Utah jury sentences Lafferty today

The Associated Press

PROVO, Utah — A 4th District Court jury Thursday found Dan Lafferty guilty of two counts of first-degree murder in the slaying of his sister-in-law and her infant daughter.

The six-man, six-woman jury deliberated for more than eight hours Wednesday and Thursday before finding Lafferty, 36, guilty of the murders and of two counts each of criminal conspiracy and aggravated burglary.

Judge J. Robert Bullock set the penalty phase of the hearing for 9:30 a.m. today.

Lafferty, who chose to have the jury sentence him, could receive the death penalty for the capital homicide convictions. If "condemned," Lafferty would have his choice of execution by lethal injection or firing squad.

Lafferty and his brother Ron were charged in the murders of Brenda Wright Lafferty, 24, and her 15-month-old daughter, Erica. They were found with their throats slashed in their American Fork duplex on July 24.

Ron Lafferty, 43, had been sched-ed to stand trial with his brother, but his trial was postponed after he apparently tried to hang himself in his jail cell Dec. 31.

Lafferty, clad in blue jeans, a blue plaid shirt and a denim jacket, showed no reaction when the verdicts were read.

Prosecutors—and attorneys—appointed to aid Lafferty were ordered by the judge not to talk to the press and had no comment on the verdict.

However, Gary Caldwell, the American Fork Police detective who headed the investigation, said he had been worried about the length of the jury's deliberations.

"I was concerned that they gave the defendant the proper consideration. I felt like they did, since they spent so much time," he said. "I feel that the jury has come back with the verdict that we asked them to give."

The Laffertys, excommunicated Mormons, contend that Ron Lafferty received a revelation from God that both victims and two others must be "removed."

Lafferty, acting as his own attorney, told the jury in a rambling, 20-minute closing argument Wednesday the prosecution had not proved that a crime had been committed.

"I believe that a revelation has been received. I am not a criminal," he said.

But in his closing arguments, Chief Deputy County Attorney Wayne Watson described Lafferty as a "cold-blooded murderer, the worst of all kinds, the kind that can walk up to a baby's crib while that baby is screaming. 'Mommy! Mommy! Mommy!' and slit her throat."

Dan Lafferty said he believed in the revelation, but he neither admitted or denied his part in the crime.

"I know it's not a pretty picture," he said. "But when the Lord's kingdom is built up, then the advocate will be there."

Victim's father satisfied with verdict

KIMBERLY — The father of Brenda Wright Lafferty says he's not overly concerned whether the man found guilty of murdering his daughter and granddaughter receives the death penalty.

According to Mormon Church beliefs, says James Wright of Kimberly, there will be a judgment day where people will give a full account of their lives and final justice will be levied.

A Provo, Utah, jury Thursday found Dan Lafferty, the brother-in-law of Brenda Lafferty, guilty of first-degree murder.

Wright says the guilty verdict for Dan, whom he had met at Brenda's wedding to Alan Lafferty, was one his family had hoped for and what it should have been.

"We are appreciative of all the work of the police department and FBI and the judicial system for all of their efforts in bringing this thing to this point. They were very effective and kind to us," Wright says.

His family had relied on the judicial system to pursue the case and they "would try to understand whatever happened the best we could," Wright says.

"I personally think it would have been very well for them (the Laffertys) to have admitted it for their own sake," instead of pleading not guilty and prolonging things with a trial, Wright says.

As for punishing Dan Lafferty, who will be sentenced today, Wright says, "I really don't want to be the judge on that. I don't know what the best answer is. On one hand, it (capital punishment) is a way for him to atone for what he has done," Wright says. "There's not any question in this case that it was premeditated and there was really no excuse for it. She was no threat to them."

"I do support the law of the land and if capital punishment is that law then that's what it should be. I don't want to see anybody die, but they (the Laffertys) made that decision when they did what they did."

The frequent article in the newspaper about Brenda didn't open fresh wounds of sorrow for the family, Wright adds.

"I would say it (their deaths) were resolved in our minds. We talked about Brenda ourselves often."

What gave his family comfort about Brenda and Erica's deaths was support from family, friends and strangers, Wright adds.

"Many people showed concern for us. They did what they could to help."

Wright says the family's Mormon religion also has provided comfort. They believe that a spirit gives a body life and when death comes that spirit leaves and will, on the day of resurrection, be reunited with the body.

Dave Carter, a family friend and

Ailing Spokane credit bank to receive infusion of money

By KAREN MCGRATH
The Associated Press

SPOKANE — Top officers of the 37 regional banks in the nation's farm credit system have agreed to make up to $300 million available to aid the ailing Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Spokane.

The FICB, which sustained 1994 losses of about $22 million, will receive about $25 million immediately from the farm credit institutions through May 31, when up to $300 million in additional funds will be available, Kenneth Krueger, chief executive officer of the Farm Credit Banks of Spokane, said Thursday.

Bank presidents and representatives met in St. Louis Wednesday to establish the assistance program. They also discussed long-range restructuring of the Spokane FICB and its 23 continuing production credit associations.

The Farm Credit Banks of Spokane now oversees all of the national farm credit system's operations in Idaho, Montana, Oregon, Washington and Alaska.

The action taken Wednesday was the second emergency measure regarding the district.

On Saturday, the 12th Farm Credit District Board — the policy making board over the Spokane FICB, the Federal Land Bank of Spokane and the Spokane Bank of Cooperatives — placed all three banks under one management to help shore up the FICB.

Krueger, who formerly headed the Spokane Federal Land Bank, was named chief executive officer.

It was the 11th out of the nation's 12 farm credit districts to consolidate management, said Al Haselbacher, spokesman for the Spokane Farm Credit Bank.

The officials at the St. Louis meeting also recommended that "managements of the district's 22 PCAs and its federal land bank associations eventually be combined, as has happened in other farm credit districts."

Krueger said the credit system will closely monitor the Spokane FICB's loans.

The bank sustained operating losses of about $48 million during 1993 because of a high level of "nonperforming" loans in four of its PCAs. The Southern Idaho Production Credit Association at Twin Falls was among them. The FICB last week announced dissolution of four more PCAs in Montana and Washington. All eight now are being liquidated. The losses were compounded by "the continued depressed conditions of the agricultural economy," Krueger said.

The PCA liquidations provided about $150 million in bad loans to the FICB, Krueger said. The bank's PCAs continue to carry another $90 million in problem and high-risk loans on their books, he said.

The Spokane bank serves farmers, ranchers, fishermen and members of the timber industry in the Pacific Northwest and Alaska. It has about $1 billion in outstanding loans.

The new backing for the FICB will help local PCAs offer more favorable loan rates to borrowers, Krueger said.

Bank officials did not anticipate the major downsizing that agriculture has experienced for four years. Had officials looked into a "crystal ball," Krueger said, "maybe we would have been unseated by farmers differently. But losses are part of the business."

Krueger said the Northwest district suffered greater losses than other districts because it lends to many troubled fishing and timber companies, as well as to farmers and ranchers.

Bank presidents and representatives will meet again this month in San Antonio, Texas, to further discuss assistance programs and restructuring, Krueger said.

The boards of directors of the 37 farm credit banks and the federal Farm Credit Administration still must approve the infusion of new capital into the Spokane district, Haselbacher said.

Reagan continuing shakeup

By W. DALE NELSON
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, continuing a shakeup of his official family as he prepares for his second term, picked Energy Secretary Donald P. Hodel on Thursday to replace his old friend William P. Clark as secretary of the Interior.

At the same time, Reagan named John S. Herrington, the White House personnel director, to succeed Hodel as the top official of the Energy Department.

He chose William Bennett, head of the National Endowment for the Humanities, to succeed Education Secretary T.H. Bell, the first member of Reagan's Cabinet to resign after the president's landslide re-election.

Completing the latest round of personnel shuffling, the president decided to nominate Richard G. Darman, a top-White House aide, as deputy secretary of the Treasury.

Both Hodel and Bennett were instructed to study "reorganization options" for their departments, which Reagan has sought unsuccessfully to persuade Congress to abolish.

"Although the president has often stated his belief that the Education and Energy departments could be eliminated, he feels any such reorganization should be fully studied and considered before any final decisions are made to reorganize," said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

"Asking for the studies does not necessarily constitute a decision to eliminate or reorganize these departments," he said.

Speakes said the president set no timetable for the studies, and that they would probably take "a matter of months."

He said a proposal for a new Department of Trade and Industry was also discussed in a Cabinet meeting Thursday, and that the president "took specifically under advisement the reorganization of the trade, commerce and industry functions of the federal government and promised a decision at an early date."

Speakes said Reagan met with the four men Thursday and approved them for the new jobs. He said he announced the nominations at a Cabinet meeting later.

Darman will succeed R.T. McNamar as deputy secretary at the Treasury Department. Speakes said he does not know McNamar's plans.

The newly designated is a close associate of White House chief of staff James A. Baker III, who is being nominated to be secretary of the

District 411 faces insurance lawsuit

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Jerome attorney Greg Fuller said Thursday he will file a suit in Fifth District Court today against the Twin Falls School District on charges of bad faith bargaining and breach of contract.

Fuller said the suit will be brought on behalf of about 10 plaintiffs, one of whom is Susan Piller, wife of ex-superintendent Gary Piller and an American Federation of Teachers leader.

Susan Piller declined to comment on the case Thursday evening.

Fuller said the suit is not being brought on behalf of the American Federation of Teachers.

Fuller said the suit will ask that the district's last previous health insurance policy be reinstated, that the district repay to teachers the $151,000 health insurance policy rebate it received, and that the district pay damages and attorneys' fees to the teachers.

"I am aware that a check for $151,000 was paid to the board," Fuller said. He declined to reveal his source.

District personnel supervisor Doyt Simcoe said Thursday he was unaware of the suit and that, if filed, it will be turned over to the district's legal counsel.

School board turns to fact-finding — B1

Fuller said the suit also seeks to force the district to give each teacher a health insurance policy. Fuller said the existing plan, which places Twin Falls teacher couples on the same policy, discriminates against those couples.

Fuller said he researched the case through the teacher plaintiffs and through media coverage of teacher contract negotiations.

Fuller also represents Piller in his suit against the district over Piller's firing. "Gary does have some expertise," Fuller said of the ex-superintendent's role in the latest suit against the district.

The suit was originally to be filed Thursday afternoon, but Fuller said he ran into organizational difficulties with some of his plaintiffs, who feared losing their jobs over the suit.

The Twin Falls Education Association's threatened bad-faith bargaining suit will be filed today as well, Fuller said. He said his suit was to have beaten the TFEA to the punch.

TFEA attorney Byron Johnson declined to comment on either Fuller's case or the TFEA's.

Idahoan unlikely to back department merger

By HAL BERNTON
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sen. James McClure is unlikely to support a Reagan administration proposal to merge the Interior and Energy departments unless the move would result in major cost savings without destroying important federal programs, McClure aides say.

"It's just a shuffling of desk and papers. I don't think it would be viewed favorably," said McClure aide H.D. Palmer Thursday. "Any merger proposal would have to ensure that programs carried out by both agencies that are particularly important to states like ours do not become diluted or terminated."

McClure, who is vacationing in Idaho, declined to comment directly on the merger proposal. As chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, he oversees funding for both Energy and Interior Department programs. Both the committee and the full Senate will have to approve of any agency merger plans, according to McClure aide Bill Livingston.

The Interior Department merger proposal represents President Reagan's second attempt to dismantle the Energy Department. In 1982, Reagan sought to eliminate the Energy Department and merge many of its functions with the Commerce Department.

McClure successfully fought to defeat that proposal. "He did not support the merger two years ago," Livingston said. "Until the administration makes its views known on this merger, he won't pass judgment."

McClure, a vigorous proponent of U.S. energy independence, has been a staunch supporter of Energy Secretary Donald Hodel, a former Bonneville Power Administrator. And aides say the merger proposal is unlikely to cause McClure to oppose Hodel's Interior Department nomination.

The aides declined to comment on whether McClure would support the Reagan administration's new Energy Secretary nominee, political aide John Herrington.

Lottery plan readied

BOISE (AP) — A legislative committee voted 15-5 on Thursday to introduce a measure opening the way for a public vote on Idaho's constitutional ban against lotteries.

The issue of whether Idaho should lift its prohibition against lotteries will be placed on the ballot if it receives a two-thirds endorsement in the legislature. Similar measures have been rejected in past legislative sessions.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said in presenting the proposed constitutional amendment to the House State Affairs Committee that people have expressed concern about money flowing from Idaho to Washington, which operates a state lottery. Oregon intends to establish a lottery under authorization voters granted on Nov. 6.

She also said her constituents include church groups and others interested in operating bingo games. Committee members, many of whom have debated the lottery issue before, held little discussion about the proposal.

Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, cast one of the negative votes after saying Idaho has nothing to gain from a state lottery.

"Some of the states that have lotteries are giving second thoughts to the practice," he said.

He said a lottery creates only an illusion of wealth, and ends up shifting dollars from one part of the entertainment industry to another. Bateman also said a costly new level of bureaucracy will result if Idaho establishes a lottery.

But Rep.-Dean Haugenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, said Washington's lottery is drawing money out of northern Idaho, and not just in the form of lottery tickets. People who travel to Washington for tickets also end up shopping there, observed Haugenson, who said the issue must be decided by voters.

"I don't think we need to sit here in judgment and decide whether a lottery is good or bad for the people," he said.

In addition to Bateman, the Republican representatives opposed to the measure were Lyman "Gene" Winchester of Kuna, Cyril Burt of St. Anthony, and Mike Strasser and Ron Crane, both of Nampa.

Corrections director says escapes from reform school are intolerable

BOISE (AP) — The state corrections director says the reform school at St. Anthony has an intolerable escape record and a new treatment program there is nothing but an opportunity for con artists to run the place.

Al Murphy told legislators on Thursday that he's not sure his agency wants jurisdiction over the St. Anthony Youth Services Center, and neither is he sure legislators want to see that shift in control.

The facility for wayward youths is supervised by the Idaho Health and Welfare Department, but Sen. Ann Rydahl, R-Idaho Falls, has said complaints about the center indicate it would be more appropriate to place the institution under the state Corrections Department. She is drafting a bill to make the change.

"I know you've got an escape problem over there," Murphy told legislators at an informal meeting arranged by Mrs. Rydahl. "No way in hell could I live with it."

Murphy also criticized the YSC's new treatment program, called Positive Peer Culture.

"You know what that means?" he asked. "It means the biggest con artist in the whole group runs the joint. That's illegal. That's unconstitutional."

Murphy told the legislators he has no academic background in sociology or juvenile case law, but "what you really have to do in corrections is be a good manager" and "implement programs." He said that if his department was given control over the eastern Idaho school, some of his staff would have to be retrained.

"I don't know as we want you," Murphy said. "But I'm going to tell you we couldn't live with it the way it is now."

Murphy and Gene Larsen, a Corrections Department specialist in probation programs, compared the center with the North Idaho Correctional Institute at Cottonwood, a 120-day alternative to prison where the average age is 19.

The Health and Welfare Department estimates the cost per student at the YSC next year will be $105 per day. Corrections officials estimate it costs $19 a day to keep an inmate at Cottonwood.

Rep. Cyril Burt, R-St. Anthony, told Murphy that Fremont County sheriff's records show there were 42 escapes in an 85-student population at the YSC during a recent four-month period. Murphy said there was one escape from the Cottonwood institution during the last two years. Neither facility is fenced or walled.

Freshman representative has difficulties getting in

BOISE (AP) — There are times that things just aren't what they seem. Just ask Liz Allan, the petite 39-year-old freshman House Republican from Middleton.

Monday was the first day of the 1985 Legislature and Mrs. Allan had nothing but problems in taking part.

First the doorman wouldn't let her into the House chamber and then a House clerk apparently mistook her for one of the many young pages.

"Maybe it's my height," mused Mrs. Allan, who stands just over five feet tall. She wasn't wearing the required legislative name tag either, and her size and appearance baffle her age and position.

"There's so many new representatives, and I didn't recognize her," admitted veteran House doorman Bob Falconer, who was finally convinced to grant her admission.

Later in the day, Mrs. Allan went to the House administration office only to be mistaken for a page.

"She started to hand me some papers. Then she found out who I was," said Mrs. Allan, who has children attending college and high school.

Schools chief seeks tax hike

BOISE (AP) — A tax increase is essential to eliminate a revenue gap Idaho school districts have been suffering under the 1 percent tax limitation passed in 1978, the state school superintendent says.

"Until you're willing to deal with it, it's going to get worse, and worse and worse," Jerry Evans told the Idaho Senate Education Committee on Thursday.

The initiative prevents Idaho's 116 school districts from raising by more than 5 percent the amount of local taxes collected in excess of the previous year's figure. That has placed additional pressure on the state's general account as a source of school funding.

Evans said that under the tax limitation, even large increases in taxable valuations don't increase the support available to help school districts deal with rising costs. Instead, increased valuations lower the burden faced by taxpayers overall, he said.

In other remarks before the committee, Evans said in response to a legislator's question that he continues to favor creation of a board that would oversee higher education in Idaho.

The Idaho Board of Education, of which Evans is a member, oversees both public schools and the state's college and university system. Evans said he voted in favor of an additional panel last year when the board rejected the proposal.

The Board of Education has so many issues and requests to consider that it cannot give each the advocacy it may deserve, he said.

"We are such a single voice for so much that it is hard to be an advocate for everything under the board," Evans said.

He said he doesn't know if the two-board issue will be brought before the Legislature this year.

Legislators urged to boost prison funding

BOISE (AP) — State lawmakers must approve at least some money to upgrade state prison security and medical services this session to head off any harsh response from a federal judge who has ordered those improvements, according to Corrections Director Al Murphy.

"The judge is going to have to see some action by the Legislature to show good faith," Murphy told the Joint-Finance Appropriations Committee Thursday. "We're going to have to show some movement by July 1."

Murphy declined to speculate on what U.S. District Judge Harold Rye might ultimately order the state to do at the prison once he finalizes his decision upholding inmate claims of unconstitutional conditions at the facility.

"But whatever his final decision, you've got 24 months from today, as long as you show good faith," Murphy said. "You've got until January 1987 to get into final compliance."

Murphy said he believed there was still room for compromise and negotiation with the court on how conditions Ryan found in violation of inmate civil rights could be corrected, and he predicted that a $2 million to $3 million annual commitment would fully meet any mandates Ryan imposed.

But Murphy acknowledged that it would be impossible for him to actually hire the 163 guards and some three dozen medical professionals he believes would resolve all constitutional problems at the prison.

Still, he said, some are needed immediately, admitting that in the past security positions have gone unfilled because of a shortage of guards.

"There is no easy way to get out of this court order," he emphasized.

Authorities take kids over schooling dispute

NEW PLYMOUTH (AP) — Payette County officials on Thursday took the school-age children of Sam and Marquita Shippy from their New Plymouth home and placed them in the custody of the court, Deputy Prosecutor Dan Chadwick said.

"They're in foster care, but we're not going to give them (the parents) the specific location of the children," Chadwick said. "It's our hope that we can stabilize the situation."

The Shippys, along with Sam's two brothers and their wives, were jailed for three weeks last year after refusing to comply with terms of a 1982 probation agreement to provide their school-age children state-approved educations.

The couples were released by 3rd District Magistrate B.E. Behrmann last month only after agreeing to leave their children with relatives, who promised to send them to schools in Marsing.

But Sam Shippy's children went back to their parents over the holidays, and did not return to classes after Christmas vacation. Negotiations failed between Shippy, Chadwick and Behrmann on Tuesday.

Shippy said Payette County Sheriff Bob Zarovny, along with four deputies and a juvenile officer came to his rural home Thursday afternoon with court documents and took the children.

"He said he was not informed where the children were being taken. 'I suppose they'll show up somewhere, I don't know,'" Shippy said at a telephone interview Thursday night.

"There ain't a whole lot we can do anyway."

Chadwick said he plans to present a home-study program to all three Shippy families for their approval within the next two weeks.

The children of Floyd and Rocky Shippy and Robert and Cecelia Shippy remain in Marsing schools and are staying with relatives, Chadwick said.

But Shippy said the relatives with whom his children were staying last month refused to take them back after Christmas, and that it was not his responsibility to return them himself.

Shippy also said an announcement by Jerome County Prosecutor Dan Adamson that he would be allowed to represent the couple in future court proceedings was a misunderstanding.

The couples were released by 3rd District Magistrate B.E. Behrmann last month only after agreeing to leave their children with relatives, who promised to send them to schools in Marsing.

But Sam Shippy's children went back to their parents over the holidays, and did not return to classes after Christmas vacation. Negotiations failed between Shippy, Chadwick and Behrmann on Tuesday.

Shippy said Payette County Sheriff Bob Zarovny, along with four deputies and a juvenile officer came to his rural home Thursday afternoon with court documents and took the children.

"He said he was not informed where the children were being taken. 'I suppose they'll show up somewhere, I don't know,'" Shippy said at a telephone interview Thursday night.

Mackay office is relocated

MACKAY (AP) — The Mackay municipal offices have moved into a new city hall built to replace one rocked by the 1983 earthquake that killed two children in nearby Challis.

The new $216,500 structure built largely with a federal disaster grant is on the site of the old Mackay City Hall, which was destroyed along with the town jail when the quake struck in October 1983.

The old city hall was a former bank estimated to have been built in the early part of this century. National Guardsmen demolished the building after the earthquake, which measured 7.3 on the Richter scale.

Work on the 1,835-square-foot building began in August.

It includes a jail in which suspected offenders can be held up to 48 hours, an interrogation room and sheriff's offices.

City hall offices temporarily were housed in Mackay's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service building.

'Meet and confer' bill should die quietly

Even though it hasn't been formally introduced yet, we don't think much of a proposal by newly-elected Rep. Jerry Callen of Jerome that would effectively prohibit some public employees, such as teachers and firefighters, from collective bargaining.

Callen comes to this issue from his experience as a school board member in Jerome several years ago. He attributes his defeat in a re-election effort on that board to strong opposition to him from the Idaho Education Association.

Elected this fall as a "noterial" legislator to represent the eight counties of the Magic Valley, Callen says one of his first efforts will be to repeal the state's current collective bargaining act that now requires school boards to negotiate "in good faith" with teachers.

Callen would replace that language with a law which allows the board to "meet and confer" with teachers if the board wishes to do so. If it doesn't, under Callen's proposal, it doesn't have to.

The "meet and confer" concept was used in Idaho down to the early 1970s and was replaced with the negotiations act precisely because of problems in its application.

We see two major problems with "meet and confer." First, it puts the teachers and boards in what amounts to a "Me Tarzan, you Jane" relationship. The first doesn't even have to talk to the other if it doesn't want to.

Second, it allows boards to ignore the professional input that teachers ought to legitimately have in education.

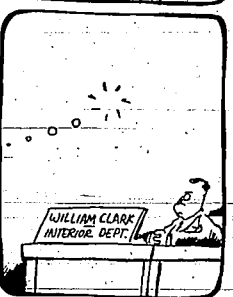

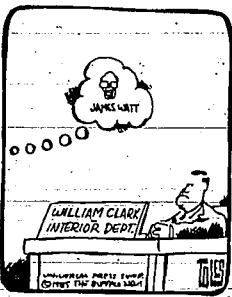

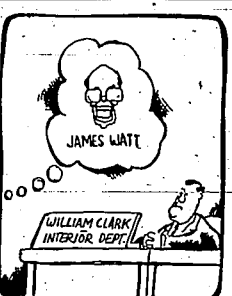

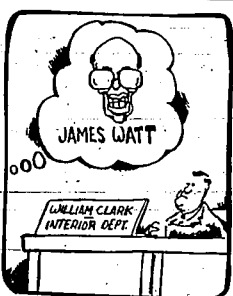

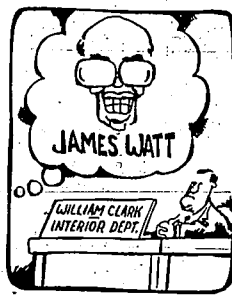

Teachers are an important ingredient in the education process. To remove them from board discussions is to deprive citizens and parents of an important insight into how a district ought to be run.

We are not arguing here for control of local schools by teachers or their unions. That is ultimately the boards' function under both present Idaho law and principles of sound public policy.

But from our perspective, Idaho law is about right in the authority it gives to local boards in their negotiations. The law could be improved, perhaps, by language to help smooth difficult negotiations along.

But to go back to "meet and confer," in our view, would be a step backwards for public employee relations in Idaho. It might look like the right step to those whose objective is the removal of unions as a presence in the American public workforce, but in our view, it would be a heavy handed mistake.

The Republican leadership in the Idaho Legislature has said it will be moderate and judicious in its legislation this year in which it has veto-proof control. Allowing this proposal to die quietly would be a good place to start.

This session could be a good show yet

The Republican horde that is this year's Idaho lawmaking contingent arrived promptly in Boise on Monday, introduced the much-maligned right-to-work bill on Wednesday and should be ready for serious work by next week.

That is if they can find the serious work among the politically expedient issues.

"Did you hear that, folks?" Speaker of the House Tom Silvers asked during an interview Thursday.

Silvers, the top Republican leader in the House, was referring to the seemingly effortless introduction of the right-to-work bill received in that committee and to the predicted easy ride the bill will have when it rolls twice through each legislative chamber.

The bill — which intends to ban mandatory union membership or dues payments as a condition of employment — is expected to surface in floor action in each house by late February. The first expected vote will be for the bill's passage. The second will be to override an expected gubernatorial veto.

That veto may be the first one which — for the first time in his tenure as governor — John Evans will exercise without having enough Democratic colleagues in the Legislature to uphold it. The strength of their own elective numbers, and any Senate Republican who sides with Democrats on the issue will likely be forced to pay dearly for what is tantamount to disloyalty to the party.

But with such seeming singularity of purpose on the issue, one must wonder what is the reason for such delay?

The Idaho Legislature has long prided itself on its ability to make legislation move quickly when it matters. In 1963, for example, the House of Representatives turned a special session on education funding into an easy morning's work by re-passing, without committee hearings, four bills which had been vetoed by Evans.

And towards sessions' ends, similar haste in lawmaking is often displayed. So combining the certainty and resolve of the majority party on the issue with the frustration right-to-workers have clearly felt during the many years they have been foiled from passing it, it's difficult to understand why the bill is not already headed for the governor's desk.

The bill's first hearing is scheduled for Monday. Is there life after right-to-work? Clearly there is. And despite assurances by Silvers and company that this session will be carried out with dispatch, lawmakers are likely to face a struggle over the state budget much like those that caused the Legislature's last two regular sessions to move in to extra sittings.

The problem would appear to be the classic budgetary one: Too many needs, not enough funds. And, with a few exceptions, caused by differing perceptions, that is the case.

Silvers says there will be enough money in state tax coffers this year that — when combined with the money that can be saved by eliminating redundant services and employees — government can function at traditional levels.

Evans says additional money to pay for the continued operation of state government at an acceptable level of service can be had through tax reform.

But while taxing and spending issues are likely to be hotly contested this year, political heresies doesn't normally accrue to budgetary string-pullers.

So, enter the state lottery — a proposal that is likely to be kicked around in every legislative session through the end of the century.

Rep. Walt Little, chairman of the House State Affairs Committee, followed his committee's show-stopping right-to-work session Wednesday with a less awe-inspiring introduction of the legalized-lottery proposal Thursday.

In recent sessions, the issue has helped fuel the political popularity of Republican Little as well as Democratic lawmakers Rep. Patty McDermott of Pocatello and Sen. Vern Lannen of northern Idaho's Silver Valley.

In Lannen's case, blame for the routine defeat of the issue has been given to the Mormon-dominated east Idaho delegation of legislators.

In a 1963 debate on the floor of the Senate, Lannen asked that Idahoans be allowed to vote on a constitutional amendment allowing a state lottery so that Idahoans could exercise their "free agency" on the issue, a taunting reference to Mormon beliefs protecting the same.

In a brief conversation Thursday, Lannen's perceptions of the reasons for the lottery proposal's annual failure was less veiled: "I've made a survey over here (in the Senate) and we're still a couple pairs of Hanes underwear short of passage," he said, referring to an even less visible component of the church's practices.

The point of all this is: Don't sell this session short. With comments and issues like these, Idaho's annual lawmaking extravaganza could be the biggest and best show yet assembled in the marble halls of the Idaho Statehouse.

Not worth a celebration

The overwhelming evidence makes a mockery of celebration on the birthday of Martin Luther King along with other national heroes such as Washington and Lincoln.

King established a reputation as being America's outstanding advocate of non-violence among the civil rights leaders. Frank S. Meyer, former Communist who wrote in "National Review" on April 20, 1965, "As I read Dr. King, I wondered where I had previously heard those accents combining surface virtues with threatening ultimatum. Suddenly I remembered. It was in the writing of Frederick Engels, denying that the Marxist revolutionaries of his day espoused violence. No, he said, we shall not use violence; all we shall do is make the maintenance of existing civil order impossible and then its defenders will have either to use violence or to surrender."

"This is the meaning of Dr. King's non-violence," says Frank Meyer. "It is more convenient in the mobilization of force against constitutional order to bring it about that the first overt act of violence proceeds from others. It is a tactic and it is hypocrisy on a grand scale."

Martin Luther King even admitted that he used this tactic, as he was quoted in the "Saturday Review" of April 3, 1965 as his fourth plan: "1) Nonviolent demonstrators go into the streets to exercise their constitutional rights; 2) Racists resist by unleashing violence against them; 3) Americans demand federal intervention and legislation; 4) The Administration, under mass pressure, initiates measures of immediate intervention and remedial legislation."

Yet millions of Americans have been sold the belief that Dr. King was a man of peace and never advocated or condoned violence against his followers. It is no wonder that FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover in April of 1965 referred to King as "the most notorious liar in the country."

Many also believe that King's followers were carefully and rigorously trained in peaceful demonstration and disciplined nonviolence. An examination of one of King's followers and advisors reveals the following:

Bayard Rustin was his secretary and advisor. Yet he was a member of the Young Communist League, attended the 16th National Convention of the Communist Party and suggested that "more bloody Negro suffering should be encouraged so that squamous Negroes should be horrified into line."

It is truly a day of shame when a national holiday was declared by Congress for Dr. King.

Treaty should be ignored

Clearly the greatest perpetrators of the crime of genocide in history have been the communists. Why then have all communist-controlled nations ratified the Genocide Convention? And why the United States Senate should not ratify now?

The Genocide Treaty is capable of voiding virtually our entire constitutional system, of directly subjecting American citizens to international authority, and of exposing them to criminal complaints from foreign or domestic sources on allegations so spurious that even claims of having caused "mental anguish" will suffice.

Legislative proposals have been made from time to time that would have provided safeguard against interference from international authority under the Genocide Treaty. In 1964, Sen. Jesse Helms formally requested that two "understandings" be attached to the measure. They were: 1) That legislation needed to implement the treaty not conflict with the U.S. Constitution; 2) That the United States not accept the jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice in matters the U.S. determines are domestic in nature. State and Justice Department officials promptly opposed the Helms proposals, saying they were unnecessary and incompatible with the treaty's purpose.

Can we not, therefore, assume that the treaty's purpose includes A. removing Constitutional guaranteed rights from the American people, and B. subjecting Americans to the jurisdictions of the International Court of ### Justice?

A correct definition of genocide would include destruction of political groups. In the late 1940's the Soviet delegates objected to the term "political" so it was deleted. The communists always classify their victims as enemies of the state, meaning they are political criminals. As a result, communist slaughter of tens of millions — in some cases entire classes, races and religious groups — cannot be punished under the Genocide Treaty.

Since the world's only consistent perpetrators of genocide have nothing to fear from the Genocide Treaty, all communist governments ratify it. The United States should have nothing to do with such obvious fraud which is intended as a weapon to be used exclusively against free nations and free people.

As Sen. Steve Symms puts it: "... while we have not signed the treaty, we have not been guilty of genocide, and the perpetrators of genocide, nearly without exception, are signatories to the Conventions."

Truly there is nothing to be gained and much to be lost if the Genocide Treaty is ratified.

Downtown deserves support

A new year and I find myself looking forward to another year of downtown Twin Falls retail.

The position I hold in a downtown store affords me the opportunity to overview the "health" of our business community: the purpose of this letter is to initiate communication concerning the success of a central, viable downtown business community versus spread out suburbia.

Twenty-two years in Boise taught me a lot about "decaying the heart of your city." The welfare of the business, buildings and people were not considered important enough for citizens to work and initiate "life saving" funds and transactions to maintain their downtown.

Today, downtown Twin Falls faces very similar "health needs." A major corner property is an empty bank building; another is an almost renovated site and then there's the old utility store ... and the story goes on and on.

We, as a concerned community of store owners, consumers and just plain local folks should affirm this new year to support our downtown. Be proud of what's good with it.

Looking at what we do have from the fine arts headquaters, classic clothing stores, library, ethnic restaurants, courthouse, park — indicates a lot more options for growth in a centralized business community than in a spread out confused suburbia. The privileges of writing checks and not having to show your I.D. or being able to walk to our various daily social needs deserves acknowledgment.

Let's make a commitment this year to support our locally — owned downtown businesses and activities. Thank you.

One-armed advisors needed

"What I need is a one-armed economic advisor, so the SOB can only point in one direction!" — Harry Truman

I wrote to the Joint Committee on Taxation, a U.S. government agency and the Citizens for Tax Justice, to find out how we got into our present "economic crisis."

From those reports I find that Harry had it good. Very little budget problems. Of course Harry had a fair tax system, that taxed most of us according to our income. During the last four years we have seen the tax burden shift ... from the rich to the poor and middle class.

When Harry was running the country, the corporate share of taxes was 30.3 percent of the total tax burden. During the last four years this has gone down until taxes on corporate earnings account for only six percent of federal revenues, and is going down. The reason for this tax shift was "to get America going again."

The idea was: "Let the rich keep their money, and they will create jobs."

And they did ... only not in America. They took their tax savings and invested it in foreign plants and investments.

All this in the face of taxes equivalent to 54.3 percent of their foreign income.

Yes, one million new jobs were created in the U.S. last year ... and two million illegals came to take them.

Are there any one-armed advisors out there?

Offers apology for offense

To the public of Twin Falls, I'm writing you this letter to apologize for my wrong doing of you on October 28. I got drunk and was driving my car.

I did not kill or injure anyone, thank God for that, but I did hurt some people, by costing them money for the time I spent in court. I took up valuable time of judges, clerks, deputies and more. This money that I used could have been used in other ways, such as public aid to the needy.

I am in jail now and that is costing money which could be used to feed some needy family or use school equipment or so many other worthwhile things.

I for one am going to take care of my drinking problem through God and A.A. so myself and others like me can quit wasting lives and money that does not belong to us. I would like the public to forgive me. Thank you.

Commentary unnecessary

Dick Manning's scurrilous diatribe against Nancy Reagan in Wednesday's paper was unnecessary and unoriginal. Mrs. Reagan has already been ridiculed by more prestigious Time Magazine the first Lady received a long overdue fair and unbiased interview which Mr. Manning should read.

Surely Mr. Manning can find a subject of greater interest to Magic Valley readers for his future editorials.

Indians attacking Custer had best rifles of time

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
The Associated Press

BOSTON — An excavation of the Little Bighorn battlefield shows the Indians were far better armed than previously suspected and dispels some of the "Errol Flynn image" of an undisciplined Indian onslaught at Custer's Last Stand, an archaeologist said Thursday.

Last May and June, a team of archaeologists conducted the first major dig on the rolling area where Lt. Col. George Armstrong Custer and about 220 soldiers were wiped out by Indians on June 25, 1876.

Douglas D. Scott, who directed the project, said the bones, ammunition and other remnants of battle that they unearthed won't force a wholesale rewriting of history, but that it would lend some Custer buffs to alter their assumptions about the fight.

Many experts believed that the Indians who vastly outnumbered the soldiers were poorly armed with old, outdated firearms.

"We're certainly going to change some interpretations there," Scott said. "The Indians were much better armed than previously thought."

During the dig, 117 individual Indian weapons were found. They carried 25 different kinds of firearms, and 60 were the most modern lever-action rifles, such as Winchester and Henrys, Scott said.

Scott assumes that the research team found about one-third of the Indian weapons, meaning that the Indians carried at least 350 firearms into battle and probably many more.

Scott, who is supervisory archaeologist for the National Park Service Midwest Archaeological Center in Lincoln, Neb., outlined his findings at a meeting of the Society for Historical Archaeology.

He said that for the first time, the team located six positions where the Indians look cover in the grass and surrounded Custer's men during the 90-minute battle in southeast Montana.

"There has been an assumption that the Indians just rushed in there en masse, the old Errol Flynn image of war-battered savages defending their territory," he said.

Instead, it appears that the Indians cautiously crouched and picked off the soldiers, thinning their ranks before swarming in and killing all who remained.

"It certainly goes against the popular myth," he said.

The Battle of Little Bighorn has been a focus of controversy and speculation for more than a century. Custer was under orders to punish Indians who had left their reservations in search of food.

However, he badly underestimated the size of an Indian camp he saw at a distance when he arrived with a regiment of about 600 men. Custer divided his men into three columns and attacked. But it turned out that the camp contained between 1,500 and 4,000 warriors. Custer and all the men in his column were killed.

Scott said the location of soldiers' cartridge cases and other gear around their bodies gives some hint about how they fought in their dying moments.

"My feeling is, based on the artifact pattern, that the men must have fairly well held their positions," he said. "I suspect that when their position was untenable at one location and there was still fighting going on elsewhere, they did get back to their other comrades, but eventually they were overwhelmed."

Marble markers were placed on the battlefield some years after the fight to show where each soldier fell. Scott said the research shows that these markers are in general accurately positioned.

One enduring mystery from that time is what happened to the 28 men of Company E, whose bodies were not placed in a mass grave with the rest of the soldiers on Custer Hill.

Locating them was one goal of the research, but Scott said, "We didn't find them. We don't know why. We may have missed them. They may not be there. We're going back next spring to find out."

The researchers uncovered parts of 12 to 15 bodies. Some of the skulls were crushed. Some of the bodies had been decapitated or dismembered. Scott said such mutilation of the dead was common in Indian warfare.

The findings of the dig, Scott said, "will fill in a good number of details. We are not going to have the whole story. We certainly never can answer why Custer deployed his men the way he did."

New heaters slash pollutant levels

WASHINGTON (AP) — New multi-stage kerosene heaters on the market have achieved a "breakthrough" in safety, reducing certain hazardous air pollutants by from 50 percent to 90 percent, the Consumer Product Safety Commission reported Thursday.

"It's a dramatic advance; it's exactly what we had hoped for," Sandra Eberle of the commission's chemical hazards program said at a briefing.

Indoor air pollution stemming from unvented kerosene heaters has been a subject of considerable controversy, and government safety experts have warned not to use the heaters without opening a window or door for ventilation.

But commission staffer Warren Porter said Thursday some of the new heaters produce so little pollution they could even be used in a closed room, although that is still not recommended.

Creationism law goes out

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal judge on Thursday ruled unconstitutional a Louisiana law requiring that the theory of creationism be given equal time in public schools where the theory of evolution is taught.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Duplantier, issuing a summary judgment in a lawsuit against the so-called balanced treatment statute, said the law violated the separation of church and state. The law was passed in 1981, but was never enforced pending the outcome of court action against it.

Creationism holds that the biblical story of creation, in which God created man in his present form, is substantially true. The theory of evolution comes from man and other life developed from simpler forms of life.

The lawsuit had not yet come to trial, and Duplantier said there was no need to go through one.

Nicaraguan assails U.S. 'aggression'

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — Daniel Ortega, leader of the leftist Sandinista junta, was sworn in Thursday as president of Nicaragua and promptly denounced what he called U.S. aggression against his nation.

Ortega, 39, took the oath of office in the outdoor Plaza of the Revolution. The oath was read to him by Carlos Nunez, the president of the Nicaragua's new National Assembly.

President Fidel Castro of Cuba was among the 4,000 invited guests — mostly foreign dignitaries and government officials — who witnessed the simple ceremony, along the shores of Lake

Managua, at a huge amphitheater built for the occasion.

Castro's government has been a chief supporter of the Sandinista revolution, and Ortega embraced him warmly upon the Cuban's arrival at Managua's airport earlier in the day. Castro last visited Nicaragua in July 1980, the first anniversary of the revolution that brought the Sandinistas to power.

Before leaving the airport, Castro said he wanted to "send a fraternal and warm greeting to the Nicaraguan people."

At the inauguration, after Nunez helped Ortega put on the blue and white sash of office, the Nicaraguan president embraced the other eight "comandantes" who make up the directorate of the Sandinista National Liberation Front.

He also embraced his vice president, Sergio Ramirez, who was a member of the three-man junta that governed the country until Thursday but is not a member of the directorate.

The Sandinista directorate has wielded authority in Nicaragua for more than five years, and Ortega's inauguration is not likely to change that. Ortega's speech contained no surprises.

Thailand, Vietnam clear disputed border strip

BAN SANGAE, Thailand (AP) — Thailand and Vietnam agreed Thursday to establish a demilitarized zone along a stretch of the Thai-Cambodian frontier after the presence of Vietnamese troops on Thai territory nearly provoked a conflict, a Thai general said Thursday.

Maj. Gen. Salya Sriphen, commander of Thailand's eastern task force, told The Associated Press that a 22-yard-wide strip on each side of the border near Ampil "will be our DMZ."

Vietnamese officers agreed to the zone Thursday when they decided to pull their troops back from the border, ending a 24-hour confrontation with Thai forces, he said.

"Everything was put calmly and peacefully" to the Vietnamese, he said. Salya said the Vietnamese said they were misinformed as to the exact location of the border.

Once the border location was settled,

Salya said, the Vietnamese troops cleared out of an area 1.2 miles long, running north and south along an anti-tank ditch.

Eve Krejci is lifted out of rubble where she was buried

Apartment explosion leaves at least 6 dead

LONDON (AP) — A huge explosion, apparently caused by leaking gas, blew apart a luxury apartment building in southwest London on Thursday, burying the residents in tons of rubble.

The fire department said six people were known dead and four were unaccounted for.

Seven people were found alive in the wreckage, rescuers said.

The explosion occurred about 20 minutes after a resident of the building called the state-run Gas Board to report a leak. South Eastern Gas said a safety inspector had just reached the building as it exploded.

The blast touched off a fire that burned for two hours, a spokesman for the London Fire Brigades said.

Assistant Chief Ambulance officer

John Moss said six of those pulled out of the wreckage suffered only minor injuries.

They included newsboy Ian Connor, 15, who was delivering morning newspapers when the explosion occurred at Newnham House, part of the Manor Fields apartment complex on Putney Hill on the south bank of the River Thames.

But one 35-year-old woman, Eve Krejci, suffered a broken back and crushed legs in the collapse and was pinned under a pile of rubble for 6½ hours before rescuers were able to free her.

The Czechoslovakian-born Miss Krejci apparently plunged three floors from the top-story apartment which she shared with her sister Karen, 30, who is believed still to be buried in the wreckage.

Neo-Nazi case figures plead innocent to various charges

By SUZANNE HAPALA
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Three men and one woman arrested during FBI raids on suspected Neo-Nazi hideouts on Whidbey Island last month pleaded innocent Thursday to charges of harboring a fugitive.

Three of the four also pleaded innocent to various firearms charges.

During a 20-minute hearing held under tight security, U.S. Magistrate John Weinberg set a trial date of Feb. 25 for the four before U.S. District Court Judge Walter McGovern.

Pleading innocent were George Randolph Ducey, 34, Spokane; Ian Roy Stewart, 21, home town unknown; Robert Merkl, 50, and his wife Sharon Merkl, 47, formerly of the Oroville area. All were charged with conspiracy to harbor a fugitive and actually harboring a fugitive. All but Stewart were charged with firearms violations.

The four were arrested by the FBI during a 36-hour siege that climaxed in a shootout and fire in which Robert J. Mathews died. Mathews was accused in the shooting of an FBI agent and in a Seattle armored car robbery.

In Montana, Andrew Virgil Barnhill, 28, and Richard Harold Kemp, 22, had a court appearance scheduled Thursday to request that they be allowed to post bail.

The men, who had identification with several Montana addresses, were arrested Monday night in a Kallispell, Mont., bar while they were playing poker. They were held on charges stemming from the $3.6 million holdup of an armored truck in northern California.

FBI agents and Kallispell police also arrested Kemp's wife, Cindy Hankins, 20. She was charged Tuesday with harboring a federal fugitive — her husband — and was held under $50,000 bail.

Agents still are searching the Kallispell area for a third man, Bruce C. Pierce, 30, FBI agent Ernie Smith of Kallispell said. He said Pierce uses as many as nine aliases, several including "Roger" or "Rogers," and may have changed his appearance.

Authorities have linked the people in Washington and Montana with a group of white separatist Neo-Nazis accused in several robberies and shootings. They have been identified as members or former members of the Aryan Nations church based in Hayden Lake, Idaho.

In a related development, a Chicago television station on Wednesday reported that a former Texas Ku Klux Klan official once bragged of killing Denver talk show host Alan Berg last June.

NBC-owned WMAQ-TV in Chicago reported that FBI documents quote confidential informants as saying Louis Beam, who attended the annual World Aryan Congress last summer at Hayden Lake, appeared intoxicated when he discussed the issue. The FBI doesn't report that Beam once admitted shooting Berg, who was Jewish and an outspoken opponent of right-wing groups, 14 times, but said that he no longer had his .45-caliber pistol.

The station said it was unable to reach Beam for comment.

No one has been charged with Berg's death, but a gun believed to be the murder weapon was found in the Sandpoint, Idaho, home of Gary Yarbrough last October.

Yarbrough, Ducey and Barnhill have been members of the Church of Jesus Christ Christian (Aryan Nations) at Hayden Lake, host of the World Aryan Congress. Yarbrough is being held at Boise, Idaho, on charges arising from an incident in which FBI agents said they were fired upon before searching his home.

Richard Butler, head of Aryan Nations, did not disavow the use of violence in pursuit of his cause, the station reported. But he also told the station in an interview that he did not believe Beam was involved in Berg's death.

Kootenai County, Idaho, Under-Sheriff Larry Broadbent has said Beam was one of those who attended the annual Aryan Congress; a meeting of such diverse supremacist groups as the Illinois-based Christian Patriots Defense League, the Ku Klux Klan, survivalists groups, tax protesters and neo-Nazis.

Pacific fishery council keeps USSR out of whiting areas

PORTLAND (AP) — A request to allow Soviet fishermen to catch whiting off the West Coast this year has been rejected by the Pacific Fishery Management Council.

The council voted Wednesday to ask Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige to prohibit Soviet whiting fishing unless the Soviets agree to allow U.S. fishermen to catch about half the whiting processed in Soviet vessels offshore, a spokesman said.

"Whiting is a low-grade fish as far as the U.S. public is concerned, but it's sold on the world market to countries willing to buy it," said Henry Wendler, staff officer for the council. Because few U.S. processors will handle whiting, "the only way U.S. fishermen can get into it is to go the joint-venture route," he said.

Applications for Polish and Japanese whiting fishing were approved for U.S. waters off the coasts of California, Oregon and Washington.

The Soviets asked permission to catch 80,000 metric tons of whiting this year. The Japanese request did not specify a catch amount. Applicants from all three nations also have asked to fish in the North Pacific, north of the Washington-British Columbia border.

Fire-closed Utah mine operating

ORANGEVILLE, Utah (AP) — The Deer Creek Mine, closed when fire killed 27 miners in the adjacent Wilberg Mine Dec. 19, was reopened Thursday.

It is expected to reach full production within a few days, Emery Mining Co. officials said.

Emery spokesman Bob Henrie said in all, 399 miners were called back from a three-week furlough.

None of them were among the 244 Wilberg miners laid off last week, he said.

Company officials had said when they announced the Wilberg layoff that union contract provisions made it unlikely any of the Wilberg miners would soon find jobs at other central Utah coal mines operated by Emery.

Emery runs several coal properties for Utah Power & Light Co., which depends on the coal to produce electricity.

Henrie said limited production was expected to resume sometime Thursday at the Deer Creek. Full production could resume by week's end, he said.

"As soon as the necessary maintenance work and preparation work are completed, we expect the mine will be back into full production within the next few days," Henrie said.

He said while the Deer Creek reopening had not directly helped Wilberg miners left jobless by the disaster, it was "a critically important step toward the overall healing process" of Emery County's close-knit coal-mining community.

The Wilberg, where the bodies of the dead still remain, was sealed in an effort to put out the stubborn subterranean blaze.

Waste sites all possess shortcomings

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — All three top proposed sites to store the wastes of the nation's nuclear industry have technical problems, an official from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission says.

John Randall, an agency researcher, said Wednesday that the government could save itself "a lot of grief" by storing nuclear waste above ground for a few centuries until it decays and becomes much less dangerous.

However, the government's plan is to store the waste underground starting at about the turn of the century.

The nuclear waste issue is one of the major concerns of the 17th International Congress of the International Association of Hydrogeologists, which is meeting here to discuss the hydraulic properties of various rock formations.

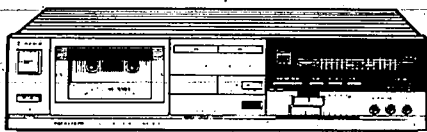

The top site candidates, tentatively chosen by the federal energy agency last month, are a bedded salt area near Amarillo, Tex.; a crystalline basalt formation near Richland, Wash.; and a consolidated volcanic rock site near Beatty, Nev., about 100 miles north of Las Vegas.

Cameras draw would-be TV stars

Commercial pulls variety to auditions

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The first shift started arriving a half-hour early. After all, if you live in Twin Falls, or Murtaugh or Bliss a chance to shine in the bright lights of television is not to be missed.

For some, the Thursday audition for two television spots offered the chance for a day or two out of the house and away from the kids. Others saw it strictly as a chance to pick up a few bucks.

And then for a few, it promised the glitz of Hollywood and the glimmer of a new and romantic life far from potato fields of Idaho.

Kay is one of the first to arrive. She chooses a seat front and center to wait her turn for a brief minute in front of the camera. She's had some experience, she confides. And that is going to give her an edge over the others gathering for the audition.

She's never been in front of a camera before, but once she was interviewed on the radio. And she's used to the spotlight, she says, singing regularly at a saloon in Stanley in the summer.

She even wears the clothes she performs in: a frilly, hot-pink, chiffon cocktail dress, matching striped-pink stockings, spike heels, and an extravagant rhinestone necklace and bracelet set.

"I think Hollywood would be super," she says and turns to watch the advertising executives set up a long light and small video camera.

"Hi, my name is Bill," says an executive for Doyle-McKenna and Associates in Reno. The firm is shooting two commercials next week for Cactus Pete's Casino in Jackpot, he explains.

"Our purpose is to get faces for television commercials," he tells the crowd of women. "We're not looking for a great deal of background. We want certain faces and expressions—someone that looks like they're having fun."

Shawna Fuller was one of many people who talked and smiled for the camera during auditions for a commercial

That's me, Kay pipes up. She's the first to go in front of the camera. Her face turns a bit pasty and her eyes dart around as she gives her name, her height and her phone number. Then Bill asks her to say a few words, and for 30 seconds she displays a big grin and talks about how much fun Jackpot is—and how much money she has lost there.

Then it's all over. Back at her seat, she says she thinks she did "pretty good. I gave them a great big smile; I was cracking them up."

"You have to throw them up some humor," she advises the other women.

Mary, one of the next women to audition, says she came because she needs the money. She is unemployed and has two children, with a third to arrive in weeks.

"My husband told me I was silly. He said it was a waste of time—that they didn't want pregnant women," she says. Then she adds defiantly, "I think it's going to be fun."

To her friend she's brought along for moral support, she says, "I think we should have had a drink before we came."

Her eyes turn a bit glassy in front of the camera and beads of sweat form on her forehead during her 30-second audition. She gives her name, clenching and unclenching her hands around the bottom of her maternity blouse. She answers a few more rote questions: Where can she be reached, when is she available. And then she is

Drug bust punted

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Because old information was used to obtain a search warrant, felony charges were dropped this week against two women arrested Nov. 14 after a large drug raid at a Twin Falls County residence.

Tammy Fay Webb, also known as Tammy Sartain, and Diane E. Nogler, both 22, had been charged with possessing marijuana with the intent to sell and possessing more than three ounces of marijuana.

The women and others were arrested after a search of Webb's residence outside of Twin Falls. In that search, more than five pounds of marijuana were seized. The drug raid was the result of a three-month, multi-agency investigation that also netted more drug arrests in Boise and at the State Penitentiary.

At a closed preliminary hearing Dec. 17, defense attorney Jeff Stoker had asked to exclude the evidence seized during the search because he claimed there was no probable cause for the warrant. Presiding Magistrate Judge Charles Brumback took the case under advisement on whether to bind the women over to district court for further prosecution.

In a written opinion filed Tuesday, Brumback stated he couldn't admit the evidence seized during the search because the information used to obtain the warrant was two months old.

Since the evidence was thrown out, he had to dismiss the charges against the women.

Information in a 27-page affidavit had been used as the basis of probable cause to obtain a search warrant, issued Nov. 14 by District Judge Daniel Hurlburt.

The information in the affidavit mentioned the activities and September conversations of a man and woman who allegedly "dealed" drugs, Brumback said. The affidavit also mentioned a county and city residence.

"There is nothing in the affidavit that would lead the court to believe that the county residence was the location for on-going drug activity," Brumback wrote.

The law enforcement officials acted in good faith, the judge added.

Yet, the information was two months old by the time the warrant was issued, Brumback said.

Jeff Hosking, a deputy Twin Falls County prosecutor who handled the case, was not available for comment.

A third person, originally charged with felony charges after the arrest, 32-year-old Lyle Harmon of Eden, had his charges reduced to misdemeanors.

Twin Falls board cancels meeting on fact-finding

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School Board canceled its Thursday meeting with teacher negotiators and has told the union it will go to fact-finding when the teachers' lawsuit against the district is settled.

The meeting was called by the board to discuss the 1985-86 contract and to discuss fact-finding hearings. Teachers told the board last week they would not discuss the 1985-86 contract until an agreement had been struck on the 1984-85 contract.

The teachers are seeking a declaratory judgment to require the district to use all $596,000 of the state funds allocated to the district under House Bill 475.

"We'd rather not enter into fact-finding until the lawsuit is resolved; Mr. Gates and the board feel that we shouldn't," board chairman Gene Champlin said Thursday evening.

Gates is the district's paid professional negotiator.

Union President Dick Chilcote said Thursday afternoon he tried to set dates for fact-finding, but appointed fact finder Eaton Conant told him Gates had said the board would not agree to fact-finding yet.

In a Jan. 9 letter to Chilcote, board chairman Gene Champlin said, "Since the Twin Falls Education Association has refused to continue bargaining for 1985-86, the Trustees see no reason to negotiate this Thursday, January 10, 1985. The Association should contact Mr. Gates regarding fact-finding."

Contacted in his Tacoma, Wash., office Thursday evening, Gates said "Since the lawsuit is going to be determinative, it's better to get that out of the way before you get on to fact-finding."

"What the courts decide, the people are going to live with," he said. Gates said the union's plan to use material from fact-finding to develop their case was another factor in the board's decision. "Why would the board help these people build a lawsuit against them?"

"Fact-finding can very well lead to a resolution of this issue; if we settled the suit could very well be dropped," Chilcote said.

Chilcote said the board has recently made it very difficult to get the contract dispute before the fact-finder. "It appears that the change in attitude has occurred since Mr. Gates has come on the scene."

Teachers are filing a second suit against the district today, alleging bad-faith bargaining.

Club 93 winds up as elder brother's

By ANNETTE CARY

TWIN FALLS — The Barton brothers, equal co-owners of the Barton Club 93, have decided to wind up the club since their parents' death in 1975, he can reconcile their differences.

JACKSON, the Barton brothers, have been made in Elko County District Court to appraise Barton's Club 93 casino, and the elder of the two Barton brothers has been named permanent receiver.

Judge Joseph McDaniels said he ordered the appraisal because he does not believe the Barton brothers, equal co-owners of the Barton Club 93, have decided to wind up the club since their parents' death in 1975, he can reconcile their differences.

The appraisal is "the starting point before anyone can buy it or one of them can buy out the other, if they can raise the money," McDaniels said.

The authorization for the appraisal and other orders were filed Thursday in the suit brought by

Public hearings set on consolidation

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Hansen, Kimberly and Murtaugh school boards have agreed to conduct public hearings on consolidation of the three districts in each of the three towns this winter.

Kimberly Superintendent Rich Bausher said Thursday the Kimberly meeting will be Jan. 23, and the Murtaugh meeting will be Feb. 11. The Hansen district has not yet set a date.

An executive committee made up of the three board chairmen recommended to the joint board meeting Wednesday night that the three boards choose a site for a cooperatively-built high school and hire a professional to prepare a presentation of the proposal to the community.

Both proposals were rejected. Instead, the joint boards decided the location of any new school buildings will be a subject at the public meetings.

The public meetings will include a presentation of the joint boards' findings followed by a question-and-answer session to be presided over by the school board chairman of the town where the meeting is held.

All three boards will be present at the meetings to answer questions.

Murtaugh board chairman Allen Cummins said the location of a consolidated high school will be the major issue on the minds of Murtaugh school patrons. The Murtaugh board submitted to the joint boards a position paper that outlined the positive and negative aspects of school consolidation.

Murtaugh superintendent Sam Saxon said the position paper was a collection of board member and patron viewpoints and was intended to guide debate.

The positive aspects of consolidation included broader and more advanced curriculum, a greater variety of interscholastic sports and extra curricular activities, expanded social opportunities with more potential friends, a greater variety of teachers to learn from and emulate and a $250,000 annual savings of state funds.

The negative aspects presented by the Murtaugh board include no cost savings to tax payers; no guaranteed increase in teacher pay; transportation of students to Kimberly or Hansen for junior high or high school presents logistical problems and would likely cost more; moving the high school from Murtaugh could create community support for the school; Murtaugh would lose control of the Murtaugh schools; and Kimberly and Hansen will get a better deal in the funding of the new district, because they are in debt, while Murtaugh is debt free.

Balancing the state budget will call for legislative juggling

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — While legislative leaders agree the 1985 lawmaking session will be shorter than those of recent years, they disagree on how to resolve the issue that will allow them to leave Boise: balancing the budget.

Speaker of the House Tom Stivers said, in an interview Thursday, that significant savings—including up to $18 million from the elimination of about 1,200 full-time state employees—can be realized, allowing lawmakers to balance the budget without raising taxes.

A joint committee from the two legislative chambers estimated Wednesday that $375.2 million in tax revenues will accrue to the state for the fiscal year that begins July 1. Stivers said savings from his proposed personnel reductions combined with savings from his proposed elimination of Lewis-Clark State College in Lewiston as a four-year college and the so-called privatization of package liquor sales within the state would all help to preclude a tax increase.

But even noted fiscal conservative Sen. Dave Little, co-chairman of the Legislature's budget writing committee, says he doesn't expect to see state lawmakers leave Boise without approving a tax increase.

"I don't think people want a tax increase but it will be tough," said Little, an Emmett, Republican who says he personally won't support a tax hike. "I'm not going to bet the farm we're not going to have a tax increase."

"The (Idaho) Historical Society has not been able to find any year in state government when (lawmakers) spent less money than they did the year before," Little said.

The seven-term veteran lawmaker adds that cutting some full-time employees could result in increased—not decreased—costs for the state.

Little said cutting auditors, timber cruisers or health and welfare workers employed with federal government matching funds, for example, would result in either increased costs or decreased revenues for the state.

But cutting the state's payroll is a viable option, he added, saying: "It all depends on how much government you want."

But Senate Minority Leader Kermit Kiebert expressed doubt that a $575 million budget will be a political reality and also questioned the viability of cutting 1,200 state employees' jobs. Kiebert called on Stivers to provide a list of the positions he would like to eliminate so that the merits of his proposal can be better researched.

Kiebert says he favors imposing quarterly collections of income tax payments on corporations to generate a one-time influx of money that would help pay for needed state services. He added that he believes Idahoans are paying a lower percentage of their income in tax now than they were five years ago.

Kiebert says he expects the budget battle can be resolved and the Legislature can adjourn within 70 days.

Stivers said he can't identify the specific 1,200 employee positions that can be cut but he said that through conversations with state government workers he is convinced there is room for significant cuts in employment. He says 60 days members of the budgeting committee would be better able to determine which positions are expendable.

Rep. Kitty Gurnsey, co-chairwoman of the budget-writing panel, estimated that eliminating 10 percent of the state employees that are paid from the general fund would result in savings of $10 million.

She said she does not expect lawmakers to settle at a $575 million budget.

House Minority Leader Jim Stoicheff says it will be "extremely difficult" for Republican leaders to earn the approval of their troops for a $575 million budget. "If the speaker can find 1,200 positions to cut, we can get out of town on $575 (million)." "The sooner it is determined what it is we want (for a bottom-line budget), the sooner we can get out," said the Sandpoint teacher.

Stoicheff estimates the session will last about 65 days.

Stivers says that barring unforeseen difficulties the Legislature should adjourn within 60 days.

Thieves take large air bag

TWIN FALLS—Thieves who took equipment from a pickup truck owned by Twin Falls Body and Paint of 173 S. Park Ave. apparently plan some heavy work. Officials of the automotive and wrecker service firm said a large air bag measuring 4 by 4 by 6 feet was removed from the back of the vehicle after it was used on Jan. 3.

Officials said the air bag is capable of supporting 40,000 pounds and is used to raise large trucks that are involved in accidents.

Value of the air bag is listed at $4,100.50 by the owning company. Officials said the air bag was in a company-owned pickup truck, which had been parked at various locations in Twin Falls before the air bag was discovered missing. It was not known where the vehicle was parked at the time of the theft.

The air bag is black and orange, according to the police report.

Attorney's office front shot up

TWIN FALLS—It hasn't been a good week for Twin Falls Attorney Fred Plankey.

Tuesday his vehicle skidded through an icy intersection and collided with another automobile. Thursday police received a report from Plankey that someone had apparently fired several shots into the front of his business building at 1132 Locust St.

The attorney said the incident apparently occurred after 5 p.m. Tuesday and before 8 a.m. Wednesday. Officials said there were four bullet holes in the front door, two of which went through. One of these entered the office area and struck a telephone. Two other holes were found in a pole near the front of the building.

Police said it appeared a .22 caliber gun was fired from the street toward the building. Damage was estimated at $250.

Fire ravages home near Buhl

BUHL—Damage estimated at $35,000 resulted from an early morning house fire one mile west of Buhl Thursday.

Fire Chief Mark Grimes of Buhl said the fire was reported at 3:38 a.m. at the Rex Fairchild home on U.S. Highway 30, west of Buhl. He said the Mutual Rural Fire Truck and rural firemen spent more than two hours battling the flames in the two-bedroom frame house.

"It had apparently been going for some time before it was discovered and the entire north end of the building was involved and it had burned through the roof when we arrived," Grimes said.

The Fairchild family was away visiting relatives when the fire broke out. Grimes said it apparently started from a leaking fuel-line to the oil heater.

Two plead innocent to charges

Kimberly schools close up for day because of flu virus

KIMBERLY—Kimberly schools will be closed today because of a flu epidemic.

Superintendent Rich Bausercher said about 133 high school students and 110 elementary students were absent and the district wants to avoid any further spread of the virus.

Bausercher said health department officials told him the virus is a "three-day siege." With today's closing and the weekend to take care of current victims, Bausercher said the district should whip the epidemic.

Athletic events will not be canceled. Bausercher said his philosophy is to cancel games and school ordinarily, but district tournaments are too soon to allow rescheduling.

Schools will re-open Monday, Bausercher said.

Court allows 2 pediatricians to remain in business in area

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—The Idaho Court of Appeals ruled Wednesday that two pediatricians who left the Twin Falls Clinic to start their own practice should be allowed to stay in business.

The clinic then asked Fifth District Court to enforce a restriction in the contract with the doctors that stated they couldn't practice within 25 miles of Twin Falls until two years after their resignations.

A temporary restraining order on the pediatricians was ordered Aug. 31, 1979. After a hearing Sept. 10, 1979, former District Judge Theron Ward removed the order and denied the clinic's request for an injunction to stop Miles and Geist from practicing medicine.

Ward ruled that the public good provided by the two pediatricians outweighed the restrictions of the contract.

As a result, the clinic appealed. Oral arguments on the case were heard last summer in Twin Falls.

In its ruling, the Court of Appeals agreed with the lower court.

"It has been shown in this case, by sufficient competent, though disputed, evidence that the welfare of the public in the Twin Falls area would have been seriously impaired by enjoining Geist and Miles from practicing their specialty," the appeals court ruled.

Miles said Thursday that he had no comment because he had not seen the opinion. Marlis Jackson, the administrator of the clinic, said he hadn't heard about the ruling and refused comment.

The Court of Appeals had based its decision on a general rule adopted by the Idaho Supreme Court, which held that restrictions such as those in the clinic contract were enforceable when reasonable and not in conflict with public policy or detrimental to the public interest.

The appeals court also found that without Miles and Geist, Twin Falls pediatricians at that time "in addition to the doctors played a significant role in developing and maintaining the neonatal intensive care unit at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center."

The hospital serves an area including more than 100,000 people and encompassing an area extending north beyond Sun Valley, south to northern Nevada, west to Gooding and east to the Burley-Rupert area.

The clinic had argued that the doctors could have set up a practice in Burley. If they had gone to Burley, however, the doctors still would have to go to the Magic Valley Regional Medical Center to treat the critically ill newborns, the court stated.

The attorneys for Geist and Miles had argued that the question became moot because the two-year time restriction already had passed.

The Court of Appeals stated, however, that because the issue of restrictive covenants would arise again and was of public interest, it decided to rule on the case.

Although the clinic had claimed it suffered financial damages when the doctors practiced in Twin Falls, it dropped its claim for damages.

Evans asks Army Corps to assist repairing damage to Oakley Dam

BOISE (AP)—With the clock running on needed repairs to Oakley Dam, Gov. John Evans has formally asked the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to lend a hand to ensure against a recurrence of last spring's flood threat.

"Unless these repairs are made immediately, the safety of persons and property below the dam will be threatened," Evans said Thursday in a letter to Col. Robert Williams at the Corps' Walla Walla, Wash., district headquarters.

Although the state has already agreed to assist in repairing to needed outlet tunnel beneath dam, Evans said the Corps' help is also needed.

Earlier this week, Ken Dunn, director of state resources, said that the work must be completed within 60 days to ensure that rising spring runoff in the reservoir is safely drained.

The tunnel, running about 80 feet below the top of the reservoir, was found to have been damaged when release of reservoir water last spring when an emergency 23-mile channel had to be constructed to siphon water from the dam into the Snake River to avert catastrophic flooding.

Cassia County engineers are still paying off debts from that flood prevention project while at the same time working on new plans to ensure the flood threat doesn't recur.

"Although there is no immediate danger from the eroded tunnel," Dunn said that should the problem worsen, he would not rule out the possibility of precautionary evacuations below the dam. Recent engineering surveys indicate between eight and 10 feet still separate the tunnel from the reservoir waters.

The repair project under way now is only temporary. Officials said permanent repairs to the tunnel will be made after this year's irrigation season has drawn down the reservoir level.

Gooding prison conversion eyed

BOISE (AP)—Conversion of the old state tuberculosis hospital in Gooding to a privately-run regional prison should be complete by next year, Correction Director Al Murphy says.

"That thing looks like a 'go' right now," Murphy told the Joint Finance Appropriations Committee Thursday.

The plan, being pushed for the past year, calls for Buckingham Security of Pennsylvania to buy the old hospital and outfit it as a city, pump $10 million into renovation and new construction and provide prison space for inmates from throughout the West who require protective custody for any number of reasons.

Murphy said the formal transfer of the facility to Buckingham Security is scheduled for next month with completion of the so-called "prison for pay" within a year to 18 months.

"To date, they have about 1,500 inmates committed," Murphy said. The new private prison is expected to have between 1,000 and 2,000 cells and employ 200 to 300 workers.

Murphy said the facility would be a boon to prison systems throughout the West because it will house protective custody inmates for only about $50 a day. By comparison, he said it costs some prison systems up to $90 a day to house those inmates.

Consolidation

The Murtaugh board also submitted a list of eight questions concerning the funding and boundaries of a consolidated district. Saxson and Cummings said Murtaugh residents are concerned the consolidated district will not approve improvements to the Murtaugh Elementary School which will be needed soon.

James L. Wright, chairman of the ad hoc consolidated study committee, said the board, issued for the consolidated district, should be the consolidated district.

Information to be given the public should not sell the idea, but should present the facts, Youree said. Youree said he thought the proposal he submitted to the public in May for a vote should contain an intended site for any new junior high or high schools, even if the current board understood... a new consolidated district board would not be bound by that intent.

Hansen Superintendent Dick Smith reported that officials from the State Department of Education will survey the area for the best site for a high school on Jan. 21.

The joint boards will consider the state's recommendations alongside the response of patrons at the public meetings.

Thomas asked Robert, after Robert withdrew $259,000 from the company's Twin Falls bank account and removed his signature from the company's credit line. That followed a dispute over a $10 million expansion of the casino Robert was planning.

When the suit was filed, club brothers agreed to let former club manager Guy since August, neither receiver. Keep later declined, so Thomas was named temporary receiver.

Robert never asked for the receivership, but requested that it not be given to his brother, McDaniels said. However, he said, the brother, has come up with a good reason why Thomas should not be named permanent receiver or suggested anyone else, McDaniels said.

Consequently, he named Thomas permanent receiver. Saxson and Cummings said Thomas must first produce a bond of $250,000, the same amount that Keep was asked to put up, McDaniels said.

Robert's motion that he be given his share of the club's profits was denied. "I can't force Tom to disburse a bonus when he needed that money for operation expenses," McDaniels said. A certified public accountant had confirmed that those funds would be needed to get the casino through its winter months, he said.

He will allow the funds to be disbursed, however, if Robert will establish a $500,000 line of credit for the company to borrow against.

Each brother has continued to receive a weekly draw from the

NAU edges ISU

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz. — Northern Arizona hit eight straight points in the closing 39 seconds to topple Idaho State 65-62 in the Big Sky Conference opening game for both teams Thursday night.

Trailing 60-57 with two minutes left, NAU picked up two field goals from top gun Andy Hurd and then clinching points from David Allen and Jeff Altman. It didn't matter that Idaho State hit a follow shot close enough to the buzzer that officials conferred before allowing it to stand.

Hurd, held to two points over the first 18 minutes of the game, then sparked NAU to half-closing flurries that decided the game. But his biggest buckets came just after ISU had opened that 60-57 advantage. He hit a jumper next time downcourt, and after Chris Blocker was called for an offensive foul, Hurd shoved NAU ahead to stay with 1:26 left.

"ISU Coach Wayne Ballard was referring to that offensive foul call along with a few others when he noted 'we got robbed. They were very questionable calls tonight. We had some crucial fouls called against us — I guess you expect those on the road — but I sure hurts when a game is decided on one or two calls right at the end.'"

Idaho State missed a shot on its next possession and NAU were the clock down to 36 seconds before Duane hit what proved to be the winning points.

The Bengals then had to turn to the Big Sky three-pointer in an effort to get back into the game but Nelson Peterson's three-point goal hit inside the cylinder and came back out.

"I thought Nelson's three pointer was good and we'd tied it up," Ballard said but NAU Coach Jay Arnold, despite the closeness of the shot, said "we felt Andy (Hurd) had a good challenge on Peterson and felt pretty comfortable with the situation."

The miss led to a pair of free throws by Jeff Altman at the 19-second mark. The winning seconds of both halves killed the Bengals. Twice they owned seven-point leads in the first half and with 3:02 remaining before intermission, Donn Holston's field goal gave them a 32-25 advantage.

But NAU then reeled off 12 straight points as Andre Spencer hit a three-point play, Hurd scored a crumpled off a steal and ISU's 16th turnover of the game set up a three-pointer for Hurd. Idaho State stayed behind for several minutes in the second half before jumping back on top by a point. The lead-seesawed as NAU hung close on the 20-point effort of Hurd, four over his average.

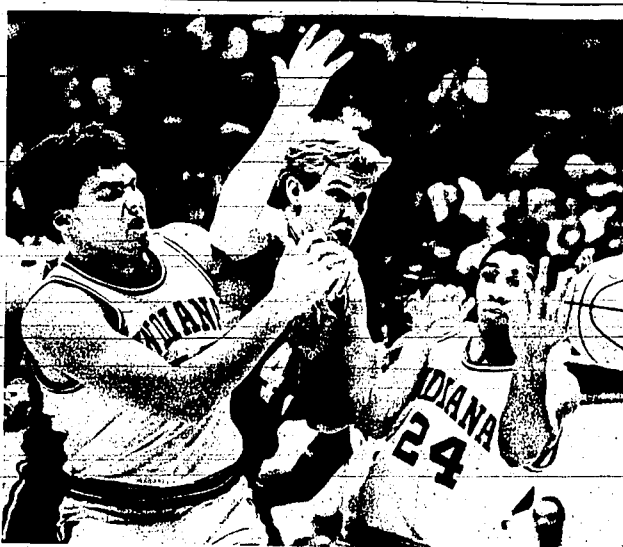

Ballard became a little philosophical later, noting "losing the first game or two in the first half of the season can break us but it sure hurt to lose this one. I felt we played defense well enough to win. One or two free throws would have done it for us tonight."

Arnold said he couldn't explain "the reason for our comebacks in the last two or three minutes of both halves. We ran the same plays we had been all night. They just happened to work for us."

He cited three players for extra praise. Andy didn't have his best game but he made the great plays right at the end and David Allen and Altman hit the points that were really critical for us in the closing minutes."

Both coaches admitted to switching defenses strategies.

"We expected a zone but they came out in a man defense," said Ballard, adding the Bengals used a zone because "we looked at film on the Arizona State game and it appeared changing from zone to man kinda confused them (NAU). We thought it might work here to change it around a bit also."

Cougars' Edwards, MSU's Arnold receive national coaching awards

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — LaVell Edwards, who was raised not far from Brigham Young University, was voted major-college Coach of the Year Thursday for leading the Cougars to their first national championship and called it "the single greatest honor that's ever happened to me in my profession."

Edwards and three other division winners — Dave Arnold of Montana State, Chan Gailey of Troy (Ala.) State and Bob Reade of Augustana (Ill.) — were honored Thursday night at the annual Kodak Coach of the Year Banquet that wound up the American Football Coaches Association's four-day convention.

Edwards called the national championship that capped BYU's 13-0 season "the most improbable thing I could have imagined since we haven't been on national network TV since 1979 and aren't a household word. But it seemed that when someone got ahead of us (in The Associated Press poll), they got zapped."

The 54-year-old Edwards said that when he was growing up in Orem, Utah, five miles from the Brigham Young campus, "BYU was never known as a football power by any stretch of the imagination. They weren't even good locally. The stadium held only 5,000 ... unless it was deer hunting season and then it was only a couple of hundred."

Looking back at his 13-year head coaching career, in which he turned BYU's program around by installing a sophisticated passing attack, Edwards noted that his first 18 seasons as a coach — eight at Granite High School in Salt Lake City and 10 as a BYU assistant — he only experienced four winning seasons.

"How that qualifies you for a head job, I don't know," he said. "Someone probably had some confidence in me that I didn't even have in myself. Either that, or it was a process of elimination (when he succeeded Tommy Hudspeth in 1972)."

After listening to critics poke fun at BYU's supposedly soft schedule for the past month, Edwards got in one last dig, saying:

"Thinking about what's happened the past few weeks with all the polls and surveys whether we deserved to be No. 1, after we were voted No. 1, I didn't get excited for a few days waiting to see whether we'd keep it. "Some enterprising soul will probably come up with a reason why I shouldn't keep this (the Coach of the Year award), but I'm going to savor it anyway."

LAVELL EDWARDS
"Single greatest honor"

Although his teams have led the nation four times in total offense and

DAVE ARNOLD
Led Montana St. to I-AA title

seven times in passing, Edwards recalled that he "ran the single-wing the first five years as a high school coach. Then we moved the blocking back behind the center and called him a quarterback, but we still didn't throw the ball."

"(Coach) Hal Mitchell hired me (at BYU in 1962) because I may have been the only Mormon in the world who knew anything about the single-wing."

The Coach of the Year voting was done by more than 2,400 AFCA members who attended the convention. Although the actual vote count was not disclosed, Edwards won out in the AFCA's University Division I-A over Joe Morrison of South Carolina, Jerry Claiborne of Kentucky, Leon Burnette of Purdue and Jim Weaver of Texas Christian, the other regional winners.

In University Division I-AA, Montana State's Arnold was the first write-in winner. The regional winners were Bob Griffin, Rhode Island; Dai Stacey, Richmond; Boots Donnelly, Middle Tennessee State; Dennis Raetz, Indiana State, and A.L. Williams, Louisiana Tech. Arnold led the Bobcats to a 12-2 record and the NCAA Division I-AA national championship, capping the biggest turnaround in college football history in his second year as head coach. The team finished 1-10 in 1983.

"To say going into this season that we had the national championship in the back of our minds is ludicrous," he said. "When I attended my first AFCA convention as a high school coach, my eyes bugged out and I said, 'What am I doing here?' I'm still saying that. I'm still pinching myself from the national championship and now I'm going to have to pinch myself some more."

Gailey won in College Division I, which includes Division II of the NCAA and Division I of the NAIA. Troy State nipped North Dakota State 18-17 to win the NCAA Division II playoffs and finished 12-1.

The other regional winners were Jeff Petrucci, California (Pa.); Phil Albert, Towson State; Don Morton, North Dakota State, and Don Read, Portland State.

Drugs USOC: 86 flunked tests before Games

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — Eighty-six U.S. athletes flunked drug tests before the 1984 Olympics when evidence of stimulants, anabolic steroids or testosterone were found in their bloodstreams, the U.S. Olympic Committee reported.

Ten of the athletes who failed were screened during the Olympic Trials. Two of them already had landed berths on the American team when their drug tests came back positive, USOC officials reported, and they were dropped.

The test results had been kept confidential until this week, when they were released by the USOC in Colorado Springs. Mike Moran, the committee's public relations spokesman, said final figures were not available until last week, and "this was the first time we got all the facts together."

F. Don Miller, USOC executive director, said the USOC's Drug Control Task Force was a success because no American athlete failed drug screening tests administered during the Winter and Summer Games.

A total of 2,254 U.S. athletes were tested by the task force before final U.S. team selections were made, and 86 tested positive. The USOC said 33 athletes tested positive for use of stimulants and another 53 for use of anabolic steroids or testosterone, also a steroid.

The USOC's drug control program was strengthened and testing was made mandatory after the 1983 Pan American Games in Caracas, Venezuela, when two U.S. athletes were disqualified for drug violations and several others left the games before they could be tested.

Miller said Dr. Manfred Donike of Cologne, West Germany, helped the USOC start the drug-testing program, and later, a laboratory at UCLA became the headquarters.

The task force held more than 100 screening sessions between November 1983 and July 1984, according to the USOC.

Some of the tests were done informally, meaning the athletes did not face penalties if evidence of drug use was found.

Miller, who will leave his USOC job in February, said he would recommend that all tests be done formally.

"This means that the testing will be done with the knowledge by the athlete that positive tests will result in penalties," Miller said. "Our athletes have had over a year of education and information in this process and an awareness of our firm position against the use of drugs."

Informal testing also gives athletes who are using drugs time to stop drug use before formal tests begin, Miller said a few athletes were able to escape detection as a result.

Miller also recommends that drug tests be administered to athletes periodically during the next four years, instead of before and during the Olympic trials.

"At no time will an athlete be subjected to formal testing without advance knowledge and consent," however, said Miller.

Cyclists allegedly also tried caffeine

DENVER (AP) — American cyclists under investigation for receiving controversial "blood doping" transfusions just hours before the Olympic events also experimented with caffeine to see if it could boost their performance, a top medical official of the U.S. Olympic Committee said Thursday.

Dr. Irving Dardik, head of the USOC's panel investigating the blood doping, said that "the same individuals also were looking at caffeine to improve performance."

Another doctor who says he witnessed U.S. cyclists undergoing blood-doping transfusions in a motel room claimed the procedure had no effect on how many medals the Olympians won.

In a news conference in Indianapolis, F. Don Miller, the executive director of the USOC, said the committee confirmed blood doping took place.

Miller said Dardik and three other physicians were investigating the incident, and soon would make a report to William E. Simon, the president of the USOC.

In a telephone interview, Dardik, who practices in Basking Ridge, N.J., said the International Olympic Committee has set limits on how much caffeine is allowable in an athlete's bloodstream.

The limits were set to allow for the consumption of coffee, tea, and soft drinks, but some members of the cycling team "were involved to see how much caffeine could be used, but not abused," he said.

Dardik said the caffeine experiments — involving "a handful" of athletes, their coaches and doctors — also were under investigation by the U.S. Cycling Federation.

"Some of the individuals stated that they felt this was an appropriate approach to see if they could improve performance, but not illegally," said Dardik. "But this, in the view of the Olympic Committee, is to come as close to cheating as you can and not get caught. That's not the intent of the Olympic program."

"The committee emphatically does not condone that view."

David Prouty, the executive director of the USCF, has said the results of the investigation will be presented to the 26-member USCF board of directors during its regular meeting Jan. 18-20 in Colorado Springs.

No details of the probe will be released until then, he said.

Blood doping does not violate International Olympic Committee rules. It involves the transfusion of red blood cells into an athlete's body, supposedly to help the athlete's performance by allowing the bloodstream to carry more oxygen.

Dr. Thomas B. Dickson Jr., an Allentown, Pa., orthopedic surgeon, reported several months after the Olympics that he had witnessed such transfusions. "What was done, in my opinion, was second rate and you don't treat your athletes that way."

Dickson said he witnessed the transfusions in a motel room, but didn't report it immediately because "there's no question that it would have become public knowledge and embarrassed the team, and probably would have sent the team home from the Olympics, and that was my decision to make at that time, and that's what I did."

"This is a medical technique and really should take place only in a proper environment, and certainly a motel room is not a proper environment," Dickson said. "There was no difference in the medals won by the U.S. cyclists."

Prep district realignment means Magic Valley anonymity

TWIN FALLS — While everyone has been busily trying to chart the reorganization and reclassification of Idaho's Class A-1 football, Magic Valley has become a nonentity in class A-1 basketball.

Although it isn't certain yet, there appears little doubt that Mountain Home, Twin Falls, Burley, Minico, Pocatello and Highland will be thrown into perhaps the most massive district this side of Texas or Alaska.

The proposed realignment would sprawl more than 200 miles in width and have absolutely no basis for competitive rivalry.

It should be emphasized that Burley hasn't been returned to A-1 yet and the basketball change hasn't been made. But there is little doubt that it will be. After all, it's all in the best interests of Metro football, isn't it?

The betting is that that it is only a formality for these things to come to pass. The A-1 enrollment figure will be reduced to 800. The A-1 districts for basketball will be the six northernmost A-1 schools, the six Metro schools, the whatever Elmore-to-Bannock counties is called, and Blackfoot, Idaho Falls, Rigby and Madison in another sextet. Each would then send two representatives to the state tournament each spring.

This will return Magic Valley's A-2 basketball to three and hard times again.

It also will mean a lot of political infighting among the six west-to-east A-1 schools. There will be a corresponding dread in spring-sports funds for Twin Falls, Minico and Burley because those three have consistently cut up the biggest district dividend pies in the state for years.

All the machinations will revolve around the siting of that district tournament. It is for sure that Mountain Home isn't going to get it often. It sits totally by itself.

Pocatello and Highland probably won't get it much either since Twin Falls, Minico and Burley could be counted on to vote pretty much in a bloc to hold the thing in Magic Valley. It has, for instance, the advantage of arguing central location with a corresponding drop in expenses.

Twin Falls High athletic director Al Glanders says the suggestion has been made that the new district contact the College of Southern Idaho on the matter of renting its facility as a central location and a neutral site.

This would perhaps displace the District 4 A-2 tournament, which has used CSI for several years, but Glanders said it might be possible for Twin Falls High to work out an accommodation for use of its gymnasium for the A-2s to preserve the neutral site aspects.

None of these associated with the reshuffling is particularly in favor of it. The Pocatello schools have long established their post-season relations with the Blackfoot and the A-1 schools of District 6. Mountain Home has battled with the other A-1 school of District 3. All feel a sense of loss, a sense of non-being that perhaps would be overcome in a few years if the alignments remained the same.

These are no doubt that alignment of A-1 schools in District 4 has ranked Idaho High School Activities Association executive secretary Dick Siple for a while now and the scheduling plight of the Boise school in football became the vehicle through which the attack could be launched.

So while it appears all the peripheral decisions that could be annexed have become a fait accompli, the original problem continues. Since the 800 enrollment figure now apparently is all but cast in stone, the eastern side of the state must come to grips with providing football scheduling for the Gem State Conference to include the new membership of Madison, Pocatello and Burley, which apparently will play only within their "playoff pods" and independent in the rest.

The Gem State Conference athletic directors met Wednesday to try to unravel the knotty problem of Madison having three home and away games but that was about as far as the teams in attendance were evened out at 5-5, something Twin Falls ostensibly attained last year by visiting Jerome two years in a row.

Consequently, none of them was willing to "give" to solve the problem. Rigby apparently will be another problem that must be solved. Those two schedules will be the primary objectives when the schools meet again Jan. 30 — which, coincidentally, is the same date the IHSSA is expected to adopt the new re-districting and re-classification policy.

Beer vendors may be absent from game

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — A Super Bowl without beer hawkers may seem like a Super Bowl without footballs. But, unless the state rescinds an earlier ruling, that's the way it will be for Super Bowl XIX Jan. 12 between the Miami Dolphins and San Francisco 49ers.

The ban on beer hawking, ordered two weeks ago by the California Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control, has drawn complaints from fans and from the public officials who helped bring the game to town. The ABC banned beer sales in the stands saying it is difficult for the hawkers to tell how old and how sober their customer is from the end of a row, according to the department's assistant director, Gordon Kelly.

Kopp said he can understand that reason, but said the narrow stairways and tunnels at Stanford Stadium could mean that a fan buying beer at a concession stand would miss large parts of the game.

Miami veteran Moore still seeking ring

MIAMI (AP) — Miami wide receiver Nat Moore often is incorrectly linked to the Dolphins' glory years of the early 1970s.

The club's all-time leading receiver with 435 catches for 6,624 yards and a team-record 62 touchdowns (including postseason play) still is looking for his first Super Bowl ring.

Moore, an 11-year veteran who has said this may be his last National Football League season, launched his pro career in 1974 — the season after Miami made its third straight Super Bowl appearance.

It would be nine years before he would finally get a shot at his first NFL title, but because he has been around so long it's often assumed that he was part of Miami victories in Super Bowls VII and VIII.

The Dolphins failed in Moore's first trip to the Super Bowl two years ago, losing to the Washington Redskins. That's why a triumph in Super Bowl XIX against the San Francisco 49ers

Jan. 20 would be especially satisfying to him.

"It's every player's dream to go to the Pro Bowl and play in the Super Bowl. I'm fortunate that I've been able to do both," he said. "But I've never been on a championship team, which is the ultimate goal of every player."

"Being on a championship team and being able to contribute to that championship would mean the world to me," he added. "It would certainly be a great way to end my career."

Whether he'll actually retire after the Super Bowl, however, is uncertain. Moore, with 43 catches for 573 yards and six touchdowns in 1984, enjoyed his best season since 1980. He's caught four passes for 45 yards in the playoffs, including a 6-yard TD reception against Pittsburgh in the American Conference title game.

"The way things have been going, I feel good," Moore said after the 45-28 victory over the Steelers. "The way Dan Marino is throwing the ball, it makes you want to stay around... I want to reserve the right to talk about it (retiring) once the season is over."

A third-round draft choice in 1974, Moore — a running back in college — started seven games as a rookie wide receiver. He became a full-time starter the following season.

Simpson shakes off illness, leads Hope by one

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — Tim Simpson, who ignored his doctor's advice to stay home in Atlanta and skip this event, shot a 6-under-par 66 and established a one-stroke lead Thursday in the second round of the $500,000 Bob Hope Classic, the kickoff tournament on the 10-month, PGA Tour.

Simpson, not yet a winter in eight full seasons of Tour activity, completed two rounds of this 5-day, 90-hole event in 133, 11 shots under par. He's made only one bogey in two days.

Simpson, bed-ridden for two days with influenza last week and still suffering from a chest cold, took the lead with a string of five birdies in seven holes over his back nine in the bright sunshine at Tamarisk.

"My doctor told me not to come out here. (He said) I'd just be wasting my time and frustrate myself. I guess I've got to show him different," Simpson said.

A single stroke off the pace at 134 were former Hope winner Craig Stadler, Doug Tewell, Mark O'Meara, Paul Azinger and Larry Wadkins.

Stadler slipped in for an eagle-3 on the eighth hole and played Indian Wells in '84. Tewell also shot a 68.

O'Meara, the No. 2 money-winner last year, and Wadkins, a former PGA champion, each had a 67 at Tamarisk. Azinger matched the best round of the tournament with an 8-under-par 64, also at Tamarisk.

The group at 135, only two shots back with 54 holes to play, included defending champion John Mahaffey, Canadian Dan Halldorson, Ron Streck and Larry Rinker.

McEnroe, Wilander triumph in Volvo tennis

NEW YORK (AP) — Top-seeded John McEnroe and Sweden's Mats Wilander, the No. 4 seed, fought back upset bids Thursday to move into the semifinals of the $400,000 Volvo Masters tennis championships at Madison Square Garden.

McEnroe, who verbally sparred with the crowd, photographers, linesmen and the umpire throughout the match, outlasted Sweden's Anders Jarryd 2-6, 6-4, 6-2. Earlier in the day, Wilander raised his game late in the match to defeat Johan Kriek 4-6, 3-6, 7-6.

Today's quarterfinal matches will pit Joakim Nystrom of Sweden against third-seeded Ivan Lendl of Czechoslovakia in the afternoon, and No. 2 seed Jimmy Connors against Elliot Teltscher in a night battle.

It was a victorious road, but a rocky one for McEnroe, who almost was hit in the head by his own racket.

It happened in the second game of the second set, a 12-point game that saw Jarryd break McEnroe's service and take a 2-0 lead.

After McEnroe hit a forehand cross-court that was wide, giving the 23-year-old Swede the ad point, McEnroe slammed his racket on a ball that was on the ground. It sounded as if the ball had been broken.

But, it wasn't the ball, and as McEnroe swung his racket on his next serve, the head of his racket sailed high in the air with the left-handers was left holding just the handle.

McCall man wins in biathlon

QUEBEC (AP) — Lyle Nelson of McCall won his third title this week in the U.S. Biathlon Championships, capturing the 10-kilometer sprint Biathlon in 22:20, three minutes ahead of his coach, Jon Engen of Norway, a resident of Bozeman, Mont.

Lise Melochie of North Bay, Ont., won the senior women's 5-kilometer event. She posted a combined skiing and shooting time of 23 minutes, 47 seconds.

Because Canadians are not eligible for American medals, the gold went to runner-up Karl Swenson of Bozeman, making her comeback after being kidnapped and then shot and wounded while training near her home last spring.

Gooden may be a holdout

NEW YORK (AP) — The agent for National League Rookie of the Year Dwight Gooden said he may keep the New York Mets pitcher out of spring training unless the club improves its contract offer, WABC-TV reported Thursday night.

Gooden earned $40,000 last season when he posted a 17-9 record and led the major leagues with 276 strikeouts. He reportedly sought a raise to $750,000 for his second season.

Gooden's agent, Jim Neander, told WABC he has had no contact with the club since Oct. 29 and would advise the 19-year-old pitcher not to report to the team's training camp unless some agreement is reached.

Hornor's wrist cast removed

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves third baseman Bob Hornor, who underwent surgery Dec. 18 for a broken right wrist, has had the cast removed.

"Everything couldn't be looking better," said Braves' General Manager John Mullen after talking with Hornor in Dallas, where the cast was removed by Dr. Peter Carter, who performed the operation.

Mullen said Hornor hopes to be swinging a bat within two to three months.

Elvis Celebration of 50th birthday evokes contrasting responses

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-news correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Elvis Presley lived a life of stark contrasts. He was a truck driver who strummed, sang and gyrated his way to the top of the music world. He was called "The King," yet was a slave to a lifestyle of avarice and a drug habit that killed him.

This week, 50 years after he was born, his memory still invokes a sharp division of opinion.

"Who gives a damn about him," growls a middle-aged man wandering the corridor of the Blue Lakes Mall when asked about King Presley. Then, before stalking off, he adds, "His kind teaches kids all the wrong things... it is really that neat to wiggle your butt and take drugs."

Yet, minutes later, 24-year-old Susan Hill of Spokane, Wash., gushes, "He's great! I wasn't even born when he started, but I've seen a lot of his movies and I love his records. Nobody else comes even close to him."

Another die-hard fan is Tony Manner, speech and drama instructor at the College of Southern Idaho. Along with fellow teacher Paul Edmonds, Hollifield, Manner has organized a private dance party in celebration of Presley's birthday.

"We're calling it 'Rock Until You Drop' — Happy 50th Birthday, Elvis!" says Manner, adding, "We're trying to discourage students from coming to this one and keep it for the ones who grew up with Elvis Presley music."

He explains that the plan is for party-goers to bring their own favorite Presley records to dance to. Manner, who also entertains occasionally at local watering holes, includes some Elvis songs in his repertoire and says that the audience loves it because it's simple rock and roll, and that Presley's music speaks for itself.

"I was greatly influenced by him," he points out. "I saw all his movies up through 'Blue Hawaii,' and I've got some original-press records worth $150 apiece."

Radio station planning show with six hours of Elvis songs

TWIN FALLS — In a special memorial to Elvis 50 years after his birth, KEZZ FM 95.7 in Twin Falls is airing six hours of Presley music and interviews Sunday from noon until 6 p.m.

Terry Tarlo of KEZZ says, "It basically covers his entire career with about 60 songs and interviews with people who knew him, including session players who toured with him. There isn't much narration involved, but is predominately either singing or talking — mostly actual audio."

"Elvis is still real popular," Tarlo says. "We've been running a daily program featuring him from 2 to 3 p.m. and typically we'll get people calling in after the show is over to tell us, 'That was great!' then ask if we can play a favorite song the next day."

A fan himself, Tarlo says listeners will recognize the various stages of Presley's career from his early days when his guitar was more than a stage prop to the later years when it merely hung around his neck for the first five or ten minutes of a show, then was set aside.

'Elvis the Pelvis' shook up the music world in the 1950s

"In the early days, when he was making records for Sun Recording, he was a real, real good rhythm and blues player," Tarlo says, referring to songs including "Don't Be Cruel," "Hound Dog" and "Jailhouse Rock."

"Those first records didn't become available again until he died, then everybody freaked out from coast to coast for that early stuff."

Tarlo notes that a one-hour show will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. as a build up the longer one scheduled for Sunday.

Pop stars top Grammy picks

Year's biggest sellers gather nominations

By YARDENA ARAR
The Associated Press

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Flamboyant pop stars Cyndi Lauper, Tina Turner and Prince each captured five Grammy nominations Thursday, but veteran behind-the-scenes record industry figure David Foster led the field with six.

Michael Jackson, who last year set a record by winning eight Grammys including seven for his album "Thriller," was nominated only twice this year: best group rhythm and blues vocal for his assist to brother Jermaine on "Tell Me I'm Not Dreamin'" and best video album for "Making Michael Jackson's Thriller."

Foster was promoted primarily for his work as producer and vocal and instrumental arranger of the Chicago hit, "Hard Habit to Break," which was nominated as the National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences' record of the year.

His other nominations were for vocal arrangements on the Kim Carnes-James Ingram-Kenny Rogers song "What About Me?" for co-writing the Air Supply song "I Can Wait Forever" on the "Ghostbusters" soundtrack, and as producer of the year.

Miss Lauper, whose Betty Boop speaking voice, punk getups and diverse hit songs propelled her to stardom last year, was nominated in all of the Big Four categories: album of the year for "She's So Unusual," record of the year for "Girls Just Want to Have Fun," song of the year for co-writing "Time After Time," and best new artist. "Girls Just Want to Have Fun" also earned a pop vocal nomination.

TINA TURNER
A big comeback year

PRINCE
Nominee in top categories

CYNDI LAUPER
Newcomer hits stardom

Miss Turner, whose shimmy-shake dancing and high-energy vocals were a mainstay of the Ike and Tina Turner Revue back in the late 1960s and early '70s, came back big last year with "Private Dancer," an album of the year nominee, and the single "What's Love Got To Do With It," which earned her nominations for record of the year and best female pop vocal.

Two other tracks, "Better Be Good To Me" and "Let's Stay Together," picked up female vocal nominations in the rock and rhythm & blues categories, respectively.

"What's Love Got To Do With It" also snagged a song of the year nomination for composers Graham Lytle and Terry Britten.

Prince, who put Minneapolis on the rock 'n' roll map with the hit film "Purple Rain," and his band The New Power Generation earned album of the year, best rock group performance, best film score recording and producer of the year nominations for the "Purple Rain" soundtrack. The press-shy 26-year-old superstar also received a best rhythm & blues song nomination for penning the Chaka Khan hit "I Feel For You."

Prince had five albums to his credit before "Purple Rain" and has been earning rave reviews since 1983's "Dirty Minds." He was nominated last week for 10 American Music Awards.

Foster, well-known in recording circles, nonetheless surprised many by earning the most nominations of any individual for the 27th annual awards program.

But he already has two Grammys — one for co-writing the 1979 Earth, Wind & Fire hit "After the Love Has Gone," and a second for producing the "Dreamgirls" cast album three years ago.

Bruce Springsteen's "Born in the USA" and Lionel Richie's "Can't Slow Down" rounded out the album of the year nominees. Springsteen's "Dancing in the Dark," and "The Heart of Rock & Roll" by Huey Lewis and the News completed the record of the year category.

The songwriters nominated for song of the year include Pat Collins for "Against All Odds"; Richie for "Hello"; Stevie Wonder for "I Just Called to Say I Love You"; Miss Lauper and Rob Hyman for "Time After Time"; and Lyle and Arritt for "What's Love Got To Do With It."

Besides Miss Lauper, best new artist candidates are Prince-protégé Sheila E, the British dance-rock group Frankie Goes to Hollywood, pop singer Corey Hart and The Judds, a country group.

Winners in 67 categories will be revealed Feb. 26. Only about 15 of the awards will be handed out on-camera during a CBS telecast from the Shrine Auditorium in Los Angeles, with the rest announced beforehand. Two-time Grammy winner Kenny Rogers will be the host.

Award winners are determined by balloting among more than 5,000 record academy members.

Idahoans' art to be offered in show

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Selected drawings, an invitational drawing exhibit featuring 24 works by three Idaho artists and one former Idahoan, will be displayed Jan. 15 through Feb. 21 at the Herrett Museum Art Gallery.

Organized in two parts, 12 drawings by W. Rock Newcomb and George Wray will be on display Jan. 15 to Jan. 31. Part two of Selected Drawings runs from Feb. 5 to Feb. 21 and features Boise artists John Killmaster and James Russell.

Newcomb grew up on a farm north of Rupert. He attended Idaho State University for a year before transferring to California State University, Fullerton, where he received his master of arts degree. Recently, Newcomb called Buxley home, but has since moved to California.

Newcomb's six drawings are graphite on illustration board. According to art curator Mike Green, Newcomb takes ordinary scenes and very methodically renders them to achieve a clean, flawless surface.

"These are varied works," Green says, referring to the ones on exhibit. "But mostly scenes from around the area. Newcomb uses a time-consuming process that allows for 0 erasures."

Wray earned his master of fine arts degree from the California School of Art and Crafts and is currently a professor of art at the University of Idaho. Green explains that Wray's works develop as working studies for his work in large neon sculpture and that most of them are done with graphite and charcoal with occasional hints of color.

Wray says art is, "something I've pursued all my life. My early work was more traditional type painting — water and oil. Now, I like portraying the dramatic effect of light, and light and shadow. There's a technical side to my interest. I try to hone down to the barest and most profound element."

Harpsichord recital to open Renaissance year

TWIN FALLS — A harpsichord recital by Stephen L. Moss launches the 1985 season for The Renaissance Academy of the Arts.

Season tickets are now on sale for the coming season, says academy Director Rick Strickland.

"We anticipate 40 plus concerts this year," Strickland says. "A season ticket costing $50 will allow a ticket holder to attend 20 performances or to use it in multiples at any one concert if he wishes to bring guests. We also have a half-season ticket for $30, which is good for 10 concerts," he adds.

Strickland says season tickets, as well as single tickets for the Moss performance, can be purchased at the door or by calling 733-0719 and leaving a message on the answering machine. Moss, a Twin Falls native, is busy completing a doctorate degree in harpsichord performance at Claremont Graduate School in Claremont, Calif. He has taught harpsichord and music theory at Scripps College in Claremont and currently is researching Ernestine Schumann-Heink's performance in the premiere of Richard Strauss' opera "Elektra."

A 1976 graduate of Twin Falls High School, he studied piano in Twin Falls with Teala Bellini and cello with Helen Colner. He has appeared with the Magic Valley Symphony as a member of the cello section and as a piano soloist, and with the Magic Valley Chamber Orchestra as a harpsichordist.

His Sunday performance at 2:30 p.m. will present music by Bull, Pichot, O'Andebert, Scarlatti and Bach.

Singers, dancers offer variety show

To benefit region's mental health causes

By LORAYNE O. SMITH
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Some 75 Magic Valley singers and dancers will participate in a "super variety show" to be presented at 8 p.m., Jan. 25 and 26, in the Fine Arts Auditorium at the College of Southern Idaho.

The extravaganza, which will benefit mental health causes in the eight-county Magic Valley area, will feature the Magichords, a 50-voice barbershop chorus directed by Mike Fisher of Kimberly; Sawtooth Cloggers; Supreme Rockers, a break dancing group; Star Gazers dancers and The Showboaters, which includes the CSI Jazz Band, directed by Larry Curtis, with Mary Walker, Marty Mead, Jay Fowles and Roger Vincent as singers.

Tickets are $5, with senior citizens and students admitted for $3. Patron tickets, which are $25, will provide a donor two seats, which will be reserved until 7:45 p.m.

Doris Youtz of Twin Falls, general chairman, said last year the show featuring most of these same groups drew such a crowd that some people had to be turned away so this year it was decided to present the performance two evenings.

She stressed that patron tickets will be held only until 7:45 p.m.

Proceeds from the event will be used for the hotline, operated by the Mental Health Association; the emergency medical fund and the Cosmopolitan Lodge, a living facility in Twin Falls for the chronically mentally ill.

All three of these projects serve persons throughout Magic Valley. Tom Driscoll, Twin Falls, and Jim LaGrone, Castelford, are serving as show coordinators.

Tickets are available from Mental Health Association members, all show performers and at Judi's Books, Sullivan's, Claude Brown Music, Music Center, Pennywise Hallmark, Ann's Hallmark and at CSI.

"The teacher says he especially likes how he came across those keesakes. He was in the fifth-grade and my brother was a year older," he says. "He'd bought the records but never listened to them; so he gave them to me. I'm sure he had no idea what they'd be worth someday."

"But even though Mannen expects a large turnout at his Elvis party and feels that Presley music is very popular, contrast is once again apparent in that the popularity is not translating into dollars for Magic Valley businesses.

"We haven't sold an Elvis Presley record in the last three or four days," says Doug Russell, assistant manager of Musicland in the Blue Laker Mall. "We're getting them in, but not selling any."

Those sentiments are echoed by both Calvin Wilcox of the Music Center in Twin Falls and Ryan Dowdy of Ryann's in Jerome.

"We're selling less Elvis Presley than usual — and usually is very little," says Wilcox. "Maybe most fans are content to remember him as they remember him, and they probably have all the Presley records they want."

The artist often uses neon tubing and shapes the glass into different configurations in conjunction with metal, plexiglass, wood and glass. More recently, he's been doing installation, the act of designing a work of art for a specific space.

"The ones I'll have on display at the Herrett Museum, though, are fairly older works — all drawings," he says, adding that they were composed from 1977 to 1983.

"They're kind of whimsical concerning the experience of dealing with glass. Glass is pretty fragile, a very frustrating thing. Some of the drawings are just about that."

Museum hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesdays; 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays through Fridays; and 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturdays. For further information, contact Mike Green at 733-9554, ext. 260 or 272.

Movie scene akin to tale by Vonnegut

By The Denver Post

"There is a touching scene in the new Mark Rydell film 'The River,' in which a deer wanders into the fiery chaos of a steel plant. The workers chase the terrified animal and when they have it surrounded, make a silent group decision. They escort the deer out of the building and turn it loose in the woods."

"It is a pretty story, and a familiar one, to devotees of author Kurt Vonnegut."

"Vonnegut wrote a short story 30 years ago titled 'Deer in the Works.' It was published in Esquire magazine and later reprinted in Vonnegut's short-story collection 'Welcome to the Monkey House.' It is essentially the same story as the one portrayed in 'The River,' which Vonnegut did not write."

The screenplay, is credited to Robert Dillon and Julian Barry. Vonnegut, reached at his Manhattan home, said that he noticed the similarity between the scene in the film and his story when he saw a clip from 'The River' on television.

"I haven't seen the whole movie. But when I saw the clip, I said to my wife, 'Hey, I wrote a story like that.'"

"All I know is that it really happened to me. I doubt it happened to the (filmmakers). I was a public relations guy for General Electric in (three New York) and a deer got into the plant," Vonnegut said.

"This is interesting. It's a true story," said Rydell, contacted in Washington, D.C.

Area galleries to feature Idaho artists

Friday, January 11, 1985 Times-News, Twin Falls, Idaho C-3

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls art galleries are featuring the works of Idaho artists this month.

Batiks by Bobbi Kelly of Mountain Home will be on display through January at Haveners Frames & Gallery, 242 N. Main, and oil paintings by Twin Falls artist Marilyn Young Hopkins will be exhibited Jan. 18 to Feb. 18 at The Red Door Gallery, 127 2nd St. W.

Hopkins, a native of Magic Valley, studied art throughout her school years in the area as well as at high school in Boise. A mother of five, she was employed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service for five years, then worked for the Forest Service another half decade.

"I always loved to paint," she says, "but raising five children put that career on the back burner." The artist notes that her employment with the two federal agencies gave her the opportunity to see a lot of beautiful Idaho country, as well as meet "a lot of friends who've taken photographs and given them to me to paint from."

Hopkins left the Forest Service a year and a half ago, and for the first time has been able to devote herself full time to painting. Many of her paintings, she points out, are taken from photos of the wilderness in Idaho.

"When painting from photos, you can leave out things or add," she says. "But, I usually add wildlife."

The artist says painting takes a lot of dedication and hard work, and that she attempts to paint as close to nature as possible.

The public is invited to meet Hopkins at a reception Jan. 18 from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. at The Red Door Gallery, or see her work Mondays through Fridays from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Kelly's batiks are done with melted wax and dye on unbleached muslin, then finished as wall hangings.

Holding a bachelor's degree from the University of Idaho, Kelly studied painting in Spain and completed graduate courses at Boise State University. She now teaches drawing, painting and graphic design at Mountain Home High School.

She designed the T-shirt logo for the Idaho Watercolor Society and has participated in several IWS shows. Recently, Kelly has had paintings accepted in juried exhibits in Montana and New Mexico, and participates in summer art shows throughout the Northwest.

"Some people consider batik a craft rather than an art form," she says, "but I've always believed, with Matisse, that 'creativity is what distinguishes art from craft,' and consider my batiks valid works of art and not mere craft products," she says.

Kelly's works can be viewed 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays through Fridays, or 9 a.m. to noon Saturdays.

Mammoth study of Matisse no ordinary book

By MARILYN AUGUST
The Associated Press

PARIS — "Matisse," a mammoth study on one of the 20th century's undisputed artistic giants, is no ordinary coffee table art book.

The 752-page work on Henri Matisse, by Pierre Schneider weighs more than 10 pounds and was 17 years in the making.

Laded with dozens of drawings and illustrations, and conversations with and about the artist never before published, experts agree the study is the most ambitious and extensive work ever written about the French artist.

It was released here and in the United States last month by Flammarion and Rizzoli.

"To lose oneself in the pages of this book is a rare adventure for the general reader and the mind," said Le Monde critic Michel Comot. "This is more than a book — it is a magical fairy-like machine to be contemplated and inhaled."

Said New York-based art historian and curator Max Pearlman: "The scholarly community has never seen this range of material on Matisse. It will be a major tool for scholars the world over."

Like Matisse (1869-1954) was a master of light and color. Yet his innovative brilliance was overshadowed throughout most of his long career by Pablo Picasso, who was 12 years his junior.

Schneider, a Harvard-educated, Belgian-born American art critic who has lived in France since the late 1940s, hopes his book will set the record straight and even the scales.

"It's true that Picasso was a superstar in a way that Matisse was not. But I think it's because his private life, as well as his work, lent itself to drama," Schneider said in an interview at his Paris home.

There was nothing dramatic about Matisse's life. He was a seemingly unassuming individual who spent 14 hours a day in his studio. The drama was in his use of color to create form, not his life," he said.

The book's main theme is duality. Citing a well-known statement by Matisse — "I always wanted to do two things at the same time" — Schneider delves into the artist's private correspondence and his relations with family members and friends to document Matisse's lifelong commitment to duality which, Schneider argues, is underscored by his need for unity.

A striking example, Schneider writes, is "The Conversation" (1917), a seemingly simple portrait in five bold colors of a middle-class French couple chatting before an open window.

The painting, which appears on the cover of the French edition (the English-language cover features "Dance"), is a characteristic play of oppositions: male-female, lines-curves, indoor-outdoor and standing-sitting. But the whole, Schneider writes, is a moving, harmonious vision of human intimacy in a suburban setting.

There also is stark contrast between Matisse, the anxiety-ridden insomniac who would write four letters in a single night to the same person, and Matisse the man once described by a Life magazine journalist as "a perfectly normal gentleman."

"It's true that Matisse once said, 'art should be devoid of troubling or depressing subject matter,' that 'it should be something like a good armchair,'" Schneider said. "That quote has been taken out of context and used disparagingly, but it confirms what I call Matisse's 'religion du bonheur' — his work treated happiness religiously. None of Matisse's inner turmoil found its way into his art."

Schneider's own approach to Matisse is nothing short of audacious. Some critics have accused him of "going deliriously overboard" in some passages, and they questioned his use of literary references from James Joyce to Emily Dickinson.

"I am a writer first, a journalist and critic second," Schneider said, referring to his past as an avant-

Musical tribute for Monet readied

TWIN FALLS — A tribute to French artist Claude Monet will be the theme for the January meeting of the Twin Falls Music Club.

A study of Monet's life, his garden, and his home will be presented by Claire Gibbs Monday at 1 p.m. at the Community Christian Church. The presentation will be followed by several French musical compositions.

To enhance the study of Monet, large prints of three of the artist's well-known paintings, "The Sunflowers," "Bench at St. Adresse," and "Water Lilies," will be on display, on loan from the Twin Falls Public Library.

Musical compositions to be performed will be duets for two violins, "Dream of the French Shepherdess" by Labitte, and "Minuet Petite" by Peir; performed by violinists Claire Gibbs and Patra Swanson.

Two violin solos by Gibbs will be "This Meditation" by Massenet and "Allegro Vivace" by Seville. Gibbs will be accompanied by Harriet Denton on the piano.

Denton has been a local piano teacher—and instrumental—and vocal accompanist for many years.

Swanson is a freshman at the College of Southern Idaho, studying education and applied music.

Gibbs is a violin teacher and frequent adjudicator throughout the state for musical competitions. She plays first chair violin with the Magic Valley Symphony and was a member of the specially selected states symphony which performed at the Kennedy Center several years ago.

Following the program, French pastries will be served. The public is invited and supervised child care will be provided.

Winter doesn't slow Sun Valley Center

SUN VALLEY — Scorning seasonal hibernation, the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities has slated a profusion of activities for their Winter Arts Schedule and Winterscene in Elkhorn.

The Sun Valley Center Gallery, Fourth and Leadville in Ketchum, offers an exhibition of work by Idaho artists organized by the Smithsonian Jan. 17 to Feb. 11, and Works of Substance, an exhibition of paper works Feb. 14 to March 26.

Also, its fine ceramics facility is available for rental to community ceramists from January to May and periodic workshops will be held at a community studio in the M & N Building at the corner of First Avenue and Seventh Street.

"Johnny Appleseed," a musical theatre production by the Missoula Children's Theatre along with 50 local performers ranging in age from kindergarten through high school seniors, will be enacted at the Wood River High School Auditorium March 2 at 4 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Following on March 15 at 8 p.m. is "A Streetcar Named Potato" by performing artists Harry Kipper and Karen Finley. Old City Hall in Ketchum is the site for this combination of slapstick, music, drama and puppetry.

For those seeking personal growth, nine community arts classes will be held. Calligraphy, the art of beautiful lettering for signs, cards and invitations, is being taught by Margie Caldwell Jan. 15 to Feb. 19.

Handbuilt and wheel thrown pottery is on tap during a ceramics class Jan. 14 to Feb. 6, and basic drawing by Debbie Edgars is slated for Jan. 14 to Feb. 18.

Ron Carlson, writer of three novels and numerous short stories, is giving instructions emphasizing characterization, dialogue, plot and image during a fiction writing class running Feb. 5 to 14, and life drawing, a course providing an opportunity for artists to draw from life models, will be instructed by Gail Williams Jan. 16 to Feb. 20.

First to third grade students can learn basic acting and singing skills from Margaret Tyler Jan. 14 to Feb. 5 during musical theatre workshops for young people. Jan. 15 to Feb. 8 is slated for grades fourth to sixth.

Debbie Edgars is teaching oils Jan. 15 to Feb. 19, and will use the photograph as the primary source for a painting.

Two classes for practical application include basic woodworking techniques by Stan Jacobs, Jan. 15 to Feb. 19, and design and construction of solid wood furniture Jan. 17 to Feb. 21.

Winterscene at Elkhorn, a series of foreign and outdoor films, personal appearances and musical events, might appeal more to those wishing to view instead of do. Currently under way, this chain of entertainment will run until March 7 in the Elkhorn Horizon Room.

Want to catch a flick? Reviews offer a guide

To assist parents in evaluating movies for family viewing, the Los Angeles Times staff has compiled and indicates areas of content (theme, language, sex, violence) that may be inappropriate for the very young or impressionable. MPAA or The Times' ratings are in parentheses.

BEVERLY HILLS COP (R) Language and violence. The plot may be formula, the intent may be narrow, but still this film sparkles with intelligence. It's definitely Eddie Murphy's movie, one that sets off his best special skills and appeal. Murphy's Axel Foley, a streetwise and murderously glib Detroit cop, comes up against a wealthy Beverly Hills art dealer (Steven Berkati) whose gallery is stocked with trendy abstractions and who also does crate-loads of cocaine dealing on the side. Director Martin Brest handles everything with a light touch, wit and charm.

CITY HEAT (PG) Much violence, much bloodshed, unsuitable for small children. Burt Reynolds and Clint Eastwood play off each other delightfully in their long-awaited teaming, but this silly period gangster comedy is done in by a wretched excess of violence. With Jane Alexander, Madeline Kahn.

JOHNNY DANGEROUSLY (PG-13) Blunt language, raunchy humor. Should read "Disastrously." Yet another uninspired, scattershot spoof of old gangster movies that mows down lots of good people, but Michael Keaton (in the title role) is nimble enough to come across as a survivor. With Joe Piscopo, Marilu Henner, Maureen Stapleton, Peter Boyle.

THE KARATE KID (PG) A few strong words; exceptional family entertainment. Irresistible entertainment, beautifully directed by John G. Avildsen from Robert Mark Kamen's outstanding script, about a high school boy (Ralph Macchio) taught not only how to defend himself but also spiritual values, by a whimsical handyman — Noriyuki (Pat Morita) in the role of a lifetime.

MICKI & MAUDE (PG-13) Comedy centering on bigamy unsuitable for preteens. A delightful retelling of "10's" director Blake Edwards and actor Dudley Moore in a sparkling, superbly constructed farce about a bigamist; however, so romantic a male fantasy it is that it's sure to turn off some women. Ann Reinking is Micki and Amy Irving is Maude; both are delicious.

STARMAN (PG) Adult situations. Director John Carpenter (the remake of "The Thing") has turned out to be a romantic success. With the exceptional performances of Jeff Bridges, Karen Allen and Charles Martin Smith and Carpenter's pure, unadorned spaces, this straight-ahead simple story of a starman come gently to Earth to observe becomes a chance for us to see ourselves at our most beautiful. At the heart of all this nice richness is a playful, growing love story. A sort of space-to-Earth "It Happened One Night." Allen and Bridges seem to work perfectly on each other's wavelength; their acting styles are in the same slightly low-key, faintly comic naturalism.

2010 (PG) Director Peter Hyams' film floats as smoothly as one of its great space voyagers. The message it contains is heartfelt — cooperation between nations, more exactly, the United States and the Soviet Union. But though it holds you for every moment you're in it, the film floats straight out of memory when you've left. It has suspense but no mysteries. Its characters are utterly unambiguous. But who could dislike a film that gives us so approachable a future?

Pair's faiths don't fit marriage plans

DEAR ABBY: Please print this for people who want to marry outside their religion, because that is our situation and we don't know which way to turn.

We are both 21 and in college. I was raised a Roman Catholic and the girl I want to marry was raised a Jew. We love each other and never once have argued about religion. However, her parents aren't too happy about her marrying a Catholic, and my parents aren't exactly thrilled with my marrying a Jew.

I have no desire to turn Jewish, and my fiancée doesn't want to turn Catholic. We want to be married in either a church or a synagogue, but no priest will marry us, and neither will a rabbi. Who will, then?

If we have children, we plan to expose them to both religions and let them decide what they want to be.

Any ideas?

IN LOVE IN BOSTON
DEAR IN LOVE: If there's a rabbi or a Roman Catholic priest who will perform a mixed marriage—in a synagogue or church, I don't know where he (or she) is.

You may have to settle for a civil ceremony, but if you want a religious ceremony, try the Unitarian Church.

DEAR ABBY: In response to "Bernie Sabar in Scottsdale": When we were traveling in Israel (in 1970), our tour guide pointed out a cattle farm and said, "These cows are called 'Goldsteins' instead of 'Holsteins'—they say 'Noo' instead of 'Moo'."

—ESTHER IN MANHATTAN

DEAR ESTHER: I think we've milked this item dry—and that's no bull.

DEAR ABBY: As a horticulturist, may I add my opinion on whether a tomato is a fruit or a vegetable? Botanically speaking, a fruit is considered to be a mature ovary of a flower, which is what a tomato is. It contains seeds just as all fruits do (except parthenocarpic fruits, which are bred to be seedless). There are many types of fruit. For example, an apple is a pome fruit and a peach is a drupe fruit. A tomato is actually a berry!

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

However, commonly speaking, a tomato is treated as a vegetable because people do not eat them like other fruits. Many other vegetables that are botanically classified as fruits are actually vegetables.

Cucumber, squash, pumpkin, pepper and eggplant are also fruits, but are treated as vegetables. On the other hand, there are some vegetables that are not considered fruits. For example: Brussels sprouts are buds, lettuce and cabbage are leaves, and broccoli and cauliflower are flowers! It matters little when you call them as long as you're happy when you eat them.

—F. PARIVAR, DEPARTMENT OF HORTICULTURE, UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS
DEAR F. PARIVAR: I give up. Pass the crow.

DEAR ABBY: Regarding "Dog-Tired in Pennsylvania": I also had the problem of dogs coming on my property to do their dirty business. Then I heard about a solution that, really works.

Sprinkle mothballs (or crystals) around the shrubbery and bushes the dogs frequent. Do this every three or four weeks and you'll have no problem. Dogs hate this odor. It will also discourage rabbits and chipmunks.

—DOG-TIRED IN MICHIGAN

Patients' improper use of drugs a big problem

By DON COLBURN
The Washington Post

Twenty-four centuries ago, Hippocrates counseled physicians "keep aware of the fact that patients often lie when they state that they have taken certain medicines."

In today's medical practice, that time-honored warning would come under the heading of "non-compliance"—patients not taking their medicine as prescribed, whether through forgetfulness, refusal, misunderstanding or simple error.

"Noncompliance," says Dr. R. Brian Haynes, associate professor of medicine at McMaster University in Canada, "is simply one of the prices to be paid for free will."

It's a high price. The Food and Drug Administration estimates that between 30 and 50 percent of patients deviate far enough from their prescribed drug treatment to hinder its effectiveness or jeopardize their health. More than 1.5 billion prescriptions, about half of them refills, were dispensed by retail pharmacies last year. That means at least 225 million instances of danger due to non-compliance.

A patient who suddenly stops taking medicine—to control a high blood pressure, for example, or a child with chronic asthma who fails to take a mid-day dose of pills may suddenly have trouble breathing and require emergency care.

Noncompliance can be measured in several ways: blood tests, pill counts, patient interviews, public surveys—none of which is totally reliable. But the outlines of the problem have been suggested in numerous studies:

• One in five patients failed to fill their initial prescription, reported a survey last year of more than 1,000 patients 45 and older by the American Association of Retired Persons.

• Nearly half the households surveyed by CBS-TV reported borrowing prescription medicines from friends or using previously prescribed drugs for a similar illness.

• More than half of the patients in a University of Rochester survey did not understand the instructions given for taking their medication.

• More than 10 percent of admissions to a large teaching hospital were due at least partly to failure to follow a medication schedule.

• About 94 percent of persons with high blood pressure comply with their drug therapy for a year; one study showed, but the figure dropped to 65 percent after two years and 34 percent after three.

Other studies show compliance rates as low as 55 percent for tuberculosis patients, 48 percent for insulin-dependent diabetics, 46 percent for patients with asthma and 42 percent for patients prescribed eyeglasses.

for glucoma, Dr. Craig Burrell, vice president of the drug company Sandoz Inc., told a recent National Pharmaceutical Council symposium here.

"These findings may reflect badly on patients," Burrell said, "but they may also be an indictment of those prescribing the medication."

Some take issue with the term "compliance" itself, blame on the patient. The FDA's education, research and labeling branch. He suggests "adherence" as a more neutral term.

Dr. C. Everett Koop, U.S. surgeon general, puts much of the blame on "the attitude we ourselves have in medicine—an attitude which is reflected in drug marketing and dispensing."

Doctors, Koop told the pharmaceutical symposium, tend to view taking a pill or a capsule as "the patient's most significant activity, around which all other activities of the day will revolve."

"But that isn't the way people live and organize their lives," said Koop, who urged doctors to put medicine into the context of a full day of work and shopping and going to school and visiting friends, whatever.

"That's a challenge, because non-compliance is really a cluster of problems. Not showing up for a doctor's appointment is a form of non-compliance. So is not taking a pill, taking too many pills, straying from a diet, not bucking a safety belt. It can be harmless (missing a daily vitamin) or life-threatening (missing an insulin injection or confusing the dose of a potent cardiac drug)."

Noncompliance has spawned new devices: equipped with buzzers, beepers, flashing lights, digital readouts or other features to measure exact doses and remind patients when to take their medicines. The U.S. Patent and Trademark Office has issued 160 patents for pill dispensers; with countless others pending approval.

But a problem as common as people ignoring other people's good advice (one expert traces noncompliance back to the Garden of Eden) resists easy solution.

"I haven't seen any magic bullets," FDA's Morris said.

Here are some questions you should ask your doctor, nurse or pharmacist whenever you are given a prescription, advises the National Council on Patient Information and Education:

• What is the name of the drug, and what is it supposed to do?

• How often do I take it—and for how long?

• What foods, drinks, other medicines or activities should I avoid while taking this drug?

• Are there any side effects, and what do I do if they occur?

• Is there any written information available about the drug?

NOTICE OF INTENT TO AMEND RULES

Pursuant to Section 67-4706, Idaho Code, the Division of Economic and Community Affairs announces the intention to amend the rules of IDAPA 15.11.2.2 the Idaho Community Development Block Grant Program. The program is authorized by the Federal Community Development Act of 1974 as amended (Public Law 93-35) and the Housing and Urban Development Subtitle 2 CFR, Part 570, Rules 24.1 through 24.10.

The Idaho Community Development Block Grant rules described the process for determining the distribution of federal community development funds allocated to Idaho by the Department of Housing and Urban Development. The rules define eligible applicants and eligible activities, provide for three types of grants, the criteria for reviewing and ranking applications, the application format, and the application process. The amended rules establish a senior citizen facility set-aside, provide for revolving loan funds to be business specific and requires all projects to meet the national objectives of 51% benefit to low and moderate income persons or prevention, or elimination of slum and blight.

A copy of the rules may be obtained by writing to the address listed below. Public comment concerning the rules may be delivered or mailed to David O. Portin, Administrator, Room 108, Capitol Building, Boise, Idaho, 83726, not later than January 17, 1985. The amended rules will be published in the Idaho State Register.
