GOP chases Demo votes

By DAVID ESPO

DALLAS — Republicans opened their 33rd national convention Monday with a denunciation of the Democrats and a ringing endorsement of "the Reagan record of peace, prosperity and pride in America."

The president campaigned in Illinois and Ohio, boasting he fashioned a "miracle" of economic recovery.

Sen. Howard Baker made Reagan's case from the convention podium, detailing the recent economic boom and gloating, "Walter Mondale can't stand it."

In the vast, air-conditioned convention hall, a parade of prime time orators sought to lure Democrats from the Mondale ticket to Reagan's.

Keynote speaker Katherine Ortega appealed to millions of "mainstream" Democrats who "share the Republican vision of America as a land of freedom and individual opportunity, not big government paternalism."

"Nuestra casa es su casa," she said, extending the welcome in Spanish. "Our home is your home."

The delegates listened politely, as if saving their exuberance for later in the week, when Reagan wins the nomination and comes before them to accept it.

The GOP assembled in an overheated convention city in a mood of uncommon optimism — with Reagan and Vice President George Bush well ahead in public opinion polls and a new report showing the U.S. economy expanding at the healthy rate of 4.2 percent. On top of that, Mondale has been hampered by the questions concerning his running mate's family finances.

"I hope this woman survives," Sen. Paul Laxalt said as Geraldine Ferraro released her financial statements — but it was clear that

KATHERINE ORTEGA "Our home is your home"

Republican delegates were enjoying the Democratic discomfort along with their convention oratory.

The only sour note on day one of the Republican convention came, as expected, from party moderates unhappy with the conservative platform, cleared for approval Tuesday night. "I don't think it's worth the paper it's written on," said Rep. Silvio Conte of Massachusetts.

The Republicans took time out from the speeches to stage a tribute to the American Olympic athletes. There were chants of "USA" as a half dozen medal winners were introduced.

The Republicans debuted an elaborate seven-screen backdrop to the podium. Delegates could see the speaker on a large center screen and partisan graphics spread along the other screens.

The president sought votes in Illinois and Ohio, ridiculing Mondale's "knee-jerk" desire to raise taxes, as his surrogates carried his message in Dallas before a crowd of 2,235 delegates and 15,000 supporters.

Nominee, husband pay $53,459 in back taxes

By MICHAEL J. SNIFFEN

WASHINGTON — Seeking to dispel a cloud of questions shadowing her vice-presidential campaign, Geraldine Ferraro and her millionaire husband revealed Monday that they pay about 40 percent of their income in taxes.

They also sent the government a $53,459 check to cover an error they made on their federal taxes in 1978.

The New York congresswoman also disclosed that she and her husband, real-estate owner and manager John Zaccaro, have a combined net worth of almost $3.8 million.

The revelations at a Washington hotel several doors from the headquarters of the Democratic presidential campaign came after a week of increasing questions and pressure over Ferraro's family finances.

The first disclosures covered the couple's tax returns and went beyond any requirements for disclosure in federal law.

They included the separate tax returns that Ferraro has filed since she became a member of Congress in 1979; the separate returns filed by her husband during that period; and the joint federal income tax return they filed in 1978.

The documents showed that the couple had combined income from 1979 to 1983 of $866,443. Last year, Ms. Ferraro earned $70,358 and Zaccaro's gross income was $203,039.

Francis O'Brien, a Mondale-Ferraro press spokesman, said of Zaccaro's disclosures, "No spouse of a national candidate has ever disclosed that type of information before."

Jim Johnson, Walter F. Mondale's campaign director, said of the couple's disclosures: "They have withstood the test of public trust and public integrity."

O'Brien and typed statements released with the returns confirmed published reports over the weekend that the couple would owe additional taxes for 1978.

The spokesman said the couple was filing an amended return Monday for

Copy of amended Zaccaro-Ferraro tax return for 1978

1978 along with the check, which included $29,709 in additional income tax for the year and $24,750 in interest for the late payments. He said the underpayment occurred because of an error by the couple's former tax accountant.

Later in the day, Ferraro filed financial disclosure forms with the Federal Election Commission, just 11 minutes before the deadline. The statement of current assets and liabilities is required of candidates for federal office.

In her FEC filings, Ferraro — as promised — waived the controversial exemption she had claimed on her congressional disclosure forms and instead reported her husband's assets along with hers. She had contended that she did not need to disclose his assets because she had no knowledge of them and did not benefit from them.

Costs high — A3

The reporting on the FEC forms is in broad ranges, but the campaign Monday night released a separate, split net worth statement to the press — but Ferraro's estimated net worth as of July 31 at $700,000, of which more than two-thirds was her share of the couple's three homes.

Zaccaro's net worth as of the same date was listed as $3,025 million. The statement said that $2.75 million of Zaccaro's net worth was tied up in real estate held by corporations or partnerships in which he has an interest. These include six New York City buildings and condominiums in that city and the Virgin Islands.

An additional statement provided details on the P. Zaccaro Co., called the only business enterprise of Zaccaro in which Ms. Ferraro has any interest. It said P. Zaccaro is a real-estate management company that runs about 22 buildings.

The statement said Ferraro is a director of P. Zaccaro Co. and shareholder in it but "has never drawn a salary from the company nor received any fees for services from the company."

The detailed explanation of her involvement with the company apparently was intended to support her claim as a congresswoman that she was exempt from reporting her husband's finances on her annual financial disclosures to Congress.

Although she maintained an office in Zaccaro's place of business and "occasionally represented buyers and sellers of properties in transactions," she was not generally involved in the business aspects of the transactions, the statement said.

The statement said Ferraro gave up her office at the company when she became an assistant district attorney in 1974. But she said she retained her position as an officer of the company "so that, should anything happen to her husband, she would be qualified to take immediately whatever steps

Lafferty brothers plan to act as own counsel at hearing

By The Associated Press

AMERICAN FORK, Utah — Ron and Dan Lafferty, accused of murdering their sister-in-law and her toddler daughter, were granted permission Monday to act as their own attorneys.

The Laffertys, making their first court appearance since being extradited Friday from Reno, Nev., heard the six felony charges against them and were told they would face a preliminary hearing Sept. 10.

"Our major concern is that we don't want to accept (legal) counsel because that would assume we are incompetent" to act as both defendant and attorney, Ron Lafferty told 8th Circuit Judge Robert J. Sumson, who granted the request.

Ron Lafferty, 42, and Dan, 36, face two counts of first-degree murder, two counts of aggravated burglary and two counts of criminal conspiracy, the same charges pending against Charles Carnes, 23, and Richard Knapp, 24, who were arrested July 30 in Cheyenne, Wyo.

Carnes, of Belton, N.M., and Knapp, of Wichita, Kan., also face a Sept. 10 preliminary hearing.

Sumson set aside three days for the Laffertys' preliminary hearing after Prosecutor Wayne Watson said he intended to bring in witnesses from three other states. Watson also said evidence compiled since the brothers' arrest in Reno Aug. 7 still was being processed by the state crime lab.

The Laffertys were sought by the FBI and local police soon after the bodies of Brenda Wright Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter, Erica, were found by her husband with their throats slashed.

Police speculated the murders may have resulted from the support Brenda Lafferty — a former Kimberly, Idaho, resident — had given Ron Lafferty's wife before she divorced him and moved to Florida.

The Laffertys, in interviews with an Associated Press reporter in Reno last week, denied the charges, claiming the Mormon Church — which excommunicated them — is part of a conspiracy to blame them for the murders.

Ron Lafferty told Sumson he and his brother "have not been allowed to communicate in any way or form" with each other in the Utah County Jail, and must be allowed to do so in order to prepare a defense.

Watson argued that if the brothers were to be allowed together, an attorney must be present and the brothers limited to discussing "legal items relating to the case." He said they should not be allowed to compare stories or "fabricate."

The judge appointed attorney Mike Espin both to serve in an advisory legal capacity for the Laffertys, and to ensure that when they meet together they confine the discussion to legal matters.

"We would have no objection to that, whatever," Ron Lafferty said.

Mother in coma, tiny daughter fine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. — Doctors delivered a thriving daughter from a comatose teenage mother on Monday, fulfilling the hopes of the baby's father after his six-month bedside vigil.

"I was hoping for a girl," wife-guesser was too," said Army Col. John Hicks after the birth of Heather Marie Hicks at 6:07 a.m. MDI at Winter Haven Hospital. "I kept feeling it was going to be a little girl."

The condition of his wife, Tami, 16, has not changed but "she came through the Caesarean good," said Hicks, 23, who was transferred from Fort Bragg, N.C., to a recruiting center in Orlando after the accident.

Mrs. Hicks was three months pregnant on Feb. 26 when another vehicle ran a stop sign and struck her vehicle near Winter Haven as she was driving home to Fayetteville, N.C., killing a passenger.

"I'm joyous about the baby coming along, but we're worried about Tami," Hicks said before the birth. "I'll never forgive the young man involved in the accident.

John Hicks holds his daughter premature, said Eloise McManis, assistant director of nursing at the hospital. "The baby isn't expected to be any different from any other baby," said Mrs. McManis, adding the child was in the newborn nursery. (She) could go home in a few days ... if all continues well."

Mrs. Hicks was returned to the surgical intensive care unit where she was before the Caesarean section, Mrs. McManis said.

During her weeks in the hospital, Hicks would visit his wife at least twice a day.

"At first she wouldn't look around," he said. "She would just open and stare, looking like she was scared. I'd look right at her and tell her, 'Don't worry. You're OK. I'm right here.'"

On Mother's Day, he gave her a silver-embossed card, now taped to the wall, addressed, "To my wife."

Dr. Peter Verrill, an obstetrician who closely watched Mrs. Hicks' pregnancy and delivered Heather Marie, said earlier the woman was healthier than she appeared. "She was severely injured, obviously. But none of her vital organs, except the brain, seems to have been involved critically," he said. Blood clots killed vital cells in Mrs. Hicks' brain. Doctors say they don't know when, or if, she will fully regain consciousness.

Alien smuggling role brings fine, probation

By DAVE LEWIS

Times-News writer

BOISE — Richard Larry Blincoe pleaded guilty Monday in U.S. District Court in Boise to misdemeanor charges stemming from his role in smuggling illegal aliens into Idaho.

Blincoe, manager of one of the oldest and largest family farming operations in Minidoka County, was placed on two years probation, fined $20,000 and ordered to serve 90 days of community service by Judge Harold Ryan.

The sentence was part of a plea-bargaining agreement that reduced the original felony charges filed against Blincoe to misdemeanors, says U.S. Attorney William Van Hole.

A second man named in the indictment, Juan Ortiz, an employee of Blincoe's, also pleaded guilty to one count in the original indictment — unlawfully transporting an illegal alien across the Mexican border. Ortiz, who had a separate plea-bargaining agreement, will be sentenced on Sept. 21, Van Hole says.

A third man named in the indictment, Eduardo Ortega, a Mexican national, did not appear in court.

Blincoe, 41, was arrested in June after a Phoenix grand jury handed down the indictments on May 30 in the indictment, the government said.

Blincoe, Ortiz and Ortega conspired to recruit illegal aliens in central Mexico in April.

After being recruited by Ortiz and Ortega, the nine aliens were brought across the border and lodged in a "safe house" in the Phoenix area April 27, the charges said. Blincoe then supposedly paid $500 to have each worker delivered to his family's farm north of Paul, where they began work on April 29.

A raid on Blincoe's farm in June turned up a total of 21 illegal aliens, who were deported. Blincoe also was charged with violating U.S. Department of Labor statutes by housing the aliens in substandard buildings and paying them substandard wages.

Launch site at base hazardous
 NEW YORK (AP) — The space shuttle's 1985 launch site at Vandenberg Air Force Base has "significant" technical problems that Air Force officials say could result in the shuttle blowing up upon liftoff, NBC News reported Monday.
 Oxygen storage area valves were contaminated with sand and metal particles; liquid was in cables between the command center and the launch pad; and piping valves were cracked, according to reports written July 27 by the prime contractor, Martin Marietta Corp., and obtained by the network.
 These defects created what the report called a "potential for catastrophic failure," NBC reported.
 William Harwood, director of public relations for Martin Marietta, in Bethesda, Md., told The Associated Press on Monday night that he had not seen the report and could not comment.

Iranians clash as GOP meets
 DALLAS (AP) — Three groups of Iranian exiles clashed briefly outside the Dallas Convention Center during a protest Monday shortly after the Republican National Convention opened.
 About two dozen people were involved in the 10-minute melee, started when a folded newspaper was thrown at a group known as the Iranian Students Association. No one was arrested.
 "It was a little shabby there for a minute," Deputy Police Chief William Newman said. "But we're OK now. Everything's under control."
 About 100 Iranians, including members of the World Association of Iranian Monarchist Students and the Iran Society, staged the protest. All three groups are opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, but differ in their beliefs about how Iran should be run.

Reagan talks about economy
 DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — President Reagan, campaigning in America's heartland as the Republican convention convenes, said Monday that Walter F. Mondale peddles "falsehood and fiction" when he says GOP economic policies cater only to the rich.
 The president also urged Mondale to "renounce immediately" his support for legislation that would force car manufacturers to use U.S. parts and labor in constructing automobiles.
 Earlier Monday, in speeches here and in Cincinnati, Reagan took credit for lowering inflation and launching the economic recovery.

Mondale retains confidence
 NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — The financial disclosures filed by Geraldine Ferraro and her husband do nothing to shake Walter F. Mondale's confidence in her as his running mate, Mondale's campaign director said Monday.
 "There is nothing that has come out that undermines my confidence," Jim Johnson said.
 He predicted that once the American press and the public have examined the information released Monday, "they will come to a very positive conclusion about the two of them (Ferraro and her husband) and about their integrity."

Bolivians raid drug factories
 COCHABAMBA, Bolivia (AP) — Police destroyed two large drug factories and confiscated 330 pounds of cocaine, three airplanes and weapons in an opening attack on the multi-billion-dollar industry, drug enforcement sources said Monday.
 The action came two weeks after hundreds of troops occupied the Chapare, the landlocked South American country's main coca leaf-producing region.
 Police led by Interior Undersecretary Gustavo Sanchez left this mountain city Saturday afternoon on military aircraft for Beni province, the low-lying region just north of Chapare where most of Bolivia's cocaine paste is processed and shipped to foreign markets.
 Sources said the police commands on Saturday night attacked the Cotoca ranch 300 miles north of Cochabamba and came under fire from traffickers before destroying a cocaine-producing plant and seizing weapons, cocaine base and money.

Bomb damages bank in Paris
 PARIS (AP) — A bomb exploded Monday night beside the Paris branch of Israel's Bank Leumi, but caused no injuries and only slight damage, police reported.
 Interior Minister Pierre Joxe went to the scene, near the Paris Opera, to oversee the investigation.
 It was the fourth bombing in France in eight days. A group calling itself MS asserted responsibility for two bombings in southeastern France last week, but no one claimed responsibility for the Bank Leumi attack.

IRA backer to emerge today
 BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — An American IRA supporter who eluded a bloody police assault more than a week ago will come out of hiding today and make an appearance in Dublin, the Irish Republican Army's legal political wing announced.
 Martin Galvin, a 34-year-old lawyer who was banned by the British government last month from entering Northern Ireland, will meet reporters in the capital of the Irish Republic before returning to the United States, Sinn Fein said Monday.
 The British government cited strong criticism from opposition leaders because of the ban, which Galvin defied by slipping into Northern Ireland.

Guru didn't know about letter
 PORTLAND (AP) — Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh, responding to a week ago will come out of hiding today and make an appearance in Dublin, the Irish Republican Army's legal political wing announced.
 The 52-year-old Indian guru broke a two-year public silence to give the deposition Sunday at his central Oregon commune-city, Rajneeshpuram.
 The $1 million lawsuit was filed by Donna Smith Quick, a former Annapolis city councilwoman, in response to a letter the guru's personal secretary wrote to the Rajneesh Times in April 1983. Ma Anand Sheela's letter referred to Ms. Quick and others as "bigots."

 were necessary to maintain the company as a going concern."
 Regarding the repayment to the IRS, campaign spokesman O'Brien said the error was discovered by the accounting firm of Arthur Young & Co., hired three weeks ago by the couple. O'Brien said the Internal Revenue Service had not discovered the error, which he attributed to the family's longtime accounting firm, Selgore & Bressman of New York City.
 The accountants in 1978 failed to list as a gain for Ferraro the amount of a mortgage which was assumed by a partner who purchased her interest in a New York City building, the statement said.
 The sale of that building was forced by an investigation of her 1978 campaign by the Federal Election Commission. The commission ruled that her husband had violated federal law by loaning too much money to her campaign. In an effort to repay him $109,000, Ferraro arranged to sell her half-interest in a building at 231 Centre Street in lower Manhattan. She took the proceeds from the sale and loaned them to her campaign, which used the money to repay her husband.

 In addition to that step, the election commission required the campaign to pay a $750 fine, much below the maximum because the campaign claimed to have received bad legal advice.
 Initially, Ferraro and a business associate of her husband, Manny Lerman, had purchased the building in May, 1978, for $175,000. For her half-interest she put up about $25,000 and a $62,250 mortgage. She sold the building to Lerman for $100,000 cash and his agreement to assume her mortgage.
 O'Brien explained that the accountant forgot "to include the mortgage in the statement of her gain. Tax experts said this was not an uncommon error.

 Questions have been raised about the increase in the value of the property in just four months but Monday's disclosures revealed that the building was sold again in November, 1980, for $375,000, $50,000 more than the value placed on it when Ferraro sold it in October, 1978.
 The disclosures also confirmed that in early 1979 Zaccaro purchased the half-interest in the building from Lerman for the exact amount Lerman had paid Ferraro.
 Published reports had suggested that this had been a plan to circumvent the election law. But the campaign's disclosure statements asserted that the entire arrangement was an unnecessarily elaborate process set up by Zaccaro because he did not realize that he could legally buy the property from his wife directly at a fair market price.

Clearing fiscal questions costly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Clearing up questions about their finances will be a costly undertaking for Rep. Geraldine Ferraro and her husband, John A. Zaccaro.

Ferraro, a New York congresswoman who is the Democratic nominee for vice president, and Zaccaro released their tax returns for the past five years Monday along with supporting statements designed to dispel questions that have been raised about their financial dealings.

Because arrests for gambling have been made at the building on four occasions, the statement said, the building will no longer be managed by P. Zaccaro Co., the real estate firm whose stock is wholly owned by Ferraro and her husband.

Some of the costs:

- An additional $29,709 in tax and $23,750 in interest because of what was called an accountant's miscalculation of income from a piece of real estate on their 1978 joint return. Spokesmen for Ms. Ferraro said the error was discovered not by the Internal Revenue Service but by an independent accounting firm hired by the couple.
- Several thousand dollars to hire that firm, Arthur Young & Co., to pore over their records and "do the math."
- Ferraro and Zaccaro are footling the bill, not her campaign, aides said. Other professional accountants said the cost could run more than $75,000.
- Losing a tenant, BO-NA-TE Distributors, Inc., from a seven-story Manhattan warehouse owned by Metro Co. and Zaccaro. Several published reports have said BO-NA-TE has used the warehouse to store pornographic magazines. Zaccaro said his lawyers found no illegal activity being conducted at the building and no grounds for evicting the tenant. Nevertheless, according to a statement released Monday, "Mr. Zaccaro instructed his attorney to notify the tenant that the lease shall not be renewed when it expires on Jan. 31, 1985."
- Loss of income by resigning as management agent of a five-story residential and commercial building in Manhattan's Chinatown section.

Tax figures in summary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a summary of taxes information for 1979 through 1983 by Democratic vice presidential nominee Geraldine A. Ferraro and her husband, John A. Zaccaro, as released by her campaign staff Monday.

The first figure for each year is gross income, the second is taxable income, the third is federal income taxes paid, the fourth is New York state and city income taxes paid and the fifth is total taxes.

Bush says his taxes a secret

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President George Bush says he has no idea how much income tax he pays because his finances are kept secret from him in a blind trust.

Although Rep. Geraldine Ferraro, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, released her tax returns Monday, Bush has maintained that it would be difficult for him to provide similar information.

When President Reagan and Bush were elected in 1980 — Bush placed nearly half his assets in a blind trust. The trustee, W.S. Farish & Co. of Houston, prepares and files the Bushes' tax returns and does not show them to the vice president or his wife.

To release his returns, Bush said in a recent interview, "You have to go to the Government Ethics Committee and get permission to do it and I see no need to do that. I've no interest and no access to information on this topic since the assets were put into the trust."

He added, "I don't even write out my tax return, haven't filled them out, haven't signed my tax returns since I've been in this job."

Bush's spokesman, Peter Teeley, said Bush receives a quarterly report of the overall worth of the blind trust but he does not know where the money is invested. "Nor does he know what he is paying in taxes," Teeley said.

Ms. Ferraro said that between 1979 and 1983, she had a gross income of $32,374 and paid federal, state and city income taxes of $39,922, or 39 percent of her total income.

Her husband, John A. Zaccaro, had gross income of $533,969 in the same years, and paid taxes totaling $220,344 or 41 percent of his total income.

But Bush did disclose his net worth last week, along with tax returns from 1972 to 1980, filed before he and Reagan were elected.

The disclosure showed the vice president and his wife, Barbara, have a net worth and assets of $2.1 million. They listed no liabilities.

Despite vote, let consolidation work

Despite rejection of the Twin Falls City Council's police and fire consolidation plan by a 62-percent margin last week, we think the council should go slow in dismantling those aspects of consolidation which are already under way.

We say that despite the vocal efforts of both genuinely concerned citizens and perennial city government gadflies urging the council toward immediate return to separate, autonomous departments.

Our reasons are simple: one, if consolidation works, it could save the city a considerable sum of money;

Two, the process of consolidation is already under way and appears to be working smoothly under the direction of public safety director Tim Qualls and fire commander Phil Clough. The proposal, in our view, deserves time and consideration, perhaps until the end of the year, to see if it will work.

So why did it lose? Reading the tea leaves of a public vote is always difficult, but in this case, the reasons seem to be rooted in reluctance of the voters to accept a new, and perhaps inadequately explained, proposal; in the early opposition of the firemen; in the linkage of the consolidation to the controversial pool issue on the same day's election; and to the precipitous way in which the council approved the plan without a public hearing.

This latter element is a critical one in our view and it is one which the council can correct if it wants to. At base, it may involve an attitude change by some council members that public involvement is a necessary, ongoing ingredient of policy making, not just something the people apply at election time.

We think some cooling off here would be helpful. The council might begin by conducting both a public opinion survey and some public hearings. In short, it should develop the kind of information campaign that should have been done before the vote.

It is true that Twin Falls people are conservative by inclination, but that does not mean they will not listen to thought-out proposals.

They will, but the ball is in the council's court to present proposals in that fashion. Once again, the community has provided some guidance and awaits community-conscious leadership.

GOP platform has unequivocal mess

WASHINGTON — Comma or no comma, on the matter of an increase in taxes the Republican Party platform is positively ambiguous or ambiguously positive, take your choice.

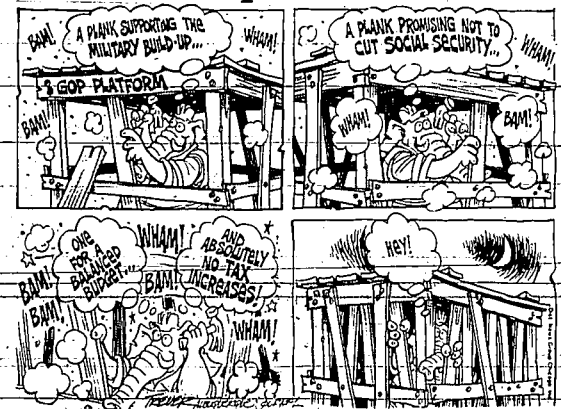

One is reminded of the little old Episcopal lady who loved her toddy; she made a firm pledge that during Lent she would not have a drink unless she really needed one.

But on one issue in public finance the platform is indeed unequivocal: The Republican Party wants a constitutional amendment to compel the adoption of balanced budgets. On this proposition, if I may state the matter mildly, the Republican Party has lost its collective mind.

It is a curious thing about Republicans — about some Republicans, anyhow. They like to think of themselves as "conservatives," but they are obsessed with tinkering with the Constitution. They are forever nattering on about an amendment to prohibit abortion, or an amendment to prohibit racial busing, or an amendment to guarantee the right of the people voluntarily to join in prayer in public buildings. The president's favorite amendment is the balanced budget amendment. It is a turkey if there ever was one.

Oh, the basic idea is generally sound. In principle, the government in peacetime should match outgo to income. "Pay as we go" cried John Randolph of Roanoke a long time ago. It sounds great. But in actual practice the basic idea gets caught in the refusal of Congress to separate an operating budget from a capital budget. Yes, operating expenses, such as the pay of meat inspectors and the purchase of paperclips, ideally should be met from current income.

In the most familiar versions, an amendment would command that "Congress shall adopt" a budget for each fiscal year in which total outlays are no greater than total receipts. No mechanism is provided for enforcing this command. Some drafts continue by saying that total receipts "shall not increase by a rate greater than the rate of increase in national income in the last calendar year ending before each fiscal year." But in most versions such arcane phrases as "national income" are nowhere defined.

James Kilpatrick

Put to one side the flaws in draftsmanship, critical as they are. Let us ask ourselves realistically, what the president would do if his pet amendment were fully operative today. For the 1985 fiscal year, we are looking at prospective revenues of about $750 billion and prospective outlays of about $300 billion, for a deficit of $180 billion. To close that gap, as a balanced budget amendment would demand, we would require 1) a stunning increase in taxes, which the president will not accept; 2) a drastic reduction in defense spending, which the president also rejects; or 3) a virtual wipe-out of all non-defense programs, which the Congress never on earth would agree to. It is only by a combination of new taxes and spartan restraints on spending that income and outgo can be brought within speaking distance of each other.

Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill recently promised that if Reagan would send him a balanced budget he would move it to the floor for a roll-call vote in 48 hours. Any such budget would go down to defeat by roughly 435-0. Something has to be done about our deficits, but an unenforceable, unintelligible amendment to the Constitution will get us nowhere at all.

James Kilpatrick writes his column, "A Conservative View," from Washington.

New phone costs can be a surprise

DENVER — When The Washington Post decided to open a Rocky Mountain bureau in Denver, the editors knew it would involve some minor incidental expenses. The bureau opened this past week, and here's the first incidental:

Would you believe $1,415.60 to buy and install two telephones?

You may think we ordered a pair of solid platinum phones with built-in stereo playing the Paris Opera. In fact, $1,415.60 is the price AT&T Information Systems, the equipment-selling subsidiary of the post-dialysis telephone company, quoted for a pair of traditional desk telephones with two lines and a hold button.

When we balked at the price, the AT&T people challenged us to find a better deal elsewhere. We called a half-dozen competing telephone suppliers — and discovered that everybody else's price was about the same.

The lowest bid received for purchase and installation of two office telephones was $1,265.

"Yeah, that sounds about right," said Bruce Saypol, a lawyer in the Washington office of Wood, Lueckinger & Epstein, a firm with an extensive telephone industry practice. "A thousand or twelve hundred for two sets, that's standard anywhere in the country today."

Why do fairly simple telephones cost so much? The answer, according to Saypol and others, lies largely in two words:

Divestiture and deregulation. "This is all part of the wonderful scheme that our rule-makers thought up," said Phil DeLong of AT&T headquarters in New York.

DeLong was referring to two streams of federal rule-making that have flowed together to create a new world for telephone companies and customers. One is the antitrust decree that took effect Jan. 1, breaking up the Bell System. The other is a series of decisions from the Federal Communications Commission over the past decade or so permitting non-Bell companies to compete in the telephone selling and leasing business.

Before federal regulators started reshaping things, business telephone service was almost entirely a Bell monopoly. The Bell System charged relatively low prices for installation and telephone service but made up the difference with high-profit long-distance charges.

"When you had one entity offering everything, including long distance, then you could subsidize residential and business service," said John Cimko of the FCC. "For example, they would charge less than their cost to wire and install a business phone system because that would generate more long-distance business."

Today, without cross-subsidies, the wiring was a pretty piece of change.

That $1,415.60 quote included about $500 for wiring the office we rented here — even though the previous tenant's lines were still in place. On top of that, the local telephone system, Mountain Bell, charged $166 to connect its own wires.

"A few years ago, before they broke us up," said Ronald Dix, the AT&T technician who came to the office here to set things up, "you could have had the whole ball of wax for a hundred bucks or so."

Another significant change is that, under the FCC rulings, customers can buy the telephones they used to lease from Ma Bell. The prices quoted here were for buying the equipment. That made for a large initial outlay but would save money over time.

"That cost looks big when it hits you all at once," said Saypol, the Washington lawyer, "but if you amortize it over a few years it comes to a lot less than leasing, even when you pay for service calls."

The combination of a competitive market and technological advances have made getting a telephone a much more complex decision than it used to be.

In the same breathless tones that auto dealers used to use, the telephone people offer a galaxy of optional extras like "speed-dialing," "on-hook monitoring" and "hands-free answer-back."

And like the auto dealers, telephone suppliers are in a tizzy over the hot new imports from Japan. "We've got this Toshiba system that you have to try," said the salesman from a local firm called Electro-Tel, "it's programmable, it's fully automatic, it's got every option. We could get you two of those telephones for no more than $4,000."

T.R. Reid is the Denver bureau correspondent for The Washington Post, in which this article first appeared.

Letters/Vasquez explains his views against police-fire consolidation proposal

A lesson in democracy

Since The Times-News came out in favor of consolidation with its sissy editorial and who have repeatedly declined to interview me as chairman of the Citizens Committee Against Consolidation, I will make my views known to the taxpayers by this letter.

The Times-News evidently doesn't want to hear from the Citizens Committee on this issue. Are they afraid of public opinion? Or do they think only their views count on consolidation? They were caught with their bias showing on both issues recently. Come on, Mr. Hartgen, aren't you supposed to be unbiased? You have, in my opinion, lost your credibility to a substantial degree. I, for one, am disappointed in you.

Now to more pleasant things. On behalf of the Citizens Committee Against Consolidation, I would like to thank each and every one who voted against consolidation. Will it do any good? Will the city council take your advice? Does your opinion count? Will the citizens regain control of city hall? Will the city council be public servants or public masters?

As chairman of the Citizens Committee, let me make this message crystal clear: nothing less than a complete dismantling of consolidation will be acceptable. A new fire chief must be hired — no vestige or residue of consolidation left over whatsoever! No waiting period for the public will forget and let the issue "blow over." I'm going to blow over, I guarantee you that right now.

Tuesday's election was a lesson in democracy. The public has spoken, but will its wish be respected or thrown into some garbage can?

I think the city council still doesn't get the point. If you spoke to the public, fellow you would know! They are just fed up with your ineptness, resulting in lost time in getting a new fire chief, wasting taxpayers money.

Remember with tradition, its separation of police and fire departments is what the public really wants.

The sooner you realize this you will save yourself more grief. The Twin Falls public demands and wants "acceptable" behavior from its public officials, and eyebrow-shaving, I will assure you, is not acceptable. A group is judged by its leader.

The heir apparent, Gale Kleinkopf, is a carbon copy of the present mayor — not a dime's worth of difference between both men. And I really expect no difference in attitude from Kleinkopf when he becomes mayor.

Yes, your cohorts will vote you in, Gale, and since you are Mayor's protégé, you must now take the lead: if you want favorable public support, you have to. If not, your majority will be clouded with suspicion right off the bat. The longer you wait to adhere to the public wishes on consolidation, the worse it gets for you. You are the smartest man on the council, although you are totally without compassion for the less fortunate of the citizenry. Your voting record proves that. You are on the hot seat right now. The spotlight is on you, whether you like it or not. You got the ball, what are you going to do with it? You do want to be mayor, don't you?

TV ads should give teenagers a lesson about pregnancy

Teenage pregnancy is a national crisis. In a news feature on Aug. 14, Independent News out of New York City broadcast a television segment which made the startling statement that 79 percent of the pregnancies in Harlem involve unwed mothers. The majority of these unwed mothers are teenagers.

In 1978 the Allen Guttmacher Institute gathered statistics which showed that annually over 10 percent of the teenage population becomes pregnant. By 1981 pregnancies among teenagers had risen to over 11 percent. If the current trend continues four out of 10 women will become pregnant while they are still in their teens.

Ann Thayer of Rocky Mountain Planned Parenthood, their regional office, put it this way, "Most teenagers do not come to Planned Parenthood until after the fact. They walk in because of their fear of pregnancy. They're here for pregnancy tests, not for information about contraception. Less than nine percent of the women who come to Planned Parenthood for help are teenagers."

Many of the experts in human development agree that teenage sexual activity has risen dramatically in the past decade. Some contraceptive information is reaching this age group, but not enough. Painfully, not enough.

The drain on the resources of our country to help these young people is enormous. Many of these children and their infants end up on welfare rolls. The problem isn't confined to any specific racial or income group. It crosses all socio-economic barriers. And the resultant social burden continues to grow.

Even the most liberal television addlet has "secret" body parts. We now have ads for sanitary napkins, tampons, jock-itch powders, hemorrhoidal salves, and scented douches. But sadly, nothing about condoms or other contraceptives. Nothing that might change the trend in teenage pregnancy.

Hopefully that may change. Ronald Alsop of The Wall Street Journal reported in a story several weeks ago that Engare, a vaginal spermicide sold by Thompson Medical Co., is attempting to break the ban on TV contraceptive marketing. They're playing 30 second ads to late-night audiences in Pittsburgh. They hope that if it plays well in Pittsburgh, it may eventually play in Boston. Audience reaction will determine the success or failure of this storming of birth-control information barriers.

The major TV networks' ban on contraceptive advertising reflects their concern to offend viewers. They say they don't wish to offend audiences. And they apparently think that ads for birth-control products will offend the moral and religious beliefs of a segment of their audience. That's the rationale. Never mind the obvious contradiction — graphic violence and gratuitous sex on most major network programs. Frees don't seem to worry about that. It sells products. It sells advertisers. Not contraceptives, to be sure.

One might even make the argument that the continuous display of sexuality on television, in movies and advertising may have been a factor in the recent rise in teenage sexual activity. Everyone does it. Sex is obviously condoned by our society as it is portrayed on television. Teenagers have to keep up with the Joneses just as their parents do. They can't buy a new Mach 5, 2 Car-but sex is cheap and fun and something to do. Until pregnancy.

I suppose it might be poor form to suggest that the major TV networks owe our children information about birth-control products. That they have a moral responsibility to those they have sold on the wonders of the human sex drive. Perhaps, since I am merely postulating in a kind of dream-logic, birth-control advertising could be thought of as equal-time programming — sex in the soaps, birth control in the ads.

It might not dam the flood of teenage pregnancies, but it's a lot better than worried parents sitting in front of the TV set each evening wringing their hands when their daughters are out too late.

Postal union backs off on strike, will attempt binding arbitration

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Backing off from strike threats, members of two unions representing half a million postal workers voted Monday to submit their contract dispute with the Postal Service to binding arbitration.

The union members, who have been working without a contract since July 21, rejected what would have been an illegal strike action in voice votes at separate conventions in Las Vegas.

"We are willing to take our chances with arbitration," said Vincent Sombrotto, president of the 220,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers. "We think the evidence supports our case."

The American Postal Workers Union also voted to allow its executive board to enter the arbitration process.

Now Biller, president of the 300,000-member APWU, said, however, that his union did not vote specifically not to strike.

"This leaves the door open to do whatever we want to do," said Biller. "And Sombrotto said his union reserved the right to call a strike if the Postal Service tries to get around the binding arbitration procedure."

"Let me put the U.S. Postal Service on notice," said Sombrotto. "If it reneges on its commitment to obey the new law or tries once again to cut wages or benefits, our union has given me the power to call a strike."

Both unions, angered by glovebacks demanded by government negotiators, had threatened to call strikes, which are illegal for government workers.

The decision by the letter carriers to go to binding arbitration starts a process that officials say will result in an arbitrated decision sometime in December.

Both groups have been without a contract since last month when they rejected the government's "final offer," which included a three-year wage freeze and a plan to create a two-tier wage scale in which new employees would be paid an average of $5,300 a year less than veterans in the same jobs.

Postmaster General William F. Bolger has vowed to fire strikers and allow private companies to deliver the mail if postal employees walk off the job in defiance of federal law forbidding strikes by government employees. Bolger said earlier he doesn't think the majority of the 520,000 union members want a strike.

Hurricane forces atoll evacuation

HONOLULU (AP) — Hurricane Keli, packing winds of more than 100 mph, forced the evacuation of civilian and military workers from a major military chemical weapons depot on a remote, tiny Pacific atoll.

The 370 military and civilian workers removed from Johnston Atoll late Sunday won't be able to return until the "unguarded" facility is checked for possible storm damage that could cause leaks from a nerve gas dump, officials said Monday.

The workers were flown by two Air Force C-141s to Honolulu, 715 miles to the northeast, after Hurricane Keli shifted direction.

The storm was 60-70 miles southwest of Johnston Atoll on Monday afternoon, moving northwesterly and away from the island at 10 mph, said Saul Price, a National Weather Service meteorologist in Honolulu.

He said the information came from Air Force reconnaissance planes, which flew too high to determine whether the atoll was damaged.

Sustained winds in the eye of the storm were about 115 mph, Price said.

More than 13,000 tons of active and obsolete chemical weapons, including mustard gas and the toxic nerve agents GB and VX, are stored in underground bunkers on Johnston Atoll, a series of small islets with a land mass of 625 acres.

Green Berets do exercise in Honduras

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 200 U.S. Army Green Beret troops began a new counter-insurgency exercise Monday in Honduras, extending the pattern of U.S. maneuvers to demonstrate support of friendly Central American governments.

The Defense Department announced that several detachments from the 7th Special Forces Group from Fort Bragg, N.C., and Fort Gulick, Panama, are taking part in the exercise, which will include a parachute drop near Palmarola air base.

The exercise, named Lempra, will continue through August.

State red-faced from statement

WASHINGTON (AP) — An embarrassed State Department was forced to withdraw a statement Monday marking the 16th anniversary of the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia after it discovered that the text was two years old and contained outdated references to the situation in Poland.

Officials said the 1982 statement was being used as a research aid for this year's annual remarks and was inadvertently given to department spokesman Alan Romberg for release at a news briefing.

The error was detected when a reporter noted that Romberg had said the 1968 invasion occurred 14 years ago instead of 16. Within an hour, the State Department issued the correct statement, without references to Poland, and acknowledged its error.

What's what

Our Love and War man has made a study of extramarital affairs. He says the chances a husband will adventure out in this manner relate directly to his income. If morality has anything to do with it, that doesn't show up in the statistics. They indicate, simply, the more money he makes, the more likely he'll cheat.

A. A sheep.

Search for Red Sea mines may never clear waterways

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — Despite the work of a multinational task force sweeping the Red Sea for the mines that were damaged at least 18 ships, it is unlikely anyone will be able to declare the sea "100 percent clean," the commander of the U.S. force said Monday.

British and U.S. forces spent their fourth day Monday trying to recover a mine from the Red Sea or the Gulf of Aden, neither they nor the French and Egyptian minesweepers also active in the area have located one.

The U.S. force is searching main shipping lanes and shallower water where the mines would be most effective, said Commodore Alvin S. Newman. A large amount of debris on the seabed has made the search extremely difficult, U.S. military officers said.

In Rome, two cabinet ministers said Italian naval vessels could leave as early as Tuesday to help in the minesweeping. The ministers spoke immediately after the Cabinet approved a plan to send assistance to the strategic Red Sea.

Italian press reports have said Italy would send three minesweepers, a naval support ship and 250 personnel from the Ligurian sea port of La Spezia to the base of Hadabeya in the Suez Gulf. The fleet would take about a week to arrive and would operate solely in Egyptian waters, the reports said.

French officials said they found nothing suspicious in a search of a Libyan ship that a British newspaper said was suspected of laying the mines.

The Ghat was stopped in the Mediterranean on Saturday and inspected by the French customs service, a customs official in Saint-Louis du Rhone, near Marseille, said Monday. "We found nothing," he said. He spoke on condition of anonymity.

The Sunday Times reported in London that evidence linking the Ghat to the mining was circumstantial. However, it quoted a British Foreign Office official as saying, "The finger seems to be pointing at the Ghat."

Egyptian officials have said Libya, and possibly Iran, are suspects in the mining. Both countries have denied laying the mines.

The U.S. ships Shreveport and LaSalle and their seven minesweeping helicopters have made no sonar contact with any suspicious objects, according to U.S. Embassy sources who spoke on condition of anonymity. Another U.S. ship reportedly made 12 sonar contacts, but divers found no mines.

The Shreveport is working in the central part of the Gulf of Suez, which leads from the Red Sea to the Suez Canal. The LaSalle is serving as a base for three helicopters that are checking the waters of the Saudi Arabian port of Jeddah, about 500 miles to the south.

Soviet media mocks Republican platform

MOSCOW (AP) — Official Soviet media on Monday denounced the Republican Party platform as a "kiddy-language document" that will isolate the United States internationally and do nothing to improve relations with the Soviet Union.

In a series of commentaries that condemned the Republican convention in Dallas even before it opened, two Soviet news agencies and the government newspaper Izvestia stressed what they called the anti-Soviet nature of President Reagan's policies and the platform.

The government news agency

Novosti said "confrontation with the Soviet Union means playing with fire."

Melior Sturua, a frequent commentator on U.S. affairs, wrote in Izvestia that "the foreign policy section of the (Republican platform) is a real collection of hegemonism and international terrorism which have elevated to the ranks of state policy" under Reagan.

The GOP platform "has been worked out by the ultrarightist wing and really reflects the global appetites of American-imperialism," he wrote.

Taylor asks Welsh burial

PONTRHYDYFEN, Wales (AP) — Elizabeth Taylor wants to fulfill a pledge she made to Richard Burton to be buried in his Welsh birthplace, his relatives said Monday.

The 52-year-old actress hugged Burton's relatives before diving off with eight suitcases and an oil painting depicting the miner's cottage in Pontrhydyfen where the late actor, whom she married and divorced twice, was born.

With tears in her eyes, Miss Taylor got into a chauffeur-driven Mercedes without talking to reporters outside the modest row house of Burton's sister, Hilda Owen, where she spent the night.

Officials make tour for peace

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — Indian and Pakistani officials toured Persian Gulf nations Monday in a diplomatic effort to end the Iran-Iraq war, amid reports that Tehran was gearing up for its long-anticipated ground-offensive into southern Iraq.

Pakistani Foreign Minister Yacoub Khan, who was in Qatar on Monday after visits to Saudi Arabia and Kuwait, said his country supported the resumption of mediation attempts by Islamic nations to end the 4-year-old war. And Ramesh Bhandari, undersecretary of the Indian Foreign Ministry, was on a similar tour to Kuwait and Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

In Tehran, the Iranian joint staff command issued a communique saying more than 70 Iraqi soldiers were killed or wounded in the previous 24 hours as fighting intensified along the southern front.

It also said artillery duels continued in the central and southern sectors, and Iraqi shells struck the port cities of Khorramshahr and Abadan, wounding two civilians and damaging twelve buildings.

The claim of 70 Iraqi casualties was the highest in four days, but no major encounters were reported.

An Iraqi war communique released in Baghdad said one Iranian soldier was killed and several were wounded by Iraqi shelling of border positions. It said the action occurred in the central zone of the 730-mile frontline.

Pope plans stop

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Pope John Paul II plans a brief stop in the center of Peru's guerrilla warfare zone to plead for peace while on his tour of three Latin American countries early next year, the Roman Catholic archbishop of Lima announced.

Cardinal Juan Landazuri Ricketts said the pope would spend about one hour at the airport of the state capital of Ayacucho. Ayacucho to give a message of peace in the area where more than 3,000 people have been killed in four years of guerrilla war.

Uruguayans freed prisoner

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — The military government Monday freed Juan Ferreira, more than two months after he was arrested along with his father, National Party leader Wilson Ferreira Aldunate, while returning from exile.

Meanwhile, former Spanish Premier Adolfo Suarez, who arrived Sunday to help in the senior Ferreira's legal defense, said the government had asked him to leave Uruguay within 24 hours.

Suarez told The Associated Press that Interior Ministry officials gave him written notice that he must leave by 7 p.m. on Tuesday and accused him of violating the restrictions of his tourist visa.

"I'm not going to sign the notification without knowing what the supposed transgression is," Suarez said. He said the request did not specify if Juan Ferreira was released upon the order of a military judge, who granted a defense request that he be freed from imprisonment at a military base while his case is tried.

Sun Valley Center boots out Hart

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

SUN VALLEY — Institute of the American West Director Richard Hart, along with the annual conference he organized, have been ousted from the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities. But Hart's work will persevere.

Matt Cullen, director of regional programs with the Lincoln Institute of Land Policy, announced Saturday at the final session of the "Parks in the West" conference that he will join Hart to form a new organization to examine an even wider range of issues.

The Institute of the North American West, the new organization, has applied for tax-exempt status in Washington state and will hold its first conference next year. If funding can be found by then, Cullen said.

The new institute will tackle issues in locations from Mexico to Alaska. It will roam its newly-staked territory by moving conferences to the homes of the issues they address, and not confine itself to any one location, he said.

Cullen will leave the Lincoln Institute, the co-sponsor of the last-concluded "Parks" conference, to form the new organization. Hart will continue his work with the Zuni Indian tribe in the Southwest as well as on other projects and will join Cullen on a part-time basis to organize the new conferences.

Hart's forced departure and the dropping of the conference from the Institute of the American West is another thickening of the cloud that hangs over the examination of public policy.

Although there is no reason to believe they are related, the loss of the Sun Valley program coincides with cuts in public funds for projects like Hart's and the charge that the Reagan administration is trying to muzzle criticism of public policy.

Under the directorship of William Bennett, the National Endowment for the Humanities has emphasized research and education programs and de-emphasized programs that would discuss public policy when it considers funding. Bennett has been criticized for politicizing the agency and trying to stifle criticism of public policy.

The Association for the Humanities in Idaho has not followed the direction of the national organization, says Tom Reybus, acting director of the association.

It has, however, begun a more critical review of proposals for programs dealing with public policy, making sure they really are in the area of humanities. Reybus says this is happening for two reasons: a cut in funds from the national organization and because of the criticism the association received from Sen. Steve Symms for a Russian awareness program it helped fund last year.

Symms' criticism was followed by an audit of the association's books to see if funds from the national organization were being spent properly.

In the past, Hart says he had exceptional support from the Association for the Humanities in Idaho and its former director, David Hansen. But, he says, that support ended after last year's conference.

Hart believes there is a trend toward the stifling of any criticism of Reagan. He believes that trend extends into Idaho and every state and he sees the trend as an erosion of freedom of

Council faces citizens after vote

Voters offer comments on proposals

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council Monday faced city residents in the aftermath of the defeat of two council-backed issues in a special election last week.

On one issue — they received praise; on the other, advice.

Seven of eight residents who approached the podium to talk about the council's plans to consolidate the Police and Fire Departments supported that policy, and urged its continuation, despite a 62 percent vote against it.

On the pool bond, a spokeswoman for Idaho Neighbors Network, as well as several others, offered advice as to how the city should proceed with new proposals.

The tone of the seven who spoke in favor of consolidation was set by the first, radio talk show host Jim Koutnik.

He said the consolidation policy was the victim of people, angry about the pool proposal, "taking a swing at government."

He said people didn't know enough about the issue and were confused by the way it was presented on the ballot.

He couldn't see how residents could suffer from policemen and firemen knowing something about each other's jobs. "Give it a try, it's going good so far."

Others in favor included the wife of one of the city's new public safety officers, Dana Waters, who said her husband, a former Blaine County deputy sheriff, could have saved property at his old job if he had fire-suppression training.

Airport board chairman Dick Shotwell said it was "neumbent" on the council to continue looking for methods to improve city services.

The lone voice in opposition was

Pam Shropshire, who led discussion on the pool issue, would still like to see an open air pool built at Harmon Park that of firefighter Monty Lee, who said he only dared speak because he had only two years left until retirement.

He said consolidation has failed numerous times, because people can't train to be both policemen and firemen equally well.

"I can see where this (fire) department is going to go down, down to volunteers. I'm glad I've only got two years left to go," he said.

The discussion on the pool was opened by Pam Shropshire, a spokeswoman for Idaho Neighbors Network, a citizens action group that opposed the recent $2 million bond proposal.

She suggested that the city build a pool similar to that proposed for Twin Falls High School, except leave off the roof and build it at Harmon Park where the city could retain full control.

While she was not a pool expert, she said she had heard this would cost around $1.5 million. Network members would support a bond issue of up to $500,000 to augment city funds, if necessary, she said.

Response to her comments came from Councilman Gale Kleinkopf, a chief supporter of the failed project, who said there were several reasons why building at Harmon Park would cost more. One was that the U.S. Geological Survey had estimated geothermal water would be 10 degrees colder there, meaning there would have to be some form of supplemental heating system.

Another reason was that, because Harmon Park was higher, water would have to be pumped out of the well.

Burger King not allowed playground

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Council Monday denied the application of Jet Enterprises-Burger King to place playground equipment within the 35-foot setback from Blue Lakes Boulevard North.

The council also heard testimony on a number of proposed changes to the city's main land-use maps, including vehement opposition to the extension of the industrial zone southeast of the Amalgamated Sugar Co. factory. The packages of changes has been proposed by the city Planning and Zoning Commission, but the council took no action on it Monday.

The 43 vote turning down the request of the Idaho Falls company that owns the local Burger King marks the final defeat of its attempt to match the playground equipment of competitor McDonalds across the street.

Council members Mary McClusky, John Peterson, Erik Andersen and Gale Kleinkopf voted against the company, while Mayor Emery Petersen, Jack Miller and Doug Vollmer voted for it.

The vote came after Winston Beard, an attorney representing the company, had argued the council should approve the request, because it was a good project that the company could not do elsewhere, and because it was unfair to deny it when other businesses along Blue Lakes also encroached.

Nevertheless, McClusky argued it was dangerous to allow a play area so close to a major thoroughfare, and Andersen said he thought there were other areas on the site where the same equipment, including a 17-foot-high slide, could be installed.

Testimony against the land-use changes included seven residents of the area southeast of the sugar factory, who opposed an extension of the industrial zone there. They said it would devalue their property unnecessarily, when there is ample industrial land in the city.

Lawyer to attend tonight's closed school board session

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School Board will not be meeting alone at a closed session scheduled tonight at 7 in the district administration building.

The board has asked attorney Ed Benoit to attend the meeting. It will be the first meeting in at least a year the board has paid an attorney to attend.

And a crowd of parents and business people concerned about the district's administration is also expected to show up. They will rally on the building's steps and may circulate a petition expressing disapproval of district administration.

The closed meeting is being called as "a continuation of a discussion of problems we see facing the district and solutions available," said Board Chairman Gene Champin.

At a board meeting a week ago, the board and a crowd of angry school district patrons and employees heard a proposal by Superintendent Gary Piller to restructure district administration.

The audience panned the proposal as unfair to assistant Superintendent Carl Snow, who would share control of such services as food and maintenance with the district's clerk-treasurer. The board later rejected the proposal.

Some in the crowd also criticized the current administration for contributing to low morale in the school district.

"There is definitely some unrest in the district to the degree that when school starts people may be thinking about district unrest instead of about school. I would like to get the problem resolved before school starts,"

Champin added.

Board member Robert Knighton, however, said that "what we are dealing with is not just a disagreement between an assistant superintendent and a superintendent but something much larger."

In June, the board evaluated Piller's performance following allegations that his management style might be linked to declining morale among district employees.

Policy change upsets county officials

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Two Jerome County elected officials complained Monday afternoon that a proposed county personnel policy would strip them of authority over their departments.

Sheriff Eliza Hall and County Treasurer Elsie Childers said they do not like anything about the proposed department head objections to the personnel handbook unveiled in the commission meeting Monday.

"I was elected to run my department and I think I should be the one to decide who I hire or who I let go," Childers said.

A meeting of department heads including the elected officials was called Monday afternoon to review department head objections to the proposed handbook. The county commissioners drafted the policy based on one in use in Lincoln County and on state regulations. Until now, there has been no such written policy in Jerome County.

Sheriff Eliza Hall objected "to the whole package" but added, he especially, didn't like the fact that commissioners named themselves as the board of appeals for any grievance employees may have and that an employee who is fired would appeal to the commissioners.

He suggested an outside panel be set up to hear the grievances, preferably one of elected officials in other counties whose offices corre-

CSI officials plan to build addition to Taylor

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — College of Southern Idaho officials will make plans to build a 7,000-square-foot addition on the east side of the Taylor Administration Building, following approval by the CSI Board.

The new division would house an expanded bookstore, student services, such as counseling, and financial aid offices.

That would vacate some of the present space in the Taylor Building. CSI President Gerald Meyerhoefer proposes using it for Continuing Education offices and for administrators of the vocational division who now have offices in the Vocational Center on the other side of the campus.

The proposed two-story addition would solve several of the college's problems, Meyerhoefer said at the monthly meeting Monday.

Combining academic and vocational administration and counseling services in the same offices would help unify the vocational and academic divisions. Unifying the two divisions was one of the recommendations of the Northwest Accreditation Association and a goal of college administrators for several years.

The plan would also free up secretaries on both the academic and vocational side of the campus, to give faculty more clerical support. And it would make more space available in the Shields Building. If the nursing department there were moved to the vacant offices in the Vocational Center.

State may lift order on Castleford water

CASTLEFORD — An order to boil drinking water in Castleford may be lifted this morning, if tests on the city's contaminated water supply prove it is now safe to drink, state environmental engineer Gary Burkett says.

If the order is lifted, Castleford schools will open Wednesday morning for the 1983-84 school year, after a two-day delay, says Superintendent Robert Hutchins. Burkett says the city put additional chlorine into the city's water tank on Friday and had hoped to drop the order by Monday. However, because warm water was trapped at the top of the 20-foot tank, the chlorine was slow to disperse throughout the water, he said.

By Sunday evening, the chlorine had reached the bottom of the tank. Samples were taken then and again Monday morning for tests that take 24 hours to complete, Burkett said. If the tests show no more contamination, the order will be lifted.

The problem probably arises when the aquifer around Castleford becomes contaminated with animal waste, because of heavy irrigation on land used to carry stock animals, Burkett said.

Normally, a city's chlorination system can easily handle the contamination, but Castleford's has not worked properly and in recent summers the state has ordered residents to boil their water.

Briefly

Sellers trial date scheduled
JEROME — The first-degree murder trial of Cory Sellers, 18, of Hazelton, will begin Nov. 12.
 The date was set Monday in Fifth District Court in Jerome and is expected to continue through the week.
 Sellers was bound over to district court for trial following a closed preliminary hearing in June.
 He is accused of the beating death of his neighbor, Faye Ostler, 67, at her Hazelton home on May 24.
 Her bludgeoned body was found in her home by firemen who answered a fire alarm. Officers said it appeared the murderer had set the house on fire following the crime. Sellers turned himself over to officers at the scene while the murder investigation was under way.
 He has been in the Jerome County jail since that time. No bond has been set.

Trial scheduled in rape case
TWIN FALLS — A man charged with raping a Twin Falls woman after threatening her with a knife last fall will go to trial today.
 David Poulignon, 44, of 422 Nebraska St. in Gooding, also has been charged with burglary in connection with an incident that allegedly occurred Oct. 1 at the woman's residence on the 300 block of Fifth Avenue North.
 The woman reported that Poulignon, whom she had met at a bar earlier in the evening, followed her home, according to a complaint filed with Fifth District Court. Upon answering her door, he held a knife to her back and then raped her.
 Poulignon will be represented at the trial by the Twin Falls Public Defender's office. Judge Danjel Mehl will preside.

Budd released in drug trial
JEROME — Ronald Eugene Budd, 38, of Hazelton, was released Monday on a $10,000 bond set by Fifth District Magistrate Court following his arraignment last week on drug charges.
 Budd is accused of delivery of a controlled substance including cocaine and heroin. A preliminary hearing is pending in magistrate court.

Four injured in collision
HAZELTON — A two-car collision east of Hazelton sent four people to the hospital for observation Monday morning.
 The accident occurred when a car driven by Elizabeth Nicole Rarick, 17, of Hazelton failed to yield the right of way and drove into the path of a vehicle driven by George William Buxton of Hazelton, Jerome County Sheriff's officials said. Rarick was cited for failure to yield right of way.
 The accident occurred at 8:10 a.m. on Milner road, a half mile east of Ridgeway road.
 Both drivers and two passengers in the Rarick vehicle were taken by Cassia County ambulance to St. Benedict's Family Medical Center in Jerome. Cpl. Ray Clark of the Jerome County Sheriff's office said Rarick was northbound and turning west from a private road onto the Milner Highway.
 Buxton, driving a Bean Growers Warehouse Association Inc. vehicle, attempted to stop but was unable to avoid a head-on collision. The Rarick sedan was demolished and the pickup truck driven by Buxton sustained $2,500 damage. Rarick's passengers, Jerry Amason and John Rarick, both 14, and another child of Hazelton, and the drivers were released after emergency treatment.

 Two counts of conspiracy to sell marijuana on March 27 and LSD on April 27 also have been filed against O'Dell.
 The suspect, who will be represented by a public defender, was being held in Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of $1,500 bond.

Scott appointed as panelist

TWIN FALLS — President Reagan has appointed Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, to the Commission on Presidential Scholars.
 The commission is a group of private citizens who select 141 high school seniors from across the nation each year to be named Presidential Scholars. Scholars have been selected in the last 20 years on the basis of academic achievement or their accomplishments in the visual and performing arts.
 Scott will receive no money for serving on the commission, but the Department of Education provides administrative support for the commission's activity, according to a press release. The position will include federally-paid trips to Washington.
 Scott says she has not yet been told the extent of her duties on the commission.
 She is a native of Filer who just completed her first term as a member of the Idaho State Legislature.
 Her appointment was announced by Sens. Jim McClure and Steve Symms. "I know that Donna will represent Twin Falls as a commissioner as well as she does as a legislator," Symms said. "This is an excellent appointment and one that Idaho can be proud of."
 "I think the president has made an outstanding choice by naming Donna to the commission," McClure said.

Hart

 In what served as Hart's farewell address on the last day of the "Parks" conference, the outgoing director spoke strongly to that subject. He began by calling on the concept of power defined by the Zuni Indians he knows well.
 "In Zuni, wealth is spiritual and knowledge is power. If knowledge is power, diffusion of knowledge is freedom. If knowledge is power, knowledge is power exercised. Knowledge dispersed is power diffused. Acquiring knowledge relative to a people requires dissemination, that knowledge to the people."
 He went on: "The scholarly world has a moral obligation for the dissemination of knowledge to students and to the public. If knowledge is power, to a certain extent, public education is essential to democracy."
 "However different our ideas, the free exchange of those ideas is essential to freedom."
 "Those politicians, of any party, who attempt to stifle the free exchange of ideas, to censor the discussion of the humanities and public policy — I believe those politicians must be defeated and replaced."

Policy
 spond to the one in Jerome County where a grievance might occur.
 "These people are familiar with the way the county offices work and are in a better position to rule fairly on this dispute," I fall told the commissioners.
 Prosecuting Attorney Dan Adamson said he had been contacted by department heads and asked to present some of the objections to the policy. It was released to department heads in a recent executive session and department heads met separately last week to review it.
 The general consensus of opinion, Adamson said, was that a policy is needed and except for six specific areas, managers agree with the current proposal. However, he said there is some feeling that certain areas of the policy would take the control away from department heads and give it to the county commissioners.
 Adamson recommended the commission and other elected officials get together and name a panel of three people to handle appeals. He said one county commissioner might be included on the panel and that a panel be named at the beginning of each year.
 He listed six specific areas he said raised objections. Largely all involved authority being allocated from departments to commissioners.
 Commissioners took no action on the policy or objections to it Monday before moving on to other business matters.

 "There's no flaw in the plan except for the money it will take," Meyerhoefer said.
 He expects the addition to cost from $25,000 to $30,000. About $10,000 of that could come from the Department Housing Commission fund. The commission administers profits from the bookstore, cafeteria and bookstores.
 It is restricted to using the money for upkeep or construction of facilities for related student services. But the money cannot be used for operating expenses — to build classrooms, Meyerhoefer said.
 Another $150,000 could be spent from the plant facility fund. That money also cannot be used for operating expenses, but instead must be used for such things as street paving and construction.

PUC looks at Idaho Power plan to change accounting

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Power Co. could avoid extremes in its revenue and profits — and make customers happier — if it adopted a new accounting procedure, a Public Utilities Commission staff member says.

The PUC on Monday opened hearings on a staff proposal designed to require Idaho Power to use "normal" streamflows as the base for its profits.

In periods of high stream flow, when Idaho Power can generate surplus electricity for sale elsewhere, the utility makes more profit. In low-water years, said Robert E. Smith, the utility must turn to more expensive forms of power generation such as coal-fired plants.

Smith, director of rates and engineering for the PUC, testified on a staff-prepared proposal to require

Idaho Power to use some of its profits from high-water years to offset higher costs in drought years.

The PUC made no immediate decision on the proposal.

The proposal could avoid surcharges as was necessary in 1977 when there was a drought, Smith said. Idaho Power customers had to pay more because the utility had reduced use of its hydroelectric dams for generation.

"Normalization" of income would help avoid "swings in rates as conditions for hydro power generation fluctuate from good to poor," Smith said in prefilled testimony.

The staff is suggesting some form of either deferred income or deferred expense accounting. That means higher than average profits from good-water years could be set aside to offset lower revenue from dry years, Smith said.

Such a procedure would give the utility benefits both with investors and customers, he said.

It would stabilize income, and thus make Idaho Power more attractive to investors. And customers wouldn't face the prospect that Idaho Power would report low earnings in years of low water, but sharp profit increases the next year, he said.

"The fact that the company has come out of a very dry-year into a very wet year, which is responsible for the increase in profits... is often not taken into consideration by the customers," he said.

Lower investor risk expectations could produce lower rates because the cost of borrowing money would be less, he said.

McClure's bid for majority post to receive nationwide attention

DALLAS (AP) — James McClure's bid to become the leader of U.S. Senate Republicans will get national exposure here on Wednesday.

And the Idaho Republican says he thinks his chances to be named Senate majority leader aren't too bad.

"There are four or five in the race, and at this point, my chances are as good as anyone's," said McClure, in a telephone interview Monday.

Although not a member of the Idaho delegation, McClure will serve as a floor leader.

When it comes time for Idaho to cast its 21 votes Wednesday night, delegation chairman Secretary of State Pete Cenarrusa plans to cast them for Ronald Reagan — and put in a plug for McClure.

McClure is running for his third U.S. Senate term this year. He's considered a strong favorite over Democrat Pete Bush.

If he wins, and the GOP holds on to its razor-thin edge in the Senate, McClure said he wants to run for the majority job being vacated by Howard Baker of Tennessee.

Ted Stevens of Alaska was the first to announce, Robert Dole of Kansas was the second and McClure was the third to get into the race.

Latest entries into the field are Pete Domenici of New Mexico and Richard G. Lugar of Indiana, McClure said.

"McClure said he expects little controversy as the president is re-nominated along with Vice President George Bush. "The controversies over platform and resolutions were settled last week," he said.

The state of Utah, which gave Reagan more than 70 percent of its vote four years ago, has a preferred position in the convention center as the state with the best Reagan turnout: Idaho is right beside Utah, thanks to more than 66 percent support for Reagan.

"Utah beat us out last time, but next time we'll be the top state for Reagan," McClure said.

IHA releases funding for mortgage subsidy

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Housing Agency is making another $50 million available to subsidize home mortgage loans for Idaho families.

The agency's board voted Monday to approve the sale of another $50 million in bonds. Income from the tax-exempt securities will be used to subsidize loans at 10.7 percent, about 4 percent below the market rate.

IHA Board Chairman Lammont Jones said the board signed a bond purchase agreement Monday with Salomon Brothers, Inc., an investment banking firm.

Director Robert Kucab said the mortgage money will be made available to 30 lending institutions across the state. He said the lenders can start taking applications immediately, but the loans can't be closed until the bond issue is closed on Sept. 19.

Gov. John Evans said in a news release the money can fund about 1,000 mortgage loans. About 30 percent of the money can be used for new construction, which means it will finance about 300 new homes, the governor said.

Tax experts estimated the latest bond issue will help generate $1.7 million in state tax revenue, the governor said.

Since it was created in 1978, the Idaho Housing Agency has provided more than $300 million in home mortgage financing. Kucab said some 8,200 loans have been underwritten.

A borrower's annual gross income must be under $28,000 for a single person, going up $1,500 for each additional family member.

Market value must be under $60,000 for existing properties and $68,500 for new construction.

New mobile homes are eligible, the home must be used by the buyer as his or her main residence and the borrower cannot have owned a home in the last three years. But the last requirement has been eliminated for 18 of Idaho's 44 counties.

Under the program, only conventional loans with a 5 percent minimum down deposit are available. Builders also have several options whereby they can "buy down" the mortgage to lower the rate for a few years.

Utah voters heading to polls today

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Utah voters trek to the polls today in a dog days summer primary to pick the cast for autumn general election battles for the coveted governor's office, and for the 2nd District congressional seat.

The gubernatorial race marks the first time in 16 years that Democrats have not had a strong, popular incumbent to keep Republicans at bay in the fight for state's highest elective office.

Democratic Gov. Scott M. Matheson is stepping down after two terms. Before Matheson, Calvin Rampton held the office for three terms.

Republicans, who hold every other major state and congressional office in Utah, believe Matheson's departure has given them an excellent opportunity to capture the office that has eluded them for two decades.

The primary, nevertheless, has been largely devoid of controversy, but rife with similarities among the candidates who have based their campaigns more on personality and professional experience than on issues.

The lack of controversy, plus the scheduling of the primary during the vacation days of August for the first time, is expected to result in a relatively low voter turnout.

The Legislature moved the primary date from September to August to allow more time for general election campaigning.

The Republican gubernatorial candidates, Utah House Speaker Norm Bangertler and U.S. Rep. Dan Marriott, have been particularly cordial with one another, while emotions have run higher and tempers hotter among Democrats.

Democratic hopefuls are former Congressman Wayne Owens, a Salt Lake City attorney and member of the Board of Regents, and Ken Gardner, a commercial real estate developer and chairman of the Regents.

In the 2nd District GOP primary, Lt. Gov. David Monson competes with Salt Lake City Councilwoman Alice Shearer for the party's nomination. The winner faces Democratic nominee Frances Farley in the general election.

Bangertler, 51, and Marriott, 44, agree in principle on major issues, differing only in the degree to which they support or oppose particular causes.

Both has taken a wait-and-see attitude toward federal proposals that could bring a nuclear waste repository to Gibson Dome, near Canyonlands National Park in southern Utah. Each has said he won't decide whether to veto construction of the waste dump until all studies are complete.

Briefly

Girl dies in head-on crash

BOISE (AP) — A Horseshoe Bend girl died early Sunday in a head-on collision on state Highway 52 just east of the Boise County line.

State Police identified the accident victim as Dana N. Gardner, 16.

Gardner was eastbound a mile and a half east of the Gem-Boise county line when a westbound car driven by Lewis Morgan, 40, Montclair, crossed into the opposite lane, police said.

The cars collided head on, throwing Gardner from her car, police said. She was dead at the scene. Morgan was taken to St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center for treatment of ankle injuries.

Robber wears Reagan mask

BOISE (AP) — The real one's awaiting nomination in Dallas. But police say they're looking for a man who wore Ronald Reagan mask Sunday night while robbing a Boise pizza parlor.

Police said two men entered the business just as it was closing, demanded all its cash, and then fled on foot.

One man was wearing a Ronald Reagan mask, officers said, and the other was wearing a stocking over his head. The loss was not disclosed.

Artificial hip maker sued

BOISE (AP) — Frank W. Dryden, a Nez Perce County resident, is asking unspecified damages in a federal court lawsuit filed against a company that manufactures artificial hips.

Dryden filed the lawsuit here last week. He said he had a total hip transplant in 1976, but began experiencing pain two years ago and subsequently discovered the hip device had broken.

He asks damages to be determined later against the manufacturer of the artificial hip, Zimmer, Inc., of Indiana.

Boisean hurt in glider wreck

BOISE (AP) — A 25-year-old Boise man is listed in serious but stable condition in a Boise hospital after falling an estimated 600 feet to the ground in a weekend hang-glider accident.

Kevin B. Eby was being treated at St. Alphonsus Regional Medical Center for head injuries.

Ada County sheriff's deputies said Eby apparently crashed to the ground Sunday afternoon while hang-glider eight miles north of Boise. Area residents said they went to investigate after losing sight of the man below the crest of a hill.

No foul play seen in death

COBUR D'ALENE (AP) — An autopsy on a Seattle man whose body was found by railroad tracks in Post Falls last week shows no indication of foul play, officials said Monday.

John Walker, 66, died of massive injuries to the upper body, according to preliminary reports by a forensic pathologist in Missoula, Mont. But the report said Walker was alive when he left the Amtrak train he was riding.

The train had left Seattle Aug. 7, bound for Chicago, officials have said.

Walker's body was found last Tuesday along Burlington Northern right-of-way near State Highway 53.

Jones says law must change

BOISE (AP) — Idaho must change or abandon a state law requiring timber from state lands to be processed or manufactured within the state.

Attorney General Jim Jones said in an opinion that the law is clearly unconstitutional.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently ruled against an Alaska law which is less restrictive than the Idaho statute, Jones said. "Because the Alaska regulation was declared to violate the commerce clause of the U.S. Constitution, the Idaho provision is also clearly unconstitutional," he said.

INEL finally removes fallen shipping cask

IDAHO, FALLS (AP) — A 135-ton nuclear waste shipping cask (finally has been moved from the spot where it fell in an accident Aug. 8, officials at the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory say.

The shipping cask, carrying nuclear waste from one INEL installation to a waste management plant, fell off a flatbed truck on Aug. 8. Since then, the container had remained there, while INEL tried to rouse up cranes heavy enough to move it.

Anne Hosford, INEL public affairs specialist, said Monday two commercial cranes from Idaho Falls managed to lift the shipping cask onto a truck Friday night. It took eight hours for crews to prepare the ground for the move, she said.

The shipping cask was moving nuclear waste such as radioactive contaminated gloves and paper, from the Naval Reactor facility to the waste plant five miles away.

The cask fell inside a fenced compound at the naval reactor, Ms. Hosford said.

INEL planned a safety meeting Monday afternoon and if there were no complications, the shipping cask was to complete its five-mile trip later in the day, she said.

Council receives wastewater grant

BOISE (AP) — The city of Council has received a $97,500 state grant to upgrade its wastewater treatment system.

The project will cost a total of $130,000, with the city paying $32,500, state officials said.

Health and Welfare Department officials say the grant was given to correct existing and potential health hazards and water quality problems in the Council area.

Steelers waive Harris

By The Associated Press

Only 363 yards shy of breaking professional football's career rushing record, Franco Harris was placed on waivers Monday by the Pittsburgh Steelers following a month-long contract dispute.

"It's over," Steelers President Dan Rooney said of the team's relationship with the training camp.

The unexpected move means that the 34-year-old Harris — who ran for 1,007 yards in 1983 — can be claimed by any of the other 27 National Football League teams.

"We did everything we could to sign Franco," Rooney said at a hastily called news conference at Three Rivers Stadium.

"We initiated the negotiations in March and negotiated in good faith throughout the month. We wanted to do this right and we wanted him to get the record."

Harris, in the option year of a contract that would have paid him $385,000, refused to report to the Steelers' training camp on July 20 and has not played in any of the Steelers' three exhibition games.

The club's decision to end the negotiations and its association with Harris came a week after the Steelers prematurely issued a news release reporting Harris' signing.

But their talks then broke down — apparently over Harris' refusal to agree to an option year provision.

The Steelers then decided that with fullbacks Frank Pollard and Elton Veals running well during the pre-season, Harris — advancing in age and out of camp for a month — was not vital to their 1984 plans.

Harris' 11,950 career yards rank only behind Jim Brown's NFL career-best total of 12,312. His eight 1,000-yard seasons are an NFL record and he gained 1,000 or more yards in each of the Steelers' four Super Bowl championship seasons. He gained 1,556 yards in playoff games alone.

The Steelers cut six other players including two veterans — running back Henry Odom and safety Greg Best.

The Denver Broncos made two deals and seven cuts as NFL teams began trimming their rosters. They must pare them to 60 before 4 p.m. Tuesday.

They acquired Butch Johnson, who last spring asked to be traded by the Dallas Cowboys. This time the Houston Oilers traded him, to the Broncos for a 1985 third-round draft choice.

In addition to acquiring Johnson, the Broncos dealt punter Luke Prestridge for a draft choice to New England. Denver also waived two veterans, right end Ron Egloff and running back Nathan Poole, along with five other agents.

The Green Bay Packers, meanwhile, dropped veteran quarterback David Whitehurst, a sometime starter during his seven years with the Packers. They also cut veteran nose tackle Charlie Johnson and Calvin Favron, a former St. Louis Cardinal who had joined them as a free agent.

The Steelers' Franco Harris won't be wearing his old uniform anymore

Safety Vernon Perry, a one-time playoff hero for Houston, was let go by his old Houston coach, Bum Phillips, at New Orleans. The Saints also cut special teams star Tom Mautl — who had asked to be released — as well as three free agents and linemen: Paul David Gray, their third-round draft pick.

The Washington Redskins waived three players, including running back Reggie Evans, the first member of last season's Super Bowl team to be cut. Guard Steve Hamilton, their second-round draft choice, was placed on injured reserve after breaking his ankle in last Friday's game.

The Redskins also picked up a player — Rich Donnalley, who plays guard and center — from the Steelers.

The Cleveland Browns released nine players, including veteran wide receiver Wade Manning and defensive end Thomas Brown, who played three seasons for the Philadelphia Eagles. The other seven were all free agents.

The Minnesota Vikings cut four free agents while adding defensive end Doug Martin to their roster. Martin, who ended his month-long holdout last week, will not be counted on the Vikings' roster until he is ready to play.

Another returnee, Junior Miller, showed up in the Atlanta Falcons' camp 14 pounds under in his playing weight last year. The tight end has, however, asked the Falcons to continue efforts to trade him.

Two veterans were placed on waivers by the Kansas City Chiefs. Reserves Durwood Koomeore, a defensive back, and Mark Kirchner, a lineman, joined two free agents and eighth-round draft choice Randy Clark, a safety, among the cuts.

The New York Giants cut their former starting center, Eric Hughes.

AFC Central Anderson only veteran QB left in competitive division

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of six previews on the prospects of the National Football League's divisions this season.

By ALAN ROBINSON
The Associated Press

Terry Bradshaw can no longer swing for the "thimble" in Pittsburgh. In Cleveland, there's no talk about Brian Sipe leading the Browns to the Super Bowl. Gifford Nielsen is no longer giving interviews in Houston, he's conducting them. That's why Ken Anderson of the Cincinnati Bengals must feel like the loneliest quarterback in town these days.

The AFC Central Division has long been known as one of the National Football League's most competitive — in one nine-year span, it produced five Super Bowl teams. And it's been one of the most stable for quarterbacks, with Bradshaw, Anderson and Sipe all leading their teams for a decade or more.

Bradshaw was perhaps the most successful quarterback in NFL history, leading the Steelers to five Super Bowls in six seasons. He would have had his next Super Bowl ring on his thumb. Sipe was within one costly interception of taking the Browns to the Super Bowl in 1980. Anderson has long been one of the league's most consistent offensive players and the Bengals reached the Super Bowl just two years ago.

Now, only Anderson remains. Bradshaw has retired, a victim not of advancing years but a painful throwing arm. Sipe is still playing, but with the USFL's New Jersey Generals. Nielsen retired from the Oilers to become a TV sportscaster and there's a new Moon — in the form of quarterback Warren Moon — rising over Houston.

There are plenty of new faces in new places in the AFC Central, where the Steelers have been nowhere near super the last two seasons. Still, they managed to tie the Bengals for the division title in 1982 and win it outright in 1983 despite four losses in their final five regular season games.

The Steelers, their dynasty days now a fading memory, not only face a new season without the magical right arm of Bradshaw, but also without running back Franco Harris, who was waived by the Steelers Monday.

"I consider him retired," Steelers Coach Chuck Noll said of the 34-year-old Harris, who would have entered the season just 362 yards of Jim Brown's all-time pro football rushing record.

Noll said the Steelers will "obviously miss" Bradshaw, perhaps the NFL's most accomplished clutch player. Fifth-year quarterback Mark Malone and former Miami Dolphins starter David Woodley are contesting for the job which Bradshaw held for most of 13 years.

"I am enthused about our quarterback situation," Noll said. "I think we have three guys who can do the job." Including untended rookie Scott Campbell of Purdue.

The Steelers, helped by a generally easy early-season schedule, jumped off to a 9-2 start in 1983 but closed with a 38-10 playoff loss to the Los Angeles Raiders and unprecedented criticism of Noll by Steelers President Dan Rooney.

The Steelers may no longer have the steel curtain, but a defense that accounted for five touchdowns in a two-game span last season became known as the Steel Curtain. Second-year defensive end Keith Willis, only a part-time player, set a new single season Steelers' sack record with 14 and Jack Lambert was their usual dominating self at linebacker.

But quarterback Cliff Stoudt, also since departed for the USFL, was the model of inconsistency, and linebacker Robin Cole said Stoudt's erratic play helped account for the Steelers' defense's late-season problems.

The Oilers had problems the entire season under former Coach Ed Biles and interim Coach Chuck Studley, winning just twice. So they not only paid out the cost of a Texas oil well to sign Moon, a former Canadian football "Zeagan" star, they also signed Moon's former CFL coach, Hugh Campbell, to revive a team not recently for the running of Earl Campbell and not much else. Moon threw for over 5,000 yards in each of his past two CFL seasons, completing 380 of 661 passing attempts for 3,648 yards in 1983, the best ever by a pro football quarterback.

"Improvement is something a coach looks and strives for in a team, and I hope for the sake of my piece of mind that we can't lose more — than we lose," Hugh Campbell said.

Anderson may be back in Cincinnati but wide-load running back Pete Johnson, dealt away to the San Diego Chargers, isn't. Neither is former Coach Forrest Gregg after a disappointing 7-9 season. Former Bengals' quarterback and Indiana University Coach Sam Wyche takes over the Bengals and claims 1984 "won't be a rebuilding year."

"The Bengals are strong at every position," Wyche said. "It has been my contention since arriving in Cincinnati that this year, unlike almost any other year, the teams that play well together and have good fans will have the best chance to make the playoffs."

Wyche, who said Brooks will better fit the streamlined Bengals' offense than did the physically awesome Johnson, apparently can't count on No. 1 draft choice Ricky "Hunley, a linebacker from Arizona, Hunley and the Bengals have been unable to reach contract terms.

The Browns were 9-7 a year ago and nearly caught the Steelers despite losing two of their final three games. Coach Sam Rutigliano has turned over the quarterback's job to left-hander Paul McDonald, who has thrown for 1,797 yards in three seasons of spot play.

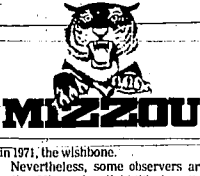

Tigers favorite in Big 8 race

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the first in a series of articles previewing the college football prospects from various regions of the country.

By DOUG TUCKER
The Associated Press

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Can this be true? A Big Eight football season approaches — and somebody besides Oklahoma and Nebraska is favored?

What in the world is going on here? Between them, the Huskers and Sooners have owned the Big Eight for more than two decades. Nebraska has gone unbeaten through the Big Eight wars for three straight years. And Oklahoma is returning to the formation that wanted it into prominence

In 1971, the wishbone. Nevertheless, some observers are rating Missouri a slight favorite. Others point to the wealth of defensive talent returning at Oklahoma State and proclaim the Cowboys the team to watch.

Others, however, are saying that Oklahoma and Nebraska have held sway in the Big Eight so long that it's simply disrespectful — and maybe foolish to boot — to say they are not the title favorites.

It's true, however, that Missouri is coming off one of its most satisfying seasons in many years.

"We're closer now to being a great football team than we've ever been," said Coach Warren Powers. The Tigers finished 7-5 and beat Oklahoma to tie for second in the Big Eight last year. Returning are multitalented quarterback Marlon Adair, who may not be able to keep redshirt junior Warren Soltz from stealing his job, and 40 other let-terms.

The Tigers' defense last year was sixth nationally against the run and twelfth in total defense. The biggest holes-to-fill on defense will be at both ends, where graduation wiped out Taft Sales and Bobby Bell, Jr.

"Our interior defensive line should be better, but our pass rush and pass defense must come along," says Powers.

Oklahoma State returns eight starters from a defense that ranked No. 8 nationally against the rush and No. 9 against the score. But it does not return head Coach Jimmy Johnson, who migrated to Miami and was replaced by long-time Cowboy assistant Pat Jones. "We've got quite a bit of experience on defense and unless we find something quite unusual our concepts will remain the same," said Jones, 36.

Moscow games see Olympic marks fall

By ANDREW WARSHAW
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Eastern European swimmers, led by Soviet Larissa Belokon, continued to better Olympic medal-winning times Monday — and cyclists, hockey players, yachtsmen and shooters medaled in a time of 2:30.38 on the 10-km. In Olomouc, Czechoslovakia, fourth day of competition at the Friendship '84 Games.

Five medal-winning times at Los Angeles were beaten in the pool, Belokon and Sylvia Gersach of East Germany both bettered the Olympic winning time in the women's 200-meter breaststroke, but failed to break the 5-year-old world record.

Belokon clocked 2 minutes, 29.13 seconds, and Gersach was timed in 2:29.62. The Los Angeles gold medal went to Canadian Ann Olmstead in a time of 2:30.38.

CSI's Jim Walker spends off-season fielding phone calls

TWIN FALLS — If you thought national championship-winning junior college baseball coach leads lives of unsurpassed leisure during the off-season, guess again.

A few weeks ago, College of Southern Idaho Coach Jim Walker invited three prospects from Carson City, Nev., here for a tryout. That same day, two more aspirants from Riverton, Wyo., materialized at Frontier Field, asking for a look. As if that weren't enough, another applicant — this one from Colorado — came to town with desires of becoming a Golden Eagle.

Walker invited the unsolicited candidates besieging him are drawn to CSI more for its reputation for grooming hitters than for the National Junior College Athletic Association title it won in Grand Junction, Colo., this past June. "That's a compliment to our players," he noted recently.

However, he does admit that winning the championship has enhanced his team's luster. "I've had some strange calls from a lot of kids that I wouldn't ordinarily get," he said. "Walker doesn't mind receiving such calls. Often those people on the other end of

and they stank. With all that skill, CSI couldn't even win the region's championship. "Too many players then had "all the answers," in Walker's words: By contrast, the championship team, though less gifted, naturally, couldn't stop asking questions. "A prime example was infielder Scott Scott, the most valuable player in the NJCAA tournament. "Shell could've (stagnated) too," Walker mused. "But he said, 'Hey, I want to become a better player,' and he never stopped working at it."

Walker realizes he'll have to work diligently with this year's team, particularly since he has lost his entire starting field and his starting catcher to graduation. "There isn't anybody coming back we feel can assume those responsibilities," he said.

"I think most of the fall will be spent putting people in positions," he continued. "We recruited positions, yet there's such a big difference between our program and a high school program. It's like earning another diploma."

Walker feels the 1985 group's abilities match his championship team's, but acknowledges the presence of the usual intangibles. "There's the savvy factor and the proving factor," he said. "Lynn (VanEvery) and Jeff (Schow) proved themselves in their first year."

Some elements won't change. Outfielders Shawn Hunterberg, Dave Garmon and Steve Caputo return. The only problem is, as Walker pointed out, each has been converted from the infield.

"And, as in recent seasons, CSI will own a nucleus of Idahoans. This year's freshmen include Kendall Bennett of Idaho Falls, Scott Matlock of Twin Falls, Cory Russell of Nampa and Greg Schow of Rupert.

So beginning in a couple of weeks, when fall practice commences, all Walker has to do is keep his players humble. "Give me a guy who feels luckier than hell to be in our program and I'll give you a guy who'll be successful," he said.

Scott was the only Golden Eagle off this year's team to earn professional baseball. He began at the New York Yankees' Onsetta N.Y., farm club in the Class A New York-Pennsylvania League, but was shifted to the Pocatello Gems, a co-operative team in the rookie-level Pioneer League that incorporates players from different big league organizations.

College-bound players include Jeff Schow, Texas A&M; VanEvery, Oklahoma City University; Blake Jensen, Brigham Young University; Jim Kolkas, University of Utah; and Mike Randall and Mike Federico, both Southern Utah State College.

Walker gloats especially over Jeff Schow's fortunes. "It's a major league player," the CSI Coach said of Texas A&M. "It's probably on the way to the majors. It's a small major league park — a two-tiered grandstand, Astroturf, a clubhouse. Their only problem is that they have a little trouble getting by Texas.

Additionally, Jeff Schow and VanEvery are scheduled to be featured in Sports Illustrated's "Faces in a Crowd" section this month.

Tigers bomb Oakland pitchers in 14-1 rout

By The Associated Press

Baseball

Detroit right-hander Jack Morris turned in his best pitching performance in weeks, but Oakland's utility infielder Mark Wagner, making his pitching debut, almost stole his thunder.

Lance Parrish and Chet Lemon each blasted two-run homers and Darrell Evans had a solo shot to back the combined five-hit pitching of Morris and Dave Rozema as the Tigers bombed Oakland 14-1 Monday night in Detroit.

The Tigers, who banged out a season-high 20 hits, scored four runs in the third and five in the fifth. The A's used three pitchers, including Wagner who responded to a plea for help from Manager Jack Moore.

"In the sixth inning, he went around and asked who wanted to pitch," recalled Wagner, a former Tiger. "I went up and told him I'd go a couple of innings. When I was a little kid, I always wanted to pitch in Tiger Stadium. It was fun. It was a big thrill."

"The last time I pitched was about 1972 in American Legion ball."

Morris, 16-8, joined Joaquin Andujar of the St. Louis Cardinals as the winningest pitcher in the major leagues. In his previous three games, Morris had struggled, giving up 20 earned runs on 26 hits in 19 1/3 innings. During that time, his earned run average climbed to 3.89 from a low of 1.88 on May 30 after he got off to a 10-1 start, including a no-hitter.

Against the A's, Morris worked seven innings, allowing three hits, struck out six and walked three. Rozema started the eighth after the Tigers led 14-1.

Montreal 3, Los Angeles 1
In Los Angeles, Dan Driessen knocked in two runs with a two-out single in the fourth inning and Bill Gaitton scattered seven hits over eight innings as Montreal won its sixth straight game with a decision over Los Angeles.

Philadelphia 3, San Francisco 4
In San Francisco, Juan Samuel and newly acquired Al Oliver each drilled two-run doubles during a five-run, second-inning rally that carried the Philadelphia Phillies to a victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Chicago Cubs 6, Houston 1
In Chicago, Roy Cuyler slugged a three-run homer, and Keith Hernandez drove in three runs with a pair of singles, leading Steve Trout and the Chicago Cubs to a triumph which snapped Houston's nine-game winning streak.

It was the third straight victory for the first-place Cubs who were swept in a three-game series at Houston last week.

Atlanta 4, Pittsburgh 1
In Pittsburgh, Brad Kominsky's two-out, 10th-inning double drove in Dale Murphy with the go-ahead run and the Atlanta Braves went on to a victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"When you're down and out, something always turns up — and it's usually the noses of your friends."

— Orson Welles.

South would have appreciated a bit of sympathy after going down at today's no-trump game. What he got was bricksbat from both dummy and the defense.

—South won the first spade and led his side's best suit, a club to dummy's ace. East's king dropped and another club was led to West's queen. Back came another spade, which South refused, but another spade led finished the job. South could win only eight tricks without the diamonds, and the game fell on short.

"The hold-up play in spades at trick one doesn't help either," proclaimed South. "I was destined to go down regardless of how I played."

South's last best is what turned up the noses.

"You would have made the game easily had you timed your play more carefully," offered North.

At trick two, a club to dummy's ace was the right start. But instead of continuing clubs, South should have led a diamond from dummy. Had East hopped up with his ace, South would have won four diamond tricks, one club and four major suit tops for nine tricks. And had East ducked, South would have reverted to clubs after winning his diamond queen.

Edgars honored

Edgar and the former Helen Christensen were married Aug. 15, 1934, in Salt Lake City.

They have lived in Twin Falls for many years.

The couple has three children, Noel Edgar and Nick Edgar, both of Salt Lake City; and Linda Wash of Reno, Nev., and five grandchildren.

Shoplifting lesson is long remembered

DEAR ABBY: The letter from the woman who shoplifted a 76-cent box of candy brought back memories.

When I was a young girl, I helped another girl steal a 10-cent ring from a 5-and-10-cent store. (She "accidentally" knocked the ring to the floor. I picked it up and slipped it to her, and she put it in her purse.)

I slept over at her house that night. We had a fight, and I told her if she didn't shut up and let me go to sleep, I would tell her mother about the ring she stole. Her mother heard us, came into the room and said, "WHAT RING?"

My friend had to tell her mother the truth, so the next day her mother and my mother marched the two of us back to the store, made us confess to the clerk and return the ring. Abby, that was the worst moment of my life, but it was one of the best lessons I have ever learned.

I happened 64 years ago, and from that day on I was never tempted to steal a thing.

—NAMELESS IN LANCASTER, PA.
DEAR NAMELESS: Your friend's mother was wise. An ounce of humiliation is worth a pound of punishment.

DEAR ABBY: I hope you can settle a difference of opinion between my mother and me. My husband and I received a wedding invitation, and in it was requested, "No gifts, please."

My mother thinks it means, "Do not buy a gift; we prefer money instead." I think it means no gifts of any kind. Abby, is a monetary gift considered a gift?

—US IN SELMA, ALA.
DEAR US: A monetary gift is indeed a gift. "No gifts, please" means don't bring a present of any kind.

DEAR ABBY: Your letter warning women about unethical

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

psychotherapists was excellent. I'm saving it. I was a victim 15 years ago. He's still out there practicing.

It might help to warn others that many "unethical therapists" have excellent "lines." He ignored my real problem and kept steering our conversations back to sex.

He asked me to write down my sexual fantasies, and he even loaned me a book of erotic stories that he asked me to discuss with him. Then he asked if he could come to my home to see me. (My husband was overseas.) How dumb I was!

After he got what he wanted, he dropped me. I felt guilty for seven years because he made me believe that I had instigated it.

Another therapist was able to help me face my real problem, which has nothing to do with sex. (I had been raised by a domineering, mentally sick mother.) The second therapist also helped me to deal with this sicko who had subtly seduced me. I hope this isn't too long for your column. It could help other women who think therapists can do no wrong.

—ANOTHER VICTIM
DEAR VICTIM: You say "he's still out there." Why should he go unpunished, free to do to other women what he did to you?

If you haven't let him know that you are wise to him now, please consider it. It may not be too late to report his unprofessional conduct to the proper authorities.

DEAR ABBY: I am enclosing something I came across a while back in the Catholic Digest. It was written by a 9-year-old third-grade girl, and it made me smile.

I hope you think it's worth passing along to your readers.

—ILLINOIS GRANDMA
DEAR GRANDMA: It's well worth it, and here it is:

WHAT IS A GRANDMOTHER
A grandmother is a lady who has no children of her own, so she likes other people's little girls. A grandfather is a man grandmother. He goes for walks with the boys, and they talk about fishing and tractors and things like that.

Grandmas don't have to do anything except be there. They're old, so they shouldn't play hard or run. It is enough if they drive us to the market where the pretend horse is and have lots of dimes ready.

Or, if they take us for walks, they should slow down past things like prettily leaves or caterpillars. They should never, ever say, "Hurry up."

Usually they are fat, but not too fat to tie kids' shoes. They wear glasses and funny underwear. They can take their teeth and gums off.

It is better if they don't typewrite, or play cards except with us. They don't have to be smart, only answer questions like why dogs hate cats and how come God isn't married. They don't talk baby talk like visitors do because it is hard to understand. When they read to us, they don't skip or mind if it is the same story again.

Everybody should try to have one, especially if you don't have television, because grandmas are—the only grown-ups who have got time.

Midlife changes not being addressed

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — A large group of 35 to 54-year-olds is seeking more education to cope with midlife changes, but higher educational institutions aren't meeting the group's needs, says a specialist in adult and continuing education.

Dr. Margaret Hazlewood of Washington said:

"There's a market for adult and continuing education, but to recruit and retain adult students, higher education needs to retrain faculty, become more flexible, and to reach out to those who have been overlooked."
