House narrowly approves MX missile funds

By MIKE SHANAHAN The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - The House delivered a slender, hard-fought victory to President Reagan on Tuesday by voting 218-213 to approve spending $1.5 billion for 21 more MX missiles...

the 10-warhead weapon, and O'Neill said he would try again on a second vote Wednesday or Thursday. "Certainly we are going to try and switch it around," he said.

White House, called the House action "a vote for peace, for a safer future and for success in Geneva." In the final moments of debate, House Armed Services Committee chairman Les Aspin of Wisconsin, one of 61 Democrats who defied O'Neill and voted for the missile, echoed Reagan's argument that the MX was needed for the success of the arms talks in Geneva.

As he spoke, Aspin was hissed and booed by many of his Democratic colleagues. House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas said if he thought the MX was needed for the arms talks he would vote to spend ten times the $1.5 billion in the resolution approved Tuesday. But Wright said Reagan has shown neither the need for the missiles or explained how he will pay for them in a time of $200 billion federal deficits.

to reason together and make an agreement of peace for all mankind." In the vote 158 Republicans voted for the MX; 189 Democrats voted against it, joined by 24 Republicans. Reagan won many Democratic converts during an intensive White House lobbying campaign by saying that without the MX, the Geneva arms control talks, which began two weeks ago, would be unlikely to succeed.

The president, in a statement issued by the White House, called the House action "a vote to stop showing each other how tough we are," Wright said-of-the U.S.-Soviet arms races. "The time has come. * See MX on Page A2

No-frills pool

Twin Falls City voters will be asked April 23 to approve a $700,000 general obligation bond for this proposed "no-frills pool." Proponents claim the 12-year bond will cost $5.60 a year for a taxpayer with property worth $50,000. The proposed 50-meter pool would measure 50 meters by 60 feet about the same size as the previous pool at the site. It would include three diving boards, a wading pool and a movable bulkhead in separate portions of the main pool. It could serve 600 people daily.

Banks dumping troubled farmers on government

By JIM DRINKARD The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - Farm lenders are dumping their troubled borrowers on the federal government's doorstep at an alarming rate, prompting the transfer of $300 million Tuesday to help meet the heightened credit demand, a top Agriculture Department official said.

He said the agency, often called the farm lender of last resort because farmers, in order to get loans, must show they could not receive credit elsewhere, would continue use transfer authority to make sure loan demand is met. "We are the lender of last resort, and we'll do our job," Naylor told the House panel. Despite an estimate by the Federal Reserve Bank in Chicago that some 7 percent of farmers would fail to get operating loans this year through normal channels, he predicted "most will receive loans... They'll find a way."

Under questioning, Naylor conceded that the influx of new borrowers had bogged down paperwork and slowed processing of applications, despite the transfer of personnel and authorization of overtime in an effort to keep up with the work flow.

And he expressed concern over the flow of farm borrowers from their traditional lenders to the government's loan windows, saying he does not want to see a repeat of the phenomenon that left FMHA holding more than half of all farm debt in the Southeastern United States in the late 1970s. "We want those people to stay with their commercial lender or their Farm Credit lender," Naylor said. "I think it would be tragic if the commercial sector does not maintain its traditional role as a farm lender."

Western Union spokesman Warren R. Bechtel said he had been given no further information on the Twin Falls plant by the corporation's executives. Executives for DEI and Western Union said Tuesday they expect to * See FACTORY on Page A2

High court upholds teacher challenge

To ban on homosexuals in public school

By RICHARD CARELLI The Associated Press

WASHINGTON - An evenly divided Supreme Court barred Oklahoma public school boards Tuesday from firing teachers who advocate, encourage or promote homosexuality. The justices, by a 4-4 vote, upheld a federal appeals court ruling that an Oklahoma law allowing such firings violated teachers' free-speech rights. Such a law does not set any national precedent, because it is possible that in some future case the same issue will be decided by all nine justices.

rights as other Americans." But Larry Lewis, an attorney for the Oklahoma School Board Association, refused to admit defeat. "Of course, we'd rather win outright than get a tie," Lewis said. "Since we didn't have a majority on the court against us, we consider that a moral victory." Lewis said his association would not try to salvage the invalidated law but will "begin efforts to have the law tightened by the Oklahoma Legislature." Justice Lewis F. Powell, who missed hearing arguments in the Oklahoma case in January because he was recuperating from prostate surgery, did not participate in deciding the case. Powell is the high court's only member who once served on a local school board, as president of the Richmond, Va., Board of Education. The Oklahoma law authorized local school boards to fire or otherwise deny work to any teacher who engaged in "public homosexual conduct or activity." The law defined "activity" as "advocating, soliciting, imposing, encouraging or promoting public or private homosexual activity in a manner that creates a substantial risk that such conduct will come to the attention of school children or school employees."

Idaho Wheat Commission administrator takes over Evans appoints new agriculture chief

By QUANE KENYON The Associated Press

BOISE - Richard Rush, who describes himself as "a north Idaho farm kid" is the new director of Idaho's Department of Agriculture. Rush, 46, has been administrator of the Idaho Wheat Commission for the past seven years. He was appointed Tuesday by Gov. John Evans to succeed Max Hanson, who retired earlier this month after industry criticism over the way the agency was being run. And spokesmen for those industries immediately praised the selection. "That's an excellent job with the wheat commission," said David Blivens, Idaho Cattle Association spokesman. "You'd have to work awfully hard not to like Dick Rush. I'm real pleased with the selection."

qualified, applied for the position. Hanson was paid just under $50,000 per year when he retired. Evans announced that he and Rush leave on Wednesday for the first in a series of meetings on Idaho farm problems. Evans and Rush plan to meet with farmers at Sandpoint, Genesee and Grangeville on Wednesday to talk about farm problems. Other meetings are planned April 4 at Preston and Twin Falls, April 4 in Emmett and Caldwell, April 15 in Aberdeen, April 16 in Ashton, April 17 at Rigby and April 18 at Mackay. "I want to hear directly from the people who are affected," said Evans. "We want to be able to help them get through these most difficult times."

Rush, a Gooding native, attended public schools in Nampa and Moscow. He received a degree in agricultural economics from University of Idaho, and was student president of the Moscow school. He received a master's degree in the same field from University of California-Davis. In 1977, Rush was named administrator of the Idaho Wheat Commission, succeeding Harold West. Before that, he managed a 6,000-acre dryland farm and livestock-business in Kootenai and Benewah counties for the Coeur d'Alene Indian Tribe. He owns a small irrigated farm in Canyon County. Hatch said Rush had a similar assignment in 1977, when he replaced West as the Wheat Commission administrator. "When he went with the Wheat Commission, there was quite a bit of turmoil there, and he did a good job," said Hatch. In his job with the wheat board, Rush has worked to increase foreign exports. Evans said that will be an important part of his assignment at the Department of Agriculture. "Rush acknowledged he was taking a risk, with a governor election coming up next fall, and probably a new governor taking office early in 1987. "There's some risk involved. But there are a lot of farmers out there who don't know if they will be in business 20 months from now. I guess I can take that risk, too," he said. Rush said he was notified by the governor that he had won the job. * See RUSH on Page A2

DEI buys firm

E.F. Johnson keeps plant

By BOB FREUND Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS - Western Union Corp. is selling E.F. Johnson Co. to the 13th largest natural gas company in the country, Diversified Energies Inc. However, the troubled telecommunications giant will retain E.F. Johnson's Twin Falls factory. E.F. Johnson's Twin Falls division manager Richard Conyers said he thought the most likely arrangement would be a lease-back agreement in which DEI would lease the Twin Falls property from Western Union, and that "the Twin Falls operation would continue as is." DEI announced it will buy E.F. Johnson for $25 million in cash and will assume another $33 million worth of the company's existing debt as part of the deal disclosed Tuesday. In a similar announcement, Western Union said it also will hold on to $10 million worth of E.F. Johnson's assets. Among those assets is the Twin Falls plant, which produces mobile telephones, said DEI spokesman Betty Gibson. "Before we close on the deal, E.F. Johnson will transfer assets to Western Union, the Twin Falls, Idaho, real estate and some cash receivables from a company called Airfone," she continued. Western Union spokesman Warren R. Bechtel said he had been given no further information on the Twin Falls plant by the corporation's executives. "Someone is doing well," he said, but other parts of Idaho's farm economy are "extremely depressed."
"it's imperative that our new agriculture director take a lead role in solving farm problems," Evans said.

Stallings breaks rank from delegation on vote

BOISE (AP) — Democratic Congressman Richard Stallings broke ranks from his colleagues in the Idaho delegation Tuesday to vote with the minority against approving $7.5 billion for production of 921 MX missiles.
Both Republican Sen. James McClure and Steve Symms voted for funding and production of the MX system when the issue was in the Senate. Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, cast his lot with President Reagan as well in Tuesday's narrow 219-213 House vote. Another vote on MX is scheduled for Thursday.

As the vote approached, O'Neill conceded that he was short of enough votes to win.
He said a half-dozen Democrats previously counted as opposed to the MX had switched after meeting Monday with Reagan — and Max Kampelman, the president's chief negotiator in the U.S.-Soviet arms control talks.

Idaho officials to begin virus blood screening in a month

BOISE (AP) — Idaho health officials say they will start screening blood for antibodies of a virus linked to acquired immune deficiency syndrome in a month.

Although the test, approved by the Food and Drug Administration earlier this month, is intended to reduce the incidence of AIDS transmitted through the blood supply, it has raised a number of medical and ethical questions.

Red Cross and state health officials recently met with representatives of the Boise gay community to resolve the issues before testing begins.

The Snake River Regional Red

Cross blood bank in Boise received the test kits last week, and employees are learning how to use them properly, said Dr. Ted Walters, the center's medical director.

Idaho is one of only three states in the country with no confirmed cases of AIDS, Walters said.

The disease, which cannot be cured and usually is fatal, is transmitted through sexual contact, through communal use of needles and through blood transfusions. The disease leaves victims vulnerable to a variety of infections.

The new test, which the federal Department of Health and Human Services has urged states to use, detects the antibodies of human T-cell lymphotropic virus type III.

More than 80 percent of the patients with confirmed cases of AIDS test positive for the HTLV-III virus, an Idaho Bureau of Preventive Medicine press release said.

However, a positive test does not necessarily mean a person has or will develop the deadly immune-deficiency syndrome, said Dr. Charles Brokopp, an epidemiologist for the state Department of Health and Welfare.

The disease itself cannot be diagnosed until the victim develops an opportunistic infection or other symptom, such as Kaposi's sarcoma, a rare cancer, which indicates the body's immune system has been damaged by the virus, Brokopp said.

The blood bank plans to test each unit of blood and dispose of those that test positive, Walters said. The test is expected to add approximately $1 to the cost of a unit of blood.

To prevent members of groups at high risk from giving blood in order to get the HTLV-III test, the state Health Department plans to set up independent, no-cost test sites in the next few weeks, Brokopp said.

Male homosexuals with multiple partners, intravenous drug users, Haitians and female partners of male bisexuals are at high risk of contracting AIDS.

District health departments in seven cities across the state will draw blood and send it to the state lab in Boise for analysis, Brokopp said. The regional blood bank covers all of Idaho except the Panhandle.

The state will return the results from the voluntary tests to the local offices, which in turn will transmit results and provide counseling services. But blood bank officials have not decided whether to tell people of positive results because the meaning of a positive test is unclear, Walters said.

The blood bank also must decide whether to register the names of those who test positive.

Unemployment claims reveal two fraud cases

BOISE (AP) — A special audit of more than 400 Idaho unemployment compensation claims shows only two involved actual fraud.

State Employment Director Scott McDonald said as part of a federal program, 405 Idaho claims were randomly selected by computer for an audit.

The report showed 277 claims were paid properly, 95 cases were overpaid and 19 were underpaid. The study covered 1884 claims, he said.

Of the overpayments, McDonald said about 31 percent were caused by employers misreporting base period wages. The second largest cause of improper payment was the claimant misreporting earnings during the period he or she received unemployment compensation.

TWO TYPES OF FRAUD CASES: The claimant wasn't actively seeking work, which disqualifies a worker from qualifying for aid.

A task force composed of the study, and later will come up with a corrective action plan, but McDonald said employers should take the time to familiarize themselves with Idaho's reporting system, and make sure they are not submitting incorrect information.

McDonald said if the same error rate held true for all unemployment claims paid last year, Idaho would have paid $6.6 million improperly.

Craig says he opposes fish plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, says he opposes a plan to merge the Western Pacific Management Council and the Pacific Fisheries Management Council.

Craig testified Tuesday before the House subcommittee on fisheries, wildlife conservation and the environment, said such a merger would allow states with a large commercial fishing industry to dominate management decisions.

States such as Idaho, which has no commercial salmon fishing, would have very little voice in policy decisions, Craig said.

"I oppose the merger of the two councils because I believe this would do nothing towards enhancing fishery management—or conservation—in either zone," Craig said.

Court rejects jobless claim

BOISE (AP) — What's the difference between an employee, covered by workmen's compensation, and an independent contractor, who is not covered?

The Idaho Supreme Court says if the employer has the right to control the time, manner and method of executing the work, the person is an employee. If the employer only has the right to require definite results, with no control over when and how the work is done, the person is an independent contractor.

That was the ruling Tuesday as the court voted 4-1 to reject a claim for workmen's compensation filed by Anthony Burns. Burns was hired by Herbert Nyberg to manage an apartment unit in Caldwell.

He was terminated and later filed a claim for workmen's compensation, saying he injured his back while managing Nyberg's apartments.

The Industrial Commission ruled Burns was an independent contractor and the injury occurred outside the scope of his employment. The Supreme Court agreed.

Justice Stephen Bistline dissented. He said when a work contract is unclear, any doubt should go in favor of the claimant.

Bannock County pays penalty

POCATELLO (AP) — Paying out $5,835 in penalty interest on a $9,760 tax refund to Bucyrus-Erie Co. is not as serious as it sounds, Bannock County Commissioner Tom Katsilometes says.

"The county didn't lose any money on the interest penalty," he said. "That debt to Bucyrus-Erie was making us money at the same time."

A state-ordered property tax refund owed Bucyrus-Erie was in a Bannock County desk drawer collecting interest for four years before the bill was paid in January.

The oversight went unnoticed until November when county officials were trying to close the books on B-E's 1980 tax appeal of property tax valuations.

Katsilometes said the $9,760 tax refund had been provided in income for the county since it was ordered held by county officials. However, he was unable to provide specifics on how much money the county might have made during the period.

"I think we may have made more money than we've lost," he said. "That original debt has been reinvested by the county, so I'm sure whatever we lost we made up through interest income."

Bannock County Treasurer Vivian Crozier, however, said she thought the county "only broke even" on the interest income.

With the money you save on an Idaho First LowPay Auto Loan, you can buy something nice for your wife.

Frankly, this isn't for everybody. But if you trade in your car every few years, or if you want a better car for the same budget, or if you're in one of those high tax brackets, or if you'd simply like a lot lower monthly car payments, it might be for you.

How low is "a lot lower"? At today's interest rates, about 20% lower.

For instance, if you went out today and bought a Plymouth Voyager for $11,900, your monthly payment would be about $75 less than with conventional financing.*

That's based on 20% down, at the current 14.78% interest rate, with four years to pay (you can take two to five years if you like).

Another interesting feature of the Idaho First LowPay Auto Loan is that you may not need a down payment. That's right. No down payment.

If you qualify, you can buy that Voyager or a Toyota or Chevy or Lincoln or LeBaron or Mercedes or most any car (even, we suppose, a Rolls) for no money down.

In that sense, an Idaho First LowPay Auto Loan is just like a lease. But better—because you own the car and because you can deduct your interest payments from your income tax.

Those are the main advantages of the loan. Now here's how it works. We figure out how much your car will be worth at the end of your loan (two to five years). We subtract that amount from the purchase price of the car. Then you pay only the amount your car is expected to depreciate during the loan, plus interest.

At the end of the loan, you have three options. You can return the car to us or just pay off the balance—that same amount we figured it would be worth—and the car's yours. We'll even re-finance it if you like.

As we said, however, it's not for everybody. So if you're dreaming about a new car, sit down with one of our loan officers and get the facts. Or ask your car dealer about an Idaho First LowPay Auto Loan.

And with the money you save, who knows what you could do? Maybe buy something nice for your husband.

*Based on the following example:

	Conventional Financing	LowPay Auto Loan
Purchase price	$11,900.00	Purchase price	$11,900.00
20% down payment	2,380.00	20% down payment	2,380.00
48 payments at 14%		48 payments at 14.78%	5,280.00
Annual Percentage Rate	260.53	Annual Percentage Rate	185.85
		Annual Percentage Rate may vary

U.S. policy cited in Kennecott closure

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Angry copper workers and Sen. Jesse Garn cited President Reagan's economic policies Tuesday as a major reason for the decision by Kennecott, the nation's largest copper producer, to close its Utah operation.

The shutdown, which Kennecott President Frank Jodlik said would last until copper prices came up or labor prices went down, will leave 2,300 Utahans. Only 750 workers will stay on the giant copper pit as a care and maintenance crew.

Utah officials Tuesday grappled with the anticipated impact of losing Kennecott's annual $100 million payroll and estimated $2 million to $25 million in tax revenues.

"It is not often that I take issue with this Administration, however, last fall my colleagues and I pushed a resolution through Congress which directed them to negotiate voluntary copper production cutbacks by the foreign copper producers," said Garn, Utah's Republican senator.

Unfortunately, Chiller Perry, Kennecott's vice president, said he never presented to management the idea of a new tax rate. He said that the company's operations in the world are not as profitable as they used to be because of the policies of the Republican Party.

Henry Reagan said Kennecott's closure has been the company for 29 years.

But Kocherhans said most workers had the shutdown coming for years and would be looking for ways to carry on.

"There is a whole world out there. You can let your life revolve around Kennecott, or you can be a bitter."

A Salt Lake Steelworkers official said Jodlik's announcement unfairly placed blame for the company's closure on the company's workers.

Idaho 38th, Utah 34th in per capita tax growth

WASHINGTON (AP) — Utah ranks 34th and Idaho 38th in per capita growth of state and local property tax collections between 1973 and 1983, according to the Tax Foundation.

Both states' tax collections, as well as the size of the increase, were well below the nation's average, the foundation reported.

Utah's per capita collection figure went from $146 to $281 over the decade, a 92 hike. Idaho's went from $152 to $238, up 56.

Cities and counties get 76 percent of their revenues by taxing property, and during the 1970s, collections rose steadily at an average annual rate of 8.7 percent.

But in the wake of tax-cutting symbolized by California's Proposition 13, state and local property taxes rose between 1977 and 1980 at a rate of only 3 percent a year, the non-profit research organization said.

From 1980 to 1983, the study found property taxes grew by nearly 30 percent, including a 9 percent gain in 1983. On a per capita basis, collections from that tax source increased by 77 percent from 1973 through 1983, from $216 to $381.

The figures are all based on the assumption that all corporate property taxes are paid by individuals. Per capita collections rose in every state except California and Nevada.

Willberg disaster

Reporters enter mine where 27 died

ORANGEVILLE, Utah (AP) — It will cost at least $13 million to reclaim the burning Willberg mine and recover the bodies of 27 coal miners killed when a fire broke out below ground Dec. 19, a company spokesman said Tuesday.

Bill Miller, general manager and vice president of Emery Mining Corp., and other company officials spoke to a group of about 15 reporters and photographers touring Emery Mining operations in and around the mine Tuesday. Miller said crews were making good progress in reclaiming the mine's tunnels.

Emery Mining operated the mine for Utah Power & Light Co.

Miller said workers have reclaimed the Third and Fourth East tunnels all the way to the Second South section, and are now heading toward First North — the main series of tunnels where the fire broke out.

Crews-worked some 1,500 feet inside First East Tuesday, about 3,300 feet from the entrance to the First North tunnels, where the fire broke out. Miller said that barring complications, workers should reach the First North entrance within three weeks.

Once there, he said, Emery officials will decide how to proceed to reach the bodies of 26 men and a woman.

John Ward, spokesman for UP&L, said most of that cost will be covered by insurance.

The visiting journalists were given a quick course in mine safety before being escorted into the still-smoldering mine for the first time since the fire.

The group, wearing overalls, high rubber boots and hard hats and traveling in a small rail car, was to be taken 600 to 800 feet inside the mine. That's far from the crews laboring further inside to reclaim tunnels and recover the bodies of the dead miners.

Companies indicted for Wyoming sales

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted two corporations and two individuals for allegedly making and selling equipment to Wyoming iron mining companies that lacked features to guard against methane gas explosions.

The indictment was handed down last week but was released Tuesday by U.S. Attorney Richard Stacey.

Defendants named in the indictment are Gerald K. Young, James J. Wise, Young's Machinery Co. of Monticello, Utah, and Elmco Mining Machinery International, which has an office in Salt Lake City and is a division of Envirotech Corp.

Each is charged with six counts of delivering diesel-powered mining equipment that bore forged plates indicating the machinery had been certified as safe by the Mine Safety Health Administration for use in "gassy" mines, the indictment alleged.

Each also is charged with conspiracy to sell falsely certified equipment.

Young was president of Young's Machinery, which allegedly manufactured the improperly certified machines and allegedly put false certification plates on them.

Wise was vice president and director of sales and marketing for Elmco, which allegedly sold machines it knew were dangerous to Tenneco Minerals, Stauffer Chemical and FMC Corp. for their Green River area operations.

The indictment alleges the equipment was sold from January 1979 through 1981.

Stacey said the alleged violations were discovered during a routine check of the machines by the MSHA and were removed in 1982, but the agency conducted an investigation on its own with the Justice Department. And the U.S. attorney's office in Cheyenne didn't get the case until last fall, he said.

During the MSHA investigation, Stacey said, the equipment was tested in an environment of methane gas and allegedly did cause explosions. He said there hadn't been any explosions in the Wyoming iron mines, probably because of good ventilation systems.

Stacey said convictions could draw maximum penalties of $70,000 fines and 35 years in prison.

"Other investigations of similar nature are going on at this time," Stacey said. But he said there are no other criminal charges or civil penalties filed against the companies or the two men.

The machinery mentioned in the indictment included 13 personnel carriers, lift trucks and loading trucks.

Idahoan put on Fed council

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — Pocatello car dealer Park Price III has been named to the Federal Reserve Bank of San Francisco's new small business and agriculture advisory council.

Price is the only Idahoan named to the 12-member panel, which was formed to increase the bank's formal contact with small business and farm representatives in the 12th Federal Reserve District, which covers nine western states.

Six of the appointees are from California, with one each from Washington, Utah and Arizona. Two represent Oregon.

The council will report to the bank's board of directors and bank management. Its chairman and vice chairman will report to members of the Federal Reserve System's Board of Governors in Washington, D.C.

The council members' terms expire Dec. 31. They are scheduled to meet in May and October at San Francisco. Price will be sent an agenda next month.

"I'm real thrilled about that as a matter of fact. It ought to be very informative for me," Price said Monday. He credited his appointment to Pocatello banker J. Grant Bickmore, who submitted nominations to the Federal Reserve Board. Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker approved the appointments.

Price said the new advisory council will give added perspective to the monetary board.

N.Y. heiress returns to Utah state prison

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — New York heiress Francis Bernice Schreuder, serving a life term for ordering her son to murder her millionaire father, was on her way back to Utah today after a four-month stay at Idaho Women's Prison.

Mrs. Schreuder, 46, was convicted of first-degree murder in 1983 for ordering her son, Marc Schreuder, 25, to kill his 76-year-old grandfather, Salt Lake City auto parts magnate Franklin Bradshaw, in 1978.

Prosecutors claimed the shooting death stemmed from Mrs. Schreuder's fear that she would be left out of her father's will. Marc Schreuder was convicted of second-degree murder and is serving a sentence of five years to life in Utah State Prison.

Dave Franchina, deputy warden of the Utah prison, said Mrs. Schreuder was sent to the women's facility at Orofino, Idaho, Nov. 15 to help her adjust to prison life.

"She was having problems with the (Utah) institution, I believe ever since the day she arrived," Franchina said.

Mrs. Schreuder had been upset because the state Board of Paroles gave her a parole date of Oct. 8, 1996, just over a year after she was committed to the prison Oct. 31, 1983, he said.

"Under the circumstances, it shouldn't have been too shocking," Franchina said.

However, he said, the New York socialite's difficulty in adjusting to prison life was compounded by social and economic differences between her and other prisoners.

"She is not from this area... she is probably the most wealthy individual at the women's prison, and she had very little culture in common with the other ladies," Franchina said.

Mrs. Schreuder was a member of the board of directors of the New York City Ballet at the time of her conviction.

The purpose of sending her to Idaho was to give her some "time out, hopefully, to take some of the strain off her at this institution," he said.

Franchina said corrections officials interviewed Mrs. Schreuder in late January and determined she was ready to return to Utah. He said the change of scenery appeared to have benefited her.

"It was a different staff and inmates, and not nearly the notoriety she had here. Apparently she's responded to it," he said.

"I don't think I'd call her a model prisoner — just a difficult-to-manage individual," Franchina said. "Her cultural base is different. Her tastes are different and her expectations are different."

Mrs. Schreuder was moved from Orofino to the main prison in Boise last Friday, said prison spokesman Ralph Newburg.

She was picked up by Utah authorities around mid-morning, Newburg said.

900 Afghans reported killed

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet forces reportedly massacred 900 civilians in northern Afghanistan, but the account has not been confirmed, a Western diplomat said Tuesday. Bodies reportedly were seen carried away in bullock carts following the attack in Kunduz province, but no details about when or exactly where the attack allegedly occurred were known; and there was no independent confirmation of it, he said.

Shoot command recorded

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Defense lawyers acknowledged Tuesday that they heard what appeared to be a command to shoot recorded on two videotapes seconds before opposition leader Benigno Aquino was killed.

The armed forces chief, Gen. Fabian C. Ver, and 25 other men are on trial for double murder in the killings of Aquino and Rolando Galman, who the military claimed was a communist agent and Aquino's assassin.

Chemical weapons deplored

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar on Tuesday condemned the use of chemical weapons in the Iran-Iraq war and "the unconscionable carnage caused by this conflict."

In a statement issued through a spokesman, the U.N. chief executive did not say which side is purported to have used chemical weapons.

Iran has accused Iraq of such use, and taken injured soldiers to Vienna and London for inspection. The secretary-general's statement said "information emanating from Vienna and London indicates" that use of chemical weapons "has occurred."

Iraqi planes strike cities

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — Iraq said its warplanes struck Tehran and six other Iranian cities Tuesday. Shipping sources reported that an Iraqi jet hit a Panamanian freighter with an Exocet missile in the Persian Gulf, setting it ablaze.

An Iraqi military spokesman reported "devastating" raids on Teheran, the Iranian capital, and on Kermanshah, Hamadan, Bisotun, Isfahan, Gilan-e-Garb and Serbil Zahab.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said Iraqi planes raided two residential areas of southern Tehran, killing nine people and wounding 14. It said Iraqi aircraft were chased off by anti-aircraft fire before they could bomb Hamadan, but did not mention the other reported raids.

Explosion kills two Chileans

CONCEPCION, Chile (AP) — An explosion killed two government security men in a hotel room from which a dissident radio message was being broadcast in an apparent attempt to lure them to the bomb.

Officials said Tuesday that one man was killed on the spot, the other died in a hospital and three policemen were slightly injured by the explosion Monday night.

A government statement issued in Santiago, the capital, said the security agents found the radio transmitter and the bomb in the same room, which had been rented to a young man with a false identity card.

The explosion resounded through this Pacific coastal city of 600,000 people and shattered windows on several floors of the 12-story Hotel Araucano.

To NATO nations

U.S. invites allies to join in Star Wars

LUXEMBOURG (AP) — U.S. Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger on Tuesday formally invited key allies to join American research on space weapons to shield the Western alliance from a Soviet missile attack.

In a letter to NATO defense ministers and to the governments of Japan, Australia and Israel, Weinberger asked for a response within two months.

He also sought to reassure the allies that any U.S. space-based defense, if they were erected, would not leave Western Europe vulnerable to Soviet missiles.

Some European governments have raised doubts in recent weeks about the feasibility and wisdom of the U.S. plan, commonly called the Star Wars system.

The defense ministers, however, expressed full support for the research phase of the program, while adding that it was too early to judge whether such a missile defense should eventually be deployed, according to West German and other officials.

Weinberger also gave the 12 NATO defense ministers an account of the circumstances under which a U.S. Army officer was shot and killed Sunday by a Soviet soldier in East Germany, according to Michael Burch, a spokesman for the Defense Department.

Burch cited Weinberger as calling the shooting of Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson Jr. an unjustified murder, that was being protested "in the strongest possible terms" by the U.S. government.

A key feature of the NATO defense ministers meeting, which was scheduled to end Wednesday, was a report by U.S. Gen. Bernard W. Rogers, the supreme commander of allied forces in Europe.

Rogers presented a detailed plan for implementing an October 1983 NATO decision to withdraw 1,400 nuclear warheads from NATO's short-range arsenal.

A U.S. official, speaking on condition he not be identified, told reporters that the Rogers plan, which had been kept secret, called for reducing the number of short-range nuclear weapons in Europe to a little under 4,600 by the end of 1985.

Burch said that Rogers' recommendations included removal of the entire NATO arsenal of atomic demolition mines, which are in West Germany and other allied nations.

South African police arrest protest clerics

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Police arrested four leading anti-apartheid clerics and more than 230 protesters Tuesday when they marched through Cape Town after a memorial service for 19 blacks killed last week by police.

It was one of the largest mass arrests of opponents of apartheid, South Africa's policy of racial separation.

New rioting broke out near Port Elizabeth on the Indian Ocean, where the 19 blacks were shot to death by police last Thursday and 11 people have died in subsequent violence. No casualties were reported Tuesday.

The shootings set off bitter debate over whether police "opened" fire without warning, as witnesses claim. Police said blacks were armed and threatened them.

On Tuesday police warned whites throughout the country to stay out of black townships because they might be assaulted. More than 20 people have died in rioting by blacks since September. One, an infant, was white.

Police spokesman Lt. Attie Laubscher said 239 people were arrested Tuesday, including one journalist he refused to identify.

The incident took place as mourners filed out of the Bullenkant Methodist Church, locked arms and began to march toward Parliament, about a mile away.

Within a block of the church they encountered a police cordon. An officer informed the Rev. Allan Boesak, president of the World Alliance of Reformed Churches, that the gathering was illegal.

"I understand," Boesak replied at the head of the marchers. "But the people have made a decision."

The mourners then dropped to their knees and sang "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Nkosi Sikelele, y'Afrika," which means "God Save Africa."

The incident took place almost in front of the Caledon Police Station. Officers in blue-uniformed officers tumbled the marchers into vans. At the station, police took their names and charged them with attending an illegal gathering.

After sundown, police freed all the marchers on their own recognizance and told them to report to magistrate's court Wednesday morning.

Conviction can mean imprisonment for up to a year.

Laws affecting demonstrations are so all-encompassing that a meeting of even four people, indoors or out, can be illegal. Some sports events have technically violated the acts.

Among those arrested was the Rev. Beyers Naude, formerly a high-ranking dominie, or preacher.

China proposes space moratorium

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — China on Tuesday formally proposed a moratorium on the development, testing and deployment of space weapons while U.S.-Soviet negotiations are under way on arms reductions.

Chinese Ambassador Qian Qiangdong said the 46-nation Geneva Conference on Disarmament that the superpower negotiations on space weapons and nuclear missiles should be "speedily" complemented by talks in the conference.

He said both the United States and the Soviets are "heightening" their efforts in the development and testing of space weapons.

He cited President Reagan's proposed Strategic Defense Initiative, known as the "Star Wars" plan, and said the Soviet Union "for years has been engaged in developing defensive strategic weapons."

He submitted a working paper that included the proposal for a moratorium and called for the Conference on Disarmament to create a subsidiary body to negotiate the "disengagement" of outer space.

Establishment of such a committee has been called for in a U.N. General Assembly resolution, but the conference is at an impasse because of a dispute over its mandate.

The West wants the mandate limited to an exploratory role, while the Soviet Union wants the international body to have a concrete negotiating role.

Qian said the Chinese proposal was an effort to break the deadlock.

India fears Sikhs may have hired assassin

AMRITSAR, India (AP) — Intelligence reports indicate Sikh extremists living abroad may have hired the international terrorist Carlos to kill Indian leaders, and a nationwide alert has been issued to prevent him from entering the country.

An official source said Tuesday the alert says Carlos Illich Ramirez Sanchez, a Venezuelan "sometimes called 'The Jackal,'" can pass as an Indian and may try to enter the country on a false passport, since there are no accurate descriptions of him, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

He said some overseas Sikh businessmen are suspected of having provided Carlos "a lot of money" to carry out assassinations in India and train Sikh extremists.

When asked about the reports, spokesman M.S. Krishna Rao of the Home Ministry said only that the government was aware of them and "all necessary follow-up steps have been taken."

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's government has accused Sikh extremists of instigating and financing terrorism in Punjab, where most of India's 3 million Sikhs live. The state now is under military control.

South Africa bans Stevie Wonder music after remark

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The government-owned South African Broadcasting Corp. announced Tuesday it will no longer play Stevie Wonder's music because of a remark the singer-songwriter made when he won an Oscar.

Wonder said Monday night that he accepted the award "in the name of Nelson Mandela... the best-known black prisoner of South Africa's apartheid system of white minority rule."

Mandela, 66, is a longtime Johannesburg lawyer who became a black-rights leader and was sentenced to life in prison in 1964 for planning sabotage to overthrow "white domination."

Wonder won his Oscar for best movie song for his hit "I Just Called to Say I Love You," written for the film "Woman In Red."

Flag lady gets to wear fur coat

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The state Department of Transportation said Tuesday it made a mistake when it told Santina DeSantis she couldn't wear her fur coat while working as a flag lady at a cold construction site.

"As far as the department is concerned, it's OK," DOT spokesman Paul A. Kelly said.

However, her high heels are unsafe and she won't be permitted to wear them while flagging down traffic, Kelly said.

Last Monday, Gordon Cerow of the DOT's Public Works Division told the 55-year-old North Providence woman that her knee-length muskrat coat, which she wore to keep warm, and high-heeled "distracted motorists and could cause an accident."

Anthony Ciaccarelli, the division's chief of construction, agreed with Cerow. But Kelly said William Carcieri Jr., the division's deputy director, overruled the two on Tuesday.

Carcieri says the coat does not violate the rules, Kelly said.

Mrs. DeSantis agreed about the shoes. But she had worn her fur even though she didn't know about Carcieri's decision.

She said she tried a waist-length jacket one day last week, with two heavy sweaters, but still couldn't keep warm.

"I got too cold for their rules," she said.

Which apparently is fine with the state.

"I'm getting a lot of thumbs-up," she said, "and there hasn't been one accident yet."

Redgrave kin pay honors

LONDON (AP) — The wife and children of Sir Michael Redgrave led an austere but theatrical assembly for Tuesday's funeral service for the actor, who died Thursday at the age of 77.

Both Redgrave daughters, Vanessa and Lynn, set aside commitments in America to comfort their mother, actress Rachel Kempson, at the service.

Simon Corin told those gathered at West London's Mortlake Crematorium that the Redgrave acting tradition will continue into a third generation.

"(Michael) lives on in Joey, Tasha, and Carlo," Corin, Redgrave said, calling three of Sir Michael's grandchildren, "part of a generation that will create the kind of theater Michael worked for."

He said the last play his father attended was a "Yes" production of "Hamlet" one week before his death, in which granddaughter Natasha Richardson — Vanessa's daughter by director Tony Richardson — played Ophelia.

Joely Richardson appears along with mother Vanessa in the current film "Wuthering." Carlo Redgrave (Nero — son of Vanessa and actor Franco Nero) had a small part in the 1976 film "Bugsy Malone."

Schroeder fit, closer to leaving hospital

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — A 57-year-old patient with a thickening of the lining of the lungs, Schroeder is physically fit to leave Humana Hospital Audubon but must wait until private nurses complete a training program, his doctor said.

Doctors had planned to discharge Schroeder to a trained apartment across the street last month, but a persistent fever and flu-like symptoms kept the 53-year-old retired federal worker hospitalized.

Implant surgeon Dr. William C. DeVries, commenting publicly for the first time in more than a month on Schroeder's condition, told a lecture audience Monday night at the University of Kentucky that Schroeder has recovered much of his strength.

Hospital officials previously had said staff nurses were being trained to provide 24-hour care for Schroeder at the apartment.

However, state regulations prohibit that so a team of private, registered and licensed practical nurses had to be hired and trained for the duty, DeVries said in a question-answer period after the lecture.

"That may take two or three more weeks, but he's ready physically to go today," DeVries said. "His family is ready for him to go."

Schroeder, of Jasper, Ind., received his artificial heart Nov. 25.

Murray Haydon, the only other living patient with an artificial heart, has been suffering from a mild case of acute respiratory distress syndrome, a condition which a thickening of the lining of the lungs impairs breathing, DeVries said.

Haydon, who received his Jarvik-7 heart Feb. 17, is being weaned from a respirator and DeVries said he hopes the retired Louisville autoworker will be breathing without assistance later this week.

Wrong injection leaves infant critically ill

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The premature infant The baby's awake and alert, but still has significant lung problems which we expect will continue for some time. She's not out of the woods by any means," Stroeter said.

The baby, delivered 2 1/2 months premature by Gaesrean section to Lillian Cedeno, 21, of Schoenstadt, was in critical but stable condition, said Ms. Cedeno, said Elmer Stroeter, a spokesman for Albany Medical Center Hospital.

The woman, who was 25 weeks pregnant at the time, was undergoing chemotherapy for a tumor in her uterus. On March 16, doctors performed a Gaesrean section to deliver her one-pound, 15-ounce baby girl, named Lillian Kathy.

Babies delivered at that weight and gestational age have about a 60 percent chance of survival, with underdeveloped lungs being the major problem, Stroeter said.

Ms. Cedeno moved from Puerto Rico three years ago with her family.

One push-up results in suit for FBI

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — A 29-year-old former FBI employee is suing the training he was forced to quit his job when he came up one push-up short in his training.

Curtis Bruce Fairburn Jr. of Magnolia said in a suit filed in U.S. District Court here Monday that an FBI Academy counselor had told him that because he could "complete only 24 push-ups instead of 25 push-ups, he would be fired from employment with the FBI and have his employment record so tarnished, if he did not resign."

Attorneys for Fairburn, now a criminal investigator in Pike County, said their client had met "all other requirements" of maintaining employment with the FBI. There was absolutely no other job-related evidence to sustain the FBI's decision to terminate Fairburn.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Daniel Lynn of Jackson, who will represent the FBI in the case, declined comment on the suit. An FBI spokesman in Washington said Tuesday that the bureau was unaware of the legal action.

Fairburn, 29, said in the suit that he had joined the FBI in September 1983 and the next month was placed in the agency's Jackson office "to work in a clerical capacity while improving himself physically."

The suit said that in January 1984, Fairburn was returned to the FBI Academy in Quantico, Va. "to resume his training."

It was during this training that the FBI counselor told him he would be fired because of the push-up problem, the suit said, so he "chose to resign from employment."

Attorneys Dennis Horn and Shirley Payne, who filed the suit, said Fairburn "considers the first year of FBI employment to be probationary" and FBI rules require "probationary employees be advised in writing of the reasons for their discharge."

The suit's push-up problem was "in no way related to any requirement of Fairburn's employment with the FBI and is accordingly illegal, arbitrary and capricious," the complaint said.

Volunteer's reprieve lost

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A federal judge Tuesday revoked the probation of a sanctuary movement worker convicted twice of illegally aiding Salvadorans and said he would sentence her on Wednesday.

Stacey Lynn Merkt, 30, a volunteer at Casa Oscar Romero in San Benito, was convicted last May of transporting two Salvadorans, U.S. District Judge Fflemm Vela had sentenced her to two years' probation and told her not to violate the law again or he would jail her.

But last month in Houston, Ms. Merkt was found guilty of conspiring to help two other Salvadorans enter the country.

Defense attorney Steve Cooper called several witnesses Tuesday to testify that Ms. Merkt was sincere about not violating her probation. But Vela, who presided over the second trial, refused to overlook the conviction.

"Are you trying to have me set aside the jury verdict? — Because I'm not going to do that," he told Cooper. "I have no intention of doing that. That's their judgment and I'm not going to interfere with that."

Does pornography curb or cause sex abuse?

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — There are two psychological schools of thought about the effects of pornography, says Paul Ives, a Health and Welfare psychologist who specializes in sex offenders.

One supports the view taken by the majority of the 200 people who showed up at Twin Falls City Hall last week: most to ask the council to take legal action against stores that distribute hard-core pornography.

That view is that "the more a person absorbs himself in rehearsing, reading about and fantasizing them, the more potential or the more likely the possibility of acting out deviant (sexual) acts," Ives says.

Aaron Knapp, pastor of the First Nazarene Church in Twin Falls, says his 20 years of religious counseling of church members, non-members and prisoners has led him to believe abusive situations, including incestuous exploitation of children, can be linked to pornography.

It's an escalating evil, he says. What starts as the reading of soft-core pornography progresses to a fascination with more vivid and blatant sexual displays and can end in sexual abuse of children, he says.

More commonly, he has seen pornography destroy home and family life, he says.

It is addictive, he says. "Most men can't enter the arena of compromise or they would be owned."

The wife "deeply resents the attachment her husband has for pornography," he says. "He feels he is substituting it for her to find pleasure. The result is usually an emotional withdrawal by the wife and a breakdown in communication, he says.

"Meanwhile, the husband usually develops a defeated attitude, low self-esteem and anxiety over his marriage that makes it increasingly difficult for him to break his attachment to pornography," Knapp says.

He has seen pornography destroy marriages, he says. Even if the husband is willing to stop buying the pornographic material, it may not save the marriage, he says.

"For the woman the hardest part is trusting again," he says. "She views it almost as if he had an affair."

He considers pornography just one part of society's increasing preoccupation with sex, he says. "It's easier today for most people to talk about sex than God," he says.

But Ives says that as long as mankind has been drawing on the walls of caves, there has been erotica.

Some people "see beauty, they see something to move toward to enhance their own body, but a small category deals in excess and abuse," he says.

Besides the view that reading pornography leads to acting it out, there is also the hypothesis that pornography can actually prevent sexual crimes, he says. He cites the experience in Denmark where after pornography was legalized, there was a significant reduction in sexual crimes, particularly in offenses against children.

The truth, he says, is probably a combination of both views. Consequently, he is reluctant to take a stand either for or against eradicating pornography, he says.

"Historically, what that can do in society is cause a bigger problem than it solves," he says. "It can make it go underground. The more repressed it is, the more likely they are to express deviancy in ways they didn't before. If materials aren't there they may find the actual person."

The results can be unwanted pregnancy and relationships centered on sex alone, he says. Still he would like to see more regulation of pornography, to stop the depiction of violence and the use of children, he says. (Material purchased at Front Page Book Store in an undercover investigation by Twin Falls police officers did not include pictures of children.)

But he does not believe that pornography leads to sexual deviancy. In dealing with sex offenders he has found that most offenders were victimized themselves and may have been introduced to pornography later by someone else. Studies have shown that rapists and child molesters had less exposure to pornography growing up than other people, he says.

It is not a case where someone sees a magazine and becomes a child molester," he says.

In fact, in raids on the houses of those who victimize the young, it is not one of the over 300 pornographic magazines featuring children, but a Coppertone poster that shows a dog nipping at the pants of a young child that is most commonly found, he says.

Jean Jensen of Halley, state coordinator for the National Organization for Women, says the most vivid and easily recognized tragedy of pornography is "the school children who are kidnapped and drugged to make it."

But they are not the only victims, she says. She points to the April issue of Ms. magazine which quotes Linda Lovelace as saying that every time someone watches the movie "Deep Throat" they are seeing her being

John B. Ellason, an FBI agent, tells officers of a publication that can be used to inform children about sexual abuse.

To aid investigations

Officers learn to detect child beatings

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — To those who know what to look for, the injuries of an abused child can be read like history—a horror story.

More than 100 law enforcement officers, counselors and social workers were instructed Monday in investigation techniques for suspected child abuse. The seminar was part of a training conference sponsored by the Peace Officers Standard Training Academy and the Idaho Youth Commission.

Veteran Michigan police officer and lecturer Jack R. Shepherd used graphic slides from real cases to show officers and others who work with abused children how to identify the signs of abuse, which ranged from beatings to burns.

The program was not for the squeamish.

Shepherd verbally reconstructed how angry parents turn common household items into weapons. The pictures were harrowing enough to draw groans from experienced officers.

Shepherd also showed officers how to detect the angle of attack, the age of the injury and whether it might have been accidental or deliberate. From injuries, officers can tell if a weapon was a fixed object like a coathanger or flexible, like an electrical cord.

The instruments of injury, mostly common items found in any home, left their own unique brand. A hammer was easily detectable, down to the fingers. A belt would leave a tearing mark from the buckle.

From a coathanger, there would be repetitive marks of small loops on small bodies.

"When it's cool and calculated, it's an object of choice," Shepherd said.

With one slide, Shepherd asked participants to solve a mystery—what had the mother used to beat her small blonde daughter—just by looking at the marks on the child's back and arms. With some hints, the participants deduced the weapon had been a plastic track for toy cars.

In the slide, the child's face was not visible. Shepherd said the girl, also had a broken jaw and other injuries, but he didn't like to show her face at lectures because it was too difficult for him.

Interjecting bits of psychology and humor, Shepherd said child abuser at the hands of parents was representative of other family troubles, like substance abuse and domestic violence.

The beatings of children also may be related to sexual abuse. In one case, two little girls were methodically paddled by an uncle who was babysitting, Shepherd said.

The girls admitted it was the uncle, but otherwise were silent about the incident, which occurred during the 1970s. Then, however, officers didn't think about asking about sexual abuse, which may have been related to the beating, Shepherd said.

"What you see is not always what you get unless you ask the right questions," he said.

Interviewing children may be difficult. If the youngsters are terrified of police uniforms, Shepherd said, if a child was in the hospital, nurses are good source of information. The officers also can try dressing in a white hospital coat because the children would be used to seeing hospital personnel.

"However, I don't tie to them about being an officer."

To aid with investigation, Shepherd recommended the use of 35mm film to photograph the children. Such film reproduces well and may be turned into slides. Slides can be projected onto a larger screen, to show details that would be missed in a normal sized photograph.

Officers are "missing the boat" if they don't use X-rays, he added. X-rays would reveal internal injuries and signs of older beatings, such as

Local teacher may blast off

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls High School teacher Jana Roy is one of five Idaho teachers who have been chosen for interviews that will determine which two teachers will represent Idaho in the Teacher in Space program.

Roy said she got a call last week from Department of Education official Heien Williams, who told her she was one of five finalists out of 49 applicants. Other finalists are from McCall and the Treasure Valley, she said.

The Twin Falls French teacher and yearbook advisor said Tuesday she will travel to Boise for the interview on April fourth. The two teachers chosen to represent Idaho will travel to Washington, D.C. in June for more interviews and testing.

"I was excited... Just having the opportunity to compete for this on the national level is a honor," Roy said. Roy submitted her application in late January.

In addition to a series of essays, Roy's application included a space and reading-oriented game she would show throughout the country and questions for during her flight in space.

The application for the program was originally sent to her during this year's teacher contract battle by an administrator who joked about shipping the teachers union's negotiator in to the void.

The would-be astronaut says her mother told her she would be a shoo-in because of the 5-foot-11-inch Roy on board, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will be able to send along an extra astronaut.

Ag hearings stall, town meetings set

WASHINGTON — U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings will seek congressional views about upcoming farm legislation at town meetings in the Magic Valley and in eastern Idaho in early April.

Stallings still is trying to bring a Congressional subcommittee to southern Idaho for formal public hearings on the 1986 Farm Bill. Those hearings now will not take place until late in the spring, according to Stallings' aides.

Town meetings now have been scheduled from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on April 8 at the Jerome County Courthouse in Jerome and from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the Rupert City Hall in Rupert. Similar sessions have been scheduled in Malad on April 10, in Soda Springs on April 11 and in Blackfoot on April 12.

Stallings wants to hear comments from farmers and other constituents about the 1986 Farm Bill and other agricultural issues. Viewpoints about the recently proposed exchange of public land between the U.S. Forest Service and the U.S. Bureau of Land Management also are welcome, said Stallings aide Tom Stroehlein.

The congressman had hoped that the Conservation, Credit and Rural Development Subcommittee of the House's Committee on Agriculture would stage hearings on the Farm Bill in early April. Instead, the subcommittee most likely will come to southern Idaho in late May or early June, said Gary Catron, Stallings' press aide.

Project inches to defeat

KETCHUM — The Ketchum City Council Monday reaffirmed its probable denial of the Greyhawk hotel project at the base of Bald Mountain when it changed some of its findings in its evaluation of the project to being unevaluable.

However, the final denial of the more than 300-unit hotel and condominium project will come after the council formally adopts the findings and after the project's developer, Daon Development Corp., gives a rebuttal to the council's findings.

Daon will give the rebuttal at 10 a.m. Monday in the City Hall.

Earlier, three of the four council members voted to deny the project primarily because they thought the traffic it would generate would cause too many problems on Warm Springs Road and the surrounding neighborhood.

The road is a substantial traffic corridor and the only access to the project site at the base of Sun Valley's Warm Springs ski lifts.

City Administrator Jim Jaquet says some of the council members changed their earlier votes on some of the 17 evaluation standards used to judge a planned unit development after they reviewed the findings Monday.

Year's best picture ducking Twin Falls movie audiences

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Prospects for Twin Falls theatergoers to see the Academy Award winning film "Amadeus" by April 5 were termed good Tuesday by Larry Roper, manager of Interstate Amusement Inc.

Roper, who manages the Cinema theaters in Magic Valley, said the film company that releases "Amadeus" is a small firm and it apparently does not feel Twin Falls audiences are worth the cost and effort to make a print of the film for the community.

"The film, which won the award for best motion picture and seven other Oscars in Monday's Academy Awards ceremonies, has not been shown in Twin Falls. In spite of the company's efforts to do it for the past two months.

Roper said the film is now showing in Boise and he believes it has also shown in Pocatello. He said it has been on his booking lists every week since the Feb. 1 but the listing has been ignored.

"Quite frankly," he said "I just don't think the film company appreciates the Twin Falls area audiences. It's a sad reality and it's upsetting to me. If it weren't for the popularity I wouldn't play it."

Roper said every week the film company sends the usual message, "sorry no prints available," and the local advertising has to be pulled.

He said "Amadeus" is a long film, probably over three hours, and because it is twice as long as most films, it costs twice as much to make a print so the company is hesitant to make a print for Twin Falls. Cost of making a print of the film would probably run about $4,000, Roper said.

The story written around the final years of the life of Mozart, the film is essentially an art film, Roper says. Normally art films do not do as well in Twin Falls as other films.

However, he says he gets 20 to 25 calls every week from local movie goers who want to know when "Amadeus" will be shown here.

"I think it will go over well here. Hopefully we will be showing it at the Twin Cinemas (on Kimberly Road) on April 5. If the company backs out again, I guess I will just have to start over with weekly scheduling until we can get it," Roper said.

He said Orion Pictures, which released the award-winning film, as well as other film companies have made special prints of leading shows for Twin Falls. Roper said he was contacted about "The Killing Fields" and "Passage to India" and open and play them. Both have gone over well, he added.

He said he was given an opportunity about a week ago to show "Amadeus" but on such late notice he had already booked and advertised other films and had to pass it up.

The offer was for only one week, which he said is worthless because it is too short to serve the area. If the film is available, it will probably play in Twin Falls for about three weeks followed by a week in Jerome and a week in Gooding.

If the Twin Falls theaters receive a print, Roper said, he can keep it as long as it continues to attract audiences.

Roper said if the award winner doesn't reach Twin Falls by April 5, he may publish the name and address of the film company official responsible for the bookings and ask film fans to write their objections to him.

Canal voters OK project

TWIN FALLS — Shareholders in the Twin Falls Canal Co. have approved a $4.8-million project to build a dam on the Jackson Lake Reservoir in Wyoming.

By a 96.1 percent margin, the stockholders agreed to assess themselves 21 cents per water share each for the next 20 years to help pay for rehabilitation of the dam.

Voting was done on the basis of water shares. The actual total was 38,189.84 — in favor and 1,536.01 against the proposal.

The U.S. Bureau of Reclamation is repairing the dam because it is built over an earthquake zone and engineers say it could fail if a bad tremor hit. The agency has limited the amount of water stored in the dam to one-third of total capacity until repairs are finished. They will begin this year and should be finished in 1989, BOP officials project.

The Twin Falls Canal Co., which is a limited liability corporation, is the dam's owner. The project will cost $4.8 million toward the repairs through the assessments approved Tuesday. Its members own almost 11.5 percent of the total water capacity of the dam.

Although only 19.6 percent of the company's 202,690 shares were voted, canal company spokeswoman said the turnout was considered good. About 140 members, who generally were farmers, cast ballots Tuesday at the canal company offices. There are 300 stockholders overall.

The canal company is one of 32 irrigation entities holding claim to Johnson Lake Reservoir water. The largest holder is the Northside Canal Co. based at Jerome, also approved the rehabilitation last week by a wide margin.

In both cases, the water is essentially "storing farmers' crops. If normally is drawn after other water supplies have been exhausted in the late summer and early fall.

Flowers to help fight against cancer

TWIN FALLS — The bright yellow daffodils, a sure sign of spring, will be showing up in profusion in Twin Falls on Easter weekend.

The arrival of hundreds of the bright blossoms is the result of the annual American Cancer Society program each year in which the organization's hope through research for a cancer cure. Kathy Williams, Cancer Society director for the Magic Valley, said people also are urged to use the daffodils as a tribute to the memory of loved ones and friends who have died of cancer in the past years.

Today is the deadline for ordering the flowers and a limited amount remains available. Businesses or individuals who are placing orders should contact Williams at 734-4446.

Williams said the flowers are fresh cut and being flown in from the state of Washington. They will be displayed in many Twin Falls businesses and in some cases the stores and banks will be giving daffodils to customers on the Saturday before Easter.

The price is $3 for a bunch of 10 flowers. Of this, $2.50 goes to the Cancer Society.

Williams said many churches have ordered daffodils for Easter Sunday and members will place them on the altar as a memorial tribute to cancer victims. There will also be daffodils on trays at area hospitals on April 4 and restaurants will be displaying them on tables for customers.

Appeal may have backfired
TWIN FALLS — A Jerome County man appealed a life sentence with a chance of parole after 10 years and now finds himself facing a 20-year, fixed sentence.

Norman Rutherford, 41, of Jerome, was sentenced last year to a life prison term with the exact amount of time he would serve to be set by the Idaho Board of Corrections.

Rutherford was arrested in Jerome County in 1983 on charges of lewd and lascivious conduct with a minor child. He was sent to the Idaho State Prison in Boise in January of 1984 after receiving the sentence in Fifth District Court in Jerome County.

The court granted him an appeal hearing on the sentencing, which was held Monday before Judge Daniel Meehl in Twin Falls. Meehl said that while Rutherford might have been better off before the Monday hearing, there was no guarantee.

Man faces lewd conduct charge
TWIN FALLS — A 52-year-old man was charged Monday with lewd conduct with a boy under 16 years of age.

Howard Raymond Martin of 1515 Kimberly Road in Twin Falls was released on his own recognizance on the felony charge.

The alleged incident took place between Feb. 1 and March 10, according to a complaint filed in Fifth District Magistrate Court.

Arrests linked to burglaries
BURLEY — Officers in Cassia County and the city of Burley announced the arrest Tuesday of two juveniles, ages 14 and 15, in connection with a string of burglaries during the past three months.

Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal said the two boys were arrested through a joint effort of county and city officers on a search warrant issued Monday.

He said the search warrants were obtained and resulted in recovery of about $2,200 in property taken in burglaries of businesses and vehicles during the past three months in the city and county.

One of the burglaries, he said, occurred at Roper's Clothing store and involved a large amount of clothing, most of it received Tuesday.

Another of the burglaries, he said, occurred at the Burley Junior High School and involved stereo items and tapes, while another involved quantities of food items from Stokes Market. Pacific Hide and Steel was another burglary victim, according to the sheriff.

Two injured in collision
BURLEY — Two Burley residents suffered minor injuries and an Oakley man was cited for inattentive driving in a rear-end accident late Monday.

Kevin Funk, 15, of Burley and his two passengers, Tracy Funk, 12, and Amber Funk, 6, were southbound on State Highway 27, south of Burley, at 4:10 p.m. according to Cassia County Sheriff Billy Crystal.

He said Funk's vehicle stopped waiting for traffic to clear to make a left turn. A 1985 sedan driven south by Raymond Anderson, 72, of Oakley, collided with the rear of the Funk pickup truck. Anderson was cited for inattentive driving.

Kevin Funk was treated at a local doctor's office and Amber Funk was treated at Mindoka Memorial Hospital and released. The other Funk passenger and Anderson were uninjured.

Eatin' peanuts with co-cola

Requires proper atmosphere and semi-small-town location

EDITOR'S NOTE: March is peanut month and so lots of articles on peanuts have passed across this editor's desk. Most ended up in the wastebasket. But this particular column, reprinted from Arkansas Times, touched off a bit of nostalgia. It brought back memories of afternoons after school when a group of kids would gather at a little mom and pop quick-stop market where the following described procedure was followed almost exactly.

However, another Times-News staff member said "luck" to the Coke and peanuts — he says he ate his with an orange soda pop. Each to his own choice.

The proper place for this activity is a roadside grocery store and gas station — called if possible something like "Roy's Grocery and Station" — on a semi-main highway through a semi-small town.

The proper atmosphere: hot day, Cardinal baseball game on the radio.

Several men, including your daddy, are standing around one of those flip-top drink dispensing machines in which the bottles are held up in rows by metal flanges and you put your money in the slot and slide your Coke along to a metal doohickey in the corner and pull it up through a slot.

About one out of every three times this kind of machine will take your money and not give you a Coke, and even when it does give you the Coke, you have to pull hard to get it out, and when you're seven years old the sharp crinkles on the bottle cap hurt your fingers but you don't say nothin' or make a face 'cause you'll just 'cause.

After you get the Coke, you go up to the counter and there beside the best jerky and the glass fishbowl with peanut-butter-logs in it, you'll find the TOM's Peanuts. Buy some. They come in a package about four inches long. The package holds one and one-eighth ounces, which is exactly the right amount to eat with a Coke.

The tricky part is putting the peanuts in the Coke. And here's where it pays to watch your daddy. You'll see that he puts in just enough peanuts to make a layer about one peanut thick at the top of the Coke.

That means you only put in about five or six peanuts the first time. Put in more and you'll have to suck real hard to get any Coke to come out, like you have to do when the Coke is frozen.

Getting the right amount of peanuts in every swallow of coke is something that had to be learned by doing, but if you start with the one-peanut-thick layer and keep it that way as you drink, you won't go far wrong.

Try to finish the Coke and the peanuts at the same time: if you finish the Coke too quick, you have to beat on the bottle with the butt of your hand to get the rest of the peanuts out; if you finish the peanuts too quick, you wind up with a slug of salty Coke.

There's something about the grease and salt of peanuts that goes just right with the sweet of Coca-Cola, which is the only acceptable cola brand for this particular combination, just as RC Cola is the only one you'd want to drink with a moon and Pepsi is best with vienna sausages when you're out in a boat fishing.

Once you've eaten peanuts in your Coke, the taste will ever alter remind you of Cardinal games on the radio and vice versa. It's a combination of things that aren't necessarily good for you — but who cares about that?

Favorite recipes told by daughter

This column was written by Nancy Joy Jones' daughter, Jana Lynne Jones, while her mom was visiting Japan and Korea.

Valley Cooking

I never thought this spring break I would get to try my hand at writing a food column. In fact, when I came home from college I was looking forward to lazing around and sampling some of my mom's famous cooking. I'm still not sure exactly how I got this opportunity. Mom is out of town for a week or so and that dashed my hopes of sampling all sorts of new foods that she likes to try out on the family.

But now I'm the one who is writing this column for mom while she is gone. It is interesting how I get myself into these things.

I'm enjoying myself except for having to decide what recipes to write about. If you know my mom, you'll understand why that's a hard task. There are so many things she makes that I love, it's hard to decide.

I think what I'll do is tell about two things that I was looking forward to.

The first one is bran muffins. I adore muffins. Waking up in the morning to hot muffins and a cup of coffee is the best way to start the day.

This muffin mix also keeps really well in the refrigerator so there is some on hand for any time of the day.

- BRAN MUFFINS
- 1 cup bran cereal
 - 1 cup flour
 - 1/2 cup packed light brown sugar
 - 2 teaspoons baking powder
 - 1/4 teaspoon salt
 - 1/4 teaspoon baking soda
 - 1 beaten egg
 - 1/4 cups milk
 - 3 tablespoons vegetable oil
- Combine egg, milk and oil in a bowl. Add bran and stir. In another bowl, mix flour, brown sugar, baking powder, salt and baking soda. Stir two mixtures together until blended, do not overmix.
- Fill greased muffin tin until two-thirds full. Bake 20 minutes at 400 degrees.
- These can also be cooked in microwave oven for 30 seconds on high.
- The other morning favorite of mine is:
- OATMEAL PANCAKES
- 1 cup rolled oats
 - 1/4 cup wheat germ
 - 1 cup whole meal flour
 - 1/4 cup instant skim milk powder

Cooking, gardening Twin Falls' woman's hobbies

By JOAN BEAN
 Times-News correspondent

KIMBERLY — When Bev Claiborn isn't in front of her kitchen rack, you'll probably find her doing yardwork or working in her vegetable garden.

Claiborn says she takes pride in her yard and loves to play in it and is always "looking for some other spot in my yard where I can dig and do a scene or something... an idea will hit me and then right away I will have to... work with it until I get it done."

When time allows, she helps her friends with their landscaping. For one such endeavor, she says she used a chainsaw to cut up old fence posts, then placed them, along with railroad ties, in a pleasing arrangement among new plantings.

She admits someone else could have done the job faster — in three hours instead of three or four days. "But it was fun doing it," she says.

"I don't feel like I've done anything, unless every jar I own is full by the end of the season,"
Bev Claiborn

Claiborn's work in her vegetable garden results in a great deal of canning in the fall.

"I don't feel like I've done anything, unless every jar I own is full by the end of the season," she says.

Normally, she cans about 24 quarts of each kind of fruit, as well as green beans, tomatoes, tomato juice, grape juice, dilled carrots, several kinds of pickles and dillie beans, a favorite, recipe with her children, 9-year-old Kendra and 12-year-old Kent.

"I'm quite big on nutrition, and they're very finicky as far as vegetables are concerned. So therefore, when we have a vegetable they won't eat, they eat dillie beans," she says.

DILLIE BEANS

Steam 2 pounds whole green beans (ends removed) for 10 minutes. Put 1 head of dill and 1 clove garlic per pint, into the bottom of each jar. For brine, combine 2 cups water, 2 tablespoons salt, 2 cups vinegar and 4 teaspoons sugar, and boil. Slide beans lengthwise into the jar and pour brine over them.

"The long straight green beans fit just right in a pint jar."

Claiborn says when its canning, she throws the long ones to one side to use for dillie beans.

She says the recipe does not call for processing.

"A lot of the home extension people really are against that, so you could process them as you would dill pickles," she says.

She uses hot lids, has the brine boiling and the jars hot.

Along with her home preserved vegetables and fruits, she says her family enjoys eating rolls containing home grown potatoes.

REFRIGERATOR DOUGH

Mix together 1 1/2 cups lukewarm water or potato water, 3/4 cup sugar, 1 1/2 teaspoons salt. Into that, crumble 1 package dry yeast. Stir until dissolved. Add 2 eggs and 1/2 cup shortening. Mix first with a spoon, then by hand. 1 cup lukewarm mashed potatoes and 7/8 cups sifted flour (flour amount will vary according to humidity in air). Combine with other ingredients and mix until smooth. Cover and place in refrigerator overnight, or up to one week. Two hours before baking, shape dough into rolls. Cover, and let rise until light 1 1/2 to 2 hours. Bake at 400 degrees for 12-15 minutes. Yield 4 dozen medium sized rolls.

The perfect cheesecake recipe finally discovered

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
 The Associated Press

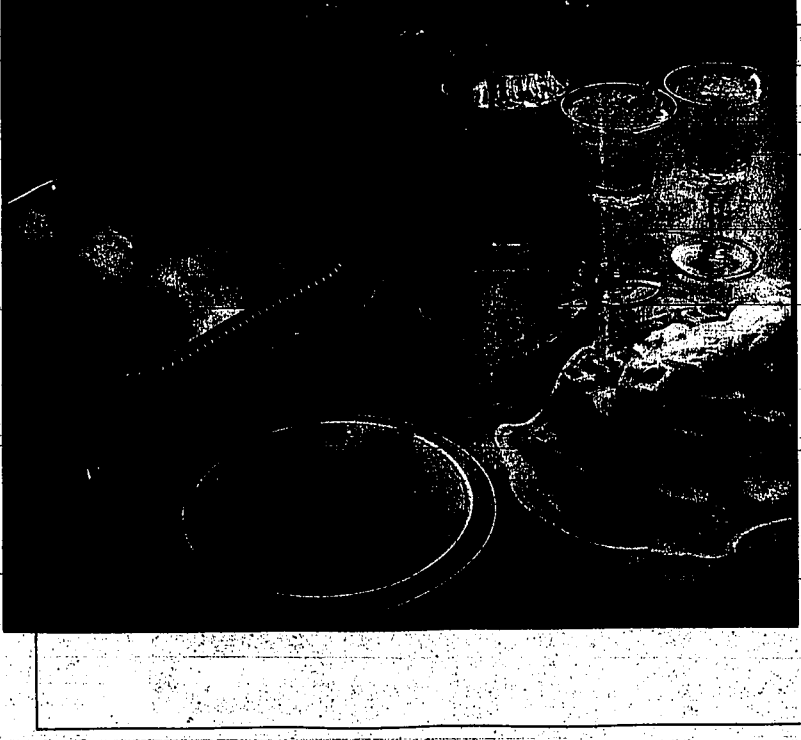

In the 1940s a well-known Broadway restaurant in New York City became famous for its cheesecake. The dessert was described by restaurant critics of the day as "high and handsome...with great flavor and lightness...the finest in town." Since then, from all signs, cheesecake mania has gradually overtaken America.

At the moment, on my bookshelves, are three hardbound books and an equal number of booklets given over entirely to cheesecake recipes. And I doubt there are any regional cookbooks, assembled by various groups for charitable purposes, that do not include at least one cheesecake recipe.

For some time I have been looking for a cheesecake recipe that would produce the "flavor and lightness" of the old Broadway restaurant variety. Finally, a friend found it for us.

At a recent bridal shower for her daughter, this paragon of cheesecakes was served — and the recipe freely given. The favorite topping for the old Broadway restaurant's cheesecake was fresh strawberries. This recipe follows suit.

- STRAWBERRY CHEESECAKE
- 1/4 cup butter
 - 1 1/2 cups finely crushed graham cracker crumbs
 - 1 1/4 cups sugar
 - Two 8-ounce packages cream cheese, at room temperature

Weekends a good time for brunch

Weekends are a good time to gather family and friends together and one of the best ways to entertain is to serve a brunch.

New and different brunch ideas include colorful and delicious Prince Charles pancakes, which owe their name and distinctive flavor to the Drambuie liqueur used as a main ingredient. Another impressive-looking and tasty brunch speciality is Belgian Tia Maria Waffles and a fruit topping.

This stylish brunch includes fillet of sole with cognac and crabmeat stuffing.

- FILET OF FISH WITH CRABMEAT
- 3 tablespoons margarine
 - 1/2 cup chopped leeks
 - 1 teaspoon cayenne pepper
 - 1/2 cup chopped dill
 - 3 tablespoons heavy cream or half and half
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 1/4 cup Courvoisier
 - 1 cup crabmeat
 - 1 cup Italian seasoned bread crumbs
 - 1 fish fillet (about 2 pounds)
- SAUCE
- 1 cup cream or half and half
 - 3 tablespoons Courvoisier
 - 2 tablespoons margarine
- In medium saucepan, melt 3 tablespoons margarine. Add leeks and cook about 5 minutes or until leeks are tender. Stir in cayenne pepper, dill, cream, lemon juice, cognac, crabmeat and bread crumbs. Mix well.

Statistics for 1984 show another record year for coupons

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

When the first coupon was distributed in 1885 to save on great-grandmother's 1 cent on Grape Nuts, the C.W. Post Co. never thought that someday coupons would save consumers billions of dollars.

The figures are in for 1984 and they show another record year for coupons and coupon clippers. Manufacturers distributed 163 billion coupons — up from 142 billion coupons in 1983 — reports the Nielsen Clearing House in Clinton, Iowa, the largest counter and processor of coupons.

Coupon clippers like you and I clipped and filed away tens of billions of coupons, and we wound up handing cashiers 6.5 billion of them.

How much did smart shoppers save?

Coupon clippers saved $5 billion dollars in 1984, up from $4.7 billion in 1983. And the value of coupons has been getting higher. In 1982, only 16 percent of the coupons had a value of 30 cents or more. By the end of 1984, these high-value coupons had increased to more than 25 percent of the total.

How long will this phenomenon last?

"Don't worry. There's no end in sight, and you can expect to see a lot more coupons. Coupons are now being dispensed in supermarkets by computer terminals in New York and Chicago. It is only a question of time and money before we see one in every food store."

PRINCE CHARLES PANCAKES
(Scottish version of crepes Suzette)
BATTER

2 cup flour
2 eggs beaten
1 cup milk
Pinch of salt
8-teaspoons margarine, for frying pancakes

SAUCE

2 large oranges
1 large lemon
1/4 cup margarine
1 cup sugar
1/4 cup Drambuie
2 bananas, sliced
1 pint vanilla ice cream (optional)
Strawberries

Measure flour into bowl. Make a well in center of the flour, add eggs and milk, gradually adding milk and salt.

Beat until smooth. Set aside for at least two hours. Melt 1 teaspoon margarine in 9-inch frying pan. When hot, pour in 1/4 cup of batter, swirling to spread evenly. Cook until top of pancake is dry. To make sauce, grate the rinds of oranges and lemon. Squeeze the juice and reserve. Melt margarine in a large frying pan, add sugar and citrus juice. Bring to a boil, stir in rind and simmer for 3 to 4 minutes. Remove from heat and add Drambuie.

Wrap pancakes in foil and warm in a 300 degree F oven for 10 minutes.

Claiborn

Sometimes, Claiborn says she will take out just enough dough for breakfast, and roll it out the night before.

When Claiborn makes cinnamon rolls, she cuts the dough with a 1 1/2" strip of dental floss, instead of using a knife. "I slide it in under, an inch or 3/4", and pull up on both sides and then cross them and squeeze. It's just so much neater than a knife. They come out beautiful," she says.

"Claiborn has a delicious and different pork recipe which will serve a group of eight people.

PORK AND SEEDS

3 pounds pork tenderloin
6 slices fresh ginger root (optional) or can use a few shakes of ground ginger

2 tablespoons dry sherry
2 cloves crushed garlic
3 tablespoons dark soy sauce
3 tablespoons dark corn syrup
8 drops red food color
2 stalks green onions
3 tablespoons chili sauce
2 tablespoons catsup
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 cup honey

DRY MUSTARD

Sesame Seeds

Cut meat into 5x1x1 inch strips. For sauce, mix all-but-the-honey-and-mustard together. Marinate strips in the sauce overnight. Claiborn turns them once, before going to bed. In the morning, remove meat from sauce. Brush each piece with honey, and place on a wire rack over a pan of water in the oven, and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes, and at 450 for 15-20 minutes.

Prepare a creamy dip by adding dry mustard to water. Slice the pork into smaller pieces, dip into the mustard mixture, then into the sesame seeds and eat.

Another pork recipe — Claiborn's family enjoys is ham balls.

Specialty is sweet potato pudding

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
The Associated Press

Even though Sweet Potato Pudding is a North Carolina specialty, in that state cooks have various ways of making it.

One North Carolinian, Elizabeth Hedgecock Sparks, who writes a newspaper food column under the name of Beth Tartan, has researched the regional cookery of her state more extensively than anyone else I know. Her recipe includes grated sweet potato, eggs, milk, brown sugar, a little butter and four different spices.

"This time around we opted to try a recipe for Grated Sweet Potato Pudding from a friend who also lives in North Carolina. Her recipe calls for grated raw sweet potato, eggs and milk, granulated sugar and light corn syrup, a little butter and a minimum of six spices. As a result the pudding is a beautiful golden color and has a delectable light flavor.

"North Carolinians do not always top their Sweet Potato Pudding with vanilla ice cream, but I strongly recommend that you adopt this addition."

SWEET POTATO PUDDING

4 large eggs
1 1/2 cups milk
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon ground cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ground nutmeg
2 tablespoons butter, melted
1 1/2 pounds (about) sweet potatoes - vanilla (cream) or wild yam cream
Butter a 10 by 9 1/2 inch baking dish or shallow 1 1/2-quart casserole.

In a large bowl beat eggs just until yolks and whites are blended; stir in milk and corn syrup until blended.

In a small bowl stir together sugar, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg well mixed; add to egg mixture; stir until blended. Stir in butter.

Peel and finely shred sweet potatoes; measure 4 cups. Add to egg mixture; stir until well mixed. Turn into prepared baking dish. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until top is golden brown and pudding is set - 45 minutes. Cool slightly; then serve hot or with vanilla ice cream.

Makes 8 servings.

Note: If you shred the sweet potatoes by hand, you will get perfect results if you use a shredder with 1/16-inch crescent-shaped holes.

Cheesecake

1 1/2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons grated orange rind
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 large eggs
2 tablespoons sour cream
1 pint strawberries
1/4 cup currant jelly
1 teaspoon water

In a 9-inch skillet, over low heat, melt butter; add heat throughly stir in graham cracker crumbs and 1/4 cup of the sugar. Press crumb mixture with the back of a spoon, over the bottom and 1/4 inches up the sides of an 8-inch springform pan. Set aside.

In a medium bowl beat together cream cheese and remaining 1 cup sugar. Beat in flour, orange rind, salt and vanilla. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until blended after each addition. Beat in sour cream until blended. Pour into prepared springform pan.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 5 minutes. Reduce heat to 200 degrees. Continue baking until a knife inserted 2 inches from edge of pan comes out clean - 25 to 30 minutes. Cool completely.

With a small metal spatula and an up-and-down movement, loosen sides. Remove rim.

Hull and cut strawberries in halves. Arrange, cut side down, in any pattern you like over the top of the cake.

In a 6-inch skillet, over low heat stir together currant jelly and water until jelly melts; pour over strawberries. Refrigerate until serving time.

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - "Literature is a rich resource for developing literacy," says Joy F. Moss of the University of Rochester's Graduate School of Education and Human Development.

She says, "Researchers have found that so-called 'natural' readers generally have a strong literary environment at home. Now teachers need practical ideas for using good literature in the reading classroom."

Her book, published by the National Council of Teachers of English, shows teachers how to incorporate a study of literature into the reading curriculum. It also suggests new ways to help students develop the language and thinking skills needed for critical reading and writing.

Flower world now has own Mona Lisa version in the Hudson Valley

By EARL ARONSON
The Associated Press

Mona Lisa lives as a flower in New York's Hudson Valley and from there her beauty reaches many parts of the world.

The flower is the anemone, descendant of the Lilies of the Field of Biblical days, now produced from seed labeled Mona Lisa available to plant growers to rear for cut flowers.

Long ago anemone growers abounded in the Rhinebeck, N.Y., area 100 miles north of New York City. Now there are just a few. One is the 80-year-old Ralph Pitcher & Sons, which delivers Mona Lisa hybrid seeds exclusively to Pan American Seed of West Chicago, Ill., which markets it worldwide.

Donald Pitcher, president, and his brother, Kenneth, have 34,000 square feet of greenhouses, half for seed and half for cut flowers. In an average season they produce about 30,000 bunches of flowers, 10 stalks per bunch. Seeds is not sold to the public. Seed buyers develop plants with 65-100 plants per tray and sell them to growers to raise for cut flowers.

There are 7 basic colors — red, blue, white, orchid, wine, pink and bi-color, with variations of each. Yellow has eluded hybridists.

The 80-year-old Pitcher hybridist for 28 years, keeps working to get new, more uniform colors, larger flowers and sturdier stalks.

The old anemones were 2 inches across on slender stems. In one breeding house I saw first-generation hybrids 8 inches across on stalks resembling small rhubarb shoots.

Anemone in Greek means "wind flower." The anemone, which originated in the Midwest, was pollinated by the wind. Originally it was white and pink.

Don Pitcher believes his father, Ralph, who founded the company in 1905 and began pollinating in 1936, was the first in this country to grow anemones from seed rather than corms or bulbs. He believed seed produced better, healthier plants.

Ralph Pitcher, like other valley folk, was growing violets — on the decline as corms — and sought a new crop. The gardener at the adjacent estate of business tycoon Vincent Astor suggested anemones.

Planting beds, sterilized, are prepared in February and March and seeding begins in early June, staggered to extend the cutting season a few weeks. When seedlings are about 8 inches tall they are transplanted to permanent beds. Harvest starts in September, concluding after Easter. Pitcher says anemones need good drainage and a planting medium of loess soil, peat moss and perlite. Flower stalks are cut close to the crown to give plants strength and reduce chances of disease.

"We shoot for 5-inch blooms for our cut flowers," said Don, pointing to bunches with stems of varying length up to 24 inches awaiting shipment.

Schwan showed how he pollinated with small, sterilized camel's hair brushes. In small boxes seeds still covered with fuzz were drying. Some plants had up to 45 stalks. Some seeds were for "parent" breeding plants. Seed pods yield 500 or more seeds.

The men say cut flower anemones drink about half a cup of water daily. Cut flowers will last up to two weeks in a cool place, they said. If daily you snip off a bit from the end of each stalk, change the water and add a bit of preservative. "Use a sharp knife, not scissors," Jack advised.

It was 11 a.m. in the glass houses all the flowers were closed. The day was heavily overcast. Jack explained that the flowers close in the evening and when it is cloudy.

"They aren't very receptive to pollination on dull days," said Jack, noting that development of a new commercial variety could take 2 to 10 years.

The greenhouse temperature is kept at 46-48 degrees (F) at night and 66-68 degrees by day.

Anemones, economical as to heating cost, will manage at down to 42 degrees.

Jack says deep blue is the favorite color of German buyers, red is blue the most popular generally, and Americans like mixed colors. He is working on a deeper blue.

Botrytis is the most serious disease problem. Other problems are leaf curl, downy mildew, aphids and white flies.

Jack walked to the end of a 40 by 200 foot breeding house and returned with a new item — a hanging pot bearing a dozen plants, some already in bloom among lush foliage. Don proudly showed new bicolor and tricolor varieties.

While most farmers and gardeners want bees to help pollinate, the Pitchers strive to keep them out lest they "mix up" hybridizing efforts.

Asked whether there was a third generation Pitcher in the wings, Don introduced us to his daughter, Wendy, working at a sorting table. Beside her was Jack's daughter, Julie.

Proper selection critical to good garden

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

Growing vegetable varieties which are adapted to the Magic Valley climate can greatly improve gardening success.

I continually have people tell me that they harvest very few ripe fruits from their tomatoes, peppers and melons. To be successful with these and other long season vegetables, proper variety selection is critical.

Most seed racks displayed in this area are shipped in from warmer climates. Your chances of getting a melon, tomato or pepper from one of these racks which is early enough to mature here is about one in five. I have been surprised that even the garden stores often fail to remove these non-adapted varieties from their racks.

Plants shipped in from out of state are often poorly adapted. Locally grown plants from a nursery or greenhouse are usually better adapted.

One of the best guides to selecting adapted varieties is the days to maturity rating. Days to maturity is the number of days required from the time seeds or plants are placed in the ground until the first harvest, under optimum growing conditions. For vegetables normally planted from started plants, such as tomatoes and peppers, the period is calculated from the transplanting date.

Optimum growing conditions are those best suited to most rapid growth for that particular vegetable. For warm weather vegetables, optimum conditions are seldom found in the Magic Valley. Most warm weather vegetables require from one week to three weeks longer than their rating.

Days to maturity ratings are frequently printed on seed packets and in catalog descriptions. If not found on a particular packet, the information may be available from another catalog or recommended variety list.

From past experience, I have found that tomatoes, peppers and eggplants with days to maturity ratings of 70 days or less will usually give reasonable yields. Of course, varieties with shorter ratings will start bearing sooner and yield more total harvest. With melons, 75 and sometimes 90 days varieties will produce good yields. With sweet corn, 85 days is usually the practical maximum. I have ripened pumpkins and winter squash with ratings of 90 days and sometimes more, although the earlier varieties do better.

I have a list of vegetable varieties which have proven successful in our climate. This list includes planting dates and seed sources for hard-to-find varieties. If you would like to have a copy, send $1 and a stamped self-addressed long envelope to Allen Wilson, Box 808, Rexburg, Idaho 83440. Ask for vegetable varieties.

Allen Wilson teaches horticulture at Ricks College.

Tissue culture is successful

By The Associated Press

Because of tissue culture propagation — cloning — plants are more vigorous, more colorful and uniform, less susceptible to disease, with better growth and branching habits.

And tissue culture, compared to the conventional cutting-rooting or seeding, is more efficient, less expensive, faster (about half the time) and takes much less space.

At the Weyerhaeuser Tissue Culture Center in Apopka, Fla., Dr. Melvin P. Garber, general manager, described the process as "high technology agriculture." It is practiced in laboratories as antiseptic as hospital operating rooms, sterile and climatically controlled.

As many plantlets can be grown in baby food jars in a small room as you can grow in several acres of greenhouses under old methods, said Pam Meyers, the facility manager.

Cloning propagation starts with plant tissue taken from "mother" plants, sterilized and placed in a disease-free nutrient base or medium of hormones and organic and inorganic substances such as sugar, salts and agar (a gelatin). For one to six weeks (depending on plant varieties) the plantlets multiply. The sections then are "separated" and replanted, a process that can be repeated many times.

When plants form root systems, they are transplanted into larger containers to begin their own development (photosynthesis).

Reader says women have one more rib

DEAR ABBY: "Al C. in Newberg, Ore." wrote: "My wife and I have a disagreement we think you can settle: Do women have one more rib than men?"

Your answer was: "Dear Al: Men and women have the same number of ribs. (Who is ribbing whom?)"

Abby, you quote Scripture from time to time, so I would have thought that you would remember Genesis 2:21-22: "And the Lord caused a deep sleep to fall upon Adam, and he slept; and he took one of his ribs, and closed up the flesh instead thereof. And the rib, which the Lord God had taken from man, he made a woman; and brought her unto the man."

Women have one more rib than men. FUNDAMENTALIST.

DEAR FUNDAMENTALIST: With all due respect to the Old Testament, he who seeks the knowledge of the number of ribs hath man and woman had best look up the X-rays of both. Then let him go forth and compare.

CONFIDENTIAL TO S.G.J., TRENTON, N.J.: The Trenton Times is no more immune to typographical errors than any other newspaper, but sometimes it's wise to leave bad enough alone.

I submit an amusing exchange that appeared in this space five years ago, to illustrate that point: DEAR ABBY: My mother recently passed away after a brief illness. In the obituary published in our local newspaper, her age was given as 89.

Abby, my mother was only 80, so it was apparently a typographical error.

Now this may not seem very important to some people, but Mother was a very young and prideful woman who would never tell her age.

Because of this typographical error in her obituary, everyone who she was nine years older than she actually was. Should we ask the newspaper editor to publish a correction? I say we should. The rest of the family says to skip it.

—OUTVOTED IN OHIO DEAR OUTVOTED: Sometimes it's better to leave bad enough alone. In support of my advice, I offer the following from the California Newspaper Publishers Association. It is an example of a typographical error in the classified section of a small-town newspaper, and the subsequent disastrous attempts to correct it. (Monday) "FOR SALE — R.D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Phone 948-0707 after 7 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him." (Tuesday) "NOTICE — We regret having erred in R.D. Jones' ad yesterday. It should have read: "One sewing machine for sale. Cheap. Phone 948-0707 and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him after 7 p.m."

R.D. Jones has one sewing machine for sale. Cheap. Phone 948-0707 p.m. and ask for Mrs. Kelly who lives with him." (Thursday) "NOTICE — I, R.D. Jones, have NO sewing machine for sale. I SMASHED IT. Don't call 948-0707 as the telephone has been out. I have NOT been carrying on with Mrs. Kelly. Until yesterday she was my housekeeper, but she quit."

Dior's collection lacked personality

PARIS (AP) — Dior's winter ready-to-wear collection shown Monday was a mixed bag. After some very good day wear, the evening clothes were a letdown.

Earlier in the day Karl Lagerfeld showed a dashing Chanel collection that nevertheless had little to do with "Gogo" Chanel, who revolutionized fashion by putting women into casual clothes that became classics.

The Dior collection was designed by several people, apparently supervised by the Dior couture designer, Marc Bohan. The trouble was that the collection lacked personality.

You don't have to be French to bake great French bread.

THE ACES

BOBBY WOLFF

"Calamities are of two kinds; misfortune to ourselves, and good fortune to others." — Ambrose Bierce.

How did the luck go in today's game? Was South unlucky to find a bad club break? Or were the opponents lucky to have South both the play?

- NORTH: ♦ 7 4 2, ♦ 10 9 8, ♠ 3 9 2, ♦ 8 3, ♦ 10 8 4
- EAST: ♠ Q 7 5 4, ♠ Q J 10 6 4, ♠ A
- SOUTH: ♦ A K Q, ♠ K 10 6, ♠ A 9 5, ♠ 9 7 5 3

A low club was led to dummy's queen and East's ace, and East returned a spade. South won and led a second club to dummy's king, and the hand exploded. East's discard revealed the bad club break and South's maximum was now eight tricks.

Vulnerable: Both. Dealer: South. The bidding: South West North East 1 NT Pass 3 NT All pass

Since South needed only two club winners, the safety play is to duck a club completely at trick two. This frightened play would force East to play his ace, "on air" and later South would collect two easy club winners to claim his game.

Opening lead: Spade Jack. BID WITH THE ACES. South holds: ♦ 6 5 3, ♠ Q 7 5 4, ♠ Q J 10 6 4, ♠ A

Villanova perseverance pays off

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP) — When Rolfe Massimino came to Villanova University in 1973 as head basketball coach, he inherited a program that had posted 41 winning records in 53 seasons.

He promptly lost 19 games, a school record. The following year, his team lost 18 games.

But Massimino, 50, who labored for 11 years as a high school coach before breaking into the college ranks, quickly restored Villanova to among the nation's most successful college basketball programs.

Villanova's 51st winning season reaches its climax this weekend at the NCAA Final Four in Lexington, Ky., when the Wildcats face Memphis State in the semifinal Saturday.

This is Villanova's second appearance in the Final Four, although the Wildcats have been in the NCAA tournament 17 times, including the last six years in a row. The school recorded its 1,000th victory in its first game this year, against Vermont, Massimino's alma mater.

Massimino's record, since those trying two years is 210-100. Seven times he's taken the team to the NCAA and once to the National Invitation Tournament.

but Sunday's Southeast Regional victory over North Carolina put Villanova "over the hump," Massimino said, and into the prestigious final eight that attracts millions of television viewers and priceless publicity.

Georgetown just seeks to repeat

WASHINGTON (AP) — While other teams are basking in the glory of getting to the Final Four, Georgetown is quietly and confidently setting its sights on a second straight NCAA basketball title.

"Some players may be getting caught up in the excitement," said swingman Reggie-Willas-as-the Hoyas practiced for the last time at home Tuesday. "I'm happy there, too. But I know what it takes to win it."

He knows because the Hoyas have been to the Final Four three times in the last four years, missing one because of a loss to Memphis State in a regional final.

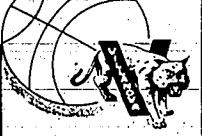

"We've been through this before," said Ralph Dalton, the backup center who anchored the Hoyas against Georgia Tech in the East Regional final while foul-prone All-American Patrick Ewing sat on the bench.

"The seniors have been to the championships now three different ways. With that much experience, you learn what it takes," he said.

By beating Georgia Tech 60-54 Saturday, Georgetown set itself up to repeat as champions for the first time since UCLA did it in 1973.

"We haven't proved anything yet," said Ewing. "There's one more championship to win."

"We try as a team not get caught up in the historical aspects of what we're doing," said forward-Bill Martin.

The center of it all

At a news conference, the St. John's coach said he might leave center Bill Wennington alone on Frying more this time.

"He's played him as well as anyone around, and maybe we should let Ewing get his bundle and concentrate on stopping the others," Carnesecca said. "He's gonna get his anyway, right?"

Just prior to the Big East Tournament, Syracuse Coach Jim Boeheim, whose Orangemen handed Georgetown its only other loss this season, said there was a gap between St. John's and Georgetown and the rest of the country.

St. John's smells roses

NEW YORK (AP) — Coach Lou Carnesecca doesn't want St. John's to be just another Final Four team.

"I always wanted to get there," said Carnesecca, who will be making his Final Four debut after 17 years of coaching. "But it's not enough to get there. You want to stay there. Now we have to go for broke."

We want a win at the whole ball of wax. A lot of people are so happy to get there; they forget why they're there."

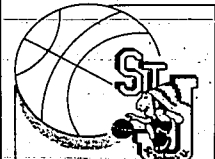

St. John's, winner of the West Regional title, will run into a familiar foe in its semifinal at Lexington, Ky., Saturday when it meets Big East Conference rival Georgetown.

No. 3 St. John's won its first meeting this season with the top-ranked Hoyas, halting Georgetown's 29-game winning streak when the two played at Landover, Md. Final score: 66-65.

Georgetown avenged the defeat, twice. The first time by 16 points at Madison Square Garden, and then by 12 points in the Big East Tournament finale.

Still, Carnesecca remains optimistic.

"If you look at the last two losses, you can see that we were not beaten badly," Carnesecca said. "We gave the games away. As much as they were good, we beat ourselves."

Tigers fulfill promise

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Reaching the NCAA's Final Four is a dream come true for All-American Keith Lee and the Memphis State Tigers, but the Tigers aren't letting success interfere with preparation for the next two games.

Before his team's workout Tuesday, the 6-foot-10 King said, "We're just going over the basics because at this time of the year, sometimes you forget things like that. We're not up tight or anything like that. We're just trying to keep sharp."

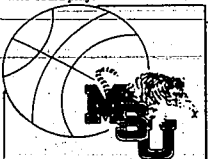

The Tigers, winner of the Metro Conference title and possessing a 31-3 record, met Villanova Saturday in the first game of the tournament's semifinal round in Lexington, Ky.

Lee, the West Memphis, Ark., scoring machine who has led the Tigers to four consecutive trips to the NCAA tournament, said he was sure he and his teammates eventually would make it to the Final Four after three straight losses in the round of 16.

Lee is averaging 19.9 points a game, despite frequent foul trouble in the past four games.

"I know we were going to do it... I wanted to play for the championship team," Lee said. "I knew when we started the season that we could do it. We had a lot of experienced players and we had some freshmen who could play."

Alas, western hoop...

TWIN FALLS — There's no conspiracy afoot by The Eastern Establishment.

And it's threatening something we have in the West hold dear. Or at least something that we spend a lot of time trying to hold dear.

That, of course, is the game of basketball, which was invented in Massachusetts. Western Massachusetts.

We in the West take pride in our UCLA's and our L.A. Lakers, our St. Mary's and our Utah Jazzes and stomp and holler whenever an Idaho State or a Portland Trail Blazers comes along and beats somebody they're not supposed to beat. Out here, basketball is a cowboy's game — full of running and shooting, pick-and-roll and skyhooking. Slick Watts or Joe Barry Carroll just wouldn't fit in at Indiana.

But these days there are about 10 watch three big-city Catholic schools from the East and Memphis city college play in the Final Four?

My friends, we got trouble. Their easterners has let us put us to shame. We're on the business end of The Basketball Gap.

You could look it up. How many NCAA basketball championships have developed West of the Mississippi since UCLA abdicated its dynasty in 1975? How many NBA No. 1 draft choices, apart from Akeem Olatunju, have come from the same territory in the past decade?

Western basketball is in a funk. Oh no? Then why is St. John's our NCAA regional champion?

The signs are everywhere. This year, for the first time in who knows how long there was no team who beat a single Pac-10 Conference team ranked in the wire service polls. UCLA, for the second season in the past three, had to settle for the NIT, where even a victory would ostensibly designate it the 68th best team in the country since the NCAA selected it ahead of it.

San Diego State — San Diego State — won the WAC title. And apart from Waymon Tisdale, the best college player in the West this year is a West German.

Before the Yugoslavians and Chinese started descending upon us to give basketball clinics, it's time to do something about it. The first step is getting our coaches the tools they need to win — ugly sweaters and oversized towels. We must also get all of our ballplayers wearing under- shirts. And we must see about ordering some 6-foot-9 guards.

Our professional players, to say nothing of our collegians, are under-paid here in the West. We should launch a subscription campaign to set that right at once, or better still, set up a cable TV superstation in, say, Albuquerque to boost our revenue base and our national exposure.

Think of it: Pacific Coast Athletic Conference basketball every Thursday night, right after Leave It to Beaver.

Then we must bolster our can-do Western spirit by scheduling teams from the East we can beat, like Wayne State, or better still, the Indiana Pacers.

Finally, we must get Dick Vitale to stop talking about WEBB-er State and Jack SEEK-ma.

Our elementary and high school coaches must take the first step by discouraging shots from farther than three feet and lower than 10 feet. Defense should be encouraged by insisting that all guards run 40 yards in less than 4 seconds. And intimidation should be developed by devoting less of the freshman and sophomore years to basic skills and more to glaring.

Above all, we must insist that everyone who goes out for basketball have, at least, the potential some day of playing professional ball in Italy or coaching in the Sun Belt Conference.

Our power forwards of the future must be able to demonstrate an ability to maintain a C average and double major in welding technology and classics. And hit the open man on the give-and-go without ending up in the popcorn machine.

Basketball isn't a game, you know.

USFL chief promises fines

Tampa owner to fight fall scheduling

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Tampa Bay Bandits owner John Bassett said Tuesday that his United States Football League team would resist a move to play a fall schedule if the USFL proceeds with plans to abandon its spring format in 1986.

The announcement met stiff opposition in the USFL's New York headquarters where Commissioner Harry Usher issued a statement saying Bassett would be fined an undisclosed amount for violating a directive that "public statements regarding the USFL will originate from the league office."

Bassett told a news conference that he was acting "singularly" in an effort to reassure his coaching staff, players and fans that they can expect the club to continue playing a March-to-June season.

"I'm tired of the hassle," the 45-year-old managing general partner said. "We will not play in the fall."

The USFL announced last summer that a move to shift to a fall season in 1986, a plan that would put it in direct competition with the National Football League.

The Bandits' owner said his decision was triggered by the inability of the USFL to successfully to negotiate a network television contract that would give the 3-year-old league a better chance to survive financially while going head-to-head against the NFL.

"There's no point running a boat that's full of holes," Bassett said. "I think the fall people have their chance for '86 and as far as I'm concerned they failed."

"The Tampa Bay area doesn't need another football team playing in the fall," he added, noting that the NFL Tampa Bay Buccaneers as well as several college teams are already fixtures for fans.

Bassett said he messaged Usher and other owners on Monday, informing them that Tampa Bay will seek a vote at the next league meeting to reverse last summer's decision.

"We're sure sanity will prevail," the owner said in a statement released by the Bandits. "If it doesn't, we don't intend to go to the fall."

While Bassett said he had not heard from fellow owners, Usher did telephone him to express opposition to the bandits' stand, he said.

USFL

The league commissioner is upset... He thinks we're not helping negotiations with the networks, and the owners don't see that. I've tried to do what's best for the league. Now I'm doing what's best for Tampa Bay."

Usher's statement said Bassett "is one owner representing one team ... As such, he speaks for himself, not for the league and the ownership."

"The subject of whether the USFL will play in the spring or the fall of 1986 is currently under study and I have indicated that a decision may be made in the next 30 to 60 days," the commissioner said.

"The USFL owners, including Mr. Bassett, voted last August to move to a fall season," Usher added. "To rescind that decision would require the approval of two-thirds of the owners. No such vote has been taken."

The Bandits' owner said a telephone survey of season ticket holders indicated there is overwhelming support to continue playing a spring schedule.

"This decision is being made because our fans have told us what they want," Bassett said. "They want the Tampa Bay Bandits to play in Tampa Stadium in the spring and that's what they'll get."

"This is our team, our fans and our time of the year and that's when we are playing," he added. "There are other owners in this league who will be staying with us in the spring."

Bassett did not identify the teams that might follow Tampa Bay's lead, but suggested he is prepared to start another spring league if the USFL goes to fall and the Bandits are left in the cold.

"I don't think that's going to happen ... (But) there are a lot of football players, and a lot of cities, and a lot of rich people who'd like to own football teams in those cities," he said.

Tampa Bay has been one of the most successful franchises in the 3-year-old league.

The Bandits' average attendance during its first two years was 42,369, and the team is the only original USFL franchise that is still operating with the same owner, the same coach and in the same city.

Rams ink Brock, will trade Ferragamo

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — Quarterback Dieter Brock, a free agent from the Canadian Football League, has signed a four-year contract with the Los Angeles Rams, whose coach said at a news conference Tuesday that the team intends to trade Vince Ferragamo.

"We've talked to Vince and told him we would seek an opportunity to trade him where he will have every chance to succeed," Rams Coach John Robinson told reporters. "I think that's probably the right thing for both of us."

Brock, 34, reportedly will receive $2.1 million from the Rams, who apparently intend to make him their starting signal-caller as evidenced by Robinson's statement concerning Ferragamo.

Ferragamo, 30, signed a four-year contract extension with the Rams last season. He opened the year as the National Football League's starting quarterback but was sidelined with a hand injury in the third game of the campaign and didn't play again.

Brock played 11 seasons in the CFL, the first 9½ with Winnipeg and the last 1½ with Hamilton. He became a free agent when his contract with the Tiger-Cats expired March 1.

Brock said he had not received any guarantee from the Rams concerning a starting job.

"I just feel this is an excellent opportunity for me and I'm not afraid of competition," Brock said at the news conference called to announce his signing. "This is a dream come true for me."

Brock also had tryouts with the Buffalo Bills, the Green Bay Packers and the Cleveland Browns. No NFL team held any claim to him.

When asked why he chose the Rams, he replied, "To me and my family, this was the best place to live, plus I know the team with personnel like me."

While no guarantees apparently were made, Robinson left little question as to who most likely would start the 1985 National Football League season at quarterback for the Rams.

"We think Dieter has a chance to provide an element that's missing on our football team," Robinson said. "But nobody's guaranteed a job around here."

With Robinson looking on, Brock worked out at the club's training facility on Monday. Afterward, Brock's agent, Gil Scott of Toronto, met with Rams Vice President John Shaw, with whom Shaw switched the tryout.

It didn't take long for an agreement to be reached.

Brock, a native of Birmingham, Ala., played at Jacksonville State after transferring from Auburn.

Shaw, who transferred to Auburn from Jacksonville State, said he

Baseball split over playoff money

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Negotiators for the club owners and the players' union failed Tuesday to reach an agreement that would expand the American and National League playoffs from a best-of-5 series to a best-of-7 series.

"We did not reach an understanding today, and if you ask me if I think we're going to reach an understanding, I don't know," Don Fehr, acting executive director of the players' association, said.

Fehr, who is leading the contract negotiations for the players, and Lee MacPhail, the owners' chief negotiator, said the stumbling block to expanding the playoffs remains the manner in which $9 million in additional television revenues will be split.

The players, Fehr said, are demanding they get one-third of the total, or $3 million. The players' union has agreed to keep that request separate from its demand for one-third of all television revenues under baseball's six-year, $1.1 billion contract with the television networks.

MacPhail, however, said the owners have never agreed to a players' demand for a percentage of revenues, and they do not intend to start now — even if the additional $9 million is the only figure involved.

"We have said, let's just put it on hold — there's no reason for us to make a decision at that money now," MacPhail said.

But Fehr said the players will not agree to the expanded playoffs unless an agreement is reached on the extra television revenues.

"What they (owners) are saying is that they are unwilling to commit, even for one year, that $3 million," Fehr said. "That has been unacceptable to them."

MacPhail said the issue would be discussed again Friday, and he said it is essential that an agreement be reached then in order to satisfy NBC, the network that will carry the 1985 baseball playoffs.

"We have to tell them (NBC) fairly promptly — in a matter of days — if we're expanding (the playoffs)," MacPhail said.

The expanded playoffs are seen by both sides as one way of increasing revenues for the players' pension fund and for owners, who say they are financially troubled.

In a letter sent to the players' union March 12, team owners said major league teams collectively have shown an operating profit only once in the past 10 years.

Projections provided for the owners indicate the teams will lose a total of $155 million in the 1985 season, if current trends continue.

The letter, which also noted that only eight of the 26 teams showed a profit in 1983, suggested that owners and players must work together to overcome "the deterioration of baseball's financial position."

The basic agreement, born of a strike in 1981, expired on Dec. 31.

Nets trip Hawks in overtime

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Michael Ray Richardson scored 34 points, including three in overtime, to lead the New Jersey Nets to a 109-108 victory over the Atlanta Hawks in a National Basketball Association game Tuesday night.

Richardson tied the game at 96-all with a free throw with 1 second left in regulation time to send the game into the five-minute overtime period as the Hawks' Glenn Rivers opened overtime with a three-point field goal.

Then, Albert King, who had only five points through the first 48 minutes of play, scored six points in the 5-minute overtime period as the Nets ran off eight unanswered points to take command of the overtime period.

Bucks-107, Bullets-96
LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Ricky Pierce scored eight of his 14 points in the fourth quarter as the Milwaukee Bucks defeated the Washington Bullets 107-96.

Terry Cummings scored 22 points and Paul Pierce added 21 to capture Milwaukee, leaders in the Central Division, but it was Pierce who provided the clutch scoring down the stretch.

Reuss continues comeback

By The Associated Press

Jerry Reuss continued his strong comeback bid in spring training, pitching the Los Angeles Dodgers to an 11-9 victory Tuesday over the Toronto Blue Jays in Toronto.

TWIN FALLS — Jerry Miller of Twin Falls tightened his hold on second place in the Northwest PBA regional tournament in Seattle, Wash., over the weekend with a third-place finish.

Valley, Jerome tracksters win

HAZELTON — The Jerome girls ran-off with the team title on one side, while the Jerome jayvees and Valley boys shared the other victory in a five-way track meet at Valley High School.

The meet, which was postponed by weather late last week, didn't find many bargains in the trade as a stiff wind and cold kept performances below par.

Valley will host another five-way meet Friday.

ISU closes race

POCATELLO, Idaho (AP) — The deadline for applications for the Idaho State University basketball coaching job was Tuesday, and the school says it has more than 60 applications to sort through. Athletic Director Babe Caccia said he hopes to have a recommendation on a new coach to succeed Wayne Ballard about the middle of next week. Ballard resigned earlier this month after three seasons as ISU coach. His Bengal teams had a 37-54 record, including 20-24 in Big Sky action.

Some notable names were on the list, including Larry Farmer, former player and coach at UCLA. Farmer now is a broadcaster for the Denver Nuggets of the National Basketball Association.

Others include Keith Hughes, who was a finalist for the ISU job three years ago when Lynn Archibald resigned; Carl Ingersoll, an assistant coach at Brigham Young University and Jerry Koester of Pocatello High School and Ron Kress, former coach at Highland.

Ballard was paid $33,400 per year.

Utah loses forward

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — High-scoring junior guard Kelvin Upshaw has been dismissed from the University of Utah basketball team after failing to meet minimum academic standards, Utes Coach Lynn Archibald said Tuesday.

Archibald said Upshaw, who led the team with 17.4 points per game during 28 games for Utah last season, would not return to school for spring quarter.

Upshaw was named to the All-Western Athletic Conference second team and All-District Seven squad by the United States Basketball Writers Association.

Due to an ankle injury, he saw only limited action in the Utes' last five games, missing three contests completely.

Wilson gets Hilo nod

HILO, Hawaii (AP) — Bob Wilson, head basketball coach at Phillips University in Enid, Okla., will be recommended to succeed Jimmy Yates as coach at the University of Hawaii. The UH-H athletic director Joey Estrella said Tuesday.

UH-H Chancellor Ralph Miwa was to make the recommendation this week to the University of Hawaii Board of Regents, which may not be able to act until its next scheduled meeting, April 19, Estrella said.

Estrella refused to comment on a published report that Bill Trumbo, coach at NCAA Division I University of Idaho, declined to accept the post Sunday because of financial considerations.

Scott leaves Cowboys

DALLAS (AP) — Former All-Pro guard Herb Scott announced his retirement Tuesday following a meeting with Dallas Cowboys Coach Tom Landry, a spokesman for the National Football League team said.

Scott, who had knee surgery before the start of the 1984 season, has complained of sore knees.

The Cowboys formally begin their off-season training Thursday and Landry had said he wanted any players planning to retire to inform him of their plans.

Scott said he planned to enter private business, said Cowboys spokesman David Pelletier.

Thornton has surgery

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indians designated hitter Andre Thornton successfully underwent arthroscopic knee surgery Tuesday and is expected to be playing again in four to six weeks, a team spokesman said.

Thornton will do his rehabilitation work as an outpatient at the Cleveland Clinic, where Dr. John Bergfeld performed the operation, the spokesman said.

Bergfeld said Thornton suffered from a "large, chronic tear of the meniscus," which is the fibrous cartilage in the knee joint.

McGuigan keeps title

WEMBLEY, England (AP) — Irishman Barry McGuigan retained his European featherweight boxing title Tuesday by stopping French challenger Farid Gallouze in the second round.

The Frenchman's seconds threw in the towel at 1:20 of the second round after Gallouze already had taken a standing count. McGuigan was about to "knock down" the 27-year-old challenger for a second time when Gallouze's handlers decided their fighter had absorbed enough punishment.

When Swiss referee Franz Marti called a halt to the contest, Gallouze returned to his corner in tears, being consoled by the 22-year-old champion.

Both fighters weighed 124½.

Auburn coach un-resigns

AUBURN, Ala. (AP) — Auburn prepared a statement Tuesday, abruptly announced last month that he would quit at the end of the season.

Tuesday decided to withdraw his resignation and stay with the Tigers. "Coach Smith has asked to withdraw his resignation," said Auburn Athletic Director Pat Dye.

"I am convinced that this is the right thing to do," said Smith. "And we believe it is in the best interest of our basketball program to have him remain at Auburn."

The Auburn coach, who never fully explained his initial reasons for resigning, did not elaborate on his change of heart as he issued a his resignation plans Feb. 8.

Hall, Lewis to coach east-west all-stars

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — So much for retirement. Joe B. Hall, who resigned last week as Kentucky's basketball coach, will guide the East team to the Coach's East-West All-America Game on Sunday at Memorial Coliseum.

Houston's Guy Lewis will coach the West squad, led by Southern Methodist 7-footer Jon Konecak and Washington star Detlef Schrempf.

The teams and coaches were selected by the National Association of Basketball Coaches and the game is sponsored by the Valvoline Oil Co.

The game will be played on the tuesday between the NCAA Final Four semifinals and finals, which get under way at Rupp Arena in downtown Lexington on Saturday.

"I thought I was all done, but now I've got more shot," Hall said Tuesday. "I'd better make the best one. This will be it — I promise."

Hall announced his retirement from coaching Friday after the Wildcats lost to St. John's in the NCAA West Regional.

"I was kind of surprised when they called me. I was even more surprised when they asked me to coach, but appreciate the honor," said Hall, whose office is in Memorial Coliseum on the Kentucky campus. "I jumped at the chance to be going home and back to Memorial Coliseum to coach my last game. It'll be fantastic."

Hall, guided Kentucky to a 297-100 record in 13 seasons. He coached his first Kentucky game — an exhibition against a Chilean National team — in the coliseum on Nov. 23, 1972.

Hall coached the All-Star game in 1979 in Salt Lake City and wants a sell out in the 11,500-seat coliseum.

Rx for Flu or Chicken Pox: Kindness

Be good to yourself when you've got the flu or chicken pox. Take it easy. Get plenty of rest.

Viral illnesses such as these are usually self-limiting. Time will cure them.

Check with your doctor about using medications to treat flu or chicken pox. For children — including teenagers — medications such as aspirin and salicylate-containing products may not be a good idea. A rare but dangerous condition called Reye's syndrome may develop in young people just when they appear to be recovering. Studies strongly suggest a link between the development of Reye and the use of aspirin to treat the flu or chicken pox.

So, be good to yourself when you've got the flu.
