Senate approves $304 million school budget

By BOB FICK
The Associated Press

BOISE — After compromising with party members wanting more money for education, Senate Republicans Thursday approved a $304 million budget for public schools, sending the measure to the House and opening the way for the 1985 legislative session to adjourn.

Democratic critics accused GOP leaders of using "voodoo economics" to sweeten the $301 million plan that had stirred an uprising within the Republican ranks, and State Schools Superintendent Jerry Evans again labeled the spending blueprint inadequate to maintain current operations and a step backward for education in the state.

the current operation," Evans said. "When you've tried as hard as we have to reform the system—and improve education—anything short of a maintenance level is a step backward."

Senate Democrats called the bill an endorsement of "the inadequate (educational) system we now have in place."

But even though the proposal remains some $2 million below the level recommended by Democratic Gov. John Evans, the chief executive signaled his acquiescence to the lower spending plan.

While he declined to speculate on whether he would sign the bill, Evans said, "I doubt very much that we would see justification for a veto. . . . We can certainly get along with a veto."

The 28-14 vote in the Senate came as the House ended speculation over whether there would be any tax or revenue-raising legislation this session by rejecting on a 49-35 vote an $8.6 million plan under which corporations and businesses would pay taxes quarterly rather than annually.

"We've gone as far as we can to give our kids as good an education as possible, but we haven't hurt that chance for our economy to recover," Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, said of the bill intended to head off the need for any tax increase this year.

The Senate and House had both been holding up action on controversial spending bills, primarily the public and higher education measures, for the budget year that begins July 1 to see if there was a chance for additional tax receipts to augment the limited general tax fund available to finance state operations. Both rejected proposed education budgets last month on grounds that they were totally inadequate.

TWIN FALLS — The names of about a dozen Twin Falls residents are expected to be brought before a federal grand jury for possible indictments later this month following a lengthy drug investigation, said Twin Falls Police Chief Tim Qualls Thursday.

Mitchell Campbell, 36, of Twin Falls, was charged in federal court Thursday with distributing cocaine. Other charges against Campbell being investigated will go before a grand jury after it convenes March 12, Qualls said.

A Tuesday search of the house at 173 Larkspur Drive where Campbell, once a candidate for the Legislature, lived with foster sons turned up two automatic weapons, one a loaded submachine gun, Qualls said. Campbell had permits for the guns, and they were left in the house, he said.

Officers confiscated homemade explosive devices of a hand-grenade type in the master bedroom, Qualls said. "Blasting caps and two rolls of safety fuse were found in a safe, he said.

Officers also recovered unlicensed amounts of what appeared to be marijuana and a white powder police believe is cocaine, Qualls said. In the bedroom of one of the three foster boys who were living with Campbell at the time of the arrest was a bottle containing a powder and a marijuana pipe that the boy denied was his, Qualls said.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Dan Hockley in Boise said Campbell was arrested on a complaint that he had distributed cocaine on numerous occasions. "At about the same time his arrest warrant was issued in federal court in Boise, a search warrant was granted for the Internal Revenue Service to seize financial records and money, he said.

After the IRS search began to turn up what appeared to be drugs and drug-related paraphernalia, city police applied for a warrant, authorities said.

Campbell was arrested about 1:30 p.m. Tuesday, said Frank Chidichimo, a Twin Falls FBI agent. He was not at his home at the time, although officers have not disclosed where he was. A search of the house began at 2 p.m. or shortly afterward.

The Department of Health and Welfare was called at 2:18 p.m. and notified of the search. Two of the adolescent foster boys were at the house at the time of the search, one of whom indicated he did not attend school. A Health and Welfare worker arrived at 3:45 p.m., Chidichimo said.

The investigation stems from information compiled by the Twin Falls Police more than a year and a half ago, Qualls said.

Robbins' tax bill rejected

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — A corporate tax bill went down to defeat in the Idaho House on Thursday, as opponents argued it was a "deficit spending" measure that would only compound future revenue problems.

The vote was 49-35 against a proposal from Rep. Gary Robbins, R-Dietrich, to pump another $8.6 million into the state budget by speeding collections of corporate taxes.

Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, announced that another revenue proposal, raising the state sales tax by one-half cent to 4 1/2 percent, will come before the Revenue and Taxation Committee this morning.

That bill, sponsored by Rep. Larry Echohawk, D-Copeland, was on the committee agenda for consideration on Thursday, but was withdrawn until the House acted on the corporate speedup measure.

It took nearly two hours of debate, but Democrats—Cain Braun, Pete Black, Echohawk and Dorothy McCann finally joined 45 Republicans opposing the measure.

The corporate tax speedup bill, which has been endorsed by Gov. John Evans several times in the past, may have been a victim of bad timing.

The measure was up for a final vote last Friday, but was stalled until Monday and again until Thursday, as Democrats tried to determine if there was support for even-higher revenue bills that might allow more money for education.

But several legislators, including Antone, said support for the corporate tax bill eroded the longer action on it was stalled. They said the measure

Block outlines new, austere administration farm proposals

By JIM DRINKARD
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Agriculture Secretary John Block on Thursday painted a bleak picture for the future of American farmers if Congress fails to enact the administration's austere long-term farm-policy proposals.

"We can't afford to keep mortgaging agriculture's future for a temporary quick fix," Block told the Senate Agriculture Committee as it opened hearings on a new generation of agriculture policy. "It's time to face realities, set the proper course and make the transition as smoothly as possible."

The transition he called for is to a system in which government plays only a minimal part in farming, providing a "safety net" but slashing most of the price support devices which farmers have come to depend on over the last several decades.

It was clear that the process, which will consume a great deal of Congress' time this year, will not be easy, coming as it does against a backdrop of the most severe financial suffering in rural America in 50 years. Farm groups testifying before the panel sounded broad disagreement, and members of the committee said current conditions dictate against the approach advocated by Block.

Sen. Edward Zorinski, D-Neb., ranking Democrat on the panel, called the administration's "market-

Recipient of Phoenix heart has slender recovery chance

By ARTHUR H. ROTSTEIN

TUCSON, Ariz. — A 33-year-old auto mechanic, kept alive 11 hours with a new artificial heart during a "desperate" search for a donor, improved slightly Thursday but remained in critical condition with a "less than 25 percent" chance of recovery, doctors said.

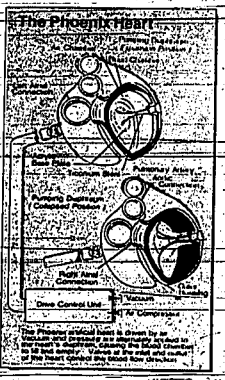

Meanwhile, the medical community debated the ethics of using the unapproved experimental pump for the patient, Thomas Creighton of Tucson.

Creighton on Wednesday received the Phoenix Heart, which was never before used on a human, and was operated with a human heart in an operation that ended at 3:15 a.m. Thursday at the University of Arizona Health Sciences Center.

The Phoenix Heart was implanted after Creighton's body rejected a first human donor heart, transplanted Tuesday.

Dr. Jack Copeland, head of the university's heart-transplant program, said it was "a long shot to have him survive." At an evening news briefing, however, he said, "There is a trend toward improvement that we have seen today."

Creighton's lungs remained full of fluid but his blood pressure was stable and he had returned to a normal level and the operation of his kidney was improving, Copeland said.

research with the Phoenix Heart, said their decision to use the device was simply a matter of life vs. death.

And, critics said, whether Creighton lives or dies probably would determine the response of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration, whose officials expressed concern that regulations on artificial heart implants were not followed.

"I don't anticipate them (the FDA) taking any sanctions against the hospital," Alethea Caldwell, executive director of University Medical Center, said Thursday. "They are not in the business of sanctions. Not at any time were any threats made."

University Vice President Allan Beigel said Creighton, a divorced father of two, "continued to experience moderately severe pulmonary edema," a condition in which the lungs fill with fluid.

"As far as I know, there are no problems with the new heart," Beigel said, but added, "The heart is not working as effectively as it could because of the pulmonary edema."

Beigel also read a statement from Creighton's family, praising Copeland for using the experimental device, despite its lack of FDA approval.

Beigel said he could not say whether Creighton was aware that two human hearts and a mechanical one had kept him alive over two days.

Social Security stalls budget freeze

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Senate Budget Committee moved methodically Thursday toward coupling a budget freeze for 1986 but deadlocked over the politically explosive issue of Social Security.

The Republican-controlled panel was unable to muster a majority vote on any of several plans for handling the giant retirement system.

"We have to vote again, but not this week," said Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the committee chairman.

Earlier, the committee agreed to deny both hospitals and doctors any increase in Medicare payment rates next year.

On a vote of 20-0, the committee rejected President Reagan's recommendations to raise costs to Medicare patients.

The vote on Medicare mirrored earlier votes in which the committee chose to freeze spending on dozens of domestic programs in defiance of Reagan's recommendation to eliminate some, such as the subsidy for Amtrak, or cut sharply a few others, such as the student loan program.

But the pattern was broken when Social Security was considered.

The panel voted 12-9 against a proposal by Domenici to freeze Social Security benefits in 1986 and then allow the usual cost-of-living adjustments in subsequent years.

Also defeated, 19-3, was a move by Sen. Ernest F. Hollings, D-S.C., that would have frozen benefits and years for all Social Security recipients except those at the poverty level in subsequent years, his plan would have held cost-of-living adjustments to 2 percent points below the rate of inflation.

However, the panel also voted 13-9 and 12-9 against preserving the status quo, as pressed by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y.

Taxes

may have passed last week, but flood-like chance by the time debate started on Thursday morning.

Several House members debated the bill on the basis that it was cor- poration versus education; that the money to pay for one or the other would be paid from the state's general fund but would hurt funding for public schools and the colleges and universities.

Others argued it was wrong to spend tax collections for the next couple of years to pay for one or the other. They said that would only provide higher taxes later to sustain the spending levels.

"Down the road a couple of years, this temporary money will run out," said Rep. Cyril Bust, R-Anthony. "I'd rather see us put something in place that is more permanent."

Rep. Linden Bateman, R-Idaho Falls, reminded legislators that one year earlier, the Legislature launched a school improvement program that needs money this year. "We will need more money funding. This is not my favorite bill — but it is the only one we have before us," he said.

Bateman said the school improvement bill was very popular last year, passing 48-20. "Are we going to tell them this is all a big joke — that we were just pretending?" he asked.

"We ought to listen to the people out there who say no more taxes," said Rep. Joan Wood, R-Ribby.

"This is deficit spending," said Rep. Wilbur Martens, R-Jerome. "We need more revenue, there are legitimate ways to raise it."

"This will obligate future legislators to continue the funding," said Rep. Jerry Callen, R-Jerome.

"No matter how you look at it, it is a tax increase," said Rep. Mike Simpson, R-Blackfoot. "The people will wind up paying for it."

well-intended but misguided."

"Those economic theories, if implemented, would destroy the family farm system of agriculture while at- tending short-term benefits to inter- ests far removed from the on-farm commodity producer," Zornitsky said.

Zornitsky also questioned President Reagan's statement a day earlier, as he vetoed farm-credit legislation, that only 4 percent of U.S. farmers need immediate financial help. He cited a string of statistics from Block's department, including the estimate that it would take a 23 percent in- crease in farm prices to restore all mid-size farms to profitability.

The $67 million higher education proposal, nearly $3 million below the governor's recommendation, is still pending in the House, where an effort is expected to add about $1 million more.

Although another attempt to raise more money was expected in the House, legislative leaders were in- dicated that with matters now relatively clear cut the Legislature will likely be able to wrap up its work by the weekend or early next week.

The public school budget repre- senting some 75 percent of all the money to be spent on the educational system in the next year, is still nearly $30 million less than educators sought and completely relegates on the Legislature's 1984 pledge to teachers for the second installment to raise basic pay to the 1982 national average and to create a merit pay incentive plan to reward outstanding teachers.

"We're trying to stay within the available resources that we have," argued Senate Republican Floor Leader Mark Ricks of Redford, but he conceded that the increased budget bill relies on upward revisions of estimates for interest earnings on invested state funds and for basic general tax collections which were not included when the Legislature originally determined "how much money it had to spend."

Based on that original revenue pro- jection with some minor changes due to legislative action this year, the higher education budget coupled with the rest of the bills to finance overall state government puts the 1985-1986 budget over $3 million in the red.

Ricks and others, however, contend that the revenue projection is at best an educated guess and exceeding it is not questionable "as long as we stay within what we feel is a safe bound."

Democrats argued that the majority was using "funny money" — revenue that even if it materializes can't be counted on in future years — to finance one of the most important state functions, suggesting that the plea to avoid a tax increase this year merely puts the decision to raise taxes off for a year.

Educators said that "in addition to breaking faith with the teachers of the state on the promised pay improve- ments, the budget plan is inadequate to handle the expanded school popula- tion next year and the added cur- riculum requirements imposed on local districts by the state.

"If we think education is expensive, try to pay for ignorance," warned Sen. Dwight Horsch, D-Aberdeen.

brought in other agencies," Qualls said. "The FBI was placed in charge."

Members of a federal task force includ- ing the IRS, the Idaho Department of Law Enforcement and the County Sheriff's Office participated in investigations. At times as many as 20 investigators worked on the case, Qualls said.

Campbell is being held without bail in Boise where he was taken after his arrest. A detention hearing is scheduled for today at 11 a.m. before U.S. District Magistrate Judge Mikel Williams.

Paul Barnhill, who lives across the street from Campbell, said he and other neighbors of Campbell's have been disturbed about the number of cars making five-to-10 minute stops at Campbell's house.

Barnhill said he and other neighbors have retained attorney Mark Stubbs to represent them in their claim that Campbell has vio- lated neighborhood covenants prob- hibiting nuisance behavior and mak- ing each house a one-family dwelling.

Barnhill said Campbell rented out the basement of the house.

"There was a lot of concern in the neighborhood about what was going on," said Mike Dolton, who also lives on Larkspur Street.

In 1974, Campbell worked for Dave Korsen selling insurance in the Denny Erickson agency, Korsen said. Campbell ran unsuccessfully against Ralph Olmstead for the Idaho House of Representatives in the Democratic ticket in 1978, said former Twin Falls County Democrat- ic chairperson Marge Slotten.

In 1981, he was a commercial prop- erty salesman at Twin Falls Realty, said Twin Falls Realty broker George E. Haney Jr. "He was with us about seven or eight months," Haney said Thursday. Haney said Campbell had a good personality and a good head for figures.

Alex Sinclair, chairman of Sinclair and Co., said Thursday that Campbell had recently applied for a broker's license, but dropped the process be- cause of the necessary tests. Campbell had been a customer of Sinclair's commodity business.

Today's weather

March winds blow from south today

Twin Falls, Burley, Rupert, Jerome and Gooding:

Partly cloudy with increasing clouds late tonight. Southerly winds 5- to 15 mph. Warmer, with highs in the upper 30s to lower 40s. Lows upper teens. Saturday partly cloudy with slight chance of rain or snow showers by afternoon. Highs low to mid 40s.

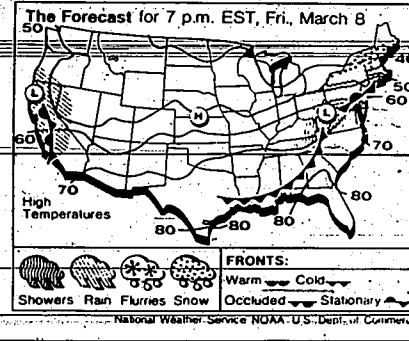

Camas Prairie and lower Wood River Valley:

Fair today with increasing clouds tonight. Southerly winds 5 to 15 mph. Highs in the mid 30s, and lows in the teens. Partly cloudy Saturday, with slight chance of rain or snow showers in the afternoon. Highs 35 to 40.

Northern Utah and Nevada:

Utah — Fair to partly cloudy today and tonight. Increasing clouds Saturday. Gusty southerly winds developing west Saturday. Partly cloudy tonight. Highs today in 40s and Saturday 45s.

Nevada — Increasing cloudiness and not as cold tonight with a chance of snow or rain. Lows upper teens and snow. Windy and mild Saturday with possibly heavy snow in the mountains and a chance of rain or snow spreading across northern Nevada. Highs mid 40s to mid 50s.

Synopsis:

A weak storm system in Idaho, Nevada and southwestern Idaho produced light snow Thursday.

This system was forecast to move eastward and weaken during the night. Another trough of low pressure will move to a position off the west coast in the next 24 hours with increasing clouds from the southwest late today and early Saturday.

Variable clouds were over the state Thursday afternoon with the only precipi- tation occurring in the southwest in the form of light snow showers. The re- mainder of the state was partly cloudy to cloudy with mostly light winds.

Aeronomy temperatures ranged from the mid 20s and 30s in the southeast to near 50 at some locations in the north. The warmest temperature reported in the state Thursday was 52 degrees in Lewiston. Stanley again registered the coldest at 19 degrees below zero.

The extended forecast for Southern Idaho, Sunday through Tuesday, in- dicates widely scattered showers in the east portion on Sunday. Otherwise dry through the period. Highs 40s to lower 50s. Lows 20s to lower 30s.

McClure, Symms win battle to give Idaho say in fish pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. James McClure and Steve Symms today said they will give Idaho a voice in carrying out a new fishing treaty between the U.S. and Canada.

The proposed treaty was ratified by the Senate Thursday with the support of McClure and Symms. It will allocate the harvest of salmon in the Pacific Ocean between the U.S. and Canada and provide for restrictions that allow more fish to escape harvest and return to Idaho's depleted spawning runs including Idaho's.

They have what amounts to a nonvoting seat on the U.S. section of both the Pacific Salmon Commission, the eight-member board managing the treaty, and the Southern Panel, which will advise the commission.

Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones alerted McClure and Symms to Idaho's lack of representation and charged that Oregon and Washington were "trying to sandbag" Idaho by refusing to seat the state on a two-nation commission and advisory panels charged with allocating harvests and making other decisions.

Any change in the treaty would have required new negotiations which already have taken more than 20 years, and treaty ratification was being expedited so President Reagan has it in hand for his visit to Canada later this month.

Under the pact, a Pacific Salmon Commission of equal numbers of Canadian and U.S. members and three

Ton-mile tax change sidetracked in House

BOISE (AP) — For years, the Idaho Legislature has been battling over whether to change the ton-mile system which has been used to tax trucks.

That battle may continue in future sessions, because the House voted 45-39 on Thursday to put this year's legislation up for amendment, a move a sponsor called a killing move.

The Senate already has approved legislation eliminating the ton-mile system for taxing trucks in favor of annual registration fees.

But opponents argued Thursday that would favor long-distance truckers at the expense of farmers and other companies who operate low-mileage trucks.

After an argument that went on a couple of hours, the House defeated, on a 42-42 tie, an effort to send the measure back to the Transportation Committee.

Later, Rep. Tom Boyd, R-Moscow, gathered enough support to put the bill up for amendment. He contended it is unfair to truckers who are paying fair taxes now; those who benefit from it will be the cheaters.

Rep. Larry Knigge, R-Twin Falls, said the proposed change would sharply increase operating expense to custom harvesters, and those costs would be passed along to farmers.

"We've already got three or four farms going under every week. That's no way to help farmers," said Knigge.

"This bill will cut the trucking fees for long-haul truckers and hurt the small 'midge' people," said Rep. Mack Neibaur.

"A move to put the bill up for amendment is a move to kill the bill," said Rep. Dean Haagenson, R-Coeur d'Alene, its chief sponsor.

Senate OKs changes in state water plan

BOISE (AP) — With the stage set for implementation of the proposed settlement in the battle for control of the Snake River, the Senate has ratified the Water Resource Board's changes in the state water plan that were dictated by the ratification bill, mandated by a constitutional amendment approved by voters last fall, was sent to the House on Thursday. Among other things, the amendments to the water plan include raising the minimum stream flow at Swan Falls Dam from 3,300 cubic feet per second to 3,600.

That revision is central to the agreement worked out between the state and Idaho Power Corp. ending years of legal wrangling over use of the river.

Police chief faces drug sale charges

MOSCOW (AP) — The Potlatch police chief, his son and a third man have been arrested and charged with drug trafficking in an undercover investigation by the state Department of Law Enforcement and northern Idaho authorities.

Chief Ronald Lee Starley, 49, was arrested in Moscow on Thursday and his son, Tony Ray, 26, and Douglas Wayne Candler, 25, of Coeur d'Alene, were arrested at about the same time in Coeur d'Alene after delivery of a quarter ounce of cocaine worth $700 from Potlatch to undercover agents in Coeur d'Alene, department spokesman Glenn Ford said.

Public has a right to know about jail

The North Side News, Jerome, has taken the appropriate action in going to court against Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall over Hall's refusal to allow journalists the same right as other citizens in talking with jail prisoners.

Essentially, Hall has said he will allow citizens to talk with prisoners, but not journalists.

That is an illegal and unconstitutional distinction.

There is no special right, under the First Amendment, for journalists to gather the news. The right of the reporter is the same right of the ordinary citizen, who has the right to speak and publish what he or she wishes in a free society.

But if the journalist cannot ask for special newsgathering privileges, neither can a law official arbitrarily bar the journalist from where the citizen may enter.

By attempting to do so, Hall seems to be displaying either a brazen desire to attack the press in his community or an inappropriate ignorance by a law enforcement official of what the law requires.

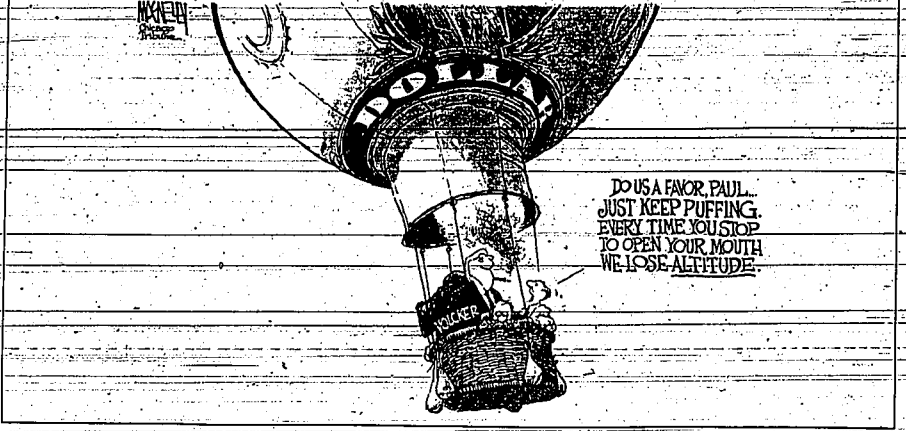

The North Side News is not claiming a special right here. A prisoner in Hall's jail has expressed a desire to meet with reporters over jail conditions. Hall's refusal to allow the meeting leaves the clear impression that the sheriff has something to hide.

The issue here is not "security," as Hall now conveniently claims. He and the North Side News both know that an interview can be arranged with the prisoner that does not violate Hall's legitimate right to run a secure jail, although considering the recent escapes from Hall's jail, maybe he ought to put more concern into security.

No, this issue is simply Hall's arbitrary decision to impose a condition on the local newspaper that he does not require of the citizen. This he has no right to do.

Hall should remember that he is a public servant whose affairs — including the conditions of his jail — are within the right of the public to know.

Sheriffs sometimes forget such things. Perhaps a federal court suit, which we predict he will lose, will inform him as to what that right is in a free society.

State commerce department beneficial

What a state Department of Commerce would do for Idaho:

- a) retention and expansion of existing businesses and industry.
- b) international trade
- c) relocation of new business and industry within the state.
- d) handling of certain problem areas in the state with either existing or new businesses.
- e) aiding and assisting in the start up of new business and industries within our state.
- f) continue to promote tourism, Idaho's third largest industry.
- g) We have dealt with Fantus, the largest relocating firm for industry in the United States. We have worked with them eight times in the last four years.

Each time they tell us that Idaho needs a stronger voice from the state level. They tell me that other states respond much better than we do. When I advise them of our state budget for the Department of Economic and Community Affairs, they can't believe we can do anything at all.

Guest opinion Michael Dolton

Experts in the industrial recruiting field tell me that an adequate funded state Department of Commerce is essential, while in the same breath, advise that right to work is essential for our state. You've already given us one of these tools. Right to Work. Now give us the other — A state Department of Commerce.

Some of you say, "Let our enterprise or the chamber do it." We will carry the Helms Department of Commerce has done its job, which is to furnish vital state information in order to get those new industries interested in Idaho.

Then establish a certain area in Idaho that fits their needs. When that area in the state is established, then we will go to work if it is in the geographic area we represent.

All inquiries will go through the state capital.

where the state Department of Commerce is located. This is where anyone automatically goes to get the proper information on that state. It's what we've been taught to do since grade school. If that state is not properly prepared, then it loses, for itself and the people it represents.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce represents the free enterprise system with over 200,000 business members. In an advanced industrial development training session it gives, during its annual week of institutes for "organizational management," it clearly points out that the activities of local chambers and the state they represent will be severely restricted unless there is a strong state Department of Commerce to work with as a partner.

A state Department of Commerce is an investment in the future of Idaho.

Michael Dolton is executive vice president of the Greater Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce and president of the Idaho Association of Chambers of Commerce. This article is adapted from testimony he presented recently to the Idaho Legislature.

Anderson will pay for bucking system

Things have a tendency to get lost in the closing days of the Idaho Legislature. Each year, a number of bills, resolutions and memorials end up assigned to committees which are either too busy to consider them or whose chairmen are not favorably disposed to the proposals.

This year is no different except that proponents of certain bills, which face likely death in committee from lack of consideration, are striking out more forcefully to get their measures onto agendas.

One case in point is legislation introduced to amend the resort elites option tax law, which a Magic Valley judge ruled unconstitutional. The main blemish of that legislation — the City of Sun Valley — had to outlast its opponent — the Sun Valley Co. — through four hearings in three House committees plus the House floor vote.

The city prevailed and the bill was assigned to Sen. Dane Watkins' Local Government and Taxation Committee. But Watkins' reluctance to allow his committee to consider any lax authorization bills is legendary.

To tug the resort cities option tax bill out of Watkins' iron grip, Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, resorted to a formal affront of the chairman's power to set his committee's agenda.

In Wednesday's committee meeting, Anderson told fellow committee members that in "five or six conversations" with Watkins, he has given no assurance that the measure would be placed on the committee agenda. Joined by six other committee members — two Republicans and four Democrats — he moved the issue to the agenda for a committee hearing today against the wishes of Chairman Watkins.

Anderson acknowledges that he has been confronted by irate members of his own caucus over the incident and will pay a price politically for bucking the committee system.

Rick Shaughnessy

Who understands the committee system, Rep. J.E. Chadbond, R-Idaho Falls, is attempting to do so through the letters-to-the-editor sections of Idaho newspapers.

Chadbond is promoting, for the third straight year, a bill providing law enforcement agencies with a $500 bounty for the arrest and conviction of felony violators of Idaho drug dealing laws.

In letters to the newspapers, Chadbond has asked residents to inquire of Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, why he won't allow the bill onto the agenda of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which he chairs.

Fairchild says he has received and returned eight phone calls which have resulted from the letters. He says the bill is flawed and has been flawed in each of the three years Chadbond has pushed it. It won't make the agenda, he adds.

But placement on committee agendas is not necessarily the key to consideration, says Sen. Walter Yarbrough, who runs the Senate's State Affairs Committee.

Assigned to Yarbrough's committee are a couple of burning issues — establishment of an Idaho Department of Commerce and raising the state's drinking age to 21 from 19.

He has opposed both proposals and says neither will be placed on his committee's agenda. However, he says he expects the committee to consider both pieces of legislation when they find themselves with extra time at the close of a committee meeting.

Yarbrough, the most senior member of the Idaho Senate, says scheduling committee consideration of either bill would likely result in a pair of two- to three-hour hearings.

He lists as lower priorities and unlikely candidates for consideration, a slew of memorials and resolutions he has assigned which range from wishing the City of Idaho Falls a happy 20th birthday to the state's so-called Star Wars defense system to urging that the ban on exports of Alaskan crude oil be lifted.

You can hardly blame Yarbrough for his reluctance to consider the memorials. Someone needs to be concerned that in the Idaho Legislature's letters to Congress, consistency be maintained.

If, for example, the Senate approved the House memorial which urges support for the "Argonne Freedom Fighters" without approving one which urges similar increases in support for the contras in Nicaragua, State Department officials would be fraught with self-doubt over their policies.

It would appear their main advisory body — the Idaho Legislature — had gone soft on communism in their own hemisphere while advocating slapping the Russian bear nearer its own neck.

So in fact if the lack of a memorial supporting the Reagan administration's backing of the contras is not judged one of the 1985 legislative session's gravest sins, it has to be considered one of its greatest inconsistencies.

Letters/ Meeting Salvation Army's goals have done more for its image than other efforts

Corps has helped family

For the record, a rebuttal from the Salvation Army:

In the past, the Salvation Army has at times come under criticism from those it serves. The policy concerning these criticisms has been to investigate their validity and to answer any individual who pursued such allegations. In general, however, the Army does not spend much time on such issues. This is simply because the organization is more interested in the resolution of human lives and in promoting the concepts of holy living than in making itself look good in the eyes of the public. In the final analysis, these stated goals have done more for our public image than any public relations work could possibly have done. And we shall continue to rely on divine protection to carry on our work in the future.

Recently, however, a letter appeared in the Times-News from a disgruntled client which alleges that the Salvation Army and other agencies would not help him. This letter is a typical case of the kind we usually see, and I thought I would share what help The Salvation Army (not including aid from other agencies) has given:

Last year we helped over 8,000 individuals in the Twin Falls County with a budget of $80,000 for direct assistance. This would amount to $240,000 for three years. However, if every family who received the aid given to the family mentioned in the editorial, we would have needed five times this amount or $1.2 million. The Twin Falls Corps is actually a small corps in relation to other offices of The Salvation Army so we must make some tough decisions. Still, in ten years of dealing with this family, we have had to deny only five of their 28 requests. We, therefore, earnestly request prayer for this family and others whose answers may not be found in fully the meeting of material needs.

Hobo stands a better chance

If our glorious leader had been presented with a bill to bail out Chrysler, Boeing or Ford, for that matter any rich big business, it wouldn't have been vetoed.

However, a broke and hard working farmer is treated like a hobo coming to the back door. In fact not as well, a hobo stands a better chance of getting a meal.

If I sound bitter, it's not because I'm a farmer. I'm a laid off sawmill worker being retrained in a new occupation at CSI.

Stand up to organized labor

Much rhetoric is expended on "Right to Work" which simply stated does not require a person to join a trades union to be employed on a job site where union labor is also employed. No harm in that, surely?

Remember labor unions are interested only in their own and members' well being. To hell with the interests of America and its people.

1918-1919 in 1966, to escape the stranglehold on the British economy exercised by the labor union movement, most of whose leaders were extreme left wing, if not professed communists. Look where that poor country has ended. When I came out here the pound sterling was worth $2.40, now it is worth only $1.02.

If we in Idaho let the labor unions defeat "Right to Work," then we will have defeated ourselves. Organized labor by their necessarily high wage rates has forced the good old U.S. out of world markets for steel, automobiles, and lots lots more. Stand up to organized labor, say I, before it ruins our future as a great power.

CBS stock plan explained

Your paper has published commentaries suggesting that Fairness in Media's campaign urging conservatives to buy CBS stock somehow threatens the First Amendment. I hope you will grant us this opportunity to explain our project to your readers.

Fairness in Media's campaign in no way threatens freedom of the press. Even the chairman of the Newspaper Editors' Freedom of Information Committee states "I don't see that it's a First Amendment issue." Fairness in Media is not trying to impose its bias — it is simply attempting to end what we believe to be liberal bias at CBS. The former White House Communications Director and the present White House Communications Director believe that CBS exhibits a liberal, anti-Reagan bias. TV Guide has reported that "nearly" even some CBS staffers admit that CBS's coverage of the Reagan Administration is not balanced. In addition, CBS allows only one commentator on its news program — L.B.J.'s liberal press secretary Bill Moyers.

Fairness in Media seeks to remedy the situation by providing balanced, unbiased news coverage. A democracy flourishes best when diverse opinions are presented to the public.

In fact, national columnist Patrick Buchanan has said that the FIM's campaign succeeded "it would instantly put an end to the dreary conformity of network broadcast, consistent and introduce some of the diversity consistent with the real spirit of the First Amendment."

Fairness in Media in no way involves censorship — we want all views to be aired and that's not happening now. There are presently three networks — all with varying degrees of liberal bias. This lack of diversity keeps conservative views from being aired and we feel this harms the public debate.

For once I agree with the Charlotte News. They stated: "Senator Helms' proposal is neither original nor threatening to American values; indeed, conservatives should be encouraged to help purge the news business of bias — the confrontation may turn a few minds in the media to contemplating the media's stewardship. Nothing but good can come of that."

That is what FIM is all about — purging the news business so that the American public receives a more objective presentation of the news. We feel it's critical to the survival of American democracy.

Senator Helms and Fairness in Media need the help of other Americans who believe in a fair and objective media. By taking on CBS, Senator Helms has once again shown the courage that has made him a great leader. I am delighted that other Americans who believe in a fair and objective media are joining Senator Helms in this endeavor.

Jail will not become cheaper

We taxpayers of Twin Falls County will not get a cheaper time to build a jail.

We should have started fifteen years ago when the need for a new facility became apparent to everyone. It would have been a lot less expensive then.

Now we're going to pay through the nose. If we wait another ten or fifteen years, or until the courts force us to move, we're going to pay through the nose every year.

So let's build the new jail now.

Area farmers blame feds' market meddling

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Rather than unload on President Reagan for his veto Wednesday of the farm credit relief package, southern Idaho farmers are aiming both barrels of indignation at years of interference in the farm market by the federal government.

"They (federal officials) came along with programs trying to help out," says Idaho Farm Bureau Association president Tom Geary, "but the programs have been more of a hindrance to us than a help. They led us down the path. They ought to attempt to lead us out."

Explaining that he leaned in favor of the bill passing, Geary sees continuing debt as an evil. "There should be some kind of support to agriculture, but when you see somebody drowning, you don't dump more water on them. It's not the best thing to just keep dumping more credit on somebody who already is in over his head, he says."

Geary, who farms in the Burley area and has a cattle operation near Albion, sees no easy solution to the farm problem but suggests that the government could be most helpful by bolstering farm prices in the long run, yet helping farmers to keep from going bankrupt until the mess is straightened out.

He puts blame on the strong dollar overseas and aggressive competition from Argentina, Australia and Canada as a main cause of farm debt in the U.S. "Personally, I think the government should take a lot of this money, buy in Africa and elsewhere to get rid of the surplus products," he says, pointing out that crop prices would then rise, easing the plight of farmers.

Roger Roboth, a Twin Falls dairy farmer, acknowledges that if he'd been in the president's place, he probably would have vetoed the package, too. "It's hard for me to say because it doesn't really affect me," Bothy says, but then explains that he and other dairy farmers will soon face the same situation.

"I think farmers need some help, but the federal government keeps stringing us along further and further. Dairy farmers will have to be weaned, too. Come April 1, they're going to drop 50 cents per 100 of our support price. Then, if production doesn't go down, another 50 cents will be dropped."

Though Bothy thinks a lot of farmers will suffer, he says, "The quicker we get away from government subsidies, the quicker we can live decently. It's like a welfare state now."

Thyne Roberts, treasurer of the Idaho chapter of the United Farmer's Organization, says the veto won't make much difference in Idaho but thinks Midwest farmers are "hurting pretty bad."

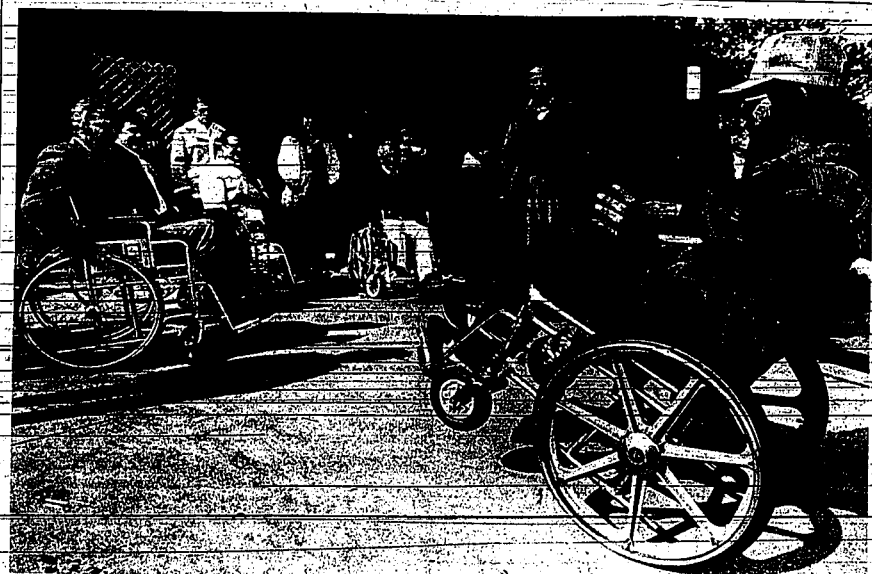

"It's been an inherited deal. We've got to clamp down somewhere," he says, adding that he hopes the president is working on something better. Roberts doesn't think the veto will change the political climate in Idaho, but says "Those states where the farmers are getting along by the skin on their teeth will probably see a reverse in politics."

David Mead, an officer for Idaho 1st National Bank in Twin Falls, points out that he's been too busy working with farmers and ranchers trying to get their spring operations going to have thoroughly studied the vetoed package.

"The farmers around here aren't saying a lot," Mead says. "But, I did hear one say that all the money in the U.S. Treasury wouldn't take care of the problem. They indicate that only legitimate, hard prices can help them."

The banker says legitimate, hard prices are not government subsidies.

Curb class

Blaine district seeks override

Classrooms, teachers needed

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — The need for more classrooms and teachers has prompted the Blaine County School Board to propose a $1.6 million override levy for the district's 1985-86 general operating budget.

The Board of Trustees set the amount early this week to cover an expected $5.24 million budget for the 1985-86 year, a budget that is up about $800,000 over this year's.

The override also is a substantial increase from the $925,000 levy approved last spring to supplement this year's $4.4-million budget. The $1.6 million override is the largest the district has sought since it first began relying on the special levies six years ago.

The district's patrons will vote March 26 on the levy.

Board Chairman Frank Rowland says the district needs the increased override primarily to pay for the maintenance of 10 new classrooms and the salaries of six new teachers the district will add for 1985-86.

Because the district does not expect an increase in state support for next year, it will have to pay for the additions through local property taxes.

The district's voters approved a $4 million plan facilities levy last fall to build 20 new classrooms over the next five years.

The district will build 10 new classrooms at Bellevue Elementary School by next fall and will hire three new teachers to help fill them along with classes now using temporary facilities at the school.

One new teacher will join the faculty at Hailey Elementary School, and two the faculty at Wood River High School. The new high school teachers are needed to create courses required to meet the state's graduation standards.

"It's a state-mandated program; we don't have any choice," says Rowland of the new speech and health classes that will begin next year at the high school.

However, says the district expects to have about 50 new students next year. Most of them will be in Bellevue, but the entire district will grow as larger, lower-grade classes move up to replace smaller ones.

Although the district's voters have supported the override each of the last six years, they have not had to face a $650,000 increase the board says is necessary to pay for the district's new teachers and students and the maintenance of its new classrooms.

However, the large amount may find little support in the agricultural areas of the southern part of the county. Farmers there are feeling the five years.

CSI to sue over well Ax killer may be released from hospital

TWIN FALLS — The College of Southern Idaho will file a complaint in fifth district court today to protect its geothermal well.

The CSI Board of Trustees voted Thursday night to instruct Twin Falls attorney John Rosholt to file the suit, he had prepared on behalf of CSI.

CSI taps the geothermal aquifer to steam and hot water to heat various buildings on campus. Beginning in late 1964, the pressure in the well began to drop after the Twin Falls School District tapped into the aquifer with a new well and after Blue Lakes Country Club operator Joe McCollum put a well in the canyon floor to use in generating power and warm water for a fish-farming operation.

The board was told by CSI President Gerald Meyerhoeffer not to discuss the case.

At Thursday's special session, the board also voted to accept the $263,000 bid of the H.O. Owen Construction company for the addition to the Taylor Administration Building. Meyerhoeffer has said ground could be broken on the building by the end of March.

CSI has received the $60,000 in state funding held back last year.

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

EVERETT, Wash. — Former Jerome resident David Watson, who was found innocent by reason of insanity of the 1981 ax murder of his wife Phyllis Ann and sent to Western State Hospital for treatment, is now seeking his release.

Snohomish County Superior Court Judge Robert Bibb, who originally heard the case, held a hearing Friday and again Monday on Watson's request for conditional release. Bibb took the request under advisement.

"Of prime concern was whether Watson, 37 and a deaf-mute, will be a danger to others if he is allowed to leave the hospital."

Watson does not have a mental disease, the doctors said, but he suffered from a personality problem they say is influenced "greatly" by his deafness. Living in a sort of isolation because of his disability, he developed a narrow view of life, they said.

"And if something or someone did not conform to his expectations, he compensated by trying to control the situation himself."

"It is improving, they said, but he has further to go."

"It's a long-term process," said Nicholas Cencich, a therapy supervisor at Western State.

Watson met Phyllis Ann, who was also deaf, when the two of them were in school at the Working School for the Deaf and Blind. They had worked at the Boeing Aircraft plant in Everett and at the Tupperware factory in Jerome after they were married, says Phyllis Ann's father, Lee Bybee of Jerome.

Doctors at Western State have recommended that Watson be released under certain conditions.

The hospital's report and recommendations were included these conditions:

- That he continue therapy.
- That the hospital's doctors would approve when he could leave hospital grounds and where he could go.
- That when he leaves the grounds, at least in the beginning, he be accompanied by another "conditional release" patient.
- That he would live in his hospital ward until the doctors determine he can move away.
- Western State officials and a private psychologist expressed some reservations about the evidence but testimony indicated a relationship with someone close to him, they said, there are no guarantees he would not respond violently.

Hailey folk festival readies 1985 plans

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — With the help of fund-raising efforts and "friends," the Northern Rockies Folk Festival will stay in Hailey and attempt to break even.

In a press conference Monday, Greg Markle, director of the Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities that is the festival's sponsor, announced two efforts to keep the annual educational and musical event afloat on campus.

Festival organizers will sell "Friends of the Festival" buttons door-to-door throughout the Wood River Valley and at the festival to help pay for the event.

The center chose to use the button sale as an alternative to charging admission and will encourage everybody attending the free summer festival to buy a button before entering the two-day music event in Hailey's city park. It is estimated that more than 6,000 people attend the event each year.

Also, the center will operate a used merchandise store in Hailey in cooperation with organizers of a local public radio station to raise money for both non-profit causes.

The two groups will split funds raised from the second-hand store until a pre-determined amount is raised for the festival. Then, all revenues will go to the radio station, Wood River Public Radio (KWPR), said Michael Hess, who is working on both projects.

"We're still the valley's best free entertainment, but with some conditions," said Kit Neraas, who will direct the festival this year. Neraas of Bellevue has worked with the festival since it began in 1978.

Neraas said the center will put on some fund-raising concerts prior to the festival to help raise money.

Markle said he did not know how much money could be raised from the button sales and from the festival's participation in the second-hand store. But he said the festival must erase the about $6,000 deficit it runs on each year to assure that it stays an annual event in Hailey.

The fate of the festival has been somewhat up in the air in recent months because of the deficit problem. Markle has said the Sun Valley Center can no longer afford to make up the deficit and it will either have to find some way to raise money, move or cease operating.

There had been speculation the festival would

Jerome sheriff sued by paper

BOISE (AP) — A Jerome newspaper has filed a federal lawsuit against Jerome County Sheriff Elza Hall over his policy barring reporters from interviewing jail inmates.

The lawsuit stems from Hall's repeated denial to grant North Side News reporters an interview with accused murderer Jamie Charboneau, who asked to speak with a reporter about jail conditions.

The Standard Examiner Publishing Company Inc., publisher of the North Side News, said Hall allows people age 21 or older to visit the jail, but does not provide similar access to the news media; according to the lawsuit, filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court in Boise.

The suit, filed by Jerome attorney Paul R. Fuller, accused Hall of violating the paper's right to freedom of speech and press by denying access to sources of information available to the general public. The suit asked that the court declare Hall's jail visitation policy unconstitutional and compel him from continuing it. In addition, it sought monetary damages to be proved at trial.

Hall said Wednesday he had not been served with the lawsuit, and would not comment on it.

ELZA HALL Press access limited

Charboneau wants to talk with the newspaper's reporters about jail conditions, said his mother, Resa Charboneau Hamilton, in an affidavit filed with the complaint. She said Charboneau has told her he wants to discuss his confinement circumstances and conditions of his incarceration in the Jerome County Jail, but that Hall would not comment on it.

Simplot set to close down Malta dairy

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

MALTA — J.R. Simplot Co. is closing its C&Y Dairy near Malta, one of Idaho's largest milking operations.

The Boise-based corporation will sell the dairy's 2,800 head of cattle and shut the barns as of May 1, Simplot spokesman Fred Zerza said Thursday.

"It was a matter of economics," he said.

"In order to compete in the dairy business, you've got to be a low-cost operator, and we are not," Zerza said. C&Y Dairy, which is located northeast of Malta, has been losing money lately and its facilities are getting too old to be efficient, he said.

Some of the dairy's 30 employees will be offered jobs in Simplot's other divisions. The company will help others find new work in the dairy industry, Zerza said.

However, the company will keep operating adjoining C&Y Farms, where it raises grains, hay and potatoes on 25,000 acres. The crops raised to feed the dairy herd can be used in Simplot's cattle lots in Grandview and Caldwell, which now must buy some feed.

The 25 employees working for C&Y Farms will not be affected by the closing of the dairy, Zerza said.

The C&Y Dairy was Simplot's only milk operation. It was acquired in 1964 in the purchase of C&Y Farms. After leasing it for several years, the corporation started operating the dairy itself in 1973 and expanded capacity two years later to 2500 cows. C&Y Dairy has been producing 40,500 pounds of Grade A milk a day, about 4,500 gallons — and selling it to Mountain Empire Dairy Association, Zerza said.

The herd of 1,200 cows and 1,800 heifers will be auctioned on about May 1, he said.

The location of the dairy in a sparsely populated area of Cassia County east of Interstate 84 was one factor in the decision to close. "Cold weather and wind cuts into the (cows) production," Zerza said. Others included the age of the plant, transportation costs and the price outlook for the dairy industry, he said.

"We took a look at the possibility of building a new facility at the site, or relocating the dairy and of getting out of the business," Zerza said. In the end, it was more economical to shut down the dairy, he said.

C&Y Dairy was part of Simplot's Land and Livestock Division. The company also has a Range Division for marketing its products and a Minerals and Chemicals Division, which mines phosphate and produces fertilizers.

Simplot's latest acquisition was Dalgooy Foods, which was renamed Simplot Foods Inc. The company produces frozen vegetables and fruits at plants in California and Washington.

Glenns Ferry names new chief
GLENN'S FERRY — Glenn's Ferry Mayor Dayle Messery announced at the City Council meeting that David John Hartway has been selected to be the city's new chief of police.

Hartway replaces retiring Chief Ted Murphy. Messery said out of 41 applicants, Hartway "came out on top with his excellent credentials." Hartway is a former chief of police for the Buhl Police Department and also was an instructor with the State Police academy.

Messery said Hartway is on the board for McAuley Home for Girls at Buhl, and a former Fort Hall Indian Reservation chief of detectives. Hartway will be in charge of the Buhl Neighborhood Watch program, said Messery.

Besides the accolades given Hartway by Buhl school officials, city officials, and prosecuting attorneys in the area, Hartway also received a recommendation from the Federal Bureau of Investigation, said Messery.

Messery added that Hartway received his educational training at College of Southern Idaho. Hartway will be on the job as soon as possible, said Messery. "We have to find him a place to live."

Burglars strike clothing store
BURLEY — Some $1,600 worth of merchandise was reported stolen Monday from Ropers Clothing store at 13th Street and Overland Avenue, according to a Burley police report.

The theft occurred Sunday night. Someone broke the glass in a side door to gain entrance to the store. Clothing ranging from suits to jogging pants were stolen.

Burley police talks go forward
BURLEY — The second bargaining session between the city officials and the 20 members of the Burley Police department, who have joined the Idaho Service Employees Union, went very well, says Robert Moore of Boise, business manager for the union.

Moore, who says he talked briefly on the telephone Thursday with one of the chapter organizers, says the group is very happy with its talks with Shaddock.

"They say they discussed a wide range of topics and that much progress has already been made," Moore says.

He adds that the group does not feel it is facing a negative attitude on the part of the city officials and that a third meeting will be scheduled soon.

Representing the city at the session were police department heads and Mayor Chuck Shaddock. City officials were unavailable for comment after the meeting.

The Buhl Police Department is the second in the state to organize with ISEU, the Caldwell Police Department has already signed up with the union, says Moore.

Castleford gets trash service
CASTLEFORD — Castleford is getting weekly garbage collection.

Wednesday the Castleford City Council moved to adopt an ordinance providing the city with a garbage collection, tentatively scheduled to begin April 25.

"The council conducted a poll of city residents over the last months and found the majority of them were in favor of a weekly garbage-pick-up for the entire city," it was reported.

A charge of $150 per resident will be added to the monthly water and sewer bill and R & R Disposal of Buhl will provide the collection service.

In other business, the council agreed to have a fence built around the city grounds, including the city water tank.

Seniors' grant meeting topic
RUPERT — A meeting to discuss a grant request for a new Rupert Senior Citizens Center will be held today at the current center, 809 H Street.

In an effort to alleviate overcrowding problems, the Rupert Senior Citizens recently applied for a block grant to build or buy a larger center.

Various committees involved with the project will explain the group's current position and the action they intend to take once funds become available.

The meeting will start at 10 a.m. and conclude at 1 p.m. A potluck dinner will be served buffet style, with the meat being furnished by the center.

The public is invited.

move to Elkhorn, where it was originally held, but Markie and others said that was only an option that has not been seriously considered.

But a part of the festival will move to Elkhorn this summer during the fourth, July 20 to Aug. 1, event.

The music portion will very well. The festival will start with a dance in Elkhorn on the evening of Aug. 1 and then move to the Halley park for the music concerts on Aug. 2 and Aug. 3.

Nearas said the center has been looking for a way to include the non-users of the Wood River Valley in the festival and the dance will serve that purpose.

Markie said the 1985 festival will begin with teacher workshops on July 1 in Halley. This year's theme will be "Cowboy Poetry" and will include a program on cowboy poetry.

The center recently conducted a successful "Cowboy Poetry Gathering" in Elko, Nev., that was featured in many national publications.

Festival buttons will go on sale in about one month and will cost $3 for one adult, $5 for two adults and $1 for senior citizens. Children under 12 years will get their free.

To get the public involved in the planning, the center will hold a public meeting on March 14 at 7 p.m. in the Halley City Hall.

Monday, the center also announced its "Friends of the Folk Festival" committee to oversee certain areas for organizing the event. Each is a volunteer and the center is searching for people to help in each of the areas:

Named to the committee are: John Borton, stage manager, 788-3516; Michael Hess (Dallas Dobro), music consultant, 788-3577; Lynette Hart, publicity director and fund raiser, 788-3737; Deanne Thompson, tabloid director, 788-3756; Kristin Fletcher, folklike displays and concessions, 788-3093; Sheila Kelley, folklike displays, 788-3880; Terry Simons, festival relationship, 788-4182; Sally Kern, friendship quilt, 788-4102; Richard Hart, fund-raising consultant, 788-3760; and Tim Haft, art director, 788-4853.

Override

pinch of a recession, says Dr. Parke. "I don't see any real potential from Carey and have little left to put into the schools."

"I think it's going to be more difficult to get a majority of the vote (in Carey) than it has been in the past," says Parke.

Parke, who voted to support the levy at the last board meeting, says most of the people in the Carey area are property owners and will be hit with the increase in property taxes a successful override levy will bring.

In other areas of the county, a much larger percent of the voters are not property owners and will not have to pay for the increase, he says.

"These people understand" (the need for the override), but they have to watch their pocketbook, too," Parke says.

As in past years, officials are expressing dissatisfaction about the lack of state funds coming into the districts, they say.

Blaine County loses state funds each year through the state's equalization program that gives districts with lower property values greater support from the state's general fund than those with higher values on their property.

Blaine County has the highest valuation per student in the state and sees its property tax state pie served to them each year.

This year, the district's state support will reach about $356,000, and Homer says he expects it to be about the same next year, despite efforts in the state Legislature to increase the 1 Percent Initiative limitation on property taxes for schools.

The proposal would allow school districts to increase the amount of property taxes they can raise from the previous year in their general levy from 5 percent to 10 percent.

Homer says the proposal would give Blaine County about $200,000 more next year. If the proposal is approved, that amount will be taken off the override levy, he says.

But Homer says a proposal being considered by State Superintendent of Schools Jerry Evans would wipe out that gain.

At a committee hearing last week, Evans said if the 10 percent limit is approved, the state would need to change the equalization formula to keep districts like Blaine County from realizing a larger increase than others.

Because of Evans' statements, Homer is not optimistic the override can be reduced.

Murder

"I don't believe he has the control at this time" to handle such stress, Cencil said.

Kenneth — Muscatal — a private clinical psychologist asked by deputy prosecutor Cassandra Noble to review the case, said "The internal processes that led to the death of his wife are still present and still operational. I see him as an individual who is going to need a lot of work."

The risk to the public, Muscatal said, is "substantially lower" because his stress has been related to those close to him. But Muscatal and others said the victims of any possible future outbreak could be Watson's children, whose departure was as much of a threat to him three years ago as the dissolution of his marriage. Watson has a daughter, Kimberly, aged 14, and a son Patrick, aged 10.

The possing manager to Watson's children "is a great concern of mine," said Neil LaVita, clinical director of Western State's forensic unit.

"David Watson would like the children to live with him, but the children do not want to live with him."

"He's not well enough to go back to work," Bybee said Wednesday. "We still think that he's still not well, we were a little scared on the kids' sake." Bybee said.

After the death of their mother, the two Watson children moved to Idaho to live with a paternal uncle. Since then, they have moved to Seattle to live with their father's sister, Peggy Burnett, who testified that the children have visited with and "are not afraid of their father."

Ronald Castibero, Watson's attorney, said doctors were most concerned about long-term, live-in relationships. Under the conditions recommended, he said, that wouldn't be allowed.

"Let's face it. Today it is conditional release and a year from now it's going to be non-conditional release," Bibb said.

has prevented reporters from meeting with him.

Hall said last week, "If I let one (reporter) in, I have to let everyone in," explaining it a security risk to allow reporters to visit prisoners.

If Charbonneau wants to list his complaints in a letter to the North Idaho News, "I'll hand-deliver it," Hall said.

Charbonneau, 24, has been charged with first-degree murder in the death of his ex-wife, Marilyn Arbaugh, 36. He is accused of shooting her 15 times at her Jerome County home on July 1. He also faces charges from Lincoln County that he abducted Arbaugh and raped her several weeks before her death.

Senate passes day care licensing plan

Briefly

Governor OKs judges' pay hike

BOISE (AP) — Idaho judges' pay, lowest in the nation, will increase under legislation the governor signed Thursday.

The measure provides for district judges' salaries to rise from their present $45,300 to $56,000 by July 1, 1986. The two-year increase to be granted this summer and next year also will raise Supreme Court justices' pay to $59,750, up from $47,300.

State appellate court judges will earn $1,000 less than the justices, and magistrates will receive pay raises under a special formula, calling for increases ranging from 80 percent to 90 percent of those earned by district judges.

Child abuse tax checkoff set

BOISE (AP) — A bill providing for a tax refund checkoff to build a trust fund for prevention of child abuse and neglect has been signed into law by Gov. John Evans.

Sixth District Magistrate Lowell Castleton, chairman of a committee that developed the proposal, said supporters hope it will build a $2.5 million, self-perpetuating fund.

If that figure is reached, the checkoff will cease and the fund will serve as an interest-bearing endowment. The fund also will be set up to receive corporate donations.

The measure's sponsor in the Senate, Marti Calabretta, D-Osburn, said the money will be used to fund grants for such projects as school programs aimed at curbing abuse, and operation of telephone hotlines to which troubled parents could turn for help.

Sales tax limitation approved

BOISE (AP) — Legislation barring the state Tax Commission from collecting sales tax on appliances sold with homes has cleared the Idaho Legislature.

The Senate gave the bill final approval on a unanimous vote Thursday, sending the ban to Gov. John Evans.

A settlement worked out between the Association of Idaho Realtors and the commission, the bill was prompted by the commission's decision last summer that state law required it to assess sales tax on appliances and other items included in a home sale.

Realtors vigorously objected, contending the requirement would result in arbitrary assessments of value at best and that it was improper for the state to effectively turn them into tax assessors.

Party selection plan revived

BOISE (AP) — The Republican leadership in the Idaho House is making a last-minute effort to win passage of a bill allowing political parties to select their candidates at party conventions, not through the primary election process.

The four Republicans on the Ways and Means Committee voted late Thursday afternoon to print and introduce a new version of legislation currently stalled in the House State Affairs Committee.

The three Democrats on Ways and Means objected.

Rep. James Sticheff, D-Sandwich, argued that an identical bill, which already has cleared the Senate, is before State Affairs. He suggested that if Republicans want the bill, they should try to force it out of committee.

Ag director aims for solutions

BOISE (AP) — The acting director of the Department of Agriculture says his goal is to bring agency back to serving the public and Idaho's agriculture industry.

"There are a lot of good people working in the agency," said George Neumayer Thursday. "We'd like to get them back to doing their jobs."

Neumayer was appointed acting director on Monday, when Gov. John Evans announced that Max Hanson was retiring as director of the agency.

Neumayer said he has been meeting with agency administrators and employees to uncover the problems.

He said he has ordered a freeze on administrative decisions until he can review them. That means there will be no personnel actions, trips or meetings until he can meet with those involved and personally review the need.

BOISE (AP) — Despite predictions that its efforts are in vain, the Senate has approved a plan for the licensing of day-care facilities that could end Idaho's distinction as the only state without a licensing requirement.

"It's time for this Senate to go on record that we care about the children of this state," said Sen. Ron Betselpacher, D-Grangeville, who led the drive that resulted in Thursday's 31-10 vote sending the bill to the House.

"It's time to send a message to the child abusers that you no longer have a free license to roam the state of Idaho... that we're going to provide a safety net for our children."

Under the Senate bill, the state health and welfare department would set and enforce the licensing standards involving safety and financial stability. In an effort to win support from critics of the bill, similar to one that passed the Senate but died in the House last year, the measure was modified to allow counties or cities to take over the licensing program if their standards are at least as strict as those imposed by the state.

Small day-care operators could also avoid inspections by certifying to the state licensing committee that they are in compliance with the licensing law. Inspections would only be triggered if complaints are lodged against them.

Backers of the bill argued that state licensing was preferable to the current patchwork of local licensing laws. They claimed that what they're seeing in some of the session is now awaiting action by the legislature.

But Sen. Atwell Parry, R-Moabe, contending the bill would insure the safety of the state's 30,000 to 35,000 children in day care centers, said "center operators are behind the legislation because they don't like what they're seeing in some of the homes. Basically, they want to clean up their act."

Sales tax law revision gets renewed effort

BOISE (AP) — The House, which has been trying all session to pass a bill correcting a conflict in state sales tax laws, started over on that effort on Thursday.

The House several times has debated legislation making it clear that sales under 11 cents are exempt from Idaho's 4 percent sales tax. But that effort has been caught up in debate whether newspapers should be exempted.

Wednesday, Rep. Harold Reid, D-Craigmont, said House Bill 207, which was up for final action, added to the conflicts. He won House approval to withdraw the legislation.

Rep. Steve Antone, R-Rupert, won Reynolds and Taxation Committee approval Thursday to print and introduce a new bill, setting the sales tax minimum at 11 cents, for everything except newspapers.

Antone wrote a specific newspaper exemption into the new bill, he says.

Newspaper carriers, delivery vans, homes and businesses are exempt from the sales taxes.

Vending sales and single-copy sales also will be exempt from the sales tax, if the sales price, minus production and delivery costs, is under 24 cents.

Most Sunday papers, which carry higher prices, will be subject to sales taxes.

Hunt empire continues slide as Great Western seeks help

DALLAS (AP) — Great Western Sugar Co., one of the last assets of Hunt International Resources Co., filed for protection from its creditors Thursday in federal bankruptcy court.

The Denver-based company had been shut down last week by its parent company, which was once a major force in the sugar industry. Brothers Nelson-Bunker Hunt and W. Herbert Hunt of Dallas.

Great Western filed a voluntary petition under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code, deputy court clerk Marge Tucker said.

The Hunts had sought bids for Great Western, but were apparently unable to make a sale that satisfied creditors. Hunt International's lenders have been in control of the ailing company's finances for several weeks.

The bankruptcy protection filing was the latest in a series of financial embarrasements and downturns experienced by the wealthy Hunt family, once one of the nation's richest.

Robert White, Hunt International's chief counsel, was not available for comment, said a secretary. No one else could comment for the company, she said.

Hunt International is one of the brothers' three major holdings. The pair invested heavily in energy, commodities such as sugar and silver, and farmland, all of which have experienced slumps. Losses for the family have been estimated at $4 billion.

An association representing 2,000 Great Western sugar beet growers has tried to purchase the company, and its Northern Ohio Sugar Co. subsidiary, through the two-month bidding process.

The association, Greeley, Colo.-based SUGRO, said it hoped to resume operation of the company's now-idle refineries.

Hunt International disclosed in an earlier Securities and Exchange Commission filing that it was in default on a $124.5 million line of credit at the end of January, and had borrowed an additional $92 million. The assets of the company were valued at about $192 million as of Sept. 30, according to the SEC filing.

The sugar industry has been hurt by the popularity of artificial sweeteners. Growers say that because of the high cost of shipping, they would have to switch to other crops if Great Western permanently closed.

DEA agent beaten up before dying

MEXICO CITY (AP) — U.S. Ambassador John Gavin said Thursday an American drug agent had been brutally beaten before he was killed, and vowed the United States and Mexico will exact payment with an intensified war on traffickers.

He confirmed at a news conference that the bodies found Tuesday evening in plastic bags on a ranch 60 miles north of Guadalajara were those of Enrique Camarena Salazar, who worked for the U.S. Drug Enforcement Agency, and the agent's pilot, Alfredo Zavala Avelar.

Camarena was abducted Feb. 7, while the U.S. consulate in Guadalajara, which is considered a center of drug trafficking. On the same day gunmen seized Zavala on his way to the airport.

The United States "shall not be intimidated by this atrocity. We intend to pursue the perpetrators of these heinous crimes in conjunction with Mexican authorities," Gavin said.

In Washington, Secretary of State George P. Shultz said he opposes economic sanctions to force a Mexican crackdown on illegal drug dealers or corrupt government officials.

But he indicated that the murder of Camarena, threats against other American drug agents and inaction by Mexican authorities against illegal drug production may demand some American response.

"Our level of tolerance has been exceeded by these events," Shultz said.

The acting DEA administrator, John C. Lawn, told reporters he continues to believe Camarena's captors might have been caught, if Mexican authorities had "acted more quickly."

Gavin, who expressed "deep regrets" to Mica Camarena, the agent's wife, said Camarena's body would be taken in a U.S. Air Force plane to San Diego, near his hometown of Calexico, Calif.

Mexicans attacked in robbery

NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas (AP) — Five Mexican nationals were found near a rural road Thursday following an apparent robbery, and one victim died to death after his throat was cut, authorities said.

The four other victims, ranging in age from 10 to 21, were taken to a hospital in San Antonio, where all underwent surgery, officials said.

"It looks like it was a robbery," said a Texas Rangers spokesman in San Antonio.

The men "were plucked up in San Antonio by two individuals," Casteel said. "A deal was cut to haul these people up to Denton and they were robbed. Our information is they were taken out of the car and told to kneel down and were shot."

Denton is about 35 miles north of Dallas.

Authorities were searching for two suspects believed to be driving a large blue vehicle, Casteel said.

Comal County Sheriff's Sgt. Ed Mullins said he was led to the shooting scene after being flagged down by a motorist, who had put two of the victims in the back of his truck.

AWACS used in drug fight

WASHINGTON (AP) — Air Force AWACS planes with special radar devices are being used to help detect airplanes illegally smuggling drugs across the Texas-Mexico border, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen said Thursday.

Bentsen, D-Texas, said the AWACS, which stand Airborne Warning and Control System planes, have been used five times so far in the search for drug smugglers.

He said Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger was "enthusiastic" about use of the planes, and more flights are likely.

Bentsen called the AWACS flights "productive," but said he did not know how many arrests had resulted from them. He said he had asked the Defense Department for detailed numbers.

O'Neill foresees defeat for MX bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. said Thursday that despite an intensive lobbying campaign by President Reagan, at least 200 House Democrats are prepared to kill the MX missile.

In the Senate, Assistant Republican leader Ted Stevens of Alaska said he believes at least 55 of 100 senators "eventually will vote for continuing the MX missile."

White House spokesman House Armed Services Committee Chairman Les Aspin is prepared to vote for continued MX financing later this month, O'Neill said. He met with Aspin and had not yet given up hope that the Senate would be persuaded to vote against the missile.

AIDS screening test given government OK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government approved a second screening test for AIDS contamination in blood donations on Thursday, licensing a New Jersey firm to produce the test for blood banks, plasma centers and laboratories.

The licensing came less than a week after the FDA granted a license to Abbott Laboratories of North Chicago, Ill. Three other firms have license applications pending.

The test kits detect the presence of antibodies to the AIDS virus. A positive test does not necessarily mean the donor has AIDS, but does indicate that the donor has been exposed.

The Food and Drug Administration approved the license for Electro-Nucleonics Inc., of Fairfield, N.J., and said the firm was prepared to begin shipping some 150,000 test kits immediately from a facility in Columbia, Md.

Canada considers pact to lower trade bars

By CHARLES CAMPBELL
The Associated Press

OTTAWA — The Canadian government is considering negotiating a trade pact with the United States, doing away with almost all barriers to trade across the world's longest undefended border.

But free trade with the Americans can be a highly charged issue in Canada. In two of the most important elections in the country's history, Liberal governments were booted out of office for proposing to eliminate the tariff barriers erected by Tory prime ministers to protect Canadian industry.

"No Truck Nor Trade With the Yankees" — the successful Conservative election slogan in 1911 — is still well-remembered here.

So the new Tory government of Prime Minister Brian Mulroney is stepping cautiously, asking for comment from all sides before deciding — probably in May or June — whether to begin bargaining with the Americans.

"We're going to examine this very carefully, before we bet any bundle on

BRIAN MULRONEY
...all kinds of scarecrows
it," Mulroney told a recent news conference.

and what I think we have to do is try to depoliticize some of it," he said.

Nevertheless, the movement toward free trade is to be one of the top items on the agenda of Mulroney's March 17-18 meeting with President Reagan in Quebec City.

Officials say it is too soon to sign an agreement, but the two leaders are likely to lend their endorsement to the basic idea.

One way the Canadian government is trying to defuse emotions is by avoiding the very term "free trade" talking instead about "securing and enhancing access to markets" in the United States.

James Kelher, Mulroney's minister of international trade, says Canada's chief concern is not tariffs — most are disappearing anyway as the result of international negotiations under the General Agreement on Trade and Tariffs, or GATT — but other barriers to Canadian exports.

Chief among them are "Buy American" preferences in many states and procedures for levying "countervailing" duties if an American industry can prove it is being harmed by Canadian imports. Countervailing actions and congressional pressure for quotas and other restrictions have become far more frequent in recent years, making nearly all of Canadian industry very nervous.

"Access. You've got to have that," Kelher said in an interview. "You know, I think this is something our people haven't completely understood yet. If our Canadian manufacturers don't have secure access into the United States, then they're not going to enlarge their plants and create more jobs, because the domestic market in Canada is too small."

Kelher, who was a lawyer in the border city of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, before winning a seat in Parliament in last September's Tory victory, says the mere possibility that access to the U.S. market might someday be cut off is hindering investment in Canada.

But to win guaranteed access,

Canada is going to have to make painful concessions, "sacrificing" domestic industries that have thrived under protection from American competition.

"Trade is a two-way street. If you're going to give me something, I'm going to want something in return," Kelher said. "We're going to have to decide what we're prepared to give in order to get."

Some economists estimate that Canadian incomes could increase by more than 5 percent within a few years if trade barriers were lowered, but at the cost of considerable restructuring of inefficient industries.

"That can mean relocation and dislocation of jobs," Kelher said. "In other areas it's going to mean a gain of jobs. What Canadians are going to have to do is weigh that out."

An American official in Ottawa, speaking on condition that he not be identified, said the U.S. side would be interested in reducing Canadian barriers — i.e. imports — of lumber, agricultural products, wine and liquor and pharmaceuticals.

But any scheme that improves Canadian export prospects in other fields is sure to have a "rough ride" in Congress, he said.

"The moment you target an industry to be liberalized, those people wonder if there is a realistic hope for a trade agreement."

The potential opposition from influential interests on both sides of the border make many people, even some officials involved in trade discussions, wonder if there is a realistic hope for a trade agreement.

For the Reagan administration, the chief advantage may be what the U.S. official called a "demonstration effect," showing other countries that American promotion of a liberalized trade regime is not all talk with reflection.

On the Canadian side, one spur to action is the Mulroney government's desire to have something to show for its policy of warmer relations with the United States.

Recycling high-grade paper promises expanding success

Has your office established a paper chase?

You're into one of the fastest-growing forms of recycling in the United States today and almost surely, a profitable enterprise, too. If not, get moving. Reusing high-grade used papers and separating it into types for reuse makes sense and promises expanding success.

This coming week (March 11) the paper companies will meet at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City for National Paper Week and will discuss what is occurring. Meanwhile, you can get a head start by recognizing that "demands for the grades of paper used in offices is growing steadily," as J. Rodney Edwards, an officer of the American Paper Inst. says in a report. "This increases the profit potential of a successful office recycling program."

This expanding market wants clean, recyclable paper grades, including: white ledger paper, such as letter, copy and business forms; white photocopy and Xerox paper; index cards; computer tabulating cards; computer printout paper. Specific procedures for handling recyclable paper will vary from building to building and office to office, but if you want to establish an effective office program, the following is a good approach:

1. Establish a market for your paper. The key first step is to contact a local waste paper dealer (listed in the Yellow Pages under "waste paper"). The dealer knows the grades of paper in demand and the price paid

Sylvia Porter

- 2) Get all employees in your office to cooperate and help with separating recyclable paper from other office trash.
 - 3) If management is supporting the program, so much the better. As an incentive, some firms donate a percentage of recyclable paper to a scholarship fund or local charity, or sponsor office parties.
 - 4) Separate recyclable waste paper apart from unwanted paper and other items that hinder recycling. This is easiest at the desk where the papers are generated. Some office use desk-top containers, such as file trays or napkin-type holders, where employees place different types of paper in separate compartments.
 - 5) Create an efficient collection system. This will transport the collected paper to a central area for pickup and deposit in larger containers. The system will depend on the physical layout of your office — the point is, do not waste time or effort.
 - 6) Keep waste paper free of contaminants. Contamination, which includes non-recyclable paper and other materials, substantially lowers the value of office waste paper because it produces serious problems in the paper manufacturing process. Contaminants run the gamut from soot-covered items as food waste, beverage bottles and cans to some not-so-obvious materials such as gummed labels.
 - 7) Here is a list of what to avoid: Envelopes with plastic windows; blueprint paper; carbon paper; colored paper; newspapers and magazines; file folders and cardboard (all recyclable, but must be handled separately); lunch bags, cups, wax paper; film, glue, Scotch tape; spiral binders and metal fasteners (with the exception of staples, which can be included with clean paper).
 - 8) Keep your program updated and publicize it. Produces serious success if you support it with cooperation, publicity and enthusiasm.
- Publicize your efforts periodically. Your company's publications, special interest office memos, announcements and awards can be turned into a gathering — all can add up to major drive. New employees should be drawn in as quickly as possible.
- "This is a 'paper chase' for business as well as government offices. Recycling can be turned into a habit that will be profitable and fun."
- Sylvia Porter writes on consumer matters for Universal Press-Syndicate.

Wall Street close lowest in 6 weeks

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market sagged to a six-week low Thursday under the pressure of continuing interest-rate worries.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, down 1.48 on Wednesday, fell another 8.84 to 1,271.53. The marked the average's lowest close since it stood at 1,270.33 on Jan. 24.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange came to 112,10 million shares, down from 114.6 million Wednesday.

Apple Computer fell 2 1/2% to 22 1/2% in the over-the-counter market. The company announced plans to shut down production for a week because of excess inventories of personal computers.

American Natural Resources was actively traded, up 1 1/2% at 62 1/2. The company, which is the subject of an unwelcome $60-a-share takeover bid by Coastal Corp., is reported to be looking for a "white knight" merger partner.

Crown Zellerbach jumped 2 1/2% to 38.

The company has been rumored to be a possible takeover target of Sir James Goldsmith, the British financier.

Sperry, also the subject of takeover speculation, climbed 3/4% to 5 1/4% in active trading. Late in the day the company issued a statement declaring that it was not involved in any merger talks.

Retailing issues were mostly lower — major companies in the industry reported February sales figures that analysts described as mixed. J.C. Penney, which weighed in with a 3 1/2% percent sales increase, held steady at 140 1/2 million shares.

But Sears Roebuck dropped 3/4% to 34 1/4; K mart lost 3/4% to 34 1/4; Federated Department Stores fell 1 1/2% to 55 1/2; and Associated Dry Goods was down 3/4% at 56 1/2.

The daily tally on the Big Board showed a net loss of 1.2 billion shares and three stocks that gained ground, and the exchange's composite index slipped .57 to 104.07.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges, and the over-the-counter market, totaled 140.17 million shares.

Hoyas crush Connecticut in Big Eight, 93-62

NEW YORK (AP) — All-America Patrick Ewing and Bill Martin scored 20 points apiece in leading Georgetown past Connecticut 93-62, equaling the biggest victory in the six-year history of the Big East Conference basketball tournament.

"You probably saw the greatest team in the country," said Connecticut Coach Dom Perno about top-ranked Georgetown. "They have the numbers and Ewing is unbelievable."

In another one-sided game, No. 25 John's ripped Providence 82-32 behind Walter Berry, Chris Mullin and Bill Wennington.

But No. 13 Syracuse barely hung on for a 70-69 victory over Boston College on sophomore Dwayne "Fear" Washington's basket with 21 seconds remaining.

Villanova met Pittsburgh in the concluding quarterfinal game Thursday night at Madison Square Garden.

In tonight's semifinal round, Georgetown, 79-2, faces Syracuse, 21-7, while St. John's, 28-2, meets the winner of the Villanova-Pittsburgh game.

Berry scored 23 points, Mullin 22 and Wennington 21 and they combined for all but four of the Redmen's points in the first half when they took a 45-25 lead. Mullin, a 6-6/164 senior guard who is the leading scorer in St. John's history, continually set up the 7-foot Wennington for easy baskets on seven assists, while also tying a single-game tournament record set last year by Villanova's Dwayne McClain, by making seven steals.

St. John's twice led by 34 points in the second half, at 74-40 and 88-55.

College basketball

Ewing, a 7-foot, two-time All-America, and Billy Martin led the way for the Hoyas, each scoring 20 points and combining for 20 rebounds.

"I was a little nervous at first," Ewing scored 15 of his points in the second half after sitting out the last 9:27 of the first half, with three personal fouls. Sophomore Reggie Williams also picked up three personal fouls in the first half.

"I don't want anyone on the bench except myself, and even he's not there too much," said Georgetown Coach John Thompson, who usually is standing up and pacing the sidelines.

Williams also picked up three fouls. Thompson was worried about senior Ewing on the bench, the Hoyas pulled away to a 47-36 halftime advantage.

Ewing went to work in the second half when a 18-0 spurt gave the Hoyas their biggest lead, 89-52 with 4:00 left.

Ewing hit seven of 10 shots from the field and Martin 10 of 17 as the Hoyas shot 49 percent. The Huskies, who wound up seventh in the Big East regular season, hit only 31 percent from the field.

"This team has more offensive depth than last year, particularly on the perimeter, but I'm not sure we are as deep defensively," said Thompson.

Tim Coles' career-high 22 points helped Connecticut 13-15 in the seventh-place finisher in the regular season fell to 13-15.

Boston College, which had trailed by 13 with 11:35 remaining, missed two scoring opportunities after Washington's goal — the last a short jumper by freshman Troy Bowers that rolled around the rim and out as the buzzer went off.

"The shot (by Bowers) was 95 percent down," Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim said of Bowers' attempt. "It was a great shot, but it wasn't there."

Syracuse and BC split during the regular season.

"The play was exactly the way we wanted it," said Eagles Coach Gary Williams. "It looked like it went in straight, and it was so soft I thought it would kick in."

As for Georgetown, which the Orangemen beat twice in two tries this season, Boeheim said: "It's scary they're playing so well. I know we can play better than last time. We have to play a near perfect game. We think we can do it."

The hot-outside shooting of Rafael Addison helped the Orangemen take a 53-40 advantage with 11:35 remaining. But the Eagles battled back behind the shooting of Roger McCready, Terrence Valley and Stu Primus.

Boston College regained the lead for the first time, 63-62, when Michael Adams drove the court for a layup with 3:21 remaining. The lead changed hands five times before Valley's goal put the Eagles in front 69-68 with 56 seconds remaining.

Boston College regained the lead for the first time, 63-62, when Michael Adams drove the court for a layup with 3:21 remaining. The lead changed hands five times before Valley's goal put the Eagles in front 69-68 with 56 seconds remaining.

Adison, a 6-foot-7 junior, hit all of his seven shots from the field and paced the Orangemen with 23 points. Wendell Alexis added 15 points and Washington 13.

McCready finished with 20 points, Primus 18 and Talley 15.

Boston College was in command for most of the first half until Addison began hitting and pulled the Orangemen to within 30-29 at the intermission.

Syracuse, which finished in a third-place tie with Villanova during the regular season, raised its overall record to 21-7. In losing its fourth straight game, Boston College, sixth-place finisher during the regular season, dropped to 18-10.

Illinois 59 Iowa 53

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Anthony Welch caught four free throws in the last 16 seconds of overtime Thursday night to complete No. 14 Illinois' comeback from a deficit, second-half deficit and help the Illini post a 59-53 Big Ten basketball victory over Iowa.

The Hawkeyes' Andre Banks forced the extra period by sinking a jumper with 11 seconds remaining in regulation to tie the score at 49-49. Illinois' Tony Wyszinger had given the Illini a two-point win with a layup with 41 seconds remaining.

Iowa held a 33-26 edge with about 15 minutes to play before the Illini, patiently pulled even, with Wyszinger tying the game at 47-47 with a jumper at 3:30.

The team traded baskets for the first three minutes of overtime until Doug Altzenberger hit a jump shot at 2:17 to give Illinois a 55-53 lead.

Iowa then missed four shots in the final two minutes and Welch calmly converted his free throws in the last 15 seconds to give Illinois its third straight win at home.

The victory also earned the Illini sole possession of second place in the Big Ten, with an 11-6 conference record. Illinois is 23-4 overall. Bruce Douglas and Ken Norman, each scored 12 points, and Welch added 10 for Illinois.

Tulsa 85 Bradley 77

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Steve Harris scored 27 points as No. 15 Tulsa breezed past Bradley 85-77 Thursday night to set up a Tulsa-Wichita State championship game Saturday in the Missouri Valley Conference basketball tournament.

Tulsa scored its first three field goals off steals and rushed to a 10-1 lead. Bradley rallied to go ahead 12-16. It was the Braves' only lead of the game.

Tulsa led just 36-34 at halftime but gradually pulled away and had an 87-14 advantage before reserves finished the game.

The Hurricane improved to 23-6 in averaging an earlier loss to Bradley, which fell to 17-12.

Loyola 100 Oklahoma City 85

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Andre Battle averaged 23 points in a 100-85 victory over Oklahoma City in the first round of the Midwestern City Conference tournament Thursday night.

The win advanced Loyola, 23-6, to the tournament's second round-Friday against Xavier. The loss ended Oklahoma City's season at 6-20.

Loyola jumped out to an early 10-2 lead as turnovers and errant shots plagued Oklahoma City.

However, the Ramblers' offense was stalled by fouls, missed shots and turnovers and Oklahoma City was able to battle back from a 16-9 deficit to a 20-19 lead at 8:58 on a jump shot by guard Ben Baker.

Memphis St. 68 S. Mississippi 58

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Senior forward Keith Lee led a powerful inside attack with 17 points as No. 5 Memphis State fended off a pesky Southern Mississippi 68-58 in the first round of the Metro Conference basketball tournament Thursday night.

Memphis State, the regular season champion, will meet the winner of the Louisville-South Carolina matchup in Friday's semifinals.

Southern Mississippi fell to 7-21.

Memphis State, 25-3, got all but two points from its front-line in the first half as it cruised to a 39-24 halftime lead.

Seven-foot center William Bedford, who finished with 12 points, and the 6-10 Lee dwarfed their smaller opponents and easily freed themselves on the inside. Memphis shot a sizzling 66 percent from the field in the first half.

Memphis State outscored the Golden Eagles 19-2 to take a 21-11 lead with 10:29 left in the first half when Bedford dunked an alley-oop pass.

Georgia 67 Tennessee 61

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Seventeenth-ranked Georgia built a 12-point lead with less than four minutes remaining and then held off a Tony White-led rally to edge Tennessee 67-61 in the quarterfinals of the Southeastern Conference basketball tournament Thursday night.

Joe Ward scored 21 points to lead the Bulldogs to their first victory in three controversial meetings with the Vols this season.

The triumph sent Georgia into Friday night's semifinals against Alabama, which beat Mississippi State 42-31 earlier in the day.

Florida knocked out Kentucky 58-55 to gain a semifinal berth opposite the winner of Thursday night's final match between Auburn and No. 19 Louisiana State, the SEC champion.

Nevada-Reno 83 Idaho 80

BOISE (AP) — Dwayne Randall poured in 23 points as top-seeded Nevada-Reno hung on to defeat Idaho 83-80 Thursday night in the quarterfinals of the Big Sky Conference Basketball tournament.

UNR, the conference regular-season champion at 11-3, trailed much of the game as Idaho got 25 points and 11 rebounds from Frank Garza and 21 points from Teddy Noel, whose 35-foot three-point attempt at the buzzer missed the basket.

The victory boosted the Wolf Pack to 19-9 and UNR moved into Friday night's semifinals.

The 6-7 junior forward Randall scored 15 of his total in the first half and guard Tom Harden added 15 for UNR, which trailed at intermission 43-40.

Three straight three-point jumpers by Garza early in the second half helped Idaho to move to a 59-50 margin with 15:08 remaining. But two points by Randall in a 9-0 streak tied the score at 56 and the game remained close the rest of the way.

Arizona 69 Montana 62

BOISE (AP) — Northern Arizona outscored Montana 10-0 in the final 2:55 to win the opening game of the Big Sky Conference Basketball Tournament 69-62 Thursday afternoon.

Trailing 62-58, NAU, the tournament's fourth seed, got two baskets from Lavonne Davis and four straight free throws from guard Andy Reed to put the game away.

The loss, which eliminated the Bobcats from the tournament, was MSU's third of the season to Northern Arizona, which advanced to Friday night's semi-final round at Boise State University's pavilion.

man-to-man defense.

North Gem hit 32 of the 49 shots it took from the floor — almost two thirds — and handled whatever defensive pressure they attempted.

The Cowboys, for example, were 5-13 in the first quarter and 8-10 in the fourth.

Lane Stratman, a 6-6 junior, finished with 25 points, hitting six of the first seven shots he took from the floor.

Ray Knight, a 5-foot-8 center, led Providence with 12 points before fouling out with 13:21 remaining.

Georgetown's romp over Connecticut matched the previous Big East victory margin, established by Georgetown in a 92-61 defeat of Syracuse in 1980.

11 minutes on the court.

Behind the outside shooting of Greg Johnston and the inside play of Tim Sifianek, Plummer — had surged ahead by a much as eight points in the second half. But Cascade's Tom Bowers and teammate Bruce Stevens evened the score and gave Cascade the lead, at 56-54, with 53 seconds remaining.

Johnston sent the game into overtime with 15 seconds left, but it was Plummer's shot that won it.

Cascade dominated matters in the extra period, limiting Plummer to two shots from the floor and two rebounds.

Hitt scored 14 points, while Stevens finished with 13. Johnston earned game honors with 17 points, and Sifianek chipped in 14.

Kendrick 78, Marsing

Kendrick, the champion of the district that has won five of the last seven state "A-4" boys' tournaments, served notice Thursday that a sixth is in jeopardy.

Smooth-shooting senior guard Troy Jewett scored 24 points, while three of his teammates hit in double figures en route to the romp over Marsing, which is making its first-ever appearance in a state A-4 boys' tournament.

The Tigers did it with superior size and quickness, running up a five-point lead at the end of the first quarter and expanding it steadily to 26 points, midway through the third quarter. Brian Parks hit 17 points while Jack Meyer got 12 and Robert Blair 10.

The Huskies were led by senior James Dugger, who scored 12 points.

If the Hornets remain in the tournament through Saturday, Woodhouse has a shot at breaking the tournament scoring record of 88 points held by Ron Knowles, currently the boys' basketball coach at Declo, when he played at Dietrich in 1966.

Bliss Coach Jerry's coaching philosophy is simple: a high school basketball game lasts 32 minutes, so use it all.

The fourth-ranked Bears, who had trailed by as many as eight points in the third quarter and put the fourth out together a defensive display and caught up with the fifth-ranked Mountaineers just in time. Juan Menchaca put Bliss in the lead for the first time in the second half midway through the final period, then Larry Wilkins went to work underneath. Wilkins, a 6-3 senior who finished the game with 16 points and 14 rebounds, had eight of those points and seven of those boards after intermission.

That was made possible by Richard Smith, a 5-5 senior guard.

"I told Richard to take the shots if he had them," said Couch. "As so often happens with us, they had been double-teaming Larry until Richard started hitting those three-pointers. Then they had to lay off of Larry, which opened things up for him."

Although the Mountaineers managed to tie the game, they never got the lead back. Ritchie Graves put Bliss ahead to stay with a field goal with 1:48 on the clock and added a free throw a minute later.

"It was a good defensive game for us," said Couch. "The big kid (freshman John Krigbaum) hurt us, but I thought we did a good job on their guards. They're used to scoring 80 and 90 points a game as a team, so I really was worried about trying to contain them."

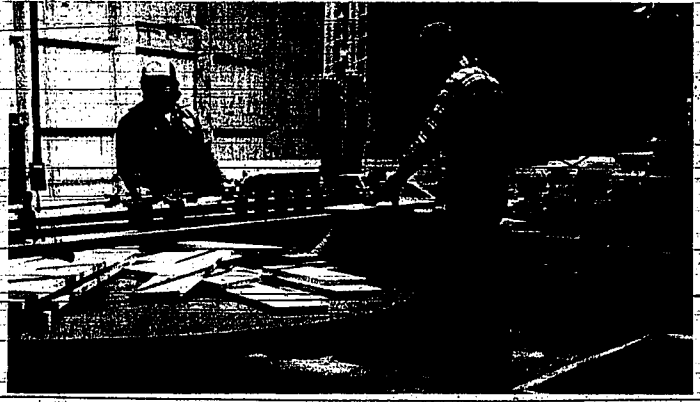

Krigbaum, a 6-3 senior, finished with 12 points, while Meadows Valley's No. 1 and No. 2 scorers, guards Jim Conger and Lloyd Dixon, had 10 and 11 points, respectively.

Smith shared game honors with Wilkins with 16 points, including four three-pointers.

Cascade 60, Plummer 56 (OT)

Cascade was outplayed for three quarters Thursday, but the Ramblers more than made up for it in their final

"One reason MTC came to Payette was the low electric rates."

It's a long trip from Lake Oswego, Oregon to Payette, Idaho, but MTC Manufacturing thought it was worth it. One reason why? Idaho Power's low electric rates. Ray Kelson, president of the wood products firm, explains.

More and more companies like MTC are finding Idaho a great place to do business. High-tech outfits, food processors, and manufacturers all have moved in. And with some of the lowest electric rates in the country, Idaho Power is one reason why.

"We make solid pine panels for the do-it-yourselfer. We use edge glue machines, rip saws, sanders, and moulders, and we do use a lot of electricity. So one of the things that brought us to Idaho was the low electric rates. They're about half of what they are in Portland.

Doing our comparisons we found it would be a lot cheaper to operate and run a plant in Idaho."

Ray Kelson, President MTC Manufacturing

Idaho Power's low electric rates mean business.

Razorbacks favored to win NCAA indoor

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Led by Mike Conley, the defending champion in both the long- and triple jump, the University of Arkansas is favored to retain the men's title in the two-day NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships beginning today at the Carrier Dome.

Nebraska, paced by sprinter-long jumper Angela Thacker, is the choice to defend the women's crown.

The scripts appear similar to last year, when the NCAA Indoor Championships were held in the Detroit area for the first time in the event's 25-year history.

In 1984, Conley won both horizontal jumps, accounting for 20 points, more than half the Arkansas total, as the Razorbacks edged runner-up Iowa State 38-36.

Conley, the Olympic silver medalist in the triple jump, is coming off the best indoor performances of his career in winning two events at last month's USA-Mobil Championships. He is expected to win both jumps again here.

"Mike Conley is the best team man we've ever had," said Arkansas Coach John McDonnell. "He's the hardest worker I've ever had."

"Athletes like Mike are in-

valuable," added McDonnell, who guided the Razorbacks to a rare "triple" last year — titles in the NCAA Indoor, Outdoor and Cross Country championships.

"The other athletes look up to him and see how unselfish he is and what a hard worker he is. They want to be like him and that makes us a better team."

"Better" also is the word McDonnell, now in his eighth year at Arkansas, used in describing his 1985 team compared with his 1984 squad.

"Teamwise, on paper, this is by far the best team we've ever had at Arkansas," he said. "We have better athletes at the top now than we've ever had and we have more quality depth."

In addition to Conley, the Razorbacks are counting on points from high jumper Bill Jasinski, pole vaulter Mark Klee, shot putter Marty Kobza, distance runner Paul Donovan, Gary Taylor and David Swain, long jumper Joey Wells, and two relay teams.

Overall, the Razorbacks, qualified 19 athletes for the championships, more than most teams.

"He (McDonnell) knows we can win it (the title)," said Conley, only the second athlete to win both jumps in the NCAA Indoor Championships in the same year (Hall of Famer Bob Beamon of Texas-El Paso was the first in 1968). "We know we can win it. And if we perform up to our 'max,' we can do it."

Washington State, Brigham Young and Iowa State appear to be the teams with the best chances of dethroning the Razorbacks.

The men's competition will feature several outstanding athletes, in addition to the group from Arkansas.

Among the top entries are Tennessee's Sam Graddy, Olympic silver medalist in the 100 meters and gold medalist in the 400-meter relay team; Kent State's Thomas Jefferson, the bronze medalist in the Olympic 200; Georgia Tech's Antonio McKay, Olympic bronze medalist in the 400 and a member of the gold medal winning 1,600-meter relay team; Iowa State's Danny Harris, the Games' silver medalist in the 400-meter intermediate hurdles; Eastern Michigan's Earl Jones, bronze medalist in the 100-meter dash; and Washington State's Gabriel Tlach of the Ivory Coast, the Olympic silver medalist in the 400.

In addition to Conley in the jumps and McKay in the 400, returning champions include Texas El Paso's Tore Johnsen of Norway, the 1982 and 1984 winner in the 35-pound weight throw; Washington State's Peter Koeck in the 5,000; Rod Richardson of Texas A&M, the 1982 and 1984 winner in the 55-meter dash; Oklahoma State's Joe Dial in the pole vault; and Boston University's Nick Saunders in the high jump.

Among the women, the top individual appears to be Thacker, a 21-year-old junior from St. Louis, Mo.

In last year's NCAA Indoor Championships, which Nebraska won with 59 points, compared with 49 for runner-up Tennessee, Thacker upset American record holder Carol Lewis of Houston to win the long jump, finished second in the 55-meter dash as the Cornhuskers took 1-2-3 and led off the third-place 1,600-meter relay team.

Like Conley, Thacker, the fourth-place finisher in the Olympic long jump, will have a lot of support.

Big points for two-time defending champion Nebraska also are expected from sprinter-harder Rhonda Blanford, distance runner Marcia Tate, and two relay teams.

The Cornhuskers' major opposition is expected from Louisiana State, Houston, Texas, Tennessee and Villanova.

many standout individuals, besides those on the favored Cornhuskers.

The most well-known is Lewia, whose brother, Carl, won four Olympic gold medals.

Carol had blasted NCAA officials last year because they would not permit her to display a commercial emblem on her socks, and vowed she would not return for this meet. She reiterated that feeling last but three weeks ago before the National Indoor Championships in New York.

But Houston Coach Tom Telles said Thursday, "Last year was a different year. She's a year older. She wants to compete. She realized that she wanted to compete for the team. That was more important to her than the NCAA rules which don't permit emblems on socks."

Other returning women's champions are Villanova's Veronica McLosh in the 800, Wisconsin's Cathy Branta in the 3,000, Washington State's Mary Moore in the high jump, and Rice's Regina Cavanaugh in the shot put.

Friday's program will be devoted to preliminaries, qualifying and semifinals. All 28 finals will be held Saturday.

Hatalsky fashions two-stroke lead at Bill Hill PGA tourney

By BOB GREEN
The Associated Press

ORLANDO, Fla. — Morris Hatalsky scored an eagle on the way to a wind-blown, bumpy par 60 that gave him a two-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $500,000 Hertz-Bay Hill Classic.

Hatalsky, winner of two titles in a 10-year PGA Tour career, hit a 2-iron shot into a gusty, blustery wind and into the cup for the eagle on the 13th hole at Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill Club.

But Hatalsky said his ability to sink a bogey-5 from the water on the 13th hole was "the best in the sense of me, being able to finish a good round."

U.S. Open champion Fuzzy Zoeller, on the mend from major back surgery that threatened his career, wasn't quite so fortunate. He was 2-under par until he bogeyed the water-guarded 18th and finished with a 1-under-par 70.

"I can sleep on a 5," Zoeller said. "A 7 or an 8 might have been hard to handle. But I can live with a 5."

"I'm hitting the ball well," he says. "Maybe someday I'll be knocking on the door again; knock and walk right through."

Mark McCumber, winner of the Donald Ross Open two weeks ago, had a 68 in what he called "a 2-club wind," and was second, two shots off the pace.

Buddy Gardner, who made double-bogey on the 18th, was alone at 69.

Golf

Zoeller was tied at 70 with Tim Simpson, Nick Faldo of England and Nick Price of South Africa, the only others in the invitational field able to break par in the winds that gusted well over 20 miles per hour.

Seve Ballesteros of Spain, the British Open title holder, and long-hitting Greg Norman were in the large group at 71. Defending title holder Gary Koch had a 75. Masters champ Ben Crenshaw was at 76. And host Arnold Palmer struggled to a 78. Tom Watson had a 73 with a triple bogey 7 on the 13th, where he hit into the water.

"But, you know, I'm getting excited about playing again," Watson said. "I'm hitting the ball better than I was early in the year."

scored a hole-in-one with a 3-iron shot on the 17th. But the ace came a few days too early. The sponsors have offered a $500,000 prize for an ace on that hole — but only if accomplished in Sunday's final round.

Hatalsky, who has developed into one of the game's more outstanding putters, got good mileage from his short game. He holed twice from about 15 feet, one of those saving the bogey on the 13th, and dropped a pair of 20-footers for birdie.

"I played really very well, particularly in the area of putting. It was a rewarding round in tough conditions," he said.

In the first quarterfinal match, fourth-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia defeated Sylvia Hanika of West-Germany 6-1, 6-3.

Top-seeded Martina Navratilova was scheduled to play Pat Rensander of Puerto Rico later Thursday.

Turnbull, who was hampered by illness, broke Lindqvist in the second game of the first set to take a 2-0 lead, but Lindqvist, relying on her top-spin, one-handed backhand, came back to take the next six games to win the set while losing only 10 points.

In the second set, Turnbull held service to go up 1-0 before Lindqvist won three straight games. After Turnbull held service to 1-2, she took the 15th-ranked Lindqvist won three more games to take the set and the match.

"I felt OK until I got out there. I'm coming down with the flu," said Turnbull. "I was thinking about defaulting in the beginning of the second set but then I thought if you go out there, you've got to play the whole match."

In the Tanvier-Shriver match, Shriver fell behind 1-1 as Tanvier broke her in the second game. But Shriver came back with a break of her own in the sixth game to even the score at 3-3.

The two then held service the rest of the way to tie it 3-3.

TOKYO — Alexander Fadeev's powerful performance in the men's Union to win its second gold medal at the 1985 World Skating Championships.

Brian Bollano of Sunnyvale, Calif., won the bronze behind second-place finisher Brian Orser of Canada.

The victory by Fadeev, the 1984 European champion, followed the winning finish Wednesday in the pairs event by Fadeev's countrymen Elena Valova and Oleg Vastilyev.

Fadeev was appearing in international competition for the first time since suffering a thigh injury in December. With the exception of a momentary slip, he turned in a brilliant display of complicated steps and maneuvers.

Orser, who was third entering the final event, grabbed the silver with a daily executed series of leaps.

Bollano, who skates a strong program of triple jumps to music from James Bond movies, breezed past Jozef Sabovick of Czechoslovakia, winner of the men's European Championships last month, to the third place.

All three skaters were asked why they had not included the challenging quadruple jump in their routines.

Fadeev said he had decided against it in practice earlier Thursday, and Orser said, "I have done the quadruple in practice but decided not to do it to make sure I had a clean program here."

Bollano said he had not practiced the jump enough and never considered attempting it this time.

Fadeev finished with 2.0 points for his performance Thursday, Orser got 5.2, and Bollano 7.6.

Earlier Thursday, East Germany's Katarina Witt, the Olympic gold medalist and reigning world champion, skated in spicy Spanish music and won the short program but remained third overall.

Tiffany Chin, 17, of Tibeca Lake, Calif., remained in second place after the short program, displaying sprightly footwork to the strain Tchaikovsky's "Swan Lake."

Olympic bronze medalist Kira Ivanova of the Soviet Union, first after compulsory figures, held on to the top spot although she finished third in the short program.

"I went on the ice to do what I always do, nothing particularly special," said Chin. "It went well, I think."

Asked about Witt and Ivanova, Chin said, "We're all very close (in ability)."

Debi Thomas, 17, of San Jose,

Calif., climbed to fifth place from seventh after the short.

The championship continues Friday with the ladies' finals and the ice dance final.

Even people who lose a leg can hope to fly down the mountain again — amputee skiers are, by now, a familiar sight on the slopes.

But lose the use of both legs — as carpenter Tim Burton did when he fell through a roof head first onto a concrete floor three years ago, suffering brain damage and extensive loss of motor function — and that would seem to be that. "I thought what the hell, I'll never ski again," said Burton of South Pasadena, Calif.

But Burton found a way. It's a new sport called sit-skiing, and it resembles kayaking more than beer — and here's this guy in a conventional downhill skiing wheelchair talking about running the

As he masters the sport, Burton eventually would be able to match abilities in the sport with his able-bodied wife, a former ski instructor at Mammoth.

"When you become an accomplished sit-skier, you're not limited to any part of the hill. Sit-skiers have even gone off the Gormies (the most legendary drop at Mammoth)," said Michael Anthony, an instructor for the National Handicapped Sports and Recreation Association.

Exhibition baseball slate begins today

By The Associated Press

Baseball's exhibition season opens Friday with three games, including the spring training debut of the defending World Series champion Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers, who beat the San Diego Padres in five games in the 1984 World Series, play host to the Boston Red Sox at Lakeland, Fla., in a game that begins at 11:30 a.m. MST.

Right-hander Jack Morris, 19-11 last year including a no-hitter against the Chicago White Sox, will start for Detroit, and left-hander Bobby Ojeda, 12-12, will start for the Red Sox. Neither pitcher is expected to work more than three innings.

The other games have the New York Yankees versus Houston at the Astros' new spring training site in Kissimmee, Fla., and the Kansas City Royals versus the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota, Fla.

The White Sox played an exhibition game Thursday, beating the University of South Florida 13-0 at Sarasota. Luis Salazar went 3-for-3 and drove in two runs for the White Sox, and Tim Lollar, acquired from San Diego in the deal that sent LaMarr Hoyt to the Padres, was the winner with three scoreless innings' work.

Saturday's schedule features eight more games, with 10 more on Sunday. Don Mattingly, the Yankees' 1984 American League batting champion with a .344 average, suited up for practice for the first time Thursday. He is recovering from an injury to his right knee Feb. 22. Mattingly, the only outfielder, Yankee said he would begin taking batting practice "in the next few days."

The Kansas City Royals and Cleveland Indians both played intrasquad games.

Charlie Leibrandt pitched two scoreless innings for the Royals, whose six-inning intrasquad game ended in a scoreless draw.

Junior Noboa drove in the tying run in the second inning with the bases loaded grounds for his side in the Indians' game, and the winning run scored on the same play after an error by rookie second baseman Cory Snyder. The score was 2-1.

Saturday's schedule is highlighted by a visit from the Samsung Lions of the Japanese League to the Los Angeles Dodgers' camp at Vero Beach, Fla. The rest of the schedule has Houston at Minnesota, Toronto at

Arizona St. hires Tulsa's grid mentor

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — John Cooper, saying it was a job he "actively pursued," was named Arizona State's new head football coach Thursday after resigning as head football coach and athletic director at the University of Tulsa.

College football

The hiring of Cooper, 47, ends a one-month search by Sid Devill of Tulsa for a successor to Darryl Rogers, who resigned Feb. 6 to become head coach and director of operations for the National Football League's Detroit Lions.

"It's a great honor for me," said Cooper at a hastily called news conference here. "I'm following some great football coaches — Dan Devine, Frank Kush and Darryl Rogers. They have a great tradition and I want to keep the tradition going here. I look forward to the challenge."

"I can tell you up front that I've actively pursued this job for a couple weeks when the opportunity came up. I had a good situation in Tulsa. I was comfortable here. But when I heard about this opening, I did actively pursue it."

Cooper said he agreed to a one-year contract with a verbal agreement for another four years. Terms of the deal were not announced, however.

Harold Shetler, 'Gaylord,' and Shawna Fuller, 'Magnolia,' rehearse a romantic segment of the musical 'Show Boat'

'Show Boat' ready to float across stage

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — It's full steam ahead when the Magic Valley Dilettantes presents "Show Boat" March 15-17 and 21-23 in the College of Southern Idaho's Fine Arts Auditorium.

"Show Boat," based on the Edna Ferber novel of the same title, is the first musical play to break with tradition by presenting an entire artistic entity in the form of a logical storyline with realistic characters.

First presented on stage in 1927, with book and lyrics by Oscar Hammerstein and music by Jerome Kern, "Show Boat" pointed the way for future Broadway musical plays.

The action takes place on the "Cotton Blossom," a show boat on the Mississippi River in the 1880s crewed by Cap'n Andy and his troupe of performers.

Magnolia, Cap'n Andy's daughter, runs off to Chicago with the gambler Gaylord Ravenal, suffers many hardships as his wife — and then the plot twists toward a brighter future.

For direction, the Dilettantes are relying on the experienced hand of Rhonda Miracle, a Twin Falls native who has taken a leave of absence from her doctorate studies at the University of Oregon to direct the play.

Miracle earned her master's degree in acting and dramatic literature from the University of Oregon to direct the play.

Magic Valley Little Theatre, Antigue Festival Theatre and a Yale summer graduate program. She was also a member of the College of Southern Idaho forensics team that earned national recognition in 1970.

"I wanted this play to be as accurate as possible," Miracle says, adding that she enjoyed researching "Show Boat" and the interesting period of history in which the story takes place.

The director dispels the 1951 MGM movie version of "Show Boat" for placing the action aboard a paddle-wheeler.

"Show boats were barges pushed by little tow boats up river," she explains, pointing out that each show boat would seat up to a thousand people.

To reproduce one of these barges on stage, Miracle says the Dilettantes have constructed a two-deck set that is 17 feet high and 24 feet long, that opens up to expose different sections of the boat. Antique furniture and even live trees and moss are being used in keeping with her desire to make the play "as honest" and realistic as possible.

Costuming, also, has been a trying task, according to the director, who, with the aid of Linley Freeman has had to be very creative.

"We're working with costumes from three different eras," Miracle says of the play that ranges from the "flapper" look to the "coquette" style and finishes during the "Flapper" age.

Ketchum gallery offers unique display of ceramic artworks

By BARBARA NEIWEIT
Times-News correspondent

KETCHUM — With a splash of bright colors to remind us that spring is just around the corner, Images Gallery opened a special ceramics exhibit this week.

Gallery Director Gail Severn is bringing together the artwork of nationally known craftsmen in the showing of "Variations in Porcelain." Along with the porcelain pieces will be a number of baskets from the previous showing of "Baskets and Beyond."

The selection of ceramics gives the viewer an insight into the diversity the artists have.

used to create their pieces.

The porcelain ranges from functional dinnerware to sculptured wall pieces. Some items have a thin-wall construction while others are of the more traditional wheel-thrown or slab construction.

Three Idaho artists are represented in the display of more than a dozen ceramics from throughout the United States. E.J. and Jim Holcomb of Idaho, Mudworks and John Takahara, head of the ceramics department at Boise State University, will participate in the showing with a variety of vessels and plates.

Other designers are:

• Jamie Fine of Ann Arbor, Mich., whose delicate porcelain non-functional open vessels feature soft gradients of color rich with diaphanous designs.

• Tom Holton, Bonita, Calif., features the most whimsical items in the display. "Hog Tied" is a large pink pig riding on a sawbuck horse which is functional yet fun at the same time.

• Claudia Hoffberg, Oakland, Calif., who creates wall pieces and sushi piglets from white low-fire clay. The pieces are delicate with inlaid colored clays and watercolor washes.

• Steve Kamrass and Susan Kiosk, New York City, are collaborative artists who use the mille fiore method of inlaid multi-colored low-fire clays on a porcelain base. They create wall pieces and platters including scenes of Indians riding across the plains.

• Michael Lambert, Santa Cruz, Calif., whose functional serving pieces feature colorful temporary, muted colors in designs reminiscent of Fiesta Ware.

• Rosemary Leht MacConnell, Mill Valley, Calif., creates very delicate, oriental sculptured vessels which are raku-fired in peach and gray colors and have extremely thin walls.

• Kathryn McBride, Santa Cruz, Calif., creates a series of sculptured containers with a ceramic texture. Some of her oriental boxes look as if they are formed out of bamboo.

Janine Powell of California creates raku-fired vessels and porcelain perfume bottles in earth tone colors.

• Chris Waldear, Santa Cruz, Calif., creates delicately functional platters and vessels using geometric patterns with soft pastel colors of celadon greens, pinks and lavenders.

This porcelain showing will run through the end of April. Most pieces on display will be for sale, says Severn, some of which will carry inexpensive price tags.

The gallery, located at Fourth and Leadville, is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. Sundays.

French folk musicians bring traditional sound to concert

TWIN FALLS — Keeping with a tradition of musical diversity, the Renaissance Academy of the Arts presents "Lo Jai," a traditional folk music group from Le Limousin, France, March 13 at 8 p.m.

The five musicians play a wealth of traditional instruments including the hurdy-gurdy, violin, fife, accordion and various percussion instruments.

Made up of Guy Bertrand, Thierry Boland, Pierre Imbert, Eric Montbel and Christian Oller, "Lo Jai" is as much a research team as a musical one in that its members have collected tunes for over 10 years from musicians and singers from the Limousin. They then brought the tunes to life using only those instruments originally used by "musiciens"

BOISE — Wendy Jaquet of Ketchum has been named vice chairman of Idaho Commission on the Arts Board of Directors.

Other changes in the 13-member board include a new chairman, Mary Scott of Pocatello. Commissioners beginning four-year terms are Kevin Fuller, Boise; William Hamlett, Moscow; and Marilyn Warren of Sandpoint. They will fill positions vacated by John Barker, Lewiston; Betty Benson, Moscow, and vice chairman William Studebaker, Twin Falls.

Both Scott and Jaquet say they want to build upon progress already made by the commission and that funding is a top priority.

Scott says, "I always knew funding for the arts was a difficult thing, and I do understand the political milieu in which we must function. But, I'm also sensitive to the problems that creates for the arts. We must not lose sight of our goal, which is to promote excellence in the various art forms and make them accessible to the people of Idaho."

More outspoken, Jaquet says of Idaho's 184-year standing in the U.S. funding, "I think it's appalling. We're even behind the 'True' territories in per capita spending."

She says she sees her new role as KETCHUM — Kneeland Gallery is unveiling both a new exhibit and a new location.

The gallery has moved from Gallery Square quarters to a roomier location on First Avenue, just north of the Ketchum Post Office.

The works of Ketchum artists Will Caldwell and F.L. McGeever are the first to hang on the walls in the new location.

Their styles resist labeling: Caldwell's lush paintings are realistic in tone but imbued with impressionistic strains. McGeever works from a realistic base but exaggerates the form to create images that fall delightfully between primitive and cartoon-like.

Caldwell's most recent oils and oil pastels were inspired by a trip with his wife and son to China. He has sought strange and different scenes before, traveling to South America, East Africa, the Peruvian Andes and the Middle East.

On the journey to China "I was looking for images that would reflect the China of the past, the China prior to the cultural revolution. So, I went to the extreme Southwest region where people are more untouched by time," Caldwell explains.

These paintings capture ordinary situations in exotic settings. They are made vivid and dramatic by Caldwell's extraordinary use of color and light.

McGeever's oil pastels are more psychologically personal, drawing from his upbringing in a strict Catholic family. They center on family holidays.

F.L. McGeever's 'The Family' follows her theme political science and public administration, brings to the commission — skills in communication management and a knowledge of the political process. Scott brings artistic sensitivity. An expressive painter, the new chairman says her overall goal is beyond mere survival of the commission and the arts in Idaho.

Calling Spenser of the House "Tom Silvera a 'friend of the arts who and ideally to become leaders in the deserves a lot of credit,'" Jaquet says state funding is a matter of educating more legislators to the needs of arts groups in the state.

Haverens to display Kilfoyle art

TWIN FALLS — Continuing an "Art of the West" over radio station Haverens Frames & Gallery is hanging 20 watercolors, oils and pen-and-ink drawings by local artist Charlotte Kilfoyle during March.

Kilfoyle, the Idaho Watercolor Society south central representative and president of the Magic Valley Art Guild, has won various state and local exhibitions and has also placed high in national competitions.

Explaining her motivation, Kilfoyle says, "An artist is possessed of feelings followed by a fever. When the fever strikes, he should the artist." She adds that, "Good art is a product of a way of life. It will satisfy itself, its creator and its audience."

Kilfoyle says she especially likes watercolor as a medium, noting that she has tried many forms but that watercolor is a quicker means of getting things done.

"I like the way it executes, and I like the transparency and spontaneity of it," she explains. "Through it, personal expression can happen quicker."

Kilfoyle says she usually likes to paint in series but that this display is a mixture of her works which leans heavily toward buildings.

Included in the exhibit is a painting of the Riverside Inn, Magic Valley's first inn located at Milner Dam. Striving for authenticity, the artist painted the scene from old photographs, she says, because the structure burned shortly after the dam was completed.

Music club to hear program by Curtis

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Music Club will meet Monday at 1 p.m. at the Community Christian Church, Grandview Drive in Twin Falls.

Larry Curtis, head of the music department at the College of Southern Idaho, will present a program of clarinet and saxophone music. The public is invited and supervised child care will be provided.

Curtis received his education at universities in California and Washington and studied privately with top professionals in Los Angeles. He has served as conductor, principle clarinetist and soloist with bands and orchestras locally, in California and in Louisiana.

Monday's program will be the sixth time Curtis has been requested to perform for the Twin Falls Music Club since coming to CSI 15 years ago.

Curtis has been stage band director at CSI for 15 years, was the Magic Valley Symphony conductor for seven years, and has conducted four operas for the Northwest Opera, seven musicals for the Dilatantes and CSI music department and was elected the San Diego Jaycees Band Director of the Year in 1983.

Assisting Curtis will be pianist Bill Maxwell, sophomore music major at CSI, and clarinetist Ranae Bartman, an eighth grade student at O'Leary Junior High.

The music of Mozart, Wagner, Vaughan-Williams and Gershwin will be performed along with demonstrations of special effects and the art of improvisation.

Winterscene series continues program

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-news correspondent

SUN VALLEY — "Winterscene," a series of films, concerts and personal appearances co-sponsored by the Sun Valley Center and Elkhorn Resort, continues at a rapid clip throughout March.

The Bobs, a New Wave a cappella quartet from San Francisco, appears in concert 8:30 p.m. Saturday in the Horizon Room. With original material including "I Hate the Beach Boys," "Prisoner of Funk" and "The Deprogrammer," the group prides itself in charting new territory.

Without benefit of instrumentation, the members use their voices to take musical parts like those of instruments. Richard Bob Greene is bass, with Gunnar Bob Madsen and Matthew Bob Stull holding the mid-range, and Janie Bob Scott at the high end. Admission is $8 for general audience, and $9.50 for center members.

Community arts classes include Musical Theater for Young People held in two sections. Section 1, for grades one to three, will be held from 9:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Wednesdays and Fridays, March 15-April 5. Fee is $30 with a $5 discount for Center members.

Section 2 for grades four to six is slated for Tuesdays and Thursdays, March 12-April 4, 3:10-4:30 p.m. Fee is $35 or $30 for center members. Classes are at the Halley Elementary School Library with Margaret Tyler instructing.

Gary Kinder will host a Freelance Writing Seminar focusing on the craft of writing and techniques for dealing with editors and agents at 7:30 p.m. March 12 and 13. Classes in the Community School will cost $40, or $35 for center members.

Additional arts classes, including Basic Ceramics, Life Drawing, Oil Painting, and Ceramics for Young People will begin the week of March 18. For registration and further information call 622-9371.

For those who enjoy viewing art, Works of Substance, an exhibition of mixed media and paper works featuring artists Lillian Bell, Lillian Elliott, Pat Hickman and Diane Statistefics will be on display Feb. 14 through March 23 at the Sun Valley-Center Gallery at 4th and Main in Ketchum. Information on the display is available by calling 726-9491.

Worms in southeastern Australia can grow three-fourths of an inch in diameter. You can hear their gurgling sucking sounds as they move underground. Their eggs look like big olives. Such has been reported here. Client asks 1/12 feet is a typical length of these worms. No, four feet might be typical, although some have reached 12 feet.

Q. Any proof to the old claim that men can keep secrets better than women can?
 A. None. There is some evidence, however, that order of birth is significant. First-born children keep secrets better than the later-born who learn early they can get attention from their older brothers and sisters by reporting what they know.

Customs inspectors along the Mexico border have found heroin, cocaine or marijuana in a priest's cassock, a rabbi's cuffs, an 80-year-old grandmother's bra, at the bottoms of diapers, under numerous hairpieces, and in the abdomens of corpses - the bodies of Americans being returned for interment.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Your relations with other persons today is important and it is odd that at one moment you will seem to be getting along fine and the next moment some problems arise.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Try to come to a better understanding with partners over some agreement to be made and all works out well.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Co-workers may work in a different fashion than you, so do not interfere. Show that you are understanding and kind.

SEASON CITIZENS: Around here saw trains first, then planes. But all over the world are people who've seen wing sucking sounds as they move planes but not trains.

What's the average annual rainfall around your place? Death Valley's is 2 inches. Antarctica's is 4 inches.

That pastry you and I call a "Danish" is referred to in Denmark as "Vienna Bread."

Q. What's the motto of the French Foreign Legion?
 A. "The Legion is our Fatherland." In Latin.

Q. Any proof to the old claim that men can keep secrets better than women can?
 A. None. There is some evidence, however, that order of birth is significant. First-born children keep secrets better than the later-born who learn early they can get attention from their older brothers and sisters by reporting what they know.

Capsule reviews

ALL OF ME (PG) One scene of bathroom humor too explicit for children. "Stirfly" funny but somewhat to the left of whoppe (or, the very young or impressionable. MPAA or The Times' ratings are in parentheses.)

boy's DEATH in him and played by Donny Coleman. He seen Thomas' widower-father.

THE KILLING FIELDS (R) Shockingly realistic wartime violence. This story of an enduring friendship and the will to survive is utterly gripping, mesmerizing. Set against the backdrop of the civil war in Cambodia in the mid-1970s. It is a film to search out and share. It must simply not be missed. With Sam Waterston and Haing

A PASSAGE TO INDIA (PG) Adult situations—This is a civilized, affecting, humorous, surprising, ironic, intelligent film. Big in scope and location, it is at the same time an intense six character-drama. In this stunningly fine production, director David Lean has served novelist E.M. Forster beautifully. The casting is as nearly perfect as you could hope for: Alec Guinness as Foul, Goddard, Victor Banerjee as Dr. Aziz, Judy Davis as Adela Quested, Peggy Ashcroft as Mrs. Moore, Nigel Havers as Rony Heaslop and James Fox as Fielding.

THE SURE THING (PG-13) The youth appeal is evident in "The Sure Thing," but adult audiences may also be charmed by this old-fashioned love story in a new-fashioned setting. The refreshing surprise for many jaded movie viewers may be the absence of any explicit sex. It proves that classic movie formula can be updated to 1985 tastes and still work. This light and easy comedy about two college kids traveling cross-country, dir. memories of Hollywood's great classic, "It Happened One Night." The hero and heroine are attractive newcomers, John Cusack and Daphne Zuniga, who convincingly portray the growing pains and ecstasies of youth.

PBS' Sherlock Holmes is the real thing

By LUIS AGUILAR
The Washington Post

There is no getting rid of Sherlock Holmes. In his 86-year career he has been married, paroled, traumatized, modernized, misdirected, drug-addicted and even murdered.

His own creator, Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, killed Holmes off in a story titled "The Final Problem," before

Nigel Bruce's faithful, indelible yet-misguided film interpretation. Watson has always served as the reader-viewer's window to Sherlock Holmes, appropriately puzzled, amazed, annoyed and astounded by Holmes's escapades.

Rather than subvert their character to that of Holmes, however, screen writers have frequently indulged in ill-advised theatrics.

Burke's no-nonsense, heroic former British Army physician attempts to adhere to Doyle's Watson, a loyal friend to Holmes rather than simple-minded comic relief.

Burke's fidelity to Doyle is augmented by the entire production. Sherlock Holmes's 221-B Baker Street flat, a nonexistential address that still draws London tourists, was meticulously replicated for the series.

we notice down everything that would help us evoke Victorian life—the way people dressed, what they ate, where they ate, even what kind of tobacco they smoked.

"Then we gave our file to the production designer and technical people, who worked marvelously to implement it. I think you'll find his the most authentic Sherlock Holmes yet."

Arguably the most famous fictional detective of all time, the often-exploited master sleuth comes to television without such familiar Hollywood devices as the deerstalker hat, the invariable pipe, the "elementary" quip and, most expendable, a bumbling Dr. Watson.

Victorian dress and customs were extensively researched by executive producer Michael Cox and his staff, who compiled what they refer to as "the Baker Street File."

"We divided all the stories between us and reread them," he explained.

One moment-allof-and-moribund the next, energetic and alert, Sherlock Holmes eludes all typecasting. Athletic and scholarly, cold and detached in nature, he nevertheless did not exclude practical jokes, played usually in some outrageous disguise.

He could alternately be found peering the floor, lost in narcotic reverie.
