House passes right-to-work

Bill's foes in Senate not sure they can defeat the measure

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — Senate Democrats say they hope to slow down the right-to-work bill's quick progress through the Idaho Legislature — but have no realistic hope of defeating the measure the first time through.

The Idaho House on Friday voted 64-20 for a right-to-work bill, one that would make Idaho the 21st state to outlaw compulsory union membership or payment of dues as a condition of employment.

It's the fourth time since 1977 that the House has passed a right-to-work bill. The Senate's gone along twice before. Once Gov. John Evans vetoed the bill and the other time it died in a House-Senate conference committee.

But this time, Republicans have the votes to override a veto by Evans.

Sen. Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewiston, assistant minority leader, acknowledged it's unlikely Senate Democrats, numbered 22-14, can defeat the bill.

"There are some soft votes, but not nearly enough to beat the bill," he said.

But he still holds out hope that Democrats can change at least one GOP vote, enough to sustain the governor's expected veto.

"We are working in that direction. It's no cinch at all," he said.

But a group which has worked for the last eight years to get a right-to-work bill in Idaho, claimed before the House vote that Idaho was a "sure winner" to enact the law.

"If necessary we have sufficient commitments to override a veto and enact the nation's 21st right-to-work law," said Reed Larson, president of the National Right-to-Work Committee, Springfield, Va.

Terry McKnight, co-chairman of the Idaho Freedom To Work Committee, said he was pleased with Friday's vote and confident the Senate also would pass the bill.

"But we're not sitting back and expecting them to go with us," McKnight said. "The trench war continues."

McKnight said plans to conduct more extensive public hearings in the Senate than took place on the House side should be limited.

College standard adopted

By MARILYN HAUK ESSEX
The Associated Press

BOISE — The state Board of Education approved college admission standards Friday that will make requirements uniform for Idaho residents and out-of-state applicants.

The standards also will require students to have completed certain subject requirements for admission to the state's four-year colleges. Board members voted Friday to make those admission standards effective in 1989 rather than 1988 so students who are now in their first year of high school wouldn't be affected.

This marks the first time that Idaho has had admission standards to its four-year colleges and universities.

In other business, board members named four finalists for president of Idaho State University. They are Marvin D. Johnson, administrative vice president for student affairs at the University of New Mexico; Dr. Albert A. Watrel, president of Dickinson State College in North Dakota; Michael P. Ricardis, director of evaluation for New Jersey's education department; and Richard F. Bowen, professor of political science at the University of South Dakota.

Board public information officer Kim Phillips said board members will interview the candidates in early February.

Demos demonstrate freedom to freeload

Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Things may look grim for the Democrat Party effort to derail the right-to-work bill that appears to be headed for enactment, but that won't stop minority party members in the Senate from symbolically appealing on the issue.

Starting next week, Democrats will withhold their lunch money from the Senate lunch room fund, says Sen. John Peavey of Carey, chairman of the Senate Democratic Caucus.

"We're going to keep eating there," Peavey says. "We're going to show that freeloaders get a free lunch. We're just trying to point out what a raw deal right to work is," he says.

Peavey says the Senate lunch room provides a good analogy to the right-to-work issue.

Opponents of the bill contend that allowing compulsory unionism as a result of union elections is a violation of majority rule.

And enacting legislation banning compulsory union membership will allow some individuals to reap the fruits of collective bargaining without paying the costs, they add.

"If you don't now vote to operate the Senate lunch room by Democratic majority rule, some of us grumble about the way it's run. But its majority rule," Peavey says.

But no more.

"It's not a position we relish but it's a good way to make the case," he says.

Asked whether the Democratic Caucus might more appropriately be called the Freedom to Lunch Committee, Peavey said, "We're stabs or freeloader," would be more accurate.

Badly outnumbered Demos not inclined to 'bail out' GOP

BOISE — What's a party to do when its share of legislative seats drops from 31 percent to 25 percent and it loses the last significant lever it had to affect the lawmaking process?

"Divide," answers Rep. Dick Adams of Grangeville, chairman of the House Democratic Caucus, "then you're only outnumbered two to one."

A more serious proposal for Democratic strategy comes from Sen. Vern Lannen of Pinehurst. "You quit battling them (majority party Republicans) out," the outspoken logger from Idaho's Silver Valley suggests.

Lannen says Democratic legislators are annually asked to form a coalition with moderate Republicans to enact tax increases and budgets that are politically acceptable and capable of passage.

But, he says, the tax increases fail to achieve the fundamental tax reforms that Democrats generally endorse as a means to achieve equity in the tax system. And the budgets fail to adequately provide for education in Idaho, he says.

But then, in return for their votes in the coalition, Lannen says, Democrats are accused at election time of being the big taxpayers and the big spenders in state government.

Lannen says Democrats should refuse to join the traditional coalition and should instead force Republicans to resolve the issues on their own.

"I won't vote for another tax increase... I'm not going to be a party to putting a band aid on again," he says.

"Because we've saved them (the Republicans), things aren't so bad. I'd rather see two years of damn tough times," says Lannen, adding that if Idahoans were to receive the type of government that the majority of Republicans support, Idahoans would support fewer Republicans.

Rep. Tim Tucker, D-Porthill, assistant minority leader, says Lannen's proposed strategy has received considerable attention among House Democrats, who hold claim to only one of every five seats in the lower chamber.

"We're going to be going against all our natural instincts," says Tucker of Democrat voting habits this session. Tucker says Democrats generally support progressive, service-oriented state agencies operating at reasonable levels.

He predicts that House Democrats will "hold fast" and Fireworks, music launch inaugural

By LEE BYRD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — A four-day festival marking President Reagan's new lease on the White House began Friday with the thunder of fireworks, the strains of "God Bless America," and the glare of the strongest security force ever assembled for a public event in the capital.

"An inaugural 'prelude pageant' on the Ellipse, between the White House and the Washington Monument, drew cheers from President Reagan, Vice President George Bush, their wives and a chilled crowd estimated at 16,000 by Park Police. It included a narrative of presidential history by actor Fess Parker and culminated in a fireworks display that shook the city.

Later, the Bushes were the honored guests at the first of two pre-inaugural galas produced by singer Frank Sinatra in the city's new convention center. Reagan gets a similar show Saturday night.

The opener on the Ellipse featured martial music aplenty from several military bands, along with swing tunes like "Take the A-Train" and "In the Mood" from trumpeter Ray Anthony and his ensemble. The Regents tapped their feet within a heated, bulletproof booth along the stage, then cheered with frothing onlookers when the dazzling aerial display was fired off to "Stars and Stripes Forever." In the end, all sang "God Bless America."

Earlier, the capital shook off another dusting of snow after digging out from a midweek blanket about four inches deep. The forecast called for a drop in temperatures, possibly to the mid-teens, by Sunday, the day the president officially begins his second term, with the same outlook for his address, parade and balls on Monday.

Reagan was described by his spokesman, Larry Speakes, as "excited, enthusiastic and challenged," as the four-day celebration began. Ahead lay more than a dozen official events, supplanted by scores of private parties arranged by fan and foe alike.

All hotels were booked solid, with an estimated 50,000 people pouring in from out of town for the various events.

'Tough patriots' named to talks team

Three nominees still face confirmation by Senate

By BARRY SCHWEID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan named three "tough-minded patriots" Friday to take charge of U.S. negotiations with the Soviet Union on offensive nuclear weapons and missile defense systems.

Max M. Kampelman, a conservative Democrat, was named to head the American delegation and to also conduct the discussion of Reagan's "Star Wars" program and Soviet defense systems.

Former Sen. John Tower, a Texas Republican who championed U.S. weapons development as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, will negotiate for reductions in long-range bombers, missiles and submarines. Tower did not seek re-election in November.

The third member of the team, which Secretary of State George P. Shultz described as "pro-American and pro-our allies," is Maynard W. Giltman. Currently the U.S. representative in the stalled talks on ground troops in Central Europe, he will direct the bargaining on intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

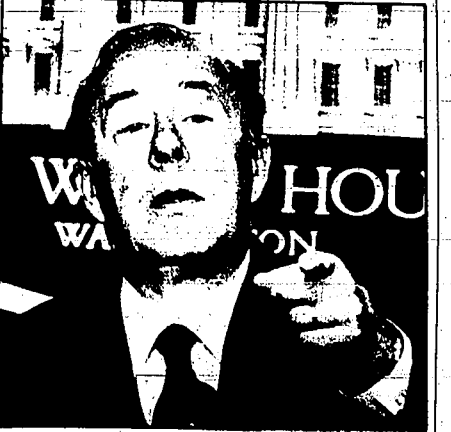

Mark Helmske, press secretary to Sen. Richard Lugar, R-Ind., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said the nominations would be sent to the Senate for confirmation.

Administration officials disclosed earlier Friday that U.S. and Soviet officials have held discussions on a date and a location for the negotiation.

Richard R. Burt, the assistant secretary of state for European affairs, called in Victor F. Isakov, the minister counselor at the Soviet Embassy, on Wednesday to propose the talks be held promptly in Geneva, Switzerland, an official told The Associated Press.

Giltman participated in past European missile talks, he and the others

Sharon has another good day in court

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Israeli Defense Minister Ariel Sharon won a second round in his $50 million libel suit against Time Inc. Friday when jurors found Time's reports that he discussed revenge against Palestinians with Lebanese Christian leaders was false.

The jurors, who earlier determined that Time defamed Sharon, then began considering the third issue to determine if Sharon was libeled: whether Time acted with malice. The federal jury deliberated for two hours before retiring about 3:30 p.m. MST without a further verdict. It was to resume deliberations this morning.

Marshals kept the packed courtroom locked while the jury's verdict on the second issue — whether the report was false — was announced and the judge polled the panel.

The jurors had deliberated two days since deciding the first major issue, that Time defamed Sharon in reporting that he had "discussed" revenge with Lebanese Phalangists at a meeting the day after President-elect Bashir Gemayel, a Phalangist leader, was assassinated in September 1982. The massacre of hundreds of Palestinians by Lebanese Christian militiamen at two refugee camps in Israeli-controlled west Beirut began the following day.

To award Sharon a libel verdict, the jury still must find Time guilty of malice — that it published the report either knowing it was false or with reckless disregard of whether it was true or false. Sharon also must show damage to his reputation.

New Caledonians defy ban

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (AP) — Thousands of people who want New Caledonia to remain a French territory defied a government ban and marched through downtown Noumea Saturday as French President Francois Mitterrand arrived for a 12-hour visit.

Mitterrand was flown from the airport by helicopter to the building of the High Commission, the headquarters of the French government on this South Pacific island that has been torn by clashes between groups for and against independence.

The marchers, including women and children, carried French flags as they marched along the streets beside buildings that had the French tricolor flying from virtually every window.

Chilled toddler recovering

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — A 3-year-old girl who was not breathing and had no heartbeat when found in a snowbank made "a remarkable recovery" and was alert and oriented with an improving appetite Friday, her doctor said.

Megan Birmingham spent at least four hours in temperatures in the 20s before being found early Thursday, without shoes and wearing only a dress, pullover shirt and tights. She apparently had been put out of her mother's car.

A Johnson County sheriff's deputy discovered the girl about 6 a.m. on the southern edge of Olathe, a Kansas City suburb, about two hours after police found her mother, Jane Birmingham, 31, sitting in her car.

"We feel that the longer it is drug out, the greater chance there'll be that harm will come to someone," he said, adding that he also had been threatened by a former union colleague.

Rep. Kathleen "Kitty" Gurnsey, R-Boise, said getting rid of the right-to-work backers would be reason enough to defeat the bill. She said the out-of-state group started with modest contributions, but in the legislative elections, it gave up to $15,000 to individual candidates.

The Senate could take up House Bill 2 as early as next week, but Democrats have vowed an effort to stall the not approve coalition-sponsored legislation and budgets without assurances that the bills they want will get through.

"If we're going to vote for a tax increase, we're going to have to be assured that many of the budget items we believe in will be in when the dust clears," Tucker says.

"We've got to let the people in Idaho know who's really responsible for these budgets," he says.

Such a position may be fine for a block of 17 votes among 67 House Republicans but in the Senate, where Democrats still claim one of every three seats, the strategy espoused by Lamm and endorsed — at least in part by Tucker — is still considered extreme.

"That's pretty much an individual's thought process," says Sen. Bill Lee, chairman of the Senate Democratic Caucus.

"I expect that when push comes to shove, we'll do the best job for the state of Idaho," he adds. However, Peavey says the proposed strategy might become necessary if relations between the parties were to break down irreparably.

"As the long-term economic health of the state deteriorates, maybe we ought to show the people of the state the Republican Party for what it is," Peavey says of the whole social infrastructure in Id. for what he idntifies as a "let's not say revolution but a shift in the way we do things." Peavey acknowledges that the loss in the November elections of enough Senate Democrats to uphold Democratic Gov. John Evans' veto was seriously impaired the minority party's ability to bargain with the Republicans on some issues.

But the Democrats appear to be looking for creative ways to make their protests heard without resorting to the politics of an compromises suggested by Lamm.

"I'm not ready to resort to that just yet," Sen. Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewiston, the Senate's assistant minority leader. Sweeney says it's too early to tell how the Senate's freshman Republicans will vote.

"Each (new) group dictates a different type of strategy....we still are obligated to do what's right," he says.

are relatively inexperienced in bargaining over nuclear weapons. But Shultz defended the appointments as "an absolutely terrific slate" composed of "tough-minded patriots."

Shultz said Tower, for instance, "has spent his Senate career on matters dealing with defense and security and knows the subject inside-out."

Tower was asked later at the State Department if the harsh line he had taken against the Soviets while he was in the Senate would hurt the negotiations.

"I don't think so," he replied. "They've said some pretty rough things about us, and I think we understand each other."

Tower acknowledged, meanwhile, that he had "a great deal of homework to do" and that he had "some limitations."

In sharp contrast was northern Idaho.

Blind panel seeks increase

BOISE (AP) — Urging lawmakers to overlook the past turbulent year, the acting administrator of the Idaho Commission for the Blind requested 27.5 percent more state funding for his agency.

"If any of you would have predicted what this last year would do to the Commission for the Blind and its services, we would not have believed it," Howard Barton Jr. told the Legislature's Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee on Friday.

Barton asked the budget-setting panel to give the troubled commission a chance to rebuild trust in its capability to deliver services to the blind.

The agency's budget request from the state for fiscal 1986 is $84,700. That's up from $630,900 for the current budget year, and nearly $192,000 more than the commission expects to use during fiscal 1985. About one-third of the agency's total operations are financed through the state general fund, Barton said.

Water users back power pact

BOISE (AP) — A resolution supporting the proposed Swan Falls water-rights agreement has been endorsed by more than 90 percent of Idaho Water Users Association members.

The only votes cast against the measure on Thursday came from representatives of the Wilder and Nampa-Meridian Irrigation districts. Members of the districts oppose a provision calling for adjudication of water rights in the Snake River and all of its tributaries.

Charles Yost, past president of the association and a director of the Wilder district, said the court process of determining the legal standing of water rights could cost water users in the Boise Valley $500,000.

Death row inmates to appeal

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) — Attorneys for two Death Row inmates facing execution next month have filed court papers saying they will appeal their clients' cases.

Attorney Mark Jackson, representing Thomas Gibson, said Thursday the appeal notice in First District Court means the Idaho Supreme Court will automatically postpone the scheduled executions of Gibson and Donald Paradis.

Paradis' lawyer, John Luster, said he was going to ask the court for a stay of execution in a separate petition.

Judge Gary Harman signed the death warrants for both convicts last week, setting Gibson's execution for Feb. 7 and Paradis' for the following day.

They were convicted of killing 18-year-old Kimberly Ann Palmer of Spokane in a remote ravine near Post Falls, Idaho in 1980.

The attorneys are appealing Judge Dar Cogswell's denial of post-conviction relief petitions.

Jackson has challenged the Idaho court's jurisdiction in the case. Affidavits from two forensic experts disagree with expert testimony at the trial placing the location of the woman's death in Idaho, he maintained.

Ex-sheriff receives jail term

IDAHO FALLS (AP) — Former Custer County Sheriff Ken Bowers, convicted last month of kidnapping and punching a jail inmate, has been ordered to serve 10 days in jail.

The ex-sheriff was sentenced Friday by Magistrate Judge William Black in 7th District Court.

The judge and prosecutor agreed Bowers "got carried away" last Feb. 28 when he kicked Warren Strohl of Clayton in the face.

Bowers will begin serving time Feb. 1 at the Clark County Jail in Dubois. Black said he would not sentence him to time in Custer or Bonneville county jails because he was concerned with Bowers' personal safety.

Sivak's appeals to delay death

BOISE (AP) — Death Row inmate Lacey Sivak is scheduled to be executed on Jan. 31 for the slaying of a gas station attendant, but the condemned man's attorney is preparing appeals that will delay the execution automatically.

Fourth District Judge Robert Newhouse issued a death warrant for Sivak on Thursday, as required by state laws regulating how much time can pass between the issuance of warrants. The newest death warrant is the third issued against Sivak.

"Of course we're going to file appeals," attorney David Nevlin said. "There's not going to be any execution."

Sivak, 25, was convicted in the April 1981 shooting and stabbing death of Dixie Wilson at the Garden City gas station where she worked.

Ms. Wilson, a 39-year-old Boise mother of three, was shot five times and stabbed 20 times during an armed robbery.

Sivak's accomplice, Randall Bainbridge, also was convicted of first-degree murder, but was sentenced to life in prison.

Idaho State Penitentiary Warden Arvon Arave said Sivak was moved into isolation Thursday.

IEA report: Idaho needs LCSC

LEWISTON (AP) — Idaho's public education system and educators need Lewis-Clark State College, according to the president of the Idaho Education Association for Region II.

IEA Region II President Shirley Ringo released a 24-page report Friday which records the contributions of LCSC to teachers and schools in Northern Idaho. The report will be made available to the Idaho Legislature, Ringo said.

Ringo said other studies have been done on the financial impact of LCSC, but said her report, which was completed this week, emphasizes teacher-student issues.

House panel OKs wage law repealer

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — When unions helped defeat a bill last year restricting Idaho's "prevailing wage" law, they lost their last chance at a compromise, says Rep. Dean Haugenson, R-Coeur d'Alene.

"The prevailing mood of the Legislature now favors repeal of this law," Haugenson said Friday, as the House State Affairs Committee voted "to pass" endorsement of his bill to repeal Idaho's Little Davis-Bacon Act.

Under normal procedures, the bill will come up for a final House vote next week. It's an action the Republican majority in the Legislature has tried to push through for years with no success.

The long-standing law requires public works contractors to pay "prevailing wages" as determined by federal surveys, on construction jobs.

Haugenson said that worked many years ago to protect local jobs from out-of-state contractors using cheap labor. Now it works just the opposite, he said.

He said eliminating the wage requirement, and allowing contractors to pay labor on a competitive basis, would cut at least 15 to 20 percent from the cost of public buildings. He cited an Oregon State University study estimating the savings at up to 34 percent in rural areas.

"The state doesn't need to set wages in the construction industry," he said. The state contracts with printing firms, but doesn't attempt to tell printing companies what to pay printers, he said.

"What we wind up with is extremely high wages for a privileged few at the expense of the taxpayers," he said.

"It doesn't make any sense that a millionaire contractor can pay $10, $12 or $14 per hour for workers, and it's $20 or $25 per hour if they work for the taxpayers," he said.

There was little Democratic debate in opposition. Rep. James Stolcheff, D-Sandpoint, the minority floor leader, urged members to support "compromise" legislation from last year.

It would allow "prevailing wage" to be determined at the county level, not through regional federal surveys.

Haugenson's bill, Stolcheff said, would allow large contractors to underbid local firms by paying its workers less.

"Under the present law, the cheaters have been getting the bids," said Haugenson, by ignoring the "prevailing wage" requirements.

Haugenson and Rep. Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, both said their research on the Little Davis-Bacon Act disclosed that Idaho has no law requiring the payment of overtime if a workers puts in more than eight hours per day. Federal laws require it for most private companies, they said.

"That's something that should be addressed later," said Winchester.

Bill to raise drinking age introduced in House

BOISE (AP) — A bill boosting Idaho's legal drinking age from 19 to 21 has cleared the first hurdle in the Legislature.

With only a couple minutes discussion Friday, the House State Affairs Committee voted overwhelmingly to print and introduce Rep. Linden Bateman's measure to raise the legal drinking age as of Oct. 1, 1986.

The committee debated the bill earlier in the week, but stalled action when some members questioned whether the measure would ban persons ages 19 and 20 from working in grocery stores, taverns or restaurants serving beer and wine.

But Bateman told members Friday the measure would allow workers ages 19 and 20 to continue working in such establishments, although they couldn't legally consume alcohol until reaching age 21.

Bateman told the committee earlier that since Congress has passed a law requiring states to raise the legal drinking age to 21, Idaho faces the loss of $4.5 million in federal highway funding next year and $10 million the year after that if it doesn't conform.

Rep. Wayne Sutton, R-Midvale, made the motion to print and introduce the measure. "I feel it will translate into less fatalities on the highways," said Sutton.

"There might be some dollar loss involved but that will be more than offset by the savings if we cut accidents and fatalities," he said.

Rep. Lydia Justice Edwards, R-Donnelly, said she didn't like that particular measure because it bans persons under the age of 21 from owning an establishment where alcohol is sold. That could prevent someone from even inheriting a family-owned bar or restaurant, she said.

"I'm not sure it would be wise to quar- have persons under age 21 owning such establishments," said Bateman, referred back to State Affairs for R-Idaho Falls. "The temptations tion later."

Lawmakers rework formula to pay for adjudication claims on Snake

BOISE (AP) — Negotiators of the Snake River water rights agreement are taking a second look at a formula proposed to pay for the process of adjudicating claims to water on the river.

Dick Gardner, agricultural economist with the state Division of Financial Management, said complaints from legislators that the plan discriminates against the city of Idaho Falls are being taken into account in reworking the formula.

Rep. Stan Hawkins, R-Ucon, objected during a House Resources and Conservation Committee meeting Thursday to the way the cost of the 10-year, $27.4 million project would be distributed under proposed legislation.

Idaho Falls, which operates a series of hydroelectric plants on the Snake River, would be responsible for 10 percent of the share of the adjudication process designated for payment by utilities. But Hawkins said the city's generators produce only 2 percent of the electricity in the river basin.

The city's low-head bulb turbine generators are used to extract power from a relatively languid, flat section of the river near Idaho Falls. More water must pass through the city's turbines to produce power than is needed in swifter, steeper sections of the river, Gardner said.

Hawkins said the formula in its current state is "misconceived," and promised to recommend changes unless the sponsors amend it themselves.

Gardner said officials for the state and Idaho Power Co., who reached the so-called Swan Falls agreement last October, would work over the weekend to clear up problems with the adjudication bill. An amended measure to be re-submitted to the House committee on Monday could take into account capacity of hydroelectric production rather than the amount of water flowing through a utility's generators, he said.

The portion of the adjudication process to be paid by utilities would not change, but would be shifted to reflect the new criteria, Gardner said.

The Resources and Conservation Committee is scheduled to take up the measure on Monday, and both House and Senate resource committees are sponsoring a public hearing on the entire Snake River water rights issue Monday night.

Shippy optimistic about pact

PAYETTE (AP) — A closed-door meeting in the Payette County Courthouse Friday left Sam Shippy confident an agreement can be reached with county officials over the education of his six school-age children.

Meanwhile, some 200 to 300 supporters of the New Plymouth man and his family rallied around outside the courthouse. They were waiting for an expected ruling from Magistrate B.E. Behrmann on the future of the Shippy children, who were placed in a foster home last week.

After negotiations last week failed, Shippy met Friday with Behrmann, Deputy Prosecutor Dan Chadwick, a probation officer and other interested parties, including Jerome County Prosecutor Dan Adams.

No decision was reached, but Shippy said county officials now seem ready to negotiate a compromise that would allow the family to educate its children and maintain its religious beliefs.

Court officials said Behrmann would decide Monday whether to make permanent a temporary order removing the Shippy children from their parents. A meeting was scheduled today to discuss a home-study program proposed by the county.

Sam and Marquita Shippy, as well as Sam's two brothers and their wives, were jailed for three weeks late last year after violating terms of a 1982 probation agreement.

Asotin man dies in chase by officer

LEWISTON (AP) — A 19-year-old Asotin, Wash., man was killed when he apparently lost control of his vehicle as an Asotin County sheriff's deputy pursued him, the Idaho State Police reported.

David Wayne Skinner was allegedly traveling about 70 mph as Deputy Mike Carpenter pursued him Thursday morning across the Washington border into Idaho's Nez Perce County, said ISP Trooper Michael Nauman.

Oakley dam repairs under way soon

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News correspondent

WASHINGTON — Emergency repairs to the Oakley Dam will start soon under the supervision of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, which has released $26,000 to re-reinforce the dam's damaged outlet tunnel before this spring's snow runoff.

The Corps was contacting potential contractors Friday and will hold a meeting either today or Sunday to open bids for the project, says O.S. Dugger, public relations officer for the Corps' Walla Walla, Wash., office.

Work to place concrete in the eroded areas of the tunnel will begin as soon as the contractor can be mobilized, possibly by early next week, Dugger says.

In Boise, Norman Young, administrator for the Resource Administration Division of the Idaho Department of Water Resources, says the work has to be completed as soon as possible.

"It needs to be completed this March so the tunnel can be ready and adjustments done before the runoff," Young says.

An inspection of the dam in December revealed substantial erosion around the tunnel's control gate and interior from last spring's heavy spring runoff.

If the erosion continues to the concrete-lined, rock tunnel, the dam could breach and cause serious flooding downstream on Goose Creek.

After the erosion was discovered, state officials began a hurried attempt to find funds for the work before snowpacks, that were up to 30 percent above normal in early January, begin melting above the dam. Runoff normally begins in the Goose Creek drainage sometime in April.

Dugger says the work to reline the tunnel with concrete will take about 40 days, and another 15 days are needed for the concrete to cure properly. If work begins next week, the tunnel could be ready for water-to-flow through it by mid-March, he says.

The repairs are intended to be temporary, and the tunnel will have to have permanent repairs done this summer, Dugger says.

The emergency funds were released at the request of Gov. John Evans. The release was announced on Friday by Congressman Richard Stalling's office.

Kenneth Dunn, director of Water Resources, visited Washington earlier this week and provided information on which the Corps based its decision to release the funds, Young says.

The money comes from a fund for advance repairs to prevent flood problems before they occur.

Young says the state has granted the Oakley Canal Co., the operator of the dam, a tax-exempt status so it can obtain a $50,000 loan for the permanent repairs after the runoff is over.

Also, he says, the state has loaned the newly-formed Goose Creek Flood District $50,000 to repair a downstream diversion channel. The channel will be needed later this winter to drain away reservoir waters.

Young says the flood district has access to more funds if it is needed to repair the channel.

Simplot plant receives threats

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

HEYBURN — The FBI is investigating a series of three bomb threats phoned in to the J.R. Simplot facility in Heyburn over the last two weeks.

General manager J.W. Young said Friday night the three calls have all been made by women who call just before the midnight shift change. Young said the first two calls, on Jan. 8 and 10, and the last call on Jan. 16, were made by two different women.

The FBI is using voice analysis equipment to trace the calls. Young said the first call was made to the personnel office at the plant and recorded on a machine used to record workers calling in sick.

After the first call, the entire plant's phone system was placed on the recording system, so the second and third calls were recorded as well, Young said.

Young said the calls are not being made from a phone in the plant, unless the phone is a pay phone. He said the FBI has narrowed a list of suspects and is staking out a number of locations.

The caller says "Do you know you've got a bomb in your plant and it will blow up soon?" and hangs up without answering any questions, said Young.

The motive for the calls has not been established. Young said a similar bomb threat was made at the now-closed Simplot plant in Burley in the mid 1970s by a youth who didn't want to work a certain night of the week. This set of threats are not related to the mid-70s set, Young said.

After each call, the workers on the job are sent home early, working for the whole shift, and local police and sheriff's deputies search the plant with Simplot security officers, Heyburn police chief Robert Vasquez said Friday afternoon.

Since the plant is searched and found safe, graveyard shift workers are given the option of going to work or not, Vasquez said.

All the raw potatoes must be dumped except those that have made it to the freezing tunnel, said Young.

"It's a hell of a loss," Young said. The processor will need the rest of this month and next month to recover its losses from the three bomb threats.

Blaze ravages house

TWIN FALLS — A fire that began in the basement and burned its way through the center of a house at 273 Borah Ave. caused extensive damage Friday afternoon.

The owner of the house, Dianna Cummins, was in Boise at the time, said Tim Vickers, a battalion chief with the Twin Falls fire department.

The fire department responded to an alarm at 12:36 p.m. A truck and nine firefighters were at the scene.

The fire started near the furnace in the basement of the house, Vickers said. It burned a hole through the upper floor and damaged the hall, bathroom and living room on the main level. The fire then worked its way to the attic.

The crew remained at the scene until about 3 p.m.

The cause of the blaze still was under investigation, Vickers said.

The fire department contacted relatives of the owner so they could remove any valuable items from the house, which sustained about $20,000 damage, Vickers said.

Firefighters from the Twin Falls fire department battled a smoky blaze at 273 Borah Ave. for over two hours Friday.

Grants may be key to helping seniors' center

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Newly available grant money may be the key to Twin Falls' crumbling Senior Citizen Center.

For the first time, the state is making projects for senior citizens eligible for Community Development Block Grants.

About $50,000 is earmarked for such projects, to be given out in Idaho in amounts of as much as $100,000. The grants must be matched with community money of equal amounts.

In Twin Falls, that may mean the city property that the center now occupies could be deeded over to the organization with the property value counting toward the matching money requirement, says Lamar Orton, Community Development Director. The city now rents the senior center and nearby property along Rock Creek Canyon to the senior program for a dollar per year.

Labor on refurbishing the building could also be counted toward the matching grant.

Orton says grant administrators have indicated they would prefer to allot the grant money for large projects using the full $100,000 allowable than spilling it up into lumps of $5,000 or $10,000.

"The seniors are very encouraged," says council member Gale Kleinkopf. "They would like to see the city deed the property over."

Reports by architects and engineers in October 1983 indicated that $106,200 would be the "absolute minimum" needed to restore the building's structural integrity. That would provide adequate foundations, anchorage of the structural frame, two new restrooms and replacement of other deteriorated features.

The report warned that if construction were begun, more problems might be discovered as work progressed.

Problems were first uncovered in 1983 when plans were made for a kitchen expansion. A preliminary investigation found part of the floor in a back section rotted away.

Further investigation revealed missing truss members, rotted joists and studs, relocated bearing walls and a host of other potentially dangerous irregularities.

The city is currently arranging to have the senior center assessed. The city must notify the state by March 1 if it intends to apply for the grant and submit an application by the end of that month.

Debaters win big; coach loses beard

TWIN FALLS — When the Twin Falls High School debate team won the Gem State Conference meet last weekend in Pocatello, coach R.L. "Nick" Nicholson lost his beard.

"I told them I'd shave my beard off if they won the Gem States," Nicholson said Wednesday. Nicholson, who had not shaved for 18½ years, said the conference championship is the only major award that has eluded his program.

Because the conference championship awards team effort as opposed to individual efforts, winning it is a much better indication of the quality of a school's debate program, he said.

Twin Falls not only topped the conference for championship division debating, but it took the sweepstakes honors, for most total points. Debate is divided into three groups: championship, open, and Lincoln-Douglas. Championship and open debating involve two teams of two debaters, while Lincoln-Douglas debate is one-on-one debating.

In an unusually close victory, the number one championship team of senior Chris Scholtes and junior Paul Stukenholtz tied the Idaho Falls squad and had to win in a one-round sudden death debate.

The number two championship team of seniors Smith and senior Melonie Lamborn finished as the only undefeated team in the tournament.

R.L. NICHOLSON
With his beard intact

At the Gem State Conference meet, the Bruins met three schools from Idaho. Falls, two from Pocatello, and one from Miles in round-robin debate over the course of two days. Nicholson said his team reminded him of his promise at the end of the first day, when one squad was undefeated and the Bruin team looked to be a contender for the trophy. "They walked up to me and said, 'Mr. Nick, it's going bye-bye.'"

"This is the one tournament that has frustrated me," he said. "We just yelled and peaked at the right time; I've known they had the ability; they didn't have the confidence before."

The Bruins will travel to the Boise Borah Capital meet Feb. 1-2.

Gooding hospital fund woes continue

By JANENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Last year was a good one for Gooding County Memorial Hospital, but the money problems continue.

For the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1984, hospital patient revenue increased from $1.9 million to $2.25 million.

The December patient census report shows an average 30 percent of capacity used during the month.

However, the hospital continues to face rising costs, less Medicare reimbursement and a staggering $284,000 outstanding balance from uncollected accounts.

The Gooding hospital has a cooperative agreement with the Walker Alcohol and Chemical Dependency Treatment Center to share costs and profits of that operation.

Hospital board Chairman Jodi Faulkner said at the board's Thursday meeting that Walker Center had allowed the hospital to use the center's share of profits to facilitate operations but is now requesting the return of approximately $120,000.

In addition, the two health care units have agreed Gooding hospital will assimilate $44,000 of "bad debt" from the Walker Center operation.

Board member Rod Spackman said it amounts to the county hospital receiving a smaller portion because the Walker Center profits were lower.

The hospital has 24 months in which to repay the $44,000 interest free, but the balance of what is owed Walker Center must be repaid at 12 percent interest, Faulkner said.

She said much of the debt will be retired by collection of the $86,000 worth of patient accounts established for services through the Walker Center during December. She said the situation has been resolved and the hospital will not be "borrowing" any more funds from the Walker Center.

Hospital administrator Duane Cutright said the continuing uncollectable accounts problem is a situation that has been accumulating for more than 20 years and cannot be solved in just a few months.

He said he expects it will take at least five years and perhaps as many as 10 to solve the problem.

Some methods of dealing with the problem have already been set up, including a contract with Health Care Financial Services to set up a monthly repayment plan for all over due accounts of $55 or more.

Faulkner said since the hospital is a county operation and financed in some degree by tax monies, the hospital must accept all patients regardless of ability to pay.

She said this facilitates the county's indigent care requirements, but said the county is going to have to help pay some of the costs through the indigent fund.

Members of the hospital board met with the Gooding County Board of Commissioners last week to set up a way to present indigent claims when patients refuse to make the application themselves.

"If the hospital is to continue we are going to have to get a significant level of county support," Faulkner told the board.

The hospital only receives $20,000 in tax revenues but has received revenue sharing funds from the county in past years.

But the level of support from revenue sharing has been cut this year because the county needed the funds in other areas.

After loss as Democrat, Houston is eyeing a switch to Republicans

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Unsuccessful legislative candidate Joyce Houston says her name may appear on the Republican line of the ballot the next time she runs for office.

Houston, running as a Democrat, lost the 1984 race for House Seat A in District 23 by a margin of 48 percent to Republican Donna Scott in the November election.

In late December, Houston contacted the local Republican Central Committee and requested that her name be added to its mailing list. Last week she attended the Central Committee meeting.

Houston says she has not changed parties "but more than likely, that is the direction I'll go. I never was active in the Democratic Party except for running for office."

She adds that the Republican Party is "the direction I'm moving in. It's not definite. But I am very interested in what's happening there."

Many of her finances reflect those of the Republican Party, she says. She declines to name those that are similar.

In the 1984 election, Houston blasted her Republican opponent for not approving money needed to give teachers the first 60 percent of a two-part pay hike and not approving a $2 million appropriation for textbooks.

JEROME — Ronald Earl Smith, 39, of Idaho Falls, was killed Friday evening in a one-car rollover near the rest stop on Interstate 84 between Jerome and the Twin Falls exit.

As driven by Richard Earl Smith, 44, of Twin Falls, ran into the median and overturned at 6:30 p.m., said Capt. George Blackburn of the Idaho State Police. Ronald Smith was a passenger in his car.

An ambulance from St. Benedict's Family Medical Center arrived at the scene, but Richard Smith refused to be transported, said Jerome Sheriff Elza Hill.

ISP Trooper Russell Roper and Sgt. David Neal were still investigating in Jerome County and few details were available Friday night at press time.

Three arrested in assault case
TWIN FALLS — Three people suspected of taking revenge on an alleged narcotics informant were arrested this week.

Patty A. Hellen, also known as Patty Wells, 18, and her husband, 25-year-old Timothy John Wells, both of 253 Third Ave. N. in Twin Falls, were charged Wednesday in Fifth District Magistrate Court with aggravated battery and selling cocaine.

Michael A. Winkler, 34, of Twin Falls, was charged Friday with aggravated battery.

A complaint filed with the court alleges that the couple sold one gram of cocaine to a state narcotics agent Jan. 11.

The man who allegedly led the agent to the couple was found beaten four days later. Winkler was accused of beating the man, who suffered cuts to his face, the complaint states.

The couple was released on $1,500 bond each on the felony charge. Winkler was being held in Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of a $50,000 cash-only bond.

TWIN FALLS — A 42-year-old man was charged Friday with sexually molesting a youngster.

Charles Edward Freeman of Route 1, Rogerson was being held in the Twin Falls County Jail in lieu of a $5,000 bond.

A complaint filed with Fifth District Magistrate Court alleges that the incidents with the girl, who was 10 or 11-years-old at the time, took place between Feb. 1, 1984 and Jan. 1.

A public defender was appointed at a Friday hearing to represent Freeman, who faces a felony charge of lewd conduct with a minor under 16-years-old.

None hurt in 3-vehicle mishap
TWIN FALLS — The hood of a station wagon was pushed under a larger car in a three-car accident Friday afternoon at Eighth Avenue North and Shoshone Street North.

The drivers escaped serious injury.

The accident occurred shortly after 4 p.m. when 22-year-old Laurie Conder of 151 Orchard Drive in Twin Falls was southbound on Shoshone Street.

Conder had stopped near the intersection while waiting for turning traffic, according to a Twin Falls police report.

Eldon Lee Kennel, 32, of 1751 Borah Ave. in Twin Falls pulled up behind Conder and stopped.

A station wagon driven by 16-year-old Julia Ward, of Route 1, Twin Falls also was headed southbound when it failed to stop in time and collided with the back of Kennel's car, the report states. Ward was traveling about 20 to 25 miles per hour.

Upon impact, the hood of Ward's smaller station wagon was thrust under the rear of Kennel's larger car, which struck Conder's truck.

A fire engine was summoned to the scene because the hood was crushed and the battery began to spark near the gas tank of Kennel's car.

Two wreckers also were called to separate the two cars.

Kennel's daughter, 6-year-old Laura Sue, hit the dashboard and was taken by ambulance to the Twin Falls Clinic. She was treated and released, the report states.

Ward was cited for inattentive driving. Her vehicle was demolished.

There was about $1,000 damage to Kennel's car and about $100 to Conder's truck.

Predator control, animal damage bills receive preliminary approval

Times-News capitol bureau

BOISE — A House panel on Friday gave preliminary approval to a pair of proposals establishing an Animal Damage Control Board in Idaho and assessing a 2-cent-per-head fee on livestock to pay for predator control.

The proposals would create a seven-member board and five animal damage control districts in the state.

The operation would become a part of the Sheep Commission, the organization that has administered state predator control functions, Dave Bivens, executive director of the Idaho Cattlemen's Association, told committee members.

Bivens says the predator control program has previously been funded by voluntary donations. But, he says, some livestock owners would not pay the services of predator control but wouldn't support the program.

Andy Anderson, lobbyist for the Idaho Farm Bureau, told committee members that most of the money in animal damage control is used for coyote control. However, he said, money from the account would also be used to control rats in dairies, mice in grain storage facilities, starlings, squirrels, gophers and other vertebrate pests.

The program is administered by the Sheep Commission but the actual work is done by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Bivens said.

Under the proposed law, assessments would be collected by state brand inspectors.

Rep. Jerry Galten, R-Jerome, expressed concern that if the program is mainly to control coyotes but the fees are assessed equally on all livestock, feedlot owners might end up paying for services provided for range animals.

The proposals will likely return to the Agricultural Affairs Committee for hearings. In addition, in Gallatin, Magic Valley-area legislators serving on the committee include: Rep. Lawrence Knigge, representing Twin Falls County and Rep. Gary Robbins, representing Blaine, Carnas, Gooding and Lincoln counties.

Hospital

County Commissioner Chasman Robert Thackeray told the hospital board Thursday the county can levy taxes on indigent citizens above the 5 percent per year increase ceiling set by the 1 percent tax initiative and the county is willing to look at ways to help the financial situation at the hospital.

He said he has been approached about the possibility of holding a special election to set up a hospital taxing district that would be authorized to collect money specifically for county hospital operations and he said that was another idea to be studied.

Houston

Houston said she would vote for the second part of the pay raise. She is an O'Leary Junior High teacher and active in the National Education Association at the national and state level and president-elect of the Magic Valley chapter.

Houston also criticized Scott before the election for opposing establishment of day-care licensing by the state and mandatory child restraints in cars.

Houston says she will not comment on whether she has changed her stand on these issues, saying it is "not relevant." She also declines to comment on proposed changes in a prevailing wage law and and right to work law that may be instituted this year by a Republican Legislature — strong enough to block Democratic Gov. John Evans' veto.

"I'm not taking any stands on anything now," Houston says. "All I have done is attend one meeting."

Vice chairman of the Republican Central Committee, Mark Stubbs, says it never is for a citizen to check what the other party has to offer. And Scott says she welcomes anyone into the Republican Party. The Democrats will have to become more conservative if they want the support of the people, she says.

Only one Democrat was elected to represent the Magic Valley in the current Legislative session. Houston says, however, that that is not influencing her decision. Running on the Democratic ticket was not a liability, she says.

She says she does not know if 1986 will be the year she makes another try for a legislative seat, but says she will run again.

Crusades

Billy Graham associate Ralph Bell to lead Burley gathering

By MESS BRUMBACH
Times-News correspondent

RALPH BELL
Calls Denver his home

BURLEY — Dr. Ralph Bell, one of the three associate evangelists of Billy Graham, will lead a crusade Feb. 10-17 in the Burley Inn Convention Center.

He and the other associates each conduct four to five crusades yearly, and all of them are present at Graham's evangelistic meetings. Says David McClaran, associate crusades coordinator.

Bell is a sports enthusiast, McClaran says, and in Canada, which was his home before he moved to Denver, he was recruited by the Los Angeles Dodgers but chose to enter the ministry.

Bell has been a full-time Graham associate evangelist for "20-some years," received degrees from Moody Bible Institute, Taylor University and Fuller Theological Seminary. In 1978, he was conferred with the honorary doctor of humanities degree from Richmond College in Toronto, then studied at Indiana Christian University, where he received his doctor of divinity degree in 1981.

Evangel means good news," McClaran says, and Graham and all those who work out of the Minneapolis headquarters believe "It is God's command to follow the great commission" given by Christ to "go and make disciples of all nations."

McClaran, a native of Idaho, arrived in Burley from Harrisburg, Pa., on Monday. He says he has four other crusades in progress, and, before the events, he travels from city to city checking arrangements with the community. He says.

Participation of local residents is greatly emphasized, he says. In his first two weeks, McClaran will be training 500 to 600 counselors in Christian life and witness classes held in Rupert, Paul and Burley, and about 2,000 others will be involved in various aspects of the crusade.

He says anyone who would like to be in the choir or serve as an usher may contact the office which has been set up in the Burley Mall. Walter Artles, song leader, and Owen Griffin, keyboard man, are the musical team for the crusade, McClaran says. There will be special events every weeknight.

Family night is scheduled for Feb. 11, and Myrtle Hall, the mezzo-soprano who appears on all the televised Graham crusades, will be soloist both Monday and Tuesday.

Dennis Maganjan, referred to by Johnny Cash as "the fastest flapping guitar player in the world," will play and sing on Wednesday and Thursday. He has appeared on "That's Incredible" twice, says McClaran, riding his dirt bike at 80 miles an hour while playing the Hallelujah Chorus on his guitar.

Aganjan is "very youth oriented," McClaran says, and Thursday night will be geared to young people.

Leading a Christian women's rally Friday morning will be Barbara Musto, and she will sing to her own piano accompaniment on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Evangelist Bill Glass sets week-long rally in Bruin Stadium

By JOAN BEAN
Times-News correspondent

BILL GLASS
Former football star

TWIN FALLS — During the week of Aug. 4-11 at the Bruin Stadium in Twin Falls, evangelist Bill Glass will conduct the Intermountain Crusade for Christ.

Fans may remember Glass as an All-American at Baylor University and that he played professional ball for the Cleveland Browns.

During off seasons he attended Stanford, and retired from football in 1963 to begin a full-time ministry. The Bill Glass Evangelistic Association was formed that year.

Since then, he has conducted crusades in more than 125 cities across America, and three in Australia. Over 260 crusades have been taken into state and federal prisons.

According to Jack Muldoon, chairman of the crusade committee, more than 80 Magic Valley churches have been invited to participate. So far, 40 people of 18 different denominations are working on the committee.

Muldoon says crusades bring a feeling of unity. "It is a type of unity that we strive for, through these crusades, to bring all denominations together," he says.

The voices of a possible 200-300 person choir, composed of local people, will fill the stadium during the eight nights. They will be led by crusade musical director Bill Michael. He is accompanied by pianist and organist Bob Andersen.

Muldoon expects that a sports figure or entertainer will have a part in the crusade, but thus far he does not know who it will be.

The community will have the opportunity to get acquainted with Glass on Feb. 11, when he will speak at a kick-off banquet at the Twin Falls Holiday Inn. Muldoon says the Billy Graham organization is having a crusade in Burley the same week, and he "wanted to support that in every way possible."

Dick Rohrer, executive vice president of the Bill Glass Evangelistic Association, was in Twin Falls this week. He said that the primary purpose of the crusade is "introducing people to Jesus Christ."

"The word crusade," he says, "to me means that outreach to those who have no identity to anything spiritual right now. They're not involved in church, and have no identity with spiritual things, and that they might hear a message and a way of life that could make a difference in their lives."

"To make this event come about will take a great deal of effort. We're anxious to hear from people who would like to help in some way with this crusade," Muldoon says.

For more information, call Jack Muldoon at 733-8931.

Religion course to look at similarities

TWIN FALLS — "Eternal Themes of Religion," Part 3 of the College of Southern Idaho's world religion series, will begin Jan. 21.

This class is scheduled for six consecutive Mondays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in room 109 of the Shields Building. Cost of the class is $20.

The course will explore some of the more provocative and universal religion topics such as life after death and reincarnation, the idea of the second coming and the millennium, religious symbolism and the concept of the "Logos" or Word of God.

Harry Massoth, course instructor, said, "These themes do not appear in only the Judeo-Christian tradition. They are also found in Hindu, Buddhist, Chinese, Bahai, and American Indian traditions. By comparing concepts offered by these different traditions, it often turns out that our understanding of a given subject such as life after death or the millennium, is greatly expanded. We also examine scientific views of these topics and compare them to different religious views."

Massoth said the idea of the millennium; Armageddon and the end times will be discussed, but a number of subjects explored.

"This subject," Massoth said, "is timely and perhaps much more important than many people might think. Not only did it surface in the 1984 political campaign, but a number of world developments such as the social and economic dislocations of modern industrial society, the tragic conditions of the third world nations, the continuous escalation of the arms race, and now the looming presence of the magical year 2000 have made the visions more levered and the visionaries more expectant than ever."

"The notions of 'the time of the end' and a 'coming new age' are some of the most powerful psychological forces at work in society and will become more so as the year 2000 draws ever nearer."

To pre-register for the class call 733-8554, ext. 363.

U.S. boycott protests World Court suit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, maintaining that the World Court lacks jurisdiction, announced Friday it will boycott future deliberations of that body on Nicaragua's complaint that the United States is an aggressor nation.

The decision, approved by President Reagan, means that the United States will not be present to defend itself when the court holds full hearings on the Nicaraguan lawsuit, probably in the spring.

The announcement came less than two months after the court, formally known as the International Court of Justice, had ruled against U.S. arguments that the panel was not the appropriate forum for adjudicating the Central American conflict.

State Department deputy spokesman Alan Romberg said the United States "has consistently taken the position that this case brought by Nicaragua is a misuse of the court for political and propaganda purposes."

Romberg said the "broad political, economic, social and security problems of Central America" will be solved only by political and diplomatic means — not through a judicial tribunal.

At issue is Nicaragua's claim that the United States has violated international law by mining Nicaragua's harbors and by supporting anti-government rebel forces.

The United States, under heavy public and congressional pressure, suspended the mining operations last spring but not before several third-country vessels, including some from nations friendly to the United States, were damaged by exploding mines.

The CIA has provided some $80 million to the so-called "contra" rebel forces since 1981. But Congress has not approved any funding since last spring.

In a separate statement, issued hours after Romberg's announcement, the department disclosed that it is temporarily suspending participation in six-month-old discussions with Nicaragua aimed at resolving bilateral differences.

The statement said no further meetings have been scheduled, pending an evaluation of the talks and new developments in the Central American peace process.

Cover-up charged in death

TORUN, Poland (AP) — Two secret policemen testified Friday that one of four officers on trial in the slaying of a pro-Solidarity priest had evidence destroyed in an apparent attempt to cover up his involvement.

Maj. Janusz Drozdz and Zbigniew Stronecki, whose rank was not disclosed, cast doubt on previous testimony by Col. Adam Pietruszka.

Pietruszka has denied knowing about the plot against the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko or attempting to impede the investigation into the priest's death.

Pietruszka, 47, pleaded innocent to charges that he aided and abetted three subordinates in his Interior Ministry department in the slaying of Popieluszko. The three other officers — Capt. Grzegorz Piotrowski, 33, and Lt. Leszek Pekala, 32, and Waldemar Chmielewski, 29 — have pleaded guilty to charges they abducted and murdered the 37-year-old priest Oct. 19.

The four face possible death penalties.

Aid sought for El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration will request increased military and economic aid for El Salvador as part of "the long-term approach that we have taken to Central America," the White House said Friday.

Spokesman Larry Speakes declined to speculate about figures but said The New York Times was in the right " ballpark" in saying $200 million in military and at least $428 million in economic aid would be requested.

The current budget contains $128 million in military and aid and $200 million in economic aid for El Salvador.

Speakes said the increases were in line with the recommendations of a commission headed by former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, which studied Central American policy and recommended spending $8 billion over five years.

RITA LAVELLE
Convicted of perjury

Lavelle's attorneys cleared

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rita M. Lavelle, the former Environmental Protection Agency official who was convicted of lying to Congress, was not sabotaged by her agency's lawyers; a U.S. Court of Appeals panel said Friday in upholding her conviction.

The three-member panel, in a 27-page opinion written by Judge Edward Allen Tamm, affirmed Lavelle's perjury conviction and her six-month prison sentence and $10,000 fine.

Ms. Lavelle, the former head of EPA's "Superfund" cleanup program, had argued before the appeals court that the agency's attorneys had a "professional duty" to inform her that they suspected she submitted a false statement to Congress.

The statement, crafted by EPA lawyers and signed by Ms. Lavelle, said that she learned on June 17, 1982, that her former employer, Aerojet-General Corp., was involved in a California waste dump that EPA was considering as a cleanup project. Ms. Lavelle said EPA lawyers believed that the correct date she learned of the involvement was May 23, 1982.

Her December 1983 conviction and prison sentence centered on the statement — and her congressional testimony — that she didn't learn of Aerojet's involvement until June 17.

Mass transit targeted for budgetary ax

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is proposing major cuts in federal mass transit spending in its fiscal 1986 budget, including a phase-out of $2.7 billion in assistance over the next three years, government and industry officials said Friday.

The proposal, to be submitted as part of President Reagan's budget to Congress on Feb. 4, also calls for an immediate end to funding for new rail transit projects, although project commitments already made are expected to be honored.

"The object is get out of the new-start business by the end of 1985 and not to leave any holes in the ground in the process of withdrawing," says an Office of Management and Budget document outlining the administration's transit proposal.

The document was leaked Friday by officials attending the U.S. Conference of Mayors' mid-winter meeting and later confirmed by Transportation Department officials as substantially the proposal that will be submitted to Congress.

Would-be robber killed by victim

CHICAGO (AP) — Police appealed Friday for the surrender of a man who fatally wounded one of two youths trying to steal his groceries at a knife-point, and cautioned the public against "calling this a rerun of 'Death Wish.'"

"As of now, with the statements we have from witnesses, I would recommend that no charges be placed" against the man who fired the shots, Police Commander Earl Johnson of Area 4 Violent Crimes said at a news conference late Friday.

He said he was confident that both the man who fired the shots and the slain youth's accomplice would turn themselves in or be caught soon.

Mild quake strikes

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A moderate earthquake rattled desks and prompted a flood of calls to police and fire department switchboards in this desert resort Friday afternoon, but no damage was reported.

Seismologists at the California Institute of Technology said the temblor measured 4.0 on the Richter scale and was centered 14 miles northeast of Palm Springs.

Administration boosts value of budget cuts to $50 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials, putting the finishing touches on the budget President Reagan will send to Congress next month, have re-estimated the value of the spending cuts that will be proposed for next year up to about $50 billion.

Federal Reserve Chairman Paul A. Volcker told Republican senators earlier this week that $50 billion in cuts for the 1986 fiscal year, which begins Oct. 1, was the "minimum threshold" necessary to assure lower interest rates.

Previously, officials had said the value of spending cuts Reagan has decided to propose would be about $42 billion to $44 billion. But an administration official, who spoke on condition that he not be identified, said the latest estimates presented to Reagan and his Cabinet on Thursday showed the value of the cuts revised upward to $50 billion.

The official emphasized that further revisions are possible before the president sends his budget to Capitol Hill on Feb. 4.

Even with the re-estimate, officials acknowledge that Reagan's budget will be short of his goal of shaving deficits to less than $100 billion by 1988.

White House budget director David A. Stockman said last weekend that deficits would be $225 billion to $240 billion in each of the next three years without action to curb spending.

Reagan, meanwhile, said in an interview published in Friday's editions of USA Today, "I almost have to be resigned to being the president whose deficits were the largest ever."

In related developments Friday:

- Government and industry officials said Reagan's budget will contain major cuts in federal mass transit spending, including a phase-out of $2.7 billion in assistance over the next three years, and an immediate end to funding for new rail transit projects.
- Former President Ford, expressing concern over huge budget deficits, called for an immediate one-year tax increase, to be replaced in 1986 by a version of the Treasury Department's tax-simplification plan.

Steelhead boundary moved

BOISE (AP) — A steelhead fishing boundary in the North Fork Clearwater River has been moved to relieve crowding-for-bait anglers, the Idaho Fish and Game Commission announced Friday.

The commission approved a proposal calling for movement of the boundary 150 yards upstream from the mouth of the river.

"It is in the best interest of anglers to remove congestion in the area," the order said.

The boundary change is effective today.

BYU to face Boston College?

BOSTON (AP) — Although the official announcement won't be made until Feb. 5, Cotton Bowl winner Boston College is set to play national champion Brigham Young in the Kickoff Classic, according to a report Friday.

Boston College Coach Jack Bicknell, while saying he couldn't say anything about the WCVB-TV, Boston, report, allowed that: "I'm really looking forward to it. I'm planning on seeing it."

The game will be at the Meadowlands in East Rutherford, N.J., Thursday, Aug. 23.

WCVB, an ABC affiliate, said it confirmed the matchup with four BYU coaches: Bill Flynn, Boston director of athletics, said, "We hope we will be in it."

Utah lawmakers laud Cougars

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The Utah Legislature Friday honored Brigham Young University's national championship football team and Gov. Norm Bangert declared the day "Coach LaVell Edwards Day."

In addition, Bangert declared today "BYU Football No. 1 Day."

Edwards, BYU's head coach, appeared before lawmakers, along with Brigham Young President Jeffrey Holland and the team's four co-captains.

6-player, 4-team baseball swap

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers sent catcher Jim Sundberg to the Kansas City Royals Friday and acquired two pitchers in a six-player trade that involved four clubs.

As part of the deal, the Royals sent catcher Don Staught to the Texas Rangers.

Milwaukee general manager Harry Dalton said the Brewers will get pitchers Danny Darwin and Tim Lary and a minor league player to be named later from the Rangers.

With Sundberg going to Kansas City and the Royals sending Staught, who hit .284 last year, to Texas, the Rangers sent Darwin and the minor league player to be named later to Milwaukee.

The Rangers also sent pitcher Frank Wilks to Tidewater, the New York Mets' Triple A club in the International League.

Curry defends title today

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP) — Donald Curry defends his World Boxing Association welterweight title against Colin Jones of Wales today, despite a last-minute threat by the challenger.

Curry, 25, of Fort Worth, Texas, is a strong favorite to win his fifth defense of the title. The fight will be televised live in the United States by ABC. It is scheduled to begin about 3 p.m. MST.

On the eve of the fight, Jones' manager, Eddie Thomas, protested that Curry's camp had moved the weigh-in forward by five hours. Thomas threatened to pull his man out of the contest. But the Welsh camp sought a ruling from WBA officials and backed down when they accepted a compromise weigh-in time of 10:30 a.m. here today.

Camacho finally fights again

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Hector "Macho" Camacho, unbeaten in 24 pro fights and inactive for eight months, will resume his career today in a nationally televised bout against once-beaten Louis Burke.

When last seen in a real fight — he did box an exhibition in January — the former World Boxing Council super featherweight champion fought as a lightweight in stopping Rafael Williams in the seventh round at Corpus Christi, Texas, last May 20 for his 14th knockout.

Peete hikes advantage at Phoenix golf

PHOENIX (AP) — Calvin Peete, statistically golf's most accurate player, shot another bogey-free, 6-under-par at the halfway point of the 50th anniversary of this event.

Peete, the most successful black player the game has produced, completed a 36-hole total of 132 strokes under par at the halfway point of the 50th anniversary of this event.

Peete, 41, who has led the tour in driving accuracy for the past four seasons and in greens in regulation in three of the last four years, has not made a bogey in this tournament.

By way of illustration, he has missed only one fairway in two rounds. He has been in danger of making bogey on only one hole — his second of the second round. But he came out of a bunker to within 6-8 feet and made the putt for par.

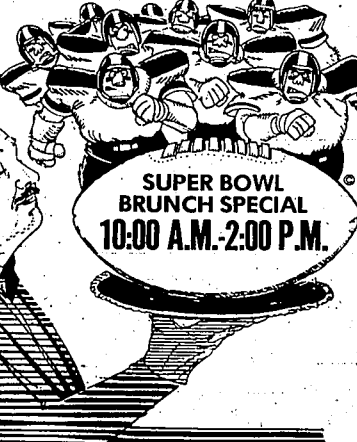

Aid, in scoring 12 birdies in two days, he's made only one putt longer than eight feet, dropping a 12-footer for birdie on his 10th hole of the second round. Half of his birdies have resulted from approach shots that came to rest less than four feet from the flag. He missed another birdie — which would have given him a second-round 64 — when he failed on a putt of about three feet.

Bob Eastwood, Doug Tewell and Tim Norris shared second at 132. Eastwood, a two-time winner last season, had a 67 in the mild, sunny weather, Norris closed up with the best round of the tournament, a 7-under-par 64, and Tewell shot 68.

Isao Aoki of Japan and Morris Hatakeyama were at 136, each with a second-round 70.

Lanny Wadkins, winner of last week's Bob Hope Classic, was at 139 after a 69. Defending title-holder Tom Purtzer and PGA champion Lee Trevino each had a 74 and were at 142.

Decker establishes world indoor mark

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mary Decker moved to world indoor best of five minutes, 34.52 seconds in the women's 2,000 meters Friday night at the Sunkist Invitational, bettering the previous world standard by almost nine seconds and easily beating recent critic Ruth Wysocki in the process.

It was Decker's first race since her celebrated collision with Zola Budd in the women's 3,000-meter final at the Los Angeles Olympics last summer.

Decker, who'd suffered a hip injury when she was sprawling onto the Coliseum infield after tangling up with Budd, showed no ill effects of either the injury or the long layoff in her first 1985 outing.

After facing a mixture of cheers and boos when she was introduced, Decker was spurred on by a rousing standing ovation as she completed the final laps of the 2,000.

Her time bettered the previous standard of 5:43.30 set by the Soviet Union's Yekaterina Podkopayeva in 1983.

Decker moved out front immediately, with Wysocki just behind, then began gradually pulling away on the Los Angeles Sports Arena track.

At the finish, she was about a half lap in front of Wysocki, who recently criticized Decker's behavior following the collision with Budd.

Decker, who had blamed Budd for her fall and turned the young runner away when she tried to approach her, had responded to Wysocki's criticism by saying it might just make her run faster.

Wysocki, who had upset Decker in the 1,500 meters during the U.S. Olympic Trials last June, had a second-place time of 5:45.93 in the 2,000 Friday night.

Monica Joyce was a distant third in 5:56.32.

Greg Foster, who suffered an Olympic disappointment of his own when he finished second to Roger Kingdom in the 110-meter hurdles final, recorded a hurdles double Friday night.

Foster won the men's 50-yard hurdles in 5.96 seconds, with only one faster time, a 5.92 by Renaldo Nehemiah, ever recorded indoors. Foster then came back to win the 60-yard hurdles in 7.11.

Allice Brown took the women's 60-yard dash in 6.72 seconds.

U.S. cycling group admits blood doping done

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The U.S. Cycling Federation confirmed Friday that American cyclists received controversial "blood doping" transfusions only hours before their Olympic events in Los Angeles, and imposed sanctions on the three staff members responsible.

The federation also apologized to the American public, other Olympic cyclists and athletes, and the U.S. Olympic Committee "for the pain and embarrassment they have been caused."

However, David F. Prouty, the executive director of the federation, said, "nothing should be considered to have tainted any medal."

He said he had checked with international cycling officials and the athletes involved were not in danger of losing their medals since the "unethical procedure" isn't against the rules.

"There is no indication whatsoever that, based on past performance, any United States cycling athlete performed at a level different than what had been anticipated," Prouty said.

During a news conference to announce the results of the federation's investigation into the blood doping, Prouty said three USCF staff members were involved in the incident.

Among them was Mike Fraysse, a board member who was the federation's secretary last summer, and served as the Olympic team manager.

Also involved was Eddy Borysewicz, the national and Olympic cycling coach, and Ed Burke, the federation's Elite Athlete Program director.

Decent skiing should persist over weekend

Increasing cloudiness is predicted for today, with a chance of snow progressing toward the evening. Packed powder covers the slopes. Hours today: 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Pomerelle — All runs have packed powder at Pomerelle, where there are 74 inches of snow at the top and 55 lodge. Friday's temperature was 36 degrees. Hours today: 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.

Soldier Mountain — Conditions were sunny and clear with packed powder on the slopes of Soldier Mountain, with 37 inches of snow at the base of the mountain and 47 inches on top.

Magic Mountain — There are 68 inches of snow on the top of Magic Mountain, 52 at the lodge. Hours today: 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. A bus will leave from Newton's Sports Center in Twin Falls at 8 a.m., with stops at K-Mart at 8:10, Kimberly Car Center at 8:20 and Dave's IGA in Hansen at 8:30. The cost is $3.50.

IDAHO SKI REPORT

skiting is good. However, the snow is too soft off designated trails (or good snowmobiling or cross country skiing).

On the Sawtooth NRA, back-country skiers will find the snow a little crusty on the southwestern slopes, but for the most part skiing is good. Frontal Creek Trail has good tracks, and the Boulder Mountain Tour track is packed. As always, skiing is good at Busterback and Galena. The avalanche hazard in the area is low.

U.S. and foreign auto makers are using a strong sellers' market to boost prices on many 1985 cars.

The price increases on individual models range from less than 1 percent to more than 10 percent over comparable 1984 cars.

That means overall 1985 car prices could wind up 5 percent higher than those charged for last year's models, some industry analysts say.

"New-car prices for 1985 probably will be up 5 percent or more over 1984 levels. But that won't really cause sticker shock, because most of the increases are concentrated at the high end of the market," said David Healy, an analyst with New York-based Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc.

Still, that forecast is different from the one Healy and other analysts offered last Oct. 1 at the beginning of the 1985-model year.

They said then that increases in 1985-model prices would match or fall below the average 4 percent rise in the Consumer Price Index — a measurement of changes in prices of goods and services purchased by moderate-income families.

But those early price predictions were soothed by continued strong demand — especially for mid-size sports, luxury and big cars — and by new, multibillion-dollar labor agreements at General Motors Corp. and Ford Motor Co. Other price-boosting factors include strikes last year against GM facilities in the United States and Canada, the continuation of quotas on Japanese auto imports, and the year-round introduction of new products, industry analysts say.

Other studies show that production costs usually are the main reasons for new-car price increases. But the current increases seem to be driven more by consumer demand," said George Hoffer, an economist and auto industry analyst at Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond.

For example, production costs for U.S. manufacturers have risen 1.26 percent since last September. But that increase is more than offset by strong pricing activity, Hoffer said. On the other hand, consumer demand is still riding high, he said.

U.S. customers bought 14.6 million domestic and foreign cars and trucks in 1984 — about 4 million more than they purchased in 1982, the low point of the last recession, auto makers say.

The nation's auto makers traditionally have raised prices in boom periods, particularly on their best-selling lines, Hoffer said. Prices tend to come down when sales slow, he said.

"I'm not being critical of the auto companies. We all tend to take whatever the market will bear, both in salaries and in profits," Hoffer said. "There's nothing wrong with that."

Auto makers are raising prices on their best-selling models. GM, the nation's largest car company, is an example. GM put in two price boosts so far this model year, raising its average new-car price by about 4.6 percent, or roughly $598 a car.

"Average" prices include the lowest-priced product and the highest, and they are affected by myriad circumstances, including the business of mandating as standard equipment those things once sold as optional accessories.

GM's Chevrolet Cavalier subcompact was the best-selling passenger car in the United States last year at a manufacturer's — suggested — retail price of $6,469 for a base 2-door coupe.

GM has raised that price by 6.2 percent, to $6,872 for the 1985 model. But company officials argue that the percentage increase should be lower because the new price includes $111 in "new" standard (formerly optional) equipment.

GM's Chevrolet Corvette is up 6.6 percent with a 1985 base manufacturer's suggested retail price of $24,891, compared with $23,346 charged last year.

Ford Motor Co., Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp., GM's three home-grown competitors, all have put into effect relatively moderate average price increases. Ford's prices are up 1.3 percent, or about $153 a car. Chrysler is up 1.2 percent, or about $125 a car, and AMC has raised the prices on its popular Jeeps by 1.2 percent, or $200 a unit. AMC earlier had boosted its Alliance and Encore compact car prices by 2.3 percent, but the company has backed away from that hike because of slow sales in those lines.

Chrysler is holding the line on prices of its small cars, such as the Plymouth Horizon, Turismo and Reliant models; and Ford is rolling back prices on some of its comparable models. But both Ford and Chrysler are raising prices on their hot-selling products. Ford, for example, is boosting the price of its Thunderbird by 5.3 percent, from a 1984 closing price of $7,736 to a 1985 factory price of $10,249.

Some of the most aggressive pricing activity is found on Japanese cars, whose numbers in the United States have been restricted by import quotas. In effect since March 1981, Toyota Motor Corp.'s top-line Cressida passenger car is a case in point.

A four-door sedan Cressida with five-speed manual transmission carried a closing 1984 manufacturer's suggested retail price of $14,259. Toyota is introducing essentially the same car this year at a price of $15,690 — up 10 percent over the final 1984 price.

dedicated long-distance circuits.

The company told the commission the proposal would eliminate what it called an artificial subsidy of local access costs which AT&T had always had in the pricing of its end-to-end dedicated services.

In effect, AT&T will be passing on to business-customers the charges it gets from local phone companies.

The private lines involved in the tariff filing are described as dedicated communications channels used by government and large business customers for transmitting voice, data, video, documents, photographs, radio and TV programs.

AT&T said it has not charged rates for private line services since June 1981.

The rates are designed to raise the company's earnings to 12.75 percent, the level authorized by the FCC. AT&T said it had been earning less than half that on private lines.

In a letter to FCC Chairman Mark S. Fowler, AT&T senior vice president James R. Billingsley said the new plan was made necessary by the new environment in which the phone company operates following divestiture and FCC rulings requiring access charges.

"Those customers who have benefited most from the rate-averaged structure may expect to receive higher increases," Billingsley told the chairman.

The restructuring of private line rates includes an average 8.8 percent increase in so-called end-to-end long distance private lines but also contains a 21 percent overall reduction in the cost of the AT&T portion of

Under the proposed tariff, customers could continue to buy the whole service from AT&T or buy local connections from a local telephone company. In effect it establishes a price for each segment of the dedicated line a company or government agency has from an office in one city to an office in another.

THE ACES® BOBBY WOLFF

"Never learn to do anything. If you don't learn, you'll always find someone else to do it for you."
— Mark Twain.

For novice players, learning the rudiments of bidding comes more easily than learning the basics of declarer play. A new book on basic card play, written by Norma Sands of Denver, Colo., is available from bridge supply houses. The book is designed to make learning easier for novice and average players. If interested, write to Rocky Mountain Books, P.O. Box 10663, Denver CO 80210.

Today's hand is from the chapter called "Playing in the Real World." The reader is given the North-South hands and the bidding and is asked to plan the play.

With three diamonds cashed by West, East signals for a heart shift. South (you) win the heart ace and after drawing trumps, you must tackle the club suit. If West has the king, a straight finesse would work, as you could discard your losing heart on the club king. If East has the club king, you could take a ruffing finesse through him by playing the ace and then leading the queen. If East plays low, you discard the losing heart. If he covers, you ruff and then discard the heart on dummy's club jack.

"Which is more likely to work? Clearly the ruffing finesse is right. West is known to have started with A-K-Q-8-6 of diamonds. Had he also held the club king, surely he would have overcalled."
