Counters National Agriculture Day

Spring's here and so is 'Meatout' day

By DON KENDALL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Spring arrives today, which also is National Agriculture Day and the first Great American Meatout.

According to the Washington-based Farm Animal Reform Movement Inc., thousands of Americans across the nation will observe the arrival of spring by kicking the meat habit at least for the day.

"The Great American Meatout (patterned after the Great American Smokeyout campaign) is designed to reduce the national consumption of meat and thereby to mitigate the destructive effects of intensive animal agriculture on consumer health, world agricultural resources, environmental quality, and animal welfare," the movement said in its announcement.

"Raising animals for food consumes up to 80 percent of our agricultural resources, depletes our topsoil and groundwater, pollutes our lakes and streams, destroys forests and other wildlife habitats, and causes disease and suffering to billions of animals annually.

"The diet, which includes poultry, fish, and other animals, including about four billion broilers that are slaughtered each year.

A spokeswoman for the American Meat Institute, which represents the meat packing and processing industries, called the plan and claims by the group "really quite illogical and illogical."

The institute's Mary Burnett said Monday that the movement's allegations cannot be supported by evidence, particularly those claims that meat is in some way harmful to those who eat it.

"Our contention is that red meat is really a significant contributor to the nutritional well-being of Americans, and anything that implies anything other than that is really quite misleading and does the public a disservice," she told The Associated Press.

Gene Campbell, an aide to Agriculture Secretary John R. Block, said he did not hear of any Agriculture Department participation or recognition of the Great American Meatout.

Block's family farm in Illinois produces hogs for the pork market.

The announcement said meatout supporters will be distributing thousands of small folders detailing the major problems with meat production and consumption and providing tips on how to quit eating meat.

"Among these are putting away all meat in the house, cleaning the greasy stove, keeping around appropriate 'munchies' for when the meat attack strikes, and visiting restaurants that offer salad bars and other meatless dishes," the report said.

The season will change at 9:14 a.m. MST to day, when the sun crosses the equator on its northward swing.

Jail bond goes down decisively

By FAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News Staff

TWIN FALLS — The $6.2 million bond issue for the construction of a new Twin Falls County Jail-Law Enforcement Building went down to defeat Tuesday in a tight voter turnout.

"According to unofficial results, 3,985 people voted against the bond and 2,247 approved the issue. A total of 6,232 people voted."

The percentage of "yes" votes was 35 percent, a margin of 1,738 votes.

County officials had hoped for "a two-thirds majority in favor of the bond issue. In this case, the negative votes accounted for more than 60 percent of the vote."

The turnout was light Tuesday considering how many people could have voted. While registration was not a requirement of voting in the bond election, there were more than 25,410 names on the rolls of those who could have cast a vote.

With the defeat, county officials immediately will discuss short-term solutions to the overcrowding in the 74-year-old jail on the fourth floor of the courthouse.

"I'm disappointed," Twin Falls County Sheriff Jim Munn said. "I am not concerned. We've still got severe problems."

Fellon said the commissioners will analyze the results of the vote today and talk with county residents to determine what went wrong.

More than 100 people worked on a campaign to promote the bond, which would have financed the construction of a 89,000 square-foot building next to the county judicial building.

Attorney Jim Shindling, the co-chairman of the bonding committee, said county officials had hoped for "a two-thirds majority in favor of the bond issue. In this case, the negative votes accounted for more than 60 percent of the vote."

The issue has to come back before the public assembly sometime because the public assembly had to be held sooner.

The county must wait six months before another bond election can be held.

Pam Bowman, who also co-chaired the bonding committee, said the education in the program of officers for the prosecutor and public defender might have contributed to the defeat. People probably would have approved a bond to build just a jail and a sheriff's office, she said.

She said the bonding committee had a goal for the regular transportation of inmates from the overcrowded jail.

Blaine County voting signups face scrutiny

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News Staff

HAILEY — A grand jury has been called to check the registration of Blaine County voters after a recent investigation showed there is "sufficient evidence of wrongdoing," says County Prosecutor Keith Roark.

In its deliberations, the grand jury will go over the result of an investigation conducted by Roark and the Idaho Attorney General's office.

Roark would not comment on the type of wrongdoings involved in the six cases, but he did say they are sufficient to warrant consideration by a grand jury independent of his office.

The grand jury will meet on Tuesday. The grand jury has been issued, he says.

Arms negotiators meet again

By BRENDA WATSON
The Associated Press

GENEVA — Switzerland American and Soviet negotiators met for two hours and 40 minutes Tuesday, their longest session since a two-day arms control talks in Moscow.

The Reagan administration accused the Soviet government of seeking a "trump card" by pressing Congress to approve the MX missile. President Reagan has said the decision on the MX has a direct bearing on the Geneva talks.

The U.S. Senate approved a bill to build 21 of the 10-warhead rockets. Critics say they would be destroyed in the first wave of a nuclear attack, but Reagan said a "test vote" by Congress would be interpreted by Moscow as a "collapse" of arms control.

The votes cast this week will bear directly on the outcome of the arms talks in Geneva, and hence, on the prospects for peace throughout the world.

Reagan told a luncheon meeting of Senate Republicans in Washington.

The Tuesday session in Geneva was at the Soviet mission and the next meeting was scheduled for Thursday.

U.S. delegation chief Max M. Kampelman did not acknowledge reports as he was driven to a Soviet park the Soviet compound's tall iron gates. But he smiled and waved when the delegation departed.

The U.S. spokesman refused to reveal the agenda of the meeting, citing the confidentiality rule agreed to by Kampelman and Soviet negotiator Chief Victor E. Karyev when the talks started.

MX blasts through Senate in major triumph for Reagan

By MIKE SHANAHAN
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Republican-controlled Senate gave President Reagan his first big congressional victory of 1985 on Tuesday by voting 65-45 to free $1.5 billion for the production of 21 highly accurate, long-range MX missiles.

The president and Senate leaders overcame arguments that the MX would be vulnerable to a first-strike Soviet missile attack and persuaded doubters that the American bargaining position at the Geneva arms talks would be weakened if money for the MX were denied.

"The favorable MX vote is just what the negotiators need... to give them a shot in the arm," said Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole.

There is a second MX vote in the Senate, possibly on Wednesday, but the real fight now shifts to the Democratic House, where a similar set of dual votes is set for next week.

Among the pro-MX votes were 45 Republicans and 10 Democrats.

Reagan now over Democrats like Senate Minority Leader Robert C. Byrd Jr. of West Virginia, who said while the MX has major flaws, it does add additional military punch and does strengthen our bargaining position — and puts us in a better position — vis-a-vis our (European) allies.

The vote followed a last-minute personal appeal for the MX from Reagan, who talks to Senate Republicans over lunch, and said a defeat for the 10-warhead missile "would gravely weaken our national defenses."

In a statement after the vote, Reagan said the MX "will strengthen our national security and our negotiating position at Geneva."

"Until the United States and the Soviet Union agreed to resume arms control talks, MX foes appeared certain to win with arguments such as one made by Sen. Bumpers: 'Dare we deny...'

"All we are doing is giving the Soviets a better target to shoot at," he said in speech on the Senate floor.

But Bumpers recalled a steady drumbeat of administration argument that the MX was needed to demonstrate national will in Geneva.

"The argument that is the most palpable nonsense of all is that you need this missile as a bargaining chip," said a frustrated Bumpers.

"The power of the presidency is amazing."

Rebel VFW post wins a round

SANTA CRUZ, Calif. (AP)—The first round of a court fight between the Veterans of Foreign Wars and a rebel post opposed to U.S. intervention in Central America went to the post on Tuesday.

Rejecting vehement arguments by a VFW attorney to dismiss the case, Superior Court Judge Donald O. Morgan signed an order for a preliminary writ of mandamus. The writ is a legal step which gives the defendant the choice between backing down or attempting to prove in court that he is not subject to the writ.

The judge set a hearing on the issue for April 18.

Of 100 members, the leader of the 2,700-member VFW cancelled the charter of the 67-member post because of its resolution supporting "self-determination and non-intervention" in Central America.

The resolution, which was taken by a post member to officials of the Nicaraguan government in December, opposed a national VFW resolution calling for the restoration of "American primacy" in Latin America.

Hefner recovering from stroke

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Playboy magazine, Hugh Hefner, said Tuesday he has recovered from a mild stroke, which he blamed on stress caused by movie director Peter Bogdanovich's book about his life.

Hefner, 59, chairman of Playboy Enterprises, said in a statement issued by Playboy spokesman Don Rogers.

A day earlier, Rogers had denied that Hefner suffered a stroke.

"I'm recovering from stress developed over the last year in reaction to the pathological book written by Peter Bogdanovich," Hefner said in the statement.

Hefner suffered a stroke two weeks ago.

Ms. Stratton's husband, Paul Solder, killed himself and his 50-year-old wife in 1980, just as she was achieving stardom. The shootings came two weeks after Solder had read her memoir about her affair with Bogdanovich, the director of such films as "The Last Picture Show," "What's Up, Doc?" and "They All Laughed," which starred Ms. Stratton, Audrey Hepburn, Ben Gazzara and John Ritter.

Legislators override pay veto

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The Mississippi Legislature on Tuesday overrode Gov. Bill Allan's veto of a three-year, $4,400 pay raise for teachers, shortly after the state's largest education group dropped its opposition to the measure.

Meanwhile, teachers who had waged wildcat strikes around the state were reported back at work in all but two cities, one day after a judge ruled a strike without a contract would be illegal.

The Senate voted 46-3 to override, and the House 104-16, far more than the two-thirds needed in each case. Both votes came after the 13,000-member Mississippi Association of Educators dropped its opposition, which had been prompted by anti-strike language in the pay measure.

By midday Tuesday, association spokesman George Brown said the group had changed its stance.

Castro will help fight drugs

WASHINGTON (AP)—Cuban President Fidel Castro says he is eager to cooperate with the United States in stopping international drug trafficking, even offering to shoot down drug-running aircraft over his island nation, CBS News reported Tuesday night.

Castro, interviewed by the network in Havana on Friday, said the United States and Cuba could work together and with other countries to put the brakes on narcotics traffic, much of which originates in South America.

"We said we were going to stop airplane hijackings and we proved it. We now say the same thing about drug trafficking and we'll prove that, too. If we can get some truly international cooperation," Castro said.

The Cuban leader denied that his country or any Cuban officials are involved in narcotics trafficking.

'Concrete new ideas' coming from U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Reagan administration, citing a dialogue with Moscow, said Tuesday the United States is presenting "concrete new ideas" and listen to what the Soviets have to offer in the pursuit of an agreement to curb nuclear weapons.

"If the Soviets approach the negotiations in the same way much progress can be made," the administrator said in a soft response to Soviet accusations that the United States is deliberately seeking a deadlock in the Geneva talks in order to proceed with its "Star Wars" strategic defense program.

The U.S. research program is on the table in Geneva, Switzerland, where the talks are now in their second week, but the administration has barred "using it as a bargaining chip" to reach an arms control agreement.

Known officially as the Strategic Defense Initiative, the Star Wars research program is aimed at determining whether the United States and its allies can be shielded with futuristic technology from attacking Soviet missiles.

The Soviets, through the news agency Tass, said the U.S. side is "deliberately heading for a deadlock" in the Geneva talks in order to proceed with plans for a space-based defense system.

The Communist party newspaper Pravda, meanwhile, said the Soviets were interested in reaching an agreement, while the administration was processing Moscow with the 100 missile. The future of the 10-warhead nuclear weapon is being debated in Congress.

In a statement read by Bernard Kalb, the State Department spokesman, the administration insisted the dispute over strategic defense systems should not stand in the way of an agreement in Geneva on offensive weapons.

Soviet emigres facing their own spying trial

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Two Soviet emigres, supporting players in the drama of the first FBI agent ever charged with espionage, moved to center stage Tuesday as defendants in their own spy trial.

The judge said he hoped a jury could be impaneled by Wednesday.

The search for jurors was complicated by panelists' remarks that immigrants who criticize the United States should "return to the country they came from."

Svetlana and Nikolay Ogorodnikov, charged with selling classified documents to the Soviet Union, sat quietly at separate counsel tables in federal court as the panelists were quizzed. Interpreters relayed the prospects' comments to them but they showed no response.

Several prospective jurors were dismissed for bias after they said adamantly that those who speak out at demonstrations and do not appreciate being allowed to live in the United States probably should be deported.

The question arose after U.S. District Judge David Kenyon disclosed that numerous jurors had written on questionnaires unfavorable answers to the question: "What views do you hold toward immigrants who openly criticize the United States?"

The comments ranged from "send them back" to one woman's statement: "Lover to lover."

"Such persons should be grateful to their new homeland or return to the country they came from," one man told the judge. "If they find fault with the United States, they should leave."

Barker's legacy is solid service to people, state

By STEPHEN HARTGEN
Times-News managing editor

BUIH.—This winter, when the Legislature was going fast and furious over education, Swan Falls water rights and child care issues, John Barker of Buhl occasionally mused about missing all the action.

But the 16-year Senate veteran, who stepped down last year, has no real regrets about not being there. He says he accomplished what he wanted as chairman of the Senate Health, Education and Welfare Committee and was more than willing to let some of newer blood come along.

Some other long-time senators, he says, should do the same.

But Barker is hardly retired. At 61, he still runs a successful real estate and insurance business in Buhl where he can be found most mornings at his desk in his cramped office.

When he's not in town, he's likely to be on the road, visiting some Rotary Club in the region in his capacity as Rotary district governor.

But Barker earned a reputation in the Senate as a solid thinker, a bit more moderate than many of his Republican colleagues, and a careful researcher of issues and proposals.

Few people did more work in Boise every year. Stories about his dozens of cardboard file boxes are legendary, particularly the one about how an unsuspecting janitor tossed a few of them into the trash, much to Barker's consternation.

In his nearly two decades in the Senate, there were few times he didn't get involved in from the judicial system, to state retirement, to water rights and dam construction.

But he is particularly proud, he says, of his work in education. A strong advocate of educational funding, Barker also pushed for accountability in school district finances and in teacher performance.

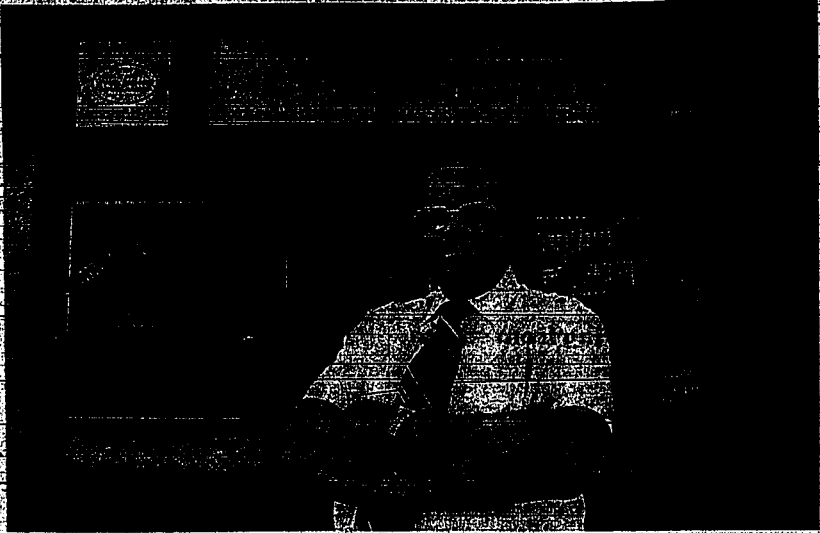

Recognition has come from many directions. The Idaho Supreme Court called him "one of the hardest-working legislators in Idaho history." He has an Alumni Service Award from his alma mater, the University of Idaho, and has been honored by many professional organizations.

Yet, he seems entirely comfortable with the notion that public service is just something a person ought to do. A citizen has an obligation, he thinks, to return to the community something of what is done for him.

That has led him to service on the Buhl School Board, the American Falls Reservoir District, and most recently, as secretary of the Teton Falls County Industrial Revenue Bond board.

He is incapable of saying "No" when it comes to such endeavors.

Perhaps that is why the most common word one hears about John Barker in "respect" there is something dignified about him, but not stuffy. He simply comes across as knowledgeable on important public issues.

Former State Sen. John M. Barker of Buhl is thoroughly familiar with the economics of the Magic Valley.

Idaho education is still among his key interests

Q: The Legislature recently seemed to put the cap on educational funding in Idaho this year with little for either teacher salaries or career ladder. How do you see the trend in educational funding in Idaho?

A: Well, it is only the first bill out of the chute. By the time that gets to the Senate, legislators may be too illite. At that point, you may see rebellion on the part of the Legislature, as to philosophy. And they may just rebel and turn down the bill. I've seen this happen.

Q: Essentially, that it's too low?

A: A lot of different things could take place. One would be that the Legislature could change the formula for the base for public school funding, from, say, 25 percent to 33 or 35 percent, to say, 37 percent of one percent. That would mean local property taxes would have to bear another $3 million.

Q: If you could speak to the Legislature today, sort of clearing your mind, what advice would you give with respect to educational funding for the state of Idaho?

A: I think we need to fund education in a higher way for public schools, colleges and universities. But I would also to have some audits of school districts to determine whether the public was getting its money's worth. We attempted to do this two years ago only to have some of the schools rebel, saying we were picking on certain schools. They refused to let us go in and check on everything, to let us ask questions that were very, let's say, tender subjects, almost sacred cows.

Q: Are you talking about primarily travel?

A: Travel, athletics, buses. A number of different things. We'd use the legislative auditor.

who really has a pretty good feel for some of the things where the schools maybe take advantage of the system. I would accompany the additional money with some audit procedures which would be comparable with either school boards or administrators. They want the money, but really don't want someone to look over them.

Q: There seems to be the feeling among people connected with higher education in Idaho that the quality is declining markedly. What do you think?

A: I wouldn't say declining markedly, but I think we're probably in a status quo situation, while other states have plowed more money into colleges and universities and as a result, they're doing a better job. The result is that you're falling further behind. When you get these test scores of the kids that go into college, in Idaho, they really rate above the national average.

Q: But isn't that a function of other factors, like the quality of life, the homogeneous society?

A: And the fact that parents in Idaho, for the most part, are interested in their schools. They insist on their kids doing some extra work. If they have work to be done at night, the parents insist on it being done. I also think there are a lot of dedicated instructors at these colleges and universities. Regardless of the pay, they stay here because they like it.

Q: House Speaker Tom Stevers seems to imply they're all deadbeats.

A: I just don't agree with that. Many school of bureaucracy, and probably even in businesses, you can always find one or two that do a real poor job.

Q: But that's not the general situation?

A: No.

Q: Do we need four universities in this state of less than a million people? And if we don't, how are we ever going to solve this problem, given the political and social divisions that exist in Idaho?

A: Well, I have long felt we ought to have only the three universities. But I don't think you're going to change it. The decisions, for the most part, were made even before I got into the Legislature. Now at the Lewis and Clark State College, it performs a very good function, but basically, it's a community college function. I tried to introduce a bill which, over a period of time, saying that that over time, they would have to raise part of their money locally from property taxes. You can imagine how upsetting that was to the people in Lewiston.

Q: Did it ever get out of committee?

A: I couldn't get it printed. Then Sen. Richard High said, "Well, I can get it printed in my own committee." He couldn't get it printed, either.

Q: Yes, I am glad to hear it's better last week. But you're saying the issue is right?

A: It is an issue that sort of divides north Idaho and south Idaho. The legislators who come from the Lewiston and Moscow areas will simply just say, "I can't vote for that." The Republicans in the County and in northern Idaho voted to close that institution, for the most part, got defeated in the next election.

My Idaho

Private, they will be individuals who will say "yes," this is what ought to be done.

Just last year, we had a study made by the Idaho Association of Commerce and Industry, part of which was that students had to pay more over a period of time.

We couldn't get that bill passed because we could not get support from people who generally represented the areas of Pocatello, Lewiston, Moscow, plus some who just think all college dreams should be at the expense of the taxpayers.

Q: That's all fine and good unless you're paying the freight.

A: Yeah.

Q: You had a reputation as a Legislator of being a very strong supporter of education, and yet you never got the support of the teachers union, the Idaho Education Association. Mistakenly every candidate the IEA ran against any Republican was kicked last fall. What is the future of unionization in education in this state?

A: I think they're on the defensive. I served in the Navy as a naval gun officer on a merchant ship, with our boys at $30 a month and the merchant marines getting, say, $500 a month. I remember the union delegate telling me, "You don't have a job with the union unless you can get a better deal for them next year than this year." You've always got to get something.

going to have a trouble holding up their membership.

Q: What is there about the organization in your judgment, that seems to make it incapable of supporting its friends from within the state? Take the case of Idaho Bateman, R-Idaho Falls. If they ever had a friend in the Legislature, it was London Bateman, yet the IEA turned around and endorsed his opponent. What's the logic of that?

A: I really didn't have very many opponents and I don't think they ever endorsed my opponent. They would offer to put money into my campaign, but they only wanted to put like $500, $1,000 or $2,000 so that they could say, "I'm really put a lot of money in your campaign." I had a limitation of $50 or $100. I'd say, "If you want to help me out, send me a hundred dollars." Well, they'd say we don't deal with sums like that.

Q: Why did they want to put in more?

A: One time we had a bill which had to do with negotiations, and I tried to get out of committee. I went back and looked it up and this may just have been their philosophy, but every one of the persons who voted against it, I assume that they called in their chips. Every one of those was one who had received $500 to $1,000 to $1,500 from the IEA.

I'm dedicated to education, I'm a graduate of the local school system and the University of Idaho, and I think that I owe a lot to our is happening with agricultural economics in this valley and particularly with farm credit? What do you see coming?

A: Well, frankly, I'm very concerned. I have some interest in family farms that have been in the family since 1880, so I guess I know a little. The fortunate thing, personally, is that the farms are paid for. We operate on our own money. When you're operating on your own money, you can go for a long time with low prices, but my tenants in these farms are having a real struggle because they're having to borrow from the PCA part of the time and the Farm Home Administration. They're getting tougher on them all the time, and rates of interest are high. I don't know what's going to happen to those fellows.

Q: The most part, I think the banks have tried to go along. If the farmers are pretty good operators, but sometimes they're just too deeply in debt. They bought more machinery than maybe they should have, and then the banks just say we won't loan you any more, other than for current operations. I don't know whether the government is going to have to get in there. They may have to get in on some support for the Farm Home Administration and the Production Credit Association.

Q: Many people say we shouldn't subsidize these people who overinvest in themselves, that we shouldn't come in now and bail them out.

A: We're really differentiating between two kinds of people. On those who were speculating, I don't really have much sympathy for them. Most of them are good men and women and they know the chance.

But I'm talking about the operator who was pretty conservative. I have a couple of them on my places. They haven't bought extra farms. They have tried to operate very conservatively.

Q: Some people say we're just too much production and no export market, or that that's been taken and probably isn't even going to come back. What are we going to do? Should we carry this production capacity along at a cost of millions and millions of dollars to the American taxpayer?

A: In the United States, the cost of food is among the cheapest of anywhere in the world really. That's because the efficient farmer has continued to operate in spite of the low prices. What may have to happen is that nothing particular takes place, and so after a marginal farmer goes out, neighbors will farm them, again on a marginal basis.

The Administration seems to think right now that we have too much production, and that the best way is just to do nothing. They'll starve, quiet farming in a limited base, maybe with the landlords giving a higher state in the tenant to get him to farm it. I don't really know exactly what's going to take place.

I talked to one the other day, who just said, "What are we going to do?" He said, "Good! I made enough to buy the farm, and got the farm paid for, but he said, I can laugh it out for four or five years myself, but I've got my son on here and he may not."

You know, the problem is they get wives, and wives see the neighbors have a better car and nicer clothes and have more time off and work in a job in town. This is the problem.

Q: The economy really forces the farmer out. Doesn't it?

A: Probably. When you have to buy new machinery and a $60,000 tractor, you're not able to do it.

Q: I had a fellow in my area who said, "I'm a farmer in the valley, who says that he feels that over the next 10 or 15 years, the whole valley will change as a result of this. There are going to be fewer farms. Anyone who is marginal in terms of economics, land, water or electric costs is going to be gone. The only ones left are going to be large operations, of say 2,000 to 3,000 acres. People will then be working 12 to 16 hours a week for six bucks an hour or they are going to have to move out of the area. He says it's an end of an era. Do you think he's right?"

A: I don't know. I have a hunch that that's a thought that's gone through my mind. Fellows like Jack Stimput and people like Standard Oil, who have tried the big farming, and have simply have not been able to make it. They made some money in a more limited area, and they've quit farming. In other

Barker: Agriculture will remain primary industry for Idaho

'For the most part, I think the banks have tried to go along, if the farmers are pretty good operators, but sometimes they're just too deeply in debt... and then the banks just say we won't loan you any more, other than for current operations.'

When I first went into the Legislature, the Idaho Education Association was more a professional organization, but their younger members wanted them to be more militant. All of a sudden, you've got a different Legislature who just says "we're not going to go for these things." As a result, there are going to be some changes made.

Q: Like what?

A: Well, there are some improvements to the Negotiations Act that we have tried from time to time to get passed. In a way, we got some things passed in House Bill 475 last year, such as the career ladder. Before, you never could get consideration, and sometimes, you couldn't get the bills introduced.

Q: You had some people think Idaho people support education. Is it that they don't support this unionization activity and that they have turned against it?

A: Yes, I'd say a number of people think that it has become strong. The Right to Work movement, gets back to education. It would have a limited effect on the public schools and the IEA, but the message is there. There are some teachers who will say, "You're not going to hold out any dyes on me." They're general education system. I guess the one that really hurt me the worst was the Hinkley they were having a march on the state capital. They were having a march on the state capital and I talked to them. I said, "I have a notion to go out and tell them that in nine of the previous 10 years, the Legislature had appropriated more than the governor had recommended. Nine out of 10 years. And that we were in a very tough situation that year and it looked like there was going to be my more money.

Well, I went out there and they booed me. Afterwards, they said they wanted to smooth things over as best they could. I just let the thing pass. I could have said, "I'm now on, I'm never going to help education. But that's not the way they thought. With the IEA, you would come and talk with me about various things. If there was something that I really thought ought to be done, I would try to do it.

Q: So you participated in your mind your support for education versus the support for that particular organization, the IEA?

A: That's right.

Q: Let's change subjects. What do you think

It's occurred to me the golden years of revenue are over. They really were over in 1979 only we really didn't recognize that. When people 'in their wisdom' voted the One Percent tax limitation act in Idaho they slowed down their property taxes but they really caused problems that I think may take 20 years to solve.

Draft resister loses in court

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government today lost a court case seeking only those young men who professed their intent to register for the military draft was upheld Tuesday by the Supreme Court. By a 7-2 vote, the justices said the former policy did not violate free expression rights by selective prosecution.

The decision cleared the way for federal prosecution of David Alan Wayne, a 24-year-old former Yale University student from Pasadena, Calif. Wayne, who had published his resistance to military draft registration by writing letters to President Reagan or to the Selective Service, was not punished in this case because he was not punished dissent. Wayne's lawyer, Mark Rosenbaum of Los Angeles, said he was stunned and disappointed by the decision. "I think that what they (federal prosecutors) were punishing in this case was non-compliance with the law, they were punishing dissent," he said.

ANDREW WILSON (AP) — A Washington-based U.S. lawyer today admitted he had helped export $1 million worth of high-technology equipment to Iran. He said he had done so to help the Iranian government pay for its oil and gas bills. Grand jury may hear Goetz case again

NEW YORK (AP) — A state judge today ordered that evidence gathered in a case against a young man charged with shooting a subway gunman be submitted to a grand jury for a second hearing. The judge said the evidence was not submitted to a grand jury for a second hearing because it was not submitted to a grand jury for a second hearing.

Goetz, however, does not face any charges which carry a death penalty. Goetz, 37, admits he shot the Bronx teen-agers but says it was in self-defense. He was not among the more than 400 spectators who packed the courtroom during Tuesday's 75-minute hearing. Joseph Kerner, one of Goetz's attorneys, told the judge that while this is not technically double jeopardy, there is something un-American about changing a person before a grand jury two times, then three times, then four and five.

Financial reporter outlines scheme

NEW YORK (AP) — Former Wall Street Journal reporter R. Foster Winans portended himself today as a tempter, contrasting the rich lifestyle he tasted on the job with his financial problems. Winans, 36, is on trial along with his roommate David Carpenter and a former Lockheed Martin Corp. executive for a scheme to use Winans' position at the Journal to make quick profits in the stock market.

The government contends that in early 1983, Winans decided to take advantage of those price swings by buying stocks he knew would be the subject of favorable reports. Though he made some small profits, he was hampered by a lack of capital. He allegedly approached Brant in October 1983 and offered to give him tips on upcoming columns in return for a share of the profits.

Haydon interview delayed

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — An official heart patient, Murray P. Haydon's return to a coronary care unit will indefinitely delay his first interview with reporters, a hospital spokesman said Tuesday. Haydon's condition remained unchanged at serious but stable after a shortness of breath prompted doctors to return him Monday night from a private room to the coronary unit in Humana Hospital Audubon.

Haydon was "much better" Tuesday after sleeping well with the help of a respirator, said Robert Irvine, a spokesman for Humana Inc. Irvine said Monday that Haydon would be able to meet with reporters and photographers soon after implant surgeon William C. DeVries removed nutritional tubes from his nose, but the spokesman later said those plans were being postponed.

Iranian missile kills 14

By The Associated Press

Baghdad, Iraq, said a Baghdad neighborhood with a ground-to-air missile Tuesday night was hit by an Iranian missile, killing 14 people and demolishing four houses.

Iraq said its warplanes struck five Iranian cities Tuesday.

Hundreds of foreigners left Tehran on special flights hours before the Iraqi deadline for safe passage through Iranian airspace.

The Baghdad government threatened to shoot down commercial airliners over Iran starting Tuesday afternoon.

Prime Minister Hussein Musavi of Iraq called the Iraqi threat "insane" and said Iranian missiles would destroy Baghdad's airport if the threat is carried out.

Iranian military commanders said their troops had driven the Iranian invasion force from the southern border marshes except for the area around oil-rich Majnoon Island, and took journalists on a tour of the area.

Iran seized Majnoon in a similar incident in February 1984.

Tehran radio, quoted Iran's Supreme Defense Council as saying Baghdad will be turned into "a pile of rubble for its rulers" if Iraqi raids on Iranian cities continue.

Leaders of 12 countries in the Persian Gulf said they were prepared to send a mediation team to both Baghdad and Tehran in a new effort to end the 4½-year-old war.

Kuwait's foreign minister, Sheikh Sabah al-Ahmed, flew to Baghdad with offers for after contacts with Algeria, an Arab country that has close ties with non-Arab Iran.

Iraqi officials refused to say anything about the explosion in Baghdad, but Iran claimed it was caused by the fourth long-range missile it fired into the city in five days. Iraq also made no statement about an explosion Monday, but blamed the first two on saboteurs' bombs.

LONDON (AP) — The government Tuesday unveiled its tight 1985-86 budget and said the current year's deficit had risen by $1.13 billion because of the coal miners' strike.

Prime Minister Nigel Lawson, dressed in a tuxedo, rejected opposition demands to increase spending to combat near-record unemployment. He insisted the Conservative government would not waver from its anti-inflationary policies.

The budget cuts the spending to $11.5 billion for the fiscal year beginning in April. That would be about 5 percent more than the current budget, roughly matching the inflation rate. It also would be $7.98 billion more than the government expects to take in.

Lawson also said this year's projected deficit had risen from $2.2 billion to nearly $2.4 billion, and he blamed all but $70 million of that on the year-long coal strike that ended March 5.

Lawson said the budget would hold down state spending and cut unemployment benefits by 13.7 percent of the work force compared to 6 percent when Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher took office.

Quito, Ecuador (AP) — Geologists quoted experts Tuesday as saying intense heat from a raging volcano fire could spark a volcanic eruption on the largest island of the Galapagos chain, where Charles Darwin gathered evidence for his theory of natural selection.

The government of Ecuador, which controls the archipelago 800 miles off its coast, said it would ask the United Nations to send special aircraft to fight the fire that has ravaged Isabela Island for three weeks.

Factions fighting in Lebanon

SIDON, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanese army forces and Christian militiamen who joined the revolt against President Amin Gemayel battled Tuesday with mortars, rocket-propelled grenades and machine guns in this southern Lebanese city.

Police and hospital sources said at least five people were killed, including two soldiers. At least 39 people were reported wounded, including nine soldiers.

Fighting started Monday in Sidon between Shiite and Sunni Muslim militiamen and the Christian Lebanese Forces, who have rebelled against the Gemayel leadership. The army moved in to stop the fighting and became involved.

The sound of explosions and heavy machine-gun fire could be heard across the city, the provincial capital of southern Lebanon.

Families could be seen fleeing the Christian-held areas during the shelling. Schools and shops were closed throughout the city.

The fighting in Sidon started after Christian militia carried to the predominantly Muslim city joined the rebellion led by Lebanese Forces commander Samir Geagea.

Geagea and his supporters last week took control of most of the Christian areas north of Beirut, challenging the pro-Christian policies of President Gemayel.

The president is head of the Christian Phalange Party.

The rebellion in the Christian camp posed a new threat to Gemayel who has been trying to prevent fighting between Lebanon's Christians and Muslims.

Prime Minister Rashid Al-Tamam said he has warned that the revolt could force Gemayel to resign and cause resumption of civil war in the country.

Syria, which backs Gemayel, has moved troops and armored vehicles to the fringes of the Christian areas north of Beirut.

Kirkpatrick hits U.S. foreign aid

LONDON (AP) — Jeane Kirkpatrick, the U.S. ambassador to the United Nations, Tuesday criticized the allocation of American foreign aid to unfriendly countries.

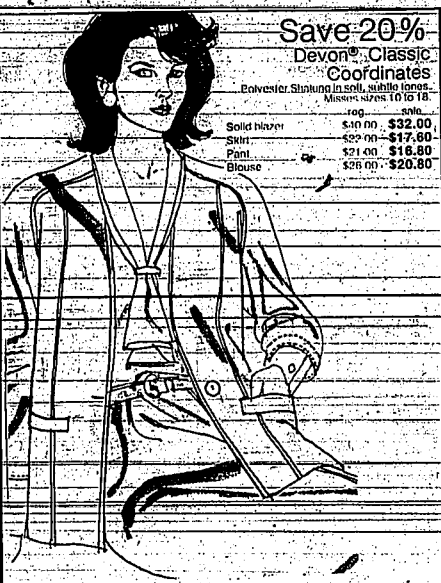

Kirkpatrick also said the United States and the West have failed to counter effectively the Soviet Union's penetration of the Third World and said it was the responsibility of every independent nation "to help those people who are suffering."

Mrs. Kirkpatrick, who has resigned from her U.N. post effective April 1 to return to teaching career in Washington, spoke on Third World rivalry in the context of East-West rivalry to a conference on "Communism and Liberal Democracy."

PYGMY PERSPECTIVE

Pygmies normally live their entire lives in the forest. They have no reason to gauge the sizes of things at great distances, so never learn to do so. One scientist, taken by a scientist to a mountain top, thought a faraway herd of buffalo were insects and could not be convinced otherwise. A fishing boat on a distant lake, he insisted, was nothing more than a chip of wood.

So you thought the longest creature on earth was some sort of whale? Likewise, in 1883, a New England's Cape Ann, a jellyfish washed ashore. It measured 245 feet from tentacle tip to tentacle tip. And no lengthier feast has ever been recorded.

The man, apparently believing the little boy was getting a shock from loosened his grip on Mrs. Roland and she broke away. Abel said: "With that 6-year-old, you better believe him — he's been around guns all his life." Abel said, Jimmy's actions "in all likelihood, saved every one of those people's lives." Abel said the boy's grandfather is on the sheriff's department reserve squad "and that whole family has been taught how to handle guns safely since they were little." "They're not a bunch of gun nuts," he said. "They're just average working people that taught their child safety with guns from the time they were real little, because there are guns in that home and there are in most of the homes around here."

Alexander, 29, of Tishomingo, and Joshua Shane Baldwin, 16, of Norman, were arrested near the Roland home, Abel said. Douglas Wayne Humphreys, 19, of Norman, was arrested later at a street address where he went to inquire about the other two, he said. All three were being held on complaints of conspiracy to commit burglary and attempted first-degree burglary. Alexander was also jailed on a complaint of carrying a dangerous weapon. Baldwin and Humphreys were briefly jailed from a jailer, Abel said.

Q. What's the best-attended sports event in the United States? A. The Indianapolis 500. Averaging 400,000 people.

PYGMY PERSPECTIVE

Pygmies normally live their entire lives in the forest. They have no reason to gauge the sizes of things at great distances, so never learn to do so. One's lunch, taken by a scientist to a mountainside, thought by a hermit of buffalo were insects and could not be convinced otherwise. A fishing boat on a distant lake, he insisted, was nothing more than a chip of wood.

So you thought the longest creature on earth was some sort of whale? Likewise. No. In 1885, at New England's Cape Ann, a jellyfish washed ashore. It measured 245 feet from tentacle tip to tentacle tip. And so lengthy beast has ever been recorded.

Andrews aids international relief effort

DALLAS (AP) — Actress Julie Andrews is working with Dallas civic leaders on an international relief effort that would send 100,000 pounds of rice to needy people around the world.

The new organization, called Operation Caliente, will be patterned after Operation Caliente in Mexico, which is supported by the Andrews and fundraising activities by the California entertainment community.

Since its founding in 1979, Operation Caliente has sent $34 million in supplies to five continents, said Richard Valdes, its president.

"Julie Andrews visited Dallas last weekend to help in planning the project and a benefit gala in March 1982."

Crosby signs up for working women's IRA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Kathryn Crosby, widow of entertainer Bing Crosby, was the first person to open a new Individual Retirement Account (IRA) for working women. She opted for higher interest rates for women.

Mrs. Crosby was the first of 90 women to open new IRAs Monday at Continental Savings of America, depositing $2,000 in an account that will earn 11.5 percent interest.

"We need to recognize working women, and there's a great market out there," said Walter Lembi, the firm's president.

Men receive only 11 percent interest on their IRAs, and California civil rights officials are investigating the program to see whether provisions are needed to recognize working women, and there's a great market out there," said Walter Lembi, the firm's president.

Race car driver takes plunge in snowmobile

BASALT, Colo. (AP) — Wally Dallenbach Jr. says he has had some close calls in six years as a race car driver, but nothing can compare to his 100-foot plunge down an embankment in a snowmobile this week.

Dallenbach, 32, son of Indianapolis 500 driver Wally Dallenbach Sr., was injured in the accident Monday, but his companion, Brian Shanks, 50, was hospitalized with broken ribs and a kidney injury.

He said he lost control of the machine, flew off the steep embankment and landed in snow clear of the snowmobile.

Shanks hit the same dry patch and

Ambassador to Iraq knighted by Queen

LONDON (AP) — Britain's former ambassador to Iraq, Sir John Moberly, was knighted by Queen Elizabeth II on Tuesday and said after the ceremony he was anguished over the suffering caused by the Gulf War.

"I feel very distressed for the people we have left behind," Moberly told reporters outside Buckingham Palace.

Moberly, 59, who served three years in Baghdad, returned to Britain a week ago on the eve of the latest flare-up in Iraq's 4-year war with Iran. He retired last May.

"I'm afraid that the war may go on for some time yet," he said. "But the Iraqis are much more confident that they can hang on as long as it takes."

Pizza magnate throws bash in London

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Former Gov. and Willy Telsen and his wife have chartered a Concordo airplane to fly to their birthday party in London. Telsen, 73, and his wife, 71, will fly from Omaha to London to celebrate the couple's birthdays.

The estimated cost of the round-trip charter flight is $200,000 more than the $100,000 Telsen, founder of the Godfather's Pizza chain, has made out in profit from the superprofit flight to London to the time it was that London.

"Always, will fly from Omaha to New York at a subone," Telsen said before pizza chain, "has made out in profit from the superprofit flight to London to the time it was that London."

Former EPA official blasts cutoff of pollution research

WASHINGTON (AP) — The subcommittee members and by witnesses from Yale University, the Environmental Policy Institute and the Consumer Federation of America. They were reacting to the administration's decision to seek no money in fiscal 1986 for basic research into indoor air quality problems. Such studies, which the EPA says are not required by law, are now funded by $2 million that Congress placed into this year's budget.

Dowd said "any consideration of the potential for exposure to toxins in the environment, where most of us spend most of our lives makes it

Summit talk possible

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz may meet with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko when they attend a ceremony in Vienna on May 15 to mark the 30th anniversary of a treaty ending the occupation of Austria.

A State Department official, speaking on the condition that he remain anonymous, said Tuesday that any such meeting was likely to focus on the possibility of a summit between President Reagan and the new Soviet leader, Mikhail Gorbachev.

"What else is there," the official asked. "We've got the arms control talks. We have the invitation for a summit outstanding. That strikes me as eminently logical."

U.S. State Department press counselor at the Austrian Embassy said Tuesday that Shultz and Gromyko, as well as the foreign ministers of France, Britain, Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Italy, Yugoslavia, Switzerland, and other United Nations and European dignitaries, have accepted the invitation to attend some of them.

State Department spokesman Bernard Kalb said there was currently "no set plan" for a Shultz-Gromyko meeting "but I would imagine that if the secretary talks with the Soviet foreign minister, it's something that you would rule out."

Kalb recalled that at the 25th anniversary celebration, then-Secretary of State Edmund Muskie met with Gromyko.

ludicrous to refuse even to do any research on this issue.

Rep. Claudine Schneider, R-N.J., said recent studies have shown that high levels of such pollutants as benzene, chloroform and tobacco smoke in the home are contributing factors in about half the illnesses in the nation.

"When you consider that the average American spends 70 percent of his or her time inside, you realized that exposure to indoor air pollutants is a health factor for the overwhelming major of Americans," she said.

Dr. Jan A. Spalivik of Yale's School of Medicine said indoor air pollution is becoming a "larger and larger" problem in terms of its total impact on the nation's health.

He said the administration proposal "clearly is a highly inappropriate reduction" because research into indoor air quality "is in a pitiful condition."

BLM may patrol fossil beds

Keeping bikes off the bones

By PAC MARGANTONIO Times-News writer

HAGERMAN — To prevent further damage to the Hagerman fossil beds this spring and summer, the Bureau of Land Management will attempt to keep bikes off the bones.

The 4,187-acre area, also known as the Hagerman National Natural Landmark, probably will be patrolled this spring and summer by motorcycle-riding rangers from designated trails, said Ted Weasna, a geologist with the bureau's Boise office. The patrolman also will attempt to educate motorcycleists about the need to stay on the approved trails. To aid education, more trail signs will be raised. If education doesn't work, the employee will cite those who ride off the designated trails.

Recreationists who used the area had complained they couldn't tell which trails were approved by the bureau, which manages public lands from those created by cattle or other motorcycleists.

Signs of damage caused by motorcycleists who had created new trails was the impetus for the bureau's action. The area is not only a valuable historical area but has been a popular recreation site since the 1940s.

In the past, the bureau didn't have the funds to enforce its restrictions on off-road vehicle use. This year, the bureau has money to patrol the area, Weasna said. The paleontological value of the fossil beds also was a factor in spending money to protect the area, he added.

More than 30 sites of animal fossils about 3 million years old have been identified in the area, which is internationally known.

While the patrol and additional signs are short-term solutions, the bureau plans a study of off-road vehicle use in the fossil beds, Weasna said. The study has to wait, however. The bureau staff was busy preparing a federally mandated plan for the 1.7-million-acre Jarbridge Reclamation project. The plan will identify the resources of the area and how they should be managed for the next 20 years. In the larger proposal, grazing fossil beds. Motorcycle organizations will be asked to comment, Weasna said. The study will include recommendations about continued vehicle use. The resource area manager will prepare the final decision, Weasna said. The bureau already has received 16 letters in favor of prohibiting off-road vehicles in the fossil bed area. The letters came from groups such as the Sierra Club, the Idaho Department of Parks and Recreation and Idaho Museum of Natural History. They felt the fossil beds deserved better protection, Weasna said. Three letters were received in favor of no restrictions on the land. One letter was from the Magic Valley Trail Machine Association, which initially asked for a meeting with the Bureau of Land Management. So EDA "has no property management interest" in the current project proposal, he wrote. Mayor Gene Heller told the city council Monday the way is now clear for transfer of the property from state to city ownership. Gooding agreed to buy the building and surrounding 5.5 acres for $100,000 late last year and city officials say they're hopeful construction can start this summer on the project to transform the 35

Until this year, the BLM lacked the money to enforce its restrictions on off-road vehicles

No arrests in cocaine case expected soon

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A U.S. District attorney in Boise said Tuesday he does not expect any further drug arrests in Twin Falls soon in connection with the Mitchell Campbell case.

Campbell, 36, was arrested March 5 in Twin Falls after he allegedly made several drug transactions with an undercover federal agent working on drug investigations in the local area over a two-year period. He is charged with distributing cocaine.

The arrest of Campbell, who is in custody in Boise, brought reports that the mostly cross-the-area residential, some prominent citizens, might face grand jury indictments.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel Hawkey said Tuesday that speculation in Twin Falls that pointed to some specific individuals and, in fact, that only might be a slow-down in efforts by federal agents for further arrests. However, he said, this does not mean that any people who faced possible prosecution originally are any less likely to face it in the future.

"Just because someone opened his mouth about the case won't mean anyone who might have been prosecuted will escape that possibility. Because the statements were made and circulated, we are trying to avoid any appearance of impropriety involving the grand jury system," he said.

"I can't confirm or deny that there is or is not a grand jury investigation currently underway involving other (suspects)," Hawkey said. "I can only say that we do not expect any more arrests in your area in the immediate future."

The attorney said negotiations are underway between Campbell, his attorney and federal attorneys. He said Campbell may waive grand jury indictment and enter a plea or charges agreed to through the negotiations.

If an agreement is not reached between Campbell, his attorney and the prosecution, Hawkey said, then Campbell will face indictment on the federal charges against him. When negotiations are completed, he said, he and other authorities will look at the information and determine how to dispose of the Campbell case.

Hawkey also said he does not expect any action against people who may have made such statements. He said he believes they were innocently made because few people realize the secrecy that surrounds grand juries.

Earlier Hawkey said an inventory of people whose telephones were tapped during the investigation that led to Campbell's arrest, and who could be identified as calling people on taped telephones has been drawn up. These people are not necessarily suspects in the drug activities, local officials said, but they may want to know their conversations were recorded.

Library expansion options considered

By ANNETTE CARY Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Public Library Board will consider other ways to expand the library this week, the city and the Reformers Church of America cannot decide on a price for church land adjoining the library.

Councilman Erik Andersen said at the Monday city council meeting that the library has presented the church with "what we thought was a rather substantial offer." They wanted 25 percent more. The consensus of the library board was that was more than they wanted. After at the time.

Becky, the library's continuing negotiations with the church, figures are not being released, he said. A year ago the city offered $90,000 for the church property at the corner of Fourth Avenue East and Second Street East. The church countered with an offer of $135,000.

The board is investigating three additional ways to expand the library. Andersen said. Possibly the best alternative would be to start a system of satellite libraries throughout the city. Andersen said. The city would purchase half-centuries old buildings that could be improved around town to temporary locations such as shopping centers or left in more permanent locations.

Carroll's "jacks would make the property hard to find. If one person would be needed for each, that's additional shell space to relieve expected crowding in the main building. The city also could consider buying the property behind the library from the three or four families who own it in earlier talks. The families indicated they would at least consider selling Andersen said.

A third alternative would be to sell the present building and find a new site large enough for a bigger building. A parking lot would have to be built. The library collection is growing. See COUNCIL on Page B2.

Title on old Gooding hospital cleared

By JANE BUCKWAY and The Associated Press

BOISE — The title to the vacant Gooding tuberculosis hospital is now clear. Records of a $115,383 Economic Development Administration grant surfaced two months ago when Gooding applied for an EDA grant to provide sewer and water service to the correction facility now being planned for the site.

The grant was established in 1977 to provide sewer lines for a then-proposed women's correctional facility at the state owned hospital but was never awarded. EDA notified the State Department of Lands in February of the "local public works grant" and told state officials the federal grant would need to be reimbursed at "fair market value." In the event the property was transferred from state ownership or sold to a private party.

However, in a letter prepared March 14, John D. Woodward, acting regional director of EDA told state land director Stan Hamilton that a check of the archive record showed the 1977 sewer project was not done because the women's prison project was abandoned. So EDA "has no property management interest" in the current project proposal, he wrote. Mayor Gene Heller told the city council Monday the way is now clear for transfer of the property from state to city ownership. Gooding agreed to buy the building and surrounding 5.5 acres for $100,000 late last year and city officials say they're hopeful construction can start this summer on the project to transform the 35

Council postpones final decision on Greyhawk

By DAVE LEWIS Times-News writer

KETCHUM — A final decision on the Greyhawk hotel project in Ketchum was postponed for at least one and maybe two weeks to give the city more time to prepare its findings on the project.

Although the Ketchum City Council rejected the project under the city's review process for planned unit developments, the project "is technically all within the current code's findings of facts and conclusions of law" required by Idaho statutes.

These findings are not yet compiled and the council will hold a special hearing 10 a.m. Monday to review them. It also will hold another hearing a week later to give the developer of the project, Daon Development Corp., a chance to respond to those findings.

Jim Phillips, city attorney, told the council Monday the findings were not yet prepared because his typist was not available to complete the document. The representative, Dick Denton, asked the council if it is improper for his client to present an alternative.

More drug arrests in Jerome

By JANE BUCKWAY Times-News writer

JEROME — For the second time in the past few days, Jerome City Police reported several drug arrests and confiscation of marijuana and a substance tentatively identified as cocaine.

Police Sgt. Lonny Meadows said Tuesday that Barbara Mann, 27, and her husband, Carl Mann, 29, were charged with two felony counts including possession of marijuana for sale and delivery of a controlled substance. The two were arrested about 8:25 p.m. Monday at their residence, 408 E. Fourth St., in Jerome.

Meadows said about one pound of marijuana as well as drug paraphernalia were taken from the home. He declined to elaborate on why officers suspected drugs were in the Mann home.

He said a powder, possibly cocaine, also was confiscated by officers and taken to a laboratory for analysis. Three other suspects, he said, were taken into custody on misdemeanor charges of frequenting a place where drugs were in evidence and with possession of marijuana. The three were released on their own recognizance while the Manns were in custody, pending arraignment.

On Saturday Jerome city officers arrested two Eden men and a 17-year-old youth following a traffic stop in which 3.6 ounces of marijuana was taken from their vehicle. Meadows said there was no connection between the two incidents.

Roberts wants renewed concern for POWs and MIAs

By DEAN S. MILLER Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "Somewhere in southeast Asia, in 'tiger cage' prisoner of war units or unmarked graves, 4,463 American servicemen await freedom or shipping to a home, cemetery," according to Twin Falls veteran Paul Roberts.

Roberts, who served as an Army paratrooper "in Europe between January 1973 and February 1977," has started a "Roberts" awareness campaign here in Twin Falls as the local representative of the National League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia.

The group was formed after the Vietnam War to bring pressure on American and Vietnamese politicians to find missing American soldiers or send proof of their death to their families. According to the League's statistics, 12 of the unaccounted for soldiers are Idahoans.

Based in Idaho, Roberts is circulating informational brochures and petitions. The petitions ask the Vietnamese ambassador to the United States to fulfill a February 1994 commitment to accelerate efforts to account for U.S. servicemen and civilians still missing in Vietnam.

"While we are thankful for the men you have returned, we are distressed that efforts by your government and people have not yet resulted in the return, possible accounting for our men, in the name of humanity, please move swiftly to end the uncertainty of the families in this country who await word on their loved ones," the petition says. Roberts says he and other League petitioners send their filled petitions to the ambassador 20 signatures at a time by certified mail. The Vietnamese are supposed to give public opinion and will be influenced by a steady stream of petitions, he says.

"This thing always bugged me, what if I had gone over there?" Roberts says. "I decided I could read and go 'Wow, or I could at least do something about it,'" he says.

Roberts, who is now in his second year at Idaho State University, says the missing American soldiers are a humanitarian issue, not a political one. "You don't leave your guys behind," he says.

Though the Vietnamese government claims to have accounted for all missing American soldiers, reports of "Americans" being held in cages are common. Roberts says 1973 has filtered back to the United States with the Southeast Asian refugees immigrating to America.

"If the Vietnamese are giving it to us straight, why are there still reports like this?" Roberts asks.

The United States government has only recently started to take action, he says. Former President Richard M. Nixon and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger made the mistake of accepting the Vietnamese accounting of missing soldiers and the name of the current President Jimmy Carter tried to bury the issue, Roberts says.

Heyburn man in custody for auto theft, leaving accident

JEROME — A Heyburn man was in custody in the Jerome County Jail Tuesday charged with two counts of auto theft, leaving the scene of an accident on a suspended license and leaving the scene of an accident.
 Jerome County Sheriff Bill Hill and Deputy Jeff Poole said the charges resulted from an early morning traffic accident on Highway 20. A local bank just off the highway was the scene of an accident.
 Scott Warren Fairchild, 47, was awaiting arraignment late Tuesday after allegedly taking two cars, one of them the property of Montgomery-owned by Montgomery, was abandoned high center on a pile of irrigation ditches.
 Poole said since other Jerome county officers were busy with the accident investigation, he called for assistance from Twin Falls County officers and a search of the area began. Officers later located the suspect hiding in a straw stack on the Montgomery farm.
 Poole said the suspect, who was driven by Fairchild at the time of the initial accident, was stationed on the Interstate which collided with the left rear of a 1987 truck.
 The car, a 1977 two-door sedan, "swayed left, crossed the highway, and both westbound traffic lanes and burst into flames."
 The car was registered in Mary Lou Carter of Rupert. When contacted she told officers she believed it was parked in the parking lot of the potato processing plant where she worked nights. He admitted she left the keys and her purse, containing $300 in the car.
 Loss of the vehicle was estimated at $1,500 to $2,000. Officers said Fairchild escaped with facial cuts and the truck driver, Mark Vaughn of Missoula, Mont., was uninjured.

Then the library will have to eliminate more space from circulation areas that are already inadequate on busy days, they said.
 Also at the meeting Monday, the council deferred a $100 filing fee for the Idaho-Neighbors Network. The group is preparing a proposed change to the zoning ordinance restricting storage of hazardous materials within city limits.
 The change would prohibit hazardous materials from being stored closer than 200 feet from a residence. A 100-foot wide buffer zone was required in addition.
 The network will next take the proposal before the city Planning and Zoning Commission.
 The council made decisions on several zoning matters at the meeting. It passed recommendations made by the Planning and Zoning Commission to change zoning regulations and the zoning map to conform to use on three pieces of land.
 That included extending the professional overlay on Shoup Avenue West to include all "Professional" offices, changing all three lots owned by Bowers left, crossed the highway, and both westbound traffic lanes and burst into flames."

 Heller said Buckingham Vice President Joe Renton plans to be in Gooding March 27 to sign the final contract and make other arrangements.
 Renton is paying $100,000 down as part of the $100,000 purchase price for the hospital facility.
 And Heller said the concept of privately operated prisons apparently is catching on nationally.
 "We have three others standing out there with their checkbooks if Buckingham falls through," the mayor said.
 Heller and Gooding City Council President Bob Moline were in Boise Tuesday to meet with the state Land Board and work out final details of a contract that will allow the state to transfer the site to the city, which in turn plans to sell it to Buckingham Securities Ltd., a Pennsylvania company.

 lot-and-block subdivision of the project to the planning department while the original plans still active.
 Since the council's original rejection of the planned-unit development as the primary reason the council rejected the project is a seemingly unsolvable with traffic problem on the Warm Springs Road, the only access to the site in narrow Warm Springs Canyon.
 The council rejected Daon's traffic study's conclusion that with proper measures the traffic situation could actually be improved when the hotel is built.
 To lessen the traffic problem, Daon agreed to give the city $2.7 million to improve the road to provide downtown parking for skiers and buses to take them to the lifts.
 Monday, Assistant City Planner Garth McClure presented the council with a summary of the city's own traffic study, conducted by Bell-Walker Engineers of Seattle.
 McClure said the conclusion of the city's study is the Daon study's peak traffic counts on the road. The reports show the road is now at or above its capacity at peak traffic periods, he said.
 Councilman Tom Held, a supporter of the project, questioned the timing of the report since the project is apparently heading for defeat.
 "It's interesting that we get this after the vote. It doesn't do any good now," he said.
 Fenton asked if the new report considered the $2.7 million of impact fees meant to offset the traffic problem on the road.
 However, before he could get an answer, Mayor Jerry Seligert ended the discussion until the city and Daon has time to review the report.

Housing construction plunges in February

By MARTIN CRUZINGER The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Housing construction fell 11 percent in February, the biggest decline in almost a year, the government said Tuesday.

The Commerce Department report said construction of new homes dropped to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.64 million units last month, easing most of a 12.9 percent increase in January.

The swings in both months came from changes in apartment-construction activity. In February, the number of units planned for 36.7 percent in February.

Housing analysts credited part of the January increase to a rush by builders to get projects started under current tax laws rather than face the possible loss of certain tax breaks the administration has targeted for elimination in its reform proposal.

Speculation about tax reform has created a great deal of uncertainty among investors. In the past have invested in rental housing projects, said John Koelme, president of the National Association of Home Builders.

The big decline in apartment construction swamped a healthy 5.3 percent increase in construction of single-family homes in February, which put single-family activity at an annual rate of 1.1 million units, the highest level since last May. But analysts expected construction could be threatened by rising mortgage rates.

Mortgage rates had been declining for seven consecutive months, hitting a low of 8.77 percent, on average, for fixed-rate loans in early February before they began heading higher.

We are concerned that the upward drift in rates in recent weeks could begin to affect housing starts in the next few months," said Warren Casso, executive vice president of the Mortgage Bankers Association.

But Michael Wilson, assistant director of research for the U.S. League of Savings Institutions, said the slight 0.2 percentage point rise in mortgage rates in recent weeks will not dampen demand significantly.

Home buyers have seen relative stability in rates for the past two months and they think it's probably not a bad time to get into the market," he said. "The housing market is still in good shape."

Commerce Secretary Malcolm Baldrige also predicted the housing industry would enjoy a good year of growth in 1985 with starts totaling 1.7 million units, an increase from the 1.75 million units started in 1984.

Baldrige noted that the January-February average for building activity was 9.0 percent above the level in the final three months of last year.

The biggest drop in building activity occurred in the Midwest, where housing starts fell 36.1 percent to an annual rate of 177,000 units in February. This was the lowest annual rate in this region since December 1982, just as the country began pulling out of the recession.

Housing activity was down 11.1 percent in the South and off 9 percent in the West. The Northeast was the only region to show an increase of 14.7 percent in February over the January level. Applications for new building permits also fell in February, dropping 4.7 percent to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 1.6 million units. This was the biggest decline in permits since a 13 percent drop last July.

In another housing indicator, the Mortgage Bankers Association said the rate of home foreclosures fell during the final three months of 1984 after hitting a record high last summer.

The association said foreclosure proceedings were started on 0.24 percent of all mortgages included in its latest survey, a low not seen since before the 1981-82 recession.

The foreclosure rate had hit a record 0.25 percent in the third quarter. The association attributed the improvement to better economic conditions including a general rise in household prosperity in the final three months of the year.

Gold's price rocket gives stocks a ride

By COTTEN TIMBERLAKE The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Stock prices surged late in active trading on Monday, as the falling dollar and the rocketing price of gold sparked interest in buying analysis said.

The market's best-known indicator put in its best one-day performance in two months. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks jumped 21.47 points to 1,291.67 for its best single-day gain since a 34.01-point jump on Jan. 21.

Gainers outpaced losers by 2-to-1 on the New York Stock Exchange. The market's advance was "a flipping up" in an overall market, said Larry Wachtel of Prudential-Bache Securities Inc.

Of the blue chips, IBM was up 2 1/4, at 130 1/4, AM rose 2 1/4 to 84 1/4 and Merck was up 1 1/4 at 10 1/4. Broadcast issues were up for a second day on enthusiasm about the proposed $3.5 billion merger between ABC and Capital Cities Communications, which was announced Monday.

ABC was one of the most actively traded issues on the Big Board, up 1 1/4 at 47 1/4. Capital Cities' stock whose trading was delayed for over an hour because of an order imbalance, shot up 19 1/2 to 20 1/4.

RCA, which owns the NBC television network, also was actively traded, up 1 1/2 at CBS was up 3 1/4 at 98.

Storer Communications jumped 5 1/4 to 70 1/4. A group of stockholders told the Federal Communications Commission Monday that they plan to stage a proxy fight to elect members to the company's board of directors, with the purpose of selling off the company's seven TV stations.

Among precious metal issues, ASARCO rose 3 1/4 to 55, Homestake was up 2 1/4 at 27 and Hecla Mining was up 1 1/4 at 10 1/4.

Among metals issues, Campbell Red Lake Mines rose 2 1/4 to 21 1/4. Asarco was up 1 1/4 at 26 1/4. Alcoa was up 1 1/4 at 34 1/4, and Dome Mining was up 1 1/4 to 9 1/4.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 140,525 million shares. Big Board volume totaled 119.15 million shares, against 94.02 million in the previous session. The NYSE's composite index rose 1.40 to 103.91. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up 1.51 at 224.65.

Ways to make traveling abroad easier

If you are among the 6 million Americans planning to travel to Europe this year, you'll be competing with a record number of travelers heading from every part of the United States to the same places in Europe.

Get on your mark! Get set! And go! The State Department estimates it will issue 5.4 million passports in 1985 alone, up a full 13 percent over 1984's record. The future is starting over if you go to a passport agency early in the morning to get in the long lines of people already waiting for their passports to be issued — and spring is still to come.

If you apply for your passport at your local post office or passport office, you must wait time for your application to reach the Passport Agency. You might be one of the lucky ones, but don't bet on it: The strength of the dollar — which is encouraging bargain hunters to join the adventures — is a factor to be considered.

A new passport costs $5 if you're 18 or older, plus a $7 application fee. Passports issued to applicants under 18 cost $20. If you're a first-timer, you must apply in person, either at a Passport Agency or at a local post office or court. If you're renewing and were issued a passport within the past eight years, you can manage the whole process by mail, and you need not pay the $7 application fee for over an hour because if an order imbalance, shot up 19 1/2 to 20 1/4.

Even as you must get an early start on passports, you also must get moving on your travel arrangements. Make your reservations now, urges the European Travel Commission, headquartered in New York, as well as industry experts.

One bit of good news is in the obvious areas, beckon the advertisements over many years are catching up to vacationers under the impetus of our powerful dollar. But wherever you go, your first step almost surely will be the American embassy or consulate.

Many of you still think in the old-fashioned way that you should get a list of local attorneys and will offer to notify your family. But American diplomats cannot spring you from jail, serve as your lawyer or intervene in the legal process.

People often forget that when they go from our country to another, they are subject to American law. A State Department spokeswoman observes: As for neighboring Canada or Mexico, you can get into trouble of another sort — particularly if you plan to drive your car.

Do not drive into Mexico without an insurance policy written by a Mexican company, advises the Insurance Information Institute. Buy a "Special Automobile Policy for Tourists" (available from agents for Mexican companies located in most border cities). If you don't heed this advice, your car can be impounded and you can be arrested.

If you have proper insurance at home, you should be covered in Canada. Ask your agent for a "Canada non-resident inter-province motor vehicle liability insurance card."

Downturn cuts Micron profits

BOISE (AP) — The downturn and intense price competition in the computer-chip market that prompted Micron Technology Inc. to lay off hundreds of employees also has cut into the company's quarterly profits.

The Boise-based semiconductor company reported its net income for the second fiscal quarter ending Feb. 27 was $2.8 million. That compared with $2.8 million for last year's second quarter, and was down from $10.5 million in net income during the first quarter of this fiscal year.

Second-quarter revenues were $18.2 million, compared with $12.3 million for the same period a year ago and $37.2 million last quarter. The company said the quarterly results reflect the current downturn in the 64-kilobit dynamic random access memory chip market. That market is experiencing intense price competition and a cyclical decline in demand.

Micron spokeswoman Nancy Blackburn attributed the lower profits mainly to a lower average sale price for the company's primary product — the 64K DRAM — during the quarter. Despite the lower profits, she said, "We think they are pretty good considering problems in the marketplace. Some people were expecting worse."

The company announced three weeks ago that it would lay off about half of its 7,250 employees and reduce production. So far, more than 400 employees have been laid off, company officials said.

Big Boy expansion scheduled

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marriott Corp. has signed an agreement with Frisch's Restaurants Inc. of Cincinnati to add at least 90 new Big Boy family restaurants around the nation, Marriott announced Tuesday.

Frisch's and other franchisees also have agreed to take part in a $10 million annual advertising campaign for Big Boy restaurants to begin in January 1986, Marriott said.

M-K receives contract for pier

BOISE (AP) — Morrison-Knudsen Corp. has been awarded a $19-million contract to purchase, berth and repair pier at the Treating Island Naval Station in San Francisco.

The project, expected to be completed by fall 1986, involves demolition of the old wood pier and replacement with a concrete pier-800 feet long and 120 feet wide, the Boise-based international construction, engineering and architectural firm said.

GOP to pick new chairman
BOISE (AP) — The Republican State Central Committee will meet here April 13 to pick a new chairman to succeed the late Dennis Olsen of Idaho Falls.
 Olsen died of a sudden heart attack last month.
 Lee Shellman, first vice chairman, called a one-day meeting of the central committee to pick a new party chairman and receive reports from the recent legislative session.

Bill introduced for ill alien
WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation was introduced by two members of the Idaho congressional delegation Tuesday to provide legal residence for a woman, an illegitimate girl, in Idaho Falls who has faced deportation as an illegal alien for the past four years.
 Senior Republican Sen. James McClure introduced the bill in the Senate, while Democratic Congressman Richard Stallers offered similar legislation in the House on behalf of 11-year-old Esmeralda Hernandez.
Idaho — Stallers also Paul Pappire says chances are slim for passage of the private immigration bill. Immigration and Naturalization Service District Director Marvin Mohrman has said he will cease any deportation efforts against Esmeralda and her family until February 1987 upon simple introduction of the bill.

High court denies appeals
BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court has turned down appeals in two civil damage cases, in each ruling that the judge's instructions to the jury were proper.
 The court in a 3-2 decision upheld a jury's finding that Rangen, Inc., a Twin Falls County feed and seed firm, was not liable for the death of 40,000 cattish at a cattish raising facility.
 Fish Biologist of Idaho, in sued Rangen after a 1979 incident resulted in the death of cattish. Fish Biologist claimed Rangen sold a chemical which was dangerous if used undiluted, without proper warnings.

Malad BLM office to expand
MALAD (AP) — While some Idaho cities are fighting to retain their federal offices, the city of Malad will see its operation expand as the Bureau of Land Management steps in for the Forest Service.
 BLM assistant state director Larry Woodard has advised local officials that the proposed land trade between the bureau and the Forest Service will mean the replacement of the six-man Forest Service office with a 10 to 14-man BLM resource office.
 The proposed land swap, intended to make federal land management more efficient by geographically consolidating operations of the Forest Service and the BLM, has had other communities concerned that they would lose their Forest Service or BLM offices in the upheaval.

Shelley firm economic victim
SHELLEY (AP) — The economic crisis that has gripped much of rural America has claimed a victim in eastern Idaho.
 After nearly 72 years in operation, the Idaho Grain and Produce sales firm in Shelley has closed down following owner Beth Davitt's declaration of bankruptcy.
 "I've tried desperately to save the business," said Mrs. Davitt, who with her late husband bought the elevator nine years ago. "But it's just not enough. I was sorry to close up, but the money problems were far too serious for me to try and solve."
 The failure of the elevator firm has left some 100 farmers with claims against the business for about $98,000.

Jan Bonner maintains vigil with woman on death row

Spiritual advisor keeps vigil with death row prisoner

OROFINO (AP) — For the last nine months, Jan Bonner and Karla Windsor have shared a spiritual relationship that could amount to death.
 Mrs. Bonner is a Christian volunteer at the woman's prison here. Ms. Windsor is the first woman sentenced to death in Idaho.
 "This is really where the rubber meets the road," said Mrs. Bonner, describing the vigil she maintains as Ms. Windsor's spiritual advisor.
 Ms. Windsor, 29, was convicted along with her boyfriend in the Sept. 10, 1983, stabbing death of Sterling Grammer, an elderly Caldwell man. She was scheduled to be executed by firing squad on April 19, 1984. The execution has been stayed, pending a mandatory appeal of the conviction and sentence.
 There are currently 14 people on Idaho's death row, including Ms. Windsor. The 13 men are in Boise.
 "She's asked me to be there (at the execution)," Mrs. Bonner said. "I'm really, really, both she and Ms. Windsor agree that capital punishment has its place.
 "I'm very much for it. So is Karla. There are just some people who can't control themselves," Mrs. Bonner said.
 But after her regular Saturday visits with Ms. Windsor, Mrs. Bonner said she doubts whether Ms. Windsor fits in that category.
 "She's a beautiful Christian lady," Mrs. Bonner said. She added that she thinks Ms. Windsor's death sentence is "very, very wrong."
 Ms. Windsor's attorney, Renee Hoff of Nampa, argued at trial that her client did not actually participate in the murder, but went along with her boyfriend, Donald Fetterly. Ms. Windsor also sentenced to death.

 Grammer, who knew both Fetterly and Ms. Windsor, died of multiple stab wounds. His body, bound with duct tape and weighted down, was found in the Snake River.
 Idaho law prohibits death row inmates from any human contact, except with prison officers, immediate family members, attorneys and a spiritual advisor.
 In late June 1984, the Lewiston Morning Tribune was allowed to provide several written questions to Ms. Windsor through her attorney.
 "As a Christian," Ms. Windsor responded in writing, "physical death does not bother me. I know that once it's over I will go to be with Jesus and all pain and troubles will be forever gone, not ever remembered."
 It's that kind of spiritual belief, Mrs. Bonner said, that she hopes to keep alive within Windsor as execution day nears. Ms. Hoff has said it may be five years or more before all appeals are exhausted.
 Mrs. Bonner, who with her husband, Phil, has a prison ministry they call the "New Life Chapel," said Ms. Windsor requested a spiritual advisor and she was selected. Although they are not allowed to be alone during visits with Ms. Windsor, Mrs. Bonner said, Ms. Windsor continues to bolster a spiritual foundation.
 "To be honest with you, the Lord told me to shut up," said Mrs. Bonner, describing her first visit with Ms. Windsor. She took the advice, Mrs. Bonner said, and learned to listen to Ms. Windsor and better understand her special needs.

State education board to discuss funding

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The State Board of Education will discuss this week how to divide up higher education's state appropriation and whether to modify high school graduation requirements.
 The board meets Thursday and Friday in Boise.
 The state's three universities and one four-year college received $88 million in state funds for the 1986 fiscal year — an increase of 1.6 percent — but that still falls $2.2 million short of the original request, board spokeswoman Kim Phillips said.

 The board, for example, requested $3.5 million to meet critical problems at the Idaho State University School of Pharmacy and the Lewis and Clark State College Nursing School, Phillips said. The Legislature appropriated $2.5 million, she said.
 The board also sought $2.5 million to help bring faculty salaries into line with those paid in neighboring states.
 In other business, the board will decide whether to modify the state's high school graduation requirements to allow students to substitute two credits of vocational or consumer home economics for two credits of humanities.

Unrest at penitentiary reveals security flaws

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — An uprising at the Idaho State Penitentiary March 11 has uncovered some security weaknesses that demand immediate attention.
 Eight House members have introduced legislation to increase security at the facility.
 "Chase said, 'Its doors, locks and control points need immediate strengthening.'
 Two out-of-state prison experts toured the state prison Monday and recommended changes and said they will be started immediately.
 Heavier doors and stronger locks will be installed. Work will start to improve security at control points.
 Chase said complete renovation to eliminate the weak points will cost over $10 million, he said, and there are similar needs in other buildings at the prison complex south of Boise.
 After the brief uprising was quelled, prison officials transferred 16 inmates to other prisons.

Disputed bond issue going back to voters

SPRITH, Idaho (AP) — After months of debate, the School District Board of Trustees has agreed to resubmit a disputed $975,000 bond issue for approval by local patrons.
 The new election will be held April 13 in an attempt to eliminate the cloud that continues to hang over the results of last fall's election because of an unmarked ballot.
 If that ballot is declared as the legal one, it should be the bond issue passed by the exact two-thirds majority necessary. But if it is counted as some patrons contend, the bond issue fell one vote short of passage.
 The dispute has kept the bonds needed to finance completion of a six-room high school addition from being sold.
 The trustees filed suit earlier this year to have their position upheld, but they withdrew that action when a counterchallenge was filed some patrons.
 Because of the debate and the strong feelings on the issue, has Superintendent Bert Nixon is predicting a large turnout for the April vote. The target for a new election, approved without dissent, was proven by a feeling among many patrons that the disputed unmarked ballot would have a negative impact on the district, Nixon said.

Reunion of lawmakers marks creation of sales tax in 1965

BY QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — With a stroke of his pen 20 years ago this Sunday, Gov. Robert E. Smylie ushered Idaho into a modern era of taxation, signing into law a 3 percent sales tax.

Those who served in the critical legislative sessions which culminated in the sales tax, and a true reform of the state tax system, will gather in Boise this weekend to commemorate the session.

Some recall that they were the state's best ever, both in terms of what it accomplished and in terms of the people who served.

About 125 members of that session spouses and friends are expected in Boise to share a meal, and what is believed to be the first reunion of a specific session of the Legislature.

They'll have a lot to talk about. Idaho tried a 2 percent sales tax in the 1930s. But in the 1950s general election, the voters threw it out.

It wasn't until 1965 that the lawmakers, summoned to the courage to pass another. Arvil Miller, a Shelley, Republican, got the bill through his House Revenue and Taxation Committee and on Feb. 24, 1965 passed by the Legislature.

On March 11, Sen. Perry S. Swisher, a Coeur d'Alene engineer, floor debate that resulted in 26-18 passage. And on March 24, Smylie signed it into law.

Voters endorsed the sales tax in an Idaho opinion poll the next year.

The result in the 1965 general election was a 70-30 split in favor of the state operated. Out went the old state property tax. In favor of a 3 percent tax rate that wasn't changed for 18 years.

"It was a bold step, a tax that would take care of the needs of a growing state of Idaho for the next 30 years," says Pat Harwood, at the time a young state legislator from Rigby. "I think it has done the job, because there have been few changes in the basic tax system since. A tax enacted by the 1965 Legislature," he said.

Harwood, now president of the Idaho Association for Commerce and Industry, was part of "Forward Idaho," which worked to win voter approval of the tax.

At the time, Idaho had 14 state senators, one for each county, and 70 representatives, one for every 10,000 population. (The county, the same Senate representation at Ada County.

with 100 times the population.

A U.S. Supreme Court ruling decided that legislative districts must be roughly equal in population, causing state legislatures since then to go through reapportionment battles every 10 years to reflect population changes.

Idaho has been through two redistricting battles since then, but Harwood said the 1965 session had the toughest job, one that wasn't finished until a special session.

"We had to get rid of 118 bodies, nine each in the House and Senate," he said, by wiping out seats in the creation of new districts.

That year also produced Idaho's Water Resources Board, which guides water development and use; the state parks and recreation agency; the state board of education; the State Board of Health; and the state's first commerce agency.

"The 'who' of the 1965 session is as important as the 'what'."

Serving in that session were future governors Don Samuelsen and Cecil Andrus; future congressman Orval Hansen and future congressman and senator James McClure.

Harold Ryan, now a U.S. District Judge for Idaho, was a legislator from 1965 to 1970. He served as the secretary of the Treasury under Dwight Eisenhower, served in the Senate. Swisher now serves on the Public Utilities Commission.

Longtime Secretary of State, Felix Centuria, served in the House a couple of years away from becoming governor.

At the time, Centuria was a young Supreme Court justice, was a young Pocatello lawyer serving in the House.

Gov. John Evans served in the Legislature before the 1965 session, and served after that year. But as mayor of Malad, he helped muster Owyhee County support for the sales tax in the 1966 election.

Your state legislators were in the 1965 session, are still in the Legislature.

They are headed by Rep. Ward Chatburn, R-Almo, who was elected to his 20th year in the Legislature. Rep. Harold Reid, R-Grand Junction, is in his 25th year. Sen. Walter Yarbrough, R-Grand View, and Rep. Walter Miller, R-New Plymouth, both are in their 21st year.

Miller, at the time a Mormon bishop from Shelley, had floor support for the sales tax, along with Boise lawyer Charles McEwen.

Harwood said Miller, now president of Apache Junction, Ariz., is expected to attend the reunion.

Despite all the accomplishments, Harwood said the 1965 session wasn't without its mistakes. It passed urban renewal legislation, which worked in some areas but which has led to 20 years of fruitless effort to get a downtown shopping mall in Boise.

Harwood said he's happy to note that he thought it was a bad idea in the first place.

4-H good deed brings snafu over land to light

MOSCOW (AP) — It's a 35-year-old snafu that a 4-H club is leading for a good deed.

For 35 years the Robert O. Bingham family has been paying taxes on two acres of land he bought from the Moscow school district, but the district never formally turned over the property.

Now, 35 years after the fact, the school board this week will vote to file the deed that transfers ownership of the property, where the former one-room school house sits.

It says the deed is being filed as a 4-H good deed, really being owned by said Mark Moore, assistant manager of Moscow Title Co., whose search through records uncovered the mistake.

"This unraveling of the mystery snafu of the school house into a Community Pride project for different 4-H clubs to use," he said.

That's when it got complicated. His search revealed the land and the building were sold separately at public auction, but the sale was never recorded, and the deed never transferred.

"The problem dates back to 1949, the year following massive school district consolidation throughout the state. In that consolidation, the Moscow district sold three surplus one-room schools at public auction."

"The building and its contents were sold to a Portland woman and the land went to Bingham, who owned 30 acres surrounding the property."

About 20 years ago, the building was sold to a now-defunct 4-H Club, Moore said. The building then reverted to the woman's estate.

Moore anticipates the family will give the building to the Mountain View 4-H group, which wants to remodel it. The new club reportedly is thinking about moving it to a park and remodeling it for use by 4-H clubs.

"The land is now in the hands of Lawrence Bingham, Robert's nephew, who has asked the board for a new deed," Moscow school Superintendent Aethia Fasolino says the board will be happy to comply, even if it is a little late.

Food labels may be hiding more than telling

CAROLIE SUGARMAN
The Washington Post

Labels cover a multitude of sins when it comes to the packaging and marketing of food. In a new study, brands and generic food manufacturers were asked to bare all, there'd be a lot of embarrassed advertisers and a lot of surprised consumers.

Product swapping, label switching and recipe limiting are common among manufacturers. The result is a marketplace of products that may be more alike—or depending on your viewpoint, more different—than one might think. Sometimes you get what you pay for. Sometimes you don't. For example:

Some Del. Safeway's Crown House brand canned fruits are packed by Del. Monte. Same brand name, same color, but the only difference is the label and the price.

Product swapping, label switching and recipe limiting are common among manufacturers and packers.

On the other hand, Del. Monte only packs milk, the center portion or fillet, of the green bean, under its own name. The company then packs black and white generic boxes, the end-cuts of the beans for house brands with specifications that aren't as high as Del. Monte's.

There are only three manufacturers in the instant breakfast business in this country: Carnation, Pillsbury and a company called Dean Foods. If an instant breakfast label says "manufactured by Dean, the only private-label manufacturer of the product in the country," it's highly variable. Many national brand manufacturers pack a line of store brands—under its own name, manufactures 95 percent of the country's instant soups. Safeway brand soups are made by Heinz.

Safeway's own manufacturers and instant soups are made by Heinz.

There is not much variation in how nonfat dry milk is made in the country. Flash-Slitte, a processed milk company, takes the milk, produces and packages it in a plain white container. The quality of generics may vary according to whose odds and ends are being used. Maybe Campbell's hot peppers are time-able to tell from the label. And then there's the commodities market, which fluctuates from year to year. It's a hell of a year for a particular crop, the price will be low, and everyone can afford the good stuff," says Bill Williams, executive director of the National Labor Manufacturers Association, a trade group that represents manufacturers of private-label products. For example, a manufacturer's store-brand, for example, raising—this is a rating just this year, those raising—with the "proper arrival"—and the fact that there even more is the fact that government standards—while they may be brand, store brand and generic packers alike. The steak sauce companies and the chutney manufacturers may be getting the residual standard, for example—require that Williams said.

What most industry experts will agree on, however, is that store brands and national brands are more similar to each other than generics, which are generally a lower-quality manufacturer although you might not grade.

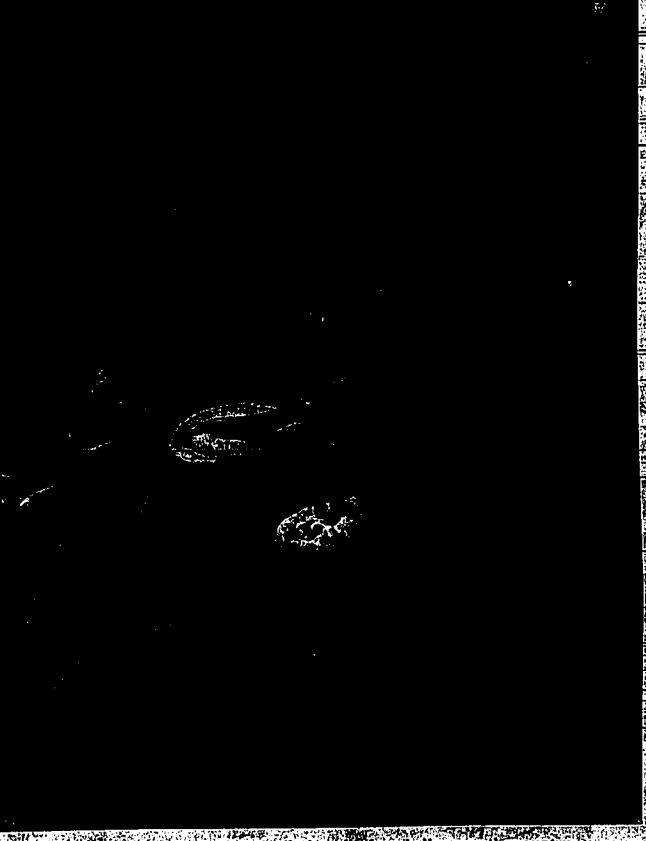

Peanut nation's favorite

Nut has roots in American culture

March is Peanut Month—the nation's favorite nut which has its roots deep in American tradition. Early settlers snacked on peanuts roasted on the open hearth. In the south, peanuts became a staple and were cherished for such favorites as peanut brittle and peanut pie. Today, more peanuts are consumed than all other nuts combined.

Peanuts are adaptable to many regional cooking styles, from southern "peanut butter" to the Tostada Salad. And because of their nutrition, peanuts fit current American tastes in other ways. They are low in sodium and cholesterol-free. They provide more protein than any other food except soybeans, and also contain substantial fiber and other nutrients.

- TOSTADA SALAD
- 6 six-inch round corn tortillas
 - Vegetable oil
 - 1 pound cubed pork shoulder
 - 1 tablespoon all-purpose flour
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 cup chopped onion
 - 1 tablespoon chopped garlic
 - 1/2 cup finely chopped jalapeno pepper
 - 1 1/2 cups chopped tomatoes plus 6 tablespoons for garnish
 - 1 tablespoon chili powder
 - 1/4 cup beef bouillon or water
 - 1/4 cup unsalted peanuts plus 6 tablespoons for garnish
 - 2 tablespoons chopped coriander or parsley
 - 3 cups shredded head lettuce
 - 1 large avocado, peeled, seeded and thinly sliced
 - 6 tablespoons chopped fresh tomatoes
 - 3 tablespoons dairy sour cream
 - Quarter each tortilla, fry sections in skillet with 1/4-inch oil over medium-high heat 20 to 30 seconds per side.

Peanuts are adaptable to cooking styles found all across the country.

side until slightly browned and crisp. Remove to paper toweling. Drain all but 2 tablespoons oil. Toss pork with flour and salt, add to oil over medium-high heat. Cook and stir until brown 3 to 5 minutes. Add onion and garlic; cook until slightly softened. Add jalapeno, chili powder, ground beef, bouillon and 1/2 cup of peanuts. Reduce heat to simmer, cook 20 minutes. Stir in coriander. Assemble each salad, arrange 4 to 6 shells in a circle on a plate. Layer with 1/2 cup lettuce, 1/2 cup of pepper, 2 or 3 avocado slices, 1 tablespoon tomatoes, 1/2 cup of peanuts, 1/2 cup beef bouillon, 1/2 cup of water, 1/2 cup of water, 1/2 cup of water. Spoon sour cream and 1 tablespoon water over each shell. See PEANUTS on Page C6.

House 'engineer' encourages kids to help with chores

By JOAN BEAN
Times News correspondent

KIMBERLY Lynne Scott, who refers to herself as a "domestic engineer," enjoys sewing and cooking—and "loves to eat."

The Kimberly woman says she also used to like to keep house.

"But, I don't like to do that anymore. You do so many things that get under your skin. Five minutes after school's out, you think, 'Now what did I do all day? I know, did that once or twice,' says the mothers of 9-year-old Tregg and 7-year-old Molly.

She says the two do their share of scrubbing floors, vacuuming and dusting.

"Then I go after them and wipe up the puddles. I can't encourage that or they won't ever want anything to do with it," she adds.

Scott allows her children to help out in the kitchen, and she lets them sit on the cupboard and stir and measure for her when she is baking cookies and cakes.

"I figure I'm going to have a mess anyway. They might as well enjoy the flour in the hair. I don't discourage it at all. I encourage it, the creativity as much as I can," she says.

She says she prefers the children in the kitchen helping out rather than "sterning" the house, especially when she is preparing for company.

Scott says she came to this conclusion about three years ago when the children were rampaging through the house.

She recalls telling them she had had "enough of this nonsense." "Tregg—you do the lasagna, and Molly—you can make the salad."

Scott, inspired by a gourmet show on television says she has been experimenting with her cooking. She jokingly says she puts it off the table and then goes in the other room to wait and see if her family survives.

She has a resourceful approach to her tasks. Instead of buying a coffee grinder, she decided to buy the beans and set up on her blender and found it did the job.

And she seldom uses measuring cups and spoons.

"I make things a lot. I just start dumping stuff in. I have the recipe in my head," she says.

But this method is not without its drawbacks as she recalls an incident several years ago.

"I made homemade ice cream, and I forgot one very important ingredient—sugar. That's totally inedible," she says.

Scott says domestic engineering is more than cooking. It often means fixing things around the house.

But she says when she works on the plumbing, she just gets it to the point.

See SCOTT on Page C6.

Award winning flowers grow well here

Each year I get to evaluate dozens of new flowers in the Ricks College Horticultural Research and Demonstration Garden.

We receive samples of the new flowers in the latter part of the year before they are introduced. Here are my evaluations of the five new All-America award winners for 1985.

All five are warm weather flowers, which means that they look best in the latter part of the summer.

My favorite is Century Mix Celostia. This is a feather type celostia with brightly colored plumes about two feet high. Century has the brightest colors and widest color range of any celostia I have grown. Most celostias grow rather weakly in our cool

Allen Wilson
In the mountains gardening

weather, but Century has sufficient vigor to grow well.

Yellow Marvel is a vigorous, bright yellow vine which grows just over a foot high. The two- to three-inch flowers have stems long enough for cutting. Plants are sturdy enough to resist wind damage.

Mini-Star Tangerine Gazania is a ground-hugging daisy which grows 6 to 8 inches high. In warmer climates gazanias can be used as perennial ground covers, but must be replanted annually in the Magic Valley. Gazanias often have rather dull color. The Mini-Star Tangerine is one of the brightest oranges available in our area.

Novice Diamond is an early blooming, bright pink geranium hybrid. It flowers more heavily than most geraniums. One nice characteristic is that the old flowers drop off, resulting in a clean appearance. Leaves have dark zones giving a variegated effect. Yellow grows well in the Magic Valley and proud Tanager variety is one of the best. It has bright rose pink flower clusters which are held well above the foliage. Verbenas grow about 10 inches high, a little shorter than petunias.

Although not an All-America winner, one of the best new cool-weather flowers is Cinderella Snapdragon from Burpee. Cinderella is medium height, growing about 18 to 22 inches tall.

These flowers are so new, that you will not find them on ordinary seed orders. All can be ordered from mail order seed catalogs.

They are a lot of flowers to collect. I have performed well in eastern Idaho, which includes planting information and seed sources for hard-to-find varieties. If you would like a copy, send $1 and a stamped self-addressed long envelope to Allen Wilson, Box 95, Rexburg, Idaho.

Chocolate makes delicious divinity

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
The Associated Press

Dedicated candy cooks have probably from time to time whipped up a batch of one of America's favorite homemade candies—Divinity (also known as "white chocolate").

The important ingredients are simple: Just before the sugar and corn syrup solution for the candy is ready, the egg whites are gradually beaten into them. This combination produces a lushly creamy texture.

Until large powered electric mixers arrived on the culinary scene, egg whites for Divinity were beaten with a wire whisk. To a child who watched his or her mother accomplish this task, the result seemed like magic, although only a sturdy hand and steady rhythm were needed.

Originally, Divinity fudge was flavored with vanilla and given an addition of nuts. Then plain Divinity came in a variety of flavors. In my own test kitchen over the years we have made Divinity fudge in over half a dozen flavors—including anise. I thought there was nothing new in the world of Divinity.

But recently a friend of mine had a startling revelation. She took a piece of white chocolate into a batch of vanilla-flavored Divinity. Believe me, this combination is worth making and enjoying.

DIVINITY FUDGE

- 2 1/2 cups sugar
- 1/2 cup light corn syrup
- 1/2 cup water
- 2 large egg whites
- 1/2 cup vanilla
- 3 ounces white chocolate, coarsely chopped (1/2 cup)

In a 2-quart saucepan, over medium heat, constantly stir together sugar, corn syrup and water until mixture dissolves and mixture boils. Over low heat, without stirring, cook until the temperature on a candy thermometer reaches 265 degrees or a small amount of mixture dropped into very cold water forms a ball that is hard enough to hold its shape but still pliable.

Just before the temperature reaches 265 degrees, in the large bowl of an electric mixer, at high speed, beat egg whites until stiff peaks form when beater is slowly withdrawn. Gradually beat in syrup, and continue beating until mixture begins to lose its gloss. At low speed, beat in vanilla and continue beating until mixture holds its shape when dropped from a spoon. (If mixture becomes too stiff for mixer, beat with a wooden spoon.) At once stir in white chocolate—it is supposed to melt. Drop by teaspoonfuls, well apart, onto wax paper. Store in an airtight container. Makes about 1 1/2 pounds.

Does cook really make a difference in nutrient value to survive?

Whip up a safe, friendly casserole to please kids of all ages

BY LORRAINE EAGHER
The Washington Post

One thing kids like in their food is anything that is... or even looks like...
 As a child, I had a horror of fish that started by the plate as you ate it... and imagined that the yolk of fried...
 I always loved casseroles because there were no bones... You could reheat...
 I can't imagine why you don't hear much about casseroles these days...
 For those of us at the end of the computer line who eat a very late dinner, that means we can just chuck the leftover casserole back into the refrigerator after dinner.

casseroles as far back as the 1890s, but they seemed to have enjoyed a brief renaissance in the '50s. They fell into disfavor during the '60s and '70s and are certainly too associated with the crisp, crusty bachelorette of the '50s cuisine...
PIE MAMA LAGUER
 1/2 cup milk
 1/2 cup butter
 1/2 cup sugar
 1/2 cup flour
 2 cups flour
 2 tablespoons sugar
 Pinch of salt
 1 cup of lard (let it out half a day to soften)
 Mix flour, sugar, salt and lard with fork until crumbly. Put egg into measuring cup and fill to 1 1/2 cups with milk. Blend so egg gets well beaten. Work the liquid into flour with hands. Divide dough into four clumps. Use plenty of flour while rolling. Place in pie pan and crimp edges.
 To successfully get the crust from board to pan, she sometimes lays to her rolling pin in the middle of the rolled-out dough. She then gently slides a butcher knife underneath half the crust, so it comes away from the surface. She folds the crust over the rolling pin and lifts the crust onto the pie pan with the rolling pin.
LEMON MERINGUE PIE
 1/4 cup sugar
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup flour or corn starch
 1 lemon
 1 cup boiling water
 3 egg yolks
 2 tablespoons butter
 Put sugar, salt and flour into saucepan. Grate rind of lemon on a fine grater. Cut lemon in half and squeeze juice. Boil boiling water in lemon juice. Add the liquid to dry ingredients and cook and stir over medium heat until thickened and bubbly. Remove from heat. Add three egg yolks and mix butter, and mix it all together. Pour into cooled pie shell.
MERINGUE
 3 egg whites
 1/4 teaspoon salt
 1/2 cup sugar
 Beat egg whites until frothy. Add salt. After whites hold soft peaks, add sugar and beat again to soft peaks. Fold in vanilla. Spread over pie filling. Bake at 350 degrees for 15 minutes until meringue is golden brown.

especially with the mushroom sauce) and the way it conceals the eggs from the kids who don't like them.
 1 cup uncooked macaroni
 1 1/2 cups scalded milk
 1/4 cup soft bread crumbs
 1/4 cup melted butter or margarine plus extra for dish
 1 pint milk
 1/2 cup grated cheese
 1/2 cup grated cheese
 3/8 teaspoon salt
 Dash paprika
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 1/2 teaspoon chopped parsley
 3 eggs, beaten
 Cook macaroni in boiling salted water 8 minutes or until tender and drain. Pour scalded milk over bread crumbs. Add butter, pimento, chives, grated cheese, parsley and parsley. Then add well-beaten eggs. Put macaroni in a greased casserole and pour milk and cheese mixture over it. Bake about 50 minutes at 350 degrees until firm. Serve with mushroom sauce.
MUSHROOM SAUCE
 (6 servings)
 1/2 pound mushrooms
 2 to 3 tablespoons milk
 6 tablespoons butter
 4 tablespoons flour
 1/2 teaspoon salt
 Dash of pepper
 Remove the stems from the mushrooms and cook the stems slowly in 2 cups of water for 20 minutes. Discard the stems and pour the cooking water into a 2-cup measure. Fill to the 2-cup line with milk to replace the water lost in cooking and create mushroom broth. Saute the mushroom caps in 2 tablespoons butter about 5 minutes or until golden brown.

Melt the remaining butter in a saucepan and add flour, salt and pepper. Blend thoroughly. Blend in the mushroom broth and stir constantly until thick. Add mushrooms.
CRAB MEAT CASSEROLES
 (2 servings)
 This is a simple, romantic casserole for two right out of the box. It can easily be assembled for the morning and microwaved after work.
 1/2 pound crab meat
 1 cup medium white sauce (see mushroom sauce, using all milk, no mushrooms)
 1/4 cup sherry
 Butter for dish
 1/4 cup grated cheese
 Pick through crab meat, removing cartilage and shells. Heat sauce over low heat and crab meat and sherry and stir constantly for a few minutes. Turn into well-greased casserole. Sprinkle with cheese and place under broiler for 5 minutes to brown.
 (If the casserole has been refrigerated after the cheese topping has been added, reheat at 350 degrees for about 20 minutes or microwave on high for 8 minutes. A small, shallow casserole is best for this — an au gratin dish or omelet pan.)

 When her husband, Jeff, has to fix it or she the plumber, she says, "Let's put it this way," she says, "I fix it to the point where it has to be totally fixed... where the professional has to come in now, because there's no going back."
 But her pie crusts hold together without any special help. The unusual recipe that she uses was given to her by her mother, who got it from a friend, who got it from someone else, she explains.
PIE CRUST
 1 egg
 Milk
 3 cups flour
 2 tablespoons sugar
 Pinch of salt
 1 cup of lard (let it out half a day to soften)
 Mix flour, sugar, salt and lard with fork until crumbly. Put egg into measuring cup and fill to 1 1/2 cups with milk. Blend so egg gets well beaten. Work the liquid into flour with hands. Divide dough into four clumps. Use plenty of flour while rolling. Place in pie pan and crimp edges.
 To successfully get the crust from board to pan, she sometimes lays to her rolling pin in the middle of the rolled-out dough. She then gently slides a butcher knife underneath half the crust, so it comes away from the surface. She folds the crust over the rolling pin and lifts the crust onto the pie pan with the rolling pin.
 Her pie crust recipe makes four 9-inch crusts.
 She likes extra crusts. After putting them in pie pans, she lets them set out for 4 to 5 hours, until dry enough that they won't stick together. She covers each with a piece of waxed paper, and stacks them.
 She says that at one time, Jeff did not like lemon pie, and it was her favorite.
 "So, I made it, and he looked at me like, 'You expect me to eat that?'" she laughed. "It was nothing like he'd ever eaten before," Scott says.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

The World has narrowed into a neighborhood before it has broadened into a brotherhood.

Competitors representing 55 countries battled for the World Championship title in Seattle last fall. Poland won the open championship (54 entries) while the U.S. won the women's event (23 entries). Today's slam deal proved a factor in both victories.

In the Poland-France match, the Polish South made his claim while the French declarer failed. The winner won his heart ace and cashed three diamonds to throw a heart. Next he cashed the trump ace and then tried the three-high clubs to discard his last heart. West had to ruff with his natural trump winner and come South was void. The slam was good. France failed because South played three rounds of clubs early and West ruffed.

In the U.S.-Great Britain women's match, Gail Moss of N.Y.C. made her claim after West had tipped her in the defense. The winner won his heart ace and played three rounds of diamonds followed by three rounds of clubs. West ruffing low. West exited with a diamond instead of the more natural play of the heart queen and Moss countered with 3 winning diamonds. She was desperate. Her diamond play was a desperate attempt to put the lead in dummy in hopes of scoring her trump king. Instead, Moss played her trump ace to drop West's king as the partisan U.S. crowd roared its approval.

NORTH: J 10 5, Q 7 4, A Q 10, K Q 8 2. SOUTH: A Q 6 4 2, J 10, K 8 3, A Q 10, K Q 8 2.

Vulnerable: North-South Dealer: East-South-West-North. Pass 1 Pass 4 Pass 4 Pass 4. All pass.

Opening lead: Heart King. BID WITH THE ACES.

South holds: K 9, A Q 8 4, J 7 4, A Q 10, K Q 8 2.

North-South: 1 N* - 7. ANSWER: Two diamonds. A borderline bid. One no-trump is an alternative but promotion of the spade king tips the scales toward the more aggressive call.

Montreal star testifies on cocaine ring

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Outfielder Tim Raines of the Montreal Expos is the latest major league player to appear before a grand jury reportedly investigating cocaine trafficking.

Three current or former Pittsburgh Pirates already have testified before the grand jury in Pittsburgh's federal courthouse.

The Pittsburgh Press and the Boston Globe both have reported as many as 12 more players could be called to testify.

The probe, reportedly centers on who supplied cocaine to players, and not the players themselves.

Bob Wirtz, director of information for major league baseball, said the commissioner's office "was watching developments" regarding the grand jury and would "follow the situation closely."

Pirates outfielder Los Mazzilli and pitcher Rod Scurry appeared before the panel earlier this year, as did infielder Dale Berra, a former Pirate now with the New York Yankees. Berra issued a statement saying he was not a target of the investigation, but was called merely as a background witness.

Mazzilli told The Press that "I hope they nail him," referring to the alleged target of the probe, but would not provide a name or disclose further details.

Raines, who recently was awarded a $1.2-million contract through arbitration, left the Expos' training camp Monday in West Palm Beach, Fla., to appear before the grand jury. His session with the panel lasted 36 minutes. Raines, 25, has admitted to cocaine use in 1982 and spent time in a drug rehabilitation center.

He and attorney Samuel Reich, the brother of Raines' agent, Tom Reich, left the courthouse by a rear exit.

"He has no comment. He doesn't even want to acknowledge that he's Tim Raines," Samuel Reich said.

The Expos originally said that Raines had a "play-by-play" exhibition game against the Los Angeles

Dodgers because he was attending to personal business at his home in Sanford, Fla.

Expos General Manager Murray Cook later said the club had been asked by federal authorities not to reveal he was in Pittsburgh.

"He (Raines) was told not to discuss it with us," said Cook. "I assume this is past history." Tim Raines is doing well. I know there were a lot of problems that go back four or five years. That's the case, but he's what they're looking at. I'm confident the Expos are in pretty good shape.

"I have absolutely no concern that Tim Raines has a drug problem," Cook said. "That could be the furthest thing from my mind. All I know is that he was asked to testify as a witness, not as a principal."

Raines, whose drug problem was discovered when he missed a June 1982 game, acknowledged that year that he spent between $40,000 and $60,000 for cocaine over a nine-month period.

Eagle track group travels

By LARRY HOVEY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — With a couple of team members already qualified for this summer's national junior college track and field finals, the College of Southern Idaho will compete in a triangular junior college track and field meet in Modesto, Calif., Friday.

Coach Julius Domowitz and a six-man, five-woman contingent left for California Wednesday morning. They will run against Modesto and Sacramento City College Friday afternoon.

It will be the second outdoor meet for the Eagles who participated at Boise State Saturday. In that competition, sophomore Macie Miller of Twin Falls, held the nine-and-a-half-mile long jump last year, qualified in her specialty with a leap of 18-2 and also uncorked a 35-foot triple jump to qualify in that event.

Freshman Loxley Walters qualified in the triple jump at 49 feet, 5 inches. These two will be handling most of the third event work for the Eagles at Modesto.

Also competing there will be halfmilers DeVoe Whaley and Andy Bopp, who turned in 1:54 and 1:55 times at Boise, and Don McMurrin, Twin Falls, who had a 14.6 high hurdle time and 25 in the 400-meter hurdles. Junior James (48.7) and Tim Sievers (49.5) will run in the quartermile.

Domowitz said his quarter and halfmilers will be combined into a 1600-meter relay team in Modesto.

"We think we can qualify that (for nationals) — at .313 — or .314," Domowitz said.

Freshmen Julie Cupp and Jennifer Whalen will join Miller in the jumping events and combine with Miller and freshman Michelle Skyles on a women's mile-relay team. Cupp and Whalen also will see some field event duty and Whalen could run in the hurdles, depending on how a foot injury responds in the next three days.

Skyles and Nancy McGintis will run in either the 1,500 or 3,000 meters, again depending on conditioning and weather at the meet.

Looking more like a New Wave disciple, CSI's Don McMurrin practices hurdling Tuesday.

"We have 12 girls and 18 men working out but this is spring break and attending the meet wasn't mandatory," Domowitz said. "Several of the athletes decided to go home for a last time before school is out."

He said he and Coach Greg Burch decided to try the California trip because "it's time to get in some good workouts and get out of the snow. We'll work out at Reno on our way down."

Domowitz said so far the coaches are pleased with the team.

"We have several Magic Valley runners who have come out on their own and I think they are going to help us and get themselves some honors," he said. "We were very satisfied with our performances in Boise. Our halfmilers went one-two; Macie had a good day — the only thing bad was we dropped the baton in a couple of relays. That's why we held a closing practice Tuesday."

USFL enters the picture

Vikes among Kosar's suitors

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings still want University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, but they'll have to wait until the National Football League's April 30 college draft.

Minnesota is just one of several NFL teams coveting Kosar, who has decided to forgo his final two years of collegiate eligibility because he expects to complete all the credits he needs to graduate by year five.

Only the United States Football League has entered the picture, as Kosar's agent says he plans to meet Thursday in New York with USFL Commissioner Harry Usher.

The Buffalo Bills, who have the NFL's first draft pick, have already signed defensive end Bruce Smith of Virginia Tech. The Houston Oilers pick second and as many as seven teams — including the Vikings — have expressed interest in acquiring that selection to draft Kosar.

But Vikings General Manager Mike Buden said the Oilers rejected Minnesota's offer to exchange draft choices.

Minnesota has the draft's third selection, which means they still could wind up with Kosar if the Oilers decide not to trade their pick.

"We met Friday afternoon and gave them our best shot and they passed," Lynn said. "It's as simple as that. On to other things."

Lynn said his offer to Houston included only draft choices. That was not enough to suit Oilers General Manager Ladd Herzog, who wants draft choices and veteran players in exchange for the No. 2 pick.

If the Oilers keep their pick, they

Spartans' Croft garners Player of Year honors

By The Times-News

Minico senior Brad Croft earned Player of the Year honors Tuesday when the All-Gem State Conference basketball team was announced.

Croft, a 6-4 senior, averaged 23.1 points a game for the Spartans to lead the conference.

For the girls, the top player honor was shared by a pair of seniors, Cindy Mitchell of Blackfoot and Terry Taylor of state A-1 champion Highland.

Twin Falls senior forward Doug Petersen joined Croft on the first team. Other first-teamers include Pocatello's Kip Helgeson, Wayne Wyatt and Doug Williams of Idaho Falls; Mark Merkle and Highland's Bred Higgins.

Honorable mention notices went to Highland's Tad Hamrick, Idaho Falls' Jason Neville, Blackfoot's Mike McClaren and Skyline's Greg Copp. Pocatello's Jerry Koester captured Coach of the Year honors.

Besides Mitchell and Taylor, the girls' first team includes two Fourth District performers — Twin Falls' Karlie Willey and Minico's Margaret Lowry, Highland's Christine Anderson and Skyline's Stephanie DeMott complete the squad.

A pair of Spartans, senior Tina O'Donnell and sophomore Rose Southern Idaho Monday night.

Stuart, are featured on the second team. Others include Highland's Tracy Taylor and Lori Hamann, Blackfoot's Ann Lindroth, Idaho Falls' Jill Wright and Skyline's Heather Masaway.

Mailin Miller of Twin Falls was named the girls' honorable mention selections. Highland's Randy Rehner earned Coach of the Year laurels.

All local players selected will participate in the Magic Valley East-Southwest All-Star Games at College of MESA, Ariz. — The results didn't change but things got better for College of Southern Idaho's baseball team Tuesday.

The Eagles dropped a 10-5 decision to Cochise and then nipped 10-9 on a ninth-inning two-out single by Glendale. CSI remains in the sun belt today to take on Mesa Community College in a double-header.

"We're showing improvement, getting better," said Coach Conrad Dawson. "Our six pitchers threw pretty well. But we're still making the costly errors — only seven of the runs today were earned — and not getting the timely hit. And we hit the ball better today, especially in the extra innings. Six of them for the extra bases."

"We only got one home run — by Greg Schow — but he got all of it," Dawson added with a smile.

Actually, walks led to most of CSI's scoring in the opener. Steve Capitullo came around on a walk and then came around on a stolen base and two throwing errors. In the second, Shawn Humberger, D.R. Hopwood and Randy Jenks walked to load the bases with Humberger scoring on a passed ball and Denny Michels singling in the other run.

After Greg Adelsbach's double led to a third-inning run, CSI lost a 4-3 advantage and the game when Cochise picked up four in the sixth.

Jenks doubled in Humberger, on a walk, for the final Golden Eagle run in the seventh.

"The second game loss was a heartbreaker," Dawson said. "They come up with the two-out single to win and we'd already decided to call it a tie because of darkness if we could have gotten out of the inning."

In that one, CSI bounced ahead 5-1 in the first three innings. Walks to Hopwood, Kevin Loftus and Adelsbach set up a two-run single for Humberger and Cory Russell's sacrifice fly.

In the second, Humberger collected a two-out single and moved up when Russell was hit by a pitch. Schow doubled both runners home.

After falling behind 6-5, CSI regained the lead in the sixth when Russell batted a two-bagger off the right centerfield wall and Schow drilled the next pitch virtually over the same spot. Glendale tied it and CSI then moved ahead with two in the seventh when Greg Adelsbach tripled in the doubling Hopwood and followed him home on Humberger's third hit of the game.

But in the ninth, a leadoff walk and a steal put Glendale in position. After getting two out, reliever Jack Estes yielded a run game-deciding single to Dan Angelo.

Ueberroth hits grand slam in dropping Mantle, Mays ban

There's only one way Commissioner Peter Ueberroth could improve upon his reinstatement of Bowie Kuhn as commissioner of Major League Baseball — Mays is possible baseball employment.

That's if Ueberroth reinstated Mantle and Mays in some sort of Fountain of Youth that would allow them to play again.

Matters are fine the way they are, of course. No longer must Mantle and Mays, two of the sport's finest performers, be treated like Mafia thugs or social lepers for their purely promotional involvement with Atlantic City gambling casinos. No more shall they be disbarred from the game they enriched.

The familiar No. 7 and the famous No. 24 belong roaming around hitting cages and having swing dogs. Bowie Kuhn, Ueberroth's predecessor who banished the Hall of Famers from baseball, would have had us believe that the figures on Mantle's and Mays' uniforms represented tips for craps players.

Kuhn meant well. After all, he was looking after what had to be called, under his administration, the "best interests of baseball." This included vetoing Charles O. Finley's transactions (wise), returning All-Star Game balloting to fans (proper) and introducing night World Series games (dumb, but profitable).

By barring Mantle and Mays from the sport once their jobs as casino palm-squeezers began, Kuhn believed he was doing the National Pastime another huge favor. In Mantle and Mays, he saw hints to gambling that baseball cannot afford.

It's true that gambling can ruin sports. Baseball nearly collapsed under the shame of the 1919 "Black Sox" scandal, and college basketball lost substantial credibility during the point-shaving scandals of the 1960s. Spontaneity is everything in athletics, and gambling threatens that necessary element.

But when Mantle and Mays assumed their new duties, Kuhn reacted as if they had headed the FBI's 10 Most Wanted List, instead of the lifeline home run chart. In his eyes, they had not worn jockstraps and carried gloves, but rather had sported fedoras and lugged violin cases.

Kuhn was like a batted ball that thought a fastball was coming, got a slider instead and couldn't adjust his swing. Sure gambling's bad for sports. But the duties Mantle and Mays engaged in are innocuous, devoid of lust and far from the underworld. It's just shaking hands and saying, "Hi, Howya doin', Gladja came!" ev'it!

Moreover, consider the subjects. Even in this era, when the all-too-human frailties of athletes are revealed daily, it's impossible to fathom the Oleander and Shaw major leaguers to strike out of the Sea Hey Kid arranging to fix a playoff series. Yes, Kuhn meant well, but he overreacted.

Ueberroth gives a clearer perspective. He called the separation between gambling and baseball "vital." He added, "But an exception is being made for our greatest players because of what they mean to our game."

That's right, Peter. No wonder last summer's Olympics made big money.

To generations of fans, Mantle and Mays mean athletic excellence. It's a quality that transcends their careers. Deny the sport that's sure? You might as well shove Santa Claus heard or play for the Pope to split in the Vatican's holy water.

Mickey Mantle and Willie Mays have done more for baseball than Bowie Kuhn could have accomplished had he served as commissioner forever. They can't decide a game with their hitting, but they can influence the game with their presence.

Ueberroth is correct in giving Mickey and Willie the sign to swing away. And despite Kuhn's worst fears, they won't let the ball slip from their hands. They've never stood for gambling. They always have, and always will stand for baseball.

By The Associated Press

HOUSTON — Houston's Akeem Olujuwon and Chicago's Michael Jordan may be battling for NBA rookie-of-the-year honors, but it was Rocket forward Ralph Sampson who walked away with the spotlight Tuesday night.

Sampson attracted all the postgame comments for his blocked shot and followup dunk that helped preserve the Rockets' 106-100 National Basketball Association win over the Chicago Bulls.

"It was an interesting occasion," Chicago Coach Kevin Loughery said of Sampson's blocked shot with time running out in the game.

Loughery said he thought the play should have been called offensive goal tending by Sampson, who raced down-court after blocking the shot, dunked the ball and followed with two free throws for the game's last two points.

"I had just thrown the ball across court and they stole it, and I was trying to get it back," Sampson explained.

Sampson finished with 26 points, 11 rebounds and nine blocked shots, as a sideshow to the battle between Olujuwon and Jordan, front-runners in the battle for NBA rookie of the year honors.

Cavaliers 116, 76ers 89

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Roy Hinson scored 21 points and Ben Poquette added 19 as the Cleveland Cavaliers took advantage of the absence of center Moses Malone to hand the Philadelphia 76ers their worst loss of the season, 116-89, Tuesday night.

Hinson and Poquette scored many of their points on dunks, layups and tips over the smaller Philadelphia forwards.

With the 6-foot-10 Malone missing his second game because of a sprained ankle, the 76ers used 4-8 Sam Williams and 6-9 Bobby Jones in the middle for much of the game.

Fresno St. tops New Mexico

By The Associated Press

Senior forward Scott Barnes scored 19 points and senior guard Mitch Arnold added 16 as host Fresno State scored a 66-55 victory against New Mexico in the second round of the National Invitation Tournament Tuesday night.

Barnes scored six of his 14 first-half points in the first two minutes as the Bulldogs outscored the Lobos 10-2 to take a 34-23 halftime lead.

New Mexico cut the margin to four points early in the second half, but the Bulldogs responded with six unanswered points to regain control 49-32. Fresno led by as many as 14 points during the second half.

Reggie Miller scored a career-high 29 points to lead UCLA to an 82-63 National Invitation Tournament second-round victory over Nebraska Tuesday night at Pauley Pavilion.

high 15 rebounds for UCLA, which rebounded Nebraska 34-27.

Miller connected on an 11-point field goal and made all nine of the free throws for his 29 points.

In other NIT games, Indiana had little trouble taking care of Richmond, while Virginia and Marquette struggled to get by their opponents Tuesday night and advance to the tournament.

Uwe Blab scored 17 points as the Indiana Hoosiers, taking control with 12-3 spurts early in each half, rolled to a 75-53 victory over the Richmond Spiders in second round NIT action at Bloomington.

Tom Miller, Tim Mullen and Otis Miller policed led a second-half Virginia surge as the Cavaliers defeated St. Joseph's 68-61. Michael Sims hit his only point, a free throw, with 20 seconds remaining to lead Marquette to a 55-54 comeback victory over Cincinnati.

Slims tennis: Jordan stuns Evert Lloyd

NEW YORK (AP) — Playing nearly flawless tennis from the backcourt, Kathy Jordan shocked second-seeded Chris Evert Lloyd 6-2, 1-6, 6-2 Tuesday night in the opening round of the $500,000 Virginia Slims Championships.

It was only the third time in 10 career meetings that the right-hander from King of Prussia, Pa., had beaten left-hander Evert, No. 2 player, in the first coming at Wimbledon in 1983.

With the hard-fought victory, Jordan, ranked 12th in the Women's Tennis Association computer, advanced to a second-round meeting against Kathy Rinaldi in this elite 16-player field.

In the night's second-ingles match, third-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia defeated 18-year-old Andrea Temesvari of Hungary 7-5, 7-5.

The seven-day tournament at Madison Square Garden, which culminates the year-long Virginia Slims Series, winds up Sunday with a best-of-five-sets final — unique in women's tennis — with $125,000 going to the winner.

Defending champion — Martina Navratilova, the No. 1 seed, will play her first-round match Wednesday night against Lisa Bonder.

would likely draft Texas A&M defensive end Ray Childers. If the Oilers trade their pick to a team that then selects Kosar, the Vikings would probably draft Childers, Pittsburgh offensive tackle Bill Ervick or Miami wide receiver Eddie Brown.

"We'll pick third and pick who's ever there," Lynn said. "There's no coming back and saying, 'We'll take (Houston's) proposal.'"

Other teams reportedly interested in Houston's proposal are the Atlanta Falcons, who draft fourth in the first round, the Indianapolis Colts (fifth), the Cleveland Browns (seventh), the Philadelphia Eagles (tenth), the Los Angeles Rams (21st) and the Los Angeles Raiders (23rd).

Kosar, who grew up in Boardman, Ohio, said last week he would like to play for the Browns.

The feeling is mutual, Browns Owner Art Modell said Tuesday.

"I was even Art Modell said Tuesday after learning about the Kosar meeting. "We've expressed that and we hope in the best interests of the (NFL) that Houston can make a decision before the draft."

Meanwhile, the Oilers are just beginning to hear the USFL and Dr. John Geankle, the Youngstown dentist who is Kosar's agent and a family friend.

"We haven't ruled out any of the options available to Bernie and that includes playing in the USFL," he said Tuesday.

Usher said after Kosar announced his decision to turn professional that "it makes good sense" to pursue Kosar.

The Orlando Renegades hold Kosar's USFL rights.

NIT roundup

Guard Monteil Hatcher added 18 points — also a career high — as the Bruins improved their record to 18-12 on the season, including nine wins in their last 10 games.

Dave Hopper scored 25 points to lead the Comets, who ended their season at 16-14.

The game was tied 6-6 in the opening minutes when the Bruins went on a 17-6 spurt to take a 23-12 advantage.

Hatcher and Miller accounted for 16 of those points.

The Bruins led by as many as 13 points in the first half and held a 41-31 lead at the intermission.

Nebraska never seriously threatened in the second half as the Bruins led by as many as 21 points.

Center Brad Ford led the Cavaliers high 15 rebounds for UCLA, which rebounded Nebraska 34-27.

JEROME — A coaches' workshop entitled "Fuel for Physical and Mental Fitness" which focuses on the role of nutrition in sports performance will be held Tuesday beginning at 7 p.m. at Jerome High School.

All high school coaches may attend free. Dr. Bronson Lane, executive director of the Dairy and Food Council in Florida, will be the featured speaker. Coaches will receive a complimentary copy of "Food Power: A Coach's Guide to Improving Performance."

The event is sponsored by the Idaho Dairy Council in cooperation with the Idaho High School Activities Association.

To register for the workshop or obtain more information, please contact the Idaho Dairy Council, 1385 North Orchard, Suite 203, Boise, 83706.

Top cowboys at Pavilion

BOISE — Many current and former world champions will participate this weekend in the Lite Beer-World's Toughest Rodeo at the Boise State University Pavilion.

Performances begin at 8 p.m. Friday and at 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Heading the list of 377 entrants is Caldwell's Dee Pickett, reigning world champion all-around cowboy and champion team roper with partner Mike Beers. Another featured contestant is eight-time champion bull rider Don Gay.

Co-ed softball meeting

TWIN FALLS — An organizational meeting for the Twin Falls Co-ed Softball League will be held tonight at 7:30 in the City Hall council chambers. Anyone interested in playing or coaching in the league or in sponsoring a team should attend the session. No fees will be collected at the meeting.

Cutting horse clinic set

RUPERT — A cutting horse clinic, for candidates from high school through social security, will be conducted this weekend at the Simpers indoor arena in Rupert.

Dennis Manning will be the clinician for the three-day school that will run Friday through Sunday. Weekend vacancies also are available.

More information may be obtained from Manning at 875-2222.

Archie Griffin retires

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Two-time Heisman Trophy winner Archie Griffin has announced his retirement from the Jacksonville Bulls of the United States Football League, the club announced Tuesday.

Griffin, the only back ever to win the Heisman twice, joined the Bulls Jan. 22 after a two-year retirement.

He started four games for the 1-3 Bulls this season, rushing for 11 yards on 10 carries and catching four passes for 25 more.

"Archie was a victim of two things," said Bulls Coach Lindy Infante. He said the Bulls used a single-back offense, and then had unexpectedly signed Mike Roster after agreeing to contract Griffin.

"When Mike signed, Archie went to a backup role and he didn't want to be put in that position," said Infante. "Archie is a class act, and he will be missed by this football club."

USFL honors Houston's Kelly

NEW YORK (AP) — Quarterback Jim Kelly of the Houston Gamblers, who completed 32 of 61 passes for 433 yards and four touchdowns in a 38-17 victory over Denver Monday night, was named United States Football League Player of the Week Tuesday.

It was the second time in four weeks Kelly was selected. His 61 passes were two short of the USFL record and his 433 yards were second highest this year, behind only his league-record 574 yards in the first week against Los Angeles.

Jim Brown formally charged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pro football Hall of Famer Jim Brown was formally charged Tuesday with one count each of rape, sexual battery and assault, a prosecutor said.

Deputy District Attorney Vivan Somoza said the charges were filed by Deputy District Attorney Sandra Buttitta in Municipal Court. Somoza will try the case. She said.

Buttitta said earlier Tuesday that Brown was scheduled to appear in Municipal Court on Thursday morning for arraignment.

Pepitone in trouble again

NEW YORK (AP) — The roller-coaster life of former major league baseball player Joe Pepitone careened downward Tuesday with his scheduled arraignment on charges of possession of a handgun and narcotics.

Pepitone, 44, who starred briefly for the New York Yankees during a 12-year big-league career that ended in 1973, was arrested Monday night in Brooklyn after the car in which he and two other men were riding was stopped by police for allegedly running a red light.

A search of the car turned up a .22 caliber, five-shot Remington pistol under the front seat, some unidentified pills and an eighth of a kilo of cocaine, said police spokesman Sgt. Raymond O'Donnell. Arrested along with Pepitone were the car's owner and driver, Thomas Carboite, 51, and Robert Oates, 46, both of Brooklyn.

Less Boston Marathon entries

BOSTON (AP) — Officials at the Boston Athletic Association say only 5,000 entries have been received for next month's Boston Marathon, which means the race may have the smallest field since 1980.

"The deadline (for official entries) passed last Saturday night, but we are still hoping to pick up another 1,000 entries that could still be in the mails," said Guy Morse, administrator of the race.

Bowling honor roll

TWIN FALLS — Two pins separated the four best games bowled in Twin Falls last week.

The best belonged to Jim Hill, whose 280 at the Magic Bowl last week was one point better than Steve Williams at the Magic Bowl and Gary Miller, whose 273 was bowled across town in the Industrial League at the Bowladrome. Jerry Miller was two pins behind the leader, with a 278 in the Magic Majors League at the Magic Bowl.

There was no contest for the best series, however. That belonged to Jerry Miller, whose 761 at Magic Bowl was a full 62 pins better than the next best series of the week. That belonged to Darin Rhead, with a 702 at the Bowladrome.

Best women's game belonged to Carol Lookingbill with a 243 in the Pintrippers League at the Bowladrome. That was three pins better than Dot Sayer, who bowls with the Seagulls at the Bowladrome.

Karen Poe had far and away the best women's series of the week, a 647 with the Ladies' Valley League at the Bowladrome. Next best was Sandi Schlund, who turned in a 612 in the Pioneer League at the Magic Bowl.

Hess triumphs at Park City

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — Erika Hess of Switzerland got the better of a feisty mountainside that dented most of her competition to win a women's World Cup slalom ski race on Tuesday. Hess, a two-time World Cup overall champion and the career slalom victory leader with 16, won the race by attrition. She completed the second run in 40.18 seconds for a two-beat time of 1 minute, 17.36 seconds, then walked to a YAMARA McKinney of Lexington, Ky., and first-run leader Pauletta Magoli of Italy each fell. "It was good to have experience today," said the 23-year-old Swiss star. "The course was so steep, I knew I would have to make my turns round and not go right at the gates." McKinney, who could have wrapped up the slalom title with a second-place finish, was saving a fine run when she hooked a ski tip only three gates from the end. "I made some mistakes at the top and I knew I had some time to make up," said McKinney. "I just skied too straight and hooked a tip."

Jays look like winners

By The Associated Press

The Toronto Blue Jays, a club that's expected to win this coming season, got back on the winning track in spring training Tuesday. The temperature at Pittsburgh and the Cincinnati Reds, a team that's rebuilding, continued to impress.

Exhibition roundup

The Blue Jays, who lost for the first time in 10 games Monday, improved their record to 10-1 with a 4-1 victory over the Pirates, who fell to 1-4. Mitch Webster's two-run triple with one out in the eighth inning broke a 1-1 tie for Toronto. He later came home on a single by Fred McGriff.

Jesse Barfield joined for the Blue Jays' first run and Jim Morrison's homer accounted for Pittsburgh's only score.

Cincinnati, whose 82 mark is bested only by Toronto, defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 5-2, the Reds' fifth consecutive triumph. Dave Parker's two-run homer highlighted a four-run first inning for Cincinnati, and Mario Soto pitched four shutout innings, all but the last.

Meanwhile, the San Diego Padres continued to have the worst record in the major leagues, dropping to 1-7 with a 6-5 loss to Oakland; Dave Collins tripled home two runs for the A's in the fourth inning, highlighting a six-run inning. Mike Norris, who hadn't pitched for Oakland since August 1983 because of injuries and drug problems, made his spring debut, allowing one run in the ninth inning.

In other games, Gary Carter and Dwight Gooden pitched consecutive home runs in the third inning, lifting the New York Mets to an 8-2 decision over the New York Yankees.

Ed Romero and Mark Brouhard each had two-run doubles to lead Milwaukee to a 7-5 victory over Cleveland.

Phil Garner, Craig Reynolds and Terry Puhl collected three hits apiece to pace Houston's 21-hit attack in a 24-3 romp over Detroit.

Bob Welch, Larry White and Bobby Castillo combined to check Baltimore on five hits in Los Angeles' 7-1 triumph over the Orioles.

Lynn Jones broke a tie with a solo homer in the eighth-inning-off Jack O'Connor to give Kansas City a 3-2 victory over Montreal.

Steve Jeltz broke a 1-1 tie with a run-scoring triple, and he came home on shortstop Ozzie Guillen's error in the fifth inning, and Philadelphia went on to post a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

Geoff Zahn, Doug Corbett, Luis Sanchez and Pat Clements blanked the Chicago Cubs on five hits and a strikeout in two runs in Toronto's California's 8-0 decision.

Rockie Roll Deer hit a three-run homer and Dusty Baker drove in two runs with a double and a sacrifice fly as San Francisco defeated Seattle 8-3. Gerald Perry's homer triggered a three-run third inning by Atlanta that lifted the Braves to a 3-2 triumph over Texas.

DEAR ABBY: I'm terribly upset because my husband forgot Valentine's Day. I used to drop subtle hints before my birthday anniversary before, but I never did say good, so I started to come right out and ask him to please remember me. Even that didn't help.

The week before Valentine's Day I reminded him that I would love a card, a rosebud or some cute garlands. I reminded him again the day before, but the next day when I gave him his Valentine's Day gift, he just stared at me stupidly and said, "Gee, I guess I should have gotten you something, huh?"

The same thing happens every birthday and anniversary. Last Mother's Day was my first (only baby is 4 months old), so the day before, I told my husband I'd like a card, breakfast in bed, or just being able to "keep in line" he looked after the baby. I would have been thrilled with any one of these gifts, but I got nothing. Instead he went bowling.

I am so disappointed when he forgets. I end up crying myself to sleep. Do you have any suggestions?

HURT IN ALABAMA
DEAR HURTY: Face it, you are married to a thoughtless, insensitive man. He doesn't forget—he cares nothing for sentiment, and refuses to put himself out to please you.

YOU CAN'T CHANGE ANYONE, BUT YOURSELF, so accept these glaring deficiencies in the man you loved enough to marry. Expect nothing, and you'll not be disappointed. And concentrate Questions such as "How long has the recipient been remarried?" and "With whom do the children live?" were not answered in the letter. The relationship between the stepparent and the children has been discussed, but must also be considered.

It's their wedding, and they should have a say in the matter.

In this case, the parents of the groom had a bitter divorce; after which the father promptly married his girlfriend, who had been waiting in the wings for some time. These facts should have been included in the letter but were not.

In my eagerness to stay within the space allotted for my column, it's often necessary to cut the original letter to the bone. Or sometimes a local editor cuts a letter, eliminating some important facts. In this case, it was I who cut the letter, omitting some pertinent facts. Many readers wrote to complain. They were right!
