Tax speedup bill heads for a vote

BY QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — A tax bill which may hold the key to adjournment of the 1985 legislative session has been voted out of the House Revenue and Taxation Committee for a vote on the House floor.

"That may be the going-home bill," said Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, majority caucus leader, after the Revenue and Taxation Committee voted 11-7 Thursday for a bill which could add $8.6 million to revenue available for the new state budget.

Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, sponsored the bill, which requires corporations to pay state taxes quarterly, instead of when they file tax returns once a year. The way the bill is structured will add about $5.6 million to the next state budget, $8.6 million the year after that with little tax impact afterward.

Later, after both parties caucused, Rep. Richard Adams, D-Grangeville, said his party took no vote on the issue. But since that has been a proposal from the governor, it could be assumed that Democrats will support it, he said.

Bateman said the GOP caucus took no stand on the proposal, but he said his knowledge there will be no effort to speed consideration of the measure, which means it might not come up for a final vote until next week.

Several key votes on the proposal came from legislators who said they weren't enthusiastic about the tax bill, but viewed it as permanent. They say the 1985 session could reach agreement on the budget and adjourn by the end of next week.

IDAHO LEGISLATURE 1985

"Let's face it, we won't be able to adjourn until we find $600 million more dollars," said Rep. Gary Montgomery, R-Boise, who described the measure as "the lesser of evils."

Rep. Stan Hawkins, R-Ucon, led arguments against the speedup in corporate tax collections, calling it "deficit financing."

"This is one-time money. If we are going to spend the dollars, let's fund that," he said.

Rep. Noy Brackett, R-Idaho Falls, said if the Legislature tries to balance its budget by "borrowing" from future tax collections, it will run into trouble down the road.

"If we set these budgets, in two years we will have to cut the budgets or put on some permanent new tax," Brackett said. "I believe the economy is that strong."

Rep. David Hill, R-Mardian, contended that corporations should be allowed to use their money during the year and taxes shouldn't be paid until they are due. He said he objected to

Showdown looms on credit aid

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Thursday the House will set up a showdown with President Reagan over the president's threatened veto of a bill containing credit aid for farmers and development help for drought-stricken Africa.

The Senate passed the measure Wednesday, and O'Neill said he planned to speed it to the House floor for final approval, bypassing a more time-consuming House-Senate conference to work out differences in the two bodies' versions.

O'Neill said Reagan has indicated he likely would veto the measure if it reaches his desk in its current form, O'Neill told reporters. "We'll give him the opportunity."

Shultz-Ortega talk could occur today

By GEORGE GEDDA
The Associated Press

QUAYAQUIL, Ecuador — Secretary of State George P. Shultz and Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega said Thursday they are willing to meet to discuss peace and settlement of Central American conflicts.

Both men will attend the inauguration today in Managua of Ortega's elected president, Julio Sanguinetti.

Ortega said Wednesday his leftist Sandinista government would send home 100 Cuban military advisers and stop acquiring new weapons systems to persuade the Reagan administration to reopen talks and end support for Nicaraguan rebels.

Shultz, speaking to reporters during a stop in Ecuador, said that in view of the "several thousand Cuban military advisers" in Nicaragua, withdrawal of 100 would be only a "token" gesture.

Analysis — A7

"But if the talk is something that will lead to rather massive reductions, that's something else again," he added.

Nicaragua has said there are about 200 Cuban military advisers in the country, but U.S. intelligence sources estimate there are 3,000 Cuban military and security advisers in Nicaragua.

"If Mr. Ortega wants to have a meeting in Managua, and we can arrange it, which we are perfectly willing to do, then I'll listen very carefully to what he says," Shultz said.

Ortega told reporters in Managua: "We are willing and we hope that a meeting can be arranged, adding that he expects to receive a response from the United States. "I think the United States must consider and give a response in

Alaska growing fastest, Idaho 15th

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Alaska has the nation's fastest growing population with a 19.2 percent spurt over three years. The Census Bureau reported Thursday in the newest edition of its massive compilation of data, the Statistical Abstract.

Alaska grew to 479,000 residents between 1980 and 1983, to give it the nation's highest rate of growth. Although it continued to have the fewest people of any state, the national data book reported.

Figures showing Alaska's growth leader, and Michigan losing people at the other end of the scale, are among hundreds of thousands of bits of information in the 890 pages of the 105th edition of the Abstract.

Idaho ranked 15th on the list with a 1983 population of 989,000. That represents a 4.8 percent increase from 1980. Among other details, the book lists walking and swimming as the most popular outdoor recreations and notes that 17 percent of employed people have individual retirement accounts.

Michigan's 1983 population of 9,069,000 was down 2.1 percent from the total counted in the 1980 census. However, some demographers have indicated that this drop may be due to reversing itself since 1980.

Only the District of Columbia did worse than Michigan, losing 2.4 percent of its population over three years for a total of 623,000. The District was not included in the rankings, however, since it is not a state.

The national population climbed 3.3 percent to 233,981,000 people during the three years, with 22 states growing faster than the national average and 24 increasing their populations more slowly than the country in general. Four states lost population during the period.

Second to Alaska in "growth rate" was Nevada, which grew 11.3 percent to 891,000 people. Utah placed third, increasing 10.3 percent to 1,619,000.

Texas continued its fast-paced increase of recent years, boosting its population 10.5 percent for a 1983 total of 15.7 million. Florida rounded out the top five, with an increase of 9.2 percent to 10.7 million.

Joining Michigan at the other end of the growth scale were Ohio, 49th with a 1.65 percent increase to 10.7 million; Iowa, down 0.3 percent to 2.9 million; Indiana, down 0.2 percent to 5.5 million; and Pennsylvania, up 0.3 percent to 11.9 million.

Evans, ag chief to discuss complaints

BY QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — Max Hanson, director of Idaho's Department of Agriculture since 1979, is under fire on various fronts and Gov. John Evans said he plans to meet with his appointee to discuss the complaints.

"Obviously the matter has come to my attention, and it is my responsibility to clear up the problems," Evans said in an interview Thursday.

Hanson discounted the complaints, but disclosed Thursday that he plans to retire within a couple of months. He has held those plans for a long time, Hanson said.

He said he plans to seek an audience with the governor to resolve the problems.

In the past week, state employees, Evans' own Division of Financial Management and agriculture ranching interests have complained about how the state agency is being run.

After a briefing by aides, on his return from the National Governors' Association conference in Washington, D.C., the governor said, "I need to discuss with him the validity of the charges and give him an opportunity to be heard."

"We have problems within the department," obviously the director needs to be heard to discuss them," Evans said.

Hanson said he has received direct complaints about the way he's running the agency. Some of the complaints involve personality conflicts, he said.

"I'm going to be gone in two months," said Hanson, when he firms up his resignation. "I don't know any agency which regulates an industry occasionally will still complain from that industry."

At a weekend meeting, several former and present Department of Agriculture employees asked state legislators to do something about the problems which are being run. They alleged that because of office politics, personality clashes and a lack of supervision by Hanson, the agency's agriculture livestock regulating functions aren't being performed.

The state employees said key positions have been on the basis of favoritism and the state's personnel rules are being subverted because a handful of top administrators have been granted most of the merit raises created by the agency.

On Tuesday an agriculture industry association, Food Producers of Idaho, Inc., discussed the agency with Hanson. The secretary, Tom Hovenden, said

Murtaugh to consider vote on consolidation

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

MURTAUGH — A petition urging the Murtaugh school board to take consolidation votes was prompted by the scheduling of a special board meeting March 4 to consider an election.

Murtaugh board chairman Allen Cummins says the board will meet to discuss the legal requirements for taking a consolidation proposal to a vote of the school patrons.

"I believe we'll set up another hearing, and then go to a vote," Cummins said Thursday.

About 85 Murtaugh residents signed a petition asking the Murtaugh school board to take the consolidation of the Hansen, Kimberly and Murtaugh school districts to a vote of the school patrons.

Cummins said it has always been the intention of the board to take the issue to a vote of the Murtaugh school patrons.

Jane Toupin of Murtaugh says she, Brent Stastny and Pat Funk gathered the signatures. "We had extremely good luck and we didn't even call the most of the ones we wanted to," Toupin said.

Toupin said she will vote at the public meeting in Murtaugh "not an accurate reflection of the feelings of the people of Murtaugh because not everyone who support consolidation did not show up, and some who support consolidation were afraid to speak up at the meeting."

"I had people call me at home to over so they could sign it," he said.

Toupin says she wants to bring the matter to a public meeting to discuss finances again. "If we get the truth out about finances, maybe that will help," she said.

"Consolidation is the best thing in the world for the children," she said. "The opposition to consolidation at the last public hearing was organized ahead of time. Toupin said. A private ballot would enable voters to express their opinion about consolidation without worrying about offending fellow church members, next-door neighbors, or co-workers, she said.

Jim Wright of Kimberly, the chairman of the ad hoc consolidation committee, says any consolidation proposal will have to be approved by the county commissioners and the State Board of Education before the patrons can vote to make consolidation binding.

Tax hike only way to provide additional education money

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE — With a Senate committee approving the last year's budget and the state expects to have in the new budget year, the Senate's top Republican says the only way the latest and much-criticized education funding bills can be increased is through a tax hike.

But while House tax writers have endorsed legislation raising another $8.6 million in one-time revenue next year, Senate President Pro Tem James Ritsch, R-Boise, predicted "rough sledding" for that bill or any other intended to bolster the public and higher education budgets.

With the $301 million public schools budget and the $7 million higher education budget still below levels established in 1983, Ritsch said he will maintain programs, lawmakers and educators have predicted their fate. "There is only marginally higher than proposals rejected two weeks ago."

But Ritsch said both would pass the Legislature, even though some members of his own party are holding out for still higher levels.

"The money's gone," Ritsch said. "If they want to put more money into it (education), they're going to have to come up with a revenue-raising measure. A revenue-raising measure will have very tough sledding in this Legislature."

"We've been striving very hard to stay within the resources we had," Ritsch said, adding that there has been mounting pressure on lawmakers to renege on campaign pledges against raising taxes. "We've resisted that and will continue to resist that."

Earlier Thursday, the Senate Finance Committee, in an effort to draw more support to the overall state budget plan that is winding its way through the Legislature, added another $25.00 to the 1985-1986 budgets for junior colleges and two social programs.

Democrats had been unsuccessfully pressing this week for the additional funding. "The amount is still below the governor's conservative recommendation."

But the committee's decisions coupled with overall budget plan drafted by the Joint Finance-Appropriations Committee before it adjourned Wednesday lifted the total commitment of general state revenues for the year that begins July 1 beyond what analysts estimate will be total revenues available in the state treasury.

Based on figures of the joint committee's staff, the new budget, including the controversial education proposals, totals just under $583.6 million, $10,000 more than the com-

House balks at providing study funds

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho House has turned down a proposal to fund an interim study on the system used to run the state's colleges and universities.

The vote Thursday afternoon was 43-38 against legislation sponsored by Rep. Janet Hoy, R-Nampa, former president of the Idaho Board of Education.

She said there have been a number of proposals to change the higher education governance system, which should be studied.

Included are suggestions that Idaho have a single authority for public schools and colleges; that a stronger decision-making process is needed; that Idaho should have a "one university" system; or a higher education chancellor.

"I think the legislature needs to study these alternatives and make recommendations," she said.

But opponents pointed to massive studies in the last two years on the subjects, which failed to produce much in the way of legislation last session.

Meeting law change fails

BOISE (AP) — A House committee has refused to go along with Senate legislation allowing hospital boards an exemption from the state's Open Meeting Law.

The Senate voted 22-20 for a bill to allow hospital boards closed sessions to discuss certain competitive matters. But the House Local Government Committee voted 9-5 Thursday afternoon against sending the bill to the House floor.

There was no recorded vote on the motion to hold the bill indefinitely, which is a killing motion, but Republicans Michael Simpson and Preston Brimhall were recorded as voting against the motion.

Junior colleges helped by friends

Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Friends in high places may have added $90,000 to state support for Idaho's two junior colleges.

In requesting an additional junior college appropriation of $100,000 Thursday, Rep. Mack Nelbaur told members of the Senate Finance Committee that a proposed $3.4 million appropriation for the College of Southern Idaho and for North Idaho College "will have serious problems in the House."

Committee members asked Nelbaur to specify where the expected difficulty was likely to arise. "I don't believe that this measure was unpopular among legislators from the Twin Falls area, including the Speaker."

The panel had previously appeared reluctant to honor the request by Nelbaur and new committee chairman Sen. Walt Varbrough to "sweeten the pot" for junior colleges in an effort to increase support for the committee's total package of proposed budgets. Committee member Herb Carlson of Boise originally reacted to the request saying the proposed 67 percent increase for junior colleges "is hardly shabby."

"Would we be better off providing some of the funds (to other programs) rather than giving them to junior colleges?" he asked.

Nelbaur answered by explaining the problems he expected the measure would face in the House, which is presided over by Twin Falls Republican Tom Silvers.

Varbrough told the committee "I'm trying to be honest with you and my politics. We've got to hold together to get these budgets passed."

The committee approved the junior college support bill along with a $135,000 increase in Health and Welfare budgets intended to pay for child-abuse caseworkers and home training for parents of handicapped children.

combination of estimated tax receipts during the new year plus money left over for one reason or another from this year's budget.

That leaves the state with no cash reserve to handle any emergency and commits the general fund to expected deficits of millions of dollars that cannot be counted on in future years.

Budget analysts pointed out, however, that estimates of available state revenues in past years have understated actual receipts.

State Treasurer Majorie Ruth Moon has also reported that interest earnings on invested state funds are falling at such a rate that receipts may be $2.7 million higher than anticipated, and Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho, said a Tax Commission audit has turned up a $500,000 liability against the Idaho National Engineering Laboratory that was not expected.

While financial analysts for Democratic Gov. John Evans are skeptical about the validity of the new interest earnings figure, none of the additional money is included in either the budget plan or the revenue estimate, and should it materialize, it would offer a cushion for the state.

The revenue bill clearing the House Revenue and Taxation Committee earlier in the day is a modification of Evans' original proposal to require businesses and corporations to pay taxes quarterly instead of annually.

The House version phases that plan in over two years.

But while Chairman Steve Antone, R-Rupert, believes the bill can win House approval, Ritsch said it will require the measure from that chamber's tax committee for a floor vote.

Ritsch declined to concede that any tax like bill can win Senate approval. Ritsch said he believed an increase in the state general tax, which has been suggested by some, would have more support than the so-called quarterly reporting bill.

In either case, however, he said the bill will be looked up in the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee unless a majority of the GOP-controlled body orders it released.

More federal money not the best course

We are only one editorial voice of America's daily newspapers, and not a large one at that, in a region of the nation where respect for agriculture is high, in which the land's productivity is the source of our economic health and the quality of our lives.

Despite that dependence, we think the Congress has made an enormous mistake in its decision to pour more money — perhaps $1 billion — into the support of American farmers, an effort which will only delay the pain we will all endure.

We do not agree with President Reagan on every issue, but on this one, he is right. More support for agriculture, at this juncture, will only make the deficit worse and will only delay the day of reckoning.

He should veto the bill which Congress has put forward, thereby allowing the laws of economics and supply and demand to work. The result will be fewer American farms, less production, and a closer relationship between our ability to produce food and our ability to either market or consume it.

Supporters of the new farm credits say they are only for "short term" help. They say they want productivity and stability to return to American agriculture.

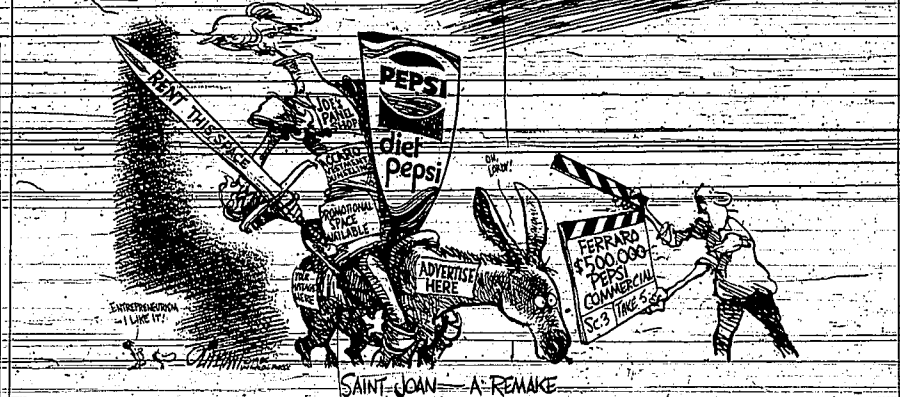

So do we all. But the route to that, in our opinion, is not through more supports at a time when the American economy is struggling to deal with an enormous deficit which must have attention.

Similar legislation passed the House Wednesday by a 318 to 103 margin. Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, is a co-sponsor of the measure.

In the Republican-controlled Senate, the vote was much closer, 54-46, the key proposal to make more credits available to struggling farmers this year. Eight Republicans bolted to majority side, four of them farm state senators up for re-election in 1986.

Both Idaho Republican senators, James McClure and Steve Symms, voted against the new credits. That, in our view, was the right way.

Symms has asked rhetorically how we expect to trim the deficit if every group which comes to Washington leaves with more money. It's a good question.

Moderate coalition holds real power

Despite the Republican party's commanding numbers in the 1985 Idaho Legislature, it appears a coalition of Democrats and moderate Republicans continues to rule the state's two lawmaking bodies.

If the trend established in recent legislative sessions prevails, that relatively unorganized group will become most visible when it passes the state's largest education budgets and the tax increase needed to pay for them.

There is already strong evidence that this bipartisan, moderate core exists. And it appears to be gaining strength as it regularly surfaces to defeat proposals originating in the most conservative faction of the Republican caucus.

Just last week, Rep. J.F. Chadband, R-Idaho Falls, the self-appointed defender of the free-enterprise system, who may be this session's least successful promoter of legislation, Chadband has sponsored the major bills each intended to stem government's involvement in providing goods or services, which, he says, might more efficiently be provided by private businesses.

A House committee unanimously disagreed with him that Idaho's tourism and travel promotions programs should be removed from its existing department and administered by a commission of tourism industry representatives.

The panel noted that, despite the efficiencies ostensibly gained by removing the function from the Division of Economic and Community Affairs, Chadband's proposal to turn the function over to private industry would require a 50 percent increase in its administrative budget.

Rick Shaughnessy

Chadband proposed increasing the intensity of competition between private and public schools by providing a tax credit to parents who pay tuition to send their children to private schools. However it became obvious during debate that the measure was perceived as an expensive government subsidy and not as an incentive to competition. Headed for overwhelming defeat at the hands of the coalition, Chadband reclaimed the bill and dragged it back to the House Revenue and Taxation Committee where it languishes today.

On Wednesday, Chadband sponsored a bill on Special Justice Tom Stivers' proposal to remove the state of Idaho from the liquor business. Once again Chadband failed miserably, although this time his opponents included many of the conservative Republicans among his allies.

Chadband isn't alone in suffering defeat at the hands of the moderates. Proponents of several far-right causes have found they couldn't count on the Republican-dominated House Education Committee to endorse their agendas.

Home-school advocates received a similar reception from members of the Senate Education Committee when they proposed gutting the state's compulsory attendance law.

Coalitions in the Idaho Legislature most often form from the ideological left and move towards the center. That is because the majority of seats the conservative right holds are in the Republican caucus.

Moderate Republicans may come to feel as removed from the caucus government as are Democrats. The construction of a coalition then becomes the most direct response to attempts to make major legislative decisions in the Republican caucus.

It also becomes a potent force on the third floor of the Idaho Statehouse, as is readily expressed in the fate of Chadband's proposals.

Rick Shaughnessy covers Idaho politics and state government for The Times-News.

Political dynamics favor the spenders

Probably the most important reason for the Administration's poor record on budget cutting stems from the underlying political dynamics of federal spending.

Economists of the "public choice" school point out that, when the benefits of a program are concentrated on a relatively small group of people, while the taxes to pay for the program are spread widely and thinly across millions of taxpayers, there is an imbalance of political pressure.

The beneficiaries fight hard to retain or expand the program because they have much to gain, but the individual taxpayer has little motivation to demand cutbacks because by calling any program in particular will have an insignificant effect on his own tax bill.

A Congressman might hear plenty of grumbling from his constituents about the total tax burden, but he will rarely face a taxpayer-led campaign against a specific program. Indeed, taxpayers everywhere are prone to denouncing any program while supporting expensive programs that benefit themselves.

On the other hand, the constituencies benefiting directly from a government program have a great deal to lose if funding is cut, so they can be expected to devote considerable energy — and money — to ensuring that legislators stay in line.

This imbalance of self-interest favoring the beneficiaries of spending over the taxpayers is accentuated when programs are provided by the federal government, rather than by states or local governments. When a city decides to build a bridge using local funds, for instance, the burden on each taxpayer is significant, and he or she is in a position to judge whether or not the expenditure constitutes good value.

Thus, taxpayer resistance to unwarranted spending is likely to be strongly motivated and effective when the same city wishes to build the same bridge with 10 percent of the funding coming from Washington; however, the tax cost is spread thinly over 100 million taxpayers, and local taxpayers have good reason to support construction — even if they recognize it is poor value for (other people's) money.

The political momentum of spenders is further enhanced by the nature of the constituency backing particular programs. Generally this consists of a coalition working in close self-interest harmony:

- Beneficiaries — Individuals gaining directly from programs.
- "Near" beneficiaries — Individuals who do not quite reach the eligibility requirements of the program, but feel they should be included in an expanded program. An example of this is the handicapped worker who does not quite meet the rules for receiving Social Security disability payments.
- Administrators — Officials in the government who are committed, intellectually or professionally, to an expansion of their career's domain.
- Service providers — Individuals, organizations, and corporations in the public or private sector who actually deliver government products or services, such as social workers, road construction companies, or weapons contractors.

Such constituencies cooperate very effectively to block Administration attempts to reduce program funds. Civil servants, for instance, routinely leak internal documents to journalists to generate opposition to budget-cutting proposals. Officials often can funnel government grants and contracts to organizations that will provide research findings favorable to programs. Similarly, service providers do not seek to earn their election campaign funding (or friendly legislators and to publicize the worthy civic purposes of the programs that pay their salaries. And beneficiaries and near beneficiaries are also voters. Whenever a budget reduction is proposed, the affected coalition moves into action, generating public opinion and bringing raw political firepower to bear on the appropriate legislators.

The Reagan Administration's failure to win many decisive budget battles, or to hold the line in the last two years on cuts enacted in 1981-1982, reflects its inability to alter the underlying political dynamics of budget growth. As long as incentives favor the public choice imbalance and the self-interest coalitions, and as long as nothing is done to provide incentives for alternative coalitions in the private sector, the spenders will prevail — no matter who occupies the White House.

Letters/ School consolidation issue, policies bring comments by readers

Exam results tell the story

I asked a junior high school student from Murtaugh High School about consolidation. He replied, "I'll tell you everything." I asked what he meant by "everything." "Basketball?" "Is that all?" "No," he finally said. "Kimberly and Hansen are way in debt and just want Murtaugh's money." "Is that all I asked?" "They are just a bunch of dorks," he answered. "I am not sure what a 'dork' is, so I let it go at that. I asked where he obtained this useful information. "We discussed it in one of our classes in 11th," he replied.

On Feb. 11th, I attended a meeting at Murtaugh school. The author of the letter was to present their findings on consolidation. The committee had worked on the consolidation issue for two years by the request of the residents of Murtaugh. Brent Stastney gave the findings on the location of the new school. Before completion, he started getting questions from the audience. The committee lost control of the meeting. The committee was interrupted so much that the findings were hard to understand. I think a lot of the people in the audience attended the same classroom discussion on the junior high student attended. Neither the junior high class nor the vocal part of the audience seemed to appreciate the importance of scholastics in school.

It has been said, by teachers and other Murtaugh residents, fewer students per class is better for the student. The larger schools have too many students per class. In the larger classes, an individual student does not get the attention he or she needs. Some students would have to learn some of the material on their own in small classrooms. Students would not have to use as much initiative. The students can always ask the teacher. Asking the teacher could become a habit forming.

Murtaugh has fourteen seniors. If smaller schools are better, any of the fourteen seniors who want to further their education, should be able to get scholarships.

On Feb. 2, eight seniors and nine juniors from Murtaugh High School went to Boise. While in Boise, the students took the Science Competition Day Exam. The reason for the exam was to see if anybody qualified for the scholarship offered.

All but one of Murtaugh students scored below 50 percent of the participants. The student who scored above 50 percent has only gone to Murtaugh High School for one and one-half years. The results of the exam speak for themselves.

Does Murtaugh High School prepare the students for the world outside of Murtaugh?

throat. So I sent a note to school to keep her inside at recess. They refused to let her stay in and sent her out anyway. Our children also know how to react to colds. I know how her cough fits on and gets worse if I have to take your children to the doctor every time they start to catch a cold, get a sore throat, or an ear ache. That could prove to be expensive, I can't do it.

I know my daughter better than anyone else. I know how she reacts to colds. I know how her cough fits on and gets worse if I have to take your children to the doctor every time they start to catch a cold, get a sore throat, or an ear ache. That could prove to be expensive, I can't do it.

Where do they get this right? Do we as parents, have any say over our own children? What makes them think that they know what's best for our children? Do they get up with them at night when there are no babies? Will they put the doctor bills for them to get an excuse to stay in? Who will help them catch up on their studies because they miss so much school? Because what it comes down to is if you don't want your child outside, you have to take them home. Have the teachers and principals had medical training to make these decisions? No, they've had "several health classes".

I was also told that the kids "don't have to play in the water puddles while they're out". But most kids will, if they're there. Besides, my daughter was sent home in wet clothes. I don't know. Because a little boy had pushed her into the water.

I was told that the teachers need a break from the kids during the day. I can understand that. I feel that way in my profession (too, at times. But I can't neglect the needs of those in my care because I need a break. If you're dedicated, if you're efficient at your job, then you're there if you're needed. You don't make up dictating, idiotic rules, so you can "get away from the kids".

How much more are we going to allow the schools to dictate over our children? When will we pull out of it? We are the taxpayers. I think they already have too much control over our children's lives. We need to band together and put a stop to it.

A very concerned mother.

Trying to locate his father

I am writing to you hoping that you'll help me with this problem, helping me to locate my father. I am presently serving an eight-year sentence in the Georgia prison system for drugs. This is a really dark time in my life and since August of 1984, it's gotten worse. You see, I've lived with my grandmother since I was three days old. She was my parents, she was my friend, she was everything I had. Most of all, she was always there. My grandmother passed away in August of last year, and now I have no one. She would do anything to encourage me and support, always telling me to keep my chin up and let this mistake be a lesson and learn from it.

My last visit from my grandmother was in July, at that time, she told me my father's name, and that his last known whereabouts was there in Twin Falls.

That's why I'm hoping you'll publish my letter even though I can't pay printing costs. Actually I have nothing and no money, and really don't know where to turn for help.

Now, looking back on my last visit with my grandmother, I feel that in her own way, she was trying to let me know she wouldn't be around much longer. Being alone and having no one to feel the need to remain family ties and to know my father: if anyone knows Hal Miller or the whereabouts of him; or know my grandmother, Rose Ella Brooks, please contact me. I will answer all letters, but please send a stamp so that I can reply. Please don't send any money, it's not allowed.

I'm a white male, Born 7-26-56 in Atlanta, Ga. to Fay and Hal Miller. Thank you for your help and time!

Economic crisis, unrest force Sandinistas to seek accord

By ELOYO AGUILAR
The Associated Press

MANAGUA, Nicaragua
Nicaragua's struggle to stop its military buildup in exchange for renewed talks with the United States has been hampered by pressure created by legislation, a shattered economy, a costly guerrilla war, and growing domestic discontent.

The leftist Sandinista government which sided with Cuba and the Soviet bloc soon after it seized power in July 1979, now finds itself isolated from former friendly nations in Western Europe, geographically distant from Soviet supplies and bordered by hostile neighbors in Central America.

It also is being squeezed economically by the United States which cut off aid long ago. Lobbies in the United States and abroad provided aid to 61,000 armed rebels.

President Daniel Ortega made a series of moves this week designed to

DANIEL ORTEGA
Trying to placate U.S.

Analysis

Ortega also may hope to influence Congress against the Reagan administration's request for more aid to the rebels.

In an apparent attempt to pressure the United States toward a negotiated settlement, Ortega sent copies of his proposals to Presidents Fidel Castro of Cuba and Raul Alfonsin of Argentina, and to Felipe Gonzalez, prime minister of Spain.

Ortega was almost conciliatory when he said of the proposals: "We hope President Reagan considers them and accepts them and contributes to a peaceful solution of the problems and to eliminate the alternative of war and increase the possibilities of peace."

He invited a bi-partisan congressional committee on an unrestricted visit to confirm that Nicaragua's military is strictly defensive, said he was willing to send 100 Cuban military advisers home, and pledged to stop acquiring new weapons systems.

Ortega also assured a group of visiting U.S. Truman Committee members that the government wants good relations with the Nicaraguan church and with the United States.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes said Thursday that Ortega's offer "appears to be change without substance and we will have to wait and see if there are further developments."

He said 100 departing Cubans were insignificant among the thousands of Castro's military and civilian personnel estimated to be in Nicaragua.

As for the arms pledge, Speakes said, "They have already indicated they would not be able to handle much more weaponry immediately because of the large amounts they have received in their buildup of the past several years."

Secretary of State George P. Shultz said, however, that he would be willing to meet Ortega today if it could be arranged, and would "listen carefully to what he says."

But critics in the United States and abroad are skeptical. They say the inauguration of Uruguay's new civilian president, Julio Sanguinetti, earlier this month, Ortega asked private enterprise and political opponents to cooperate with government economic policies and work harder to increase production.

The nearly moribund economy diminishes whatever chance the Sandinistas had of improving the lot of the country's 3 million people, and needs discount.

"We're slowly going into economic coma," said William Baez, president of the private National Development Institute.

Ortega's government development cordoba earlier this month, from 28 to the dollar to 56, and eliminated subsidies for most staple goods. Prices went up nearly 100 percent.

A pound of meat, which it can be found, costs up to 120 cordobas. That is the minimum daily wage.

Necessary imported goods, industrial parts and machinery, cost 20 times a year. Exports earn only $400 million and half goes for imported oil.

Gasoline is rationed — 20 gallons a month per car at $2 a gallon.

The economy's fragility was demonstrated last week when the loading of a tanker that was to bring gasoline purchased by the Soviet Union was delayed in Ecuador. At least half of the gas stations closed and lines up to a mile long formed as drivers waited for more than three hours to buy a maximum of three or four gallons per car.

The U.S. government no longer buys Nicaraguan sugar, and has blocked loans from international lending agencies in which it participates.

Police base target IRA mortar fire claims 9 lives

NEWRY, Northern Ireland (AP) — A mortar shell landed in a heavily fortified police base in this border town Thursday, hitting the canteen at tea break and killing at least eight officers and a civilian.

Dozens of people were reported wounded.

"The people inside didn't have a chance," said a senior officer said.

A police spokesman said at least one more officer was missing, and he feared the body would be found beneath the rubble, through which comrades dug in the darkness for fear of snipers. Police sources said two of the victims were women officers.

Officials said most of the bodies dangled from the debris were badly mutilated, hampering identification. "In some cases we can't make out who they are," one told reporters. "It's very gruesome. The carnage is awful, total devastation."

Six mortar shells exploded inside the base, said the police spokesman, who would not give his name for security reasons. He said three scored direct hits on the base canteen, which was packed with personnel on their evening tea break.

Another round hit the observation tower, damaging houses that ring the base in Newry, which lies on the frontier with the Irish Republic.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army, which is trying to drive the British out of Northern Ireland, claimed in a statement telephoned to Belfast news organizations that its men carried out the attack.

"This was a major and well-planned operation, indicating our ability to strike where and when we decide," it said.

Police sources said the mortars were fired, apparently by remote control, from about 250 yards away. They said the mortar tubes were on the back of a hijacked truck parked on a hill overlooking the back of the post, which is cooped in chicken wire to keep out bombs and bricks.

Kevin Short, a spokesman at Newry's Daisy Hill Hospital, said about 40 police officers and civilians were injured in the attack and 28 were discharged after treatment. Two officers with severe head wounds were taken by helicopter to a Belfast hospital, he said.

Defector wants his money

LONDON (AP) — Oleg Bitov, the Soviet defector who returned home and said he'd been kidnapped, is trying to recover the money he earned with anti-Soviet writings in Britain, his former friends here said Thursday.

"It's very surprising that he's somehow managed to get on the right side of the authorities and come back and surface," said Duff Hart-Davis, a Sunday Telegraph writer who edited Bitov's essays.

Bitov left the money behind in London when he disappeared last August. Bitov turned up the next month in Moscow, and told a news conference he was knocked unconscious in Venice, then drugged, and woke up in Britain.

He said the situation was "very, very odd. It seems very difficult he will be allowed to keep a large sum which he earned by exposing a lot of the practices of the regime."

Arms talks on Spanish visit agenda

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko of the Soviet Union met for five hours with Spanish officials Thursday.

A spokesman for the Spanish Foreign Ministry said U.S. Soviet nuclear arms talks were among the topics discussed.

Gromyko arrived from Rome on a two-day official visit, the second since Spain — and the Soviet Union — re-established diplomatic relations in 1977.

The Soviet foreign minister met for two hours with Foreign Minister Fernando Moran, following a three-hour lunch given by Prime Minister Felipe Gonzalez.

Ministry spokesman Fernando Schwartz said Gromyko discussed the March 18 nuclear arms reduction talks between the United States and the Soviet Union with Gonzalez and Moran. He said they did not discuss 1985 plans to develop a space-based defense system, popularly known as Star Wars.

Shortly before receiving Gromyko, Gonzalez, Spain's 42-year-old Socialist leader, met for 45 minutes with Gen. Vernon Walters, President Reagan's roving troubleshooter and new ambassador to the United Nations.

Schwartz described the Gromyko-Moran talks as "very informal but involving a very serious exchange of information."

French isles quiet again

ST. PIERRE, St. Pierre-Miquelon (AP) — Peace returned to the capital of these tiny French islands Thursday but the governor, expelled by angry fishery workers, did not.

Prefect — or Governor — Gerard Lefebvre, recalled to Paris for consultations, waited on neighboring Miquelon Island until weather allowed him to cross the 26-mile body of water to Canada en route home.

Sen. Marc Plante, 61, St. Pierre-Miquelon's representative in the French Senate, and Deputy Prefect Pierre Vachon, 57, waited for the governor's return to assist their strikes until a special commission arrives from Paris Monday to try to settle the problem.

Wedding When daughter's there, girlfriend gets back seat

Karl and Earl Miracle

Kaster-Miracle

BUIH — Karl Lynn Kaster became the bride of Carl Earl Miracle in an evening candlelight ceremony Feb. 14 at the Elks Club.

Rev. Gary Benedict officiated. Von Schroeder was pianist and the S.O.S. Quartet, consisting of Sonya Denton, Judy Jagels, Judy Lierman and Yvonne Rohmke, sang.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Lee Kaster, Buhl, and the bridegroom's parents are Margaret C. Miracle, Gilmer, Texas, and Leonard Miracle, Filer.

Marjanne Sharp was maid of honor. Arthur Miracle was best man for his brother, Sam Kaster, brother of the bride, and Guy Kaster, cousin of the bride, ushered and served as candlelighters. Tyson Eggeston was ringbearer.

Special guests were Mrs. Jack Henderson, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kaster, grandparents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bellinger, great-grandparents of the bride, and Mrs. Agnes Pratt, great-great-aunt of the bride.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Clover Lutheran School. Janet Van Patton registered guests and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Blass and B. J. Hansen were in charge of gifts. Jean Hansen served as the bride's assistant.

Serving were Ann Kaster and Mary Ann Balkman, aunts of the bride; Mrs. Deanne Eggeston and Cheryl Blakelee, hostesses; Leri and Tara Jagels and Wendi Lierman.

Following a trip to Dallas, Tex., the couple resides in Twin Falls.

DEAR ABBY: I've been going with a wonderful man for a year and a half, and I am hoping to marry him. We usually get along beautifully, but there is one problem. He's divorced and has a 6-year-old daughter. Leri, who lives with her mother in an adjoining state, "peters out" every third weekend and on occasional holidays. Peter recently acquired a new car with bucket seats, and when Leri is with us, she insists on riding in front with her daddy. That means I have to sit in the back alone.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

I say that as an adult, my place is in front with Peter. He says he sees more of me than he sees of Leri, and I should sit in the back and not make a big deal out of it. I refused to go along with this, but the last straw was when Peter suggested that Leri and I "take turns" sitting in front with him.

How would you handle this?
CAMEL'S BACK
DEAR BACK: I'd quit competing with Leri and quietly plant my bucket in the backseat. If you make a fuss, you'll force Peter to make a choice between you and his daughter. Then you'll find that blood is thicker than water.

basis, I am expected to offer my hand when introductions are made, and thereafter the problem. Most of the men who shake my hand have such firm grips that I have all I can do to keep from screaming with pain. What can I say or do to let these well-meaning macho men know that they do not have to shake hands that hard?

no handshake, please. I have arthritis. Do you help to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how-to-please-and-accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's Booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 3882, Hollywood, Calif.

Kissing replacing handshake

By HARPER'S BAZAAR

Social kissing is replacing the handshake as the polite way to say hello and goodbye at Hollywood cocktail lounges, New York social events and a lot of places in between. No one is safe from social kissing, according to an article in the February issue of Harper's Bazaar, although not everybody approves of it.

Judith Martin, who writes on etiquette as Miss Manners, acknowledges the popularity of the social kiss but warns for a return to the handshake.

"The handshake," she said, "has been devalued by the social kiss, which no two people perform alike and which leaves a lot of lipstick and other confusion in its wake. The social kiss can extend to anybody from your best friend to total strangers, according to some social arbiters. Others disagree."

"I know in Los Angeles they kiss everyone, whether they know the person or not," says Virginia Higgins, who edits the Washington "Green Book" social registry. "In Washington, it happens, too."

"But we're a protocol service (as well as a registry), and we would advise you not to kiss anyone. I just don't think it's proper. Kissing should be between very, very close friends, not mere acquaintances, and certainly not strangers we've met on TV."

Los Angeles society writer Jeanine Stein counters with the view that it's always safe to kiss "your favorite designer and your hairdresser" because "it's the thing to do — and because you're so glad to see them, darling."

"Top motels always air kiss each other," Stein added. "They peck the nose of each other's check and then go back to doing their nails."

Hollywood columnist James Bacon said of the local custom, "Cheek kissing is a greeting for best friends as well as for hostesses you never met before. Bogart and Wayne and all these big movie guys do it. There was nothing sissy about it."

"There's a right way to perform the social kissing rite, according to John Duke, fashion columnist for The New York Times.

Option tax plan stays alive

Sun Valley's local sales tax on line as legislation clears hurdle

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Legislation aimed at Sun Valley's local sales tax and its $500,000 in annual revenues remain alive.

The House Local Government Committee Thursday endorsed a bill intended to correct the state's 1978 resort-cities sales tax law.

The bill now moves to the House floor for a vote. If it passes, it will be referred to the Senate for consideration. Despite the progress, Sun Valley officials express concern that the legislation may get lost or left behind in the hectic final days that typically mark Idaho's legislative sessions.

"We're over another hurdle. There are a lot of hurdles down there to go," Sun Valley Mayor Ruth Lieder said following the committee's vote.

Sun Valley Co. manager Wallace Huffman said that despite the setback served to the committee position, he will continue to lobby in opposition to the proposed curative legislation.

The law under which the city collects its 5 percent "bed-and-booster" tax was found unconstitutional in November by Magic Valley District Judge George Granata who called it an overly broad delegation of the Legislature's taxing authority.

Like that court action, much of the Legislature's deliberations on the issue have pitted the two Sun Valley combatants: the city and the company. And Thursday's hearing before the Local Government Committee was marked by many of the same positions which have been staked out by the opposing sides.

Boise attorney Carl Burke, the company's attorney, distributed a seven-point critique of the bill in which he states the bill is incapable of passing constitutional muster.

"You're permitting the cities to decide who to tax and what to tax—that's a special law," Burke told the committee. "The Idaho Constitution prohibits special laws, he added.

But Sun Valley City Attorney Mark Russell said Burke's testimony was "off base." This is not special legislation, he said, adding, "What is important is that sufficient safeguards are in place so there is no abuse."

Rep. Gary Robbins, R-District, whose district includes the affected Wood River Valley community, asked the committee to remember that Burke's interpretation is exactly the opposite of the conclusion of an Idaho deputy attorney general.

"Go with that," Robbins implored committee members, referring to the legal guidance issued by the attorney general's office.

Four other Idaho resort communities—Ketchum, Lava Hot Springs, McCall, Idaho City—collect a tax under the resort cities law.

Ketchum officials say those cities' option tax revenues are also in jeopardy. If neither the curative legislation nor an Idaho Supreme Court appeal alters the effect of Granata's decision,

DR. BART ADRIAN
A real letdown

Hopes effort meets success

Medical team cancels plans for Ethiopia

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Twin Falls pediatrician and his nurse ready for a trip to Ethiopia as part of a medical team headed for World Vision that they have to stay home.

The Salem, Ore. office of the Northwest Medical Teams had told Dr. Bart Adrian and Cecilia Kimball last Friday that they would be members of a seven-member team heading to Ethiopia March 10. The medical teams are privately funded and sponsored by World Vision, an international Christian service organization.

An official from World Vision said Thursday, however, that the Northwest Medical Team office received the information to applicants too soon.

Adrian, Kimball and five other applicants from Idaho, Oregon and Washington had been recommended to World Vision for approval by the medical team organization, said office manager Wanda Dunn of Salem.

Those solicited were told that World Vision had the final approval, Dunn added, but the organization didn't think World Vision would disapprove its suggested team members, who would remain in Ethiopia for two months.

On Wednesday, the Salem office received word that only one of their recommendations—a Nampan nutritionist—would go to Ethiopia.

The applicants had been advised of their selection prematurely by the Northwest Medical Team office, said Bob Latta, the director of support voluntary services with the World Vision office near Los Angles. The five other applicants were rejected because they did not have the overseas experience required by World Vision.

"Unfortunately, people will suffer because of this," Latta said. "World Vision was not to blame. Adrian and Kimball already had requested time off from their work and started a series of immunizations."

"It was a real letdown. I had spent the whole morning packing my suitcase," Adrian said. "I'm not angry. I still would like to help. I think we could do some good."

Kimball, who works at Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, said she was disappointed.

She said she was more concerned with the group finding enough applicants who meet the requirements.

The Northwest Medical Team office did say it would look to other agencies to determine if their services can be used either in Ethiopia or elsewhere, said Adrian, who had been looking for an opportunity to serve in a foreign country.

Ron Post, the director of the medical teams, said he didn't have all the information yet, but it appears officials did leak the news too soon.

"We were devastated," Dunn said about the rejections.

Post said he had proposed to World Vision to get some people with no overseas experience along with experienced people on the teams, but World Vision rejected the idea.

Latta said this was not the case of premature publicity by the Oregon-based organization. It also occurred with the first team member.

IPUC lets private utilities off the cogeneration-cost hook

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

BOISE — Private utilities should not have to pick up the tab for electricity that the federal Bonneville Power Administration won't buy, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission says.

The state agency Wednesday freed the five major electric companies operating in Idaho from obligations to purchase power from small generating plants in areas served by the BPA. The PUC's order extends over the next year.

State regulators are angry over the BPA's current moratorium on buying power from small cogeneration plants, such as hydroelectric stations or geothermal facilities.

The commission says the BPA's stance forces private utilities and their customers to absorb all the costs of cogeneration in Idaho.

Under federal law, utilities must purchase the output of small plants at rates set by state regulating agencies.

"The commissioners say that the BPA and its customers ought to abide by the PURPA (1978 Public Utilities Regulatory Policy Act) law," says spokeswoman Dana Howard.

However, that law clashes with the Northwest Power Planning Act, which was enacted later and governs BPA policy, says Gary Fuqua, director of the agency's Division of Power Resources Planning.

"The original act requires that Bonneville Power Administration purchase cost-effective resources... no matter what the state or Idaho says," he says. The federal agency, which markets power, can't justify buying from small producers now because of a region-wide surplus.

"We can't go off just spending the ratepayers' money," Fuqua says.

The BPA also cannot justify paying anywhere near the price for cogenerated power set by the PUC, he says. The price for a 35-year contract, the normal term, is 7.8 cents per kilowatt-hour.

The BPA has picked up the tab for only one plant since its law went into effect and the agency is paying less than half that rate, Fuqua said.

The PUC's moratorium could slow down and, if extended, it could halt development of small power plants in areas served by the BPA.

The Magic Valley cities of Heyburn, Burley, Declo, Albion, Minidoka and Rupert have municipal plants under BPA jurisdiction.

Several southern and eastern Idaho cooperatives, such as the Snake River Electric Association Inc., Raft River Electric Co-op Inc., Rural Electric Co. and Salmon River Electric Co-op, also are involved.

The U.S. Department of Energy's Raft River Geothermal Project near Malta may suffer some effects, says Howard. The Warm Springs Ranch hydroelectric project near Challis in the Salmon River Rural Electric Co-op was exempted—and its owners are negotiating with Utah Power and Light Co. As a result of earlier hearings by the PUC, several other projects already under way will not be damaged by its year-long order.

BUIH — On April 2, Buhl School District residents will be voting on a $175,000 maintenance and operations override levy to cure the school district's need to repair school buildings.

At a meeting Wednesday night, the school board voted unanimously to ask for the one-year override levy that will require a simple majority for passage.

Earlier this month, the board set the April date to vote on a plant facilities levy of $95,000 a year for five or eight years that would have required a two-thirds majority to pass.

But Superintendent Gus Spiropoulos recommended Wednesday that the board forget about a continuing plant facilities levy and just ask for the one-time maintenance and operations override levy to cure the school district's need to repair school buildings.

"Now I know I'm coming at you cold on this, but I've been thinking about it," the superintendent told the board members.

"The fact of the matter is the $95,000 is just not going to be sufficient for this school district to operate next year," he said. "It's not enough for our school district's financial problems."

"But $175,000 would be a shot in the arm for the Buhl School District," he said.

Jerome boy found safe after night-long search

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES

JEROME — An 8-year-old Jerome boy who became the object of an extensive search in Jerome County Wednesday night was safe Thursday after Sheriff Eliza Hall found him huddled in a borrow pit, five miles west and 2 1/2 miles north of town shortly after midnight.

The child, Lon Bunker, son of Lois Bunker, was reported missing about 8 p.m. and was not found until 10 minutes after midnight.

Deputy Deane Moore said the boy was riding his bicycle to the Ed Stockton home southwest of Jerome and apparently became lost.

A sister of the child said Thursday that the little boy went looking for his lost dog after school and his mother told him he could then go to the Stockton home. The Stocktons are friends of the Bunkers.

Officers said apparently the child took a wrong turn and instead of going on the Bob Barton Highway where the Stocktons live, he traveled straight west. He then rode around on his bicycle for several hours before crawling into some brush in this borrow pit where he was found by the sheriff.

After radio and television stations broadcast the missing child report, the Jerome sheriff's office received calls from an area of several miles saying a small child had been seen. Hall, who was following up a call reporting the most recent sighting, spotted the child and his bicycle in the borrow pit.

Moore said the child had been told not to ride with strangers and refused several offers from passing motorists.

He agreed to ride with the sheriff only after Hall said he could bring his bicycle in the county vehicle.

Hall said the child was not dressed warmly and might not have survived the night temperatures if he had not been found. The boy's sister said he stayed home from school Thursday to recover from the ordeal but was fine after a dip in a hot tub.

She added that the missing dog was also found.

Small drives on undeveloped land receive OK

By ANNETTE CARY

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls City Planning and Zoning Commission approved an ordinance amendment Tuesday that would allow construction of small, private drives in subdivisions in the hopes of developing unused property.

The commission recently appointed a committee to discuss the 20-25 percent of the land within the city—usually called in-fill property—that is vacant. The organization of the committee was prompted by a step backwards in the commission's efforts to develop in-fill property.

At a Jan. 21 council meeting, the city denied approval of final plats of Natasha Ann Subdivision and Three Fountains Subdivision when neighbors of Natasha Ann found a loophole in the law.

Lyle Frazier of Rain Tree Enterprises told the commission that five years ago the commission had faced a similar problem and thought it had clarified the ordinance to allow private drives in parcels too small for normal subdivisions.

Private streets are not allowed in subdivisions, but the issue is confused because the city code does not differentiate between what is a drive and what

Two hurt in 1-84 truck wreck

GOODING — A Texas truck driver was hurt in a collision, while his passenger was listed as serious Thursday after suffering injuries Wednesday night in a wreck near Wendell.

Gooding County Sheriff's officers said Thursday that the accident occurred about 9 p.m., one-half mile west of the Wendell exit of Interstate 84.

The westbound 1983 truck and trailer was driven by Junior Dean Blythe, 43, of Palestine, Texas, officers said. The left front wheel of the vehicle dropped off the edge of the pavement, officers said, and the truck crashed about 370 feet with the tire wheels on the shoulder.

The wheels then hit a section of dirt dirt that pulled both the truck and trailer over on the left side.

Gooding county officials said neither the driver nor the passenger was ejected. Both were transported to Magic Valley Regional Medical Center in Twin Falls by ambulance.

Officers said there was difficulty in making a positive identification of the passenger, but hospital records listed her as Jodi Keller, 23, no address available. Investigation was continuing and no citations had been issued.

The truck, which suffered extensive damage, was hauling produce and was owned by Gene Alexander Inc., also of Palestine, Texas.

Robbery suspect in Florida

TWIN FALLS — A man suspected of robbing the Benjamin Franklin Federal Savings and Loan in Twin Falls last June was arrested Wednesday in Jacksonville, Fla.

The suspect has been identified as John Roger Canoyer and has used several other aliases, Twin Falls FBI agent Frank Childichimo said. Canoyer has been charged with at least 10 bank robberies and there may be more.

Canoyer was not the suspect's real name, but FBI agents are trying to determine who he is, Childichimo said.

The agent had few details of the arrest except that the suspect was in custody.

The Twin Falls savings and loan at 1040 Shoshone St. E. was robbed June 21 by a lone gunman who entered through the back door. The amount of money taken was not disclosed. A suspected getaway car was recovered in Jackson.

From identification in the car, the FBI tracked Canoyer to Arizona and ultimately to Florida, Childichimo said.

Mobile home gutted by blaze

TWIN FALLS — The rear portion of a mobile home at the Caswell Mobile Home Courts was gutted by fire Thursday night and heavy smoke and damage spread throughout the structure.

The home at 281 Caswell Ave. W. is owned by Judith M. Cox. Fire started on one wall in the home when the fire alarm sounded, Cox said. She was in the home when she returned. The amount of money taken at the scene is $3,330.

Battalion Chief Wayne Campbell said it appeared the fire started in a utility room around the washer and dryer and was confined to the utility room and rear bedrooms. He said the exact cause had not been determined. He remained on scene until investigation late Thursday night.

Campbell said the nothing was removed from the home and (junk) as well as the entire interior suffered smoke and water damage. However, Campbell was unable to give a damage estimate until further examination is made. He said the engine companies with the fire answered the alarm and the last engine company left the scene shortly after 10:30 p.m.

Kids to 'jump rope for Heart'

GOODING — The public invited to water children "jump rope for Heart" at 9 a.m. Saturday in the Gooding Junior High School gymnasium. Elementary and Junior high students have raised pledges for the length of time they will jump rope, with proceeds going to the Heart Fund.

The event is sponsored by the Idaho Alliance for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance, according to Donna Pence, Gooding junior high physical education teacher.

Anti-nuclear meeting Sunday

TWIN FALLS — The Fellowship of Reconciliation will sponsor a public meeting Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in the United Methodist Church in Twin Falls for a report on fallout from nuclear tests in the Nevada desert.

Speakers include Adn Sanchez, former coordinator for the Supporters of Siltwood, a nationwide campaign to expose the death of Karen Silkwood, a nuclear killing, and Ken Nightingale, former staff member of the Livermore Action group, which helped organize the events at the Livermore nuclear weapons lab where more than 3,000 demonstrators were arrested.

The two speakers are currently on tour through seven Western states. They will discuss the effects of nuclear testing in the United States but with emphasis on the neighboring Nevada tests.

Mead elected to board post

TWIN FALLS — David Mead of Twin Falls has been elected secretary of the state Board of Health and Welfare.

Mead is a bank officer with Idaho First National Bank. He was appointed by Gov. John Evans to the board in July.

The board approves rules and regulations for the State Department of Health and Welfare and advises the director of the department.

Cyanide remains at Elk City

ELK CITY (AP) — A Nebraska-based company has spent more than $250,000 to clean up cyanide contamination at Elk City, but too much of the chemical remains to allow the site to be closed, yet, state officials say.

"Cyanide concentrations are still approximately 100 times greater than that allowable before the site may be formally closed," said John Moeller, Division of Environmental Protection.

The site was to have been permanently closed last October, but cleanup efforts are still under way, Moeller said.

Clark Fork pollution studied

BOISE (AP) — The Division of Environment has initiated water quality studies for the Clark Fork River and Lake Pend Oreille to see if a Montana decision is causing harm.

Jerome sheriff's visitation limits raise ire of newspaper's publisher

JEROME (AP) — Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall is making "second-class citizens" out of reporters by setting different visitation standards for the press and average citizens, publisher of the North Side News said.

Publishers Gordon Gassman said he is considering filing a discrimination lawsuit in federal court over the policy.

"I'm not against the press," Hall said. "I'm not against the North Side News."

Hall said any reporter over the age of 18 can visit prisoners in the jail, except members of the press. "If I let one reporter in, I have to let everyone in," said Hall, explaining he would consider allowing reporters to visit prisoners a security risk.

Gassman said jail officials have cited security and a desire to not cause publicity in sending criminal cases as reasons for the policy.

The North Side News earlier this week filed a suit asking that the sheriff be ordered to allow a reporter to be allowed to talk to a reporter. District Court Judge Phil Becker denied that request, saying Idaho state law allows a sheriff to set visitation policies in a county jail, according to Attorney Greg Fuller, said that.

Parents from southeast Twin Falls ready to oppose redistricting plan

TWIN FALLS — Southeast Twin Falls parents are organizing to oppose the elementary school redistricting plan that has been recommended to the Twin Falls School Board.

At a Thursday night meeting in the school auditorium, southeast Twin Falls children to road 3400 North and Eastland Avenue, a group of about 44 school patrons appointed a five-member committee to represent them at the school board hearing scheduled for Monday.

In a straw vote to direct the committee's efforts, 22 of the 43 people voting said they favored the plan that would send their children to Bickel Elementary School over the recommended plan that would send their children to Lincoln Elementary School.

District elementary principals have recommended the plan that would send southeast Twin Falls children to Lincoln.

The main issues discussed by parents at the meeting were the amount of time children will have to spend on school buses, whether moving to Lincoln will also mean a move to Rockwood Junior High School, and the increased cost of new bus routes that will go with new elementary school district boundaries.

Members of the committee will be John Cluff, Dave Sommer, Bob Martin, Jerry Dickard and Leah Downing.

Cluff said the group of southeast Twin Falls parents could support the plan that the school board can demonstrate is the least costly.

The committee was directed to present a proposal to the board at the March 5 hearing in keeping with the group's vote in favor of the plan that would send southeast Twin Falls students to Bickel instead of Lincoln.

Cluff said the committee will meet Monday night.

Latta said. It is difficult to work in medical team, which left earlier this year in a different country such as Ethiopia.

In that case, the Northwest Medical team office already had announced before World Vision had the opportunity to review the applicants, Latta said.

Because it would have been "disastrous" otherwise, World Vision allowed the team to go to Ethiopia despite the fact that few of the team members had never worked overseas, Latta added.

"We were backed into a corner and agreed to accept," Latta said.

Fortunately, the team members worked out well, he said.

The seven members of the second medical team would have been replacements for some of the original team members.

World Vision was strict about its requirement of overseas experience.

The news of the rejection still hit hard.

"We were shocked by it," said Dr. Kenneth Pearsall, the Idaho coordinator of the medical team project.

"We're members of the Idaho delegation of great people. Something is fouled up."

Because of the requirement change, the Northwest Medical team will have to begin recruitment all over again, Pearsall said.

The new requirement of overseas experience will cut down on the number of applicants for future teams, added Pearsall.

Latta said he didn't know how the second premature release would affect World Vision's relationship with the Northwest Medical Team, who had expressed his sorrow for those who were told they would be part of the team.

"I wish it was otherwise."

Levy

Since the school district will not be getting enough money from the state to operate, Spiropoulos said.

Since a maintenance and operations override levy has no restrictions on how it can be spent, part of any left-over money can also be used for instructional materials, he said.

The superintendent estimated that the override levy will cost taxpayers approximately 53 cents per $100 of assessed property value which would show up as 10 cents per $100 more than the current tax.

As residents are already paying 7 cents per $100 on an existing override levy that will expire.

Although the board will ask for $175,000, the superintendent said that asbestos abatement and replacing the middle school's boiler for as much as $30,000 or overhauling it for $100,000 would be the cost.

This suggested amendment would change the law to allow drives for private access to subdivided property if the driveways are not longer than 300 feet.

Don Coates, who owns the land, Natasha Ann Subdivision was planned on a 10-acre lot without approval of the amendment his land would remain a weed patch. He had planned to split his land on the 1900 block of Heyburn Avenue East into three parcels with a private lane to reach five acres on the west end.

Neighbors complained because the amendment was spreading beyond city limits when there are still low-density area with sewer street systems and other city infrastructures not being used as heavily as was planned when they were built.

The city still has quite a bit of open land around Robert Stuart Junior High, and a new subdivision. The city planning director, Thomas, is a problem with irregularly shaped lots in older neighborhoods on the East side of the city, he says.

Some have houses built at the front of 80-foot wide lots, but much of the lot that extends 300 feet in the back is unused.

Other cities have granted variances or waived fees to encourage development of infill property, Orton says.

Minico, Bruins begin district battle tonight

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS—Minico Coach Craig Dexter will try to work his team magic one more time this weekend as he leads his Spartans against the Twin Falls Bruins for the final Fourth District Class A boys basketball championship.

Amid rumors Dexter will join the staff of Lynn-Archipald at University of Utah next year to help with the Utes and continue his education, the Spartans will meet the Bruins at 8 tonight on the Bruin home court as the teams begin their quest for the state tournament in the Magic Valley in the state capital of Boise March 12-16.

Dexter said "no comment" concerning the report.

The second game will be played at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Rupert and, if a third is required, it will return to Twin Falls on March 3.

sophomores will play preliminary games beginning at 6:15 each night. Fans of both schools are reminded that student activity last two weeks. Last week they played and season tickets are not honored at district playoffs.

The fact that Twin Falls has won five of the last six regular season meetings only emphasizes Dexter and Minico's ability to play when the chips are down because they've gone 10-1 in the state tournament. Two of those three years, and neither coach gives a lot of credit to help with the Utes and continue his education, the Spartans will meet the Bruins at 8 tonight on the Bruin home court as the teams begin their quest for the state tournament in the Magic Valley in the state capital of Boise March 12-16.

Dexter said "no comment" concerning the report.

The second game will be played at 8 p.m. Tuesday in Rupert and, if a third is required, it will return to Twin Falls on March 3.

"They obviously are playing very well right now. They've increased their scoring in the last two weeks. Last week they played excellent close and beat Idaho Falls, which I consider to be a good team. The thing we didn't like to see was that (senior) Brad Croft scored well in both those games and (Jack Bagley and) Steve Garland complemented his scoring with 12 and 14-point efforts."

Astorquin says there are no secrets to beating the Spartans.

"We've got to stop Croft as best we can. He is averaging 23.6 points per game and he remains the key for us. It's the same thing. You try to control him because you can't stop him. A big thing there is to prevent him from getting the second shots." Astorquin.com www.astroquin.com

"Last time (the teams played) I felt both teams played weak, so it's hard to go by that," he continues. "They had 18 and we had 10 at halftime. I don't think that's going to hold up this time. I think the first three minutes of the game will be critical for us. We have to be composed and not turn the ball over five or six times like the last time we played."

For the Bruins, Dexter says "there's no offense, composure and taking care of the ball," he says.

"I definitely know they've beaten us twice and they are probably favored by a landslide to go to state, but we will show up," he promises.

The champion will go against the panhandle district champion—Coeur d'Alene State on Lewiston—in the first round at state and then meet the winner of the Third District championship district title game team game winner. In the second, The Boise area finals already are down to Borah and Boise-Lewiston. The No. 1 ranked team in the north, last 14 players for disciplinary reasons earlier this year.

"It looks like a year this district's entry could pick up a win," Astorquin admits.

"Playing totally in the Sawtooth Football Conference and Northside Conference in all other sports and being placed in the Northside-sub-district basketball, volleyball and track playoffs.

• Elevating its football program to 11-man and joining the Southside Conference and playing in the southside-sub-district basketball, volleyball and track playoffs.

• Dropping its football program and retaining membership in the Canyon Conference and playing in the northside-sub-district in playoff sports. (This option has not been officially responded to by the A-3 alignment.)

Northside Conference officials noted that if Shoshone were assigned to its alignment, it must be total complete with home-and-home basketball and volleyball regular-season schedules. The A-3 Conference of an independent schedule would amount to a distinct competitive advantage at playoff time.

The Magic Valley Conference said it would accept Shoshone only on the proviso it elevate its football to its many status. At the end of the session, however, Magic Valley Conference President Barry J. Hansen said his alignment was "officially withdrawing its invitation to the Indians.

Shoshone representatives said they would take the decision to the district board for further review. Dr. Rich Bausher, Kimberly district board chairman, said he anticipated a final decision within the next week to 10 days.

Indians subdue Gooding

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

WENDELL—The Shoshone Indians turned on the burners in the second half and placed themselves in the A-3 State Tournament with a 61-52 victory over the Gooding Senators in the District 4 A-3 boys basketball tournament Thursday night.

Gooding still has a chance to reach state. The Senators will meet the second-place team from the

A-3 District Tourney

District 3 in Mountain Home Saturday at 8 p.m. for a state berth.

The Indians, trailing by one at the half, opened up an 18-point lead in the third quarter and never looked back.

Once again, Doran Duffin was the leading scorer popping in a game-high 22 points while Charles Sandy added 16.

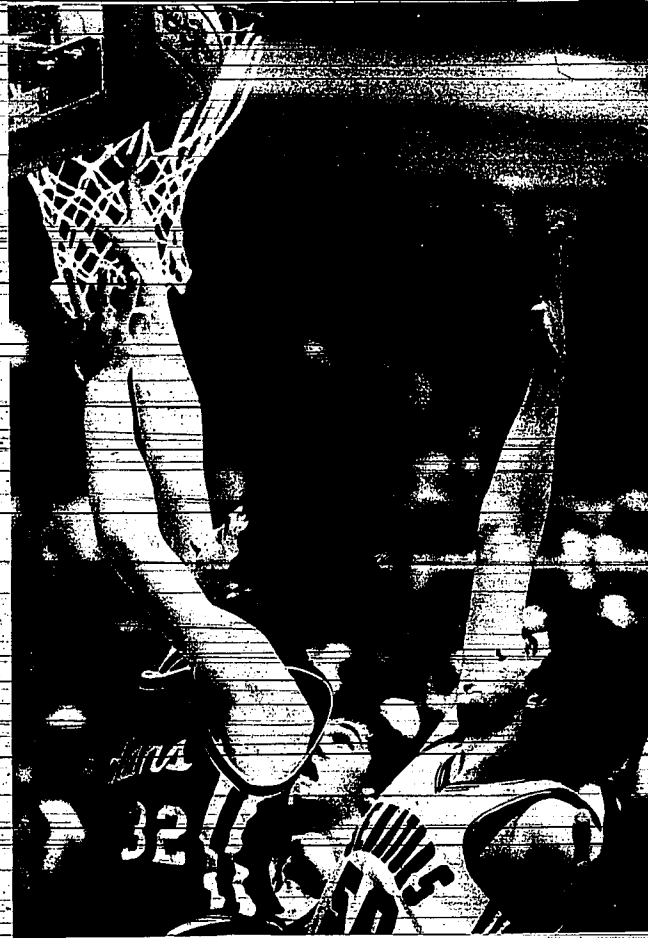

But to Duffin, it didn't matter if he scored 2 or 22 points.

"It doesn't matter how many I get as long as we win," said the 6-4 senior. "We wanted to win and we weren't going to be denied."

(Things looked pretty bleak for the No. 2 Indians in the first quarter as Gooding built up an eight-point lead six minutes into the game. Seven of the Senators' 10 first quarter points belonged to Bob Sims. The 6-6 junior led the Senators with 18 points.

In the second quarter Duffin and Sandy scored on back-to-back baskets and the Indians had tied the score 22-23 with five minutes left in the half.

On the next trip down the court, Kelly Duffin tied up Swen Swenson under the Senators basket. On the ensuing jump ball, the 6-4 sophomore out-jumped Gooding's 6-4 big man. After Shoshone drove the ball down the court, Kelly Duffin

Shoshone's future on hold

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

JEROME—The decision on Shoshone's athletic future—within fairly well established guidelines—has been put back in the hands of that district's board of education.

After hearing from representatives from all affected schools and input from state and other district officials, the Fourth District Activities board of control delayed any final decision Thursday pending a last review by the Shoshone district.

By and large, however, Shoshone's options of conference affiliation are directly tied to its changes in football—eight-man, 11-man or abandoning the program.

Shoshone's current plight began five years ago when a major turnout forced it to cancel its football season. It returned as an eight-man program and attained the state finals last fall.

At the same time, its enrollment, dropping well below the 150-student (top four grades) level for A-3 classification, resulted in the state denying a third three-year petition to remain in the upper category in all but football.

Shoshone expressed an interest in maintaining A-3 competition within its district. The Canyon Conference and competing in eight-man football as a member of the Sawtooth Conference. The latter was approved by the state board which then left the final decision to other conference affiliation up to the fourth district board.

At Thursday's meetings, it appeared Shoshone's options revolve largely around three possibilities:

• Playing totally in the Sawtooth Football Conference and Northside Conference in all other sports and being placed in the Northside-sub-district basketball, volleyball and track playoffs.

• Elevating its football program to 11-man and joining the Southside Conference and playing in the southside-sub-district basketball, volleyball and track playoffs.

• Dropping its football program and retaining membership in the Canyon Conference and playing in the northside-sub-district in playoff sports. (This option has not been officially responded to by the A-3 alignment.)

Northside Conference officials noted that if Shoshone were assigned to its alignment, it must be total complete with home-and-home basketball and volleyball regular-season schedules. The A-3 Conference of an independent schedule would amount to a distinct competitive advantage at playoff time.

The Magic Valley Conference said it would accept Shoshone only on the proviso it elevate its football to its many status. At the end of the session, however, Magic Valley Conference President Barry J. Hansen said his alignment was "officially withdrawing its invitation to the Indians.

Shoshone representatives said they would take the decision to the district board for further review. Dr. Rich Bausher, Kimberly district board chairman, said he anticipated a final decision within the next week to 10 days.

An Olympic break for younger pros?

CALGARY, Alberta (AP)—Professional hockey, tennis and soccer players under the age of 23 could compete in the 1988 Olympics under a proposal approved Thursday by the International Olympic Committee's executive board.

Juan Antonio Samaranch, the IOC president, in announcing the decision by the nine-member governing group, said the Olympic Games in Olympic regulations was experimental.

"This decision is only for 1988," he said. "After 1988 we will see. The Olympic movement must go with the times."

The proposal must be ratified by the IOC's 91 members at their June meeting East Berlin, but that is considered a formality.

That is not the case, however, for those National Hockey League players who would be young enough for himself and not to same. The IOC's in Calgary.

They would have to gain approval from their teams, which considered it unlikely since the league will be in mid-season during the Feb. 13-28 amateur Games.

"I'd be surprised if any player on a regular roster would play in the Olympics," NHL president John Ziegler said. "Players will be expected to honor their NHL contracts."

The International sports federation for hockey, soccer and tennis had recommended "new guidelines" stating that players under 23 be placed their 23rd birthday by opening day of the 1988 Winter Games be allowed to compete.

Eligibility for the tennis exhibition at the 1984 Los Angeles Games was limited to players 20 years old and younger, regardless of whether they were professional.

Bill Simon, former president of the USOC, felt the IOC executives did not go far enough. "I'm not surprised that the IOC continues not to be able to take the whole area of eligibility for the Olympic Games," he said. "We saw what when they had this silly eligibility rule for tennis players setting it as the criteria for professional versus amateur."

Oakley wins; Castleford earns another chance

By LARRY HOVEY

JEROME—Oakley took the district title and Castleford won the "second chance" playoff right as the Fourth District A-3 boys basketball tournament ended Thursday night.

Oakley, exploding away on three Corey Woodhouse three-point goals in the early 11th quarter, downed Bills 49-30 to settle the championship and determine the "host" role in the state A-2 and A-4 tournaments in Twin Falls next weekend.

A-4 District Tourney

Thursday's games:
Castleford 60, Oakley 49
Oakley 49, Bills 30 (Castleford advances to playoff)
Oakley 49, Bills 30 (up to state)

Earlier, Castleford, intimidating ball to the middle against this team with a full-court trap defense, dropped the young Dietrich-Blue Devils to 76-60 and will advance to a 6:30 p.m. Saturday playoff against the third-place third-place team in Mountain Home. The winner of that game will fill the eighth spot in the state bracket.

Oakley 49, Bills 30
"Shoot the ball, just shoot the ball," was the last thing Oakley Coach Noel Wyatt told his charges before returning them to the floor for the second half against Bills. "You can't take the Don't try. Stop and shoot the ball, it's that plain enough?"

To that point, Bills had led much of the time and had limited the usually high-scoring Hornets to a 17-11 point advantage.

In addition to that final basket, Wyatt threw his Hornets into a man defense, a play that was designed for the Hornets' heads-in.

It was a move Bills Coach Jerry Couch had expected—even feared

Wild schoolyard hoops differs sharply from organized ball

Organization, sportsmanship, good clean fun. Those are some of the outstanding qualities on display during district basketball tournaments.

Such events almost make you forget the basketball of youth, when anarchy replaced organization, cheating came before sportsmanship and the only things good and clean about the way you played were your sneakers.

You almost forget. But not quite.

No referees were around, for instance, when we gathered to play a rough game called "hoops up." "Body!" It should be mentioned immediately, served as a childhood euphemism for "rear end" in booties up. It was every sadist for himself. The player with the boot called out one of the others to guard him. If the offensive player made the shot, the beaten defender had to lean against the basket support with his back turned toward the court. The victorious offensive player then stood at the free-throw line and had the singular privilege of throwing the ball as hard as he could at the target's well, body.

Fights often ensued whenever the target received a ball in the back of his head instead of the buttocks. Otherwise, retaliation seldom occurred. Like Russian roulette, booties up required that everybody know what he was getting into.

A similar yet less injurious game was "put-out." Again the player with the ball would appoint a defender. If a basket was scored, the defender was banished to the sidelines. These affairs weren't as brutal as brief 15-minute recess, yet you definitely used your best offensive moves and played your best defense. Nobody wanted to sit out any of the recess; more importantly, nobody wished to get "faced."

Of course, we didn't call it "put-out." The word "put" was replaced by a four-letter word which begins with "p," ends in "st" and defines the act of urinating.

For sheer perversion, however, nothing topped "dirty hunch."

"Dirty hunch. Sounds like a movie title, and definitely rated X" for the wanton violence it featured.

"Prin old" hunch" was merely an extension of one-on-one. Anywhere from three to a dozen people might participate, each scoring for himself and not to team. Meanwhile, rules couldn't be broken in dirty hunch, simply because there were no rules to break. Only bones.

You could do anything you wanted in dirty hunch when you had the basketball. You could double-dribble and shoot with the ball as if it were a football. You had to run fast, however, because your opponents were allowed to hit you, talk about running a gamut. Only the biggest, strongest and most masochistic guys ever wanted the ball in dirty hunch.

"Dirty hunch was a mixture of kickboxing, and soccer, a product of a sadly twisted mind. No foul play was to be tolerated. To play was to be labeled "critical." Dirty hunch drove you into the library than teachers ever could.

Nor is high school basketball always pristine. Fights intermittently break out. Spectators sometimes riot and coaches occasionally commit shameful acts. Such events make people doubt the value of scholastic sports.

But there's nothing to worry about until Twin Falls plays Minico in booties up or Kimberly confronts Filer in dirty hunch. When that happens, we'll know we're on a collision course with perdition.

ISU closes campaign by entertaining Vandals, Boise State

By CHRIS HART
Times-News writer

WAYNE BALLARD
Hopes Bengals can pass BSU

PGOATTELLO - If you can get excited about things like in-state bragging rights and the difference between the sixth and seventh places, then coaches and Boise State's visits to Idaho State this weekend will prove stimulating.

From the rivalry standpoint, the confrontations with the Vandals Friday night and against the Broncos Saturday evening at the Minidome mean quite a bit to ISU, 11-17 overall.

The Bengals will be seeking to erase an earlier embarrassment in the game against Idaho, they lost to the Vandals 95-69 Feb. 3. Losing Idaho this weekend would be a "rubber match," since the Broncos beat ISU in last December's Gem State Classic while the Bengals triumphed 79-71 in Boise in league play Feb. 1. "It's a very big weekend for us," ISU Coach Wayne Ballard said.

With a 9-4 conference record, seventh-place ISU hopes to surpass the sixth-place Broncos, who stand 4-8 in the Big Sky and 14-11 overall. The seventh-place team will face the second-place squad in next week's co-conference tournament, while the sixth-place (fisher will meet the No. 2 team.

Considering the logjam at the top of the standings between Nevada State (10-3), Montana (9-4) and Weber State (10-4), finishing sixth or seventh might not make much difference — the tournament opposition will be tougher either way. However, one can never overlook pride.

"They (the Bengals) have a chance to prove in the standings, so that'll be great motivation for them," BSU assistant Coach Richard Ryder said.

Idaho thoroughly dominated the Bengals in their initial meeting. The Vandals, outlast ISU 59 percent to 35 and enjoyed a 68-37 rebounding advantage. We got away from them early and they couldn't close the gap early," Idaho Coach Bill Trumbo said. Frank Garza led five Vandals in double-figure scoring with 20 points and added 15 rebounds.

"He had four or five three-pointers. We thought we were paying him extra attention last time but we didn't," Ballard said of Garza, a 6-6 senior forward. "We can't let him just turn around and square up and shoot."

But Idaho, 8-4 overall and 1-11 in conference, will not produce a top guard. Tim Spears (114.2 points per game) is suffering from a leg stress fracture. "He could play with it, but it's painful," said Trumbo, who will have Spears for next week's journey. "The doctor thinks if we wait a week, there's no chance it will result in further injury."

Without being pessimistic, Trumbo says Idaho will generate another rout. "I think it will be a closer game," he said. "We have to limit (Dom) Ballard's year-over-year performance. They're stalwarts and the strengths of their offense are in their hands."

Against BSU, Ballard said a decisive factor should be how well the Bengals year-over-year performance. Frank Jackson, in BSU's 69-54 victory in the Gem State Classic finals, collected 24 points, seven rebounds, five assists and three steals. "If you could explain it, you could solve it. It's due in a large part to their excellent homecourt advantage in the Minidome."

To illustrate ISU's potential, Ryder noted that ISU nearly upset second-place Montana in Nevada last Friday, 63-62. "That's not something that's done with great regularity here," he pointed out.

Ryder added that the simple yet in-languid element of desire could prove telling.

"The first time, we came out very determined and played a very good second half," he recalled. "I think the next time they just turned the tables. They were determined they were not going to be beat again."

Before facing ISU, the Broncos must confront Weber State Friday. Idaho then will meet the Wildcats Saturday. In other Big Sky finales Saturday, Montana State visits Montana and Nevada-Reno travels to Northern Arizona.

Legislator wants Knight censured

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A state legislator, who said he was fed up with Bobby Knight's temper tantrums, said Thursday he wants his Indiana House colleagues to join him in a move to censure the Hoosier basketball coach.

Rep. Dean R. Mock said he prepared the Knight censure a month ago "and I was just waiting for another incident. I knew I wouldn't have to wait long. This chair-throwing incident was a dandy."

He said he probably wouldn't introduce the resolution until next week.

"I don't see how anybody can vote against it. If they do, it means they're for sportsmanlike conduct," he said.

Mock, who runs television sales and service business in Elkhart, describes himself as a "sportsman."

He said that when he played varsity basketball at North Webster High School in the 1940s, "I was always drilled into me that it's not whether you win or lose but how you play the game."

He wants the House to flip in since Indiana University has said it wouldn't discipline Knight for flinging a chair across the court in Bloomington last Saturday to protest officiating during the 1984 game with Purdue, 11-10. The Big Ten in the game '78, the Big Ten is still investigating the incident.

"We can't condone stuff like that in a state-supported university that's supposed to be a model for our young people," the Republican legislator said. "If the pressures have caused him to lose his cool, then he should take some time off."

Detroit nips No. 4 Memphis State; Toolson tallies 19 but BYU loses

DETROIT (AP) — Greg Wendt scored 23 points and Keith Gray added 21 as Detroit, an 11-time loser, stunned fourth-ranked Memphis State 71-68 Thursday night.

Detroit, now 16-11, led 41-29 at halftime, then withstood a strong Memphis State rally in the second half. The loss dropped Memphis State, the Metro Conference regular-season champion, to 23-3.

The Tigers were within 57-55 after Keith Lee made a free throw with four minutes to play.

Detroit, however, got a field goal and free throw from Wendt and a field goal by Kevin McAdoo to build a 62-55 lead with 2:11 to play.

minutes and enabled No. 11 Kansas to post a 76-61 victory over the Huskers Thursday night in Big Ten Conference action.

The Jayhawks, who have already clinched second place behind Oklahoma in the league race, never were able to pull away from the underdog visitors. Nebraska, led by 6-foot-11 Dave Hoppen, closed within 59-55 with 5:44 remaining on a three-point play by the center.

But the 6-11 Manning, who set a Kansas freshman scoring record, hit a 10-footer to make it 61-55.

Wyoming 78, BYU 66

LARAMIE, Wyo. (AP) — Guard Les Bolden scored 19 points to lead Wyoming to a 78-66 victory over Brigham Young University in Western Athletic Conference action Thursday.

Wyoming Cowboy Forward Fennis Dembo aided in the victory with 17 points and 12 rebounds even with a bad ankle.

Guard Andy Tomson, the ex-Twin Falls star, had 19 and forward Timo Saarelainen, the WAC's leading scorer, had 15 points for BYU.

A five-point burst by Wyoming after a 31-31 halftime score set the stage for the rest of the game.

Washington 60, Arizona 58

SEATTLE (AP) — Dettle Schrempf scored 17 points and grabbed 12 rebounds Thursday night in leading Washington to a 60-58 Pac-10 conference basketball victory over No. 19 Arizona.

Arizona forward Eddie Smith, who led the Wildcats with 10 points, was at the free throw line with one second to play. He threw the ball off the backboard in an attempt to get it to a teammate for a possible tying basket, but Washington's Kevin Vidola foiled the strategy by catching the ball as time expired.

Michigan 88, Wisconsin 68

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Michigan's Roy Tarpley scored 21 points Thursday night and led a second-half surge that carried the U-M-ranked Wolverines to an 88-68 victory over Wisconsin for the Big Ten championship.

The Wolverines, who tied a 20-year-old school record by winning their 31st straight game, improved to 13-2 in the Big Ten and 23-3 overall.

Utah 60, Air Force 59

AIR FORCE ACADEMY, Colo. (AP) — Gale Godzickz funneled in 18 points, including a pair of crucial free throws in the late going, to lead Utah to a 60-59 western conference basketball victory over Air Force Thursday.

Godzickz was seven-for-10 from the line and four-for-four from the line. With the Utah ahead 58-57 and four minutes left, he heaved a pair of free throws to make it 60-57.

Kansas 70, Nebraska 65

LAWRENCE, Kan. (AP) — Danny Manning's scoring and ball-handling held Nebraska at bay in the final minutes of a 70-65 victory over Kansas Thursday.

as he was aware of the first half, while largely controlled by his maneuvering, hadn't resulted in a convincing decision.

"We tried to pull Oakley to sleep in the first half but we couldn't do it," said Coach, who is taking the Bears to state for the second time in five years. "We just didn't do what we came here to do in the second half. The first time down the floor, instead of having the discipline to get to work in our man offense we put up the 16-footer, they got it on the long rebound and went down and hit the 20-footer. That got them rolling."

Bliss started off well, controlling the tempo and building up leads of 6-2 and 9-5 before Oakley pulled back into a tie at the end of the period. But Bliss' shooting eye started deserting in the second quarter when he managed just one field goal — that by Larry Wilkins in the 1:29 mark — but the Bliss defense, and deliberate attack forced enough take-aways and Oakley turnover led the Hornets to a 13-11 half-time lead.

Woodhouse collected two three-pointers to establish a 10-point lead about 70 seconds into the third quarter and Bliss, "which would up hitting just 11 of 44 field goal attempts, was effectively out of it.

Despite the ease of victory, Murphrey took nothing from Dietrich. "That's a pretty young team," he said of the Devils. "It's my old-junior high team when I was over there (coaching) — sixty-graders were in high school days — they're going to be pretty good in another year or two."

Murphrey said he anticipated playing Cascade in Saturday's playoff in Mountain Home, "although I don't know that for certain yet."

Castelforo 76, Dietrich 60
Dietrich starts four sophomores and Castelforo is a war-scarred veteran team. And when Coach Kelly Murphrey turned on the trapping defense, the young Blue Devils had trouble handling it. Before they came close to scoring, the Wolves had a double at 39-16 three minutes into the second quarter and blew that to 30 points in the third quarter before coasting in.

Although Castelforo had a quick 40-16 lead, Dietrich chipped back to a tie but the momentum of the game probably swung on one 15-second span in the mid-first period. Ahead 10-6, Castelforo got a three-point play from Ryan Owen. The Wolves stole the rebounds pass for a Steve Zamora bucket and Dietrich was whistled for a foul away from the ball, returning possession to the Wolves at sidecourt. Owen scored two passes later to explode a 20-16 lead before Dietrich touched the ball.

Giants go off market; owner disdains dome

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Warning the city that it could lose the San Francisco Giants, owner Bob Lurie on Thursday rejected plans to dome Candlestick Park and said he would "take one last look" at other nearby sites before deciding the baseball team's future.

"I feel that I've been patient," Lurie said. "It's time now to fish or cut bait."

Lurie put the Giants up for sale on Oct. 1 to anyone who would keep them in Candlestick after plans for a new downtown stadium fell through.

Potential buyers from more than eight cities around the country approached Lurie during the past year, but he said he was taking them off the market until the end of the 1985 season.

"I don't see the need for a new stadium," Lurie said. "I don't see the need for a new stadium."

Releasing figures a problem?

NEW YORK (AP) — A decision by baseball's 26 club owners to divulge their most closely guarded secrets, individual team finances, may have created a "muzzle" that will take months to solve.

Lee MacPhail, president of the American Baseball Players Committee, said Thursday that the PBA still has not decided how to go about proving to the union that baseball is in trouble.

'Sawtooths' on display

Artworks from Idaho at gallery

By TERRY RICHARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "Sawtooths and Other Ranges of Imagination: Contemporary Art from Idaho," an exhibition recently shown at the Smithsonian Institution is going on display at the Herrett Museum Art Gallery March 5 to April 5. The public is invited to the show opening at 7 p.m. Tuesday.

Art Curator Mike Green says the exhibit "is a different kind of show. It's a survey of art in Idaho...there's a little bit of everything in it as far as variety."

Green says the idea for the exhibit came from Sen. and Mrs. James McClure and is supported by business and individual donations rather than government funding.

The exhibit was organized by Barbara Sussler, curator for the National Museum of American Art at the Smithsonian. Hundreds of Idaho artists were invited to submit slides of their work, and 41 works by 28 artists were ultimately selected for the exhibition.

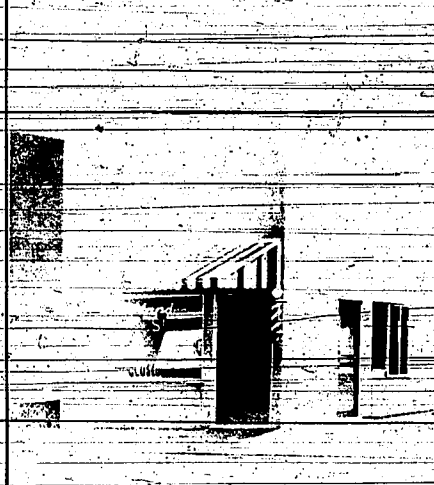

"We chose not only native-born artists, but other artists who live and work in the state as well. We wanted to get the widest variety possible of Idaho art," says Nosalow.

Included in the exhibit are Blaine Billman's "Twin Falls," Billman's "Idaho Travelers," a pen and ink portrait of Canada geese, shows his sensitivity to wildlife.

Billman says "Idaho is what America was — a common slogan here and part of the reason why I chose Idaho as my home. As I roamed its hills

Twin Falls: Blaine Billman has 'Idaho Travelers' (left) on display, while Burley's A.W. Rock Newcomb has 'A.I.'s Shop' included in the 'Sawtooths' show photographing wildlife, I began to share the native American's respect for the spirit and dignity of his fellow creatures. I've been things here that most could never hope to see, and my artwork became my means of sharing them with others," says Billman.

But wildlife art does not dominate the show. Marilyn Hansen, John Killmaster and Alfred C. Dunn use particular regions of the state as their subjects, while works by Bethanne

Andersen, Deborah Haynes, Willard L'Hote and Cheryl Shurtliff represent particular inner-cities. Cathy Sher and David Cress find their artistic origins in history, bringing their own interpretations to it. People are the subjects of works by David Althart, Judith Lombardi and Julie Wawirka, each capturing a particular characteristic of his or her subject. Max Peter and Lorna Obermayer create and manipulate handmade paper while Connie McGinley adds paint and string to paper to form intricate patterns. Filling out the three-gallery display are works of Idaho artists Catherine Collins; Robert R. Auth, Judith A. Cook, Scott Fife, Roderick H. Kagan, William B. Klein, Mark S. Lee, Michael J. Miller, W. Rock Newcomb, Kip Robertson, Russell Rosander, Max Peter and Lorna Obermayer and Duane Schnabel.

Of the display, Nosalow says, "We have limited our selection to the traditional, fine arts of painting, sculpture, drawing, prints and mixed-media. Photography and crafts were deliberately excluded, not because of any prejudice against these media, but simply because all exhibitions must have defining limits, and the inclusion of these media would have made the exhibition unmanageably large."

Nosalow refers to the artists chosen for the exhibition as being "on the cutting edge of their field" and says they broaden the dialogue between the artists and the public. Admission is free to the public while a catalogue of the exhibition and poster are available for $5 each. Museum hours are from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesday; 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 1 to 4:30 p.m. Saturday.

Classical pianist teaching classes

By CAROLYN MILLER
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Pianist Mark Newirth has been teaching master classes in Twin Falls this past week.

A former resident of Kimberly, Newirth recently competed in the regional Young Artist competition held in Twin Falls, sponsored by the National Federation of Music Clubs. He was selected winner and will be attending the national convention in Wichita, Kan., in April. Two years ago Newirth placed third in the same competition at the national level.

The first recipient of the Idaho Federation of Music Clubs Young Artist Scholarship Grant, Newirth has been studying in New York for the past year and has performed as soloist and accompanist on concert as well as having been presented in a solo concert tour of the Northwest by the Community Concert Association.

Newirth is teaching at the request of local piano teacher, Kelly Yost and 13 of Yost's select students have had the opportunity to work with the up and coming pianist.

"Initially the students are worried and frightened about performing before Newirth," says Yost, "but end classes in Twin Falls this past week."

"Yost says students are only as good as what they can hear."

"Being a part of a master class helps teach students to have a discriminating ear, which greatly improves their own playing," says Yost.

"If a student can learn to understand how the artist himself approaches his music, how he thinks..."

"In other words, hear what he hears, they begin to understand the essence of music," says Yost.

"The master class situation exposes students to new ideas and various approaches to preparing and interpreting music," says Newirth.

"Even conflicting ideas and various approaches can be used to advantage by the intelligent combination of disparate musical ideas," says Yost.

'Sure Thing' recalls old movie greats

By LINDA DEUTSCH
The Associated Press

Film review

"The Sure Thing" proves that a classic movie formula can be updated to 1985 tastes and still work. This light and easy comedy about two college kids traveling cross-country stirs memories of Hollywood's great classic, "It Happened One Night."

The story is familiar: Boy meets girl; girl snubs boy; boy gives up; hope of winning girl is lost; fate intervenes; cross-country trek together, quarreling and shouting until suddenly they realize — well, you know the rest.

In this case, the hero and heroine are attractive newcomers, John Cusack and Daphne Zuniga, who convincingly portray the growing pains and ecstasies of youth.

They are Gib and Alison, freshmen at an Eastern college, who meet in writing class. Gib, fresh from a series of clumsy high school failures at wooing women, is looking for love. He sees Alison and is smitten. But she has a

Producers searching for 'Show Boat' costumes

By TERRY RICHARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Taking on one of Broadway's most colorful musical plays, the Magic Valley Allentons have found themselves engaged in an all-out effort to collect costumes for "Show Boat."

The play is slated for March 15 to 17 and 21 to 23 in the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium.

Diligent Vice President Shawna Fuller says the members have been scouring southern Idaho for a month to round up costumes which must represent three separate time periods.

"We've gone through closets at Idaho State University, in Boise, the Twin Falls High School and CSI," she says.

Fuller says the play's entire first act takes place in an 1890 setting, while the second act is split between 1904 and 1927.

"It starts out with the 'bustle' look, then the 'Gibson' look; and on to the 'flapper' style of the 1920s," she says, pointing out that the changes in fashions were "very dramatic."

Playing the major character, Magnolia, Fuller says she has six different costumes and that most of the actors will be changing into four or five in keeping with the period changes.

Also in the spirit of realism, she says that a show boat replica is being constructed in pieces, later to be fastened together on the CSI stage. While real show boats were big floating theaters pushed by steamers — up and down — America's rivers, she says the replica is a two story model on rollers.

Mike Winterholler is in charge of the setting and Linley Freeman has costumeing, Fuller says.

Tickets are now on sale at the Blue Lakes Mall from noon until 6 p.m. General admission is $6; senior citizens and children 12 and under, $3.

Reservations can be made by calling 734-4387. A "FIRST NIGHTER" ticket providing a prime rib dinner, transportation from and back to the Turf Club, and dancing until 1 a.m. March 15, can be purchased for $42 a couple by calling 733-2891.

Tina Turner's sis watches from Idaho

By The Associated Press

REXBURG — Burnette Taylor moved out of Butts, Tenn., about the same time her half-sister did — quarter of a century ago. Today Mrs. Taylor is working to become a Mormon seminary teacher and her half-sister — Tina Turner — is the toast of rock and roll.

It's Tuesday night, and Taylor, 47, sits in her living room watching her estranged sister on TV. Tina Turner quits singing and Taylor sighs.

"She looks a lot like my dad," she says of their father. "She sure doesn't look 45."

Since last summer, Turner has stormed the pop music charts in a remarkable comeback that doesn't surprise Taylor. Hard work is a family trait.

"She puts a lot into her singing and her action," Taylor says. "She's a good entertainer."

Taylor gets up at 3:30 every morning to work at the Ricks college student center in Rexburg. The Mormon Church — which owns the junior college — pays her tuition, and she plans to go on studying theology at Brigham Young University next year.

She hopes to teach seminary for The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints after she graduates.

"As Turner smiles in accepting the Grammy Award for Record of the Year, Taylor's grin is not show-biz perfect, but just as wide.

She remembers the strong point of origin they share — the Spring Hill Baptist Church — when Miss Turner was Anna Mae Bullock.

"She did love to sing. Her first song was 'Yes, Jesus Loves Me.' She was about 9 or 10...I was surprised when she went into rock and roll," Taylor said.

She grew up on a farm owned by her father, James Vaughns and Turner, with her stepfather, Floyd Bullocks, a sharecropper. A fence separated the two farms, and the families' five children picked cotton together.

"They lived comfortably, and it was a happy time," Taylor recalls. They listened to records by Ray Charles, B.B. King and Sam Cooke. They all danced, but Taylor spent more time outside with her father.

"He loved to farm," she says. "He was a good provider. We had cotton, corn, hay, and a truck patch full of green beans, cabbage and watermelon. I was a tomboy. I loved to play and drive the tractor. Mother thought I would never keep a good house," Taylor said.

"The families moved north in the late 1920s. Vaughns sold his farm because of falling health and moved his family to Decatur, Ill.

Anna Mae Bullocks moved to St. Louis, where she met Ike Turner and eventually became Tina. They had their first rhythm and blues hit in 1960, a song called 'A Fool in Love.'"

While her sister toured the Midwest R&B club circuit in high heels and form-fitting dresses, Taylor missed farm life.

"When we lived on the farm, we never had to buy anything. We had a raise there," she says. "In Decatur, people worked every day, and I wasn't used to that."

She adjusted, however, attending puzzle to me how people can be that business college — and beautiful way!"

School. She eventually opened up her own hair dressing parlor.

"Ike and Tina frequently visited Decatur clubs with their revue in the early 1960s. Taylor caught their act and enjoyed it. "I was glad to see them make it," she adds.

But after their father died, the sisters lost touch. Taylor raised her five children, then got a divorce in 1980. She converted to the Mormon Church in 1982.

"Ike and Tina Turner went on to mass popularity in the late 1960s, opening for The Rolling Stones and scoring a smash hit with the song 'Proud Mary.'"

"Their fortunes fell by the mid-1970s, however, and Turner left the act claiming she was tired of Ike's abuse. She divorced him and vanished into a seven-year limbo of supper clubs and convention shows.

"I wonder how Ike feels now," Taylor says, watching her sister accept another Grammy. "He was quiet, didn't talk that much. I would have thought he was very nice. It's a business college — and beautiful way!"

Watercolor contest set

BOISE — The Idaho Watercolor Society is accepting 35mm slides of prospective entries for its sixth annual juried membership exhibition which will be displayed June 16-28 at the Boise Cascade headquarters in Boise.

Frank Webb of Pittsburgh, artist and teacher, will jury the show and winners will be included in the main exhibition. Approximately 20 pieces will be chosen for a traveling show to be displayed in four additional locations throughout Idaho. Slides of entries may be sent to: Dana Rogers, 520 Chino Ave., Boise, 83709, by March 31.

Workshops will be held June 11-15 in Boise, June 17-18 in Twin Falls and June 19-21 in Idaho Falls. Fee for the instruction will be $25 per day for members and $30 per day for non-members.

Talent search slated as part of Western Days Jamboree

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Western Days Jamboree Committee and Diamondfield Jack's are co-sponsoring a talent search in April and May.

The top four winners of the event will perform between featured bands during the June 2 Western Days Jamboree to be held at City Park in Twin Falls.

Participants will each receive a T-shirt, compliments of Z103 Radio, and cash and prizes will be awarded each of the semi-finalist winners.

Contestants must be 15 years old to compete. Acts may not have more than three persons and have a limited amount of equipment or props.

Subscribe to the Times-News
Conveniently delivered daily. Lots of excitement, news, controversy, entertainment, information & budget stretching ads.

Diamondfield Jack's will provide the public address system, but all other musical instruments or amplifiers must be provided by contestants.

The competition will be held each Thursday night in April and the first two Thursdays in May.

May 16 and May 23 will pit the six semi-finalists against each other, with first and second place winners being chosen each night. These four winners will then perform during the Jamboree.

The Twin Falls Western Days is scheduled for May 28 to June 2 this year and activities in addition to the jamboree will include a parade and rodeo plus numerous other events.

For more information on the talent contest, contact the Jamboree chairman Rick Steinkamp at 734-0719, or Pat Bean at 733-0931.

What's what

President William Howard Taft was "so large" he needed a special bathtub. Such was installed in the White House by three workmen. A photographer got a picture of all three of them sitting in the thing. The photo caused considerable comment. I'm told, and inspired the nonsense verse that starts, "Rub a dub dub, three men in a tub."

«Among birds: If the male's plumage is spectacular... but the female's is dull, the male probably is promiscuous. But if the plumage of each is almost indistinguishable from the other, both probably are mated for life.

Charity begins at home. I'm told. Good thing. That's where the poverty is, what?

BIG FAIRS

Q. I know the biggest annual fair now is the Texas State Fair in Dallas. What's the second biggest?

A. The Los Angeles County Fair in Pomona.

Where were you in 1970? No matter just trying to zero in on how recent it period, until they've worked their way around the clock.

Q. How come the steering wheels are on the left in U.S. cars, unlike those on the right in England?

A. Credit none other than Henry Ford himself. Earlier cars here had the steering on the right so the drivers could conveniently sleep out of the vehicles on the highway—but Ford changed all that with his Model T. He thought it more important for drivers to have good lines of sight when passing other cars.

Your great-grandmom probably used to flock the family Christmas tree with melted soap. Many did.

"Museum" originally meant "temple of the muses."

'Falcon' team-up steals the show

By The Los Angeles Times

To assist parents in evaluating movies for family viewing, the Los Angeles Times lists current movies and indicates areas of concern (theater, language, sex, violence) that may be inappropriate for the very young or impressionable. MPAA or The Times' ratings are in parentheses.

Capsule reviews

PLACES IN THE HEART (PG) Some scenes of violence too intense for very young children. Outstanding family fare. A work of love in which writer-director Robert Benton wants us to understand the character of a small Texas town which he grew up in and the character of Americans at a time when their lives were most severely tried — mid-depression 1935. The film is extraordinary, restorative and deeply American.

CLOAK AND DAGGER (PG) Henry Thomas' bedrock honesty and extraordinary sensitivity are what distinguish this as the best story of a young boy hunted by foreign agents. What sets the film apart is Thomas' relationship to a sort of paramilitary Tinker Bell, a video-game character named Jack Flack, kept alive actually by the boy's belief in him and played by Dabney Coleman, also seen as Thomas' widower-father.

THE FALCON AND THE SNOWBIRD (R) Audacious and language. A thoughtful, intensely dramatic, superbly acted depiction of one of the most baffling spy stories of recent times. This is not the stuff of John Le Carré and Robert Ludlum. "The Falcon and the Snowbird" catches real people in familiar settings, driven to desperate deeds almost by whim.

TUFF TURF (R) A vacuous update of "Rebel Without a Cause" spiked up here and there with a little "Saturday Night Fever" and a dab or two of "Risky Business." Director Fritz Kiersch and scenarist Jette Rønneke have managed to drain the film of all emotional nuances and psychological undercurrents, to bankyreters and kill the grace.

TURK 182 (PG-13) Perhaps because of language. But it seems like kids stuff. This movie demonstrates the pitfalls of having too much idolatry of classic filmmakers. The plot could have been computerized from a digest of Capra scripts. Timothy Hutton is an aimless young New Yorker whose father and brother have been freighters. The brother, Robert Ulrich, is severely injured in a tenement fire rescue. The headstrong Hutton seeks redress and comes up as New York's official doctor, especially the hazy, a smooth-talking phony (Robert Culp). He's plasters the town with his trademark "Turk 182," and manages to embarrass the mayor at public speeches. Every plot turn is predictable. The characters are either true-blue or rascals and the humor is labored.

A PASSAGE TO INDIA (PG) Adult situations. This is a diverting, affecting-humorous-surprising, intelligent film. Big in scope and location. It is at the

Norris gets thrills from action movies

By DOLORES BARCLAY
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — His buddy was dying of malaria in a Southeast Asian prisoner-of-war camp. The only way he could save him was to sign a phony will in a remote village.

"But they gave him an overdose of opium, not quinine," said actor Chuck Norris about the friend in his latest movie, "Missing in Action 2." They drag him out to front of my cell, put gasoline on him and burn him alive in front of me."

The scene called for an incredible reaction from Norris' character. "It's an actor; there's no one in front of me except the camera. But I had to bring something emotional up. It was one of the best scenes I've ever done."

To the crown prince of chop and slice movies, it's important to be considered a serious actor rather than merely a karate expert who dispatches his opponents with style and grace on celluloid.

Norris has been making martial-arts-action movies for eight years, and they have grossed more than $250 million. He loves his success, but above all he loves his work. He pumps enthusiasm with each flex of his well-toned muscles.

"I like action films," Norris said, "but I don't like to watch them. I like to be in them. What makes any action scene exciting is the emotion that builds up to it."

Norris was born Carlos Ray in Bryan, Ohio. His family moved to Fort Rucker, where he was 12. Shortly after high school, he married his sweetheart, Dianne. Her name is tattooed on his arm; and they are still married.

The martial arts also helped Norris with his acting. He said, "Acting's the hardest thing I've ever done in my life. It's such a demanding thing — not only on physical level, but on the mental level." He said, "After I do a movie I'm physically drained."

CHUCK NORRIS, Aging boy-next-door and by 1968 had become World Middleweight Champion. A little he retained until his retirement in 1974.

"He took up acting on the advice of his friend the late Steve McQueen. His first movie was 'Breaker! Breaker!' in 1977. It was followed by 'Good Guys Wear Black,' 'A Force of One' and 'The Octagon.'"

Knifemaker gets arts commission fund

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

HAILEY — Barr Querton, a knifemaker and the owner of Barr Custom Knives in Hailey, has won an apprenticeship award from the Idaho Commission on the Arts new apprenticeship/fellowship program.

He will receive $2,600 to study under Koichiro Oda in Lyons, Colo., to learn Samurai swordmaking and polishing.

Commission Executive Director Robert Ross said the apprenticeship is for artists who want to improve their artistic skills under the tutelage of a master artist or craftsman.

The award is based on the creative potential of the artist, the ability of the master, and the proposed project. Shelaugh says the craft panel recommended Querton for an award based on his technical skill and the project proposal.

Querton says he had already planned to travel to Colorado for the experience, but that the award makes the trip really feasible.

Querton plans on apprenticing to Oda from four to six weeks beginning in the middle of April to learn the highly technical craft. He says a sword maker with expertise in just-making a single "Katana," or 27 inch blade not counting the handle or guard.

"You smell the steel itself," he says, "after getting the iron ore from river bottoms; then burning it with layers of charcoal until a glob of real glassy-looking, high carbon steel forms. Then you have to fire-out the dirt and slag," he adds, explaining that the forging process itself is done in 5,000 to 500,000 layers.

Querton says no grinding wheels are used in the polishing process rather, it is done basically with fine whet stones.

But the pain and patience involved in the process should pay off, he says. Although Samurath sword collectors make up a fairly small group, Querton says a basic 20th Century sword is worth $5,000.

"They won't allow them out of Japan, anymore," he says. "In fact, the Japanese are trying to buy $3,500. Ona White, a writer and poet from Boise — $3,302 and Robert Wigley, a poet from Lewiston — $3,500."

Networks all close in ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC and NBC, each with a minimized opinion, finishing in the top 10, tied for the lead in the week's ratings, while CBS was a mere two-tenths behind — the closest three-way competition in prime time since July 1976.

For the week of Feb. 18-24, CBS' "Dallas" finished first, Parts 2 and 3 of ABC's "Hollywood Wives" were 13th and second, respectively, and NBC's "Initial" installment of "Evergreen" was ninth, according to figures released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

ABC and NBC each had an average rating of 17.1 in prime time, closely followed by CBS' 16.4.

NBC, continuing its strong showing as the No. 2 network, is practically assured of its first second-place finish for a February sweeps since 1975. The Nielsen sweeps end Wednesday and Tuesday. So far, CBS leads Nielsen's sweeps with a 17.5 rating to NBC's 16.9 and ABC's 16.4.

The major sweeps months of February, May and November are calculated and used to determine future advertising rates.

Salmon arts workshops set

SALMON — Artist workshops are scheduled to be held during March, April and May by the Salmon Arts Council.

Kevin Fuller of Boise will instruct a photography workshop March 13-15. Peg McNairy of Seattle, a fiber artist, will conduct a color workshop April 15-17, a design workshop from April 19-21 and a critique workshop on April 22.

Dennis Voss will direct a drawing workshop May 3-4; landscape forms will be studied and discussion will include "finding your own artistic identity."

Frank Sanford of Coeur d'Alene will conduct a watercolor workshop May 17-19; direction will be given in seeing shapes in landscapes.
