Reagan, senators agree on budget

By DAVID ESPO
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan and Senate Republican leaders, bidding to gain control over federal deficits, agreed Thursday on a budget compromise.

The terms agreed upon would slow the rise in Social Security benefits, scale back the defense buildup and cut deeply into politically popular domestic programs.

In addition to the Social Security change, the plan calls for eliminating the federal subsidy for Amtrak, imposing a freeze in Medicare payments and making cuts in dozens of farm, education, health and other federal programs.

The proposal would trim an estimated $65 billion from Reagan's defense buildup over the next three years, but still permit Pentagon budget authority to rise by 3 percent a year after inflation through 1990.

The Social Security change would hold the cost-of-living increase to two percentage points for each of the next three years. Any inflationary increase above 4 percent would be covered with an additional increase in the benefit.

In all, the plan would trim $32 billion from next year's projected deficit of $230 billion, and $295 billion over three years. Red ink would decline from $175 billion in 1986 to $99 billion in 1988.

White House chief of staff Donald T. Regan called the compromise plan "the most ambitious budget reduction plan in post-war history" and said the president "is committed to this package and he intends to fight for passage in both houses" of Congress.

Outlining the various elements of the proposal Reagan said it would eliminate 17 federal programs and reduce 30 others, ranging from farm price supports to highway construction to Coast Guard operations.

"It's a very tough package," Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., the Senate Budget Committee chairman, said as the agreement was announced after several days of private negotiations between Senate GOP leaders and White House aides.

"It's tough medicine for a tough time," Senate Republican Leader Robert C. Dole of Kansas said Reagan would formally endorse the package later in the day. "He's fully aboard. He's going to be an enthusiastic player in this," Dole said of the president.

Dole defended the proposal against an attack that it is certain to come when the full Senate begins debate later this month, saying that "overall, the package represents a balanced and reasonable approach to deficit reduction."

In effect, the budget represented a trade-off between Reagan's demand for deep domestic

Reconstructed in Jerusalem Pilgrims join in Passover supper

By EARLEEN F. TATRO
The Associated Press

JERUSALEM — The pilgrims lounged on cushions and pulled flat circles of unleavened bread from straw baskets on the low table in front of them.

Small clay lamps filled with oil cast flickering shadows on the whitewashed walls of the old stone house.

"This bread is also your silverware. You hold it with your hands and lift it to the heavens to show respect. Our way of saying 'amen' is to take a piece of the bread and eat it," a young Christian minister told the visitors.

The scene was a reconstruction of the Last Supper, when Jesus and his 12 disciples came to Jerusalem to celebrate Passover, which marks the Exodus of the Israelites from Egypt.

The meal consisted of the foods eaten in Jesus' time. Placed at intervals along the table were bowls of dried fruits, nuts and the meat-and-vegetable stew, the New Testament Gospels call "soup."

There were such traditional components of the Passover feast as bitter herbs and horseradish, an appleauce-like mixture containing ground nuts and raisins.

The Rev. James Martin, a 32-year-old native of Wichita, Kan., reminded the 36 American Christians that Jesus and his disciples were Jews who observed Jewish holidays and customs, including the dietary laws. "They kept Passover. They did not give up Judaism," he said.

"The bitter herb reminds us of our bondage in Egypt. The horseradish represents mud, to remind us of the mud bricks in Egypt," he said.

Martin debunked the traditional depictions of the Last Supper, such as the famous painting by Leonardo da Vinci, which shows Christ and 12 apostles seated on benches around a table.

"You see the disciples sitting at European tables with European clothes, and with European halos," he said, drawing laughs from his attentive audience.

"But in Jesus' time, the Passover meal was eaten at a triclinium, a three-sided reclining table. You stretched out on the cushions, propped yourself up with your left elbow and ate with your right hand."

Martin did not require the diners to go to this length, and most sat cross-legged along the white marble table's three sides. For one thing, he pointed out, the meal would have to last six to eight hours if it were to be a historically correct reconstruction of the Passover feast of Jesus' time.

Despite those liberties, he tried to set the proper atmosphere.

"We have to burn incense," he said. "Remember, we keep sheep and goats in our house."

When a water carafe, copper basin and towel were passed around for the washing of hands, Martin cautioned his audience not to waste water. "Remember, I had to go to the Siloam Spring or the cistern to get this. I didn't get it from the tap."

One of the participants, 67-year-old Bernadine Reel of Lufkin, Texas, said the 2½-hour Passover talk and meal had made the Bible come alive. "Today was so wonderful," she said. "Things I have never understood before are clear now. It helped us know more about Jesus, and that's why it's so important."

Martin, who was ordained in the Evangelical Presbyterian Church, is a member of the staff of the interdenominational Jerusalem Center for Biblical Studies, which for $10 a person reconstructs the Last Supper for pilgrims and tourists.

Peace offer aired

By TERENCE HUNT
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan called Thursday for a ceasefire and peace negotiations in Nicaragua.

He also warned that he would seek a resumption of military aid to rebel forces if the ruling leftists do not agree to a settlement within 60 days after opening negotiations.

Nicaragua promptly rejected Reagan's plan, terming it a "public relations maneuver" and vowing that "the government of Nicaragua will never negotiate" with the anti-Sandinista rebels.

In calling for the ceasefire and negotiations, Reagan urged Congress to release $14 million in aid to the rebels. Congress refused last year to appropriate any more money to support them.

"While the ceasefire offer is on the table, I pledge these funds will not be used for arms or munitions," Reagan said. He said the money would pay for food, clothing, medicine and "other support for survival."

His proposal represented a new strategy in the face of overwhelming congressional opposition to military aid for the rebels fighting the Nicaraguan government. But one Democratic congressional leader called Reagan's statement "old wine in new bottles."

A ceasefire proposal by Nicaraguan opposition groups sets April 20 as the deadline for the government to agree to peace talks. The Sandinistas have rejected the offer, and Reagan asked the rebels to extend it until June 1.

Reagan said the "communists in Nicaragua have turned, at least up until now, a cold shoulder to appeals for national reconciliation from the pope and the Nicaraguan bishops. And we know that without incentives, none of this will change."

Dick Converse tells of a new direction for the plant

Employees ready bid to buy plant

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Employees at the E.F. Johnson Co.'s electronics plant and some influential Twin Falls business leaders will make a bid to buy the factory and avert its closing at the end of the year.

Dick Converse, general manager for the plant, said Thursday that the new group plans to start up a new company — being named early next week — and to purchase the plant using a $1 million financing package.

"We have considerable assurance from the financial community here that we can put a viable plan together," he said.

Converse also said top executives of Minnesota-based E.F. Johnson Co. have indicated "serious interest" in a proposal.

The plant, which has been manufacturing mobile telephone components for the past two years, was due to be shut by the end of 1985 as a result of a sale of the E.F. Johnson Co. itself. It employs 90 workers.

Johnson's parent, telecommunications giant Western Union Corp., announced last week it is selling the electronics company to Diversified-Energies Inc. of Minneapolis for $28 million cash and $10 million worth of retained assets as of April 30. DEI will own the company, but Western Union still would retain the Twin Falls property.

However, DEI executives subsequently announced they will phase out Johnson's manufacturing operations and ship all production equipment back to the company's Midwestern factories.

Converse and Darney Carlson, chairman of an emergency task force convened by the Greater Twin Falls Area Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday they cannot disclose particulars of the buy-out.

Baker seeks to quell demands for sanctions

By CLIFF HAAS
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Saying the loser in a trade war may be the United States, Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III tried Thursday to quell congressional demands for trade sanctions against Japan.

"We do need more access to Japanese markets for beef and agricultural products and telecommunications and a lot of other things," Baker told the Senate Appropriations subcommittee on foreign operations. "I'm just not sure that the way to get there is to have an all-out trade war."

"I'm not sure we'd win that," he cautioned.

However, the senators appeared unmoved by Baker's comments.

Baker testified as officials from both countries continue talks aimed at easing trade tensions between the two countries.

Reishi Teshima, Japan's deputy foreign minister for economic affairs, arrived in Washington on Thursday for talks with administration and congressional officials to brief them on Japan's view of the situation. In addition, Japanese Foreign Minister Shintaro Abe has scheduled a meeting April 13 with Secretary of State George Shultz.

A spokeswoman for the Japanese consulate in San Francisco had said Nobuo Matsunaga, the Japanese ambassador to the United States, would not attend ceremonies dedicating a Joint General Motors Corp.-Toyota Motor Co. plant in Fremont, Calif.

However, officials later said Matsunaga changed his mind. He arrived in California later in the day.

Baker, meanwhile, told the senators President Reagan is eager to secure an agreement at the May summit of the major industrial nations to set up a new round of international trade talks. Congressional action restricting imports from Japan would make that impossible, he added.

Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., asked Baker what was wrong with a flat prohibition against any Japanese goods coming into this country in excess of what they permit the United States to export to Japan.

Two jumbo jets nearly collide

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A "very rare close call" in which two jumbo jets nearly collided at Minneapolis-St. Paul International Airport is being investigated by federal officials for possible air traffic controller error and hazards from a snowstorm. After being cleared for takeoff Sunday, the pilot of a Northwest Airlines DC-10 spotted another Northwest DC-10 crossing the runway in front of his plane, and he "gunned it," raising his plane 50 to 200 feet over the other, officials said. The pilot could not brake because of snow on the runway. More than 400 people were aboard the jets.

Deficit worries Americans

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine of 10 Americans view the government deficit as a serious threat and 65 percent are fed up with the federal income tax, pollster Louis Harris said Friday. He said most people are willing to give up some personal tax breaks to correct both problems. Harris told Congress' Joint Economic Committee that most of the 1,255 adults he surveyed would give top priority to significantly reducing the deficit, which is running in the range of $200 billion a year. But the people want both, he said.

Teamsters' contract assailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of Teamster dissidents said Thursday the new national freight contract makes so many concessions to the trucking industry that it ought to be voted down by the union rank and file. The tentative three-year pact reached Sunday takes power away from Teamster locals, falls to stem the proliferation of non-union trucking companies and in some cases burdens union members with pension payments formerly made by employers, said Ken Paff, an organizer for the Detroit-based Teamsters for a Democratic Union. In addition, said the 8,000-member TDU, the contract knocks out the cost-of-living allowance and for the first time in its 25-year history, the National Master Freight Agreement would allow hiring of cut-rate, part-time workers and pay new full-time employees 30 percent less than veteran workers.

Departments deny dispute

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State and Defense departments denied Thursday that their bosses were locked in a dispute over how tough a line to take in dealing with the Soviet Union over last month's slaying of an Army intelligence officer. The denial at the Pentagon was accompanied, however, by a renewed emphasis on the need for a Soviet apology, leaving unclear whether Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger is prepared to back a meeting between U.S. and Soviet military leaders to discuss the shooting unless an apology is offered first. The question of a dispute between Weinberger and Secretary of State George P. Shultz arose Tuesday when Weinberger, using much blunter language than that employed by the State Department, describing the shooting of Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson as a calculated act that amounted to an expression of Soviet policy.

CBS board blunts takeovers

NEW YORK (AP) — CBS Inc., the reported target of a takeover attempt, said Thursday its board of directors has amended the company's bylaws to restrict the conditions under which a special meeting of shareholders could be called. CBS refused to comment on the reason for its action. The move came after an announcement last week by the group Fairness in Media that, although it would not mount a proxy battle at the CBS' annual shareholder meeting in Chicago on April 17, it might seek a special meeting in the future.

Students' sit-in gets results

AMHERST, Mass. (AP) — A four-day sit-in at the University of Massachusetts ended Thursday when school officials agreed to investigate complaints that the university violated its policy of divesting from firms that do business in South Africa. After signing an agreement with university officials, about 50 students marched from the White House Administration Building to the Student Union, hugging each other and cheering.

Onetime Viet waif named top teacher

Therese Dozier Adopted by U.S. soldier

WASHINGTON (AP) — A woman abandoned as a waif in Vietnam and adopted by an American soldier has won the U.S. teaching profession's highest honor: the 1985 National Teacher of the Year award. Therese Knecht-Dozier, 32, who teaches world history to 10th graders at Irmo High School in Columbia, S.C., will be honored in Washington on April 17. The South Carolina teacher had previously been named a finalist in the competition against winners from all 50 states. Word of her selection leaked prematurely Thursday when a public relations company sent out a letter filled with details about the winner.

Mrs. Dozier was born in Saigon to a Vietnamese woman and a German man who had been a colonel in Hitler's Waffen SS and fled Germany in the closing days of World War II when the allies were arresting Nazi officers. "He tried to hide his identity by joining the French Foreign Legion," she said last fall. He was sent to French Indochina, where Vietnamese insurgents were then fighting to end France's colonial rule. "There he met the boy there and 'fell in love,'" she said. Her mother died after bearing her and a younger brother.

"My father sold my brother and me to a Chinese businessman who planned to sell us to a childless Chinese couple," she said. But French authorities began searching for the children and the Chinese said: "Teaching is my way of repaying the debt."

They couple adopted them and brought them to America in 1954, when she was two years old. They reportedly were the first Vietnamese children adopted by Americans. "I have always been conscious of my adoption," she said. "I have always been given a chance to make something out of myself," she has said. "Teaching is my way of repaying the debt."

Audit shows excesses in Pentagon payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new audit ordered by Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger last month has identified $154 million worth of excess overhead claims paid to General Dynamics Corp., the Pentagon said Thursday.

That amount, when added to another $90 million in alleged excessive claims for which the government is withholding payment, brings to $244 million the total of "unallowable" bills submitted by the giant defense contractor, Pentagon spokesman Michael I. Burch said.

"We've had a team of 20 auditors who have been reviewing all of General Dynamics' overhead claims and cross-checking them against the billings that have been submitted," Burch said. "To summarize the report of the audit team, they found that we need to go back to recoup $154 million to adequately protect the government's interests."

"If the corporation wants to contest the audit, they may do so; but we will be holding the money," he said. "This $154 million is in addition to the $90 million that we've already held back from previous audits for such unallowable expenses as the dog kennel."

"So if you were to add the $90 million with the $154 million, overall then the government will receive a total of $244 million in payment for overcharges."

Radar jammer work doubled

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, while producing joint radar jamming equipment with the Navy, is wasting $3 billion by also developing its own system for some combat aircraft, congressional investigators said Thursday.

"It's simply a proliferation of jammers," Frank C. Conahan, director of the national security and international affairs division of the General Accounting Office, told a House Government Operations subcommittee. Committee Chairman Jack Brooks, D-Texas, said the military services "do as they please" after getting their money and contented the Pentagon philosophy is, "We make money the old fashioned way — we put it in cost overruns."

Brooks also held up an outer covering from a current Air Force jammer, which he said had buckled in flight and was indicative of serious problems with the equipment.

Conahan said the Air Force is replacing the older version with a new model of the same jammer, without operational testing to make certain the same problems won't recur. Air Force officials responded to the accusations in closed session, requesting the secrecy on grounds that some of the information was classified.

Chrysler faces fine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chrysler Corp., in one of the largest fines ever imposed under the Clean Water Act, will pay $1.5 million to settle an anti-pollution suit, it was announced Thursday.

In a proposed consent decree to resolve a civil complaint brought by the Justice Department on behalf of the Environmental Protection Agency, the nation's No. 3 automaker did not admit violating any laws.

Neo-Nazi charged in Idaho complaint

BOISE (AP) — A white supremacist arrested in North Carolina has been charged in Idaho on counterfeiting and robbery-related charges.

According to a motion filed Wednesday in federal court in Greensboro, N.C., officials filed a complaint against David E. Lane, 46, in federal court in Idaho earlier in the week.

Lane was charged with one count of "aiding and abetting" and of "being an accessory after the fact" to the robbery of an armored car in Ukiah, Calif., on July 19.

The former Aryan Nations member also was charged with two counts of conspiracy to counterfeit and one count of receiving stolen money. The complaint alleged the violations occurred between Dec. 1, 1983 and Aug. 31, 1984.

A warrant for Lane's arrest, based on the Idaho complaint, was filed in federal court in Idaho, the North Carolina motion said.

U.S. Attorney Kenneth McAllister of Greensboro cited the Idaho information to support his motion that Lane continue to be held in North Carolina without bond. McAllister will urge a federal judge to make that order at Lane's detention hearing in Greensboro on Friday.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Howen in Boise would neither confirm nor deny the existence of the Idaho-based complaint and warrant.

Lane were reported in the Thursday editions of The Idaho Statesman. Lane was arrested Saturday at a shopping mall in Winston-Salem, N.C., on a Pennsylvania warrant of passing counterfeit money.

Governors supportive of Idaho say in treaty

BOISE (AP) — The governors of Oregon and Washington have added their voices to a promise that Idaho will have a say in carrying out the United States-Canada Pacific Salmon Treaty.

Oregon Gov. Vic Attyeh and Washington Gov. Booth Gardner said they support a provision calling for Idaho to be invited to meetings of the Pacific Salmon Commission and the U.S. section of a fishery panel.

Idaho doesn't have an official vote in treaty matters. However, the state's representation in meetings was spelled out last month when the Senate ratified the treaty, which governs salmon fishing off the Pacific coast and was developed over a period 14 years.

Attyeh and Gardner also have promised to support federal funding for Idaho's participation in meetings of the commission, the panel and an advisory commission.

Prior to treaty ratification, full commission membership was sought by Senators Steve Symms and Jim McClure of Idaho, by Evans and by Idaho Attorney General Jim Jones.

Court upholds birth ruling

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Supreme Court's "wrongful birth" ruling that effectively was reversed by the Legislature has been affirmed by the justices.

The court on Thursday stood by its September opinion declaring that a lawsuit could be filed by a woman who claimed she was not properly informed about possible birth defects, and then gave birth to a severely handicapped child.

Sharron Blake, formerly of Kootenai County, said she requested a test for German measles but didn't get one from her physician, Amado Cruz. Mrs. Blake said she had the disorder, which has been linked to birth defects, but it was not diagnosed by Cruz. She later gave birth to a multiply handicapped daughter. Mrs. Blake said she would have terminated the pregnancy had she known the possible outcome.

That ruling reversed a 2nd District Court judgment that favored Cruz, and the justices sent the case back to test for German measles but didn't the district court for trial.

Sheriff doubts danger

COEUR D'ALENE (AP) -- Kootenai County Sheriff Floyd "Merl" Stalder says FBI Director William Webster is wrong in assessing the potential danger of northern Idaho's white supremacist Church of Jesus Christ Christian Aryan Nations organization.

Webster, appearing before the Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Security and Terrorism on Wednesday, described the Aryan Nations group — and its violent neo-Nazi offshoot, the Order — as being "more dangerous than the (Ku Klux) Klan groups from which they emanated." Stalder said he believes some of the potential for violence may be diffusing. He met last week with some personnel at the Aryans' 15-building compound north of Hayden Lake, and toured the complex with two county building inspectors.

There was "no showing of resistance or confrontation," he said. During an inspection in March 1984, a number of people with firearms were conducting marching drills, Stalder said.

The image portraying Kootenai County as having "a whole bunch of terrorists" is false, Stalder said. About 50 of the more passive members of the Aryan Nations are involved with the Hayden Lake church, but they are not generally members of the more violent offshoots, he added.

AT&T argues rate hike

BOISE (AP) — Claims that AT&T Communications hasn't justified its requested $4.4 million Idaho rate increase are groundless, the company said Thursday as state regulators opened the final hearing on the rate proposal.

Idaho Public Utilities Commission staff members took the witness stand for questioning by AT&T, which says its proposed 41 percent rate increase is based on the company's Idaho losses. The PUC staff has recommended AT&T receive only a $2.6 million increase.

PUC Auditor Darryl Young said in prefilled testimony that AT&T hasn't supplied full documentation to show why its entire request should be granted.

Young said he arrived at the $2.6 million recommendation after observing "problems and discrepancies" in AT&T's financial statements and other documents.

But AT&T spokesman Art Bouffard said there is no basis for that claim.

"We have made our books available to them and have spent countless hours with the (PUC) staff," Bouffard said during a break in the hearing. "We think every effort has been made."

Demos plan panel

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Democrats want to make certain voters get both sides of the issues in the next political campaign.

So State Chairman Mel Morgan has appointed Twin Falls attorney Lloyd Walker as chairman of a new "Fairness Committee."

Morgan said Walker will "ably and forcefully speak out on issues of concern to all Idaho Democrats." Walker is a former state party chairman.

Other members of the committee will be announced later. "He and other members of his committee will be pointing out to Idahoans facts that otherwise would not be brought to their attention," said Morgan.

Gardner returns to prison after spree

By BOB MIMS
The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — Ronnie Lee Gardner was returned to Utah State Prison Thursday, two days after his abortive and bloody-escape bid left an attorney dead and a bailiff seriously wounded.

Gardner had been admitted to University of Utah Health Sciences Center Tuesday for treatment of a gunshot wound to the right shoulder. Under heavy guard, the 23-year-old inmate was transferred Thursday morning to Utah State Prison at Point of the Mountain.

"He's in a secure cell in the medium security hospital with an extra officer-on-duty—in addition to the regular hospital staff," said Warren Ken Stulson. "We will double security on him all of the time we're with him so the whole situation is secure and safe."

Meantime, Salt Lake County Attorney Ted Cannon said charges against Gardner and a female accomplice were still pending Thursday.

"It's all under, continuing investigation at the present time. Charges will be forthcoming, but not today," he said.

His lands, the 23-year-old inmate, he said, was transferred in front of him, was being escorted Tuesday to a court hearing in the Metropolitan Hall of Justice on an earlier murder charge when a woman slipped him a handgun.

A guard pumped a .38-caliber slug into Gardner, but the inmate still managed to embark on a brief shooting spree before being surrounded by police and forced to surrender outside the court complex, detectives said.

Police ready Ronnie Gardner for transport to hospital

Blood streaming from his shoulder, Gardner bolted into a court records room and shot Salt Lake City attorney Michael Burdell in the head. Burdell, 36, died a short time later, police said.

Also wounded was bailiff George N. Kirk, 50, who was shot in the lower abdomen. He was in satisfactory condition Thursday at LDS

Hospital. Within moments of Gardner's botched bid for freedom, police were looking for a woman who had given the inmate a 22-caliber revolver and apparently had left men's clothing under a sink in the women's restroom.

Darcy Perry, 34, described by Salt Lake County Sheriff Pete Hayward as having a "boyfriend-girlfriend relationship" with Gardner, was arrested an hour after the bloodshed.

Ms. Perry remained in Salt Lake County Jail Thursday. She was being held without bail "for investigation of complicity in a homicide," Cannon said.

Carma Luella Jolley, Ms. Perry's sister, was arrested at the same time as her sister on a petty larceny warrant. She participated in a police lineup with Ms. Perry Wednesday and was later released after posting $605 bail, Cannon said.

Ms. Perry had been granted immunity for her testimony against Gardner during a January preliminary hearing which resulted in Gardner's being bound over for trial on a first-degree murder charge.

Ms. Perry has refused to cooperate with detectives when questioned about the escape attempt, authorities said.

Gardner is accused of shooting a bartender in the face during a robbery at a local tavern last October while he was an escapee from Utah State Prison.

In August, Gardner overpowered a guard while being examined at the University hospital and forced a hospital employee to drive him away on a motorcycle. He remained at large until his arrest Nov. 1.

Tribal employment effort gets results

SPOKANE (AP) — When Cap Hughes, of the Shoshone-Bannock Tribes of southeast Idaho first tried to enforce the tribes' employment rights at the giant FMC Corp. phosphorus plant on the reservation, he was escorted from the plant by security officers.

Now, four years later, plant personnel manager Richard Scott says, "If I have an opening, I call Cap first."

At first the idea that the tribe would try to tell it whom to hire was threatening to FMC. But Hughes insisted the tribe was intent on enforcing its new employment rights ordinance, which said all private firms operating on the reservation would give hiring preference to Indians.

About 30 Indians are on FMC's 585-person payroll, compared to four in 1981, Hughes said. Ninety percent of the new hires during that time have been Indians.

This Indian version of affirmative action is one way tribes are trying to improve their economic status. This week, tribal leaders and industry representatives from the Northwest attended the fourth annual TERO (Tribal Employment Rights Office) Conference to discuss a variety of economic development strategies.

Sixteen Northwest tribes have TERO offices, while 71 tribes nationwide have them.

The purpose of TERO ordinances is to give tribes a tool for controlling private sector operations on the reservation, whether they're building projects or mineral development ventures, and making sure they function for the good of the tribe as well as the employer, said Hughes.

"We're in the business of capturing all of those on-reservation positions that traditionally have been filled by off-reservation residents," said Hughes, chairman of the TERO national board of directors.

TERO also promotes Indian job prospects by trying to attract industry to reservations and improve Indian business skills to enable them to create new opportunities, said Conrad Edwards of Seattle, TERO executive director.

"Human resources are the largest untapped resource on any reservation in this country," Edwards said.

Jacob Cain of Phoenix' head of business and socioeconomic development for the national Council for Tribal Employment Rights, cited as an example of a successful TERO project the case of the Hopi Indians of Arizona and electronics giant Hewlett-Packard Corp.

Hewlett-Packard worked with the Hopis to develop a sub-assembly manufacturing plant on the reservation. The tribe eventually took it over, and finally sold it to an Indian manager trained by Hewlett-Packard.

The company now has 30 employees and is servicing contracts with a variety of industrial clients.

Cain said TERO is funded by federal dollars funneled through the Administration for Native Americans, with 20-percent support from private corporations such as IBM, Motorola and Hughes Aircraft. TERO has tried to work closely with private industry and business organizations, he said.

TV star Haggerty given 90-day jail sentence

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Grizzly Adams" television star Dan Haggerty, now reported to have cancer, was sentenced Thursday to 90 days in jail and placed on three years' probation for selling cocaine to undercover police officers.

Superior Court Judge Aurelio Munoz also ordered Haggerty to do 200 hours of community service and to undergo periodic drug testing.

"I am imposing the 90 days mostly because I have to treat all people the same," he said, noting that many poor defendants who appeared before him had received similar sentences for similar crimes.

Haggerty, 41, said that was unfair, claiming he had been singled out by undercover officers initially.

Haggerty was convicted March 8 of selling an eighth of an ounce of cocaine to undercover police officers. He admitted selling the drug but testified he did so only after the officers befriended him, then badgered him for cocaine.

Munoz stayed the sentence pending an appeal by Haggerty's lawyer.

Haggerty's lawyer, W. Michael Mayo, had pleaded for Haggerty's release on probation, noting that he has family to support and is ill.

Mayo said doctors this week determined that a mole on Haggerty's shoulder is cancerous. He said surgery is planned next week.

Munoz stayed the sentence pending an appeal by Haggerty's lawyer.

Haggerty's wife, Samantha, held the couple's 11-month-old son, Dylan, at the back of the courtroom as the sentence was pronounced.

Deputy District Attorney David Conn argued for a jail term, saying Haggerty had never admitted responsibility for his actions.

Haggerty said he has been unable to get work in Hollywood because of the stigma attached to his conviction and the possibility he'll go to jail.

Long-haired students back in school

HYRUM, Utah (AP) — Two Mountain Crest High School students, suspended earlier this week for wearing their hair too long, were allowed to return to school after they pulled their hair into pony tails and tied it on top of their heads, Principal Spencer Ward says.

Seniors Scott Hansen and Tony Bassett, were suspended Monday for violating the dress code, which requires male students to keep their hair cut "above the base of the neck."

"There is a due process procedure that could be followed by those who wish to change the code," Ward said.

Meanwhile, several students are circulating petitions to change the dress code; said social science teacher Margaret Obray.

Utah judge confirmed to District Court

WASHINGTON (AP) — J. Thomas Greene, of Salt Lake City, was among the new U.S. District Court judges confirmed unanimously by the Senate Thursday.

The 18 new judges were approved without objection by the Senate Judiciary Committee late Thursday. And shortly after the committee vote, the full Senate approved the list of nominees in the closing minutes of a late night floor session.

Greene, 55, is a past president of the Utah State Bar and is senior partner of a Salt Lake City law firm. He will fill a new judgeship created by Congress last year.

Would-be assassin arrested

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — A colonel in the presidential guard was arrested Thursday and accused of trying to assassinate head of state Samuel K. Doe, state-run Radio Monrovia reported.

It said that the officer, Col. Moses M. Flianzamaton, implicated four political opposition leaders in the attempt Monday, and that all four have been arrested.

The radio quoted Flianzamaton, the presidential guard's deputy commander, as saying the four politicians and a U.S. security adviser in Liberia had promised him $1 million if he succeeded.

It said the adviser, identified only as Mr. Smith, has not been caught.

There has been no confirmation of the purported assassination attempt from independent sources.

Viets free accused yachtsman

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Vietnam on Thursday freed an American yachtsman who was accused of spying and kept in solitary confinement for 21 months. His parents in the United States said they had to pay $10,000 before he was released.

Among those who had interceded, trying to secure Bill Mathers' freedom, were the United Nations, members of the U.S. Congress, and the governments of Australia, Indonesia, France and the Netherlands.

In Cove Neck, N.Y., Mathers' father, Manhattan lawyer William Mathers, told The Associated Press in New York that he paid $10,000 to Vietnam for his son's release.

"I paid it in cold cash—a fine demanded by the Vietnamese government," he said. "I guess they have to call it a fine, or it would be stealing."

Vietnam charged Mathers, 41, with espionage and violating territorial waters. But in Bangkok on his way home to Singapore, Mathers denied he was spying or that his 80-foot schooner, the So Fong, was in Vietnamese waters when it was seized last July 22.

Turkish jet crash kills 14

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An air force jet fighter crashed into a coffeehouse in the western city of Balikesir on Thursday and exploded, starting a fire that raced through a score of shops. Officials said 14 people were killed and 21 injured.

One of the jet's two crew members was among those killed, but the other bailed out when the F-104 Starfighter caught fire during a routine training flight, according to state radio and news agency reports.

The jet crashed about 300 yards from a school filled with about 1,500 students; the news agency Anatolia said.

The semi-official agency also reported that a greater death toll was averted because a meeting of 150 people scheduled for the coffeehouse was canceled earlier in the day.

Japan plans halt to whaling

TOKYO (AP) — Japan will withdraw its objections to an International Whaling Commission resolution calling for a ban on commercial whaling, and will halt such whaling by 1988, a Fishery Agency official said Thursday.

The official, who spoke on condition he not be identified, said the government decision would be announced Friday after a Cabinet meeting.

Japan, Norway, the Soviet Union and Peru lodged objections to the commission's 1982 call for a ban on all commercial whaling throughout the world. The United States threatened a sharp cut in Japan's quotas in the U.S. 200-mile fishing zone if Japan did not halt its whaling.

Brazil's president has surgery

SAO PAULO, Brazil (AP) — President-elect Tancredio Neves underwent his fifth operation in three weeks Thursday and a government spokesman described his condition as critical.

Antonio Brito, the spokesman, told reporters at Sao Paulo's Clinica Hospital that Neves, 75, was on a respirator and surgeons had performed a tracheotomy, making an artificial breathing hole in his windpipe.

He said Neves also was being given heavy doses of antibiotics to combat recurring intestinal infection.

Neves, a retired lieutenant general, was to have become the first civilian president in Brazil after 21 years of military rule.

Libyans protest U.S. 'threats'

TRIPOLI, Libya (AP) — Libya's foreign minister called in envoys from the Soviet Union, China and France to condemn "blatant threats" against Libya by the United States, the official JANA news agency reported.

It said the three nations' envoys were summoned because they are permanent members of the U.N. Security Council. The United States and Libya do not have formal relations.

Suspect captured in agent's murder

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Police, tipped by U.S. authorities, captured the prime suspect in the kidnap-slaying of a U.S. narcotics agent after a brief gunbattle at a country estate Thursday, authorities reported.

Security Minister Benjamin Piza said Costa Rican agents, acting on information from the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration, found Rafael Caro Quintero on an estate close to San Jose's international airport.

Mexican authorities describe Caro Quintero as a major drug trafficker in Guadalajara, Mexico, and say he had vowed many times to kill Enrique Camarena Salazar, a DEA agent who was kidnapped near the U.S. consulate in that city on Feb. 7.

Camarena's badly beaten body, wrapped in a plastic bag, was found on a ranch 60 miles southeast of Guadalajara on March 5. Also found that day was the body of a Mexican pilot who worked for Camarena and was abducted separately on Feb. 7.

No charges have been filed against Caro Quintero in connection with the agent's killing.

Piza said the Costa Rican agents began to stake out the estate Wednesday night. Early Thursday, about 40 civil guardsmen surrounded the property and demanded that Caro Quintero surrender.

"There was a very brief shootout, then he gave up," Piza said, adding that there were no injuries.

Along with Caro Quintero, the agents took into custody four men and a 17-year-old Mexican girl who said she had been kidnapped, Piza said. U.S. sources later identified the girl as Sara Cosie, daughter of a Mexican political official, and said she reportedly was kidnapped last month in Guadalajara.

Son's gift helps mom remember dates

DEAR ABBY: Several times you have suggested in your column that writing material would be a practical gift for an elderly person.

My son, who lives in another state, went one better last Christmas. On a Girl Scout calendar he had marked the birth dates of all my grandchildren and great-grandchildren, and the wedding anniversaries of all the members of my family.

In addition, he sent a beautiful selection of cards appropriate for each occasion. On the envelope in the corner for the stamp, he had penciled the name of the person for whom the card was intended.

He didn't forget the stamps either — even remembering the increase that was due in February 1983.

I cannot think of a more acceptable gift for this 86-year-old lady whose eyesight isn't what it used to be.

All I need to do is add a personal line or two to each card. This may help others who don't know what to send an elderly friend or relative for whom shopping is a chore.

G.J. LUNA HILLS
DEAR G.K.J.: What a thoughtful,

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

generous you are to want to share that idea with others. As my beloved mother used to say, "The apple doesn't fall far from the tree."

DEAR ABBY: Please tell me what the rule is on using Roman numerals for a name. My mother-in-law insists that our infant son should be David Dennis Monroe IV (not his real name).

His father, grandfather and great-grandfather all had the first name David, but each had a different middle name.

I believe it is not correct to use numerals unless the name is exactly the same. I hope you can clear this up, as I find it very pretentious.

Please, sign me
—NO NAME, NO CITY

DEAR NO NAME, NO CITY: No problem. You are right. No numeral (or junior) is used when the middle name is different. The entire name, first, middle and last — must be exactly the same for the first son to be named "Junior," and for a grandson, a great-grandson, etc. — to be named "III," "IV," etc.

DEAR ABBY: I am hurting more right now than I ever have in my whole life. My beloved younger sister died nine months ago. I still can't believe I will never be able to call her on the phone again to gossip and giggle as only sisters do. God, how I miss her!

I asked her doctor what actually killed her, and without batting an eye he said, "Cigarettes." Now I feel so guilty because she took up smoking because I, her older sister, smoked. Thank God, I was able to quit in time. She tried to quit, but it was too late for her.

Her husband and children are inconsolable. I have learned a lot from this terrible experience. A smoker has a lot more to worry about than dying. My sister's stay in the hospital with lung cancer wiped her family out financially.

Abby, why do advertisers make cigarette ads so attractive? Instead, they should run a before and after picture — of a once-beautiful woman vomiting, and bald from radiation therapy.

I know this letter is too long for your column, but it will help just one person to reach into her purse (or his pocket) and throw that pack of cigarettes in the trash. It will be worth it.

—GRIEVING IN GULFPORT, MISS.

(Do you hate to write letters because you don't know what to say? Thank-you notes, sympathy letters, congratulations, how to decline and accept invitations and how to write an interesting letter are included in Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send your name and address clearly printed with a check or money order for $2.50 (this includes postage) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 38922, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.)

Safeguarding milk quality busies inspectors

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — When parents serve their children a glass of milk with their cookies, they take it for granted the milk will be wholesome. The South Central District Health Department has the responsibility of making sure parents have nothing to worry about.

By state law, the State Department of Health and Welfare, a separate state agency, was given the job of inspecting Grade A milk, or milk for drinking purposes. The health and welfare department, however, delegated the job to the health districts.

"We (the districts) are the enforcement arm of Grade A milk inspection," said Jaren Tolman, a district environmentalist in Burley and milk inspection specialist.

The Department of Agriculture has the responsibility of inspecting milk used in dairy products. The eight inspectors in the health districts are kept busy. As of February there were more than 130 dairy farms and five processing plants inspected regularly in the Magic Valley, said Alan Biermann, district director of environmental services.

During the inspections the environmentalists are armed with state regulations, which are similar to those of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration. By using such guidelines, it's possible for Magic Valley milk producers to sell their product outside the state.

Because of the surplus of milk, producers take advantage of the opportunity to sell milk in Utah, western Wyoming, Colorado and Oregon.

Milk inspection begins with the basics — the cow at the dairy farm.

At least once every six months, inspectors check the farm operation for any structural deficiencies, construction and cleanliness. Even the cattle and feed lot are inspected.

"This time of year that's a lot of fun," Tolman said.

The water supply and distribution system also are checked. At least once a year, samples are taken from wells.

"This initial step in the total inspection process may be the key to a good product."

"The problem is that milk is an ideal growth medium for many bacteria." By starting out with a good product, "it's a lot easier to keep them (bacteria) out than to eliminate them. If you have an inferior product you can't make it better by pasteurizing it."

After the cows have done their job, the raw milk normally is transported to a plant for processing. The tankers that haul the milk are inspected also.

Tankers must be well insulated to keep the milk

District fees go uncollected

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — For the second year, the South Central District Health Department has not collected fees for its inspection of dairy operations and processing plants.

Instead of assessing its own fees, it receives a share of money from the state general fund to do the same job.

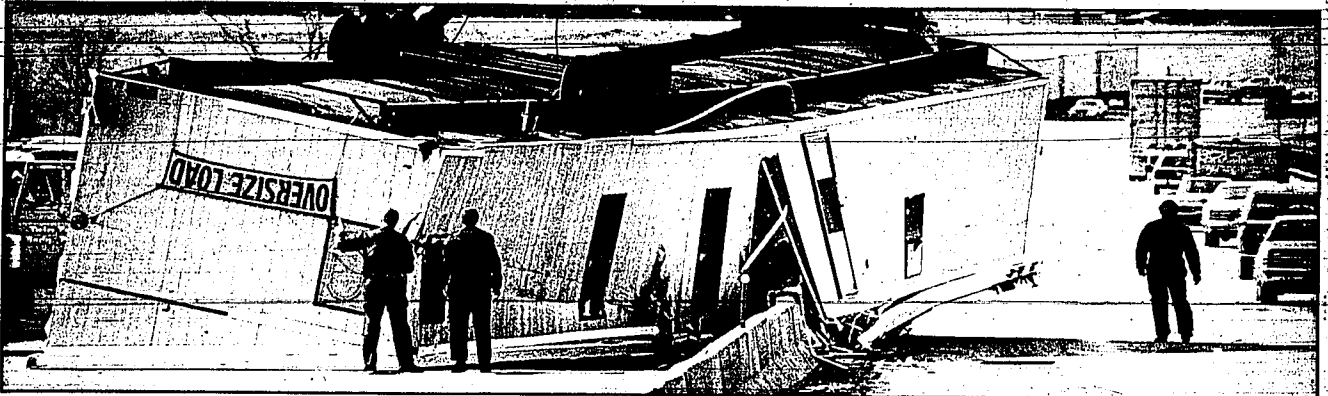

Alan Biermann, the director of environmental services for the district, says the new system is not bad because it took time to collect the fees from the operations. It is expected.

In 1983, the district collected more than $22,000 in fees from the milk and food inspectors.

In 1985, the district's eight environmentalists will inspect about 900 food establishments — which range from ice cream trucks to restaurants — and 145 dairy farms, processing plants and milk

The trailer home was being pulled towards Twin Falls in the southbound lanes, right, when it was struck by a gust of wind and flipped into the northbound lanes of the Perrine Bridge

Winds knock over trailer on bridge

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — One half of a double-wide mobile home was destroyed Thursday morning when a strong gust of wind caught it as it was being towed across the Perrine Memorial Bridge north of Twin Falls.

The westerly wind gust blew the mobile home section over its concrete median, causing it to come to rest on the top in the northbound lanes with one end extending across one of the southbound lanes.

All but one of the southbound lanes of the bridge remained blocked to traffic for about half an hour until the trailer could be moved enough to allow both north and south traffic to pass through the two southbound lanes. It was approximately two hours before the four lanes of bridge were back in service, officers said.

Idaho State Police in Twin Falls reported the incident occurred at 9:23 a.m. as the large mobile home section was being towed south toward Twin Falls behind a truck tractor. Driver of the truck was Clinton Delane Hoyster, 28, of Piko.

There was no damage to the truck and no injuries to the driver, officers said. No citations were issued.

Damage to the 60-foot-long mobile home was estimated at $23,000 or total, officers said. It was owned by Lesbo Trailer Sales of Elko, Nev.

Salvage crews worked until late afternoon dismantling and removing the damaged trailer portions from the scene.

Strong winds were reported in most parts of Magic Valley Thursday, but the heaviest damages were reported. Officers said the evening currents were unusually strong Thursday morning.

Board members' children taken on trip

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Two Twin Falls School Board members took their children out of school this week for a spring trip to Anaheim, Calif., the home of Disneyland.

Four months ago, the school board cut two days from this year's spring break for most students to make up days lost during the fall teacher walk-out. Spring break started Thursday at 1:15 p.m. and school will re-open Monday morning.

Board vice-chairman Gary Fay and board member Robert Knighton took their children and wives with them this week when they joined Superintendent Carl Snow and treasurer Jenny Dougherty in Anaheim for a five-day convention of the National Association of School Boards, says Snow.

Air travel for Snow and Dougherty cost about $130 each round trip on a special low fare, Snow said. Dougherty says the board members were each given $200 travel expenses and that they drove to Anaheim with their families. Snow said Fay drove with two children and his wife, and Knighton drove with three children and his wife.

The district spent $900 for motel rooms at the convention, but no extra rooms for the board members' children were paid for by the district, says Dougherty. Snow says the board members' wives and children's expenses were picked up by the board members themselves, and that he paid all his wife's expenses at the convention.

"Those attendees also received a meal allowance," Snow said.

Snow said Thursday the featured speakers at the convention were former President Gerald Ford and ex-United States Secretary of State Alexander Haig.

Ford spoke about the importance of local control and the school boards, Snow said. Haig spoke on the state of the union and the excellence of the United States educational system compared with those in other countries, Snow said.

Dougherty said, "The board members on Monday night, but found it too crowded and never went back."

He says he attended workshops on excellence in education and on creative funding solutions for small schools. He says meeting with other administrators and board members was informative. "We have less money per-student than anywhere there," Snow said.

"One thing it makes you realize; you're not the only district in the world having problems," Dougherty said. Dougherty said she attended workshops on — product line, financial reports and on managing employee benefit plans.

Snow said the board members were driving back from California Thursday. Knighton and Fay could not be reached for comment.

BOISE — A federal judge last week issued an injunction against several Magic Valley families who were accused of pirating the television signal of Idaho Home Theater in Twin Falls.

Idaho Home Theater attorney Jay Sidweeks of Twin Falls also announced Wednesday that the company had settled out of court with 21 of the 26 defendants for the undisclosed amount of the suit filed in January. The remaining defendants who had not settled with the company had moved or could not be found.

The company filed the litigation in U.S. District Court in Boise, claiming the 26 families were illegally using its signal.

In the complaint, Idaho Home Theater had not only sought an injunction, but $300 in damages from each of the defendants.

On March 22, U.S. District Court Judge Ray McNichols issued an injunction against the defendants.

Bliss city fathers satisfied with IFG response with apology

By TERRILL WILLIAMS
Times-News correspondent

BLISS — City officials didn't get the written public apology they wanted from Idaho Fish and Game Department officers, but Bliss City Council members said Wednesday they're ready to drop the matter.

The apology demand stems from an 1983 poaching incident which resulted in a conviction and fine for a local bar owner. A Fish and Game Department officer later said in a January interview with The Times-News that three-quarters of the people in Bliss apparently knew of a poaching operation in a Bliss bar and didn't report it to authorities. The council denied the statement on behalf of city residents and demanded an apology.

At a public meeting in February, William Webb, Fish and Game supervisor of Region 4, said he was sorry for "ill-chosen" statements made by one of his officers about residents of Bliss. Webb said he thought this apology reported and printed in The Times-News would make amends with the council.

However, the council decided last month Webb had not kept his promise to write a public apology. So the city sent a letter of complaint to Sen. Larry Anderson, R-Twin Falls, Sen. John Peavey, D-Carey, Rep. Gary Robbins, D-Idaho, and Rep. Mack Neibaur, R-Paul.

Mayor Roland Zollinger said Anderson responded with a letter to state Fish and Game officials and a personal visit to Zollinger.

As a result, said Zollinger, Webb wrote a letter of apology to the city.

In response to Webb's letter, councilman Doug Andrews said, "That's a nice letter. He should have had it printed in the paper. So the public could read it."

In other business:

- Zollinger said six people from the city and its impact area are needed to start a city planning and zoning commission. Those interested, he said, should contact a city official.

At the request of local resident Fred Shockey, the council decided to divide streets in East and West and number houses so residents can have street addresses in Bliss.

Councilman Eddie Butler will head the house numbering project.

"The council worked on a new ordinance to control careless or unnecessary firearm discharge within the city limits. Council members said they saw a need for the ordinance after two incidents of gun misuse last summer when street lights were shot out and a gun was fired into the air, reportedly causing a safety hazard. Using gun-firing control laws from three other cities as a guide, council members Andrews, Sam Bishop and Fern Canarrusa are to have a proposed ordinance ready for the council's next meeting.

- Canarrusa said the city has 200 popular trees city residents may buy for 35 cents each. The trees for this city beautification project are from the University of Idaho Forestry Department. Growth rate of the poplars, Canarrusa noted, is about five feet per year.

Charboneau's trial proceeds as planned

JEROME — The first-degree murder trial of Jamie Charboneau, 24, of Jerome is scheduled to begin April 15 in Boise, although the defendant was granted a change in legal representation just less than three weeks ago.

Fifth District Judge Phillip Becker said Thursday that as of now there are no plans to change the trial date. Twin Falls Attorney Randy Stoker, who serves as Jerome County public defender, was appointed by the court to represent Charboneau last month.

Charboneau told the court he was dissatisfied with his legal counsel, Golden Bennett, also of Twin Falls.

However, Bennett said Thursday that he was hired by Charboneau's mother and she has never fired him and wants him to remain on the case. Bennett said he plans to stay on the case in order to assist Stoker, who would have difficulty preparing the case.

School board to get override levy shopping list

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School Board will have a shopping list of $946,456.50 worth of books, asphalt, roofing jobs, and other items to choose from when it meets next week to discuss the size of an override levy for the school district.

Superintendent Carl Snow has developed a ranked list of fund requests worth $625,650 in top priority requests, $416,700 in lower priority requests, and $34,000 in third priority requests. A fourth category of additional requests carries a $1,106.50 price tag.

The board will have to whittle the list down to a price the district's patrons will accept, Snow says.

The most important item on the list is a $150,000 request for textbooks and library books throughout the district, says Snow. He says the annual budget appropriation of about $38,000 will not cover the cost of new textbook adoptions and additions to school libraries.

In addition to the textbook request, the top priority list includes $392,000 worth of roofing projects at three schools, $3,000 in furnace and boiler repair around the district, $35,000 for painting of all schools, $29,000 in black-top and repair at four schools, and $10,000 in concrete work at four schools.

Second priority items include about $82,000 in roof repairs, $5,000 in sprinkler repairs at two schools, $9,000 to seal all the weather tracks at the junior-high schools and senior high school, $58,000 to replace lockers at the high school, $3,700 for cabinet tops in the high school home economics rooms, $6,500 for bathroom renovations at the high school, and $1,500 for a roof rain gutter at the high school agriculture building.

Third priority items include $8,000 in blacktop and asphalt repairs at four schools, $4,000 for remodeling on the district's maintenance shop, $2,000 for window shade replacement in the schools, $2,000 for remodeling Block 2, $2,000 for relocating a temporary classroom from the high school to MorningSide or Harrison Elementary School, $9,500 for a new or used pickup truck for the maintenance department, $1,500 for the insulation of windows at the high school gymnasium, and $5,000 for maintenance supplies and equipment.

The fourth category of requests includes $20,000 for typing and word-processing equipment for the high school, $8,500 for a computer and software for the high school library, $3,800 for flooring and carpeting for the high school offices, $3,800 for laboratory tables for the high school, and $5,000 for a computer and software for the science department.

The school board will meet Tuesday at 7 p.m.

Two youngsters located by police after long search around canyon

Falls city police car delivered two and scared little boys to their parents at about 10:30 p.m.

and she sent her older son to bring Jacob home for dinner.

TWIN FALLS — There were all the earmarks of a tragic night-long search as officers and volunteers milled at the top of Rock Creek Canyon just west of Twin Falls Thursday night.

Jacob Ringenberg, 7, and Ryan Eilton, 7, were found a few minutes earlier by a city police officer as they walked along Main Street South in Twin Falls. They had become lost following a search in the canyon, they told their parents. They left the canyon and came out "by a water-fall and a white house" and then walked into town to find their aunt's house.

"We feel pretty good when it turns out like this," Munn said. "The water is pretty high down there, and we were trying to figure out how to put a screen across the creek somewhere down stream."

Two small boys, ages six and seven years, were missing. They were last seen heading into Rock Creek canyon along the north and south creeks.

The two boys were playing in the back yard of a neighbor, said the boys' mother, Cheryl Ringenberg.

"I can't believe how quick they got here and how everything was organized in just a matter of minutes. We are glad to get the boys back safe."

Teresa Detweiler dies at 82

TWIN FALLS — Teresa Detweiler, an early-day resident of Twin Falls, died Tuesday in Denver. She was 82.

She and her husband Claude Detweiler were active in developing the city. Her husband was co-owner of Detweiler Brothers, a plumbing and heating contracting company in Twin Falls.

The Detweilers helped organize the building of the first swimming pool — at Harmon Park — and they donated the organ at St. Edward's Catholic Church. The Detweilers also helped start the Blue Lakes Country Club. It was Teresa Detweiler who drove a tri-axle truck up and down the canyon grade while the stoplights to direct one-way traffic were being set, says her daughter, Margaret Jacobson of Denver.

Teresa Detweiler founded the original chapter in the area of Beta Sigma Phi, a sorority for working women, though her career outside her home lasted only one day, her daughter says. Known for her elegant hats, she worked for a single day in a friend's millinery shop before telling her family she was not cut out for a career.

She served in several church organizations, including serving as president of St. Edward's Council of Catholic Women in the early 50's and as a member of the Legion of Mary.

But most of her work was done unseen, says Father Samuel of Ascension Priory. "She was the perfect Martha, always doing the work and never taking the credit," he says.

"Her main role in life was as a care-giver," her daughter says. "She was concerned about the other person — making them comfortable."

remains had been completed, but they offer nothing that would shed any light on the individual.

The bones were sent to Pocatello for examination by a forensic pathologist.

"We have a little information," Munn said Thursday, "but nothing to tell us how long the individual may have been dead and nothing to help identify the person."

The bones were found by Nathan Olsen, 13, and Matt Thompson, 15, both of Hagerman while they were hiking in the area.

Munn said his office is waiting for additional information that may show if the bones are those of a male or female and help establish the length of time the skeleton has been in the desert area, and possibly the age of the individual. Officers say there have been no recent missing person reports that tie to the case.

Hurlbutt to speak at luncheon

TWIN FALLS — Fifth District Judge Daniel Hurlbutt of Twin Falls will be the guest speaker today at a luncheon meeting sponsored by the Sawtooth Press Club.

Hurlbutt will discuss how new state laws, such as those concerning victims rights and smoking in public places, will affect the judicial system.

The meeting will be held at 1 p.m. at Canyon Springs Inn in Twin Falls.

For reservations call Carl Stephens at 733-3381. The public is invited to attend.

Wendell boy wins a computer

WENDELL — Cory Wickel, son of Brent and Coleen Wickel of Wendell, won a Commodore 16 computer for selling 75 tickets to the 1985 Scout-O-Rama.

Wickel, 9, belongs to Pack 75 of Wendell. The computer is the top prize offered to Scouts for selling the 52 family tickets.

The Scout-O-Rama will be held in Twin Falls at the College of Southern Idaho Expo Center April 27 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Milk

Caldwell and Boise," Tolman said. In the Magic Valley, there are only five processing plants. Two are located in Idaho, one in Butley and the largest, Triangle Young, in Twin Falls.

higher quality milk through inspection," Ellers said.

If the milk by a hauler transfers part of his load to other trucks for transportation to a processing plant, the equipment used in the transfer must be inspected.

Processing plants are inspected every three months. Again, inspectors check equipment. They also time the pasteurization process to insure the milk is heated adequately to destroy organisms.

Tolman has been inspecting milk for about 15 years. Through that time he's seen the advance of technology, and that's complicated inspections because the inspectors have more equipment to test.

The people that haul the raw milk also are trained to take samples for testing by a hauler transfer part of his load to other trucks for transportation to a processing plant, which once a month sends a copy of the results to the district.

The tests reveal the amount of bacteria, disease and water. The latter is a producer if water has been added.

The pasteurization process also has developed. For example, devices are available to heat milk to 250 degrees for a fraction of a second. Usually, milk would be heated to 161 degrees for a longer time.

Levels show an unusually high level of bacteria in two out of four tests, the producer will be warned. If the problem continues, the dairymen could lose their license for a period of time, Tolman said.

After the raw milk reaches its destination at the processing plant, the inspectors continue.

Milking equipment that would be taken off and cleaned has given way to a technologically advanced milking parlor where units are cleaned in place.

The Magic Valley probably produces more or as much milk for any single district. Actually, most of the milk is shipped out of district for processing in Utah, Pocatello, Meridian, Idaho and Boise," Tolman said.

Lewis Ellers of Kimberly, the chairman of the Idaho Dairymen's Association, agrees the public consistently is getting a good product.

Ellers added that the district inspection was only one of many for the dairymen, whose products must pass stringent inspections by the milk processors to which they sell their product.

Fees

Continued from Page B1 Kimberly Dairymen Lewis Ellers, who lobbied for the state law that put aside district fees, said the inspectors should be paid from state coffers because the district inspections are for the public good.

The district had not been in the fee collection business for all that long anyway.

The first year $75,000 was distributed to the seven health districts to cover all the fees they were receiving from milk inspections and about half of the fees from food inspections, Biermann said.

Why should dairymen pick up that cost if the public is getting good clean milk," Ellers said.

For that purpose, the amount of the fee — which was $50 a year for a milk producer — was not the issue, Ellers said.

This year the districts will receive another $75,000.

The dairymen pay fees for other inspections to satisfy the milk processors to which they sell their milk.

The schedule was an attempt to standardize what would be charged.

Yet in 1984, the dairymen lobbied for a state law that would pay the districts out of the state general fund

Obituaries

Trish Detweiler

TWIN FALLS — Mrs. Claude (Trish) Detweiler, 82, longtime Twin Falls resident, died Tuesday in Denver, where she had lived the past three years.

Born June 3, 1902, in Forest Grove, Ore., she came to Twin Falls in her teens, graduating from Twin Falls High School.

She married Claude Detweiler in about 1922 and lived most of her life in Twin Falls, where she was participated in many community activities.

Mrs. Detweiler served as president of the Magic Valley Memorial Hospital Auxiliary in 1960. She belonged to the state board of a national foundation which allocated Hill-Burton funds for hospital construction.

She founded the original local chapter of Beta Sigma Phi, a women's business sorority, and was active in it for many years. She was very active in the St. Edward's Catholic church, serving as president of Catholic Women's League, a member of the Idaho Council of Catholic Women, was an active member of Legion of Mary and a lector in the church.

Pirating

Continued from Page B1 Injunction against the defendants from intercepting the Idaho Home Theater signal without authorization of the company. The injunction was permanent or until further order of the court.

The order signed by McNichols also dismissed the complaint against the defendants.

McNichols' order stated that the families couldn't use the signal, which carries a movie channel, Sudweeks said. Those who violate the injunction would be held in contempt of court.

Idaho Home Theater provides — for a fee — an antenna and converter so subscribers could receive the On-TV signal.

The company claimed in the suit that the defendants had pirated the signal under the provisions of the Federal Communications Act of 1934.

In the settlement, each of the defendants will pay a designated share of the costs.

Sudweeks said more litigation may be filed against others who are illegally intercepting the signal.

"About 75 to 100 people could be sued for violations of our broadcast restriction," he said.

One of the defendants, Kathy Berg of Kimberly, refused comment.

In addition to the injunction, Sudweeks said Idaho Home Theater also will benefit from a federal law that clarifies the civil procedures for pirating violations.

"Sudweeks said more litigation may be filed against others who are illegally intercepting the signal."

One of the defendants, Kathy Berg of Kimberly, refused comment.

Trial

Buhl bowlers hit 298

BUHL — Two Buhl bowlers used the opposite sides but the same lanes to collect 298 games at Sunset Bowl this week.

Jim Lyons, a 17-year-old righthander, started it Monday night as he carried hopes for a perfect game into the final shot before leaving a 3-0 Wednesday night, Jeffy Gary Benedictus, 19, duplicated the effort until being strangled by a 4-6 split.

The games are the highest of the year at Sunset Bowl.

Sportsmen to meet

TWIN FALLS — A sneak preview at the 1986-90 five-year elk management plan and a slide program on sagebrush, deer and cougar will highlight the monthly meeting of the Twin Falls Fish and Wildlife Conservation, Inc.

The group will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the county judicial building, room 5. All interested persons are invited.

Jensen wins 3200

TWIN FALLS — Laura Jensen, Jerome, won the two-mile event in a Twin Falls regular season track meet Wednesday. She was third in the 1000.

The 3200 results were inadvertently omitted from the meet summary carried in Thursday morning's Times-News.

Simmons leaves Indiana

BESAMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — A second Indiana University forward says he won't be back next year to play for the Hoosiers' 1985-86 basketball season.

Marty Simmons, a former Illinois Mr. Basketball, says because of a lack of playing time he had decided to transfer to another school, but he hasn't decided yet where he will apply.

"I'm just open-minded right now," Simmons said. "I wanted to get it announced so they (coaches from other schools) can get hold of me."

In January, junior forward Mike Glomi was dismissed from the IU team for academic reasons by Coach Bob Knight. Glomi says he has made no decision on which school he might attend next year either.

During Indiana's 19-14 season, Simmons, a 6-foot-5 sophomore from Lawrenceville, Ill., started just nine games, including just four in Big Ten play.

Salley eschews pros

ATLANTA (AP) — John Salley, Georgia Tech's star junior forward, said Thursday he has no plans to declare himself eligible for the upcoming National Basketball Association draft.

"I'm not even thinking about going hardish," he said in a telephone interview from the Atlanta campus. With the success of this year's sixth-ranked Yellow Jackets, "I don't think it's feasible for me to leave," he added.

Tech Coach Bobby Cremins was quoted Wednesday as saying Salley was "looking into" entering the draft as a hardship case, although he said he didn't think the forward from Brooklyn, N.Y., would forego his senior year.

Thornton sidelined

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — The Cleveland Indians said Thursday they have placed designated hitter Andre Thornton on the 21-day disabled list effective March 24, and they sent four other players to their minor-league camp.

Thornton is recuperating from arthroscopic surgery to repair torn cartilage in his knee. The Indians said he is expected to return to action in late April or early May.

Right-handed pitcher Jim Sney was sent outright to the Class AAA Maine Guides, while right-handed pitcher Keith Creel, catcher Gene Petralli and infielder Danny Robin — all non-roster players — were returned to the Guides.

Loyola hires Lynam

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Lynam, fired March 6 as coach of the Los Angeles Clippers of the National Basketball Association, was introduced at a news conference Thursday as the new head coach at Loyola Marymount University.

Lynam, 43, replaces Ed Goorjian, who was dismissed nine days after the Clippers released Lynam. Goorjian spent six years at Loyola, the last five as head coach.

"This coaching position is an excellent opportunity for me, in that Loyola Marymount is a program that has great potential," Lynam said. "I also feel very fortunate in a university setting such as this, having worked as head basketball coach at two other Jesuit schools."

"My goal would be to develop a winning team that will be competitive in the West Coast Athletic Conference and that the university community can look to with pride."

Aussie shares lead

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Jane Crafter, a pharmacist who decided on a golf career, fired a 3-under-par 69 Thursday to share the early first-round lead with Patty Sheehan in the LPGA's $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore tournament.

Crafter, a native of Perth, Australia, who joined the tour in 1981, is looking for her first LPGA victory. Her best finish so far is a tie for second in the Rall Classic last year.

Crafter had a steady opening round, firing a 35 on the front nine and a 34 on the back over the 6,275-yard, par-72 Mission Hills Country Club course.

Sheehan, the LPGA's player of the year in 1983, got off to a blazing start with birdies on six of the first 12 holes to go 6-under par.

But she then bogeyed the 14th, 15th and 17th holes, however, to wind up 3-under with a card of 33-36.

League suspends Smith

NEW YORK (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals left fielder Lonnie Smith was suspended for three days and fined $1,000 Thursday for an altercation with an umpire in an exhibition game March 20.

The suspension ordered by Commissioner Peter Ueberroth will be in effect for the Cardinals' last three exhibition games Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Smith will be able to play in the Cardinals regular season opener Tuesday in New York.

Smith said the penalties were acceptable to him.

"It seems like they did take a lot of time to go over it and listened to all sides before making a decision," he said in an interview Thursday in St. Petersburg, Fla., where the Cardinals were playing the Philadelphia Phillies.

"I think I'm very fair," Smith said. "I think they gave a lot of thought to both sides and I can deal with that."

Packers eye Ferragamo

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — The Green Bay Packers apparently have enough interest in acquiring Vince Ferragamo that a team official is expected in Los Angeles soon to test the veteran Los Angeles Rams' quarterback. It was reported Thursday.

The Green Bay Press-Scout said Los Angeles Rams Coach John Robinson told a Los Angeles newspaper Wednesday that the Packers had made arrangements to work out Ferragamo, probably within the next week. He expected Coach Forrest Gregg or offensive coordinator Bob Scheinert to conduct the workout.

In cases when one National Football League team permits another team to work out its player, it generally is a strong indicator that the club has a serious interest in moving the player involved.

"There's some truth we do want to get him placed," Robinson said. "And get him placed with some team that's good for him."

Twin Falls hosts no tournaments

TWIN FALLS — Of all the state championship tournaments announced for the 1986-87 sports sanctioned by the Idaho High School Activities Association, none was located in Magic Valley.

The board placed the girls volleyball finals, running Oct. 25-26, at Northwest Nazarene College in Nampa for A-3 and A-4 and Idaho State in Pocatello for A-1 and A-2.

The football bowl days, in which six champions will be crowned, will be played Nov. 15-16 at the ISU minidome. A-1 and A-2 wrestling finals are slated for Coeur d'Alene Feb. 6-8 with the A-3 division having its own site in eastern Idaho, tentatively at Ricks College in Rexburg. Girls basketball will be decision Feb. 13-15 for A-3 and A-4 at NNC with the A-1 and A-2 girls battling Feb. 20-22 at Bonneville High School in Idaho Falls.

The Boise State Pavilion will host all four boys state basketball championships on successive weekends. The A-3 and A-4 is planned for March 6-9 with the A-1 and A-2 March 13-15.

Pat Charlton, assistant executive director of the IHSSA, said Twin Falls will not be scheduled to host another boys basketball tournament for three years "to get us back in synch" with the traveling of the Region 19 junior college tournament.

"The A-3 and A-4 now has grown so big only three-spots are capable of handling it," said Charlton, emphasizing — the ISU Pavilion, Idaho's Kibbie Dome and CSI.

He noted this year's tournament at CSI resulted in the largest profit in the tandem classification's history.

"We were surprised it out-netted the Kibbie Dome," Charlton admitted, "because the Idaho facility can hold so many more people."

The difference, he said, was in expenses. A year ago, the Kibbie Dome had gross income of $40,500 compared with $29,350 for CSI this year. However, after expense totals in Moscow were $29,500 against $30,185 at CSI.

Charlton noted the BSU Pavilion income was about $10,000 greater than that of the A-1 and A-2 tournament drew at ISU last year. The Minidome totals were $74,763 gross and $50,920 net against $84,871 gross and $59,029 net at the Pavilion this spring.

Charlton said none of the totals includes the $25,000 the United Dairyfarm of Idaho contribute to defray traveling expenses for football and basketball state tournament teams.

Charlton added the 1986 combined state tracks meets will again be held at the BSU stadium as they have since the early 1950s.

NEW YORK (AP) — Larry Holmes said Thursday he is seeking a fight with Michael Spinks, the undisputed light-heavyweight champion.

And the unbeaten International Boxing Federation champion once again is talking about tying the late Rocky Marciano's record of 49-0. Holmes has a 47-0 record. Marciano is the only heavy-weight champion to retire without having lost a fight.

After stopping David Boy in the 10th round of a little defense at Las Vegas, Nev., on March 15, Holmes said he would announce his retirement June 9 unless he got a $3 million or $4 million fight with Spinks.

He also said he would take $25 million for a rematch with Gerry Cooney, but admitted that he was pricing himself out of such a bout.

The fight to occur.

Holmes said that if he does fight Spinks, he would seek one more match on special terms.

"My wife (Diane) and I talked last night and she said I can fight if I fight in Scranton, Pa.," Holmes said. He added he would like to tie Marciano's record by having a career-ending fight in Scranton, Pa., where he began his career in 1973. Holmes made a WBC title defense at Scranton March 27, 1982, with a 12-round unanimous decision over Lucien Rodriguez.

"We don't want to break Marciano's record, we just want to tie it," Holmes said. "That's all we want."

The difference, he said, was in expenses. A year ago, the Kibbie Dome had gross income of $40,500 compared with $29,350 for CSI this year. However, after expense totals in Moscow were $29,500 against $30,185 at CSI.

Charlton noted the BSU Pavilion income was about $10,000 greater than that of the A-1 and A-2 tournament drew at ISU last year. The Minidome totals were $74,763 gross and $50,920 net against $84,871 gross and $59,029 net at the Pavilion this spring.

Charlton said none of the totals includes the $25,000 the United Dairyfarm of Idaho contribute to defray traveling expenses for football and basketball state tournament teams.

Charlton added the 1986 combined state tracks meets will again be held at the BSU stadium as they have since the early 1950s.

Governors support curb on team shifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Maryland officials Thursday urged congressional approval of a bill intended to force a return of professional football to Baltimore, but the move vigorously was opposed by the National Football League as threatening to "impose a new layer of government bureaucracy."

The bill, sponsored by Rep. Barbara Mikulski, D-Md., was supported at a House hearing by Maryland Gov. Harry Hughes, who also represented the National Governors' Association, Baltimore City Councilman Joseph J. DiBiasi and members of the Maryland congressional delegation.

Testifying against the bill were Jay Moyer, an NFL lawyer, and representatives of the U.S. Football League and professional baseball and basketball.

Rep Mikulski's bill, prompted by the Baltimore Colts' transfer to Indianapolis a year ago by owner Bob Irsay, would require expansion of the NFL to add two teams by 1990, including one in Baltimore.

A similar bill sponsored by Sen. Slade Gorton, R-Wash., calls for a four-team expansion, with two of the new teams located in Oakland, Calif., as well as Baltimore.

Al Davis, managing general partner of the Los Angeles Raiders, moved his team from Oakland to Los Angeles two years ago in defiance of an NFL rule that requires the approval of three-fourths of league owners for any franchise move. Davis was backed by the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, which declared that the NFL rule violated federal antitrust laws.

At the hearing by the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on commerce, transportation and tourism, Hughes supported the Mikulski bill and proposed creation of a special commission to report in six months on ways to strengthen federal statutes "to protect the rights of sports fans" and cities that are hosts to professional teams.

Despite gusty winds

Sluman's 66 leads Greensboro tourney

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Jeff Sluman, battling gusty winds for a one-bogey, 6-under-par 66 and took a one-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $400,000 Greater Greensboro Open Golf Tournament.

"Kind of fun," said the 5-foot-7, 135-pound Sluman who scored three deuces, including a chip-in from the fringe on the eighth.

Sluman, 27, a Rochester, N.Y., native, ranked 148th on the year's money-winning list, said a change in his set-up — "I had the ball too far away, my stance was too open" — helped him to the first lead of his brief PGA Tour career.

Sluman played the PGA Tour in 1983, but failed to meet the minimum standards and lost his card. He played the Asian circuit without notable success last year and rejected the American circuit at the start of this season. He's won less than $5,000 and has a career-best tour finish of a tie for 25th.

Sandy Lyle of Scotland, needing only to qualify for the last two rounds of this tournament to secure his full playing rights on the American tour, was the first man off the tee on the 6,857-yard Forest Oaks Country Club course and got his 67 on the board before the spring winds kicked up.

"The par-5s — that's the thing that kept the round going," said the long-hitting Lyle. He reached three of the par-5s in two, but recorded only two birdies. He 3-putted for par on one of them and took three from the fringe on another.

Ben Crenshaw warmed up for the defense of his title at Augusta, Ga. with a 75 in the afternoon winds. U.S. Open champ Fuzzy Zoeller matched par — 72 — and Greensboro defending titleholder Andy Bean struggled to a 74.

He holed a 20-footer on the first, scored from about eight feet on the sixth and chipped in on the eighth.

Sluman kept it going with a good save on the 10th, 2-putted for birdie-4 on the 13th and dropped a pair of six-foot putts for birdies on the two pars on the back.

Lauper leads video prizes

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Eccentric songstress Cindy Lauper dominated the American Video Awards as her "Time After Time" and "She Bop" won a total of six honors, including best pop video and top female performance.

The romantic "Time After Time" took the pop video and female performer awards Wednesday night along with best director for Ed Griles and best lighting design for Michael Negrin. "She Bop" won best choreography honors for Pat Birch and best costume design for Laurel Willis and Bill Chandler.

"Heart of Rock and Roll" by Huey Lewis and the News was named best group performance; "Eat It" by "Weird Al" Yankovic won best performance by a male artist; "When Doves Cry" by Prince claimed best soul-video; and "Where's the Dress" by Moe Bandy and Joe Stampley was named best country video.

The National Academy of Video Arts and Sciences staged the third annual awards at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium with radio's Casey Kasem, jazz star Herbie Hancock and TV personality Lisa Hartman as hosts. The tape show will be carried later via syndication.

Miss Lauper, 31, who won a Grammy in February as best new artist and was nominated seven times for video honors, didn't let down her colorful image Wednesday. With hair in a wild plume of orange, red and a few other colors, she wore a black and white pajamas and a carriage belt with celluloid filmstrips draped over her shoulders.

"When I wrote it, I didn't sit down to write a hit song," Miss Lauper said. "Time After Time" "I wrote it to be a very special song that was very, very real. It was based on very real feelings."

The video portrays a woman breaking up with her boyfriend.

Ken Kragen, the driving force behind the pop charity project, "USA for Africa," received a special humanitarian award.

Yankovic accepted the award for "Eat It," a takeoff on Michael Jackson's single "Beat It" from 1983, in the best male performer category. The other nominees were Bruce Springsteen, Don Henley and George Michael.

"I'm sure that Bruce Springsteen is crying right now. I feel real bad about it, but that's the business," said Yankovic, whose comedy album picked up a Grammy earlier this year.

Area photographers' pieces in show at Sunspot Gallery

By TERRY HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "Summer Residents," an exhibit of recent photographs by local photographers Wesley Wada and Linda Antlis, is being shown in the Sunspot Gallery on the second floor of the Taylor Administration Building, College of Southern Idaho.

Wada and Antlis, a husband and wife team, contribute to much of the photographic activity at CSI where Wada has been a professor of photography and design at the art department for seven years. Since 1980, Antlis has been CSI's official photographer, producing the publicity, portrait and documentary photos used by the school's publications and programs.

Both photographers have exhibited widely with credits in shows at the Denver Art Museum, Central Washington University, The Boise Gallery of Art and Idaho State University, among others.

"There are very few works in the show that could be characterized as typical scenes," says Wada. "Our photographs concentrate more on the intimate views instead of the grand. We like images that are miniature reflections of an area's sense of place."

According to the couple, "Summer Residents" consists of 27 photographs from summer travel in 1983 and 1984. During this time they traveled 11,000 miles in 170 days, camping and working out of 85 sites in nine states. Photographs in the show were taken in Colorado, New Mexico and the Pacific Northwest.

Noting that they both prefer black and white work, Antlis explains, "Most people don't realize the work and care that goes into black and white exhibition photos. Fine prints are literally hand-crafted images and the process is definitely for the careful craftsman."

She says each photograph took four to five hours of work to arrive at the best combination of paper, chemistry, time and technique.

Referring to the small-print sizes they are showing, Antlis says, "We have always liked small prints. The current trend is toward massive print sizes on the order of 30 inches by 40 inches. We prefer the intimacy of working with 8 inch by 10 inch paper." She says it is practical, as well, because they can then take their portfolios on travels in their camper van.

Seven of the photographs in the show are in color and were printed from color transparencies by the Lasercolor process, a state-of-the-art technique developed by a Florida laboratory.

In the process, laser light is used to create an exceptionally sharp and accurate color print. Antlis notes that this hands-off, high-tech approach is definitely a change for the couple, who are still trying to come to terms with the process.

Mainly, Wada says they hope that this exhibition will give them a chance to share the peaceful visions that they have captured on film and paper.

"Summer Residents" will be on display until May 8. Viewing hours are from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Idaho writer says program needs change

By TERRY HARTLEY
Times-News correspondent

MOSCOW — Well into his term as Idaho's first writer-in-residence, Ron McFarland says the potential of the program is great, but has some suggestions before his successor for the next term is chosen.

Pointing out that he is often used as a "substitute teacher," McFarland says that he would rather have schools on his scheduled visits arrange for him to meet closely with 20 or 30 students really interested in writing, rather than have him speak to mass assemblies or teach full English classes.

But McFarland knows that his term is essentially experimental and thinks a lot of good can come from it. "I would like to angle it (the program) toward community groups," he says.

"The best way to set up would be through local libraries where the library would invite local writers to a workshop. I'd rather have three or four interested people attending the workshop than a dozen marginally interested."

McFarland, a University of Idaho English professor, father, husband, soccer player and well-meaning outdoorsman, was chosen as writer-in-residence by a panel of western poets and Idaho residents appointed in 1983 by Gov. John Evans. His job is to encourage an appreciation for and understanding of Idaho's literary heritage.

To accomplish this, the professor says he has had to maintain a "fairly rigorous schedule" on top of his normal teaching duties at the university. In one year, McFarland will have journeyed throughout the state to give 10 readings. "Coming down to normalcy, a poet, or any writer, has to be really in demand to do that many readings," he says.

He thinks the job has made him grow, expanding his visions beyond

Philharmonic sets concert Thursday

By SARAH MURPHY
Times-News correspondent

BURLEY — "From Bach to Rock" will be the theme of the Magic Philharmonic Orchestra concert, which will be presented under the baton of Conductor Jim Keezer at 8:15 p.m. on Thursday in the Burley High School Auditorium.

This will be the third spring concert by the orchestra, a group of volunteer musicians from the entire Mini-Cassia area, says Magic Philharmonic Board member, Bob Dean.

The orchestra's librarian, Jo Dayley, says the group will present a variety of symphonic music ranging from classical to pop selections.

As the theme suggests, the concert will begin with "Gavotte and Musette" from the "Third Empire" Suite by the 18th Century composer, Johann Sebastian Bach, and will end with a medley of songs from "The Jazz Singer" by 20th Century rock composer, Neil Diamond, says Dayley.

Dayley says other classical selections to be played by the orchestra are selections from George Frederic Handel's "Water Music," the third movement from Johannes Brahms' Symphony No. 4, and the third movement from Franz Liszt's "Les Preludes."

Going to a lighter mood after the intermission, the orchestra will play selections from "Gig" by Alan Lerner and Frederick Lowe, "The Entertainer" by Scott Joplin, and "Memory" from Andrew Lloyd Webber's Broadway musical production, "Cats," says Dayley.

Dayley says the same selections will be presented by The Magic Philharmonic in concert at 8:15 p.m. on April 16 at the Howell Opera House in Oakley.

Tickets to both concerts may be purchased at the door and at The Phone Booth store located in the Burley Mall, for the Burley concert only, says Dayley.

Chorale to present local production of Haydn's 'Creation'

TWIN FALLS — "The Creation" by Joseph Haydn will be presented by the Magic Valley Chorale at 3 p.m. April 14 at the College of Southern Idaho Fine Arts Auditorium. The oratorio will be directed by Carson Wong, and accompaniment will be provided by the Magic Valley Chamber Orchestra.

The performance features soloists Leslie Mauldin, soprano, Jack Van Buren, tenor, Roger Vincent, baritone, and Camille Cox, alto.

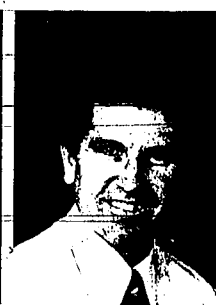

"Touring" Israel last summer, Mauldin, soprano, soloed with the Magic Valley Chamber Orchestra. Over the years she has performed many roles at Brigham Young University including title roles in "Hansel & Gretel" and "The Saint of Bleaker Street." In December she soloed for the Magic Valley Chorale performance of "The Messiah."

Van Buren has been tenor soloist with the BYU A Cappella Choir, for Bach's "Magnificat" at BYU, and has sung with the Magic Valley Chorale in many major works including "The Messiah," "The Creation," and "St. John's Passion." He was tenor in the Dilettanti production of "Kismet" and recently sang in the Twin Falls Music Club's production of "Down in the Valley."

Vincent, bass, was the original director of the Magic Valley Chorale.

Area piano teacher

He toured the U.S. for eight years with the male concert quartet, "The Sorenaders," for the Community Concert Association, and soloed with the Boise Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra in several productions.

He has played leading roles in nine musical comedies in Boise and Twin Falls, and has directed or soloed in numerous opera and oratorio presentations in Twin Falls, Boise and Sun Valley.

Robert Newman is acclaimed for his versatility as a performer in opera, oratorio, Broadway, sacred concerts and recitals. Formally educated at Utah State University, San Francisco Conservatory of Music and the University of Idaho, the baritone holds a chain of awards including district winner and regional finalist, Metropolitan Opera Auditions.

He has appeared with Northwest symphonies and orchestras in numerous roles including "Madama Butterfly" and "Mozart's 'Carmen'."

Cox, soprano, is a graduate of BYU with a bachelor's degree in music education. She has studied at Roosevelt University in Chicago and participated in the semester abroad program in Salzburg, Austria, at the Mozarteum. A piano and voice teacher, Cox has been a soloist in several oratorios with the Magic Valley Chorale and was the witch in "Hansel & Gretel."

Written to be a joyful piece of music, the first two acts of "The Creation" describe the creation of the elements, the heavenly bodies and the greening of Earth. It goes on to the creation of birds and mammals, then climaxes with the first human beings. Part three deals with Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden.

The acts of creation are presented musically in recitatives and airs sung by the soloists. Interspersed are choruses proclaiming praise for the individual works of creation achieved on each given day.

Tickets are $2.50 and are available at Ann's Hallmark in the Blue Lakes Mall, the CSI Bookstore, or at the door.

Forman enjoys 'Amadeus' accolades

By CARLA HALL
The Washington Post

MILOS FORMAN
Notches second win

WASHINGTON — "Twice," says Milos Forman, who just won his second Academy Award for directing, this time for "Amadeus," "feels much better than one, a little better than one, and not as good as three."

He grins contentedly. His voice is a wonderfully deep vibrato of words — the accent is Czech, the sentiment typically American. The man who dreamed of making it in Hollywood, who at one time couldn't pay his rent at the Chelsea Hotel in New York, who won an Oscar for "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" and also directed "Hair" and "Ragtime," has the satisfaction of knowing that he made it in Hollywood — twice.

"When you make it once, people appreciate it, but it's still sort of in the back of their minds that maybe it was an accident," Forman says. "But the second time they think maybe it's not. And the third time, they're really convinced."

There is nothing unapproachable about the Czech-born Forman, 53, who is currently a hot property. He is in Washington to see the exhibition of Henri Gallery by Theodor Pietsch, who won an Oscar for his costumes for "Amadeus."

Watergate Hotel suite in the afternoon and watching a tennis match between Jimmy Connors and Ivan Lendl. (He is rooting for countryman Lendl, "of course.")

"Well, I don't want to win to have a big mansion. I still have a little farmhouse in Connecticut, a small apartment in New York," (The apartment is a two-bedroom one on Central Park South. The little farmhouse, according to one visitor who was there, has a huge fireplace, a lake and a tennis court.)

"It's to be accepted as an American director," he continues. "That's the vanity behind it. And accepted not only for yourself, but also to have the film accepted. That's what I was lucky to get."

It's been 47 years and several films since Forman first arrived in the United States to make his first American film, "Taking Off" — which didn't.

"Everyone said, 'It's great to see America through the eyes of a foreigner.' Well, I didn't want to be seen as a professional foreigner," Forman scoffs. "I wanted to be accepted as a colleague. One of the group."

But he can't explain either his metamorphosis into Hollywood director ("I thought I was doing an American film then") or that of "Amadeus" into a popular film.

"I knew, I would be much richer than I am," Forman says.

Nominated for 11 Oscars, "Amadeus" garnered eight. Forman and his "Amadeus" colleagues revelled in their victory last Monday night.

"Tuesday, I was recovering from a hangover," he says ruefully. "It was a long night." After the Academy's ball and a sprinkling of parties around town, the "Amadeus" group repaired to the bar at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel until 4 in the morning.

"We had so many of us," Forman says affectionately. "I stayed with our gang. It took a long time to console those who didn't win. Well, they're such a great group, if they didn't win, they felt like they had shared it."

Most notable among the "Amadeus" nonwins was Tom Hulce, who played Mozart. "Tom is a very intelligent guy," Forman says. "He took it very classy." He lost the Best Actor award to his costar, F. Murray Abraham, who played Salieri, Mozart's jealous rival.

"I think they're both very talented men who both gave charming and very sophisticated performances," Forman says.

Cosby beats Oscars; CBS wins week

NEW YORK (AP) — Bill Cosby beat Oscar, and his "Cosby Show" scored the highest rating for any series in a year and a half. But CBS, despite having none of the top five shows, still won the week, according to ratings released Tuesday by the A.C. Nielsen Co.

NBC's "Cosby Show" finished first for the eighth time in nine weeks, this time with a 30.1 rating. That's the highest number for any series episode since CBS' "AfterMASH" was introduced in September of 1983, and it was NBC's best series rating since a 1978 episode of "Little House on the Prairie."

Oscar, also known as the Academy Awards telecast on ABC, finished second for the week, but with its lowest rating ever, a 27.7. ABC's "The Barbara Walters Special," featuring an interview with Boy George, was third with a 25.2, followed by NBC's "Family Ties" and ABC's "Dynasty."

CBS had four of the next five programs: No. 6 "Dallas," seventh-rated "60 Minutes," ninth-ranked "Simon & Simon" and No. 10 "Murder, She Wrote." Through Saturday, ABC was winning the week, with NBC and CBS tied. But CBS' powerful Sunday lineup made the difference with "60 Minutes," "Murder, She Wrote," "Crazy Like a Fox" (11th) and "Trapper John, M.D." (13th).

CBS finished the week with a 16.3 rating to NBC's 16.2 and ABC's 15.6. NBC's first installment of the five-part "A.D." performed solidly in eighth place with a 21.8 rating and 32 share, slightly better than CBS' forecast of a 30 share and NBC Research's projection of a 28.

A rating measures the percentage of the nation's 8.9 million TV homes tuned, on average, to a given minute of prime time. A share reflects the percentage of the sets in use that are watching a particular network.

With three weeks left in the prime-time season, CBS has averaged a 17.0

rating, NBC a 16.3 and ABC a 15.6.

"The Cosby Show," episode was the first one designed for pre-schoolers. Eight 5-year-olds had a slumber party supervised by Cliff Huxtable (Cosby).

"Sometimes we get into stories where the 5-year-old doesn't know what's going on," said Cosby. "So we decided to turn the tables and ask the grown-ups to enjoy a show that was done for the little ones."

Even with the Academy Awards, ABC finished in last place. "That surprised me," said Mike Eisenberg, CBS' director of audience measurement. "It re-emphasizes the problems at ABC."

Two weeks ago, against NCAA basketball on CBS, ABC enjoyed its best Thursday night in years. Last week, its Thursday lineup reverted to form.

the Idaho panhandle and drawing him into intimate contact with Southern Idaho. A 15-year resident of the Gem State, McFarland was born in Ohio and raised in Florida. Yet, in his work, "Sometimes Idaho," the deep impression of this state stands out:

Sometimes in the Blitterroots stalking elk to an avian... or freezing on the Clearwater for two weeks... without catching a single steelhead, or breaking a leg at Bogus Basin on a back trail, seems like a good idea.

His deep feelings and sense of Idaho's history — particularly the northern sector — show in "Palouse History":

The history of wheat fields is not easily written. Mostly it's wind and the movements of dust, shifting of snow. From below the surface rocks and stones keep edging up as if they had something to mutter to the sun... Moreover, McFarland doesn't confine himself to landscapes, but seeks human situations and predicaments as is shown in "The Little Guys," which reflects on the struggles of a small-time cedar operator.

We're doing good before the slumping... selling lumber to the Japs and all. Now with the lattices we've got a contract with this buyer in Portland where the ex-wife lives with some bum.

We're the little guys cedar is all we know.

When his term expires, the professor says he would like to return to some of the towns he has visited as writer-in-residence, and to expand his vistas to other Northwestern states. He also plans to publish a number of his readings in "Sometimes Idaho."

He suggests that aspiring writers interested in the program or in applying for next year's writer-in-residence can contact the Sun Valley Center, P.O. Box 656, Sun Valley.

Joe English Band to perform

TWIN FALLS — The Joe English Band will perform a free concert at the Calvary Chapel April 10 at 7:30 p.m.

English, ex-drummer for Paul McCartney & Wings, has also made recordings with Sea Level, Bonnie Bramlett, Commander Cody, and is now touring and recording with his own band, performing contemporary Christian music.

"Paul McCartney's ex-drummer is a tag that works, and as long as it's getting people to come in and listen so I can witness to them, then it's fine to call me McCartney's ex-drummer. I just hope we won't always have to use it, because that's what I used to be, not what I am," English has said.

English played on 20 gold and platinum albums with McCartney.

Albums he has recorded with his own band include, Lights in the World, Held Accountable, Press On, and Joe English Band Live.

With McCartney, English played on Venus and Mars, Wings at the Speed of Sound, Wings Over America, and London Town.

BLOOD-RED

Custom of the old British Royal Navy was to paint the inboard bulwarks of warships blood-red - because they were expected to turn that color anyway in combat.

Seven out of 10 American women admit to pollsters they like being whisked at on the street - and three out of 10 don't admit that to pollsters.

In the vernacular of early New England, "to scoon" was "to skim."

Three-master "The Golden Hind" was smaller than a modern tugboat.

Takes about 20 minutes for the hunger pangs to go away, even after you've taken your first mouthful.

SWIFT JAPANESE

In that matter of learning, it's said, no people are quicker to catch on than the Japanese. U.S. Commodore Perry showed up in Japan in 1853, unloading it for the first time to the western world. He'd taken with him a toy train - a miniature railroad setup. In 20 years, the Japanese had their own full-sized railroad.

Monaco at the south of France is not all that far south, actually. It's on the same latitude as Portland, Maine.

THE ACES BOBBY WOLFF

Dear Mr. Wolff:
If there are no interfering bids, what is the meaning of a jump to five of partner's opened major suit?
Over Game, Lincoln, Neb.
ANSWER: This bid asks about trump quality. Partner is asked to bid slam with good trumps and to pass with a weak suit.
Dear Mr. Wolff:
South's four no-trump bid is Blackwood request or is it a no-trump raise after this bidding?
North 4NT
South 4NT
Short Ace, Duluth, Minn.
ANSWER: General interpretation should be a quantitative no-trump raise. South should have four spades and about 16 HCP.
Dear Mr. Wolff:
After partner has made a takeout double, how many points must I have to make a 'free bid' at the one level?
Likes to bid, Rice Lake, Wis.
ANSWER: An intervening bid over partner's takeout double relieves you of any obligation to bid. If you choose
