Hansen appeals recount decision

The Associated Press

BOISE — Attorneys for Congressman George Hansen, refusing to concede defeat to Democratic Rep.-elect Richard Stallings five and half weeks after the election, filed his formal appeal with the state Supreme Court Friday seeking a general recount in the disputed race.

Attorney John Sutton contended in the legal papers that Attorney General Jim Jones misinterpreted the state's 1957 recount law when he denied Hansen's request for a state-financed, districtwide recount earlier this week.

Citing election law cases in South-Dakota and Indiana, Sutton said in the brief, "If the public will is to be determined, this court must interpret the recount statute in such a way to foster a certainty of result for the good of the citizens and not effect a narrow strict interpretation which would... frustrate the will of the citizens of Idaho.

"Of primary importance in the dispensation of justice is the assurance of integrity in the electoral process of our state," the brief said.

The court has given no indication about when it will act on Hansen's recount request.

Although a partial recount financed by Hansen did nothing more than pad Stallings' narrow victory margin, the seven-term congressman and his attorney argued that 10 precincts showed a trend in favor of Hansen that, if sustained, districtwide, would reverse the Nov. 6 election's outcome. They contended that is all that must be shown to trigger the $20,000 general recount.

"When weighed against the fact that this election and recount of selected precincts has raised more questions than it has answered... the clear and undeniable resolution of this matter can only be viewed as an unavoidable expense," the brief said.

Sutton said in the brief that under the trend established in the 10 specific precincts cited, if carried through the remaining 406 precincts that would be retabulated in a general recount, Hansen eventually would win by 195 votes.

Jones, confident his decision will be upheld, said he felt the law required all the results of the partial recount to be considered, not just a portion of them.

On Wednesday, an "informal" group of Hansen backers went to state district court to challenge the Hansen-Stallings balloting in Blaine County, where they claim nearly 2,500 voters fall to meet legal registration requirements.

"Each one of these things has opened up something else," Hansen said in an interview from his Washington office. "There'll be other things later on."

Earlier in the day in Blackfoot, Stallings expressed no surprise at Hansen's continued attempts to challenge the election outcome.

"It's to be expected. I assume he'll drag this thing out as long as he can," Stallings said at a news conference in Blackfoot. "I don't know his motives but if it's to maintain a high visibility, he's been successful."

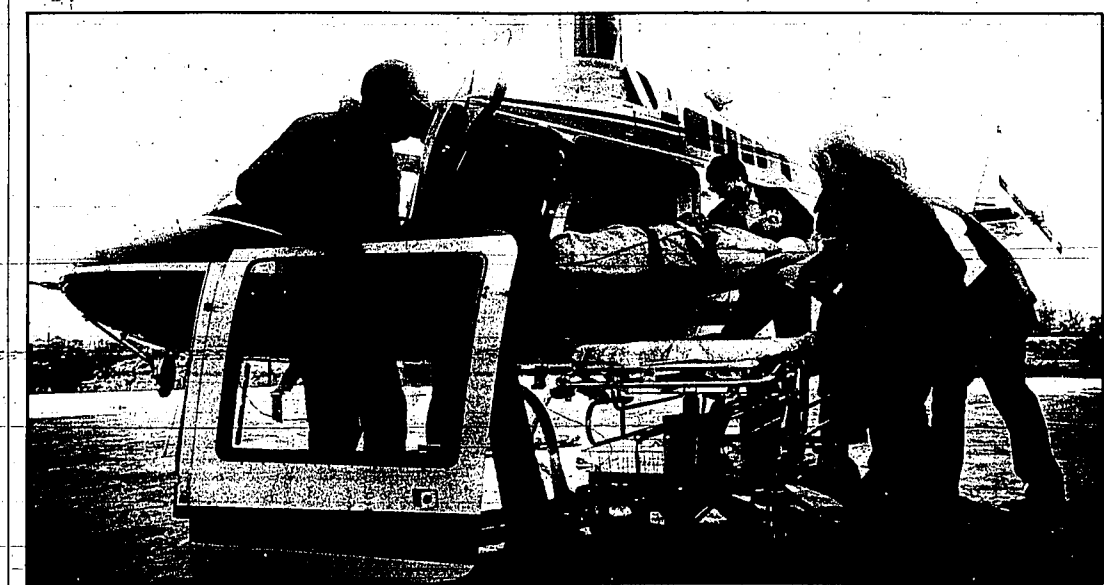

Stallings, fresh from indoctrination and organizational meetings in Washington, D.C.,

said discussions with the House officials indicated that the seven-term Republican has little chance of having his defeat overturned in Congress.

If the election and recount are certified by Idaho election officials, Hansen has "no grounds for reversal," Stallings said.

The Rexburg Democrat, who defeated Hansen by 66 votes election night and watched the margin swell to 170 votes after certification and a 45-precinct recount requested by Hansen, said the district's electorate has spoken and that he plans to be sworn in Jan. 3.

"When you come in with a landslide of 66 votes you're bound to be nervous," Stallings said. "But after the recount was over and the attorney general made his decision, I put it behind me."

Cubans to go home

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON (AP) — About 2,700 Cuban criminals and mental patients will be sent home under an agreement reached Friday by the Reagan administration and the Castro government.

But the White House stressed it would not even discuss resuming relations with Cuba until "they are willing to re-enter the family of nations." His were broken in 1961 after President Fidel Castro appropriated nearly all U.S. property on the island.

Castro announced the agreement to his countrymen Friday night on national radio and television.

Besides agreeing to take back 2,746 unwanted "bad people," most of whom committed crimes after they entered the United States, the Castro government will allow up to 3,000 former political prisoners and up to 20,000 other refugees to apply for U.S. visas annually.

The deal was struck after four years of negotiations and Cuba backed-pedaled from its initial demand that only refugees who volunteered to go home could be returned.

Despite the successful conclusion, the administration said there was no point talking to Cuba about other differences between the two governments. "We are treating this as an isolated problem," said Larry Speakes, the White House spokesman.

The "excludables" due to go back to Havana were among 129,000 Cubans who flocked here from the port of Mariel in 1980. Since then, the United States has accepted 2,000 to 3,000 refugees a year, mostly relatives of Cubans already in the country.

Regular visas will be issued again as a result of the agreement. The process was suspended in 1980 when the Cubans refused to repatriate "Marxists" with criminal records or mental problems — many of the same people now to be returned.

Senior administration officials, briefing reporters at the White House on an anonymous basis, said the deportations could begin within 30 days.

Schroeder recovering 'brilliantly'

The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Artificial heart recipient William J. Schroeder seemed to be recovering brilliantly Friday from a stroke.

He was regaining his speech and some use of his right arm and leg, which had been briefly paralyzed, doctors said.

Dr. Allan M. Lansing said Friday afternoon that the sun had broken through after two days of gloom and overcast, and he said the change to better weather "correlates exactly with the patient's condition."

Schroeder, the world's second permanent artificial heart recipient, was in no pain and was able to converse in slow, measured tones. He also was gradually regaining the use of his right arm and leg, said Lansing, who is chairman and medical director of the Humana Heart Institute International.

"His stroke was severe at the time but it was only a small area and he seems to be recovering brilliantly from it," Lansing said. "The stroke occurred beneath a small patch of the brain's surface on Schroeder's left side. The damage was 'small, but detectable, with no functional effect,'" Lansing said.

Hoopes: Cuts cause education 'crisis'

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

BOISE (AP) — Funding cuts have created a "bonafide crisis" in Idaho higher education, that won't be solved by dumping Lewis-Clark State College, and may cost all four institutions their accreditation, Board of Education President J. Clint Hoopes warned Friday.

The four schools were reaccredited by the Northwest Association of Schools and Colleges for this year after reviews in October, Hoopes said. But in a recent letter to the Board of Education, the association said inadequate funding had "seriously eroded" the schools' ability to carry out their missions.

The association said academic quality was in "grave jeopardy" because of a "lack of adequate and reasonable financial support by the state."

"Idaho, in our humble opinion, has a bonafide crisis in higher education which needs immediate attention," said Francis J. Kerins, chairman of the association's Commission on Colleges. "Continued accreditation in the future may well depend on whether the problems of funding and support of higher education in Idaho are addressed and remedied."

Hoopes said the association's findings confirmed that "the board's long-held funding concerns have not been just solitary cries of wolf," adding that denied accreditation would have a "devastating effect" on college students in Idaho.

He said loss of accreditation would make it difficult for Idaho college students to transfer credits to out-of-state institutions, or to be admitted to programs for graduate degrees in other states. Other fallout would include possible loss of financial aid, loss of specialized or professional programs and difficulty in recruiting qualified faculty.

Pointing out that funding for the University of Idaho, Idaho State University, Boise State University and Lewis-Clark State College has been cut by more than $11.3 million since 1980, Hoopes said lawmakers must endorse the 17.3 percent budget increase being proposed for next year "if the demise of Idaho's higher education system is to be avoided."

"This is not a ship that's been grounded," he said, "but we are in shallow water."

The association described the mood on the four campuses as one of "grim unity," marked by distrust, suspicion and fear. But Hoopes said the attitude of faculty and staff at each school was one of frustration rather than envy for better conditions elsewhere.

Hoopes also completely discounted House Speaker Tom Silvers' suggestion that more money would be available for the three major universities if Lewis-Clark were dropped from the state system.

Union Carbide chief calls for safety check

By STRAT DOUTHAT
The Associated Press

INSTITUTE, Va. — Union Carbide Corp. Chairman Warren Anderson said Friday the safety of the chemical industry should be re-evaluated worldwide following a chemical leak in India in which more than 2,000 people died.

Anderson, speaking at a congressional hearing, promised that Union Carbide would not resume production of methyl isocyanate until it knows what caused last week's deadly leak of that chemical in Bhopal, India.

The hearing was conducted at West Virginia State College in the shadow of the company's Institute plant, where Carbide operates its only U.S. production unit for methyl isocyanate. A demonstrator was arrested for attempting to take a protest sign into the college auditorium.

Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., calling current emergency procedures "a joke," said he intended to develop legislation aimed at preventing a similar disaster in the United States.

Anderson was greeted with skepticism when he promised Carbide would cooperate with efforts to draft legislation providing more public protection from chemical accidents. Waxman noted that the company has consistently opposed further regulation of the chemical industry.

Ancient brains unearthed

TITUSVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two 7,000-year-old "well-preserved and complete" human brains have been unearthed just 15 miles west of the space shuttle launch pad.

Scientists said Friday they may provide clues to the evolution of human genes.

"The existence of two preserved brains from one archaeological site and 7,000-year-old DNA makes this a spectacular scientific contribution," University of Florida molecular biologist William W. Hauswirth told reporters at a press conference.

The discovery of the tissue was described as unprecedented in the world because biochemical analysis has detected preserved DNA, the genetic blueprint of living organisms.

"This is the first human brain of this antiquity in the world to be so thoroughly analyzed," the scientist said. The oldest DNA analyzed previously came from flesh on a preserved hide of a quagga, an African relative of the zebra that became extinct a century ago.

The DNA should be useful in learning about gene evolution and possibly identifying viral diseases and cancer during that period, said archaeologist Dr. Glen H. Doran of Florida State University, Hauswirth and Dr. Philip J. Laipis, another University of Florida molecular biologist.

The virtually intact male and female skulls were found earlier this week at an excavation at a housing development known as Windover. Farms near this community just outside the gates of Kennedy Space Center.

The skulls were buried about 12 feet below the surface, protected in an oxygen-free environment of mineral water, Doran said.

Doran, who heads the archaeological project, said the bog previously has yielded bones of 50 to 60 men, women and children from about 5000 B.C., according to radio-carbon dating.

Briefly

Koreans to meet again Jan. 17
TOKYO (AP) — North Korea on Friday accepted South Korea's proposal to hold a second round of economic talks Jan. 17 at the truce village of Panmunjom.
 The talks had been set for Dec. 5. However, North Korea on Nov. 27 insisted on a postponement, citing "heightened tension at Panmunjom" because of the "showing of force" of three North Korean soldiers and one South Korean soldier and a Soviet national detected on Nov. 23.
 The economic talks, the first such discussions since Korea was divided into a Communist North and pro-Western South at the end of World War II, began Nov. 15 at South Korea's initiative to discuss trade and other business cooperation between the two nations.

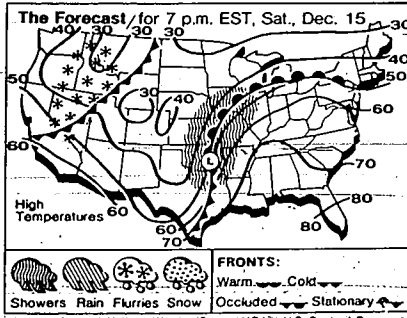

Block says trade war unlikely
BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — U.S. Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said Friday a proposed radical change in U.S. farm policy would not spark an agricultural trade war with the European Common Market.
 Block defended the proposal by the Reagan administration to end subsidies to farmers and to abandon controls on production.
 "We do not compete in the world markets with this kind of program," Block told a news conference after he and four other administration officials met senior executives of the Common Market.

Another congressman jailed
WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Harold Ford, D-Tenn., and two professors were arrested in front of the South African Embassy as they protested apartheid policies of the Pretoria government.
 Meanwhile, in New Orleans, a group protesting South Africa's apartheid policy stormed the doors of a shipping company, breaking down the doors before one was arrested.

Hearing set for suspect

BOISE (AP) — A woman charged with harboring one of the nation's most-wanted criminals in northern Idaho made her first appearance Friday in federal court in Boise.
 U.S. Magistrate Mikel Williams set a preliminary examination for Elizabeth Anne Willis, 35, originally from Farmland, Ind., for 10 a.m. Jan. 2. At that hearing, Williams will determine whether probable cause exists to hold Ms. Willis on the federal charge.
 He allowed her to remain free on a $10,000 bond set in Denver.

Heart

Schroeder had a bout of depression Friday afternoon, which Lansing said was a classic symptom of the malady.
 "Like any patient who's had a stroke, he was a little wacky this afternoon," Lansing said.
 Lansing said doctors were probably several days away from finding the cause of the stroke, which occurred about 4 p.m. MST Thursday.
 But he said his hunch was that Schroeder was felled by an embolus, which is a clot or any of an assortment of particles, including bits of plaque and pieces of arterial wall that break off into the bloodstream and lodge in a blood vessel.
 "My own personal feeling, with his being so well and (having) a very sudden onset and a rapid recovery, suggests a small flock of something about the size of the head of a pin hit a vessel" (and) produced spasm in that vessel," Lansing said.
 The cause would ultimately be found through a process of elimination using various sophisticated tests, he said.
 Schroeder knew without being told that he had been stricken, Lansing said.
 "He does know he's had a stroke. I'm convinced he knows," Lansing said in a news conference. "You can tell from the look in his eyes that he's trying to speak and he's frustrated somewhat by that."
 Schroeder was returned to the coronary care unit at Humana Hospital Audubon, which houses the heart institute, and his condition was changed from satisfactory to serious.
 The stroke partially paralyzed the right side of Schroeder's body, but his arm and leg were showing "spontaneous movement," Lansing said.
 "It is not just tiny little quivers; there were definite motions," he said.
 "If that progress continues Schroeder might be out of bed in 48 hours," Lansing said. He also estimated that Schroeder could be out of the hospital in about four weeks, barring further setbacks.
 Asked if the stroke might have been averted by drug experiments conducted on Schroeder, Lansing said: "Absolutely not, nor did his vigorous activity (during recovery)."

Carbide

 Anderson responded that, in light of the Bhopal tragedy, it is "time, whatever your position, that the industry is re-evaluated." He said the Indian disaster "has shaken the world" and "is overwhelming all of us at Carbide."
 However, Anderson insisted that Carbide's safety precautions at Institute are adequate and that there was no way to foresee the deadly chemical leak at Bhopal.
 "We had operated it (the Indian plant) safely for seven years. It never entered my mind that such a thing could happen," he said.
 Anderson was the object of jeering from some area residents in the audience of about 150.
 Waxman, chairman of the Subcommittee on Health and the Environment, said Union Carbide must be held accountable for what happened at Bhopal and asked if the company was prepared to meet any emergency at Institute.
 Anderson said he once would have answered "yes but now couldn't honestly respond until he learns what happened at the Bhopal facility, which is almost identical to the Institute plant although smaller.
 "We won't resume production until we know what happened and until we are certain we can produce it safely," he said.

Rep. Gerry Sikorski, D-Minn., took issue with Anderson's statement that Union Carbide safety procedures have become "better and better." He said records indicate the Institute plant releases hundreds of tons of poisons into the atmosphere each year, and said he was appalled that the company does not keep accurate records of the emissions.
 "In fact," Waxman said, "you really don't know what you are putting in to the atmosphere and what effect it has."
 Anderson said an emission-free plant is impossible.
 "We don't have zero discharge capability at this time, but I'm sure there are emissions coming from the plant from time to time that are controllable and are not harmful," he said.

Gunman kills 4, wounds 3 in holdup

By CHARLIE SMITH
The Associated Press

GERONIMO, Okla. — A lone gunman harried seven adults and an infant into the back room of a small bank Friday and opened fire, killing four and wounding three before he fled, authorities said.

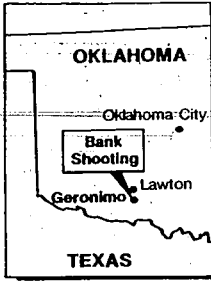

The FBI said it was not known how much money the gunman took from the First Bank of Chattanooga branch in this town of 800 people, located about 100 miles southwest of Oklahoma City.

The bank's female manager and two women employees, one of them six months pregnant, and a male bank customer were killed, police said.

The gunman fled in a car after reportedly ordering the group into a back room, forcing them to lie on the floor and then shooting them in the head and back, according to City Marshal Tommy Dale.

The weapon was believed to be a blue steel automatic pistol, said FBI spokesman Don Vogel. Vogel said he did not know how many shots were fired.

Reuben Robles, 20, the father of the infant, and his 15-year-old wife, Bellon, went to a drive-in restaurant next door for help, said Dale. They were wounded but their child, identified as 1-year-old Juanita Robles, was not shot.

"They were bleeding pretty bad and kind of in hysterics," said Sherri Shappell, an employee at the restaurant. "They were trying to call people and tell them what happened."

The first person on the scene, Pam Matthews of Geronimo, said she had entered the bank to withdraw money for Christmas and found the lobby empty.

"I heard a baby crying. I kept hollering 'Is anybody here, is anybody here?' All I kept hearing was a baby crying."

"I walked to the back of the bank and found them all in one room. No one was moving. I think they felt maybe the robber was still in the bank. Only the baby was crying, and I ran out to get help."

Dale identified the dead as bank manager Kay Bruno, in her 40s; employees Joyce Mullinex, in her 20s and six months pregnant, and Jeri Bowles, about 18; and customer Eddie Zeller, in his late 20s. He said all lived in Geronimo.

One of the wounded, who was identified as Marilyn Roach, 24, was first taken to Southwestern Hospital in Lawton — and then to the Oklahoma City Memorial Hospital. She was reported in critical but stable condition, officials said.

Robles was treated and released from Comanche County Memorial Hospital for a gunshot wound to the back of the head. His wife was admitted in good condition to the hospital, said spokeswoman Kelly Brack.

Authorities set up roadblocks in the area surrounding the town in search of a man in his late 20s. He reportedly had a mustache, shoulder-length hair, green eyes and a thin build.

Robles "gave a really good description of the guy," said Dale.

The robbery occurred at approximately 1:30 p.m., Vogel said. He said he did not know how much money was taken from the bank.

"A lot of the people who live in this town work over at the Goodyear plant (in nearby Lawton)," Dale said. "They get paid every Friday so somebody might have thought there was a lot of money in the bank."

The Oklahoma Highway Patrol issued a report for a blue Buick, and the patrol was using a helicopter to search for the suspect.

As many as 25 troopers were taking part in the manhunt, with sheriff's deputies from a half-dozen southwest Oklahoma towns.

In Oklahoma City, Gov. George Nigh appealed for "all possible assistance under the law" to apprehend the gunman.

Billie Coast was two blocks away from the bank when the robbery occurred.

"We didn't know anything had happened until we heard the sirens, police cars and ambulances and all kinds of excitement," she said.

The bank, located in a one-story building in downtown Geronimo, has been open since February.

The Oklahoma Bankers Association was offering a $3,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the suspect.

Report: U.S. force set to free hostages

By The Associated Press

A Kuwaiti newspaper, Al-Qabas, said Friday the United States flew a special combat unit to the capital of an Arab nation neighboring Iran for a commando operation to free hostages aboard a hijacked Kuwaiti jetliner at the Tehran airport.

In a front-page report, Al-Qabas said the commando group was a "Delta" unit. It did not identify the Arab capital, but the only Arab country with a common border with Iran is Iraq, and those two countries have been fighting a border war since September 1980. Kuwait is across the narrow northern tip of the Persian Gulf from Iran.

Al-Qabas said that when Syria, an ally of Iran, learned of the American unit's presence, it pressured Tehran to end the hijack operation with a raid that freed the final group of hostages, including two Americans.

At the Pentagon, Army Lt. Col. Richard Lake said, "As a matter of policy we do not confirm or deny any reports involving the United States' special operations forces."

State Department deputy spokesman Alan Romberg had no comment, saying it would not be prudent for the United States to discuss publicly how it might respond to terrorist incidents.

In Tehran, the capital of Iran, the parliamentary speaker was quoted as making remarks that indicated little likelihood of Iran's freeing U.S. detainees that Iran try the hijackers or allow them to be extradited to another country for trial.

The Kuwaiti Airlines jet carrying more than 160 people was seized last week by four Arabic-speaking terrorists on a flight from Kuwait to Pakistan and freed most of the hostages but killed two Americans during a six-day ordeal that ended Sunday when Iranian security men overpowered the hijackers.

As further details of the hijack ordeal came from the freed crew and passengers, the Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Watan reported that the first American to be killed by the hijackers was selected because "he tore up his passport."

The two slain Americans were Charles Hegna and William L. Stanford, both employees of the U.S. Agency for International Development.

The two American survivors, Charles Kapar, 37, also a U.S. AID official, and John Costa, 50, a New York businessman, have returned to the United States.

Aid for AIDS sought

WASHINGTON (AP) — Local health officials, saying new cases of AIDS are becoming a burden to big-city health budgets, asked Friday that the government expand federal aid to communities hardest hit by the disease.

Health officers from a dozen large U.S. cities said the rapidly growing number of AIDS victims is cutting in to their budgets. Many victims move to the cities looking for proper care after they learn they have the disease, officials said, making it more than a local problem and deserving of federal support.

"We're looking for some kind of federal support, any way it can be done," said San Francisco Health Commissioner Mervyn Silverman. "There's got to be some kind of funding to offset the local costs."

Conference of Local Health Officers, an affiliate of the U.S. Conference of Mayors. He told a news conference that AIDS — Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome — is growing in its effect in the cities.

AIDS, which prevents the body from fighting infection and thus far has proved invariably to be fatal, is transmitted by sexual contact involving the transfer of body fluids and, rarely, by blood transfusions.

Its primary victims have been homosexual men, Haitian immigrants and hemophiliacs, who often get transfusions, also are among the high-risk group.

Officers search through father and son's hide-out

Hunt ends for pair sought in Montana

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — "What kept you so long?" Dan Nichols asked lawmen after he and his father were captured in the southwestern Montana wilderness, ending a five-month hunt for the two mountain men.

Don Nichols, 53, and his 20-year-old son had been sought since July for the kidnapping and wounding of a young woman-member of the U.S. biathlon team and the slaying of a would-be rescuer near Big Sky.

They were captured Thursday afternoon by Madison County Sheriff Johnny France, who tracked them on foot for four miles through deep snow and arrested them at gunpoint on a mountainside in Madison Canyon.

Although the two men had said they would not be taken alive following the shootings, their capture came without a shot.

Both men made an initial appearance Thursday night in justice court at Virginia City and were ordered held without bond, pending arraignment in district court Tuesday.

Authorities said each man is charged with deliberate homicide, aggravated kidnapping and felony intimidation. Don Nichols also is charged with aggravated assault and his son with misdemeanor assault.

Gallatin County Sheriff John Onstad, who was with the men for about four hours as they were taken to Virginia City and then to the Gallatin County Jail in Bozeman, said, "About the first thing they said to me was 'What kept you so long?'"

Hungry, fatigued and gaunt, their trousers legs frozen to their skin, the Nichols talked about their lives in the rugged mountains of southwestern Montana and their capture, Onstad said.

"Though the men were subdued, they talked openly about everything except the shootings and kidnapping, the sheriff said.

"They were very thankful they didn't get shot," he said. "They felt some fear that anybody coming in on them would shoot them."

Onstad described the fugitives as "filthy dirty" from their months in the mountains.

"Dan really looks healthy and looks like he's got some flesh on his bones. Their clothes are tattered and the pant legs were frozen halfway to their knees, yet they said the cold didn't bother them."

The Nichols were surprised and frustrated they had been caught — captured by a lone man in an area "beyond the fringe of the search area," Onstad said. "They kind of chastised themselves for getting out of their home territory."

Man dies for $44

MIAMI (AP) — A Haitian immigrant "looking for the land of opportunity" was killed when he refused to give up his savings, $44.56 in a paper bag, and his body lay on a busy street corner for up to an hour before anyone called police.

Police were seeking a pair of armed robbers thought to be working in the area, Miami Police spokesman Mike Stewart said Friday.

Snowstorms strike across the nation

By The Associated Press

Snow fell from the usually sunny Southwest to the Great Lakes on Friday, closing schools and turning highways into "extremely hazardous" skating rinks across the Plains.

Another storm began moving into the Pacific Northwest.

Elsewhere, dense fog led to chain reaction traffic accidents Friday in North Carolina, Missouri and Georgia in which six people were killed.

The storm had buried parts of Arizona and Colorado under up to 20 inches of snow, unleashed home-flattening tornadoes in Texas and downed power lines in California and Kansas.

By Friday, the snow extended to the Great Lakes, with up to 4 inches of snow at La Crosse, Wis., 5 inches at Albert Lea, Minn., and 9 inches at Flaggan, Iowa. Freezing rain mixed with snow glazed highways in western Michigan and 11 people were injured Friday in an eight-vehicle collision on Chicago's rain-slickened Kennedy Expressway, police said.

Snowfall began tapering off in many areas Friday, but not before up to 11 inches fell on parts of Nebraska and Kansas.

The snow-covered and icy roads left by the storm caused widespread school closings Friday in Nebraska, Kansas and New Mexico.

In New Mexico, state Highway Department spokesman Joe Healy said most roads in the state were snowpacked and icy. He said several were closed, including Interstate 25 from Socorro south to Truth or Consequences. The remainder of I-25, from a border-to-border, was snowpacked and icy, as was Interstate 10 from El Paso, Texas, through southern New Mexico to the Arizona line.

In northwestern Kansas, Dresden got 10 to 11 inches of snow by Friday morning, and many roads in the western part of the state were snowpacked and icy.

Officials in Wichita, Kan., said 15,000 homes and businesses lost electricity Thursday night as freezing rain snapped power lines. Service was restored within a few hours to about 12,000 customers, but Kansas Gas and Electric Co. officials said repairs continued Friday.

Navy faces ordered to be clean-shaven

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Beards, allowed in the Navy since the 1970s, will be banned on men of all ranks under an order issued Friday night by the chief of naval operations, the Navy announced.

The ban will be effective Jan. 1, Lt. Cmdr. Keith Maynard, a Navy spokesman, said in Washington.

The only exception to the ban will be if a navyman has a medical excuse for having a beard.

One bearded petty officer, Richard New, said he thought "it's rotten" that the policy is about to be changed. "I don't think they can tell you everything to do," he said.

President downplays reports of dispute in military buildup

By CLIFF HAAS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — With a joke and a grin, President Reagan sought to dismiss reports Friday that work on next year's proposed federal budget was paralyzed by an internal dispute over how much the military buildup should be trimmed to cut the deficit in half by 1988.

The president also reaffirmed his goals for reducing the deficit to less than $100 billion in three years. Meanwhile, senior Republican senators lobbied top White House aides to include military spending restraint, or even a freeze, in the new budget-Reagan submits to Congress early next year. The legislators were backed at a separate meeting by representatives of the nation's governors and city officials.

At a brief ceremony in the White House driveway as Reagan affixed an inaugural license plate No. 1 to his limousine, reporters asked him about a report in The Washington Post that his budget advisers have reached "total paralysis" in preparing the fiscal 1986 budget plan because of disputes over defense spending. "They must be just caught me asleep at a Cabinet meeting. It wasn't paralysis," Reagan said jokingly.

"All of the things that I've been tending about this...are obviously based on leaks (and) those leaks are what any solid foundation," he said.

Two hours earlier, White House spokesman Peter Rousell said, "I wouldn't quarrel with most of the stories." But after the president's remarks to reporters, Rousell said, "I was referring to the numbers in some of those stories," adding, "The president's always right."

Despite Reagan's lighthearted remarks, administration officials said privately they had no idea what the next move in the budget deliberations would be.

They expressed concern that Reagan's deficit-reduction plans might not win congressional approval unless the package includes significant cutbacks in military spending. "Everything is at a standstill on the defense business," said one administration source, who spoke only on condition that he not be identified.

Reagan's senior budget advisers are virtually unanimous in pressing for a reduction of about $8 billion in the planned 1986 military buildup.

"There's a universal sense that there should be a presidentially embraced defense-reduction component" in the budget, the source said.

Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger has proposed a smaller reduction of about $6 billion, using savings that some of the budget advisers say would total less than Weinberger claims.

Source said White House budget director David A. Stockman has proposed an overall plan for reducing planned military spending authority — a ceiling on outlays — by $121 billion over the next three years. By contrast, the source said, Weinberger's proposals would trim budget authority by only $19 billion.

Without reductions, administration officials have predicted that military budget authority will be $1.1 trillion over the next three years.

The president said Friday, "We are still in the basis of negotiating — or not negotiating, that's the wrong term to use — of studying the whole (budget) package of what we're going to present to Congress."

Several GOP senators met Friday with White House Chief of Staff James A. Baker III, Stockman and presidential assistant Richard G. Darman to discuss the budget.

Afterwards, Sen. John H. Chafee, R-R.I., a former Navy secretary, said, "All senators in the room wanted defense to take its share, there's no question about that. I would say personally, I think that most senators are sympathetic... (and) feel defense should be frozen (at the current level) as an initial suggestion."

George Sullivan stands in front of sign that duplicates his Vietnam memorial pin

Viet vet celebration turns into a financial disaster

WASHINGTON (AP) — George Sullivan ran up a $100,000 tab to stage the celebration that accompanied the completion of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial, hoping to pay it off by selling commemorative pins for $3 each.

Five weeks later, he's stuck with 70,000 pins, a debt of $76,000 and a determination "to do the right thing."

Sullivan's story is one of plans going awry. At 34, he left a well-paying job as a business consultant in April to devote full time to a project he called "Salute II" — getting his fellow veterans to attend the dedication of a statue at the Vietnam Memorial and making sure they had fun while they were here.

He formed a corporation to stage a concert on the National Mall, thinking he could use the Sylvan Theater, which has a sound and lighting system. Too late, he learned the U.S. Park Service was reseeding the ground and that it wasn't available.

Sullivan got another site on the Mall — the mile-long grassy stretch between the Washington Monument and the Capitol — but then he had to pay $23,000 for a sound system and $13,000 for staging.

Singer Wayne Newton had agreed to perform for free, but he backed out when the non-profit corporation Sullivan formed couldn't afford his $100,000 in expenses. Instead, the concert — which attracted 40,000 people — featured Frankie Valli and the Four Seasons, a group that sang tunes it made popular in the Vietnam war years.

"We had a deal with an organization to purchase from us the commemorative pins at a wholesale price and reselling them," Sullivan said in an interview Friday. "That would have covered our entire debt."

But on the night before the concert, he said, "they changed their mind. They left us no option. We just bit the dust on it."

Some other veterans groups had promised support — Sullivan won't name them — but they, too, reneged. Sullivan's corporation owes $50,000 for the pins alone.

"I have tried to procure funds from a variety of areas, using the pins as an asset," he said. "It is our only asset. I attempted to borrow money against my house, which fell through because the first mortgage holder found out about it and went crazy."

So now, Sullivan is trying to sell the pins directly, getting some free advertising space in veterans magazines. The red, white and blue pins are an inch long, bearing the slogan: "America's Veterans: One and All."

"At this point we're playing catch-up ball and everybody knows it," he said. The corporation could go into receivership but his lawyer, Dan Hayes, says he doesn't want to do that.

"Everybody we've dealt with has been honorable and we're going to do everything we can to pay these debts," Hayes said. "The only problem I see is that people will have to wait for their money a little longer. I'm sure once the veterans community really understands the situation that there will be money available."

Spy suspect has drink woes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A Soviet woman charged with espionage who has named two FBI agents as her lovers has a drinking problem and also once claimed to have had a romantic relationship with deceased Soviet intelligence officer, the KGB, Soviet leader Yuri Andropov, a prosecutor said in court Friday.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Bruce Merritt, at a wide-ranging hearing involving the case of Richard W. Miller, the first FBI agent charged with espionage, disclosed the contention by Svetlana Ogorodnikov, and called it a Mrs. Ogorodnikov's attorney, Brad Brian, told U.S. District Judge David Kenyon during the discovery hearing that another claim by the Soviet woman, that she was an officer in the Soviet intelligence service, the KGB, was apparently a fabrication.

Miller turned over the government to "turn over all evidence" on the subject to the defense and said defense attorneys were entitled to know "whether she was looped" when she made her claims.

"There is some evidence my client had severe problems — psychiatric and emotional problems," Brian said. He announced he would probably present "a general psychiatric defense" on her behalf when she goes on trial for espionage along with her estranged husband, Nikolay, and Miller.

Miller, 47, is charged with selling secrets to the Soviets, demanding $65,000 in cash and gold from Mrs. Ogorodnikov and her husband. Miller worked in counterintelligence for the FBI in Los Angeles before he was arrested and fired Oct. 2.

The Ogorodnikovs and Miller are charged with espionage, bribery and unlawful delivery — and receipt — of classified documents.

"We have talked to witnesses who have used the word 'crazy' to describe my client," Brian said.

Counterfeit dolls tested for hazard

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is continuing to test counterfeit Cabbage Patch dolls which carry a kerosene-like odor, but officials say no serious hazards have been uncovered to date.

The Consumer Product Safety Commission began receiving queries about the dolls a few weeks ago and so far nearly 4,000 calls have been received, according to Executive Director Edgar Morgan.

But nearly 100 of the dolls, acquired at various locations across the country, have been tested for flammability and toxicity, officials said, and no imminent danger has been found.

Parents and state and local officials have expressed concern that the odor of the dolls might indicate kerosene was present, presenting a danger of fire which could injure children.

However, commission officials say the odor is actually an insecticide used on the imported dolls. The dolls will burn if placed in a flame, the agency added, but they do not blaze up dangerously.

The dolls in question are imitations of the popular Cabbage Patch Kids produced by Coleco. While they look like the Coleco product, most of them carry other names. Some do have fake Cabbage Patch labels, and several thousand have been confiscated by Customs agents and the FBI on charges of trademark violation.

Safety officials say parents who are concerned about the dolls with the insecticide should sniff the toys before making a purchase. In order to determine if an objectionable odor is present.

Insurance cut suggested for non-smokers

WASHINGTON (AP) — State regulators voted Friday to recommend that the health insurance industry offer discounts to people who are non-smokers, control their blood pressure and keep their weight within acceptable limits.

If the industry agrees, said the sponsor of the recommendation, it could mean a 50 percent discount in health insurance premiums for people who choose a healthy lifestyle — and a corresponding rate increase for those who do not.

William P. Daves Jr., a member of the Texas State Board of Insurance and the sponsor, said he was encouraged that the vote will lead to premium changes.

"All of the industry people I've spoken with seem very receptive to the idea of a differential in insurance rates," he said. "I feel that once they see the facts and figures, that they will pick it up and run with it."

The resolution — adopted by the association argues that people who do not take care of their health invite their later medical problems, and thus should pay higher premiums.

"The cost of health care will not be reduced substantially until individuals take responsibility for their health by controlling or eliminating certain risk factors," the resolution says.

The approach is now available only on an experimental basis. Two units of Blue Cross-Blue Shield — one in southwest Virginia and one in Minnesota — began offering a non-smoker's discount on a limited basis recently, Daves said.

The association's recommendation urges that the practice become a standard within the industry, although it would not be mandatory.

Student reports on questionable sale

DUBUQUE, Iowa (AP) — A student journalist's report about a school administrator who sold some printer's shelves cheaply to his brother-in-law has prompted officials to change their policy on sale of surplus property.

"I don't think there was any dishonesty done," said Superintendent Howard Pigg. "But this doesn't help our image any. We've all grown from it."

Tony Ruzicka, a writer for the Dubuque Senior High School Ram News, reported in the Nov. 16 issue of the student newspaper that Arden Johnston, director of administration and operations, had sold the wooden shelves and lead type to his brother-in-law, Frank Anderson of South Carolina, for $130. Ruzicka said that an average of the assessments made by three antique shops as to the items' retail value came to $3,755.

"I would have bought them sight unseen for that price," Dulane Schoen, owner of Schoen's Antiques, said of the $130 sale. "To say the least, it was poor business practice."

Pigg said there was no wrongdoing on Johnston's part but that he used "poor judgment" in removing the wooden easements without informing the school principal.

He said he is drafting a new policy on sale of surplus items.

Johnston said he was only following district regulations and that he feels he is being singled out unfairly. "I have been through hell on this," he said.

He maintained he got a fair price for the items.

Owners of all three shops cited by Ruzicka on Thursday denied making any estimates, and school officials said Ruzicka's figure was too high. Ruzicka responded he did not identify himself as a reporter when he visited the shops, and he asked what it would cost to purchase the items, not what the antique stores would pay for them.

Schoen's is one of the stores that Ruzicka said he visited in his search for market value of the equipment.

Ruzicka averaged the retail prices, declaring that the lead was worth $3,000 and the type drawers, popular for the display of miniatures, were worth about $700.

Schoen, however, said the lead type pieces would sell for about $1 with luck and that the drawers would bring $25.

Prisoner asks judge to keep wife from brother

BALLINGER, Texas (AP) — A state district judge has refused a prison inmate's request for a court order barring his wife and his brother from making love while he is locked up, saying such an order would be unenforceable.

Judge Curt F. Stelb, in the opinion issued Thursday, said courts normally refrain from granting injunctions that cannot be enforced.

He noted that the Legislature had not given him a large enough staff to monitor the actions of the inmate's 19-year-old wife and his brother.

Prison inmate Jerry L. Hearn, 24, filed the plea Dec. 3, asking the judge to bar his wife, Linda Hearn, and brother, Wiley Hearn, from making love. Hearn, who is serving a seven-year sentence for burglary at the Texas Department of Corrections Eastham Unit, claimed his wife and brother had been living together since his imprisonment and the relationship was disturbing both to him and his 1-year-old son.

Stelb ruled that his court has "no authority or the inclination to grant the sought-after injunction."

However, he acknowledged the moral and religious issues raised by the inmate, quoting Leviticus 2:21. "And if man shall take his brother's wife it is an unclean thing; he hath uncovered his brother's nakedness; they shall be childless."

Driver hits memorial

NEWARK, Del. (AP) — A cross erected earlier this week off Interstate 95 near here in memory of a drunken driving victim was demolished two days later by a drunken driver, police said.

The white wooden cross was put in place Tuesday in memory of 8-year-old Heather Jacobs, killed near the scene by a drunken driver in 1982.

But only fragments of the cross remained after it was destroyed early Thursday, according to police.

Nicholas F. Baffone, 27, of Newark, drove off the road at 3 a.m., hitting a light post and the cross, police said. He was charged with drunken driving, driving with an expired registration and leaving the scene of an accident, said Cpl. Dale M. Hall, state police spokesman.

The cross had been erected by Heather's parents, Richard and Patricia Jacobs.

Shultz: ready for talks with Gromyko

George Shultz gestures at NATO news conference

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — The Western alliance gave Secretary of State George P. Shultz its full support Friday for his meeting with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko next month, although Shultz said, "maybe nothing will happen."

In a comment at the end of a two-day meeting here, the 16-NATO foreign ministers said they hoped the Geneva talks Jan. 7-8 will mark the beginning of "a new phase" in arms control negotiations between Washington and Moscow.

"Nuclear weapons should be substantially reduced by negotiations between the United States and the Soviet Union leading to equitable, verifiable and balanced agreements in which all concerned can have confidence," they said.

Shultz told a news conference he believes both Washington and Moscow want results from the talks, which are intended to lay the groundwork for comprehensive negotiations aimed at limiting strategic, intermediate and space-based weapons.

"We are going there... prepared for a serious, positive constructive discussion," the secretary said.

"From all I can see, the Soviet Union is similarly proceeding itself."

"We will go there with that attitude and we will just have to see what happens. Maybe nothing will happen and that will be the end of it. Or maybe it will take longer and maybe there will be some definite outcome."

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization meeting focused almost exclusively on Geneva, including 3½ hours of discussion Thursday. Probably because of the hopes raised for improved East-West relations, this meeting was one of the most harmonious in the 35-year history of the alliance.

Lord Carrington, former British foreign secretary, and now secretary-general of NATO, said Shultz' presentation of the Reagan administration's approach to Geneva "was extremely well-received."

"I am absolutely sure the Americans take these negotiations seriously," Carrington said at a news conference of his own. He said Shultz "goes to Geneva with our encouragement and support, although nobody expects miracles."

A spokesman for the West German delegation, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said, "Shultz can go to Geneva fully assured he has the full support of all the NATO partners."

Troops deployed as Bhopal braces for gas plant restart

BHOPAL, India (AP) — Authorities deployed paramilitary troops in the streets of Bhopal on Friday and tried to reassure the steady stream of departing citizens that there is little risk of a second deadly gas leak when the Union Carbide pesticide plant is restarted.

C.P. Mehra, a Madhya Pradesh state government spokesman, estimated at least 70,000 people have fled this central Indian city since it was announced Wednesday that production would resume Sunday in order to rid the plant of deadly methyl isocyanate. The United News of India reported 200,000 people had left the city of 900,000.

Gas leaked from an underground storage tank at the U.S.-based company's plant Dec. 3, killing more than 2,000 people and injuring an estimated 60,000. Many people were blinded. Scientists decided the safest way to dispose of the remaining chemical is to process into the pesticides it was intended for.

Despite official assurances about safety, frightened residents spurned government-run refugee camps in the city and left by bus, train and foot. Patients left hospitals and many police failed to report to work.

City officials issued guidelines advising residents to keep plenty of water in their homes once production resumes at the plant, and to wash their eyes, mouths and noses frequently. The guidelines cautioned against sleeping outdoors.

Should warning signals be heard, residents were told, they should cover their faces with wet towels and close their doors.

The guidelines were issued to ensure public safety "although scientists have assured there is hardly any possibility of any fresh leakage of this gas occurring," a city government statement said.

Government officials said 2,000 paramilitary troops were instructed to keep order in Bhopal. The army was standing by and could be called in if needed, authorities said.

UPI reported three air force helicopters equipped with water tanks were being readied. During processing of the gas, the news agency said, the choppers will spray the plant with water, apparently to combat any gas cloud that might form.

The news agency also reported that two officials of Union Carbide India Ltd. were released on bail Friday. Chairman Keshub Mahindra and managing director V.P. Gokhale each posted $7,500 bail, the news agency said. The men have been held since their Dec. 7 arrest on charges of criminal liability in connection with the gas leak. Also arrested then was Warren Anderson, chairman of U.S.-based Union Carbide Corp. He was released that same day on $2,000 bail.

Indian scientists, meanwhile, reported they found no trace of toxic chemicals in vegetables collected around the plant. The scientists said their tests of blood and tissue samples from those exposed indicated the gas caused no genetic damage.

Although Bhopal's train and bus stations were jammed with departing residents Friday, and the huge slum nearest the Union Carbide plant was deserted, officials said only 500 people had gone to government-run refugee camps. Most people said they would only feel safe farther away.

Officials said Wednesday it might be necessary to evacuate 125,000 people living near the plant during the four or five days it will take to convert the remaining toxic gas. No evacuation order has been issued, although refugee camps have been established in schools.

Radio stations to enjoy boost in night signal

By BOB FRUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — If you're tuning up and down the radio dial tonight, don't be surprised if some local stations seem louder and clearer. You might even pick up some stations that have been out of earshot for decades.

Beginning today at sunset, 177 AM radio stations nationwide no longer have to cut back their nighttime signals to 50 watts. The Federal Communications Commission is allowing them to keep broadcasting at normal daytime power levels of 1,000 watts.

So the stations' signals will carry at least as far — between sunset and sunrise as during the day. Actually, they will extend farther, station managers say, because atmospheric conditions usually allow AM radio waves to travel longer distances.

"I would expect us to be able to be heard in Gooding . . . very possibly in Ketchum and Sun Valley," as well as Burley and Rupert, says Dave Cappa, owner of KREPP at Twin Falls.

KART may be able to shoot its signal as far as Mountain Home and Jackpot on the west and south sides of the Magic Valley, station manager Kent Lee says.

The FCC gave the new permission on March 15 as a result of changes in national broadcasting treaties with Canada, Mexico and a number of Caribbean nations including Cuba, says Elizabeth Lazarus, FCC public services specialist in Portland. Among the changes, Mexico agreed to cut back some of its high-power stations, she says.

For the American stations, the change in power means that nighttime programs — such as local basketball games on KART and the popular Talknet show on KREPP — will reach larger listening audiences. The larger audiences could attract more advertisers to the nighttime hours and boost the stations' incomes.

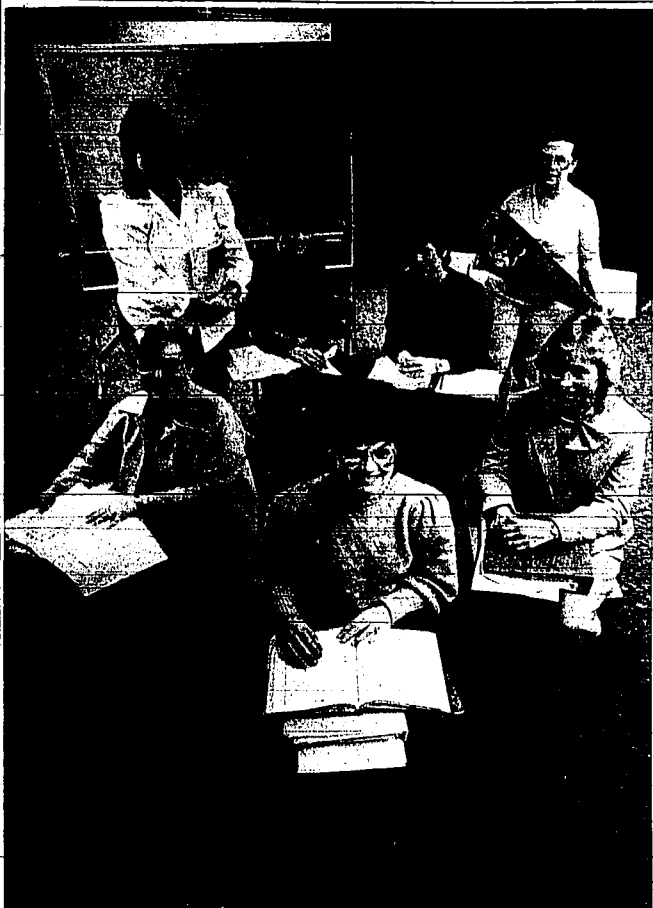

"When this change comes into effect on the 15th, we're looking at going 24 hours a day," Lee says.

Cappa welcomed the change. "When we built our new facility 11 years ago, we built the tower with the idea that someday we'd be able to go full-power at night. Now we finally can," he says.

A number of other Magic Valley stations will enjoy the longer reach, and a few from surrounding areas may extend into the Magic Valley.

Most are in small towns. Some stations in metropolitan areas, such as Boise, may not be able to use the power because of congested airwaves.

Other area stations affected by the new, higher power ratings include: KBAR at Burley, KSKI at Halley, KJCY at Mountain Home, KWIK at Pocatello, KKLK at Chubbuck and KELK in Elko, Nev.

Nurses complete degrees through local ISU program

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A group of seven registered nurses from the Magic Valley graduated with their bachelor of science nursing degrees from the Idaho State University resident center Thursday.

Sally Towle of Jerome said she and her seven classmates started four years ago in a class of 50 registered nurses seeking the degree.

"We're tenacious," she said Friday night. "All of us are working nurses and we worked hard to coordinate the schedule with our working schedules."

Valley Regional Medical Center, the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital, Saint Benedict's Hospital in Jerome, and local doctor's offices.

Towle says the advanced degree probably will not yield much in the way of increased pay for the nurses.

"We're just leaping gladly forth, it opens more doors to different jobs," she said.

Some of the recent graduates are contemplating pursuing their master's degrees in nursing, but are content to rest for now, Towle said.

Because the program allowed them to live at home and continue working, the students were able to save money. Towle says another savings factor was the

Teen dies of injuries

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A teen-age girl who was dragged by a truck Dec. 8 died Friday afternoon at St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise.

The deceased was identified as 16-year-old Lisa Koller, who resided six miles south of Twin Falls, Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said. Koller, who was the daughter of Gerald Koller of Hanson and Barbara Brown, of California, died shortly before 1 p.m., Munn said.

No cause of death was available from the Boise hospital, Twin Falls County Coroner Jim Woods said.

No charges have been filed as a result of the death, Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter said. Her office had asked Munn earlier this week to continue its investigation into the accident, because there was enough information to "keep it going," she said. She had taken no position on whether any criminal charges would be filed then, Baxter added.

The accident took place at about 1:25 a.m. at Koller's brother Michael's farm house south of Twin Falls. The girl, who was attending a party, went outside to say goodbye to a group that was leaving when her hand was shut in the right door of a Bronco, according to a sheriff's report. Koller was dragged several feet and sustained severe head, hand and arm injuries. She was transported to the Boise hospital to the care of a neurologist.

It was not determined if Koller had hit her head on the ground, or if she was struck by the wheel of the vehicle, the sheriff's office reports. Koller, who also had lost a finger in the accident, was dragged by a vehicle driven by 20-year-old Ralph Ahronson of Twin Falls, the sheriff's office reports.

The prosecutor's office needs to look at more reports from the deputies and witnesses at the scene before making any decision on the investigation, Baxter said. Koller apparently was too ill to be interviewed by officers.

Baxter said she and Munn have not yet decided whether to request an autopsy of Koller's body.

Power line worker injured in accident

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

BELL RAPIDS — An Idaho Power Co. employee apparently escaped serious injury Friday afternoon when he was struck by a boom near a transmission tower across from Bell Rapids.

The injured man was identified as 30-year-old Jim Catto, a lineman with the construction department of Idaho Power's Boise office, said Larry Taylor, the public information specialist with the utility.

Details of the accident, which occurred shortly after noon, were sketchy. Taylor said a crew of employees was changing the tower's cross arms, which support the transmission lines, when a boom on a hoist on a truck gave way and struck Catto on the head and shoulder area. It was unknown if the boom was a derrick for equipment or the type used to lift men to work areas.

Catto was flown by helicopter from the area to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls. X-rays revealed no broken bones or internal injuries and the hospital expected to release Catto Friday night, Taylor said.

The cross arms of the tower were being changed because of regular maintenance, he added.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said the accident was investigated by a Gooding County Sheriff's deputy because one of his deputies had an accident while en route to Bell Rapids, which is about 15 miles west of Buhl. Details were unavailable from the Gooding County Sheriff's office.

The Idaho State Police, which investigated the accident involving Twin Falls County Sheriff's Deputy Kent Oliver of Plover, said there were no injuries.

The accident took place about two miles west of Buhl on U.S. 30. Oliver collided with a vehicle that was making a left turn into a driveway, said Trooper Robert Gwyn, Michael Pletersma, 22, of Buhl, apparently didn't see the patrol car while he was attempting to make the turn, Gwyn said.

Gwyn also reported that no citations were issued and the accident was under investigation.

Paul mink oil business investigated after blaze

By MICHELLE SNYDER
Times-News correspondent

PAUL — A fire this past week prompted the Paul City Council and other officials to investigate a mink oil rendering business in the city owned by Bill Sowers.

The investigation also revealed that the operation was not in compliance with city ordinances and the council said the business would have to be closed, immediately.

Bill McClung, council and city building inspector, read the council a letter from West End Fire District Chief Elmer Fetzer, who wrote that he had found the operation to be in violation of numerous fire codes.

McClung told the council the operation was "untidy" and that he felt that the conditions were unsafe. He explained further that when he inspected the premises, he "found the hard way" that the floor was slippery due to a deep layer of mink fat on the surface.

City Superintendent Elmer Knapp verified McClung's statement about the slippery floor, adding that he also had noticed an unpleasant odor caused from the process which he found to be offensive.

McClung said because the rendered product will burn, there was concern about a wet drop cord on the floor that was supplying power to a machine as well as a propane stove that was being used with inadequate safety guards.

"And there was no fire extinguisher on the premise," he added.

Paul Police Chief C.K. Harkness, who investigated the operation shortly before Wednesday's board meeting, told the council, "It's as clean now under the circumstances of the process as it can be. A product used for soaking up oil is now on the floor, the problem with the drop cord has also been corrected."

When Mayor Robert Larsen asked Sowers how much fire hazard still existed, Sowers replied, "None. I feel the problem was with the negligence of the employee in charge of it at the time of the fire. I cooked it all last year myself and never had one single fire."

As well as being in violation of various fire codes, the council noted that the operation violates a city ordinance which prohibits "all deposits of . . . unwholesome substances upon any street, alley, sidewalk or enclosure . . ."

McClung presented the council with a map of the city and it was determined that the mink oil rendering operation was also in violation of zoning law. It was noted that the business is located in a commercially zoned area, and in order to conduct a business of that nature, it would have to be zoned industrial.

"With all facts taken into consideration, the council voted that the operation be discontinued, effective immediately.

When Sowers asked what would happen if he did not comply, City Attorney Kent Fleischer explained that court action would be taken. Fleischer said an injunction would be sought to stop operations immediately, which would result in additional expense to Sowers.

Sowers told the council that it would take him at least until 5 p.m. the following day before he would be able to close his operation.

Simplot pipeline installed

By HAL BERTSON
Times-News writer

HEYBURN — The J.R. Simplot plant processing plant has finished installing a new pollution-control pipeline that will carry treated wastes into the center of the Snake River.

The pipeline will attempt to reduce pollution by diffusing potato waste water discharges over a greater area of the Snake River, according to state health inspectors.

Simplot plant officials could not be reached for comment Friday. State health inspector Russel Renk said the pipeline project was ordered by state officials to reduce illegal concentrations of ammonia-laced potato wastes that have built up in years past along the shorelines of the Milner Pool.

At one point, these waste concentrations were severe enough to cause fish kills, Renk said.

Renk said that the state Department of Health and Welfare was still unsure if the new pipeline would reduce potato waste concentrations enough to bring Simplot in compliance.

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls school district officials met with about 35 teachers Friday afternoon to discuss the district's new insurance policy.

Board Chairman Gene Champlin told the gathering the full $597,000 appropriated to the district under House Bill 475 is used. "I admit it previously wasn't in the categories you wanted it in, but now that we've offered (a base salary of) $13,500, that full amount is in your salary schedule."

"In order to have enough money to meet this, we have to change the policy," Champlin said. "Realistically, the cost of dependents will be picked up in the future by the employee," vice-chairman Gary Fay told the group. Fay told the gathering the level of coverage for medical catastrophes will not change, but the cost to the employees will.

"This isn't going to be anything smooth, this is going to be a hardship," Fay said. The district was looking for the best possible coverage that would allow them to save money.

"Looking down the road a bit, we've got to get an equitable plan," said Fay. Fay said two employees at the same place on the salary schedule are paid the same, whether the district is paying a family or individual insurance premium for them.

Fay said he would like to see the district adopt a fringe benefit pool plan that would allow the employees to apply all or part of their share in the pool towards a family medical insurance policy among other options.

Acting superintendent Carl Snow told the teachers the new insurance policy will save the district $12,000 per month. Snow said the $72,000 saved in the remainder of the school year will be applied to the teacher salary pool and to a raise for non-teacher district employees.

Snow said the district policy currently covers more than 700 people.

Lincoln Elementary School teacher Becky Dolbert said the teachers were not given enough information to make a decision about the insurance options the district polled teachers on last week.

"It's insulting to ask people to make a choice without information, you wouldn't go talk to an insurance agent and accept a policy if he didn't explain it to you," Dolbert said.

Dolbert says there was no explanation of the insurance plans except what came out of the poll circulated last week. She claims district officials would not tell her the cost of two-person and family coverage under the first option offered by the district.

Fay said teachers should have been given as much information as possible.

Glenda Green, a teacher in the district, said a committee studying ways of limiting insurance premiums was never consulted about the insurance change. "It's not a matter of plan A and plan B, there are a lot of possibilities," Green said.

Fay said the committee was not working in the "direction necessary" to save enough on premiums and that the board did not have time wait for the committee's recommendations.

Fay said he would like to see a committee established to set the time table for the future elimination of district-supported family policies.

BLM hands out grazing money
BOISE — The federal Bureau of Land Management has handed over a $215,476 check to Idaho county and state coffers, a sum representing the state's share of 1984 BLM grazing fees.

"These shared revenues are just one of the many ways in which the BLM can benefit Idaho through clear management of the public lands," said BLM director Clair Whitlock.

The $215,476 represents Idaho's 12.5 percent share of total grazing fees collected by BLM officials in state grazing districts. Public lands outside the grazing districts return 50 percent of grazing fees to state coffers.

In the Magic Valley area, counties received the following shares:

- Twin Falls County, $9,213; Cassia County, $8,603; Jerome County, $1,481; Minidoka County, $2,791; Blaine County, $13,259; Lincoln, $9,646; Camas, $1,976; and Gooding, $4,359.

Wildlife areas being protected
SHOSHONE — Eight critical wildlife wintering areas are being protected from off-road vehicles this winter, says Shoshone BLM District Manager Charles Haszler.

These closures will help insulate deer and elk from disturbances caused by noisy snowmobiles. The protected areas include Deer Creek, Triumph, Minnie Moore, Martin Canyon, Big and Little Beaver, Quincey, Crown and Jasper Falls and Elk Mountain. The closed areas are posted and maps showing these restricted areas are available at the BLM office in Shoshone.

These areas support game concentrations that migrate from U.S. Forest Service administered lands to escape deep winter snow and frigid temperatures. This year, the wintering areas may be especially important due to the unusually early, heavy snowfall at higher elevations.

"In years past, public cooperation in staying out of posted areas has been excellent, Haszler says. However, those who use off-road vehicles in the posted areas are subject to fines of up to $1,000 and up to a one-year prison term.

BLISS — The Bliss School Christmas program will be held Monday at 7 p.m. at the school.

Cassia school board passes bid on 5 diesel school buses

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — The Cassia County School Board awarded bids on five diesel-powered 1985 school buses to AmTran of Boise, which bid a total price of $64,182 for five Ward school bus bodies.

A contract was also awarded by the board to Gem International of Burley, for a total bid of $107,494, less $2,140 paid within 30 days of invoice, for five International bus chassis which include 8-liter engines.

In other business at the recent meeting:

- The board approved a request from Superintendent Norman Hurst to allow District Transportation Superintendent Leon Robinson to attend the 10th National Conference on School Transportation at Central Missouri State University in Warrensburg, Mo., May 19-20.

Hurst said it was "quite an honor" that Robinson had been selected to be one of seven delegates who will attend the conference from Idaho.

- The board discussed the recent bid of the district made by the trustees for the purchase of existing and evaluating district schools.
- Hurst commended the effort being made by the district principals and custodians to keep the buildings in good shape.
- Trustee H. Gary Corless said the tour was, in his opinion, a success. "I was most impressed by the attitudes of the people involved in the schools," he said.
- There was a healthy atmosphere throughout all the buildings, which are woefully lacking, though in adequate facilities, I was particularly impressed by the enthusiasm of the teaching staff — I believe the district's students are learning in a good atmosphere," he added.

- The possibility of reinstating a string-music program in the district's curriculum was discussed.
- Board members who had recently observed a rehearsal of the Mini-Cassia area's Magic Philharmonic Youth Symphony, under the direction of Oakley music instructor Jim Keezer, said they were convinced the program is producing positive results.
- "Once we have a string program going here, people will be interested in it," said Corless.
- The Magic Philharmonic's efforts have helped generate much interest in such a program," added Trustee, Ann Woodhouse.
- Hurst pointed out that getting a qualified string teacher may be a problem; but that the district will be seriously studying the possibility of starting a string program in the Cassia district in the near future.

Jerome commission eyes parcel

By CAROLYN MILLER
Times-News correspondent

JEROME — The Jerome County Board of Commissioners took under advisement a recent request by Rick Haberman to have two adjoining five-acre tracts of land assessed as one unit.

The parcels of land are owned by Haberman, but were purchased at separate times.

Haberman said he wants to have the property assessed as agricultural, rather than rural residential. The land has been taxed as one unit in the past, but was split this year.

- In other business at the recent commission meeting:
- Commissioners, sitting as the board of equalization, heard a complaint from Harold and May Greenawald concerning their taxes.
- The Greenawalds presented figures to substantiate their claim that the taxes on their building had doubled since the last tax statement in 1983.
- Greenawald also said the appraised value of his building had been raised from $100,000 to $120,000 this year.
- Margie Dufek, Jerome County Assessor and Teri Jones, appraiser with the Assessors office, were present.

ent. The commissioners took the complaint under advisement.

- Nancy Wolfley was granted assistance with rent in the amount of $250, for one month, with the stipulation that she will work for the county at a later date.
- Lee Tremalin was granted 50 gallons fuel oil with the stipulation that the county be reimbursed.
- Peter Hornaday was granted work assistance in the amount of $35 and telephone assistance in the amount of $60, with the stipulation these amounts be repaid by Jan. 1, 1985.

Wendell pays sewer system bonds

WENDELL — In 1959, the city of Wendell issued $240,000 of bonds for a new sewer system. As of this month, the bonds are paid off.

At the Wendell City Council meeting Thursday, City Clerk June Holm announced the final 17 bonds, worth $1,000 each, are redeemable this month.

The bonds, Holm said, were sold nationally and some have not been cashed yet. The city will pay the state for these uncashed bonds and the state will redeem them to claimants or keep any unclaimed money.

In other city business:

- Applications for a new police officer are being accepted by the city.
- According to Police Chief James Howe, Officer Stephen Harris resigned effective Dec. 15, due in part to insufficient wages. A replacement for Timms will be hired in January, Howe noted.

City Superintendent Charlie Doty said the city could make good use of a water tank from the city of Filer. In Filer, a new tank is in use and the old one is for sale, Doty explained. It would have to be cut in half to be moved. The tank would have to be subordinated and then coated, and the tank would have to be welded back "challenge examination" method.

By passing the final examination, the ISU resident center students were able to avoid the cost and delay of a full course in material they had already learned.

Other nurses completing the nursing course at the resident center are: Carol Winn or Rupert; Linda McFadden of Hagerman; Mary Jane Draney of Filer; and Jackie Malina, Janice Flynn, and Jacque Stevens of Twin Falls.

A new series of baccalaureate nursing courses for registered nurses will be offered in the spring semester.

Admission to the program requires a minimum college cumulative grade point average of 2.5 for Idaho residents and 2.7 for out-of-state residents.

at the College of Southern Idaho, all 12 licensed practical nursing students who completed their course in July, have passed the state board examination.

Kerline Siplon of the CSI nursing department says the nurses took the test in October and were told they passed last week.

The CSI nursing students include: Marlette Moore of Filer; Bonnie Abbott and Joann Chapman of Gooding; Lori Lee of Fairfield; Donna MacBride of Oakley; Tona Klompen of Kimberly; Lanetta Hood of Declo; Alice Sanchez and Suzanne Hutchison of Burley; Sharon O'Leary, Allison Whitney and Kay Magill of Twin Falls.

Pipeline

Pipeline with federal regulations.

Cary Bartlett, another state inspector, said that the new pipeline would seek to carry the wastes into the swift-moving currents at the center of the river "where there is a greater mixing zone."

Bartlett said the pipe, labeled in federal permit language as a "single port diffuser," has been approved by his agency.

He said that all wastes are processed by both anaerobic and aerobic bacteria before being emptied into the river.

Bureau of Reclamation official Don Tracy said that the water level of the "Milner Pool" (located between Milner and Mindoka Dams) was dropped during the past week to allow the Shimplot pipe installation.

Tracy said the pipe installation project was completed on Thursday. On Friday Bureau of Reclamation officials began to try and return the Milner Pool to normal seasonal levels, he said.

These efforts, however, have been hampered by ice flows that have built up in the reservoir during the past weeks of sub-freezing weather.

Tracy said the Bureau initially reduced flows over Mindoka Dam down to a flow of 2,600 cubic feet per second and would like to bring the flows back up to 10,000 cfs by Dec. 23.

However if ice jams cause the water to back up, then the rate of flow increases will have to be cut back, Tracy said.

"We hope that the water coming out into here will kind of pull out into a channel," Tracy said.

State gets grazing revenues

BOISE (AP) — Idaho is receiving $238,642 from the Bureau of Land Management, the state's share of grazing revenue earned on federal land.

Part of the money, $23,165, comes from the sale of public land in Idaho, said Director Clair Whitlock.

Some $215,467 will be split between counties with federal grazing lands.

Earlier in the year, Idaho received $7.6 million from the BLM as payment in lieu of taxes on federal property.

County rejects family's claim

BLACKFOOT (AP) — Bingham County has rejected a $500,000 claim filed by the family of a man killed in a Sept. 30 traffic accident. Charlene Lutz asked for damages in the death of her husband, claiming a sharp curve in a 50 mph zone where her husband was killed was not marked. The claim alleged the posted speed was too fast to negotiate the curve.

ISU narrows list of candidates

POCATELLO (AP) — After narrowing the field from 86 to 20, the search committee seeking a new president for Idaho State University is now contacting the narrowed list of contenders to determine if each is still interested in the job.

The committee expects to complete that process by Dec. 21 and then review the remaining candidates during its Jan. 11 meeting.

A recommendation to the State Board of Education on a successor to Myron Coulter is expected soon after that with a board decision on the new president by early March.

Coulter resigns this summer to become chancellor of Western Carolina University.

SBA loans total $31 million

BOISE (AP) — Idaho businessmen received $31 million in direct or guaranteed Small Business Administration's loans during the year that ended Sept. 30, $2 million more than in the previous year.

SBA District Director Joseph Kaeppler said about 270 of the 311 SBA transactions over the year involved 90 percent guarantees of commercial bank loans up to $500,000.

The next two largest categories of loans, including $1.1 million to businesses affected by the October 1983 earthquake that caused millions of dollars in damage and claimed two lives in the Challis-Mackay area. Kaeppler said 83 of those disaster loans were made because of the earthquake.

In addition, the SBA also funneled more than $1 million in government contracts to Idaho businesses considered socially or economically disadvantaged.

Store owner holds up thief

NOTUS (AP) — A Notus store owner grabbed a shotgun and chased a shoplifter across much of Canyon County — and now faces charges himself.

Canyon County Sgt. Pat Mooney said Arthur Moore, 49, owner of Moore's Market, alleged that Robert Johnson, 47, of Nampa, took a pair of tennis shoes and left the store without paying for them. Moore, who decided to chase Johnson in his vehicle, caught up with him at a dead end between Notus and Caldwell.

Moore apparently pulled out his "rusty sawed-off shotgun" and tried to hold Johnson there, Mooney said.

At least one passing motorist saw Moore hold up Johnson at gunpoint and called authorities.

Johnson fled in his car and made it out to the freeway with Moore close behind. When Caldwell police were called to assist, they stopped the two cars and Moore was issued a summons for carrying a concealed weapon in a vehicle. Johnson was charged with petty theft.

No flooding on Salmon — yet

SALMON (AP) — Moderating temperatures, though still below freezing, have reduced the flood threat on the Salmon River in Lemhi County, but residents and local officials continued to brace for the worst.

An ice jam just eight miles from the town of Salmon that threatened to back the river out of its banks early this week has drifted about 20 miles downstream, ending any immediate flood danger, officials said Friday.

"The thing has subsided somewhat now," a spokesman for the National Weather Service said. "We just have to wait and see now."

But residents and local officials remained concerned that a possible cold snap this weekend, plunging temperatures back below zero, could begin freezing the river again and create another ice jam.

The community is still stinging from the ice jam flood last winter that locked it in solid ice for weeks and caused a millions of dollars in damage.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has several proposals under review to alleviate the threat of ice jams and subsequent flooding, but it now appears that it will be at least two winters before any anti-flood project is completed.

Director wants vo-tech funds

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — John Christofferson, director of the Eastern Idaho Vocational-Technical School here, thinks the state should be providing more funding.

At a meeting with area legislators, Christofferson said $2.4 million is needed for a new building, and $600,000 of that should come from the state.

Christofferson said local officials are trying for a $1.2 million federal grant, and $600,000 is to be raised from local donations from businesses and foundations.

"We would like to come to you in a year and ask you to finish off this project," Christofferson said.

He also urged the legislators to appropriate adequate budgets for vocational education.

Christofferson said a new building is needed to house administrative offices that now take classroom space, a student lounge, cafeteria and study area and room for a larger regional adult learning center.

A larger center could serve more of the estimated 22,000 people living in the nine eastern Idaho counties served by the center who do not have high school diplomas, Christofferson said.

Judge rejects inmate's claim over mail

BOISE (AP) — A federal judge in Boise has rejected claims from an Idaho State Penitentiary inmate and a former prisoner that a Canyon County sheriff's detective and a state probation officer illegally seized mail between the men.

U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan said Friday that there was no evidence Detective Victor Rodriguez or probation officer Richard Hammond violated the constitutional rights of Todd Steven Jones and Dean Schwartzmiller.

The complaint against the officers charged them with violations of constitutional rights by "unlawful interference, copying, search, seizure and/or censoring of personal correspondence" between Jones and Schwartzmiller.

The men alleged Hammond illegally seized letters from Schwartzmiller to Jones in a search of the house where Jones lived after being released on probation two years ago.

Schwartzmiller, then in the Canyon County Jail awaiting trial on charges of lewd and lascivious conduct, corresponded with Jones while he was an inmate at the Boise prison.

Rodriguez had been monitoring mail in and out of the county jail in an effort to locate a witness being sought in the case against Schwartzmiller.

Hammond later gave Rodriguez three of the letters he had seized. In the letters, Schwartzmiller allegedly asked Jones about the juvenile victim of his crime. The correspondence also contained evidence that Schwartzmiller had tried to tamper with testimony from a witness expected to testify at his post-conviction relief hearing, according to court records.

Ryan ruled that Hammond was justified in seizing the letters as evidence against Jones for the possible probation violation of associating with a convicted felon. The search was conducted under provisions of a probation agreement signed by Jones, the judge said.

He also found that Rodriguez was not wrong in using evidence against Schwartzmiller obtained from the letters since he assumed that they were seized lawfully.

Earlier Friday, the Idaho Court of Appeals took under advisement a motion filed by Schwartzmiller asking rehearing of a petition against his conviction for lewd and lascivious conduct.

Schwartzmiller alleges he was denied a fair trial and his constitutional rights were violated when he was not informed of statements to the FBI from witnesses in the case.

Schwartzmiller was the lead lawyer in a class-action case brought against the state Department of Corrections — by inmates — at the Boise penitentiary alleging inhumane conditions at the facility.

As a result of that suit, Judge Ryan last month ordered sweeping improvements in prisoners' medical and psychiatric care — and staffing — at the prison.

State agency resumes processing of water rights permits on Snake

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — With the power company hasn't said it won't object to approval of the requests, most involving permits for domestic use of water, should come within the next six weeks, he said.

The remaining applicants, Carlson said, will have to wait until the proposed settlement gains the needed state and federal regulatory approval and the endorsement of the state Department of Water Resources before their water rights requests are handled.

At that time, he said, the requests will be reviewed in light of the agreement's public interest criteria for allocation of the limited water in the river.

The impasse over water rights was broken this fall when Idaho Power, Gov. John Evans and Attorney General Jim Jones signed the proposed settlement clearing the way for preservation of the utility's hydro power base on the river while still leaving water available for additional development.

Hearing officer reports findings on Remington

BOISE (AP) — Administrative hearing officer Ryan Armbruster said Friday his report on allegations of wrongdoing against suspended Corrections Board member Kent Remington will be submitted to Gov. John Evans Tuesday.

But Armbruster, a Boise attorney, declined to elaborate on his findings of fact or conclusions of law upon which Evans must decide whether to oust the St. Anthony businessman he appointed to the board 25 months ago.

An attorney general's investigation found that Remington committed a criminal misdemeanor by contracting with the prison system to deliver inmate-built boat docks to two Boy Scout camps in eastern Idaho. Prosecution was not recommended because the statute of limitations had expired.

But because the probe determined that the law had been violated, Evans was forced to begin ouster proceedings against Remington when Remington refused to voluntarily step down, claiming any legal violation was inadvertent.

Although Evans could sidestep the entire issue by merely postponing a decision until after Remington's current term expires on Dec. 31, he said he would act on Armbruster's report within a few days after receiving it.

Pat Costello, representing the governor at the hearing, acknowledged that if he was forced to prove that Remington was a criminal, he would lose the case.

Suit filed in baby's death in Salmon

SALMON (AP) — An amended $3 million malpractice suit has been filed against Steele Memorial Hospital in Salmon over injuries suffered by a boy during his birth at the facility six years ago.

The complaint, filed by the boy's mother, Susan Goodman, alleges the hospital was negligent in failing to recognize and properly treat a respiratory ailment suffered by John Charles Goodman when he was born at the hospital July 30, 1978.

The suit alleges that the hospital and its personnel neglected to provide adequate ventilation and oxygen for the infant when it should have been obvious that he suffered from a respiratory ailment.

The suit claims that the staff's negligence caused mucus to remain in the infant's lungs, resulting in chronic hypoxia. As a consequence, the boy suffered permanent brain damage and now needs constant supervision, the suit alleges.

The X-29, with its forward-swept wings, takes off from Edwards Air Force Base

Experimental jet takes successful maiden flight

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The supersonic X-29, a strikingly unusual jet with forward-swept wings and three on-board computers for stabilization, took its first flight Friday.

The pilot's only gripe was spending too little time in the air.

"Very nice airplane. Only complaint is I don't have enough fuel to stay up longer," said Grumman Aerospace chief test pilot Charles Sewell as he brought the plane in for a landing at this desert air base 50 miles north of Los Angeles.

Sewell, 54, told National Aeronautics and Space Administration ground controllers that the X-29 in the air handled better than the training simulator on the ground. The controllers said the flight was excellent.

"Nothing fancy today, just get it up, make sure it flies, and bring it home safe," said space agency spokesman Ralph Jackson after the plane took off at 9:35 a.m. The plane landed at 10:33 a.m.

The weather was "perfect for flying," said Jackson, with winds at 10 knots and unlimited visibility.

Jackson said Sewell took the red, white and blue plane to 20,000 feet and cruised at about 250 mph.

Then came some gentle maneuvers, Jackson said, and several low-level approaches before a final landing.

High winds forced a postponement from Thursday. Previous attempts were postponed because of rain water on the usually dry lakebed and because of technical problems.

The jet's most unusual feature is its plastic composite wings, which sweep forward instead of backward to reduce drag and improve lift and maneuverability.

However, those advantages of the forward-swept wings also make the jet so inherently unstable that three computers with three backups are required to maintain control during flight.

Without the computers, the jet "would be going so fast it would pitch up or down with each 'G' (gravity) forces the plane would just fall apart," Air Force X-29 test pilot Ted Wierzbowski said in a recent interview.

The X-29 is an experimental plane and will not be mass-produced. Instead it will serve to test new technologies for possible future development of an advanced technology fighter for the U.S. military, said Grumman's director of flight test safety, Bill Rasmussen.

Another advanced system of the X-29 is the fly-by-wire control system. The controls operated by the pilot transmit signals to computers, which in turn order controls to operate the flaps, rudders, ailerons and other aerodynamic surfaces.

Other planes use hydraulic systems or cables.

The X-29 is the first "X-series" experimental craft to be flight-tested by NASA at Edwards since the mid-1970s testing of the X-24B. The X-24B was one of a series of so-called "lifting body" planes used to test designs for the space shuttle and other possible reusable manned spacecraft.

Grumman Corp. spokesman Bob Harwood said the company put up $40 million of its own money after winning an Air Force contract for $90 million to prove the forward-swept wings not only will work, but are superior.

Sewell, a retired Marine Corps lieutenant colonel who has more than 10,000 hours of flying time to his credit, flew the X-29 just above the ground for a few seconds during test runs last week. "It throws you back in the seat and it makes a smile come out of both sides of your oxygen mask," he said.

Attorney says returning to Mexico could threaten Utah family's lives

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A return to life in Mexico could be fraught with life-threatening circumstances such as disease and starvation, says an attorney for Epifanio and Juana Garcia.

"This family, some of them American citizens, would be sent to a foreign country," Barnett said.

Judge this week ordered the Garcias and part of their family to return to Mexico after living illegally in the United States for 10 years.

Attorney Gary Barnett filed a notice of appeal with the Board of Immigration Appeals in Falls Church, Va., to overturn the order issued Tuesday by Judge Jesse Sellers.

The appeal notice automatically suspended Sellers' order, which denied the family's request for permanent residency in the United States.

The Garcia family includes Epifanio, 56, and Juana, 38, four children born in Mexico but reared in the U.S. Three more children and four grandchildren all were born in the U.S. and are citizens.

The parents and their Mexican-born children entered the U.S. at Nogales, N.M. in 1973 without inspection by immigration officials, records show.

"He said he would base his appeal on grounds that Sellers put too little weight on the arguments at Tuesday's hearing, in which Barnett cited 'extreme economic hardship, educational deprivation, and the possibility of disease the family, and especially the younger children, might face if the deportation order is carried out.'"

In fact, Barnett said, he may try to enlist the aid of a member of Utah's congressional delegation to try to help the Garcias with a private bill passed through Congress.

Barnett said he and his co-counsel, Arnold Gardner, also were concerned about a recent change of policy by the local office of the Immigration and Naturalization Service, which requires a review by the INS for setting of bond following a deportation hearing.

Garcia became the first to be detained under the new policy, which provides that as soon as the hearing is over and if the application is denied the defendant can be held for questioning.

Damaged wing at USU nearly ready

LOGAN, Utah (AP) — A year after fire roared through the north wing of Utah State University's Old Main Building, a section of the structure is nearly ready for occupancy, architects say.

During a media tour of the building Friday, Scott Theobald of Architectural Design West said the sociology department will be back on Old Main's second floor when winter quarter begins Jan. 7.

He said the current project is considered the first phase of long-term renovation of the 90-year-old structure.

Theobald said insurance covered $1.4 million of the $3.4 million first phase, with the Legislature appropriating the remainder.

"The current work includes renovation of all four floors of the building's north wing and the second floor of the center wing, along with installation of new mechanical, electrical and fire sprinkler systems."

The renovation includes a structural strengthening of the building, which will greatly enhance its resistance to earthquakes," said Theobald. "In fact, Old Main should be 50 times stronger than it was before the fire."

Authentically restoring the building would be too costly for the university, but Theobald said he was "doing everything possible to preserve the existing character of the building, including the decorative casework."

He said the project would also make Old Main more energy efficient.

Oregon-California talks set to resolve border disputes

By CHARLES E. BEGGS
The Associated Press

SALEM, Ore. — The Oregon-California border, at the 42nd parallel, means different things in several spots, so officials from the two neighbors have started discussing what should be done to straighten it out.

The first meeting was held here Thursday, and more official commitments, it appears a settlement of the question could be several years off.

Dave Judson, a California deputy attorney general, said that his state's aim is not necessarily to shift the border but to avoid potentially complex legal problems in the future.

California asked for the talks after discovering through modern astronomical techniques that a survey done by Daniel Major in 1870 was flawed.

The boundary is supposed to be the 42nd parallel. But officials say Major's line varied by as much as one-half mile north and south from the parallel.

Oregon apparently stands to gain by doing nothing. And even bringing up the question has stirred up Oregon residents of a little border town.

Ed Zajonc, director of the Oregon Lands Division, said preliminary studies by his agency indicate that Major's mistakes put about 31,000 acres in Oregon that should be in California and 20,000 acres in California that should be in Oregon.

At issue are things like federal payments to the states, taxes and jurisdiction in criminal and civil court cases.

And that's not to mention New Pine Creek, an unincorporated Lake County community town of about 50 residents that straddles what has been understood to be the border.

California officials say new surveys show the correct border should be 2,300 feet north of the town, which would place it all in California.

Zajonc said town residents have sent him a petition opposing such a change.

Putting the residents in California would mean, among other things, that they'd end up paying that state's sales tax. Oregon has no sales tax.

"We're playing with people's lives here," said state Sen. Eugene Timms, whose district includes most of the community. "Just by meeting, people are upset."

Majors didn't extend his boundary line beyond the coast. California officials say their studies show the Oregon line is about 1,300 feet too far to the south where land meets the Pacific Ocean.

Zajonc says several meetings are likely before anyone figures out what direction the talks should take.

Judson suggested a lawsuit might be the fastest way to settle any dispute because cases involving arguments between two states can go directly to the U.S. Supreme Court.

He said court action to resolve a California-Nevada border problem took about three years to complete.

But he said when a two-state commission was appointed to draft an interstate border agreement between California and Arizona, resolving the issue required about 10 years.

Parents fail to oust superintendent who punishes kids with isolation

LILLIAN, Texas (AP) — The school board has refused a request from parents to oust the superintendent, who punishes elementary school children by isolating them in a topless wooden box.

The board Thursday refused to act on a petition signed by 74 parents asking that David Hodgeth be fired because of the device — a 3-by-5 foot plywood enclosure with walls 5 feet high and a small chair inside.

Hodgeth, who said the box is part of an "assertive discipline plan," compared it to a study carrel, but parents in this town south of Fort Worth called the box cruel and psychologically damaging.

"Can you imagine sitting in a box like that on a cold floor?" asked Gloria Kirby, who said her 8-year-old son spent Monday in the box for not finishing his assignments.

Board member Gayle Mobray said fears of the box were exaggerated. She said it is used simply to isolate students and prevent them from distracting the rest of the class.

Second-grade teacher Geneva Southard said the box was used only on a "last resort."

"Many times we use it for a child's benefit," she said.

Hodgeth, who has been superintendent of the Lillian School District for three years, said he was willing to "work out an alternative" with parents.

Neo-Nazi gun tied to Denver murder

DENVER (AP) — Authorities have found the gun used in the ambush slaying of radio personality Alan Berg last June, a newspaper reported Friday, quoting unidentified sources.

In a copyrighted story, The Denver Post reported that authorities believe the weapon is linked to former members of a neo-Nazi white supremacist group based in Idaho. The Post's sources said ballistics tests of the gun show it to be the weapon that killed Berg, who was Jewish.

The acid-tongued radio talk show host, who called himself "the man you love to hate," worked for Denver radio station KOA at the time of his death. Berg, 50, was ambushed in the driveway of his townhouse as he got out of his car the night of June 18 and died of multiple gunshot wounds.

Authorities have stopped short of saying they know who killed Berg, but are said to be looking for three or more people for questioning, the Post reported.

The break in the case — one of the most celebrated murder cases in Denver history — came when authorities found the large-caliber automatic weapon several weeks ago, in a house in the Pacific Northwest, the Post said. Sources declined to provide further information on the location of the house, the Post reported.

The Post's sources said the home in which the gun was found is believed to be owned by a current or former member of Aryan Nations, an anti-Semitic, neo-Nazi organization.

Neither Denver police officials nor federal authorities would comment on the investigation.

According to the Post, police say the murder weapon may be connected to Gary Yarbrough, who, along with the former roommate Robert J. Mathews, was a former member of Aryan Nations.

Authorities allege that on Oct. 18, Yarbrough opened fire on three FBI agents in Sandpoint, Idaho, and then fled. A month later, officials said, Yarbrough and Mathews were traced to a motel near Portland, Ore. During a shootout there, officials said, Yarbrough was captured and Mathews escaped.

A manhunt for Mathews ensued, which ended last weekend in a fiery shootout on Whidbey Island, about 40 miles north of Seattle.

Hi-Fi killers' appeal effort is rejected

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A federal judge has rejected appeals of the death sentences of convicted Hi-Fi Shop killers William Andrews and Dale Selby, ruling that their conviction and sentencing 10 years ago was constitutional.

U.S. District Court Judge David K. Winder issued a written opinion Thursday denying a stay of execution issued in 1980.

Selby and Andrews are expected to appeal Winder's decision to the U.S. 10th Circuit Court of Appeals in Denver, and, if unsuccessful there, to the U.S. Supreme Court, said Utah Assistant Attorney General Earl Dennis.

However, the Supreme Court has rejected earlier appeals by the pair, Dennis said.

Selby's attorney, D. Gilbert Athay, and Andrews' attorney, Timothy K. Ford, in Seattle, were unavailable for comment Thursday.

Selby and Andrews, who have been on death row at the Utah State Prison since their sentencing on Nov. 27, 1974, have been through nearly 20 appeals and five execution dates.

Selby and Andrews were convicted of torturing and killing Carol Naisbitt, Michelle Ainsley and Stanley Walker. Two other persons, Courtney Naisbitt and Orren Walker, were tortured and shot during the ordeal but survived.

The petitions for habeas corpus, defense attorneys argued that the state's death penalty statutes were being arbitrarily applied, and that the testimony of a psychiatrist called by the state (named Selby of his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination).

The separate petitions for Selby and Andrews also claimed that pre-trial publicity and news accounts during the trial prevented the defendants from receiving a fair trial and that execution by firing squad is cruel and unusual punishment.

Poker winner gets $320,000

LAS VEGAS, Nov. (AP) — A Corpus Christi, Texas man walked away with $320,000 Thursday night, outlasting Golden Nugget president Bay Baldwin to win the Las Vegas resort's Grand Prix of Poker.

"It was 90 percent luck," said David Baxter, 48. "Well, maybe 80 percent."

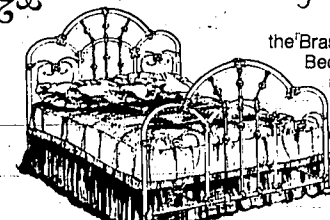

Baldwin, who is recognized as one of the country's best poker players, walked away with $120,000.

Baldwin became president of the Golden Nugget on the same day Baxter bought into a satellite tournament at the downtown hotel for $1,140, hoping to win the $10,000 to enter the grand finale No Limit Texas Hold Em event which will be held Dec. 21.

A total of 24 players bought into the final event at $10,000 each — providing a pot of $240,000 to be shared by the nine finalists.

Baxter said he has been coming to Las Vegas for 15 years to play poker.

Beef costs spark jump in wholesale prices

By ROBERT FURLLOW
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Beef prices soared at the steepest rate in five years last month, pulling overall wholesale prices up one-half percentage point in the biggest wholesale inflation increase since last January, the government reported Friday.
The sharp inflation rise — including new gains for heating oil, gasoline and cars as well as for food — was accompanied by a separate report that the nation's factory production had risen 0.4 percent in November, an increase several private economists called "sluggish."

The prime rate

Chicago Tribune Chart. Sources: Continental Illinois Bank, First National Bank of Chicago, Federal Reserve Board.

Still, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said in a written statement, "As we approach the end of the year, the economy is performing well with excellent prospects for steady growth in the year 1985."
Private analysts weren't that upbeat. But neither did they say they saw anything in the figures to indicate that the nation's economic slowdown was about to deteriorate into a recession.

The increase in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index marked the first wholesale-price rise since July 1981 but the increase for the first 11 months of 1984 at an annual rate of 1.9 percent.
That is more than three times last year's 0.6 percent increase — but the lowest figure in two decades — but factors as a temporary worldwide oversupply of oil.

The report said food costs rose 0.7 percent in November, including a 7.5 percent burst for beef and veal costs that was the biggest since the 9.8 percent of September 1979.

In addition, pork prices rose a sharp 5.8 percent; poultry prices were up 3.3 percent; fish prices gained 0.6 percent and dairy prices 0.3 percent. Those were partly balanced by sizable declines of 7.3 percent for eggs, 7.1 percent for vegetables and 6.8 percent for fruit.
Donald Ratajczak, director of the Economic Forecasting Project at Georgia State University, said meat prices would drive wholesale costs in general up again in December — though only by about 0.3 percent.
Ratajczak said livestock farmers had been holding off the slaughter of many animals for some time because they didn't like the prices being offered. Then feed prices began to fall, encouraging producers to increase their herds, with a resulting relative scarcity of fresh meat that pushed prices upward.

Energy prices rose 0.6, including a 1.7 percent gain for heating oil at the start of the fall heating season in many parts of the nation and a 1.1 percent rise for gasoline. There was a 0.3 percent decrease for natural gas.
Automobile prices were up 0.4 percent after a 1.2 percent seasonal adjustment October decline that had helped cause the 0.2 percent decrease in last month's overall wholesale prices.

Clothing costs were up 0.6 percent and prices for capital equipment rose 0.3 percent.

In other reports Friday:
• The Federal Reserve Board said a big increase in auto production helped bring about the 0.4 percent November gain in industrial production. But the board also said September and October output was worse than first estimated and Ratajczak called the report "pretty sluggish, especially with the downward revision."
• The Commerce Department said total business sales rose 0.1 percent in October, following three monthly declines, and that business inventries rose 0.8 percent. Michael K. Evans, president of Evans Economics in Washington, said the inventory figure indicated companies might have overestimated the strength of year-end sales and would have to unload their stocks at lower prices.

The inflation report said the Producer Price Index for Finished Goods reached 292.3 in November, meaning goods costing $10 in the base year of 1967 would have cost $29.23 last month.
If the month's 0.5 percent increase continued for 12 straight months, the yearly gain would be 6.4 percent on a compounded basis.

A month ago, the government had said the October decline was the third straight, marking the longest string of decreases in 17 years. On Friday, however, the August calculation was revised from 0.1 percent decline to no change.

"November's increase was the first since July's 0.3 percent and the biggest since the 0.6 percent boost last January."
The index measures changes in the prices paid to producers for food, energy products and other items. The prices most Americans actually pay are measured by the Consumer Price Index, which has been rising at an annual rate of 4.2 percent so far this year.

All of the figures were adjusted to discount for normal seasonal variations.

Stocks rise as rates decline

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market turned upward Friday, working up a measure of enthusiasm over falling interest rates.

Bank and airline issues chalked up some of the best gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 7.07 to 1,175.91, bringing its gain for the week to 12.70 points. At its midday peak the average was up more than 14 points.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange reached 85.66 million shares, up from 80.55 million Thursday.

Investors have been given some evidence of late that the economy is reviving from its summer-autumn slowdown. Government reports Thursday and Friday showed gains in retail sales and industrial production last month.

Late Thursday the Federal Reserve reported an unexpectedly large $7.1 billion drop in the money supply. That prompted a drop in interest rates in the bond markets.

Rates on short-term Treasury bills fell about 20 basis points, or hundredths of a percentage point. Prices of long-term government bonds, which rise when rates fall, moved up about $5 on average for every $1,000 in face value.

After some initial hesitation Friday morning, stock traders evidently concluded that the sluggish behavior of the money supply might encourage the Fed to relax its credit policy further, even with signs that business activity might be perking up.

The airline group extended its recent gain, encouraged by talk of renewed downward pressure on air prices. UAL climbed 1/4 to 14 1/4; Delta 1/4 to 41; AMR 1/4 to 35 1/4, and Muse Air, traded on the American Stock Exchange, 1 1/4 to 4 1/4.

In the banking sector, J.P. Morgan & Co. gained 1/2 to 41 1/2 in the daily stock split. In this week, gained 1/4 to 7 1/4; Manufacturers Hanover 1/4 to 34 1/4; Citicorp 1/4 to 38 1/4; Chase Manhattan 1/4 to 45 1/4, and BankAmerica 1/4 to 17 1/4.

On the downside, Castle & Cooke tumbled 2 1/2 to 11 1/4. The company said it expects to post a $3 million pretax loss for the quarter that ends Dec. 29.

Wackenhut, which said a proposed buyout of its stock by an investment group had been called off, lost 2 1/2 to 17 1/4.

Bally Manufacturing dropped 1/2 to 11 1/4. On Thursday the company said it expected to take a $10 million pretax charge in the fourth quarter arising from a decision to cut back its investment in the coin-operated amusement equipment business.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by about 3 to 2 in the daily trading on the Big Board, and the exchange's composite index rose .50 to 93.92.

"Nationwide turnover" in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 112.71 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials added .35 to 181.52, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .38 at 162.69.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market picked up .96 to 239.04. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 200.60, down 1.40.

Private security firm buying Franklin Mint

The Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES — Warner Communications Inc. said that it has agreed to sell its Franklin Mint subsidiary for $167.5 million to American Protection Industries Inc., a privately owned security company here.

Not included in the sale is Eastern Mountain Sports, a chain of camping and outdoor-equipment retailers owned by Franklin Mint. Warner Vice President Geoffrey W. Holmes said the Warner is seeking a different buyer for that unit.

Franklin Mint itself makes and sells collectibles, mostly by mail.

Under the terms of the deal, the New York-based Warner is keeping the company's headquarters in the Philadelphia suburb of Franklin Center. Warner also retains a 15 percent stake in Franklin Mint, with the right to buy back an additional 15 percent.

Franklin Mint was acquired by Warner for $225 million in March 1981, when the New York-based entertainment company was flush with the success of its Atari video-game business.

In 1982, however, the fortunes of the video-game industry plummeted, and Warner has spent most of this year divesting businesses, including Atari, that are not part of its core businesses of film, records and publishing.

Holmes said that Franklin Mint has been profitable each year since the Warner acquisition, although the subsidiary's performance has been adversely affected by the strength of the dollar overseas, where about half its sales occur.

Under the terms of the definitive agreement, Warner will receive $100 million in cash and accept $67.5 million in 9 percent senior subordinated notes maturing after seven years.

The current market value of the notes is about $56 million, according to Susan Watson, an entertainment industry analyst with Morgan Stanley & Co. in New York.

Stewart Resnick, chairman and president of American Protection Industries, could not be reached for comment.

The company owns Teleflora Inc., a large clearing house for flowers with about 19,000 florist members, and API Alarm Systems, a central station alarm company.

In Warsaw, said that it expects the transaction to be completed next month.

Erickson withdraws from OSU coach race

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — University of Idaho head football coach Dennis Erickson Friday removed himself from consideration for the vacant coaching job at Oregon State University.

Erickson's action left Dennis Raetz of Indiana State as the lone finalist for the post, although Oregon State President John Byrne declined to comment on whether new candidates were being considered.

Erickson, Raetz and Gene Murphy of Cal State-Fullerton had been the three choices of a special committee formed by Byrne to evaluate candidates for the post.

Murphy earlier pulled his name from consideration for the job.

"I am withdrawing my name from consideration for the positions because of a lack of decisiveness on the part of OSU's administration," said Erickson, considered the prime candidate for the post.

"I have the utmost respect for Oregon State Athletic Director Dee Andros," he said. "However, due to no fault of his own, the situation has reached a point where I feel it is in my best interest, and the Vandal football program that I withdrew now and get on with the matters at hand."

Byrne said he was not surprised by Erickson's action.

"We had heard he might hold a news conference to do that," Byrne said. "He has to do what he thinks is right."

Byrne said it is possible the school could make an announcement before the new coach is brought to Corvallis.

"It could be this evening (Friday). It could be tomorrow," said Byrne, who was in Portland for a meeting of the state Board of Higher Education.

Andros had made it clear that Erickson was his top choice for the job.

Erickson had said he would withdraw today if he hadn't heard from the Beavers.

Byrne said he remains "hopeful" he will have the new coach on the Oregon State campus on Monday, but an announcement on who will receive the job could be made sooner.

Byrne was scheduled to leave today for an Oregon State alumni gathering in Boise, Idaho, and attend the Oregon State-Boise State basketball game Saturday night.

Erickson had told a Spokane newspaper he would withdraw from consideration for the Oregon State job if he hadn't heard from the Beavers by noon Friday.

Raetz, 38, was the Missouri Valley Conference coach of the year this season. He was named as a finalist even though one of the criteria for the job was a familiarity with recruiting on the West Coast.

Byrne said concerns about affirmative action hiring procedures is one of several factors that have held up the naming of a new coach. Some minority leaders have complained that the process has not given proper consideration to black candidates.

Byrne also said the many news stories surrounding the search have not helped.

"I think the process would have gone more smoothly without all the publicity," he said.

When the present announcement that Avezzano would not return for a sixth year as coach of the Beavers, Byrne said the search for a successor would be done in the "utmost secretly."

"Obviously, that's not happened," he said. "I commend the press for its ingenuity in finding out what it thinks is going on."

Asked about the accuracy of the news media reports, Byrne said, "The spectrum of what's been published runs from the ludicrous to right on target."

Harry Teel, president of the Beaver Club booster group and a member of the search committee, was quoted in Friday's Oregonian newspaper as wondering whether Byrne is qualified to choose a new coach. He said the intention is hurling recruiting of prep players.

Byrne said he wasn't concerned about the criticism and wasn't sure whether it would hurt his overall relations with Oregon State boosters.

"I'm just going to do what I think is right," Byrne said. "And not worry about where the criticism comes from."

On Matt Harr's three-pointer

Twin Falls nips Nampa in overtime

NAMPA — Senior Matt Harr's fourth three-point bomb of the night with 23 seconds left in overtime lifted the Twin Falls Bruins to their first win of the season Friday night.

The Bruins, who were tied on a last-second shot at the end of regulation, thus avenged a defeat at Nampa's hands last week by winning 49-47.

Harr's swisher was the only bucket made in the overtime session but it was enough as Nampa managed just one free throw.

After a redhot first quarter, Twin Falls managed just eight points in the middle quarters and it was the three-point goal that baited it out.

Harr hit four and Jason Meyerhoefer added a fifth.

The Bruins started hot enough, picking up 19 points in the first quarter and Craig Langley's tip to open the second period gave them a 21-14 lead. But it was a long time before the Bruins could score again.

With Todd and Dean Morrison providing all the points, Nampa slowly crept back into a tie with 2:34 remaining. Then both teams' shooting died.

Not another field goal was scored in the half with Twin Falls taking a 25-23 lead on two Doug Peterson free throws.

But if the Bruins were cold then, the third quarter was even worse. They struggled for 9:01 before Alan Valdez took them off 25. And that was the only bucket Twin Falls managed.

Nampa wasn't a hot lotter, but did pick up 11 points and take a 34-27 advantage into the final quarter.

"I told the guys in the huddle that that was the worst quarter in the history of Twin Falls basketball," said Coach John Astorquia. "The second quarter when we weren't scoring didn't bother me too much because they weren't either. But I thought that third quarter would never end."

Harr and Meyerhoefer opened the final period with three-pointers and Twin Falls finally caught up at 38 on a bucket by Peterson with 3:58 showing.

The teams struggled through a series of ties until Harr's three-point gave the Bruins a 45-44 advantage. Tom Prater pumped that as the last nine seconds. Tim Cook missed both ends of a two-shot free throw but Nampa managed to get a jump out of the rebound and then control the tip.

The Bulldogs tried a long shot with seconds left. It bounced away but Cook atoned for his foul-nine nervously by getting the tying bucket at the buzzer.

"In overtime Nampa missed enough free throws opportunities to ice it, managing just that 47-46 lead. Then with 23 seconds left, Harr hit the clincher.

Astorquia said the game continued the thread of the season.

"Obviously we will vary inconsistent but that's the way offense is going to be," he said. "Defensively, we were solid and defensively is where you can be consistent. I thought (senior guard Alan) Valdez played perhaps the finest defensive game of his guard I've had at Twin Falls tonight."

Wood River strikes early, downs Wendell

WENDELL — The Wood River Wolverines caught Wendell Ice cold and reared off with a 68-53 victory Friday night.

The Wolverines blitzed for 23 points in the first quarter to outscore the Trojans by 18. Wendell hit just two field goals during the period and spent the rest of the night trying to get back against the taller Wolverines.

Wendell's best effort came in the final quarter when it pressured the Wood River reserves effectively and came up with a 25-point effort.

Wendell also won the preliminary 62-56.

"We just decided we had to start playing tough inside," said SMU Coach Dave Bliss after the Mustangs overpowered the smaller Vandals 90-71 in Moody County.

"John is not the most ballhounded center in the country, but he just keeps getting better," Bliss said. "He is able to do a lot more things physically this season than he was last year."

Montana's touchdown passes, making his season total a career-high 28, went 47 yards to Freddie Solomon and one yard to Tight End Earl Cooper.

The 49ers' Dwayne Baker recovered a fumble by Dickerson at the Los Angeles 17-yard line late in the first period. A Montana TD pass to Wendell Tyler was nullified by a penalty, but Ray Worsching gained San Francisco a 17-3 lead by kicking a 38-yard field goal in the opening minute of the second quarter.

Minico topples Jerome for second time

By CHRIS HART
Times-News writer

ROBERT — Stunned initially but steady thereafter, the Minico Spartans surged past the Jerome Tigers 59-49 in a nonconference boys basketball game Friday night.

Appearing bent on reversing the 70-85 defeat Minico handed them Dec. 4, the Tigers went on a 19-2 spree after the Spartans had notched the game's first six points.

But the Spartans responded with their characteristic patience and poise. After their responding 12-2 outburst reduced Jerome's 11-point cushion to one early in the second quarter, determined defense and the scoring of Craig Widmiller and Todd Mackenzie helped Minico pull away to its second victory in three decisions.

The Spartans' defense was especially stingy in the third quarter, when Jerome mustered just five points. Though the Tigers' outburst improved in the final period, Minico allowed them to score consecutive baskets just once, forestalling any chance of a Jerome rally.

Jerome Coach Ben Allen nevertheless felt pleased with his team's performance. "The kids played much better than when Minico came to Jerome," he said. "We missed a lot of good shots off our offense that just went in and out. The ball just wouldn't go in the hole for us."

Widmiller and Mackenzie didn't share that lament. Complementing Minico's defensive effort, the pair did all the scoring, 20 points worth, in the decisive second half.

Widmiller, who finished with 12, scored the first four points of the third quarter on a follow and a baseline drive, putting Minico ahead to stay 30-27. A fusillade of six points in less than a minute, composed of baskets by Brad Croft with 3:59 to go, Widmiller at 3:24 and Steve Garland at 3:07 thrust Minico's lead to 38-30.

For emphasis, Mackenzie ended the third quarter by hitting a jumper from just inside the three-point line as time expired, stretching the Spartans' edge to 41-32. He added the last six of his eight points in the final period, helping take off the Tigers.

By contrast, there was no denying Jerome in the first period. Undaunted by Minico's 6-0 lead, the Tigers now 3-2, ticked off the next 14 points, eight by Torrey Sheets.

Croft, whose 10 points tied Sheets for game-high scoring honors, briefly curtailed the barrage by sinking a 12-footer with 2:49 left. But Jeff Burdick drained a three-pointer from the right corner with 1:59 remaining and Todd Amundsen earned a 12-footer at 1:05, capping Jerome's binge.

"Obviously, our kids played a much better ballgame even though we scored 20 points less (than the previous Minico encounter)," Allen said. "Our goal was to run our offense, because at Jerome they totally took us out of it."

The Spartans weathered Jerome's storm by collecting the last two baskets of the first period and eight of the initial-10 points of the second quarter. Croft and reserve guard Tim Ling each contributed four points to the comeback, which ended when Hakan Soderburg scored on a baseline drive following a Minico steal, narrowing the difference to 21-20.

Trailing 25-22, Minico finally regained the lead on Soderburg's follow shot and Croft's 12-footer from the left baseline with 1:13 to go in the half. But Brian Martens corralled an offensive rebound—and returned it through with 44 seconds left, establishing Jerome's 27-26 halftime advantage.

Minico won the junior varsity preliminary, 57-52.

49ers sink Rams to become NFL's first 15-game winner

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Montana completed eight straight passes, two of them for touchdowns, in an early-hot streak which carried San Francisco to a 19-16 victory over the Los Angeles Rams Friday night and made the 49ers the first team in National Football League history to win 15 regular season games.

The 49ers, who entered their 15th season with a nine-game winning streak, had little offensive success after the first period, in which they built a 14-3 lead.

But the San Francisco defense held Eric Dickerson, the Rams' record-breaking running back, to only 98 yards. Dickerson, who finished the season with an NFL-record 2,105 yards, sat out most of the last quarter.

Los Angeles, 10-6, could have clinched a National Conference wild-card playoff berth by winning. Now they have to await the outcome of other weekend games to see if they'll qualify.

Barry Rodden, playing in Dickerson's place, powered for big running yardage in a late Rams' drive which fizzled at the 49ers' 24-yard line. Mike Lansford kicked his third field goal of the night with 3:43 left in the game.

The Rams got the ball back with 1:40 remaining and quarterback Jeff Kemp was sacked by the 49ers' Gary Johnson in the end zone for a safety with 1:06 left.

Montana's touchdown passes, making his season total a career-high 28, went 47 yards to Freddie Solomon and one yard to Tight End Earl Cooper.

The 49ers' Dwayne Baker recovered a fumble by Dickerson at the Los Angeles 17-yard line late in the first period. A Montana TD pass to Wendell Tyler was nullified by a penalty, but Ray Worsching gained San Francisco a 17-3 lead by kicking a 38-yard field goal in the opening minute of the second quarter.

Dickerson was held to 19 yards on sevent carries in the first quarter, but he had 95 by halftime and ran for 147 yards in the second period for his 14th touchdown of the season.

Lansford, who kicked a 41-yard field goal in the first period, booted a 28-yarder on the final play of the first half, cutting the 49ers' lead to 17-13.

Another field goal attempt, from 30 yards, was blocked by San Francisco lineman Lawrence Pillers in the second period.

In the scoreless third period, Dickerson carried the ball four times, was thrown for losses twice, and showed only one net yard gained. He gained four yards early in the final period to reach 100 for the game, but then lost two yards on his last carry of the night.

Last Sunday, Dickerson broke the single-season rushing mark of 2,003 yards set by O.J. Simpson 11 years ago.

The 49ers' defense put very little pressure on Kemp until the closing minute of play. The Los Angeles quarterback was called for intentional grounding of the ball when he threw it away rather than get sacked on play just before the safety.

The Rams drove 69 yards for their second-period touchdown, with Kemp hitting speedster Ron Brown on a pass which gained 34 of the yards.

Frank Garza had 15.

The undrafted Mustangs advanced their record to 6-0.

Celts zip past Jazz, 117-106

By The Associated Press

Larry Bird triggered a run of 17 unanswered points with a 20-foot jump shot and the Boston Celtics broke out of a tie in the third period Friday night, extending their unbeaten home season record to 11 games, with a 117-106 National Basketball Association victory over the Utah Jazz at Boston.

Paul Pierce had 22 points and 16 rebounds, Bird 22 points and Robert Parish and Dennis Johnson 19 apiece in leading the Celtics to their 20th victory in 21 starts.

With Danny Ainge scoring all of his points in the first two periods and McHale hitting for 12 points in the second quarter, the Celtics opened a 63-58 halftime lead.

However, the Jazz battled back into a 69-69 tie in the fifth minute of the second half. Bird then put Boston in front to stay.

The Celtics then poured it on as Johnson and Parish each connected on three-point plays, McHale scored two baskets and Johnson tallied on a pair of jumpers before Utah's Jeff Eaton ended the Boston run with a pair of free throws.

The Pacers scored a dismal 33 percent from the field in the first period and fell behind 34-10 as the Pistons played their best defensive quarter of the season.

Milwaukee managed to cut the margin 106-104 on Terry Cummings' driving layup with 1:57 left, but the 76ers countered with five straight points from the free throw line to pull away.

Kings 123, Denver 117

DENVER (AP) — Forward Eddie Johnson scored 32 points to help Kansas City hand Denver its first home loss of the season.

The game was tied at 64-64 after three quarters before Reggie Theus canned four free throws to give Kansas City a 110-104 lead with 6:47 remaining.

DALLAS (AP) — Rolando Blackman's 27 points led five Dallas players in double figures as the Mavericks routed San Antonio.

Dallas took control of the game in the third quarter, limiting the Spurs to three field goals in 10 minutes, and led 95-71 after three quarters.

Glenns Ferry uses inside power to defeat Kimberly 58-48

By FLYNN McROBERTS
Times-News writer

BOYS BASKETBALL

GLENN'S FERRY — Did you ever notice how trouble always seems to come in threes?
Kimberly Coach Allen Kelsey noticed Friday night as his Kimberly Bulldogs were quickly overpowered by Glenn's Ferry's three big centermen in their Canyon Conference boys' basketball opener here, 58-48.

David Fulton, Brian Mitchell and Dan Reed, who average 6-foot-5, 6-foot-7 and 6-foot-8, respectively, gave Glenn's Ferry's first 14 points to give the Pilots a 14-3 advantage midway through the first quarter.

Fulton, a 6-8 junior, couldn't be stopped on the way to an 18-point night. When he wasn't dominating the boards or converting at the key, the lanky center was pulling out and hitting from outside. Mitchell had his hand in too, scoring 17 points and Read added 10.

Glenn's Ferry Coach Gordon Brown couldn't complain.

"That's the first time I've played all three of them. I was pleased with it as an opener."

Glenn's Ferry, ranked No. 3 in the state in the current Associated Press poll of 1-3 basketball teams, is now 5-1 overall and 1-0 in Canyon Conference, while Kimberly falls to 2-2 for the season.

For the Bulldogs, it was all southpaw Kurt Holcomb. The 6-5 junior snapped out of a meager five-point first half and worked back into 16 points in second, leading a final Kimberly surge that fell short. Even with his 21-point effort, Holcomb exemplified the Bulldogs' shooting troubles with his 5-for-12 stats from the city street.

As a team, Kimberly shot just 26 percent from the field and 41 percent from the line.

fourth victory without a loss this season, 64-45 over Hagerman. Charles Sandy and Wes Cooper aided the Indians' cause with 40 points apiece, while Troy Rodgers paced the Pirates with 12 points.

Shoshone is now 4-0 for the season, while Hagerman fell to 2-3.

Gooding 68, Filer 55

FILER — The Gooding Senators poured through Filer's last-minute press for several closing points and an easier-than-it-appeared 68-55 victory Friday night.

It was the first win of the season for the 1-2 Senators but also marked victory in its first Canyon Conference battle.

After a tight first half, Filer put itself into a hole by going several minutes with out much scoring. Gooding, hitting the offensive boards well during the time, jumped in front by 14. But Filer refused to wilt and with about three minutes left in the game, fought back to within two.

Filer won the opener 53-41.

Murtaugh 45, Valley 38

MURTAUGH — Murtaugh's game-long full-court press took its toll here Friday night, holding Valley to 12 points in the second half and giving the Red Devils' a 45-38 non-conference boys' basketball victory.

Murtaugh's Troy Rogv scored 20 points for the Devils, while Valley's Todd Schutte led all scorers with 22.

Mountain Home 67, Buhl Indians 59

BUHL — Rich Gagnon scored 21 points and Joe Klausner added 19 points and Home won its first boys' basketball game of the season here Friday, 67-59 over Buhl.

Oakley, Minico gain finals

By Brad Breland
Times-News writer

MALTA — The Oakley Hornets and Minico Juniors will battle for the title tonight in the Ratf River Invitational.

The No. 1-ranked Hornets topped Rockland 48-39 while Minico edged the host Trojans 55-51 in overtime.

Oakley ran off a 14-0 scoring spree late in the first half and worked back into 16 points in second, leading a final Kimberly surge that fell short. Even with his 21-point effort, Holcomb exemplified the Bulldogs' shooting troubles with his 5-for-12 stats from the city street.

As a team, Kimberly shot just 26 percent from the field and 41 percent from the line.

for good.

"The shots just didn't drop at all early in the game," said Oakley Coach Neal Wyatt. "Hopefully, we can shoot like we did in that third quarter. If we don't, Minico will chase us out of the gym."

Ratf River and Minico saw-sawed throughout the contest. Minico took a 37-34 lead into the final quarter and led 45-41 late. The Trojans' Rob-Wright and Thane Otley both hit three-pointers to send the game into overtime at 47.

Late in the overtime with the score tied at 49, Minico's Shane Christ, who was high scorer with 25 points, gave the Spartans the lead with 30 seconds left. After a turnover, Kevin Condie led the contest with two free throws.

"The kids felt they could win and really went for it. Don't take anything away from Ratf River, they're real scrappers," said Minico Coach Ed Johnson.

The victory for Minico was their first in six outings.

Pole wins special slalom

MADONNA DI CAMPIGLIO, Italy (AP) — Doroia Tkalka, 21-year-old Polish skier, achieved her first World Cup victory in a women's special slalom race Friday after dreaming of winning. "It was the first time I dreamt of being on the podium as a winner and it came true. Unbelievable," Tkalka said after scoring Poland's second World Cup victory in Alpine skiing.

Andrej Bachecha won a men's slalom at Banff, Canada in 1972. Tkalka's previous best result had been a second-place finish in a slalom at Oslo, Norway last season. She skied almost perfectly in both heats Friday, down the difficult Miramonte course, with a combined time of 1 minute, 47.90 seconds.

Emory was fired Monday. His team, which finished 9-3 in 1983 and ranked 20th in the final Associated Press poll, fell to 2-9 this year. Baker, who was Emory's head assistant coach and offensive coordinator in 1983, also served as assistant head coach this year.

Baker was head coach at The Citadel from 1978-1982 and at Furman from 1973-1977, compiling an overall record of 57-48-5. Howell said Baker had agreed to a multiyear contract.

Natt played in 19 games for the Pacers in 1980, 22 games with the Jazz in 1982-83 and four games this season with the Jazz.

Dickerson seeks pay hike

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Eric Dickerson, the Los Angeles Rams' running back who set a National Football League season ground-gaining record last Sunday, is seeking a $1 million-per-year contract renegotiation.

Dickerson was quoted in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner as saying that "the Rams got me cheap, and everybody knows it."

Although he has a $2.2 million deal over four years, with two years remaining, Dickerson's actual $175,000 salary plus performance bonuses this season nets him about $400,000. The top-paid NFL running back is reported to be Chicago's Walter Payton at $600,000 per year, and the league has several players in the $1 million-per-year category.

Dickerson's agent, attorney Jack Mills, was in San Francisco Friday for the Rams' game against the 49ers.

Grid star dies in mishap

CANTON, N.Y. (AP) — Andrew Gambardella, a co-captain of the St. Lawrence University football team and an all-ECAC selection this year, died after being struck by a pickup truck Wednesday, police said.

A university spokeswoman said Gambardella, 21, died early Thursday evening at House of the Good Samaritan hospital in Watertown.

Gambardella, who played offensive tackle, was from New Haven Conn., according to spokeswoman Beth Cheney.

Canton police said Gambardella was hit by a pickup truck while crossing a street in the village early Wednesday morning. There was heavy fog at the time, and police said that could have prevented the driver and the pedestrian from seeing each other.

Canton Police Chief Robert Ames said the driver of the truck, Stuart Mesinger, 25, of Canton, was charged with driving while intoxicated and driving with an invalid license. Ames said the county district attorney has not yet determined whether any additional charges should be filed.

Georgetown, DePaul square off today

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — It will be the battle of the underdogs, the Titans of the college basketball world Saturday, when top-ranked Georgetown entertains No. 2 DePaul.

The game will be seen by a national television audience and an expected sellout Capital Centre crowd of more than 19,000.

Each team is 6-0. Georgetown, which has had the easier schedule, has beaten Hawaii-Hilo, Hawaii-Loa, Southern Connecticut, St. Leo, Nevada-Las Vegas and American. DePaul, which survived a one-point scare against Northern Illinois in its season opener, also has victories over UCLA, Chico State, Illinois State, Notre-Dame and Penn State.

"This Georgetown team is better than last year's championship team," said Boston College Coach Gary Williams, following the Hoyas' 86-64 victory over American University Wednesday night.

"This DePaul team is even better than the teams during the Mark Aguirre-Terry Cummings eras," said Bob Doneaid, whose Illinois State team was beaten by 13 points last week by DePaul. DePaul hung one of only three losses on the defending national champions last year, beating Georgetown 63-61 at the Horizon in Rosemont, Ill.

The Blue Demons held Georgetown's 7-foot center, All-America Patrick Ewing, in check last year, limiting him to 16 points: No other Georgetown player scored in double figures.

Saturday, the Blue Demons will come at Ewing with a frontline of 6-6 Mike Embury, 6-8 Kevin Holmes and 6-6 Tyrone Corbin. Coming off the bench will be 6-11 Lamone Lampley and 6-9 sophomore 6-9 Dallas Comegys. Comegys, the team's sixth man, is averaging 13.4 points per game. Embury leads the starters, averaging 21 points and 6.2 rebounds.

Montana St. faces Louisiana Tech for Division I-AA finale

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — When Montana State and Louisiana Tech meet Saturday for the NCAA Division I-AA football championship, each team will be obligated to do what it does best.

Louisiana Tech excels on defense, while State has one of the most high-powered passing attacks in the nation.

The game will be televised nationally on cable TV, with an expected crowd of 14,000 at The Citadel's Johnson Hagood Stadium.

"We're going to go all out. We're just going to get after it and do what we've done this season," said Montana State Coach Dave Arnold.

The 11-2 Bobcats have been doing it. The Big Sky Conference, are led on defense by linebacker Doug "Tank" Landry. Tech finished third in reference champions were fifth in the nation in total offense, with an average of 447 yards per game.

The Bobcats' offense is led by quarterback Kelly-Bradley, who has shattered school records by completing 57 percent of his passes for 4,143 yards and 36 touchdowns.

But Saturday, Bradley will be throwing against a Louisiana Tech defense which led for 143 yards passing and only 12 points per game.

The 10-4 Bulldogs, winners of the Southland Conference, are led on defense by linebacker Doug "Tank" Landry. Tech finished third in the nation in total defense, allowing only 233.5 yards per game.

Arnold says that the keys to any championship game are the unknowns. "We can't afford to turn the ball over. It's the little things. Consistency. We're going to throw the ball but we'll also have to line up and run," he said.

There was a snafu in getting films of Montana State to the Tech coaches earlier this week. But when Bulldogs' Coach A.L. Williams finally saw the Bobcats "we were really impressed."

"We have not faced a widespread football team this season. We've got to try and cover more. They throw a lot and they've been able to come from behind," he said.

The Bobcats, who have come from behind to win eight times this season, have staged the greatest single-season turnaround in NCAA history. They had a dismal 1-10 record last year.

Tech didn't fare much better, going 4-7 in 1983 and getting off to a shaky 1-3 start this year.

Montana State defeated Arkansas State and Rhode Island in the division playoffs, while Tech beat Mississippi Valley and top-seeded Alcorn State to gain berths in the championship game.

Judge forces bowl to let Smith play

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Despite objections from the NCAA, officials of Virginia Tech Tuesday said Friday they will let their star player play in the Outland Trophy winner Bruce Smith play in Saturday's game against Air Force.

Louisiana District Judge Eugene Bryson ruled Friday evening that bowl officials cannot bar Smith from the game. Earlier in the day, bowl officials, fearing the wrath of the NCAA, had said they would not let Smith play.

"The independence Bowl values its position as an NCAA-approved bowl," Dr. Cecil Lloyd, the bowl's president, said in a letter to the NCAA. "We assure you that no ineligible player, i.e., Bruce Smith, will be allowed to play."

But after Bryson issued a restraining order allowing Smith to play, Lloyd said he saw no way that the bowl could legally keep Smith out. Virginia Tech Coach Bill Doolley said he will definitely put Smith in the game, in accordance with Bryson's ruling and with an earlier court ruling in Virginia.

Art Carmody, an NCAA lawyer, said the organization still holds that Smith is ineligible for post season play because of Virginia Tech recruiting violations. Carmody did not say what the NCAA's next move will be.

Smith, 6-2, 200-pound defensive tackle, ranked a court order in Virginia allowing Tech to ignore the NCAA order and play Smith, but school president William Lavery yielded to the bowl's non-compliance, saying he would let the bowl decide. Virginia Tech officials scheduled ed a Friday evening news conference to announce their next move.

Lavery had said earlier Friday that if the independence Bowl ultimately ruled against Smith, Virginia Tech would have to get an opinion from the Virginia courts before complying with the ban.

Lloyd would not concede to disqualifying Smith until the NCAA letter arrived.

"We can't do anything based on a telephone call," Lloyd said after the luncheon.

Nickoff is at 7 p.m. (central), and the game is to be televised by ESPN-Mizlou.

With Smith, Tech has a tough defensive unit, said Vanderbilt Coach George MacIntyre, a 2-3 loser to the Hoopes. He said it was the best his school played all year, "and that includes Louisiana State University and Georgia."

Without Smith, they're still pretty good, although they hope they don't have to prove it, said Virginia Tech safety Ashley Lee.

"I've been here five years, and we've only gone to a bowl once," said Lee.

"Last year, there's no reason we shouldn't have gone to a bowl. We were 9-2, but maybe it just wasn't meant to be," he said.

"Bowl's want offense — points scored — and we haven't done that. Maybe that's hurt us."

If it's offense they want, they've got it. Tech ranked second in college football in ground yardage this year, rolling up an average of 326.5 yards a game on the ground with its version of the Wishbone.

Virginia Tech was the nation's No. 2 team in defense against the run.

Toledo tests Las Vegas in Cal Bowl

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Toledo's solid running will be matched against Nevada-Las Vegas' spectacular passing Saturday in the California Bowl football game.

Toledo won the inaugural California Bowl game in 1981. The Rockets, 8-21 this season, depend on senior tailback Steve Morgan to lead their offense. Morgan ran for 1,137 yards and 10 touchdowns during this season and caught 53 passes from quarterback A.J. Sager for 269 yards.

With 2,389 yards rushing during his career at Toledo, Morgan goes into the Cal Bowl only 32 yards shy of the school record set by Roland Moss in 1968-69.

Las Vegas, 10-2, will try and even the series for the Pacific Coast Athletic Association. The Mid-

American Conference leads 2-1 on the strength of Toledo's last season 27-25 victory over San Jose and Northern Illinois' 20-13 triumph last year over Fullerton State. The only PCAA victory was Fresno State's 29-28 decision over Bowling Green in 1982.

The Rebels rely on quarterback Randall Cunningham, the PCAA's all-time passing leader with 8,020 career yards.

Even with Cunningham, the Rebels employ a balanced attack as they've gained 2,248 yards rushing and 2,028 passing this season.

Coaches of both teams also stressed defense in their preparations. The Rockets were ranked ninth nationally in rushing defense, yielding an average of 107.4 yards per game, and fifth in total defense, surrendering an average of 264.4 yards.

"You begin with defense," said Toledo Coach Dan Simrell. "The important thing is that we have scored enough to win the games. That's what counts."

The Rebels' defense is keyed by tackle Aaron Moog, who made 57 tackles and had five sacks this season.

"After a while, blockers would just reach out and tackle Aaron because they couldn't handle him," said Bob Owens, the Rebels' defensive coordinator.

Nevada-Las Vegas' hopes were hurt Thursday when the National Collegiate Athletic Association's administrative committee declared four Rebels ineligible for the Cal Bowl because of a dispute over their entrance exam scores.

The four, all community college transfers, were defensive linemen Damon Perry, linebacker Tom Polley and defensive back Dalton Perry, all first-stringers, and backup tight end David Brown.

Swedes name Davis Cup singles players

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — Henrik Sundstrom, the hero of Sweden's 3-0 rout of Czechoslovakia in the Davis Cup semifinals, will share singles duties with Mats Wilander in the final against the United States, Swedish captain Hans Olsson announced Friday.

Sundstrom, a clay-court specialist who overcame Ivan Lendl in five sets at Bastad, Sweden, last October, was chosen over doubles star Anders Jarryd.

"It was a difficult decision although I felt Henrik should play already a few days ago," Olsson said. "Both players have impressed me during practice here, but I think it would have been tough for Anders to play both singles and doubles against the Americans."

Sundstrom did not play well in recent tournaments, losing early in Stockholm, London and Antwerp last month. But those were all hard-court events and this final will be played on clay indoors.

During the European summer clay-court campaign, Sundstrom beat Sweden's top player Mats Wilander in the Monte Carlo Open and was a finalist in the German Open. He also did well in minor clay tournaments.

Arthur Ashe, the Americans' captain, expected Sundstrom all along.

Breakers' owners lock in law suit

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The court battles continue between the former and present owners of the much-traveled Portland Breakers of the United States Football League.

Last August, Canizaro filed a lawsuit against former owners Randy Vataha and George Matthews, claiming the former owners were responsible for the $5 million in losses the club suffered in New Orleans last season.

The transaction agreement between Canizaro and the former owners stipulated Vataha and Matthews were responsible for $50,000 in losses in the club's first year, when its home games were played in Boston. Canizaro claimed much more in losses should be assumed by the former owners.

On the same day Canizaro filed his lawsuit, Vataha and Matthews sued Canizaro, saying they had not been paid $5 million of the $8 million price of the franchise.

Vataha said Canizaro began withholding payments as the club's losses mounted.

"Joe lost more than he anticipated, and we believe it's because of the decisions he made as an owner," said Vataha, who was fired as Breakers' president and replaced by John Ralston. "I would be the natural scapegoat, because I'm no longer there."

"Joe was a novice owner," Vataha said. "He went through tremendous changes. At the beginning of the year, he wanted to have a party every week for the players. By the end of the year, he didn't even want to have a break-up party."

"Joe is a brilliant man. Like a lot of owners, he went through a high he'd never experienced. The media came to his home, you're in front of the cameras, and you're paranoid of losing. So you spend money."

Canizaro disagreed. "He's a nice guy," Canizaro said, "but he was in over his head."

Last week, Vataha filed another lawsuit against Canizaro, this one seeking $56,400 from the owner. "Before I went to New Orleans, I checked out Joe's business and discovered there was a lot of turnover," Vataha said. "I had a clause put in my contract that said if I were fired, I would receive $50,000 basically for having sold my home and moved down there."

NFL sues, city fights to keep Eagles at home

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National Football League filed suit Friday to keep the Philadelphia Eagles from moving to Phoenix, while the city's mayor said the odds of keeping the team had swung in Philadelphia's favor after a day of intense negotiations.

However, a source close to the team said Friday that owner Leonard Tose already has signed an agreement, although not a contract, to sell 28 percent of the team and has received an offer from a Canadian businessman has offered for the minority interest.

The source said the deal with James Monaghan would require the Eagles to move to Phoenix, but Monaghan on Friday denied the agreement stated a meeting with Tose Friday night, Mayor W. Wilson Goode said the city's odds for keeping the team had increased to 70-30.

"I am convinced that Mr. Tose is part of the $30 million a year to keep the team in the city," Goode said. "I think there is absolutely no certainty that that will happen; but I think the odds indeed have increased because of his expressed desire to do so."

Goode said the city's financial institutions had agreed to refinance Tose's loan, but the Eagles owner and the banks continued to disagree about "control over management." Goode said the negotiations will continue all day Saturday.

The NFL joined the city's fight to keep the Eagles in Philadelphia by filing a damage suit in U.S. District Court. The suit asks the court to prevent the Eagles from leaving Philadelphia without league permission.

The suit also seeks unspecified damages and a declaratory judgment from the court, saying that if the NFL forces the Eagles to comply with league regulations about moving a franchise, the league will not be violating any antitrust law.

"This action arises out of a threatened violation by the Eagles and Tose of expressed contractual obligations, and related implied obligations, owed by the defendants to the league to maintain the league member club in Philadelphia," the suit says.

In the suit, the NFL said it believed that the defendants, "after secret negotiations unknown to the league, are planning in the near future to move the Eagles to Phoenix, Ariz."

The league said it believes that the Eagles probably would not submit a moving proposal to the league for evaluation before acting on the plan, and any proposal probably would not be approved.

At NFL headquarters in New York, a league spokesman issued a statement which said, in part, that its suit "seeks a court ruling to enforce the Eagles' contract to operate an NFL franchise in Philadelphia as it has for the past 15 years."

"What began as a trickle in the wake of the Raiders' case in California now threatens to become a flood if the Eagles leave the country's fourth largest market. Such a move would abandon a community that has supported its team superbly for more than half a century. It also would place two pro football teams in Phoenix, Ariz., an untested pro football market, during the fall and winter seasons."

"Many important league interests are involved. Eagles management has not yet furnished any facts that would justify such a move. The NFL is concerned at the damage the current chaos may do to the public perception of professional football," the statement said.

The league also has called an owners' meeting for next Tuesday to discuss what could be the third franchise shift in four years, following the Raiders' move from Oakland to Los Angeles in 1982 and the Colts' switch this year from Baltimore to Indianapolis.

In Tempe, a suburb of Phoenix, the Arizona Board of Regents discussed the Eagles' possible move but decided to remain neutral, the source said, before making any public statement.

Approval from the regents would be needed for the Eagles to play at Sun Devil Stadium on Arizona State's campus in Tempe while waiting for construction of a domed stadium.

Sun Devil Stadium already is the home of the Arizona Outlaws of the United States Football League, a spring-summer league that has played two seasons and in 1985, but planning to switch to a fall-winter schedule in 1986.

Any decision by the regents would have to be voted during an open meeting.

The Phoenix Gazette reported Thursday that the regents planned to consider a proposal for a 15-year lease of the stadium. The report was attributed to an unidentified source.

The source close to the Eagles said the deal with Monaghan would allow him to purchase a controlling interest in the Eagles in the coming years.

The source also said Monaghan probably will back out if Tose refuses to move the team.

The source said that Tose had not struck a deal with Philadelphia officials to keep the franchise here as reported earlier Friday, but continues to participate in negotiations with city officials.

Since reports of a possible Eagles move surfaced earlier this week, Tose, who reportedly is $40 million in debt, repeatedly has denied he had signed any agreement with Monaghan.

The source compared the Monaghan deal with an agreement Tose made in September 1983 to sell 99 percent of the team. Tose later reneged on the agreement and paid $1.75 million to the local investor group in an out-of-court settlement.

Goode, during an impromptu news conference Friday night, said the financial institutions involved in the negotiations had made a proposal about control of the team's management that Tose found unacceptable.

With Raiders awaiting loser Seattle, Denver fight for division title

By The Associated Press

The Seattle Seahawks and Denver Broncos would like to take next weekend off. One of them will. The other will have the pleasure of entertaining — or fending off — the National Football League's defending Super Bowl champions in a wild-card game.

Saturday, the Broncos and Seahawks, tied atop the American Football Conference's West Division with 12-3 records, play in the Seattle Kingdom.

The winner will win the division championship, a first-round bye in the playoffs and a home game for the second round, the Dec. 23-30 divisional playoffs.

The loser will settle for second place, a wild-card playoff berth and the role of host on Sunday, Dec. 23, against the Los Angeles Raiders, this year's other AFC wild-card team.

Something worth noting: only one wild-card team has won the National Football League championship — the Raiders, who won Super Bowl XV, when they called Oakland their home.

In Saturday's other game, the New Orleans Saints visit the New York

Jiants. The Giants, in a National Conference playoff scramble, could make the playoffs despite losing, or be eliminated from the playoffs despite winning. If the Los Angeles Rams won Friday night's game at San Francisco, the Giants were in as an NFC wild-card team.

Sunday, it's St. Louis at Washington, Pittsburgh at the Raiders, Buffalo at Cincinnati, Chicago at Detroit, Cleveland at Houston, Indianapolis at New England, Green Bay at Minnesota, the New York Jets at Tampa Bay, Kansas City at San Diego and Philadelphia at Atlanta. Monday night, it's Dallas at Miami.

The game in the Kingdom is a rematch of the Mile High Stadium meeting of Nov. 25, a 27-24 victory by Seattle when Rich Karlis, the Denver placekicker, hit the upright with a last-minute, chip-shot field-goal attempt which, had it been successful, would have sent the game into overtime.

The Seahawks, their eight-game winning streak broken 34-7 at Kansas City last Sunday, are the only NFL team unbeaten at home this season. "I think everybody likes to play at home," Chuck Knox, the Seattle coach, said. "But I don't think that in itself is going to decide the game. If we think that, we're going to be in for another afternoon like we had in Kansas City."

"We went to Denver and beat them up there. They're certainly capable of coming down here and beating us. If we think we can just show up at the Kingdom and the crowd and everybody else is going to decide the game, we're crazy. We're still going to have to out-block 'em, out-tackle 'em, out-catch 'em and out-execute 'em to win the football game."

The winner of the Cardinals-Redskins game will be the NFC East champion. "It's all there for them for the taking," Cardinals quarterback Neil Lomax said. "This is the biggest game of my career and probably everyone else's in St. Louis."

"If they beat us here, they deserve to be champions," Richie Peterson, the Redskins' assistant head coach, said. "And his boss, Joe Gibbs, said, 'The players, the coaches, the fans know what's at stake. I can't see anybody coming in flat for this one.'"

The Redskins, 10-5 following a pulsating 30-12 victory over Dallas last Sunday, are aiming for their third consecutive trip to the Super Bowl, a feat achieved only once before — by Miami for Super Bowls VI (a loss to Dallas) and VII and VIII (victories over Washington and Minnesota). The Cards, 9-6, stayed alive in the playoff chase last Sunday by beating the Giants 31-21.

The Steelers hold a one-game lead over Cincinnati in the struggle for the AFC Central title and can clinch it with a victory or a tie against the Raiders. If Pittsburgh loses and the Bengals win, they'll each finish at 8-8 and the crown will go to Cincinnati based on its better division record, 5-1 to the Steelers' 3-3.

Also, it would be the first time in NFL history that a team won a division title and advanced to the playoffs without a winning record. The closest previous time was in 1978, when Minnesota won the NFC Central title at 6-7-1. An aberration occurred in the strike-abbreviated 1982 season when Cleveland in the AFC and Detroit in the NFC each made the playoffs with a 4-5 record, but division play was discarded that year.

Further, a victory by the Bengals would leave Buffalo with a 2-14 record, the worst in the NFL, and guarantee the Bills the No. 1 pick in the college draft.
