Drug charges in local case aired in court

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News capitol bureau

Boise — Law enforcement agents Friday alleged that Twin Falls resident Mitchell R. Campbell delivered cocaine, marijuana and psilocybin mushrooms on nine occasions to federal agents or confidential informants in 1983 and 1984.

At a detention hearing in Federal Magistrate Court, Campbell, 35, who was arrested in Twin Falls Tuesday, was approved for release on $100,000 bond.

While he was not asked to respond to allegations made by FBI agent Frank Chidichimo or Twin Falls Detective Howard Elliott, Campbell was instructed by his attorney, Gar Hockney of Boise, to "exercise his Amendment—rights" while under questioning from assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel Hawkey about his financial status and real estate holdings.

Hockney indicated that an IRS investigation of Campbell may result in an indictment on tax charges and that Campbell's answers might jeopardize his position in that prospective proceeding.

Under questioning from Hockney, Chidichimo presented a chronology of alleged drug transactions and alleged gifts of drugs that Campbell made with an undercover federal agent and with two confidential informants.

Chidichimo alleged that Campbell sold 6.88 grams of cocaine to a confidential informant for $640 on April 19, 1983.

He also alleged that during a search of Campbell's residence, agents found a white rock-like substance, which was identified as cocaine using a "field test" method.

Elliott said the search of Campbell's residence turned up other substances, believed to be marijuana and hashish. A numerous "pieces of drug-user's paraphernalia," including "color smorters," "brown-glass jars commonly used to carry cocaine" and a "black box, with the name 'Snow Toker' on it," Chidichimo declined to identify the confidential informants or the undercover agent in the hearing. He indicated that their identities would be disclosed if the case proceeds past the mandatory grand jury investigation.

He said the confidential informant were "working off a beat" with law enforcement agents, meaning they were leveraged into the position of undisclosed purchaser.

- Gave 2 grams of marijuana to an undercover agent and a confidential informant on October 24, 1983.
- Sold 37.3 grams of cocaine to an undercover agent and a confidential informant for $1,300 on November 11, 1983.
- Sold 57.21 grams of cocaine to an undercover agent for $2,400 on December 9, 1983.
- Sold 53.15 grams of cocaine to an undercover agent for $2,200 on February 17, 1984.
- Sold a quarter-pound of cocaine to an undercover agent and a confidential informant for $3,000 on April 3, 1984.

Day care bills pass House, Senate as session's end nears

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — As the 1985 Legislature heads toward what might be its final weekend, the House and Senate are at odds on day care center legislation.

A Senate-approved day care licensing bill was sent to the House floor for a vote Friday afternoon — despite the fact that just an hour earlier, the House had passed a competing version of the legislation.

In an ironic vote, the House voted 43-1 for a weak day care licensing bill sponsored by Rep. Donna Scott, R-Twin Falls, and Rep. Joan Wood, R-Rigby. The pair was dubbed "The Two Musketeers" in floor debate Friday because of their session-long fight to get some sort of day-care licensing bill adopted this year.

The House vote was ironic, because Rep. Larry Harris, R-Boise, switched his vote at the last second to be on the prevailing side. He served notice that he "might ask for reconsideration, an action that can be taken only by someone who votes with the majority on a bill.

If Harris hadn't switched, the Scott-Wood bill would have died on a 42-1 tie vote.

Later in the day, Harris asked for reconsideration — but the result was the same. The bill 42-40, with Republicans Robert Scates and Dean Sorenson absent, a different day care bill in the final days of the session.

The bill approved by the House Friday lets care centers build their own rules and regulations on day-care centers. Opponents argued local government units already have that authority.

Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Wood have battled all session, despite losing several votes on the floor and as many in the Health and Welfare Committee.

They also had to overcome opposition from city and county officials, who testified they do not want licensing authority, and a Department of Law Enforcement spokesman who claimed the bill would create "an administrative nightmare" caused by dealing with more than 200 different units of government.

Opponents assailed the Scott-Wood bill as sham, one promising state regulation of day-care centers, but actually accomplishing nothing.

"This is a very bad piece of legislation," said Rep. Patricia McDermott, D-Pocatello. "It was not good legislation when we decided it should remain in committee and it is not good now."

"It's unfair to give parents a false sense of security that we have done something when actually we have done nothing," she said.

Mrs. Scott argued that cities and counties should be allowed to decide their own need for day care licensing. To the arguments that statewide licensing is needed to curb child abuse, she said most incidents of child abuse occur at homes, not in day-care centers.

Mrs. Wood criticized "groundless charges" leveled by groups opposing her bill. She said she had "a big bag of resentment" that day-care center operators have been criticized.

Rep. Arlene Mitchell, D-Lewiston, called the Scott-Wood bill "an abomination" and urged support for the Senate bill.

"Give us a chance to put this in effect for a year and see how the counties have handled it," said Mrs. Scott. "At least we will have had a day care licensing bill out there working."

$88 million higher education bill wins approval in House

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — Despite claims that the funding at "staggered" levels, the Idaho House voted 49-32 Friday for higher education's budget bill.

The bill calls for general tax support of $88 million for the colleges and universities and about $110 million considering funding from all sources.

If the Senate goes along, the budget will be $1 million higher than a budget withdrawn earlier Friday. And it contains what Democrats call "soft" money, which may not materialize.

"Shame on us if we pass this bill. It is not enough," said Rep. Dean Haagsen, R-Coeur d'Alene. "It will cost us much more to clean up the wreckage of the state's higher education system than it will take to prevent that damage, he said.

But Rep. Preston Brimhall, R-Idaho Falls, said the college funding bill contains all the money that is available.

To the plea that House members should show "guts" and put up more money for the colleges, Brimhall responded, "It takes a lot of guts to live within your income. America should try it."

"If we can't afford more money this year, perhaps we can do it next year."

"We need to increase higher education, no doubt about it. But we need to do it when we can afford it," said Brimhall.

The higher education budget sent to the Senate late Friday afternoon is one of the key issues still facing the Legislature.

Rep. Jack Kenneville, R-Boise, majority floor leader, called the House into a Saturday session in an effort to wind up the session.

He said the House would attempt to complete its business by late Saturday afternoon. But if work remained to be done then, he said the House will adjourn until Monday rather than working Saturday night.

Earlier, members of the House Appropriations committee debated the amount of money available to boost the education budgets. Rep. Larry Echohawk, D-Pocatello, said it does not get "soft money" in budgets; money that leads to backlogs later, Echohawk said, and the colleges wind up with nothing. They have suffered through $11 million in backlogs in recent years, he said.

Up for final action in the House is Senate-approved legislation setting the public school appropriation at about $304 million, up $3 million from an earlier version. It adds 1.7 million to the amount that legislation also contended that revised revenue estimates will produce enough money for the higher appropriation.

If later accepted by the Legislature, the higher education budget would be an overall increase of 8.7 percent, 11.8 percent in general tax revenue.

There were efforts in the Appropriations Committee to put another $2 1/2 million and $1 1/2 million into the college budget, but both moved were defeated by the majority Republicans.

Rep. Kathleen Gurnsey, R-Boise, said new revenue estimates indicate there will be enough money to pay for about $1 million more for higher education, but that's all.

That prompted Echohawk to complain about "soft money."

Heart transplant fails

The Associated Press

TUCSON, Ariz. — A 33-year-old auto mechanic who was kept alive for 11 hours with an unapproved heart transplant Friday after his second heart failed, human heart-failure officials at the University of Arizona Medical Center announced.

"I regret to inform you that Mr. (Thomas) Creighton passed away this morning at 11:30 a.m.," said University of Arizona President Allan Patel.

Creighton's mother and sister, as well as Dr. Jack Copeland and other members of the surgical team, which implanted two human hearts and the artificial Creighton's chest arteries had been with him when he died, Patel said. Creighton was a divorced father of two children. His mother, using only her first name, Dorothy, said her son's surgery was prolonged.

"He had an opportunity and it's just regrettable that it didn't work," she said, adding that her son was not fully conscious and able to talk any time.

Patel said the hospital was "reluctant to use the heart" to keep her son alive despite the fact it was not approved for human use by the federal government.

"He (Copeland) put his neck on the line," Patel said.

Ranks of nation's jobless a bit thinner

By PETE YOST
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's civilian unemployment rate edged down to 7.3 percent in February, the Labor Department said Friday, but analysts were concerned about the steep slide in employment in industries vulnerable to competition from imports.

Last month's overall jobless rate was down 1/10th of a percentage point from January. But joblessness increased by 132,000 in the 268,000 producing sector of the economy including 62,000 in manufacturing, preliminary figures by the Bureau of Labor Statistics showed.

On the positive side, nearly 300,000 new jobs were created in February, 85 percent of them in the service sector, prompting White House spokesman Larry Speakes to declare that "the economy is creating jobs in record numbers."

However, the number of unemployed people totaled 8.4 million last month, down just 85,000 from January. The jobless rate has been stuck in a narrow range from 7.1 percent to 7.5 percent since last year.

"While unemployment as a whole is caught in a holding pattern, this conceals the fact that manufacturing employment is now falling" in 1977 million in February, said Jerry Jashnowski, an economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

But the small decline in the number of unemployed in February demonstrates that the economy is "making no new progress for the 8.4 million people who want work but cannot find it," said Rep. David Obey, D-Wis., chairman of the Joint Economic Committee.

Undersecretary of Labor Ford B. Ford said the economy has created 7.5 million jobs since the end of the recession in late 1982. But the manufacturing sector lost 2.3 million jobs during the 1981-82 recession and has lost another 1.7 million of them, according to figures supplied by BLS.

The figures also show that the steel industry, now employing 319,000, lost 170,000 jobs during the recession and lost another 25,000 while the rest of the economy was in recovery. The textile industry also has continued to lose jobs since the recession ended.

Reagan sends negotiators off

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan on Friday sent his negotiators into arms talks with the Soviet Union with instructions to cut back on offensive weapons "so all God's children can grow up without the fear of nuclear war."

Reagan stressed clear of any reference to his controversial Strategic Defense Initiative. "The Soviets have targeted the $60 billion research program on space-based missile defense systems for elimination at the talks opening next Tuesday in Geneva, Switzerland."

"We know our differences with the Soviet Union are great," Reagan in a statement he read before cameras in the White House Roosevelt room. Negotiators Max Kampelman, John Taylor and Maynard Giltman stood at his side, while other members of the U.S. delegation, their coats folded over their arms, completed the picture.

Agency tries to quell reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Older Americans and some Social Security workers are being frightened by erroneous reports that there are plans to close many Social Security offices, agency spokesman Jim Brown said Friday.

"Our offices are being inundated with phone calls from the public and senior citizens," Brown said. Reports of planned closings "are scaring the death out of the old people ... (and) terrifying employees," he said.

Reports that there are plans to close offices "are erroneous," Brown said.

Actor convicted on drug charge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Actor Dan Haggerty, known for his role as television's "Grizzly Adams," was convicted Friday of selling cocaine to undercover police officers, but was acquitted of a second cocaine sales charge.

He had admitted selling the drug but testified he did so only after undercover officers Barbara Eggar and Raymond Martin befriended him, then badgered him to obtain cocaine.

Haggerty's lawyer, Michael Mayock, who contended the actor was entrapped on both occasions, said he was "at a total loss" to explain how the jury could find Haggerty guilty. In one transaction and innocent in the other.

Chemical fumes fell 8 people

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Traces of a chemical manufactured by Union Carbide Corp. were found in the air near where eight people were overcome by fumes and the company is trying to determine whether the substance leaked from its plant, a state official said Friday.

Officials found traces of the chemical, methyl oxide, when they investigated the incident across the Kanawha River — from Union Carbide's South Charleston plant, which produces lithium, said Carl Beard, director of the state Air Pollution Control Commission.

Ambulances were dispatched to the area Thursday after eight people reported severe headaches and eye and throat irritation. Six were treated at the scene and two were treated at a hospital, officials said.

New Caledonia policeman slain

NOUMEA, New Caledonia (AP) — A French policeman was killed Friday by a machete blow to his back while dismantling a roadblock put up by Melanesian independence activists in northeast New Caledonia, authorities reported.

He was the second officer killed since violence began in this French Pacific territory last November after Melanesian independence activists were boycotted by the pro-independence forces representing the Melanesian minority.

The killing Friday occurred on the outskirts of the town of Pouébo, 250 miles from Noumea.

Illinois River drops slightly

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois River, which has displaced at least 1,700 people and claimed four lives near Peoria, is near record flood levels, dropped slightly here Friday — giving riverfront towns the first hope in two weeks that that the worst may be over.

The river peaked Thursday at 24.4 feet, its third-highest recorded level, then fell a tenth of a foot by noon Friday, according to the Army Corps of Engineers.

Residents who had spent days piling sandbags greeted the drop with relief, but health officials warned against possible disease caused by polluted river water. Authorities also cautioned that the situation could worsen if heavy rain fell.

Caldwell youth, 16, receives heart in transplant operation

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A 16-year-old Idaho teen-ager regained consciousness Friday after undergoing a five-hour heart transplant operation earlier in the day, a University of Utah Health Sciences Center spokesman said.

John Dwan, said, officials were cautiously optimistic about the operation that placed a new heart in the chest of Tony Shepard, of Caldwell, Idaho. He was in critical but stable condition.

"His eyes are open. He's looking around, responding to nurses' commands to squeeze their hands," said Dwan. "His vital signs are stable and his color's good."

However, Dwan cautioned the post-operative period was difficult, and doctors were closely watching Shepard for any signs of difficulty.

Shepard's surgery was the first heart transplant operation to be performed in Utah, but the surgeon who performed the work said the five-hour operation last year and has been praised as a major contributor in overcoming rejection problems for transplant operation.

Shepard, whose ambition is to become a truck driver, suffered from cardiomyopathy, the same degenerative heart muscle disease that afflicted Clark. Doctors told Shepard he would die in six months without a transplant.

The youth arrived at the medical center Thursday night about 7:15 p.m. and surgery commenced at midnight after tests for blood and tissue compatibility with the donor heart. Dwan said Shepard would be able to get out of bed in two or three days if all goes well.

However, he said the teen-ager is weak from a long period of poor blood circulation, and doctors will focus their efforts on rebuilding his strength. Shepard probably will remain in the hospital for about three weeks, Dwan said.

Dwan said the operation will cost from $20,000 to $75,000, depending on the demands of post-operative care. "The donor heart fit perfectly," Dwan said. "The heart responded, it's working, and Tony's in surgical intensive care."

Dwan said the donor heart became available Thursday. He said no information about the donor would be made available to protect the privacy of the grieving family.

Senate forwards bill to curb wrongful birth suits to Evans

BOISE (AP) — Hoping to curb the incidence of abortion, the Senate has given final legislative approval to a bill on lawsuits seeking damages solely on the grounds of "wrongful birth."

By a 35-7 vote Friday, the measure was forwarded to Gov. John Evans over objections to its ramifications that it would alienate doctors and patients.

Sen. Jerry Thorne, R-Nampa, declared the fact that the bill was even necessary, saying, "Maybe some day this country will come to its senses and do something about the abortion issue."

"We've gotten ourselves into this fix because of rulings of our United States Supreme Court and our state Supreme Court," he said.

Anti-abortionists have been pressing for passage of the bill, similar to laws already on the books in South Dakota, Minnesota and Utah, because they "blame the power to sue for wrongful birth" sends a message that imperfect lives have no value.

Critics argued that it is presumption of anti-abortionists to automatically assume that a woman carrying a child likely to be born handicapped will opt for an abortion.

The attorney-general, in an informal opinion on the bill last month, found no constitutional problems with the bill but he said that since it is tied directly to abortion there may be circumstances which it will not cover.

"That opinion also cited other court decisions in which doctors held negligent for failing to provide information about the prospects for a child to be born with a handicap even when abortion was not a legal option."

Both critics and supporters of the bill, intended to curb genetic counseling used to determine the prospects for a handicap birth that might prompt a woman to have an abortion, said the bill would not prevent a doctor from being sued for withholding information or providing misinformation.

Pair to pay penalties in gas price-fix case

BOISE (AP) — Attorney General Jim Jones says two defendants in a Pocatello gasoline price-fixing case have agreed to pay $50,000 in civil penalties to the state of Idaho.

Last October, the state filed a civil lawsuit against several Pocatello firms and individuals, alleging damages for Pocatello-area price fixing. Many of the same companies were involved in related federal criminal charges, which resulted in heavy fines.

Jones said Thursday that Vern E. Herzog Oil Co. and Earl Pixton will pay $50,000 for their participation in gas price-fixing between January of 1978 and October of 1982.

Pixton is operator of Herzog Oil Co. The agreement, which still must be approved by U.S. District Judge Ray McNichols, also was signed by the firm's former owner, Vern E. Herzog Sr. Last November, the state reached a $30,000 settlement with two other defendants, Dan Blesner and Continental Fuel Co.

Jones said the federal case dealt with punitive aspects of violating federal anti-trust laws. "The state's lawsuit focuses on recovering damages for Pocatello-area consumers," he said.

Remaining defendants in the lawsuit include Triangle Oil Co., a Utah corporation; Roberts TBA Service, Inc.; Howard O. Miller, James B. Lesse, H. David Miller and Edwin H. Roberts.

If the tentative settlements are approved by McNichols, Jones said, the fines involved, minus attorney fees, eventually will be available for the benefit of consumers who were overcharged for gasoline.

Tax break bill out

BOISE (AP) — Legislation that would have cut state income taxes paid by major corporations by as much as $12 million has been withdrawn.

Sen. Dane Watkins, R-Idaho Falls, chairman of the Local Government and Taxation Committee, pulled the bill back from consideration in the Senate on Friday amid mounting indications that it was marked for rejection.

Hazardous waste bill has Senate OK

BOISE (AP) — Spurred by the controversy over operation of the EnviroSAFE Services of Idaho hazardous waste dump in Owyhee County, the Senate has given final legislative approval to state regulation over the location of future dump sites.

But in sending the measure to Gov. John Evans Friday, the chamber refused to adopt a proposal that would have placed the strictest restriction on the Health and Welfare Department in adopting hazardous waste regulations more stringent than those issued by the federal government.

Under the bill, which cleared the House unanimously in a 17-member panel will be created to draft a management plan for locating future dump sites. It effectively exempts EnviroSAFE's Owyhee County operation but would cover any future operations the company wants to locate in the state.

"Any hazardous waste is too much, but it with us," said Health and Welfare Committee Chairman Denton Darrington, R-Declo. "It's something that we have to cope with."

Conceding that environmentalists and industry would like to change parts of the bill, Darrington said both groups have given the bill their support.

"They all had to give up a little to get the things that they wanted and that Idaho needs," he said.

But while the bill had general support, Sen. Roger Fairchild, R-Fruitland, called it nothing but a first step toward controlling the influx of hazardous waste into Idaho and something that will have to be improved on later.

"This will probably end up just harassing your local garbage dump and doing nothing where we really need it," he said.

It was in an effort to make state hazardous waste laws more effective that Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, unsuccessfully tried to win approval of a provision that would allow Idaho to impose stiffer regulations than the local environmental protection agency.

Peavey cast the lone vote against the siting bill apparently because his effort was rejected on a 26-1 vote.

He claimed that without the so-called stringency provision, Idaho will continue growing as a major recipient for hazardous waste from throughout the nation.

AP errors in report on wrongful birth

BOISE (AP) — The Associated Press reported erroneously on March 1 that the Idaho Supreme Court had upheld a wrongful birth suit in which the parents of a baby born with severe handicaps recovered damages from Dr. Amado Cruz for alleged negligence that resulted in the child's birth.

last fall, upheld the right of the parents to bring the suit for damages. The parents' claims against the doctor have not been subjected to adjudication before a court, and no damages have been awarded.

The decision upholding the right to sue on grounds of "wrongful birth" is also being reconsidered by the Supreme Court.

Drinking age, handicapped access bills approach final vote

BOISE (AP) — With legislative leaders moving toward adjourning the 1985 session, legislation raising Idaho's drinking age to 21, mandating handicapped access to the polls and permitting a 10-hour workday for surface mining is heading toward a final vote.

The Senate State Affairs Committee cleared its calendar of major House-passed bills on Friday and lawmakers still held out hope of adjourning this weekend.

The decision on the measure mandating polling-place access for the handicapped came with no discussion and without the committee's rejection of that bill earlier this week.

Also sent to the floor for final action was the bill transforming the Division of Economic and Community Affairs into a Department of Commerce and providing cities to hold run-off elections for mayor if the winner of the first non-partisan "ballooting" fails to gain a majority of the vote.

The Commerce Department bill, a priority of Gov. John Evans, is identical to the one that the Republican Legislature rejected last year except that it does not call for a massive increase in the agency's budget. Democratic Floor Leader Kermit Klueber of Hope said, however, that he only wanted the opportunity to discuss the issue on the floor, suggesting that prospects for passage were limited.

But the increase in the drinking age, mandated by Congress by October 1986 under penalty of lost federal funds, cleared the committee only with the concession that it'll be opened up for amendments on the floor.

Stens, Phil Batt, R-Willard, and Bruce Sweeney, D-Lewislaton, agreed to support the bill on condition that they have a chance to extend the closing hours from 1 a.m. to 2 a.m., making the hours in Idaho the same as those in the state of Washington.

"It's inevitable that we're going to go to 21," Batt said. "But if we are going to go to 21, let's make things equal."

The House, which passed the age bill by 21 votes last month, had earlier defeated a proposal that coupled the compliance measure with extended hours.

The mandate has drawn severe legislative criticism because of the "blackmail tactics" Congress has used to force compliance, and earlier this session the Legislature directed the attorney general to join a South Dakota court challenge of the mandate.

Should the pending bill fail to win final approval before the Legislature adjourns, lawmakers could still come into compliance with the requirement next winter.

The measure was rejected while he was absent. The bill requires local jurisdictions holding elections to comply with the access standards issued by the secretary of state. It's intended to supersede federal handicapped access requirements just recently imposed and then extended them to elections below the state and federal level.

A contingent of handicapped people had urged endorsement of the bill earlier in the week, calling it a matter of integrity and personal worth. But some committee members argued that the requirements would only place another financial burden on local governments already struggling with economic problems.

IRS computers pick up speed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bally computers at the Internal Revenue Service, which have delayed processing of tax returns this year, apparently are getting up to speed — slowly.

The IRS said Friday that 12.4 million returns had been processed through March 1, the latest figures available. That is 30.5 percent below the first three weeks of 1984. A week ago, processing was 39 percent behind last year's pace.

The agency processed 4.4 million returns last week, compared with 3.1 million the week before.

IRS officials say most of the delays have been caused by bugs in a new $100 million computer system being installed in the 10 regional service centers. The problems appear to have been corrected, the agency said earlier in the week.

The average refund this year is down slightly from the same time last year — $692 compared with $702.

Reagan's ranch foreman dies

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lee Clearwater, President Reagan's ranch foreman, was found dead of a heart attack Friday in his house on the ranch in the Santa Ynez mountains near Santa Barbara, a White House spokesman said.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Secret Service agents found the elderly foreman's body when they went to his house because they hadn't seen him around the property Thursday night or Friday morning.

The spokesman said the county coroner's office found that Clearwater suffered two quick heart attacks sometime before 6 p.m. MST Thursday.

Clearwater, who had worked for the Reagans since they bought Rancho del Cielo more than 10 years ago, "was more than an employee," Speakes said, adding that both Clearwater and his wife were "close and dear friends of the Reagans."

Mrs. Clearwater was not at the ranch at the time, the spokesman said.

President takes health tests

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, flashing a thumbs-up signal and saying he felt "just fine," underwent a complete battery of medical tests Friday and a checkup on a benign colon growth discovered last year.

Emerging after three hours of tests at Bethesda Naval Hospital, the 74-year-old president was asked by reporters if doctors discovered any problems. "Nope," he replied with a grin. He said he felt "just fine."

Results of the tests will not be made public until Monday or Tuesday, said White House spokesman Larry Speakes.

Nancy Reagan arrived separately at the hospital by limousine, tugging the Reagans' frisky dog, Lucky, on a leash. Mrs. Reagan said the president was doing fine.

Asked to rate his health, she said, "On a scale of 1 to 10, 11."

Late Coca-Cola chief praised

ATLANTA (AP) — Robert W. Woodruff, who led the Coca-Cola Co. for 41 years, was remembered Friday as a man whose business acumen shaped one of the world's most successful companies and whose "unprecedented" generosity benefitted Atlanta.

Woodruff, director emeritus of the board of Coca-Cola, died Thursday night at age 95 after a 10-day stay at Emory University Hospital. He had been in declining health in recent years, nearly blinded and crippled by strokes.

Funeral services were scheduled this afternoon at Atlanta's First Presbyterian Church, with burial at Westview Cemetery.

Woodruff transformed Coca-Cola from a debt-ridden soda-fountain drink maker into one of the most well-known and profitable businesses in the world.

Woodruff parlayed the company into an immense personal fortune. Forbes magazine placed his net worth at a minimum of $250 million, not including the foundations he sponsored. He owned 3.5 million shares of Coke.

Haydon walks, eats solids

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart recipient Murray Haydon took a few steps "with assistance" Friday and ate solid food, a spokeswoman said.

Haydon, 58, of Louisville, received the Jarvik-7 heart Feb. 17 and underwent surgery last Saturday to correct a bleeding problem.

Haydon "continues to make good progress" and "took a couple of sips with assistance" to sit in a chair for about 30 minutes, Humana Inc. spokeswoman Linda Broadus said.

Haydon also has been watching television, she said.

The other artificial heart recipient at Humana Hospital Audubon, William J. Schroeder, 53, had a "routine" day, Ms. Broadus said. He rested and was visited by his wife, Margaret.

Schorr fired from job at CNN

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran television news correspondent Daniel Schorr, the first journalist hired by the Cable News Network in 1979, was fired Friday when he could not agree on a new contract.

Schorr said he was terminated because CNN "insisted on abrogating the assurance of my journalistic independence," which he said CNN founder Ted Turner always had promised him.

CNN President Burt Reinhardt said the cable network could not agree on terms of a new contract with Schorr. He did not elaborate.

Schorr, 68, said in a statement that there was "no financial issue" and "I was advised today of the termination of my employment."

Magazine publisher dies at 84

NEW YORK (AP) — Ralph Ingersoll, the flamboyant editor who created Life magazine and the trend-setting newspaper-PM, died Friday at a hospital in Miami Beach, Fla. He was 84.

Ingersoll, a journalistic wunderkind of the 1920s and '30s, was managing editor of The New Yorker magazine at 25, managing editor of Fortune magazine at 30 and publisher of Time at 37.

In 1940, he realized his dream of creating a new kind of American newspaper in PM, a New York tabloid that combined fine writing and photography in a modern format and accepted no advertising.

He left the paper in 1946 when financial backer Marshall Field insisted on taking over.

Ingersoll was married four times and had highly publicized affairs with playwright Lillian Hellman and novelist Laila Hobson.

He also had a brief friendship with Ernest Hemingway, and long friendships with James Thurber, Archibald MacLeish, Eleanor and Franklin Roosevelt, and New York Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia.

Derailment causes explosion

EVERGREEN, Ala. (AP) — A 115-car train carrying flammable chemicals derailed, caught fire and exploded Friday, forcing at least 60 people to flee their homes, authorities said.

No injuries were reported as the blaze triggered at least two explosions and spread to pine trees nearby. Thick smoke and shifting winds hampered efforts to keep the fire from spreading further.

"It struck the house," said Will Hawthorne, 77, who lives in the rural area about one-quarter mile from where the Seaboard train derailed. "It was firing to eat and the law was there at the door and told us we had to get out."

Evacuees were taken to a National Guard armory and schools in the sparsely settled area of south Alabama to wait out the fire and the threat of waiting toxic fumes.

"At the present time, they are allowing it to burn," said Owen Pride, a spokesman for Seaboard railroad, operator of the train.

Fed lets up on loan regulations for farm banks

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Reserve Board announced Friday it is easing requirements for farm banks to borrow money from the central bank.

The board is trying to help farmers obtain loans during the spring planting season in action intended to complement Reagan administration efforts to assist farmers caught in a credit squeeze.

"The changes are designed to provide further assurance that small and medium-sized agricultural banks can meet temporary liquidity requirements that might arise in accommodating the needs of their farm borrowers over the forthcoming planting and production cycle," the Fed said in a statement.

The Fed eased requirements for an existing program operated by the central bank to help local banks meet credit demands occurring on a seasonal basis.

About 600 banks participated in the program last year. The amount borrowed at any given time ranged from $100 million to $300 million.

Board officials had no estimate of how many additional banks might be encouraged to participate this year under the liberalized rules. About 4,146 of the more than 14,000 U.S. banks are classified as agricultural banks.

In early Japan, when a Japanese conqueror took a prisoner, that prisoner was put into combat on the side of the conqueror. So each Japanese soldier was indoctrinated against surrender. In Japanese chess, a captured piece isn't removed from the board, but is entered into any vacant square as the capturing player's piece. The game reflects the old tradition.

Scientists uncover Alamo fight relics

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — A dig at a downtown site has turned up artifacts from the battle of the Alamo, a find that one archaeologist says is so significant it makes his knees rubbery.

The find, exactly 149 years after the fall of the Alamo on March 6, 1836, is the first solid historical record of the Mexican army — was made on a routine archaeological investigation at the site of a historic downtown hotel.

At a news conference Thursday, Hester displayed some of the artifacts, including a bayonet, a lance head, musket balls, a rare 8-inch howitzer shell, an iron cannonball and parts from "Brown Bess" muskets — the standard weapon of Mexican soldiers in the 1830s.

"The battle for the Alamo was won by the Mexicans, whose forces overran a collection of American volunteers and frontiersmen helping in Texas' fight for independence from Mexico. Among those who died were Davy Crockett and Jim Bowie, who invented the Bowie knife."

"What we have is a picture, a freeze frame of one day in San Antonio history," said archaeologist Joe Labadie.

"My knees got rubbery when I think of what happened here that day."

Scientists discovered the artifacts (most by accident) in February during a routine probe of the site of an old hotel, Hester said.

"At first we thought it was just an old trash pit. But we started seeing more — and more — military items," Labadie said. "We then knew we had something big. We just didn't know what."

"We're very excited about this. It's not something you come across every day," Hester said. "This find offers whole new areas for historical research about the Alamo battle."

Accounts of the Alamo battle, particularly those pertaining to the Mexican army, have been drawn solely from writings and records of the time, Labadie said.

The archaeologists excavated the site until Feb. 23, uncovering about 80 percent of an L-shaped earthwork believed dug by Mexican soldiers for an artillery emplacement south of the Alamo.

"It's amazing to think that this is the first hard archaeological evidence ever found of the Mexican army," Labadie said. "Based on historical research, we knew there was a southern gun emplacement. But now, we can locate it to a specific place, 600 yards south of the Alamo."

The scientists believe the earthwork was used as a trash dump by local residents after the battle.

Retired railroad engineer seeks woman to run flea market

PIKEVILLE, Ky. (AP) — "NEED OLD WOMAN," says Foster Porter's want ad. "At least 60 years old," the retired railroad engineer added Friday.

The ad is for someone "to operate Little Rabbit Flea Market, Martin, Ky. Live at flea market, house keep for me."

"If they're younger than that they're going to be looking for greener pastures. They wouldn't stay around. A young woman would work a couple of weeks and quit. An older woman's more apt to stay," Porter explained.

And a man won't do.

"A man keep house? You ain't going to find a man to keep house are you? They're going to have to keep house for me, maybe cook a little bit. I think you can see the reason a man wouldn't do it."

After 60 years on the railroad, Porter said, but he retired in 1973, his wife died in 1981, and "Bud" died, things are in bad shape around here.

He's starting the outdoor market for some extra income, but "I'm 78 years old. I won't work, I'm lazy. I'd like to have somebody to work up there and run that cotton-picking flea market."

The operator could put a trailer at the market to live in, and would collect space rent from whoever comes to peddle "collectibles," "cast-off" household goods and the like.

DEA agent's body returns to California

NORTH ISLAND NAVAL AIR STATION, Calif. (AP) — The body of Enrique Camarena Salazar, who went to Mexico to fight the international drug trade as a U.S. government agent, came home Friday to California for burial in his hometown. Camarena was found dead Tuesday night. He had been abducted a month before by suspected drug traffickers.

An Air Force C-141 carrying the body of the slain DEA agent and U.S. Ambassador to Mexico John Gavin touched down about 2:30 a.m. at the island Naval Air Station, where the body was taken to San Diego.

"It was a very sad journey. We bring Kiki to you and your family with great honor," Gavin told Camarena's widow, Geneva Kiki who was Camarena's niece.

"He was a good father, a good son, a good Marine, and a good American. He was proud of all these things and we are surely proud of him," Gavin said.

Camarena's widow and his eldest son, Enrique Jr., walked into the cargo platform at the rear of the aircraft to view the flag-draped casket. After about two minutes inside the aircraft, they were escorted back to a VIP area by DEA agent Vince Wallace.

A Marine Corps band played as the ceremony unfolded. The casket was removed from the transport by military pallbearers.

Camarena, 37, joined the DEA in 1974 after serving in the U.S. Marine Corps. He was assigned to Guadalajara, Mexico's second-largest city, 332 miles northwest of Mexico City, in 1980.

His body was in a plastic bag dumped near a country road and was identified Thursday by forensic experts. Found at the same site was the body of Alfredo Zavala Avelar, a Mexican pilot who worked with the anti-drug program and was kidnapped the same day.

Earlier Friday, at brief ceremonies on the airport runway at Guadalajara, Gavin thanked the Mexican government for its assistance "at this sad moment for both of our nations."

A branch of the Camarena family lives in Guadalajara and those relatives were present for the ceremony, the women dressed in mourning black. His 35-year-old grandmother, Maria Camarena, accompanied the body on the C-141 military airlift command plane to San Diego.

Also accompanying the special agent's body were an aunt, Gavin and his wife, Consuelo, U.S. Consul Richard Morefield and the consul's wife. Funeral services are scheduled today in Calexico, Calif., Camarena's hometown.

MX called survivable

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration and the House of Representatives are arguing that the controversial MX missile would be wiped out by a Soviet nuclear strike, told Congress on Friday that missile silos have a better chance than previously believed of withstanding attack.

"It is more survivable than we thought it was," Gen. Bennie Davis, chief of the Strategic Air Command, told the Senate Appropriations defense subcommittee.

Paul Nitze, President Reagan's special adviser on arms control, agreed with Davis and renewed the administration's argument that Congress should support the weapon because it would strengthen the American hand in the U.S.-Soviet nuclear arms control talks opening next week.

"Asked if the negotiations will be successful if MX is killed, Nitze, "I cannot see how it would be done. We could try, but I don't think it would be successful."

Still, he was uncertain about whether the talks will succeed in achieving Reagan's goal of "deep reductions" in the ever-growing number of nuclear weapons.

Mexican officials defend anti-drug campaign

CULLACAN, Mexico (AP) — Stung by American charges that corruption pervades the anti-drug fight, Mexican officials took foreign journalists on tours of drug-growing areas this week to show how Mexico is trying to stem the trade.

The Defense Ministry scheduled three day-long tours to point out to reporters where the drug crops grow and how they are destroyed — complete with the burning of 1,000 pounds of confiscated marijuana.

The government helicopters landed Thursday in fields red with poppies, the source of heroin — and journalists began the long trek to the next spot, where more poppies and marijuana grow in the Sierra Madre Occidental mountains.

"This is the problem we have in the war against drugs. Now you know," said an army colonel as he watched the 18 reporters slip, trip, stumble and fall over rocks in mountain streams, and on steep slopes. The Mexicans wanted to show that their efforts are effective in the Pacific state of Sinaloa, a longtime center of the illegal drug trade, 780 miles northwest of Mexico City.

"This is an ongoing campaign, not a show-just-for-today. It is an effort to show what is being done on a daily basis," said one ranking government official, who spoke on condition he not be identified.

In a related development, the attorney general's office released photographs to Mexico City newspapers of Rafael Quintero, a long-time reputed drug baron who the officials said was wrong in questioning in the kidnapping and killing of American narcotics agent Enrique Camarena Salazar.

Attorney General Sergio Garcia said he watched in Mexico City that positive results are hoped for in a short time in the search for the killers of a Mexican pilot employed in the anti-drug fight and of Camarena, whose body was flown Friday from Guadalajara to San Diego.

As a result of Camarena's kidnapping, Guadalajara has become the focus of attention as a center of the drug trade. With 3 million people, it lies about midway between Cullacan and Mexico City and is Mexico's second-largest city.

Upper-income Americans' taxes increase by 25 percent, IRS claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — The share of federal income taxes paid by Americans with annual incomes of more than $75,000 has risen 25 percent and the portion paid by those under $19,000 has declined 17 percent since 1980, the Internal Revenue Service says.

An official of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States said Friday the figures are clear evidence that President Reagan's tax policies "are working."

A tax analyst for the Urban Institute attributed the shift to a 1983 stock market boom, inflation and normal economic growth.

The figures released this week, the first based on tax returns filed in 1984, continue a pattern established in 1982, when the first major portion of Reagan's tax cuts took effect.

That program, enacted in 1981, included a 23 percent reduction in income tax rates for most taxpayers, it also provided an extra boost to upper-income Americans by slashing the maximum tax rate on investment income from 70 percent to 50 percent.

Democrats have assailed the program as unfair to lower income people. The note that because the size of the tax cuts was proportional to taxes paid, the least affluent received far fewer dollars than the reduction than did the wealthy.

For example, a 23 percent tax cut saves $230 a year for a person who pays $1,000 in taxes and $23,000 for one paying $100,000.

Republicans say that, as fair because it is the wealthy who can use tax cuts to invest in ways that benefit the economy.

Joseph Minarik, a tax analyst for the Urban Institute, said the boost in capital gains was a major factor in the growth of the tax share paid by the over-$75,000 group.

Bucket accident causes another shuttle delay

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A 2,500 pound metal bucket used to transport workers smashed into the top of the space shuttle Discovery on Friday, leaving gashes that forced a fifth delay of the shuttle's trip into space, NASA officials said.

A worker's leg was broken when the bucket hit him as it fell.

The space agency said it was too early to assess the extent of damage to the two-stage booster on the ship, which had been scheduled for launch March 28 or 29. NASA spokesman Charles Redmond in Washington said he expected the flight would be delayed until at least early April.

Officials said they did not know what caused the fall of the 2,500-pound bucket, which is large enough to hold two people, but experts were inspecting the device's hydraulic hoist.

NASA spokesman Dick Young said the investigation could take several days.

Pictures of the damaged bay showed at least three gashed areas where the bucket penetrated the ship's heat protection blanket. The largest gash was about six inches long.

The accident happened about 8 a.m. in a hangar where Discovery was being groomed to be moved later Friday into an assembly building where it was to have been mated with its two booster rockets and external fuel tank. That move was scrubbed indefinitely until damages repaired.

Officials said the large movable bucket used to position workers along the 60-foot length of the bay fell onto a steel work platform on which technician Gary Sutherland was standing.

"I heard a bang, and I looked up and saw the bucket coming down on me," Sutherland said in a telephone interview from his hospital room, where he is being treated for a double fracture of the left leg.

He said he crumpled down on the platform, which remained in place, but was uncertain of all that happened after that.

Garn choice brings satire

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Space workers unhappy with selection of U.S. Sen. Jake Garn as a member of a space shuttle crew have responded with bitter ridicule and parody at the Johnson Space Center.

A phony memorandum has been circulated which satirically asks for an astronaut "to take over Garn's Washington duties while the Utah senator is training for a spaceflight."

The memo, on a NASA letterhead and widely circulated, states: "It would be appropriate for an astronaut with 15 or more years of government experience to take an opportunity to gain a personal awareness and familiarity with the congressional budgeting system."

The wording is a satirical reversal of wording in documents that justified Garn's selection for the space shuttle. Garn, 57, has no space flight; is a former "congressional oversight" and part of his duties as chairman of the subcommittee "that approves NASA's annual budget."

He said in a news conference that his going into space will help give him the understanding needed to monitor NASA's activities.

Option tax proposal meets legislative defeat

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News Capitol Bureau

BOISE — Following a legislative defeat Friday evening, resort cities last night have a chance to retain their local taxing powers, and appear to have moved to the Idaho Supreme Court.

After more than four hours of testimony, the Senate Local Government and Tax Committee voted to repeal a bill intended to resolve constitutional problems with Idaho's resort cities option-tax law.

The law was struck down by a Magic Valley judge in November as an overly broad delegation of the Legislature's power to tax.

"There's no way this bill can pass constitutional muster. I think this bill's even worse than the one before," Boise attorney Allyn Dingle said in support of his client, the Sun Valley Co.

"Sun Valley Co. cannot wait. It will file its lawsuit again," Dingle said, promising additional litigation if the bill, intended to amend the 1978 Idaho resort cities' local-option tax law, were to clear the Legislature.

But Mark Russell, city attorney for Sun Valley, told committee members his employer would be forced into equally immediate action if the measure was not passed.

That action, Russell predicted, would likely be a "severe cut" in services, including police and fire protection, removal and public transportation, among others.

Russell said another option that may be available to the city is to seek a property tax override.

The city and the company are familiar adversaries on the issue of the local sales tax. And in the protracted hearing most, if not all, of the arguments that annually surface around the local option tax issue materialized.

Wallace Huffman, innkeeper of the Sun Valley Co., said he could support a "broad-based" resort-cities sales tax, one that applied to those sales covered by the state's 5 percent food and beverage tax. But he said he would want the option tax to be carefully described by the state and not the local unit of government.

He also said he could not support a 2 percent broad-based sales tax to replace Sun Valley's 5 percent food and beverage tax because it would raise $600,000 more, he says, than the city needs.

"I don't want to give them a whole box of candy bars when they only need one," he said. "The city collects about $500,000 a year with its tax on liquor by the drink and short-term rental accommodations.

In addition to stressing the need to maintain the revenue source to retain essential city services, city officials repeated their support for creating a broad-based option tax to replace the bed-and-boozes tax.

The company, they said, would not provide them with sales information needed to establish a tax rate that would provide the same amount of money as the existing option tax.

Huffman said he had provided the company with close approximations of sales figures but was unwilling to provide additional detail of the company's financial operations.

End of a washout

Balanced Rock grade project gets under way

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

CASTLEFORD — Preliminary design work has begun on replacing a temporary culvert under Balanced Rock Road after Salmon Falls Creek washed out the original last spring.

On May 18, a large pool of water from the creek and irrigation drainages formed behind the culvert when it became blocked by trash. The culvert and the earthen fill of the road finally gave way, sending a surge of water down the creek. The resulting flood destroyed irrigation pumps and inundated farms, businesses and homes.

With a federal grant of about $500,000, the culvert and road will be rebuilt this summer under a joint project of the Twin Falls and Buhl Highway Districts, Marilyn Broek, an engineer with the contracted firm of Edwards, Howard and Martens Engineers Inc.

The original pipe under the road was 10 feet in diameter and could handle a flow of between 1,600 and 2,000 cubic feet per second. A temporary culvert, built in August from salvaged pipe, will take a flow of 1,000 cubic feet per second.

The permanent replacement will be two 18-foot-diameter pipes. The pipes will handle a flow of between 3,400 and 4,000 cubic feet per second.

The project also includes widening the road 10 feet so a guard rail can be constructed along the steep grade.

"We are trying to make it as safe as possible and still stay within the funding," Broek said.

The total project will be 1,600 feet in length, which is almost wall to wall in the Salmon Falls Creek canyon.

A federal emergency grant will pay for the entire project. The State Department of Transportation and the Federal Highway Administration will have final approval of the design, which was in preliminary stages, Broek said.

"We would like to be able to begin construction this summer with completion as soon as possible," Broek said.

What the federal money won't buy is a road grade that is less steep than the original.

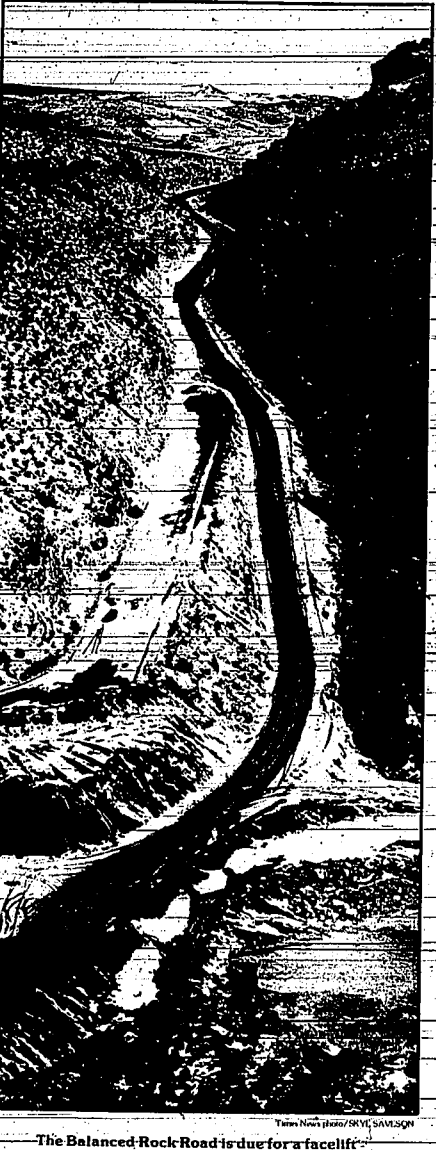

When the temporary culvert was constructed, the grade of the road into the canyon became steeper than the original.

When a new culvert is built, the grade of the road will be the same as before the washout.

If the highway districts wanted to ease the grade to meet federal standards, the project would cost an additional $200,000, Broek said.

The state Highway Department recommended the grade be replaced at its original level because the nature of the federal fund was to "put it back the way it was," Broek said.

The Balanced Rock Road is due for a facelift.

Valley unemployment back up to 6% range

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley unemployment bobbed back to the 6 percent range during February from an abnormal low in the previous month. The seasonally adjusted rate for Twin Falls, Jerome and Gooding counties was 5.9 percent, which was 7 percentage points above the January figure, the Idaho Department of Employment reported Friday.

The Idaho jobless rate also rose to 6.2 percent, with the Boise, Idaho area and Canyon County also showing marked increases, the state agency said. While more people are unemployed, more also have jobs because the total job force is expanding rapidly.

The state reported its highest number of people at work in five years.

The hike in the unemployment rates in the Magic Valley and in Idaho had been expected. However, the state's work force still is better off than that of the nation as a whole. U.S. unemployment was 7.3 percent during February.

The February figure for the Magic Valley probably is a more reliable indicator than January's for statistical reasons, said Lon McDonald, job force analyst at Twin Falls. January's rate normally has a heavy adjustment to account for the downturn in available jobs during early winter.

When the seasonal factors are eliminated, the three-county area had 2,484 people unemployed compared to 2,485 in January. There were 31,348 workers on the job.

McDonald said the coming of warmer weather should open up jobs in the construction industry. Job possibilities in the service sector also are likely to remain good, he said.

Statewide, the work force grew by 3,500 people, according to Department of Employment calculations. About 1,900 found work, pushing the numbers of people having jobs to 409,500. Another 1,600 were added to the jobless rolls, bringing the state total to 28,900 out of work.

Idaho Employment Director Scott McDonald had forecast the increase in the unemployment rate because of layoffs that occurred after the January survey.

"We're going to see some increases here for the next couple of months," he said. Among them will be a 30 percent cut in the work force at Micron Technology Inc. in Boise, which has not yet shown up in the statistics.

The February increase in the jobless rate generally came from work force cuts in the sugar refining, mining and fragile sectors. Some limited employment gains were made in the service sector, because of the winter recreation industry and the resumption of college and university classes following the winter break.

Seasonally adjusted unemployment rates for the state's regions and the changes from January are listed below:

- Panhandle (Coeur d'Alene) — 9.2 percent, up 2 percent.
- Lewiston — 5.2 percent, no change.
- Canyon County — 8.3 percent, up 5 percent.
- Boise — 4.4 percent, down 2 percent.
- Magic Valley — 5.9 percent, up 7 percent.
- Pocatello — 6.3 percent, no change.
- Idaho Falls — 3.9 percent, no change.

In his announcement on Friday, McDonald also blasted legislation that would trim premiums paid by employers into the state's unemployment insurance compensation fund.

"The Legislature is banking on the unemployment rate going down, but it's going up," he said. "They're taking more out of the fund than they should be putting money in it."

Backers of the legislation say a $20 million reduction in premiums would encourage businesses to expand and create new jobs.

The bill has been passed in the Idaho Senate and is awaiting action in the House of Representatives.

Bellevue's water rates may increase for some businesses

By BARBARA NEUBERT
Times-News correspondent

BELLEVUE — Higher water rates for some Bellevue businesses were proposed at a special Bellevue City Council session held Thursday.

The council agreed that the increase was needed to meet operating expenses of the system.

Last June, water rates were increased from $7.50 to $12.50 per month for all of the city's water customers. The higher proposed business rate is to bring the expense of the water more in line with actual usage, the council noted.

The council is expected to adopt the new rates at its March 14 meeting.

Proposed exceptions to the $12.50 base rate are: restaurants, $25; bars, $25; bar with restaurant, $37.50; bowling alley, $37.50; car wash, $25 per stall; churches, $12.50 plus $12.50 per space; laundromat, $12.50 base plus $8.25 per washer; motels and hotels, $12.50 managing unit plus $6.25 each room or apartment; multiple living units, $12.50 per unit; office buildings, $12.50 per office; photo development lab, $25; service station, $18.75; retail food store with butcher shop, $18.75; and where a business is run in a home, $25.

One of the largest proposed changes is for the elementary school, which now pays $12.50 per month. The committee proposed a $300 charge per month for water usage.

"This amounts to only four cents per day per student for a nine-month school year," she said.

Bliss officials want written apology

By TERRELL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

BLISS — City officials in Bliss say they are still waiting for a written, public apology from the Idaho Fish and Game Department.

Mayor Bud Ziegler said Wednesday department officials promised to give Bliss a written apology during a special meeting Feb. 15.

The apology, said the mayor, would be for the published remarks of a fish and game officer who made general statements about the city of Bliss, not cooperating with the department and accusations that many in the town knew of poaching incidents.

"They verbally promised a written apology," Ziegler told the city council Wednesday. "We haven't seen a thing of it."

At a February council meeting, the council decided to write letters to state representatives and senators and the state director of the Fish and Game Department to express the council's resentment of the game officer's statements and ask for a reprimand.

After a special meeting with the regional game officers a week later, Ziegler said the letters would not be sent because a written apology was promised to the city by the officers.

Ziegler and the council decided unanimously Wednesday to send the letters because they stated the department officials have made no effort to keep their promise.

Regional Supervisor Bill Webb contacted Thursday, said his verbal apology had been published in two newspapers.

"We thought that might do the job," he said. "We didn't want to call any more attention to the problem. I don't know what else they're looking for."

Webb said he would call Ziegler and get the situation settled.

In other business:

- The council voted to have Jerome attorney Greg Fuller handle all future city legal business. Fuller, recommended by Ziegler, will charge the city $75 an hour and no annual retainer fee. He replaces John Varin, a Gooding attorney.

Foundation still under investigation

FEC drops Times-News from Hansen's election complaint

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Federal Elections Commission has dismissed a complaint filed by former U.S. Rep. George Hansen against the Times-News, but it still is investigating a nonprofit foundation that gave the newspaper a grant to research Hansen's financial dealings.

The federal commission, which administers election campaign laws, dropped its probe into the Times-News for accepting a $175,000 grant from the Virginia-based Project for Investigative Reporting on Money in Politics.

Hansen said Friday the Times-News had accepted the grant to study public records and to conduct interviews about Hansen's campaign finances and the former congressman's connections with the Unification Church. It also paid for two trips to eastern Idaho for field research.

Hansen had demanded an FEC inquiry into the propriety of the grant. He argued in a letter to the FEC that the money and any articles written should be considered "in-kind services" on behalf of a candidate, presumably his opponent, and current 2nd District Congressman Richard Stallings.

The FEC dismissed the Times-News from the case after considering arguments made by the newspaper. Managing editor Stephen Hartgen had elected a specific exemption in the Federal Election Campaign Act for legitimate newsmen. He also said the articles did not advocate the election of Stallings or the defeat of Hansen.

Hartgen said Friday the Times-News had accepted the FEC to rule in its favor.

"While the grant was unusual, it was within the bounds both legally and ethically of accepted journalistic practice," he said.

The grant also had no strings attached. The foundation had no control over whether the newspaper wrote any stories from the research and it had no say about the content of any articles written, Hartgen said.

However, the FEC is pressing forward with further questions about the foundation's Investigative Reporting on Money in Politics and about its parent company, Campaign Finance Research Institute Inc.

In its ruling, the commission rejected the advice of the Federal Election Commission. Hansen had alleged they are conduits for money to influence elections.

James Boyd, executive director for the Project for Investigative Reporting on Money in Politics, said the foundation's attorney has received a list of questions from the FEC in the past few days.

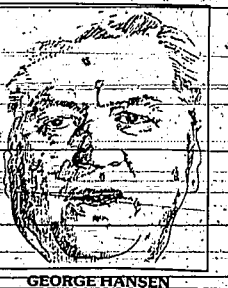

He also said the foundation will continue to defend itself and its attorneys' view of the opinion that there is absolutely no merit in this. Boyd also said the other party named in Hansen's complaint have no connection to the project or the grant given to the Times-News.

However, Hansen said Friday in a telephone interview that the probe should continue.

"Our complaints apparently had validity," he said.

Hansen said the Times-News is in the business of making public judgments and ought to have looked closely at the other parties involved. "I don't think I'm normally excused from participating in something in which violations of the law occurred," he said.

The decision of the commission allows its staff to launch an in-depth study of the foundation and their practices. The FEC will decide whether violations of law actually did occur after it receives another staff report.

Jerome council negotiating to buy building in city from Mountain Bell

By INA HADAM Times-News correspondent

JEROME — Negotiations between the Jerome City Council and Mountain Bell to purchase a building located at 204 South Lincoln, owned by Mountain Bell, are progressing.

Councilmember Eugene Vandiver said from a real estate standpoint, the approximate cost to build a new building of the same square footage would be $175,000.

Mayor Ralph Peters said the location and price of $40,000 make it an ideal acquisition for the city's future needs as the present City Hall has reached its capacity.

Councilman Glen Capps added that the reason the city has been able to stay "in the black" is because the council has been able to take advantage of bargains such as this building.

In other business at Tuesday's meeting:

A copy of a new personnel manual to be "in" with the new ordinance regarding hiring and firing was given to each council member for study.

The council agreed to look at one of the new personnel policies in the manual — the stipulation that only 18 days vacation time can be taken consecutively. About 100 long-term employees may actually have more vacation time accumulated.

Capps said loyal long-term employees are far more valuable than new ones and should be reported. They had heard comments about keeping the lower because of its historical or sentimental value.

The council suggested a possible buyer for the tower could be found.

The resignation of Police Officer Fred Finlay was accepted. Capps said he and Police Chief Darrell Cameron will have a recommendation for a replacement in a few days.

Finlay indicated he was quitting to accept a higher paying position.

A new water system for the city has recently been completed, and the council agreed at its last meeting that something needed to be done about the old water tower.

The council agreed to table any decision until the necessary facts could be collected.

Estimated costs to tear the tower down has ranged between $100 to $20,000.

However, council members reported they had heard comments about keeping the lower because of its historical or sentimental value.

The council suggested a possible buyer for the tower could be found.

The resignation of Police Officer Fred Finlay was accepted. Capps said he and Police Chief Darrell Cameron will have a recommendation for a replacement in a few days.

Tax

"I'll be darned if I'm going to give them all of our financial information," said the manager of the resort. "I don't want to want that information unless they're considering (selectively) taxing" part of the company's total operations, he said.

Company officials disagreed with the manager of the city's other large resort, Elkhorn. Bill Short, manager of that facility, said he has never had a convention host tell him his organization would not stay at the resort because of the tax rates.

Elkhorn's tax rates represent a "back-end" office manager each told the panel of the uncomforable position they are placed in when they are forced to explain an 11 percent room-tax rate caused by the option tax, the state sales tax, and the state's room tax.

But Ketchum Mayor Jerry Siffert, whose own city collects a 1 percent general sales tax under one option of the 1978 tax law, said a ski resort cannot remain competitive in U.S. or world markets if its supporting cities rely on property taxes as their sole source of operating revenues.

And, he said, the total room tax in Sun Valley is not out of line with that paid in other Western resort cities.

Ketchum's 1 percent broad-based option tax is indirectly threatened by District Judge George Granata's decision. If upheld by the state Supreme Court, that decision is likely to open the door to similar challenges of the Ketchum tax.

Granata's decision and the committee's reluctance to amend the law also jeopardize services the city runs in cooperation with the City of Sun Valley, Ketchum officials contend.

Other Idaho cities that levy some form of tax under the law are Lava Hot Springs, Idaho City and McCall.

Washout

Originally, the crossing was 50 feet from its lowest point on the creek bed to the road. To lessen to grade, it would mean raising the roadway an additional 12 feet, Brock said. Besides the expense, the additional feet would create problems for entrance into Balanced Rock Park, located adjacent to the crossing.

Bellevue

The mayor has based these rates on a "common sense" basis, said Ewersen.

In other business, a caucus session was held to nominate candidates to run for mayor and alderman positions in an upcoming city election April 8.

Ewersen was nominated to run for mayor for the current year and incumbent councilmen Eugene Fields, Mike Ivie and Don Litzinger were nominated for two-year council terms.

In reference to the lack of any citizen participation at the caucus meeting, Ewersen said "the people of Bellevue either have a lot of faith in us or just a lack of interest."

"Anyone who did not vote. In last year's city election must register to vote in this election," said Ann Faye O'Donnell, city clerk.

WHITE Mortuary

Brook said: "To avoid a similar Washout this year, the highway department and engineers have asked operators at Salmon Falls Dam to spill water over a period of days instead of all at once.

In about nine months, the project for the replacement culvert and road improvement should be bid. The only delay until then could occur in gaining the right-of-way for the additional 10 feet of road, Brock said. The highway districts have to acquire the property from two landowners. Twin Falls County is one of them.

Traveling rabbi brings circumcisions to boys

By DAVID EGNER
The Associated Press

ALBANY, N.Y. — Armed with a knife and a prayer, Rabbi Paul Silton travels east-upstate New York to help Jews fulfill an ancient pledge their ancestors made to circumcise their sons as a sign of devotion to God.

Fifty to 100 times a year, the circuit-riding rabbi visits a Jewish home to carry out a festive ceremony that enters a baby boy into the only covenant, says Silton, that was established about 3,500 years ago between God and Abraham.

As the only mohel — the Hebrew term for a person who carries out Jewish religious circumcision — between the New York City area and Rochester at the other end of the state, Silton takes his responsibility seriously. He said he missed the birth of his twin daughters — the last of his seven children — to perform an out-of-town circumcision three years ago.

"Circumcision is extremely important from a religious point of view, it's a very basic tenet of Judaism," said Silton, a 42-year-old Albany rabbi who has been performing ritual circumcisions since 1968. "God wants the Jewish people to live their traditions to the fullest."

By helping preserve the tradition of circumcision I see myself as a person who can show Jewish people how beautiful and joyous the Jewish tradition can be."

Circumcision — the surgical removal of the fold of skin that covers the end of the penis — dates back to prehistoric times among many peoples. It was often performed at important times of passage in a boy's life, such as shortly after the age of puberty or just before marriage.

The procedure is routinely performed on most baby boys born today in the United States and on many babies in other nations because many doctors believe it guards against infections and diseases. Other doctors contend it serves no medical purpose if the penis is kept clean.

Jews practice circumcision because the Bible teaches that God promised to give

Abraham's descendants the land of Israel for all time if they would pursue justice, mercy, ethical conduct and obey the laws of God. As a sign of allegiance to that covenant, the Bible says God commanded: "Every male among you, throughout your generations, shall be circumcised when he is 8 days old."

Silton, 95 of about 200 mohels in the United States, says Eugene Cohen, director of the Brit Milah Board of America. Brit means covenant and milah means circumcision in Hebrew.

About half the mohels in the United States live in the New York City area, where 1.7 million of the 5.7 million Jews in the nation live. Mohels outside New York City normally cover broad geographic areas to meet the needs of Jews who want to keep the ancient custom of the brit milah alive.

"Most Jews don't use a mohel anymore, they use a doctor for circumcisions, they trust a doctor more," says Cohen, whose group seeks to preserve the tradition of mohels and promote the proper religious and medical skills.

By using a Jewish doctor to perform the circumcision and having a rabbi lead parents and guests in the proper prayers, the procedure still carries out the brit milah.

"Most Jews — even those not particularly religious — want the circumcision to have some religious aspects because it's such an important tradition," Silton said.

He said it's a "very meaningful and significant" experience for everyone involved and "a celebration." Parents invite friends and relatives — sometimes a handful — and sometimes dozens — to pray, sing and dance at the ceremony and then share a festive meal.

The baby boy is formally given his Hebrew name as prayers are said.

"The ceremony is just wonderful," said Beth Goldberg, who recently invited 40 people — about half of them non-Jews — to her home in the Syracuse suburb of Manlius for the brit milah Silton performed on her only son, Andrew.

Catholic cardinals' views coincide on 'life' issues

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

In one corner was New York's Archbishop John J. O'Connor, hard baller against abortion, and in the other was Chicago's Cardinal Joseph L. Bernardini, advocate of a "consistent ethic" for life in all its aspects.

They traded some gentle, glancing nudges, but mostly talked of how they would spend as partners in the ring together, perhaps sparking a bit, but working for common objectives.

"You got caught in an egg-beater," said O'Connor. "Some people feel you've taken the position against abortion, but you're not interested in other life issues besides abortion. But it's evident we're all committed" to pro-life on the various issues.

O'Connor said "there's room for everybody to try to protect the suffering in one way or another" but he is concerned that "the most vulnerable, the unborn infant, is easy to lose in the shuffle."

"The opposite criticism has been made of you," Bernardini said, "that you're not interested in other life issues besides abortion. But it's evident we're all committed" to pro-life on the various issues.

O'Connor said "there's room for everybody to try to protect the suffering in one way or another" but he is concerned that "the most vulnerable, the unborn infant, is easy to lose in the shuffle."

Bernardini said some people provisionally supporting choice about abortion, have told him they've had to rethink their attitudes "because of the logic" of the bishops' consistent "moral vision" defending life on all fronts.

O'Connor, who has accused some Catholic politicians of waffling about abortion in their public actions, said he was impressed that "at particular times, important facets of an issue get lost."

O'Connor, 85, a long-time New York chaplain who has been in New York since last year, was host last Sunday night on the first of a weekly series of WPJX-TV conversations. Bernardini, 66, head of the U.S. bishops' pro-life committee and formerly the bishops' president, was guest.

The two had just returned from a visit to Nicaragua, where President Daniel Ortega presented to the U.S. Catholic "delegation" proposals for reducing tensions.

TWIN FALLS — Michael Reardon of San Francisco will present a dramatic presentation "Saint John, The Fourth Gospel" at 7 p.m. Wednesday at the Episcopal Church of the Ascension, 210 Blue Lakes Blvd. N. Twin Falls. Tickets, $4 each, will be sold at the door; reservations may be made by calling 733-1248 between 8:30 a.m. and 12:15 p.m. A reception will be held after the presentation.

American food aid reaches Ethiopians

NAZARETH, Ethiopia (AP) — Trucks of American wheat, the first U.S. government food aid shipped directly to this Marxist nation, reached tens of thousands of Ethiopian famine victims this week, government and relief agency officials said Friday.

"Many people are already being fed from the American shipment," Tadessegnaw, Shanka, manager of the government complex of food-storage warehouses at Nazareth, told visiting Western correspondents.

Nazareth is 62 miles southeast of Addis Ababa, the capital.

Part-one Soviet-built Ethiopian army trucks arrived at Nazareth with 250 tons of wheat Thursday and Friday from Assab, the nation's main Red Sea port 480 miles to the northeast.

About 32,000 tons of wheat, the first government-to-government U.S. donation and the biggest single aid commitment to Ethiopia, were unloaded at Assab, beginning Feb. 24 from the Danish ship Torm Herdis.

The ship dropped about 8,000 tons earlier at the smaller northern harbor of Massawa that was being trucked to famine victims in rebel-infested Eritrea province, said officials of the government Relief and Rehabilitation Commission.

Movement of the American grain to some of the nine million famine victims was being speeded by the first use of military trucks to move it out of Assab port.

Government officials said the trucks usually ferry troops and supplies to Eritrea and other areas the army is fighting guerrillas.

The massive movement of wheat came after

Vice President George Bush, on a three-nation tour of Africa, complained that little food was reaching Eritrea and Tigray regions, which have the strongest guerrilla movements.

Before leaving Washington for Sudan, Ethiopia's western neighbor in which more than 700,000 Ethiopian refugees have sought sanctuary, Bush called to "grant safe passage to convoys of needy taking food" into the north.

Officials of the government and United Nations said some of the American wheat was brought to Nazareth by the army trucks and was later moved into Eritrea and Tigray.

The military was called on to help step up the distribution of food as a 72,000-ton stockpile, enough grain for all famine victims for two weeks, built up last month at Assab.

Car bomb explodes in Shiite neighborhood

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car packed with explosives blew up in a Shiite Muslim neighborhood Friday, destroying an eight-story apartment building and damaging a mosque filled with worshippers gathering for Sabbath prayers.

Police said 62 people were killed and 200 were wounded.

Police estimated the bomb contained more than 200 pounds of explosives and it spread fire and destruction in the densely populated area, butane gas canisters exploded in a nearby apartment building in series of explosions after the initial blast, police said.

It was "the most destructive bombing in Beirut since the truck bombings of American and French peacekeeping headquarters on Oct. 23, 1983, which killed 241 U.S. servicemen and 58 French soldiers.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility for the bomb. Several Muslim politicians blamed Israel for the blast.

Saïm Hoss, a moderate Sunni Muslim politician who served in the Lebanese Cabinet as labor and education minister, said he had "no doubt that Israel was behind this ugly crime."

The Amal movement, "the largest" Shiite Muslim militia group, also blamed Israel and vowed to "retaliate adequately soon."

Sandstorm stops Bush from visit

MARADI, Niger (AP) — A stinging sandstorm Friday prevented Vice President George Bush from visiting a camp where dry-land farming is helping to keep people alive before Africa's drought.

Bush's plane, Air Force Two, was kept on the ground in Niamey, Niger's capital, after a C-130 transport plane carrying the vice presidential limousine and other equipment had to make four passes before it could land at the Maradi airport, because of poor visibility.

The vice president had been scheduled to inspect Bayan-Gade, where water from 27 wells is helping displace a famine-grown lettuce, potatoes and other vegetables in the parched soil.

In his three-nation tour of Africa, Bush has visited a camp for Ethiopian refugees in eastern Sudan and a camp for Sudanese refugee victims in the western part of that country.

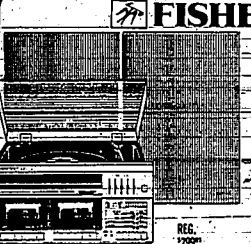

At both places, Bush praised the work of doctors and others who worked to alleviate sickness and hunger. In both camps there was severe malnutrition and the monthly death rate frequently climbed into the hundreds.

Niger's 1984 growing season was its driest since 1905, and experts of the Agency for International Development expect rainfall to be less than average again this year.

Thais force Vietnamese from border

PUNG TUK, Thailand (AP) — Thai forces beat back Vietnamese troops who tried to cross the border from Cambodia under artillery cover Friday to retake three strategic hills, Thai military sources said.

The Vietnamese, driven from those same hills on Thursday, want the high ground for an assault on the rear of the Tatum rebel base, last major border post of guerrillas who have fought the Vietnamese since they invaded Cambodia in December 1978.

Tatum base, headquarters of Prince Norodom Sihanouk's followers, commands the area from a forested cliff surrounded by mines.

Thai and Vietnamese gunners fought a cross-border duel for hours Friday in the area of the hills, about two miles inside the frontier near the Thai village of Pung Tuk in the northern zone. Thailand's armed forces commander, Gen. Arthit Kamlang-ek, said his troops drove the initial force of 800 to 1,000 Vietnamese back across the border Thursday and had been repelling new forays since.

Chinese troops hit Viet stronghold

PEKING (AP) — Chinese frontier troops counterattacked Vietnamese forces along the border Friday and "wiped out their active strongholds," Chinese television news reported.

The brief report also accused Vietnamese border units of 10 days of shelling that caused "serious loss of life" and damage with China, but gave no figures and did not say where the fighting occurred. The report did not say whether Chinese troops crossed into Vietnam.

Vietnam's Radio Hanoi, monitored in Tokyo, said Chinese artillerymen fired more than 200 rounds into the Tuyen Province and Chinese soldiers intruded into what it described as Vietnamese heights along the border, but gave no specific locations.

Unions hit Bolivia

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — Unions paralyzed the nation Friday with a general strike called to protest tough economic policies imposed to fight astronomical inflation.

The Bolivian Labor Confederation called the walkout in support of tin miners already on strike for more pay, price controls, nationalizations and the resignation of President Hernan Siles Zuazo.

Mortgage money

Precautions taken by banks threatening low down payments

By BILL McCLOSKEY
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — America's bankers, concerned about bad debts, are requiring bigger down payments and taking other precautions that will make homes less affordable, the president of the nation's largest single source of home mortgage money said Friday.

Mark J. Riedy, president of the Federal National Mortgage Association, said lenders must raise more money or ask bigger down payments from homebuyers "many of whom — especially first-timers — may not be in a position to meet those demands."

"If builders or lenders can't find money, borrowers may have to find their own, perhaps asking parents to help with a big down payment, he said.

Estimates based on 10 percent downpayment on a 30-year fixed-rate mortgage.

Note: In 1983, income was 249 percent of the 1970 figure, home price was 321 percent of the 1970 figure, mortgage rate was 150 percent of the 1970 figure and monthly payment was 494 percent of the 1970 figure.

His remarks, released in Washington, were prepared for the Mortgage Bankers' Association's secondary mortgage conference in Los Angeles.

"High inflation is no longer able to 'ball everybody out,' he said.

"We all thought inflation was terrible, but it sure helped out the housing industry for a long time," he said in a telephone interview. "If a big monthly payment left a buyer temporarily short of cash, the next jump in inflation was likely to give the borrower a little more and increase the value of the house."

Now, in certain depressed areas of the country, the borrower may be out of work and the home worth less than the loan balance.

"I've warned that builders, appraisers and lenders must be more careful when they make their financial decisions — with home prices and wages going up at a slower pace, those in the housing industry can't depend on inflation to smooth over any errors they make in evaluating a home's value or a buyer's ability to pay."

He said FNMA is conducting studies "to see if appraisals are part of the problem of bad debts" and to determine if appraisals need to be changed.

New Yorker Magazine has new ownership

NEW YORK (AP) — Directors of New Yorker Magazine Inc. said Friday they agreed to sell the company to S.I. Newhouse Jr., who promised not to tamper with the highbrow style or its 28-year-old readership.

Newhouse's Advance Publications already had purchased 17 percent of New Yorker's common stock for $25.2 million. Under the latest agreement, Advance will pay $200 a share, or $142 million, for the remaining shares.

Although Advance originally disclaimed any interest in purchasing New Yorker, it announced Feb. 12 it was offering $180 for all shares outstanding.

In a statement, New Yorker said that when Advance increased its offer, New Yorker's board unanimously voted to accept it, with the proviso that New Yorker Magazine would operate as a separate company and would retain its present directors, officers and employees.

"The agreement," also states that Advance intends to preserve the quality of the New Yorker magazine through maintaining its personnel, practices and traditions," the company said.

The offer will be put to a vote of shareholders at a meeting in late April, it added.

That prospect already has sent the housing and home-finance industry into a furious activity aimed at combatting such thinking, and the fact that buyers rated deductions as a top attraction may now serve to intensify that activity.

Even with tax deductions, it seems obvious from the survey that first-time buyers face a much more difficult time than repeaters.

The financial profile of responses showed that 40 percent of all homebuyers relied mainly on equity from previous homes in buying their new residences, while first-timers relied on savings and personal loans.

In other words, many existing owners have benefited from housing inflation in recent years — the very inflation that makes it so difficult for first-timers to come in the market.

"And if the tax advantages of home ownership are reduced, it seems likely that the number of first-timers able to purchase and maintain a house might shrink even more.

change the guidelines for determining loans for first-time homebuyers, a homeowner actually owns — or has equity in — a very small portion of a property and it doesn't have much to lose if he just stops making payments and walks away from a loan, allowing the lender to foreclose.

As a result, Riedy said, lenders are looking more closely at a borrower's ability to repay the loan, turning down more of the marginal applicants, asking bigger down payments and higher loan originations fees. Loan insurers want higher premiums for the higher risks they are taking.

Riedy said the higher costs will mean fewer individuals will be able to afford homes. He predicted a lower level of housing starts this year as a result.

He expressed concern that a recent rash of foreclosures would cause an overreaction, with builders and lenders demanding more money from prospective homebuyers at closing.

"Housing affordability may not be an issue of crisis proportions today, but overreactions of the sort I outlined could indeed push affordability much closer to the brink," he told the bankers.

Some financial issues rose, responding to the rally in the credit markets. In the savings and loan sector, H.F. Ahmanson was up 13% at 29 1/2, Golden West Financial 2 at 26 1/4, Great American East Savings 6 at 14 1/4, and Great Western Financial 13 at 26 1/4.

Commercial bank issues finished mixed.

International Business Machines dropped 1/2 to 129 1/4 in active trading, after falling 2 1/2 points Thursday. The company said sales and demand for its personal computer "are strong across the entire line."

Among other computer and technology issues, Digital Equipment rose 1 1/4 to 104 1/4, Hewlett-Packard 1/2 to 35 1/4, Data General 1 1/4 to 50 1/4, and Smith Barney fell 2 1/4 to 56 1/4. The drop was attributed to an article in a Japanese newspaper about a study of ulcer drugs, including Tagamet, which is produced by Smithline.

In the daily tally on the Big Board, about 40 stocks fell in price for the first time in recent days. On Friday, however, rates turned sharply lower in the bond and short-term money markets.

Rates on short-term Treasury bills fell about 20 basis points, or a hundredth of a percentage point. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, rose more than $10 for every $1,000 in face value.

Traders also said some traders were shopping for "buyers" in the stock market, with the Dow Jones industrial average having closed Thursday at a six-week low. But their buying didn't stir up much other activity.

The economic news, the Labor Department reported that the civilian unemployment rate declined 0.1 percent in February, to 7.3 percent. A drop had been widely expected on Wall Street.

The NASDAQ composite index dropped .82 to 282.37. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 225.87, down 1.65.

Stocks post another drop

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK — The stock market closed out its worst week so far in 1985 with another decline in slackened trading Friday.

Except for a few financial issues, stock prices showed no response to a sharp drop in open-market interest rates.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial slipped 1.87 to 1,269.66, extending its loss for the week to 23.70 points. That was the average's biggest weekly decline since it tumbled 31.36 points last Nov. 26-30, as the Treasury was unveiling its controversial tax reform proposal.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange tailed off to 96.39 million shares from 112.10 million Thursday.

Analysts said rising interest rates have been the main force pushing stock prices lower in recent days. On Friday, however, rates turned sharply lower in the bond and short-term money markets.

Rates on short-term Treasury bills fell about 20 basis points, or a hundredth of a percentage point. Prices of long-term government bonds, which move in the opposite direction from interest rates, rose more than $10 for every $1,000 in face value.

Profile of the typical home purchaser

NEW YORK — If you were a typical homebuyer last year you would have come from a household with an income of $35,950, bought an existing rather than new single-family house of 1,650 square feet, and paid $65,642.

You would have observed your 33rd birthday, and there was a good chance that your household relied on two incomes rather than one, especially if you were a first-time rather than repeat buyer.

Those figures, most of them medians, are from a survey just released by the National Association of Realtors. The first it has made since 1980. Among other things, it confirmed what many people already know: Buying a house is treasure. Almost half the buyers studied — 47 percent of them across the country — relied on two incomes to finance their transactions, and many of them depended on loans to help make up the down payment.

Repeat buyers, able to finance their purchase with the equity from a previous house, found it a lot easier than first-timers. Adding to their ease were bigger incomes — $39,100 vs. $30,900 for first-time buyers.

It was no surprise, therefore, that two-thirds of buyers last year were the financially better-off repeaters rather than first-timers. The repeaters also were older than the first-timers, 37 years, compared to 29 years.

Forty percent of all buyers obtained a first mortgage from a savings and loan association, and the same percentage selected conventional, adjustable rate mortgages. Only one-quarter of the buyers opted for fixed-rate loans.

Surveys such as this seldom reveal any surprises, but one item does tend to stand out and usually is interesting: Near or at the top of the list of reasons for buying was the desire for home ownership's tax advantages.

Those advantages — mainly deductions for interest payments and local real estate taxes — have also caught the eye of the Treasury Department, which thinks Congress should at least consider limitations on them.

That prospect already has sent the housing and home-finance industry into a furious activity aimed at combatting such thinking, and the fact that buyers rated deductions as a top attraction may now serve to intensify that activity.

Even with tax deductions, it seems obvious from the survey that first-time buyers face a much more difficult time than repeaters.

The financial profile of responses showed that 40 percent of all homebuyers relied mainly on equity from previous homes in buying their new residences, while first-timers relied on savings and personal loans.

Dixie ripe, but Eagles aren't picking

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

COEUR D'ALENE — Fourth-ranked Dixie College was ripe for the picking Friday night in the opening round of the Region 18 college basketball tournament, but College of Southern Idaho just didn't have the pickers.

The Dixie Rebels, getting 31 points from Averlan Parrish and 21 of those in the second half, ended CSI's season 74-69, but this time the Eagles, probably more used to themselves than the expertise of the Rebels.

The Eagles had a chance for an easy double-digit halftime lead, but instead led Dixie stay within two at intermission. The Rebels hit the first shot of the second half, exchanged the lead twice, and then around the 13-minute mark began to pull away. The Rebel lead crested at 6:55 with 6:47 to go and the final score was the best CSI could muster.

Host North Idaho College faced Snow College in the other Friday night tournament game.

"It was the rudiments, not the fundamentals, that cost CSI a chance for this upset. Five times in the first half CSI simply failed to catch the ball, four of those costing them apparently uncontested layups. They also missed three freebees underneath.

"I don't know what the problem was. All the kids were fumbling the ball around," said CSI coach Fred Trenkle.

Making a six-point lead, CSI went into a spread but couldn't convert off that play.

"If we had made those buckets out of the spread we could have had a 12-14 halftime lead," Trenkle said. "Instead we let them come back."

Dixie Coach Neil Roberts agreed nothing "I know they missed 36 four layup situations. If they had made those it would have been a much different game. CSI played us very well — they made us come up defensively against their delay and they let a forward bring the ball up court against our pressure."

CSI's headiest moments came in the first half. Coach Trenkle switched from a man to a zone defense after Dixie had spurred to 17-9 lead. The manuever seemed to unsettle Dixie and the Eagles scored the next 10 points, going ahead 19-17 on a Larry Brown steal.

But typical of CSI's inability to pad a 22-22 lead came when it held the ball from 2:27 to 1:30 seconds and didn't score. Parrish hit the last bucket to make it 22-26 at intermission.

In the second half, it was basically the shooting of Parrish that took Dixie into the finals. He hit eight straight points to expand a 57-51 lead to that 65-51 margin.

In a major understatement, Coach Roberts said "Parrish is a very special player." The 6-foot-4 sharpshooter has drawn attention from Idaho and other high-powered schools.

Although Trenkle was disappointed, he said "we just ask our guys to play hard and they play hard." He felt changing the zone helped us some, although we gave up the weak side rebound a few times.

"I thought for the third time this year their maturity came through late in the game. With three starters out on fouls, we were in such a scramble. I don't see us having trouble picking out someone to defend."

Sophomore Jeff Logan bowed out with 15 points, one of his better efforts of the season. Lowell Czerwinski, who sprained an ankle in practice Thursday night, still led the Eagles with 19. The major difference in the game was CSI got very few points from its big man, as Dixie limited usual double-figure scorer Kevin Hulsey to 4 points.

TWIN FALLS — Game, set, match Gooding.

Facing the Shoshone Indians for the fifth time this season, Gooding held the District 4 champions scoreless for 5:10 during the fourth quarter, which keyed its 64-63 triumph Friday night in the semifinals of the State A-3 Boys Basketball Tournament at College of Southern Idaho.

Gooding's opponent in tonight's 8:30 p.m. title game will be Malad, which edged last year's champion, Lapwai, 67-66 in overtime. Shoshone will face Lapwai at 11:30 p.m. for third place.

In losers' bracket games, Sugar-Salem eliminated Homedale 89-75 and Pottlatch ousted West Jefferson 71-68. Sugar-Salem and Pottlatch meet today at 10:15 a.m. for the consolation title.

Gooding 64, Shoshone 63

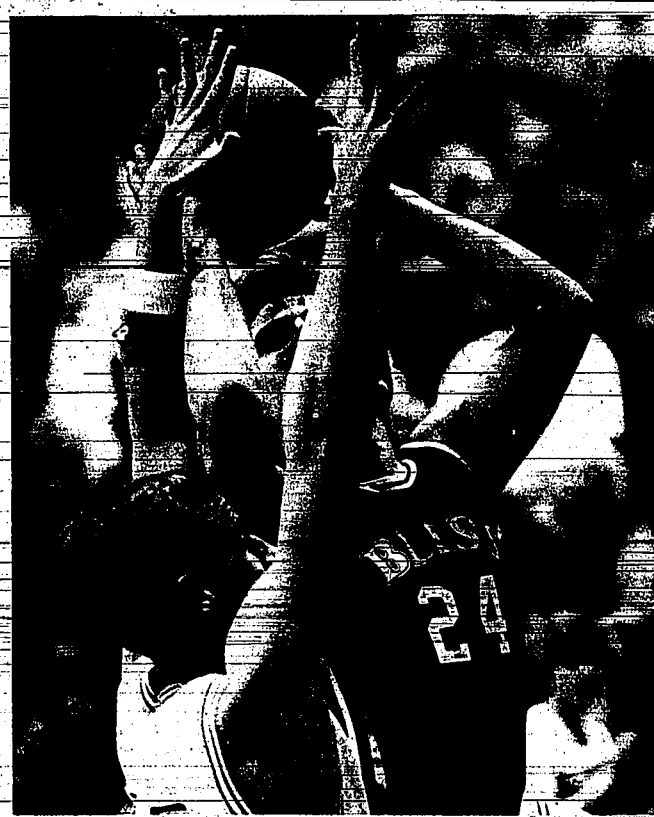

After beginning its a-men-to-man defense, the 22-7 Senators switched to a 2-3 zone, which is the alignment they employed while shutting out Shoshone from 7:45 of the fourth quarter until 2:35 remained.

"It (the zone) kept them from going inside," Gooding Coach Lot Andersen said. "It seemed to kind of push them out of what they planned to do."

While Shoshone stagnated, Gooding glittered by scoring 12 straight points. George Shimer's three-point basket with 7:45 to go gave Shoshone a 50-45 lead; but Todd Sims' follow off a garbage rebound and Jed Yore's three-point play tied it with 6:08 left.

Robbie Gage, who left the bench to assist seven free throws in the final period, hit one of two with 4:24.

Bliss battles into title game

By STEVE CRUMP and BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writers

TWIN FALLS — Bliss High School has 49 students, seven boys basketball players and a long history of watching other Magic Valley Class A-4 schools play for state championships.

History is changing.

For the second day in a row here Friday, the Bears escaped in the final reel—beating third-ranked Cascade 62-61 in overtime and earning a berth in tonight's state A-4 title game.

That was our third goal when the season started," said Bliss Coach Jerry Couch while being embraced by a good percentage of the townsfolk of the Gooding County municipality. "We wanted to go 12-0 and win our conference, win our subdistrict and win state."

A very tall and very powerful basketball team; Kendrick stands in Bliss' way, however. The Tigers, who routed North Gem High of Benewah 83-58 in Friday's other semifinal game, will take on the Bears for the state trophy at 6:45 p.m. today in the College of Southern Idaho gym.

Cascade and North Gem will play for third place at 3:15 p.m.

Barlier, top-ranked Oakley, edged a playoff bid to North Gem Friday night by thumping Marsing 97-54 in one Friday morning loser-out game. In the other, Meadows Valley High of New Meadows edged Plummer, 76-74.

Oakley and New Meadows will get together to decide which gets the consolation trophy today at 1:35.

For Bliss, which has never won a state championship and has attended just two state tournaments in 20 years, the state title seemed possible after Friday's game. Two minutes and 31 seconds shy of the

In between, the Bears methodically chipped away at Cascade, a much taller and more physical team.

"Any time we get a chance to shoot free throws, I feel we have a chance to win the game," said Couch. "That's one of our strengths. The other is defense."

ISU a step away from NCAA

BOISE — Idaho State's Donn Holston, frustrated in his maneuvering for a desperation shot by the alert defense of Northern Arizona's Andy Hurd, rolled left and uncorked a 25-foot basket at the buzzer to give down the Lumberjacks 89-86 Friday and launch the Bengals into tonight's championship game of the Big Sky Basketball tournament.

The Bengals will play 15-17 this season, will face regular-season champion Nevada-Reno in tonight's 7-10 final in the Boise State Pavilion.

The winner of that game will get the Big Sky's automatic berth into the NCAA tournament.

Idaho State brought the ball upcourt with the game tied 86-86, but Northern Arizona's wary defense forced the Bengals to consume practically all of the remaining 24 seconds

"I knew it was going in right when it left my hand," said Holston, a former high school star at Pocatello's Highland High School. "Go into where we were going to win or go into overtime."

Idaho State Coach Wayne Ballard said, "It didn't work out exactly as we wanted, but we got the ball into a shooter's hands."

Northern Arizona guard David Allen, who took a swipe at the ball that Holston shot, said, "I'm still wondering what happened. Sometimes games are like this. You're unconscious performance by Holston, the tournament's leading scorer. He finished with 28 points, three assists, two steals and a pair of blocked shots. State's other perimeter players were equally effective. Freshman playmaker Chris Blocker went one-on-one down the stretch and struck for 18 points, 12 in the last 11 minutes and 55 seconds. Blocker hit eight of 10 field goal attempts and had five rebounds and seven assists.

Nelson Peterson, the Big Sky's No. 2 scorer, pulled up off the break to score 21 points and dished-out five assists.

Idaho State, Northern Arizona couldn't seem to get the ball into the hands of its best player, Hurd. The junior forward scored 18 points, but he took only 10 shots — far too few.

Guard LaVonne Davis scored 22 points and played a thorough floor game for the Lumberjacks, who ended the season at 17-12.

Forward David Duane slipped down the baseline and hit all nine of his shots for Northern Arizona. He also had six rebounds and five assists. Post Antwine Murchison, a one-time transfer from Idaho, took down 13 rebounds and blocked five shots for the

BSU can't hold off hard-charging Reno

By VERN ANDERSON
The Associated Press

BOISE — Guard Chris Hurd scored 28 points and directed defending champion Nevada-Reno to a 79-67 victory over Boise State in a Big Sky Conference Basketball Tournament semifinal Friday night.

UNR's victory set up a championship final Saturday night between the top-seeded Wolf Pack and sixth-seeded Idaho State, an 89-86 winner over Northern Arizona earlier Friday night.

The winner will automatically proceed in the NCAA Tournament next week.

High, last year's tournament most valuable player, also was effective passing to UNR teammates underneath the basket, collecting four assists and three steals.

Seventh-seeded Boise State, which had surprised second-seeded Montana 67-54 on Thursday night, applied pressure defense to UNR, but with effect because of Hurd's ball handling.

Forward Duane Randall added 17 points for UNR, while Ben Idaho 83-80 in a tournament quarterfinal.

Randall was the game's leading rebounder with 12.

Boise State fell behind 10-2. Twice during the second half the Broncos made a run at UNR, drawing to within 46-42 and later 59-54 by 8:32 remaining when reserve guard Craig Spjutte hit his fourth three-point shot of the game. Wolf Pack then ran off eight straight points and the game was out-points for UNR, which beat Idaho 83-80 in a tournament quarterfinal.

Spjutte finished the game with 16 points and guard Frank Jackson and forward Bruce Bolden each added 10.

But the Wolf Pack then ran off eight straight points and the game was out-points for UNR, which beat Idaho 83-80 in a tournament quarterfinal.

UNR, which had twice beaten Boise State earlier this season, improved its remaining to put Gooding ahead. Simls scored on a breakaway after corraling an overthrow. Indian bounds pass, Brian Darcy guided in a missed Simls layup and, after a Shoshone turnover, Gage canned two nifty free throws with 2:46 left for a 57-52 Gooding advantage.

Gooding still led, by seven, 61-54, with 2:11 to go, 1:18 remaining. But the Senators twice missed front ends of one-and-ones twice to help keep the Indians alive.

Another three-pointer by Spinner shaved Gooding's lead to 61-50 with 16 seconds to go, but with 10 seconds left Donny Kirland made both ends of a one-and-one. Tim Howlan's 30-foot-for-Shoshone shot, 57-50, was too hard. Darcy rebounding. He drew an intentional foul and made the second of two free throws. Charles Sandy's three-point bomb went through the basket, as the buzzer sounded, ending the deficit but not the verbal war.

Earlier, Shoshone jumped to a commanding 21-9 lead late in the first quarter, a period during which the Indians made 10 of 12 shots from the field. But Gooding began employing the old-fashioned technique of upping tempo. Simls, who had 11 first-half points, and Gage, who collected nine, directed a second-quarter charge that brought the Senators as close as 33-32.

Yore's follow with seven minutes left in the first half gave Gooding its first lead, 37-36. Five lead changes erupted before the quarter expired.

(Malad 67, Lapwal 66 (OT))

Neither team backed down from its season-long style. Lapwal, which suffers only its second loss in 10 games, maintained its nerve-wracking man-to-man defense and fast-paced offense.

Malad, meanwhile, leaned heavily on its outside shooting. With the presence of the three-point line, it made quite a difference. The 19-8 Dragons made eight shots from beyond the 19-foot stripe to just two for Lapwal — helping explain why the Wildcats made four more field goals than Malad in the attack.

"During the course of the year, we usually outshot opponents three-to-one from the three-point line," Malad Coach Terry Jones said.

The three-pointers, said Jones, "helped us get ahead. And once we got down, they helped us come back a little bit."

Explaining his team's affinity for the perimeter, Jones noted that Lapwal effectively denied Malad inside access. But he added that on the Dragons, "everybody has the green light" for an outside shot.

Everybody, including center Eldon Roe, whose especially long three-pointer with 2:30 left shaved Lapwal's lead to 57-57. Earl Daniels, who was "held" to 29 points by Wildcat center Sobotta's determined defense, converted a three-point play with 1:13 to go, thrusting Malad on to 60-53.

Johnson-Leighton, whose 22 points led off the second loss in two games left for another tie. Daniels made ends of a one-and-one with 22 seconds remaining, but Leighton's bucket under death nine seconds later, forced overtime.

The Dragons didn't have any three pointers during the extra session, but they got the first two baskets on Daniels' follow and, following two errant Lapwal shots, Steve Gunnery's 18-footer with 1:31 to go.

After Greg Jones's 17-footer narrowed it to 66-64 with 1:18 left, Malad's Kevin Archibald missed the front end of a one-and-one, so did Leighton.

with 20 seconds remaining. Daniels rebounded and passed to Gumell, who drew a foul in the backcourt with 11 seconds to go. That rendered Lew Taylor's follow of James Matheny's forced three-pointer meaningless.

Sugar-Salem 89, Homedale 75

If this were a fight, it would have been stopped in the first quarter. But that would have deprived spectators of witnessing Homedale's Gary Kushian-led rally that brought the Trojans within four points after they trailed by 24.

The Diggers, 16-10, built a 23-3 bulge while Homedale "missed 10" first-period turnovers. Homedale scored eight straight to close within 23-11, but another fusillade by the Diggers gave them a 42-18 cushion midway through the second period.

Then Kushian, whose heroic effort for the 17-10 Trojans featured 45 points, tallied nine during a 19-2 Homedale streak spanning 3:27 that narrowed the difference to 44-37. The Trojans kept charging after halftime.

Matheny, who had 17 points and a bank shot and assisting on Jovett's layup with 5:22 to go that put Homedale within 47-43.

Near the end of the quarter Homedale remained in striking distance, 60-55, when four different Diggers scored consecutive baskets and essentially settled matters.

Nate Williams, who had a team-high 21 points, opened the barrage with 1:00 left on a three-pointer. Justin McFarland (19 points) flipped in a follow shot—Ferron Marlineau (18) opened the fourth quarter with a follow, and David Dearing (20) took Williams' nifty no-look pass and scored with 7:19 to go, widening the disparity to 69-55.

Pocatelli 71, West Jefferson 68

The Loggers, collected their 20th victory in 27 ties despite missing four one-and-ones in the final 7:00.

Malad did in its triumph over Sugar-Salem Thursday.

Pocatelli's survival stemmed primarily from the deeds of sophomore guard Ryan-Ball, who scored 10 of his 12 points in the decisive final quarter, including the Loggers' last four.

After Pocatelli took the game's largest lead early in the third quarter at 41-33, Larry Simmons and Lee Burtenshaw led a Panthers rally that had them ahead 54-51 shortly before the end of the period.

Burtenshaw's basket with 7:12 left in the fourth quarter widened the gap to 58-53. But Ball tallied six in less than a minute to bring Pocatelli within 59-53.

The lead changed hands three times in the waning minutes. Les Packard's steal and layup with 3:27 to go returned the edge to Pocatelli, 65-64. But with 1:22 left Rod Panicher scored on a strong move to the hoop, giving West Jefferson a 69-67 advantage.

But that was the last basket for the Panthers. 20-6, Pocatelli also got just one more hoop — a pumping drive shot by Ball between three Panthers.

Malad's 67-66 victory over Lapwal on Friday was a 20-10 triumph over Sugar-Salem Thursday.

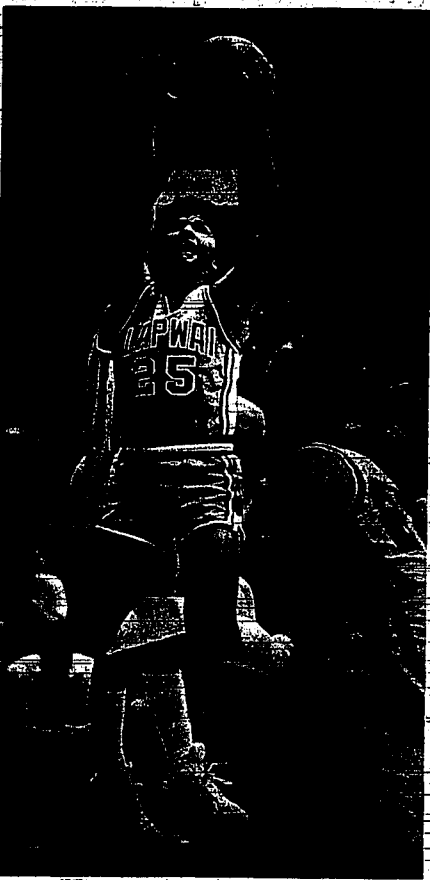

Pocatelli's survival stemmed primarily from the deeds of sophomore guard Ryan-Ball, who scored 10 of his 12 points in the decisive final quarter, including the Loggers' last four.

 times in the first half and six times in the fourth quarter, including a three-second violation with 1:44 left in regulation time that gave Bliss the chance to pull to within one point, at 52-51. Hall a minute later, Webb with a Menchick popped in a 10-foot jump shot to give Bliss the lead at 53-52.

Bliss' 18 seconds showing on the clock, Cascade's Justin Hitt put down a driving layup and was fouled in the act. He hit the bonus, giving the Ramblers a 55-53 lead. Couch took time out.

"I told the kids not to give up," he said. "I knew we had enough time to get a good shot."

As the clocked wound down into its last 10 seconds, Smith drove to the basket and drew the foul. His two free throws didn't touch the rim.

The Ramblers scored first in the extra period, with Hitt connecting on the front end of a 1-and-1. Twenty seconds later he put down a jumper that gave Cascade a 58-55 advantage with 1:50 left in overtime.

Arnold cut the deficit to one point with a basket, and with 1:11 to go an official called a foul on a Cascade player — under the "Bliss basket-Ramblers' Coach LaBell Patterson rose to protest and was hit with a technical foul.

Arnold hit the ensuing free throw to tie the game at 58-58. Smith connected to the next two charity tosses to give Bliss a two-point advantage at 60-58.

Cascade took the ball downcourt and turned it over again with 20 seconds remaining. Arnold took the ball to the Bliss basket and was fouled, hitting both free throws and putting the Bears ahead 60-58 with 10 seconds on the clock.

Then Cascade's Bryce Stevens, who finished the game with 29 points, rose from 22 feet and connected on a three-pointer with two ticks remaining. Leading 62-61, Stevens rebounded the ball with two seconds left.

"That sounds simple enough to do, but there are a lot of times when it's tough," said Couch. "If we make a mistake, they win the game."

When the Bears rebounded it successfully, the Bliss contingent exploded.

"We're going to have a tough time with Kendrick," said Bliss. "But we beat Cascade, the they're the best team we've played all season."

The Ramblers, who outshot and outrebounced the Bears, finished the game with 26 field goals to Bliss' 20 and had 17 fewer opportunities at the foul line.

Bliss' 59 senior who transferred from Gooding to Bliss last year finished the game with 18 points, while Smith had 14 and senior forward Larry Wilkins 13. Hitt finished the game with 18 points for Cascade.

Bliss' Coach Herb Harless, who led the No. 1-ranked Hornets to opponents of the season on Thursday, made up the difference by routing the Huskies, a team that was making its boys' tournament appearance in a state A-1.

Oakley's offensive output came within three points of eclipsing the set at a 42 record for a single game by Kendrick in 1977, and with 177 points in two games the Hornets are currently in the lead for the tournament scoring record of 243 set by Kendrick the same year. And Oakley senior Cory Woodhouse's 30-point performance on Friday brought him to within 63 points of the tournament individual scoring record, set by Ron Knowles — in the boys' basketball coach at Declo High in 1966.

Woodhouse Coach Neal Wyatt was surprised that his team's offensive performance Friday was of near-record proportions.

"We weren't trying to run up the score," in fact we had our bench in for most of the fourth quarter," he said. "I think the kids feel better about themselves now. They were pretty down last night, but I told them they had nothing to be ashamed of."

The Hornets scored the first nine points in the fourth quarter.

"I think running on it last night must have loosened it up, because it wasn't bothering him much today," said Wyatt. "It didn't have time to affect him. We were home at midnight last night and left home at 8 this morning."

The Hornets scored the first nine points of the game and led by 17 points at the end of the first quarter before running into shooting troubles. Marsing outscored Oakley 21-6 in the first 6 1/2 minutes of the second period, pulling to within three points, at 54-51, on a basket by Scott Webb with 1:18 remaining. Oakley scored 10 points in 90 seconds and led by 11 at halftime.

The Huskies never got close, falling behind by 12 at the end of the first quarter. In as much as 25 points in the fourth.

Woodhouse and Oldham were joined in double figures by senior guard Arden Cranney with 18 points and senior forward Wayne Land with 15.

James Dugger — and teammate Tom Jones paced the Huskies with 14 points apiece, while Webb had 12.

Kendrick 63, North Gem 38

Brian Parks, Jack Meyer and Robert Blair combined for 43 points. Kendrick Tigers rolled past the North; Gem Cowboys 63-38 to advance to tonight's final against Bliss.

Parks was high-scoring with 18 points while Meyer had 16 and Blair added 14.

Kendrick rolled to a nine-point first quarter advantage as Parks led the way with nine points. Thirteen of his 18 points came in the first half.

"He's a great first half shot," said Tigers' Coach Brent Monroe of Parks' performance. "Things were more balanced in the second half."

After keeping his nine-point lead in the second quarter, Kendrick outscored North Gem 27-19 in the second half. Blair, who sat on the bench with three fouls for most of the first half, scored all 14 of his points after intermission, nine of them in the third quarter.

In a final quarter, the Tigers held the Cowboys to nine total points and Monroe was impressed with his squad's defense.

"If our defense is good, the offense will take care of the game," said the coach.

Marc Modersitzki had 14 points to lead the Cowboys.

Hoyas, Redmen meet for 3rd time tonight

NEW YORK (AP) — Top-ranked Georgetown advanced to the Big East tournament championship — but not without a fight.

In a double exchange of punches between Georgetown's 7-foot All-American Patrick Ewing and Syracuse's 6-foot-2 Dwayne "Pearl" Washington, enlivened Friday night's contest at Madison Square Garden in the first half.

The Syracuse basketball team put up a better struggle than last Sunday when they were defeated by 27 points by the Hoyas, but became Georgetown's 11th straight victim, 74-63, in the Big East semifinals.

The Hoyas, 32-7, will take an 11-game winning streak into the title game against No. 2 St. John's tonight at Madison Square Garden.

While Ewing dismissed the brief explosion with Washington, the Syracuse coach said, "It was just reaction." Washington claimed that Ewing hit him twice during the incident, although Ewing appeared to miss him once before he fell to the floor and laid there a couple of minutes.

Georgetown Coach John Thompson said, "That might have been the most exciting thing in the game. I didn't see anything, anyway. It just gave me some things to run in the court and get some exercises."

"All I saw was Patrick swing. I didn't see what preceded it," said Syracuse Coach Jim Boehlman. "As for the game, Thompson said, we normally have a spark that we normally have at our games with robots, machines. I think it was very emotional and draining for both teams."

Said Boehlman: "I feel a lot better about the two games here than the last two we have played. The important thing that we wanted to know was that we're a better team than we were in Landover (Md.) last week."

Both teams shot 43 percent from the floor, but Georgetown outbounded Syracuse 27-17.

Ewing laid out the way for Georgetown with 15 points and 12 rebounds.

The Georgetown-Syracuse game was only six minutes old when 6-foot-2 Dwayne "Pearl" Washington, of Syracuse landed a punch to Ewing's face, which resulted in Ewing's rebound under the Georgetown basket. Ewing retaliated, but missed the Syracuse sophomore with a punch.

Ewing laid on the floor for a few minutes and was removed from the court for 15 seconds by Georgetown Coach John Thompson. About three minutes later, Ewing pointed his finger at Washington after the Syracuse guard grabbed him.

Syracuse went ahead 19-15, but the Hoyas took the lead with a 14 surge.

Ewing's contest-busting two baskets and the Hoyas were never headed thereafter.

St. John's 89 Villanova 74

NEW YORK (AP) — Second-ranked St. John's moved into the championship game of the Big East Conference basketball tournament against top-ranked Georgetown by beating Villanova 89-74 in a semifinal game Friday night behind Walter Berry's 22 points.

College basketball

Georgetown, the defending NCAA and Big East tournament champion, defeated Syracuse 74-65 in Friday's other semifinal before a sellout crowd of 19,951 at Madison Square Garden.

That set up the third meeting of the season between St. John's and Georgetown — the Redmen beat Georgetown 66-65, but the Hoyas avenged that with an 85-63 victory in the other regular-season meeting.

St. John's, the top seed in the Big East tournament by virtue of winning the regular season title, raised its record to 27-2, while Villanova fell to 19-10.

Alabama 74

Georgia 53

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Bobby Lee Hurt scored 18 points and Buck Johnson 16 as Alabama took charge early and maphanded 17th-ranked Georgia 74-53 in the semifinals of the Southeastern Conference basketball tournament Friday night.

Hurt had 10 rebounds in the first eight minutes and Terry Coner six as the Crimson Tide, 21-8, built to a 20-10 lead while rolling to their seventh victory in a row.

Georgia's comeback hopes virtually evaporated with less than three minutes remaining in the first half when Alabama scored seven points on a tip down the floor.

Leading 33-22, Coner hit the first of two free throws and Darrell Neal was fouled on the rebound, hitting his pair of free throws to tie the game at 34. Durham was stuck with a technical foul.

Mark Gottfried sank the two free throws on the technical and Johnson scored a layup 20 seconds later to put the Tide in the lead.

Alabama stretched a 46-26 halftime lead to 22 points when Hurt hit a baseline eight-footer one minute into the second half.

Georgia, also 21-8, then began its only run, rolling off 10 points in a row, four by Gerald Crosby, to cut the lead to 46-36 with 13:43 left.

Alabama then had an 8-0 run of its own and eventually built its lead to 24 points.

Fourth-ranked Oklahoma, a 104-64 victor over Missouri in the other semifinal, will meet the Cyclones in the title game Saturday afternoon.

Iowa State, which split its regular season series with Kansas, dominated the favored Jayhawks, who have been slowed by the flu during the past week.

Shooting 64 percent from the field, Iowa State fashioned a 38-30 halftime lead and increased that advantage to as many as 17 points in the second half.

Stevens, who became the Big Eight's No. 2 all-time scorer in a first round victory over Colorado Wednesday night, hit consecutive 20-footers to give his second half to thwart Kansas rally.

The 6-foot-5 senior camed a baseline jumper to make it 42-32; added another short jumper a moment later, then scored eight of his team's next 11 points as the Cyclones turned back victory's daybreak threat.

Iowa State, already assured a school record of victories, is 21-11 overall. Kansas, which finished second to Oklahoma in the regular season with an 11-3 conference mark and is now 23-7 overall, expects to receive a bid to the NCAA journey despite the loss.

Louisiana Tech 72 NE Louisiana 70

RUSTON, La. (AP) — Adam Frank sank a pair of foul shots with two seconds left in overtime Friday night to lift No. 8 Louisiana Tech to a 72-70 comeback over Northeast Louisiana in the semifinals of the Southland Conference basketball tournament.

The victory set up a Saturday night championship match between Louisiana Tech and Lamar, which also had to go into overtime to beat Monroe State, 85-83, in Friday night's other semifinal game.

Jerry Everett, the game's high scorer with 28 points, canned three field goals to start an 18-point overtime that keyed Lamar's triumph.

It was nearly pandemonium in the Northeast Tech finale. A total of 63 fouls were called — 33 against NLU and four players from each team fouled out.

Celts inhospitable once more

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, who make visitors as welcome as a snowstorm in July, had lost two of their last three home games. They weren't about to let it happen again.

The Celtics unleashed a 40-point first-quarter avalanche on the Dallas Mavericks, led by at least 10 points in the entire second half and rolled to a 133-122 National Basketball Association victory Friday night.

"It's a difficult situation when teams come in and beat you on your home court," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. "We had stopped working."

Just before this players should go out and play basketball right from the start. We didn't do that in those two home games."

Boston, which boosted its home record to an NBA best 27-4, had lost here in the last eight days to Atlanta and Chicago, who both have losing records.

"That was a better effort on our part," said Kevin McHale, who had 28 points for Boston Friday night. "When we run like that, it's hard to beat us."

In the first half, Dallas made 53.6 percent of its shots and had just six turnovers but trailed by 12 points at intermission.

The 76ers then outscored the Sonics 11-7 during the first three minutes of the second quarter to take a 15-point lead, 41-26, and went on to increase their advantage to 71-53 at halftime.

Conley debuts in style at NCAA Indoor meet

By BERT ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Arkansas' Mike Conley successfully began his quest for an unprecedented second consecutive double in the men's long jump and triple jump Friday night in the NCAA Indoor Track and Field Championships, boosting the Razorbacks' hopes for their second straight team title.

Conley, jumping in his silver spikes to remind people of his second-place finish in the triple jump at the 1983 Arkansas Olympics, was the reigning quadruple for Saturday's final in that event with a leap of 54 feet, 11 inches on his only attempt. In the long jump, the 22-year-old senior from Little Rock had the second-best performance, setting 25-9/16.

Qualifying marks do not count for the final. Conley, winner of a total of five NCAA titles — including the indoor triple jump in 1983 and 1984, the indoor long jump last year, and both jumps outdoors last year — joined

Hall of Famer Bob Beamon, formerly of Texas-El Paso, as the only competitors to capture both events indoors in the same year. Prior to this meet, Conley had been considered likely both men's jump would be held on the track rather than on the boards, which he prefers indoors. However, in a late decision, meet officials switched the triple jump to the boards, while moving the women's triple jump to the indoor runway. Last year, Conley's 20 points — one for each victory — helped Arkansas win the team title for the first time in the meet's 22-year history.

Earlier, meet records were broken by Paul Donovan of Arkansas, Kevin King of Georgetown and Shelly Stealy of Florida. Thacker, who injured the back of his left knee during practice Tuesday, was the defending champion in the long jump, having upset meet officials switched the triple jump to the boards, while moving the women's triple jump to the indoor runway. Last year, Conley's 20 points — one for each victory — helped Arkansas win the team title for the first time in the meet's 22-year history.

pointed Thacker, an ice pack cover-jump because it hurts. "I am disappointed — not just because I can't compete against Carol, but because I just wanted to compete. While Thacker was unable to jump during the qualifying for Saturday's final, Lewis had the best performance, soaring 21 feet, 9 inches. Lewis had vowed last year and again less than three weeks ago that he would not compete in this meet because NCAA officials made her change her socks without displaying a commercial emblem during the 1984 meet. "We're going for the team title — that's the reason I'm here," she explained. Still, she was not satisfied with the only jump that she needed to make. "It was pretty bad — actually terrible," said Lewis, who set the American record of 22.3 this year. "I was kind of sluggish." Donovan, one of the standouts on the Arkansas team that is favored to win the men's title for the second consecutive year, flashed nearly six seconds off the meet record in winning his heat in the men's 1,500-meter race. Donovan was timed in 3 minutes, 48.7 seconds, as all eight qualifiers for Saturday's final went under the previous mark of 3:52.83 set by Bob Verbeck of Iowa State last year, the first time the event was held in this meet. The other heat winner was Jim McKoon of Richmond in 3:47.46.

Mandlikova surprises Navratilova

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Top-seeded Martina Navratilova was defeated 7-6, 6-0 by fourth-seeded Hana Mandlikova in the semifinals of the $150,000 U.S. Arthur Ashe indoor tennis championships Friday night.

Tennis

Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia will play sixth-seeded Catarina Lindqvist of Sweden in the final match on Saturday. Navratilova, of Fort Worth, Texas, suffered only her second loss this year and her fourth since 1983. "I just couldn't believe I lost the first set after having so many chances," said Navratilova. "Of the six games she won to get to the tiebreaker, five went to deuce and four I had game points in. And my opponent just kept coming back, and I certainly have some soul-searching to do because that's not me." In Tokyo, playing without John McEnroe, the world's top-ranked player, the United States took an easy 2-0 lead over Japan Friday in the opening round of their World Group Davis Cup tennis match.

As good a putting record as I've had in a long time," Azinger said. "I'm completing the best round of the tournament. I'm not looking for a miracle, but I'm looking for a hole-in-one." TOKYO (AP) — Natalia Bestemanova and Andrii Bukin, Olympic silver medalists, won a gold medal in ice dancing Friday at the World Figure Skating Championships, while Americans Judy Blumberg and Michael Seibert captured the bronze. The silver went to the Soviet pair of Marina Klimova and Sergei Ponomarenko, who were bronze medalists at the 1984 Winter Games. Meanwhile, women will skate for the singles title Saturday with Soviet Klara Ivanova in first place, followed by Tiffany Chin, 17, of Toluca Lake, Calif., and East German Katarina Witt, 19, the Olympic gold medalist and defending world champion. Debi Thomas, 19, of San Jose, Calif., was fifth entering the final event. Ivanova is the 1984 Olympic bronze medalist, but both Chin and Witt are known to be superior freestyle skaters and could overtake her for the top spot. Chin did not compete at last year's World Championships in Ottawa because of a foot injury. She finished fourth at the Sarajevo Olympics.
