Ma Nature fools everyone

Just when you thought it was safe to go out ...

TWIN FALLS — Described by the U.S. Weather Service as strictly a Magic Valley and northern Nevada storm, Thursday's spring blizzard pelted the South Hills with a foot of snow and gave Twin Falls city motorists one of their most difficult days this season.

To the north, roads were bare and dry and clear skies were reported at Halley. The interstate highway was only wet from Boise to Jerome which appeared to be the north boundary of the storm.

Twin Falls police had investigated 45 traffic accidents by early afternoon, as cars skidded through snow- and ice-covered intersections. Only one city accident involved injuries, however. Jerome police reported several accidents, but there were no reports of serious injuries. A one-car accident on I-15 at the east Jerome exit became a multi-car pile-up shortly after noon, but no injuries were reported.

Buxley and Rupert also reported heavy snow continuing through the day but very few accidents in either city.

William Galkin of the U.S. Weather Service in Kimberly said the storm came in from the northwest coastal area and crossed northern Nevada late Wednesday night.

"It sort of stalled there and then moved north into Magic Valley about 6 a.m. (Thursday)," he said. "It should begin to taper off tonight and become partly cloudy with scattered showers Friday."

"Most people who discussed the weather on Thursday didn't see no hazard in the mid-winter conditions. One office worker said tempers were short among fellow workers and everyone was 'sick of snow and ready for spring."

While Kimberly had only about two inches of snow Thursday afternoon, measurements in Twin Falls were at least four inches.

Twin Falls Highway District Director Clyde Burney said crews were plowing seven to eight inches of snow south of Twin Falls and in the Hollister and Berger areas.

The storm was spotty, however. Gooding reported only a few snow flurries and no bad weather. Boise had only light snow.

Schools were closed at 7 p.m. in Minidoka County because of heavy snow, drifting and poor visibility in outlying district areas. Filer and Hollister students went home at noon.

For skiers, the storm brought promises of an extended season. Officials at

House's vote clears the way for MX funds

—WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Thursday ended a bruising congressional marathon and voted 217-210 to release $1.5 billion for the production of 21 more MX missiles.

The last of four votes in the Senate and House closed the latest chapter in a decade-long battle over the need for the strategic weapon.

But opponents said President Reagan's first major congressional victory of 1985 also marked the high-water mark for the MX, which critics believe would be destroyed in the first wave of a Soviet nuclear attack.

Reagan said the House vote "shows again that we were able to stand in a bipartisan way before the world as far as our security is concerned."

From New York, where he had traveled for a speech, the president acknowledged the many Democrats who voted for the missile by saying he "will not soon forget those who chose the road of political courage and vision."

Voting for the missile were 156 Republicans and 61 Democrats, while 187 Democrats and 23 Republicans voted against it.

During an equally tense fight two years ago, Congress approved a first batch of 21 MXs.

Reagan ultimately wants to install 100 of the 10-warhead missiles in existing underground Minuteman missile silos in Nebraska and Wyoming.

Democratic House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., who led the unsuccessful campaign against the missile, said Reagan is "going to have a very tough time" winning approval this June for an additional 48 MXs worth $3.2 billion included in the administration's proposed 1986 fiscal year budget.

The House Republican whip, Rep. Trent Lott of Mississippi, agreed, saying there is growing pressure within his party to make cuts in Reagan's defense budget and to begin with the MX.

"The probability is that Republicans will not be prepared to go forward with the full MX program. In addition, the next time around, Reagan is expected to lose the support of a number of moderate Democrats, including Sen. Sam Nunn of Georgia and Rep. Les Aspin of Wisconsin.

Blaine voters OK school funding levy

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

HAILEY — Blaine County voters Thursday gave the largest margin of victory to the largest school district override levy they've been asked to approve in the past seven years.

More than 2,000 voters turned out to approve the $1.6 million override, which received 68 percent of the votes cast. In all, 1,335 voters approved of the levy to $20 that did not.

The levy will make up 31 percent of the revenues needed to run the district during the 1985-86 school year. Altogether, local property taxes will pay for 69 percent of the district's operating budget.

"It shows the people have a lot of confidence in us, and we have to work hard to live up to it," said Phil Homer, acting superintendent for the district, after the votes had been counted.

One year ago, 58 percent of the county's voters approved a $25,000 override levy.

Other voters in 1981, 60 percent in 1983.

Blaine County schools receive 16 percent of their support from the state, compared to 22 percent in other percent state-wide averages.

The amount the district receives has been eroding in recent years because of the high market value of the county's real property, the basis of the state distribution formula for school support.

As a result, the district has to depend increasingly, and heavily, on local support by passing larger override levies to cope with a rapid growth in its student population.

Thursday's levy was the second special levy Blaine County voters have approved in six months.

In September 1984, they gave a 69 percent voter approval to a five-year, $4-million plant facilities levy to add new classrooms and other improvements to the district's six schools.

Ancient mammal's teeth discovered

REYNOLDS CREEK (AP) — When Mark Hoagland dug two shiny, 6-inch-long, 3-inch-wide teeth out of the dirt a few weeks ago, he knew they were weird — but not that they were about 15 million years old.

The teeth have been identified as the oldest remains of an elephant-like animal, Gomphotherium obscurum, ever found in North America, said Ted Weasna, a Bureau of Land Management paleontology specialist.

"I knew those teeth were too large for any cow or horse," Hoagland said. Hoagland lives in Malba, but the fossils were found on his ranch near Reynolds Creek in southwestern Idaho.

"After I found the bones, I went back to the house and told my kids they (the teeth) were probably from some prehistoric animal. They just laughed at me," Hoagland said.

The laughter spurred him to have the teeth identified, if only to prove a point. Weasna sent one tooth for identification and dating to a paleontology expert in Denver who specializes in elephants. The results came back a couple of weeks ago.

The fossils are from the time period when elephant-like animals first came onto this continent, said Greg McDonald, collections manager for the Idaho State Museum of Natural History.

"Elephants first came into the New World about 15 to 16 million years ago across the Bering Strait," McDonald said. "These fossils are from that time period and are the first of their kind that have been found in this country."

Until this find, the oldest elephant remains found in North America were about 9 million years old, McDonald said. Elephants were wiped out in North America about 12,000 years ago, probably from a combination of climatic conditions and hunting by man, he said.

"There are very few (fossil) deposits like this in Idaho. We're very fortunate that Hoagland spotted the fossils and brought them to us," McDonald said.

Hoagland said other ranchers in the area had come across similar types of fossils, but none of them had reported their finds.

McDonald said the museum would go to Hoagland's ranch this summer for a preliminary dig to see how many fossil deposits might be there.

"If it turns out to be a good site, we would come back for more extensive work the following summer," he said.

Japan to hike auto exports

Ceiling on vehicles increased; American officials unhappy

TOKYO (AP) — Japan on Thursday announced it would increase auto exports to the United States by 24.5 percent, setting its own ceiling of 2.3 million vehicles for fiscal 1985.

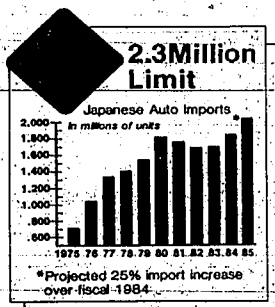

In 1984 Japan observed a limit of 1.85 million under the voluntary restraint requested by the United States.

The international trade and industry minister, Keijiro Murata, said on Thursday that Japan was imposing its ceiling "to ensure moderation in Japanese passenger car exports to the United States" after the voluntary restraint expires Sunday at midnight.

Japan had held back U.S.-bound car exports since 1981, but President Reagan announced on March 1 that he would not ask for a fifth year of restraints. Reagan urged Japan to take other steps, however, to help reduce its giant surplus in trade with the United States.

That surplus rose to $3.8 billion last year from $2.1 billion in 1983.

In Washington, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the Japanese was "extremely disappointed" by the Japanese announcement, Marlin Fitzwater, another spokesman, added, "... Our position remains that we want more access to other (Japanese) markets."

the United States in 1984 "an intolerable situation."

The Senate action followed a Commerce Department report which showed that the United States suffered an $11.4 billion foreign trade deficit last month. As usual, the largest deficit was with Japan — a $4.2 billion imbalance, 15.2 percent above the January level.

Japanese spokesman Makoto Kuroda told a news conference that without the new limits, his

Sticker prices to decline at low end

DETROIT (AP) — Sticker prices on new cars likely won't plunge dramatically when the Japanese increase their exports to the United States by 25 percent, but consumers will pay at least $1,000 less for cheaper models, analysts predicted Thursday.

"We see strong competition developing at the low end," J. David Power, a California auto analyst, said after the Japanese government announced the increase in the number of cars that country's automakers will send to the United States.

"The consumer is going to get cars that are very, very competitively priced in the low end of the market, and that will bring more people into the car market," Power said in a telephone interview from Westlake Village, Calif.

Eyeing the first time in a dozen years, Power said, the supply of cars for sale will be enough to satisfy the demand.

The new influx of Japanese cars — an additional 450,000 a year under the guidelines announced by the Japanese Ministry of International Trade and Industry — will mark the sixth year of steepest price cuts granted to purchasers of the most popular models.

Government spent $3,000 per U.S. resident last year

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government spent more than $3,000 per U.S. resident last year, including $1,359 in direct payments to individuals, $738 for purchases, $453 to pay federal workers and $405 in grants to state and local governments, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

Overall, federal government spending climbed to $724.7 billion in 1984, up 4.3 percent from the year before, according to the three-volume study.

"Federal expenditures by State for Fiscal Year 1984," California, with 10.7 percent of the nation's population, led the states, receiving 12.7 percent of all federal spending for the year. The total spent in California, home to several large military bases and defense contractors, amounted to $3,579.46 per resident. That included $1,276 in direct payments to individuals, $1,333.93 in purchases, $325.35 in salaries and $32.44 in assistance to state and local governments.

But while California's total federal spending was tops in the nation, the state did not lead the per capita list. That was left to Alaska, where expenditures are divided among a much smaller population and take a far different form with more emphasis on salaries and wages and less on government assistance to individuals.

"Federal expenditures in Alaska amounted to $4,642.17 per resident. That included $1,563.48 in federal salaries and wages, $1,231.40 in assistance to state and local governments, $1,162.69 in purchases and $651.12 in direct aid payments to individuals. With 0.2 percent of the nation's population, Alaska was the recipient of $2.3 billion in federal spending, 0.3 percent of the total. Idaho finished near the bottom of the pack, in 39th place.

Nationally the largest single category of federal spending was direct payments to individuals, averaging $1,333.93 per American in 1984, the report said.

The largest category in direct payments was Social Security retirement benefits, which averaged $500 for every American in 1984 — although benefits were not actually distributed to all residents.

Other direct assistance payments, per American for the year, included $173.78 in Medicare hospital benefits; $149.09 in Social Security survivors benefits; $91.56 in federal civilian employee retirement benefits; $80.37 in Medicare supplemental payments; $73.99 for Social Security disability;

$58.36 for military retirement programs; $41.58 in food stamps; Also, $33.37 in veterans disability compensation; $31.10 for Supplemental Security Income; $26.41 in insurance programs for railroad workers; $12.92 for Pell education grants; $12.16 to subsidize guaranteed student loans and $10.36 for veterans with non-service connected disabilities.

The $735.88 the government spent on purchases included $571.90 spent by all other agencies, including the Postal Service.

Federal salaries and wages averaged $453.08 per American.

Muscular dystrophy test developed

NEW YORK (AP) — The first reliable test for the most common kind of muscular dystrophy can diagnose the disease in fetus as early as the eighth week of pregnancy and identify mothers who are carriers, a new study says.

The disease, Duchenne muscular dystrophy, afflicts 50,000 to 100,000 American boys and young men who will not survive beyond their 20s, according to the Muscular Dystrophy Association in New York.

The test is not foolproof, and estimates of its accuracy vary. The most optimistic of the tests developers, Egbert Bakker, puts its accuracy at 99 percent and says it can be used in 95 percent of families in which the illness has appeared.

Bakker, of the Department of Human Genetics in Leiden, The Netherlands, is one of 18 doctors and scientists from five countries who are reporting the development of the test in the current issue of the Lancet, a leading British medical journal.

Another of the researchers, Kay Davies of the Radcliffe Hospital in Oxford, England, is more conservative. She estimates the test is 96 percent accurate and can be used in 70 percent of families known to be at risk.

Nevertheless, she and other researchers interviewed by The Associated Press expect that within six months to a year the test will be 100 percent accurate in nearly all families.

Prenatal diagnosis of this illness, which has hitherto been impossible, "clearly is possible now," said Donald Wood, associate director for research at the Muscular Dystrophy Association, in a telephone interview Thursday.

"It's still an experimental approach," he said.

KMVT building gift will benefit seniors

KMVT Television, which will move from Elizabeth Road to the old Sierra Life building on Blue Lakes Boulevard-North this summer, has given the city of Twin Falls the exceptional gift of its present facility for a senior citizens center.

The need for some other place for the seniors is well established. The present facility is small and part of it is unsafe for use.

The KMVT gift solves that need. The television studio has about 15,000 feet of space, more than twice the seniors' present building. To be sure, some remodeling would be required, and the source of funding for all that might be required is not certain.

Still, the KMVT building has much potential. It is in a good location and comes with enough land to establish a small park adjacent to the building.

The KMVT gift is a generous one to the city, for which the community should be grateful. Thanks, KMVT.

A senator on a quest

Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, has taken to ralling the four state universities about what he says is the sale of "pornographic" materials on college campuses.

The target of his wrath, "Playboy" magazine, has been subjected to various efforts at censorship across the country. If the senator checks the law, he will find that virtually all of those efforts have failed.

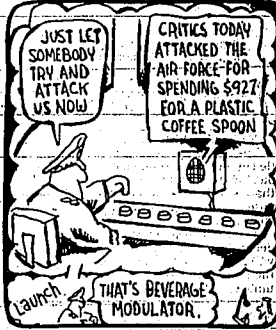

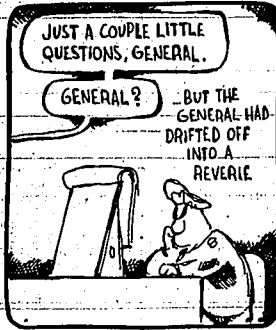

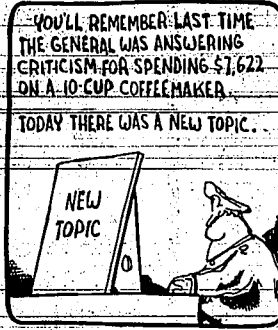

The reason is that while "Playboy" may contain material some people find offensive, it is not an obscene magazine under present federal law or Supreme Court rulings. Indeed, more offensive material can be heard in many popular rock songs, with which we presume Anderson is familiar through his rock music band.

Anderson, who attended Harvard College and studied some law before going to work for George Hansen, presumably knows these things. In any case, we think the colleges of Idaho are capable of putting whatever restrictions are necessary on the sale of so-called pornography to minors.

Anderson has been the beneficiary of a quality education, and his time, in our view, would be better spent coming up with ways to improve the academic offerings of what students are getting at Idaho schools.

Another Episode of General's Hospital

Tobacco makers share health liability

BOSTON — In the past year, two people I was close to died of lung cancer. It goes without saying that these two were both cigarette smokers. They had bought their first Lucky Strike or Camel or Chesterfield as teen-agers in the 1940s. They had smoked thousands of cartons of dozens of brands — two packs a day, three packs a day — until they died.

One of them tried to quit twenty times. Another had quit, finally, in the hospital because he wasn't allowed to smoke around his oxygen tank.

I don't say this to disqualify myself from writing about smoking, but rather to qualify.

As a survivor, I have to ask who is to blame for these two deaths, or for the 350,000 other Americans — friends, uncles, parents — who died of smoking-related diseases last year?

The daily newspaper, the medical establishment, even the cigarette packs these smokers opened, carried warnings about the lethal dangers of cigarettes. Some 45,000 studies documented the link between smoking and ill health. Weren't these consumers responsible for what they inhaled? Didn't they kill themselves?

What then about the tobacco industry? Year after year, the people who write for the Tobacco Institute go on rebutting the medical research, trying to convince us that cigarettes are not bad.

The companies have spent $1.5 billion a year in advertising to entice Americans, especially young Americans, to smoke. Don't they bear any responsibility for manufacturing and marketing such a lethal product?

These questions of responsibility — personal and corporate — will be argued in the courtroom this spring by dying smokers and/or their survivors who are suing tobacco companies. Juries in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Texas, California, Minnesota and West Virginia will decide whether a person who ill her own cigarettes can turn around and collect payment from the company that made them.

They will decide whether a manufacturer who denied any smoking risks, can turn around and claim that a customer smoked at his own risk.

The spring rash of cases is not a coincidence — it comes out of the current anti-smoking climate and out of recent changes in the liability law. In the last few years, courts have ruled that a product is unreasonably dangerous when the risks outweigh the benefits. Such a product, they have said, has to carry warnings, very explicit warnings.

"The courts had looked at DES, at asbestos. Why not go after the most dangerous drug of all? The law was all there, ready to be applied to cigarettes," says Richard Daynard, a professor at Northeastern University School of Law who started the Tobacco Products Liability Project, a group of doctors and lawyers working on the strategy for suing tobacco companies.

It is the conviction of these advocates that smokers are not fully to blame for their illnesses. Smoking isn't a free choice, but an addiction. The warnings carried on the cigarette packages vastly understate the dangers of smoking and ignore those of addiction. At the same time, the ads proffer counter-messages of health and happiness.

The suit strategy is, Daynard maintains, the latest annihilation of trusted public interest groups against the tobacco lobby. "We would prefer to have kept the epidemic from happening," says Daynard. "But this compensates the families. It produces a lot of very detailed publicity on just how bad cigarettes are, and if the cost of litigation could raise the price of cigarettes to $3 or $4 a pack it would reduce consumption in the next group of potential addicts."

These cases are not going to be easily won. Smoking is an addiction, but there are millions around who have kicked the habit. Few of us are comfortable regarding the smoker as a helpless victim of the weed.

But the tobacco industry does have a full measure of guilt for the epidemic of smoking diseases, for the $13 billion a year medical bill.

In most states, consumers can recover some damages from the manufacturer of a dangerous product even when they were partially to blame for their own injury.

At the very least, cigarette makers should share the cost of the damage.

Ideally, the threat of suit might even force the tobacco industry to do something truly radical, to stop denying the link between smoking and emphysema, lung cancer, heart disease. The least compensation owed to the survivors is the truth.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Letters/A different view of Father Taylor's talk

Both choices unacceptable

I was raised in the old school of thought that said "two wrongs don't make a right." If I left to make the choice of the lesser of two evils, I opt for finding a third and better choice. In this vast and complex universe in which we live, it is ridiculous to ever conclude that there are only two possible choices on any issue. That is the turf of linear, short-term, dead-end thinking.

Based on circular thinking there are at least three (X 120) possibilities allowing for the traditional opposites and always a beyond point of view. Based on spherical thinking the possibilities are endless.

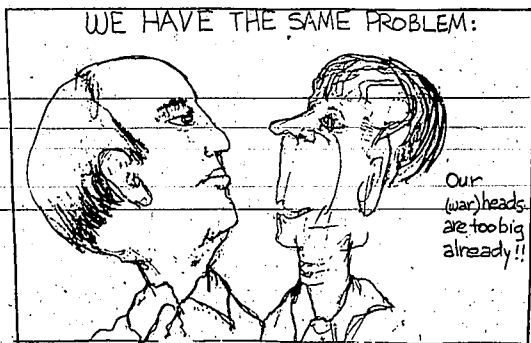

The point is that choices are much greater than we are lead or let ourselves believe. Being pushed into a position of taking sides — being for or against — goes counter to the premise that two wrongs don't make a right. If A and B are both unacceptable, then no matter how deked out they are in bunting, rhetoric or anthems, they are still unacceptable choices.

I recently read a letter to the editor from a Mrs. Carlson ranting and raving against Father Bill Taylor for what she saw as his supposed support of the Sandinistas in Nicaragua.

I was there. I heard Father Taylor. He didn't sing any praise or glory for the Sandinistas. What he did was try and take an honest look at the hows and whys they took power and whether U.S. foreign policy in support of the contra is justified.

Yes, Bill Taylor is prejudiced, but it's toward the poor and innocent of Nicaragua. As I saw it, he made no judgment on the Sandinistas. It is not anti-American by questioning the motivation of U.S. involvement in Latin America. His questioning probably makes him truer to supposed U.S. principles than those who blindly follow the old linear course of "we're right and they're wrong" even if it's not so. It also makes him a true Christian.

It's my observation that for the most part

JUDY WIDENER

the foreign policy of both the U.S. and the Soviet Union is wrong. They remind me of a couple of honky real estate developers that are competing to put up a shopping mall that's not needed or wanted by the locals.

They have no regard for other than their own selfish interests. We are all supposed to be relieved that these super honkies are meeting in Geneva, negotiating to keep from blowing us all up and yet at the same time they continue to play their war games in Afghanistan, El Salvador and Nicaragua.

Oppression is oppression, be it socially, racially, militarily or economically imposed. Not everyone in the world wants to be a honky capitalist or honky communist. We don't all want to get rich at others expense, to rip and rape the land. If we quit playing this play ground bully B.S. with the Soviets and showed some genuine concern and respect for the other people and cultures that share this beautiful little planet, we wouldn't keep finding ourselves at the other wrong end of the stick.

In our safe little suburbs, we watch the news and get upset and fearful of the revolutionaries and terrorists that strike out at our imposed institutions. We don't seem to recognize that we by our arrogance and stupidity help prepare and make fertile the fields from which these seeds of violence grow.

If you wanna keep your castle you don't keep tromping on the little people, 'cause someday they're gonna get ya. The true motivation though is that you shouldn't tromp on the little people cause it just ain't right.

Showboat review was fair

This last week I have read a couple of letters to the Times-News about the Diligent's production of Show Boat. Speaking not as a follower or longtime patron, but as a member of the paying public, I happen to agree with your reviewer's opinion of the play. If anything, I would not be quite as kind as she. To speak plainly, there were good moments and there were bad — an opinion even shared by others I know.

SHIRLEY HARTLEY

A question of freedom

I would like to take a minute and tell my story to certain people in the community, about our constitutional rights for freedom of religion. I know there are others in the same situation. I think the community should be aware of how some religious "freedoms" are handed.

I came from a mixed marriage. One of my parents was LDS and the other was of another denomination. I was baptized in the LDS church at eight years of age, as is the practice of the LDS church and become an active member in my community. When I was married, I did not have a church wedding. I was married in a wedding chapel (non-denominational) because I had not yet found the faith I wanted to officially join.

Then in 1982, I had found the church I wanted to join and become an active member and serve. The church I joined honored my baptism in the LDS church and so it was just a matter of the transfer of membership from the LDS to the other church, which there were no problems with.

Here lies what bothered me greatly: whenever I moved before I changed churches officially, the LDS church would have their representatives to see me, either visiting — home teachers, seller society, and etc. I even received newsletters from the "ward." This I took with a grain of salt, and reminded myself that I hadn't yet settled my roots into any other church yet, and so "It was OK." Although I never gave them much of my time, I would explain to them that my feelings for the LDS church, and what they believe in had greatly changed since my baptism of eight years old. I told them I no longer considered myself LDS.

Now, to top it off, which is why I now write this letter, that after three years of being an official and active member of another church, the LDS church continues to send me their mail, visiting home teachers and relief society women to see me. I have often thought of going through the ex-communication procedure they have at the LDS church, but have not taken the measure to do so. I have written to the bishop two times in the past years explaining to him that I did not wish to hear from the church again. I have not moved in six years, so it is not the cross-up from moving into "another ward." I have even personally spoken to the bishop on the phone about this matter in hopes he will put a special note in my records so the people who come in to do their work, will know my case and will not come by my home, mail me things or call.

It isn't that the LDS church isn't aware. They are aware. They just fail to recognize and honor my privacy and the constitutional right to choose and practice the religion of my choice. I think it is sad that they cannot except I'm no longer one of them. What will it take to get them to accept that I have chosen another set of beliefs? I have heard and read many stories on the ex-communication procedure. I feel it is none of the LDS officials business to know my reasons for wanting out. I want out, and I have plenty of reasons I am sure they wouldn't agree with. But what ever happened to the freedom of religion? Do I have to have an OK from them to be removed from all their records?

Students protest punk ban

Police were called to quell a demonstration on school's dress code.

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A demonstration by 300 students over a junior high school's ban on "punk" dress spilled from the school into a street Thursday and four youths were arrested, officials said.

The four, two of them in handcuffs, were taken to Hennepin County Juvenile Detention Center, and were released to their parents, said Lt. Ron Findorff.

Students, some wearing the banned clothing and hairstyles, began their protest by staging a sit-down demonstration inside Susan B. Anthony Junior High.

The demonstration moved outside, where many students sat in the street. When police arrived, many of the youths began screaming and hugging each other or running away. No injuries were reported.

Rachel Leonard, principal of the 900-student school, did not return a reporter's telephone call for comment Thursday.

Findorff said disorderly conduct charges would be sought against the four arrested youths, who included three students at Susan B. Anthony and one from another junior high.

In letters to parents last Friday, Ms. Leonard said the administration had decided to ban "dress that is overly conspicuous or overly distracting." She told parents that students could be suspended for violations.

Mentioned in the letters as examples of inappropriate "punk" dress were "leather jackets, studded bracelets and belts, worn undergarments, ripped and torn clothing, tattooed or marked skin, gaudy makeup and shower caps."

Ms. Leonard said some students miss class time in order to grow their hair. Some, she said, change clothes when they get to school to avoid criticism from their parents.

Students have circulated petitions asking they be allowed to wear whatever they please.

Ms. Leonard said Tuesday, "The kinds of conversations you can have on this (dress ban) can go on for an hour or two. First Amendment rights and all this. But there's no way I accept that."

"I'll accept one thing; that school is a place to learn and not disrupt the educational process. And that's what I've got to consider."

Ted Strand, a history teacher and co-chair of the school faculty's council, which urged that parents be informed of the problem by letter, said Tuesday, "When you're wasting five or 10 minutes of a period trying to get the kids to settle down because somebody dressed outlandishly, that doesn't have anything to do with education."

Jenny Hewitt, a seventh-grader wearing heavy white makeup and tumbled, new-wave hair, said Tuesday, "So what if we want to dress this way? It's the other kids' fault for doing the yelling."

Woman's conscience bothered her about lie

CHICAGO (AP) — A woman who says her made-up story sent a man to prison for rape six years ago said Thursday she revealed the lie because "his life was worth more than my keeping silence."

"God kept bringing this back to my mind, convicting me about what I had done," said the woman, a mother of two who now lives in a small town in New Hampshire.

"I could not... live the rest of my life knowing that man is in jail because of my lie," she said in a telephone interview arranged through her attorney.

The woman recalled how she fell after Gary Dolsen was convicted and she saw him crying.

"I had a very hard time even looking up at him because I and he both knew that he was innocent," she said. "I became very callous and hardened to what I was doing."

"I wish I could turn the clocks back," she said.

In an affidavit filed in court this week, the woman said her maiden name was Cathleen Crowell. But she declined in the interview to give her married name, saying she feared the publicity.

Dolsen, 28, of suburban Country Club Hills, was convicted in 1979 of rape and aggravated kidnapping after the woman testified he had raped her in 1977.

"I decided a little over two months ago... that his life was worth more than my keeping silence," the woman said.

In the affidavit, the woman, now 23, said that when she was to be haled into court with a teen-age boy, and heard she would be kicked out of her suburban Homewood foster home if she was pregnant.

She said she was "concerned about the consequences of my promiscuity and thought I was pregnant and therefore decided to claim I was raped."

Doctors put tube in Haydon's windpipe

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Doctors removed a breathing tube from Murray Haydon's throat and placed it directly into his windpipe Thursday, in minor surgery that allows the artificial heart-patient to talk and take food through his mouth.

The procedure, a tracheotomy, is common for patients who have been hooked to a respirator for 10 days, as Haydon had, said Bob Irving, director of public relations for Humana Inc.

Haydon, 58, was placed on the respirator March 18, when he developed breathing difficulties. The tube from the respirator ran into his mouth through his throat and into his windpipe, or trachea. In the 30-minute operation, it was placed into the windpipe through a small hole in the throat.

He had been unable to take food through his mouth or talk, and Dr. William C. DeVries decided to perform the tracheotomy because Haydon will need to use the respirator for another week, Irvine said.

He should be able to talk within two days, he said.

"Haydon's lungs are doing all right," Irvine said in an interview. "They're breathing on their own and (doctors have) been gradually reducing the amount of assistance provided by the respirator."

DeVries began to wear Haydon from the respirator on Sunday and had hoped his patient would be breathing on his own by the end of the week.

"The problem is they've not been able to reduce it... to the point where they actually could have discontinued it," Irvine said. "They didn't want to leave the tracheal tube down his throat any longer."

Rally marks TMI nuclear accident

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — More than 150 people rallied Thursday for a permanent shutdown of Three Mile Island as they marked the sixth anniversary of the worst accident in U.S. commercial nuclear history.

Earlier, two protesters were arrested for blocking a gate to the island facility in Middletown, about 10 miles southeast of Harrisburg.

"Three Mile Island is an idea whose time has come and gone," Michio Kaku, a nuclear physicist at City College of New York, told the lunchtime crowd of demonstrators in a shopping mall next to the Capitol.

On March 28, 1979, human error and mechanical failure combined to rob the radioactive core of TMI's Unit 2 reactor of vital cooling water. The core overheated, causing some of its uranium fuel to melt and releasing radiation into the environment. The result was a crippled reactor and a $1 billion cleanup project that is still not finished.

The company contends that it has installed a new management team and safety systems that would avert another accident.

Controversial young cancer victim dies

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP) — Pamela Hamilton, the young cancer victim whose family lost a court fight to prevent her from receiving medical treatment on religious grounds, died Thursday at her home.

Dr. Brian Corden of the pediatric oncology department at T.C. Thompson Children's Hospital confirmed the death of the 14-year-old girl.

In 1983, a state court ordered the girl to undergo cancer treatment over the religious objections of her fundamentalist preacher father.

Marc Chagall dies at age 97

ST. PAUL DE VENCE, France (AP) — Marc Chagall, whose dreamlike and vividly colored paintings established the 20th century's leading style, died at his home in the French Riviera village Thursday night, his wife said. He was 97.

His wife said he collapsed and died almost immediately. The exact cause of death was not immediately known.

The son of a Russian shopkeeper, Chagall portrayed Jews, Russians, a rabbi, a woman based on his first wife, childood memories and religious mysticism. His works never fit into any formal art movement and he persisted through them all with a fascination for arch images as cows soaring through the air, lovers riding horses in the sky, and fiddlers on roofs.

In addition to paintings, Chagall did stained glass windows for the cathedral in Metz, France, the Hadassah Medical Center in Jerusalem and the United Nations.

He designed tapestries for Israel's parliament building and painted the ceiling of the Paris Opera. He did murals and designed costumes and sets for the Moscow Center.

His pictures were filled with entranced people, animals and Jewish and Christian symbols floating through space in defiance of both gravity and perspective.

"They were painted in bright reds, greens and blues that make his contemporary, Pablo Picasso, describe him as 'the last painter left who understands what color really is.'"

"I want to introduce into my pictures a psychic shock — a fourth dimension," he once said. "Therefore, let people cease talking about fairy tales of the fantastic, of Chagall the flying painter, when they speak of me."

"I don't understand Chagall at all," he told an interviewer shortly before his 90th birthday. "All I know is that one understands only what one loves."

His early life in the ghetto town of Vitebsk, Russian, where he was born July 2, 1892, showed him painting in the form of icons and symbols of the Jewish religion.

Chagall's father at first forbade him to cast eyes on graven images — drawings of any sort — but a provincial portraitist took young Chagall under his wing and his sense of folk art developed. He studied in Vitebsk and then in St. Petersburg.

At age 21, he produced his first major painting, widely regarded as an important forerunner of the Surrealist movement. Entitled "The Dead Man," it shows a man's body lying in a deserted street surrounded by candles while a fiddler plays on a nearby roof.

Two years later Chagall traveled to Paris, where he got to know other young painters then building their fame, including Picasso, Matisse, Bonnard, Soutine and Modigliani.

His first one-man show was in Berlin in 1914. The German Expressionist painters of the day were moved by Chagall's visions and invited him to settle in Berlin, but World War II began, and Chagall decided to return to Vitebsk.

Colombian plane flies into mountain; all dead

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A Colombian official said on Monday a plane slammed into a mountain in the Colombian Andes Thursday, killing all 40 of Colombia's civil aviators and people aboard, after the pilot ignored a warning not to attempt a landing in airport and it was impossible to land dense fog, civil aviation authorities, or take off at Florencia. He spoke in an interview broadcast by the Bogota radio station Caracol.

The twin jet — Fokker 28 — of the radio station Caracol, Bogotá airline Sates, crashed only two minutes short of the airport at said the plane left San Vicente de Florencia, a town in southern Colombia despite a warning about fog.

Medium-range weapons focus of talks

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — U.S. and Soviet negotiators conferred Monday for the first time on controlling medium-range nuclear weapons, their longest session yet in the current arms talks.

The negotiating teams, one of three subgroups at the Geneva talks, were headed by Maynard W. Gillman and Alexander A. Fubukhin. They met for 3 1/2 hours and 45 minutes at the Soviet Embassy.

A news blackout continued on the substance of the talks, which have resumed after a 16-month break. But Kenneth Adelman, head of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, said Wednesday in Washington that the Soviets were sticking to past negotiating positions.

Two other subgroups met earlier in the week. The teams dealing with space and defense weapons, headed by chief U.S. delegate Max M. Kampelman and Yuli A. Kvitinsky, are scheduled to meet again Tuesday. The teams negotiating strategic nuclear weapons, headed by John G. Tower and chief Soviet delegate Victor P. Karpov, are to meet Wednesday.

The next round of medium-range weapons talks is scheduled for Thursday, a U.S. spokesman said.

Meanwhile, Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said in a letter to a West German peace group that: "We are sincerely interested in the successful outcome of these (Geneva) talks and shall work persistently for them to yield positive results that would take into account the legitimate interests of both sides."

But he said "things accompanying the beginning of the talks cannot but put one on guard... One gets the impression from statements by high-ranking representatives of the U.S.A. that they need talks as a screen for carrying through their military programs," Tass reported in Moscow.

The official news agency said Soviet Ambassador Vladimir S. Semynov delivered the letter in Bonn to representatives of the Helbrunn Peace Council, it said. Gorbachev was responding to a letter from the committee expressing concern about the arms race.

U.S. and Soviet negotiators were far apart on both medium-range and strategic weapons when the last talks broke down 16 months ago.

The Soviets walked out of the medium-range talks on Nov. 23, 1983, after the United States began deploying Pershing 2 and cruise missiles in Western Europe in a response to Soviet deployments of SS-20 medium-range rockets.

Two weeks later, the long-range missile talks broke off without a resumption date being set.

Negotiators are starting from scratch on space and defense weapons. The Soviets made it clear Wednesday that they would only discuss methods of keeping space free of all weapons.

The Soviets maintain President Reagan's proposed Strategic Defense Initiative, known as "Star Wars," would violate the 1972 anti-ballistic missile treaty between the two nations and lead to the militarization of space. They have indicated that an agreement in Geneva's contingent on scrapping the program.

Reagan says the Star Wars program is purely defensive and aimed at the elimination of all nuclear weapons.

Slain officer mourned in Berlin service

HEIDELBERG, West Germany (AP) — Four hundred people attended a memorial service Thursday for the U.S. Army liaison officer killed by a Soviet sentry in East Germany. The Army said the body of Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson would be flown to the United States on Friday.

Nicholson's wife, Karyn, and 8-year-old daughter, Jenny, attended the memorial service at a U.S. military chapel in West Berlin. Also there was Col. Roland Lajole, commander of the U.S. military liaison mission in East Berlin, Germany, with which Nicholson was serving.

Lajole said Nicholson, 37, "died in action, but it was not a fair fight."

Nicholson was shot Sunday near a Soviet military installation in East Germany, about 100 miles northwest of Berlin and 30 miles from the West German border.

Others attending the Thursday service included the U.S. ambassador to East Berlin, Rozanne Ridgeway, and the British, French and U.S. military commanders in the divided city.

Soviet authorities charged that Nicholson was taking pictures in a restricted military area. U.S. officials said the Soviet Union lifted the restriction Feb. 23, apparently after continuing military maneuvers.

U.S. diplomatic officials in West Berlin said Mrs. Nicholson and her daughter would "probably be returning to the United States Friday."

Army spokeswoman Eddie James said a departure ceremony in Heidelberg honor would be held at Rhein Main Air Base outside Frankfurt.

The United States, Britain and France all have liaison missions in East Germany under a 1947 accord among the Allied occupying powers that provided for each other's zones of occupation. The Soviets have three liaison missions in West Germany, which formerly was divided into U.S., British and British zones.

Since the end of occupation, the mutual function of the missions has been to gather intelligence. Under the agreement, liaison officers in uniform have free run of the country, except for designated restricted military areas.

State Department officials have called the shooting murder, and President Reagan said Nicholson was "being nothing except what he entitled to do" under the 1947 agreement.

In London, Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher said in Parliament that the U.S. acted with "a complete restraint on the murder of one of its soldiers in East Germany." She was responding to a question and did not elaborate.

Terrorists lay claim to Beirut kidnappings, assassinations

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A terrorist group that claimed responsibility for the assassinations of two British diplomats last in two weeks of kidnappings in Lebanon. One year said Thursday its men had kidnapped victim, British metallurgist Geoffrey Nash, British journalist Alec Collett and that he was released unharmed Wednesday, but there was no word about the others.

The Revolutionary Organization of Socialist Moslems made the claim three days after which provided the text on condition it gave gunmen abducted Collett, 63, at a highway was not used, the terrorists claimed "some junction south of Beirut while he was on documents related to spying missions in the assignment for the U.N. Relief and Works Service of Mossad (the Israeli secret service) and American Intelligence" were found on Collett. It said his U.N. work was "only a coverup for his spying activities."

The statement said the documents would be presented to the U.N. secretary-general Javier Perez de Cuellar, through the U.N. office in Beirut and leftist Beirut newspaper As-Safir.

The terrorist organization claimed responsibility for the killings of British diplomat Kenneth Whitty in Athens, Greece, in March 1984 and Percy Norris, Britain's deputy high commissioner in Bombay, India, in November.

It described Collett in Thursday's statement as an "unbeliever" and said he identified himself as a recruited member of British intelligence with the rank of consul.

"We will continue to chase and strike at whoever has a link with British imperialists wherever he may be until our organization demands for the liberation of all Moslem freedom fighters from British imperialist jails are met," the statement said.

London newspapers have speculated that the Revolutionary Organization of Socialist Moslems is a cover name for the Palestinian guerrilla group led by Abu Nidal, which claimed responsibility for the attempted murder in 1982 of Israel's ambassador to Britain, Shlomo Argov.

Three members of Abu Nidal group are serving long prison terms in Britain.

Germans honor famed Nazi hunter

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — West Germany on Thursday awarded its Grand Cross of Merit, one of the nation's highest orders, to Simon Wiesenthal, the 76-year-old Nazi hunter who runs the Jewish Documentation Center in Vienna.

It was the first West German medal given Wiesenthal, who is internationally known for his work in tracking down Nazi war criminals and helping Jewish families find relatives lost in Adolf Hitler's Holocaust.

The West German ambassador, Hans Heinrich Noebel, presented the medal to Wiesenthal in a brief ceremony at the embassy.

The telegram from Chancellor Helmut Kohl cited Wiesenthal's work to reconcile Jews and Germans.

"You have dedicated your life to this goal, despite the severe pain you suffered through the National Socialist dictatorship," the telegram said. "We honor your service with this order."

Wiesenthal was imprisoned by the Nazis in several concentration camps, and was freed from the Mauthausen camp at the end of World War II.

He told The Associated Press after the ceremony that he never had felt his principal role was to reconcile Jews and Germans, but instead that "my main job was for justice."

He added, however, that an evah-handed attitude toward Germany probably played a part in his finally being recognized by that country.

"I never believed in collective guilt, but in the guilt of individuals," he said.

Wiesenthal has received awards from many countries for his work since the war ended.

Anti-government rioters struggle against Sudanese troops, police

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — Riots and police struggled with anti-government protests in the streets of the capital in a third day of protests that have cost as many as 18 lives.

The government set up special courts and said it tried and sentenced more than 300 protesters in one day.

The riots began Tuesday after President Gaafar Nimeiri left for the United States for medical tests and a meeting Monday with President Reagan.

The government statement Thursday was its first public acknowledgment of the rioting.

Sources in contact with hospitals said police shotgun fire killed more than six people Wednesday, perhaps as many as 18, and wounded an undetermined number. Unofficial sources said several rioters were wounded Thursday.

In the latest rioting, mobs smashed windows and burned houses and automobiles, threw stones at a flatbed truck carrying unarmed militiamen and sacked the offices of Nimeiri's Socialist Union, the country's only legal political party.

An official at the heavily guarded

U.S. Embassy said police and soldiers used tear gas to disperse about 100 people marching on the building.

Shopkeepers locked up when the rioting began.

People in the downtown area said they saw police break up a crowd of about 500 students "burning things" in the street.

The government said special courts to try rioters began sitting Wednesday night, and more than 300 had been sentenced. A statement from the Security Department did not say what sentences were handed down.

"A large number of rioters have been arrested and will undergo trials," the statement said. It said troublemakers could expect harsh treatment.

"The security authorities will not hesitate in resisting anyone who intends to harm the lives and property of the citizens and will start forthwith to empty the capital of all suspected elements that were responsible for the sabotage," it said.

The Security Department stated "the government's first acknowledgment that widespread violence had occurred, said banks, hotels and shops were stoned and cars and trucks set afire in the streets.

The rioters are protesting price hikes that resulted when Nimeiri ended subsidies for basic commodities this week. The cost of bread went up 33 percent, gasoline jumped 50 percent in price and similar increases are expected for sugar, flour, rice and other staples.

Most of the rioters appear to be students who swept into the streets after campus protests at the three main universities that were permitted to remain open after Nimeiri cracked down on student activism several weeks ago.

According to the government, most of the rioters are vagrants and other such elements who infiltrated student ranks.

Sudan's official news agency said the protesters' main grievances were the policies of the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank, which it said, caused the price increases.

Nimeiri devalued the Sudanese currency and ended the subsidies on staple items in response to pressure from the International financial organization, the United States and other creditors.

Spain, Portugal set to enter Market

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Foreign ministers of the European Community on Thursday reached agreement Thursday night on membership terms that Spain and Portugal were expected to accept, the French foreign minister said.

Roland Dumas told reporters the terms would be submitted to the representatives of Spain and Portugal, whose membership has been under negotiation for six years. The aim is for them to join the trading bloc Jan. 1, 1986.

The bargainers had said they were close to agreement a week ago, after the longest meeting of foreign ministers in Common Market history, but France blocked a final accord. It demanded lower limits on Spanish wine production and fishing operations.

"We are, it seems, at the end of our difficulties and our pains," Dumas said. "Indeed we have this evening reached an agreement among the 10 (member countries) on most of the outstanding questions. There remain a few technical questions which are not at issue in this agreement."

"We think that the essentials if not the totality of what has been agreed among us will be accepted by those two countries."

"This agreement is the result of a political will of all the member countries who want to see Spain and Portugal join the community. It is also the result of concessions which were made by everyone."

Major sticking points in the negotiations have been potential competition from the large Spanish fishing fleet and from the agricultural products of both countries, particularly wine, and the question of access for Iberian workers to jobs in other member countries.

Also at issue was how much Spain and Portugal would contribute to the European Economic Community's annual budget. It is expected that Portugal will be a net benefactor, getting more in aid and grants that it puts in; but Spain probably will be a net contributor.

Jacques Delors, president of the community's Executive Commission, said it was critical for the bargainers to reach agreement by Friday, when the EEC heads of government and state open their spring strategy session.

Saudis lead in arms buying

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saudi Arabia far and away has been the biggest buyer of U.S. arms since 1950, with Israel a distant second, top State Department official told Congress on Thursday.

William Schneider, undersecretary of state for security assistance, also said in testimony to a House appropriations subcommittee that Israel, China and Brazil were carving out a niche as arms exporters and that India is expected to join the club in five to 10 years.

The Saudis have bought about $30 billion of U.S. arms in the past 35 years and spent another $20 billion on military construction by U.S. contractors, Schneider said.

Israel has received $13 billion worth of U.S. arms during the period. Unlike the other buyers in the top five, who are cash customers, Israel received $2 billion in grants to help cover the cost, he said.

Just behind Israel at $12 billion is Iran with sales mostly during the regime of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. West Germany and Britain are roughly tied in fifth place at $9 billion each, he said.

South Vietnam is the all-time top recipient of grant military aid, Schneider said. Before the communist takeover in 1975 it had been given some $16 billion in arms.

'Order' chief begins serving sentence

ATLANTA (AP) — Bruce C. Pierce, the reputed head of a militant white racist group who was arrested this week on four federal warrants, has begun serving a two-year sentence for counterfeiting in the Atlanta federal penitentiary, an official said Thursday.

"We got him yesterday," penitentiary spokesman William Noonan said. "He's locked in a cell by himself. We're holding him for the U.S. marshal."

In Seattle, Assistant U.S. Attorney David E. Wilson said Pierce would immediately begin serving his sentence on a 1983 Washington counterfeiting case.

A decision on when to return the 30-year-old Pierce to Seattle for trial on other charges will be made later, but "eventually we hope to bring him back," Wilson added.

A U.S. marshal's office spokesman, who refused to be identified, said prosecutors in that state where Pierce is wanted will discuss the case before a decision is made on what to do with him next.

Pierce was wanted on federal warrants charging him with robbery, conspiracy, extortion and firearms violations in California, Washington and Montana, federal officials said.

Pierce, of Metaline Falls, Wash., was arrested Tuesday in Rossville, Ga., a suburb of Chattanooga, Tenn.

He is said to head the group The Order, members of which have been linked by the FBI to a series of crimes in the West, including a shootout with FBI agents and robberies in Washington and California.

Police in Denver also have said they want to question Pierce in the slaying last June of radio talk show host Alan Berg.

John Burke, acting special agent in charge of the FBI's Atlanta office, said agents seized a van loaded with weapons and ammunition when Pierce was arrested, and Pierce also had two pistols tucked in his pants and a derringer in his packet. He said officials have no idea what Pierce was doing in Rossville.

The marshal's office spokesman said Pierce had begun serving the counterfeiting sentence "because there was a bench warrant out for his arrest for failure to commit himself to being served that sentence. As soon as he was arrested he was eligible to begin serving that sentence."

Pierce had been scheduled to begin the sentence last April, but asked for a three-week stay to clear up personal problems involving his wife's illness.

His wife, Julie Ann Wilson Pierce, was detained briefly Wednesday in Jasper, Ala., by FBI agents who said they confiscated a cache of weapons she was hauling in a trailer. She was not arrested.

The weapons found in the trailer included "dozens of hand grenades, explosive powder, foreign- and domestic-made automatic weapons resembling M-16 rifles, hand guns and about $7,000 in cash," FBI agent Tom Moore said.

Right-to-work voter drive sees success

BOISE — Only a couple of weeks into a drive to force a statewide vote on Idaho's new right-to-work law, labor leaders say they are nearing success.

Jim Kerns, state AFL-CIO president, said labor leaders have collected between 27,000 and 29,000 signatures of registered voters on petitions calling for a referendum on the new law.

The labor unions have until May 13th to submit at least 32,666 valid signatures to put the new law before voters in November of 1986.

"It's going to be on the ballot," said Kerns. "That was never in doubt. We're very close now."

There appears to be little opposition to the referendum vote. Last week, officials of the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee, which sponsored the drive to enact right-to-work law, signed the referendum petitions. And Thursday, seven Canyon County Republican legislators signed the petitions and urged other party members to do the same.

Kerns said over 10,000 signatures still are "in the pipeline" and he has no idea how many signatures they contain. Kerns said 2,000 to 3,000 petitions still are circulating in Ada County alone.

The Legislature in January enacted right-to-work over the governor's veto, making Idaho the 21st state with a law banning compulsory union membership or payment of union dues as a condition of employment.

Labor unions filed lawsuits against the law, blocking enforcement. They still pending.

Right-to-Work was on the ballot in Idaho in 1958, losing 121,790 to 118,718. State senators Phil Batt of Wilder, C.A. "Skip" Smyser of Parma, Jerry Thorne of Nampa and Alwal Parr of Melba signed the referendum petitions Thursday, along with representatives Dorothy Reynolds of Caldwell and Janet Hay and Robert Schaefer of Nampa.

Smyser said Canyon County GOP Chairman John Vavillo plans to take the fight to the next party meeting to urge members to sign.

"This is an issue of overriding concern in the state," said Smyser. "We'd like to see the people vote on it and come up with a final decision." Batt, longtime party leader and the GOP candidate for governor three years ago, said he's convinced that debate over right-to-work is crowding out discussion of other important issues.

"I can accept the vote, regardless of the outcome," he said. "But we'd like to get talking about right-to-work. I really think it is going to pass. But if not, I can accept that," he said.

"I hope we can come up with a decision so we don't have to keep talking about it for the next 20 years," said Smyser.

"I feel our vote will be upheld. But if it goes the other way, I am a big enough man to go along," he said.

Group to combat porno in Rexburg

REXBURG (AP) — A Madison County anti-pornography organization calling itself Citizens for Decency through Law plans to publish a twice-a-month educational newsletter.

Gary Brock, group organizer, said the publication will be offered free to anyone wanting information on the dangers of pornography. The newsletter also will provide updates on the group's success in fighting pornography in the area, Brock said.

The group's focus will be on education rather than on changing existing anti-pornography ordinances.

"We'd be banging our heads against the wall to try to change laws," Brock said. "We feel it is important to make the public aware of those individuals and businesses responsible for the continued distribution of obscene literature in our community."

Since organizing last year, the group has held several public meetings and sponsored a public speaker from a national organization with which it is affiliated.

"We have been making headway. There have been changes in the types of magazines available here," Brock said. "I know because I've been monitoring it."

Mine worker is killed in 200-foot shaft fall

MULLAN (AP) — A 27-year-old mining subcontractor was killed early Thursday when he reportedly fell nearly 200 feet while working deep inside the Lucky Friday Mine, officials said.

Marc A. Vincent, 27, of Silverton, died of multiple injuries, said Shoshone County Coroner Dr. Ernest Gunning.

Vincent was employed by Dynamite Mining Corp. of Lakewood, Colo., said Hecla Mining Co. spokesman Elmer Bjerly.

The Lucky Friday mine is owned and operated by Hecla Mining Co. Vincent died at about 2:10 a.m. when he fell from the 4,300-foot level to the 5,100-foot level while helping to line an ore chute, said Martin Ross, a federal Mine Safety and Health Administration subdistrict office in Bellevue, Wash.

Workers were attempting to put a steel liner in the chute and had done some saving on timbers, said Ross. They apparently stepped on a timber that had been weakened by sawing, and fell down the chute, said Rosta.

Former YSC worker protests dismissal

ST. ANTHONY (AP) — An employee at the state Youth Services Center, fired last week with a warning in the wake of an undetected inmate escape, has filed a formal protest over his dismissal.

Kurt Friedenaue, director of the juvenile detention facility at St. Anthony, confirmed on Thursday that the grievance had been filed. He continued to decline to identify the workers involved. The second worker has reportedly indicated plans to file a grievance over his dismissal as well, but Friedenaue said he had not been notified of a second grievance.

Friedenaue fired the two workers last week for what he called a serious breach of security after four center inmates disappeared from the facility for about three hours without anyone knowing about it until hours later.

According to authorities, the four took a key to the cabin where the two workers were on duty on March 17 and unlocked the outside door before the workers discovered the key missing and recovered it.

Later, the quartet left the facility, went into St. Anthony where two businesses were burglarized and then returned, officials said. It was hours later before authorities were aware the youths had been gone. The escape was discovered when empty beer bottles, part of the loot the juveniles brought back with them, were found outside the cottage that housed 11 youths, officials said.

"With the dorm unlocked that long, it could have been a lot worse," Friedenaue said. "All 11 could have been scattered all over the country."

The four juveniles have been charged with burglary and petty theft, and the others in the cabin have been disciplined, authorities said.

The dismissal grievance will first be considered by the employee's immediate supervisors. Ultimately, a decision on the grievance could be left to Health and Welfare Department Director Rose Bowman, Friedenaue said.

Prison medical care is focus of lawsuit

BOISE (AP) — Inmate legal clerks at the Idaho State Penitentiary have filed a motion in court contending the state has failed to comply with part of a federal judge's order to improve medical care at the prison.

However, Corrections Director Al Murphy said Wednesday that the state met its first court-imposed deadline, and that the difference of opinion stemmed from interpretation of the court order.

In a motion filed in U.S. District Court in Boise, inmate legal clerk Dean Schwartzmiller asked Judge Harold Ryan to find the state Corrections Department in contempt of the judge's Nov. 1 order. That ruling required the state to improve prisoners' medical and psychiatric care, living conditions and protection from other inmates at the prison south of Boise.

The order was the result of a class-action lawsuit brought by inmates who argued that poor conditions violated their civil rights.

Court papers filed by Schwartzmiller and inmate Alfred Scott Bourne contended the state had not met its 90-day deadline — by the end of January — to make round-the-clock medical care available at the prison, to develop a written plan making it easier for inmates to get medical care when requested, and to hire a full-time physician.

Schwartzmiller charged that it was impossible for inmates to receive medical care at the prison infirmary because the "kite system," in which inmates direct medical requests through officers, still was in use. The state has circumvented the round-the-clock emergency care requirement, Schwartzmiller said, by placing unqualified, unlicensed medical technical assistants on call.

Schwartzmiller asked Ryan to appoint a "special master" to monitor the Corrections Department's efforts and ensure that it follows the court order. He also asked the judge to impose a $500 daily fine starting Monday for each day the department is in contempt of that portion of the order.

Ryan has yet to rule on the contempt motion. But Murphy, overseeing implementation of Ryan's directives, said, "As we read the order, we need to have a system developed. We have done that. The judge has the plan. ... There's no sense in implementing something he may or may not accept."

He pointed to a sentence in Ryan's order that reads, "The administration shall have ninety days from the date of this order in which to develop the ... system."

Murphy said the plan was submitted by the deadline and calls for hiring a full-time physician, who would be employed July 1, the start of the next fiscal year, if Ryan approves the plan.

Instead of officers accepting prisoners' requests for medical care, as is currently done, inmates would drop their requests into a box that an infirmary staff member would screen each day, he said.

Murphy said the state also would meet its next deadline of May 1, when it is required to submit plans on programs to provide psychiatric care at the prison, improved staffing at the prison infirmary, and improved protection for inmates.

McClure miffed by Stallings' vote on MX

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives narrowly gave its preliminary approval to funding production of 21 MX missiles on Tuesday. But a vote against that proposal by Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, left the senior member of Idaho's congressional delegation disappointed.

Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho, in a statement issued Wednesday chided the first-term Democrat for effectively neutralizing Idaho's voice on the MX issue. The House vote was 219-213, with Rep. Larry Craig, R-Idaho, voting with the majority, "noting that the House Speaker, Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill tried desperately to hold onto his Democratic majority to overcome President Reagan's appeal for the controversial missile as a bargaining chip with the Soviet Union in ongoing arms negotiations.

McClure said Stallings buckled under to that party pressure and sided with Tip O'Neill and against President Reagan.

Stallings, however, called that charge "ridiculous."

"It's unfortunate that he feels that he has to start the campaign this early," he said. "I thought we had a pretty good working relationship."

The freshman lawmaker said he plans to vote against MX again on Thursday when the question of appropriating funds for the weapon comes before the House, primarily because of its expense in the face of a staggering federal budget deficit.

Manning to take over Guard

BOISE (AP) — On the first Saturday in April, Idaho's adjutant general, Maj. Gen. James Brooks, steps down after more than 10 years as chief of the Idaho National Guard and Darrald Manning will become new Guard chief.

Manning, for the last 11 years director of the Idaho Department of Transportation, is a colonel in the Air Guard.

He'll become a brigadier general and leader of the more than 4,000 persons who serve in the Army Guard and Air Guard in Idaho.

Brooks has a round of retirement ceremonies and meetings before leaving office April 6. Manning officially becomes Guard chief the next day.

This weekend, Brooks will be the guest of honor at a dinner-dance in Boise.

Next Thursday, Brooks will fly to San Francisco for a full military retirement ceremony, hosted by the 6th Army commander at the Presidio.

Brooks has been Guard chief since December of 1974, when he succeeded

Elizabethan mansion houses rare art

By GRAHAM HEATHCOTE
The Associated Press

STAMFORD, England — Away from the fog fire in the hall it was very cold in Burghley House.

"How do you keep warm here?" a shivering reporter asked Lady Victoria Leatham, mistress of the 400-year-old mansion as she led a party of visitors around the largest Elizabethan house in England.

"We run faster and wear more jerseys," her ladyship replied briskly.

Butler Harold Geary was ready with scarves and topcoats after the tour through rooms which have paintings on the ceilings as well as on the walls, and canopied beds that monarchs really slept in.

Burghley is one of nearly 200 great houses shipping some of their finest art works to Washington for the "Treasure Houses of Britain" exhibition opening in November.

"We're sending 35 exhibits, more than anyone else," said the house manager, John Culverhouse.

There will be paintings, Chinese blue and white porcelain, a marble bust, silverware and a vast wine cistern made in 1710 from 3,690 Troy ounces of silver.

"The Towers of London has a heavier one but ours is taller and longer," said Lady Victoria.

"We use it, when we have the horse trials, we fill it with fishmonger's ice and stick champagne bottles in it — great fun."

"I could bathe in this," said a bemused photographer, starting down at the two rampant lions of the Cecil family coat of arms engraved on the bottom.

The first Lord Burghley was William Cecil, treasurer to Queen Elizabeth I in 1558-87. He built the house named after him near Stamford, 92 miles northwest of London.

Lady Victoria's father, David Cecil, the 6th Marquess of Exeter, was a 1928 Olympics gold medalist in the 400 meters hurdles — a victory recounted in the film "Chariots of Fire."

He died in 1981 without a son and his title passed to a brother in Canada, Lady Victoria, who married comooec; Simon Leatham, a shipping finance director, then took over responsibility for her childhood home in the flat, fox-hunting country of Lincolnshire.

The 30,000-acre estate with 33 tenant farms is owned by a family charitable trust. Repairs to the house and contents cost a fortune, but to discuss money with strangers is considered bad taste, so questions about it go unanswered.

"We've had a bad week," Lady Victoria did confess before starting on a tour of the state rooms.

"A boiler burst on Friday, a goose flew into an electric cable and there was a chimney fire."

Burghley had 55,000 paying visitors last year and Lady Victoria has been searching roof-cellar and attics to unearth hoards of porcelain and silver to display as added attractions.

This summer it's jewels that belonged in 1689 to Ann, Countess of Exeter, and a rarity because 99 percent of the jewelry depicted in portraits of that period have disappeared, been broken up or rearranged.

"I piled them in the car and drove down to the Victoria and Albert Museum's department of metalwork," Lady Victoria related.

"When they saw them they all began yelling and running around and they did nothing else for the rest of the day."

There are some odd — and very old — things at Burghley, which did not even have electricity until after 1856.

A wall in the vast old kitchen bears 14 turtle skulls — relics of 19th century turtle soup.

There is an old written warning against servants wasting time. A chestnut tree in the courtyard, the last of five planted in the 16th century, has its branches propped up to keep them from falling down.

One room contains documents signed by King William Rufus, who died in a hunting accident in 1100. A researcher said that some family papers had not been opened since the 18th century: one could tell by the way they were folded.

Like other great houses of its day, Burghley was built massively to house Good Queen Bess and her retinue whenever the sovereign made a procession through the land. The queen did so quite often, saving money herself but often wrecking the finances of some of her noble lords for the rest of their lives.

"I love all these old things and old stories," said Lady Victoria.

"Did you know that Queen Elizabeth had camels in her train and only bathed twice a year, whether she needed it or not?"

Reason for taking towels doesn't wash

DEAR ABBY: My 17-year-old son and several of his buddies went on a skiing trip, after which I found two bath towels with the name of a motel on them.

I told him I couldn't believe that he would steal. He said he didn't consider that stealing — the owners of the motel were thieves, because of the prices they charged.

I told him that nobody forced him to stay there, and in my eyes he was guilty of stealing.

Please print your opinion, Abby. He reads you faithfully.

—OLD-FASHIONED MOM

DEAR MOM: Your son's rationalization for stealing bath towels from a motel doesn't wash.

Don't throw in the towels. Insist that your son send them back with an apology. (That's what my twin and I had to do when our father found some hotel "souvenirs," acquired after a football excursion to Sioux Falls, S.D., in 1955.)

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 14 years. This is the second marriage for both of us.

My husband lies awake nights yearning for another woman. He actually tells me this! Although he tells me that he went to bed with her only once, he won't tell me who she is. He says I know her. My hunch is that it's a woman at our club who boasts that she and her husband have an open marriage. I did not agree to an open marriage when I married this man.

When I found out my first husband was the town stud, I divorced him.

My present husband insists that he wants to keep our marriage intact. He can't have it both ways. What do you think?

—NOT WILLING TO SHARE

DEAR NOT WILLING: Your husband really knows how to hurt a woman. Why are you holding still for his abuse? You say he can't have it both ways. I say, apparently he can. And has.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have retired to a wonderful community in a warm climate. We love people and have always been able to get along with our neighbors, but there is one couple who are making our lives miserable.

He is very crude, swears, hogs the conversation and is an insufferable braggart! His wife is a non-stop talker and a terrible gossip. We have tried to them in order to get out of going to their house, but we cannot keep them from coming to ours.

When we have company, they see the cars in our driveway and come over to join us and our guests. When they are around, no one can get a word in — he takes over the conversation in a loud voice, bragging about what he has, what he does and what he spends. Everything he has is better than anyone else's, and he gets into noisy arguments with our guests.

We have never met anyone like this couple. What can we do? We hate to insult them, but how else can we get these people out of our lives? They know who they are, but don't mention our name or town.

—OUT OF PATIENCE

DEAR OUT: The next time they appear at the door while you're entertaining, say, "I'm sorry I can't invite you in now; we have company." And if they never speak to you again, what have you lost? Two overbearing, intrusive, obnoxious, insensitive neighbors.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is getting married soon. We are addressing the wedding invitations, but here's the question: She and her fiancé don't need any household items — all they really need is money.

Would it be OK to write something like that on the invitations? And how should it be worded?

—NO NAME, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: It is never OK to ask for money instead of wedding gifts. Should the bride and groom be asked if they prefer money rather than a gift, then, and only then, would it be proper to indicate that money is preferred.

(Getting married? Send for Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

EPA claims Sen. Symms was in error

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, says the Environmental Protection Agency is holding $8 million in federal sewer plant construction grants for Idaho hostage.

But EPA officials in Seattle say they have never delayed payment of the Clean Water Act grants, which will be used to build seven sewage treatment plants in Idaho.

In a March 25 press release from the Symms office, Symms says a disagreement between the EPA and the Idaho Legislature over a water quality standard — dissolved oxygen levels in streams and rivers — is causing the EPA to withhold payment of the funds.

EPA officials say there is no delay and that the only potential delay would have been caused by Idaho's failure to review a water quality standard other than the dissolved oxygen standard.

The Symms press release says "In a tersely worded letter today to Robert S. Burd, director of the EPA Water Management Division, Senator Symms took issue with the EPA's position on dissolved oxygen standards. The dissolved oxygen question is threatening the grant."

"The dissolved oxygen is an old issue dating back to 1980 . . . It has nothing to do with withholding funds on those grants," Burd said Tuesday.

"We're not holding up construction grants. There haven't been any held up in Idaho," said Burd. He said the memorandum in his file indicating the funds had been approved is dated March 15, eleven days before Symms' press release.

Al Murrey, the chief of the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare's Bureau of Water Quality, says he never heard the funds would be delayed.

"Nobody's indicated to me that the funds would be held up, that would be a shock to me. I sure would have no idea where he (Symms) got that misinformation . . . EPA has never seriously suggested that the funds would be withheld," said Murrey Tuesday. Murrey says the bureau administers the grant funds for Idaho.

Section 24 of the Clean Water Act permits the EPA to withhold grant money if the state does not conduct a periodic evaluation of its water quality standards, says Burd.

"In conversation, I raised that as a possibility. Since then, I have sent a letter saying they had met the standards," Burd says.

"The potential was there, but there was no hold-up. The state made its evaluation in December and the grants were approved in March, but the Section 24 review had nothing to do with dissolved oxygen," said Burd. He said the review required under the Clean Water Act concerned the reclassification of some Idaho streams and non-point-source pollutants.

Police catch youths

Utah escapees

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

MURPHY HOT SPRINGS — Law enforcement officers from Twin Falls and Owyhee counties converged on this small resort community early Thursday morning to apprehend two Utah juvenile escapees and confiscate a collection of guns, knives and ammunition.

Sheriff Tom Nettleton of Owyhee County contacted Sheriff James Munn in Twin Falls about 9 p.m. Wednesday and the two agencies prepared to meet and go to a cabin at Murphy Hot Springs where the two young suspects were believed to be hiding out.

The remote resort is located in Owyhee County, just southwest of the Twin Falls County line.

Munn said he, two deputies and a reserve officer joined the Owyhee County officers for the early morning arrest.

Owyhee officers said although the two, ages 17 and 15, were well armed, there was no serious resistance.

The two fled from a youth detention center in Ogden, Utah, on Monday and authorities there notified Nettleton that they could be headed toward Murphy Hot Springs and a relative's cabin.

An Owyhee County Sheriff's posse member, Jerry Thompson, of Murphy Hot Springs, was asked to watch for the two and he reported seeing them at the cabin in question shortly before 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Owyhee Deputy Lynn Schild said officers there were inventorying guns and other items confiscated in the arrest Thursday afternoon and had learned most were taken in a house burglary in Wells, Nev., on Wednesday.

Schild said there were eight guns including rifles, shotguns and hand guns and a large amount of ammunition. Four knives, bayonettes and a quantity of silver coins and sound equipment were also recovered. Six of the guns were identified as having come from the Wells burglary, Schild said.

She added the vehicle the pair used to reach the cabin was also reported stolen and another stolen car, abandoned along the way, was being recovered after the pair disclosed its location.

State tracking source of oil leakage near Burley

By ANNETTE CARL
Times-News writer

BURLEY — Additional test wells will be drilled in the next two weeks to gather more information about the extent of oil spills that may be seeping into the Snake River near storage terminals west of Burley, say state officials.

"We are satisfied the terminals are not leaking now," says Mike McMasters head of the field office in Twin Falls for the Division of Environment of the State Department of Health and Welfare.

The oil that has been found floating a couple of inches deep in some test wells is most likely an accumulation from the past that may include petroleum product leaked during loading, he says. But now the increased price of oil is causing petroleum companies to keep stricter inventory controls than were kept when the terminals were first built, he says.

The state has received occasional complaints since the early 1970s about oil seen leaking into the Snake River nearby when the river is low, he says.

The groundwater flows south from the terminals to the Snake River, which ranges from 200 to 500 yards from the terminals three miles west of Burley. The division does not yet know if seepage has occurred year round.

Chevron and Standard Oil companies have agreed to participate in the project to determine if there is a problem, but the state has not had a commitment from Conoco, the third company with a terminal at the site, McMasters says.

Chevron and Standard have drilled 20 test wells so far. They should drill 10 or 15 more in the next weeks, McMasters says. The state would also like Conoco to drill eight or 10 wells.

Publisher goes to court to bar sheriff's practices

BOISE (AP) — A Jerome weekly newspaper, pressing its case for personal action to accused murderer Jamie Charboneau, has asked a federal court for a permanent injunction against the prisoner visiting policies of Jerome County Sheriff Eliza Hall.

Publisher Gordon Glasman of the North Side News, owned by the Standard-Examiner Publishing Co., accused Hall of running the jail with "police state tactics."

In the amended complaint filed in U.S. District Court, the newspaper again claimed the policy of allowing prisoners to receive adult visitors except for members of the media violates the constitutional guarantees of freedom of the press and freedom of speech. But in addition to asking for a restraining order that would give it access to Charboneau, the newspaper now wants the court to impose a permanent injunction barring Hall from enforcing that policy in the future.

"I have not tried to discriminate against the press," Hall said Thursday. "But I have security problems."

He repeated his earlier pledge to carry written communications or questionnaires to any prisoner from the media and return answers expeditiously.

Charboneau, who is awaiting trial for first-degree murder in the slaying of his ex-wife, has said he wants to speak to reporters about conditions in the Jerome County Jail, according to his mother. But the newspaper, in its suit, claims its repeated requests to interview Charboneau have been denied.

Hall contended that he could legally impose an immediate-family-only visiting policy but has shied away from doing that because it would deny visitors for some prisoners whose families live substantial distances away.

The sheriff also expressed concerns about policing a gag order that has been issued in the Charboneau case barring any discussion of the circumstances surrounding the slaying.

Charboneau, who has been accused of shooting his former wife Marilyn Arbaugh 15 times at her rural Jerome County home last July, is scheduled to stand trial in Boise next month. The trial was moved from the Magic Valley because of extensive pre-trial publicity on the case.

In addition to access to Charboneau, the newspaper is asking for monetary damages resulting from the sheriff's policy. The amount of those damages would be determined at a trial.

Commissioners to weigh opinions on new proposal for jail

By PAT MARGANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners is gathering comments on why the $4.2 million bond issue for a new jail may have failed and suggestions on how to assure success.

The commissioners even are considering an opinion poll on the issue. The details of the poll, however, have not yet been determined.

Commissioner Judy Felton said, "We have been documenting any comments or calls. We need an overall picture of what we need to do. We have to reflect the wishes of the public."

The bond issue to finance a 59,000-square-foot jail and law enforcement building was decisively defeated March 19.

A list of comments on the jail project came from House Speaker Tom Stivers, (R-Twin Falls), who was contacted by the commissioners. On the state level, a local option tax could be an alternative for funding, Stivers said, but he doesn't support restricting such taxes to certain areas such as resort towns, as the current law does.

Yet he only "more narrowly" supports statewide use of local option taxes.

The most promising option for a new Twin Falls County Jail was in the private sector — similar to the arrangement the county uses for the operation of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, Stivers said.

The county could lease a building from the private company, which would provide maintenance, repair, food preparation, laundry and other services. Other states take advantage of such arrangements, Stivers said.

The county taxpayers wouldn't escape the total burden ultimately, he added. But over the long run, the operation costs would be less than a bond debt because private companies would manage the facility on a competitive basis.

Under the private sector concept, the county avoided capital debt. There also was the possibility of low-interest industrial revenue bonds providing funding for the private enterprise.

Stivers' suggestion about private industry already had been researched by the county. It wasn't viable because it would cost the county

Senator's plan would place bounty on drunken drivers

By RICK SHAUGHNESSY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho's system of tracking down poachers through cash rewards for witnesses might serve as an acceptable model for a similar program to track down intoxicated drivers, says Sen. Larry Anderson.

The Twin Falls Republican says he'll propose to the Idaho Legislature next year that $500 rewards be paid to individuals whose phone calls to the state police drunk-driver hotline result in convictions for driving under the influence of alcohol or drugs. Anderson proposes paying for the program by imposing a $100 fine on convicted drivers.

In a prepared statement announcing the proposal, Anderson says the program would "create an enormous incentive to drivers to watch for, and take the trouble to call in, every drinking driver" and would "create a great psychological disincentive to the thousands of Idaho's drinking drivers."

The plan would be the first of its kind in the country, he says.

"There'll be paranoia on the part of people that are drinking. But right now there's paranoia on the part of people who aren't drinking," Anderson said in a telephone interview. Anderson says the state police hotline system is only resulting in four or five arrests per month. He says he hopes to improve that rate by 10-20 times.

Anderson acknowledges that the "bounty hunter" aspect of the plan is likely to be controversial. However, he responds to that criticism, stating, "It's good enough for the poachers and the animals they're killing. It's good enough for the drinking drivers and the children they're killing."

But that statement isn't good enough justification for Boise attorney Bill Roden, who says it "is a nice emotional way of stating it" but fails to adequately address the questions which cause the proposal to be controversial.

Roden is a lobbyist for several industries, which engage in the sale of alcoholic beverages. He says none of those organizations has established a position on the proposal, which is unlikely to be given legislative consideration before January 1986.

He does, however, express his own personal concerns with the plan, which he says "might be a lucrative, late-evening venture" for enterprising individuals. Those people might camp out near a popular bar and call in the license numbers of its patrons with the likelihood of scoring some percentage of reward-winning tips.

But noting that erratic driving does not a DUI make, Roden says he is concerned the proposal might lead to police officers being diverted from more pressing needs to follow unproductive leads supplied by untrained individuals.

He says the system might aid in the identification of "problem drivers" but would not likely have the "deterrent effect" Anderson expects.

Roden says he prefers a system being developed in Canyon County where resident groups receive police training to assist patrolling efforts for impaired drivers. The individuals participating in the program do not receive cash rewards, Roden says.

Roden says all residents should report erratic driving and any drivers they suspect to be operating motor vehicles in an impaired manner.

Briefly

Vehicles collide near Rupert
RUPERT — About $4,500 damage resulted Thursday morning from a head-on collision southwest of Rupert.
Minidoka County officers said Bartello Ray Martinez, 20, of Burley was westbound on Highway 25 at the intersection of County Road 10 South. John Clifford Larsen, 39, of Paul, was eastbound on the highway. Larsen passed a vehicle in front of him and failed to see the approaching eastbound vehicle.
The Martinez vehicle went out of control on the snowy road and slid into the Larsen vehicle. Larsen's truck was towing a tow truck in which one cow was riding. The two drivers and the cow escaped injury, but damage was estimated at $1,500 to the Martinez car and $3,000 to the Larsen pickup truck.
The accident occurred at 10:30 a.m.

Port of Hope sets promotion
TWIN FALLS — R. Joseph West of Twin Falls has been promoted from senior counselor to program director of the Twin Falls Port of Hope.
As program director, West will be responsible for all Port of Hope staff and resident and out-patient clients at Port of Hope centers in Twin Falls, Halley, and Mountain Home.
West is a licensed social worker with his masters degree in social work from California State University in Sacramento. He is working on his doctorate at Brigham Young University.

Vandals cause damage
TWIN FALLS — Damage was reported to Twin Falls police Wednesday at the Randy Hansen Chevrolet Agency, parking lot and the Main West Chiropractic Clinic.
Officials from the Hansen agency on Pole Line Road and Blue Lakes Boulevard North, reported rear windows were shot out of two parked vehicles early Tuesday.
A plate glass window was broken out from the chiropractic clinic at 717 Main Ave. W. Cost of the window was $300 while damage to the vehicles totaled $300.
In addition, police were advised of about $200 loss when someone removed a drive-line from a vehicle parked on a parking lot at 409 S. and Ave. S. between March 10 and Monday. Warren Strehle told police someone apparently worked at the scene to remove the mechanical equipment.

Scout to fingerprint kids
TWIN FALLS — Morningside Elementary School parents carrying their schoolchildren to the school for fingerprinting April 1 through 5.
Twin Falls Boy Scout Troop 100 Life Scout Scout VanBuren is organizing the fingerprinting session for his Eagle Scout project.
The fingerprint records will be filed with the Twin Falls Police Department for use in identifying children who are lost or kidnapped.

Dental student notches honor
TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls dentistry major, John T. Kalange, was honored at the annual Creighton University Honors Banquet Saturday.

According to a press release from the Omaha, Neb., university, Kalange was among 148 students at Creighton who had achieved the highest grade-point averages for the past two semesters in the Colleges of Arts and Sciences and Business Administration, and the schools of Dentistry, Nursing Pharmacy, Medicine, and Law.
Kalange is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kalange of Twin Falls.

Writer to address symposium
NAMPA — Novelist Tom Wicker will speak at the College of Idaho's 20th annual Spring Symposium on Friday, April 26, at 9 a.m.
Wicker, who has written several novels on American politics, will speak on "The Politics of the '80s." The symposium will begin at 9 a.m. with a coffee hour and an opportunity to purchase Wicker's books.
Wicker will speak at 10 a.m.

Immanuel sponsors workshop
TWIN FALLS — The Immanuel Lutheran school will sponsor an inservice training program for teachers and parents concerned about diagnosing and treating dyslexia.
The program will run from 7 to 9:30 on April 1, 2, 8, and 9. The series will start with a session titled "What's So Hard About School For a Child With Learning Disabilities?" In order, the remaining programs will be: "How the School Can Give Total Help to a Child: Everyone Can Afford"; "Techniques for All Teachers"; and "Reading and Spelling."
The workshop will be presented by Mary Swiger, an instructor of perceptually handicapped children. Swiger advocates the Slangerland approach to helping dyslexic children.
The workshops will be held at Immanuel Lutheran School and will cost $5 for all four sessions. Parents and principals interested in the first two sessions only will be charged $2.50.

ISU plans two classes
TWIN FALLS — The Idaho State University Resident Center will offer workshops in time management and personal leadership on April 22 and May 13.
The time management workshop will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. April 22 and is designed to assist the individual in how-to-make-maximum-use-of-time available.
The personal leadership workshop will be held from 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. April 22 and will teach goal-setting as a tool for personal growth and success.
The course will be taught by Carolyn Lewis of Lewis & Lewis Associates.
For more information, call Marjorie Slotten at the Resident Center, 734-4478.

Student gets academy post
TWIN FALLS — Michael "Mickey" Grefenson of Twin Falls has been appointed to the United States Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y., says Sen. James McClure, R-Idaho.
Mickey is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Grefenson of Twin Falls. A member of the wrestling and golf teams, Grefenson is also a member of the National Honor Society, the German Club, the Interact Club, and the Outdoor Living Association.

Governor talks to chamber

SUN VALLEY — Gov. John Evans will speak today on the newly created Idaho Department of Commerce at the Sun Valley-Ketchum Chamber of Commerce luncheon beginning at noon in the Horizon Room of the Elkhorn Resort Hotel in Sun Valley.
Evans will speak on how the new department's functions relate to the state's tourist economy. The Idaho Legislature created the new department in its recently-completed session by reorganizing the existing Department of Economic and Community Affairs.
Joining Evans will be State Sens. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, and Gail Bryson, D-Boise, members of the Senate Local Government and Taxation Committee, and Rep. Gary Robbing, R-Dietrich, a member of the House Committee on Commerce, Industry and Tourism.
The chamber will focus its discussion during the meeting on what may be acceptable legislation for local option taxation in the 1986 legislative session.
Although the two senators voted in favor of a bill amending the state's resort cities option tax law during the last session of the Legislature, Bryson's and Anderson's committee allowed the bill to die without going to the Senate floor after it passed easily in the House.
The two resort cities stand to lose major portions of their operating budgets if the Idaho Supreme Court upholds a lower tax decision that the option tax law is unconstitutional as a new resort.

The two cities had hoped the amendment would correct the law's deficiencies and deter efforts to derail it by the Sun Valley Co. and other private businesses from resort cities.
Also attending the meeting will be Reps. Mack Neilbur, R-Paul, Jerry Callen, R-Jerome, and Jeff Stoker, R-Twin Falls. The group of legislators represent Blaine County.
The cost of the luncheon is $9. Additional information can be gotten by calling the Chamber at 726-3423.

Jerome develops evacuation plan

BY INA HADAM
Times-News correspondent
JEROME — Plans are under way for developing an evacuation plan for Jerome.
William Allred of the Jerome County Health Department, who is heading up the group working to get the plan in operation, says almost the entire city of Jerome would have to be evacuated in the event of a nuclear accident in the center of the city.
He added that he saw a truck marked as carrying those chemicals just recently in the parking lot behind Woods Cafe.
The initial evacuation plan for this chemical requires a half-mile area to be evacuated, said Allred, adding that the city has no plans for handling such a hazardous materials spill.
Those attending initial organization meetings for the plan agree it should be a county-wide effort involving the hospital, doctors, city police, sheriff's department, fire department, city council and county commissioners.
Allred says the Civil Defense Department has a plan in the event of a major catastrophic event, but no such plan exists for smaller types of disasters.
Everyone wants to cooperate and sees a need but because "we haven't needed that kind of services in the past, no one has thought it out," says Allred in referring to the jurisdiction problems the group is encountering.
Burd Commissioner Pam Smith is working with County Prosecutor Mark Gause and Councilwoman Jeanne Vandiver is working with City Attorney Rob Williams to sort out some of the legal-jurisdiction areas.
The plan can go on whether the rural department helps the city department in a major disaster.
Allred cites an instance in New Mexico when a truck load of propane exploded in a rural area where it shouldn't have been a particular problem, but 12 firemen were killed.

because they didn't have a plan of action to cope with an event.
In another example, Allred said a train load of vinyl chloride derailed in the middle of a large eastern city. It took four days to clean it up and there was a lot of property damage but no injuries or deaths because the emergency services were prepared and everyone knew exactly what to do.
There are laws that require a train or a truck to have a sign posted saying what type of materials are being carried, but Allred says nothing is required on the pickup of a farmer who comes into town to pick up chemicals.
He said this was the type of problem we might have to deal with here in Jerome.
"Whatever we do is short cut the time it would take to get something in place," he says Allred.
He also says it is going to involve a lot of work after the plan is initiated because it will have to be continually updated.

Symms

The Times-News was given a copy of the letter Symms sent to Burd and there is no mention in the letter of the $8 million sewer plant fund the press release says are being held hostage. The letter discusses Idaho's dissolved oxygen standard, which the EPA has not accepted and which Symms and McClure have disputed since 1980.
Contacted by phone in Symms' Washington, D.C., office, legislative aide Trent Clark said, "If the $8 million in federal funds actually had been held up until April 1, unless they amend their stand, they will determine Idaho not in compliance."
"EPA has contacted us telling us these grants are in jeopardy because of Idaho's non-compliance with national water quality standards," Clark says.

Burd says Symms may have gotten the idea the $8 million would be withheld from a memo titled "Delayed grant award actions resulting from unapproved water quality standards per CWA (Clean Water Act) section 26."
Burd says Idaho appeared on the list mistakenly.
Clark says the press release claiming the funds were being held hostage was prepared by a new aide to Symms, but was approved through the normal chain of approval for press releases. Butler says he would send the same press release up to the day Idaho receives the funds.

he says.
Some of the wells that have been drilled have revealed several inches of oil, while others nearby have been found to contain water. The spill could help the white dextery more exactly where the spilled petroleum products are, he says.
Now the oil seems to be contained by a perch aquifer — one separated by a layer of clay from the aquifer that supplies drinking water for the area. The division has found no problem with drinking water supplies from the spillage, he says.

No clean-up plans are expected to be made until this fall, McMasters says. The division wants to study the problem through the irrigation season when the ground water level will rise.
"If the ground water rises under the terminals it could pick up pockets of oil. If the oil doesn't increase, we know we have identified the problem," he says.
"We're still in the investigative stages," McMasters says. Officials have been hoping that with test wells providing evidence that petroleum more, Felton said.

Another recommendation from Stivers included building a new jail at the site of the old county hospital now used for storage. The old hospital building should be demolished and the jail project partly funded by the sale of the land near the courthouse where the county had planned to build a new jail.
"People didn't want to see a valuable piece of property, such as the site of the old Leary School, be used for a jail, Stivers said.
The location of a new jail seems to have become a bigger issue after the bond election, Felton added. Many people have expressed concern about the jail being built on the east side of town.

The steering committee might be expanded, because many of those who have supplied after-the-bond-election comment also have offered help, she said.
Once sufficient comment was gathered, it would be shared with the group of people who helped promote the bond issue, Felton added.
The steering committee might be expanded, because many of those who have supplied after-the-bond-election comment also have offered help, she said.
"If anyone is interested in helping we sure would like to know."
Stivers had claimed, however, that citizens committees were not general. The committee may have helped inflate the project to a size the public rejected.

Farmer picks Weber over ISU

By The Times-News and The Associated Press

OGDEN, Utah — Former UCLA head basketball coach Larry Farmer has been named head coach at Weber State College, school officials announced Thursday.

Farmer succeeds Neil McCarthy, who resigned earlier this month to head the New Mexico State University basketball team.

He was selected over four other finalists: Weber State assistant coach Dick Hunsaker, Dixie College coach Neil Roberts, Wyoming assistant coach Denny Huston and Bill Morse, head coach at Fort Hays State in Kansas.

Farmer had applied for the vacancy at Idaho State University. "I think they (Weber State) made a good choice," ISU Athletic Director Babe Caccia said.

Caccia admitted that ISU had been "very high" on Farmer. "He certainly was in consideration," Caccia said.

Caccia added that Wednesday night he had tried to reach Farmer, who resides in Los Angeles, by telephone but couldn't reach him. "I left a message for him to call me," Caccia said. "I guess he was in Ogden."

Farmer signed a three-year contract but declined to disclose what he would be paid. "It's not a lot of money, but when you see a black guy driving a Mercedes down the street, you'll know it's me," he joked.

The choice of the Denver, Colo., native broke with a long school tradition of elevating an assistant-Weber coach to head the team.

Farmer is Weber State's fifth head basketball coach since it became a four-year college in 1962. McCarthy led the team for 19 seasons.

"It was a dream come true for me," said Farmer. "I look forward to getting myself in a new winning program."

Farmer said "did a great job of recruiting me, though they really didn't have to. I would have taken it anyway," he added.

Farmer played on three NCAA championship teams under coach John Wooden during his three years as a letterman at UCLA — 1970 to 1973. He became the Bruins' head coach in 1981 after six years as an assistant coach, then was replaced by Walt Hazzard last spring.

Since then, Farmer has assisted as commentator for radio and television broadcasts for the Denver Nuggets in the National Basketball Association.

He plans to stress recruiting because five senior Wildcats will be graduating this year. "Ideally, you build the program from the freshman level. But until I get the high school program established, we'll have to go to the junior college ranks," he said.

Weber State Athletic Director Gary Crompton called Farmer "a proven head coach. He was in the best basketball program in the last two decades... played under John Wooden... The guy is just an impeccable athlete."

Crompton said the deciding factor in Farmer's favor was his potential as a recruiter. Farmer recruited and coached eight future NBA players during his stint at UCLA, Crompton said.

"There's enough good players out there that if you work hard enough, you're going to find them," he added.

Farmer said he thought the main reasons he got the job were his UCLA experience and his experience in national recruiting.

Syracuse boss expects Hoyas to win handily

By DICK JOYCE
The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — Jim Boehelm has some advice for anybody who dreams of beating Georgetown in the NCAA basketball Final Four.

"Everyone comes here thinking they can win, but once the ball goes up, you drive the lane and see (Patrick) Ewing, you remember..."

Boehelm knows all about No. 1 Georgetown and No. 3 St. John's combatants in Saturday's NCAA basketball semifinal. His Syracuse Orangemen lost twice to both Big East Conference rivals this season.

"Georgetown will be awfully tough," Boehelm, whose Orangemen also beat Georgetown this season, said Thursday. "The last two weren't even close. They've been here before and know what it's all about."

Villanova, another Big East team and the surprise of the tournament, plays No. 5 Memphis State, the Metro Conference champion, in the other semifinal at Rupp Arena. St. John's, the Big East regular-season champion, hasn't had a team in the Final Four since 1952 when the Redmen lost to Kansas in the final.

Georgetown, 34-2, has reached the Final Four three times in the last four years.

No team has beaten Georgetown, led by the intimidating 7-foot All-America Ewing, since Syracuse did, 65-63, on Jan. 28. That came two days after St. John's ended the Hoyas' 29-game winning streak 66-65.

Since the Syracuse loss, the Hoyas have put together a 15-game streak. They routed St. John's 85-69 and 92-80 within 10 days at the end of the season.

"If Georgetown shoots 45-50 percent, nobody's going to beat them," Boehelm said.

The Hoyas, the Big East tournament champions, have shot 48 percent in posting NCAA playoff victories over Lehigh, Temple, Loyola of Chicago and Georgia Tech.

The Redmen made it here by beating the Southern, Arkansas, Kentucky and North Carolina State.

"If it were a series between St. John's and Georgetown, Georgetown would win it," Arkansas Coach Eddie Sutton said. "But it's one game. St. John's has a shot. They're capable of winning if they can manage the press, minimize their turnovers and play the defensive boards, something

Shot clock's likely in NCAA next year

By BRUCE LOWITT
The Associated Press

LEXINGTON, Ky. — College basketball is almost certain to have a 45-second shot clock next season, but it likely will take longer to accept the three-point field goal or deal with the problem of late-game fouling, NCAA officials said Thursday.

Stelz, athletic director at Springfield College and longtime editor of the NCAA's rules committee, told a news conference that 62 percent of the National Association of Basketball Coaches surveyed called for the NCAA to put into place the shot clock for all games next season.

The Pacific Coast Athletic Association and Big Sky and Atlantic 10 conferences responded with "it" in 1984-85. Thirty-two percent of the responding coaches voted for just a three-point field goal, 42 percent for both the three-point line and the shot clock.

The clock, similar to the 24-second clock used by the pros, was used experimentally by 23 conferences during the 1984-85 season. It is not, however, part of the national championship tournament which continues Saturday with the Final Four in Memphis State vs. Villanova and St. John's vs. defending champion Georgetown.

The NCAA will meet next week to vote formally on the shot clock. A two-thirds majority of the rules committee is needed for passage. "The likelihood of it falling is almost nil," Stelz said. A year ago it fell just short of a two-thirds vote.

"But considering the results of the questionnaire, considering the data we've received from the conferences that have researched and experimented with the clock — 19 in Division I, three in Division II and three in Division III — it appears that is a very strong mandate to adopt it. That strong research and background wasn't present when we met in Seattle," Stelz said.

The support wasn't as strong for two possible solutions to late-game fouling — one or two shots and retaining possession (44 percent approval by responding coaches) or giving the team fouled the right to waive the shots and inbound the ball again, as is done in Olympic play (50 percent).

Fifty-five percent urged stricter enforcement of foul violations. But only 23 percent supported widening the three-second lane to reduce rough play. Coaches also reversed their opinion on the coaching box inaugurated for 1984-85. A year ago, 61 percent opposed it. Now, Stelz said, 68 percent approved of it, along with 92 percent of the officials who responded.

Storm stops weekend sports

Sun Valley — Runs at Sun Valley were either machine packed or open powder — about 18 to 24 inches of it. The new snow fell Tuesday night bringing depths to 70 inches at the top of the resort and 65 at the half-way mark. Sun Valley will remain open in full operation through April 14 and on a more limited basis on Baldy Mountain until April 28.

Temperatures Thursday were 20 degrees on the upper slopes and about 30 degrees on the valley floor. Hours today: 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Magic Mountain — About a foot of new snow fell Thursday at Magic Mountain to give skiers a good chance of deep powder skiing today through the weekend. The road was cleared Thursday and mountain crews were packing intermediate and beginner runs. Snow depths are in the 70 to 75 inch range. The resort is continuing to operate from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday through Sunday. Buses leave Kmart parking lot at 8 a.m. on weekends.

Pomerelle — A foot of fresh, light powder fell Thursday at Pomerelle and the resort reported only slight winds. The road was cleared during the morning. The resort reports mild January skiing conditions with snow depths ranging into the 90 to 100 inches. Hours: 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Ski conditions Thursday at other major southern Idaho ski areas:

- Bogus Basin — 75 total, 10 new
- Schweitzer — 108 total, 10 new
- Grand Targhee — 138 total, 3 new
- Pebble Creek — 93 total, 2 new

Snow depth in inches refers to unpacked snow at the top except for Bogus Basin, which reports depths at the base. New snow refers to snow within last 24 hours.

Besides today's doubleheader, Walker also may attempt to schedule games for Saturday and Sunday, which potentially had been open dates for the Frontier Field. Once-promising North American Soccer League folds tent

By BOB GREENE
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Down to only two teams, the North American Soccer League on Thursday said it was suspending operations for the 1985 season, and possibly for good.

But officials are optimistic that a professional outdoor soccer league will be in operation in 1986.

"We simply ran out of time," said acting president Clive Toye, whose term expires Friday.

"The league is continuing at this point," said Jim Henderson, the NASL's director of public relations. "We're not saying that it won't be permanently terminated. But we have suspended the league existing in 1985."

"Whether that is the NASL or another entity remains to be seen."

The league currently consists of the Minnesota Strikers and the Toronto Blizzard. Earlier this month, the league expelled the Cosmos for failing to produce a letter of credit for the 1985 season.

Two other franchises — San Diego and Chicago — were granted two-year leases of absence by the NASL because they wanted to limit themselves to indoor play at this time, Henderson said.

"I found in the last 90 days a strong, positive attitude from a number of people in a number of cities," Toye said, "but the problems of the past combined with an extreme shortness of time made it impossible to bring in new members in 1985."

"It is this positive attitude, however, that makes me believe that professional soccer can be reorganized and restructured and that a good pro league will be in operation for the 1986 season."

The NASL, once called the "league of the 1980s," came into existence in 1968 with the merger of the United Soccer Association and National Professional Soccer League, and has had a history of ups and downs. The number of franchises have gone from five in 1968 to 24 in the late 1970s to 12 in 1983 and now just two.

In its heyday, the leader of the league was the Cosmos, who won several championships and new crowds in the 60,000 to 70,000 range.

Then the NASL lost several teams to indoor soccer. The Major Indoor Soccer League (MISL) was born in 1978-79 and the NASL added a competing indoor schedule in 1979-80.

The following two seasons, the MISL and NASL went head-to-head indoors, then the NASL dropped out of the indoor game for 1982-83 with three of its franchises — San Diego, Chicago and Golden Bay (northern California) — defecting to the MISL for that season.

The NASL resumed indoor play for 1983-84, then quit for good, leaving the field to the more successful MISL.

Henderson said Thursday that the NASL, whatever its reincarnation might be called, will strictly stay outdoors. "Clive Toye has anything at all to do with it."

"Our direction is outdoor soccer."

Darling performance helps Mets blank Reds

By The Associated Press

Ron Darling turned in his finest pitching effort of the spring Thursday, blanking Cincinnati over five innings in leading the New York Mets to a 2-0 triumph over the Reds in an exhibition baseball game at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Darling is New York's No. 2 starter behind Dwight Gooden and the Mets are counting on the right-hander to improve on his 12-9 record as a rookie in 1984.

Darling had allowed 19 hits and 15 runs in his first 11 innings this spring before limiting the Reds to only four hits Thursday. Calvin Schiraldi and Doug Sisk finished up for the Mets and held Cincinnati hitless over the

Baseball

At Sarasota, Tim Lollar pitched six innings of shutout ball and Tom O'Malley's eighth-inning infield single broke a scoreless tie to give the Chicago White Sox a 1-0 win over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lollar, acquired in the off-season from the San Diego Padres, allowed four hits, struck out five and walked none. His pre-season ERA is 1.50 and the left-hander has issued only one walk in 20 innings.

Bill Russell keyed rallies with three consecutive singles and the Los Angeles Dodgers ran wild on the basespins in an 8-4 victory over a split Boston "Red Sox" squad at Winter Haven.

The Dodgers stole seven bases in nine attempts. With veteran catcher

Jeff Newman behind the plate, Los Angeles stole five bases while building a 7-3 lead.

At Dunedin, Reid Nichols stroked a two-run home run to pace Boston's other squad to a 3-2 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays. The Jays dropped to 14-5 in the spring.

Date Murphy slammed two home runs and Brad Koninski added another as the Atlanta Braves defeated the Minnesota Twins 4-1 at Orlando. All three solo homers came off Twins right-hander John Butcher, who had allowed only two runs in 17 previous innings this spring.

Baltimore designated "hitter" Dan Ford keyed a seven-run sixth inning with a three-run homer and Mike Young and rookie Fritz Connally each had three hits to lead a 21-hit assault as the Orioles pounded Texas 14-9 at Pompano Beach. Steve Balboni slugged a double and a homer in a pacing, 16-hit Kansas City attack as the Royals held on to edge the Philadelphia Phillies 12-11. What turned out to be the winning run came home in the fourth on a solo homer by veteran catcher Jim Sundberg, his first as a Royal. Outfielder Glenn Wilson collected four hits for Philadelphia.

At West Palm Beach, Tito Landrum's two-run single in the top of the eighth inning highlighted a three-run rally that led the St. Louis Cardinals to a 7-4 victory over the Montreal Expos. Dick Schofield and Rod Carew delivered two-run singles during a three-run second inning as the California Angels defeated the Cleveland Indians 9-2 at Palm Springs, Calif.

At Tempe, Ariz., Ivan Calderon's two-run homer and run-scoring single and Gorman Thomas' three RBI led Seattle as the Mariners pounded the Milwaukee Brewers 9-1.

The Oakland A's scored two runs in the eighth inning on a two-out throwing error by Chicago catcher Tony Castillo and beat the Cubs 6-5 at Phoenix.

In night action the San Francisco Giants played the San Diego Padres at Yuma.

HALE IRWIN Chips sprinkler head

Irwin breaks slump, takes one-stroke TPC lead

By BOB GREEN The Associated Press

POINTE VEDRA, Fla. — Hale Irwin, who has played infrequently and ineffectively since last June, pitched in for a birdie on the 18th hole and took a one-shot lead Thursday in the first round of the prestigious Tournament Players Championship.

"It's time to start playing again. Time to go to work," Irwin said after he'd pitched over a sprinkler head and into the cup to finish off a wind-blown, 5-under-par 67 on the difficult Players Club at Sawgrass.

The veteran Irwin has played only a dozen tournaments since blowing a chance for a third U.S. Open title last summer. In those 12 events, he's missed the cut five times and has not been in contention.

He blamed a variety of problems, including the death of his father and a nagging groin injury for the lengthy lapse.

Struggling USFL Stallions seek angel

By HOYT HARWELL The Associated Press

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. — Interim financing has been arranged for the Birmingham Stallions and the president of the United States Football League team said he is searching for money to keep the club in Birmingham.

Stallions' President Jerry Siskar said Marvin Warner, the principal owner of the franchise, "has pulled away from participation in the Stallions so he can confront his other problems."

Warner owns Home States Savings Bank in Cincinnati, Ohio, which was closed March 8, four days after a federal court ordered the closing of ESM Government Securities Inc.

The ESM closing triggered a run on deposits at Warner's bank, which stands to lose over $140 million.

Chinese coming to Ore-Ida

BOISE (AP) — The return of several U.S. Olympians and a rare foreign appearance by a team from the People's Republic of China will highlight the second annual Ore-Ida Women's Challenge bicycle races this summer.

The races will be staged July 7-13, beginning in Boise and winding up in Elkhorn, Stogs in between will include Idaho City, Lewman, Stanley, Ketchum, Sun Valley and Picoabo.

Last year's race, which was won by 1984 Olympic silver medalist Rebecca Twigg, included only U.S. racers. Cindy Olavarri, a member of the U.S. National Team, finished second. Inga Thompson, who was on the U.S. Olympic team, was third.

Cycling

This year's race will have an international flavor. Officials from the People's Republic of China sent a letter to race director Jim Rabdau confirming their plans to attend.

"Having the Chinese will add zest to the field," Rabdau said. "They didn't compete in the Olympics and they don't venture out internationally very often, so it will be quite a treat to see them in Idaho."

A Canadian team also has been accepted, race officials said. Among the two U.S. teams involved will be the Idaho Weight Watchers and the New York-based 7-Eleven group.

Rabdau said applications have been received from racers from Massachusetts to Hawaii. Race officials said 14 more applications will be accepted during the next two months.

Prize money for the Women's Challenge will exceed $15,000, race officials said. Cyclists also have the opportunity to earn points toward the Cup Series Finals to be staged in Dallas in October.

back up again after the Open. But now, the swing is starting to come around again, the swing of old, the swing I can trust," said Irwin, winner of 16 titles and more than $2.5 million.

He took the lead in this annual championship of golf's touring pros with the 30-foot pitch from the fringe — "I wanted to put it, but there was a sprinkler head in my line," he said — that lifted him one shot. In front of Larry Rinker, West German Bernhard Langer, D.A. Weirberg and Morris Hataalsky, tied at 69. Hataalsky scored an eagle-2 in his effort and Rinker ran off one strike of four consecutive birdies.

The group at 69 included Bobby Watkins, Ronnie Black and rookie Mark Brooks.

While the course, the touring players' home course and the prototype of the Stadium Golf-type facility, yielded dozens of subpar scores, it still managed to extract its toll from some of the game's more glamorous names.

PGA champion Lee Trevino had it 4-under-par — and was — among the leaders until he made a triple bogey on his 5th hole. He called a penalty shot on himself when his ball moved in the rough. He went over the green with his fourth, pitched back in 5 and 2-putted for a 7 that sent him reeling to a 73.

Arnold Palmer, the 55-year-old living legend who at the word "charge" in golf's lexicon, sparked some hope in his gallery when he made the turn two under par. But Arnold couldn't hold it, finishing double bogey-bogey for a 74.

Curtis Strange, winner of two of his last three starts, also was 4-under late in his round, but finished bogey-bogey for a 70.

Arrington also called for more fan support, saying that football fans "shouldn't let it be a question whether we want a franchise. If we do, we need to support it."

The Stallions are 4-1 and lead the USFL's Eastern Conference.

Siskar confirmed that a Charlotte, N.C. businessman, George Shinn, had spoken to him recently about the franchise. But Siskar said "we intend to work out our problems here and we plan to be here a long time."

However, Siskar said, should things get bad enough, the club would be willing to talk to Shinn at that time.

Some people just can't let go of Vietnam.

Most of us left it behind with Woodstock, Kent State and Watergate. But for some, Vietnam is still an everyday nightmare.

That's because nearly 2,500 Americans are still missing in Vietnam, 2,500 people who disappeared, leaving questions in their place.

Over the years since we left the conflict, hundreds of firsthand sightings by refugees and others report Americans still alive in Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia. Growing older day to day in prison camps, while Hanoi denies knowledge of them. Other reports confirm bodies being held for ransom by that same Hanoi government.

Meantime, their wives and families live frozen in time. Not knowing whether to remarry. To move ahead. Or to hang onto hope.

Now, Washington has finally admitted some of the missing could still be alive. But the wheels of government turn slowly. You can help speed them up. Write your senator or congressman.

Or write the Vietnamese Ambassador to the United Nations, 20 Waterside Plaza, N.Y., N.Y. 10010. Let Hanoi know that this time Americans are together on the question of Vietnam. And that we want out. Completely.

UCLA, Indiana collide tonight for NIT crown

By KEIN HAPPOORT
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Walt Hazzard has a legend behind him, and one in front of him, as he prepares his UCLA basketball team to meet the Indiana Hoosiers in the 48th National Invitation Tournament tonight.

Acknowledging that his Bruins are a reincarnation in style of the old John Wooden teams that won 10 NCAA championships, Hazzard looks forward to taking on another "coaching legend" in Indiana's Bobby Knight in the title game at Madison Square Garden, following the third-place game — between Louisville and Tennessee — this morning, after sweeping floors at Compton," said Hazzard, referring to his years as a rookie coach who "did everything" at the small junior college in California from 1980-82. "Compton is a long way from UCLA."

Once a top guard on the UCLA teams that won national championships under Wooden in the 1960s, Hazzard declares his undying allegiance to the old "Wooden system."

"I take lessons from the master, and I will continue to," Hazzard said at a pre-championship press conference Thursday.

College basketball

ference Thursday. "When you see our team, you see that the John Wooden system still works. We don't do many things — but we do a few very well."

Actually, the first half of the season wasn't the best for UCLA. In Hazzard's first year as coach of his alma mater. But then, things picked up, and the Bruins have won 11 of their last 12 games, including Wednesday night's 77-66 victory over Louisville in the NIT semifinals, and will take a 20-12 record into Friday night's final.

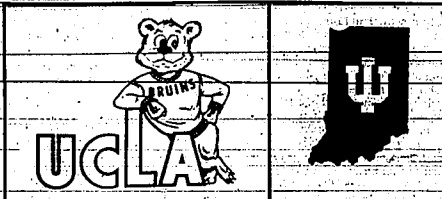

"Our team is playing well, a lot different than Dec. 22," said Hazzard, referring to an embarrassing loss to St. John's earlier in the season at Madison Square Garden.

What has happened since?

"We've hustled, worked hard," said Hazzard. "Last night was typical of our play in the last six weeks. Our scoring can come from anywhere."

Wednesday night, though, it came from 6-foot-11 Brad Wright, a player Hazzard calls the most improved on the team. He had 22 points, along with 12 rebounds and four blocked shots.

"His confidence has been his biggest improvement," Hazzard said. "Actually, that's been a problem with this team all year long. We ran a psychiatric ward all year, because of the lack of confidence on this team."

Indiana is a good final opponent for me," Hazzard said. "It's an honor to play him in my first year as coach."

Knight said he isn't as impressed with himself, particularly with the inconsistent way his team has been playing this year. At one point, the Hoosiers lost five straight games at home and had a 15-13 record during the regular season. They've won four more since the start of the NIT, including a 74-67 victory over Tennessee in Wednesday night's semifinals.

"We've played more good minutes in games in the NIT than we've played prior to that," Knight said. "It has been at times a discouraging and frustrating season. We've had minutes during the season when we've let things slip away. We're not Real quiet and we're not real proud on the boards, and sometimes we get caught."

Knight coached the gold medal-winning U.S. basketball team at the Olympics last summer, an experience he called one of the most positive of his coaching career. His year at Indiana, however, has been fraught with negative things, including the celebrated chair-throwing incident during a Big Ten contest with Purdue that got him suspended for one game.

However, a game played to Knight's satisfaction by his Hoosiers Friday night — win or lose — would soothe some of the season's pain, he says.

"I'm looking forward midnight Friday," he says, "and then I'm going fishing for a couple of weeks."

In bribery case

Arrests of Tulane students continue

By PHILIP DRYSDALE
The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS — Two Tulane University basketball players testified before a grand jury Thursday, and afterward another student was arrested on bribery charges in the point-shaving scandal involving the Green Wave team.

Mark Olensky, 22, who is not a member of the team, surrendered to District Attorney Harry Connick and was booked on two counts of bribery of sports participants, Connick's office said.

He was the fifth student arrested in the case.

Olensky, who also was booked on charges of conspiracy to bribe and conspiracy to distribute cocaine, was jailed pending a bond hearing.

Connick said the investigation by the Orleans Parish grand jury would continue next week and no indictments were reported.

The only testimony Thursday came from two players who reportedly have immunity from prosecution.

Coach Ned Fowler and eight other players were at the courthouse, but they were not in court. The eight teammates, under subpoena, were told to return next Thursday. Fowler's lawyer said the coach was told he will be rescheduled for a later appearance.

The only members of the team not at the courthouse Thursday were the three players booked on gambling law violations earlier this week.

Green Wave star John Williams, 23, a 6-foot-10 all-conference center, was arrested Tuesday night at his home, and later denied any wrongdoing.

On Wednesday, sophomore swingman David Dominique of New Iberia, La., and senior guard Bobby Thompson of New Orleans surrendered to officers.

Williams, Thompson and Dominique are accused of shaving points either winning by a lower margin or losing by a greater margin than the established "line" on the game.

All three were freed without bail.

Also arrested Tuesday was Gary Krantz, 21, of New Rochelle, N.Y., a Tulane student, booked on cocaine dealing as well as gambling law violations. He was released on $10,000 surety bond.

The maximum penalty for violation of Louisiana's sports bribery law is five years in jail and a $10,000 fine.

Connick said the investigation still centers — on two Metro-Conference games — Feb. 20 with Memphis State and Feb. 2 with Southern Mississippi in the Tulane arena.

Asked if the scandal could expand beyond Tulane, Connick said it was a possibility, noting that it involves bookmakers and gamblers.

Connick said the National Collegiate Athletic Association had been alerted and was conducting its own investigation.

"As a byproduct of this investigation we have reason to believe there may be some violations of NCAA regulations," said Connick, who has contacted Tulane President Eamon Kelly about the matter.

Clyde Eads, 22, a starting center from Tampa, Fla. one of the two players reportedly granted immunity, was in the grand jury room more than two hours. Jon Johnson, 22, a starting senior from Columbus, Ga., appeared before the grand jury after Eads.

The New Orleans newspaper, Times-Picayune, The States-Herald, quoted sources as saying the two had been given immunity for their testimony.

Neither Fowler nor his lawyer would comment on the reports.

"I'm going to stand by my players," Fowler told reporters in a brief news conference as he left the courthouse. "They're my guys."

Tulane finished the season 15-13 overall and 6-8 in conference play.

Tulane was a 104-point favorite over Southern Mississippi and won 64-63. Memphis State opened a five-point favorite and went to 6.5 points in a game it won by 11, 69-49.

Williams, who averaged 18 points this season, scored 14 against Memphis State and 15 against Southern Mississippi.

In the Memphis State game, he made five of 12 field goals attempts and four of six free throws. Williams, who did not foul out of a game all season, drew his third personal foul and was benched shortly before the end of the first half. He played the entire second half.

Dominique scored four points, and Thompson, who played six minutes, did not score.

In the Southern Mississippi Game, Williams made just one of eight field goal attempts in the first half, but wound up with 15 points for the game.

Dominique scored 14 points. Thompson did not play.

Tulane University officials said they first learned of possible point shaving after the Memphis State game and began their own investigation. They said they found no indication of wrongdoing.

As Fowler put it, "Our team has trouble scoring points, much less shaving points."

Idaho art on display

Myrtle Boyd
a late bloomer

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Wildlife and outdoor art by Myrtle Boyd will be the April feature for Haven's Frames & Gallery's "Artist of the Month" series.

Boyd, an Idaho resident since the 1940s, is a latecomer to the art world, beginning 10 years ago after retiring as a job service consultant, in Gooding.

However, since taking her art seriously, she has set a brisk pace capturing 52 first, second, third and best of show awards at juried exhibits. And her work is in permanent collections throughout the United States.

New book looks at the 'outlaw' side of Idaho

By TERRY RICH HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — "Idaho's Vigilantes," a new book published by the University Press of Idaho, shows the Gem State's history as one of the most lawless in the nation, Joyce Lindstrom of Lewiston, is an avid genealogist and secretary-treasurer of the Idaho Falls chapter of the Idaho Writer's League.

Originally researching for a novel which she's still working on, Lindstrom says the material she came across was "the most fascinating story I ever got involved with."

She says she couldn't resist writing a factual historical piece before proceeding with the novel.

'Let's put it this way, all the judges and all the sheriffs — even the sheriff of Ada County — were outlaws.'

— Joyce Lindstrom

Much of Lindstrom's research was done at Ricks College, where she studied microfilms of the "Idaho Tri-Weekly Statesman" and the "Idaho World" newspapers.

"It was quite a shock to me," she says, pointing out that from the two years spanning 1864-1866 she copied down a page and a half of "outright murders and killings" from the Idaho City Statesman.

"And all the killers got off scot-free, claiming self-defense," she says. "Let's put it this way, all the judges and all the sheriffs — even the sheriff of Ada County — were outlaws."

To further her claim, Lindstrom says most of the people in Idaho at that time had come from the South and voted a straight party line for Democrats.

"So anybody the party organization ran, got elected," she says, pointing out that the organization ran some pretty sordid fellows. For example she cites the killer Ferdinand Patterson, who she says shot down Sumner Pinkham, who was Boise City Sheriff and U.S. Marshal, "before he could even draw his gun." Patterson later became sheriff of Boise City.

Another was David Upsyke, who led a gang that murdered five men on a stagecoach traveling through Fortneil. They robbed the coach of $70,000 in gold, notes Lindstrom, adding that Upsyke later became sheriff of Boise City.

But, the author points out that her book does not glorify the crooks; rather, it slants toward two good guys who were instrumental in riding the state of gamblers, thieves and murderers.

William McConnell, Idaho's second elected governor, was one of these, she says; McConnell settled along the Payette River in 1863, working a farm and supplying miners in the Boise Basin with food; McConnell's horse was stolen, he found it in sheriff Upsyke's stable.

and it cost him $70 to get it back, Lindstrom says.

That incident and others led McConnell to help form the Payette Vigilantes and become one of their men. He also helped to form a 900-man vigilante group in Idaho City.

Newspaperman — James Reynolds, the founder of the "Idaho Tri-Weekly Statesman," also is prominent in Lindstrom's book. She says Reynolds was a member of the Boise City Vigilantes, and through his editorial and personal power detoured political bosses and helped remove incompetent federal officials from office.

"Idaho's Vigilantes" sells for $7.95, and is available at Judy's Inc. in Twin Falls or by writing University Press of Idaho, P.O. Box 3368, University Station, Moscow, ID 83842.

Bach's 300th birthday noted

By DANIEL CARIAGA
The Los Angeles Times

It is the 300th anniversary of Johann Sebastian Bach's birth, and the musical world is celebrating it.

Still, "In his lifetime, Bach and his music were known only to a limited number of people, and he was not particularly appreciated," says Bach scholar Karl Geiringer, discussing the steady growth of Bach-consciousness since the composer's death in 1750.

"The lack of appreciation was at least partly, I believe, because of the remoteness of his music, but he was, extremely, had," speculates the 85-year-old musicologist, who is the author of three books on Bach and his family, as well as a number of other volumes dealing with other "other" subjects. Erwin Hays and the history of musical instruments.

"At that time (1723-50), Bach was responsible for church music in the whole of Leipzig, although he himself worked mostly in two main churches."

"Bach had to keep a certain amount of activity in every Lutheran church, and provide music for each one."

"At St. Thomas, he had to come up with something new every Sunday. Many Sundays, the piece was hardly dry on the previous performance and the performance could not have been polished."

From his home in Santa Barbara, where he has taught at the University of California since 1952, Geiringer says he is going to celebrate the anniversary of the great composer by teaching a class in Bach's instrumental works. In the evening, he says he plans to listen to a radio program featuring some of the new Bach organ chorales that were discovered at Yale University in December.

World still celebrating miracle of Bach

"Freudling's opinion, since I haven't seen them," Geiringer said of the chorales, discovered by Harvard University scholar Christoph Wolff, that "we know they existed."

"What Wolff has done is to authenticate them. I don't know if history will agree with Wolff but they are authentic."

"In any case, they have been authentically and necessarily changed."

"The 11 chorales in question are printed in that autograph manuscript as a completed matter."

"Naturally, Bach used music by other composers in his church books. That use has caused much confusion in our time," Geiringer said.

"The 30th anniversary of the death of Ludwig Bach, composer of the chorales, which were first attributed to Johann Sebastian, since the copies were in his hand."

"In the 30th Century, and particularly in the past 50 years, people scholars have become much more cautious about attributing works to Bach."

"Bach's reputation as a composer has been built on the by him, been removed from the catalogue."

"It is possible, in our increasingly secular world, that Bach's music will be considered outdated, or even irrelevant."

"But there is no danger of that. The music is still being played, since his death."

"The music has grown steadily, and it is still growing."

"The fact that the world of his sacred music is extremely similar to that of the 20th century, is a very interesting and peculiar phenomenon, a sacred and secular music, all at once."

"Bach's music has changed in Germany, and in the United States, and in the world. It has become a sacred and secular music, and it is still growing."

"It could be played in the village as a dance, or in church as a sacred

Brooklyn community benefits from Cosby television series

By FRED ROTHENBERG
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — "The Cosby Show," critically praised and a winner in the ratings, is also a darn good neighbor to a score of Brooklyn shopkeepers and tenants who live near the studio where Bill Cosby tapes his series.

The hit comedy, about a nice family from a New York City neighborhood, is made in a small studio on 14th Street and Avenue M in the heavily ethnic, residential section of Midwood in Brooklyn.

There's no Hollywood fantasy trip on Cosby's corner. No drive-in studio in a private corner of the world. Staffers on "The Cosby Show" trip over real life and regular folks every day.

Across the street, on another corner of 14th and M, is the OVA Coffee Shop. Owner Raza Josilevich, an ex-lawyer from Russia who immigrated here via Israel; cooks the on-camera and off-camera food for "The Cosby Show."

"Mr. Cosby is so nice," said Josilevich. "He was busy with a meeting one morning but the next time he saw me he said he was so sorry for not saying good morning. The show makes the street very alive and safe," she said.

A frayed newspaper review of "The Cosby Show" is taped to CWA's window. The show's writers have offices above the coffee shop. Down the block is Maxie's Discount, the Jerusalem I Kosher pizzeria, the 20th Century Fish

BILL COSBY
'Not part of a factory'

Market and Jack's Pizza shop, where the walls boast pictures of Ronald Reagan, three Apollo astronauts and this sign: "No Smoking or Combining Hair Behind Counter."

Pete Ruggieri, who manages Jack's with his mother, Frances, says "Cosby's" teen-age actors come for "slices with extra cheese. They give him tickets to tapings, but he gives them too late. He plans to go during his August vacation."

As much as the show gives the neighborhood, Cosby and his co-workers say they get a lot back. "Working here is a reality check and balance," said producer Caryn

Snelder. "It's subtle, but it keeps us

In two "Cosby" episodes this season, for instance, the kids came home bundled in winter gear from the tips of their heads to their toes.

"In Los Angeles," said Snelder, "we never would have been so conscious about the cold and the winter wardrobe."

For quick repairs, the staff uses the tailor shop across the street, said Frank Scott, the studio's facility manager for 24 years.

When there is a problem with the elevator, the nearby Lotus Body and Fender Shop came right over and fixed it. They refused money; they got tickets.

The cops on the beat, inspectors and almost anybody with a Brooklyn accent can get tickets. In fact, Scott figures 40 percent of the audience for the first taping on Thursdays comes from Brooklyn. "The people in this area are like family to me," he said.

Snelder and the other producers work out of a modified three-bedroom apartment a block from the studio, where people offer advice in the elevator. One neighbor suggested they cover the furniture on the set in plastic. "She said it would last longer," Snelder said.

The hallways of Snelder's apartment building are filled with the aroma of chicken soup. In the summer, residents sit outside on lawn chairs on the sidewalk, offering opinions on the show to nuts.

Poet to read at CSI Tuesday

TWIN FALLS — Harald Wyndham, a Pocatello-based poet, will be reading from his works at 7 p.m. Tuesday in Room 105 of the Shields Building at the College of Southern Idaho.

The free reading is open to the public and everyone is also invited to his workshop at 10 a.m. that day in the same room.

Wyndham was born in 1946 in Munich, Germany, but grew up in Kenton, Ohio.

He attended Bowling Green University where he received a master's degree in American literature in 1969 and a master of fine arts in creative writing in 1971.

In 1971, he moved to Pocatello to teach English at Idaho State University. After two years of teaching, he went to work as a technical writer with American Microsystems, Inc. there, where he is currently employed as a production control manager.

He has been writing and publishing small books of poetry since 1970, the most recent being "Homeland," in 1984. "Pebble Creek" was published by Conference press in 1978.

Wyndham has had poems in many small magazines and also has work in the anthologies including "Eight Idaho Poets," "Rain in the Forest" and "Light in the Trees."

Wyndham lives in Pocatello with his wife, Jane, and two children, Jennifer and Jonathan.

He is currently working on his 11th book of poems, which he will publish this summer with the Imprint of Blue Scarab Press.

His books will be available for purchase at his CSI reading.

Seasoned Magic Valley actors cast in Neil Simon comedy

Rehearsals begin for Simon play

TWIN FALLS — Rehearsals have begun for "The Sunshine Boys," a comedy in two acts by Neil Simon. The cast is made up of some of Magic Valley's most seasoned local actors, including Art Franz, Buzz Langdon, Paul Wallace, Molly Mann and Holly Capps. Franz will play the role of the crochety Willie Clark which was first done on Broadway by Jack Alton. Willie's vaudeville partner Al Lewis, the Sam Levene role, will be interpreted by Buzz Langdon. Willie's nephew, Ben Silverman, will be portrayed by Paul Wallace. The part of Ben was originally played by Lewis J. Stader. In supporting roles, Holly Capps will assume the Lee Meredith part of the nurse in the vaudeville scenes, while Molly Mann recreates the Minnie Gentry RN character. The production is being directed by L.L. Nick Nicholson who makes the water goers will remember for his special touch with comedy. In the Magic Valley, Nicholson has directed "Come Blow your Horn" and "The Prisoner of Second Avenue," both Neil Simon plays. He also directed "Hercules" for the Dilettantes of Magic Valley and "The Old Maid and the Thief" for the Northwest Opera Company, as well as numerous musical reviews for the Magic Valley Little Theater Group. Production of "The Sunshine Boys" is set for mid May and will be done in Dinner Theater. Tickets will be available on an advance sale basis.

Logo sought for art group

TWIN FALLS — The Magic Valley Symphony is sounding a last call for area artists to enter its logo contest. Deadline for the contest is April 1, with the winner to be announced at the symphony's last concert of the season May 3 at the Holiday Inn.

A $100 award will go to the best entry, which will be judged by the symphony board. Symphony member Patty Hadley says artists can use any medium that is reproducible and incorporates the words "Magic Valley Symphony."

She says it is a good opportunity for exposure of an artist's work as the logo will be used on correspondence, posters, programs and brochures. Entries must be original, signed with address and phone number on the back, and mailed to Carson Wong at the College of Southern Idaho, P.O. Box 1238, Twin Falls, ID 83301.

Folklife festival plans under way

SEATTLE — Performers, craftspersons, exhibitors and food vendors are invited to participate in the 1985 Northwest Folklife Festival, May 3-27 at the Seattle Center in Seattle, Wash.

The free festival will include 12 stages for over 600 performers of dance and music with presentations by groups from over 300 countries. The marketplace will feature over 150 crafts displays and demonstrations and 25 food booths featuring delicacies from throughout the world. Events will include a children's stage performance, a variety of dancing events, music workshops for beginning through advanced players, the Washington State Championship Chili Cookoff and a gospel concert.

Applications may be made before March 30 by writing the Northwest Folklife Society, 303 Harrison, Seattle, Wash., 98106, or by calling 206-625-4410.

Dinner concerts set for Sun Valley

KETCHUM — The Sun Valley Center for the Arts and Humanities have announced a series of dinner concerts scheduled to be held this spring in the Sun Valley Lodge Dining Room.

Trovafori, a vocal quartet from Seattle, will give a concert April 6. The April 20 concert will feature Chablis Sales, a classical guitarist from Durango, Mexico. The final program on May 4 will be "An Evening with Gerahwin," a one-man show by pianist Thomas Wright. Each evening of entertainment will include a four-course meal served at 7 p.m. and the concert at 9:30 p.m.

Ticket price of $30 includes dinner, tax, gratuity and the concert. Patron tickets are available for $50. For reservations, call the Sun Valley Center Gallery, 726-0491, or the Sun Valley Company 622-4111, extension 2191.

Dance workshop to be held at USU

LOGAN — Dance West Workshop '85 will be held June 24 through July 26 at Utah State University in Logan. High school to postcollege students are invited to audition for workshops which will include American character, ballet, modern dance, jazz and tap. Sessions will run from two to five weeks and college credits will be awarded to participants.

A multi-media pageant "The West: America's Odyssey" will be presented July 26 through Aug. 3. Students will work with professional dancers from the American Folk Ballet. For registration information, tuition costs and housing availability, write to Maggie Moar, Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation, Utah State University, UMC 70, Logan, Utah 84322, or call 801-959-1437.

Young artists to be recognized

BOISE — U.S. Rep. Richard Stallings recently announced the start of the annual Congressional Art Competition, "An Artistic Discovery," for high school students in the Second Congressional District. This competition allows members of Congress to encourage and recognize our young artists whose creative energies are so vital to our rich cultural traditions," says Stallings. He says students will compete nationally for the honor of having their artwork displayed for one year in the corridor of the U.S. Capitol. In its fourth year, "An Artistic Discovery" is sponsored by the Congressional Arts Caucus to recognize the creative talents of young Americans. Artwork must be two-dimensional and no larger than 30 inches by 30 inches unframed. Eligible categories are paintings, drawings, collages and prints.

Judging will be held the first week of May after which the first-place winner will be displayed in the Capitol. The second, third and fourth place artworks will be displayed in the congressman's offices. For further information, contact Angie Neitzer, 336-1963, 804 N. 21st, Room 434, Boise, 83702.

Fifth 'Friday the 13th' same old thing - murder

By The Los Angeles Times

To assist parents in evaluating movies for family viewing, the Los Angeles Times lists current movies and indicates areas of content (Ratings: G, PG, R, etc.) that may be inappropriate for the very young or impressionable. MPEAA or the Times' ratings are in parentheses.

Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

BABY: Secret of the Lost Legend (PG) The movie is about a family of movable dinosaurs found in the jungles of modern Africa by a cute young couple. George Loomis (William Katt) is an aspiring sportswriter who has followed his graduate student Susan (Sean Young) to the wilds. At times the film is fairly bloody and BODY DOUBLE (R) Graphic violence, considerable nudity and sex. An elaborately silly, silly and desperately derivative film about voyeurism, sadism, exhibitionism and violence with sexual overtones (or sexuality with violent overtones). Brian De Palma's film feels like the work of an artist in the grip of a horrifying obsession that he cannot control at all.

them off one by one, in the most gruesome ways that can be imagined by the none-too-imaginative filmmakers.

FRIDAY THE 13TH — A NEW BEGINNING (R) For obvious reasons, though in a civilized world it would rate an X. The fifth in this series (it's becoming a kind of "Jewel in the Crown" for sci-fi fans), is the same old story. A homicidal maniac wearing a hockey goalie's mask is stalking a group of nice and not-so-nice young people. He kills

Sculptures on view in Boise

BOISE — Opening at the Boise Gallery of Art on April 8 and continuing through May 5, is a series of large-scale steel, aluminum and mixed-media sculptures and three steel small pieces by San Francisco Bay Area artist William T. Wiley. Created while at Lippincott, Inc., sculpture studios in North Haven, Connecticut, between 1979 and 1983, this series is full of forceful images which utilize Wiley's personal iconography and reflect his concerns for the struggle for survival, man's relation to the environment and the potential for all things to change.

Primarily known for enigmatic paintings and sculptures, Wiley has nevertheless worked in a variety of media including drawing, construction, costume, set design, performance art and filmmaking. His art portrays an incredible range of ideas, materials and images.

Wiley developed a spontaneous way of working with the Lippincott crew similar to the process he uses while in his own studio. Pieces were constructed in part by allowing the materials to "conceive of themselves." He often added objects which he came across while working. The result is a powerful juxtaposition of steel, bronze, aluminum, lead, brass and found objects. Simultaneously serious, satirical and humorous, the Wiley exhibition is a unique expression in contemporary sculpture.

Two events are scheduled to accompany the exhibition. William T. Wiley will present a walk-through of this exhibition on April 6, at 1 p.m. Admission is free. On April 18, at 8 p.m., the Gallery will show two of Wiley's films, "Man's Nature," and "The Great Blondino," an independent classic about Robert Nelson. Admission to the film program is $2 general and $1 for members.

Shakespeare was a fake who couldn't write, author claims

By ROBERT BARR
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — As the Earl of Oxford may have said: "Reputation is an idle and most false imposition; oft got without merit, and lost without deserving."

That's from "Othello." You probably think Shakespeare wrote it. That's not true.

That ignoramus? He could hardly write his own name, much less "Macbeth," according to Charlton Ogburn, who wants to shatter the Stratford native's pedestal and use for all.

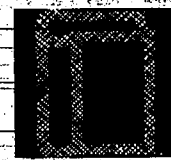

In "The Mysterious William Shakespeare" (Dodd Mead, $25), Ogburn has added 852 pages to literature's Hundred Years' War: Who really wrote all those plays and sonnets?

Ogburn says it was Edward de Vere, 17th Earl of Oxford, a late entrant in the Shakespeare sweepstakes along with Sir Francis Bacon and Christopher Marlowe, who had all the gifts of talent, position and education which Ogburn finds lacking in the Stratford man, but he sniffs a conspiracy which was not penetrated until the 20th century.

"Surely it is a supreme irony that the outstanding works in the English language should be attributed to a man whose record contains nothing to counter the inference... that he was of limited literacy at best," Ogburn writes about the Stratford man.

"One," particularly curious circumstance... is the wholesale, suddenly selective disappearance, hardly to be explained as accidental, of records that might be expected to throw light" on the man who wrote the plays.

There is no record that William Shakespeare — as Ogburn spells the Stratford man's name — went to school, and there was no outpouring of tributes when he died, Ogburn says.

Books

In his will, the Stratford man makes no reference to a library or to any book. And of all the writing which supposedly flowed from his pen, Ogburn says, only six scrawled signatures survive.

Ogburn does not question that the plays and sonnets were attributed to William Shakespeare, often spelled "Shakespeare." That hyphen, Ogburn says, indicates a pseudonym.

Like most of those who look for another author, Ogburn is convinced that a nobleman adopted the pen name of William Shakespeare. To carry off the deception, a stand-in was needed, and the bumpkin from Stratford served the purpose.

Did Shakespeare go to London, Ogburn asks, endeavoring "to palm himself off as the unknown poet and dramatist, knowing that he was safe from denunciations by the lord masked behind the name?"

Shakespeare returned to Stratford a rich man in 1598 at the same time "William" Shakespeare "became known as the author of several plays, Ogburn says.

Before she died in 1612, the Earl's second wife bequeathed a quarterly payment "to my dumble (dumb) man." That, Ogburn argues, was hush money for Shakespeare.

Questions about the authorship of Shakespeare's works have popped up for centuries, and the candidates include Bacon, Marlowe and William Stanley, Earle of Derby.

Oxford was the favorite of John Thomas Looney, pronounced "low-nee," who published his theory as "Shakespeare Identified" in 1920.

Ogburn builds on Looney's work, arguing that the identification of Shakespeare with Stratford is the fruit of an elaborate cover-up staged by Oxford's "followers," including Cecil Lord Burghley, First Minister and Lord Treasurer of Queen Elizabeth I.

The cover-up supposedly worked until Looney cracked the case in 1920. If you believe Ogburn, though, servants were winking and smirking about the Stratford deception "even before it surfaces."

Ogburn finds evidence that the famous Shakespeare portrait which adorns the First Folio edition of the plays depicts the face as a mask — a purposeful giveaway of the fraud.

One problem for the Earl's partisans is that he apparently did his best work in the grave: He died June 24, 1604, two years before the conventional date of "Macbeth" and three years before "King Lear." Ogburn generally dates the plays earlier.

"Prove to me that these plays were all written before 1604, and I'll change my name from a Shakespearean to an Oxfordian," said Louis Marder, editor of the Shakespeare Newsletter and professor emeritus at the University of Illinois-Chicago. He calls Ogburn's arguments "wishful thinking."

Robert Groux, in the New York Times Book Review, called the book "long-winded and obsessive."

"Yes, much of the comment on Ogburn's book has been milder and even a bit appreciative."

"Mr. Ogburn bends the evidence and is sometimes inaccurate, but... he asks disconcerting questions that Stratfordians have tended to shrug off as unimportant."

Professor E.A.J. Honigman of the University of Newcastle upon Tyne wrote in the New York Review of Books:

"Companionship" always comes out first in those surveys that ask large samplings of citizens what they most want out of marriage. Generally listed after that are Love and War man, are reciprocated love, intellectual stimulation is frequently tossed in, too, wistfully.

Daily Horoscope

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Generally speaking, this is quite a difficult day as most everyone will be in a contentious mood and ready to argue at the drop of a hat, so keep tactful and diplomatic.

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Show that you are an A-1 citizen and keep any promises you have made to the letter. If you let a higher-up, you may be a whipping boy.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You want to get into new activities you know little about, but be wise, and study into them carefully first.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You are eager to complete some business affairs, but don't be forceful or you could lose out where it counts the most.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Your partners may want to make revisions to several agreements you have reached, but this would be detrimental.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) Re-check your work today and be sure it is handled precisely, otherwise, you can get into trouble if you made any mistakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) Be more considerate of the wishes of kin and help them to gain them and thereby avoid an argument.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Plan just how to handle your outside affairs more skillfully and organize your work much better.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) You may get a sudden idea how best to add to your abundance but don't take any risks that could prove costly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You may feel disgruntled because you think your personal life is not going as you would like it to.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Since you are an expert, you like to make direct comments, but be careful you do not hurt others' feelings today.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) You have several personal goals you want to reach, but do only the preparatory work on them now.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY, he or she will have to solve many a practical problem, so be sure to give an education slanted along trouble shooting lines. Be sure to teach early that a spirit of cooperation is needed in order to get the best results when dealing with others, even if the nature is a pugnacious one.

Glenda Jackson talks of love, looks and life on the stage

NEW YORK — Glenda Jackson takes a Dunhill from a fresh pack and lights it, exhaling the smoke through a garbionic grin, propping her leather-booted feet on the glass-top coffee table.

"Men," she sneers, "are an awful lot of trouble for very little reward. I mean this," she says, "collected in her Manhattan hotel suite one morning. It's not their fault. They need so much just to stay on an even keel."

The 48-year-old British actress, once divorced and twice Oscarred, is currently starring as the mercurial Nina Leeds in the marathon, five-hour "Broadway revival" of Eugene O'Neill's "Strange Interlude."

She is severe in the point of being spartan. In gray corduroy slacks and a ribby sweater the color of a Pittsburgh sky, with a maroon muffler slung around her neck. Her face is scrubbed clean, as if it had been scoured with a Brillo pad, there's a cold sore on the left corner of her upper lip, and her brown eyes are as small and flat as a rodent's. Her dull hair is lopped off at the chin in a pudding-bowl cut.

On the night in 1970 when she won her first Academy Award, for her portrayal of Gudrun in the film version of D.H. Lawrence's "Women in Love," Bette Davis placed a congratulatory transatlantic call to Jackson, saying, "We're the same. We've both got funny faces."

She puffs on the cigarette. "I did in my youth, yeh that I were prettier, yes," she says. "Professionally, I think that I am quite grateful that my face is the way it is. Because it's sufficiently wipeable."

Jackson's undorned appearance may allow her the "wipeability" she has always sought, but her voice commands attention. So low and throaty and utterly unmistakable, a stormy marriage of lower and upper class, a lorry driver gone to Cambridge. Her delivery is rapid, her phrasing a very offering of acerbic, prickly verbiage.

She describes herself as "deeply ironical," "bossy and impatient." Others have called her "arrogant," "I think sometimes she's too tough," says Brian Cox, who plays the part of Nina's lover, Ned Darrell. "But she's also tough on herself. She is a Protestant, working-class Englishwoman. She's a perfectionist to the tip of her toes." He laughs. "She doesn't take any prisoners."

"It has been a very tough rehearsal period," agrees Edward Fetherbridge, appearing in the part of Nina's faithful friend, Charles Marsden. "There have been some clashes of opinion." The atmosphere, he says, has at times been "hostile."

"Glenda suspects the commodity of charm," explains Fetherbridge, who now considers Jackson a friend. "She feels it is often used for the wrong reason. She once said to me, 'It's probably because I don't have any.'"

In spite of what she sees as her own lack of seductive powers, and despite her rather ordinary looks, she has fashioned a successful stage and screen career out of playing fiercely independent women from opposite ends of the feminist food chain — from regal rulers (the BBC's "Elizabeth R," "Mary Queen of Scots") to independent divorcee ("A Touch of Class," "Sunday Bloody Sunday") to a gifted artist ("Stevie") to neurotic mistiffs ("Marat-Sade," "The Music Lovers").

Her portrayal of Nina, O'Neill's willful, sardonic "everywoman" who turns her grief at the loss of a fiance into bitterness, eventually manipulating every man she encounters — husband, lover, son and finally faithful friend and father figure — has inspired a critical skirmish amont the New York theaterist.

Exhibit

Studying both independently and with teachers Lee Parkinson, Olaf Moeber and Marilyn Fink. Boyd began exhibiting her work in 1977 and has exhibited at the Little Wood River Gallery, Wise Owl Gallery, First Security and First Interstate banking systems and numerous state and federal offices.

For the Haversen's display, Boyd plans to hang 15 paintings, all with Idaho wildlife or outdoor themes.

"But, you have to want it to be willing to put energy into it before you can do it," she cautions.

The exhibit opens Monday at 242

Main Ave. N. Gallery hours are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday-Friday and 9 a.m. to noon on Saturday.

Featuring the Father's Priority Area and both the Big Wood River and Little Wood River.

The artist says she primarily paints in oils because the rich and lustrous qualities of the medium give her a means for playing with the effects of light that other media cannot.

Boyd says she travels extensively for research but does her actual painting in her studio in Gooding, adding that painting is "two-thirds plan, one-third painting."

"When I'm sketching and taking photos," she says, "I'm attempting to gather all the relevant facts. But, when I start painting, I attempt to work more from the subconscious. The creative process and the intellectual process are different, but inseparable."

Boyd has encouraging words for other latecomers to art, claiming talent is only 10 percent of the battle, and that anybody willing to apply themselves to the other 90 percent — hard work — can learn to paint.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category in the place of the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13." Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G General Audiences; all ages admitted.
- PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.
- PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

'Creative intelligence in its various forms and activities is what makes man.'

- James H. Robinson.

The plodding dealer takes his aces and kings, and hopes that all will turn out well.

Hand South bid three no-trump instead of five diamonds, he would have had no need for creativity.

However, he intended his bid to be a slam-interest, a doubtful move, no partnerships.

West leads the queen of hearts and the ace of the game tests with South's play at trick one.

South makes his game by giving himself a better chance in clubs. He allows West to hold the heart queen and wins West's continuation with his king.
