Flight clicks along Shuttle team orbits satellite

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery finally got off the ground Thursday, beautifully and flawlessly.

Later, its crew launched a communications satellite attached to the same kind of rocket motor that sent two earlier satellites into useless orbits.

...This time it worked. Mission control sent word to the shuttle and astronaut Steve Hawley responded, "That's real good news. We're up here celebrating."

It was good news, too, for NASA which has had trouble lately with its image as a dependable satellite delivery service.

"That was absolutely the type of day you like to have when you are deploying satellites," said flight director John Cox.

The 37-second firing of the solid-propellant motor sped the $55 million satellite toward an elliptical orbit 22,300 miles by 184 miles around the Earth. On Saturday, another "burn" is to circularize the orbit at its high point.

After three postponements, Discovery's crew had to endure yet another wait Thursday for liftoff — seven minutes this time — because a private plane was circling offshore for a close, but hazardous, view of the launch. It was chased out of the area by an Air Force plane, and the Federal Aviation Administration said it would take action against the pilot.

Commander Henry W. Hartfield, 50, and pilot Michael Coats, 38, began checking out the new ship's systems as soon as they reached orbit, 184 miles above Earth.

Eight hours after liftoff, mission specialists Hawley and Richard Mullane sent the commands that started the satellite on its way. The rocket was timed to ignite 45 minutes after the satellite, spinning at 48 rpm for stability, was ejected with springs from Discovery's cargo bay.

The firing was supposed to be 86 seconds long; it was 87.

Satellite Business Systems, which paid NASA $10 million for the launch, was delighted.

Crews gain upper hand over blazes

Cooler Montana air helps statewide battle

By HUGH VAN SWEARINGEN
The Associated Press

HELENA, Mont. — An army of 5,000 firefighters, assisted by the weather, held the upper hand over seven blazes in scorched Montana range and timberland Thursday.

The fire crews also made gains against three of the most destructive fires, officials said.

New official estimates indicated that the swarm of fires, most of which started early this week, have blackened nearly a quarter-million acres, far more area than previously calculated.

Of the 13 largest active fires, six still burned out of control after sweeping over more than 180,000 acres, according to officials of the Department of State Lands and the U.S. Forest Service.

But the officials said the fires posed little or no danger to homes they had threatened earlier.

Firefighters were aided by cooler temperatures, slack winds and even some rain, which fell for the first time since the fires began to break out, and they reported progress against most of the blazes.

Five were classified as contained — encircled by firebreaks and not likely to spread farther, than the nearly 16,000 acres they had already burned — while two others, covering a total of 13,550 acres, were near containment, they said.

A new survey of the giant Hawk Creek fire between Billings and Roundup pegged the blaze at about 140,000 acres, nearly double the 75,000 acres reported earlier.

The fire, most destructive of all, burned 30 homes in a subdivision near Roundup on Monday, and there was no estimate Thursday of when it might be contained.

With the exception of one ranch still in danger, "all homes are relatively secure," said Paul May, spokesman for the lands department.

Crews of 500 firefighters managed to build fire breaks completely around the blaze, thanks to the first windless weather in five days, but it still was not classified as contained, he said.

Officials said they were optimistic that the 28,000-acre North Hill fire near Helena, which remained out of control, would spare a subdivision of 15 homes where residents were asked to evacuate Wednesday.

A brief rain shower fell over the Helena area Thursday afternoon, aiding the 560 firefighters. Crews had reinforced the firebreak around the subdivisions, May said.

Nelson, a community of about a dozen summer homes in the mountains east of Denver, was still evacuated, but that may change shortly, May said.

The fire had grown by nearly 5,000 acres since Wednesday, but May said most of the additional territory burned was in the Gates of the Mountains Wilderness Area on the northwest side of the fire. The houses are south of the fire.

May estimated that about 35 percent of the wilderness area would be burned before the fire is contained.

The Houghton Creek fire in dense timber 36 miles south of Libby, in northwest Montana, burned an additional 1,000 acres since Wednesday, reaching a total of about 13,000 acres. The fire destroyed 19 buildings, but only two residences that we know of," May said. The other buildings were mostly barns and other farm out-buildings, he said.

"We feel we have sufficient manpower and equipment to handle the fire," May said. There were 1,145 firefighters combating the blaze.

The only apparent significant threat was to a dozen or so cabins around Crystal Lake, about a mile from the fire, he said.

The Red Owl Creek, Napl Peak and Crystal Creek fires, which have scorched a total of about 7,500 acres, remained far from being controlled, but they posed little threat to residential property, officials said.

Some 2,800 firefighters were battling the other blazes.

Defense lawyer wants detailed autopsy in Arbaugh case

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

JEROME — Jamie D. Charbonneau claims one of Marilyn Arbaugh's teen-age daughters shot her on the day the Jerome woman was murdered.

The claim that Tiffini Arbaugh, 17, shot her mother "was made in a motion to unearth Arbaugh's body for a more detailed autopsy," Golden Bennett, Charbonneau's lawyer, filed the motion in Fifth District Court in Jerome Thursday.

Despite the claims made in the motion, Jerome Prosecuting Attorney Dan Adamson says the state is not changing its theory on the crime. The Arbaugh family denies the allegations in the motion.

In the motion, Bennett says Charbonneau "alleges" to have seen Tiffini Arbaugh shoot her mother with a .22 caliber pistol on July 1, the day she was killed in a barn northeast of Jerome.

The motion says the pathologist in the investigation failed to make a complete autopsy and testified during the preliminary hearing that he left some bullets in Arbaugh's body.

"To be definitive, he has to get the other slugs for further testing," Bennett says about his motion.

Reached Thursday evening, Tiffini Arbaugh's grandfather, James E. Arbaugh of Jerome, denied his granddaughter shot her mother.

"We know she didn't," he says. He says that his granddaughter received a letter three weeks ago saying "if she did not admit to shooting her mother, her body would be exhumed."

He also expressed dismay over the move to have the body exhumed.

Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall says no additional good can come from unearthing the body.

"From all the best information we can get, the bullets were fired from the same gun (found when Charbonneau was arrested)," Hall says.

When Charbonneau was arrested in a field near the barn after the shooting, sheriff's deputies also recovered a .22 rifle. Hall says tests show bullet casings found in the barn were fired from the rifle.

However, Hall says, he is not certain about the results of ballistic tests on the slugs taken from Arbaugh's body. Adamson will not comment on the evidence in the case or allegations in Bennett's motions.

Hall says a plea has been sent for ballistic tests at Bennett's request, but a report has not yet been issued.

Deputy Sheriff Larry Webb also said exhuming the body is unnecessary.

Webb says he watched the autopsy and says the bullets left in Arbaugh's body were too fragmented to be useful in further tests if removed.

However, Bennett says in the motion that the distance from a weapon to each wound on Arbaugh's body must be determined.

White House balks at providing documents on Lavelle connection

By GUY DARTS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The White House is refusing to provide documents on its relations with fired Environmental Protection Agency official Rita Lavelle to a congressional subcommittee on the same issue that touched off last year's uproar over the EPA.

In disclosing the new document controversy Thursday, the House panel also said it believed it had not received all documents Lavelle ordered removed from her office after she was fired as an assistant EPA administrator on Feb. 4, 1983.

Lavelle, who ran the "superfund" toxic waste dump clean-up program, was convicted in U.S. District Court last year of perjury and other charges arising from her testimony before the subcommittee about her dealings at the EPA with a former employer, Aerojet-General Corp. She was sentenced to six months in prison but has remained free pending appeal.

In its 318-page report on the Lavelle case and some related matters, the oversight and investigations subcommittee of the House Energy and Commerce Committee said it was unable to explore fully Lavelle's contacts with White House officials.

"Currently, the White House is preventing the Department of Justice from providing the subcommittee with White House memoranda and other documents relating to contacts of White House officials with Lavelle and other EPA officials," the report said.

Deputy White House press secretary Larry Speakes declined immediate comment. "We have just this morning received a copy of the ... report," he said. "We have not had an opportunity to study it, so I really can't comment."

Among the accusations against Lavelle were that she manipulated announcements of grants from the superfund to benefit Republican candidates in the November 1982 elections.

However, she was acquitted in court of a charge that she perjured herself by denying that she let politics influence the timing of superfund actions. She also was acquitted of a charge of contempt of Congress.

Testimony, much of it taken behind closed doors, from some EPA employees who worked with Lavelle has revealed evidence of substantial

'No suggestion of dishonesty,' judge says Zaccaro loses estate post

By MARJORIE ANDERS
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — A judge on Thursday removed John Zaccaro as manager of an elderly woman's financial affairs, but said there was no reason to believe the husband of vice presidential candidate Geraldine Ferraro was dishonest in borrowing $175,000 from the woman's estate.

"There is no suggestion of dishonesty or malicious intent on the part of the conservator, Mr. Zaccaro was a forthright witness and the court believes that he sought to abide by the instructions that he was given," said state Supreme Court Justice Edwin Kassoff, in a six-page decision.

position of trust and did my best to protect and enhance the estate," said Zaccaro, who claimed ignorance of the law as his defense.

"I understand and accept the decision of the court," Zaccaro said, adding he regretted that "I was not given any specific guidelines or legal advice on what generally are considered permissible investments."

Ferraro, campaigning in Hartford, Conn., said she thought the decision was wrong "on the law."

"This is not the first time I have disagreed with the decision of a Queens judge," said Ferraro, a former prosecutor. "I think he's wrong. My husband and I will go on," she said.

"We had submitted a brief to him with reference to situations in which a conservator had been removed and my husband did not qualify under any of those situations," she said.

"But it is in the discretion of the judge. And the judge made his decision and there is nothing we can do about it. We go on to the next thing," she added.

However, he said that "the mere appearance of impropriety must be astiduously avoided."

Zaccaro was not present when the written decision was released but issued a statement through one of his attorneys, Frank Wright.

"I considered my position as conservator to be a

Canadian cool front eases midlands heat

By The Associated Press

A cool front from Canada brought relief Thursday from a heat wave that parched the southern Plains for two days, but also carried storms that may have caused a discount store roof to collapse, injuring at least 14 people.

The weight of Wednesday's rain may have caused the roof on Wall's Bargain Center in Del City, Okla., to give way just before noon Thursday, said firefighter Michael Davis.

Fourteen people ranging in age from 4 to 62 were taken to Midwest City Hospital, but none were admitted, said hospital executive secretary Gerry Larsen. Five other people were unaccounted for, authorities said.

"We have no idea what happened," said Jim Lowe, a spokesman for the store's home office in Shawnee. The people inside the 40,000-square-foot former bowling alley had a warning of "maybe 20 or 30 seconds at most," and some were blown out the front door, Lowe said.

The fall end of the storms, which in Michigan left one woman dead and five people injured, including three firemen zapped by a downed power line, knocked over trees and downed power lines in upstate New York on Thursday and threatened western New England and the Appalachian states, authorities said.

The storms also damaged buildings in Illinois and Michigan, but no other injuries were reported.

In Nebraska, students in schools without air conditioning were sent home early for the second day Thursday after temperatures soared to as high as 103 degrees on Wednesday.

Iowan Jim Smiddy cools off in drinking fountain spray

In Los Angeles, where workers were sent home from the exclusive Century City complex Wednesday after a water line feeding air-conditioning systems broke, the City Department of Water and Power hooked up a fire hydrant for cooling Thursday as temperatures soared to 90 degrees.

The downtown complex includes a hospital, the Century Plaza Hotel and 13 other buildings, all of which were affected.

However, the National Weather Service predicted a drop in the mercury as a result of the cold-weather system that left 235,000 southern Michigan residents without power and resulted in two lightning-related injuries.

"Temperatures are likely to get close to 100 degrees" across parts of northern Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas, but "it doesn't look like it's going to get as hot as the last couple days," said Bill Sammitter of the National Severe Storms Forecasting Center in Kansas City, Mo.

The heat wave, which prompted Kansas Power & Light Co. to lend fans to low-income elderly people and families with small children, was expected to fade with the arrival of the "intense" storm track, said Phil Shideler, weather service forecaster in Topeka, Kan., where the mercury hit 110 on Wednesday.

"I think we saw the peak of it the last two days with the record-breaking temperatures and highs in a range of 100 to 110," Shideler said. "Those are some of the warmest highs we have seen since the '30s. The only difference with this heat from then is that it has been very short-lived." Sammitter said temperatures would remain "well into the 90s" today and Saturday, and would be "above normal by as much as 10 degrees, but it doesn't look like any records will be set."

Teamsters endorse Reagan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Breaking with most of the labor establishment, the 1.9 million-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters endorsed President Reagan's campaign Thursday, just as it did four years ago.

The decision by leaders of the nation's largest union was disclosed in advance by Vice President George Bush, who was sent to a Teamsters meeting here to collect the endorsement.

"We respect you and we're grateful to you," Bush said in accepting the endorsement. "I know it may gall Lane Kirkland (president of the AFL-CIO, which has endorsed Walter F. Mondale) but millions of union members voted for us in 1980. We are going to work day in and day out for more and more union members to support us all across this country."

In announcing the endorsement, Teamsters President Jackie Presser said respondents to a mail poll of 1.7 million members, which excluded 200,000 members living in Canada, showed they favored Reagan over Mondale by a margin of 53.6 percent to 43.3 percent.

Only slightly more than 25,000 of the ballots were returned, he said. Reagan carried every state except Oregon, Iowa, Tennessee, Virginia and Pennsylvania, according to the Teamsters, while Mississippi returned a tie vote and ballots from Alaska and Hawaii were not counted.

Presser said the endorsement was voted unanimously by the Teamsters' general executive board.

At a planislide news conference on his arrival here, Bush denied that the endorsement was linked with a federal investigation of Presser.

Presser greeted Bush on his arrival at a Columbus hotel where the Teamsters are meeting and escorted him inside to a private conference with union leaders.

Debate details aired

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (AP) — Top aides to President Reagan and Walter F. Mondale will meet today for discussions on details of presidential campaign debates this fall, a Mondale aide said Thursday.

Maxine Isaacs said James Johnson, Mondale's campaign chief, will meet with James A. Baker III, the White House chief of staff.

She said today's meeting will be the beginning of a series of sessions to work out details of the presidential campaign debates.

Mondale has called for holding six debates, each limited to a particular area such as foreign policy or federal deficits. Reagan campaign aides say two debates is a more likely number.

Johnson and Baker also will discuss details of a debate between the vice presidential candidates, Republican George Bush and Democrat Geraldine Ferraro.

The opening meeting will be held at an undisclosed location in Washington.

Mondale told party fund-raisers Thursday that he will propose earmarking all revenue from new taxes to lowering federal budget deficits.

Auditor tells his role

I've been involved in the business of politics for a long time and take extra pride in my work due to the confidence the electorate has had in me for the past several decades. My time in public office has been a continuing learning experience and I am thankful to recognize the strengths and weaknesses of others seeking to gain or hold public political power.

No scent is stronger to the experienced political nose than the small odor of desperation and panic. Such is the ominous odor radiating from recent remarks by House Speaker Tom Stivers. It's painfully obvious that he (for good reasons) is having second thoughts about his performance during the last legislative session, his chances of maintaining his leadership position in the House and even his ability to be re-elected.

I've watched first-hand as Republican dominated legislatures have tried to cut the heart out of state government. Stivers and his radically conservative cohorts have had their uninformed noses in every state agency demanding cuts, reductions and eliminations to save taxpayer dollars. Very conveniently, however, they seem to have overlooked their own extravagance and our state's constitution. Rather than opening their books to a Democratic State Auditor, the Republicans, under Robert Smyth, created a patently duplicitous legislative Auditor and have funded it to the tune of a quarter million dollars a year, while stripping away the state auditor's constitutional obligation to audit through funding cuts. This duplication of effort and expense is again painfully exemplified in the case of the Budget Office. What was created to be, and should continue to be, a temporary operation during each legislative session has become a burdensome year-around bureaucracy at public expense.

Speaker Stivers again seems to have overlooked that the governor is our state's chief budget officer and charged with preparing an annual executive budget and presenting it to the legislature.

It appears to me that before the speaker is going to smell the roses he will have to try very hard to see the real picture of generally proud, hardworking state employees, as well as, his own oversight and abuses.

Book offers warning

On the morning of Sept. 1, 1983, Georgia Rep. Lawrence McDonald became the first elected American official to be murdered by the armed forces of the Soviet Union and 328 other passengers and crew were massacred on KAL flight 007.

McDonald had accurately identified the war the Communists are waging against us, declaring: "It is a war of subversion. It is a war of espionage. It is a war of ideas. And it is a war of terrorism and infiltration. The type of war we are in is far more sophisticated than an exchange of gunfire or nuclear weapons, even, because it is a war of attack upon institutions; it is a war of attack upon every segment of society. It is total war."

The title of a new book, "Day of the Cobra" by Jeffrey St. John, was drawn from McDonald's description of the Soviet Dictator Yuri Andropov, the former boss of the dark KGB. St.

John, an award-winning print and broadcast journalist with an eye for detail, takes the reader along for the deadly ride of KAL 007 ending in the chilly waters of the Sea of Japan.

St. John's research confirms that the slaughter was planned. The radio intercepts, for instance, which were made public in both Washington and Tokyo, indicate clearly that the crew was given no warning. The Soviet pilots used the word "target" over 15 times to describe the jumbo jet in 39 minutes of conversations. Evidence is also presented on how western technology, in this case a copy of a U.S. Sidewinder air-to-air missile, was used to down 007 and kill the foremost American opponent of trade with communists, Larry McDonald.

"After the mass murder," the U.S. State Department, presuming an "accident," acted the part of the toothless tiger even after the fangs of the cobra had found their mark. Senator Steve Symms declared: "The Soviets didn't have time to use disinformation, they just get their own propaganda line from our State Department. When we got back to the United States that is exactly the line they were putting out. It was all an accident."

A year has passed and despite the patriotic efforts of congressional conservatives of withdrawing U.S. aid and trade with the communists in Russia and Red China, the expansion of aid is continuing. Without U.S. money and technology Communism would cease to exist. McDonald urged us to get involved to expose the fact that American money and technology are keeping Communism alive all over the globe.

Courage was shown in removing Piler

Despite considerable risk, the Twin Falls School Board has displayed much courage in removing school superintendent Gary Piler and thereby putting the district back on track to fulfilling its traditional mission of educating children.

Wisely, the board's decision was not made hastily. It followed five executive sessions over two weeks. These in turn followed a long period of deteriorating confidence from many teachers, administrators and the community at large in Piler and his style of leadership.

The scene has not been completely played out. The board put Piler on a 60-day suspension and now must go through the appropriate due process to finalize his removal. Piler may say now that he intends to return to the job, but that, in our view, seems highly unlikely. Given the level of animosity, returning him would result, in our view, in a full-scale teacher and community revolt.

It is time for the district to get on to other tasks: A new school year opens in 10 days. Teachers are already in their classrooms, getting materials ready for students. A new elementary school is going up and will need to be staffed. Negotiations with the teachers are not yet complete.

But most importantly, the district needs to rebuild its damaged community relations, which in our view have been brought to the lowest point in years during Piler's one year on the job. The board deserves credit for beginning to set these matters right.

The appointment of Assistant Superintendent Carl Snow to head the district on a temporary basis is a step in the right direction. So is the unanimity the board showed in suspending Piler.

There are a number of lessons in all this. One is the advisability of giving any superintendent a long-term contract.

Another is in how closely the board needs to listen in the community and among the teacher ranks for indications of trouble. Problems involving Piler had been discussed in both the community and among teachers for months, and indeed, were partly known by the board before his appointment.

The board may have hired the best person available at the time, but in our view, it should have kept closer tabs on the situation and perhaps prevented the boil-over which occurred this summer.

It should have remembered that excellence in education means excellence in administration as well.

That is a lesson we should all keep in mind. A mistake was made and has now been corrected. It is time for education in this community to move forward again.

Need more wilderness

Jim McClure's wilderness bill is sick, a before-election bid for environmental votes. If we can't save more wilderness than McClure's bill calls for, we just as well let it all be destroyed by our lumbering and mining companies and get it over with. Our habitat can never be replaced, once destroyed. What is everyone going to do when all our lumber and ores are gone? However are we going to make a living then?

It is to be hoped all our politicians get their pockets well-lined by these special interest groups. I wish they would quit trying to camouflage their actions by their do-gooder tactics.

Our lands are already pretty well locked up to everyone except those in the lumbering or mining interests or haven't you been up to the forest lands lately?

Do you people realize that all the politicians vying for the leadership of our country are millionaires. Where will that leave the rest of us, the poor and middleclass? I expect we'll be a lot poorer than we already are by the time the rich think of more ways to relieve us of the little bit we still have.

Watch the people of Idaho re-elect smooth talking George Hansen, just because Idaho is a Republican state and George can do no wrong. He must be different than you and me.

I feel sad so many of our "give me, give me" programs cannot be phased out, but it seems once started, they can't be stopped.

They're breaking the taxpayers with all these doles, then what will happen. I guess time will tell.

Evidence is also presented on how western technology, in this case a copy of a U.S. Sidewinder air-to-air missile, was used to down 007 and kill the foremost American opponent of trade with communists, Larry McDonald.

"After the mass murder," the U.S. State Department, presuming an "accident," acted the part of the toothless tiger even after the fangs of the cobra had found their mark. Senator Steve Symms declared: "The Soviets didn't have time to use disinformation, they just get their own propaganda line from our State Department. When we got back to the United States that is exactly the line they were putting out. It was all an accident."

A year has passed and despite the patriotic efforts of congressional conservatives of withdrawing U.S. aid and trade with the communists in Russia and Red China, the expansion of aid is continuing. Without U.S. money and technology Communism would cease to exist. McDonald urged us to get involved to expose the fact that American money and technology are keeping Communism alive all over the globe.

Get a copy of the book, "Day of the Cobra" by Jeffrey St. John, Thomas Nelson Publishing, Box 1400, Nashville, Tenn., for $11.95. It is a powerful and thoroughly researched book. It is an indictment, a warning, and a memorial.

We must not forget the massacre of KAL 007 and take action to prevent a Red Dawn of Communism from coming to America.

Convinced by Busch

I was happy to see Pete Busch at the park on Sunday. He feels now that somebody has more work for him. After hearing him speak, I am convinced he's right. I have been focusing on what is reported on when candidates are quoted. What would I have reported from what was said by four Democrats who are trying to do something?

I decided I would have: a recorded Pete Busch as an Idaho farm boy whose family settled in Idaho in 1896 and who would like to see the farmers safe-guarded from capricious actions by the federal government and who would stop the holding of the farmers hostage to the whims of the federal government's foreign policy.

I noted that Pete's experience in Vietnam led to being a lieutenant colonel which then led to being in military procurement. It would be helpful to have his insights in military procurement. It would be helpful to have his insights in military spending in the U.S. Senate.

I noted in a chat with him, that he feels, as do I, that strong leadership could stop the NPR at INEL. (Utah stopped the deployment of the MX missile with a strong leadership.)

I would have reported Ian Von Lindern's informative report on INEL (the outflow over the well) my words? He has been told that he can't get elected if he opposes the NPR. We learned that Strom Thurmond of South Carolina said it will impact on the environment if it is placed in Idaho. They lost it because they sued DOE for the pollution of their water and won the suit but the feds picked up their marbles and looked for a place where there weren't any people of any account who would welcome with open arms some jobs and mega-mega-bucks and who could be guaranteed not to kick up a fuss! Sure enough — the Idaho Legislature and all who stood to gain and or were threatened in yesing, right right up and said, "I'm sorry, jipped this way — that sounds like us folks around here in Idaho!"

I would have noted Bill Chisholm — back again — refusing to believe that he is a no-account without a three piece business suit who can't get elected in Idaho! Shoot — he's up on what's going on — like he wanted us to know that when the unthinkable happens we should step at the postoffice and fill out a forwarding address card on our way to the relocation center. The party of the Moral Majority is attending to our civil defense folks. Speaking of morality — a Christian — a concerned citizen — vote for Bill, he's in his business suit (survival training). He reminds me of a well-educated well-informed qualified Davey Crockett and he got elected to the Tennessee House and to the U.S. Senate with just a little hair from some guinea hens!

Are you registered to vote in November? Pete tells us he's going to win by one vote — yours!

That's what I would have reported.

Letters/Police-fire consolidation mishandled in presentation; should be kept

Library needs materials

Mrs. McClusky, I am addressing this missive to you since you seem to be the only member of our present City Council with a sense of community values. Concerning consolidation, I can only assure you that it was a good program mishandled in presentation and should be kept.

As to that great sacred trust, or mistrust, the fireman's 24-hour shift, let me just point out that, to my knowledge, that is a privilege that the taxpayers have graciously allowed the firemen, not a thing which we are bound to give them. Frankly, I see that shift as a Dark Ages regimen.

As the main thrust of objection to consolidation, ignoring its great time-saving and life-saving potential, seems to be the thoroughly ridiculous statement that, "Well, it didn't work in other cities," and the firemen's objection, then instantly dash out a properly evaluated the firemen's shifts in relation to those of other city departments, and get the 5 W's of their "at as to why, etc., consolidation did not work elsewhere.

Of course, as you might suppose, this is properly the job of the news media. But The Times-News sees fit to back, let an event or decision occur, then instantly dash out a self-righteous editorial. Instead, they might endeavor to inform the public as to the workings of consolidation, or the public library. They might — but they don't seem capable.

My constant gripe with the library is that they don't have enough material. I am astounded to find that a body of seemingly, supposedly intelligent individuals finds an overabundance. This library tries hard, and its Idaho Reference Room is excellent, but it's a mammoth, perhaps lifelong undertaking to properly stock a library. Do we dump Plaubert, Mrs. McClusky, because our modern student doesn't have the credentials to evaluate such an enormous talent? Is Mark Twain obsolete, and Vardis Fisher to walk the plank — or bookshelf, as it were? And into what, the quiet blue waters of our ultra-modern swimming pool?

No, Mrs. McClusky, now that all else has failed, who don't you prod your fellow council members to start being swayed by facts, and proper community spirit. And stop the nonsense!

Input by citizens invited

In some recent articles and editorials there have been statements attributed to me which I did not make or do not reflect my view. I'm sure the newspaper makes every effort at accuracy, however, when a dozen or so people are at a meeting having an extended conversation I can understand the difficulty in getting every comment reported with complete accuracy.

In a recent editorial I was quoted as saying I don't believe the voters should have any input except at election time. I'm sure I have never said that inasmuch as I don't believe that is the way our system of government should operate. I have always encouraged input by the public at our city council meetings. I sincerely believe the public should be allowed, and encouraged to offer their opinions, ideas, and suggestions to all levels of government. However, the final decisions have to be made by only a handful of people that are willing to take the sometimes unenviable job of leadership.

My interest in public opinion is evident by the fact that I suggested in a brief meeting with the City Manager the morning after the pool and consolidation election that we continue to seek input on these and other issues by investigating the possibility of a wide ranging survey concerning what the public wants on a number of issues. The council has supported that recommendation. I was glad to see a similar proposal in a subsequent Times-News editorial.

With regard to the recent article and editorial on the library I was quoted as saying "perhaps the library is in need of a good house cleaning," implying the overcrowding condition could be solved by getting rid of some of the books and periodicals. I don't recall making that statement or one similar to it. I have asked four people who were at the meeting at the library Monday and later that day at the meeting at city hall if they recalled me making that statement. No one I talked to recalls such a statement being made by me.

In the editorial of Aug. 29 I was quoted as saying "I couldn't understand why anyone would want to keep so many old magazines around." I did not make that statement.

However, it may have evolved from statements made during our four of the library. While walking through the basement one of the councilmen looked at a rack of old magazines and said to me, "I wonder if anyone reads those magazines that are 10 or 20 years old." I believe I responded by smiling and saying "I don't know."

As the subject of the library board's financial requests from the city, they requested an increase of 11 percent in their operating budget over last year. We have appropriated in our preliminary budget a 4 percent increase for the library, which is twice as much as the 2 percent increase we are appropriating in the operating budget for the entire city budget. In addition the city has appropriated in capital expenditures an additional $22,000 for the library computer system, and $6,000 for new books. This indicates considerable support for the library by the city council.

The city council did not approve an additional $25,000 item to go toward acquiring new property for expansion. We have asked the library board for information on the estimated cost of operating a proposed expansion with regard to increased costs of labor, utilities and maintenance of an expanded facility.

The county was recently congratulated for not jumping into building a new law enforcement and jail facility until they had made a study of the cost of operating such a building. However, your editorial indicates we should continue to put money into the expansion fund without getting more information. I believe the city council is acting in a responsible manner and not of ignorance as has been suggested. We are open to public input at any of our Monday city council meetings on this subject and others.

Keep control of hospital

Why does Hospital Corporation of America buy and/or operate hospitals? They hope to make a huge profit.

Why county-appointed Board of Directors with a board of their own? They hope to make a greater profit.

It is possible that the proposed change would result in better health care at lower costs, with greater profit to the operator. It is also possible that health care decline or other costs would rise, or that both of these could result from HCA's effort to make a profit. And if the county had no control over the board of directors, the investment of many millions of dollars what the county has in the physical plant of the hospital would exist solely for the benefit of the stockholders of HCA.

I wish to commend Dr. Roy Shaub for bringing to the community's attention the inherent danger in the proposal change to the independent members of the medical profession. I believe there is also danger to the public in the matter of health care as well as its financial investment.

Why does Twin Falls County have a hospital? To provide health care to the people. I'm qualified physicians and technical staff can provide care for those who need it.

Was the Twin Falls County Hospital established to produce profit to the county or the medical staff? No. It was hoped that the hospital might be self-sustaining or nearly so, but primary objective was to provide medical care in keeping with the tradition in which qualified believes in taking care of all its people.

I urge voters of this county to consider very carefully the possible real dangers faced in giving up control of such an important facility to any private entity which cannot be held responsible for its acts, as can the present hospital board and the elected county officials.

Houston bias suit settled

HOUSTON (AP) — Attorneys for a Mexican civil rights group and the city schools signed an out-of-court settlement of a 28-year-old desegregation suit Thursday, but lawyers for the NAACP expressed last minute qualms.

The agreement was reached early Thursday between the three groups after almost four days of round-the-clock negotiations, but attorneys representing the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People planned to meet with school officials to discuss minor wording changes, said Patrice Johnson, an attorney for the NAACP.

Crash won't slow up B-1

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force said Thursday it expects the crash of an early-model B-1 bomber prototype will have no effect on the over-all plan to build and deploy 100 advanced versions of that bomber.

"The rollout of the new B-1B will be held as scheduled on Tuesday," Undersecretary of the Air Force Peter Aldridge told a Pentagon briefing.

Aldridge refused to answer most questions about the crash of an eight-year-old B-1A in the Mojave desert Wednesday, killing a civilian test pilot and injuring two Air Force officers.

However, Aldridge did say that there was no preliminary indication of the cause of the crash, which occurred on the plane's 127th flight since 1976.

Oil companies seek delay

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several of the nation's largest oil companies urged the Environmental Protection Agency on Thursday to postpone by two years ordering a 91 percent reduction in the use of lead in gasoline.

"A lead phasedown schedule which is too rapid will have negative supply effects which would place unnecessary costs on consumers," Edward DiCorcia, vice president of refining for Exxon Co. U.S.A., said at a hearing on EPA's proposal to further restrict the use of the lead as an octane booster in gasoline.

"It is not likely that all the needed facilities could be completed before mid-1987," DiCorcia said.

EPA Administrator William Ruckelshaus last month proposed ordering the 91 percent reduction by January 1986.

Terror suspects 'no threat'

DALLAS (AP) — Federal officials say nine Middle Eastern men who were jailed during an investigation of terrorist threats against the GOP convention were later released because they didn't pose a continuing threat.

The four Iranians, four Jordanians and a Syrian were arrested on alleged visa violations by the Immigration and Naturalization Service agents during an investigation by the FBI and Secret Service into potential terrorist plots, officials said Wednesday.

Measure signed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite misgivings about funding for the Legal Services Corp., President Reagan on Thursday signed into law an $11.5 billion spending bill that includes $18.5 million for the controversial National Endowment for Democracy.

The bill, one of 13 appropriation measures to provide funds for the government for the fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

EPA to ban dumps close to water sources

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday it intends to ban the location of hazardous waste dumps over sensitive groundwater supplies.

In addition, the agency probably will forbid the use of some pesticides in those locations.

Those were key elements of a groundwater protection strategy leaving primary responsibility to the states announced at a news conference by Deputy Administrator Alvin Alm.

Alm said the EPA also expects to ask for public comment on whether and how it should regulate underground gasoline storage tanks, which have been pinpointed as a source of much potential pollution not covered by federal law.

The agency expects soon to give $7 million to the states to draw up groundwater protection strategies, Alm said.

The U.S. Geological Survey already gives $50 million a year to nearly all the states for data-gathering and scientific studies. The states must put up an equal amount of their own money.

The EPA has been trying to come up with a groundwater strategy since the late 1970s and announced one in December 1980, just before the Carter administration left office, that would have imposed new protection requirements on the states.

But the incoming Reagan administration rescinded it for another look. Then EPA Administrator Anne Burford produced a version that dropped requirements on the states. According to contemporary reports, she was blocked from releasing it by the Cabinet Council on the Environment, whose chairman, then-interior Secretary James Watt, protested that the document took too much authority from the states.

Ed Hopkins of the Clean Water Action Project, an advocacy group, said the strategy released Thursday seemed similar to what Mrs. Burford wanted to do.

Airliner fire toll not sure

DOUALA, Cameroon (AP) — A fire broke out Thursday on a Cameroon Airlines passenger jet as it prepared to take off from Douala.

Sources said at least 79 people were killed, but the government radio said only two people died.

The cause of the fire was not known. But on Thursday night, a group calling itself the Cameroon Liberation Front claimed responsibility for the fire in a broadcast from Gabon. Reporters in Yaounde quoted the broadcast as claiming the group did not intend to kill people, only to blow up the plane.

The conflicting casualty reports could not be resolved immediately. The airline said no statement would be made until President Paul Biya received a report on the fire. A government statement also was expected later.

Charles Twining, the U.S. consul general in this city on Africa's west coast, said seven Americans were aboard the plane. He said five of the Americans were injured, although none appeared to be "critically hurt."

He said some of the injured Americans suffered burns while others broke ankles in jumping from the plane. The Americans — two couples and three children, all residents of Cameroon — were not identified pending notification of their relatives.

The number of injured and the number of people aboard the Boeing 737 were not known. The fire occurred as the jet was preparing to leave Douala, the west African country's biggest city, for Yaounde, 150 miles away.

Easy terms for Latin debts sought

SANTIAGO, Chile (AP) — Latin American and U.S. economic experts tentatively agreed to seek relaxed lending policies by international development agencies during a two-day conference on debt and trade that opened Thursday.

The resolution on limited debt relief was adopted by technical experts on the eve of the Inter-American Economic and Social Council conference, which brings together finance ministers or deputy finance ministers from 23 nations.

It did not satisfy the Latin Americans' demands for limits on their debt service payments and interest rates charged by the commercial creditors that hold most of the region's $350 billion foreign debt.

But it could lead to billions of dollars in new low-interest credits from the World Bank and the Inter-American Development Bank to spur long-term economic growth as Latin America struggles to overcome its worst recession since the 1930s. The two banks, heavily funded by the United States, already lend about $6 billion a year in the region.

Israelis set leadership

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and his designated successor, Shimon Peres, have reached agreement on a bipartisan government in which they will alternate as premier, Israel Radio reported Friday.

The radio report came after midnight and could not be confirmed with party officials involved in the government negotiations. The radio did not say who confirmed the agreement and party officials called by The Associated Press did not answer their telephones.

Israel Radio said the government is to be established for four years and two months with Labor Party leader Peres serving as prime minister for the first half and Likud leader Shamir as his deputy and foreign minister. They will switch roles in the second half, said the radio, which is state-owned but operates as an independent corporation.

Bid to bar takeover rejected

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge has refused to prohibit Plateau Resources Inc. from continuing its cash tender offer aimed at taking over Intermountain Gas Industries.

The public interest doesn't sway the issue one way or the other, U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols said in an order issued Thursday. McNichols refused to grant an injunction that would have prevented Plateau from continuing its offer of $26 a share for Intermountain stock.

Intermountain had argued a Denver businessman with a controlling interest in Plateau failed to get Securities and Exchange Commission approval before starting the tender offer.

But Plateau argued it was up to the commission, not Intermountain, to bring charges.

Plateau wants to complete its offer for Intermountain shares by Sept. 1. That offer would be worth about $39 million if stockholders sell all shares. Intermountain has urged shareholders to reject it.

Meanwhile, Intermountain has agreed to merge with Idaho Natural Gas, a new company that three Intermountain directors and a San Francisco investment firm formed to acquire Intermountain.

Idaho Natural Gas expects to begin a stock tender offer of $32 a share by Sept. 4. Intermountain officials say the offer is adequate. It would be worth about $40 million if stockholders sell all shares.

Intermountain is the parent of Intermountain Gas Co., a natural gas utility that serves southern Idaho.

Evans defends proposal

MOSCOW (AP) — Gov. John Evans said Thursday his wilderness recommendation for the state strikes a "reasonable balance" between conflicting interests.

And Evans said U.S. Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, has been a roadblock to solving the issue — countering Symms' contention last week that Evans had obstructed passage of the wilderness bill because of his support for putting more land into wilderness.

Evans was in Moscow to officially open his northern Idaho field office, which will be staffed by former state legislator Steve Scanlin.

Afternoon earthquake shakes state

CHALLIS (AP) — Another earthquake shook central Idaho Thursday, but it was significantly less severe than one earlier this month that was felt throughout much of the Northwest.

The quake, centered near the Challis area in Custer County, registered 4.0 on the Richter Scale when it hit just after 3 p.m. MDT, according to the U.S. Geological Survey Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

"It was just a lot of shaking," said Sheriff's Dispatcher Donna Kelley. No injuries or damage were reported. The latest quake is but one of thousands that have rolled through central Idaho since late last October when a massive earthquake, registering 7.2 on the Richter Scale, caused millions of dollars in damages and claimed the lives of two school children.

Since then there have been more than 60,000 aftershocks.

Judge won't hear case

CALDWELL (AP) — Despite the objections of EnviroSAFE Services of Idaho, a state judge has disqualified himself from the company's court challenge to Owyhee County's efforts to regulate its hazardous waste dump.

Third District Judge Dennis Gott took the action at the request of Owyhee County Prosecutor Clayton Andersen, who invoked a state law permitting either side in a dispute to seek appointment of a new judge without any formal explanation.

Andersen has also asked for rescheduling to a later date of a court hearing in the EnviroSAFE suit originally set for Sept. 4, the day Congressman Larry Craig has called for a summit meeting involving all the parties.

Official to tour hopper districts

BOISE (AP) — A top U.S. Department of Agriculture official will tour parts of southern Idaho next week to inspect the federal government's ongoing program to combat the state's grasshopper infestation, Rep. George Hansen, R-Idaho, said Thursday.

Deputy Assistant Secretary John Ford will make his inspection tour Tuesday. His visit follows one only this month by Agriculture Secretary John Block.

Snoopy performance scheduled for CSI run

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "Snoopy," a musical adapted from the "Peanuts" comic strip, and a sequel to the tremendously successful "You're A Good Man, Charlie Brown" will be presented Sept. 21 to 23 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Publicity worker Delores Evans says the characters have been cast from students throughout the Magic Valley.

"The majority of the kids who were picked for the cast are voice students of Marty Mead," she adds.

Mead is director of the musical and Judy Watson is assistant director. Drawing on other local talent, Vanessa Ryall is the musical director, Elaine Fenwick, choral director and Jane Cliff is choreographer.

Evans says rehearsals began right after school was out because, "We needed a lot of time to get all those kids together." But as far as the production, itself, she refers to it as quite simple.

"There is no curtain," she points out. "Rather, the kids move, their own props around. What I really like about the play is that it is great family entertainment," she says.

The group, a new musical company known as the Junior Musical Playhouse Company, is presenting "Snoopy" with two different casts performing four shows. One group, named "Schulz," will feature Paul Durham (Snoopy), Camille Fraley, Andy Durham, Maureen Evans, Melanie Lamborn, Janet Pretti and Todd Swensen.

The other group, "Charlie," is composed of John Maudlin ("Snoopy"), Shelley Lay, Raymond Robinson, Josh Houser, Wendy Whittaker, Rosanna Boyle and Jason Houser.

The "Peanuts" comic strip first appeared in 1950 in nine newspapers. Today, the strip appears in 2,000 newspapers worldwide. "Peanuts" characters have been on television, movies and the Broadway stage.

Creator of the strip, Charles Schulz, claims he never regarded kids as his main audience; rather, adults from high school age and up with memories of what it was like to be a child, and who could appreciate "Peanuts" much more deeply than youngsters could. "Hidden from many is the fact that 'Peanuts,' originally titled 'Li'l Folks' is deeply Christian and that Schulz uses the strip as a parable, and each individual situation as a parable.

This fact is described best in his own words: "... naturally I must exercise care in the way I go about expressing things. I have a message that I want to present, but I would rather bend a little to put over a point than to have the whole strip dropped because it is too obvious. As a result... all kinds of people in religious work have written to thank me for preaching in my own way through the strips. That is one of the things that keep me going."

Music for "Snoopy" was written by Larry Grossman, with lyrics by Hal Hackaday. The songs and theme of the play stay within Schulz's intent to bring joy to listeners while simultaneously pointing to life's deeper meanings.

Those well-known and beloved characters such as Lucy, Snoopy, Linus, Peppermint Patty and Charlie Brown will all come alive on stage at 8 p.m. Sept. 21 and 22. The night performances will be by the "Charlie" group. Sept. 22 and 23 will have 2:30 p.m. performances by the "Snoopy" group.

Tickets are at Judi's Books, the Music Center, the Little Red Hen and Valley Schwinn Cycles. Admission is $5 for adults, $2.50 students and senior citizens. For ticket information, call 733-1808 or 733-0671.

'Red Dawn' unbelievable

Actors can't cope with script

By DAVID NEIWEERT
Times-News writer

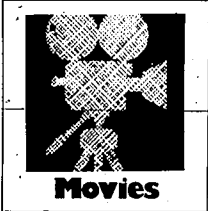

Any movie based on a potentially dubious premise has the necessity of making its audience believe in it. But "Red Dawn," a film proposing to be about the takeover of the United States by communist Russian troops, falls miserably in every respect of believability.

If you really buy this movie, then I want to sell you the Perrine Bridge. The problem with "Red Dawn's" credibility lies not so much in the premise itself, nor in the heavy-handed conservative politics that underlie it (though those politics are certain to alienate a good portion of the audience right away). Rather, the problem lies in the fact that this movie wants desperately to make a point — the point being that we all better keep our guns handy and our missiles on the alert for a commie invasion. And it is so preoccupied with making the point that everything that normally makes a movie work is forgotten.

A lot of the lapses are simply logical ones, arising not so much out of the premise itself as out of the story portrayed on the screen: Russians, sensing America's weakness and playing their hand just right, pull off a conventional invasion of the United States; a group of teenagers living in Colorado band together in the mountains and form a guerrilla resurgence unit, which pulls off various raids on the dirty Ruskiies. Sounds OK, right?

But why, for example, does the invading Russian army first attack a high school? And when one of the band betrays his fellow guerrillas, we find out that he had sneaked out, gone the 30 or so miles into town, been tortured and finally forced to reveal the group's position, then came back to the group with his absence unnoticed.

Considering that this group is unusually tight-knit, the scenario becomes preposterous. And when you consider that these are only a few of the logical atrocities committed in "Red Dawn," the film itself becomes preposterous.

Movies

Review

The film's most grievous problem, though, is nothing so nitpicky. "Red Dawn" has to be home to the worst script to have emerged from Hollywood since Gidget Goes to Beach Blanket Bingo. One never has a chance to believe in the film because you never have a chance to believe in a word they're saying.

The film is full of scenes that are supposed to be emotionally wrenching, but because you can't believe in the characters or what they say, the only resulting effect is to feel the wrench of nausea.

It's too bad, because director John Miljus has assembled a fine crew of actors, especially C. Thomas Howell (who was outstanding in "The Outsiders") and Powers Boothe. Even relative newcomers like Patrick Swayze do their best to cope with the awfulness they've been handed. The cinematography, too, is noteworthy. It's obvious that some of the people involved here were truly trying to make the film work.

But their task was insurmountable, thanks primarily to a script that should have been dumped at the outset.

"Red Dawn" never gets off the ground because its directors are so busy making their point that they never make anything in the movie credible: not the story, not the dialogue, not the acting, and ultimately not even their point. The movie is simply unbelievable.

Mask created by Boise artist Wendy Oberlin to be used for conference logo

Artists to 'mask' their art

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

BOISE — Idaho artists will be putting their best faces forward October 4-6 when The Idaho Art Association holds its annual conference at Bogus Basin.

Featured under the theme "The Faces of Art: 1984-1994," the conference will include a mask competition, which offers $500 in award money. It is open to any artist residing in Idaho with IAA membership.

The conference will also feature a two-day workshop by internationally-recognized ceramic artist Paul Solder, hands-on workshops in computer graphics, jewelry, mask and costume design, a masquerade ball and art exhibition.

Anna Marie Boles, IAA president, is originator of the mask competition.

"Masks were used as disguises in theatre to change one's image. They're used to give significance to life, and they're used in religion. I think it expresses all of art as well as the visual arts," she says.

Boles says she's trying to get Idaho artists to take one idea, such as masks, and approach it from their own medium. She says she has wondered, "how would a painter perceive masks from a painter's view? Or, someone working in clay — how would he perceive it?"

Boles wants the masks in the competition to reflect changes in art in the next 10 years.

Noting that artists are generally at the forefront of thought, she says she wants them to indicate what kind of society we will have in a decade.

An art teacher at Caldwell High School, Boles says she started working with masks a year ago because her students were so interested in their faces. "Faces change as we grow and age," she says. "They reflect our personality, and we make assumptions about people by their expressions."

Boles, originally from Hansen, also cites her background in theatre as a reason for her fascination in masks. She used to perform with the Antique Festival Theatre.

"I think masks are intimate, theatrical and futuristic," she says, adding, "I hope the competition will get artists in the state to think of themselves differently."

"I think of masks as both a physical thing and a psychological thing. They remind me of the masks you carry versus how you really feel about yourself," she says.

An "early bird" registration is offered for those artists not already belonging to the IAA. Postmark is Sept. 15, and dues, which include IAA membership, are $35.

Second arts, craft show set

SUN VALLEY — Breaking with tradition, Elkhorn is holding a second Arts and Crafts Festival this summer. It will be held Labor Day weekend, Sept. 2 and 3 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. each day.

Gail Severn, organizer for the event, says the second show is being held this year because Elkhorn's artists are strongly supporting the arts.

Also, a large crowd is expected in the Sun Valley area over Labor Day weekend, which should make it ideal for artists to show their works.

Severn says she expects about 80 entrants to be present.

"We'll have ceramic artists including Gordon Webber, who's very well known," she adds.

Other artists and craftsmen will include metal sculptor Gus Flowers, jewelers Dan and Peg Venzon and photographer Jack Williams.

"We'll have glass blowers, jewelers, painters and some very talented furniture makers," she adds.

Severn says that each artist will handle his or her own sales and the displays will be set up on the Elkhorn Mall.

Opera group returning to Hailey

HAILEY — The touring branch of the San Francisco Opera Center will present an English-language production of Rossini's "La Cenerentola" at 8 p.m. Sept. 26 in the Wood River High School auditorium in Hailey.

La Cenerentola, the opera version of the Cinderella story, will be performed by the Western Opera Theater, which performed "Madame Butterfly" in Hailey last year. It is sponsored by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities.

The production is an example of the Italian "opera buffa," a lively operatic form, says Jacquelyn Schuett, a spokeswoman for the center.

This year's production is designed by Jay Kotcher, San Francisco Opera scenic artist, and is directed by baritone Paolo Montarsolo, who is considered a master of the Italian

Shirley MacLaine sings for Mangione

By PETER COV
The Associated Press

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — When Chuck Mangione wrote a song about Academy Award-winning actress Shirley MacLaine for his new album, he had no idea she'd actually record it.

But she did, laying down a raspy, laughing and obviously impromptu rap over a funky Mangione instrumental called "Shirley MacLaine," one of seven songs on the LP, "Disguise," which was released this month.

"She was like a jazz musician. She has incredible time. Her rhythm was absolutely wonderful," Mangione said during an interview in his den at Gates Music, Inc. — his home base.

Mangione, 43, first met Miss MacLaine in April after a performance of her one-woman Broadway show. It was the week she celebrated her 50th birthday.

"I hid behind her dressing room door, and when she came out I hopped 'Happy Birthday' at her," he said.

The jargonist-composer-arranger recorded "Shirley MacLaine" and was going to have the vocal group, Rare Silk, record some lyrics he had written for it. But he showed them to Miss MacLaine first.

"I think the lyrics embarrassed her," he said. The next night, Mangione said, MacLaine came to the Manhattan studio with her own idea — an upbeat rap she said would lift Mangione's spirits after the sad song that precedes it, "She's Not Mine to Love (No More)."

"Hey, Chuck!" the rap begins. "It's me, Shirley, MacLaine. No Pain!"

Mangione said MacLaine had him rolling on the floor in a fit of laughter, tears streaming from his eyes.

"She'll knock your socks off in so many different ways, I can't tell ya," he said. The rap took just two takes.

Mangione was recently interviewed during a break from a touring schedule that has him working nine months a year. Though a Grammy Award-winning artist and an international celebrity, Mangione remains a Rochester boy, running Gates Music from an inconspicuous yellow he uses on the city's marketplace.

The 6' duode of Rochester's prestigious Eastman School of Music recently composed a piece for the city's 150th birthday and takes pride that he, his brother Gap and his 74-year-old father Frank, a former grocer, live within a mile of each other in the bedroom suburb of Gates, home to thousands of Eastman Kodak Co. employees.

Mangione began music lessons when he was 8, following in his older brother's footsteps. The boys and their father were lovers of jazz, haunting local clubs and entertaining many of the luminaries of the day, including Dizzy Gillespie and Art Blakey.

After high school, Chuck and Gap formed their own jazz band, Chuck later taught music and struggled in the business until 1965 when he

What's what

Our Love and War man notes the modern young lady in China now has more say-so in picking a husband. Among the new guidelines: He must have "36-legs" and "three sounds." That means he has to come up with both bedroom and livingroom furniture plus a TV set, a cassette player and a good camera with a shutter click.

Q. Who really was the last of the Mohicans?
 A. Your query is a little previous. About 200 Mohicans still survive, 35 of them in Uncensville, Conn. Can't tell you the last Mohican who actually spoke Mohican, however. Fidelity Fielding. She died in 1908.

— Each side of your brain not only has its own job to do, but each has its own feeling, consciousness and personality. Or so say the experts. That's interesting, if true. What happens when the sides disagree? "Let's take a nap," purrs Left. "You nap," snaps Right. "I'm going out for a beer."
 Nosebleeds are more common in the winter.

PILLOW BOOK
 Q. What do the Japanese mean by "a pillow book"?
 A. A sexy volume with erotic pictures. An old man a Japanese man habitually keeps such literature under his pillow. Correspondents say it's a perfectly respectable tradition, with a purpose.

Surely you've heard of Queen Emma. She was the first queen to visit the United States. On Aug. 8, 1866. From the Sandwich Islands, now Hawaii.

Q. How much is the Pentagon's phone bill?
 A. $8.7 million a year.

RED CELLS
 Your bone marrow turns out 17 million red blood cells per second?

Q. How many grooves are there on a 45-rpm record that plays for three minutes?
 A. Two — one on each side — that go round and round.

Q. Any merit to the claim we might not have been first to land on the moon if Charles Lindbergh hadn't been first to solo the Atlantic?
 A. Maybe. Lindbergh backed Robert Goddard when others scoffed. Goddard fathered rocketry.

Those who know the publishing game claim Burt Reynolds could get an advance of $1 million for a tell-all autobiography. Frank Sinatra, they say, might get as much as $6 million.

Happy marriage makes for happy life

DEAR ABBY: A few years ago, an article came out in our newspaper about husbands. I think it was in your column. I thought it was so beautiful, I tore it out and saved it. Here is the first part:

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

"Today is a very special day for me. It's my 25th wedding anniversary and I have this to say:
"I had a mother and father who really loved each other, so I know what love is.
"I've seen two teen-agers suffer through the traumatic teens, so I know what satisfaction is.
"I've prayed, and my prayers have been answered, so I know what faith is.
"And I've had by my side for 25 beautiful years, the kindest, gentlest, most considerate human being I've ever known, so I know what happiness is."

That's all I have, Abby. I lost the rest of it. If it was in your column, please print the rest.

—MADELINE LYNXH, RED OAK, TEXAS
DEAR MRS. LYNXH: Here's the rest of it:

"And because I've known all these things, I know what wealth is."
I wrote it in 1964 as a tribute to my husband. And it's just as true today as it was 20 years ago. Thank you for asking.

DEAR ABBY: Not only parents, but friends and relatives often have trouble introducing live-in companions. I have found the smoothest way is to say: "May I introduce John/Jane and his/her constant companion?"

No one has misunderstood yet.
—MAB S. ARCADIA, CALIF.
DEAR MAB: I don't think it's necessary to clarify the living arrangements of John and Jane when introducing them. But if you do, "constant companions" do not necessarily live together.

DEAR ABBY: I thought the letter from "Big-Busted in Birmingham" was a riot, so I brought it up at my arts and crafts group at Valley View Nursing Home to give the residents a laugh. ("Big-Busted's" fiancé wanted to raise chickens but was too cheap to buy an incubator, so he asked her if she'd mind hatching the eggs in her bra.)

Well, the laugh was on me when an 88-year-old, large-titled woman, had brought some chicks to full term in her bra after the mother hen had died.

—LINDA A. MURPHY, ACTIVITY DIRECTOR, VALLEY VIEW, N.H.
DEAR ABBY: This is another one of those "I can't believe I'm writing this" letters. My twin brother died recently following a long illness. (He was 59.) Three years ago he had a will drawn up specifying that his estate be divided equally among our two sisters and me. He appointed me executor of his will, and I accepted. Last year he added a codicil to his will eliminating one of our sisters.

During our first meeting with the probate lawyer, he suggested that "some families" get together and mutually decide to alter or ignore the deceased's wishes and/or codicils. My two sisters are now using that strategy to force me to ignore the codicil and abide by the original will.

Abby, I promised to carry out my brother's wishes, which he made very clear to me. Now I'm being asked by my family, "Am I a brother, or am I

"Mr. Executor?"
No one in our family is "needy." Should I carry out my twin's wishes? Or must I yield to the wishes of my family?

—TORN IN NEW YORK
DEAR TORN: As the executor of your brother's will, you are not only morally obligated to carry out his wishes, you are legally responsible for doing so. And for a lawyer to suggest that you do otherwise is both unprofessional and dishonorable.

Politicians oppose immigration reform bid

By HAL BERTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The state's battling politicians can agree on something. None likes the immigration law reform package that is now in the works.

The latest congressional reform effort is the Simpson-Mazzoli legislation, two bills submitted to Senate and House earlier this year by Wyoming Sen. Alan Simpson and Kentucky Rep. Romano Mazzoli.

The two bills seek to overhaul federal immigration policy through a complex package of reforms that include legalizing the status of millions of undocumented workers, imposing civil sanctions on employers who hire illegals and possibly creating some type of national identity card.

In the House version of the bill, a guest worker program would be included in the reform package to allow "guest workers" to legally labor in Idaho and other states' farm fields.

During the past week, The Times-News interviewed Idaho's Senate and 2nd District congressional candidates to find out their views on immigration reform.

Neither the Simpson nor the Mazzoli version of the immigration reform package found much support among the candidates. Both Sen. James McClure and his Democratic challenger, Pete Busch, opposed the Simpson-Mazzoli bill. So did congressional candidates Rep. George Hansen and his opponent, Democrat Richard Stallings. But the candidates all supported the creation of some type of guest worker program, a proposal that labor and Hispanic groups wanted tied to a broader reform package.

The candidates also said they disliked the inclusion of employee sanction provisions for the hiring of illegals. This provision would be both unfair to farmers and discriminate against Hispanic-Americans, the candidates contended.

"I don't support Simpson-Mazzoli, because it places the enforcement burden on the farmers and makes every Hispanic suspicious," said Stallings.

Stallings said that a guest worker program would allow farmers to treat the foreign workers with "dignity."

"The farmers should be able to say 'I want X number of workers' to his local job service," Stallings said.

Money would be withheld by the federal government to pay workers' health care costs, Stallings proposed.

Hansen, citing the 1981 arrest of 10 southern Idaho farmers in an INS sting operation, also spoke out against any new criminal sanctions for hiring illegals.

He said the provision would make farmers wary of hiring any blacks or Hispanics. "Anyone who was not a white Anglo Saxon, guy might have a problem," Hansen said.

"How can any of you establish your citizenship?" Hansen asked a group of businesswomen attending a Wednesday luncheon. "If you don't have your passport with you, you can't."

McClure said he voted against the Senate version of the Simpson-Mazzoli bill, but supports a guest worker program for farmers administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture similar to the now-defunct Bracero program. But he said that strong political opposition from unions has prevented a single-issue labor bill from being passed.

"Farmers should be able to legally hire temporary workers and we are unable to get that," McClure said.

He said that a guest worker program operated under the auspices of the Labor Department requires farmers to pay the transportation costs of guest workers, regardless of whether they actually employ those workers. He labeled that program "ridiculous."

A guest worker program "is an absolute necessity," McClure said. "But I am not going to hold my breath until we get one."

He also said INS agents should concentrate less on raiding farm fields and more on raiding service industry and factory businesses, where the majority of illegals are employed.

McClure's opponent, Pete Busch, said guest workers should be allowed into the United States, but illegal immigration plugged at the border.

He said the INS should spend less money on enforcement in Idaho and more in Arizona, New Mexico, California and Texas.

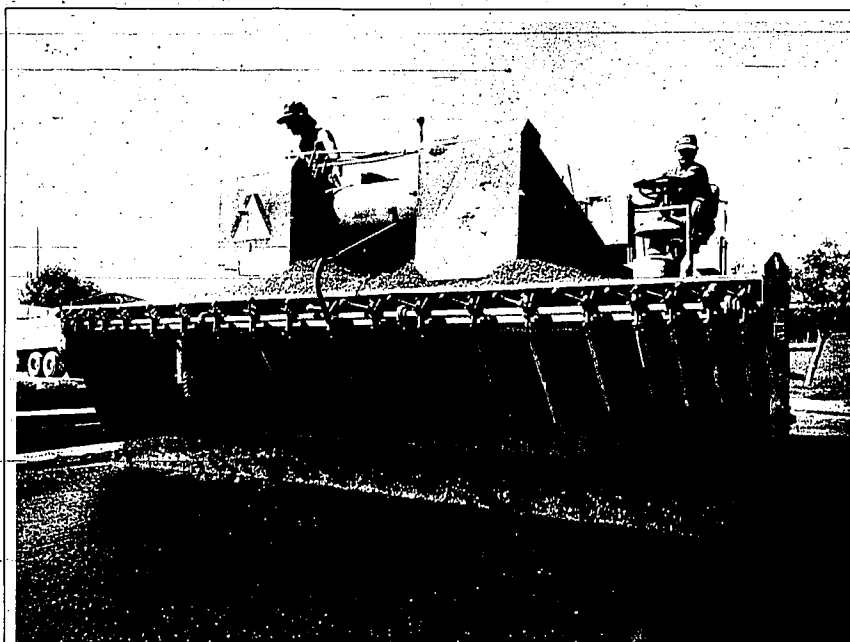

"What good is it to have the INS in Idaho. We need to be at the border to stop them. Busch said. "We need to put the troops on the front line. After we get control of the border, then we can go up and pick up the rest" of the illegals.

Busch said he hadn't made up his mind about how to proceed with immigration reform. He said he "would support what the farmers want."

'Anti-library' feeling denied

Reports hurt council members

By DAVID MOFFAT
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls City Council say they are not "anti-library," despite a decision to cut $25,000 from the library budget — money which the library board had asked be earmarked for a special fund to acquire adjacent property.

Nevertheless, one council member, Mary McClusky, says she may move to have the money restored to the budget Tuesday when the spending plan comes up for final consideration. Restoring the money would be symbol of the council's backing of library programs, she says.

The money was cut from a draft city budget Monday after several council members questioned whether the library board's expansion plans, first proposed more than a year ago, were well enough thought out.

JOHN PETERSON
"Rather nebulous"

Questions were raised both about whether the library contained too many items that weren't being used, and whether the board had thought enough about operating costs associated with an expansion, or about alternatives to expansion.

Wednesday several council members objected to the reporting of the cut and the reaction to it from the city librarian, which appeared in The Times-News Wednesday. They also objected to a Times-News editorial on the subject.

They said it painted them as being anti-library when they are not. Mayor Emery Peterson said he thought the action represented reasonable scrutiny by the council. Councilman John Peterson said he voted against the proposal because library board plans were "rather nebulous."

The plans call for the library to work toward purchase of an adjacent lot and building owned by the Twin Falls Reformed Church. If in a number of years the expansion were approved, the land would be available, although the church building would be demolished.

Both Peterson and Peterson say cutting the money from the budget was really irrelevant, although it was one of only several cuts from the budget that the council made.

Money for any capital improvement not particularly budgeted for can be taken out of a new contingency capital improvement fund they plan to establish next year, they say.

Peterson further points out that the library is scheduled to receive a 5 percent increase in its operating budget, twice as much as other city departments.

The library had requested an 11 percent increase, partly to support the extra expense of re-opening Mondays, says Librarian Arlan Call. With 5 percent, Monday opening will not be possible, Call says.

They further point to $22,000 budgeted for upgraded computer capabilities, and $6,000 for books — about the same as last year.

Councilman Erik Andersen, one of two council members voting to budget the $25,000 for expansion, said he believed it made sense for the city to pursue the purchase of adjacent property.

Even if the option of building on it were not pursued immediately, it would be wise to acquire the property when it is available, Andersen said.

No advancement in teacher pay talks

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls teachers and administrators met at the bargaining table Thursday for the first time since talks reached a stalemate in late May.

But it was a short session, and little was accomplished, both sides say.

"We really didn't get into it because of problems the district has gotten into in the last few weeks," said board Chairman Gene Champlin. Since mid-August the board has held numerous meetings that culminated with the suspension of Superintendent Gary Pillier.

"We have not had time to prepare anything,"

Champlin added. "It takes time to go over the budget and I think the teachers realize that."

The teachers and administrators have agreed to try again at 9 a.m. on Sept. 7. By that time, administrators should have time to consider the budget and the latest proposal developed by district administrators, which would give teachers an average wage increase of 8.9 percent. By then, they may also have a slightly better idea of how much insurance rates for teachers will increase.

Federal mediator Tom Curdie of Salt Lake City plans to attend the meeting. He also attended the hour-long meeting Thursday.

In the meantime, some teachers have already returned to work, and all will be working by Wednesday without knowing how much money they are being paid for their efforts.

Negotiations were delayed at the end of May when teachers and administrators could not agree on when a federal mediator should be asked to help. When Curdie was contacted at the end of June, teachers and administrators had to wait until late August, because Curdie's schedule was almost filled already by other districts with negotiation impasses.

Hospital conducts checkups for lung capacity

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley residents took deep breaths Thursday to check their lung capacity.

They pinched their noses shut and clamped their mouths around a plastic tube at a free screening held at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center to celebrate National Respiratory Therapy Week.

"Take a deep breath, in . . . in . . . in," Gordon Stutzman, cardiopulmonary department director, coached the people breathing into the pulmonary function machine. "Now blow hard . . . squeeze."

The machine had been set to measure their lung capacity relative to their height, sex and age. The result was a small chart comparing their lungs to the average.

A smaller than average capacity could indicate that their lungs were being restricted by excess weight or curvature of the spine or that there was scarring in the lung area, Stutzman said.

If air volume is normal but a person cannot blow it out quickly, it might indicate emphysema or asthma, he said.

He and other employees of his department, however, were not making any guesses Thursday based on the test results. Smoking and other factors can make reading the results complicated, they said.

"If they are concerned, and some of them should be concerned, they should talk to their physician," Stutzman said.

But some of the technicians were taking the opportunity to chide fellow workers who stopped in during their breaks. "Now, see this," a technician said pointing to a friend's results; "you'd better give up smoking."

Hospital employees were also handing out literature to give the latest facts on lung disease. Valley residents learned that second-hand smoke may have twice the tar and nicotine of that inhaled by the smokers; that the fumes in the ear-earhead may be worse than they smell and what causes breathing disorders from farmer's lung to pleurisy.

More than 50 people attended the free screening, hospital employees said.

Motel grant bid axed

BURLEY (AP) — The Burley City Council has dropped a grant application that angered local motel operators concerned the money would give one of their competitors an unfair advantage.

The council had authorized the mayor to apply for a $400,000 federal grant to renovate the Ponderosa Inn, which has been closed for a year.

But motel operators contended the city's plan could violate an Idaho law prohibiting municipalities from lending credit to private concerns.

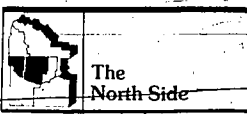

The motel operators also said on petitions that the grant money would provide an unfair advantage to anybody taking over the Ponderosa Inn.

Plans called for the city to seek a $400,000 federal grant and then loan the money to an Ontario, Ore., man who said he wants to buy the inn with a $2.2 million commercial loan.

But council members said they dropped the idea after the prospective buyer failed to supply enough information about his project.

End of Jerome's joint law enforcement not ensured

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

JEROME — Polling of the Jerome City Council members on the issue of breaking up a six-year joint city-county law enforcement operation indicated the move is not a foregone conclusion.

Mayor Ralph Peters announced a final decision will be delayed until the regular council meeting Tuesday. This will be after a special meeting with the Jerome County Commissioners Tuesday afternoon.

However, Peters took a straw poll at a special session Thursday night. Councilmen Glen Capps and Walter Bentzinger said flatly that they favor the pullout. Council members Jeanne Vandiver and Henry Pharris said they prefer to work out the problem if possible and continue the cooperative law enforcement arrangement.

If conflicts between the two agencies cannot be solved, both said they would agree to a move. Mayor Peters is reserving his opinion until after the Tuesday afternoon meeting. Capps had indicated earlier in the day he hoped for a decision Thursday night in order to move ahead with the plan.

A proposal for taking the police department out of the county courthouse came to light two weeks ago following a city council executive meeting.

Capps, who serves as police commissioner, said he does not believe differences between certain individuals in the two departments can be worked out.

He also told the council and audience Thursday night that the move can be made for only a little higher cost to the city.

He said there are other benefits he feels would result for both the city and county through the separation.

Capps said the city budgeted $308,523 for police department costs this year.

He proposes increasing that to $310,630 and then establishing a $12,000 fund for "intangibles" or unforeseen expenses that may develop.

"However, I am confident that we will use very little of this if any, and will be able to return it to the department from which it will be taken," Capps said it will come from the street department and City Clerk Marilyn Bragg added it is actually revenue-sharing money allocated to street programs under the current budgeting plan.

Capps said the city will rent, buy or build new facilities for its police. He said both the city and county buildings are short on space and he believes the space needs will eventually force the separation of the law enforcement agencies.

County Commissioners, who said they learned of the possible move through the news stories, asked the council members to meet in a special session Tuesday at 1:30 p.m. to discuss the matter.

Difficulties first became public when city police officer Larry Gold ran for sheriff against incumbent Sheriff Elza Hall. Hall maintains that since that time his officers have been told to get along with Gold and all other officers and they are doing it. However, Gold is currently on vacation. He reportedly asked for leave because of problems with county deputies.

County Commissioner Pam Smith said the county probably does not stand to lose anything through the separation, but said taxpayers would be paying more for law enforcement if the two agencies dissolve their joint operation.

The two agencies use the same 24-hour dispatcher system including staff and radio equipment.

No signs of quake scars

POCATELLO — An Idaho State University geologist says that there is no evidence of new scars or fissures created by the Aug. 22 earthquake that struck south-central Idaho.

The earthquake, which registered about 5.8 on the Richter scale, was centered in the Lime Creek Canyon area near Challis.

It was strong enough to tip over vases in Challis homes and create "a considerable sensation of ground motion," said Dr. Fred E. May. But May said he could find no new evidence of "surface features" created by the Aug. 22 earthquake.

A previous scarp left by the stronger earthquake of Oct. 28, 1983, is still readily visible, May said.

Former teacher at Jerome granted delay in sentencing

JEROME — Ephriam Swann, 60, former Jerome school teacher, was granted a delay in sentencing Thursday in Magistrate Court in Jerome, after the judge ruled there was room for misunderstanding in a letter regarding his Supreme Court appeal.

Swann was convicted earlier this summer and sentenced in magistrate court on charges of failing to file state income tax returns for six years. His appeal to the district court was denied and he then appealed to the Idaho Supreme Court.

Swann had contended in court that the U.S. Constitution gives him rights that protect him from being forced to file such returns.

Fifth District Magistrate Roger Burdick asked Swann Thursday if he had received any other written document from the Supreme Court and he replied that he had not. He said he received only the one letter Wednesday saying that the Idaho Supreme Court was suspending for 14 days all further action until he could respond with a proper appeal.

Swann said he has now made a proper appeal and understands the letter to mean nothing further would be done in the lower courts until a ruling is made on the appeal.

William VonTagen of Boise, attorney for the state, said the original appeal had been found inadequate and the defendant should have paid a $75 filing fee along with a proper appeal, which he said was not done. The judge agreed, but said on the basis that the letter may have been misleading, he would grant a delay in sentencing.

Swann said he did not appear for the scheduled sentencing at 11 a.m. Thursday, because he understood the letter indicated all action was delayed. A bench warrant was issued and he was brought to court Thursday afternoon for the scheduled sentencing.

The original sentence that Swann appealed was 10 days in the county jail and a $300 fine.

Power-laden Meridian thumps Minico 48-7

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

RUPERT — It's nice being bigger, quicker and deeper going into a football game.

The Meridian Warriors enjoyed all the above and, to the surprise of no one, rolled past the Minico Spartans 48-7 Thursday night.

The Warriors were turned back on a fumble exchange inside the Minico 20-yard line on their first possession but after that scored consistently with their first unit. Meridian, ranked fourth in the first state AP prep poll, played all 77 suited-up men.

"We just out-manned them," said Meridian Coach Bob O'Meara in an understatement. "We didn't get everything accomplished we wanted to in this game. In the opener you have certain things you want to see and try to do. We ended up using the starters one more series than we wanted to because we were making some mistakes. I felt we were a little sloppy at times. It was a typical season-opener.

"But we got all 77 players in and that's good for morale. We have a couple of games coming up right away where some of these kids can't expect to see a lot of field time," he added.

Minico Coach Doug Bailey, in his first game at the Minico helm, said he would have liked things to have been a little closer.

"But we knew coming in we'd have to play a stupendous game to stay close to them and we didn't," he said.

"If Minico fans are leaving here tonight expecting to come back and see wholesale changes in the offense next week, they can forget it. We will not change the philosophy we came in here with. But we definitely will work harder on polishing the things we did well at times tonight and working on the things that didn't work well."

A Minico fumble on the game's second play gave Meridian possession at the Spartan 20 but the ubiquitous Steve Garbnd swiped the ball back two plays later at the Minico 13.

But it was only a temporary breather. John O'Mera took Minico's first punt of the game back 42 yards to the Spartan 19 and finished it up on the next play. He added the first of six extra-point kicks.

Three plays after the kickoff, Warrior Duane Richter intercepted a Todd MacKenzie pass at midfield. The Spartan defense held for three plays but on fourth and seven, Shon Ashley took an option pitch and sailed 41 yards.

Two plays into the second quarter, O'Mera broke a 31-yard scoring scamper. A Minico fumble at its own 12 set up another Warrior touchdown just over two minutes later, Ashley bucking across from the eight. After forcing Minico to punt, Meridian bounced back into Spartan country when Steve Budge Toro off a 32-yard scamper that carried to the Minico eight. He went fourth on the next play.

With the score reading 34-0, Meridian got the ball back near midfield with just over two minutes left in the half. The Warriors drove to the Spartan nine and then tried a pass into the flat. Spartan Rick May stepped inside to pick it off and romped 94 yards to break the shutout. Garland added the extra point.

O'Mera went liberally to his bench throughout the second half and scoring slowed dramatically. Ashley scored on a five-yard plunge to end the first-team's appearance and then five minutes into the final period a knot of Meridian players broke through to block a Minico punt. The ball rebounded into the Spartan end zone and reserve linebacker Andy Bell won the scramble to post the final six points of the game.

Minico had not advanced beyond its own 36-yard line to that point but then came up with a couple of MacKenzie passes to put together their only sustained effort of the night. The three-first-down drive carried to the Meridian 30 before running out of downs:

Meridian	48	20	7	46
Minico	0	0	0	7
Mer - O'Mera 19 run (O'Mera kick)
Mer - Ashley 41 run (O'Mera kick)
Mer - O'Mera 31 run (kick failed)
Mer - Ashley 8 run (O'Mera kick)
Mer - Budge 7 run (O'Mera kick)
Min - (Friday) 55 yard punt (Garland kick)
Mer - Ashley 6 run (O'Mera kick)
Mer - Bell cover blocked punt in end zone (O'Mera kick)

Lendl fights to Open win

Evert, Navratilova win easily

NEW YORK (AP) — Ivan Lendl beat back the strong challenge of South Africa's Eddie Edwards Thursday night and moved into the third round of the $2.55 million U.S. Open Tennis Championships.

Also advancing at the National Tennis Center were all of the other seeds who saw action, including the top three women — Martina Navratilova, Chris Evert Lloyd and Hana Mandlikova.

Lendl, who captured his first Grand Slam title earlier this year by defeating John McEnroe in the final of the French Open, dropped the opening set and was forced to a tiebreaker in the second before finally overcoming his South African opponent 3-6, 7-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Lloyd raced past Terry Holladay 6-1, 6-1; Navratilova stopped Andrea Leand 6-4, 6-2 and Mandlikova ousted Denmark's Tine Scheuer-Larsen 6-2, 6-0.

Other seeds moving into the third round in the men's draw included No. 4 Mats Wilander of Sweden, No. 5 Andres Gomez of Ecuador, No. 8 Aaron Krickstein, No. 10 Eliot Teltscher, No. 12 Vitas Gerulaitis, No. 14 Anders Jarryd of Sweden and No. 15 Pat Cash of Australia.

In the women's draw, other seeded winners included No. 7 Zina Garrison, No. 12 Bonnie Gadusek, No. 14 Carling Bassett of Canada and No. 16 Andrea Temesvari of Hungary.

Edwards, a three-time All-American at Pepperdine University, controlled the first set by forcing the action, taking the net at every chance. But Lendl's power and accurate passing shots found the South African confused and finally tired.

Despite the support of the crowd in Louis Armstrong Stadium, Edwards' game was methodically cut apart by Lendl, who, after being down 1-3 in the third set, ripped off the next 10 games and 11 of 12 to close out the match.

Lendl fired 10 aces in the match, three of them for the last three points in the fifth game of the final set.

Garrison came from behind to oust Italy's Raffaella Reggic 3-6, 6-1, 6-0; Gadusek toppled Pam Casale 2-6, 6-3, 6-4; Temesvari defeated Elise Burgin 7-5, 6-4, and Bassett struggled before downing Pascale Paradis of France 7-6, 7-6 in a topsy-turvy match.

Navratilova has swept to victory in her last five Grand Slam tournaments with ease, dispatching opponents in almost record time. But this time, it is Lloyd, the patient baseliner, who is finding the quicker road to the next round.

On Thursday, Navratilova took 61 minutes to eclipse Lendl, two minutes quicker than she won her first-round match against Lea Antonoplis. But Lloyd, who stopped Sharon Walsh in 41 minutes, dispatched Holladay in 55 minutes.

"I played a very good, solid match," Navratilova said. "She served really well, so I had a hard time, breaking serve. But I was holding on to mine. And I broke when I finally got the chance.

"I never lost my serve, which was the key. If I had served and volleyed like I did yesterday, I would have lost the first set."

Teltscher just barely escaped an upset bid by fellow American Mark Dickson, outlasting the right-hander 3-6, 6-4, 2-6, 6-3, 7-6. And Jarryd needed five sets to down Daniele Visser of South Africa 6-7, 6-3, 3-6, 7-5, 6-3.

Wilander defeated young Michael Kures 7-6, 6-3, 6-4; Krickstein downed Jeff Klaparada 6-4, 6-3, 3-6, 7-6; Gerulaitis breezed past Italy's Gianni Oleppio 6-1, 6-4, 6-0, and Gomez stopped Mike Bauer 6-0, 4-6, 6-3, 6-2.

Cleppio held serve to begin the match before the flamboyant Gerulaitis ripped off the next six games. When the Italian broke Gerulaitis' serve in the seventh game of the second set, he pulled into a 4-3 lead.

But the blond New Yorker reeled off nine straight games to close out the match.

Heavies battle tonight

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Tim Witherspoon, whose only loss was in a controversial split decision to Larry Holmes, makes the first defense of his World Boxing Council heavyweight title tonight against undefeated Pinklon Thomas.

Witherspoon goes into the fight as a solid 2-1 favorite, according to the betting line on the Las Vegas Strip, but Thomas says he is confident he can wrest the crown from the champion.

"I don't see Tim as a great fighter," said Thomas. "I see him as a good fighter, but I know I can beat him. He says he'll knock me out, but I've never even been knocked down. I think Friday we'll find out if he's as good as the thinker."

Witherspoon, who earlier in the week threatened to pull out of the fight if promoter Don King didn't sweeten the contract terms, says he has put that out of his mind and is now ready to fight.

Witherspoon weighed in Thursday at 217 pounds, one pound heavier than Thomas' 216, and proclaimed himself in great shape.

"I'm feeling real good. I've been running a lot and my weight is down," he said. "I'm looking for it to go no further than five rounds."

Witherspoon weighed 220 when he won the crown Holmes vacated last December in an elimination fight against Greg Page in March. Although he won a unanimous 12-round decision over Page, Witherspoon said he wasn't satisfied with his performance.

"It was like a mysterious fight," he said. "I didn't really take to that fight like I wanted to."

Golf

Sigel won't repeat at Amateur

EDMOND, Okla. (AP) — A pair of young lions were thrust into the favorite's role Thursday when Jay Sigel was eliminated in his bid to become the first player to win three straight U.S. Amateur golf championships.

Sigel, 40, an insurance executive from Barrow, Pa., lost 3 and 1 to Rocco Mediate of Greensburg, Pa., in the first round of match play.

That left Scott Verplank, an Oklahoma State golfer who had the low 36-hole qualifying score of 137, and Scott Dunlap, a University of Florida golfer who had the second-best qualifying score of 140, in a strong position for a possible showdown Sunday.

Both easily advanced to today's third round with a pair of victories Thursday and are on opposite sides of the bracket.

The field narrows to a two-man, 36-hole showdown Sunday.

The 16 players in the first round today are survivors from among 64 who qualified for match play Wednesday. A total of 282 golfers participated in qualifying rounds Tuesday and Wednesday.

Sigel appeared drained after two days of qualifying in record-high temperatures of up to 106 degrees. Earlier, Sigel declared himself out of shape and said he doubted whether he could win a third straight title.

"He didn't look like he was into the match," said Mediate, a 21-year-old Florida Southern product who was ousted in the second round.

"I'm as fierce a competitor as there is," the soft-spoken Sigel said. "I had to lose sometime and I don't mind losing to Rocco."

Kuhn resolves Cubs' playoff dilemma

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball resolved its playoff dilemma with the Chicago Cubs on Thursday, deciding to let them play midweek day games in the National League Championship Series but to start the World Series in the American League city to allow weeknight games.

If the Cubs are not involved, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said the first midweek NL playoff game will be at night and the second during the day and the World Series will start at night in the National League city.

Switching the Series to start in the AL city would mean only three games instead of four could be played at the Cubs' Wrigley Field, the only major league stadium without lights, and would give the home field advantage to the American League.

BOWIE KUHN Announces plan

Under the plan announced by Kuhn:

- If the Cubs win the National League East, the best-of-five playoffs will start with day games in Chicago Oct. 2-3. Both American League playoff games in that case would be played at night.

begin with a day game Oct. 2 and a night game Oct. 3.

The AL playoffs will begin in the home park of the West winner.

- If the Cubs win the National League pennant, the World Series will start in the American League city with night games Oct. 9-10, moving to Chicago for day games Friday through Sunday, Oct. 12-14. The last two games, if necessary, would be at night in the American League city.
- If the Cubs do not win the NL, the Series will open with night games Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 9-10, in the National League park and move to American League for a night game Friday, Oct. 12, and day games Saturday and Sunday. The last two games, if necessary, would be at night in the National League city.

Kuhn said statistics have shown that the team that played the first two games at home has won the World Series 53 percent of the time. At the same time, though, he noted that visiting teams have won the seventh and deciding game 15 of 26 times that the Series has gone the distance.

Kuhn said a stumbling block to installing temporary lights at Wrigley were state and local laws aimed at preventing night games there.

"In our discussions with the people in Illinois, we decided we could not get relief for either one of the regulations," he said. "So we eliminated the option of putting in temporary lights."

Kuhn has been under pressure to revise the schedule, force installation of lights at Wrigley Field or have the Cubs play somewhere else because midweek day games would attract lower television ratings.

Baseball would then be required to rebroadcast to the networks — ABC for the playoffs, NBC for the World Series — substantial amounts of money to compensate for the loss of advertising revenue. Some estimates have put that rebate as high as $70,000 per game.

"I don't know about the exact cost," Kuhn said. "It will be substantial and it will be in the millions."

The commissioner said the networks agreed to go along.

Couples, Donald split B.C. lead

ENDICOTT, N.Y. (AP) — Tournament Players Championship winner Fred Couples banded in an eagle-3 on the 14th hole of his round Thursday to tie the Mike Donald for the first-round lead of the $300,000 B.C. Open at 5-under-par 65.

Just behind were Tommy Valentine, Canadian native Dan Halldorson and Wayne Levi, all with 67s.

Rookie Jim Gallagher and veteran Ed Flori shot 68, while 11 players were grouped at 69, the three strokes off the pace. All told, 32 of the 137 starters broke par on the 6,566-yard En-Jolie Golf Club course and another 10 matched par-71.

Gil Morgan, who won here in 1977 and finished second to Pat Lindsey last year, was in a 14-player logjam at 70 — four strokes back. But the light, demanding public course took 115 toll on such players as Lindsey, who skied to a 76, and World Series of Golf champion Denis Watson.

Watson recovered from a 3-over 40 on the front nine with an even-par back nine but still was eight shots back at 74.

Couples has been the more consistent of the leaders this year, making the cut in 21 of 22 tournaments and finishing well enough in them to accumulate $313,701 in earnings. The TPC crown was his second win in a four-year pro career.

But Couples needed a lightning stroke to catch Donald.

Both players started on the 10th hole, with Couples one three-shot behind. By the time both cleared No. 3 — their 12th hole — Donald was 5-under and three strokes ahead of Couples.

Donald bogeyed No. 3, a 221-yard par-3, when he missed the green and two-putted from 10 feet, but he got the stroke back on the 565-yard fifth hole by two-putting from the front fringe for birdie.

Expos dump disinterested Virdon

MONTREAL (AP) — Bill Virdon was fired Thursday as manager of the Montreal Expos and replaced for the balance of the season by Jim Fanning, who led the team to its only division title in 1981.

Virdon, 53, arrived in Montreal on Oct. 12, 1982, filled with the hope he could discover the formula to transform the Expos' seemingly abundant potential into a World Series champion. But his tenure ended following a 4-3, 11-inning defeat against San Francisco on Wednesday night, the Expos' sixth straight one-run loss.

After an $2-80 record under Virdon last season, the Expos were 64-67 and fifth in the six-team East Division this season. And Virdon didn't plan on returning as manager.

"I have no ill feelings about it," Virdon said of the club's decision to have him step down now, rather than the end of the season. "I partially created the situation myself."

"I had already told them I wasn't planning on managing next year. That has to give them some food for thought."

When Virdon expressed that view to McHale, the pair sat down two days ago, and the Expos' general manager said he told Virdon it would be difficult to mask his attitude and feelings through the last month of the schedule.

For this reason, the Expos' board of directors decided to have the 56-year-old Fanning replace Virdon. In his first stint as Montreal manager, Fanning replaced Dick Williams on Sept. 8, 1981, the strike-free season in which the Expos won the East championship. Fanning returned to his role as vice-president of player development after a disappointing 1982 season.

McHale, a longtime friend of Fanning, said he was asked to take over the club for the sake of continuity.

"He'll be here next year as a member of the Montreal Baseball Club Ltd. The press release says he will manage until the end of the season. That's as far as it goes, and as far as we go."

Fanning said the message he gave the players before Thursday night's game against the Los Angeles Dodgers was: "I appreciate their frustration. I'm impressed on them that they are capable of winning a lot of games."

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"If you would know what the Lord God thinks of money, you have only to look at those to whom he gives it."

— Maurice Baring.

South's five diamond winners in dummy were as good as money in the bank. Unfortunately South never found the way to spend the cash. East won his club and returned the suit to South's king. The game looked easy as South eyed dummy's long diamonds. All followed to the ace of diamonds, but the king brought a tempting heart deuce from West, causing South to wonder about his next move.

If he cashed dummy's diamond queen, East would get no diamond trick but dummy's fifth diamond would never cash. So South planned on two heart finesses, placing ill-fall in West's deceptive discard. West won and took three more club tricks, and South's game fell one short.

South was indeed unlucky in the line of the diamonds, however, he missed a sure chance to make his game. Instead of falling for West's deceptive discard, South should have won a diamond from his own hand. West would win and cash two more high clubs, but that would be all. Dummy's diamonds would now run and South would collect a safe nine tricks.
