.

In the fifth inning, Greg Booker again threw at Perez, and Booker and coach Darryl Strawberry, who had replaced Whitson, were ejected. Finally, in the eighth inning, Leferts hit Perez, causing the ejection of Leferts and coach Jack Roff, who had replaced Virgil, as the first of two major brawls broke out.

"It would have been a lot simpler if we had hit Perez his first time up," Padres catcher Terry Kennedy said. "We missed him three times at bat. The whole thing got pretty ridiculous. It's bad to have kids watch something like this."

Atlanta reliever Donnie Moore hit Grady Nettles to lead off the next and last inning, and Nettles charged the mound, sparking another bench-clearing brawl. That resulted in the ejection of Torre and Moore.

America needs to develop Olympians, not media stars

"My countrymen have a talent for self-congratulation."

—James Baldwin

It was, by any measure, a spectacular showing.

One hundred seventy-four medals, 83 of them gold, were won by American athletes at the Games of the XXIII Olympiad, including breakthrough performances by the U.S. in gymnastics, Greco-Roman wrestling, men's and women's volleyball, water polo, equestrian events, cycling and yachting and dominating efforts in men's track, swimming, women's basketball, freestyle wrestling and boxing.

The American effort seemed a vindication of the corporate approach, both to the funding of the Los Angeles Games themselves and to the training of American athletes. The United States won medals in sports in which it had never before had more than an also-ran.

Of course, the Russians weren't there. Neither were the East Germans, the Czechs, the Cubans, the Bulgarians, the North Koreans, the Hungarians nor the Poles. They will be there, however, at the World Swimming Championships, the World Track and Field Championships, the World Wrestling Championships, the World Boxing Championships and two scoreless glumorous competitions in 1988. Odds are that the Americans are in for a rude shock then.

Sad to say, the Soviet side didn't change the reality of amateur athletics in the world. Given odds on seven sports out of 10, bet on the Russians and the East Germans. We're still, for the most part, not in their league.

"If you doubt that, you need look no farther than the track and field results from Los Angeles. The Americans won just two field events — Carl Lewis' victory in the long jump and Al Joyner's in the triple jump. In the javelin, former world record-holder Tom Petrano failed to get a medal, women's long jump favorite Carol Lewis didn't even make the finals and pole vaulter Mike Tully decided to jump in his final two events. Discus throwers Mac Willkins and John Powell, generally considered to be the best in that event outside the Soviet Bloc, lost to a West German. Michael Carter and Dave Lutz, the best shot putters the United States has produced in years, lost to an Italian. On their own track, Alberto Salazar finished 15th in the marathon and Steve Scott ten in 1,500 meters; the women's 1,500 was 13,900. Mary Decker's events, won to Euro points, were in the field events except the men's long jump, high jump and triple jump and in the middle-distance and distance running events save for the women's marathon, the American performances were far below the standards set by the Eastern Europeans.

The reasons have less to do with the athletic prowess of the Slavs and their Latin and Asian surrogates than with the fact that we Americans are slow learners. Every four years, we shake the tree and hope for a windfall. The Russians and the East Germans spend all four years manufacturing Olympic medals.

Four years ago in Moscow, against competition the really were the Russians and East Germans set 24 world records. Eleven world records fell in Los Angeles. The ANAHEIM, Calif. — Paul McDonald, finally getting his chance as Cleveland's regular quarterback, threw three touchdown passes Monday night to keep the Browns to a 21-19 National Football League preseason victory over the Los Angeles Rams.

McDonald connected on two scoring throws in a four-minute span of the third quarter as Cleveland came back from a 10-7 halftime deficit.
After a 19-yard touchdown loss to Dwight Walker in the second period, McDonald hit Ozzie Newsome with a 3-yard scoring throw four minutes into the third quarter, then found Harry Holt with an 8-yard touchdown pass four minutes later.

McDonald, who waited in the wings behind veteran Brian Sipe as Cleveland for four years, has become the Browns' starter since Sipe jumped to the United States Football League.
McDonald completed 15 of 22 throws for 245 yards as the Browns evened their exhibition record at 1-1.
The loss was the second of the preseason for Los Angeles, which was without Eric Dickerson, the NFL's top rusher in 1983. Dickerson suffered a neck injury in practice and is sidelined.

His replacement, Barry Redden, led a fine first-half as the Rams built a three-point lead, rushing 10 times for 107 yards. But Redden suffered slightly bruised ribs and did not play in the second half.
Dwayne Crutchfield gave the Rams a 7-0 lead when he scored on a 27-yard run 3:45 into the contest, and Mike Landford made it 10-0 with a 27-yard field goal later in the quarter.
Los Angeles quarterback Vince Ferragamo, who played only the first quarter and a portion of the second, completed just four of 13 passes for 47 yards.

Budd

"I love running," she said. "The part that I hate the most is what happens after a situation like what happened at the Olympics."
Budd, meanwhile, wrote in the London Daily Mail, which helped her gain British citizenship.
"There's no point in trying to appear blameless but I can't understand Mary's frustration and anger. She says it's my fault. I'm not saying it's her fault."
"I think it was Mary's knee on my left leg. Thrown off balance, I lurched a little and felt pain as spikes raked down the back of my left heel. I fought for balance and suddenly I sensed Mary falling . . ." she wrote.
"I couldn't believe it. It was terrible. I wanted to stop. I wanted it all to end. And, in truth, the race for me was already over."
The world's press has reacted with widely varied views of the Los Angeles Olympics, with many Western newspapers praising the games and most in the Soviet Bloc continuing to denounce them for commercialism and what some call American chauvinism.

But even some Western commentators were critical of what they called an overemphasis on American victories by the U.S. media.
"The Los Angeles Olympic Games were held to the roar of such incoherent cannonade that one could think that those were not international competitions but a protracted celebration of Independence Day by America," the Soviet Communist Party daily Pravda said Monday, the day after the Games ended.
It promoted the Americans "should have promoted restraint and modesty" in assessing their medals triumph, since these were gained partly because the Soviet Union and 15 other nations stayed away from the games.

discrepancy is the sum of the differences of the two cultures.
East Bloc athletes are performance-oriented. Soviet sports authorities know right now who is going to running in the 10,000 meters at the 1988 World Track and Field Championships, and very likely who will represent their country in the event in the 1988 Olympics.
The Americans will get together a month before the competition and have a race, which could mean that the second, fourth, and 16th-best 10,000-meter runners in the country will represent the United States.
In East Germany, the best 200 or 300 young swimmers in that nation are even now undergoing intensive training, even though the German sports authorities know that no more than three dozen of them will ever compete internationally. In the United States, a swim coach who phones the U.S. Olympic Training Center with news of a hot prospect is unlikely to get his call.
Carl Lewis and Sergei Bubka, the Soviet who holds the world record in the pole vault, both live well. But in Russia, the tenth-best modern pentathlete in the country is working 10 hours a week in a tractor factory, and training the rest of the time.
An American of equal abilities is lucky to be a walk-on on a college football team, trying to stay in school by working graveyard shift at the corner

7-Eleven.
To be sure, sports are not the same thing in East and West. Here they are games; there they are life.
Americans, from Jackson Shultz in 1920 to Steve Lundquist in 1981, take pride in winning brilliantly while not working up too much of a sweat.
In Eastern Europe, sports is a clenched fist; here it's a high-five.
Unless we get wise to that fact, there may not be much to high-five about in future.
"The millions of dollars being poured by corporate America and the millions more raised by the U.S. Olympic Committee to build the infrastructure for a true national amateur sports system was well spent, but it isn't enough. Now the job is finding kayakers who can beat the East Germans in 1992 and weightlifters who can compete with the Soviets in 2000 and giving them the means and opportunity to do so.
That's not very glamorous work, but it produces results. Eight years ago, Portugal and Morocco, two small countries with no international athletic tradition, decided they were ready to try. The Portuguese concentrated on the marathon, the Moroccans on the women's hurdles and the men's distances. They funneled their best athletes into those events, improving steadily if slowly. The results: a Portuguese, Carlos Lopes, beat world champion Rob de Castella of Australia in the Olympic

Cubs lose ground, maybe Sandberg

By The Associated Press

Jerry Humphrey's single with one out in the ninth inning gave the Houston Astros a 2-1 victory over the Chicago Cubs Monday night in Houston.

Jose Cruz singled with one out off Chicago starter Scott Sanderson and stole second to set up Humphrey's single.

The Cubs' Bill Dawley, 64, pitched the final two innings for the victory. Starter Mike LaCoss and Dawley combined to hold the Cubs to four hits. Sanderson, 6-3, allowed eight hits.

The Cubs took a 1-0 lead in the fourth inning when second baseman Tom Verzer, who replaced injured Ryne Sandberg in the first inning, singled and went to second on a wild pitch. He advanced to third on Thad Bosley's grounder and scored on Leon Durham's sacrifice fly.

Houston tied the score in the sixth. Bill Doran extended his hitting streak to 13 games with a leadoff triple and scored on Craig Reynolds' sacrifice fly.

Sandberg, the Cubs' All-Star second baseman, suffered a bruised left hip in a first-inning collision with Houston first baseman Enos Cabell. The collision occurred when Cabell had to leap to catch a high throw from LaCoss on Sandberg's grounder and his knee struck the runner on the left hip.

There was no indication how long Sandberg might be sidelined. His .319 batting average is third best in the National League.

The victory cut Chicago's lead over the New York Mets in the National League East to four games. The Mets played at Los Angeles in a late game.

Baltimore 2, Toronto 1

In Toronto, Mike Boddicker threw the one-hit wonder in his major league career and light-hitting Lenn Sakata hit a two-run homer to give the Baltimore Orioles a victory over the Toronto Blue Jays.

Boddicker, whose career best had been a three-hitter, was touched for just a leadoff double by Rance Mulliniks in the third inning. Following the double, the 26-year-old right-hander retired 12 consecutive Jays until he hit Dave Collins leading off the seventh.

Cleveland 6, New York Yankees 5

In Cleveland, Joe Carter singled home Brock Jacoby with one out in the 11th inning to give the Cleveland Indians a victory over the New York Yankees.

With one out, Dave Rightt, 2-4, gave up Jacoby's fourth hit, a single. Tony Bernazard then doubled to left, sending Jacoby to third. Rightt intentionally walked Brett Butler after a 2-0 count to load the bases. With the outfield playing shallow, Carter lined his game-winner just in front of left fielder Steve Kemp.

Kansas City 6, Boston 1

In Kansas City, Mo., Darryl Motley homered and Bud Black scattered seven hits to snap a personal four-game losing streak as the Kansas City Royals took a decision from the Boston Red Sox.

Minnesota 5, Milwaukee 1

In Minneapolis, Kent Hrbek and Randy Bush hit consecutive homers in Minnesota's five-run fourth inning and John Butcher pitched his sixth complete game of the season as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Milwaukee Brewers.

Chicago White Sox 5, Texas 3

In Chicago, Greg Walker and Roy Smalley hit solo home runs to back the combined seven-hit pitching of Floyd Banister and two relievers and the Chicago White Sox snapped a four-game losing streak with a victory over the Texas Rangers.

St. Louis 6, Cincinnati 3

In St. Louis, David Green tripled to touch off a four-run uprising in the fifth inning, and Bruce Sutter secured his 31st save, leading the St. Louis Cardinals to a victory over the Cincinnati Reds.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"There is no expedient to which a man will not resort to avoid the real labor of thinking." - St. Joshua Reynolds.

Today's East was a clever dodger who knew his greedy South. At trick one, East made an unusual, farsighted play that lured South to sleep. Instead of thinking about nine winners, South had eyes only for a cheap first trick.

West led the heart deuce, dummy followed small and East dropped the trey. Was East a genius, was he mad, or did he just pull the wrong card?

South couldn't wait to win with his lowly five-spot, and the game was gone. When East took the ace of diamonds, he led a heart and South could manage only seven tricks for two down.

Let's examine East's departure from a normal "third hand high" at trick one. West's heart deuce told East about the heart distribution. East also knew that his diamond ace would stop diamonds from running unless South's heart queen became an entry. It becomes an entry if South holds both high heart honors (unlikely), so it costs nothing to play third hand low. If South has only one of the top honors, dummy's heart queen becomes an entry only if South plays his high honor at trick one. So why should East play high to force South into making his best play?

East's brilliant play paid off handsomely. South was guilty of an oscillike-slay.

Jeans maker singing blues as profits drop

By STEPHEN J. SIMURDA
The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO — As part of a new advertising campaign, Levi Strauss & Co., the nation's largest maker of jeans, is focusing on young models and blues music to push its traditional five-pocket, button-fly denim trousers.

Since June, Levi Strauss has closed 13 plants and laid off 3,200 workers, with about 400 more layoffs planned before the end of August. Late last month the company lowered 1984 earnings projections that had already been estimated at just half of 1983's results.

"Jeans are just not selling the way they used to," said Dennis Ross, an analyst who follows Levi Strauss for Montgomery Securities of San Francisco. Comfortable jeans were "a culmination of the '60s and '70s scene," the uniform of the 'beat generation,'" he said, but have been supplanted in the '80s by a more formal style popularized by preppies and yuppies, young urban professionals.

Cotton Inc., a New York-based trade organization, estimates that 466 million pairs of jeans were sold in the United States in 1983. That's down from a high of 502 million in 1981, from Levi Strauss registered record sales. Jean sales figures for the first five months of 1984 indicate a slight drop from 1983.

This is bad news for Levi Strauss, named for a Bavarian immigrant who made his first pants in 1850 for miners scrambling for riches during California's gold rush. Levi's gained fame by making jeans around the world and now controls between 20 percent and 25 percent of the market in the United States, analysts say.

In 1983, Levi's posted revenues of $2.73 billion, up 6.2 percent from the year before but down a bit from 1981's record $2.85 billion. And 1983's net income of $194.5 million, or $4.61 a share, was its best showing since the record $223.7 million pocketed in 1980. While 1984 sales have dropped just a little from previous levels, earnings have taken a nosedive, with the company bringing in $17.2 million in profits during the first six months of the year. On July 27, the company announced that 1984 earnings would be less than half of last year's profits. "That was a big surprise," said Mark Bavoso, a retail analyst with S&P Co. in San Francisco.

But Karl F. Slack, Levi's chief financial officer, cautions investors not to panic.

In the retail business, should not be as far behind 1983's pace.

"The problem is we're not making as much money as we used to, but nobody is running around writing 'It's sink around here!' Slack said.

"That was a big surprise," said Mark Bavoso, a retail analyst with S&P Co. in San Francisco. But Karl F. Slack, Levi's chief financial officer, cautions investors not to panic.

The first six months of 1984 were affected by a one-time cost of $24.5 million associated with the plant closings, he said. The third and fourth quarters, traditionally the strongest

IRS requires tax shelter registration

By JIM LUTHER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In a new effort to reduce the loss of revenues to abusive tax shelters, the Internal Revenue Service announced Monday that most shelters will have to be registered starting Sept. 1.

The shelter will be assigned a registration number, which every investor will have to include on his federal income tax returns. IRS Commissioner Roscoe L. Egger Jr. told reporters the purpose of the registration requirement, which was imposed by Congress this year, is to help gather information about the number, kind and size of tax shelter promotions.

"The registration is neither a blessing nor a curse" for the shelter, and issuance of a registration number may not be interpreted as IRS approval of an investment, emphasized IRS Chief Counsel Fred Goldberg.

He added that the 94 pages of regulations spelling out the registration requirements were purposely made broad so that virtually every shelter—including those that the IRS does not consider abusive—will have to register. It may even bring some people to realize for the first time that the deal in which they invested is a tax shelter, Goldberg added.

To those who knowingly put their money into a shelter, Goldberg cautioned: "If you don't have a (registration) number at the end of the year, you probably have a problem and should ask for one."

Cracking down on abusive tax shelters has been a prime goal of Egger since he took office in 1981. At the end of 1983, the IRS were auditing nearly 255,000 returns involving tax shelters, up about 18 percent from the previous year. During the year, the agency closed the books on 96,000 shelter returns and recommended taxes and penalties totaling $1.8 billion.

The IRS generally considers as abusive any financial transaction that promises large immediate deductions for a relatively minor outlay, and that often is financed principally with borrowed money. However, without investors are not personally liable, a shelter—abusive or otherwise—can be in any variety of enterprise, ranging from drilling oil wells to distributing Bibles.

Smaller meat supply looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's supply of red meat and poultry is expected to decline again in 1985 following a decrease of almost 3 percent this year, the Agriculture Department said Monday.

According to the projections, which were the first for next year, consumers will see more poultry but not enough to offset another drop in the supply of beef, pork, lamb and mutnew supply-and-demand report. "Further gains in livestock prices are anticipated for 1985. With feed costs expected to decline, livestock producer returns should improve."

Broiler producers have had "relatively good returns" this year despite the higher feed costs, the report said. Consequently, production is increasing and is expected to continue higher in 1985.

In all, the 1985 meat and poultry supply may be about 54.3 billion pounds, down from 54.57 billion pounds in 1984 and 55.02 billion pounds in 1983.

Cattle and hog producers, which provide most of the meat, have felt the crunch of higher feed costs triggered by last year's drought and the government's acreage cutbacks. Drought, high interest rates and other problems also have been factors. As a result, production has been reduced.

"Livestock prices improved some in 1984, but in most cases the gains were not enough to offset sharply higher feed costs," officials said in a report forecast a month ago.

"With lower beef and pork production in 1985, particularly in the first half of the year, cattle and hog prices are expected to rise," the report said.

"A continued strong economy through first-half 1985 also should boost prices."

Egg production is expected to increase during the rest of 1984 and next year. Production cutbacks in 1983 and early 1984 helped boost prices and provide good returns, the report said.

Milk production is expected to drop this year, and another decline is likely next year.

Looking at the crop situation, the report world grain production in 1984-85 is expected to be slightly less than forecast a month ago.

Many provisions of new law in effect

Less than a month ago (July 18), President Reagan signed the 1984 tax law—legislation that has become massive with complications as it has moved between the Senate and House. There are hundreds of changes that translate directly into gains or losses for you. Many changes are retroactive; they already are in effect. Ignorance in this case can be extremely costly.

Sylvia Porter

This I have prepared six columns with the assistance of Bill J. Warach, divisional senior vice president of Prentice-Hall, to help explain the tax changes that affect you right now.

- 1) There are new rules for (or low-interest family loans that could greatly help another family member but aren't necessarily cost you a cent.
- The new rules: A loan from a parent is treated so that the parent is assumed to be charging the going interest rate; or the parent is deemed to give the child the money to pay the interest; or the child is treated as paying the interest. With these three points in mind, note that no money changes hands—except for the loan principal.

take the gift into income; yet he picks up a deduction for interest he does not actually pay.

- 2) New law exceptions: There are generous exceptions to the new rules on no-interest family loans. In general, there are no tax consequences involved in a no-interest loan to all loans between parent and child come to less than $10,000. And if they exceed $10,000, the parent still may have no income tax liability if the total loans exceed $100,000.

within 60 days after the new law is signed.

- 3) Does all this mean the end of family income splitting? No! Far from it. A long list of family income-splitting favorites are untouched by the new law. An excellent example: the short-term trust. You set up a single trust, transfer money (or property) to it for at least 10 years and a day, and then get it back.

How it works: You, the parent, transfer income-producing property—stock, for instance—to a trust set up for your child. The trust lasts 10 years and a day. The trust is distributed and taxed to the low-income tax-bracket child. When the trust expires, the stock is returned to you. In effect, you have split income with your child for a 10-year period.

- 4) Company interest-free loans: An OK under the new tax law. No-interest loans are still winners even under the new law. Loans can be made by the corporation without the actual payment of interest by employees. What the new law does do is transform the no-interest loan into a series of bookkeeping transactions.

The company "pays" the employee added compensation equal to the interest that would be paid on the loan. That "payment" is deductible by the company as compensation. On the other side of the transaction, the employee will owe no income tax on the interest since he is entitled to an offsetting interest deduction for the interest he "pays" on the loan.

Bottom Line: The only cash changing hands is the face amount of the loan.

- For instance, employee Seth Smith borrows $50,000 from his company for a year on a demand loan, which he repays at the end of the year. The going interest rate is 12 percent. Result: Seth avoids paying the $6,000 in interest that a bank would charge and he pays no more income tax than before the new law.

Stocks recover but close mixed

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock prices turned in a mixed showing Monday, recovering gradually from some early selling.

Trading talled off sharply from the record-breaking pace of the past two weeks. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks, down about 9 points at its midday low, closed with a 1.99 gain at 1,220.00.

Big-board volume totaled 77.96 million shares, up 171.03 million Friday. Analysts said many traders appeared to believe that the stock market had come too far too fast in its recent rally.

That belief was reinforced by the market's showing Friday, when it rose sharply in early trading but then fell back to finish mixed.

Another drag on stock prices was a new trading week began was a rise in open-term government bonds, which move inversely with interest rates, dropped more than 55 for every $1,000 in face value.

Jeans

 Much of the increase is attributable to Levi's sponsorship of the Olympics in Los Angeles, but it also reflects a back-to-basics approach by management. Since the declining jeans market is seen as the biggest reason for declining profits, Levi's executives decided their best strategy was to promote the products that made them famous.

"As we've seen our product come under pressure we've decided rather than pull in our horns to be more aggressive," Slack said. That aggressiveness centers around the $36 million campaign promoting the "501" denim jeans and an $18 million campaign touting corduroy jeans.

Levi's research shows that while the 501s are enormously popular on the West Coast, they are virtually unknown in the East, which could prove a valuable untapped marketplace.

Analysts and Levi's executives agree that the jeans market may never be what it was during the last 15 years or so.

"It's highly unlikely Levi Strauss is going to get back to the growth rate it achieved during the '70s," said Peter L. Thigpen, president of Levi Strauss USA.

But no one thinks the jeans market is going to disappear, either.

"The jeans market is mature. Some call it moribund," Thigpen said. "But I would not call 466 million units a year moribund."

Stocks

 Nevertheless, after the market's initial slump Monday, it appeared to attract some buying by traders who had been waiting for a lull in the recent rally to do some "catch-up" buying.

SCA Services was the day's most active issue among Big Board stocks, up 2% at 23 1/2 as traders awaited word on the company's response to merger offers.

After the close, it was announced that SCA had agreed to be acquired for $29.50 a share by a company jointly owned by Waste Management Inc. and Genstar Corp.

Several blue-chip issues posted gains among the volume leaders. International Business Machines climbed 1 1/2 to 122 1/4; American Express 1 1/4 to 33 3/4; Sears Roebuck 1/4 to 36 1/4, and Ford Motor 1/4 to 45 1/4.

American Telephone & Telegraph dropped 3/4 to 19, and General Motors, which said it would lay off some salaried workers, rose 1/4 to 75 1/4.

Most of the airline issues rebounded from recent selling prompted by fears of stepped-up price competition in the industry. UAL gained 1 1/2 to 37 1/2; Delta 1 to 33 1/4, and AMR 1/4 to 27 1/4.

KC mart rose 1/4 to 34 1/4. The company reported earnings for its latest quarter of $1.11 a share, up from 91 cents in the comparable period a year earlier.

Precious-metals stocks posted fractional gains as the price of gold advanced in New York. ASA Ltd. added 3/4 to 53 1/4 and Homestake Mining was up 1/4 to 25 1/4.

In the daily tally on the Big Board, about five issues declined in price for every four that gained ground, and the exchange's composite index lost .06 to 95.02.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 93.82 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials edged up .03 to 188.12, and S&P's 500 stock composite index rose .01 to 165.43.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market dropped 1.08 to 251.35. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 207.39, down 38.
