Senate committee votes to free MX money

By MIKE SHANAHAN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON—A mid-October panel of the House of Representatives has approved a bill that would free $1.14 billion of money that President Ronald Reagan has set aside to buy MX missiles. The bill would allow the money to be used for other purposes, such as to pay for the development of a new missile system.

Despite the defeat for MX foes in the committee, they pressed a fight on the Senate floor Tuesday and again Thursday. The Senate vote is expected to be a close one. The House vote was 214-194. The bill would allow the money to be used for other purposes, such as to pay for the development of a new missile system.

Senators favoring the MX with 43 opposed and 43 still undecided. The Senate gives its approval, another dual vote is scheduled in the Democratic-controlled House next week. In the Senate committee vote, six Democrats voted against the MX: Hart, James Exon of Nebraska, Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts, John Glenn of Ohio, Jeff Bingaman of New Mexico and Carl Levin of Michigan.

As the Senate vote neared, Vice President George Bush intensified the rhetoric surrounding the long-range, 10-warhead missile, which opponents say would be destroyed in the event of a Soviet nuclear attack. Bush said the MX is a "strategic weapon" and that successful arms talks may be in the offing.

No limit on voice of money

WASHINGTON—Money is free to be used to influence voters in the upcoming election, according to a ruling by the Supreme Court. The Court ruled that the First Amendment protects the right to spend money to influence voters.

Analysis: PAC

That's the gist of the decision the Supreme Court handed down Monday. It ruled 5-4 that the First Amendment protects the right to spend money to influence voters. The ruling is a victory for the National Rifle Association and other groups that oppose the Public Citizen Litigation Group's attempt to limit the amount of money that can be spent on political campaigns.

Protesting farmers prevent foreclosure sale in Minnesota

By PAULA FROCK

GLENWOOD, Minn.—More than 60 farmers stormed the steps of the Pope County courthouse Monday, forcing the sheriff to halt the sale of a farm owned by a farmers' rights activist and his wife. Meanwhile, in Kansas about 600 demonstrators gathered at the state capital in Topeka to protest a Reagan administration farm policy.

with undermining the legal system. It was the sheriff's decision to postpone the auction based on what was happening out there," said Rosemary Keogh, a spokesman for the Travelers Insurance Co. in Hartford, Conn. "I went along with it because we want to avoid any violence, anybody getting hurt. As of now, our real estate people will have to discuss the situation with the sheriff and pick another time to hold it," Ms. Keogh said. Ms. Keogh said representatives from the company's real estate division were in a session on Monday and could not immediately be reached for comment. Two days later, Keogh said she took out the mortgage on their "dairy farm" in Starbuck, which was destroyed by fire in 1979. He declined to say how much money was involved. His wife said interest on the loan is double that of an ordinary loan with the same terms. He said he is angry with the people and for the people. He said he is a member of the Minnesota Farmers' Union.

Jail vote is today; merits participation

For the past few weeks, the Times-News and other local media have carried numerous articles, commentary and editorial opinion about a proposed, new $6.2 million jail bond issue for Twin Falls County.

Today is decision day for the project, which as a bond issue requires a two-thirds majority to pass. Polls in the usual county precincts are open from noon to 8 p.m.

There are many perspectives on the jail proposal and they have been extensively discussed in recent days.

Community awareness of the issue probably has increased. That is how it should be ahead of an important community decision like this one.

Information is knowledge and important decisions involving the community's future and economic commitments should be made with the greatest amount of knowledge possible.

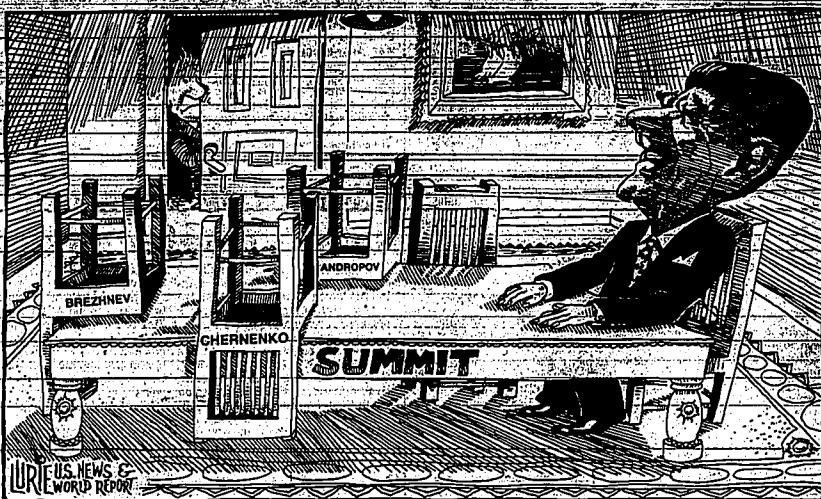

Now, the decision is before the voters. In many elections, a simple majority is required to pass. But in bond elections, two-thirds of those voting must say "yes."

That, in our view, is a high hurdle for a bond proposal to overcome, but not an impossible one. When the people's money is at stake, we think there should be a high commitment shown.

Regardless of how you feel about the bond issue, cast your vote today. A large turnout, we think, would give a decisiveness to the issue on which future planning can be based. A small turnout leaves an issue in doubt as to whether it does or does not reflect the intent of the people.

Hodel tries middle route on oil leasing

WASHINGTON — One day this week (Thursday, March 21) Don Hodel will step before a cluster of microphones at the Department of the Interior. He will announce the department's program of offshore oil and gas leases for the next five years. Then he will duck.

Hodel is a slim, trim, good-looking fellow, not quite yet 50 years old, with an altogether disarming way about him. He will need all the disarmament he can muster as he takes over at Interior. He is the 43rd secretary since the department was created in 1849, the third secretary of the Reagan administration. He comes to Interior from three years as secretary of energy. Amazingly, Hodel has no hesitation about answering questions with "I don't know."

His great sprawling department provides abundant areas for not knowing. Hodel is expected to master everything from grazing rights to Indian rights; questions of a peace conference may range over surface mining, reclamation, water distribution, fish and wildlife, maintenance of national parks, and administration of our trust territory in the Pacific Islands. Last week a reporter inquired about the beautiful Shiner. The beautiful shiner, you should know — Hodel knew — is a colorful fish that used to be found in Africa and New Mexico. So few remain that the beautiful shiner has been placed on the list of endangered species.

The Endangered Species Act of 1974 comes up for renewal this year. Hodel is hopeful that no bloodletting battle will develop in Congress on this issue, but at the moment his attention is concentrated on leases of gas and oil. People can get mildly riled up about preservation of the Peridito

James Kilpatrick

Key beach mouse, but they can get VERY RILED UP about offshore petroleum. Ever the optimist, Hodel is hoping that his modest program for 1986-91 will set off no fireworks. One of his predecessors, Cecil Andrus (1977-81), developed a policy of leasing sites in separate tracts of only nine square miles. This policy made the oil industry unhappy. Another predecessor, James Watt (1981-83), had a vastly different policy; he grandly offered leases that could be area-wide, and this policy made the environmentalists unhappy. Hodel is attempting to carve things down the middle. He is proposing six or seven sales a year over the next five years. Bids will be sought on tracts that may constitute as much as 10 percent to 20 percent of a given area. He has met with representatives of both the oil industry and the environmental groups and he has briefed key members of Congress. He has sensed no great hostility in any quarter; but who knows? By next week he may be enjoined.

A part of Hodel's hopefulness lies in the good records that have been set in recent years. The lease program began in 1954. Over the next 30 years the department leased 37 million acres of undersea sites on the outer continental shelf.

These days about 300 rigs actually are producing oil and gas from 6.3 million acres that have proved productive.

The program has proved a bonanza for the treasury. Oil companies paid the government more than $88 billion between 1954 and 1983. Production of 6.4 billion barrels of oil has lessened the nation's dependence upon foreign sources. Because about one-fifth of the leases are to wildcaters exploring new frontiers, the discovery of new deposits is actively encouraged.

Hodel makes one more point that he hopes will impress the wary environmentalists: In 1984 only 672 barrels of oil were spilled in connection with exploration and production. "You could have measured it in buckets," he says. The 1984 spills were 394 barrels less than spills in the very good year of 1983. His point is that elaborate safeguards are working.

It is time for a return to normalcy at Interior. After the deafening uproars under Jim Watt came the deafening silence under Bill Clarke. Various resignations have left gaping holes in the top echelons. Hodel needs new assistant secretaries for administration, Indian affairs, fish and wildlife, and lands and minerals. He needs a new director for the Park Service. He hopes to get the slots filled soon, but he knows it won't be easy. Meanwhile plans for next year's sales must be firm. Up and with at least $800,000 to pay for rights to nine square miles will be welcome. If all goes well, the government will make a bundle.

Those who tame wild men, like wild horses, can be thrown

"Why do women love the Nazi in men?" Cathy asked. "Awfully back I dated a guy who would say the roughest things to women in bars — women he didn't know — and they'd just hang all over him. I once heard him ask a woman, a stranger, 'Where's your neck?' I don't like women without necks, they're ugly. She couldn't leave him alone. He ended up taking her to bed."

Charming. I don't know why some women love the fascist in men. I know some do. And like most men, I have heard the male rationale for acting barbaric toward women. I first heard it at college.

After moaning for months about being dateless, I recall the advice, sagely given, by one of an elite group of young men who could speak of sex with seeming authority, one of the Big Boys. He counseled, weighing each word grimly, "Nice Guys finish last." In the naive mind of a shy, clumsy youth, that he was able to speak of sex meant that he understood women. He was one of the most active members of the Big Boys' club, according to campus rumor.

And he wasn't nice. And he scored often, and probably kept scores. And I just wanted a girlfriend. To go to the movies with, to share a tub of popcorn with, to call and talk to, to dangle my prepositions with. I didn't even think of what he meant by "finishing last" in this context — I didn't finish at all.

A few years ago my college buddy, Frank

(old me) about Ginger. He had been attracted to her for quite some time, but she was already living with a man: A scum, as he told it. This sleazeball was always out of work but never looked for any, still money from Ginger's purse to buy booze, slipped her around a few times, and shot her pet Persian cat through the eye in her living room because he was "tired of it rubbing up against his legs." Ginger finally kicked him out after she came home early from work one afternoon and found him in her bed with another woman.

That was Frank's chance to let Ginger know how he felt; he called and asked her out. Frank whined and dined her for nearly two months, buying her roses and taking her to the better restaurants — courting her, slowly, gently, even gentlemanly. He wanted to show consideration for the trauma she had experienced. He wanted to prove to her that not all men are rotters.

One night Frank drove out to her house to see her, a surprise visit, with a bouquet of flowers on the seat next to him. Old sleazebag's car was in the driveway. Frank made a U-turn and drove back home.

When he called Ginger the next morning, she admitted that the man had moved in again. Frank popped the obvious questions, "Why? Haven't I treated you right?" Ginger replied, "Frank, you're too nice. When a man is like nice, it makes you want to kick him in the face."

The shooting a dog in the eye for wagging its tail in greeting.

It's too easy to say that Ginger and her brutal friend deserved each other. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say, they supported each other's habit. Picked the scabs off each other's wounds, to keep them open, to relieve some deep hurt. They have formed a symbiotic relationship in which both apparently gain something to feed their dark needs.

Yet not all the attraction of brutish men arises from neurotic needs or childhood scars. There are those women who find such men a challenge, briefly. They are the reformers. There are a lot of them: Some think of their time with these men as "experience." Others make it a hobby to tame wild horses. They get thrown, occasionally.

And there is a corollary to the Big Boys' dictum. I have heard women say, "Every woman likes a man with a touch of the pirate in him." A little risk, and a little dash, dagger, and swagger. It's the excitement. The edge. But the emphasis is on "a touch of." Not too much piracy — only enough to satiate the equatorial line between a brute heart and a marshmallow spine. We sometimes call it "macho."

And these days we're seeing it reformed right out of the young men around us.

Utility official tells position / Difference between Idaho Power, cogenerators' plants explained

Utility official tells position

Helen Chenoweth is mistaken if she sincerely believes Idaho Power's concern about cogeneration has anything to do with the virtues of free market enterprise.

Idaho Power's concern is — as should be every ratepayer's concern — the utility is being required to offer a price for cogeneration that encourages development of more power plants long before they are needed. Perhaps 15 to 20 years before they are needed. The only possible result can be electric rates considerably higher than necessary during that period.

Idaho Power has cancelled or delayed plans to build any new power plants because of the declining rate of load growth in its service area and the growing energy surpluses throughout the Northwest.

Only Valmy II, the second coal-fired generating unit Idaho Power owns jointly with Sierra Pacific Power Company in Nevada, is scheduled to be completed before the late 1990s. With Idaho Electric Utility Administrator approval, construction of Valmy II began more than six years ago. Completion was delayed one year until 1985 because of declining load growth.

Ms. Chenoweth compared the costs of generating electricity at several Idaho Power generating plants with the price Idaho Power is required to pay cogenerators. The comparison is misleading because the costs of operating Idaho Power's plants vary according to how they are used.

During good hydroelectric years, the company can reduce or eliminate energy production as the Boardman coal-fired plant. Fixed costs spread over fewer kilowatt-hour on paper. But ratepayer benefit — they don't pay more when Idaho Power is able to curtail production at those plants.

During the last three years when hydroelectric conditions have been nearly ideal, the company has saved millions of dollars in fuel costs. As a result, it has been able to defer rate increases. Unfortunately, the company cannot curtail energy production at cogeneration plants.

Another important difference to ratepayers between plants owned and operated by Idaho Power and those by cogenerators: Plants built by Idaho Power cost the ratepayer less with every passing year because of depreciation. As the plants grow older, their cost to ratepayers is reduced. If the company were to build new power plants or transmission lines or other facilities, electric rates actually would begin dropping. Conversely the cost of electricity from a cogeneration or small power project will increase rates over the years because of existing contract rates set by the Idaho P.U.C. Even if Idaho Power's own plants were to cost more than cogeneration, that hardly is an argument for encouraging cogenerators to build more power plants now — before they are needed.

Cancelled power plants and moderate energy surpluses should be good news for consumers. Consumers are the ones who ultimately pay for energy production — whether by Idaho Power or cogenerators. But as long as the price Idaho Power is required to pay cogenerators is high enough to encourage the development of power plants before they are needed, the benefits of the surplus will be lost in more rate increases.

Reagan ends friendly talks with Mulroney

Reagan, Mulroney exchange copies of agreements

By MICHAEL CLIZZO
The Associated Press

QUEBEC — President Reagan wrapped up a friendly summit meeting in Canada on Monday and set for home to review the administration's full-court press for money to continue production of the MX missile.

During 90 minutes of talks, Reagan reportedly told Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney he believes the U.S.-Soviet summit "would be useful" now that Mikhail Gorbachev has become leader of the Soviet Union.

A U.S. official, briefing reporters on the Quebec talks only in condition he was identified, said Reagan "told" Mr. Gorbachev is ready, they could have a real, substantive meeting at this point."

But in a lengthy briefing reporters on the Quebec talks only in condition he was identified, said Reagan "told" Mr. Gorbachev is ready, they could have a real, substantive meeting at this point."

Mr. Prime Minister, I'm confident there isn't an area where you and I cannot reach an agreement for the good of our two countries.

Ronald Reagan

agreement to respect human rights.

"Let us always remain idealists but never blind to history," Reagan said, offering to talk with the Soviet on a variety of issues, from arms control to human rights to U.S.-Soviet bilateral issues.

"At the conclusion of their 24-hour 'Shanwick Summit,'" Reagan and Mulroney signed agreements to modernize the North American air defense system and work toward further relaxation of trade barriers between the two trading partners and neighbors.

They also ratified a new treaty to end years of controversy between the two nations' Pacific salmon fishing industries and signed a treaty for mutual law enforcement assistance.

The signing ceremony took place in an vaulted chamber behind the thick stone walls of the Citadel, a fort built in the 1600s to defend against an expected American attack.

Reagan said the salmon treaty "symbolizes how we are able, with a combination of hard work and high-level attention, to turn an irritant in our relations into a form of cooperation."

Afterward, Reagan and Mulroney donned overcoats and posed for photographers outside the fortress's terrace, in front of a battery of canon overlooking the ice-clogged St. Lawrence River.

Reagan later flew back to Washington, where he made no comments to reporters upon returning to the White House.

In a speech to federal and provincial leaders, Reagan told Canada's new Conservative leader, "Mr. Prime Minister, I'm confident there isn't an area where you and I cannot reach an agreement for the good of our two countries."

Mulroney lauded Reagan, saying the summit "marks a new level of relations between Canada and the United States."

At the outset of their two days of talks, Reagan and Mulroney debated the one explosive issue dividing the two governments: by applying special enforcement to study the problem of acid rain pollution and report back to them within a year.

The Canadian Coalition on Acid Rain, an umbrella group of business, tourism and conservation groups, dismissed the move as "a face-saving gesture for the president, who remains committed to the use of the North American environment as a garbage dump."

President spokesman Larry Speakes said that on his way home, Reagan would turn his attention to the Senate's "make-or-break vote" today on the future of the MX intercontinental missile.

Dole: GOP has 'differences' on budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole said Monday there are "differences" still to be worked out within Republican ranks on a GOP draft budget for 1986, while Democrats stepped up their attack on proposed "deep cuts" in domestic programs.

"We're in the process of seeing where we are" on the $96.4 billion spending plan approved by the GOP-controlled Senate Budget Committee last week, Dole's R-Kan. said, "I told reporters. He said the Republicans hope to "work out differences among ourselves and see if we can find Democratic support" afterwards.

Dole also said that President Reagan wants to talk about the budget on Tuesday, when he meets with the 53-member Senate Republican caucus to press his case for the MX missile. The White House has expressed "disappointment" with portions of the Budget Committee plan because it cuts the president's defense buildup and spends more on domestic programs than Reagan proposed.

The committee plan calls for no new tax increases, as Reagan wishes, but provides a freeze on Social Security benefits next year, a provision not in his budget.

Dole met with the Senate GOP leadership and budget director David Stockman, and called another session later in the day with an expanded group of senior GOP senators to give Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., chairman of the Budget Committee, an opportunity to provide details of what the panel decided last week.

The budget is not expected to hit the Senate floor before next week at the earliest.

The Republicans began a new round of budget deliberations as Sen. Lawton Chiles of Florida, the Senate Democrat on the Budget Committee, complained about proposals to raise Medicare patient costs by $3 billion; reduce spending on veterans' benefits $2.2 billion; below what the White House asked; and remove 143,000 children from a federal feeding program.

"If the public and the Senate look into the mix of spending cuts in the budget, and they will look hard for balance, And they will not find it," he said.

The Republicans, meanwhile, released fuller details of the plan that was approved last week, with revised spending and deficit totals, but they still have not provided a full accounting of precise spending cuts in many domestic programs.

Under the revisions, the deficit is estimated at $70.6 billion in the 1986 fiscal year — slightly lower than originally estimated — and is forecast to decline to $102.3 billion in 1988, slightly higher than the original estimate.

Pockets of propane worry investigators at Alta hotel

ALTA, Utah (AP) — Pockets of potentially explosive propane had investigators worried Monday as they sifted through the rubble of Goldminer's Daughter Lodge to learn what triggered a fatal explosion Friday, authorities said.

The blast killed two people and seriously injured five others, including a Wisconsin man who spent eight hours with her hand pinned under a huge concrete slab.

Salt Lake County Sheriff's Detective D. Ben Forbes said Monday about a dozen men were probing the cause of the explosion and searching for belongings buried when a wing of the lodge exploded shortly before 2 p.m. Friday.

"I know we've still got a couple of problems up there that our people are concerned with," Forbes said. "We think we have some pockets of propane."

Deputies, who continued to cordon off the area Monday, were concerned that the propane might be in the basement or in underground pockets near the lodge, Forbes said.

Authorities have released no conclusions about the cause of the blast.

The blast had been blamed on a propane leak. Investigators now say the gas fueled the fire, but will not speculate on whether it caused the explosion.

Transplant patient continues recovery

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Doctors Monday upgraded the condition of 16-year-old Tony Shepard, Utah's first heart transplant patient, from critical to serious condition, a University of Utah Health Sciences Center spokesman said.

"We had been most out of the heart surgical intensive care unit and into a regular room," said John Dwan, Dwan said Shepard's recovery from the March 8 transplant, during which his disease-ridden heart was replaced, continued to go well.

The Caldwell, Idaho, youth was suffering from cardiomyopathy, a degenerative disease of the heart muscle, prior to the transplant.

Rapist sentenced

SEATTLE (AP) — A judge Monday sentenced a twice-convicted rapist Kevin Coe to 55-years plus life, a lesser penalty than he received for his original convictions in the Spokane "South Hill rapist" case.

The sentence, handed down by King County Superior Court Judge Patricia Alken, will be served consecutively.

Coe, 38, who was convicted on three of the four rape charges at his retrial in Seattle earlier this year, received sentences of 25 years, 30 years and life.

Bluebird Restaurant popular with insomniacs, night owls

CLAIRTON, Pa. (AP) — The Bluebird Restaurant hasn't seen the light of day since World War II. It's cozy, friendly place with a comfortable, calm atmosphere. The night, gamblers court their money, and regulars savor the sweet taste of permanence.

"I've always run this restaurant, and I've never had a bad day," says Bob Sander, 62, a Clairton native who has lived all over the country. "I've been coming here since I was a kid. In 40 years, all they've changed is the tablecloth."

The restaurant's unusual hours — open 24 hours a day, Tuesday through Saturday — haven't changed in more than 40 years.

"The night was always good to us," said owner George Romano, 60, "but when we got a little reputation, people will come from all over. It depended on Clairton, we wouldn't be here," Romano said.

There are people out all night long, said his wife Laura, 60. "People who work in hospitals, they have room classes here. The young people like this place because it's not plastic."

The older people who grew up with the Bluebird's love to come and reminisce, Romano said.

"There's nothing fancy or gimmicky about the Bluebird. The decor is plain, the food plentiful."

A 50-year-old neon sign, showing a bird outlined in blue, is the word "restaurant" spelled out in light flashes its message in the cold night air.

In those days, Mrs. Romano said, the diner was open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. "The way all the restaurants were back then."

Food shortages during World War II forced the Bluebird to cut back its hours. But rather than curtailing the night trade, the restaurant was dropped because Annie Romano's husband, George, always made more money at night.

Stars shine in Beverly Hills' first St. Patrick's Day parade

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — CBS-TV, and actress Jennifer O'Neill took on the Francis Klein Jewellers float. The parade featured a 200-an-ounce perfume Sunday as this parade's city-held its first St. Patrick's Day parade.

The spectacle included 12 bands, 11 floats and an "Ireland-American beauty queen," plus celebrities Red Buttons, Merv Griffin, Charles Hall, Zsa Zsa Gabor, Meredith Macrae, Dick Van Patten, Mary Ann Mobley, Gary Coleman and Artie Johnson.

The cast of the "Young and the Restless" rode a float sponsored by green-dyed bagels and sipping champagne.

"I think this is really hot," said actress Jillane Sander. "I think it's great that California has spirit like New York does now."

"I thought it was a wonderful idea," said her friend Elizabeth Paterson, a legal secretary. "I didn't have anything green to wear, so I bought green bagels."

Streets lined with elegant stores were closed to traffic along the parade route that wound up Wilshire Boulevard, on Dayton to Rodeo Drive, and up to Little Santa Monica Boulevard where it ended a few blocks east of the community's stately, tree-shaded City Hall.

Local restaurants, which are usually closed or serve fancy champagne brunches on Sunday, also got into the Irish spirit.

"We served corned beef sandwiches, corned beef and cabbage, stuffed cabbage with corned beef, and the usual bar selections including the corned beef," said Mary Zwick, owner of the Hamilton Racket Club bar and restaurant on Little Santa Monica.

Haydon's breathing difficult

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Arthical heart recipient Murray Haydon was moved back to the coronary care unit Monday after complaining of shortness of breath, spokesman said.

His condition remained serious and the 58-year-old Louisville man was not in a life-threatening situation, said Humana Inc. spokesman Bob Irvine.

Haydon's vital signs remained normal, he said.

Surgeon William DeVries said the shortness of breath was due to the multiple blood transfusions Haydon received prior to an operation to correct bleeding in his chest, according to Irvine.

The breathing difficulty apparently stems from an increased number of blood platelets passing through the lungs during the transfusions, Irvine said.

"They're (the lungs) just not able to work as efficiently as they would under normal circumstances," Irvine said.

Haydon was placed on a respirator and is expected to remain in the coronary care unit several days, Irvine said.

However, Irvine said no medication is required and that the problem should eventually clear up. There were no signs of pneumonia, Irvine said.

Haydon moved out of the coronary care unit a week ago to a room next to fellow artificial heart recipient William J. Schroeder.

Cable TV shows to vie for Emmy

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Academy of Television Arts & Sciences has voted to make cable television shows eligible for Emmy awards beginning in 1987, but only under stringent conditions.

To participate, cable television would have to abolish its ACE awards. And to qualify, cable shows would have to be broadcast on a system that reaches 51 percent of the nation's homes with television — a loyal pool approached by any cable system.

The ATAS vote took place last week, one day after the establishment of a National Academy of Cable Programming that would take over the ACE awards and try to make them comparable to those of the Academy.

The ACE awards are presented in December in a show telecast on cable only.

ATAS executive director James Loper said Monday the timing of the vote was coincidental. The proposal to add cable to the Emmy awards program had been under study for four years.

Man wounds one robber

FRACAS, N.Y. (AP) — Police say they have caught a college student who shot and seriously wounded one of two men who tried to rob him in this college town.

Police Officer Marvin Eastman said the shooting occurred early Sunday as the unidentified student was walking to his home.

"From my understanding, he cut through an alleyway and two people jumped at him" and the student fired a handgun, injuring one of the men, Eastman said.

Listed in a hospital in serious condition at Tompkins County Hospital on Sunday night was 19-year-old Darryl A. Small of Ithaca. Small sustained a single gunshot wound to the stomach, he said.

Neilson Evans, 18, also of Ithaca, was charged with attempted robbery, Eastman said.

Priest's lottery win to pay parish debt

NEW YORK (AP) — It isn't a miracle to compare with turning water into wine, but the Rev. Joseph J. Faraone turned a $5 lottery card into a $1.17 million jackpot — providing some heaven-sent relief for his debt-ridden parish.

For the whole parish, it's like Christmas all over again, said the 37-year-old Roman Catholic priest, at a news conference Monday as he claimed his winnings in New York's Lotto game.

Aid for the parishioners of St. Patrick's Catholic Church in suburban Yorktown Heights, Faraone is a Clerical Santa Claus who has promised to give half of his winnings — about $500,000 a year over the next 20 years — to help retire the debt on their new $3 million church.

That was his aim from the beginning, Faraone said. He first played Lotto two years ago, when the parish was struggling to finance its new church.

"I realized what a terrible burden and hardship it had become —

Father Joseph Faraone will give most his win away thought, wouldn't it be nice if I could arrange for the state to help pay for the church?" Faraone said.

So twice a week, he purchased a Lotto card from the nearby Forget-Me-Not stationery store. The numbers were always the same selected with the aid of a $1 plastic box in which six beads roll at random into 40 holes.

No holy water was sprinkled on the box, he said, "but during the drawing, I'd like to say (the number selection) had to do with the seven sacraments, but it didn't," Faraone said.

At 6:30 a.m. on March 14, Faraone saw a "telegenese" message containing the previous night's winning numbers — 6, 2, 9, 22, 33 and 43. They sounded good, but he had no time to check them, and went to 7 a.m. Mass.

After the service, he called again, and the numbers were right. "Can you repeat those numbers again?" he asked the recording.

"A third call convinced him that he was a millionaire.

"I was stunned, amazed, humbled by the whole thing," he said.

Two other winning tickets were sold for that drawing, which promised a $3.5 million grand prize.

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy said Monday there are "no current plans" for his 23-year-old son — who lost a leg to cancer at age 12 — to run for Congress in the district represented by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr.

My son, Eddy, has been very active in the disability movement. He wants to donate all his energies to that cause, the Massachusetts Democrat said.

The Boston Globe reported last week that Edward Kennedy Jr. was planning to move to the state of Connecticut to practice law with his father's Virginia home.

The Globe said members of the family's inner circle have notified Massachusetts politicians and other candidates for the seat about the young Kennedy's plans to run.

Remains of servicemen to be returned

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Vietnamese government has agreed to return the remains of five American servicemen later this week in Hanoi, the Defense Department announced Monday.

After the transfer Wednesday, the remains will be flown to the Army's Central Identification Laboratory in Honolulu for positive identification, the brief announcement said.

"We are making the necessary arrangements to receive these remains in Hanoi," it said. "The remains will be flown to the Central Identification Laboratory for identification and subsequent return to the next of kin."

The announcement had been announced earlier. Vietnamese officials informed a visiting American delegation last month that they were prepared to return the remains of five individuals thought to be U.S. soldiers declared missing in action during the Vietnam War.

According to the Pentagon, 2,485 American soldiers currently listed as missing in action in Southeast Asia. Of that total, 2,411 are servicemen and 42 are civilians. Hanoi maintains it is not holding any American prisoners.

Residents urge action against pornography

BY ANNETTE GARY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — Close to 100 people jammed city hall Monday night, most of them to urge the council to take action against pornography.

While the council made no decision, many of the people there did sign up by the end of the evening for a citizens group organized on the spot to fight pornography.

That is how the matter should be handled, said councilman, Glenn Klein, of the committee that has been successful in eliminating pornography from the city through community education of libraries, schools, and other public places.

Most of those who spoke to the council gave emotional pleas for city help in combating pornography. They cited the evils of pornography and linked it to the kidnapping of children, for sexual exploitation, child molestation, brutalization of women, topless bars, peep shows, prostitution, deviant sexual behavior, abortion clinics, and the influx of

Council to vote for grant to build senior center

BY ANNETTE GARY
Times-News Writer

TWIN FALLS — The city council will vote Monday night on whether to accept a $2.7 million grant from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development to build a new senior center.

The grant would be used to purchase a 10,000-sq-ft building and renovate it for use as a senior center. The city would be responsible for the remaining $1.5 million to purchase the building and renovate it.

The grant would also cover the cost of a new building, which would be built on the site of the old city hall. The city would be responsible for the remaining $1.5 million to purchase the building and renovate it.

found, the city could be sued for lots of money," he said.

In Garden City, a state case against a book store under a moral suasion abatement act cost "tens of thousands of dollars" and the store is still operating today, he said.

The city did try to prosecute Agnes Farm, manager of Front Page Book Store, on a misdemeanor charge of distributing obscene material in August. Charges were later dropped.

If a misdemeanor conviction on the charge was obtained, it would most likely result in a fine, not time in jail, Bengoechea said.

Three sentences in two years on the charge would be a felony. But even if the city can beat appeals for all three convictions, it does not necessarily mean that a book store where obscene material is purchased can be closed down, he said.

Although some people attending the meeting said the sale of the city was free of hard core pornography because of aggressive efforts on the part of the city, Bengoechea said a discussion of pornography on Page B2

Spill hosed down

TWIN FALLS — A minor chemical spill at the east entrance of Twin Falls was washed away with no serious results Monday afternoon.

The Twin Falls Fire Department, assisted by personnel from the Environmental Protection Agency, Idaho Department of Health and Idaho Department of Transportation, completed the clean-up shortly after 3:45 p.m. when the material was discovered. The spill involved only about a gallon of hydrochloric acid that drained from a truck at Kimberly Road and Campbell.

Campbell of the fire department said his department and officials of other agencies determined that material was hydrochloric acid shortly after arriving at the scene. Since it is water soluble, fire hoses were used to dilute and wash it away. The material was about 35 percent strength but still potent enough to be an irritant to skin and breathing, Campbell said.

He said the acid spilled from a truck owned by Water Tech Co., of Twin Falls. The truck was en route to the southeast of Twin Falls where hydrochloric acid is used to clean out tanks. Campbell said only a small amount was left in the truck's tank and apparently the plug was loosened at the intersection, allowing the remaining liquid to splash out.

Firefighters Capt. Floyd Gambrel, right, and Ron Clark water down hydrochloric acid spilled on Kimberly Road.

Blaine hospitals air woes

HAILEY (AP) — With rising costs, reduced patient loads and declining federal reimbursement threatening the financial stability of both Blaine County hospitals, local officials have urged administrators of the two facilities to cooperate on possible consolidation of some services.

"Now that you're both headed toward bankruptcy court, perhaps you can be nicer to each other," said Blaine County Prosecutor Keith Rodley.

The county Board of Commissioners has been asked to call out the Blaine County Medical Center, which Administrator Tim Gilmore said has already lost $2,000 this year, and Moritz Community Hospital. Board Chairman Hughes Brown said that facility is in precarious financial straits although without the competition from the center it could make money.

Gilmore said the center has made overtures to Moritz concerning consolidation of some services such as management but to no avail.

Said Brown, "This community can no longer afford the luxury of two hospitals." Containing Moritz's larger physical plant can offer significantly more services to the community.

In explaining the center's financial problems, Gilmore cited the termination of the county's subsidy, a reduction in the number of patients and the length of their stays, federal Medicare and Medicaid reimbursement that covers only a portion of actual costs and operating expenses that have skyrocketed.

Although Rourke pointed out that Health Management Services said the subsidy would not be necessary when it took over the center in 1983, center board chairman Kendal Kingborn said the center's circumstances have changed drastically since then.

Kingborn conceded that Health Management's original outlook was overly optimistic in view of the changing circumstances of the past two years.

But county commissioners said that to help the center cope with financial problems it would be forced to take money from other services or, because of the limitation on its taxing authority, seek approval of a special override tax levy.

State official says little progress on controversial project

Deadline on Hailey block grant extended a week

BY DAVE LEWIS
Times-News Writer

HAILEY — The deadline for the city of Hailey to finish work on its health care grant to build a high-tech industrial park has been extended to March 22 by the Idaho Division of Economic and Community Affairs.

The original deadline was Monday, but the administrator of the state's development grant program, Van Bilkenstaff, says the city was given the extra week because of people involved in the grant have been out of town.

However, Bilkenstaff says it appears little has been done to complete the grant since he set the deadline in early February.

"There's not much progress," he says after having met with the City Council and the developer of the proposed park last week.

Bilkenstaff says the city and the developer must reach an agreement that defines the roles of each in developing the park, for which the city received a $30,000 grant last spring under the state's economic development grant program.

He says it appears no one is willing to take the leadership role in the affair, and the developer and the city are waiting for the other to do something.

"They're still arguing over who's first, the chicken or the egg. That's the whole problem. I see it," Bilkenstaff says.

"I think everybody thinks he knows what they are doing, but they don't have anything on papers," he says.

The city's contract with the state for the grant expires March 30. If the city does not pull the project together, it will lose the grant.

Bilkenstaff says the state still has to have time to review the project after the city finishes its agreement before a final decision is made on the project. He says if it is not satisfactory, he will let the contract expire.

Although the contract is running out, the extension was given "because Mayor Word Rainey and the city's attorney on the project have been out of town, he says.

Bilkenstaff also says the division's director, David O. Porter, is out of town this week and the final decision on the grant cannot be made until he returns.

After reviewing the plans for the 22-acre industrial park on March 14 with the City Council and developer, Bilkenstaff says that he is impressed with the progress that has been made.

"They're kind of waiting. I don't know what they are waiting for," he says. The agreement between the city and developer was to have been finished in October.

The grant requires developer Dave Manookian to create 38 new jobs in the area within the first year of the project.

However, the three commitments from businesses Manookian included in the grant application have backed out because of the time it has taken for the city and developer to come to

Construction at CSI begins soon

TWIN FALLS — Construction will begin on the College of Southern Idaho Administration Building today in early April, says CSI President Gerald Meyerhoeffer.

Meyerhoeffer said he had expected the project to begin sooner, but an unusually cold winter has left Twin Falls too deep in the ground to begin right away. He said the project should be completed in August.

At the Monday night board meeting, Meyerhoeffer told the board he expected the college's state funding level to increase by about 7.5 percent. "Based on the dollar amount available, we felt like we were treated fairly," Meyerhoeffer said.

The state funding increase will allow the college to increase employee salaries and benefits by about 5 percent, said Meyerhoeffer.

The 7.5 percent increase will not allow the college the flexibility in planning, new curriculum it had desired, said Meyerhoeffer. He said he sensed greater support from legislators for the junior colleges in the state and that if state revenues increase, the legislators will support an increase in state support for junior colleges.

Meyerhoeffer says the junior colleges share of the total state education budget is less than one percent.

The board can expect a report at next month's meeting from its attorneys on the status of the suit CSI filed in Fifth District Court to protect the college's geothermal water rights, Meyerhoeffer said.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation is rehabilitating the dam because it is built over an earthquake fault line and is dangerously susceptible to tremors, officials say. The agency has restricted the dam this year to one-third of its total capacity in case a quake strikes.

The project is scheduled to begin this year and should be completed in 1989, BOR officials say.

The 32 irrigation districts holding fractions of the water capacity will be footing about $7.4 million of the bill over 20 years. The federal government, which values the reservoir for flood control, for recreation and for wildlife habitat, will pay the remainder of the expenses.

Northside is the largest waterholder in the Jackson Lake Reservoir with claim to 36.8 percent of the active storage capacity.

Minidoka Irrigation District, which has scheduled a vote on April 16, is second largest and Twin Falls Canal Co., whose members vote on March 28, is third.

Although Monday's tally was topped, only 24 percent of the company's 161,480 shares actually were voted, Diehl said. About 150 farmers and ranchers went to the polls.

The water from Jackson Lake Reservoir is extremely important to the company's 2,100 shareholders late in the growing season, when Northside has used up its allotment in American Falls Reservoir and Palisades Reservoir on the Snake River.

More than 1,000 miles of irrigation canals and supplies irrigation for crops in a long, narrow belt from the Eden-Hazelton area west beyond Bliss to King Hill, Diehl said.

Family loses possessions in blaze

DIETRICH — A Dietrich woman and her four children lost their home and nearly all of their possessions in a Sunday night fire that destroyed the three-bedroom house where they live in Dietrich.

Volunteer fire department representatives said Connie Price and her children, ages 6, 5, and 3 years, were away from home about 8:30 p.m. when the fire was reported.

Cause of the blaze was not determined, although firemen said it appeared to have started in a corner of the living room where electrical wiring is located.

Walt Evans, member of the rural fire department in Dietrich, said many Dietrich residents were at the Toby Green home for a farewell party when they were advised of the fire.

"Just about the whole town turned out. We took the party to the fire and went to work fighting the blaze," he said.

His wife, Carol Evans, said it appeared the fire had smoldered inside the building for some time before someone noticed it. Fire fighters from the city and rural departments were unable to do more than get the family out and save a few items like small kitchen items and a few chests of drawers containing some of the children's clothing.

Mrs. Evans said the family returned while firemen were at the scene.

No estimates of loss were available.

The shareholders decided to boost their fee 85 cents a share per year to repay part of the costs of bracing the Jackson Lake Dam. They currently pay $10 a share, Diehl said. Payments will begin when the project is finished.

Arrest leads to recovery of guns

Two 19-year-old youths were in custody in Jerome County Monday afternoon when police recovered a cache of controlled substances and firearms belonging to a local man.

Jerome County Sheriff Larry Webb said the four- or five-gallon cache of controlled substances were found in a garage at the home of a local man who lives at 115 S. Main.

Two other juveniles on a routine traffic matter about 1:15 a.m. Sunday, City Police Sgt. Lenny Meadows said the officer observed marijuana in the vehicle and took it to the county jail for testing at the custody. A search of the files yielded about $500 of marijuana.

Meadows said the man in custody had a search warrant obtained and officers went to the Eden resi-

$50,000 to start a senior center in the city. The center will be located in the old building on 10th and 1st. Requests from Ripper and Twin Falls are among six in the state for the maximum amount to be granted. Bickenstaff says "the others are from Coeur d'Alene, Lewiston, Eagle and Idaho Falls."

The state grants are for a one-time look for large projects to cut the costs of administering the grants both at the state and local levels, he says.

The state also follows a check-out system. "We check out the applications for the grants to see if the application specifies where the matching local donations will come from and if local donations are greater than minimum requirements," he says.

In Twin Falls, the City Council has approved donating the Senior Citizen's Center property to the organization as part of the local match. It now remains the center and the nearby property along Rock Creek Canyon to be sold to pay for the center. The center has been in a state of disrepair. The remaining $70,000 would be provided by the Senior Citizens Center, according to a city report.

The state will evaluate grant applications on the basis of how many people will benefit from a project. If low and moderate income groups will be helped and how complete plans for the project are, Bickenstaff says.

The senior citizens have been studying ways to build a new center. The present one since 1969. Then an investigation in preparation for expanding the kitchen food part of the floor in a back section had started.

Further investigation revealed that existing structural, roof, joists and studs, relocated bearing walls and several other potentially dangerous items.

This is the first year that "big grant money" has been set aside.

Hailey

Bickenstaff says Mankonian now has commitments from six businesses to go into the park, but those commitments would create only 22 jobs in the first year.

Bickenstaff also says those commitments may not be firm enough to satisfy the grant's requirements. He says he is now reviewing those commitments to see if they meet the requirements.

"That's a problem I have to resolve. I don't know how solid they are," he says.

Bickenstaff says he also is "mulling over" whether or not the 22 jobs are enough to satisfy the grant.

Hailey's largest employer, Comm-Tek Publishing Co., announced recently it was leaving town for Boise and taking about 90 jobs with it. Bickenstaff says the high-tech park could help make up some of those lost jobs.

"It seems a shame. There's $330,000 there and they just lost a major employer," he says.

Of the $330,000 the city was awarded under the grant, $282,000 would go to make improvements in the park, including water and sewer lines and access streets. The rest of the grant would help the city rebuild roads in low-income areas of the city.

"From the start, the city has met opposition to the grant. It hurriedly put the grant together in the fall of 1983 when it made a deal with Mankonian on a project before bringing it to a public hearing."

The project was heavily criticized because other developers were not given the opportunity to participate through a bidding process.

Not everyone gets old like Jane Fonda

I've had it up to here with Linda Evans, Joan Collins, and Jane Fonda and their older-is-better routine.

Maybe if I hadn't had damn arms ten years before damn always came into style, or if I had my own hit series, I could feel different.

But unlike a lot of older sex symbols, I have been struck down by gravity in the prime of my life and I'm ticked off about it. You want talk burn, Jane? I'll tear holes all day. I can look forward to a night of scurrying cramps. Tell me about younger men. Joan, I go to bed when my kids are getting back and get up when they're coming in. Talk to me about confidence. Linda, Wallace's? I've got to ask me anymore if I want the onions left off my hamburger. That hair... Is it possible that your lives have not been altered by age? That you passed GO and you can expect years of happiness? I notice a lot of differences in my life that I can't explain. I read Time magazine from back to front, I rarely finish a book anymore. The last story I read in its entirety was while I was checking out in the supermarket—it was about a man giving birth. I save the obituaries and wrap the garbage in the economy section.

Erma Bombeck
At wit's end

Somehow, I am still influenced by age. When my kids tell me they're dating someone, I don't want to know what they look like or if they still have all their own teeth, how much money they have. I want to know how old they are.

I've forgotten how to flirt. Possibly because I get so few calls for it. I have lawyers who are younger than my winter coat. Doctors who carry their instruments in gym bags. Priests who fill the confessional with Clearasil. I look at them and see my sons.

My fulfillment for me is no longer standing around eating raw fish off crackers, sucking in my stomach and listening to someone tell me to burn my clothes as my coloring is "autumn" and not spring. Give me an evening with David Aronoff through his eyes, or a talk of his boss.

I know what all of you are trying to do, gang, and I appreciate it. You're serving as a role model, a conscience for a generation of women who shouldn't give up on themselves just because they've passed the big 4-0-5-0.

I appreciate that, but I don't really want to be a born-again sex symbol. I don't have the pants, zippers and stamina for it.

Let my body go. Let it sag, wrinkle and drop. Let me gray a little and wheeze some. Let me say dumb things and forget more than I can remember. Let my chins grow and my creases multiply.

And when I look at you, I'll tell myself that with an $800 dress, lummy-control pantyhose and a camera with cold cream on the lens, I could look like that too.

Let me lie to myself.

Let punk son skip reception if he wants

DEAR ABBY: We have a family problem. In May, my stepson will be graduating from medical school, and my family is having a reception in his honor.

My husband and I have a 15-year-old son who has a spiked Mohawk haircut and wears unconventional clothes, such as orange T-shirts, army jackets and jeans. We avoid calling "Steve" to be an individual while he was growing up, for this reason he feels it's his right to look as he wishes.

My husband refuses to allow Steve to attend his stepfather's reception with his hair in a Mohawk and punk-rock attire. He says he would be embarrassed by Steve's appearance, and others might find it offensive. Steve refuses to attend unless he can come as "himself," especially since he's not crazy about being with all these adults anyway.

I say it's my husband's problem or that of our guests if they can't accept Steve as he is.

What do you think would be a fair solution to this problem?

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

Day you had a whole paragraph telling people to be "sweethearts" by doing nice things for others.

It was fine until I came to the last part, which read: "Forgive an enemy. Pray for your friends. Donate some blood. Pay your doctor bill. Listen to your teen-ager. TIP THE COOK IN ADDITION TO THE WAITRESS."

Abby, you must be kidding! Why tip the cook? Don't you know that the cook is the highest paid employee in the restaurant? In fact, in the better restaurants the cook has more money than most of the people who eat there.

DEAR WAITRESS: Sorry, I should have said, "COMPLIMENT the cook if the food is exceptional."

DEAR ABBY: I was referred to say, "No, no, no, I'm a man." Yes, sir, etc. regardless of the person's age.

I recently made a purchase at a bookstore, and when the young lady who waited on me asked if I wanted to pay cash, I replied, "Yes, ma'am." She jumped down my throat and said, "I'll have you know I'm younger than you, and I don't appreciate your insinuating that I am older!" I was shocked at her rudeness.

This morning on a TV game show, a young contestant was asked if he was married. He replied, "No, sir." Later on, the young man won a trip to Hawaii for two, so the host asked if he had someone to go with him, and the contestant replied, "Yes, sir."

When the host was going off, he said, "I'll be right back." And he never came back.

—sir anymore, as it makes me feel old!

Abby, is it still correct to say "ma'am" and "sir" in today's society? Or am I out of step?

—TECUMSEH OKLA.

DEAR TECUMSEH: Yes, sir, it is still correct!

CAUGHT IN THE MIDDLE

DEAR CAUGHT: Since you and your husband always encouraged Steve to be an individual as he was growing up, nobody should be surprised if he isn't conforming to convention.

If Father won't let Steve attend the reception in his punk attire, and Steve refuses to attend unless he can be "himself," that settles it.

Since Steve isn't crazy about attending anyway, he's off the hook if Steve isn't there. Father won't be embarrassed and the guests won't be offended. So as I see it, no solution is necessary because there's no problem.

DEAR ABBY: On St. Valentine's

Pledges sought to build, fix area senior centers

SHOSHONE—Written pledges for labor, materials or money to help build a new senior center in Shoshone and "renewals" of the Shoshone center are needed by Friday.

Willa Carraway, director of the Golden Years Senior Citizens, Inc., said Tuesday she is applying for a Community Development Block Grant and the written pledges of community volunteer assistance will aid in obtaining it.

Pledge forms are available at the Shoshone center, 218 North Rail Street West, or from Ann MacFerson in Richfield.

The positions of labor, materials and money will be used at the center in the donor's home town, she says, but the application is being made jointly.

While donations are appreciated anytime, there is a special need to buy the written pledges available to accompany the grant application, the director says.

GAS HEATS WATER TWICE AS FAST AS ELECTRICITY!

ELECTRICITY HEATS 18 GALLONS OF WATER AN HOUR

GAS HEATS 37 GALLONS OF WATER AN HOUR

REDUCE YOUR GAS RATE 10%

If you have a gas furnace and change from electric to gas water heating, your gas rate year around will go down 10% for both heating and water heating. A gas furnace by itself qualifies for our RS-1 rate. Adding gas water heating automatically changes your rate to RS-2, the lowest residential rate. The cost for heating water with gas is a little less than electricity and when you lower your rate for both heating and water heating by 10%, the annual savings can be substantial.

A NEW GAS WATER HEATER IS EASY TO OWN.

- 1. Zero Interest financing. We'll finance the water heater and installation at zero interest, no money down, payments of $45.00 a month. (Maximum amount for financing, $450.)
- 2. $100 Cash Rebate. If you purchase a new gas water heater without using Intermountain's financing program, we'll give you a $100 cash rebate.

* Subject to certain conditions including a gas water heater must replace an existing electric model and be rated at ASHRAE 60-75.

Farm offered as missile site

QUEBEC (AP) — Defense Secretary Casper Weinberger proposed Monday the United States and Canada may develop a joint defense against Soviet cruise missiles that could include deployment of surface-to-air missiles in Canada.

Canadian officials quickly dismissed the idea as unnecessary, and other U.S. officials sought to dispel suggestions that Weinberger was proposing to locate nuclear missiles on Canadian soil.

In an interview on Canadian television, Weinberger said he reported the U.S. defense chief was asked if he expected the United States to request a more active Canadian defense against cruise missiles.

Canadian Foreign Secretary Joe Clark told reporters that Weinberger's comments were discussed in a meeting Monday between Reagan, Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney and their advisers, with Canadian officials expressing concern that the U.S. defense secretary's statement was being misinterpreted.

Chief working on kidnapping

DROUWEN, Netherlands (AP) — Leendert Platje says he is not a peacenut but he does believe in balance, so he offered the Soviet's his farm as a site for 85-20 missiles if Holland deploys U.S. built NATO rockets on its territory.

"It would be even safer if no missiles were deployed at all," he said Monday.

But he added: "If these 48 rockets are deployed, and I'm sure that will happen, why not counterbalance them with the same number of Soviet missiles? A nuclear equilibrium will make our country a safer place to live in."

Platje, who said he doesn't belong to "any peace movement at all," went to the Soviet Embassy in The Hague recently to offer his 100-acre plot in this central Dutch farming community as a deployment site, he said in an interview.

Ortega gets standing ovation

BRASILIA, Brazil (AP) — Members of the House Foreign Relations Committee greeted Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega with a standing ovation Monday before he declared that the United States wants Latin Americans to be "slaves."

"We want to show our solidarity to Central America. In particular to Nicaragua," said Rep. Jose Carlos Teixeira, explaining the ovation.

Ortega, leader of Nicaragua's leftist government, had come to Brazil's capital to attend the presidential inauguration of Tancredo Neves, who underwent emergency surgery for abdominal pain hours before his swearing-in ceremony Friday.

Ortega said the two major problems facing Latin America were foreign debt and the attitude of the United States.

Missile proposal dismissed

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Nabih Berri, leader of Lebanon's largest Shiite Muslim militia, said Monday he would try to secure the release of kidnapped American journalist Terry A. Anderson.

But he said he "cannot make any promises" that his efforts would succeed.

"We're working on it and we'll try to do something," Berri said at a news conference when asked about Anderson. The chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, Anderson was kidnapped on a west Beirut street on Saturday.

Gorbachev led while Chernenko ailing

MOSCOW (AP) — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko's posturing speech for Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev confirms that Gorbachev ran the Politburo when his predecessor was dying, official documents disclosed Monday.

Gromyko also called on the older Communist Party elite to rally behind the new 54-year-old leader, and said he had performed "brilliantly" while filling in for the ailing Konstantin U. Chernenko.

Gorbachev, meanwhile, issued a statement that stressed collective leadership and continuity. He also renewed his endorsement of the discipline drive that marked President Yuri V. Andropov's tenure but slacked under Chernenko.

Gromyko's speech was delivered at a Communist Party Central Committee meeting March 12, which named Gorbachev general secretary of the party to replace Chernenko. It was published in an official booklet that became available Monday.

Both Andropov, who died in 1984, and his successor, Chernenko, served as party leader and as president of the Soviet Union. Gorbachev assumed the party leadership, the country's most powerful post, and is expected to become president in 1989.

Gromyko's address seemed clearly aimed at demonstrating to the Soviet public and to other countries the unanimous support for Gorbachev by the 10-member Politburo and the Central Committee.

Iraq hits Iranian cities

By The Associated Press

Iraq said Monday that its warplanes bombed Tehran and several other Iranian cities, "scoring crushing hits."

Both sides claimed victory in the border marshland battle for control of the highway linking Baghdad with the strategic southern Iraqi port of Basra.

beginning Tuesday, and many airlines canceled service to both Tehran and Baghdad as a result, Iran said it protested to the International Air Transport Association and the International Civil Aviation Organization.

If you have a hopeless feeling that reducing the federal deficit is simply a process for raising your taxes — you got it! Inside the Washington Beltway reduced spending is incomprehensible to the majority of political minds, so the logical and result is taxing away 76% of the gross National Product while the deficit grows annually larger — economic — several political truths to think about:

1. Politicians who talk about the deficit don't give a damn about it.
2. Increasing taxes to reduce the deficit has never reduced the deficit. Politicians just spend more money.
3. The only sure way to reduce deficits and spending is to require politicians to pay for increased spending and budget deficits out of their own personal paychecks. That way they would be buying votes with their money — not ours.

The current account measures not only trade in merchandise but also in services, mainly the flow of investment earnings.

Taxes would be the perfect investment

NEW YORK — If it were possible to invest in them, taxes would be the safest thing around, impervious to any prolonged decline and almost certain to grow over the long term.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF
Few rich men own their own property. The property owns them. -Robert G. Ingersoll

Would you ever want to make an even trade of the ace of trumps for the king? If you think that is a silly question, don't stop reading now. Today's slam might change your opinions. Dummy's club queen is covered by East's king and South wins the ace. South crosses to dummy in spades to take a trump finesse and West wins the king. A club winner returns for down two, but it's not over. Later South must try the diamond finesse to avoid going two down.

What about that trade of an ace for a king? Exchange South's ace of trumps for the ace of diamonds, and the trump finesse is certain. With no trump finesse to tempt him, South would finesse in diamonds at trick two and repeat the finesse when his lack held. His club loser goes on dummy's diamond ace and now it's safe to lead trumps. The defenders get only the ace of trumps, and the declarer, without the ace of trumps, makes his slam.

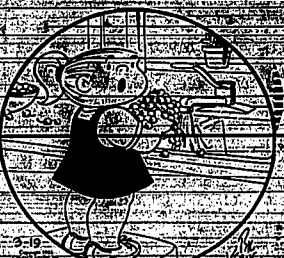

The lesson in today's slam is that the play of the trump suit is relatively unimportant. Success depends upon the location of the diamond king, and it is vital to risk a trump lead before trying the diamond finesse.

State's 90% rule working, at least so far

Enforcement varies widely

By STEVE CRUMP
 Times-News sports editor

TWIN FALLS.—High school administrators, including some who were skeptical at the outset, seem to approve of the way that Idaho's 16-month-old 90 percent attendance rule has worked out. But most of them aren't ready to pronounce the experiment a success just yet.

"It hasn't been the traumatic experience that a lot of people were afraid it might be," says Glenns Ferry High Principal and boys' basketball coach Gordon Brown. "It has meant some adjustments, though."

"When they passed this, I had my doubts," says Valley High Principal Dale Tiley. "I thought it was just a way to take our extracurricular activities away and to limit our efforts to broaden education. But when I see the attitude of our students now, it's made me a believer. It's worked out very favorably for this district."

"It creates a lot of inconvenience," says Twin Falls High Principal Frank Charlton. "Absences are something you have to keep on top of. But we've really had very few students who have reached the limits of their absences—and none of them because of extracurricular activities."

"The real test is what happens now," says Burley High vice principal and football coach John Billez. "We've gotten along all right so far, but it's in the spring that kids start missing class for sports."

"There's no way," adds Buhl High Principal Craig Thornberry. "That you can schedule a golf match at night."

The 90 percent rule, implemented by the Idaho State Board of Education in November 1983, requires that during the last September, students be present at 90 percent of each of their classes to receive credit for those classes. Extracurricular activities, which traditionally have been excused absences, were to be excused no longer.

The rule is to be reviewed by the state board next summer.

The state board gave the responsibility for the enforcement of the 90 percent rule to local school boards with the proviso that exceptions could be granted in "extraordinary circumstances."

Predictably, the definition of "extraordinary circumstances" varies widely.

"There's a district in western Idaho that grants exceptions in just about every case," says Thornberry. "And there are others that are very strict."

Most boards seem to be like Buhl's, handling requests for exceptions on a case-by-case basis. The Buhl policy takes into account reasons for absences, and if participation in school-related activities tips the balance toward loss of credit, exceptions can be made.

"I think we're like most schools," says Minico High Principal Bill Bowman. "We make every effort to schedule our extracurricular activities off school time. But when our debate team went to state, they were granted an exemption under extraordinary circumstances."

"In most cases I think school boards are considering students involved in state championships absent under extraordinary circumstances," says Dick Stickle, executive director of the Idaho High School Activities Association. "We put a lot of emphasis on attending," says Jerry Diehl, Jerome High principal and member of the board of directors of the IHSAA. "We give awards for attendance and we send parents registered letters when their kids get to a certain number of absences. But if a kid misses more than nine days, we're going to give them a chance to go make that up."

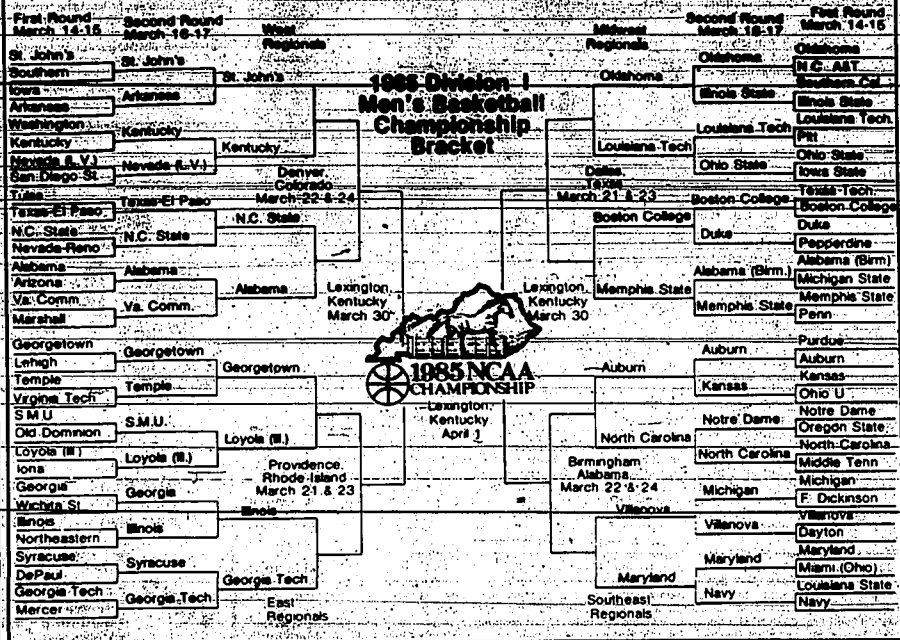

Administrators say the biggest focus of the 90 percent rule are these:

- Reducing travel and limiting athletic competition that cuts into school hours. For example, the Gem State Conference, the league of the eight biggest high schools in eastern Idaho, has moved all of its track meets to Saturday this spring. And the Northside Conference, a group of seven Class A-4 schools north of the Snake River, has a much limited track competition to a handful of meets involving all the schools in the league, thus consolidating travel and reducing time away from class.
- Sharp limits to the school time allotted to vocational activities, such as Future Farmers of America, FFA activities, for obvious reasons, often take place away from school and during the winter months the lack of excused school time has curtailed them. Many districts still allow students involved in vocational activities to take time off for state or national conventions or seminars, however.
- Some decrease in participation in spring sports, particularly track and golf. Those two sports cut more into school time than other spring activities for different reasons. A track meet takes between 2½ and four hours to complete, a difficult task to accomplish after school. And because of the vagaries of Idaho weather, not all of them can be run on Saturdays. High school golfers are usually not allowed permission to privately owned links on Saturdays, the busiest days for golf courses. That makes weekday matches a necessity.

"We've got some kids who are going to have to make some choices," says Bowman. "Some of them are already asking if they're going to run into trouble if they go out for track."

- Class attendance figures, generally, are up a little from last year—in many districts above 95 percent, Helen Williams, public information officer for the IHSAA, said.

Nuggets extend home streak

Denver's Wayne Cooper and Calvin Nix scored two potential game-winning goals in the final five seconds as the Nuggets edged the Dallas Mavericks 113-111 in National Basketball Association action Monday night for Denver's 11th straight home victory.

Alex Burris made one of two free throws with just seconds left to play to give the Nuggets a two-point lead, and then Jay Vincent and Brad Davis saw their short-range shots blocked.

Elston Turner, traded to Denver by Dallas for the Pistons, made two critical baskets and came up with a big steal in helping the Nuggets come back from a 111-106 deficit in the last 3:25.

Turner's rebound followed a shot with 50 seconds left that put Denver ahead 112-111. Then Rolando Blackman and Vincent mistimed, setting up English's free throw.

In raising its record to 43-25 and breaking a three-game losing streak, Denver increased its lead to 3½ games over the Houston in the NBA's Midwest Division. Dallas fell to 38-31.

LA Clippers 136 Detroit 116

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rookie forward Michael Cooper scored 22 points and Norm Nixon scored 20 points and handed out a career-high 21 assists as the Los Angeles Clippers routed the Detroit Pistons 136-116 in a National Basketball Association game Monday night.

The Clippers, playing their third home game in three nights, broke the game open in the third quarter after taking a 62-53 halftime lead to outscore the Pistons 23-12 to lead 85-65 after 5:30 of the third period. After that, Detroit could get no closer than 18 points.

Derek Smith and Junior Bridgeman scored 20 points each as the Clippers ended a two-game losing streak and improved their record to 24-48.

Cage started at forward in place of Harvey Galanter, who was injured by a bone spur in his heel in Sunday night's 109-100 loss to the Golden State Warriors.

Cage ended a string of 13 games in which Smith was the leading scorer for the Clippers.

Kelly, who had led Detroit with 20 points and Isiah Thomas and Bill Lamber each added 14 points. The Pistons' record dropped to 36-31.

The game at the Sports Arena was to have been played March 27 at the Pontiac Silverdome, the Pistons' home court. But it was rescheduled when the Silverdome's roof collapsed March 4.

Utah Jazz romped to a 136-125 victory over the Golden State Warriors in National Basketball Association game Monday night.

Dantley scored 26 in the second half and finished with 55, while Griffith finished with 31. Tauri Bailey chipped in 20 points for Utah, now 35-21 in the Midwest Division.

Purvis Short led the Warriors with 27 points. Eric Furrum scored 16 and Casey Smith 15 for the loss, 109-94 in the Pacific Division.

Utah led 60-51 at the half and then broke the game open with a 42-point third quarter, the most the jazz has scored in a period this season. Dantley and Bailey combined for 24 points in the period.

The Jazz led 102-90 going into the final quarter. Short and Peter Thibault sparked a Golden State rally that saw the Warriors pull to within 126-121 with 1:35 remaining, but the Jazz pulled away again.

Dantley, playing his third game since sitting out 15 with a hamstring injury, scored 14 points in the third quarter and 12 in the fourth.

Mark Eaton pulled down 13 rebounds.

Martina beats Lloyd again

DALLAS (AP) — Martina Navratilova put pressure on Chris Evert Lloyd's serve Sunday and won the $150,000 Virginia Slims of Dallas tennis championship 6-3, 6-4.

In their third meeting of 1984, Navratilova broke Lloyd's serve four times, twice in each set, to take the $28,000 first prize.

Lloyd ended Navratilova's 13-match winning streak against her in February in Key Biscayne, Fla., 6-4, 2-2. Navratilova rebounded to win by the same score in February in Delray Beach, Fla., and Sunday's match gave the left-hander a 2-1 edge for the year and a 33-31 advantage in their lifetime series.

Figini clinches World Cup

WATERVILLE VALLEY, N.H. (AP) — Vreni Schneider of Switzerland took advantage of a slip by American Diana Roffe to capture the women's World Cup giant slalom ski race Sunday, while teammate Michela Figini clinched the women's overall championship.

Figini started the day with 250 overall points to 217 for teammate Brigitte Oertli with three races remaining. Oertli needed a finish of fourth or better to retain a mathematical chance at the crown, but failed to crack the top 15.

McLain denied bail

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — A federal judge ordered former star baseball pitcher Denny McLain held without bond Sunday, one day after he was convicted by a jury of racketeering, conspiracy, extortion and cocaine possession.

U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachovich denied a request by defense attorneys to have the former Detroit Tiger right-hander free on bond until sometime April 15, saying McLain represented a potential threat to the community and could flee.

McLain, 41, has been free on $200,000 bond since his indictment in March 1984.

A nine-woman, three-man panel, who listened to 350 hours of testimony, found baseball's last 30-game winner guilty Saturday of racketeering, conspiracy, extortion and cocaine possession charges.

Belknap applies for Utah job

MOSCOW (AP) — University of Idaho athletic director Bill Belknap confirmed on Monday that he has applied for a similar position at the University of Utah.

"It's not like I'm all fired up to go anywhere," Belknap said. "They asked me to apply in January and I didn't know that much about it, but it might be a good position and I don't be interested," he said. Belknap said he had not received any reply from University of Utah officials, who hope to hire a replacement for outgoing athletic director Arnie Ferrin by late April or early May. Ferrin will retire at the end of June.

McCarthy goes to N. Mexico St.

LAS CRUCES, N.M. (AP) — Neil McCarthy, a consistent winner at Weber State the past 10 years, Monday was named the new head basketball coach at New Mexico State University.

McCarthy, 44, succeeds Weldon Drew, who was fired following the conclusion of the regular season earlier this month. NMSU finished with a 7-20 record this season, the second straight losing campaign for Drew.

In the 10 years at Weber State, McCarthy's teams won 20 or more games seven times.

"I'm here to develop a good basketball program," McCarthy told reporters Monday.

NMSU Athletic Director Keith Colson said McCarthy was told a three-year contract with a salary of $55,000 a year.

McCarthy, who is expected to assume the NMSU spot immediately, won 200 games and lost 98 in 10 years at Weber State; a member of the Big Sky Conference.

Bach's back and a hot ticket

By SCOTT M. BUSHNELL
The Associated Press

NEW-HAVEN, Conn. — The modern premiere of some 33 chorale preludes by Johann Sebastian Bach was the "hot ticket" in town, and the information sold out on Sunday — four days before the composer's 300th birthday.

The discovery of 33 previously unknown chorale preludes by Bach in the Yale library was compared to great archaeological finds, such as another Egyptian tomb, when it was announced in December. A lot of people recognized the significance. Although only a few had heard the music, "Music must be heard and this will be the real event," said John Berkley, vice president for the public radio station that broadcast Sunday's concert from Yale University.

JOHANN SEBASTIAN BACH
Premiere for lost music

More than 100 stations across the nation will carry the American Public Radio broadcast Sunday afternoon.

The decision to give the works their first modern performance brought a deluge of ticket requests from as far away as Florida and California. A second performance was added, but even then all the tickets were gobbled up by Feb. 26.

Performers were organists Charles Krigbaum of Yale and John Ferris of Harvard University.

In addition to the national broadcast, the performance from Yale's Battell Chapel will be carried in Canada, Great Britain and Europe later in the week.

The preludes, embellished versions of hymns which were played in churches throughout the congregational singing, were discovered in the Yale library by Christoph Wolff, chairman of Harvard's music department and one of the world's leading Bach scholars.

"I was not prepared to find anything," said Wolff. But it became evident from the clear attribution of the manuscript and stylistic features of the chorales that they were by J.S. Bach and not other members of his family, he said.

The manuscript contained 83 chorale preludes, including compositions by J.S. Bach's father-in-law Johann Michael Bach, his son Johann Christian Bach, and Johann Fachelbel, composer of the famous canon.

Of the 33 compositions in the manuscript identified as by Johann Sebastian Bach, 33 were previously unknown. All 33 are believed to be early works, likely written before 1710.

Although the rediscovered works probably will never rival Bach's

Brandenburg Concertos or St. Matthew's Passion in popularity, scholars attached great significance to the find.

"It increases by some 20 percent the known quantity of Bach's chorale preludes," Wolff said at the time the discovery was announced. "But this quality is not a whit inferior to Bach's other organ music."

Yale University Press plans to publish the 33 preludes this summer.

Carl Miller, director of concerts for the Yale Music School, said the decision to use Yale's 1,100-seat Battell Chapel for the premiere came in a roundabout way.

First consideration had been given to Dwight Chapel because its organ was built in the 18th century, German style. However, Dwight Chapel only has 150 seats.

Another proposal would have had the 33 chorale preludes performed at Yale's famous Woolsey Hall, which can hold 2,000 people.

"But then we said, since this is church music and we're going on Sunday, why not use Battell Chapel? We're taking the music out of the library and back into the church," Miller said.

Battell Chapel is totally renovated and refurbished. The organ is rebuilt. It is in pristine condition, a showplace on campus.

The program will include singing by the Yale Bach Choir and the playing of a brass quartet to illustrate the Lutheran chorales, which are the basis for the organ settings.

Historians see fight backwards

ABSAKOOKE, Mont. (AP) — Historians trying to piece together the battle of the Little Bighorn have viewed the battle backwards, says author Henry Welbert.

Custer went out in a blaze of glory on the Little Bighorn River in 1876. The fight was a tragedy, says the glory claimer by author Henry Welbert.

Welbert, who spent his boyhood wandering ridges where the Seventh Cavalry watered bunchgrass with soldiers' wood, listened with quiet attention to many historical accounts of Custer's Last Stand while gathering his own evidence.

After more than a half-century of tracking soldiers and Indians through artifacts left behind, Welbert is ready to publish his version of Custer's demise under the title "Sixty-Six Years in Custer's Shadow."

His portrait of the battle contrasts sharply with the official version of the fight. Welbert's contentions include:

- Custer was one of the first to die in the battle.
- The Seventh fought a small battle before entering the big one.
- Custer left his own special "turf" scattered across the hills west of the river.

The body of Custer, who may have been "assassinated," was "dragged" to the spot where it was found.

As a youngster, Welbert roamed the battle area from his family's farm on Reno Creek. He found bullets and shell casings in the 1930s and spent hours thinking about the battle. His conviction that the official interpretation of the events of 1876 was wrong grew with his collection.

The historians started with the hill where Custer's body was found and worked backwards.

"But then I saw that Custer was seen (on Reno Creek) and worked forward."

Custer's aim was to strike the lower end of the Indian encampment he found. Over the years, with the help of a "ghost" named Welbert and others found artifacts tracing Custer's route to Deep Coulee.

"Lecturers at the battlefield have told visitors for years that Custer came down Medicine Tail Coulee and was stopped at the river," Welbert said. "But there is a trail of physical evidence that Custer took that route. He never reached the river or Medicine Tail Ford."

Following a trail of shell casings, including the special brass 50-70 shells that tumbled from Custer's Remington rolling back, Welbert placed Custer a mile away.

"Custer drove straight for the lower end of the Indian village, skirmishing with a bunch of Indians on the way," Welbert said. "He saw warriors pouring down the Little Horn and figured Reno was flushing them out."

A scout, half-Crow and half-Sioux, Mitch Boyer, was said to have sworn that Custer would be the first to die. It stories of his vow are authentic, this man of mixed blood and loyalties may have shot Custer in Deep Coulee, Welbert said.

Calls to Kermit no laughing matter

BOULDER, Colo. (AP) — Calling Kermit the Frog is no laughing matter to parents whose children called their favorite TV cartoon character at a cost of 50 cents a call.

Two Denver-area TV stations aired the commercial, which urged viewers to call to the Muppets.

The ad, one after a barrage of cattle from parents who had received their phone calls.

Kathy Muth of Boulder said Friday her children listened to the 60-second ad featuring Kermit, Miss Piggy and Fozzie Bear so much that they called the number 34 times in five days.

Muth said she will file a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission.

Clove cigarettes' aroma pervades Indonesia

By KENNETH L. WHITTING
The Associated Press

JAKARTA, Indonesia — If a country is to be a world leader in fragrance, Indonesia would be the aromatic smell of burning cloves.

The smell is accompanied by a soft snap and crackle as smokers puff on kreteks — cigarettes laced with cloves.

Sweet and spicy cigarette smokers greet visitors shortly, they clear immigration and customs, the sometimes-cloying smell seems to permeate the entire country.

Kreteks take their name from the faint crackling sound made when a little clove oil is released from the spice within while the cigarette burns.

They are uniquely Indonesian, a booming domestic industry with growing export prospects, at least until U.S. authorities recently raised questions about possible health hazards.

Dr. Frederick Schechter, a surgeon at the University of California at Irvine, said he compiled four cases in growing export prospects, at least until U.S. authorities recently raised questions about possible health hazards.

Dr. Sue Bender, a medical epidemiologist at the federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta, said people can develop allergies to eugenol, the active ingredient in clove. Eugenol inhibits the synthesis of certain substances in the human body called prostaglandins which affect blood pressure and the action of some hormones and muscles, she said.

One clove cigarette maker is being sued by a Huntington Beach couple who contend that their 10-year-old son suffered breathing difficulties that led to his death after smoking several of the firm's Djaram brand kreteks on March 2, 1981.

A spokesman for Djaram declined comment pending the receipt of additional information from California.

The United States is not contemplating any ban on the import of kreteks, according to a U.S. Embassy spokesman. More than 100 million were exported to the United States last year, compared to 18 million in 1980 when the Census Bureau added a special category for them in its statistics.

No official Indonesian source could indicate whether based on decisions made here, clove cigarettes offered a distinct health danger.

Health minister Swardjono Surjaningrat regularly urges the public to give up smoking but makes no distinction between kreteks and all tobacco cigarettes which are known to Indonesians as "whites." Exported kreteks come in packages that boast their health benefits, warning that does apply on packs sold within Indonesia.

In strictly economic terms, kreteks seem to be all almost an ideal — a heavily populated developing country exports an exotic farming product, one of thousands of unutilized jobs are created and the exports earn foreign exchange.

Tobacco taxes earned the state $5.7 million last year compared to $5.4 million in 1981, according to Finance Ministry figures.

The Jakarta Post recently estimated that more than 7 million of Indonesia's 168 million people depend directly or indirectly on the cultivation of tobacco or cloves and the manufacture and distribution of cigarettes.

The clove cigarettes industry is deliberately kept labor intensive. The kreteks exported to the United States are machine made and usually filter tips. The "palmer domestic" offerings are hand rolled without filters.

Finance Minister Radu Prawiro said that two out of every three kreteks must be made by hand to absorb unskilled labor. More than 130,000 workers toil in kretek factories, according to the Indonesian cigarette producers association.

Gudang Garam Djaram produces 100 million kreteks annually, 34 percent of the national production. Last year, Gudang Garam turned out 34 million kreteks from 11 means of small workshops, employing more than 45,000 people.

The industry is centered in central Java where some producers export cloves with their tobacco around the world.

Most kretek types used are grown in Java, Sumatra and Ambon. About a fifth of the cloves are imported, mostly from the Indian Ocean islands of Zanzibar and Madagascar.

While the 1980-81 marketing season was considered a low for kretek sales, it was still a record for growth. Clove growers, the tobacco sector and kretek makers are all expected to benefit from a bumper crop and a high price for cloves.

But the high price of cloves has not helped consumers to realize their savings, resulting from a 10 percent increase in the price of kreteks.

State official cuts off gun's school funding

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — State aid will be withheld for a month from the Rajneeshpuram School District because its environment is "permeated with religious symbolism," a spokesman for the state school superintendent says.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Verge Duncan's decision to withhold the payment, about $110,000, "doesn't mean future payments will be held — it's not a permanent, binding decision," said aide Scott Carter.

Carter said students in the district's "school without walls" program work in learning centers, "at least half of the school's owned property, Rajneeshpuram, and are in a religious community owned by the Rajneeshes. The school is in Rajneeshpuram, the central Oregon commune established by disciples of Indian guru Bhagwan Shree Rajneesh in 1981.

In that context, they are an explicitly religious organization and the work being done benefits the religious organization," Carter said. A report listing the reasons for the denial will be released next week, he said.

Ma Anand Pradhika, chairwoman of the Rajneeshpuram School Board, decision "disturbing." "I think that Verge Duncan's decision is tantamount to child abuse," she said. "He's using Rajneesh children and their education for a political stepping stone."

Carter noted that the supervisors in the school program "all wear religious dress. There is symbolism; the courses themselves are not the problem — the problem is the context in which the learning takes place."

Buckets of books beating boredom

GRANITE CITY, Ill. (AP) — Gold Wind whips down the concrete alley of Locks 27 on the Mississippi River as the books pouring from the yellow plastic bucket of books and magazines to waiting barge workers.

For three years, rain or shine, Hearn, 57, has acted as librarian of the books pouring from the bucket of books and magazines to waiting barge workers. Sometimes, they thank Hearn. Most of the time, though, their faces quickly disappear inside the pages.

Chris Morgan, a maintenance repairman at the locks, said that Mississippi workers are "always looking for something to read." A local company stopped supplying newspapers years ago.

When he took over the library, he found "a lot of people equated reading with KP duty."

"So I wrote a story in a base paper where I'd make up conversations between myself and the lonely Maytag repairman," he said. In the story, Hearn tried to outdo his counterpart with tales depicting the depths of his loneliness. Soon, he became known around the base as Lonesome Jim.

On a sightsseeing visit to nearby Locks 27, Hearn asked if the workers would enjoy reading to pass the time. They would, indeed, he was told.

So Hearn began regular visits to the locks, sometimes supplying hundreds of books and magazines to a procession of barges from early evening until after midnight. Each volume bore his stamp: "Compliments of Lonesome Jim, Locks 27, Granite City, Ill."

The reading material came out of Hearn's own collection of books and magazines, "a lot of them" from volumes discarded by the library.

But after Hearn's mission was publicized in national news stories, readers around the country began sending boxes of books and letters to assure him that others are supporting him each time he lowers the yellow plastic bucket to the anxious hands below.

U.S. Sen. Alan Dixon of Illinois praised Hearn for giving others the chance to read. "It's almost as if it's like we were all sort of a secret fraternity of people who really love books," Hearn said.

"I've had know each other before that there was this mishap."
