Water bills hit an eddy

The Associated Press

BOISE — Two Senate committees have delayed action on key parts of the legislative package implementing the proposed settlement in the Snake River water rights battle despite assurances from various state officials that the bills would enhance Idaho water management.

Members of both the Resources and Environment and State Affairs committees voiced concern Friday about the potential ramifications of the complex agreement worked out last fall by Idaho Power Co., Gov. John Evans and Attorney General Jim Jones.

"I don't see any need to rush these things through," Sen. Vearl Crystal, R-Lewistown, said Friday in urging the delay. "I want to study more of the bills."

The Senate Resources and Environment Committee started the postponement move by voting 8-4 to put off a decision until next Friday on the two bills of the six-bill package assigned to it.

Sen. Larry Crapo, R-Idaho Falls, wanted the extra time to see of an agreement can be reached among committee members on a so-called letter of legislative intent to accom-

Sen. Bill Ringert, R-Boise, examines water rights material.

House panel rejects Stoker's bill — A3

pany the two bills. Crapo hopes to be able to clarify what he said are ambiguous sections of the measures, particularly one that sets up criteria to be used in determining whether new water-use permits should be issued in the Snake River Basin. After that panel acted to put off action until next Wednesday on its two bills from the package as Crystal and Senate Republican Floor Leader

Mark Ricks of Rexburg both said they needed more time to consider the legislation.

The remaining two bills in the package are pending.

The proposed settlement calls for Idaho Power to relinquish the bulk of its claimed 8,400 cubic-feet-per-second water right on the Snake at Swan Falls in return for the state increasing the minimum stream flow at Swan Falls from 3,300 cfs to 3,900 cfs. At the same time, the state is to launch a 10-year, $27 million-dollar general adjudication of all water rights in the basin.

The proposal is intended to guarantee the utility a hydropower base on the Snake while at the same time clear the way for limited future development along the river.

The parties to the settlement have tried to impress on lawmakers that any changes in the bills as introduced could jeopardize the pact and force the dispute back into the courts.

Although the agreement has been criticized from several sides, it has the backing of the state water users association and several farm organizations, which see it as the best possible solution to the dispute that has disrupted water rights processing for several years.

A real snow job

Presidential pitching isn't limited to tossing out baseballs on opening day. President Reagan wound up and let fly with a couple of snowballs — one shown in this sequence of photos — outside the White House on his way to address federal employees at Constitution Hall. The story is on Page A4.

Dole erupts at Defense chief

By TOM RAUM

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, venting frustration over difficulty at reaching GOP budget accord, lashed out at Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger on Friday for trying to "sit out" deficit-reduction efforts.

In an unusually sharp attack on the administration official, the Kansas Republican also accused Weinberger of using inflated economic figures to exaggerate Pentagon belt-tightening.

"They've been able to survive over there (the Pentagon) without much difficulty," Dole said in a speech to public relations officials. "I think the rest of the country needs to survive too."

Dole suggested Weinberger's unyielding attitude on military spending was hampering efforts by Senate Republicans to craft their own deficit-reduction package.

"I'm willing to go after sensitive programs ... but don't count on me if Weinberger continues to sit it out," Dole said. "We're in real trouble if we can't get together on defense numbers."

"I won't say everything is lost if we don't get more defense spending restraint — but we might be close to it," he added.

Weinberger did not respond personally to Dole's criticism. Late Friday, however, top Pentagon spokesman Michael I. Burch issued a statement noting it was not Weinberger's budget that was under attack, "but the president's budget."

"And cutting defense does not solve the deficit problem," the spokesman added. "Cutting defense means the loss of national security, the loss of jobs, the loss of taxes. Every billion dollars of defense spending means 35,000 jobs."

After his speech, Dole and other Republican senators met with White House chief of staff James A. Baker to discuss the budget. Dole left the meeting without talking to reporters, but Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., predicted that the administration and GOP senators would probably reach a compromise embracing "some kind of a freeze" on cost of living increases, including those for Social Security recipients, and "some kind of a substantial reduction" in proposed military spending.

"I would not expect that Cap Weinberger would ever surrender," Heinz said. "That's not his job as the chief civilian over at the Defense Department. But I do hope that we will have the benefit of his expertise in the event that we go for something close to a freeze" on Pentagon spending.

Weinberger agreed to trim $8.7 billion from an overall proposed defense budget of $286 billion, but that figure still represents a substantial increase over the current budget. Weinberger has repeatedly cautioned congressional leaders not to include Pentagon spending in any across-the-board spending freeze.

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., also voiced frustration on Friday with Weinberger's uncompromising attitude, but in a gentler fashion than his Senate colleague. "That's (Weinberger's) posture. I know it. We've been dealing with it. We've got to deal with it again," Michel said, speaking later in the day to the same group addressed by Dole.

"I never saw a defense budget that couldn't be cut," Michel added.

Meanwhile, Dole announced that he will seek to use a parliamentary shortcut to try to win quick congressional action on the deficit-cutting plan, but the scheme immediately ran into strong opposition from House Democrats.

"The House is not going to go along with that," said House Majority Leader Jim Wright, D-Texas, adding that the House would stick to the usual procedure of requiring a congressional budget outline to be completed by May with measures to implement the outline to follow later in the year.

Deficit grows $15 billion in December

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The federal government spent $15.2 billion more than it collected in December.

That made the deficit for the first three months of fiscal 1985 14.4 percent worse than a year earlier, the Treasury Department reported Friday.

For the first quarter of the fiscal year, which began in Oct. 1, spending has outpaced revenues by $72.4 billion. This compares with a deficit of $63.3 billion during the same period in 1984.

The increase in interest payments on the debt, already the third biggest item in the budget, was even greater. Interest payments for the first quarter of this fiscal year totaled $49.4 billion, 23.3 percent above the level a year ago.

The Reagan administration, which only last August was predicting that this year's deficit would be lower than 1984, is now braced for a red ink total approaching $120 billion.

That would be well above the record of $195.4 billion set in fiscal 1983. The fiscal 1984 deficit was $175.3 billion.

The growth in the expected deficit this year, caused in part from slower-than-anticipated growth in the economy, has left the administration and congressional leaders scrambling to find more ways to cut spending to keep future budget deficits from escalating even more.

The $15.2 billion December deficit contrasted with deficits of $28.5 billion in November and $28.8 billion in October.

For the first three months of this fiscal year, revenues have totaled $166.1 billion, an 11.2 percent increase over the same period in fiscal 1984. However, outlays, which totaled $238.6 billion, posted a 12.2 percent increase.

The biggest spending was done by the Department of Health and Human Services, with outlays of $77.5 billion during the three months ending in December. This was followed by the Defense Department, which spent $35.6 billion, and interest payments on the debt, which totaled $49.4 billion, including $23.4 billion in December alone.

The HHS spending was 8.7 percent above the same period a year ago, while military spending was up 10 percent and the interest payments on the $1.68 trillion debt rose the fastest of any category — up 23.3 percent.

Meese's legal fees spark hot squabble

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Justice Department's attorney general, Edwin Meese III, for reimbursement of more than $700,000 in legal fees incurred during an independent commission of investigation, according to court documents.

A special three-judge federal court ordered the White House to pay the fees, but the Justice Department's attorneys refused to furnish Meese's request for reimbursement of his legal fees.

The department's brief, and the court's order, were disclosed as Meese agreed to sell some stock and take a leave of absence to avoid an appearance of impropriety, according to documents submitted to the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Idahoan pops trial balloon for Interior-Energy merger

By MATT YANCEY

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Reagan administration's trial balloon for merging the Energy and Interior departments sprang another leak Friday, with a key Republican senator saying "it should not take place."

Joining a chorus of other leading lawmakers in pool-pooling President Reagan's latest overture to fulfilling his 1980 campaign promise to abolish the Energy Department was Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

McClure also termed as "between zero and none" the chances of Congress going along with Treasury

Secretary Donald Regan's proposed tax simplification plan, which would eliminate many tax breaks enjoyed by the energy industry.

He also said he would oppose any effort to impose new taxes on falling gasoline prices or on oil and petroleum product imports that are beginning to pose a threat to refineries and independent producers in the United States.

But he indicated that he is not averse to the administration's plans to suspend further oil purchases for the nation's emergency Strategic Petroleum Reserve once it reaches 500 million barrels, roughly equal to a 90-day supply of U.S. imports.

In a wide-ranging interview with several reporters, McClure said the administration's revival of a merging Energy into another agency "was built around the personality of one man."

And while he praised Energy Secretary Donald Regan as being "competent" and popular with members of both parties, he said that is not reason enough to put the two departments together under Regan's direction.

Reagan nominated Hodel two weeks ago to succeed William Clark as interior secretary and tapped White House personnel chief John Herington to succeed Hodel at Energy. He instructed the two men to study the possibility of combining the

Auditors to be less effective

BOISE (AP) — Increased federal auditing requirements combined with limited state financial resources will likely cause a reduction in the effectiveness of Idaho's legislative auditors, Auditor Bruce Balderston said Friday.

The result, he told the budget-writing Joint Finance Appropriations Committee, will probably be a major reduction in the amount of money his auditing staff can save the state through its periodic reviews of agency operations.

"The thing that we're left doing are not the money-saving things," Balderston said.

With the state's revenue outlook dim for the coming budget year, Balderston has asked for authorized spending of just $900,000 in the new year, effectively the same as his current budget and enough to maintain his 25-man staff.

Water contaminated near silo

BOISE (AP) — Water samples from a well drilled near a concrete missile silo at the EnviroSafe Services of Idaho hazardous waste dump site at Grand View indicate underground contamination, Congressman Larry Craig says.

Craig said Friday he's been notified by both the company and the federal Environmental Protection Agency that water samples show contamination at both 60 feet under ground and 192 feet. There is no immediate health hazard, he said.

Craig said he was informed Friday by Ed Ashby, director of EnviroSafe Services, that preliminary results from a test well showed traces of PCB, a cancer-causing chemical, pesticides and some common industrial solvents at 60 feet underground, near the silo.

Polish court watches film

TORUN, Poland (AP) — A court trying four secret policemen for the killing of a pro-Soviet priest watched a police film Friday that showed the clergyman's body moments after it was recovered by frogmen from a reservoir in northern Poland.

The 30-minute, black-and-white film was presented by the prosecution to show the condition of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko's body when it was found 11 days after being thrown into the water.

Popieluszko was a militant defender of the outlawed Solidarity free trade union and one of the most popular priests in Poland, a devoutly religious Roman Catholic country.

Terrorists take aim at NATO

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department said Friday it has learned that terrorist groups in several Western European countries had decided to attack NATO installations, governments that are members of the alliance and other targets.

Deputy spokesman Edward Djerejian said the United States has been in close touch with other governments to meet the threat, but he gave no details.

The Christian Science Monitor reported in Friday's editions that explosives used by Direct Action in France, a leftist guerrilla group, in an abortive attack in Paris last summer were the same type by West Germany's Red Army Faction in the attempted bombing of a North Atlantic Treaty Organization officers' school in that country on Dec. 18.

Crash victims' bodies found

TEGUIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The bodies of two of 21 Americans aboard a U.S. Air Force plane that crashed into the Caribbean Sea were found Friday in Trujillo Bay, an American Embassy spokesman says.

Late Friday, the Pentagon in Washington announced that a third body had been found and said the search was suspended for the night but would resume Tuesday.

The C-130 transport plane went down in bad weather Tuesday, and the weather has hampered the search effort.

State of emergency extended

PARIS (AP) — Parliament on Friday extended for six months the state of emergency in the French territory of New Caledonia where clashes between pro and anti-independence groups have taken 20 lives since mid-November.

In other developments, the president of the territorial government reversed his stand and offered to meet with the leader of the independence movement, and it was announced that two more French warships were headed for New Caledonia.

Defense Minister Charles Hernu reported the ship movements during a ceremony at a navy school in Saint-Mandier in southern France, but gave few details. He said two navy escort ships and 6,012 French "military men," including gendarmes, already are stationed in the South Pacific island group.

New storm sweeps over Ohio leaving snow-blocked roads

By ROGER PETERSON
The Associated Press

A new storm raced across the Midwest and Ohio Valley on Friday with wind gusts of 50 mph hammering snow into road-choking drifts, blowing cars across highways and causing the deaths of at least four people.

More than 1,000 students were prepared to spend the night at school in Ohio because of dangerous road conditions. In Minnesota, National Guardsmen were called out to rescue snowbound motorists.

The cold front hit the upper Midwest late Thursday, and by mid-day Friday had already crossed the Ohio River into Kentucky.

Blinding snow contributed to multi-car pileups in northern Ohio and Indiana, where one person was killed, and Kentucky, where two people died.

"It was just like a wall of snow," said Kentucky Trooper Eddie Lair.

"Winds have actually blown vehicles from the roadway," added Trooper John Lambert. "The visibility during the blizzard was zero. I know because I was out in it."

In Crawfordsville, Ind., an 88-year-old man died of exposure in the sub-freezing weather after he slipped and fell on his front stoop.

The fast-moving storm came on the heels of a massive cold wave blamed for 176 deaths in 23 states since last week.

More than a foot of new drifting snow was reported in Preston County, W.Va., where thousands of rural residents have been stuck at home for a week by roads blocked by drifts up to 20 feet high.

Wind gusts to 50 mph in Illinois at Moline and Peoria, and the weather service reported wind chill factors down to 60 degrees below zero across the upper Midwest. Temperatures were below zero in Minnesota and the eastern Dakotas. The low in the lower 48 states was 18 degrees below zero at Bismarck, N.D.

Up to 18 inches of snow fell at Calumet, Mich., and schools were closed through much of the state's Upper Peninsula.

"We were out busting drifts open all night," said Marquette County, Mich., Sheriff's Deputy Bruce Beliste.

A multi-car accident along Interstate 65 killed one person and state police Sgt. John Byrnum said Indiana troopers were "up to their elbow in accidents."

Part of I-65 north of Indianapolis was closed and National Guard Capt. Patrick Carney said 18 travelers took shelter at the Lebanon armory.

Cities across northern Ohio were blasted by the storm, which was accompanied by thunder and lightning. "All of a sudden, boom, you couldn't see anything," said meteorologist Brad Vreck in Cleveland.

In Iroquois County, Ill., about 950 motorists were stranded on a 60-mile stretch of Interstate 57 from Champaign-Urbana to Kankakee.

Astronauts launch satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Discoverer's astronauts on Friday successfully designed a $300 million spy satellite intended to save drop on Soviet military and diplomatic communications, sources said.

There was no official confirmation from the Air Force or the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, in keeping with the military-imposed silence surrounding most details of the mission.

The sources, who spoke only on condition they not be identified, said the 25-ton satellite was released from the shuttle's cargo bay about 5 a.m. MST on the first full day in space for the five-man crew.

The sources had no reports on the effectiveness of the rocket which was to boost the satellite to its duty station 22,300 miles high over the equator south of the Soviet Union.

"We don't have anything to say on that," said an Air Force spokesman, Capt. Miles Wiley, in Houston. "We will at some time announce whether the IUS (the booster rocket) failed or was successful, but we're not at the point of making that announcement yet."

An afternoon status report simply restated what had been announced previously: "The orbiter Discoverer, its crew and the space transportation system are performing satisfactorily."

Lt. Col. John Booth of the Air Force said disclosure that the deployment had taken place "would have tended to divulge what we are doing in space and we don't intend to do so, even after the fact. It's an advantage we have and don't intend to lose."

The reporting delay is only one of several secrecy steps being taken to confound Soviet tracking efforts during this first completely classified U.S. manned space flight.

If no news is good news, the first American military shuttle mission must be the most successful space flight on record. Secrecy the Pentagon wanted, secrecy is what it's getting.

The Johnson Space Center in Houston, home of mission control, summed up the first day of flight in a one-minute, 20-second statement that "the orbiter Discoverer, her crew and elements of the space transportation system are still performing satisfactorily."

justly bringing charges against Meese.

The plea for reimbursement of legal costs had been kept under court seal until Friday, as had documents filed with the court by the Justice Department and by Stein.

Meese's plea for reimbursement, contained in a voluminous series of affidavits and other documents totaling over 800 pages, is based on an amendment to the Ethics in Government Act of 1982, which set up the system of appointing independent counsels to investigate allegations against high-ranking officials.

The petition says the independent counsel's investigation by Stein imposed "extensive burdens both financially and professionally" on Meese. "In the absence of the independent counsel chapter in the Ethics Act," it said, "there would have been no reason for any serious consideration of a criminal investigation of Mr. Meese."

The Meese petition cited "prevailing market rates" for legal services in Washington, D.C. Two of Meese's principal lawyers, both of whom charged him $250 an hour for their services, were Leonard Garment and E. Robert Wallace.

Meese's petition shows, however, that much of the legal work was carried out by these lawyers' associates and by law assistants. It says 736 hours of services were provided by "partners," 2,683 hours by associates and 1,293 by "paralegals."

Meese's attempt to recoup the legal debts has caused problems for the Justice Department, which he would head if confirmed by the Senate.

The department, among other things, has responsibility for preventing excessive drains on the treasury.

McClure

two departments under Hodel's direction.

McClure said he thought "the study will show that it should not take place."

The administration was forced two years ago to shelve its plan for merging Energy into the Commerce Department under intense opposition from McClure, Sen. J. Bennett Johnston of Louisiana, the ranking Democrat on his committee, and Reps. John Dingell, D-Mich., and Morris Udall, D-Ariz.

With McClure's remarks on Friday, all four but Johnston have now indicated they do not think abolishing the Energy Department as a separate Cabinet-level agency has any more merit now than it did in 1982.

On taxes, McClure said he does not believe the president will embrace the simplification plan of Reagan, his soon-to-be White House staff chief.

He said the energy elements in it — eliminating accelerated depreciation for electric utilities and the depletion allowances and drilling cost expensing allowed oil and gas producers — "have a chance between zero and none."

"These proposals are not going to go anywhere except away," McClure said.

He also said he opposes a new 25-cent-a-gallon tax on gasoline as a way of combating the federal deficit now that gasoline prices are beginning to fall below a dollar a gallon for the first time in five years.

"You have to remember that gasoline was 35 cents a gallon in 1973 and then shot up to above a dollar," McClure said. He added that any new taxes on it would distort the supply-demand balancing that is bringing prices down.

Committee rejects bill to alter voluntary manslaughter law

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

BOISE — A House committee, agreeing with arguments that the measure was technically flawed, refused to introduce legislation Friday eliminating voluntary manslaughter as a separate crime in Idaho.

The bill, sponsored by Twin Falls Republican Jeff Stoker, would merge the provisions of voluntary manslaughter under Idaho's second-degree murder statutes. State law would be amended to include killings as a result of a "sudden quarrel or in the heat of passion" as second-degree murder.

"Voluntary manslaughter is the out that the defense attorney always uses," Stoker said. "I just can't believe that our society has not advanced to the point that we should not have a voluntary manslaughter provision."

He said the availability of voluntary manslaughter as an alternative allows juries to avoid convicting people on more serious, and perhaps more appropriate charges.

But Lynn Thomas, Idaho solicitor general and head of the attorney general's criminal appeals division, said if the bill had been law two years ago, trapper Charles Dallas may have been exonerated of charges he killed two Department of Fish and Game officers.

The evidence against Dallas in the 1981 shooting deaths of Conley Elms and Bill Pogue was "extremely strong," Thomas said, and only a "fluke in the jury system" kept him from being convicted of first-degree murder.

But that same jury system, unwilling to find

Dallas guilty of second-degree murder, may have convicted him only of involuntary manslaughter or acquitted him completely, he said.

"The real risk you have in this statute is that you may create loopholes which may make it difficult to obtain convictions in some cases or to get the death penalty in capital cases," Thomas said. Such a sweeping change in definition could have implications for other state homicide laws as well, and warrants further study, he said.

Thomas Eugene Creech, convicted and sentenced to die for the 1981 first-degree murder of a fellow inmate at the state prison in Boise, also may not be on Death Row if Stoker's measure were in place. Thomas said. He said the provision that second-degree murder include a "sudden quarrel" may have been included in the Creech case.

Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said eliminating voluntary manslaughter would amount to second guessing juries.

"I really believe that juries don't get as confused as people think they do," said Ms. McDermott, an attorney. "You can't legislate against incompetent prosecution, nor can you legislate against incompetent defense."

The panel voted unanimously to return the measure to Stoker, who pledged to revise it for reintroduction.

Evans sets right-to-work talk

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans will meet with a right-to-work spokesman next week before he takes action on the right-to-work bill passed by the Idaho Legislature.

The Senate passed the bill, outlawing mandatory union membership or payment of union dues as a condition of employment, on Thursday after a debate of nearly three hours.

After the necessary paperwork was completed, the bill was delivered to the governor shortly after noon on Friday. That gives Evans until about noon on Thursday to sign it, veto it or let it become law without his signature.

Evans has vetoed similar legislation in the past, and has left little doubt he will do the same this time.

This year, however, Republicans have enough votes to override the governor's veto. If there are no changes from the original vote to approve the bill, both Senate and House will have enough votes to make right-to-work law without the governor's approval.

House Speaker Tom Silvers said if Evans acts Thursday morning, the House and Senate could take a possible veto up the same day and the right-to-work law could go into effect before the day was over.

But first Evans plans a Tuesday morning meeting with Terry McKnight, cochairman of the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee.

Two drinking age bills printed

BOISE (AP) — Two new drinking-age bills will be considered by the Idaho Legislature, because the sponsors of previous bills are concerned about what could happen if they put the original measures up for amendment.

"When you put a bill up for general orders (amendment) 10 things can happen to them and nine of them are bad," said Rep. Walter Little, R-New Plymouth.

He's chairman of the House State Affairs Committee. That panel voted Friday, with little discussion, to print and introduce two new bills, both raising the drinking age from 18 to 21.

Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, sponsored one, to put Idaho in line with a federal mandate that it raise the legal drinking age to 21 or face the loss of federal highway funds.

Rep. Dean Haugenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, sponsored a similar version, except that Haugenson's bill expands the legal hours for drinking.

Idaho may join in lawsuit

BOISE (AP) — Idaho may join South Dakota's lawsuit over what legislators say is "federal blackmail" over raising the drinking age to 21.

The House State Affairs Committee voted to print and introduce a proposal from Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, to direct the attorney general to join the South Dakota lawsuit.

It challenges action in Congress last year threatening states with the loss of federal highway funds if they don't raise the legal drinking age to 21 by October of 1986.

Ms. McDermott said the action was "very unpopular" with her district, and voters consider it "federal blackmail."

Rep. Lyman Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, suggested expanding the action to include other forms of federal coercion, such as requiring states to adopt federal environmental laws and regulations.

Panel OKs wilderness measure

BOISE (AP) — The Legislature moved closer Friday to sending a message to Congress that lawmakers want no more than 500,000 acres added to Idaho's wilderness system.

Rep. Walt Little, R-New Plymouth, told the House Resources and Conservation Committee that a joint memorial urging Congress to set a cap on new wilderness acreage was "a compromise of a compromise."

The panel agreed to recommend passage of the bill, with only Pocatello Democrats Linda Dewey, Larry Echolfaw and Albert Johnson dissenting.

No banks failing, says official

BOISE (AP) — Although some banks are having financial problems, no Idaho state banks are in danger of failing, says Finance Director Thomas McElowney.

The state hasn't had a failure of a state bank in 25 years, he said Thursday, and the Department of Finance is keeping a close watch to see that it doesn't happen now.

Last week in an appearance before the Legislature's budget committee, McElowney said his agency is keeping close tabs on three banks with financial problems.

That prompted criticism from banking organizations, because McElowney did not identify the banks involved.

McElowney said there are "many regulatory alternatives" that can and will be used before a bank is liquidated. The options include changes in management, capital infusion and forced mergers.

"None of the Idaho state banks are in a condition where the department has intervened in the affairs of the bank," he said.

Panel narrowly OKs tuition tax credits

By MARK WARBIS
The Associated Press

BOISE — The House Education Committee was barely able to muster the needed votes Friday to introduce a bill establishing tuition tax credits for both private and public schools in Idaho.

After more than 90 minutes of discussion, the panel voted 9-8 to have the measure printed, with Rep. George Johnson of Lewiston splitting from his Democratic colleagues to provide the winning margin.

The legislation, sponsored by Rep. J.E. "Chad" Chabband, R-Idaho Falls, would allow tax credits for tuition, transportation and textbooks up to $700 per student for parents of elementary school students, and up to $1,000 for high school students.

Chabband, who introduced a similar bill late in the 1984 Legislature, said the savings for parents would help shift students from public to private schools. He said in the long run, that would save the state millions of dollars in the cost of public education.

He then returned five times as much for every dollar spent on this program," he said, adding that about $2,000 per year is currently needed from all funding sources to educate each student in public schools.

Representatives from private and parochial schools told the committee the legislation would help all education in Idaho by giving parents a choice.

"It's good education policy for parents to choose the school system right for their children," said Mike Reifel, superintendent of Catholic elementary schools in Idaho. A private-school education currently is a luxury for most people, "and not everyone can make that choice."

Dave Mehlhoff, principle of Cole Christian Schools in Boise, said "Having a viable choice will improve the quality of every child's education."

Chabband estimated the initial impact on state tax revenues would be about $6.4 million. That was based on projections that about 5,400 of the 7,200 private-school students in the state would claim an average $400 tax credit, and that parents of all the more than 208,000 public-school students would claim credits averaging $20.

But he said that cost would be offset as the percentage of Idaho students in private schools grows from 3.7 percent to nearer the national average of 11 percent.

As much as $17.2 million currently paid out to public schools could be saved if Idaho reached the national average number of private-school students, Chabband said.

But Rep. Pete Black, D-Pocatello, disputed those figures, saying students transferring to private schools would not have a significant impact on needed programs and services in public schools.

Utility asks for change

BOISE (AP) — Unless the Public Utilities Commission changes the rates Idaho Power Co. must pay to cogenerators, Idaho ratepayers will wind up paying millions of dollars for unneeded power, the company says.

Idaho Power on Friday filed a request with the PUC, asking for a sharp reduction in the rate it has to pay to cogenerators be reduced sharply.

Under a federal law, the utility must purchase power from cogenerators, who often generate small amounts of electricity as a byproduct. Some sawmills are using wood waste to generate electricity.

Idaho Power now must pay an average of 6.8 cents per kilowatt-hour, on an "avoided cost" basis.

That's figured on the theory that by buying cogenerated electricity, a utility will avoid the need to build new generating plants.

"Idaho Power ratepayers could easily end up paying millions of dollars in higher electric rates for energy they don't need yet unless the cogeneration rate is lowered," said Idaho Power Chairman James Bruce.

"We simply won't need additional generating resources until well into the 1990s after the second unit of the Palo Verde plant in Nevada is finished this summer."

In the PUC application, the utility said because of regional energy surpluses, and the fact Idaho Power has no current plans to build new power plants of its own, its "avoided cost" should be lowered.

Man claims right violated

BOISE (AP) — A former Nampa city worker says city officials violated his constitutional rights by firing him for talking to the press.

Wesley Coffelt filed suit in U.S. District Court in Boise on Tuesday, asking a jury trial and more than $2 million in damages from Nampa and several city officials, including Mayor Winston Goering.

Coffelt claims he was fired from his job at the Nampa wastewater treatment plant in December 1983 after talking to a local newspaper about alleged inefficient waste disposal and improper use of public property by another city employee.

Coffelt made public allegations that the manager of the plant, Gary Towell, used city money to buy computer "Joy sticks" and a color TV, and played computer games during working hours, the suit says.

Corn production up last year but falls short of 1982 record

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. corn production rebounded sharply in 1984 from the previous year's drought, and government-restricted crop, but still fell short of 1982's record corn output, an Agriculture Department year-end estimate said Friday.

The department's Crop Reporting Board said in its annual review that 1984 corn production hit 7.65 billion bushels, an 83 percent increase from 1983. That figure was 7 percent less than the 1982 high of 8.2 billion bushels.

The estimate represented an increase of 120 million bushels over the department's last estimate of 7.53 billion bushels, issued in November.

Drought and the government's "payment-in-kind" acreage-idling program held output down in 1983.

Corn yields averaged 106.6 bushels per acre, up from 1983's low of 81.1 bushels. Farmers harvested 71.8 million acres, up 39 percent from the previous year.

Overall, 1984 crop production was rated at 110 percent of a 1977 base level used for comparison. The "all crops" indicator had plummeted to 87 percent last year after reaching a record 118 percent in 1982.

Total food crops, mainly wheat, hit 129 percent of the production base year, the third-highest level in a decade. Food crops led the advance in the overall index, offsetting lower numbers for tobacco, cotton and sugar crops.

Tobacco was 91 percent of the 1977 average last year, up from 75 percent in 1983; cotton registered 92 on the index, an increase from 54 the previous year; sugar crops were 96, up from 93 and oil crops, mainly soybeans, 106 percent, up from 91 percent.

Feed grains, including corn, showed the sharpest rebound, hitting 115 on the index after registering only 67 in 1983, when drought hit the corn crop severely.

The wheat crop of 2.6 billion bushels was up 7 percent from 1983 but still short of the 2.76 billion recorded in 1982. It was slightly ahead of November's estimate of 2.57 billion bushels.

Wheat yields averaged 33.8 bushels per acre, 0.6 bushel below 1983's record high. Harvested area, at 66.9 million acres, was 9 percent above the previous year's level.

Soybean production, at 1.86 billion bushels, was 14 percent more than in 1983 and down from November's estimate of 1.9 billion. The area harvested, 66.1 million acres, was 6 percent up from a year earlier and average yield, 28.2 bushels per acre, was 2 bushels ahead of 1983.

Cotton production was estimated at 13.3 million bales, 72 percent above 1983 and down from last month's estimate of 13.4 million.

The 1984 rice crop was 137 million hundredweight, up 37 percent from the previous year, and sorghum production, at 866 million bushels, was up 78 percent.

Reagan peps up staff

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, trying to get his administration revved up for his second term, told a cheering audience of political appointees Friday they can change history forever and that "it's all ahead full. No turning back."

Reagan was greeted by nearly two minutes of applause, cheers and whistles as he stepped on stage at Constitution Hall to deliver a pep talk to the fourth annual forum of his appointees, several thousand of whom left their desks throughout government to come hear the boss.

Flanked by his Cabinet secretaries in chairs behind him, Reagan cautioned against resting on the victories of his first term. "From here on in, it's 'shake, rattle and roll,'" he declared.

The president said, "It's been a tremendous four years. And I'm feeling absolutely bullish on the next four. I was just thinking the other day that in our first administration, we made history. In the second, we can change history forever."

Repeating a phrase he said he first voiced as an actor, playing a submarine skipper, Reagan said, "It's all ahead full. No turning back."

Reagan was in a buoyant mood as he left the White House for the speech two blocks away. Walking from the Oval Office to his limousine, the 73-year-old president reached down to pick a snowball and threw it at a nearby tree. He did the same thing when he returned.

Reagan told the audience that in the first four years, the administration was able to lower tax rates and institute tax indexing, slow the growth of government, reduce inflation, watch the ranks of the employed grow to a record number, curb federal regulations and begin to return power to states and communities.

He also trumpeted that economic expansion in the fourth quarter of 1984 was the biggest since the Truman administration.

"In the next four years, all of us, together, are going to transform America," Reagan pledged.

U.S. hits Iranian arms deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — A White House spokesman said Friday there is reason to believe that Iran is arranging an arms deal with Nicaragua and added that Iranian contacts with Nicaragua's leftist government are causing concern about "the potential for some expansion of terrorism in this hemisphere."

Robert Sims, deputy press secretary for foreign affairs, commented on a statement by President Reagan, who had said Thursday, "A danger we see in Central America is the support being given to the Sandinistas by Colonel (Moammar) Khadafi, the PLO (Palestine Liberation Organization) and most recently, the Ayatollah Khomeini's Iran."

Sims said the current visit to Nicaragua of Iranian Prime Minister Mir Hossein Mousavi, who conferred with Cuban President Fidel Castro in Havana before going to Managua "is obviously evidence of political support for the Sandinista regime by Iran."

"There is also reason to believe that Iran is in the process of arranging support in the form of oil supplies and funding for armaments which would add to the Nicaraguan arsenal and obviously we would be concerned about any additional involvement of countries outside the hemisphere," Sims said.

"As to where it might lead, the potential for some expansion of terrorism in this hemisphere is always a concern for us as well," Sims said.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes had said Thursday that Reagan's remarks about Iran were based on "other factors" in addition to Mousavi's visit, but declined to elaborate.

Sims told reporters that since the autumn of 1979, the Sandinistas have expanded their armed forces from 2,000 to about 119,000, of whom 62,000 are on active duty.

Piotr Sternik, son of a Solidarity activist, hugs his mother before heart surgery.

Polish boy has operation in U.S. thanks to donations

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — The 6-year-old son of a former Solidarity labor activist in Poland underwent apparently successful heart surgery Friday thanks to donations of airline tickets, surgeons' time and $25,000 for hospital fees.

Piotr Sternik and his mother, Halina, left their home in Gdansk, Poland, for the operation, which is unavailable in the Communist bloc outside Moscow, according to Mike Goodkind, spokesman for Stanford University Medical Center.

During the eight-hour operation, Drs. Norman Shumway and John Macovlak spent five hours grafting a new ventricle and pulmonary artery from a human donor onto Piotr's heart to correct a congenital defect that doctors say eventually would have suffocated him by forcing blood to bypass his lungs.

The operation was completed about 3 p.m. and appeared to be successful, said Mary-Nelson Campbell, a hospital spokeswoman.

A 7- to 10-day recuperation period at the hospital is anticipated, said Mrs. Campbell. Doctors want him to stay in the area for a few weeks more so they can examine him periodically before he goes home, she said.

Because the child and his mother plan to return to Gdansk, surgeons decided against using animal or synthetic tissues, and opted for human tissue in hopes of minimizing the chance of rejection, said Goodkind.

Mrs. Sternik was at the hospital from the time her child was admitted Thursday. "She spent the whole night sitting next to him and making sure he had a restful night," said family friend Peter Wasowski.

The boy's father, Michael, remains in Poland, and Mrs. Sternik said she wouldn't tell him about the surgery until it was over.

"He drives a taxi, and I'm afraid he might have an accident," she thinks about Piotr, she said.

As the boy entered the operating room, he was given a surgical glove that had been inflated like a balloon and painted with a happy face, said Wasowski. "He wanted to take it home to Poland with him," he said.

"He was very happy about having the surgery," Wasowski said about the youngster's third heart operation. "And he's looking forward to keeping up with the other children."

Wasowski, host for the Sterniks in San Carlos since their arrival in the San Francisco Bay area on Dec. 28, said Piotr had to restrict his physical activities, and tired to the point of gasping after walking 10 minutes.

He said the boy's first operation in 1979 in Poland wasn't successful. A second in San Diego in 1980 was successful, but was a temporary treatment until he was strong enough to undergo the valve transplant.

Wasowski met the family in San Diego. "We've stayed in touch the last four years, and I found out they could not find a hospital that would agree to do the surgery" because of high cost and complexity, he said.

"So I used my friends at Stanford to get him in," said the Stanford graduate, a self-employed consultant.

The trip cost the family the equivalent of two years' wages for Sternik for plane fare from Warsaw to New York, Wasowski said. Pan Am gave the Sterniks free tickets to San Francisco, he said.

Sternik was fired from his job as a delivery truck driver at the Gdansk shipyard in 1981 after he actively supported the Solidarity union movement, he said.

Medical Center demands for pre-payment of the $25,000 operation were met through a national plan for help and the Polish-American Assistance, which coordinated fund-raising. It pledged that any extra money would be used for the next Polish citizen who needs medical treatment in the United States.

About 1,000 contributions poured in, ranging from $15,000 from an unidentified San Francisco man and $1,000 from songwriter Burt Bacharach to $2 donations from children.

In addition to money, Wasowski said Piotr has received "hundreds of letters with prayers and love."

Soviets cancel export sales of wheat again

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union has canceled export sales of 200,000 metric tons of U.S. hard red winter wheat, the second such cancellation in nine days.

The Agriculture Department said Friday. On Jan. 17, the department announced a cancellation of 100,000 metric tons. Both sales had been scheduled for delivery by May 30 under the second year of a long-term grain sales agreement between the two countries.

The latest cancellation, which is equivalent to about 7.3 million bushels, reduced total Soviet buys of U.S. grain under the second year of the agreement to about 14.2 million tons.

That figure includes 11.1 million metric tons of corn and about 3.1 million tons of wheat.

No reason for the cancellation was disclosed in the announcement.

The department says the latest estimated farm price of wheat is $3.37.

per bushel. A metric ton is about 2,205 pounds and is equal to 39.4 bushels of corn or 38.7 bushels of wheat or soybeans. Thus, the cost of the cancellation would be about $54.6 million.

In the year that ended last Sept. 30, the Soviet Union bought 14.5 million tons of U.S. grain, including 7.9 million tons of wheat, 6.5 million tons of corn and 416,200 tons of soybeans.

Under the five-year agreement, the Soviets are committed to buy at least 9 million tons of wheat and corn annually.

If they choose, the Soviets can buy an additional 3 million tons of wheat and corn, making a total of 12 million tons, without further talks with the United States. If more than 12 million tons are wanted, consultations must be held.

The United States has said the Soviets will be permitted to buy an additional 10 million tons of grain in 1984-85, for a total of 22 million tons.

Gas leaks called minor

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Leaks of deadly methyl isocyanate at Union Carbide Corp.'s Institute, W.Va., plant, were minor and represented no danger to the community, a company executive said Friday.

Jackson B. Browning, the Danbury-based company's corporate director of health, safety and environmental affairs, also played down the gravity of internal safety reports that warned of the potential for a "runaway reaction" at the plant.

The Environmental Protection Agency on Wednesday said 26 unreported spills of the chemical — which killed more than 2,000 people in Bhopal, India, in December — had occurred since 1980 at the Institute plant.

Browning said a spill on New Year's Day 1984, when the EPA said 840 pounds of methyl isocyanate were released, actually involved only five pounds of the chemical — what he termed "a minuscule amount."

Mine hearings halted

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Federal hearings on the Wilberg Mine fire, halted abruptly when a judge ruled they could not be closed to reporters, were postponed Friday until the ruling is tested in court.

"Officials will wait until Feb. 1 to continue the hearings," Frank O'Gorman, spokesman for the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration in Arlington, Va., said Friday.

U.S. District Judge David K. Winder on Thursday issued a temporary restraining order which said the federal mine agency must either admit a pool reporter to the hearings in Price, or discontinue them pending a hearing next Friday on a request by news organizations for a preliminary injunction.

In a related matter, O'Gorman said MSHA had doubted the number of witnesses to be interviewed by investigators. Originally, 29 employees of Emery Mining Corp. — the mine's operator — had been scheduled to testify. But O'Gorman said another 29 had been added to the list and the hearings would take at least three weeks instead of the five days originally planned.

Federal investigators will continue to analyze records and evidence relating to the Dec. 29 coal mine fire

Reno crash victims named by officials

RENO, Nev. (AP) — This usually nonstop gambling city paused to observe a day of mourning Friday as the names of 66 of the 68 tourists killed in a charter airplane crash were released.

Coroner Vern McCarty said up to 20 caskets of victims from Galaxy Airlines Flight 203 would be shipped back to Minnesota late Friday with 20 more each day thereafter. He said efforts were continuing to identify the remaining two victims.

Across town from the temporary morgue at the county fairgrounds, federal investigators removed the charred engines of the Galaxy Airlines turboprop Electra to an airport hangar to search for clues to the disaster.

That prompted the airline to announce it was grounding its three remaining Electras for inspection. Its other two only cargo and one is out of service for maintenance.

Flight 203, carrying a chartered party of vacationers from Minnesota, plowed into the ground Monday near Reno's airport shortly after takeoff on its way home. Just three of the 71 people on board survived.

The only person on the plane to walk away from the crash was allowed to drive to his home.

Goetz to face gun charges

NEW YORK (AP) — A grand jury on Friday refused to indict Bernhard Goetz for attempted murder in the shootings of four young men on a subway, and instead indicted him only on three counts of criminal possession of a weapon.

"What the grand jury decided here was that he was illegally carrying a pistol but he was justified in protecting himself from a robbery," said Manhattan District Attorney Robert Morgenthau, in announcing the indictment.

Goetz's lawyer, Joseph Kalner, called the action a vindication, and said Goetz was "very pleased. It increases his sense of confidence and respect for our system of law and justice."

Goetz, 37, who remains free on $50,000 bail, was not available for comment. Arraignment was scheduled for Feb. 6.

The indictment by the 23-member grand jury was the latest twist in a case that has drawn national attention since Dec. 22, when the four youths asked Goetz to give them $5 and he reeled off five shots instead.

ed outdoors for the first time Friday, to meet briefly with reporters.

George Lamson Jr., 17, of St. Paul, Minn., said he was looking forward to leaving the hospital and getting back home to his friends.

"I miss them a lot. I'll be glad to be back," he said.

Mayor Pete Steriaccia declared Friday a day of mourning in the city and told a memorial service attended by hundreds, "Throughout our community we hear expressions of disbelief and concern."

"To have a tragedy like this causes one to consider the temporariness of life," he said. "And yet to see the community rally to offer support and services, makes one consider the quality of life."

"These kinds of things always happen someplace else," he said.

Meanwhile, Galaxy Airlines president Philip Sheridan, announcing the grounding of his airline's other problem-plagued Electras, said the doomed craft had been properly maintained despite reports of smoke and fluid leaks in days before Monday's crash.

What's what

In gambling, women win more consistently than men. Women are more methodical in the way they bet. Men wager whimsically sometimes to show off, thus lower their success rate. But once women get their systems working, they seem more inclined to stick to said systems. So contends a lifelong observer of the gambling tables.

Q. What's the average weight of women in their 30s?

A. 133 pounds.

It's clear why most infants don't object to what they're fed from bottles. They don't development much of a sense of smell until they're about nine months old, so can't taste much, either.

OLDEST SURNAME

Q. Which is the oldest known surname — "Cohen" or "Katz"?

A. Debatable. Katz is usually so identified. But Katz was the initials of two words — Kohan Tseck — so some claim Kohan should get that credit. It's said every Katz is a priest, descending in an unbroken line from Aaron, the brother of Moses.

Q. Any danger that the $2 bill will be deemed unacceptable someday?

A. No, sir, all currencies and coins ever issued by the U.S. Government are legal tender. In perpetuity. Congress so provided.

SPELL R

All right, let's see you come up with the 10 ways to spell the sound of "R."

Q. The writer F. Scott Fitzgerald — what did he die of? And at what age?

A. Liquor. 44. He once said he never wrote a line drunk he couldn't have written better sober.

Q. In what state is it that six visits to a girl's house is the same under the law as a formal marriage proposal?

A. Maryland used to have that one. Please note, most such old laws nationwide have been tossed out. In place, now, are new family law packages that deal more realistically with our Love and War man's specialties.

Q. If a million minutes is almost two years, how long is a billion minutes?

A. About a 900-year-old.

Q. Most new types of roses come out of where?

A. California.

Ringo Starr's son says nuptials in secret wedding ceremony

LONDON (AP) — Zak Starkey, 19-year-old son of former Beatles drummer Ringo Starr, married the 25-year-old daughter of a hairdresser in a secret ceremony in a London suburb, the bride's mother said Friday.

Starkey and Sarah Menikides were married in a civil ceremony Thursday in Bracknell, 30 miles west of London, the bride's mother, Buntie Menikides, told the British news agency Press Association.

She said there were only three witnesses at the ceremony, which was kept secret on instructions from Starr, 44, whose real name is Richard Starkey.

"Ringo's family and our family decided to stay away from the service to try to protect Zak and Sarah from publicity. I don't think they would have been able to cope with all the razzmatazz," said Mrs. Menikides, whose husband is a hairdresser in London's swank Mayfair district.

She said the family and friends attended a champagne party Thursday night at Starr's mansion, Tittenhurst Park, at Ascot, near London. The bride and groom will live in a small cottage on the grounds, she said.

Lottery winner 'bored' with millionaire's life

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Wittkowski, who won $40 million, the single biggest prize known in lottery history, says he's bored and might buy a bowling alley.

Wittkowski, 25, a "retired" Chicago printer, was the center of attention at the third annual get-together of Illinois lottery millionaires at the Whitehall Hotel Thursday.

Wittkowski, a good bowler with a 184 average, said he is thinking about

MICK JAGGER
Michael's tickets too high buying a bowling alley.

"I'm not into traveling — I'm bored," he told a reporter.

The $40 million man became the $40 million family last month when the state allowed him to share his jackpot in the Labor Day weekend Lotto game with his family so he could enjoy a tax break. The Internal Revenue Service is still studying the maneuvering.

Wittkowski was one of 80 millionaires, representing $206 million in prizes, at Thursday's gathering, sponsored by the Illinois Lottery.

Wittkowski may be bored, but Arizona Harris, 72, of Chicago, said "I've had a ball" since she collected her million last winter.

Mrs. Harris, who was decked out in a white fur coat and matching hat, had spent 30 years sealing cans for a packing company.

"At last, I finally got my mink," she said.

Jagger won't wait to cut solo album

NEW YORK (AP) — Since he doesn't think the Rolling Stones will still be rocking and rolling when he's 50 — six years from now — Mick Jagger has decided to prepare for the future by doing a solo album.

"I don't want to wait until I'm that old to do it; it seems silly," Jagger, 44, says in the Feb. 14 issue of Rolling Stone magazine.

The album, titled "She's the Boss," is due out soon, the magazine said.

In the past, Jagger has done duets with performers including Carly Simon and Michael Jackson.

He called Jackson "really professional," but criticized the Jacksons' "Victory Tour" of last summer.

"I don't want to be an expert, but I think the ticket price was too high. Tickets to the concert cost $30 and had to be bought in blocks of four."

Countess to divorce husband for villager

LONDON (AP) — A woman from New Zealand who became a British countess when her husband inherited a title has ended her 22-year marriage and dumped the earl for a village handyman.

"My marriage is at an end. It's heartbreaking, but what's done is done," Lady Joan Mount Edgecombe, a mother of five, told London's Daily Express this week.

The countess said she has left her husband, Lord Mount Edgecombe, for Brian Robinson, a 43-year-old odd-job man in the village of Craithole in southwest England.

The newspaper said the countess has moved out of her 12-bedroom mansion overlooking Plymouth Sound, and into Robinson's flat.

Lord Edgecombe, a New Zealand sheep farmer, moved his family to England a year ago after inheriting his earldom.

Store owner shoots up knife-wielding robber

ROOSEVELT, N.Y. (AP) — A supermarket owner shot and killed a knife-wielding bandit after chasing him down and demanding the return of $325 allegedly stolen from the store, police said.

Nassau County Police spokesman Officer Paul Kunz said no charges have been filed against Edward Davies, 42, the owner of Treadam Foods Inc. in Roosevelt. Davies had been the victim of an armed robbery in 1978, police said.

According to Kunz, a man armed with a knife entered the store Thursday night, took about $325 from two registers and left the store.

Kunz said Davies, armed with his licensed pistol, followed the bandit from the store, confronted him outside and demanded the man return the money.

The unidentified man grabbed Davies' gun and Davies fired one shot, hitting him in the chest, according to Kunz. The man then "made a sweeping motion with his knife" and Davies fired a second shot, striking him in the back, Kunz said.

The man turned around to flee and collapsed a few feet away. He was pronounced dead at the scene by the county medical examiner, Kunz said.

The officer said the Homicide Squad and Nassau County District Attorney's office will review the incident today and decide whether the case will be brought before a grand jury. Davies has owned the store for 13 years.

Von Bulow's new trial slated to begin April 8

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Jury selection in the second attempted-murder trial of socialite Claus von Bulow will begin April 8 in Providence County Superior Court, the trial judge has announced.

Judge Corinne Grande, who was chosen to hear the case after Superior Court Presiding Justice Anthony A. Giannini moved it from Newport to the state capital, met with lawyers for nearly two hours Thursday before announcing her decision.

Miss Grande had not decided, however, whether jury selection will be made from a pool of residents in Newport County or Providence County.

Von Bulow's attorneys have said they will press the judge for a Newport County panel to allow the defendant to be tried by "his neighbors."

Von Bulow, 56, is charged with twice trying to kill his wife, Martha "Sunny" von Bulow, with insulin injections at their Newport mansion during the 1979 and 1980 Christmas holidays.

Von Bulow, a Danish-born financier, was convicted on the same charges almost three years ago, but the Rhode Island Supreme Court overturned his conviction last spring. He remains free on $10,000 bail.

Giannini announced on Tuesday that the trial will be held in Providence to prevent a backlog of cases in Newport County Superior Court.

Auto dealer advertises a real steal

CLINTON, N.C. (AP) — A car test-driven to a bank robbery by a holdup man in drag is being advertised as a "getaway special" by an auto dealership that promises, "You don't have to rob a bank to buy a used car at Thornton Chevrolet."

The ad placed Friday with the Sampson Independent, a Clinton newspaper, says the 1984 Monte Carlo allegedly used in Thursday's robbery will be discounted $655.

A man dressed as a woman took the car from the dealership on the pretense of a test drive, Police Chief Joe Puett said Friday. He drove to a branch of the First Union National Bank and brandished a revolver before the tellers.

"He had an African-type shawl over his head and he was wearing glasses, although he doesn't normally wear glasses," Puett said.

Police Lt. Jim Goodwin said bank employees described the man's skirt as "frilly and short."

"He passed a pocketbook over the counter and said, 'Fill it up with money,' or something to that effect," Puett said. The man then fled.

Soon after the car was returned to Thornton Chevrolet, police arrested William Franklin King Jr., 37, and charged him with armed bank robbery, said Puett.

Pope announces conference of bishops to review policies

By KEVIN COSTELLOE
The Associated Press

ROME — Pope John Paul II on Friday announced a special worldwide bishops' conference to review the Second Vatican Council and prepare the church for the next thousand years.

The council known as Vatican II, which ended 20 years ago, was a major move in modernizing the Roman Catholic Church.

In a move aimed at Christian unity, John Paul said that "patriarchs and some archbishops of Eastern Churches" will participate in the "extraordinary general synod."

The conservative, Polish-born pontiff, in making the surprise announcement, did not specify any Vatican II reforms that may be under scrutiny during the conference that will be held from Nov. 25 to Dec. 5.

John Paul has indicated he would like to see some revisions in the Vatican II reforms.

The pontiff made the announcement of the 20th-anniversary synod on the eve of his trip to Latin America, and more than five hours after Vatican offices had closed for the day.

He noted that he was making the announcement on the same day and in the same church that John XXIII in 1959 announced the Second Vatican Council.

In Washington, William Ryan, spokesman for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops, said "Everybody here was caught completely by surprise."

He noted that the president of the conference, Bishop James Malone of Youngstown, Ohio, and the general secretary, Monsignor Daniel Hoye, were completing a visit to Cuba and said no formal statement has been prepared.

On Oct. 17, 1978, in his first sermon after becoming pope, John Paul II said that "general criteria of loyalty to the Vatican Council" must not affect loyalty to the church's basic doctrinal truths.

Last October he increased the

number of instances in which the traditional, pre-Vatican II Latin Mass can be said.

However, John Paul has gained a reputation as a conservative mainly in such areas such as birth control, divorce and abortion, which were not among the main topics of Vatican II.

The pontiff, who announced the conference during a Mass in the Basilica of St. Paul's Outside the Walls, said the synod would "revive" the spirit of the council. But he also said it would re-examine the changes the council made "in the light of new demands."

"In total and persevering faith, today's church wants to proceed along the road toward the third millennium of its history," the pontiff said.

He told several thousand people who had filled the church for the evening service, "I attribute to this extraordinary assembly a particular importance."

He said that "patriarchs and some archbishops of Eastern Churches and the presidents of all the bishops' conferences of the five continents will participate" in the synod.

The pope said Vatican II has been a "constant point of reference" of his pontificate and "remains the fundamental event of the contemporary life of the church."

South African leader supports talks of more rights for blacks

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — President P.W. Botha, opening South Africa's first multi-racial Parliament, offered Friday to discuss giving greater property and political rights to the black majority. But he held firm to the nation's policy of racial separation.

A spokesman for the ultraconservative white faction vowed to fight the president's proposals, and a spokesman for mainstream black point of view called Botha's suggestions a ploy to divide blacks.

The legislature was expanded last fall to add two new chambers for Asians and for people of mixed race, but the white chamber has the final say. The nation's 22 million voteless blacks are still excluded.

In his 40-minute speech, Botha said the government would negotiate property ownership for millions of blacks in townships near white cities. Blacks in those areas now can only rent or lease their homes.

Moreover, he said these "urban blacks" should be allowed some participation in politics and that "negative and discriminatory aspects" of laws limiting the number of urban blacks should be scrapped.

However, Botha said, "It remains the government's point of departure that, because of the diversity of South African society, it is neither desirable nor practical to accommodate all communities in the same way."

He gave few details of his proposals but said black leaders would be invited to an unofficial forum to discuss them.

Government aides described the address as a watershed in the ruling white minority's attempts to come to terms with growing demands, both inside and outside South Africa, for major steps toward racial equality.

Frederick van Zyl Slabbert, whose opposition Progressive Federal Party opposes apartheid — segregation of the races — said Botha's proposals could mark a new approach to the country's racial conflicts.

But Patrick Lekota of the multi-racial United Democratic Front, which represents the mainstream of black opposition to apartheid, dismissed the suggestions on property ownership and political participation. He said they were a "ploy to divide the African majority."

Andries Treurnicht, who broke with Botha to form the Conservative Party, contended the president's remarks indicated racial integration has become government policy.

"The die is cast," he said, vowing his party "will fight this fatal course on every terrain."

Soviet officials say Chernenko ill, but versions of ailment vary widely MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet officials acknowledge President Konstantin U. Chernenko has been ill during the past four weeks, but their versions of his ailment vary widely, a senior Western diplomat said Friday.

"High people have said he is ill," said the diplomat, who spoke on condition that he not be identified by name or nationality. "They have said it as though they meant it, and as though it's serious. It's pretty obvious that his health has been declining."

However, the diplomat said, he had "absolutely no independent information" on the state of the 72-year-old Chernenko's health. Different Soviet officials have said that Chernenko suffers from "everything from emphysema to a stroke," the diplomat added.

He also said the Soviets seem more open about Chernenko's health problems than they were during the lengthy illness of his predecessor, Yuri V. Andropov, who died last February.

Soviet officials are "taking it more calmly," he said. "There is less feeling that this is something that there is a major reason for trying to hide or cover up," the diplomat said.

There has been speculation about Chernenko's health since his failure to appear Dec. 24 at the Red Square funeral of Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov.

Chernenko has trouble breathing when speaking, and is said to suffer from emphysema. After his failure to appear at Ustinov's funeral, there were rumors that his doctors may have advised him not to attend because of the sub-zero temperatures.

Adding to speculation about Chernenko's health was the sudden postponement last week of the Warsaw Pact summit in Sofia, Bulgaria. Chernenko had been expected to attend.

"I don't think the Sofia meeting was postponed for substantive reasons, that is, disagreement about what they were going to do there," the Western diplomat said.

In coming weeks, visits by foreign dignitaries who normally could expect to meet with Chernenko may provide more clues to his health.

Pope meets with new Brazilian chief

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II and Brazilian President-elect Tancredo Neves conferred privately Friday at the start of his six-nation tour to explain his plans for Brazil after 21 years of military rule.

The 40-minute audience at the Vatican was described by Vatican sources as "a very cordial meeting," but no details were provided.

The 74-year-old Brazilian leader, who won a comfortable election victory Jan. 15, is to be inaugurated March 15.

He is to meet with Italian President Sandro Pertini and Premier Bettino Craxi before going to Lisbon on Monday. He will also visit Washington, Mexico City and Buenos Aires.

Search focuses in murky waters

MURTAUGH — Law enforcement authorities believe a Jerome man was the driver of a car seen plunging off Milner Bridge into the Snake River Thursday afternoon.

The suspected victim, 55-year-old Paul Rudeen, and his car were not found, however, despite an intensive search Friday by almost 100 people. Gates at the Milner Dam even had been closed to aid the search.

Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said Friday evening that Rudeen had been reported missing by his family Thursday night. The car Rudeen was driving matched the description of the "brown car" that a woman reported she had seen drive into the river near the south end of Milner Bridge.

Rudeen, who owns Idaho Home Theatre in Twin Falls, had not returned home from a business trip in the Murtaugh area, Munn said. Rudeen's family contacted the Cassia County Sheriff's office at about 11 p.m. Thursday. Jerome County Sheriff's deputies investigated the call.

Based on the information, "There was a good possibility that this may be our individual," Munn said.

Rudeen's family could not be reached for comment Friday night.

At about 4 p.m. Friday, the search for the possible missing car was abandoned. Munn said deputies now will make spot checks and "we'll wait for new developments."

During the search, almost 100 people were at the scene. From the air, an airplane and helicopter scanned the river, which had been reduced to a channel after gates at Milner Dam were closed.

The search was resumed Thursday afternoon by a call to the Cassia County Sheriff's office from a woman who said she saw a car go into the river.

Deputies and volunteers from Cassia, Twin Falls and Jerome county sheriff's offices then converged on the area. Darkness forced an end to the effort at about 6 p.m.

A helicopter used by search-and-rescue teams scans the Snake River's muddy water

The surveillance resumed in force Friday morning at 8 a.m. Search and Rescue members and deputies from the various counties were armed with binoculars and bundled against the severe cold as they walked an eight-mile stretch downstream from Milner Bridge to Murtaugh Bridge.

Natural rock barriers near Murtaugh Bridge made search beyond that point unnecessary, Jerome County Sheriff Billy Crystal said.

In the afternoon, a plane from Burley and later a helicopter from Twin Falls buzzed low over the river with observers scanning the river.

Near the bridge, Hall, Munn and Crystal used their vehicles as command posts and kept in touch with each other and the spotters on the river by radio. A wrecker was parked near the bridge in case a car was found.

Search and rescue trailers in the area offered coffee and temporary warmth. The Salvation Army even supplied chili.

Shortly after 4 p.m., the search was called off. The gates at the dam had to be opened to relieve the pressure from incoming water.

Munn said he had hoped the surge of water from the opened gates might flush out any vehicle trapped in the river, but it did not happen.

About 20 miles downstream from the bridge at an Idaho Power Co. power plant, employees watched the water line fall. While the water was considerably reduced, it didn't fall enough to cause any adjustments in the generators, said Mike Hendrix, the power plant operator.

Schooling law under attack by Forrey bill

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News capitol bureau

BOISE — A proposal to change Idaho's compulsory school attendance law to ease restrictions on parents teaching their children at home — will receive its first official perusal Wednesday at the hands of a House committee.

The proposal — which would require that parents "make a good faith effort to instruct their child in the basic skills of reading, writing and mathematics" — would replace the Idaho law which requires children "to be instructed in subjects commonly and usually taught in the public schools of the state of Idaho."

The existing law also requires school-age children, who are not enrolled in public schools, to be "comparably instructed" as determined by the local school board.

Rep. Bob Forrey, R-Nampa, is scheduled to present his proposal to the House Education Committee on Tuesday.

An ongoing battle between Sam and Marjorie Shipley and the New Plymouth School District over the education of the six school-aged Shipley children has brought the legislation to the forefront and has spurred the participation of Jerome County attorney Dan Adamson.

On Thursday, a 3rd District magistrate judge decided to keep the six children in two separate foster homes until the end of the school year.

Forrey said his proposal — which would remove the authority from school districts for determining the comparability of home instruction to public school instruction — has received preliminary support from Alan Smith, lobbyist for the Idaho School Boards Association, Attorney General Jim Jones, Rick Van Hemert, lobbyist for the Idaho

Association of School Administrators, Adamson and Idaho Superintendent of Public Instruction Jerry Evans.

"They're supporting it at this stage," Forrey said, adding, "Jerry (Evans) likes it. He will support it."

But Evans and Jones both said they have not decided whether they will support the measure. Attempts to contact Van Hemert, Smith and Adamson were unsuccessful.

However, Harry Weed, the husband of Adamson's law partner, Marlene Weed, said Adamson does support the latest proposal.

Evans, the state's top education official, says he sees room for improvement in the law. He says he is not sure Forrey's bill is the right approach.

"We're taking a look at it. It's a much improved piece of legislation from what he originally drafted," he said. Evans said he was concerned that the instruction required under the proposal is too limited.

"It leaves out spelling, history, civics, government, science and some of those other things I find difficult to ignore," Evans said.

Asked about a separate proposal — one requiring the testing of school-aged children in alternative education programs — Evans said the new version being offered by Forrey is far preferable.

"The testing described there was not described in enough detail to cause anything but controversy," Evans said. The Times-News' copy of that proposal — which also includes a provision to protect school districts from losing state or federal funds as a result of losing students to home instruction — was distributed by Weed and bears Adamson's name and address.

Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, a member of the House panel that will see SCHOOLING on Page B2

Scott: day-care bill has plenty backing

Times-News capitol bureau

BOISE — Even before the House Health and Welfare Committee gets a glimpse of the proposed bill versions of three proposals to impose licensing on Idaho day-care operators, Rep. Donna Scott says her proposal will be the panel's choice.

Scott, a Twin Falls representative who favors placing administrative responsibilities for the licensing under county governments, says she has firm commitments of support from nine of the 15 committee members.

Scott says Republicans Chris Hooper of Boise, the committee's chairman, and Jeff Stoker of Twin Falls haven't committed to the bill. And she says she isn't counting on the votes of the panel's three Democrats — although she says she wouldn't be surprised to earn the support of at least two minority party members.

The proposals are scheduled for preliminary consideration by the panel on Monday. Hooper says he hopes to have all three measures introduced and returned to the committee for further hearings.

"I don't know if she's counting optimistically. I'm putting my money on a different one," Hooper said. But Hooper adds that he will support passage of any of the three proposals.

He says the level at which the licensing is administered is a detail which is secondary to the broader issue of imposing the licensing requirements and requiring police checks of day-care center operators.

Jane Lloyd, a spokeswoman for the Idaho Association for the Education

REP. DONNA SCOTT
Licensing bill in works of Young Children, says she has previously heard Scott's claim that the committee's members have already made up their minds. She says her discussions with committee members do not support the claim. "That would bother me," she says. "I would tend to believe the decision was being made on a political basis rather than on the basis of the merits of the bills."

Lloyd's organization favors a licensing system administered by the state's Department of Occupational Licensing. The third proposal is for the administration of the program to reside with the state's Department of Health and Welfare.

Counties pay big bills on food stamps

BY PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Each month, most Magic Valley counties help pay the costs of issuing food stamps to low-income families in exchange for easing the demand on the county indigent fund.

When the food stamp program first became effective in Idaho in 1967, it caused quite a reduction in the indigent fund, said Jerry Quick, policy section supervisor in the bureau of income assistance with the state Department of Health and Welfare.

As a result, the counties agreed with the agency, then called the Department of Public Assistance, to pay half of the administrative costs of issuing food stamps.

The state then would match the counties and the federal government would match the state to pay the total administrative costs of issuing food stamps, Quick said.

The food benefits used to be issued through banks and post offices. Years later, the welfare recipients began receiving the food stamps through the mail. The counties now help cover the issuance through the mail, Quick said. The state contracts with a business at Sacramento, Calif., which mails the food stamps to the recipients.

The monthly bills to the counties are based on the number of mail transactions each month at 32½ cents each, Quick said.

Sometimes and rarely food stamps are issued at the department offices in emergency situations. In that case, the cost is $1.20 per transaction.

In October, Twin Falls County was billed $285 for 833 issuances of food stamps. Jerome County paid $32 that same month for 285 issuances and Blaine County paid $32 for 99 food stamps mailings.

Camas, Cassia and most recently, Minidoka Counties dropped out of the program, Quick said. The agreement was such that there was no enforcement if counties decided not to pay, he added. In those cases, the department picks up the whole tab for issuing food stamps in the counties.

Adolescent substance abuse topic of workshop

TWIN FALLS — A workshop on adolescent substance abuse will be held Feb. 6-8 at the College of Southern Idaho in Twin Falls.

The seminar will be sponsored by the Port of Hope treatment center in Twin Falls and the state Department of Health and Welfare.

A comprehensive approach for effectively dealing with the problems of adolescent youth will be presented at the workshop, which is for professionals and other interested community people.

Dick Shaefer, who has been working in the field of substance abuse counseling for more than 20 years, will conduct the workshop. Shaefer is the director of a treatment center in Fargo, N.D., and works primarily with disturbed youth.

The workshop will focus on the "touch-love centering" approach to combat substance abuse among youth. The approach is based on the concept that drug dependency is an illness. The approach also includes the "tough love" concept of having the youth experience the consequences of their behavior before they fatally "bottom out."

Comparing the addiction process of adults with youths will be one item on the seminar's agenda. The cost of the seminar will be $50 with pre-registration through the Port of Hope, otherwise the cost will be $60 at the door.

Alcohol and substance abuse counselors may earn up to 23 certification credits by attending the seminar.

As part of the seminar, two free community programs on the dynamics of drug dependency will be held. A program on the effects on families will be offered at 7 p.m. Feb. 6 and the stages of the tough love concept will be presented Feb. 7 at 7 p.m.

The seminar will be held in room 108 of the Vo-Tech Building on the CSI campus. For more information, contact Ruth Schneider at 434-7080 or Al Miller at 734-4000.

Evans selects panel for state writer search

KETCHUM — Gov. John Evans has named six Idahoans and two out-of-state residents to serve on a search panel for the state's 1988-89 writer in residence.

The writer-in-residence program allows one Idaho writer every two years to travel the state to conduct readings of his work and to hold workshops to acquaint the general public with literature.

Established in 1963, the program focuses on Idaho's literary heritage. Idahoans named to the panel are: Bill Studebaker of Twin Falls; Louie Attebury of Caldwell; Virginia Bailey of Lake Fork; Dewey Haeder of Grangeville; and Alice Horton of Eliza Hall.

Out-of-state members named are Bill Kittredge of Montana and Patricia Clark Smith of New Mexico. Evans said he will name one more out-of-state member later.

Ron McFarland, a professor of English at the University of Idaho, was the first writer named to the position. His term expires at the

Stricker Ranch program set

TWIN FALLS — A slide program on the history of the Stricker Ranch south of Kimberly is planned by The Friends of Stricker Ranch Inc. Feb. 1 at 7:30 p.m. in the Shields Building at the college of Southern Idaho.

The meeting is open to the public. Arthur A. Hart, director of the Idaho Historical Society, will present the program covering the history of the ranch and early day stage station along with information about its unique place in Idaho history.

The property was recently deeded to the Idaho Historical Society by heirs of the Stricker family. Since that time the society has roofed the old ranch house, installed a new water system and septic tank.

Members of the Friends of Stricker Ranch are currently seeking a caretaker couple to reside in the home. Gary Stone is heading the caretaker selection committee.

Charter memberships to the Friends of Stricker Ranch Inc. will be available to interested individuals and families at the Feb. 1 meeting. This is the first meeting of the newly incorporated organization. The board of directors and officers named last month include J. Howard Moon of Filer as president, John Meyers of Twin Falls, vice president and Virginia Ricketts of Jerome as treasurer. Hart of Boise serves as secretary.

Hart said the support from Magic Valley residents for preserving the historic site has been outstanding. Plans call for returning the ranch to its original scenic condition so it can again be used as a gathering place for people in the area.

In addition to the historic buildings including the old store and stage coach station, there will be a park in the grove of old trees along Rock Creek. This will be available for picnics, family gatherings and use by school groups. When restoration is completed, the site will be managed by the non-profit Friends of Stricker Ranch.

Man charged in gun wounding

JEROME — A Wendell man remained in the Jerome County Jail Thursday in lieu of $5,000 bond following an altercation last week in a Jerome lounge.

Sgt. Lonny Meadows of the Jerome Police Department said Riegoberto Alvarado, 26, of Wendell was arrested and Rick Boss, 31, also of Wendell, was treated for a gunshot wound in the right knee about 12:55 a.m. Jan. 18.

Meadows said Alvarado went into the Fireside Lounge in Jerome and an argument ensued with the bartender. Boss became involved and he and Alvarado went outside to settle it. Alvarado was struck in the face, the officer said, and Boss returned with a .22 caliber rifle.

Meadows said the two struggled over the gun and it discharged, hitting Boss in the leg. Originally Alvarado was charged with aggravated battery but the charge was revised to brandishing a firearm when it was determined the gun discharged during the struggle.

Farm bureau to host meeting

JEROME — The Jerome County Farm Bureau will host an open panel meeting in the Jerome County Court House on Feb. 2 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. Nine area legislators have been invited to participate in this open meeting.

Each legislator will be allowed five minutes to address special interest issues, followed by questions from the floor.

Anyone interested in meeting with the area representatives is welcome to attend to ask questions firsthand.

Arts group seeks to reorganize

TWIN FALLS — A meeting to reorganize the Magic Valley Arts Council will be held at 11:30 a.m. today at the Aroma restaurant, 147 Shoshone N., Twin Falls. Anyone interested in the visual and performing arts is invited, according to Rick Strickland, director of the Renaissance Academy.

Fire chief asks house numbers

WENDELL — Clearly visible house numbers are required on all homes in Wendell.

Fire Chief Keith Hosack says many residents do not have house numbers and it is a serious problem. "In an emergency situation, you don't want to be hunting for a number," he says.

At a fire, police or ambulance call could be delayed, says Hosack, and a proper house number "could mean the difference."

During a recent random check, Hosack found that a large number of houses do not have numbers. Others houses have their numbers covered by trees, overgrown bushes or porches, he says.

"I'm quite concerned about it," the fire chief says. "It's for the people's own safety that they get these posted."

House numbers are also required by a city ordinance, he added.

Those who do not know what their house numbers are can find out by calling City Hall, Hosack says.

No fraud in divorce, court rules

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Court of Appeals has ruled there was no fraud involved in a 1977 Cassia County divorce action, and therefore a woman involved could not bring an independent lawsuit over the settlement.

The court on Thursday reversed a $30,890 award given a woman in an order by 5th District Judge Sherman Bellwood, and ordered the woman's lawsuit dismissed.

Francis McDonald sued her former husband, Kimber Ray Barlow, over their 1977 divorce settlement. The woman claimed she should have received at least some of the money her husband got from a family trust, during the time they were legally separated but not divorced.

Court records show Barlow received $475,368 from a trust set up from his portion of the K. C. Barlow Ranch, in 1977 after the divorce, in 1978 and in 1979.

The judge awarded the woman $30,890, plus interest, as her portion of the trust distributions Barlow received while they were legally married.

But the Court of Appeals says there's rule of court procedures barring persons involved in lawsuits from bringing independent actions.

Wendell audit comes out in black despite revenues below spending

WENDELL — The city of Wendell spent more money than it took in last year, but still ended up in the black.

William Oakley, a certified public accountant of Oakley and Jones in Gooding, reviewed the 46-page Wendell city audit with the city council Thursday.

Total revenues in general and special revenue funds were $284,663. Total expenditures in those funds were $310,966.

"But they (council members) budgeted for that deficit," Oakley said, noting the final fund balance showed a $15,175 surplus. The extra money came from the balance left at the end of the previous year, the auditor said.

Proprietary fund revenues totaled $167,464 and the fund's expenditures exceeded that amount by $2,338.

The irrigation fund lost $3,417. According to Mayor Otto Lemke, this fund has been in the red every year "for a long time" but, because of a recent rate increase, should at least break even next year.

The city irrigation system, Lemke said, is set on a 10-day cycle rather than a seven-day cycle — as in Gooding — because of a lack of funds to hire a second irrigator and purchase another city vehicle. Since rates had not been raised for at least 10 years, he added, the system was not paying for itself and has not had needed repair work.

"The irrigation system has always been a problem," the mayor said.

In other council business, City Superintendent Charlie Doty expressed disquiet that a water tank in Filer had not been sold to Wendell as requested. Instead, he said, it was sold to George Huddleston of Filer, who Wendell had asked for an estimate to cut, move and set up the tank in Wendell.

Huddleston will use the tank for scrap metal, Doty charged.

The council agreed not to hire Huddleston in the future. "I would say that he doesn't do any more work for us," Councilman Lloyd Little emphasized.

Defense attorneys open case in Coe 'South Hill rapist' trial

SEATTLE (AP) — The defense began its case Friday in Kevin Coe's Spokane "South Hill rapist" trial, after losing bids to discredit three prior witnesses and to reduce the charges against him.

Lawyer Richard Hansen and David Allen said the 37-year-old Coe is a classic victim of mistaken identity. They planned to call his sister, Kathy and his father, Gordon, to kick off the defense.

Gordon Coe is a retired managing editor of the Spokane Chronicle newspaper.

Later, Coe himself is likely to explain why he once confessed to one of the first-degree rape counts against him.

Much of his defense also turns on hypnosis, and whether it altered the memories of the three rape victims who had been hypnotized before they identified him.

The former real estate salesman is being retried in King County Superior Court for the same four rape counts for which he was convicted in 1981 in Spokane.

In all, the so-called "South Hill rapist" was blamed for nearly 40 brutal sexual assaults in that Spokane neighborhood between 1978 and 1981.

The Washington Supreme Court overturned Coe's convictions last summer, citing numerous mistakes in his first trial, including the admission of testimony by previously hypnotized witnesses.

The retrial was moved to Seattle on a change of venue and the prosecution said its case Friday after seven full days of testimony.

Selection of the now-sequestered jury began Jan. 7.

Coe's mother, Ruth, an alibi witness in his first trial, will not testify, lawyers say. If she did, jurors could be told she was convicted in 1982 of trying to hire the murder of the judge and prosecutor in her son's first trial.

Judge Patricia Altken refused Friday to reduce the charges to second-degree rape, which does not carry a mandatory prison term.

She said while the victims never saw the knife the rapist said he had, his threats clearly carried the implication of death or serious injury.

With the jury absent Friday, Ms. Altken also ruled the defense could not use sections of the book "Son, A Psychopath and His Victims" to discredit testimony from two rape victims and former Coe girlfriend Gini Perham.

"Son," by Jack Olsen, is a book about the Coes and the South Hill rapist.

The program is funded by the Idaho Commission for the Arts and the Association for the Humanities in Idaho. It is administered by the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities through its Institute of the American West.

Greer Markle, director of the Sun Valley Center, said the program has a two-fold value: It gives recognition to Idaho writers and gives the public a forum to learn about the state's literature and the people who make it.

"It's one of those programs where virtually everybody wins," he said.

The panel will receive applications for the position, screen them and give its recommendation for the next writer-in-residence to the governor, who will make the final choice.

The candidates can be writers of either poetry, fiction or non-fiction. Evans said the search will be statewide.

Episcopalians plan statewide outreach program in Idaho

I arrived at Boise, Saturday afternoon, October 12th, with broken neck, bruised head, aching bones, sore throat and disturbed temper. Of all the routes I ever traveled over, that from Salt Lake to Boise is the worst.

(Written in 1887 by Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, Missionary Bishop of the Episcopal Church)

RUPERT — The Episcopal Diocese of Idaho wants to reach out and touch everyone with one simple message: "We have been here since the early days of Idaho, and we are here now, wanting to make the people of Idaho aware of our presence," says the Rev. Samuel Hosler, Rector of Trinity Episcopal Church in Rupert and St. James Episcopal Church in Burley.

Episcopalians will be communicating their message on a state-wide basis, via television, radio and newspapers, says Hosler, who is known more familiarly in the Minicassia community as Father Sam.

"Some people who have known me for years don't even know my last name," he admits.

The diocese began its outreach work, called "Venture in Mission," about four years ago with a budget of approximately $400,000, says Hosler.

The venture's advertising campaign, referred to by its developers as the Awareness and Development Project, was put into action one year ago, he adds.

Father Sam Hosler directs Trinity Episcopal Church

The goal set last January was to begin the ball rolling to develop nine, 30-second radio and television spots to be released in sets of three, in conjunction with newspaper advertising, he says.

The first of the series, which will be introduced at the end of this month, depicts the role the Episcopal Church played in Idaho history, says Hosler.

"Historically, Episcopalians have been a minority everywhere, and a majority nowhere," says Hosler. "We have gone into smaller communities, as well as larger areas; we have always made a contribution to the history of communities, particularly in Idaho."

The historical vignettes were filmed with the guidance of cameraman Rex Morrison, a Boise radio and television producer, and have been named the Tuttle Series because the scenes were drawn from the reminiscences of Bishop Daniel Sylvester Tuttle, one of the first clergymen to serve the religious needs of the people on the Idaho frontier, says Hosler.

The filming, which began last summer, moved from a scene of the first church service held in Idaho in 1838, filmed in the replica of old Fort Hall which now stands in Pocatello, to the rough and tumble mining town atmosphere of Idaho City, where, according to Tuttle's account, "miners, merchants, ranchers and farmers got together to worship, even in the saloons on Sunday morning, when they put the whiskey away and held church."

Hosler says fighting was a common pastime among the hard-living miners and ranchers frequenting the saloons of Idaho City and Boise.

And one of the most "fun" episodes was the fight scene, filmed by the crew of amateur actors made up of Idahoans from all walks of life, including the bearded, pipe-smoking Hosler, who took all intents and purposes more like a low-down dirty gun-totin' varmint than an ordained clergyman, he admits.

Morrison had the actors do several takes of the fight before he finally got what he was missing from the scene, says Hosler.

"He told everybody to go over to the corner of the set and grab a handful of dirt," recalls Hosler.

"Morrison told us the action would go like this — Camera running — Dirt — Action!" says Hosler.

"Then we threw the dirt in the air and started fighting — the resulting take was very effective."

The only casualty in the scene was an antique 1890s shirt that was inadvertently ripped by an overly enthusiastic actor carried away by the spirit of the whole thing, says Hosler.

Filming for the second series in the project, called The Beautiful Idaho Series, also presented challenges for the creative group, says Hosler.

He says the series, which creates a transition from the past to the present, depicts such scenes as picnicking in the Sawtooth Mountain area and the harvesting of wheat fields south of American Falls, shown as a backdrop for present-day life and labor in Idaho.

"This is a plug for Idaho," says Hosler. "Pardon me, but we're downright jingoistic on this one. We know God loves all this beauty, and we want to encourage Idahoans to thank Him for it," he says.

The harvest scene, which was set up 24 hours ahead of time so the timing of the action could be synchronized with the movement of the combines in the background, took an entire afternoon on a hot August day to film.

Much credit must go to the patience and forbearance of the farmers whose harvest was delayed two hours so the filming could be just right, says Hosler.

Hosler also mentioned "their Renaissance man," Dr. Bill Renne of Burley spent innumerable hours getting Jackson Jr. on his guitar background music down to 30 seconds.

"Perspective changes after watching the final tapes," the commercial says Hosler. "Those 30 seconds go by so fast!"

Christian unity still in its early stages

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

Accumulating batches of ecumenical "eggs" are in the incubation stage, but when they'll hatch remains uncertain.

That was the situation as most of the world's churches this week observed their annual week of prayer for Christian unity.

All the baptized — Catholic, Orthodox, Anglican and Protestant — are called to collaborate so that full unity is re-established," says Pope John Paul II.

But to bring it about, "something further" is needed to implement theological agreements have been reached, Bishop James R. Crumley Jr. of the Lutheran Church in America emphasized in a recent visit with the pope.

Crumley says the pope indicated he concurred.

"We agreed that it is important to seek the next steps, even though they are yet unclear."

That was the indefinite, yet germinating state of the churches' effort to live up to Christ's plea that they "all be one that the world may believe" as they joined again in praying for it.

The observance featured ecumenical services in many communities.

The week was sponsored nationally by the National Council of Churches and National Conference of Catholic Bishops and internationally by the World Council of Churches and the Vatican's secretariat on Christian unity.

"Reconciliation is penitential to unity," said the Rev. Emmanuel Sullivan, director of the Graymorn Ecumenical Institute in New York City. "It is a process already in motion."

That reconciliation has gone on in a wide range of joint theological dialogues between representatives of Roman Catholicism and various Protestant and Eastern Orthodox bodies, as well as between different Protestant groups.

Several of the talks have reached broad agreements on matters of doctrine, baptism, the Lord's presence in communion, and ministry, but mostly without specific steps to implement the accords.

The "trickle-down theory of unity from the top" has been stymied by church bureaucrats that have become preoccupied with institutional self-preservation, says noted United Methodist theologian Albert Outler of Dallas, an elder statesman of the ecumenical movement.

However, he says the "old order ecumenism" is being supplanted by a lively grass-roots ecumenism at the local level. Catholic and Protestant laity get together for Scripture study, prayer and social action without waiting for official approval.

They're discovering themselves that "the old barriers are no longer insurmountable," he told a recent gathering sponsored in Indianapolis by the unity-minded Christian Church (Disciples of Christ).

Greg Myerson of NLRB counts ballots as company, union representatives watch

Copper workers vote to oust unions; strike may continue

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phelps Dodge Corp. says the overwhelming vote by its Arizona copper workers against continued representation by striking unions is the "formal legal end" of a bitter 19-month walkout.

But union spokesmen call it "only one of many skirmishes." Phelps Dodge, the nation's second-largest copper producer behind Kennecott, has continued to operate most of its mines and smelters despite the strike and multimillion-dollar losses blamed mostly on low copper prices.

Ballots were counted Thursday from union decertification elections held in October by the National Labor Relations Board at Phelps Dodge mines and smelters.

An unofficial tabulation compiled by The Associated Press of results from 30 bargaining units showed workers approved decertification of unions approved bargaining agents by a vote of 1,908 to 87. No union came close to a majority at any unit.

The results were expected, largely because strikers — estimated at about 1,000 — were not allowed to vote under federal labor law because the strike was more than a year old, beginning on July 1, 1983.

The strike had been marked by periodic rock throwing and other violence, mainly in Clifton in southeast Arizona and often on holidays or strike-related anniversaries. The state Department of Public Safety in 1983 and 1984 sent hundreds of officers at a time to the Clifton-Morenci area, and twice was reinforced by National Guard troops.

State and local police said Friday no trouble had been reported in the mining communities since the vote count. "There's been nothing happening," said duty Officer Paul Anderson at the DPS Phoenix headquarters.

"This vote shows that terrorist activity just doesn't work in Arizona," said Art Pritchard, one of the workers who petitioned for the elections.

Union attorney Michael Keenan called the election results "a significant victory for Phelps Dodge." But, he added, "This is only one of many skirmishes. This is not the end of the war."

Indeed Steeworkers of America President Lynn Williams said last year the union "will never forget what (Phelps Dodge) has done to those courageous strikers and their families."

Phelps Dodge officials contend the strike was decided when the company hired replacements for strikers in late 1983. Company attorney Nathan Niemuth called Thursday's vote count "a formal, legal end" to the dispute.

If all appeals are dismissed, decertification orders will be issued, meaning the unions can no longer picket or organize at the Ajo, Bisbee, Douglas and Morenci plants, said NLRB regional director Milo Price.

Not guilty plea in arms case

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A man linked by the FBI to a neo-Nazi group pleaded innocent today to a weapons charge stemming from the discovery of a semi-automatic pistol in a motel room.

Denver David Parmenter III, 32, of Cheney, Wash., will be tried Feb. 26 before U.S. District Judge Helen Frye in Portland, a federal magistrate ruled.

Parmenter was arrested Dec. 18 in Seaside, on the Oregon coast, where he had been staying in the motel. He is being held in Portland pending the trial.

He was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury on a charge of illegally possessing a semi-automatic pistol whose serial number had been removed.

Parmenter is accused of helping to rob $4 million in a pair of armored car holdups — a $3.6 million robbery July 19 in Ukiah, Calif., and a $500,000 holdup April 23 at a shopping mall in Seattle.

He faces trial in Seattle on the shopping mall holdup after the Portland trial, which Assistant U.S. Attorney Barry Sheldahl estimated would take 2½ days. Parmenter also has been charged by the FBI with the Northern California holdup.

In a previous court hearing for Parmenter, FBI agents testified the Seattle holdup was intended "to gain funding" for "a white supremacy organization."

Asked Dec. 27 about the motive for the holdup, Agent Norman D. Stephenson replied: "To extend their political beliefs, part of which was to eliminate the Jewish influence from government and the triumph of the Aryan race."

Parmenter and four others charged in the robbery had been members of the Church of Jesus Christ Christian, also known as the Aryan Nations, a white supremacist group.

The FBI has said it believes the Brink's armored car in California was robbed by members of "The Order," which sought to finance a right-wing overthrow of the federal government.

Parmenter was represented Friday by Stephen Crew, a court-appointed defense lawyer who replaced Parmenter's previous court-appointed attorney, Janet Hoffman.

Nerve gas samples going to Utah

HERMISTON, Ore. (AP) — Tiny samples of deadly nerve gas from 72 aging M-55 rockets at Umatilla Army Depot will be shipped to Utah under the Army's M-55 assessment program announced this week.

Safeguards used by the Army will make the transfer this spring "very, very safe," spokeswoman Susan Voss in Tooele, Utah, said Thursday.

The shipment will be part of an Army effort to assess the condition of rockets in storage at several installations, from Oregon to Alabama. In all, 370 of the nation's 477,000 obsolete M-55 rockets will be torn down and studied. Each contains about 10 pounds of nerve gas. Army officials hope to determine how much the chemical has deteriorated, whether the agent has dissolved any part of the rockets and how much longer the rockets can be stored.

The M-55 assessment program is part of a larger study to find a way to dispose of the nation's arsenal of M-55 rockets, which have become obsolete because the launcher to fire them is no longer available.

The rockets — about the size of a wooden fence post — were declared obsolete in 1980. Some of the missiles, which are stored in concrete igloos, have developed tiny leaks.

The Army has an elaborate system for shipping small amounts of nerve agents to avoid threats to public safety. Ms. Voss said, "The Army occasionally ships small laboratory samples, and already has authorization to ship up to one liter of chemical agents, she said."

At Umatilla, two 10-milliliter samples from each rocket will be placed into two-inch glass vials and welded shut with heat.

The samples will be flown directly to Dugway Proving Ground in Utah for testing.

Judge denies McKinney case dismissal bid

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Joyce McKinney, a former beauty queen accused in the 1977 kidnap and rape of a Mormon missionary in England, will go to trial on a charge giving false information to police, a judge has ruled.

Third District Judge Timothy R. Hanson did not set a trial date for Ms. McKinney, court clerk Evelyn Thompson said Friday. Details of the ruling were not immediately available.

Defense attorney Ronald Yenchik declined to comment on the decision. Ms. McKinney, 33, was accused of abducting Kirk Anderson, 29, while he was on a mission in England for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Authorities said she handcuffed Anderson to a bed with fur-lined manacles and forced him to have sex.

However, she jumped bail on the charge and fled England before being brought to trial. British officials have not sought extradition.

Ms. McKinney, who was Miss Wyoming-USA in 1973, was arrested June 18, 1984, outside the Western Airlines commissary in Salt Lake City where Anderson worked.

Police said Anderson had told them Ms. McKinney had been shadowing him, and that he feared she was planning to abduct him again.

Ms. McKinney, who claimed she was researching Anderson's activities for a book or screenplay about the 1977 incident at the time of her arrest, was also charged with disturbing the peace.

However, 8th Circuit Judge Eleanor VanSiver dismissed that count during a pretrial hearing Oct. 4.

Durable goods orders, home sales up in '84

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Orders to factories for durable goods rose a strong 14.9 percent in 1984 while sales of existing homes posted their best performance in four years, according to two economic reports released Friday.

The reports capped a week of good economic news which has led many forecasters to boost their estimates of growth in coming months.

The Commerce Department said orders for durable goods — items expected to last three or more years — climbed to a record $1.211 trillion in 1984.

Last year's gain followed an even stronger 17.1 percent jump in 1983. The increases marked the best two-year performance since 1977 and 1978, when orders rose by 19 percent and 18.4 percent, respectively.

Orders for durable goods had fallen 10.2 percent in the recession year of 1982.

"These back-to-back increases show that we had super growth in the last two years," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman-American Express. He predicted strong growth in manufacturing orders again in 1985, but not another year of double-digit increases.

"I think we will see strength in orders in coming months reflecting the renewed growth in the economy," he said.

Sinai said he has now revised his estimate of growth for the first three months of the year to a rate between 4 percent and 6 percent. This is up from his earlier expectation of 3 percent growth.

Meanwhile, a private housing trade group said sales of existing homes jumped 1.1 percent in December, pushing sales for all of 1984 to their highest level since 1980.

The National Association of Realtors said sales of existing homes hit 2.87 million units last year, a 5.5 percent improvement over 1983 and 44.1 percent higher than the recession lowpoint in 1982.

Housing officials gave credit for the gains to declining interest rates, citing figures from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board that the average interest rate on mortgages closed in 1984 was 12.5 percent, down from 12.85 percent in 1983 and 15.38 percent in 1982.

"Lower long-term interest rates, as well as the widespread use of adjustable rate mortgages, were the key to helping more families make housing purchases last year," said David D. Roberts, president of the association, and a Mobile, Ala., real estate agent.

The Commerce Department report on new orders for durable goods said the big 1984 increase came despite decided weakness in orders in the last half of the year.

In December, orders dropped 2.1 percent, the third decline in the last four months. New orders last month totaled $101.9 billion.

However, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige pointed out that the December decline resulted primarily from a 17.9 percent dip in the highly volatile category of defense orders.

Defense orders had surged up by 110.4 percent in November and had not expected that level to be maintained. Without the drop in defense, new orders would have dipped a smaller 0.3 percent in December.

Michael Evans, head of Evans Economics, a private Washington forecasting firm, said that while the December decline was more than had been expected, it was likely to be revised upward when more information is gathered. He predicted the economy will advance at a strong rate of 4 percent in the first half of this year and an even better 5 percent in the second half.

On Tuesday, the government boosted its estimate of growth during the final three months of the year to 3.9 percent, more than double the 1.6 percent growth rate turned in from July through September. Since then, private economists have been redrafting their own predictions for 1985 based on the stronger growth recorded at the end of the year.

In the durable goods report, the transportation industry showed the largest decline, a 6.7 percent drop, caused primarily because of the dip in defense orders.

Stanleigh G. Fox stands in front of the three-bedroom home he is trying to sell for a price of $143,000.

Home buyer offered vacation in Hawaii

Owner going to great lengths for sale

By BLAIR S. WALKER
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Stanleigh Fox is going to great lengths to sell his suburban home — about 4,200 miles.

He's offering an eight-day paid vacation in Hawaii to anyone who buys his $143,000, three-bedroom house on a 1/4-acre lot.

The 36-year-old businessman says he will even consider adding meals to the deal, which covers air fare and lodging.

Visions of warm beaches and Hawaiian luaus have kept his telephone answering machine busy, Fox said Friday.

"The recorder was full last night; there were over 30 messages on the recording when I got home last night," he said.

"I have five appointments this weekend. People are also just calling to find out what was going on."

Before he offered the vacation, Fox had advertised his house in suburban Winfield for four days in a local newspaper and gotten just four inquiries. He said it was especially difficult to sell a house in mid-winter in the Chicago area.

Then he and his roommate, Daryl Paddock, came up with the Hawaiian travel gimmick during a moment of wine-fueled inspiration, he said.

"We just sat there drinking wine and dreamed it up," Fox said. The idea of offering a vacation was Paddock's, who works as a marketing manager for Ozark Airlines, Fox said.

Fox decided the vacation should provide a sun-soaked respite from the Chicago area's frigid weather and settled on Hawaii.

In front of his home, he placed a "for sale" sign, advertising a "free Hawaiian vacation for two" on one side and showing a picture of a jetliner on the other.

Fox said he figures it will cost him $4,000 to provide the Hawaiian trip, and that's cheaper than the 7 percent commission charged by most real estate agents.

Donna Cox-Rodriguez, a Chicago real estate agent, said Fox's idea was catchy — but against the rules for licensed real estate agents.

"In the real estate business, you can't do that, you can't offer prizes or anything," Mrs. Cox-Rodriguez said Friday. "That's against the law, that's enticement."

However, she said such restrictions don't apply to private owners.

Winfield is 27 miles west of Chicago, and Fox said it takes him three hours to commute in rush-hour traffic. Fox, who is divorced, said he wants to move closer to downtown Chicago, where he works as a business development manager for an engineering firm.

His single-level, five-year-old home is several hundred yards from the nearest neighbor. Included with the house are all kitchen appliances, central air conditioning and a three-car heated garage.

"I'm not selling it because there's anything wrong with it," he said. "I need to get closer to my job."

In buying the house, he said, "you get to go on a nice Hawaiian vacation and come home to a fairly new home."

Friday gains top good week on Wall Street

Anticipated lower interest rates provide market boost

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market capped off its best and busiest week since last summer with another gain Friday.

Financial-services stocks were among the standouts as advances in the 15th out-numbered declines for the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 5.63 to 1,276.06, bringing its gain for the week to 48.70 points. That marked the best weekly showing for the average since it jumped to a record 87.46 points last July 30-Aug. 3.

Friday's Big Board volume totaled 122.44 million shares, down from 160.74 million Thursday.

Average daily volume for the week was 149.84 million, just short of the record of 150.89 million set last Aug. 6-10.

After the close Thursday, the Federal Reserve reported a larger-than-expected $2.8 billion drop in the basic measure of the money supply for the week ended Jan. 14.

As many traders interpreted them, those figures seemed to leave ample room for the Fed to stick with its recent relaxation of monetary policy.

Falling interest rates lately have reduced the competitive appeal of interest-bearing investments in comparison to stocks.

A less positive note was sounded Friday morning, however, when the Commerce Department reported that new orders for durable goods fell 2.1 percent last month. They had risen 8.3 percent in November.

After dropping sharply in the credit markets Thursday, interest rates on government bonds backed up slightly in Friday's activity.

Financial-services stocks were broadly higher, responding to the recent strength of the securities markets. Merrill Lynch gained 1 1/2 to 33 1/2; Fibro-Salomon 1 1/2 to 39; E.F. Hutton 1 1/2 to 34 1/2; First Interstate 1 1/2 to 34 1/2; American Express 1/2 to 40 1/2, and First Boston 3/4 to 59 1/2.

Phillips Petroleum led the active list and rose 3/4 to 48 1/2 on volume of more than 2.9 million shares. Minneapolis investor Irwin Jacobs said he was actively involved in trading of the stock, but declined to say how much of it he owned.

About a month ago, Phillips worked out an agreement to avert a takeover by an investor group led by T. Boone Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum. Since that time, there has been much speculation that a new bidder might appear for the company.

Expectations of lower interest rates helped prompt gains in such stocks as the regional telephone holding companies and Federal National Mortgage, which climbed 1 1/2 and was heavily traded for the second straight day.

Gainers' edge over losers was about 3 to 2 on the Big Board. The exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .39 to a new high of 102.42.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 151.08 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks gained .54 to 186.55, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .64 at 177.35.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market picked up 1.66 to 274.00. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 229.52, up .85.

UP posts record net

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Union Pacific Corp. expects expanded rail traffic in 1985 that could increase profits beyond the record net income reported for 1984.

Union Pacific in 1984 reported a net income of $494 million, up 66 percent from $297 million in 1983, Chairman William S. Cook said Wednesday.

Of the total, the rail system had a net income of $311 million, a gain of 30 percent over 1983 net income of $240 million, Cook said.

Earnings per share for the corporation in 1984 were $4.01, an increase of 67 percent from $2.40 in 1983, Cook said.

The operation of a new joint line, opened in August with Chicago and North Western Railroad in Wyoming, increased the railroad's coal volume.

"A full year's operation will help our coal traffic," corporate spokesman Harvey Turner in New York said Thursday. "And of course, we expect to continue adding to our coal traffic" by reaching new contracts with utility companies and other industries, he said.

Bank chairman sees ranks being thinned out

BOISE (AP) — The chairman of First Interstate Bancorporation predicts up to one-third of the nation's banks might go out of business in the next five years.

Shift competition, economic changes and a profit squeeze prompted by financial deregulation mean difficult times lie ahead for banks, particularly small, independent institutions, Joseph Pinola said Thursday.

Mergers and bankruptcies will reduce the number of United States banks, now estimated at 15,000, to about 10,000 by the end of the decade, predicted Pinola, who also is chief executive officer of the Los Angeles-based bank holding company.

Pinola made his remarks in an interview before he addressed the Boise Chamber of Commerce.

"I would not want to be a small, independent bank," he said. "The deregulation is impacting them very much. You can see that by the number of bankruptcies and mergers."

In the future, he said, there may be only about six to eight large, nationwide banks that will have a good-sized share of the market. They include Citibank, American Express and Sears, said Pinola, who hopes to make First Interstate one of the national banks.

Small independent banks will not be a thing of the past, but there will be fewer of them, he said.

"There will be any number of very well-run, small banks that are going to survive. There are any number of independent grocery stores that are still surviving in the day of the supermarket," he said.

"But there are nowhere near the number of small grocery stores today that there were 10 years ago. That analogy would certainly apply to banks."

He said larger bank systems stand to achieve economies of scale not possible at smaller banks.

With the current squeeze on profits by bad loans in real estate and agriculture and higher interest rates, Pinola said, Congress must provide banks with the ability to sell insurance, real estate and other items to give banks new sources of income.

Economy leads array of foes opposing labor unions

NEW YORK — Labor unions have a long tradition of battling for worker rights, often against great odds and against managements that sometimes viewed them as intruders into matters that were none of their business.

But battling management was relatively easy for union leaders, a job of one or maybe two dimensions, compared with the array of foes now lined up against them.

There is the economy itself, for example. Times are good, employment levels are high, and new businesses are being formed at a relatively high rate. Workers seem to feel more satisfied than they did three years ago, and satisfaction does not spur union membership.

Strong as it is, the economy is also lopsided, distorted in the sense that imports take away a lot of jobs in auto, steel and related industries. And relatively high union wages are often cited as a reason why.

John Cunniff

robots in joining the labor movement.

There is the matter of image. A study by professors at Cleveland State University indicates that many people — even one generation removed from the assembly line — consider unions impositions on the natural order of business.

It comes as no surprise therefore to find that union membership is falling.

In 1980, there were about 22.2 million members. By 1982 the total was down to 19.6 million. And since 1982, says Brian Heshizer of Cleveland State, the total has dropped an additional 600,000.

Heshizer, an assistant professor, and Professor Harry Graham, also of Cleveland State, sent questionnaires to 212 top union officials and received responses from 79 of them. Among other things, they found:

- Many fear that everything they fought for will be washed away in a tide of foreign imports, conservative politics and ill will from a middle class one generation removed from the assembly line.

- They are exasperated by a public that wants to place the blame for economic woes on their heads, and that sees them as corrupt and manipulative.

Heshizer and Graham found a great deal of resentment among the respondents.

- "In raising the standard of living for union members," one labor leader told the professors, "other segments of society have been pulled along, and those segments see no reason now to join a union."

Asked the cause of their problems, few union officials blamed unemployment, automation or themselves.

Nearly one-half, however, said their problems resulted from union policies and structure. Thirty-nine percent blamed "anti-labor" government policies. Only 21 percent mentioned labor's public image, and 18 percent the economic environment.

In spite of such opinions, however, Heshizer says "unions have been battered by the economy and image problems." He claims the public feels unions have invited problems through high wages and restrictive work practices.

The professors find some movement on both business and labor sides to adjust to the new conditions, but question whether changes on both sides of the bargaining table will come too late.

Some top unionists remain confident, they say, but others see a debate ahead for the union movement.

Greg Myerson of NLRB counts ballots as company, union representatives watch

Copper workers vote to oust unions; strike may continue

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Phelps Dodge Corp. says the overwhelming vote by its Arizona copper workers against continued representation by striking unions is the "formal legal end" of a bitter 19-month walkout.

But union spokesmen call it "only one of many skirmishes." Phelps Dodge, the nation's second-largest copper producer behind Kennecott, has continued to operate most of its mines and smelters despite the strike and multimillion-dollar losses blamed mostly on low copper prices.

Ballots were counted Thursday from union decertification elections held in October by the National Labor Relations Board at Phelps Dodge mines and smelters.

An unofficial tabulation compiled by The Associated Press of results from 30 bargaining units showed workers approved decertification of 13 unions as bargaining agents by a vote of 1,908 to 87. No union came close to a majority at any unit.

The results were expected, largely because strikers — estimated about 1,000 — were not allowed to vote under federal labor law because the strike was more than a year old, beginning on July 1, 1983.

The strike had been marked by periodic rock throwing and other violence, mainly in Clifton in southeast Arizona and often on holidays or strike-related anniversaries. The state Department of Public Safety in 1983 and 1984 sent hundreds of officers at a time to the Clifton-Morenci area, and twice was reinforced by National Guard troops.

State and local police said Friday no trouble had been reported in the mining communities since the vote count. "There's been nothing happening," said DPS Phoenix headquarters. "This vote shows that terrorist activity just doesn't work in Arizona," said Art Pritchard, one of the workers who petitioned for the elections.

Union attorney Michael Keenan called the election result "a significant victory for Phelps Dodge." But he added, "This is only one of many skirmishes. This is not the end of the war."

United Steelworkers of America President Lynn Williams said last year the union "will never forget what (Phelps Dodge) has done to those courageous strikers and their families."

Phelps Dodge officials contend the strike was decided when the company hired replacements for strikers in late 1983. Company attorney Nathan Niemuth called Thursday's vote count "a formal, legal end" to the dispute.

If all appeals are dismissed, decertification orders will be issued, meaning the unions can no longer picket or organize at the Ajo, Bisbee, Douglas and Morenci plants, said NLRB regional director Milo Price.

Not guilty plea in arms case

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A man linked by the FBI to a neo-Nazi group pleaded innocent today to a weapons charge stemming from the discovery of a semi-automatic pistol in a motel room.

Denver Daw Parmenter III, 32, of Cheney, Wash., will be tried Feb. 26 before U.S. District Judge Helen Frye in Portland, a federal magistrate ruled.

Parmenter was arrested Dec. 18 in Seaside, on the Oregon coast, where he had been staying in the motel. He is being held in Portland pending the trial.

He was indicted Wednesday by a federal grand jury on a charge of illegally possessing a semiautomatic pistol whose serial number had been removed.

Parmenter is accused of helping to rob $4 million in a pair of armored cars — a $3.6 million robbery July 19 in Ukiah, Calif., and a $500,000 holdup April 23 at a shopping mall in Seattle.

He faces trial in Seattle on the shopping mall holdup after the Portland trial, which Assistant U.S. Attorney Barry Sheldahl estimated would take 2½ days. Parmenter also has been charged by the FBI with the Northern California heist.

In a previous court hearing for Parmenter, FBI agents testified the Seattle holdup was intended "to gain funding" for "a white supremacy organization."

Asked Dec. 27 about the motive for the holdup, Agent Norman D. Stephenson replied: "To extend their political beliefs, part of which was to eliminate the Jewish influence from government and the triumph of the Aryan race."

Parmenter and four others charged in the robbery had been members of the Church of Jesus Christ Christian, also known as the Aryan Nations, a white supremacist group.

The FBI has said it believes the Brink's armored car in California was robbed by members of "The Order," which sought to finance a right-wing overthrow of the federal government.

Parmenter was represented Friday by Stephen Crew, a court-appointed defense lawyer who replaced Parmenter's previous court-appointed attorney, Janet Hoffman.

Nerve gas samples going to Utah

HERMISTON, Ore. (AP) — Tiny samples of deadly nerve gas from 72 aging M-55 rockets at Umatilla Army Depot will be shipped to Utah under the Army's M-55 assessment program announced this week.

Safeguards used by the Army will make the transfer this spring "very, very safe," spokeswoman Susan Voss in Tooele, Utah, said Thursday.

The shipment will be part of an Army effort to assess the condition of rockets in storage at several installations, from Oregon to Alabama. In all, 370 of the nation's 477,000 obsolete M-55 rockets will be torn down and studied. Each contains about 10 pounds of nerve gas. Army officials hope to determine how much the chemical has deteriorated, whether the agent has dissolved any part of the rockets and how much longer the rockets can be stored.

The M-55 assessment program is part of a larger study to find a way to dispose of the nation's arsenal of M-55 rockets, which have become obsolete because the launcher to fire them is no longer available.

The rockets — about the size of a wooden fence post — were declared obsolete in 1980. Some of the missiles, which are stored in concrete igloos, have developed tiny leaks.

The Army has an elaborate system for shipping small amounts of nerve agents to avoid threats to public safety. Ms. Voss said. The Army occasionally ships small laboratory samples, and already has authorization to ship one liter of chemical agents, she said.

At Umatilla, two 10-milliliter samples from each rocket will be placed into two-inch glass vials and welded airtight with heat.

The samples will be flown directly to Dugway Proving Ground in Utah for testing.

Judge denies McKinney case dismissal bid

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Joyce Saltzman, a former beauty queen accused in the 1977 kidnapping and rape of a Mormon missionary in England, will go to trial on a charge giving false information to police, a judge has ruled.

Third District Judge Timothy R. Hanson did not set a trial date for Ms. McKinney, court clerk Evelyn Thompson said Friday. Details of the ruling were not immediately available.

Defense attorney Ronald Yenglich declined to comment on the decision. Ms. McKinney, 33, was accused of abducting Kirk Anderson, 23, while he was on a mission in England for the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. Authorities said she handcuffed Anderson to a bed with fur-lined manacles and forced him to have sex.

However, she jumped bail on the charge and fled England before being brought to trial. British officials have not sought extradition.

Ms. McKinney, who was Miss Wyoming-USA in 1973, was arrested June 19, 1984, outside the Western Airlines commissary in Salt Lake City where Anderson worked.

Police said Anderson had told them Ms. McKinney had been shadowing him, and that he feared she was planning to abduct him again.

Ms. McKinney, who claimed she was researching Anderson's activities for a book or screenplay about the 1977 incident at the time of her arrest, was also charged with disturbing the peace.

However, 5th Circuit Judge Eleanor VanSiver dismissed that count during a pretrial hearing Oct. 4.

Durable goods orders, home sales up in '84

By MARTIN CRUTSINGER
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Orders to factories for durable goods rose a strong 14.9 percent in 1984 while sales of existing homes posted their best performance in four years, according to two economic reports released Friday.

The reports capped a week of good economic news which has led many forecasters to boost their estimates of growth in coming months.

The Commerce Department said orders for durable goods — items expected to last three or more years — climbed to a record $1.211 trillion in 1984.

Last year's gain followed an even stronger 17.1 percent jump in 1983. The increases marked the best two-year performance since 1977 and 1978, when orders rose by 19 percent and 18.4 percent, respectively.

Orders for durable goods had fallen 10.2 percent in the recession year of 1982. "These back-to-back increases show that we had super growth in the last two years," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for Shearson Lehman-American Express. He predicted strong growth in manufacturing orders again in 1985, but not another year of double-digit increases.

"I think we will see strength in orders in coming months reflecting the renewed growth in the economy," he said.

Sinai said he has now revised his estimate of growth for the first three months of the year to a rate between 4 percent and 5 percent. This is up from his earlier expectation of 3 percent growth.

Meanwhile, a private housing trade group said sales of existing homes jumped 1.1 percent in December, pushing sales for all of 1984 to their highest level since 1980.

The National Association of Realtors said sales of existing homes hit 2.87 million units last year, a 5.5 percent improvement over 1983 and 4.1 percent higher than the recession lowpoint in 1982.

Housing officials gave credit for the gains to declining interest rates, citing figures from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board that the average interest rate on mortgages closed in 1984 was 12.5 percent, down from 12.85 percent in 1983 and 15.38 percent in 1982.

"Lower long-term interest rates, as well as the widespread use of adjustable rate mortgages, were the key to helping more families make housing purchases last year," said David D. Roberts, president of the association and a Mobile, Ala., real estate agent.

The Commerce Department report on new orders for durable goods said the big 1984 increase came despite decided weakness in orders in the last half of the year.

In December, orders dropped 2.1 percent, the third decline in the last four months. New orders last month totaled $101.9 billion.

However, Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige pointed out that the December decline resulted primarily from a 17.6 percent dip in the highly volatile category of defense orders.

Defense orders had surged up by 110.4 percent in November and analysts had not expected that level to be maintained. Without the drop in defense, new orders would have dipped a smaller 0.3 percent in December.

Michael Evans, head of Evans Economics, a private Washington forecasting firm, said that while the December decline was more than had been expected, it was likely to be revised upward when more information is gathered. He predicted the economy will advance at a strong rate of 4 percent in the first half of this year and an even better 5 percent in the second half.

On Tuesday, the government boosted its estimate of growth during the final three months of the year to 3.9 percent, more than double the 1.6 percent growth rate turned in from July through September. Since then, private economists have reforecasting their own predictions for 1985 based on the stronger growth recorded at the end of the year.

In the durable goods report, the transportation industry showed the largest decline, a 6.7 percent drop, caused primarily because of the dip in defense orders.

Stanleigh G. Fox stands in front of the three-bedroom home he is trying to sell for a price of $143,000

Home buyer offered vacation in Hawaii

Owner going to great lengths for sale

By BLAIR S. WALKER
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — Stanleigh Fox is going to great lengths to sell his suburban home — about 4,200 miles.

He's offering an eight-day paid vacation in Hawaii to anyone who buys his $143,000, three-bedroom house on a 1/4-acre lot.

The 38-year-old businessman says he will even consider adding meals to the deal, which covers air fare and lodging.

Visions of warm beaches and Hawaiian luau have kept his telephone answering machine busy, Fox said Friday.

"The recorder was full last night; there were over 30 messages on the recording when I got home last night," he said.

"I have five appointments this weekend. People are also just calling to find out what was going on."

Before he offered the vacation, Fox had advertised his house in suburban Winfield for four days in a local newspaper and gotten just four inquiries. He said it was especially difficult to sell a house in mid-winter in the Chicago area.

Then he and his roommate, David Padock, came up with the Hawaiian travel gimmick during a moment of wine-fueled inspiration, he said.

"We just sat there drinking wine and dreamed it up," Fox said. The idea of offering a vacation was Padock's, who works as a marketing manager for Ozark Airlines, Fox said.

Fox decided the vacation should provide a sun-swept respite from the Chicago area's frigid weather and settled on Hawaii.

In front of his home, he placed a "for sale" sign, advertising a "free Hawaiian vacation for two" on one side and showing a picture of a jetliner on the other.

Fox said he figures it will cost him $4,000 to provide the Hawaiian trip, and that's cheaper than the 7 percent commission charged by most real estate agents.

Donna Cox-Rodriguez, a Chicago real estate agent, said Fox's idea was catchy — but against the rules for licensed real estate agents.

"In the real estate business, you can't do that, you can't offer prizes or anything," Mrs. Cox-Rodriguez said Friday. "That's against the law, that's enticement."

However, she said such restrictions don't apply to private owners.

Winfield is 27 miles west of Chicago, and Fox said it takes him three hours to commute in rush-hour traffic. Fox, who is divorced, said he wants to move closer to downtown Chicago, where he works as a business development manager for an engineering firm.

His single-level, five-year-old home is several hundred yards from the nearest neighbor. Included with the house are all kitchen appliances, central air conditioning and a three-car heated garage.

"I'm not selling it because there's anything wrong with it," he said. "I need to get closer to my job."

In buying the house, he said, "you get to go on a nice Hawaiian vacation and come home to a fairly new home."

Friday gains top good week on Wall Street

Anticipated lower interest rates provide market boost

By CHET CURRIER
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market capped off its best and busiest week since last summer with another gain Friday.

Financial-services stocks were among the standouts as advances outnumbered declines for the 15th consecutive session on the New York Stock Exchange.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks rose 5.83 to 1,278.06, bringing its gain for the week to 48.70 points.

That marked the best weekly showing for the average since it jumped a record 87.46 points last July 30-Aug. 3.

Friday's Big Board volume totaled 122.44 million shares, down from 160.74 million Thursday.

Average daily volume for the week was 149.84 million, just short of the record of 150.89 million set last Aug. 6-10.

After the close Thursday, the Federal Reserve reported a larger-than-expected $2.8 billion drop in the basic measure of the money supply for the week ended Jan. 14.

As many traders interpreted them, those figures seemed to leave ample room for the Fed to stick with its recent relaxation of monetary policy.

Falling interest rates lately have reduced the competitive appeal of interest-bearing investments in comparison to stocks.

A less positive note was sounded Friday morning, however, when the Commerce Department reported that new orders for durable goods fell 2.1 percent last month. They had risen 8.3 percent in November.

After dropping sharply in the credit markets Thursday, interest rates on government bonds backed up slightly in Friday's activity.

Financial-services stocks were broadly higher, responding to the recent strength of the securities markets. Merrill Lynch gained 1 1/2 to 33 1/2; Phillips-Salomon 1 1/2 to 38; E.F. Hutton 1 1/2 to 34 1/2; PaineWebber 1 1/2 to 34 1/2; American Express 1/2 to 40 1/2, and First Boston 1/2 to 59 1/2.

Phillips Petroleum led the active list and rose 3/4 to 48 1/2 on volume of more than 2.9 million shares. Minneapolis investor Irwin Jacobs said he was actively involved in trading of the stock, but declined to say how much of it he owned.

About a month ago, Phillips worked out an agreement to avert a takeover by an agreement group led by T. Boone Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum. Since that time, there has been much speculation that a new bidder might appear for the company.

Expectations of lower interest rates helped prompt gains in such stocks as the regional telephone holding companies and Federal National Mortgage, which climbed 1 1/2 and was heavily traded for the second straight day.

Gainers' edge over losers was about 3 to 2 on the Big Board. The exchange's composite index of all its listed common stocks rose .39 to a new high of 102.42.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 151.08 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrial stocks gained .54 to 198.55, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up .64 at 177.35.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market picked up 1.66 to 274.00. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 220.52, up .95.

Bank chairman sees ranks being thinned out

BOISE (AP) — The chairman of First Interstate Bancorporation predicts up to one-third of the nation's banks might go out of business in the next five years.

Stiff competition, economic changes and a profit squeeze prompted by financial deregulation mean difficult times lie ahead for banks, particularly small, independent institutions, Joseph Pinola said Thursday.

Mergers and bankruptcies will reduce the number of United States banks, now estimated at 15,000, to about 10,000 by the end of the decade, predicted Pinola, who also is chief executive officer of the Los Angeles-based bank holding company.

Pinola made his remarks in an interview before he addressed the Boise Chamber of Commerce.

"I would not want to be a small, independent bank," he said. "The deregulation is impacting them very much. You can see that by the number of bankruptcies and mergers."

In the future, he said, there may be only about six to eight large, national banks that will have a good-sized share of the market. They include Citibank, American Express and Sears, said Pinola, who hopes to make First Interstate one of the national banks.

Small independent banks will not be a thing of the past, but there will be fewer of them, he said.

"There will be any number of very well-run, small banks that are going to survive. There are any number of independent grocery stores that are still surviving in the day of the supermarket," he said.

"But there are nowhere near the number of small grocery stores today that there were 10 years ago. That analogy would certainly apply to banks."

He said larger bank systems stand to achieve economies of scale not possible at smaller banks.

With the current squeeze on profits by bad loans in real estate and agriculture and higher interest rates, Pinola said, Congress must provide banks with the ability to sell insurance, real estate and other items to give banks new sources of income.

Pinola said he expects the number of banks to be cut by one-third in the next five years.

Economy leads array of foes opposing labor unions

NEW YORK — Labor unions have a long tradition of battling for worker rights, often against great odds and against managements that sometimes viewed them as intruders into matters that were none of their business.

But battling management was relatively easy for union leaders, a job of one or maybe two dimensions, compared with the array of foes now lined up against them.

There is the economy itself, for example. Times are good, employment levels are high, and new businesses are being formed at a relatively high rate. Workers seem to feel more satisfied than they did three years ago, and satisfaction does not spur union membership.

Strong as it is, the economy is also lopsided, distorted in the sense that imports have taken away a lot of jobs in autos, steel and related industries. And relatively high union wages are often cited as a reason why.

John Cunniff

The economy is also evolving. If it is fair to say that industrial America was built by blue-collar workers it might also be fair to say that white collar types, more resistant to union membership, are now taking over the job.

To put it another way, muscle jobs make up a shrinking proportion of the work force in the service and information age. Computer designers, that is, seem no more interested than robots in joining the labor movement.

There is the matter of image. A study by professors at Cleveland State University indicates that many people — even one generation removed from the assembly line — consider unions impositions on the natural order of business.

It comes as no surprise therefore to find that union membership is falling.

In 1980, there were about 22.2 million members. By 1982 the total was down to 19.6 million. And since 1982, says Brian Heshizer of Cleveland State, the total has dropped an additional 600,000.

Heshizer, an assistant professor, and Professor Harry Graham, also of Cleveland State, sent questionnaires to 212 top union officials and received responses from 79 of them. Among other things, they found:

- Many fear that everything they fought for will be washed away in a tide of foreign imports, conservative politics, and ill will from a middle class one generation removed from the assembly line.

"They are exasperated by a public that wants to place the blame for economic woes on their heads; and that sees them as corrupt and manipulative."

Heshizer and Graham found a great deal of resentment among the respondents.

"In raising the standard of living for union members," one labor leader told the professors, "other segments of society have been pulled along, and those segments see no reason now to join a union."

Asked the cause of their problems, few union officials blamed unemployment, automation or themselves.

Nearly one-half, however, said their problems resulted from union policies and structure. Thirty-nine percent blamed "anti-labor" government policies. Only 21 percent mentioned labor's public image, and 18 percent the economy.

In spite of such opinions, however, Heshizer says "unions have been battered by the economy and image problems." He claims the public feels unions have invited problems through high wages and restrictive work practices.

The professors find some movement on both business and labor sides to adjust to the new conditions, but question whether changes on the public side of the bargaining table will come too late.

Some top unionists remain confident, they say, but others see a debacle ahead for the union movement.

UP posts record net

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Union Pacific Corp. posts expanded rail traffic in 1984 that could increase profits beyond the record net income reported for 1984.

Union Pacific in 1984 reported a net income of $494 million, up 66 percent from $297 million in 1983, Chairman William S. Cook said Wednesday.

Of the total, the rail system had net income of $311 million, a gain of 30 percent over 1983 net income of $240 million, Cook said.

Earnings per share for the corporation in 1984 were $4.01, an increase of 67 percent from $2.40 in 1983, Cook said.

The operation of a new joint line, opened in August with Chicago and North Western Railroad in Wyoming, increased the railroad's coal volume.

"A full year's operation will help our coal traffic," corporate spokesman Harvey Turner in New York said Thursday. "And of course we expect to continue adding to our coal traffic" by reaching new contracts with utility companies and other industries, he said.

Flutie says he'll join Generals

BOSTON (AP) — Helsman Trophy-winning quarterback Doug Flutie of Boston College, spurning the National Football League, said Friday he will sign a multimillion-dollar contract with the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League.

The contract, believed to be worth at least $7 million over at least five years, could make him the highest paid pro football player and the highest paid rookie in any sport.

"I'm a little bit relieved that this is out of the way now and I can get to work," said Flutie. "I'm just excited."

Bob Woolf, Flutie's agent, said the 5-foot-9½ quarterback might sign the contract next Tuesday or Wednesday and then report immediately to the Generals' training camp, which is already underway in Orlando, Fla.

The Generals play their first exhibition game Feb. 2 against the Memphis Showboats in Charlotte, N.C., and open the regular season Feb. 24 in Birmingham, Ala.

"When I started my college career, I didn't really expect a lot," Flutie said in an interview with The Associated Press at Woolf's office. "It's going to feel good being with a good organization. It's a first-class outfit all the way. So it's really an couaging for me to be in that type of situation."

Flutie, major college's career leader in total offense and passing yardage, would be the third consecutive Heisman Trophy winner to choose the 3-year-old USFL over the NFL. Running backs Herschel Walker, the winner in 1982, is with the Generals, and 1983 winner Mike Rozier played with Pittsburgh last season.

Generals owner Donald Trump, ranching in New York, said: "It's going to be great. Having Doug Flutie will be fabulous not only for the Generals, but for their fans."

The Buffalo Bills have the top choice in the NFL draft April 30, but Woolf said Friday that he hadn't been contacted in the past week by the NFL or the Bills. During the college football season, in which he led Boston College to a 10-2 record, a Cotton Bowl victory and the No. 5 spot in the final poll, Flutie had indicated a preference for the older league.

But he said Friday he had "no

Jerome knocks off No. 1 Wolverines

By LARRY HOVEY

JEROME — Brian Bolich and Jann Ferris came off the bench with just the amount of scoring punch needed to let the Jerome Tigers spoil an otherwise happy month for the Wood River Wolverines.

Each of the Tiger reserves hit four points midway through the fourth quarter to expand a shrinking 57-53 lead into a 72-53 victory.

It was a particularly tough loss for the Wolverines who were going for their 10th consecutive victory and trying to protect their No. 1 ranking in the state Associated Press poll. It also threw a little competition back into the South Central Idaho Conference and re-opened the can of worms concerning the four-team district playoff next month.

Wood River Coach Dick Richel summed up the night for his charges when he noted, "We went out and played hard on defense for 25 and 30 seconds and tried to get after them — and they would come up with a three-point shot."

That perhaps was an oversimplification as Jerome hit five three-pointers to two for the Wolverines. But Jerome handed Wood River's defensive pressure well, better than any of the Wolverines' previous nine opponents. "Maybe we played in the 1-3-1 zone too long," Richel said, continuing to second-guess himself a bit. "But I thought we were getting pressure on them with it."

Actually, it didn't make a lot of difference because Jerome handled both defense fairly well.

But Jerome Coach Ben Allen went into this expecting the zone.

"Our guys did a better job against it and we've been working on against it," he said, "because everyone has been taking it to us in zone."

Allen said he never felt confident of the win because "in some other games we've gone to the line and missed the front end of six one and ones. So I'm always leery when it comes down to free throw time to see who is going to win."

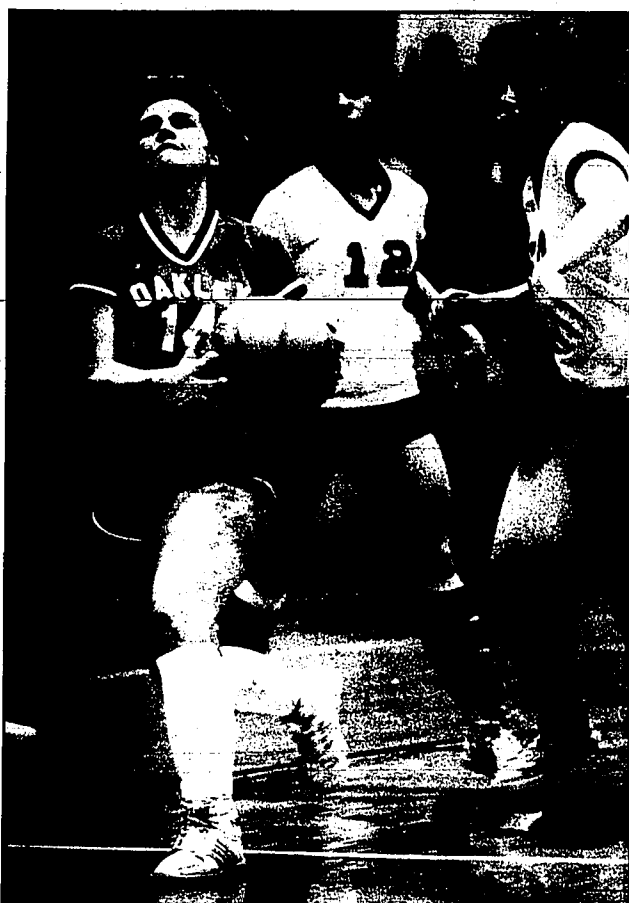

Still, he was appreciative of the efforts of Ferris and Bolich.

"The bench as been one of our strong points all year. We can't always get Ferris into the game but tonight it was ideal for him and he did the job. Bolich has had several nights like this, coming off the bench with eight or 10."

The game was played in separate parts — when Jerome scored well and when Wood River surged.

Jerome had first, picking up six straight points from De Herfel and a howitzer from Jeff Burnham for a 29-14 lead. But the Tigers subsided just as quickly and Wood River closed

Charities help Gooding top Pilots

GOODING — Bring on Shoshone.

The Gooding Senators went to the fourth line 40 times Friday night and made 27 of them as they breezed past No. 4 Glens Ferry 45-38 in Canyon Conference basketball action.

One of the key turning points came when the Pilots failed to hit a shot in the first seven minutes of the third quarter, allowing the Senators to take a commanding lead.

The decision boosted Gooding's conference mark to 6-1, while Glens Ferry dropped to 6-2.

Neither team led by more than four points through the first half. The Senators hit just three of 22 field goal attempts before intermission, but they sank eight free throws to keep them in the game.

In the third quarter, Gooding's Sven Swenson took control and scored six points that gave the Senators a 20-18 lead.

With one minute left in the quarter, Gooding had built a 25-18 lead, but Glens Ferry battled back and scored five points in the remaining 60 seconds and trailed by four points going into the last period.

In the fourth quarter, Gooding only made two field goals, but sank 14 free throws outscoring the Pilots 18-15 in the last period.

Halfway through the period, Glens Ferry's 6-8 center Dave Fulton scored six points and the Pilots trailed 32-30.

Gooding went on to score the next six points, putting matters out of reach.

Yore came up with an offensive rebound and a basket and the Senators led 34-30. After the Pilots missed a shot, Swenson drove to the basket where he was fouled after he scored. He sank two free throws and Gooding led 38-30.

Poky edges Bruins

POCATELLO — A second-quarter scoring lull and a second straight game of missing the critical late free throws cost the Twin Falls Bruins a chance to knock off Gem State Conference-leading Pocatello Friday night.

The Bruins return to the home gymnasium tonight to entertain the Bonneville Bees with tipoff at 8 p.m.

Just as it was against Idaho Falls last Saturday, Twin Falls missed free throws that could have changed things. Instead, the Bruins couldn't get into the lead and had to foul in an effort to catch up. Pocatello's Marc McCune didn't miss, hitting five straight to close things out in a 61-58 decision.

"We had the right guys on the line, they just wouldn't go. And that last shot by Jason (Meyerhoeffer, a three-pointer at the buzzer) had a chance. It just came off the back of the rim," said Coach John Astorquia.

Astorquia said he felt the difference in the game came midway through the final period when Indians Doug Williams, who wound up with 23 points, was awarded a four-point play. He was given the field goal and then a one-and-one, making both of them.

"I felt that was a poor call. But even then, really late when we were down six, we came up with two quick steals, scored on one and got fouled on the other. But we couldn't get the free throw and get it back to even," Astorquia said.

Astorquia said if there was a place to pinpoint as the reason for the loss it was the second period. "It seemed like we were stuck on 15 for an hour and a half," he said.

It actually was just over four minutes but during that span, Williams reeled off eight straight points. Matt Harr finally took the Bruins off 15 but Pocatello then moved up by nine when Wyatt hit a three-point goal.

"Then we get it back to six and (John) Goodman hits that three-pointer at the buzzer," Astorquia said.

Throughout the third quarter Twin Falls crept back into contention but couldn't get closer than two. Williams' controversial four-point play opened up a 52-43 lead and with 2:30 to play, the Indians still had seven to spare.

Then Harr scored and Alan Valdez got a crimp off a steal. Harr stole the ensuing in-bound pass and was fouled but hit just one, leaving the Bruins behind 57-56.

McCune's first two free throws were offset by a Doug Petersen field goal but with six seconds left McCune posted the final points. Twin Falls then sent Meyerhoeffer for the three-point prayer but it went unanswered.

Carl Lewis reaches for extra distance

Decker tells of attack

Lewis wins Millrose long jump, still ires fans

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Lewis won the long jump at the 78th Wanamaker Millrose Games Friday night, but the four-time Olympic champion incurred the wrath of the fans just as he did at last summer's Games because he skipped his final two jumps.

While Lewis was winning the long jump for the fourth consecutive time, Eamonn Coghlan captured the Wanamaker Mile for a record-equalling sixth time and Mary Decker wore down the field in romping to victory in the women's mile.

In the only American record set at Friday night's games, Jimmy Howard cleared 7 feet, 8 inches in the men's high jump. In soaring over the bar on his third and final attempt at the record height, Howard erased the mark of 7-7¼ established by Jeff Woodard in 1981 at the Garden.

Both Howard and Sweden's Patrick Sjöberg, who passed at 7-8, failed in three attempts to clear a world indoor best of 7-9¼. The world indoor mark is 7-9¼, held by Carlo Thranehand of West Germany.

Lewis, winner of Olympic gold medals in the 100-meter dash, 200-meter dash, long jump and 400-meter relay, had irritated the fans at the Los Angeles Games after passing his final four attempts in the long jump.

At that time, he said he did not want to over-exert himself for the 200 final, which he had to run the same night.

"This time, he quit after four tries after suffering an injury to his right groin during his final attempt."

"It's nothing serious," Lewis said. "It's nothing bad. I didn't want to aggravate it. I accomplished what I wanted to do. I'm pleased with my performance."

Lewis said he didn't hear the boos. "I don't hear negative things," he said. "I'm basically an upbeat person."

"I didn't jump later (the last two jumps) because I was pleased with the three (legal jumps) that I had. I had a little soreness in my right groin area, so I listened to my body. I don't over-compete."

Lewis' performance included a foul jump of 27 feet, 8¼ inches, a winning effort of 27-10¼, 27-8¼ and the two passes.

His failure to take his last two attempts drew loud boos from the crowd of 18,328 at Madison Square Garden.

Coghlan, "The Chairman of the Boards," showed no signs of jitters in the men's mile.

As is his custom, he started slowly, moved up toward the leaders midway through the 11-laps-to-the-mile race, then burst in front with about 2½ laps remaining.

In winning in 3 minutes, 53.82 seconds — the fastest of the 1985 indoor season — Coghlan matched the six Wanamaker Mile victories accomplished by the great Glenn Cunningham during the 1930s.

Coghlan, however, never has lost a Wanamaker Mile; Cunningham lost two.

The event produced a 1-12 Irish finish, as Coghlan's countryman, Ray Flynn, was the runner-up in 3:54.70.

Decker, the most dominant women's distance runner in U.S. history, cruised to victory in the women's mile in 4:22.01.

The time was just over her world indoor best of 4:20.5, but kept her unbeaten indoor streak alive. She has not lost indoors since 1978.

Decker, who has been criticized for her remarks about Zola Budd, with whom she collided during the 1984 Olympics in the women's 3,000 meters, received a mixed reaction from the crowd.

When the public address announcer began introducing her, "the crowd boomed. When the announced finished reciting her accomplishments, the boos turned to cheers."

When she completed her race, the crowd cheered again. But when her time was announced — short of the record — there were some scattered boos.

Britain's Wendy Sli, the Olympic silver medalist in the 3,000, finished a distant second in the mile in 4:31.51.

Decker said she was running under a tremendous emotional strain. Last Saturday, while running on a bike path near her home in Eugene, Ore., she said a man who was bicycling alongside her suddenly cut in front of her and jumped her.

"The next thing I knew, I was on the ground," recalled Decker. "He had his hands on my face and said he wanted money."

"I bruised my hip — the same hip that I hurt in Los Angeles (after the collision with Budd), but apparently I didn't fall the same way."

"I was really worried about it. I have no idea how I got away."

Decker said she had refrained from discussing the incident until Friday night because "I didn't want any publicity. I just wanted to come here and race."

She said that since the incident, her husband, Richard Slaney, a 320-pound British discus thrower, has accompanied her on her training runs.

"The incident took an emotional toll on me that was worse than anything than anything physical that happened. It was one of the most frightening things that ever happened to me. I felt that I didn't have the emotional spark here tonight. I felt that I was just plodding along."

"I felt lucky to get away unharmed."

Meanwhile, Diane Hiken, formerly of Ohio State University and the only American winner in last weekend's inaugural World Indoor Games at Paris, ran a sizzling race in the women's 400 meters.

Her time of 52.9 seconds was much quicker than her American indoor record of 53.17. But it will not count as a record, because the scientific timing device malfunctioned and it was hand-timed.

In distances of 400 meters or less, fully automatic timing must be used for record acceptance.

More Lewiston cagers ousted

LEWISTON (AP) — Five more members of Lewiston High School's boys' basketball squad were dismissed from the team Thursday for consuming or possessing alcoholic beverages, officials said.

Thursday's action followed the dismissal of nine varsity players Wednesday. Ten players remain eligible to finish the season, said LHS varsity coach Jim Minnette. The five players dismissed Thursday were all members of the junior varsity squad, officials said.

Cardinals, Giants to swap?

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Outfielder Jack Clark of the San Francisco Giants could be in a St. Louis Cardinals uniform via trade within the "next couple of days," a source confirmed Friday night.

In a copyrighted story Friday, the St. Louis Globe-Democrat quoted sources as saying the Cards would send outfielder-first baseman David Green, pitcher Dave LaPoint and infielder Jose Gonzalez to San Francisco for Clark. The Globe-Democrat also said the Cards might include first baseman Gary Rajsch in the deal.

A source close to negotiations between the two teams on Friday night confirmed the names involved but told The Associated Press, "There's still a fly in the deal, and I don't know what it is."

"I don't know what else is involved, but those are the people," the source said.

Turner will pay for telecasts

ATLANTA (AP) — Atlanta Braves owner Ted Turner said Friday he has agreed to make annual payments to other major-league teams while continuing to broadcast baseball games across the nation over his cable television "superstation."

Turner said that under a five-year agreement reached with Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth, the Braves will pay into baseball's central fund for equal distribution to other major-league clubs. In exchange, the commissioner's office will not try to stop the Braves from sending their cable broadcasts outside the Atlanta area.

Frank Miller, a spokesman for Turner Broadcasting System, declined to say how much the payments would be.

Man arrested in Stewart case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A man posing as a woman who was arrested along with pitcher Dave Stewart of the Texas Rangers for allegedly engaging in lewd conduct in public view was sentenced to five days in jail, police said Friday.

Elson Tyler, 27, of Los Angeles, pleaded guilty Thursday, according to Los Angeles Police Department spokesman Cmdr. William Booth.

"The city attorney's office informed me that Tyler pleaded guilty to illegal lewd conduct and had been sentenced to five days in jail, 45 days suspended sentence, six months probation and bail forfeiture," Booth said.

Stewart also was charged with lewd conduct as a result of the alleged incident in a car in an eastside downtown alley at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday. Stewart, 27, was issued a citation requiring him to appear in Municipal Court on Feb. 6.

Virginia's Holland in hospital

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Virginia basketball Coach Terry Holland will likely miss the team's two games this weekend after being readmitted to a hospital with a flareup of an intestinal upset, school officials said Friday.

Holland, 42, was readmitted to the University of Virginia Medical Center on Thursday night, said Rich Murray, Virginia's sports information director. It is Holland's third hospital stay since Sunday.

"He apparently had a flareup of the problem. It was decided it was best to put him back in the hospital," said Murray. "He's not experiencing any pain right now, but they do not expect him to be on the bench this weekend."

Epple edges McKinney in slalom

AROSA, Switzerland (AP) — West Germany's Maria Epple posted her first-ever World Cup slalom victory Friday by the narrowest of margins — one-hundredth of a second ahead of fast-closing American Tamara McKinney. The 25-year-old Epple, who holds four giant slalom victories and is considered a standout in that discipline, completed two runs in 1 minute, 48.11 seconds.

Rozelle has mixed feelings on Flutie

HONOLULU (AP) — National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle said Friday he regretted the decision of Helmsman Trophy winner Doug Flutie to sign with the United States Football League, but added that the size of the New Jersey Generals' offer to Flutie had scared away many NFL teams.

In an informal meeting with newsmen following a practice session for Sunday's Pro Bowl game, Rozelle didn't attempt to minimize the loss of the Boston College quarterback to the 5-year-old USFL.

"He's an exciting player and a fine young man," Rozelle said. "I'd like to see him in the NFL. Any exciting young player is a loss. We didn't want to lose him."

Rozelle pointed out, however, that O.J. Simpson and Rocky Staubach, elected this week to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, were the first two Helmsman Trophy winners ever accorded that honor.

"There's no one player, regardless of how good he is, who can make a difference in the NFL," said Rozelle.

Flutie, who quarterbacked Boston College to a 10-2 record and the No. 5 ranking in The Associated Press poll, said Friday in Boston that he had agreed to a long-term contract with the Generals. It reportedly will pay Flutie $7 million over at least five years.

Rozelle said he had discussed Flutie's status with the Buffalo Bills, who have the first choice in the April 30 NFL draft and nominally held Flutie's rights. He said the Bills had shown some interest and had also discussed deals for Flutie's rights with other NFL teams.

"The reading I get," Rozelle said, "is that they're really concerned about the money because it has a bigger ripple effect in the NFL than in their league."

After Flutie's heroics for Boston College this year, capped by a nationally televised, last-second touchdown pass that beat Miami, Fla., 47-45, most NFL scouts dropped their reservations about the height of the 5-foot-9¾ quarterback and named him a top prospect.

But after mediocre performances in Boston College's 45-28 Cotton Bowl win over Houston and in two post-season all-star games, the Aloha and Japan bowls, some of those reservations reappeared.

Still, the Atlanta Falcons, Cleveland Browns and Dallas Cowboys were known to be interested in Flutie, and the general consensus among personnel officials was that he would have been no worse than a mid-first round draft choice in the NFL.

The reaction of the NFL all-stars preparing for Sunday's Pro Bowl appeared generally to be that what is good for one player is good for another.

The first reaction of Miami Dolphins quarterback Dan Marino, who scattered NFL records with 48 touchdown passes and 5,084 passing yards, was: "How much did he get?"

Told the reported amount, Marino asked: "How much is that a year?"

Told that, Marino, who will soon begin renegotiating his contract with the Dolphins, just smiled.

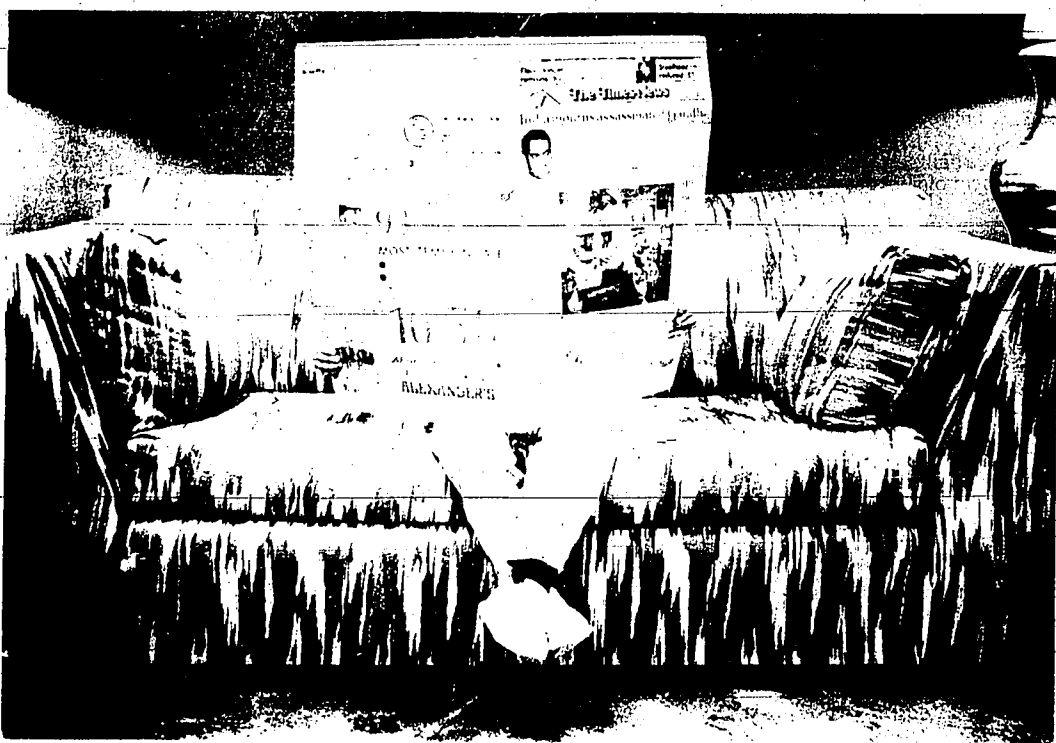

If Flutie is worth that much, Marino was asked, how much would a record-breaking NFL quarterback be worth?

Marino smiled again — then laughed.

Dave Krieg of the Seattle Seahawks, Marino's backup for the AFC all-stars, just shook his head and said, "We didn't hear about Helmsman trophies at Milton College," the now-defunct Wisconsin school he attended before joining the NFL as a free agent. "I'm sorry he didn't come to the NFL."

Deron Cherry, an all-pro free safety for the Kansas City Chiefs, smiled when he heard the news that the Generals were signing Flutie.

Does it pay to paper train your kids?

There's only one way to find out.

Most people agree that children who enjoy reading fare better in school than children who don't. But what children read is also important, particularly if its enriching material like newspapers.

Times-News readers, for example, have higher educational levels and higher incomes than non-subscribers, according to a 1984 survey commissioned by the Idaho Newspaper Association. Times-News readers are also more likely to be homeowners, to hold good jobs, and participate more in the civic affairs of their communities. And they tend to be better informed about events in the Magic Valley, the state, nation and world. Times-News readers are often productive, well-informed and respon-

Subscribing to The Times-News can help give your kids a head start on those goals.

Watch your children take to The Times-News when it comes into your home. They'll read the comics, the sports, the features and the news. They'll look for temporary jobs.
