Wilds bill offered

Large acreage object of plan

BOISE (AP) -- Environmentalists have renewed their drive for a major wilderness addition in Idaho, gaining reauthorization in the U.S. House of Representatives to preserve another 3.5 million acres of Idaho backcountry.

Rep. Jim Moody, D-Wis., a sponsor of the bill along with Rep. Peter Kostmayer, D-Pa., said he hoped the measure introduced Thursday could break the long-standing dispute that has prevented passage of wilderness legislation for Idaho.

Tom Robinson, spokesman for the Wilderness Society Northern Rockies Chapter, blamed the Idaho congressional delegation's refusal to compromise as the reason no Idaho wilderness bill passed during the last session.

"We feel like we got burned last year," Robinson said at a news conference in Boise. "We gave up much more than they did."

The dispute finds the three Republicans in Idaho's four-man congressional delegation pushing to declare 500,000 acres as wilderness areas -- about half what is being sought by Democratic Gov. John Evans. The state Fish and Game Commission has called for an additional 1.8 million acres.

Robinson termed the half million acre proposal "the most irresponsible proposal in the history of the U.S." Sen. Steve Symms would be even "less responsible" in introducing wilderness legislation than Sen. James McClure, who sponsored the half-million acre proposal last year. Robinson said McClure said he has no plans to introduce a wilderness bill this year.

Bill Livingstone, aide for McClure, said the 3.5 million acre proposal was "basically dead on arrival" because it calls for even more than the 3.4 million acre wilderness bill introduced by Moody and Kostmayer last year.

"We're willing to talk" Robinson said. But, "We're prepared to fight for many years."

Craig Gehlke, spokesman for the Idaho Wilderness League and the Idaho Wilderness Defense Coalition, said several things have prompted environmentalists to seek a wilderness bill this year. The defense coalition is made up of 13 groups that support additional wilderness in Idaho.

Conservationists wanted to have a bill ready in case Rep. Larry Craig or Symms came forth with their own version.

National forest management plans indicate many of the areas the group wants protected must will be opened up for logging, Gehlke said.

The Caribou National Forest recommended only 2 percent of its

Senate votes to slash 50-50

Voter-approved tax exemption falls victim to narrow vote

BOISE (AP) -- The Idaho Senate has narrowly passed a bill to halve the residential property tax exemption allowed under the so-called 50-50 initiative that voters approved in 1982.

The Senate voted 22-20 for the measure on Thursday and sent it to the House. The vote came after a debate in which supporters said farmers can't withstand the increased tax burden imposed by the 50-50, and opponents countered changing the initiative shouldn't be used to skirt problems with Idaho's overall tax structure.

The bill sponsored by Rep. Veard Crystal, R-Lewisville, would reduce the 50-50 to a 25-25 proposition. The 50-50 allows homeowners to claim a tax exemption of up to 50 percent of their property's value, or $50,000.

Across the Capitol rotunda, a House committee on Thursday cast a vote refusing to introduce a proposal by Rep. Raymond Parks, R-

Blackfoot, to repeal the 50-50 Parks said farmers in his area can't shoulder the tax burden the voter initiative placed on them.

Crystal said on Thursday that the 50-50 has damaged the state tax structure and shifted an unfair burden onto owners of agricultural property. The overall tax shift brought on by the initiative has amounted to $20.5 million, Crystal said.

The Idaho Tax Commission estimates his measure would raise annual residential tax collections by nearly 25 percent, or $11 million. The commission said farmhand taxes would drop by less than 4 percent.

Opponent Sen. Ron Rottelspacher, D-Grangeville, said the measure would have a tremendous impact on residential property owners and would benefit farmers only minimally.

"This is held up to be a saving grace for them," he said of farmers.

Another opponent, Sen. Bernie Rakozy, R-Boise, called the bill "not only a shift, but a very large shift," and Sen. Vernon Lannen, D-Pinehurst, criticized the legislative effort to overturn a voter-approved initiative.

People who don't like the 50-50 should follow the same route as proponents who circulated petitions and went through the struggle of the initiative process two years ago, he said.

Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, said the voter initiative hurts Idaho's efforts to attract new business and industry because an excessive tax burden has been placed on production and business sectors.

Another supporter of Crystal's measure, Sen. Ralph Lacey, D-Focetello, said the 50-50 has been particularly painful for operators of small businesses.

The ax keeps falling on budgets despite mounting criticism

BOISE (AP) -- Unabated by mounting criticism of their bare-bones approach to 1985-1986 state spending, legislative budget writers on Thursday continued to wield the ax on the spending requests pending before them.

Idaho's four tax-supported colleges were the latest to feel the sting of the Republican majority on the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee, seeing their request for more than $93 million in general revenues slashed to less than $35 million.

Democratic Gov. John Evans, who has proposed the most conservative budget of his eight years in office, had called for nearly $109 million for higher education in the year that begins July 1.

Some lawmakers said the panel's initial budget actions were aimed at forcing a decision on possible revenue increase measures to ease the crunch between inadequate tax receipts and mounting budget demands.

"Everyone's aware we need more money," said Rep. Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, committee co-chairman. "It just takes something to shake it loose."

But while the committee's chief concern is conservation of the state's general tax receipts, the panel also dug into the budget requests of agencies that get their money from special dedicated funds. It voted to cut more than $30,000 from the budget of the Industrial Commission, which is financed solely from workman's compensation premiums.

The $19.8 million higher education proposal, approved on a 14-10 vote as three Republicans joined the Democratic majority in opposing the bill, translates into a 7.5 percent increase over this year's budget. Mrs. Gurnsey along with GOP Reps. Tom Boyd of Gernsey and Lawrence Kollege of Piler opposed the bill.

It provides only one-seventh of the money education officials said was needed to resolve academic deficiencies that jeopardize continued accreditation of some programs at Idaho State University, Boise State University, Lewis-Clark State College and the University of Idaho. The money earmarked for accreditation problems is enough to meet the needs of only one of the programs in jeopardy.

Costs and benefits of new jail to weigh on minds of voters

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS -- In the next few weeks, county residents must weigh the costs and benefits of supporting the construction of a new Twin Falls County Jail and law enforcement building.

The decision will be March 19, when county taxpayers will vote on a $6.2 million bond issue to finance the proposed 59,000-square-foot structure.

But long before the amount of the project was announced Wednesday, the county had invested hopes and money toward a new jail.

In 1978, the county purchased the adjacent old O'Leary School site for $500,000 for the purpose of building a new jail and more county offices.

Federal Payment in Lieu of Taxes funds were used by the county to buy the property.

At that time, however, there were no county funds available to begin the project. More recently, the county has started increasing the jail staff for the proposed facility.

The current county budget allowed Sheriff Jim Munn to hire five full-time and one part-time jailer. The county previously had employed one full-time and five part-time jailers to watch prisoners for 24 hours a day.

"The staff is one-third of what it should be right now," Munn said at a Wednesday meeting.

Munn plans to triple the number of jailers, to about 15 full-time positions, by the time a new jail would be completed in 1986.

The jail now averages 42 to 46 inmates daily. In 1978-79, the average was 20 inmates. Female prisoners are now housed at the Twin Falls city jail. A matron would have to be hired because they would be moved to the new jail.

According to "rough" estimates, the salary of the jail staff for 1984-85 in the old jail will be about $97,000.

With 15 jail employees, the salary cost would be about $300,000 annually.

Attorney Jon Shindurling, who chairs the committee promoting the bond, said the additional staff requirements were justified because the jail population had grown about 10 percent each year for the past seven years.

The newer and tougher drunk-driving law was partly responsible for the increase, said Deputy Wayne Towsley, the assistant jail administrator.

Because a cross-section of people from housewives to businessmen were jailed on drunken driving convictions, matters were complicated. Jailers had no room to segregate the first-time offenders from the hardened criminal, he said.

Polish police found guilty

TORUN, Poland (AP) -- Three secret policemen were convicted Thursday of the "brutal" murder of a pro-Solidarity priest and given prison terms ranging up to 25 years for the ringleader. The fourth man in the case, a colonel found guilty of investigating the plot, was sentenced to 25 years.

Chief Judge Artur Kujawa said Col. Adam Pietruszka, the highest-ranking Interior Ministry officer charged in the death of the Rev. Jerzy Popieluszko, played a "cynical" role and created "an atmosphere conducive to committing the crime."

Popieluszko was beaten to death and thrown into a reservoir last October.

The lawyer for Popieluszko's family called the verdict "just," and a church spokesman said a 25-year sentence gives a man "a lot of time to think about himself and about others."

The five-judge panel rejected the prosecutor's request that the ringleader, Capt. Grzegorz Piotrowski, 33, be sentenced to death by hanging.

It convicted Piotrowski of kidnapping and killing the popular, outspoken priest along with two lieutenants -- Leszek Pekala, 32, and Waldemar Chmielewski, 29, who were given 15 and 14 years respectively.

Piotrowski and ekala wept as the sentences were announced. Journalists reported from the courtroom. Chmielewski, who has been troubled by a nervous disorder since the killing, trembled, weeping his head for the defendants' dock. Pietruszka, 47, remained impassive.

Poland's Communist authorities issued 10 passes to Western correspondents for the trial but denied access to The Associated Press. Reporters in the courtroom furnished their notes to the AP, which has protested its exclusion.

Twenty-five years is the most severe punishment in Poland short of death, which was the maximum penalty faced by the defendants.

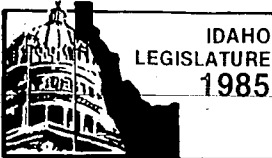

Piotrowski and Pietruszka also will be denied all civil rights for 10 years after they get out of prison -- which costs them their military ranks and honors, and the right to vote and hold office.

The verdicts were announced immediately by the official news agency PAP and read on the evening television news.

The government said it would refuse comment on the case. The Roman Catholic Church said it would issue a statement after a Feb. 13-14 meeting of the bishops of this doubly Catholic nation, but a spokesman at the episcopate in Warsaw said prison terms were severe enough punishment.

Commerce office plan gets early nod artificial and distributing the grant monies requires too much state bureaucracy to be efficient.

Under the Bureau of Occupational Licenses, the program would be run in a manner similar to an agricultural commodity commission, Chadband said.

Chadband and Porter criticized each others' proposals while promoting their own.

Chadband struck first, calling Porter's "Department of Commerce" a "buzz word" that has gained political support but which translates into "larger government." Chadband said promotional efforts to attract and retain industries should be made by the "private sector" and not by an arm of government.

"When you start a new function it has a tendency to grow and get bigger," Chadband said. "Will we take it (the department's appropriation) from some other program that can't be handled in the private sector?" he asked rhetorically.

Chadband told committee members that the Idaho Wheat Commission works outside of DECA and doesn't want government involvement. He said DECA merely serves as a vehicle to allow representatives of Pacific Rim countries to shake hands with the governor, while visiting Idaho on trade missions.

Porter responded after the meeting, by saying DECA works cooperatively with the Wheat Commission on many matters.

BOISE -- A proposal to create a Department of Commerce as a coordinating agency for Idaho promotions received the preliminary approval of a House committee Thursday afternoon.

But only moments after introducing the measure, a second, conflicting tourism promotions proposal, also squeaked out of the House Commerce, Industry and Tourism Committee. The second measure intends to decentralize the state's tourism promotions efforts.

Both would remove the Idaho Travel Committee from the administrative office of the governor.

Under the first proposal, the committee would join other operations now under the purview of the governor's Division of Economic and Community Affairs in the move to a Department of Commerce.

DECA administrator David Porter, told committee members transforming the division into a separate department in state government would provide it and the state's promotion efforts a non-political image and a clear identity as the state's business-advocacy agency.

Porter said the Department of Commerce proposal is needed to keep the state from falling behind the other states in recruitment and promotion. "You ran on a platform of no new taxes,"

Porter told the Republican-dominated committee. "Did you also say you were going to improve the business climate?" he asked.

"This is the way the job is done," he added, indicating the Department of Commerce proposal.

The second measure considered and introduced by the committee would transform the travel committee from a panel operating under the auspices of DECA to a travel commission regulated by the Bureau of Occupational Licenses. The proposal would also eliminate local tourism grants, now awarded by the committee.

Rep. J.F. Chadband, R-Idaho Falls, the bill's sponsor, told committee members the move would cause the travel promotion function to be free of the political environment in which it exists in the governor's office.

During an earlier committee hearing on the proposal, he said applying for the grants is too other four measures in the package that will implement the negotiated compromise between the state and Idaho Power Co. over claims to the limited water in the Snake River.

Negotiators of that compromise, reached last fall, hope it will end the long legal struggle that has created confusion among southern Idaho water users and blocked state water resource officials from effectively managing the river.

Under the settlement, Idaho Power has agreed to give up the bulk of its claimed water right at Swan Falls Dam in return for the state increasing the minimum stream flow there. The aim is to preserve the utility's hydropower base on the river while still permitting some future development along the Snake.

The negotiators themselves have acknowledged that the compromise has not resolved all issues involving Snake River water, but they pointed out that if left in tact it will provide a framework for resolving other matters.

The proposal, however, has still drawn criticism, primarily from Idaho Power consumers who claim their utility rates will skyrocket because the utility is giving up its right to water that could be used to generate electricity.

Idaho eyes drinking-age suit

BOISE (AP) — In what is described as a battle to preserve states' rights, Idaho may be joining a South Dakota lawsuit over the legal drinking age.

lo raise the legal drinking age to 21 by Oct. 1, 1986, or lose federal highway funds. Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello, said many feel that is an illegal intrusion into the federal-state relationship and Idaho should join the battle to preserve state rights. The resolution now goes to the Senate for consideration.

House passes sixth water rights bill

BOISE (AP) — The sixth bill in a legislative package spawned by the proposed settlement in the battle for control of the Snake River has won initial approval in the House.

The measure, approved on a 73-7 vote Thursday, guarantees protection for water users whose rights have already been adjudicated when the basin-wide adjudication begins this summer.

Action on the bill, which now goes to the Senate, came a day after the House easily approved the bill setting the stage for that $27-million, 10-year adjudication process. That bill also goes to the Senate.

At the same time, the Senate sent the House the River up; Salmon watches

SALMON (AP) — The National Weather Service continued its flash flood warning for the city of Salmon and surrounding area Thursday as the ice-jammed Salmon River continued to slowly rise.

"It's raised a few inches today, but so far there's no serious flooding," said Dick Smith of the Salmon Search and Rescue.

But he said water has started seeping into three or four homes in low-lying areas north of the city. Two were evacuated several days ago, Smith said the other families were preparing to leave now.

The Weather Service said there had been little change in the situation on the Salmon River early Thursday although the Lemhi River, where jam problems had been reported Wednesday, had cleared and water was flowing freely again.

"Officials are maintaining a very close watch on the situation and are prepared to take immediate action should flooding occur," the Weather Service said in a statement.

Smith said there was at least a foot and a half of freeboard along the Lemhi River Thursday, but he said the Salmon was running "bank high." Hourly readings were being taken in the areas where the river has already breached the bank, he said.

Forecasters had been predicting warmer temperatures in the area, that has been locked in single-digit to subzero readings, to ease the jamming situation.

Smith said the mercury had risen to 21 on Thursday, the warmest it has been in some time. But he added that temperatures over the next several days may determine whether the city suffers another round of winter flooding like last year's that caused $3.5 million in damage.

"Another two or three days of cold weather and we'll be back in the flooding business," he said.

John Lamey, manager of the Salmon Valley Cheese Co., said he moved his stock out of town on Wednesday night.

"The colder weather has forced the ice jam further above town," Lamey said. "You just don't know what it will do."

Canadian imports a 'threat' Craig calls for timber import law

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation limiting Canadian lumber imports was first introduced by Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, who says the imports have become an intolerable threat to American jobs and the nation's balance of trade.

The measure Craig introduced with Rep. Jim Weaver, D-Ore., would limit imports of Canadian timber to 25 percent of the U.S. market for five years. The American wood-products industry estimates Canada supplied about 30 percent of the U.S. market last year, Craig said Thursday.

The Idaho Republican said he normally doesn't support protective legislation, but he is deviating from that stand because "even conservatives know a snow job when they see one."

"We cannot allow Canada to continue to use the United States as a dumping ground," he said. "This legislation is intended to demonstrate to the Canadian authorities that Congress will not allow the dumping to go unchallenged."

He said he hopes trade negotiations will make enactment of the legislation unnecessary.

Craig said that he's been informed negotiations are set for late this month, and that he hopes his legislation will be a bargaining chip in those talks.

Imports of Canadian softwood lumber increased by nearly 11 percent from 1983 to 1984, while U.S. exports to Canada dropped by about 12 percent over the same period, he said.

Blizzard dumps 15 inches of snow on eastern Oregon communities

LA GRANDE, Ore. (AP) — A blizzard lashed northeastern Oregon on Thursday with up to 15 inches of snow and winds that whipped up drifts as high as car hoods, forcing highways and schools to close and leaving two people dead.

Interstate 84, a multi highway, was closed for several hours between La Grande and Baker after winds up to 35 mph blew snow over the highway and reduced visibility to near zero. The freeway reopened at 2 p.m.

Schools were closed at Pendleton, Helix, Athena-Weston, Cove, Elgin and Imbler.

Gov. Vic Atthey authorized the National Guard to allow people to be housed in armories if they were stranded by severe weather.

A blizzard warning was issued for Union and Lake counties, with up to 8 inches of new snow forecast. A winter storm warning was issued for the Cascades, Columbia Gorge, and northeast Oregon mountains, where 6 or more inches of new snow was expected by Friday.

In Hood River, radio station KHRH measured 15 inches of new snow since Wednesday night on the station's lawn, said news director Jay Lynch. An additional 7 inches was forecast before Friday.

Ten inches of snow fell on Cascade Locks in the Columbia River Gorge in a 24-hour period ending early Thursday.

Many roads in the Pendleton area were closed by snow drifting as high as car hoods. Snow up to 4 inches blanketed parts of the Coast Range.

Chains or other traction devices were ordered for parts of I-84 and U.S. 26, U.S. 20 and U.S. 395 and six state highways. Oregon 140 was closed from Adel in southeastern Oregon to the Nevada border because of drifting snow.

Two Pendleton men were killed in the storm in separate highway crashes on Thursday, one on I-84 and one on U.S. 395.

Utah students protest loss of video channel

PROVO, Utah (AP) — Students at two apartment complexes are petitioning for a return to their screens of a rock-video channel condemned by Mormon bishops who say it contains "sex, drugs, witchcraft and the bizarre."

Leo Weldner, manager and part owner of Carriage Cove apartments and a Mormon bishop at church-owned Brigham Young University, said Thursday he believes some MTV videos are pornographic and therefore a violation of BYU's honor code.

"There's oral sex, there are lesbians making love, there is sadomasochism," Weldner said, although he acknowledged he has never seen MTV.

Students at Carriage Cove and Raintree Apartments began circulating a petition Wednesday to restore MTV, said one of the organizers, Rolf Wallengren, 25, a BYU senior from North Hollywood, Calif. The petition had 225 signatures Thursday afternoon and Wallengren said fewer than 10 percent of the students contacted have refused to sign.

The petition reads in part: "We, the undersigned, are appalled and insulted by the recently imposed censorship of MTV at Carriage Cove and Raintree apartments. We feel this censorship not only represents climactic fanaticism, but sets a dangerous precedent for future censorship."

The issue, Wallengren said, is freedom of choice, an important doctrine of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

"They say they have the right to choose," said Weldner, who stressed he was speaking as a bishop and not for the church as a whole. "But when a kid signs in at BYU he chooses to obey the BYU honor code," which forbids pornography in BYU-approved housing.

Weldner said there was no chance MTV would return at Carriage Cove.

The flap over MTV began in early January when students at the two complexes returned from the Christmas holidays to find the channel gone. Weldner said the president of the BYU 14th Stake and four bishops had gone to Raintree's management and asked that MTV be pulled out. A faulty satellite transponder at Carriage Cove had had the same effect.

"And then when the kids came back it hit the fan," Weldner said, with more than 500 of the 900 students at Raintree successfully petitioning for MTV's return.

The stake president, Thales H. Smith, then asked each bishop to deal with the topic of pornography in a January sacrament meeting. And when MTV was again pulled out of Raintree, only seven people complained, said Weldner, who decided not to bring it back at Carriage Cove once the transponder was fixed.

One of the four bishops over Raintree wards, Phil Anderson, said the removal of MTV was requested to "change the environment and reduce the bad influence."

Jury stays out in Coe rape trial

SEATTLE (AP) — Jury deliberations in Kevin Coe's retrial stretched through a third day without a verdict as the defense pondered the chances of a hung jury in the Spokane "South Hill rapist" case.

Convicted once in a flawed trial, Coe is charged again with four of some 40 rapes blamed on the "South Hill rapist" who terrorized that Spokane neighborhood between 1978 and 1981.

The nine-woman, three-man King County Superior Court jury had deliberated 16 hours in all when it recessed at 5 p.m. Thursday. Jurors received the case at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday.

Jury deliberations were set to resume at 9 a.m. Friday.

Bailiff Guye Van Walker described jurors as "a little tired, but still talking."

They lunched Thursday at Pearl's Chinese Restaurant, but got stuck in a King County Courthouse elevator for 10 minutes on the way out, court officials said.

At one point jurors sent out for marking pens, but otherwise have made no requests. They have the case's 130 exhibits and the notebooks each juror kept during three weeks of testimony.

Defense lawyer Richard Hansen dropped by the courtroom Thursday, speculating that chances for a hung jury increase as deliberations lengthen.

Deputy Spokane County Prosecutor Pat Thompson refused to offer any predictions on what the length of deliberations might mean.

Gunman kills priest, others in church

ONALASKA, Wis. (AP) — A priest who was kneeling to pray was shot to death in a church along with two other men Thursday, and police arrested a man who called himself "Billah" and said he objected to girls reading scripture during Mass.

A man wearing a yellow stocking cap and carrying a shotgun was captured by police as he ran from St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church after the shootings, said Police Chief John Dlouhy. The gunman, who initially told authorities his name was "Billah," was identified as Bryan Stanley, 29, said Dlouhy and La Crosse County District Attorney Scott Horne. Stanley will be charged Monday with three counts of first-degree murder, they said, refusing to say whether a motive had been determined.

The bodies of the Rev. John Rossiter, 64, and lay minister Ferdinand Roth Sr., 55, were found in the church sanctuary shortly after a morning Mass attended by children from a parish school next door.

Rossiter was shot just after he had hugged some of the children and they had returned to the school.

The school principal, Sister Rose Frances Phalin, said that after Rossiter and Roth were shot, the gunman went to the church basement where custodian William Hammes, 66, was slain.

Sister Phalin said that earlier, while the children were seated for Mass, the man had knocked at the sacristy door and asked Rossiter about plans to let two sixth-grade girls give the first and second readings. She said he was quoted as demanding: "On what authority do you do this?" The nun said Rossiter replied: "The pope told me I can do that, and that is good enough for me." The man apparently left the church, but returned after the Mass.

"The children were out of the church, thank goodness," when shots were fired as Rossiter made a thanksgiving prayer in the sacristy, Sister Phalin said.

After the shooting, a kitchen worker ran to the school to call police and another kitchen employee hid in a closet, she said.

Ruth Wurtz, branch manager of a savings and loan association office across the street from the church, said she found parishioners grief-stricken when she arrived for work.

"A woman came flying out of the church area screaming, and her arms in the air, just screaming and sobbing," his Wurtz said. "Two other people ... were hugging and standing in the parking lot."

Authorities said Rossiter and Roth were shot from behind.

"They are all dead. They blasted their heads off," assistant La Crosse County medical examiner Michael Watunya said.

Weinberger labels freeze 'dangerous'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger told Congress Thursday that an inflation freeze on military spending would "decimate" major weapons programs, force the elimination of two Trident submarines and slow by years production of the B-1 and Stealth bombers.

A freeze "would be the most dangerous thing we could do, not just foolish," Weinberger told the Senate Budget Committee.

Spelling out in public for the first time the specific impact of an inflation-adjusted freeze on military spending, Weinberger said it would "cripple the ability of the department to move ahead."

But Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the committee chairman, insisted defense must be part of efforts to reduce the federal budget deficit.

"You gave me a long shopping list of important programs that would have to be terminated," Domenici told Weinberger. "Let me be honest and tell you that I have a great deal of difficulty in believing that would be the result."

In his budget for fiscal 1986, which ends next October, President Reagan is seeking $27.5 billion in actual outlays for the Pentagon, an increase of 5.9 percent over the 1985 budget after inflation is taken into effect.

Some senators said the most popular alternative under consideration is trimming the growth rate back to 3 percent after inflation. Others said a full spending freeze is essential. Weinberger said a freeze on spending that gives the Defense Department no more purchasing power than it has in fiscal 1985 "would decimate the ability of the department to continue with the programs that are now in effect."

He said that if such a freeze were imposed: "The production schedule for the B-1 bomber and the advanced, high-technology Stealth bomber would be set back three or four years."

Tactical aircraft purchases would be reduced 38 percent.

Army and Air Force helicopter purchases would be cut 50 percent.

The heavy-lift helicopter program and the C-17 transport airlift program would be terminated.

Plans to replace the engines on the C-5 transport plane would be set back by three years.

Haig: Attack on Syrians would have saved lives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. said Thursday that 241 U.S. servicemen would not have died in the October 1983 terrorist bombing of a Marine barracks in Beirut if President Reagan had ordered a preemptive attack on Syrian troops in Lebanon.

"Had we done that we probably wouldn't have been faced with the destruction of the Marine barracks," Haig said. "This is my conviction."

Haig, who resigned under pressure as Reagan's chief foreign policy adviser in June 1982, said terrorists in the Middle East are controlled by the Syrian and Libyan governments with help from the Soviet Union.

"It is not the Iranian government which is running terrorists in the Mideast today," Haig told the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. "It is Syria and (Col. Moammar) Khadafy's Libya."

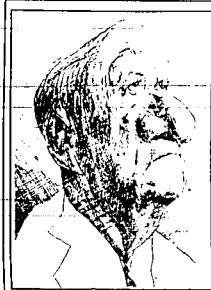

"Iran provided militant young fanatics who think they are going to paradise if the take care of the infidel," Haig said.

He testified as one of a series of former top foreign policy officials contributing to a sweeping review by the committee of U.S. foreign policy.

"It was a short step from there to the bombing of the Marine barracks (six months later)," Haig said. "We should have taken Syrian casualties in the Bekka Valley."

It was in the Bekka Valley northeast of Beirut where Syria kept military forces in Lebanon at the same time that American troops, since withdrawn, were part of an international peace-keeping mission in Beirut.

Generally, Haig said the United States must be willing to retaliate against terrorists, especially if they are sponsored by other governments.

REP. TIP O'NEILL Stops pulling punches

O'Neill calls Reagan an 'old man'

WASHINGTON (AP) — After weeks of holding his punches, House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. went on the attack again Thursday, dismissing President Reagan's State of the Union address as generalities of "a kindly old man."

The Massachusetts Democrat, in his harshest criticism since the president's landslide re-election victory last November, said Reagan "hasn't been honest with the American people. They haven't asked him for honesty."

O'Neill, 72, frequently characterized Reagan as "an old man" and "a kindly old man" at a news conference.

Reagan delivered his State of the Union address Wednesday night on his 74th birthday — a fact of which Congress took official note with a chorus of "Happy Birthday" at the end of the speech.

But Thursday, O'Neill said Democrats had been intentionally easy on the president in their initial reactions to his speech.

"We did not want to hurt this kindly old man that America loves on his 74th birthday," O'Neill said.

"This kindly gentleman, this old man. The American people are mesmerized by him. But I think he should come out and say what he's asking for."

O'Neill took issue with Reagan's assertion that current high deficits were caused by "nearly 50 years of government's living beyond its means."

"He made somewhat of a simple statement. It was very clever rhetoric. But it covered up the facts," O'Neill said. "Mr. President ... do not point the finger at the distant past, when you yourself have so much red ink that America loves on your own shoulders."

When Reagan took office, O'Neill said, the national debt was just over $900 billion. "By his own budget projections ... the national debt will be $3 trillion when he leaves office."

Friends say Goetz pulled gun before

NEW YORK (AP) — Bernhard Goetz has confided that long before he had his famous encounter with four youths in the subway, he pulled a gun to protect himself from two muggers. That time, he did not shoot.

Twice, he also came to the aid of women being mugged, though he did not take out a gun either time, said his lawyer, Joseph Kelnor.

Goetz, a 37-year-old self-employed electronics expert, remains free on bail while awaiting trial on weapons charges. On Dec. 22, he shot four youths who he believed were mugging him on the subway; a grand jury refused to indict him on charges of attempted murder in that incident.

Chernenko talks before Politburo

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko, absent from public view for nearly seven weeks and said to be ill, addressed a regular meeting of the ruling Politburo this week, the official news agency Tass said Thursday.

KONSTANTIN CHERENKO
Returns from long absence

Tass issued its report the same day a Soviet journalist told NBC news that Chernenko was ill but in stable condition. A French television station also quoted a member of the Soviet delegation to a French Communist Party Congress as saying Chernenko had an "accident of health" Jan. 14.

A day earlier, Viktor G. Amanseyev, editor of the Communist party newspaper Pravda said in an interview on Italian television that Chernenko was ill. The reports provided little information on the nature of Chernenko's illness.

Tass did not say what day the Politburo met, but its story was dated Thursday, the day the Politburo normally meets.

Chernenko, 73, has not been seen in public since Dec. 27, when Soviet television showed him at a Kremlin awards ceremony. Several developments since then have suggested he was seriously ill, including the abrupt cancellation of a Warsaw Pact summit scheduled for Sofia, Bulgaria, in mid-January.

He did not appear at the Red Square funeral of Defense Minister Dmitri F. Ustinov on Dec. 24. The funeral was held in sub-zero cold and diplomats in Moscow presumed Chernenko, who according to witnesses appeared weak when viewing Ustinov's body two days earlier, had been ordered by doctors to miss the funeral.

Soviet news media have carried reports on messages from Chernenko and published decrees signed by him, but there had been no recent reports that he had spoken to Kremlin gatherings before Thursday's Tass report.

Tass said the Politburo discussed efforts to fulfill the Soviet Union's economic plan, and said the Politburo heard reports by a number of ministers on progress toward — successful — spring agricultural planting.

Gunmen seize jet in Beirut, then vanish

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Gunmen seized a Cyprus Airways jetliner and held 12 hostages at Beirut airport on Thursday, then yielded the plane and hostages six hours later. A mediator said the hijackers were told their demand would be met. The gunmen demanded that Greek Cypriot authorities free two Lebanese Shiite Muslims in prison on Cyprus for an earlier hijacking. The Shiite attack squad at Beirut set a 12-hour deadline. They said that one hour after it expired, they would start killing hostages.

Wisting said five or six men took over his Boeing 707 aircraft and they apparently had colleagues on the ground where he was ordered to taxi his plane. The pilot said three Lebanese ground employees of the KLM Royal Dutch Airlines also wound up as hostages aboard the plane, along with him and eight other crew members. The other crew were reported to be all Cypriots. It was earlier thought that only nine hostages were abducted.

Two Shiites held on the Mediterranean island. "The Cypriot authorities have promised to release them," Masri told reporters at the Beirut airport.

Masri was a negotiator from Amal, the dominant Shiite Moslem militia in Lebanon, where Moslem and Christian militias have fought each other for more than nine years.

Another Amal negotiator, Bassam Tlais, said by radio from aboard the plane at 9:10 p.m. "It's over. There is no one on the plane."

Official sources in Nicosia, the Cypriot capital, said Cypriot Foreign Minister George Ioannou told Lebanese authorities Cyprus would consider "favorably" the demand to free the two hijackers if the Boeing 707 was released and arrived safely with its crew at Larnaca, Cyprus. The sources spoke on condition they not be named.

But Sheik Hussein Masri, one of those who negotiated with the gunmen on the plane after the takeover, said Cyprus had, in fact, promised to free the

It was not known what had happened to the assaulters. Cleaning men were seen boarding the airliner. Local radio stations said explosives experts were called to examine the plane before it would be cleared for takeoff at Cyprus.

The Beirut assailants identified themselves as members of the Black Brigade, which is bent on determining the fate of Imam Musa Sadr, spiritual head of Lebanon's Shiite sect, who disappeared during a visit to Libya in 1978.

Building collapse kills 31

CASSELLANETA, Italy (AP) — A 28-story building weakened by water seepage crumbled into the street before dawn Thursday, killing at least 31 people who lived in it. Rescue workers, surrounded by screaming relatives, dug through rubble and shattered furniture for the missing.

Civil defense officials, who gave the casualty figures, said five children were among the dead and the final death toll probably would not be determined until Friday.

There were conflicting reports of the number still missing and presumed dead. The news agency AGI, reporting police sources it did not identify, put the figure at up to 15, but the ANSA agency said parish priest Leonardo Molitella told its reporter only a young couple and an old woman were unaccounted for.

Paulo Guerri, a neighbor, gave an earlier report of the scene: "It went down almost without any noise. Suddenly, I heard screams. ... When I looked outside, the building was almost gone. Only one side of it was standing. ... I saw naked people with blood all over them," he said in a broadcast interview.

Guerri is a barber and lives next door in this southern town of 15,000 people, 16 miles north of Taranto. Municipal authorities later ordered the evacuation of two other apartment buildings nearby, both similar to the collapsed structure and built by the same company 30 years ago.

Prosecutors were preparing to file multiple manslaughter charges against officers of the company that built the apartment house and criminal negligence charges against the town's building inspectors, news agencies quoted judicial sources as saying.

Fifteen families, a total of about 70 people, lived in the building, which police said collapsed "like a castle of cards" at 4:15 a.m. Police and firemen using sophisticated body-beam sensors found 11 survivors beneath the debris.

Police cleared the area later Thursday and brought in dogs to sniff through the broken concrete and twisted metal for signs of life. "We will not give up until we get to the bottom of the first floor," a rescue official said.

Soviet ship frees dolphins

MOSCOW (AP) — A Soviet icebreaker is trying to cut a path to free more than 1,000 dolphins trapped by ice in the Senyavin strait of the Bering Sea, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported Thursday.

The icebreaker, Moskva, or Moscow, was finding it "a difficult cruise" through ice floes to release the dolphins, Tass said. Izvestia, the government newspaper, reported earlier that the animals became trapped by blocks of ice on Jan. 29 after pursuing a large shoal of arctic fish into shallow waters of the strait. The paper said ice blown into the strait opening by a strong wind shut off the dolphins' exit to the open sea.

The species of marine mammal — which averages about 10 feet in size — is a member of the whale family.

Pain-management workshop scheduled for next weekend

By MEBS BRUMBACH
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — A pain-management workshop, "Awareness Through Movement," will be held Feb. 16 and 17 at New Beginnings, 509 Addison Ave. in Twin Falls.

Robert Spencer of Nampa will conduct the workshop, using techniques developed by Mose Feldenkrais of Israel and introduced in the United States in the mid-1970s.

The method teaches "how to use every system of the body in a better way," increasing flexibility and releasing energy in the body, says Spencer.

This system of movement was developed by Feldenkrais who was searching for a way to obtain full range of movement without pain after sustaining a personal injury, says Spencer.

Born in Russia, Feldenkrais fled to France and then to England when the Nazis invaded that country. He settled in Israel where, besides receiving his doctorate in physics and degrees in engineering, he was an avid athlete. In this pursuit, he received a knee injury with a prognosis of only a 50-50 chance of being able to perform without his knee locked.

Determined to overcome this handicap, Feldenkrais delved into anatomy, physiology, psychology, yoga and zen in his quest to teach himself how to use his knee properly, without pain. He also became the first European to win a black belt in judo.

Feldenkrais, who died in November of 1984, devoted the last 40 years of his life to perfecting what he called, an "organic learning process." Spencer says this is the same type of learning babies use to learn functions of crawling and walking.

"I have seen him work with very handicapped children," says Spencer, and their efforts and the results have "brought tears to my eyes."

This method is not to be confused with mind over matter, he adds. "We are talking about the brain itself, which is the actual physical center of the body." The method involves trying to use the power of the brain to help the person make improvements gracefully and effortlessly.

He likens it to using movement to write a new program for a computer.

"You don't have to be violent with yourself in order to do certain movements," says Spencer, so it is not an exercise, and you do not stretch against tissues, but introduce "interesting changes without harm."

Participants are taught never to take any movement into the range of discomfort, for "when any part of the body is put in strain the brain is threatened." If there is pain, he says, one is to back off to the level of comfort.

Spencer has been a member of the pain-management therapy team at the Pain Center at Mercy Medical Center for four and a half years. He also does consultations in the Boise-

Nampa area and teaches classes at St. Alphonsus' Medical Center. He received his master's degree in psychology from the University of Idaho in 1974 and will continue his training in the Feldenkrais program for two more years.

Spencer says chronic pain is most exclusively dealt with in the workshops, but "the Feldenkrais method is for anyone, no matter what his capabilities, including dancers and athletes" — anyone who wants to do better than he or she is doing now.

The workshop will be from 7 to 10 p.m. on February 16 and 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Feb. 17. Further information may be obtained by calling Katie Poole, program director for New Beginnings, at 733-4719.

Foul-mouth kid is a problem

DEAR ABBY: Several of us mothers have a common problem. It concerns a boy (I'll call him Billy) who is a bad influence on our children.

They are all in the third grade, but this Billy is wise beyond his years. He gets his information (about sex) from hanging around his older brother, then spreads around what he has heard to the boys in his class. He tells them things about sex that most adults have never experienced, and his language is pure filth!

Our sons want to invite Billy to stay overnight, but we're afraid of what Billy might teach them. Besides, most of us have younger children at home, and we don't want Billy here talking about Lord knows what.

I understand Billy's parents are very liberal-minded, so don't suggest we talk to them. Maybe if they read this, they will understand why their son is shunned by his peers.

—STUMPED
DEAR STUMPED: If your son and his classmates want Billy to stay overnight, then obviously Billy isn't "shunned by his peers" — it's their parents who don't want him around. Liberal-minded parents love their children as much as you love yours, so please share your concerns with Billy's parents.

It's not unusual for a child to entertain his peers with X-rated information in a bid for popularity. Don't panic; it's neither contagious nor fatal.

DEAR ABBY: I am the owner of a profitable retail hardware store with a good number of employees. There's one woman who has been with me for 22 years. I have to admit she's loyal, honest and efficient.

She started as a bookkeeper, but now she's a self-appointed "office manager." She used to call me "Mr." but now she calls me by my first name. She's very bossy, acts like she owns the place and, to tell you the truth, she's beginning to get on my nerves.

We don't have a retirement age around here, but I wish she'd retire (she's old enough) so I could replace her with a younger woman who isn't so bossy. They say a new broom sweeps clean. What do you say?

—THE BOSS

DEAR BOSS: A new broom may sweep clean, but the old broom knows where the dirt is.

Garbage is a humbling equalizer

No matter how big you think you've become or how much success you amass, there are some things in this world that are equalizers. They keep you humble.

The garbage can is one of them. There isn't a day goes by that I don't look like a headless body fighting to escape being sucked into the can. There is a reason for this. I throw away everything that I need to live.

Everything is there nestled among the coffee grounds and gutted grapefruit. A grocery tape that I recorded a check on. A pair of pantyhose with runs that I can still wear under stacks. The warranty on my steam iron. A picture of a friend's baby in the Christmas card. The box with instructions and screws for the new lawn chair. My column that I forgot to clip. The inside of my coffee pot. The manual explaining how to look up the telephone answering device. The current TV Guide. A phone number written on a paper towel.

My husband says he doesn't know why I don't just get a can in a sidewalk green and wheel it into my office and use it as a filing cabinet. (This is the suggestion of a man who ran after the garbage truck for three blocks begging to sift through and find the registration deadline for a 10-K.)

I consider garbage cans a second chance. They're the purgatory of our existence. It's a temporary place where trash is either condemned to the jaws of the garbage truck or given a reprieve by an hysterical woman who has decided against throwing it away.

A couple of days ago, someone tapped me on my arm as my head dangled inside the can. "You come here often?" asked my husband.

"Don't start," I said. "I'm missing something important."

"Let me guess. A recipe from Sunday's food section for something disgusting I've?" He leaned over the can and sniffed. "I don't remember having that. What was it?"

"Broccoli Fiesta."

"Was it blue then?"

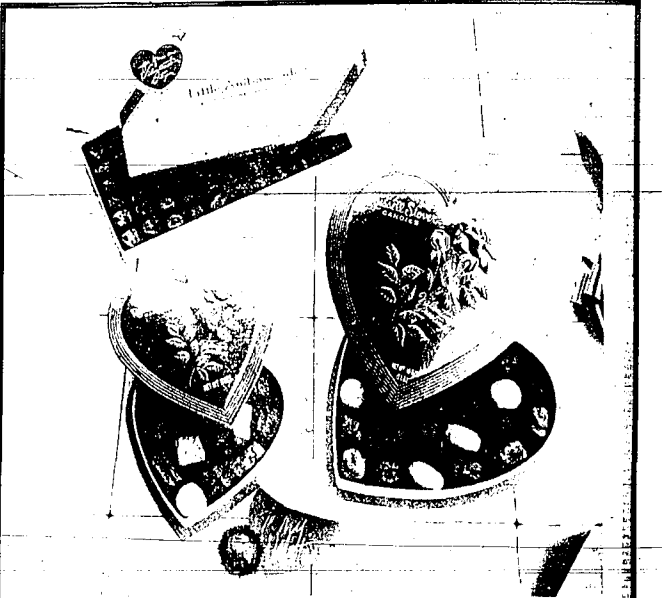

"Green. Darn, it's not here. Move over. It's probably in the other can."

"Look, if you'll tell me what you're looking for, maybe I could help."

"It's my new charge card. You know how they send it in a plain envelope so as not to attract attention? I thought it was junk mail."

As four legs kicked in the air out of the top of the can I said, "You can't miss it. I wrapped my gum in it." I thought I heard my husband groan. On the other hand, it could have been the Broccoli Fiesta coming to life.

Block: Farm woes will worsen before rebound

Credit help program comes under fire in hearing

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block predicted Thursday that financial problems on America's farms will get worse before conditions improve, despite the Reagan administration's new program of credit help.

The program itself came under fire at a congressional hearing.

"We expect that we will see increasing proportions of farmers with financial problems, continued declines in farm asset values, increasing proportions of debt in trouble and increasing problems of lender distress," Block told the congressional Joint Economic Committee.

Block said the credit rescue plan would help keep some farmers from going over the brink of insolvency and shore them up enough to plant crops this spring.

But he added, "Even with these initiatives, I would contend that the government cannot stop the direction of the adjustments that are taking place in the agricultural sector, but can minimize the pain of the adjustments that are taking place."

Block noted that since 1981, the value of farm assets — land, buildings and machinery which are the collateral for much of the problem debt — has plummeted by $100 billion. Nothing government can do to erase that deficit, he said.

Even as Block was making his assessment, bankers, farm groups and farm-state members of Congress were criticizing the administration credit-aid offer and calling for a liberalized lending package.

Calling the credit squeeze on farmers "a full-fledged, wide-scale catastrophe," Rep. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., said he hoped to produce an emergency credit bill in his House Agriculture credit subcommittee soon after Congress returns from a recess Feb. 19.

Rep. Tom Coleman, R-Mo., said while he welcomed the administration's offer of $650 million in guarantees on existing troubled debt, he was "concerned that it will not go far enough to help those who need operating loans this year."

The package of credit aid announced Wednesday calls for at least that amount in guarantees with the possibility of an undetermined additional amount if the original authority is used up by banks. The guarantees apply to existing bank loans on which banks are willing to reduce interest costs to their borrowers enough to bring payments within farmers' reach.

Other provisions will ease regulatory pressure now forcing some lenders to foreclose or refuse credit, even to creditworthy farmers, and send teams of government clerks into the field to help process loan paperwork.

Frank Naylor, Block's undersecretary who oversees credit programs, told Jones' panel that despite predictions that banks will not take advantage of the latest credit package, he expects to see "substantial interest" in the next two to three weeks.

"We are confident this program can and will serve the purpose it was designed for," Naylor said, serving notice on the subcommittee that the administration will oppose further legislation.

Rep. Tom Daschle, D-S.D., called the program "a warmed-over version of the crumbs we got last fall" when the administration first put forward an offer of credit relief — an offer largely ignored by lenders because of what they called onerous preconditions.

"I don't think it's any more practical. I don't think bankers are going to be any more willing to use it," Daschle said.

Weldon Barton, a spokesman for the Independent Bankers Association, which represents about three-fourths of the nation's 4,100 farm banks, said it was unlikely that banks would use the full $650 million over the spring lending season.

He said the association would look to Congress for an emergency appropriation bill to make more money available in loan guarantees with liberalized rules. The group has talked to key Appropriations Committee members about expediting such a bill, Barton said.

Planned farm cutbacks 'economic genocide'

By MICHAEL HOLMES
The Associated Press

AUSTIN, Texas — President Reagan's plans to cut many farm programs is "economic genocide," that threatens a third of the nation's farmers with bankruptcy, says the Texas agriculture commissioner, who was a farm-policy adviser to Walter Mondale.

"It isn't just a matter of budget numbers and statistics and (Reagan budget director) David Stockman's madness. It's a deliberate policy of economic genocide. Agriculture Commission Chairman Hightower said, "It's a killer. At least a third of the commercial operators in this state and across the country will be bankrupt within a year under that program. It's going to destroy the family farm sector," he said in an interview.

Reagan's plans, presented to Congress this week as part of his proposed federal budget, aim to cut, limit or eliminate price supports, income and loan subsidies, federal farm loans and many other farm programs.

The cuts, if adopted, would reduce federal outlays to agriculture by 37 percent.

In addition, Stockman made a stinging attack on farm loan aid, saying he "doesn't understand why the government should incur a bad debt that was willingly incurred by consenting adults." He said farm state congressmen "blackmailed" the administration into action on farm credit problems.

Hightower said Stockman's criticism and the Reagan program demonstrate that they don't understand farm economics.

He said grain embargos and other federal policies made the federal government a key player in the farm economy.

"The government 'establishes an economic policy that drives them out of business' and then government officials 'point the finger of blame at them,'" Hightower said. "That's been done before. That's what (President) Herbert Hoover did during the Depression."

Winds, snow wreak havoc on valley's roads

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS -- High winds whipped a light snow into county roads throughout Magic Valley Thursday, closing five schools and blocking county roads throughout Magic Valley counties.

Jerome, Shoshone and Gooding schools were unable to open Thursday morning and Richfield schools closed after about an hour. Oakley students went home at 1 p.m. In Richfield, Superintendent A. Jay Jones said Thursday evening Richfield will remain closed today.

Conditions were questionable for some of the Hollister and Filer students Thursday evening as Twin Falls Highway District crews said they were unable to keep county roads open around Hollister, Berger and Rogerson. Crews finished the day with all east-west roads in that area closed.

Highway District Director Clyde Burney said winds were blowing roads closed as fast as crews could clear them. He said it was still drifting there and visibility was very poor Thursday night. Even the highway workers' own vehicles were getting stuck behind plows in the south part of the county. Elsewhere in the district, he said, most roads were open except for a few south of Hansen.

Winds were reported causing road problems in the east end of Twin Falls County earlier in the day, although Murtaugh school officials said buses were able to run.

Burney said his crews spent the entire day clearing roads. As of 4:30 p.m., he said, roads around Hansen and Kimberly were open, including the road to the Magic Mountain Ski resort. He said he planned to send a crew to the resort early this morning.

Jerome School Superintendent Stephenson Youngerman said drifting conditions early Thursday morning prompted closure of the district schools, and said no decision about today would be made until conditions are checked out this morning.

The storm was reported severe in Lincoln County, especially north of Shoshone and in the Richfield area. Winds blew throughout Wednesday night and heavy snow was continuing to fall late Thursday afternoon. A snow plow went into the borrow pit Thursday morning at a school bus shelter from the road two weeks ago. Heavy equipment from the district, assisted by a wrecker, was able to pull the plow back on the roadway.

For the Shoshone school district this is the first time this winter schools have been closed by weather conditions, according to Superintendent Tim Adsit.

Cassia and Minioca district schools were open, except in Oakley where students were returned home at 1 p.m. when roads in that area began drifting closed.

Cassia Superintendent Norman Hurst said Oakley had some other problems Thursday, causing the Oakley High School to close for the full day. A main water line at the high school building apparently froze and broke Wednesday night. He said about two feet of water poured into the basement furnace room and a cool line and then ran onto the gymnasium floor.

"We are concerned about damage to the floor," Hurst said. "A couple of years ago we had water flood the gym floor in Declo and it had to be replaced at a cost of about $30,000."

He added this is also the first closure for any of the schools in Cassia District this winter.

All school officials said they will announce today's plans by radio early this morning and asked that parents and students monitor their local radio stations.

Warmer temperatures were helping conditions Thursday afternoon on some interstate sections, but nearly all had some new snow and drifting. South toward the Utah state line from Burley, it was raining that still drifting, according to the Idaho Division of Highways road report.

A day-long snow storm at Pomerelle ski resort, south of Albion, left seven inches of new powder, bringing the snowfall since Wednesday morning to 16 inches. Resort owner Sandy Anderson said the snow storm was so "good" it closed the lower portion of the canyon road during the afternoon, canceling night skiing. However, she said the road would be plowed again early today.

Changing of the guard

Eaton hands over the reins of bank's operations to son

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS A portrait of his father peering over his right shoulder, Curtis T. Eaton vividly recalls the moment a quarter-century ago.

"I finally got to the point of saying, 'Dad, why don't you take some time off?'"

His father, Harry W. Eaton, never did heed the advice.

But Eaton still thinks the words are wise enough to honor them himself.

After 13 years at the helm of Twin Falls Bank & Trust Co., he is passing on one of his three jobs -- the presidency of the 80-year-old institution -- to his son, Curtis H. Eaton.

At 68, the elder Eaton is not retiring. He'll still be chairman of the board and chief executive officer as a result of a Jan. 22 meeting of the bank's board of directors. And he'll likely be sitting behind the large, curving desk beneath his father's portrait for some time.

But the change will take him out of most day-to-day operations of the bank and put those responsibilities on his son's desk.

"We all hope he takes advantage of the opportunity to not be embroiled in the day-to-day activities," says Curtis H., 39.

Curtis T. will devote more time to the bank's long-term policies. He will be a "guiding hand" instead of a hands-on executive, he says.

The elevation of Curtis H. accomplishes one long-term concern by itself, he says. It provides for the future leadership of the bank.

"I think this is a move designed primarily to keep the functioning of the institution... on an orderly course in the years to come," Curtis T. says.

The course will be much the same as that set by him since he took over the bank's top offices on the sudden death of his father in 1972.

Twin Falls Bank & Trust Co. will not be sailing forth at full sail on the wild waves of deregulation, says Curtis H.

"The board would say the bank ought to stick to banking business, and we're not going to get involved in anything exotic," he says.

Instead, the bank will continue as it has in the past, cautious but flexible.

Obscenity trial still due Feb. 19

By ANNITTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS -- A Feb. 19 obscenity trial date for the manager of a Twin Falls bookstore was left in place Wednesday by Fifth District Magistrate Judge Charles Brumback, despite a motion by the manager's attorney to delay it.

Brumback is the third judge to be assigned the trial of Agnes Farnsworth, manager of the Front Page Book Store. He declined to delay the trial, at least until the court receives more information.

Farnsworth has been charged with two misdemeanor counts of distributing obscene material after undercover police officers purchased several adult magazines at the store Aug. 6 and Sept. 27.

Attorney William Hofffield requested that the Feb. 19 date be delayed to allow the defense attorneys more time to prepare and to accommodate an attorney joining the case who will not be available then. Hofffield said that Arthur Schwartz, Denver, would join him in representing Farnsworth.

Brumback has asked that Schwartz file official notice with the court immediately if he intends to join the case. And although he refused to reschedule the trial Wednesday, he is asking for a list of dates in March and April when Schwartz would be available.

Brumback took the case Wednesday when both other Fifth District Magistrate Court judges were disqualified. Judge Mel Edwards disqualified himself and declined to give a reason for leaving the case. He pressed the case to Judge Michael Hedman.

Hofffield asked that Hedman be disqualified but gave no reason for his request. Hofffield could not be reached for comment after the requests were filed.

According to statements of discovery filed with the court, Farnsworth will argue that she was in Boise at the Mountain States Tumor Institute when officers visited the store. Her husband Melvin Farnsworth will testify on her behalf.

Magicland to cut tourism grant request

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

KETCHUM -- The Magicland Regional Travel Committee will cut back its request for state funds for regional promotion of tourism rather than get into an all-or-nothing fight with Sun Valley organizations for the funds.

The group voted Wednesday to pare its request for $100,000 to $28,000.

The committee made the move to demonstrate its willingness to cooperate with all areas within its region and to keep from favoring the TTC into choosing between its application and one from the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce.

In cutting the application, the committee said it is giving the Sun Valley Chamber a chance also to cooperate by cutting its application from $103,000 to $56,000.

William Drake of W.R. Drake and Co. of Boise, the committee's advertising agency, said it would not benefit the region to lose all of Sun Valley's promotional program proposed for the next year. He said the program was a good one.

If the two factions continue to fight over who gets the funds, the entire region will suffer, he said.

Karl Bick, president of the Sun Valley Chamber, would not comment on the piece offer until he meets with the chamber's marketing committee.

Under the rules of the Travel Council, any nonprofit organization with an interest in tourism can apply for the promotional funds returned to each region. Sixty percent of the funds returned go to region-wide promotions and 40 percent to local promotions.

The Magicland region expects about $175,000 to disperse within the region with about 105,000 available for region-wide promotions, Drake said.

Since the Sun Valley area collects 69 percent of the 2 percent tax in the region, the Sun Valley chamber believes it should have more say in how money is spent.

It also has about $26,000 in matching funds to go with the state money and believes it can put together a better program than the regional committee.

Too, the Wood River Lodging and Bar Association, an organization formed to fight the area's local option tax, is seeking an ITC grant of $34,000, maximum available for one organization for local promotion.

Geothermal well ordered to be repaired

Times-News capital bureau

BOISE -- The Idaho Department of Water Resources has issued an order to an Oklahoma insurance company to fix or cap an artesian geothermal well located near Blue Lakes in the Snake River Canyon.

The well, which is located on property in the possession of Bull-trout farmer Ken Ellis, is incapable of being shut-off without damaging the casing and potentially losing control of the well, a letter accompanying the order states. The order adds that the condition of the well constitutes "a common nuisance."

In findings which accompany the order, the department states that since the water flowing from the artesian well is not being put to beneficial use, it constitutes an unlawful waste of water.

The order requires that the well be modified to allow shut-off of the flow of water without damaging the well. It further requires that a modification plan be submitted to the agency and that under the plan scheduled completion of the work be before April 30.

The insurance company Professional Investors Life is scheduled to assume control of the property February 13, following foreclosure proceedings that has left Ellis in possession of the parcel for 12 months, says Mark Stubbs, a Twin Falls attorney who represents the Oklahoma concern.

The land, ponds and well were the property of Aqua Life Inc., an Ellis concern.

Ellis can retain possession and reclaim ownership of the property by paying the company $800 before his right of redemption runs out on February 13, Stubbs says.

The insurance company will modify the construction of the well as requested, Stubbs says, adding that the company intends to retain the geothermal water right as an asset of the property.

"It's a good asset to have in their portfolio," Stubbs says of the property. He says an appraisal prior to foreclosure valued the property at $700,000. A previous appraisal of the property for Ellis placed its worth at $3 million, Stubbs says.

Bliss officials defend town's reputation after poaching story

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

BLISS -- Regional Conservationist Howard Carroll of the Idaho Fish and Game Department said Thursday night he is attempting to set up a meeting with Bliss City officials in hopes of ironing out hard feelings over a news article about deer poaching in the Bliss area.

Bliss city officials are angry about what they say are slanderous comments directed at the city by a Department of Fish and Game officer in a Jan. 17 Times-News article. The article quoted Jerry Baltazor, a state Fish and Game officer from Shoshone, as saying "apparently 75 percent of Bliss knew" about deer poaching operations at a local bar.

Baltazor was quoted as saying "dozens of people had been in the room where the deer were being cut up" and included accusations that delivery people, employees, customers, musicians and others saw "first hand" what he described as a large scale, longtime poaching operation.

Carroll said he talked at length with Mayor Holland Zollinger Thursday evening and he believes the city council members in Bliss will be willing to sit down and talk things over with Fish and Game representatives.

At the Bliss City Council meeting Wednesday, Mayor Zollinger expressed strong resentment and disgust at Baltazor's statements.

"He's insinuated that this has been going on and pretty near everybody in town knew about it," Zollinger said. "He's way the hell off base. These public officials shouldn't go around writing blanket accusations... I think we have been more careful about accepting such flagrant second-hand information.

Councilman Sam Bishop said patrons of a bar and other people do not routinely go into cells to take some definite action to discipline back storerooms. He also said most of the people in that bar are not even from Bliss.

"The whole tone of the article is that the community of Bliss has a negative attitude toward the Fish and Game Department. I don't think that one gentleman (Baltazor) can make that kind of statement... He really shook me to my marrow."

Bishop fumed in his mouth.

Bishop's claim Baltazor did not run a proper investigation and was possibly trying to shift blame from himself to the general public in Bliss.

Bishop also said the writer of the Jan. 17 article, Times-News writer Larry Hovey, could not write blanket accusations... I think we have been more careful about accepting such flagrant second-hand information.

Councilman Doug Andrews urged the council and other people to take some definite action to discipline the Baltazor's statements.

"I think we, as a council, should resent this inference about the community attitudes," he said.

Councilman Eddie Butler made a motion to have a letter drafted to state the council's resentment. This letter, the council agreed, should be sent to Baltazor, to his superior, and to various state legislators.

"We should ask why his office runs out and tars everybody with the same brush," Butler said. "Personally, I'm offended. It slanders the people of Bliss."

Council members laughed aloud at another statement by Baltazor which charged "... we were told repeatedly that there were a lot of big people, important people, mixed in the situation but no one ever gave us a name."

"There's so many big wigs here in Bliss," Bishop said, tongue in cheek.

Andrews said a partial survey in Bliss is not likely to be very accurate because of the great diversification of the residents.

"The council voted unanimously to draft the letter and send it right away."

Reached Thursday, Baltazor admitted he may have made an overstatement in saying "apparently 75 percent" of Bliss residents knew of the poaching. But, he said, there were many frustrations in the investigation and it

Big Sky logjam should break up soon

By The Associated Press

The congestion atop the Big Sky Conference basketball standings should start to clear up this weekend, as leading teams face off to begin the second half of league play.

Weber State looks to have the toughest draw going into a full card of Big Sky action Friday and Saturday nights. The Wildcats' joint Montana, Northern Arizona and Nevada-Reno at 5-2 against conference opponents, and at 10-5 overall trail only Montana for the season.

But Weber suffered a tough 63-60 road loss to Boise State last Saturday, ending a six-game winning streak. Coach Neil Fiveff will meet all the advantage playing at home will afford to overcome challenges from NAU and UNH Friday and Saturday, respectively.

Wildcats their only other Big Sky loss of the season on Jan. 12, are also coming off a defeat on the road. NAU blew an early 14-2 lead and dropped a 72-59 decision to Nevada-Reno last Saturday.

In other games scheduled for Friday, the Wolf Pack travels to see-sawing Idaho State, which followed a stunning victory over Boise State last weekend with a big loss to Idaho; BSU tries to maintain its momentum and get some revenge at Montana State, and Idaho flexes its new-found offensive muscle on a road trip to powerful Montana.

The Grizzlies, despite their 17-4 season record and tie for the Big Sky lead, suffered an upset loss on a three-point field goal at the buzzer to instate rival Montana State last weekend. And even though Idaho is just 1-6 in the conference and 7-14 overall, they don't want to be surprised again.

"They're an explosive offensive team," Montana Coach Mike Mon-gomery said. "They have momentum, and heading into the second half of the conference schedule they've got to feel better about their overall basketball team.

Montana State Coach Stu Starnner, who beat both Boise State and Idaho on the road last month, said the advantage of playing at Bozeman this time could be offset by improvements in the two Idaho schools. The Bobcats play BSU Friday and host the Vandals on Saturday.

"Both of these teams are vastly improved, and they both have excellent firepower," Starnner said.

Bronco Coach Bobby Dye, struggling to find the right combination of players and strategy to make his team a contender, said the mood in Boise is upbeat heading into a long, hard road trip to the north.

Besides the MSU-Idaho and Montana-BSU matchups, other Saturday games include Nevada-Reno at Weber and Northern Arizona at Idaho State.

Gang of four share Hawaii Open lead

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

HONOLULU — Andy North, whose last victory came in the 1978 U.S. Open, birdied five of his last six holes for a 66 that put him in a 3-way tie for the first-round lead Thursday in the $500,000 Hawaiian Open Golf Tournament.

"I haven't made that many feet worth of putts in so long it's scary," North said after dropping consecutive birdie putts of 20, 25 and 40 feet, and then closing with a pair of 10-footers on the last two holes.

North's fast finish in the warm and breezy weather lifted him into a tie with Canadian Dan Halldorson, Scott Simpson and Hal Sutton, a runner-up in the Los Angeles Open two weeks ago.

"If you're not putting good, this can be a hard golf course," Sutton said. "I am putting pretty well. And that's a unique experience for me at this tournament."

Mark O'Meara, winner of last week's Bing Crosby National Pro-Am, topped a big group at 67, five under par on the Wai'alae Country Club course and a single shot off the pace.

Also at that figure were Fred Couples, Dan Pohl, Vance Heafner, Larry Mize and Mike Smith.

Andy Bean, who often plays well in this event, and Craig Stadler led the group at 68.

With the temperatures reaching toward 80 degrees and the prevailing Trade Winds making the par-5s play a bit easier, the overall scores were extremely low. More than 20 players were locked within two shots of the lead.

Tom Watson was not among them, however. He encountered some putting problems on the back, played that side in 39 and had to settle for a 71. Jack Renner, who has finished first and second in this tournament in the last two years, also was one under par. Arnold Palmer, making one of his rare appearances in regular-tour competition, struggled to a 74.

ANDY NORTH
Winless since 1978

North, in a deep slump last season, said he has returned an old putter to his bag and has gone back to the crouched putting stance he used years ago.

"I've got the old putter back and I'm choking down on it like I used to and, for the first time in three years, I'm comfortable over the ball," he said.

He scored a two-putt birdie-4 on his first hole, "then just kind of staggered around out there, until his closing burst put him in a share of the lead."

"That's the best I've putted in three years," he said.

W. German pulls upset at world championship

By The Associated Press

BERNINO, Italy (AP) — West Germany's Markus Wasmaier edged Pirmin Zurbriggen of Switzerland by five-hundredths of a second to win the men's slalom Thursday at the World Alpine Skiing Championships for his first major international triumph.

Favorite Marc Girardell, the Austrian-born overall World Cup leader who is skiing for Luxembourg, finished third, and Egon Hirt of West Germany was fourth.

"In the second run, I hit a gate with my head and lost my balance," the jubilant, blond-haired Wasmaier said.

"Then I told myself 'all or nothing,' so I went for it," said the 21-year-old from Schliersee, a lake resort near Munkelt.

His previous international best performance had come last December at Sestriere, Italy, where he finished second in the giant slalom behind Girardell.

"In the first run, I went just as fast as I could," Wasmaier said. "Then I took a second run the same way."

Wasmaier had runs of 1:40.14, 8.78 seconds and 1:20.12 for a total time of 2:29.26 down the Steivo course, which was marked with 50 gates and had a vertical drop of 385 meters.

Wasmaier injured his right wrist and part of his hand hitting a gate in a World Cup race last month, and skied Thursday with a bandage for support.

"You had to be courageous to take the course at full speed in the first run," he said. "The second run was more like a normal giant slalom."

He said he was surprised about winning the gold against several giant slalom specialists.

Swedish star Ingemar Stenmark, the world champion in 1978, was disqualified after missing a gate on the second run.

Zurbriggen captured his third medal at the World Championships, following his gold medals in the men's downhill and combined event.

"I had a very good second run," Zurbriggen said. "But I think I could have skied even more aggressively." Wasmaier deserves the gold in this race," he added.

Zurbriggen finished the first run in second place, behind Wasmaier in 1:09.17, and had the fastest time in the second heat with 1:19.78 for a total of 2:28.95.

The 22-year-old Zurbriggen said he was looking forward to Sunday's slalom. Wasmaier will not be competing.

Girardell, who was allowed to compete after signing a pledge of his intention to seek Luxembourg citizenship, had runs of 1:09.41 and 1:19.81 for a total of 2:29.22.

"I'm not disappointed," said Girardell, 21. "Why should I be?"

Hirt was timed in 2:30.35. He was followed by Austrian veteran Hans Ehn, who was only 11th after the first run, but made a strong comeback to take fifth in 2:30.36.

Italy's Robert Briner was sixth overall in 2:30.83, followed by Yugoslavlan's Ivo Petrovic in 2:31.41. Wasmaier's victory was the first gold medal for West Germany in the Championships. Switzerland has four golds and the United States has one gold.

Tiger Shaw, 23, of Slove VI., was the only American finisher, placing 18th in 2:35.00.

Haysi Staudtneier of Squaw Valley, Calif., Mark Toche of Aspen, Colo., and Ken Aker of Saubornville, N.J. failed to finish the first run.

Cowboys

Essence of the West illusive

ELKO, Nev. — If you try to take a picture of the rustic folks in Guatemala, they throw rocks at you. They think cameras steal their souls.

The rusties of the American West may want to take a lesson from their counterparts in Central America. If the Mayans of the Guatemalan highlands are right, about 100 souls were trucked off for good at the first-ever attempt to assemble cowboy poets here last weekend.

Picture, if you will, a convention center crammed with several hundred cowboys — mostly the genuine article — and assorted fellow travelers. The place looks like a casting call for Marlboro commercials.

Now add to the mix 50 or so reporters, photographers and TV types from assorted high-dollar publications. The gentlemen of the press are, of course, all ga-ga over a display of Western color just too unspeakably real.

The two contingents provided the twisted mix that led to some weird scenes. Little old ranch ladies who had heretofore dealt only with the woman who writes the who's-who weekly column for the local weekly suddenly found themselves chatting with People magazine staffers just as Muffie Brandon would.

A buckaroo from Owyhee County — not even a reclier at the solree — was heard to gush in the fashion of a starlet who was feeling lcky: "I finally had to tell them, 'No more interviews.'"

The roundup of Longfollers of the triari was arranged by the Sun Valley Center for the Humanities and folklorists from 15 Western states. It provided, on the one hand, a long-overdue display of a section of American folk life.

But on the other hand, it was a full-blown media event. The question: Will the simplicity and honesty of cowboy poetry will under the glare of the TV lights?

Hal Cannon, director of the

Dick Manning

Analysis

Center's Institute of the American West, admits the very act of exposing cowboy poetry may well change the nature of the beast. "It always does. That's a problem that we as folklorists and you as journalists always face," he says.

But he thinks the benefits of his work are worth the risks. The gathering provided a needed recognition for the work and it exposed the rest of us to a part of our culture about which we have always assumed a great deal but have known very little.

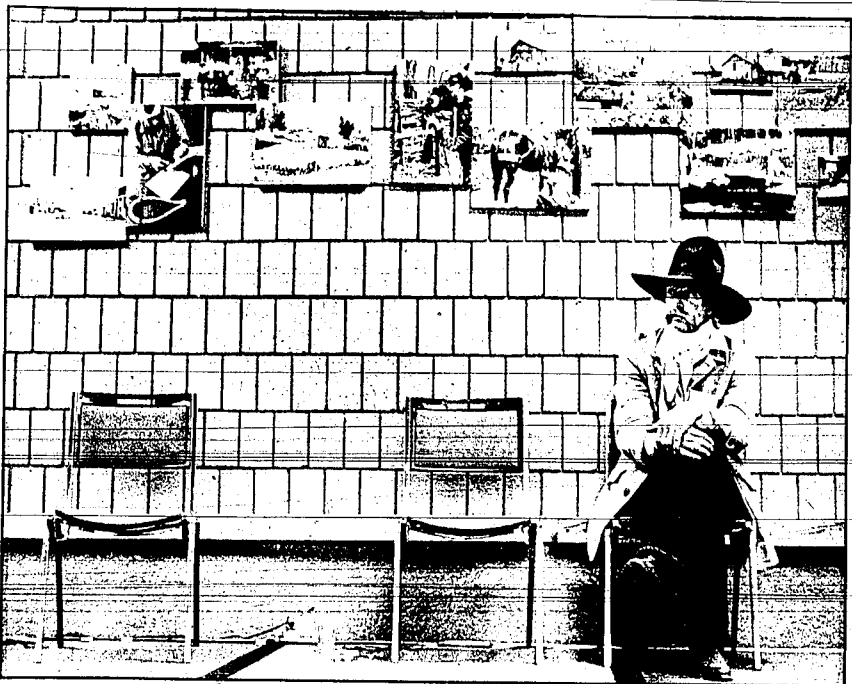

Clearly, the participants in the three-day event saw the same benefits Cannon did. Some even went so far as to say the recognition made their lives worth living.

"That's not to say there weren't some adjustment problems for some. Most muffed lines as stage fright and, in at least one case, the hangover that inevitably goes with a cowboy gathering took over."

The poets were not used to appearing in public. They had been sought out as the folklorists tracked their reputations by word-of-mouth. Requests for printed copies of poems were generally met with, "Sorry, I only had one — and the folks from Newsweek got that."

Nonetheless, they eventually warmed to the cameras and interviewer and, at the end, seemed none the worse.

But what will happen if cowboy poetry becomes a fad, as Cannon allows it may? What if our society, with its manifestly exploitive bent,

Waiting your turn on stage can be a lonely vigil, as Bill Black of Adele, Ore. learned at a cowboy poet gathering decides to commercialize this (find? Will that destroy the sincerity of it all?)

What we have here is virgin material. Are we to argue as folks traditionally do to virgins: "Just this one time won't hurt as long as we don't make a habit out of it."

Then are we to go on and destroy the whole business by making a habit out of it? Probably not. That answer could be heard over and over in Elko last weekend. For instance, it became apparent when Bill Simpson of Grand View took a turn at reciting his lines.

Simpson's shy monotone spilled out his work in a disarming and arresting stream. His droning voice fit his words the way a mountain creek fits its bed.

If you would take those words out of Simpson's mouth and splash them on to paper, they would not ring true. If an actor or a polished speaker were to read them, the words would sound silly.

Reading the work that is reproduced on this page will not give you even half a measure of cowboy poetry. It is like most folklore and rests solidly on oral tradition. It cannot be read; it must be heard.

Further, it must be delivered by those who know it and know the life that produced it. Will the attention generated in Elko steal the souls of the cowboy poets? No, it won't. You can't steal those weatherbeaten souls. You have to earn them.

Cowboy poetry is like most forms of folklore. It is a delicate plant that will not survive a transplant from the rugged countryside that produced it.

No one can wear the words of a Western poet but a Western poet. On anyone else, they would look as silly as an RCA-created Stetson on an interior decorator from Baltimore.

Barton/ Respect for the land

Owen Barton started writing poetry "sometime in the '50s" for reasons poetic. He was tending his cattle at the family ranch at Rogerson while his wife maintained the house at Twin Falls.

The poetry was the result of the loneliness and the separation. At first, he threw his work away, but, unbeknownst to him, his wife saved it. As Barton's reputation as a poet grew, he was glad she did.

His work is filled with a respect and longing for the old West he has seen fade away during his 70 years. Much of his work rings with intense conservatism. "My Kind of Country," is a study in patriotism.

Last weekend at Elko, in introducing one of his poems — a tale of the trials of the trail — Barton said, "I see a lot of old boys out there who can relate to this story, and I pity you. And I see a lot of people out there who can't relate to this story, and I pity you a hell of a lot more."

Barton still runs the family ranch, The Diamond A, at Rogerson. Here's a sample of his work:

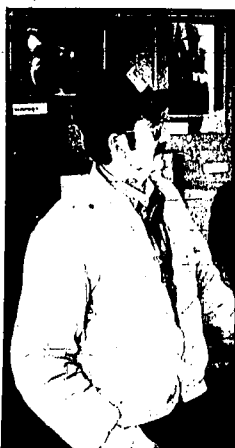

WONDERING WHERE'S HEAVEN
By Owen Barton

Hiding a trail one moonlight night,
Watching the twinkle of each shining star,
I wondered if Heaven was really up there,
Or if it could be quite that far.

As I gazed at the galaxy in wonder,

Bill Simpson

Simpson/ Praising the buckaroos

Bill Simpson, another member of the Idaho delegation to Elko last weekend, started writing poetry about four years ago. He was trying to memorize a poem by Baxter Black, his hero, but his own words ended up coming out instead.

He runs a sawmill near his home at Grand View. ("Saws Juniper. Nobody else does that. Makes a real pretty wood.") but still keeps close ties with the buckaroos of Owyhee County.

His work rings of tough times, both self-inflicted and otherwise, of the life of a working cowboy.

Other members of the Idaho delegation were Bob Schild of Blackfoot, a saddle-maker and rodeo cowboy, and Dick Gilford, a buckaroo from Meridian.

Following is a sample of Simpson's work:

HOW DO YOU LIKE 'ER NOW?
By Bill Simpson

What's inside an old buckaroo's hide
That makes them the way that they are?
The laughter they show
Hides the hard times they know
Most of their talkin' is done in a bar.

The women they knowed, and the horses they rode
And the trails they tried near and far,
The weather so bad
Or the wrecks that they've hid

Jazz trio coming to Twin Falls

TWIN FALLS — Jazz lovers in the Magic Valley will have a half dozen chances to revel with the Boise Jazz Trio, "Ambiance," performing old favorites through contemporary at the Renaissance Academy of the Arts Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m., then evenings Feb. 12-16 at the Sandpiper.

"Ambiance" playing a variety of styles ranging from Duke Ellington to Thelonious Monk, is composed of saxophonist Brent Jensen, pianist Terry Jones and, on the base, Bill Liles.

Jensen has performed with a number of jazz groups including Gib Hochstrasser's "Kings of Swing," "Euphoria" and "The Renaissance Jazz Ensemble." The saxophonist earned his bachelor's degree in music education from Boise State University and is currently teaching privately. Beginning his professional career a year ago at the Boise State Festival of Jazz, Jones appeared there with the jazz quartet, "Apogee." He has since performed with "Euphoria" and "The Renaissance Jazz Ensemble." Liles, originally from Idaho Falls, has performed throughout Idaho and Montana with "The Bob and the Bachelors," "The Bachelors," "The Trailer Court Bullies," "Euphoria" and "The Renaissance Jazz Ensemble." Tickets for the Renaissance Academy's performances are $5 adults, $3 senior citizens and students, and can be reserved by calling 734-0719.

'Ambiance' members Jensen, Jones and Liles

Redneck winners announced

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

FAIRFIELD — Three winners have been chosen for the "Short Fiction Contest" sponsored by "The Redneck Review of Literature," reports Penelope Reedy of Camus Writer's Workshop.

The first-place award of $25 has gone to Hochello Nat of Great Neck, New York for her story, "Thank You A. Pulaski." Ketchum's Robert Doyle took $15 and second-place with "Day of Grace," while James A. Freeman of Bucks County, Pennsylvania, coped the $10 third-place award with "You'll Hear From My Lawyer."

"We thought the Characterization was really good in Nat's story," says

Reedy, adding, "Even though the setting was in New York City, it didn't seem to matter."

As for Doyle's story, Reedy notes that it took a prize because of its interesting setting — Idaho — and because it "dealt with an issue in Mormon marriage." The issue was multiple marriage, she says.

Reedy says Freeman's, "You'll Hear From My Lawyer," placed because it had an interesting twist. "I ended with one of those things that everybody wants to do when he gets mad or in a hurry," she explains.

Reedy says her organization has recently purchased an offset printer to improve the looks of the next issue of "The Redneck Review of Literature" in which the three prize-winning stories will appear.

She says submissions by authors for the issue will be considered until March 1. All interested writers should include a self-addressed, stamped envelope with submissions. "We tend to get letters from people who think we're dealing with historical things," she says, explaining what types of submissions they're actually looking for. "What we want is literature of the West rather than history."

Reedy says the issue containing the winning stories can be ordered in advance for $1 plus 75¢ postage. After publication, the magazine will cost $3 plus 75¢ postage. It can be ordered by writing Penelope Reedy, Route 1, Fairfield, ID 83327.

24th country jamboree scheduled

 Every star shining bright in its place.
 No doubt there was a great Creator,
 Who put order to all things in space.

I don't believe Heaven is that far away,
 But like to think it is closer to earth.

That's just a personal opinion.
 Take it for what it seems worth.

God put the stars there to guide us,
 The moonbeams to give us some light.
 If you've ever rode a trail, alone in the dark,
 You may just believe I am right.

To a sea-faring man, last on the sea,
 The stars are his only guide.
 To a cowboy at night, a long way from camp,
 'Tis the stars that say which way to ride."

If I am wrong, and Heaven's up there,
 I've already put my brand on a star,
 I just want my horse and saddle,
 I could never reach it in a car.

I'll want to dance with the Seven Sisters,
 And stomp the star dust off of my feet.
 Drink a toast from that big old Dipper,
 To all of my friends up there that I meet.

I'll pitch my camp by the old North Star,
 After riding the Milky Way,
 Maybe stop and rest on Venus or Mars,
 And wait for the break of day.

I'm goin' to round-up all the Moonbeams,
 And put them all in one big corral,
 Then thumb my nose at the Devil,
 And let old Satan stay down there in Hell.

 Might make them the way that they are.

What's inside an old buckaroo's hide
 That makes him so bold and so daring?
 The whiskey they drink
 Or the thoughts that they think
 In their arrogant way never caring.

The turbulent times, laid back in their minds
 Their lives with on one ever sharing
 Their endless and true
 To the things that they do
 Their abilities always comparing.

What's inside an old buckaroo's hide
 That makes them the way that they seem?
 Appreciative not
 For the things that they've got
 They're just sliding through life on a dream.

Their wisdom is spoke through a rhyme or a joke,

 Related to their own self-esteem.
 Their room or their dad,
 The good or the bad,
 Might make 'em the way that they seem.

What's inside an old buckaroo's hide
 That makes him keep movin' around?
 Some chance of livin'
 A cowboy'd be given
 Where the concrete cities abound.

Hell, he'd rather be dead than fightin' his head
 He'd just as well be in the ground!
 Well, time catchin' 'em, see,
 The reason might be,
 Why a cowboy keeps movin' around.

I've thought it through well and there's no way to tell
 What's inside an old buckaroo's hide.
 Just a love to be free
 I'll let it be
 Now saddle up, boys, and let's ride.

Letterman awards vacation

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Gladys Hawkins was baking muffins when television talk show host David Letterman called and offered her a trip to Paris.

She said she watches Letterman's show occasionally, "but not all the time because it comes on so late. But he's a very nice man and he's funny."

"I thought at first it was a hoax but I didn't let on," Mrs. Hawkins recalled Wednesday.

Letterman called Tuesday evening during the taping of NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman."

He had picked the Greenville telephone book and Mrs. Hawkins' number at random, and the retired hairdresser in her early 70s agreed to talk on the air.

Letterman called Tuesday evening during the taping of NBC's "Late Night with David Letterman."

He asked if she wanted to bring a date, and she replied she wanted to bring her husband, Ralph.

Letterman said.

"I'm sorry, it has to be a date," Letterman joked.

Mrs. Hawkins said Wednesday she has only traveled to New York City and Texas and is excited about the trip.

There's one problem. She receives oxygen because of a heart condition and has been advised by her doctor not to go. But Mrs. Hawkins says she will go if she can take some oxygen along.

Letterman said.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13." Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- NC-17 No one under 17 admitted.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

What's what

One cow produces 80,000 BTUs of heat every 24 hours. Scientists in Lund, Sweden, proved it. From a cow barn in which 18 cows stomped and chomped, they piped the heat 40 yards to a farm house otherwise unheated. It warmed five rooms and the people therein.

Running backs in football had a hundred years ago wore uniforms with leather straps, like backpack huddles, fixed to the shoulders and

Reagan, I'll think of it.

SLEEPING SPUD

Q. How do you wake up a hibernating potato?

A. You're not joking, I gather. Wet down the potato in a bushel of its ilk with a gallon of water containing 3 percent ethylene chlorohydrin, and put it in airtight storage at 75 degrees F. overnight. This tends to open said potato's eyes, so to speak, awakening it to growth. Maine farmers do it.

Q. You reported DeMonico's in New York City was one of the first of the world-famous American restaurants. What was the first price of a meal there?

A. 12 cents — for soup, steak, half a pile and coffee. On Nov. 25, 1834.

HOME OF RENOWNED

On the outskirts of Zurich, Switzerland, is a house with a plaque that reads: "Here lived, at different times, Mozart, Goethe, Victor Hugo, Brahms, James Joyce and Richard Wagner."

That great beauty Catherine DeNeuve says: "The lines and little wrinkles that show under the eyes after a restless night can be concealed by covering them with red lipstick before applying make-up."

Far more than twice as many windmills spin just outside of Livermore, Calif., as do so in all of Holland.

The word "anxiety" comes from the Latin "to choke."

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Until noon you need to eliminate much confusion in relation to a specific course of action where your duties are concerned and to get a new and more understanding approach at them.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Get the view of co-workers where mutual enterprises are concerned, but don't flit into them for something they may be doing wrong.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Stay within your budget where amusement is concerned, and later steer clear of an irate partner. Know what a loved one expects.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Don't get too disturbed over some situation at home, and be gentle there in the evening. Not a time to invite guests into your home.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) A job you receive could be upsetting, so put it aside for awhile and then read it again.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) You have so many duties to attend to, so get right at them, and then take health treatments that will make you feel better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) A pal may give advice but it is not pertinent to your needs, so express thanks but do not follow it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Don't take any chances in doing your job, but follow directives to the letter and all will go well for you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have some new course in mind, but it needs further study before putting it into operation. Don't argue with others.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Try to make collections of monies that are due you, pay pressing bills, and avoid arguments with anyone.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Don't argue with an outside partner, but listen to what is being said and come to a better understanding.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she is likely to see everything through rose-colored glasses, so teach to study everything carefully so as to get the right perspective and comprehend the true facts and figures. Upon reaching maturity there will be a great drying force here and much money can be acquired.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF 'One of my chief regrets during my years in the theater is that I couldn't sit in the audience and watch me.' - John Barrymore. South put on a poor show with his play of today's touchy game. His trumps proved to be not quite so strong as they appeared. East won his diamond queen and returned the ace, which South ruffed. The trump king was refused by West and the trump queen also held. South was now stuck. If he led another trump, West would win and lead his third diamond, forcing South's third trump. The defense would then win two trumps, a diamond and a club. South cashed his high clubs and then played hearts. This would land the game whenever West had at least two clubs and three hearts. (South's last heart could be ruffed in dummy if necessary.) However, West ruffed the third heart, and cashed the trump ace and a high club to set the game by one trick. The game makes if South discards his losing club instead of ruffing the second diamond. South ruffs the third diamond, exhausting West of that suit, and starts trumps. The difference is that when West wins his trump ace, he will not have another diamond to lead, and South retains control of his trump suit. ANSWER: Three clubs. A close decision, but the good clubs justify one more shot at game. Send bridge questions to The Aces, P.O. Box 12363, Dallas, Texas 75225, with self addressed stamped envelope for reply.
