High court orders right-to-work into effect

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — State officials asked the Idaho Supreme Court late Friday afternoon for an immediate ruling overturning a district court order blocking enforcement of a right-to-work law passed by the Legislature 21 hours earlier.

The court agreed Friday evening, blocking, at least temporarily, a restraining order issued Thursday against the new law.

Deputy Attorney General Robb Russell said in a 14-page argument that a 6th District judge did not have the authority to sign a temporary restraining order against the right-to-work law.

Chief Justice Charles Donaldson signed an order at 6:15 p.m., granting a temporary stay against the district court order.

The order, to 6th District Judge George Hargraves, Pocatello, forbids Hargraves from enforcing his restraining order, or taking any other action in the case.

The Supreme Court ordered all parties in the case to submit written arguments by Wednesday at 5 p.m. why the temporary stay should not be made permanent. If oral arguments are needed, they will be scheduled later, the court said.

Supreme Court Clerk Frederick Lyon said the order directs that Hargraves, 6th District Judge Dell Smith and all others involved with the matter must be served "immediately" with notice of the stay.

Lyon said he took that order literally and was attempting to contact the attorney general's office to get someone to take the order to Pocatello Friday night to give it to the judges involved.

Hargraves signed a restraining order Thursday morning, just after Gov. John Evans vetoed the right-to-work bill. Legislative leaders were served with the restraining order a couple of hours later, just as the House and Senate were overriding the governor's veto of the right-to-work bill.

Attorney General Jim Jones, officers of the Legislature and Bannock County Prosecutor Shawn Anderson filed an answering action late Friday afternoon, naming Hargraves as the defendant.

Jones said it's his opinion that right-to-work became Idaho law Thursday afternoon, when the House and Senate voted to override the veto.

Russell repeated the argument in his Supreme Court appeal, saying Hargraves had no authority to issue orders to the Legislature against enacting a law.

But whether the new law could be enforced unless the Supreme Court rules quickly "is still murky," Jones said in an interview.

Several county and state officials were served with restraining orders attempting to block enforcement of right-to-work, a law which bans compulsory union membership or payment of dues as a condition of employment.

If Jones is correct and the Idaho law is in effect, Idaho becomes the 21st state with such a law, and the first to enact one since the 1970s.

At the request of several labor unions, Hargraves signed the temporary restraining order.

Ax faces domestic spending

By DAVID ESPO
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will propose a $974 billion budget for the 1986 fiscal year that calls for nearly $40 billion in new spending cuts from domestic programs while recommending an increase of $30 billion for the Pentagon, administration officials said Friday.

Under the president's proposals, the federal government would have its first trillion-dollar budget in fiscal 1987. The documents project that spending would rise to $1,027 trillion that year.

The president's plan calls for declining budget deficits through the end of the decade, but the red ink would not fall below $100 billion until 1990, well after the end of the Reagan presidency.

The plan forecasts revenues of $794 billion and a deficit of about $180 billion, added officials, who spoke only on condition they not be identified. But that assumes the president's budget is accepted in its entirety by Congress, where opposition already is forming to many of the proposals.

The budget — the first of Reagan's second term — contains no call for a tax increase, and the president is expected to send Congress a plan later this year to simplify the income tax code.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the overall plan is in keeping with the president's wishes to freeze overall government spending.

The $974 billion figure would represent an increase of only 1.5 percent over the current year, the smallest rise in years. The administration currently estimates total spending for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 at $95.9 billion.

"It's a programmatic freeze, a freeze on program outlays," after adjusting for an increase in interest payments, Speakes said. He said the government would pay about $145 billion next year as interest on the national debt.

The president's decision to raise Pentagon spending by nearly $30 billion within the context of a near-freeze overall means a reduction of an estimated $38.9 billion in domestic costs, including a freeze in numerous domestic programs and outright cuts and cancellations in others.

For the eight remaining months of the current fiscal year, the president will recommend a relatively small cut of $1.4 billion, leaving a deficit estimated at $22 billion.

Bartender Joe Mendoza, 37, of Ketchum, says making a drink is the easiest part of his job

Career behind the bar flexible but challenging

By DAVE LEWIS

KETCHUM — It's a job that gives Joe Mendoza the flexibility to live his chosen lifestyle and a career he can confidently take anywhere he wants to go.

It's an opportunity to meet people and to gain new ideas for going places and doing things. It's also, he says, a test of his ability to stay on-top of the latest trends and to shape his product to the desires of his customers.

For Mendoza, being on the back side of a bar is more than just pouring drinks for people on the other side. It's a chance to be dynamic, creative and entertaining. It gives him the satisfaction of success when he does his job well and people recognize what he does for them.

"It was always told that making a drink was the easiest part of bartending," says the 37-year-old Mendoza, bar manager for the Pioneer Saloon in Ketchum.

Mendoza views bartending as a challenge to make people happy, not necessarily drunk. It's an opportunity to show them a good time, to make them satisfied and to want to come back again for another good time.

"I think a good bartender is like being a waiter," says Mendoza, who has worked as a bartender for most of the last 15 years. "Be a salesman. Sell the product, sell the drink. Get people excited about being in the bar."

South Idaho hearings due on farm bill

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Newly elected Congressman Richard Stallings said Friday he is bringing members of the Agriculture Committee from the U.S. House of Representatives to southern Idaho for formal hearings on the 1985 farm bill.

The hearings most likely will take place during the first week of April and will be held by the Agriculture Committee itself or one of its subcommittees, he said.

They will focus on legislative proposals and on farm credit problems in the state.

Stallings made the announcement in a speech before members of the Utah-Idaho Farmers Union in Burley. He also said he and other representatives will go directly to President Ronald Reagan about the crisis in the farm economy.

"We will do some things in the next few days to get the President's attention, to show him we're really dealing with an emergency," Stallings said. Among them is a letter seeking a face-to-face session with Reagan, the Democrat congressman said.

A history professor at Ricks College before being elected to office, Stallings compared the current credit crunch and low commodity prices to the farm economy that preceded the Great Depression.

"Unless we do something now, ... I think we're probably headed in the same direction," he told the Farmers Union delegates at the last session of their state convention.

REP. RICHARD STALLINGS
Bringing colleagues along

The Reagan proposal for the 1985 farm bill soon is slated to go to Congress. When it does, Stallings may introduce a bill that would force the U.S. Farmers Home Administration to take repossessed farm lands out of production instead of leasing or selling them at cut rates, he said.

The proposal, which still is being studied, would help trim crop surpluses and would help that falling land prices. Stallings said in an interview later. He also would propose installing soil-saving measures on the tilted land.

After being seated in the House of Representatives, Stallings was interviewed.

Farm aid package to guarantee loans

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Help is on the way for farmers caught in the most severe credit crunch in decades, Reagan administration and congressional leaders said Friday.

They were piecing together an aid package that includes at least $650 million in farm loan guarantees.

But even Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., who was a central figure in working out the compromise plan, said it was "No Band Aid, it's not a solution. There's no way the federal government is going to go out and rescue everyone who may be in difficulty, in agriculture or in any other area."

Farmers' financial problems highlighted by protests and foreclosure auctions in the Farm Belt and by escalating pressure and rhetoric in Washington, are the worst since the Depression.

The aid program is aimed at alleviating the most immediate need: credit to buy fertilizer, fuel and seed to plant spring crops.

After weeks of pressure by farm-state members of Congress, the administration first advanced its latest relief plan in meetings Thursday night with House and Senate Republicans. More details fell into place at a bipartisan meeting with senators on Friday.

As outlined by participants in the closed meetings, the program includes these primary elements:

- Federal guarantees to back up farm loans, up to a level of 90 percent, if the banks agree to "write down" the interest rate to a point where the borrower's income will cover loan payments. The help would be extended both to commercial banks and to Production Credit Associations, borrower-owned banks that are part of the quasi-federal Farm Credit System. More than $650 million might be available if there is sufficient demand from banks, Dole said.
- An easing of pressure on farm banks by federal regulators. Bankers say that pressure is forcing them to foreclose on some farm borrowers prematurely and is making them reluctant to extend new loans even to farmers who are in relatively good financial shape.
- The addition of new personnel, both through hiring and through transfers from other federal agencies, to the Farmers Home Administration, which administers the loan program. The agency would then send teams into the field to speed processing of loan paperwork, now seriously bogged down.

More jobs, more seekers too

By PETE YOST
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's unemployment rate rose to 7.3 percent in January, the Labor Department reported Friday.

Analysts said the underlying strength of the economy was evident in the creation of 350,000 new jobs.

The civilian unemployment rate was up two-tenths of a percentage point as the ranks of the jobless grew by 300,000 to a record 8.5 million, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

Many of the 300,000 were laid-off

Area rate falls — A5

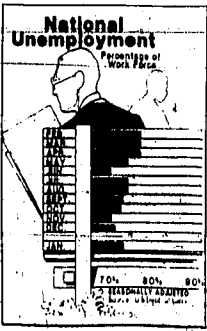

Christmas workers who failed to find new jobs. That was reflected in an increase in the jobless rate for women from 6.4 percent to 6.9 percent.

However, the number of Americans holding jobs rose about 120,000 to a record 108.4 million and a separate survey of business establishments showed that there actually were 350,000 new jobs created last month, almost entirely in the service area of the economy.

The increase in jobs growth was well above what had been expected," said Allen Sinai, chief economist and managing director of Shearson Lehman-American Express.

Of 350,000 jobs created in January, only 23,000 were in manufacturing and before the figures were adjusted for seasonal variations, employment in manufacturing actually declined by 146,000.

There were smaller-than-usual declines in construction and retail trade in January and those industries actually showed significant job gains once the figures were adjusted for seasonal variations.

order, and set a hearing on it for Tuesday at Pocatello.

But the state officials asked for an immediate ruling, declaring Hargraves' order illegal, and to order the district judge to take no further action in the matter.

The officials contended it violates the constitutional separation of powers for the judicial to issue orders to the legislative branch on pending legislation.

"The act of these bodies and their officers in passing legislation may not be restrained by judicial orders," the officials said.

Authority to enforce laws is vested with the attorney general and county prosecutors. The decision whether to enforce a law is "within the sound discretion of those officers and may not be prohibited by the judicial, the legal papers said.

Hargraves ordered a court hearing on Tuesday at Pocatello on his restraining order, but Jones sent legal papers to Pocatello, requesting that the case be transferred to Boise, if the hearing is held at all.

"All the state and legislative officials involved are here," he said.

Even as the legal battles started, organized labor launched efforts to overturn the law. Almost as the Legislature was wrapping up action to enact right-to-work, Pocatello residents signed a petition to launch a referendum.

"The petition was down to Boise, arriving at the secretary of state's office late in the afternoon. If accepted, it could launch a referendum effort requiring about 22,000 signatures to be gathered in the next 60 days.

But some state officials contended that since right-to-work contained an emergency clause, it went into effect as soon as it passed the Legislature and the only way it could be overturned at the ballot box would be through a voter initiative.

The Idaho AFL-CIO planned a rally in Boise - this afternoon - Union members were asked to gather at a park, then march several blocks to Statehouse steps. The event was listed as "March for Jobs, Justice, Fairness and Workers' Rights."

State labor chief Jim Kerns took out a parade permit for 1,000 persons, but acknowledged that bitter cold in Pocatello might cut attendance.

Shortly after being served with restraining orders Thursday afternoon, legislative leaders asked Jones for a quick legal opinion.

Jones said it's clear that another branch of government may not stop the Legislature from enacting a law. Court action can be launched to stop enforcement, but not enactment, he said.

Working

migrated to resort towns, Mendoza started to bartending to make his days free to ski, backpack or do whatever else can be done.

However, unlike many, Mendoza did not become a bartender only to support a good time before moving on to another, more traditional career. As a young skier in South Lake Tahoe, Nev., he chose bartending to support the style of life he wanted to live on a permanent basis.

"I thought, as a career, I would stay with bartending," he says. "I do like it. I like the restaurant business. I like the flexibility."

He says his chosen career has given him the opportunity to pursue the outdoor activities he enjoys and the chance to travel and do things other professionals often cannot when tied to 9 to 5 of clock careers.

Mendoza admits others may make more money than he, but he says he doesn't want the tensions that may plague others.

"The lifestyle that I've led - good and bad - has been a good, healthy life. The person who has ulcers wants to trade places with me."

When Mendoza chose his profession, he says he did so with more than just the desire to maintain a lifestyle.

"I made the commitment that I'd be a very good bartender. That I could go anywhere in the United States and be comfortable applying for a job," he says.

Mendoza credits his early training in South Lake Tahoe as critical for his career. There, he says he worked under some excellent bartenders who taught him the value of giving good service as well as a good drink.

"When he came to Sun Valley in 1972, he was able to use that training to find work at the Pioneer Saloon and, in 1977, to become its bar manager.

Mendoza says he believes the key to being a successful bartender is service, which can take many forms.

Mendoza says he tries to get people together by starting conversations and creating a pleasant atmosphere through music and his manner of work.

Each bartender, he says, has his own style of making and pouring drinks, and he should use that individuality to entertain the customers. A timely courtesy, such as wiping the bar or an ash tray, pleases most customers.

"We want them to have a good time - him or her - and to let them have a good memory of the area and come back here," he says.

During his travels, Mendoza says he makes a point of visiting other bars to see what they are doing and serving. In a resort town, there are many visitors from other areas and the local bars need to know what they are drinking, he says. Seattle, San Francisco and Los Angeles provide Mendoza with the research he needs to stay current and to attract and keep customers.

"You have to know what's going on. Bar business is down, people don't drink as much as they used to," he says.

The unmarried Mendoza admits that with age, he has found a stronger need for financial success and stability. Over the years, he says he found his commitment to doing a good job paid off in promotions and raises from his employer and tips from his customers. He says that bar customers are becoming more and more willing to tip for good service.

"I tell the bartenders that you can't just stand there to get a tip," Mendoza says.

"But, good service not only can lead to some financial satisfaction, it also can lead to job satisfaction.

"It really makes me feel good when people say 'you're the best bartender I've ever seen,'" he says. "I walk out of here and have the gratification of being successful and being proud of it."

Personally playing a big role in being a bartender and liking the public is mandatory, adds Mendoza.

"You're definitely involved in the public," he says. "And, you're usually involved with a public that's in good spirits, generally."

Bartending, he says, is like "being at home and throwing a party for the public." But, "there are occasional problems."

"One of the toughest parts of the job is drunk, obnoxious people who don't know what they're doing," Mendoza says.

In those situations, he says, his role is to try and be a friend and get that person home before he gets into trouble.

He says he has received the appreciation of many people whom he has taken home when they were getting rowdy.

"I hope when I'm out getting out of hand that that's part of the service (from the bar)," Mendoza says.

However, he says, drinkers are changing and causing fewer problems.

"People are really becoming aware about how to go out and have a good time without being out of hand," Mendoza says.

Ice, snow cover the nation

Ice and snow downed power lines, closed schools and turned highways into skating rinks Friday deep into the heart of the Sun Belt, while temperatures crashed to record lows across the North.

Friday's low of 61 degrees below zero at Maybell in northeastern Colorado was the coldest on record anywhere in that state; one degree below the previous record set in 1951 and tied in 1979.

The mercury dipped below freezing Friday afternoon as far south as Brownsville, at the southern tip of Texas. Ice up to an inch thick was reported in central Mississippi and northern Louisiana.

Inmates release hostages

PENDELTON, Ind. (AP) - Inmates wielding knives and reportedly protesting poor treatment attacked guards at a maximum-security prison Friday, took over a cellblock and held two guards hostage for more than 15 hours, officials said.

Under an agreement with inmates that secured the hostages' release, Department of Correction Commissioner Gordon Faulkner promised to ask the federal Justice Department to have the FBI investigate any rights violations alleged by the inmates.

The agreement also said Faulkner would ask state police to investigate alleged crimes by the prison staff, and ask members of the General Assembly to hear the grievances of the inmates.

Proposal to change LCSC's role shot down in House vote

BOISE (AP) — The first Republican proposal to generate more revenue for the next state budget, changing Lewis-Clark State College to a vocational training center, has gone down to a quick and resounding defeat in the Idaho House.

The House Education Committee refused to print a proposal from Rep. John Sessions, R-Briggs, that he said could save $3.6 million per year in educational expenses.

The vote was 14-4 to reject the proposed legislation, with seven most committee Republicans voting against it. A GOP leader said it might be revived later, but only if Senate Republicans show strong support.

The GOP House majority has been working on ways to pump another $10 million to $12 million into the new state budget, either by cutting spending or finding new revenue.

The Lewis-Clark proposal was the first to emerge as prospective legislation. And House leaders said they were surprised at its overwhelming rejection.

Rep. Linda Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, House caucus chairman, said strong support was expressed for the proposal in caucus.

Later in the day, Republicans voted again in caucus on the Lewis-Clark proposal, and Bateman said a majority of the 67 Republicans in the House supported the proposal.

But he said the future of the measure might lie in the Senate. Unless Senate Republicans express strong support for changing the role of Lewis-Clark, Bateman said, there would be little point in trying to get the House to approve the idea.

Bateman said if necessary, the Lewis-Clark proposal could be introduced in the House Ways and Means Committee, or the State Affairs panel, since Education won't approve it.

Sessions urged House Education Committee members to end the years of "uncertainty" over Lewis-Clark, a four-year college at Lewiston.

His legislation aimed at making LCSC a vocational-technical training center. The legislation also changed the name of the Eastern Idaho Vocational Training School at Idaho Falls to an "institute."

Sessions said the change would cause "minimum disruption" in the Idaho educational system. There would be "a feeling of loss" in Lewiston, he said, but the long-term benefits would be great.

"We could move toward having a first-class institution, perhaps one of the best," he said.

But former Herb McDowell, who lives 25 miles from the school, was the first to speak against the proposal. He said "winning" the LCSC was the only way his child could attend a college education.

Writing to Boise to testify against the bill, he said he collected about 100 names of people opposed to closing LCSC.

Election recount plan offered

BOISE (AP) — Republican George Hansen would have qualified for a state-financed election recount under a proposal introduced in the Idaho House on Friday.

The measure drawn up by the staffs of the attorney general and the secretary of state calls for a recount at state expense when the margin of victory in an election is 1 percent or less.

Hansen lost his congressional seat to Democrat Richard Stallings, who garnered an edge of 170 votes out of more than 202,000 cast.

The seven-term congressman insisted he deserved a general recount at state expense because a partial recount he funded showed fluctuations in vote totals.

Another proposal prompted by a challenge last year and introduced by the House State Affairs Committee on Friday changes the requirements for party inclusion on the state ballot.

The Populist Party last year appealed successfully to the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals after state officials refused to put the party's presidential and vice presidential candidates on the Idaho ballot.

Victims' rights proposal out

BOISE (AP) — A bill the attorney general says will tell crime victims they no longer are "a forgotten statistic" has been sent to the Idaho Senate for amendment.

The bill spelling out victims' rights is a sound proposal, and changes likely will involve only technical points, said Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland. He chairs the Senate Judiciary and Rules Committee, which forwarded the measure on Friday after taking testimony.

The bill endorsed by a committee appointed to study the issue of rights issue between the 1984 and 1985 legislative sessions calls for criminals to compensate victims for property losses, medical expenses, lost wages and other damage.

Victims also would be entitled to testify at hearings when people who committed crimes against them are being sentenced or are up for parole.

PUC reviews UP&L complaint

BOISE (AP) — State utility regulators are reviewing two complaints against Utah Power & Light Co. from developers of small power projects who claim the company has refused to comply with federal law requiring it to purchase excess power from the projects.

One of the cases has been brought by Challis rancher Will Ingram, who wants to put to his advantage the fact that the flow of a creek on his ranch more than quadrupled after the 1983 earthquake.

He wants the Public Utilities Commission to order the utility to comply with a federal law mandating utilities buy power from so-called co-generators.

In the other complaint, the Beker Industries Corp. of Soda Springs also contends that Utah Power & Light has refused to agree to buy power it would generate from a proposed plant using waste heat despite the federal mandate.

The commission is scheduled to hold public hearings on both matters this month.

Evans sets up panel for race

BOISE (AP) — Gov. John Evans says he's setting up an exploratory committee to look into the possibility of running for the U.S. Senate two years from now.

Although the governor was careful not to commit himself to the race, in a news release Friday, Evans said he has received "a great deal of encouragement" to run.

Republican U.S. Sen. Steve Symms, who defeated Democrat Frank Church in 1980, will be up for re-election in 1986 and likely will run again.

Evans said people and groups encouraging him to run feel "Idaho could be more effectively represented in Congress."

Heading the committee is Boise attorney W. Anthony "Tony" Park, former Idaho attorney general.

Gas line breaks in Pocatello

POCATELLO (AP) — Repair crews worked Friday trying to patch a broken natural gas line that may have caused two buildings to burn, and forced evacuation of a five-block residential area.

The action came just hours after Pocatello recorded its coldest temperature ever, a 4.4 min. minus-33 degree reading that broke the record by two degrees.

City officials said a duplex and an adjoining home were damaged by fires and an explosion, apparently caused by leaking natural gas.

The area was evacuated, and crews worked Friday afternoon to dig up the buried gas line. But work was hampered by the bitter cold.

Fertilizer lien bill hurt by errors in draft

BOISE (AP) — Five bills to carry out the Swan Falls water-rights agreement were advanced in the Idaho Legislature on Friday, along with a resolution calling for water-rights negotiations between the state and Indian tribes.

The proposals forwarded by three committees include measures for adjudication of Snake water rights and for limitations on the use of water for hydropower generation.

The bills — some sent to the floor of the Senate and others to the House floor — were developed to implement the agreement negotiated by Idaho Power Co., the governor and the attorney general in an effort to resolve much of the controversy over competing demand for Snake River

Adjudication has been estimated to be a 10-year project that could cost $27 million or more.

A resolution sent to the House calls for the state and Indian tribes to negotiate solutions to water-rights issues rather than turning to adjudication.

Also included in the legislative package are provisions defining the powers of the state water-resources director, and one requiring utilities to repay income from the sale of water rights.

The agreement between Idaho Power Co., Gov. John Evans and Attorney General Jim Jones was negotiated after the power company, acting in the wake of a favorable Idaho Supreme Court ruling, filed a lawsuit against thousands of water users upstream from Swan Falls Dam.

Idaho Power said the suit was a move intended to insulate the company from charges it didn't try to protect its water rights, and thus didn't protect the interests of investors.

The majority of defendants have since been dropped from the suit.

Responding to a legislator's question on Friday, an Idaho Power attorney said pressures that prompted the suit still exist.

Failure to carry out the negotiated settlement and the companion legislation would bring resumption of a court battle involving the remaining lawsuit defendants, attorney Tom Nelson said.

Blind panel could face reorganizing

BOISE (AP) — Reorganization of the turbulence-riddled Idaho Commission for the Blind is being considered before legislators act on the appointment of a commissioner.

Sen. Phil Batt, R-Wilder, said on Friday that his proposal to consider reorganization is being weighed by Democratic Gov. John Evans.

Batt presented the reorganization idea at a meeting of the Senate State Affairs Committee, which was scheduled to deliberate confirmation of Brian Wardle, appointed to a commission vacancy by the governor.

Batt said the manner in which the commission could be changed remains tentative.

One proposal would increase the number of commission posts from three to five.

At least three members would be blind. One would be from the National Federation of the Blind, one would be affiliated with another organization for the blind and the third position would be undesignated, Batt said after Friday's meeting.

Hodel attempting to please developers, conservationists

Don Hodel addresses Senate Natural Resources Committee

By MICHAEL WINES
The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — Donald P. Hodel, who argued that he is "not a Jim Watt clone" after President Reagan tapped him last month to be secretary of the interior, told a Senate committee Friday that he favors exploiting "vast acreages" of mineral-rich federal lands but would steer such activities clear of sensitive wilderness and park areas.

The twin overtures to developers and environmentalists appeared to please members of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, which held a daylong hearing on Hodel's nomination to succeed William P. Clark in the top Interior post.

No serious opposition has surfaced to Hodel's nomination, and Energy Committee Chairman James A. McClure, R-Idaho, said that he expects the committee to recommend his confirmation next week.

Environmental groups generally did not oppose Hodel's nomination. But in remarks to the committee, several said that his administration track record, which includes 21 months as a top aide to former Secretary of the Interior James G. Watt and his current job as secretary of energy, did not impress them.

In his own prepared statement, Hodel said that the nation "is best served by consultation, consensus and accord" on federal lands policies. And he pledged to uphold "the national commitment to conserving and preserving" wilderness and park lands.

He vowed not to permit oil and gas drilling, mining, and timber harvesting in wilderness areas or national parks and said that he favors acquiring additional national park lands. He also said the administration "is past the stage" when it tried to sell vast parcels of federal lands to private developers to reduce the national budget deficit.

All three issues were sources of bitter disputes between conservation groups and the development-minded Watt.

But like Watt, Hodel shied away from committing federal money to park acquisition, saying that lands should be acquired through "creative alternatives" such as donations or acreage swaps. And also like Watt, he offered strong support for the construction of new water projects, increased oil and gas drilling on federal acreage and on the outer continental shelf, and minerals mining on "multiple-use lands" that are not environmentally sensitive.

Hodel declined to answer directly when asked by Sen. Wendell Ford, D-Ky., whether he differed with Watt on any "major" Department of the Interior policies. "I believe in Secretary Watt's efforts, which (were) to fulfill the president's policies and goals, and to the extent that he did, I agreed," he replied.

Under questioning, Hodel said that he would seek a compromise with Congress that would end a years-long series of legislative bans on oil and gas drilling on the outer continental shelf. The bans stem in part from a running dispute between Congress and the Reagan administration over the degree of environmental control that the states should have over petroleum exploration off their shores.

He also pledged, as have Reagan's two other secretaries of the Interior, to seek a settlement that would allow the federal government and the states, including California, to split more than $5 billion in royalties from offshore oil drilling leases now held in escrow.

Hodel said that he had helped devise a recent federal offer, which was rejected by the states, that would have given the states a 16.6 percent share of the cash.

One of Watt's sharpest critics, the Wilderness Society, said Friday it opposes Hodel's confirmation because he "represents no change whatsoever in the calamitous policies of the past four years," said Charles M. Clusen, a vice president of the group.

But others were more restrained. The National Audubon Society called Hodel "a capable and energetic administrator" and said that it would seek to work closely with him despite doubts about his views.

Bennett gains education nod

WILLIAM J. BENNETT Recommended for post

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee on Friday unanimously recommended the confirmation of William J. Bennett as the third U.S. secretary of education.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, said the full Senate could vote on the nomination as early as Tuesday.

All 17 senators on the committee voted for Bennett, the chairman of the National Endowment for the Humanities since 1982. The committee took the action by poll without a formal meeting after a three-hour hearing Monday.

Sen. Lowell P. Weicker Jr., R-Conn., had threatened Monday to delay action unless President Reagan promised not to abolish the Education Department. Reagan sent Hatch a letter Tuesday saying he had no intention of trying to abolish it at this time.

Bennett, 41, a former philosophy teacher who also holds a law degree, has been an outspoken advocate of getting American schools back to the basics and colleges back to the classics and liberal arts.

Reagan nominated him Jan. 10 to succeed T.H. Bell, who resigned after the November election to return to Utah as a college professor.

"Dr. Bennett impressed the committee with his commitment to improving education. Senators grilled him pretty well and he answered their questions quite ably," said Hatch. "Political differences with some committee members were pointed out during the course of Bennett's hearing, but we found Dr. Bennett shares our concern that American education should be pushed to do better. He proved to the committee he is willing to push."

New Democratic chairman states time has come to get back to work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Kennedy aide Paul Kirk was elected chairman of the Democratic National Committee on Friday and declared the time has come to end "the soul-searching... the identity crisis of the Democratic Party."

Kirk, treasurer of the party since 1983, defeated former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford in the voting by the 378-member DNC at its annual winter meeting. Sanford was the only remaining challenger after two others dropped out at the last minute to support Sanford.

The vote for Kirk was 202-07 to 150-93.

Kirk, who served for eight years on the staff of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., spoke of the need for the party to recover from the series of overwhelming presidential defeats by the Republicans and to try to reclaim the status as the majority party of the country that it has lost to the surging fortunes of the GOP and President Reagan.

"After suffering four out of five defeats at the national level, a little Democratic candor may be good for our soul," he told the DNC after winning. "This is not a cheerleading speech. It is a time for sober reflection on where we are and where we are going."

"Today, the soul-searching has ended... it is the end of the identity crisis of the Democratic Party. And let today mark the day that the Democratic Party goes back to work to reclaim its rightful and legitimate heritage as the party that speaks for the aspirations of the future for all Americans," he added.

A 1960 graduate of Harvard College and a 1964 graduate of Harvard Law School, Kirk, 46, practiced law in Boston before going to work for Kennedy in 1969. After leaving Kennedy's staff, Kirk went back to work as a lawyer in Washington and Boston. He was chairman of Kennedy's 1980 presidential bid.

Supporters of Kirk's opponents — Sanford, former California state chairman Nancy Pelosi and party professional Robert Keefe — questioned whether Kirk could be independent of Kennedy, particularly as Kennedy is mentioned as a prime contender for the party's presidential nomination in 1988.

But Kirk overcame those doubts and had strong support from union representatives and from the Northeast as well as surprising strength in the West. Much of Sanford's support came from the South, where party office-holders had encouraged and backed his candidacy.

Kirk indirectly addressed that criticism as he talked of what the Democrats must do to shed the image as just a diverse group of special interests.

He vowed not to permit oil and gas drilling, mining, and timber harvesting in wilderness areas or nationally parks and said that he favors acquiring additional national park lands. He also said the administration "is past the stage" when it tried to sell vast parcels of federal lands to private developers to reduce the national budget deficit.

Air Force declares MX test a success

WASHINGTON (AP) — The MX intercontinental ballistic missile successfully completed its seventh flight test Friday, placing six unarmed warheads in an ocean target range more than 4,100 miles from California, the Air Force said.

The 192,000-pound missile was launched from a pad at the Vandenberg Air Force Base in California at 3:15 p.m. MST, the Air Force said in a statement released at the Pentagon. The missile carried six unarmed warheads — all of which landed in the South Pacific missile test range near Kwajalein Atoll in the Marshall Islands.

"Preliminary indications are that the missile performed as expected," said an Air Force official who spoke only on condition of anonymity.

The test was delayed for several hours because of a balky computer monitoring system on the ground at Vandenberg, the Air Force said.

Freeze could hike produce prices

By The Associated Press

Grocery shoppers should see sharply higher prices for some fresh fruits and vegetables this month because of the freezing temperatures that decimated agricultural areas in January.

But the long-term effects on inflation should be negligible, analysts say.

Lettuce, tomatoes, onions, cabbage, citrus fruits and strawberries will be more expensive in the weeks ahead and some of them may even be scarce, they said.

"It's really going to affect prices in February," said David Wysz, an economist at Data Resources Inc., an economic-forecasting firm in Lexington, Mass. "You'll see it in particular items in the supermarket. But overall, it will mean a temporary shock of half-percent or less."

Richard Pottorf, manager of the agriculture service at Data Resources, said overall food prices in February probably will rise at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 4 percent to 5 percent, compared with closer to 3 percent had the weather been milder.

Consumers in January already were paying higher prices because of the bitter cold, he said.

"We may very well find that the produce that the household is buying might be a little short. Those farmer's markets may have a few empty stalls," said Donald Ratajczak, an economist at Georgia State University in Atlanta.

Vegetable prices overall should rise 10 percent in February, and fruit prices should increase between 10 percent and 12 percent, Ratajczak said.

"First of all, your onions are in trouble, real trouble. We can see near-term really a doubling in price," he said. Most onions are grown in Georgia, northern Florida and Arizona, which have experienced freezing temperatures, he said.

Prices for "salad vegetables" grown in Florida should spurt, he said.

Lettuce prices probably will rise 30 percent to 40 percent; tomatoes, 25 percent to 30 percent; and cabbage, 40 percent to 50 percent, he said.

And citrus fruits should rise 30 percent, he said.

The effects of the cold will show up elsewhere, too, he said.

Joblessness rate takes sharp plunge in region, state

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Unemployment in the Magic Valley took a deep plunge during January because of a better-than-usual job climate, state officials said Friday.

Unemployment in Idaho also fell below 6 percent, giving the state one of its best employment months in the past four years.

The seasonally adjusted unemployment rate for Twin Falls, Gooding and Jerome counties dove to 5.3 percent, far below December's 6.1 percent, said Lon McDonald, job force analyst for the Idaho Department of Employment.

The tumble of 8 percentage points was partially a statistical gain.

Seasonal factors built into the unemployment rate normally expect a large drop-off in jobs between December and January.

"We had a 1,000-person drop in employment and almost a 500-person increase in unemployment," McDonald said.

But the job market didn't fall off nearly as much as normal. In fact, January was one of the best months for job placements in memory at the Twin Falls office, McDonald said.

The Magic Valley jobless rate hasn't been as good as 5.3 percent since August 1981, he said.

Without putting in seasonal factors, the Department of Employment's survey estimated that 2,465 people among a work force of 33,592 actually were off the job during the month.

"Improvements in Idaho's economic conditions resulted in 1,400 new jobs," said Employment Director Scott McDonald (no relation).

The state unemployment rate fell to 5.9 percent, which was 2 percentage points below December.

The new jobs more than offset anticipated declines in outdoor industries such as timber, agriculture and construction, McDonald said. But he also pointed out that a number of layoffs have occurred since the department's survey, which normally conducted in the second week of the month. Those layoffs could have significant impact on February's jobs picture, he said.

The 5.9 percent jobless rate placed the state at its lowest level since April 1981. It also was far below the national rate of 7.4 percent.

The 405,100 Idahoans with jobs last month was the highest number since last May and only 500 below the four-year high, McDonald said.

Most regions of the state also showed improvement. The January unemployment rate for each and the change from December are:

Burhandle (Coeur d'Alene) — 8.9 percent, down .6 percent.

Lewiston — 5.3 percent, down .2 percent.

Canyon County — 8 percent, up from 6.9 percent.

Boise — 4.2 percent, down .2 percent.

Malheur Valley — 5.3 percent, down .8 percent.

Pocatello — 6.3 percent, no change.

Idaho Falls — 4 percent, down .3 percent.

District replies to Piler's suit

By DEAN MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Attorneys for the Twin Falls School District filed a response Thursday to the suit brought against the district by Twin Falls High School teacher Susan Piler and eight other teachers.

No hearing or trial dates were set.

Piler's suit seeks damages and injunctive relief against the district for the district's unilateral decision to reduce employee health insurance benefits and for bad faith bargaining and breach of contract.

Among other claims, the suit alleges the district's regulations concerning health insurance discriminate against married employees.

The district's response was filed by Boise attorneys Phil Oberrecht and Larry Spurgeon of the firm of Moffat, Thomas, Barrett & Blanton. Oberrecht has represented the district in the Twin Falls Education Association's suits against the district.

The district's response to the suit claims Piler and the other eight teachers lack standing to bring the suit.

"Standing" is a technical term to describe an individual's privilege to bring suit in a dispute, depending on their involvement in the dispute.

The district's answer calls for dismissal of the portion of Piler's suit relating to altered insurance benefits and alleged bad faith bargaining as those matters are the subject of the TFEA suit.

As with the district's response to the TFEA suit, Oberrecht defends the district on the grounds that Piler and the other teachers already have an adequate remedy under law, that the plaintiffs do not enter the suit with clean hands; and that the district was in a state of financial emergency.

The district demands a jury trial in its response.

Man killed in fight

PAUL — A bar fight ended in the stabbing death of a 21-year-old Burley man late Thursday night.

Evan Thompson died at 12:30 a.m. Friday at Minidoka Memorial Hospital in Rupert, said Minidoka County Deputy Prosecutor Tom Spencer.

David W. Rushton, 47, of Firth, has been charged with second-degree murder in connection with the death.

The fight allegedly started at the Office bar in Paul and escalated into the street, Spencer said. He added that he didn't know what caused the conflict.

About 11:30 p.m., Thompson was downed by a single wound to the chest-area with a knife.

Spencer would not comment on the type of knife.

Thompson was transported to the hospital, where he died about an hour later.

Rushton, who was attempting to leave the scene with two male companions, was apprehended by police who had been summoned by an unknown person, Spencer said.

An autopsy was performed on Thompson's body Friday afternoon in Pocatello, Spencer said. Minidoka County Coroner John Fisher said the cause of death was the chest wound.

The suspect was released Friday on a $25,000 bond.

McClure to seek Oakley dam aid hike

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — Idaho Sen. Jim McClure will ask Congress next week to ante up $1 million or more to repay the costs of two emergency waterways that saved the towns of Burley and Oakley from floods last spring.

"This would be going directly to Cassia County for the money they put up out-of-pocket to pay the contractors," said H.D. Palmer, assistant press secretary for McClure on Friday.

The two channels drained water from Lower Goose Creek Reservoir near Oakley, which would have overflowed because of huge amounts of melting snow in nearby mountains.

Hundreds of farmers, volunteers and construction crews dug a 23-mile-long ditch around Burley and a 25-mile diversion to Murtaugh Lake. The around-the-clock work came in time to carry away the runoff and save the towns, as well as thousands of acres of farmland.

McClure said Friday that county and its taxpayers shouldn't have to foot the bill for avoiding a disaster.

"If a flood had occurred, Cassia County would have been eligible for millions of dollars in federal disaster assistance. But since the county paid out of its own pocket immediately to avert a flood, I believe it's only fair that they receive adequate compensation for their heroic efforts," McClure said.

Actually, the construction bills already have been settled, said Tim Hurst, deputy auditor for Cassia County. Some $1.2 million was paid to 32 contractors and suppliers.

However, the county borrowed the money from Idaho First National Bank and now is taxing county residents to repay the one-year loan, Hurst said. The tax rate is set at $2 for every $1,000 of assessed valuation; it comes to $45,000, the one-time tax on a home.

As of January 31, the county had collected 57 percent of its taxes, with the rest due by June 30, he said.

If Congress does give Cassia County the money, the county commission would have to decide whether to repay the taxes collected, Hurst said.

McClure will introduce legislation next week, Palmer said. The exact amount being sought has not been determined.

However, it certainly will be less than the federal government would have had to pay from a destructively flooded, he said.

"The (Cassia County) were not eligible for federal disaster assistance, but if they were the disaster assistance would have been several times this amount," he said.

The area also is receiving money from federal and state governments for two other projects.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers earlier this month agreed to fund $32,000 worth of emergency repairs to an eroded diversion tunnel beneath the reservoir.

The Idaho Department of Water Resources also has approved about $160,000 in loans to two flood-control districts formed last fall. The money will be used to repair the two diversion channels.

Gooding prison planner eyes package

By JaNENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — The regional prison proposed for the old Gooding tuberculosis hospital site is getting closer to a solid start date.

Charlie Penton, who with his brother Joe, operates Buckingham Security Ltd. of Pennsylvania, proposes to operate the private prison. Penton is in Gooding to complete negotiations with local officials for the purchase of the building and surrounding acres.

Penton told the annual meeting of the Gooding Chamber of Commerce Thursday that his brother is spending this week finalizing a financial package "we believe we can live with."

Joe Penton will then join his brother in Boise where they and members of the Gooding City Council and business community will meet with the State Land Board Feb. 12.

"It looks like we have it pretty well in hand," Penton said, adding his wife calls Gooding "our new home town."

Gooding Mayor Gene Heller said he hopes the transfer of the property from the state to the city of Gooding can be completed in February so that negotiations with the Penton brothers can also be completed.

The city bought the hospital and surrounding 6.6 acres from the state land board last fall for $100,000.

When the property failed to sell at a public auction Nov. 6 in Gooding, the Gooding City Council began considering the Pentons' proposal to buy the facility for a yet undisclosed price, and turn it into a regional, medium-security prison.

Minidoka schools shut

RUPERT — Sub-zero temperatures resulted in school closure for Minidoka County Friday.

School Superintendent Gene Snapp said the district "had trouble with the school buses Thursday because of condensed water freezing the valve openings to the air brakes." He said the valve openings were completely frozen by Friday morning.

He also said since the temperatures got as low as 26 below in Rupert early Friday morning, "we couldn't keep the buses running once we did get them started."

"The combination of the two closed us down," he said.

A common reason for school closure in Minidoka County is blowing and drifting snow on the northside country roads.

He added, however, the roads were not bad now.

"The Highway Department is keeping on top of things and having been very helpful in letting us know what the road conditions are. They have worked all night with the snow plow at times, and we appreciate them for that," Snapp said.

Beer law challenged

BURLEY (AP) — Opponents of Sunday beer sales have filed a petition seeking an election on whether Burley's month-old ordinance allowing the sales should be repealed.

The initial petition submitted to City Clerk Bud Brinegar for review was invalid because it contained only 10 names of registered voters, but petition backers later submitted additional signatures.

Petition organizer Vaughn Egan vowed to lead a "repeat" campaign after the Burley City Council acted Dec. 17 to strike the municipal ban on Sunday beer sales.

"This will be a better community if it's left the way it is," Egan said today.

He said traffic accidents and violence have been associated with alcohol sales.

Evans tells of commerce plan on Gooding visit

By JaNENE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Idaho needs a Department of Commerce to bring new business and industry to the state, Gov. John Evans told the Gooding Chamber of Commerce Thursday.

Speaking at the chamber's annual installation banquet, Evans said he has proposed such a department before and hopes that the Legislature "will move in that direction" this year.

"Economic development is important to Gooding and to the state of Idaho," he said, adding the revitalization of the state's economy will require "coordinated teamwork."

Evans said he sees the team made up of the 80 local chambers of commerce state-wide, financial and lending institutions, utilities, retailers, education systems, local governments and the state government with a Department of Commerce.

He told the 220 persons assembled at the Lincoln Inn that he was impressed with Gooding's effort to secure the old state tuberculosis hospital and turn it into a privately-operated regional prison.

"It has been a commendable effort, you have had the fortitude to go after what was almost an impossible project, set goals, develop a plan and now you are implementing that plan," he said.

He said the proposed prison will provide a base of employment and economic stability in Gooding that will be available in only a few other Idaho locations.

He pointed to the cooperative effort between the Gooding chamber and city government officials and to what outgoing chamber President Doug Schrenk called "camaraderie among the towns (in Gooding county)" as examples of the kind of effort needed to bring additional economic development into the state.

Evans said good educational opportunities at the public school level and in higher education are mandatory for attracting new business.

He said he has been working to get more money for teacher salaries and to maintain the quality of Idaho's universities and vocational programs.

Evans added that facilities like the city of Gooding's infra-structure, good streets, sewer and water system and "good neighborhoods," also play a key role in attracting business to the area.

"It's timely that we in Idaho tell the world that Idaho is a good place to locate new business, to live and to work," he said.

According to Evans, 47 other states have a commerce department and it is needed in Idaho now.

The governor received a standing ovation from the overflow crowd when he said he would work to oppose any effort to move the Idaho State School for the Deaf and Blind out of Gooding.

"I feel there is strength in having state institutions at various locations in the state and I would not recommend moving a school that is stable and strong and providing excellent service," he said.

State Sen. John Peavey, who is leading the effort to keep the school in Gooding, told the group he had spoken with representative Kitty Gurnsey Thursday and she had said she was not getting much support for her effort to move the school to Twin Falls.

"I will work with Mr. Peavey and the other representatives from this area to make sure the school stays in Gooding," Evans said.

Lawyers' comments limited, legal officials say in forum

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The criminal record of an accused, the credibility of a prospective witness, a refusal to make a statement or attempt at plea bargaining — all are beyond the limits of what a lawyer can ethically discuss in a current case, said legal officials at a Friday forum sponsored by the Savoie Press Club.

The Code of Professional Responsibility prohibits them from commenting to the press on all but the most obvious facts about pending cases, said defense attorney Randy Stoker, Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Baxter and Fifth District Magistrate Judge Charles Brumback.

Lawyers who talk about their clients and even information the press has a legal right to print can harm a case, they said.

"A client can never win a trial in the press," Stoker said. Pre-trial publicity also makes choosing a jury more difficult, he said.

Even if jurors say that what they have heard about a case has not colored their opinion, they "are not always honest. What they've read affects them subconsciously," Stoker said.

Stoker also objected to day-to-day reporting of a court case that emphasizes one particular aspect of a case.

"That's like telling the jury what is important," he said.

Members of the press club argued that limits of time and space prevent the details from being printed or broadcast. It is the court's duty to make sure that jurors did not read or listen to accounts of the trial, they said.

Baxter said she is in a "precarious position. I hear as an elected official it is my duty to talk with the press." But she does not believe that it is her job to be available for the press, she said.

She said she would prefer to conduct all business outside the presence of the media.

Chamber needs sense of mission, top national official tells gathering

TWIN FALLS — A sense of mission and the willingness to accept failure are two of the essential ingredients of success, a national Chamber of Commerce official told Twin Falls area chamber members Thursday.

Without a mission, said Jerry Vorphal, western manager of the United States Chamber of Commerce, a community or chamber "will look for mediocrity and be satisfied with it."

Failure, he said, "is one of the best things we have going," because failures teach what not to do.

Other measures for success, he said, are whether an organization is "people intensive," whether "it can involve others who aren't members" in its goals and objectives, and the ability to take action.

"Do it, try it, fix it or forget it," Vorphal urged the several hundred members and guests at the 65th annual banquet.

Vorphal served as communications director for then-Governor Ronald Reagan in California in the 1970s. He touched on sweeping changes in American life, some of which have been reflected in the political process.

He also cited the changing numbers of women in the work force, and the growing strength of multi-ethnic states as long-term. By the 1990s, he said, three states — Texas, California and Florida — will have majority power in the House of Representatives. "What impact will those changes have on our lives?" he asked.

In an earlier interview, Vorphal said the U.S. Chamber of Commerce is moving away from its traditional concentration on services activities to more political and educational roles. Chambers will get more involved in legislative issues affecting business and their communities at the local, state and national levels, he said.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce will move to form coalitions of "like-minded" groups to effectively address major issues.

Perhaps the top issue this year will be reductions in government spending and efforts to balance the federal budget, Vorphal said.

In his speech, Vorphal said a community like Twin Falls has the "ability to create the kind of change you want," but only if it both references the past and is aware of future trends, he said.

Four new members were picked for the chamber's board this year. They are Tom Ashenbrenner, Dr. Richard Alexander, Stephen Soran and Steven Tolman, who join directors Rex Lytle, Bill Howard and Jack Miller.

The group's new officers are president, Barney Carlson; president-elect, James J. May; vice presidents, Lee Wagner and Curtis H. Eaton; Jr., treasurer, Robert Norman; past president, Tim Obenchain; and executive director, Michael Dalton.

Dead girl's father files suit; coroner's inquest set Feb. 13

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A coroner's inquest into the death of a Twin Falls area teen-ager who was dragged by a truck will be held Feb. 13.

In civil court, meanwhile, the father of 16-year-old Lisa Keller has filed a $623,731 wrongful death suit against the driver of the truck.

A jury of six people will be called for the inquest to review the facts leading to the death of Lisa Keller on Dec. 14. The panel will decide whether there was any criminal negligence involved.

The inquest is not a trial, but a fact-finding process, said Twin Falls County Deputy Prosecutor Jeff Hosking.

"We've got a death in the county that we don't have a clear story on. It's just a matter of clarifying the picture a bit," Hosking said.

Keller was injured during the early morning hours of Dec. 8 while attending a party at her brother Michael's house south of Twin Falls.

According to a Twin Falls County Sheriff's report, the teen-ager went outside to say goodbye to a group of acquaintances. Her right hand became caught in the door of a Bronco driven by 20-year-old Ralph "Lukie" Ahrendsen of Twin Falls and the girl was dragged several feet when the vehicle drove away.

The teen-ager lost a finger and suffered severe head and arm injuries as a result of the accident. She was transferred from Magic Valley Regional Medical Center to St. Alphonsus Hospital in Boise, where she died Dec. 14.

Two doctors who treated the girl and a pathologist will testify at the inquest, which probably will be closed to the public, Hosking said. People who witnessed the accident also will be called.

After hearing the testimony — the panel will decide how Keller died and if a criminal act was involved in the death. A warrant could be issued as a result of the verdict.

A judge will not be present at the inquest, which will be conducted by Coroner Jim Wood and Hosking.

A coroner's inquest is rare and may be called when there is death by violence or under unknown circumstances. The latter is the case in the Keller death, Hosking said.

In a related, but separate, action, the girl's father, Jerald Keller, of Hansen filed a lawsuit Wednesday in Fifth District Court. Keller named Ahrendsen and Ed Gough, no age or address available, as defendants.

Gough was Ahrendsen's passenger and slammed the door on the girl's hand, the suit claims.

The defendants were negligent and caused the death of his daughter, Keller alleges in the suit.

Jerald Keller is seeking damages for the loss of his daughter, medical and funeral expenses and attorney fees.

Winter carnival slated at Fairfield

FAIRFIELD — Taking advantage of their wintry location, the Camas Civic Group is holding a Winter Carnival Feb. 9 and 10 in Fairfield and at the Soldier Mountain Ski Area.

Group president Greg Wokersien says it may become an annual event, "depending on how it works out this year. But I don't know why it won't," he adds. "We have the same cold weather and snow as the other resorts."

Plans for Feb. 9 include ice skating near the Historical Society Museum and a chili feed and Fireman's Ball at the American Legion Hall with "The Snowdowners" from Gooding providing dance music. Some ice sculpture will also be available for viewing.

According to Wokersien, both the chili feed, to run from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m., and the Fireman's Ball, from 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., are family oriented.

"We'll have refreshments at the dance," he says, "and a cake and, but no liquor." He adds that the ice rink, located nearby, will provide diversion for those not wishing to dance.

A champagne breakfast at Soldier Mountain is slated for 10 a.m. to noon Feb. 10 to be followed by a sweetheart ski race, an obstacle course run, powder8 competition and slalom races at 1 p.m. Also on Sunday are snow-machine races at the Wells Summit turnout, four miles north of Fairfield.

Wokersien says "entrants" to the events may sign up on-site. For further information, call Greg Wokersien at 794-2365.

Minidoka board awards bonds bid

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Minidoka County School Board awarded a bid for $9.9 million in bonds at the net interest rate of 8.9 percent, amortizing in 16 years, to The Northern Trust Company of Chicago, Ill. one of three firms to bid on the bonds.

The transaction represents a savings of nearly $1 million to the district, because of the lower than originally projected interest rate of 9 1/2 percent on the bonds, said Bud Way of Idaho First National Bank, acting as the district's financial consultant.

Way said he was delighted with the low interest rate on the bonds, the proceeds of which will be used to build a new elementary school in Rupert, a new multi-purpose room addition to Minidoka County High School, and other additions and improvements in the district.

"You should be justifiably proud of this sale," said Way, indicating to the board that the district carried a strong double-A rating in the bond market.

Prior to the opening of the bids, the board allowed IFNB, at Way's request, to participate as one of the bidding syndicates; Way pointed out that the investment department is a separate syndicate of the bank.

IFNB is one of the investment syndicates represented by Northern Trust.

The bonds will be ready for delivery to investors by Feb. 20, said Way.

Other bidders for the bond sale were Kirschner-Moore and Company of Denver, which bid at a gross cost of $6.38 million, and 9.7 percent net interest, and Continental of Illinois, at $5.93 million, at 8.81 percent.

Knudson earns Eagle rank

TWIN FALLS — Jonathan Max Knudson, son of Dennis and Carolyn Knudson of Twin Falls, was awarded the Eagle Scout rank at a Court of Honor held recently at the Seventh Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in Twin Falls.

Knudson, a ninth grader at O'Leary Junior High School and a Times-News carrier, has held many leadership positions in Scouting and has participated in the Dan Beard Rangers camp.

For his Eagle project, he planned and directed a banquet to raise funds for a chapel at the Idaho State Penitentiary. Because of the attention his project generated and the almost $1,000 raised by the dinner and evening of entertainment, the chapel project is now in progress.

Knudson is a member of Varsity Team No. 81 which is directed by Brent Hyatt of Twin Falls.

Thieves take tools, parts

TWIN FALLS — Tools and automobile parts were reported stolen in two Twin Falls burglaries Wednesday.

Bruce Baisch of Hazelton told Twin Falls police someone entered his vehicle and took $1,500 worth of power and hand tools Wednesday night. The vehicle, he said, was parked at the North's Chuck Waggon parking lot at 1859 Kimberly Road when the theft occurred about 8:30 p.m.

He said he returned from the restaurant and found the back window had been broken out and the equipment taken.

Edgar Lewis told police someone took a right shift assembly and wheel from a vehicle at Canyon Motors Tuesday night or early Wednesday morning.

He said the items had been removed by a mechanic who was working on the vehicle. The mechanic left the tools on the ground and when he returned they had been removed. Loss was estimated at $255.

Boy, 4, saves father trapped by truck

WILLIAMSTOWN, Ky. (AP) — A 4-year-old boy who loves tinkering with the jack in the family garage used the device to save his father, who had been pinned under a 2-ton truck.

Charles Bowen, 33, was working under the truck when it fell off the jack, breaking his hip and pressing against his abdomen. He shouted to his son, Brandon, who was playing nearby.

"Daddy's trapped, son. You're going to have to help me. Get a jack handle," he recalled saying.

While Brandon retrieved a ratchet, his father groped with one arm and slipped the jack under the rear springs.

"I told him he had to jack the truck up. Before I could say anything else, he grabbed a long ratchet I have and put it in the jack handle. He jacked it up a little bit and said, 'I can't jack it any further.'"

"I pumped the handle a couple of times, but I was about to pass out and I couldn't go any longer. Then Brandon did it a couple more times and the truck was off me," said Bowen, who was in serious condition Friday at Booth Memorial Hospital.

"He's been around my garage before, and he's always playing with the jack," the father said. "He was real cool about the whole thing. He knew what to do and wasted no time."

The brave boy, who weighs 30 pounds, didn't stop there. Bowen had been lying on a rolling platform, and the child grabbed his father's foot and pulled him out. Brandon then raced next door to get a neighbor to call for an ambulance.

Ambulance attendants credited

Brandon for saving his father's life.

"We were expecting the worst," said Elsie Dever, a member of the rescue squad that answered the call Monday from Bowen's shop in Williamstown.

Father and son were reunited two days after the accident, and again Brandon came to the rescue as Bowen searched for answers to thank the boy.

"He came in and stood there about ready to cry," Bowen said. "And then he jumped up here and hugged me. I guess that said it all."

Rev. Ezekiel Hampton stands near church after July fire

Churches rebuilt by whites, blacks

LANCASTER, S.C. (AP) — The Rev. Ezekiel Hampton was near despair when his church was torched by two white men in a spree that left three black churches in rubble last summer.

Now, with both races joining hands to rebuild the churches, black worshippers here have "a rekindling of hope."

"A lot of sweat, and tears, and years of struggle was taken away in the blinking of an eye," Hampton said, recalling the blaze that swept through the New Zion Baptist Church.

The pastor urged reconciliation from the start, telling distraught worshippers they "cannot judge an ethnic group simply by the actions of one or two people."

His prophecy proved true. On the site of the New Zion church on Sunday, black and white community leaders will break ground for a new church in the textile region of Lancaster County, where a fourth of the population is black.

More than a thousand people, a hundred businesses and nearly four times that many churches in the county, the state and as far away as the state of Washington have donated $175,000 to rebuild the three churches.

"There's been a rekindling of hope," Hampton said.

Arleena Lancy, who joined the New Zion church in 1932, said members found it hard to imagine any good would come of the terrible fire as they watched the smoldering ruins.

"You don't know what a struggle we went through to build this church," she said. "There was a deep hurt when it burned down ...

We didn't know where to turn. But Rev. Hampton told us, 'Feel no remorse. Good can come out of evil.' And it has. The people were so gracious, they opened up their hearts, minds ... and pocket-books."

The first of the fires erupted at the Pleasant Plain Baptist Church the night of July 13. Within an hour the New Zion church and the New Hope AME Zion Church also were in flames.

Police rushed to another black church in the area, where they arrested auto mechanic Michael Wright, 25, and electrician James Starnes, 36, in a car laden with choir robes, sound systems and other goods from the churches.

Both were convicted of charges related to the fires. Wright is serving a 40-year prison sentence, and Starnes is serving a 20-year term.

Members of the congregations noted that about 10 white churches in the area were untouched, and believed the fires to be motivated by racism.

Rev. Samuel Young, pastor of Pleasant Plain, said the foundation at his church should be laid next week. Rev. Albert Tolbert, pastor of New Hope AME, said he hopes to break ground by early in March.

The cost to build the new churches will be more than $600,000, but each was partially covered by insurance, said the pastor.

Lancaster Mayor Joe Shaw said the joint effort of blacks and whites to rebuild the churches "shows the respect we have for each other."

The ordeal, Shaw said, "has brought us closer together. I hope we're all color-blind now."

DeLoreans agree on custody

LOS ANGELES (AP) — John Z. De Lorean and Cristina Ferrare, in the midst of a divorce, have agreed to each hold temporary custody of one of their two children.

The onetime millionaire automaker, acquitted of cocaine trafficking charges last year and embroiled in a bankruptcy case, had been fighting Ms. Ferrare's bid to have sole custody of both children.

Under the agreement, 13-year-old Zachary, De Lorean's adopted child by a former marriage, will live with his father, while 6-year-old Kathryn will live with her mother, Ms. Ferrare.

Smith posts bail, leaves her jail cell

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former rock singer Cathy Evelyn Smith was freed on bail Friday after a judge told her attorney to decide by Feb. 11 whether she will accept a plea bargain on murder and drug charges in the death of comedian John Belushi.

Ms. Smith, using a bail bondsman, posted $5,000, 10 percent of her $50,000 bail after a judge refused to reduce the figure. She was hustled out of the criminal courts building by her attorney, Howard Weltzman.

She had been at Sybil Brand Institute for Women since Jan. 22 when she voluntarily returned to Los Angeles from Canada.

Ms. Smith, a Canadian citizen, dropped her fight against extradition last month and returned to Los Angeles after her Canadian lawyer arranged a bargain for her to plead guilty to lesser charges.

But Weltzman, who won John Z. De Lorean's acquittal last year, took over the case and immediately questioned the deal. He said Ms. Smith might not be guilty of anything and probably should serve no jail time.

Weltzman, who has said he might advise Ms. Smith to abandon her plea bargain, told reporters earlier he still has not made up his mind whether to seek a preliminary hearing in the case or allow her to plead guilty to involuntary manslaughter and three drug charges.

He is not 100 percent comfortable with the bargain offered," he said Friday. "That doesn't mean we're not going to accept the bargain."

"It's a real dilemma for me," he said.

Pope John Paul II talks with Ecuadoran slum dwellers

Pope calls for end to battle

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Pope John Paul II urged Peruvians on Friday to respect human rights and engage in "dialogue instead of violence" — an apparent plea to end guerrilla warfare in this Andean nation.

The pope arrived in the Pacific coastal city of Lima to the cheers of thousands for the start of a four-day visit that will take him to the ancient Inca city of Cuzco, the Amazon jungle area of Iquitos and the heart of the guerrilla war zone in Ayacucho.

In an airport speech, John Paul asked that "the demands of the rights of each person be settled through dialogue instead of violence."

The Shining Path, a Maoist guerrilla group operating in the high Andean mountain region of Ayacucho, have been battling government forces for four years in an effort to install a Marxist state.

President Fernando Belaunde Terry, who met the pontiff at the airport, has refused suggestions of a dialogue to end the bloodshed. The rebels have made no peace initiative.

Hours before the pope's arrival from Ecuador, authorities said the guerrillas dynamited two power towers in the eastern city of Huanuco.

The explosions caused a seven-hour blackout in Huanuco and left residents in some parts of metropolitan Lima without power for 70 minutes, according to officials.

Earlier in the day, the pope visited a crowded slum on the outskirts of Guayaquil, Ecuador's biggest city, and made an urgent appeal to the governments of Latin America on behalf of the poor.

Speaking before 30,000 wildly cheering residents of the sprawling shantytown in Ecuador's main seaport, the pontiff expressed his "interest, solidarity and love" for the urban poor. He urged the governments "to seek a greater social equilibrium and to show a greater solidarity" with the needy.

The pope, who met earlier with Ecuadorian Indians and peasants, focused much of the first half of his South American tour on the plight of the hemisphere's Indians and rural poor. Since arriving in Ecuador from Venezuela on Tuesday, John Paul has taken up the issue of agrarian reform, a major problem in the region.

The pope leaves Peru on Tuesday for a brief visit to Trinidad and Tobago on the way to Rome.

John Paul, spiritual ruler of the world's approximately 800 million Roman Catholics, arrived in Guayaquil by army helicopter on the seventh day of a 12-day, four-nation trip that began last Saturday in Venezuela.

The 64-year-old pontiff received an enthusiastic welcome in El Guasmo and was applauded when he said: "The pope, along with the bishops, wants to reiterate, once again, the church's preferential option for the poor."

He urged the slum dwellers to reject both exploitation and "extremist ideologies that only bring hatred, revenge and atheism."

"Do not hesitate to say no to exploitation, wherever it comes from," he said.

The pope spoke from a platform made of bamboo and covered with banana leaves.

Adventurers find Andean mystery city

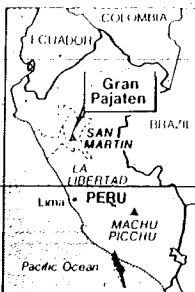

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Ruins of a vanished civilization that flourished for 1,000 years were found by four Colorado adventurers who trekked into the remote Andes jungles of Peru in an expedition worthy of Indiana Jones.

They found elaborately carved burial towers perched atop sheer 1,000-foot cliffs, 18 buildings, well-preserved pottery and other artifacts of a previously unknown civilization in the South American mountains.

University of Colorado scientists plan to excavate the remote site in hopes of finding out who lived there and what happened to them.

They say the site, known as Gran Pajaten and an adjacent smaller site called Los Pinchudos, may rival the Inca ruins at Machu Picchu in archaeological significance.

The university announced Thursday it had signed a five-year agreement with the Peruvian government to excavate Gran Pajaten, which overlooks a nameless river and receives up to 15 feet of rain annually. Preliminary investigation indicates the sites may have been inhabited as early as 400 A.D. and as late as 1500 A.D.

No one knows what happened to Gran Pajaten's mysterious inhabitants. But it is thought they may have been killed by disease spread through Peru by early Spanish treasure hunters.

The ruins — deep in the Tiro Alto National Park in the eastern Andes — were found last July by a team of Boulder adventurers led by archaeologist Thomas Lennon.

Dr. Alan Stormo, a Boulder plastic surgeon, had returned from a 1983 vacation to Peru where he saw a 28-year-old newspaper clipping reporting Gran Pajaten's existence.

Lennon and Stormo, along with two of Stormo's neighbors, Stan Brenton and John Lovett, raised the two-week expedition to the rain forest. In mountains that soar to 13,800 feet. Carrying their supplies on pack mules, they were led by 12 Peruvian mountain guides.

Brenton said the journey — into land inhabited by as many as 12 endangered species — was reminiscent of an Indiana Jones exploit.

Before setting out, he said, "We had no idea if it was something real, or whether it was just something out of a Peruvian newspaper."

"We had to pack in everything," said Lennon. "We had everything from dehydrated potatoes to fuel, and not enough bug repellent."

At one point on the rainy hike back to civilization, Brenton lost his footing and somersaulted over a cliff. His most serious injuries were a bruised shoulder and a scalp cut.

Lennon, who will investigate the lost city with fellow archaeologist Jane Wheeler, believes a full study of the area could take 15 years. University officials estimate the project will cost about $200,000 per year.

Forced resettlement policy to be eased

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government said Friday it would partially suspend one of the most hated policies of racial segregation — the forced resettlement of black communities to tribal homelands away from South Africa's white population.

The announcement capped a week of unusual government moves on its racial separation policies — a week in which President P.W. Botha offered terms for the release of imprisoned black leader Nelson Mandela, and South Africa's new, three-chamber segregated Parliament conducted its first working session.

Botha's National Party, which has controlled the white-minority government since 1948, said it was offering the 22-million member black majority a new deal.

Gerrit Viljoen, minister of cooperation, development and education, told foreign reporters the planned resettlement of hundreds of thousands of blacks who are to be moved to "tribal" homelands from land set aside for whites.

Under South African law, blacks are considered citizens of 10 homelands, with political rights there rather than in South Africa.

Viljoen, one of the National Party's leading theorists, said the government would continue resettling black communities if their leaders agreed.

Beirut bomb takes 10 lives

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A bomb-laden car exploded outside a crowded, newly built mosque in Tripoli on Friday, the Muslim holy day, and police said 10 worshippers and pedestrians were killed.

In Sidon, militiamen armed with machine guns attacked a position of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army as Israel thinned out its forces in the area in preparation for its pullback.

Police in Tripoli, the northern port that is Lebanon's second-largest city, said the bomb-filled automobile, a blue Mercedes, was packed with about 130 pounds of TNT.

No extradition

TAIPEI, Taiwan (AP) — Justice Minister Chih Chi-yang said Friday that his country refuses to extradite two reputed gangsters sought in California for the killing of a Chinese-American writer.

Chih told a news conference that Chen Chi-li, 39, and Wu Tun, 34, would be prosecuted in Taiwan under Nationalist Chinese laws if an investigation leads to charges in the slaying last October of Henry Liu.

General leads entry of not guilty pleas

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Gen. Fabian C. Ver, once the Philippines' most powerful military man, and 25 other defendants pleaded innocent Friday to charges that they were involved in the killing of opposition leader Benigno Aquino and a man the military said was Aquino's assassin.

Soldiers accused in the case rose to attention as the general, dressed in civilian clothes, arrived in the small courtroom to enter his plea. Ver, 65, who is on leave from his post as armed forces chief of staff, snapped a salute in return.

Each of the 26 defendants — 25 military men and one civilian — answered "not guilty" when asked for their plea on each of two charges.

"I feel very well. I'm confident of the judicial process and the rule of law," Ver told reporters after the arraignment, which lasted 20 minutes.

The case is going to court more than 17 months after Aquino's assassination, which brought political, social and economic upheaval to the Philippines and a new wave of protests against President Ferdinand E. Marcos.

Judge Manuel Pamaran, head of the three-judge panel that will hear the case, ordered that the trial begin next Thursday, and said daily sessions will be held "until the trial is terminated."

Ver's attorney, Antonio Coronel, told reporters he agreed with Pamaran's estimate that the trial would not last more than one year.

Outside the courtroom more than 100 people applauded the mother and 11-year-old son of Rolando Galman, the man accused by the military of killing Aquino.

4 valley prep thinclads All-America

OCALA, Fla. — Four Magic Valley track athletes have been named prep All-Americans by the National High School Athletic Coaches' Association. They are Lisa Bernhagen of Hatley, currently a freshman at Stanford University; Gary Hulsey of Jerome, a freshman at Utah State; Doug Zakalyk, now a senior at Twin Falls High School; and Charlotte Winward of Rupert, currently a freshman at Ricks College.

Bernhagen, the national junior record holder in the women's high jump, dominated her event and was one of the top sprinters in the state during her three years at Wood River High. She twice set state records in the high jump, leaping 6-foot-1/2 as junior and breaking her own mark with a 6-1 effort as a senior.

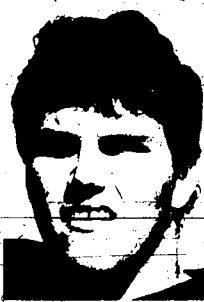

Bernhagen qualified for last summer's U.S. Olympic Trials, where she finished seventh. Her record-setting jump of 6-3 came 11 months ago at the Simplot Games in the Idaho State state Class A-2 championship. He also won his second consecutive state A-2 shot put crown at the same meet with a throw of 58-3.

Zakalyk, who was an honorable mention selection in the NHSACA, won the state A-1 110-meter high hurdles (1:16 last spring in a time of 14.95 seconds. He was also third in the state in the 300-meter low hurdles in 40.3.

Winward, also an honorable mention choice by the NHSACA, twice won both the high and low hurdles in the state A-1 track meet, setting a state record in the latter event — 44.62 seconds — as a junior. She is attending Ricks on a track scholarship.

Other honorable mention All-Americans from Idaho included CSI freshman Michelle Skyles, who carried that distinction as a senior at Nampa Christian High School.

Selection of high school track All-Americans was made on the basis of the top 10 performances in the nation record in selected events in 1984 state meets.

TWIN FALLS — It was as billed. A tough game between two strong teams and the all-American candidate rose to the occasion.

That sums up Dixie's 85-83 victory over College of Southern Idaho as the Rebels came from trailing through most of the first 32 minutes to register their 22nd victory in 23 outings. CSI, which stays home to entertain Snow College tonight, dipped to 18-3.

Three things doomed the Eagles in the late going, not the least being 6-4 sophomore Averian Parrish who capped a 40-point night by getting 20 in the second half. The Rebels also shot well from the foul line over the closing minutes, missing just one of their final 13 attempts. Earlier in the half, the offensive rebounding of 6-5 guard Rick Henry resulted in several putback points and kept the Rebels within a few points.

CSI could also trace its woes to the foul line where it hit a horrendous 17 of 33 attempts.

While the first half was a sparkling display of basketball, the second was slowed considerably by a large number of fouls against both sides. CSI was hit with 26 infractions against 27 for Dixie.

"First off, they are a good ball club. They beat us," said CSI Coach Fred Trenkle right after the game. "But there's not a question in any of our guy's minds that if they come back up for regional we can't beat them."

Trenkle said the obvious things, like the disparity in foul shooting percentages and the offensive rebounding, contributed to the CSI loss. "And we had a lot of foolish turnovers, particularly early, and we missed a lot of close in shots — even cringles."

"I would say this wasn't our best game by quite a ways but I'm sure Coach (Neil) Roberts feels his team has played better." Trenkle said. "You seldom play your best game when you have two good teams playing a big game."

Roberts was pleased with the game and the victory, noting "it was a tough game in the respect that they play aggressive defense. It was good for us to play against something like that because that's the way the big game are played."

Roberts added the major difference he saw in this CSI team from ones in the immediate past is "they have some jump-shooters. That's their major improvement." "Some of their players present real problems for us," Roberts said. "That 24 (Larry Brown, 24 points) is a fine player and we didn't stop (Derrick) Hopkins (25 points) either."

"We feel really good about this win. It makes us 22-1 and we've had seven games at home. I think we're all but in regional because we're 5-0 with a two-game lead on everyone and our next seven games are at home."

Roberts credited the win to "our experience. We have a lot of experienced and older players... seven back from missions so that's why I say older."

He lauded the play of Parrish, who went down three times with calf-muscle spasms but was there at the end.

"He became Dixie's all-line scoring leader last week, replacing (NBA guard) Lionel Hollins so that's saying quite a bit. Scoring got off to a slow start, largely because of turnovers by both

ISU burns BSU At Boise

By SCOTT PEYRON
Special to The Times-News

BOISE — Idaho State University sprung a trap on Boise State University in the second half of Friday's Big Sky Conference basketball game and in the flashing open-court game that ensued, the Bengals bushwacked the ravens Broncos 73-71.

ISU held state BSU's five-point halftime lead by extending its trapping defense fullcourt. Forward Nelson Peterson, center Brett Olivier and guard Donn Holston, meanwhile, kept turning BSU mistakes into Bengal baskets. The result of all that was that ISU, now 9-12, won its first road game over a Division I opponent this season and BSU went reeling to its fifth defeat in the last six games.

ISU climbed to 2-4 in Big Sky play while Boise State fell to 1-5.

"The key, I felt like, was the pressure defense," said ISU Coach Wayne Ballard. "We were down five, and then in the course of two or three minutes they lost the ball a few times, we were able to capitalize and we went from five down to two or three up."

Once ISU quickened the tempo of the game with its defense, it had the Broncos where it wanted them. Its offense feeds off of quick transition and unfettered jump shots off the fast break.

Peterson, who at times dominated the game in the first half, was even better in the second half. The Florida senior finished with 25 points on nine-for-16 shooting — either on twirling drives or firing from the vicinity of the three-point arc 19 feet, nine inches from the goal. Peterson drilled two three-point baskets to keep ISU in touch in the first half.

No. 1 vs. No. 2 Showdown today in Oakley

By STEVE CRUM
Times-News sports editor

OAKLEY, Idaho, It isn't every day that Oakley, Idaho's top-ranked boys' basketball team in Class A-4 all season, has to contend with the No. 2 ballclub in the state. But Coach Neil Wiyatt figures that by now his Hornets are used to big games.

"If the No. 1 ranking has done anything for our team, it's made us play hard in every game," says Wiyatt.

whose Hornets will host Magic Valley Conference archrival Castleford tonight at 6. "Every team we play is ready for us, and that kind of nagging pressure has, I think, been a blessing in some respects."

"I think this team will beat themselves before somebody else does," he continues. "What's going to beat us is complacency."

The Hornets, who own a second-place trophy from last year's state A-4 tournament, have shown no signs of that. Oakley has dominated its division in both The Associated Press and the United Press International boys' basketball polls, losing only to Burley a month ago. Since then, if anything, the Hornets appear to be getting stronger. They've won six in a row, including a 78-57 victory over Castleford in Castleford two weeks ago, and all five of their MVC outings.

But they won't be seeing the same Castleford team, according to Wolves' Coach Kelly Murphy.

"For one thing, we're healthy," says Murphy, whose team played Oakley last time after school had been closed for a week because of an influenza epidemic. "We're just getting (senior guard) Rich Owen back. He's been sick for two weeks."

But Murphy offers a more fundamental reason why his ballclub, No. 2 in both wire service polls for the past two weeks, should give the Hornets a tougher time tonight.

"I think we're coming along pretty well right now," he says. "We've improved substantially in the last couple of weeks."

The Wolves are 14-2 for the season, 7-1 in conference. Since struggling to a 35-32 victory over Hagerman the night after it lost to Oakley, Castleford has won four straight by progressively more impressive scores.

"We know this is a team that can beat us," says Wiyatt. "I think our kids will be ready to play."

his team healthy, at the moment. Senior guard Bruce Bedke is the most serious casualty; he has an ankle injury and won't play tonight. Notwithstanding, the veteran Oakley coach is happy with the way his ballclub is playing just now.

"We're playing as a team, and that's something we weren't doing in early January," he says. "We went over to Hagerman after Christmas, got ahead and almost gave the ballgame back to them. Now we've seen the team concept come back in."

The team concept is definitely working for both ballclubs. Oakley has four players — senior guard Cory Woodhouse, junior center John Oldham, senior forward Wayne Lind and Bedke — averaging in double figures, while all five of Castleford's starters — senior center Gary Reynolds, forwards Mark Tverdy, a senior, and Ron Owen, a junior, and senior guards Steve Zamora and Rich Owen — are averaging between 10 and 13 points a game. The Wolves' sixth man, Brian Lima, carries an 11-point average. Reynolds, Tverdy and Oldham all average near double figures in rebounding.

All of which leads Wiyatt to expect a high-scoring game.

"These are two pretty good offensive teams," he says. "I think we'll put some points on the board. I'd be surprised if it wasn't in the 60s."

Murphy isn't so sure.

"You never know. If one team or another plays defense the right way, it could be a 37-38 ballgame."

The key, both coaches concede, is how well Oakley handles Castleford's defense.

"Last time, we just didn't get back down the floor," says Murphy. "Some of it was the flu. The kids just weren't thinking."

"We beat their press last time and we'll have to do it again," says Wiyatt. "We might see some variation of a zone, but I'm sure they'll be pressing. That's been their defensive philosophy."

A victory tonight would give Oakley something very close to a lock on the MVC championship with four conference games remaining over the next two weeks. A win by Castleford, on the other hand, would tie the MVC up — probably pending the arrival of the District A-4 Southside sub-district tournament on a fortnight. "When Oakley and Castleford war get to start all over again."

Sizzling Bucks get 10th straight win

SEATTLE (AP) — Guard Sidney Moncrief scored 12 points in the final eight minutes Friday night as the Milwaukee Bucks pulled away to defeat the Seattle SuperSonics 109-91 in National Basketball Association action. The victory was Milwaukee's 10th straight. The Bucks have won the first five games of a six-game Western road trip.

Milwaukee forward Terry Cummings scored 16 points in coach half to top scorers with 32, while Moncrief finished with 21. Forward Tom Chambers topped the Sonics with 22.

Philadelphia 121 Chicago 110 PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Moses Malone scored 23 points and pulled down nine rebounds and Julius Erving added 19 points as the Philadelphia 76ers fought off a late Chicago Bulls rally to win 121-110 Friday night in a National Basketball Association game.

The Bulls, who led by 15 at 99-84 with 2:32 left in the game, had their lead cut to only three at 107-104 with 3:50 on the clock. The Bulls were sparked by rookie Michael Jordan, who scored 31 points and handed out five assists.

San Antonio 104 Portland 93 PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Mike Mitchell's 40 points fired the San Antonio Spurs to a 104-93 National Basketball Association victory over the Portland Trail Blazers Friday night.

The Blazers fell behind in the third quarter 82-79 as Mitchell scored 10 and George Gerwin added seven. The Spurs then went cold for a seven-minute stretch in which they scored only six points. But the Blazers did not capitulate.

Utah 121 Dallas 109 DALLAS (AP) — Darrell Griffith scored 30 points to lead the Utah Jazz past the Dallas Mavericks 121-109 in National Basketball Association action Friday night. The Jazz also got 17 assists from Rickey Green and 10 blocked shots from Mark Eaton before an estimated crowd of 7,000 in snow-banketed Dallas.

Atlanta 102 Cleveland 108 ATLANTA (AP) — Dominique Wilkins scored 34 points as the Atlanta Hawks turned back the Cleveland Cavaliers 126-108 in a National Basketball Association game Friday night. The Hawks also got 27 points from World B. Free, pulled to within five points of the Hawks at 83-83 after three quarters.

Indiana 102 Washington 95 INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Clark Kellogg scored 29 points and Herb Williams added 22 points and an outstanding fourth-quarter defensive effort Friday night, leading the Indiana Pacers to a 102-95 National Basketball Association victory over the Washington Bullets.

Boston 142 Kansas City 123 BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird scored 38 points and guard Danny Ainge hit for a career-high 26 Friday night as the Boston Celtics routed a 79-point first half to 142-123 National Basketball Association victory over the Kansas City Kings.

Hot-handed Syracuse

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Guard Dwayne Washington led six Syracuse players in double figures with 25 points Friday night in the No. 9 Orangemen slumped 180-ranked Big East Conference rival Villanova 92-79 after the largest on-campus basketball crowd in history. The announced crowd of 32,520 broke a two-year-old record of 32,382 set when St. John's visited the Carrier Dome. Syracuse improved its record to 14-3 and dropped the Wildcats to 14-5 with the victory, which reversed an 82-70 loss to Villanova earlier this season. Both teams emerged from the contest with 6-3 Big East records.

Rafael Anderson scored in 21 points for the Orangemen — 11 of them in the last five minutes of the game — Michael Brown added 14 and Andre Hawkins, Ron Siekaly and Wendell Alexis had 10 apiece.

Ed Pinckney, whose inside play kept the Wildcats in the game, led his team with 23 points, while Dwight Wilbur contributed 14 and Gary McLain 12. The Orangemen accelerated from a 41-32 halftime lead by virtue of the coast-to-coast play of Washington, who scored his team's last two baskets of the first half and the first of the second half and had two assists in 16 minutes which gave the Orange a 55-40 lead with 13:36 to play.

Villanova survived on a powerful inside game through most of the contest, with Harold Pressley grabbing 11 rebounds and Pinckney nine. The

Weber St. hands Vandals Big Sky loss No. 6

MOSCOW (AP) — Kent Hagan and Randy Worster scored 27 points apiece to lead Weber State to a 94-82 victory over the Idaho Vandals in a Big Sky Conference basketball game Friday night. Weber State moved into a three-way tie for first place with Idaho and Montana and Northern Arizona, all with 5-1 records. Weber climbed to 16-4 overall. Idaho, 0-6 in league, fell to 16-4 overall.

The Wildcats, who came into the game with an NCAA-leading 79.5 percent free-throw shooting average, hit 30 of 34 free throws for a blazing 87.2 percent. Idaho made only 9 of 16 free throws. Idaho led 28-24 with just more than seven minutes left in the first half. But Weber State switched to a zone defense and went on a 25-5 tear to take a 49-33 halftime lead. Hagan hit five of seven 3-point field goals.

The Vandals closed to within 7 points three times in the second half and trailed 91-82 at 42 seconds left. But Weber hit five of six free throws for the final margin.

The Tar Heels held the Bulldogs to 38.6 percent from the field, while the North Carolina hit on 50 percent of its shots. Buzz Peterson added 15 points for the Tar Heels. Warren Martin scored nine points and grabbed seven rebounds and Kenny Smith had a career-high 13 assists. Guard Curtis Hunter returned to the Tar Heel lineup, scoring seven points. Hunter hurt his knee in last Southern Methodist on Jan. 13 and had not played since.

The Tar Heels led by Regan Trussdale with 21 points, while John Hartwell had 12. North Carolina topped its lead to 22 points at 56-34 with 13:31 left before the Citadel, 11-8, rallied to within 77-75 with 4:53 left. But the Tar Heels went into their victory game with 4:10 remaining and hit several key free throws down the stretch to seal the victory.

North Carolina sank 29 of 39 free throws, while The Citadel hit eight of 11.

ISU

Continued from Page B1 Holston, who has drifted in and out of a shooting slump in recent weeks, hit five of his nine shots from the field and contributed 16 points for ISU. But Peterson's and Holston's numbers were almost to be expected; Olivier's weren't. Subbing for teammate Doug Moratka, who last week was lost for the season with a broken foot, Olivier piled up 12 rebounds and 10 points. He blocked — no.

Continued from Page B1 Olivier tied the game at 41 when he tipped in a miss at 15:31 of the second half and then with 4:30 to play he made what might have been the biggest play of the game — a putback of Chris Blocker's missed free throw to establish a 61-56 ISU lead.

Stocks lose on profit taking

By CHET CURRIER The Associated Press NEW YORK — Stock prices suffered their first clear-cut loss in nearly four weeks Friday. The market faltered as traders cashed in profits from the market's strong January advance. The Dow Jones industrial average climbed 75.29 points, or more than 6 percent, in January.

Analysts said some traders evidently concluded that the market was due for a pullback, or at least a rest period, after such an extended rally. The NASDAQ composite index slipped 27 to 278.43. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 23.56, down 11.

Losers among the blue chips included International Business Machines, off 1/4 at 135 1/2; General Motors, down 1/2 at 62 1/2; Ford Motor, off 1/4 at 47 1/2; General Electric, off 1/2 at 62 1/2; and Eastman Kodak, 1/2 lower at 71 1/2.

Savings and loan issues, one of the strongest industry groups in January, ran into selling as enthusiasm about the interest-rate outlook waned. Golden West Financial dropped 1 1/2 to 25 1/2; Homestead Financial, 3/4 to 14 1/2; H.F. Ammons, 1/2 to 10 1/2; and Great Western Financial, 1/2 to 10 1/2.

South African corn crop will be larger

WASHINGTON (AP) — South Africa, sometimes a competitor of the United States in world grain markets, may produce about 6.5 million metric tons — 256 million bushels — of corn from its 1984-85 harvest, according to a new report by the Agriculture Department.

Although the estimate is lower than USDA had been predicting, it would still make the South African corn harvest 46 percent larger than the drought-reduced crop of 1983-84, the report said.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

"Men just don't seem to jump off the bridge for big reasons, they usually do so for little ones."

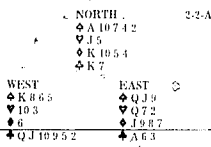

—W.H. Ferry

South was ready to take a dive after he discovered he had an unyieldable diamond lover. Had he been more careful with trumps, the bad diamond break would not have caused despair.

The defenders took the first two clubs and East shifted to the spade queen, which was won by dummy's ace. South quickly played his two top trumps and started diamonds. All would have been well with any decent split (or if West had the four diamonds), but because East had them, the game could no longer be made.

South complained about the bad break in diamonds but he never did recognize another option in trumps. With that combination, the play of the A-K conceded a sure trump loser and possessed two losers if either defender held Q-10-x-x.

South's best chance lay with running the trump jack at trick four. Had East not covered, South would have lost no trump tricks. Had East covered, South would then have had to guess whether to repeat the finesse or to play for the 10 to drop. It was certainly a better shot than automatically conceding a trump trick.
