Lawmakers' eyes turn to more fund sources

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Despite legislative leaders' contentions that a tax increase is not needed to adequately provide state services, lawmakers close to the budgeting process appear to be seeking additional revenue sources.

The move to look for revenue above the $575.2 million expected to accrue to general fund coffers in the next fiscal year was spurred by last week's defeat of the two largest state budgets — support for public schools and for higher education.

Rep. Linden Bateman, the House Republican Caucus chairman, says there is some enthusiasm among majority party leaders to use the $4.7 million in the state's "budget reserve account" to provide additional money.

That $4.7 million, provided by surplus revenues from the last fiscal year, is a leading candidate for appropriation into the next year's budget, according to Bateman and Sen. Phil Batt, who chairs the majority caucus in the Senate.

"They want to use it... They're going to need more than that, in my own opinion," Bateman says, recounting a Friday afternoon Republican leadership meeting.

But Gov. John Evans doesn't want lawmakers to use the money.

Marty Peterson, Evans' top budget officer, says the reserve account money is a safeguard, to be used in the event a shortfall occurs toward the end of the current fiscal year.

"There's not a business in the country that would budget on a zero-balance basis — not unless they're running in the red," Peterson says, adding "I would not tie it... It's not prudent."

But Jim Ritsch, the Senate's top Republican leader, says those concerns are unlikely to be observed.

"The governor's office said they don't want to touch those?" he asked in response to a reporter's question. "That's too bad. The governor's not in on this. This is going to be forged by the Legislature," he said.

State Treasurer Marjorie Ruth Moon, who brought the reserve account to the attention of legislative budget writers, says there is an additional $5 million likely to be available.

Moon says the surplus that filled the reserve account last year is likely to exceed this year.

And when, combined with the $4.7 million available from the reserve account, that could provide the $10 million many lawmakers believe is needed to adequately fund state

House passes drinking at 21

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — For the second time in three sessions, the Idaho House has passed a bill raising the state's legal drinking age from 19 to 21.

After surviving an effort to put a crippling amendment on the bill, expanding the legal drinking hours in Idaho, sponsors of the legislation won a 53-31 victory and sent the measure to the Senate.

That's where the last drinking-age bill stalled two years ago, as the Senate State Affairs Committee voted to hold the bill indefinitely.

Chief sponsor Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Twin Falls, urged House members to boost the legal drinking age to 21 for moral, economic and safety reasons. "Driving and drinking are new experiences for young people," said Bateman. "Put them together and you have a dangerous situation."

He said curbing access to alcohol can cut the number of accidents involving young drivers. And he said Idaho stands to lose up to $15 million in federal highway funds if it does not go along with a congressional mandate to raise the drinking age by October of 1986.

Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs, said losing the federal funds would be the same as requiring the state to boost its gasoline tax by 3 cents per gallon.

If the Senate approves the bill, the new drinking age would go into effect on July 1, 1986.

Rep. Dean Haugenson, D-Coeur d'Alene, tried to get the House to amend the bill to extend drinking hours. Haugenson urged lawmakers to make drinking legal in Idaho until 2 a.m., the same as most surrounding states. He also has proposed allowing the sale of liquor by the drink on Sundays, currently banned by state law.

But the amendment effort failed 45-39, and minutes later the House passed the bill and sent it to the Senate.

The Bateman bill was a slightly amended version of legislation rejected earlier in the session by the House State Affairs Committee. But Bateman later got the Transportation Committee to introduce the bill as a highway measure.

Haugenson's competing bill also was stalled in State Affairs, but he convinced the Local Government Committee to print and introduce his proposal. That committee hasn't taken final action.

Pocentello Democrats Pete Black, Larry Echollawak and Albert Johnson joined 50 Republicans voting for the bill.

The other 14 Democrats joined 16 Republicans in voting against raising the drinking age. Those Democrats included: Desautels, Putrelin, McDermott and Linda Dewey.

Freed American journalist has emotional family reunion

By GEORGE HOEHMME
The Associated Press

FRANKFURT, West Germany — Jeremy Levin, the kidnapped American journalist who says he escaped from his chains after 11 months in captivity, arrived here Friday and held an emotional reunion with his wife and children.

"Fantastic, just fantastic!" Levin shouted to reporters who asked how he felt after flying into the U.S. Rhein-Main Air Base at 10:51 p.m. (2:51 MST) on an executive jet chartered by Cable News Network.

Levin, 52, was Beirut bureau chief for CNN when he was kidnapped there last March. He was turned over to U.S. custody in Damascus, Syria, earlier Friday after escaping from his kidnappers in Lebanon.

There was applause when he stepped from the plane on a cold, clear night. Then he embraced and kissed his wife Lucille, daughter Clare and son Clarence, and exchanged hugs with his brother-in-law, Francis Harte.

American officials formed a semicircle around the group, and then the Levins walked past some 40 journalists to four Mercedes sedans for the 20-mile drive to a U.S. Air Force hospital in Wiesbaden.

Levin looked healthy and rested as he got into one of the cars with his wife, waving and smiling broadly.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Robert Heath said Levin would undergo "routine medical checks," and it was not known when he would return to the United States.

Heath said the U.S. government was "grateful that Jerry Levin is a free man and we appreciate the assistance of the Syrian government in facilitating his return to his family and in his country. We are very happy that the family is once again reunited."

Lt. Col. Bill Johnson, an Air Force spokesman, said there were no plans for a news conference at the hospital.

Another Air Force spokesman confirmed later that Levin had been admitted to the hospital. Master Sgt. David McMahon also said Mrs. Levin and the other family members were staying in the Wiesbaden area, but gave no details.

Levin told reporters before leaving Damascus that he discovered late Wednesday night that his captors had been "careless with the chains" and he worked himself free, tied three blankets together and lowered himself through a window of the apartment building that had been his prison in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley.

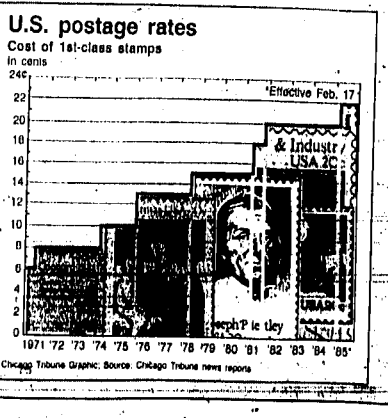

He said he walked for two hours through the Bekaa, which is occupied by the Syrian army, and ran into a patrol near the merent city of Baalbek. He said he hid from the soldiers at first, thinking they might be kidnappers trying to recapture him, then revealed himself and pleaded for help.

Levin said he could not identify his captors. The shadowy extremist group Islamic Holy War claimed responsibility for the abduction.

"I've been in solitary confinement for the whole time chained to the wall or a radiator."

The faces of the Syrian soldiers were the first faces I saw since March 7 of last year. "They were good faces," he said.

Mailing rate increase to be a reality Sunday

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of mailing a first-class letter will jump from 20 cents to 22 cents on Sunday, and the Postal Service has issued a stamp to ensure adequate supplies for the rate hike.

The new "D" stamp, issued Feb. 1, is a 22-cent stamp that carries no denomination. However, it will represent the new rate until stamps bearing the 22-cent denomination are issued by the Postal Service at the end of March.

New rates for other classes of mail include:

- First-class first ounce rises from 20 cents to 22 cents, but the charge for each additional ounce remains at 17 cents.
- Presorted first-class rises from 17 to 18 cents, and for mail sorted according to carrier route from 16 cents to 17 cents.
- Post cards increase from 13 cents to 14 cents. Presorted cards climb from 12 cents to 13 cents and carrier route presorted from 11 cents to 12 cents.
- The minimum charge for Priority Mail rises from $2.24 to $2.40.
- Express Mail rates increase 15 percent.
- Third-class non-profit mail increases 13 percent.
- Parcel post rates will rise by 11 percent.
- The fourth-class book rate will increase 8 percent.

Despite 6 violations, MIC plants called safe

The Associated Press

"We can say that generally these five facilities are in rigorous compliance with OSHA standards," said Jane A. Matheson, a deputy assistant secretary of labor.

But the agency's inspections of the facilities, which use MIC in the production of pesticides, were immediately criticized as "slippery" by Rep. Henry Waxman, D-Calif., chairman of the House health and environment subcommittee.

Peggy Semmler, associate director of safety and health at the AFL-CIO, said that although OSHA did "fairly comprehensive reviews, the only reason they inspected these plants is because of the tragedy in India. The bottom line is that for the last to that which occurred Dec. 9 in three years these plants have not

Washington — Federal inspectors issued six safety violations to two companies using the chemical involved in the accident that killed more than 2,000 people in Bhopal, India, the Labor Department announced Friday.

But the department's Occupational Safety and Health Administration said its inspections of all four major U.S. users of methyl isocyanate, or MIC, and the lone U.S. manufacturing plant have determined that the facilities are safe.

The use of backup safety systems virtually removes the possibility in the United States of a tragedy similar to that which occurred Dec. 9 in three years these plants have not

Ford says deficit 'dark cloud'

BOISE (AP) — Former President Gerald Ford says the federal deficit is the "one dark cloud" in an otherwise bright economic outlook under the Reagan administration.

It's up to the president and Congress to put the screws on spending now," Ford said at a news conference Friday. The country can look forward to half a decade of "unlimited prosperity" once the federal government's red ink is eradicated, he said.

Ford was scheduled to be the keynote speaker at the Frank Church Public Affairs Conference in Boise Friday night.

On arms negotiations, Ford said he's encouraged about the resumption of talks with the Soviet Union. "A year ago, the prospects were not good," he said.

Inmate attacks prison guard

BOISE (AP) — A correctional officer at the state prison south of Boise was hospitalized briefly on Friday after being attacked and hit over the head by an inmate.

Warden Arvon Arave ordered the penitentiary's maximum-security cellblock locked down after the incident Friday morning.

Arave said guard Bruce Worman was wrestled to the ground by inmate Brent Barron while he and another prisoner, Gary Dean Garzes, were being transferred by Worman and guard Jim Dorsey to the prison's exercise yard.

Farm sale erupts into protest

GOVE, Kan. (AP) — About 15 people broke from a crowd of more than 100 gathered to protest a farm foreclosure sale Friday, chasing the sheriff through the courthouse before he was able to elude them and complete the sale.

No arrests were made "because I felt an arrest at this time could set off a worse breach of peace than we already had," said Gove County Sheriff Dean L. Baum. He said he would meet with the county attorney to consider whether to file charges later.

The group pressed forward and shoved Baum on the steps of the courthouse in the western Kansas town of 150 as he started to read the bill of sale for 1,120 acres of farm land owned by a Grinnell couple, David and Virginia Jensen, the sheriff said. The couple's machinery and family heirlooms were sold last week at a foreclosure auction that Baum said had sparked only minor protests.

Chernenko's time running out

WASHINGTON (AP) — If Soviet President Konstantin U. Chernenko, a former heavy cigarette smoker, is suffering from advanced emphysema as many Western observers believe, it is realistic to think he will die soon, U.S. medical experts said Friday.

But if his condition is as advanced as seems likely, they said they would have little argument with Friday's report that top U.S. government officials are privately expecting him to live no longer than six months.

"That's very reasonable" for a patient with "end-stage emphysema," said Dr. Morgan Delaney of George Washington University Medical Center.

IRS relaxes rules on mileage

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service on Friday relaxed stiff mileage record-keeping rules that are required for tax-deductible cars and trucks used in farming or business.

The amended rules were promised in a Jan. 25 news release after Congress received a flood of protests about the regulations that had gone into effect three weeks earlier. They are retroactive to Jan. 1.

Friday's announcement spelled out details of the changes and also expanded the definition of the required "adequate contemporaneous records."

Rather than having to keep a log or diary of every trip, farmers, business people and commuters are allowed under the amended rules to substitute "contemporaneous records that contain the required information and that are kept in an orderly fashion (for example, trip sheets or cards, or time and expense reports)."

Embryo experiment ban passes

LONDON (AP) — The British Parliament overwhelmingly approved a bill Friday that would make it a criminal offense for scientists to experiment on human embryos. But the measure lacks government support and is thought unlikely to become law.

By a vote of 238 to 66, legislators approved the so-called Unborn Children Protection Bill when it came up in the House of Commons for a second debate.

Approval cleared the way for the bill to move on to its third and final debate, at which stage it could be voted into law. If enacted, the bill would outlaw all research that involved the use of human embryos.

Budget

Peterson, however, disputes Moon's calculations and advises against inflating revenue projections only to cause state government to experience a shortfall of funds in the fiscal year.

"Why is the money there?" Peterson asks. "We see nothing to indicate year-end revenues will be any higher than the $549 million to $550 million level the governor and the Legislature are anticipating," he adds.

Moon says she bases her expectations for a surplus on state investment data and comparisons to investment data from one year ago. Peterson says Moon may not be taking into account the delayed effect that restoration of a holdback on state-agey spending may have.

But should adequate additional revenue fail to materialize, lawmakers have a number of revenue-raising measures to choose from, according to Rep. Steve Antone, chairman of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee.

Among the possible revenue sources Antone sees circulating are:

- Various proposals to collect state income taxes for non-wage income quarterly payments. One proposal would impose those collections only on corporations, a measure that would provide the state with $17 million in one-time revenues. Another version would impose those collections on enterprises with more than $50,000 in annual income. That also is estimated to generate $17 million to $18 million. Evans has proposed imposing the collections on all non-wage income earners, a move he estimates will generate $40 million.

An increase in Idaho's sales tax rate. Rep. Ernie Hild, R-Burley, has proposed a 12-month temporary increase to 4.5 percent from 4 percent. That measure would contribute an additional $32.5 million. Antone said some committee members' sentiments were that a 25 percent increase — worth $16.25 million — would be more appropriate. A proposal to raise the sales tax rate to 5 percent and to increase the state's grocery tax credit is estimated to add $22.2 million to the general account.

- Increasing the state's cigarette tax. A proposal to increase the per tax rate by 8 cents is estimated to add $4.9 million to state coffers.
- Income tax surcharges. A proposal by Rep. Ed Brown, R-Pocatello, would generate $15.8 million to the general fund and $3.5 million to the permanent building account through the imposition of a surcharge equal to 6 percent of the year's total tax liability.

Sales taxes on services. A proposal to impose sales taxes on services other than for medical and certain other purposes is estimated to add $32.6 million to the state's general fund, $9.1 million to cities and counties and $15 million to the permanent building account.

Repeat of the jobs credit. Would provide an estimated $200,000 increase in the general fund.

Repeat of the investment tax credit. Would provide an estimated $13 million increase in the general fund.

Antone says he doesn't have "a reading" that would disclose the committee's inclinations toward these proposals, but he notes "there seems to be a consensus among a majority of the committee that we need more money."

Only six of that committee's 12 members voted in favor of the public school appropriation which failed in the House Thursday.

been inspected on a routine basis for safety hazards."

Under OSHA guidelines, however, the plants are inspected if workers file complaints and agency spokesmen Jack McDevitt said there had been recent safety inspections.

OSHA inspected the Union Carbide Corp. plant in Institute, W. Va., where MIC is manufactured, the agency found no violations at Institute because production of MIC was stopped immediately after the Bhopal accident, but it said it will conduct inspections when production resumes.

Waxman described as "troubling," however, the fact that OSHA's report on the plants did not discuss Union Carbide internal documents about Institute, which said that under a worst-case scenario, a chain of four events could lead to a runaway reaction.

But the inspectors found no imminent danger at the plant and Union Carbide has implemented more frequent monitoring and stepped-up training programs which the company says makes the possibility of a runaway reaction even more remote.

"They made the changes and improved the system," said McDevitt. "We based our determination on what we found when we went there to inspect, not on some report."

Waxman criticized the company for making relatively inexpensive changes such as training and monitoring and forgoing more expensive changes that included installing new equipment at Institute.

The OSHA report said that "appropriate redundancies to stop a potential uncontrolled MIC reaction have not been provided."

and drink," said Rep. Chris Hooper. "The rationale behind this is the same as the rationale behind those who want to take away our guns, because some of them are used to kill people."

"This is the wrong approach to the problem," said Rep. Dorothy Reynolds, R-Caldwell. She said since Utah allows driving at age 14, but the new law wouldn't allow legal drinking until age 21, that would give seven years of "bars in cars" for teenagers.

"I think 21 is an appropriate age for using alcohol," said Rep. Ron Slater, R-Boise.

Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Preston, noted that in his border community, there's "a continuous line of cars coming into the state" from Utah to take advantage of Idaho's age-21 drinking law. "I think it is important to make us the same" as Utah, to eliminate that traffic, he said.

Rep. Lyman Gene Winchester, R-Kuna, called Haegenson's amendment attempt a "back door approach" to expanding drinking hours. "This bill will not address the problem of getting the drunks off the road," said Miss McDermott. "We should not penalize all drivers in the age bracket by raising the age limit to 21."

Fish and game penalties OK'd

BOISE (AP) — A House committee has voted to keep mandatory penalties for fish and game violators.

The Department of Fish and Game is seeking a law change this year to make it easier to enforce a state law requiring fishing and hunting poachers to reimburse the state for the value of illegally taken game.

The measure gives violators a year to pay the penalties, and they have to give up hunting and fishing licenses until the penalty is paid.

The reimbursement penalty is in addition to criminal fines and jail terms which may be imposed.

An effort to amend the legislation to make the reimbursement discretionary with judges failed by one vote. The legislation later was approved for printing and introduction.

Bill to aid state hospital set

BOISE (AP) — A measure intended to set stalled State Hospital South construction in motion will be considered by the Idaho Legislature.

The House State Affairs Committee on Friday introduced a proposal allowing the state Building Authority to be tapped for a loan for a new care facility.

The $5 million project at the Blackfoot mental hospital was approved several years ago, but only about $2 million for construction has been appropriated from the state Permanent Building Fund.

Borrowing from the Building Authority, with repayment eventually coming from the Permanent Building Fund, would allow construction that will improve the care of patients and cut some operating costs, Rep. Raymond Parks, R-Blackfoot, told the committee.

Plans call for a 65,000-square-foot, one-story facility that will include treatment rooms and bedrooms for patients.

Tuition tax credit plan eyed

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature has gone through the first round, without a decision, on legislation granting state income tax credits to families who send their children to parochial or private schools.

The Revenue and Taxation Committee in the House conducted a two-hour hearing Friday on a proposal from Rep. J.F. "Chad" Chaddband.

Chairman Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, said the hearing will continue Monday morning.

Chaddband and others called it a "freedom of choice" measure, designed to allow parents who want something other than a public school education for their children.

But state education and financial officials disputed the figures. Mike Ferguson of the governor's budget office estimated the tax credit proposal could wind up costing the state more than $20 million per year.

Evans: Schools need funding

BOISE (AP) — Problems in Idaho's public school system can't be solved by money alone. But improvements can't be made without adequate funding, Idaho's top school official said Friday.

"You can't add classes, require students to be in school longer, implement testing programs, increase certification standards, or make other major changes without money," Jerry Evans told the Idaho Association of School Superintendents during their annual meeting with state legislators.

Meanwhile, the Idaho Education Association is calling for a 5-cent state sales tax as a source of education funding.

The Idaho Senate this week rejected two education spending bills, passed by the House, leaving the matters to be resolved later in the session. The bills would have given public schools $280.1 million and higher education $54.8 million.

Evans has requested a $333 million outlay, while Gov. John Evans has asked for $303 million for public schools. Superintendent Evans said passage of a $238.1 million budget would be a "step backward" for public education.

Senate boots old truck tax, tries new

BOISE (AP) — Complaining that the long-standing ton-mile tax on trucks is impossible to effectively collect, a majority in the Idaho Senate has voted to repeal that user-based tax and replace it with a flat registration fee.

"Not everybody is happy with this," conceded Sen. Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewiston, who sponsored the bill. But while low-mileage carriers will effectively be subsidizing high-mileage carriers, Sweeney said at least all carriers will be forced to pay their share under the law.

The ton-mile tax — a charge based on mileage driven and the weight of freight hauled — has only "pitted trucker against trucker, especially the medium and small truckers, because a trucker who keeps good, auditable records and is honest and pays his taxes is competing with another trucker who doesn't."

But in securing a 26-14 vote in favor of the measure Friday, Sweeney received only tentative support from some senators who fear revenue estimates under the new tax may fall well short of the $16 million a year now expected.

Idaho is one of 11 states that still imposes the ton-mile tax in addition to a flat registration fee and a fuel tax. Four years ago, the Legislature repealed the system for trucks under 60,000 pounds and backers of the current bill call it just the last phase in completely ending what Sen. Phil Batt, R-Idaho Falls, called an anachronism in the state's tax structure.

But critics of the legislation, that now goes to the House, contended that flat-rate states, and even the federal government, are thinking about moving in the opposite direction by abandoning their fee system and going to a ton-mile tax.

"The best tax is a tax based on use," said Sen. C.E. Bilyeu, D-Pocatello. "Our present tax, the ton-mile tax, is a user tax," and he said repealing it would be to "abandon the principle that the user pays as the user uses."

The ton-mile tax, however, has been criticized over the years because truckers can avoid at least part of their liability by failing or refusing to maintain adequate mileage records. State Transportation Department auditors have effectively borne that out by finding in just the past two years that the tax was underpaid by some $2.5 million.

Based on the registration fee schedule approved in the Senate, commercial truckers driving less than 35,500 miles a year will pay a larger tax than under the current system and those driving more will pay less.

Antique slots may be legal

BOISE (AP) — People would be able to sell, buy and display antique slot machines under a proposal introduced in the Idaho Legislature Friday, but using them would remain illegal.

The House State Affairs Committee voted to introduce the measure after its sponsor, Rep. Lydia Justice-Edwards, R-Donnelly, said it had been revised to eliminate any confusion over the legality of using the machines.

Mrs. Edwards said antique slot machines now are considered to be contraband.

Water rights adjudication measure gets approval of Senate committee

BOISE (AP) — Another critical part of the legislative package prompted by the proposed settlement in the battle for control of the Snake River has cleared a Senate committee and is headed for a final legislative vote.

The Resources and Environment Committee approved the House-passed measure on Friday. That bill sets estimates under the new tax may fall well short of the $16 million a year now expected.

Also clearing the committee for final action were House-passed measures to protect water users in the Snake system whose rights have already been adjudicated and directing the state to begin negotiations with the recognized Indian tribes to determine their rights on the Snake.

Four other bills in the legislative package have already passed the Senate and been endorsed by House Resources and Conservation. They are awaiting final legislative action by the full House.

The package of bills is needed to implement the water rights settlement negotiated last fall between the state and Idaho Power Co. Under that agreement, Idaho Power will give up the bulk of its claim to 8,400 cubic feet of water per second on the river at Swan Falls Dam. In return, the state is increasing the minimum stream flow at the dam from 3,300 cfs to 3,900 cfs and formally recognizing the utility's use of the water for power generation.

The pact, ending years of legal wrangling over control of the water, is intended at preserving the utility's hydropower base while still providing additional water for at least limited future development along the river.

Textbook bill dumped by education panelists

BOISE (AP) — By a 9-8 vote, the House Education Committee has turned down a resolution aimed at giving a state committee standards to use for reviewing school books.

Rep. Liz Allan, R-Nampa, wanted the panel to approve an 11-point directive to the textbook committee on what to look for in acceptable textbooks. Committee members argued the textbook panel already has numerous standards to consider when reviewing books.

The resolution was directed at the Department of Education's Textbook and Improvement of Instruction Committee, which approves books for public schools.

Ms. Allan's resolution said texbooks should not encourage or condone civil disorders, social strife or disregard for the law.

Textbooks also should teach high moral standards, including honesty, respect for parents, teachers and those in authority and the "existence of absolute values of right and wrong."

Textbooks also should not degrade traditional roles of men and women, boys and girls and should foster principles of the free enterprise system, the resolution said.

The resolution also urged the committee not to approve textbooks promoting illegal lifestyles or sexual behavior, sadistic or degrading behavior.

Spokesman denies 'fall-back' cuts list

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Friday it is "absolutely untrue" that the Reagan administration has prepared a fall-back list of budget cuts it actually expects to win in the congressional budget deliberations.

The Reagan spokesman was responding to published reports quoting Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., as saying he had seen such a list that differed from the official budget President Reagan sent to Congress earlier in the month.

"We're pushing for the budget in full as we sent it up, and we think it's the proper way to go," Speakes said. "We'll continue to work with the leadership on that. But there is just no White House fall-back list."

"There's no alternative list of budget cuts that represents a White House fall-back position," he added. "The senator (Dole) was apparently referring to a list of cuts that had been produced by the Senate Budget Committee for review by the various committees on the president's budget."

Dole was quoted Friday as saying in an interview that "I've seen a list in addition to the one that's officially up here — in which the administration thinks they are probably not going to achieve what's in their budget."

Dole's comments came in an interview for the Republican National Committee magazine "First Monday." RNC spokesmen refused to release a text of the interview, saying the reporters who conducted it had exclusive rights to the interview until the magazine is published.

But several Capitol Hill sources confirmed the essential accuracy of the Dole quotes.

"It's not any secret. You can go through that budget and say they are not going to get all of this," Dole was quoted as saying.

Efforts to contact Dole on Friday were unsuccessful and Dole spokesman Dale Tate said that the senator was not in Washington to respond to Speakes' comments.

Among the areas mentioned by Dole in the interview as ones Congress probably would not cut as much as the White House asks are subsidies to Amtrak, student loans and revenue sharing for local governments.

Grip on money supply eased

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve policymakers decided at the end of last year to further ease their grip on the nation's money supply, linking their decision to sluggish economic growth, according to minutes of the meeting released Friday.

The action continued an aggressive policy the nation's central bank has been following since August to ease restraints on monetary growth as a way to push interest rates lower and thus re-ignite economic growth.

Since September, a wide variety of interest rates have dropped by about 3 percentage points. This decline has been credited by economists for the rebound in economic activity at the end of last year.

The overall economy was growing at a meager rate of 1.6 percent from July through September after a rapid 8.5 percent rate from January through July. Critics blamed the slowdown on restrictive monetary policies being pursued by the central bank which they said threatened to abort the recovery.

The central bank tries to allow sufficient growth in the money supply to promote economic expansion but not so much that it triggers sharp increases in inflation.

3 charged with murder in Kansas shootings

COLBY, Kan. (AP) — Murder charges were filed Friday against three people accused in a shooting spree across three northwest Kansas counties that left four people dead, one of them a companion of the suspects.

The three appeared in Thomas County court on first-degree murder charges, filed in the slaying of two hostages, abducted Wednesday at a grain elevator and whose bodies, shot in the head, were found on a roadside.

Colby Police Chief Mark Spray said there are "strong indications" of involvement in armed robberies and shootings over the last two weeks in Michigan, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Arkansas, Texas and Oklahoma.

Colby County officers said they planned to file charges later against the three in the shooting death of a restaurant manager in nearby Grainfield on the same day.

James C. Hunter, 33, of Amoret, Mo., and Daniel F. Remeta, 27, and Lisa J. Dunn, 18, both of Traverse City, Mich., also were charged with aggravated kidnapping, aggravated robbery, aggravated battery of a law enforcement officer and aggravated battery.

A fourth suspect, Mark Walter, 18, of Sutton Bay, Mich., was killed in a shootout after the four turned around at a roadblock and pulled into a farm driveway near Atwood, in Hawkins County, authorities said.

Deborah Harvey, secretary to Thomas County Attorney Perry Murray, said the three were being taken separately before District Magistrate Richard Hess for their first court appearance.

Artificial heart set to receive 3rd test

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Doctors will perform the world's third permanent artificial heart implant Sunday on a 56-year-old retired auto worker who would otherwise die in "a matter of days," the Humana Heart Institute International announced Friday.

The patient, Murray P. Haydon of Louisville, called "M.P." by his family and friends, has suffered from congestive heart failure since 1981, said Bob Irvine, Humana Inc.'s director of public relations.

"He is seriously ill and dying," Irvine said, and could expect to live just "a matter of days" without the implant.

Haydon has not suffered heart attacks or had prior heart surgery. He elected to receive the air-driven plastic and metal pump after being told by doctors that his heart medication was no longer effective.

At 56 he is eight years beyond the point that doctors usually are willing to perform human heart transplants.

"The Jarvik-7 artificial heart, used in both previous implant operations, is his only hope for life, Irvine said.

"He doubles up. He can't breathe very well. He can't walk around," said Irvine, who visited with Haydon on Friday.

Dr. William C. DeVries, the only surgeon authorized by the federal Food and Drug Administration to perform artificial heart operations, will lead the heart institute's team. He and the others began preparing for the operation Friday and were unavailable for comment.

DeVries gave Seattle-area dentist Barney Clark an artificial heart in December 1982 and implanted one in William J. Schroeder of Jasper, Ind., last Nov. 25.

Haydon, a Louisville native, spent seven years in the Army and Air Force and saw combat duty in Germany in World War II. He became a barber, then spent 14 years at Ford Motor Co.'s Kentucky Truck Plant just outside Louisville. He retired in June 1983 because of the disability.

"I wish I had more like him," said

MURRAY P. HAYDON
"A matter of days"

Bob Ecker, a former supervisor at Ford. "The only time I had to go see him was on payday to give him his check."

Ecker said it was apparent on Haydon's last visit to the plant three months ago that he was sick. "You could definitely tell... He had trouble making it back into the plant," he said. "It was weak."

He was described by others as a quiet man who doesn't joke a lot.

"I'm really not used to the limelight," Irvine quoted Haydon as saying Friday.

Charles Miller, a barber who worked with Haydon, cut his hair Thursday. "He was in fine spirits last night. He's already talking about going home," he said.

Doctors reviewed Haydon's medical history and interviewed him earlier in the month. He was admitted for testing at Humana Hospital Audubon on Wednesday and was selected as an implant candidate Thursday. He has signed the hospital's 17-page consent form that outlines the risks of the experimental surgery.

Nixon's secret mission reportedly freed POWs

NEW YORK (AP) — An autograph dealer has paid $2,500 for a handwritten note from Richard Nixon that was purportedly written after he met secretly with a Viet Cong leader in 1964 to negotiate the release of five American prisoners.

Nixon's note was addressed to Hollis Kimmons, who told the dealer he was part of Nixon's Army escort on the mission. Kimmons said he signed an agreement not to say anything about Nixon's role for 20 years, the dealer said.

"It is unquestionably Richard Nixon's handwriting," Gerard Stodolski of Paul C. Richards Autographs in Templeton, Mass., said in a telephone interview. "And Sgt. Kimmons was in the right place at the right time."

One account of the mission, published in an autograph collector's periodical, said Nixon met with a Viet Cong leader, then traded a case of gold bars for five U.S. prisoners in Cambodia.

The story could not be independently verified, although Nixon was in Southeast Asia at the time. Kimmons could not be reached Friday. His telephone in Ashland, Ore., had been disconnected, according to a telephone operator.

Stodolski said he never spoke with Kimmons and did not know how to reach him.

The note, scrawled on a 3-by-5-inch white paper, reads: "To Hollis Kimmons, with appreciation for his protection on my helicopter ride in Vietnam, from Richard Nixon." It is undated.

Stodolski said the note was sold earlier this month to "a major, well-known U.S. collector" whom he declined to identify. The collector plans to have the note displayed in public "within the year," he said.

An employee in Nixon's New York office, Kathy O'Connor, said the former president was out of the country.

WANTAGH, N.Y. (AP) — Carmine "The Snake" Persico, the reputed underboss of the Colombo crime family on the FBI's Ten Most Wanted List, was arrested with three other people Friday, federal officials said.

Persico, indicted with 10 other alleged leaders of the Colombo family last fall, was arrested about 4:45 p.m. by FBI agents and New York City police, said Assistant U.S. Attorney Barbara Jones.

The best work of the Arabian poet Nabogo Zlar was a two-liner in honor of King Noman Ben Mondar of Hing. It read: "You are the sun, and all the other kings are stars. When the sun appears on the horizon, the stars pale." So pleased was the king with this little puff piece, he gave the poet a caravan of 100 camels plus drivers plus tents plus grub, the whole sheiner.

Take a wide-awake rabbit. Inject it with some blood just taken from a sleeping rabbit. The wide-awake rabbit immediately falls asleep, explain that.

Another pronouncement by Admiral H.G. Rickover: "A child is being properly educated only when he is learning to become independent of his parents."

BREAKDANCING

Q. Ask your Chief Prognosticator if break dancing will still be in vogue 20 years from now?

A. He expects it to shuffle in and out much in the manner of tap dancing.

Lawyers, house painters, and barbers are inclined to heavy drink, evidently. At least, a computer check of the records in alcohol treatment centers lists a higher proportion of these than of most other professions.

Q. What makes people, who admit the common knowledge that smoking is hazardous to their health, go on smoking anyway?

A. Knowledge isn't enough, what? It's also common knowledge that the human mouth is one of the most dangerously unclean of bodily apertures, but people go on kissing.

WOMEN 45 TO 55

That woman between the ages of 45 and 55 is usually better at her job than any other employee in any other age bracket. Such is the claim of the personnel researchers. What's more, here by "better" is she tends to stay healthy, show up on time, and finish her assignments as expected.

Does a horse, harnessed in front of a wagon, pull the wagon or push it? Spring that one at the Dinner table. Some scholar thereby may tell you a horse in a harness always pushes, never pulls. But the matter is still open to debate.

Sir, when do you brush your teeth? Just before breakfast is said to be the time of day when that chore does you the least good.

No place in Greece is more than 85 miles from the sea.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A fine time to accept an opportunity where matters that have to do with possessions are concerned and to build up a new security for yourself by a very practical and down-to-earth attitude.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19): Consult with experts who can assist you with future activities that are important to you, and can analyze them well.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20): You can conquer that stubborn streak with an associate today by being more compromising in attitude.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21): Listen them out for a good time at whatever will be mutually pleasurable.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 23): Study monetary status of kin, and then do whatever will improve it. If repairs are needed to property, make plans to get it done.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21): You may feel stalemated in career work, but if you have talks with partners, all can be resolved nicely.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21): Forget that private worry and get busy at important matters that can bring in a greater income, then your worries are over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Don't let friend fool you into doing what he or she likes, but be careful. It may be a little hard to gain per-

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Have a discussion with one who is prominent and demanding and then the attitude changes and you get favors coming to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20): Listening to what an expert from out of town has to suggest will help you to gain your personal or business aims more easily.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY... he or she will be very practical at whatever may come up and take time in deciding how to proceed. Boy pulls gun, orders braces removed GROSSE POINTE WOODS, Mich. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy who was determined to be rid of his braces pulled a gun on an orthodontist and told him he didn't care about going to jail, "as long as I can have my bands off," the doctor said Friday.

Police eventually disarmed the boy after a struggle in which two shots were fired into the floor. Grosse Pointe Woods Public Safety Director Jack Patterson said Friday.

The orthodontist, who was not the boy's own dentist, said he stalled the teen-ager during the Feb. 8 incident by removing a few of the bands and a wire that ringed his teeth.

The boy was not identified because of his age.

The doctor said he had attended a meeting a few days before the incident at which the boy's regular orthodontist warned colleagues to be alert for a young patient seeking removal of a set of braces.

The suburban Detroit orthodontist involved in the incident, who spoke

Friday to The Associated Press on the condition his name not be used, said he first told the youth he would have to get his parents' permission and records from the boy's regular dentist because the work on his teeth was not complete.

"He said, 'Well I still want my bands off.' I said, 'You don't realize what kind of legal ramifications you would open me up to if I do this,'" the orthodontist recalled.

"He leaned over and pulled out the .45 and he said, 'Would this make you take my bands off?' I said, 'Yeah, it would,'" the doctor said.

"The next thing I said was, 'Is this gun loaded?' — really loud. The girl at the front desk heard that and kind of leaned over and saw what was happening, but he couldn't see her," he said.

The orthodontist's business manager called police while the doctor tried to talk the youth into dropping the .45-caliber automatic pistol, which police said belonged to the boy's father.

"I said they put people in jail for assault with a deadly weapon. He said, 'If I have to go to jail, as long as I can have my bands off, I don't care.'"

The doctor then began working, continuing his attempts to talk the youth into changing his mind.

"At one point, the orthodontist told the boy he needed to go into his lab.

"Then I went next door to another dentist's office and told him" to call police, not knowing an assistant already had done so.

When police arrived, they signaled by ringing the telephone at the front desk. "I told this young man to rinse out and I'd be right back," the orthodontist continued.

License suspension results in $5 quadrillion lawsuit

FRANKLIN, Pa. (AP) — A man whose driver's license was suspended 10 years ago has filed a $5 quadrillion lawsuit against the Pennsylvania Transportation Department, saying the punishment ruined his life and reputation.

Frank A. Messina of Centerville is suing for $5,764,609,563,143,700.48. That's 5 quadrillion, 764 trillion, 609 billion, 563 million, 143 thousand, 700 dollars and 48 cents.

"That would wipe out the whole state of Pennsylvania," said Laverna Fountain, a Transportation Department spokeswoman. "That makes the national debt look like peanuts."

Chess match stopped after five months

MOSCOW (AP) — In an unprecedented action, the International Chess Federation stopped the world championship match Friday and the bitterly disappointed challenger charged he was cheated out of a chance to win the title at the chessboard.

The five-month-long struggle didn't end at the board, but at a raucous news conference. Champion Anatoly Karpov protested the decision and challenger Garry Kasparov indicated he had been pressured to accept the order.

Florencio Campomanes, president of the federation, told a news conference the match was halted because the players were exhausted and that a new match would be played in September. The news conference was interrupted by shouting players and jeering spectators and was broken off.

Campomanes talked privately for more than an hour with the two players and announced that Karpov had accepted the ruling and that Kasparov "would abide by it."

Walesa questioned for public unrest

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Authorities brought charges Friday against seven Solidarity activists captured in a police raid on a meeting in Gdansk, and summoned Lech Walesa for questioning on the same charge — inciting public unrest.

Three of the seven charged were placed under arrest. Walesa, who also attended the meeting Wednesday but was released immediately, accused Poland's communist authorities of "hated, repression and... violation of human rights."

The Solidarity leaders had met to plan a 15-minute nationwide strike on Feb. 28 protesting government plans to raise food prices. Walesa founded the now-outlawed union in Gdansk during the labor unrest of 1980, also set off by price increases, and won the Nobel Peace prize for his work.

A woman who answered the telephone at his apartment Friday said: "Walesa has been summoned to the prosecutor's office in Gdansk on Saturday at 10 a.m. as a suspect." She did not give her name.

After getting the summons, Walesa issued a joint statement with Jacek Kuron, founder of the workers' rights group KOR, condemning the raid and the prosecutor's decision to place three of the men under arrest. KOR advised Solidarity in the union's formal, social and financial disbanding.

"We are deeply convinced that, in the case of illegal acts disguised as legal, one must answer with all one's strength so that it is clear that Poles won't accept passively this return of hatred, repression and the violation of human rights," the statement said.

A copy was made available to The Associated Press by Kuron in Warsaw.

Walesa was told his participation in the meeting could lead to charges of causing public unrest and organizing illegal protests, one of his aides said. "Walesa faces charges under Article 282a, Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the penal code," said the aide, adding that a uniformed police officer delivered the summons to the Solidarity leader.

The Gdansk prosecutor's office said the seven activists had been charged under the same article. The maximum penalty is three years in prison.

Soviets' ties to Israel key to peace talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is prepared to tell the Soviet Union in Vienna next week that if Moscow resumes recognition of Israel and improves treatment of Soviet Jews, it could — the emphasis is on could — open the way to Moscow's participation in future Middle East peace talks.

A senior State Department official outlined for reporters Friday the American position in advance of discussions that will be held with the Soviets in Vienna next Tuesday and Wednesday on the Middle East situation.

The official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified, said the talks with Moscow should not in any way be considered negotiations that could lead to a joint U.S.-Soviet position on a Middle East peace. Richard W. Murphy, the assistant secretary of state for Middle East affairs, will represent the United States.

The official who briefed reporters said the Soviets are expected to raise anew their proposal for an international Middle East peace conference that would include the Soviets as well as the United States. Both Israel and the Reagan administration have opposed such a conference.

The official said the U.S. response to Moscow would be that the United States would look for "steps the Soviets could take to show their sincerity about being involved in the (peace) process." One of these, he said, "obviously" is returning diplomatic representation to Israel.

Another official, who spoke to a reporter later, said Moscow probably will also be urged to stop providing arms to factions in Lebanon and Iran and possibly throughout the Middle East.

Obscenity charges dismissed

City's charges hurt by bookstore owner's alibi defense plans

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Fifth District Magistrate Judge Charles Brumbaugh has dismissed two charges of distributing obscene material made against Agnes Farnsworth, the manager of Front Page Book Store.

Brumbaugh dropped the charges late Friday afternoon immediately after city attorney Fritz Wonderlich entered a motion to dismiss.

However, Wonderlich indicated that the city might want to conduct a new investigation of Front Page Book Store. That decision will lie with the city council.

The city moved to dismiss because Farnsworth indicated in court documents that she planned to use an alibi defense. She would say that she was in Boise at the Mountain States Tumor Institute when undercover city police officers purchased magazines at the store they believed to be obscene, according to statements of discovery filed with the court. Her husband could corroborate that defense, the statements said.

Wonderlich wrote in his motion to dismiss that her alibi defense "could result in a diversion of attention from the important legal issues presented by the state obscenity law."

The city believes that "the successful prosecution of persons who violate the state obscenity laws is important to citizens of the state," he wrote.

A new investigation could be done in a way that would eliminate the alibi defense in a new case, he wrote.

Mayor Emery Petersen said Friday that he planned to discuss a new investigation at a Tuesday afternoon work session with the council. "This matter is still under serious consideration," he said.

He still supports bringing charges against Farnsworth, but said he could not speak for other council members. The council was split on whether to prosecute in the fall, only giving unanimous support to bring charges after Petersen distributed letters from area ministers, copies of the Idaho obscenity law and copies of members' out-of-office agreeing to uphold the law.

Earlier decisions were made in closed session. But Petersen said he wants to hold Monday's discussion at an open-door work session.

If the council does agree to renew the investigation, it may wait until new city attorney Shane Bengtsson arrives later this month so the case can be handled by a single prosecuting lawyer.

William Holtfield has been acting as Farnsworth's attorney. He was recently joined in the case by Arthur Schwartz, a Denver attorney.

The city had been basing its case on magazines purchased at Front Page Book Store including 'Cult of Sodomy, Sexual Positions, Gay Affair and Female Sexual Fantasies that allegedly show photographs of sexual activity.

Farm woes

Programs must go up or get out, senators say

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

Amalgamated Sugar Co. spokesman Ralph Burton. The

TWIN FALLS — The big question about federal farm policy is phrased simply by U.S. Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho. "The Congress has to decide whether we want to get in deeper or get out of it," he says. Does the government pump in more federal money to help agriculture or does it drain off money and let market forces take over?

McClure and U.S. Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, have been listening for the answer throughout the state this week. But they didn't find any readily apparent answers at a town meeting with farm interests in Twin Falls on Friday.

Instead, different factions from agriculture lobbied their lawmakers from viewpoints that rarely came together.

Many seemed to favor an eventual halt of government supports in the farm economy, bringing American prices into direct competition with the world market. But with commodity prices already low, that's not easily done, said Symms. "We have to somehow craft a farm program to get back in the (world) market ... and get there without breaking everybody in the process," he said.

Different sectors of agriculture also have different views on how to do that. For some it is preserving government protections.

The sugar industry must continue to be insulated by the government from world prices far beneath the domestic market, said

McClure. "I think the government, if they backed out of the program at this time, is going to be doing the dairy industry a disservice," he said. Continuing price supports under the current program will even out supplies, Filers said.

But farmer Harold Huisyer of Shoshone argued that the government dairy program needs to come to an end. At the same time, the beef industry needs a trade agreement that would force more American beef into the Japanese market, he indicated.

Some of the severest criticism was at the expense of the U.S. Farmers Home Administration, which leases out repossessed land and farms at bargain basement rates, according to several speakers. The practice drives down land values and adds to crop surpluses, they said.

Federal tax codes also need re-writing so that wealthy investors won't buy up farms merely for speculation. If they want to reap tax advantages from the farming the tournament action, so the girls' teammates usually provided the most vocal support.

Animal science prof. quits in mid-semester

TWIN FALLS — Herschel Boydston, an animal science professor who has worked at the College of Southern Idaho for 20 years, has resigned in mid-semester, according to college officials.

Feb. 9 was his last day in the agriculture department, said Michael Glenn, vocational-technical division director. The college has hired two part-time instructors to teach his classes until the end of the semester.

They are Rick Parker, who holds a doctorate in animal science, and Cole Towseley, who has a master's in animal science.

The college will evaluate its animal science offerings before a permanent arrangement is made.

Boydston declined to comment on leaving the college.

Glenn said that Boydston, 66, had been talking about retirement for some time, in part because of his age and the agriculture curriculum.

No pressure was brought upon Boydston to resign, Glenn said, other than tension that resulted when Boydston and Glenn disagreed on "budget cuts" of the changes made in the department in recent years.

He and Boydston mostly disagreed about plans for a new college catalog, including in what department and in what way classes should be listed, Glenn said. Glenn said he has been working toward a para-professional and technical division that would fall somewhere between vocational and academic education.

Glenn says Boydston's resignation is unfortunate. "He's been a tremendous asset to the institution, not only in agriculture but in the fish technology program. He has also been instrumental in positive things that have happened in the agriculture department in the past couple of years."

Murtaugh school career ladder plan drawn up

By LYNN McROBERTS
Times-News correspondent

MURTAUGH — Extended contracts ranging from $100 to $1,200 will be available to certified Murtaugh school personnel if a preliminary report authored by a local committee gets passing marks from the Murtaugh School Board and State Board of Education.

The district's Career Ladder Committee reported earlier this week to the trustees on the first of three programs being hashed over by the panel of Murtaugh patrons, teachers and administrators. The board plans to provide suggestions and comments on the proposal at the regular March meeting, said Superintendent Sam Saxon. "That will give us the April and May meetings to make any final adjustments before the May 15 deadline to the State Board of Education," Saxon said.

The Career Ladder panel is also developing reports on two other aspects of the state's Teacher Excellence Program — research and training, and the career ladder system for "exemplary teaching," Saxon said the board expects to hear from the committee on those topics at its March meeting.

If passed, the extended contract system will require teachers to submit applications to a district contract committee, which would exist on a rotating basis with one member each from the elementary and high schools and Saxon as its chairperson. The committee will then recommend to the school board those activities of the applicant that meet qualifications.

The amount of each extended contract, according to the Career Ladder panel's report, would depend on the number of hours involved in the activity. Determination of who receives a contract would be based on "ensuring that all qualified teachers get an opportunity to serve in extended contract positions on an equal and rotating cycle basis" and the amount of state allotted funds available.

"That availability of state funds remains in question, though, since the public schools budget set by the Legislature is still being debated in session. Nonetheless, Saxon said the trustees feel that the committee's report will be helpful no matter what the legislators decide."

"The board will make some use of it" whether in a teacher salary schedule or other ways of using any funds "the state might come through with," he said.

The committee reported that the main objective of the extended contract program is "to enhance the quality of education through student, community, and state activities by encouraging professional staff to design programs for these activities."

McClure says strong dollar lies at heart of farm problems

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Agriculture cannot produce its way out of difficulty until the U.S. dollar strengthens and farm exports grow, Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho, said Friday in Twin Falls.

He and other legislators still don't know how to drive the value of the dollar down to reasonable trade levels.

"We will not solve the problem on the farm until we've solved that problem," the Idaho senator said.

McClure made the assessment to 180 farmers and business people at a luncheon discussion of the 1985 Farm Bill and 1986 federal budget. He and Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, have been traveling around the state gathering opinions for upcoming Senate hearings about farm legislation.

"What has emerged is a few very clear things and, you might expect, no unanimity of opinion," McClure said.

Among the clearer points is that legislators from farm states will not have an easy time in budget debates over agricultural programs.

"We are going to have an awfully tough sales job in the Congress of the United States talking to people that don't come from rural areas," he said.

"The agriculture and other budgets for government operations are vulnerable, because Congress realizes it must cut federal outlays. At the same time, huge chunks of the proposed $1 trillion budget consists of certain programs in which people needing certain guidelines are entitled to benefits by law, he said.

Latest estimates from the Congressional Budget Office figure the potential deficit at $215 billion if nothing is done, he said.

"We must balance the budget," McClure said. "I do think we ought to have a constitutional amendment that requires the federal government to live within its means." A balanced budget also must be coupled with a limitation on spending to avoid heavy taxes, he said.

Cutting budget deficits may help weaken the dollar overseas and bring more buyers for American agricultural products.

In the meantime, Congress must design a Farm Bill that will help the government's balance sheet yet avoid putting large segments of agriculture in the red, he said.

"I'm still trying to find out from you people what is the dimension of the difficulty in agriculture," he told the crowd. A second important question is how much government programs have contributed to the troubles.

"I think most farmers who are aware of the dilemma would admit they don't feel very good about the current farm programs," he said.

Despite government support efforts, commodity prices still are low.

The reason relates directly to the high value of the U.S. dollar, said McClure.

Symms: Best federal farm program is none at all

By JANE BUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — American Agriculture needs less federal aid, Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, told a group in Gooding Thursday night.

Speaking at a Lincoln Day dinner, Symms said he favors the same kind of federal farm program that exists for apple growers: none.

He said one-third of American farm production is done under federal programs and that farmers, such as wheat and dairy farmers, who operate under those programs are in more financial trouble now than ever before.

"The best federal farm program is no farm program and let supply and demand work," he told the Republican gathering at the Lincoln Inn, but added he was not "insensitive to the plight of those already involved."

He added there needs to be a transition period in both farm programs and tax reform so the national economy is not "dislocated by too rapid a shift" in programs.

Symms said northern Idaho miners and the timber industry face the same kinds of problems as farmers — high production costs and low price for their products.

"The solution, he says, is a balanced federal budget and federal spending limited to 20 percent of the gross national product. The effect of this plan would be lower interest rates and an improved market, he said.

He told the group he supports and is pushing for a constitutional amendment to

Abducted girl, 5, returned to her family

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A 5-year-old girl found in Alaska 3½ years after she was abducted was returned to her family Friday.

Later, she sat wide-eyed, clutching a teddy bear in her mother's lap as FBI agents described the tearful reunion.

Elvia Vasquez, who two weeks ago was discovered living in a trailer park with a 58-year-old man in Anchorage, was reunited with her family at a hotel near Los Angeles International Airport. Positive identification had been made on Thursday.

The little girl, wearing a blue organdy dress, did not speak at a news conference she attended with her parents, Javier and Juanita Vasquez, and brothers and a sister.

"During the reunion, Elvia was obviously nervous and expectant," said Richard Bretzing, chief agent at the Los Angeles FBI office. "She had been counseled that she would meet her natural parents. She embraced them and, as you can see, has been in her mother's grasp ever since."

Bretzing said the family requested that they be asked no questions but did ask him to pass along its appreciation to those who made the reunion possible. He declined to discuss the family's plans for the future.

"The trauma they have experienced thus far can only be alleviated by the resumption of a normal life as soon as possible," Bretzing said.

The girl, who disappeared from a park in the seaside Venice section of

Elvia Vasquez clutches a teddy bear in her mother's lap

Los Angeles on Aug. 25, 1981, was positively identified Thursday through FBI agent Lawrence Nelson in Alaska. The Vasquez family was unable to identify current pictures of the girl.

There were no records of her fingerprints or footprints nor had a Altig, 58, the girl was called Crystal "Crisie" Morgan.

Police were led to the girl by Dorothy Keller, the manager of the trailer park, who said a 58-year-old man living with a toddler did not look right.

She said her suspicions grew when she tried to talk to the child in the park's laundry room, but Altig snatched her up and hurried her away.

Altig told authorities Crystal was born Feb. 5, 1980, to him and a former girlfriend who lived in Southern California.

FBI agents, who became involved in the case because of the possibility the girl was abducted across state boundaries, could neither find the woman nor substantiate Altig's claim to be the father.

Elvia was born Jan. 4, 1980. She disappeared when she was 19 months old on a family outing to a park in Venice as her mother fed a younger child and other family members played baseball.

When she was found in Alaska, she was placed in a foster home. Altig was indicted by an Alaska grand jury on three counts of sexual abuse of a minor after a physician said there was evidence the girl had been sexually abused. He remains in custody on $250,000 bail.

A federal detainer was placed against Altig for alleged interstate transportation of a female for immoral purposes, and the FBI is considering kidnap charges against him, Nelson said.

Murderer shoots woman

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — A man who pleaded guilty to murder but was allowed to remain free shot his victim's wife to death at her home Friday, then took nine people hostage at a courthouse and shot at police before officers killed him.

Andy Lopez, 45, of Santa Fe, had asked to exchange the hostages for the judge who sentenced him to seven years in prison Wednesday for the September 1984 killing of Andy Hernandez, 33, police said.

Maj. David Leyba quoted Lopez as saying he wanted "dignity." He said Lopez said he wanted police to kill him because he did not want to go to prison. Lopez, who was freed after sentencing and ordered to report to prison Monday by District Judge Tony Scarborough, was fatally wounded when he shot at deputies while attempting to leave a courthouse after a 30-minute standoff.

Susan Cave, a state psychologist, said she testified at Lopez's sentencing hearing that she believed he was not likely to hurt anyone before reporting to prison.

Ex-Aryan Nations security chief pleads guilty to weapons charge

BOISE (AP) — Former Aryan Nations security chief Gary Lee Yarbrough, linked to but not yet charged with the murder of a Denver radio personality, pleaded guilty Friday to 11 weapons charges.

In a proceedings before U.S. District Judge Harold Ryan at the Ada County Jail where he is being held, Yarbrough changed his original plea of innocent to the charges that included possession of unregistered firearms including machine guns and silencers, possession of weapons as a convicted felon and unlawful storage of explosives.

Ryan set sentencing on the 11 charges for March 29. Yarbrough, 29, an avowed white separatist and now a member of the neo-Nazi extremist group known as The Order, is still scheduled to go on trial Wednesday on a remaining count of assault in connection with allegations that he fired on three FBI agents as they approached his Sandpoint-area home in the Idaho Panhandle last October.

He also faces charges in Washington state and northern California in connection with armored car robberies that federal authorities have said were engineered by The Order to help finance a campaign to overthrow the federal government. FBI agents have also said an armored car heist was planned in Boise but never came off.

In connection with his scheduled trial, Yarbrough's wife Betty Jean has asked Ryan that she not be required to testify as a witness for the prosecution.

In papers filed with the court, Mrs. Yarbrough's attorney said he understood the prosecution planned to call her during the trial and he cited spousal immunity in asking that she not be required to appear. He also pointed out that that she is caring for four children, one of them requiring kidney dialysis.

Yarbrough was arrested last November during a confrontation with FBI agents that also involved a founder of The Order, Robert Jay Mathews. Mathews was later killed in a house fire on Whidbey Island near Seattle while surrounded by FBI agents.

Also found at Whidbey Island was a "declaration of war" against the United States, Jews, blacks and other minorities, agents said.

Federal authorities recovered the gun they said was used in the killing of Denver talk show host Alan Berg in the search of Yarbrough's home but they have not placed Yarbrough in Denver on the night of the slaying last summer.

Dean finalist for WSU post

PULLMAN, Wash. (AP) — Samuel H. Smith, agriculture dean at Pennsylvania State University, has been invited to Washington State University as a finalist for the school's presidency.

The visit, the first by a finalist for WSU's top spot, will be "orchestrated," if you will, to avoid any kind of circus atmosphere, said Ed McWilliams, regent and chairman of the university's presidential search committee.

"We are looking at what we think are the best of the best during these on-campus visits," McWilliams said. "But not all of them are sure they're willing to come to Pullman, Wash."

Dan Leary, Board of Regents chairman, said three finalists have agreed to visit the Pullman campus and others "probably" will be contacted later this month.

9 indicted for fraud

BOISE (AP) — A federal grand jury has returned a 46-count indictment charging nine individuals in four states with conspiracy to operate a phony tax-shelter plan out of St. Anthony.

The indictment accuses the nine of involvement with fraudulent Christmas tree and video schemes through a St. Anthony company known as Consolidated Ventures.

One of the indicted, Gary Mason of St. Anthony, also was charged with attempted tax evasion after federal authorities accused him of failing to report more than $125,000 in income over a three-year period.

The indictment said Consolidated Ventures was organized in 1979 to advance a tax-shelter plan conceived by Mason.

The scheme called for the production of Christmas trees on land owned or controlled by Mason according to the indictment, which said investors were promised investment-tax credits.

The Christmas tree plan was abandoned soon after it began and was replaced with a fraudulent program of investments in films and recordings, the indictment said. Investors for that scheme also were lured by the prospect of investment-tax credits, according to the indictment.

In addition to Gregory, it names Herbert Miles, Coeur d'Alene; Delsed Parkinson, Rexburg; Dorothy F. Rutledge, St. Anthony; Viri Jardine, Idaho Falls; Gregory Heppatt, Fairbury, Neb.; Barry Crawler, Salt Lake City; Kenyon Blackmore, care of the Salt Lake City Jail; and Ernest Pullmer Jr., Spokane, Wash.

The nine defendants have been ordered to appear in U.S. Magistrate Court in Portello on March 11. Mason is scheduled to appear in the same court next Friday on a separate charge of attempted tax evasion.
