Gorbachev orders missile freeze; U.S. wary

By The Associated Press

Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev said in Moscow Sunday that he has accepted President Reagan's invitation to a superpower summit and has ordered missile deployments in Europe frozen until November.

The White House said that the Soviet offer of a moratorium on medium-range rockets was "not enough," and that plans to install 572 U.S. nuclear missiles in five NATO countries in Europe would not be derailed.

Gorbachev made his remarks in an interview with an editor of the Communist Party daily Pravda. The official news agency Tass distributed a text in English, but did not say when the interview was conducted or when it would be published in the Soviet press.

Reagan, vacationing at his mountain ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., was briefed on the Soviet leader's remarks by Robert C. McFarlane, White House national security adviser. Reagan had no immediate comment.

White House spokesman Larry Speakes, also in California, said: "If they want a freeze, fine. It's not enough."

Speakes said a moratorium would preserve a 10-1 Soviet advantage in medium-range rockets in Europe.

About Gorbachev's statements indicated a superpower summit was any closer, Speakes said. "No, I don't think there's anything... that moves it any further than it was."

Speakes said the Soviet Union has been steadily "moving at a fairly rapid clip on deployment."

"We believe the most pressing need is to achieve significant reductions in U.S. and Soviet offensive missiles," he added. "This can be done in the talks in Geneva. Stability requires that a balance be established at the least possible level."

NATO says the Soviet Union has deployed 414 triple-warhead, intermediate range SS-20 missiles in Europe.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias, R-Md., said "any sign of flexibility on the Soviet side is desirable and should be welcomed."

"But at the same time, it has to be set in a larger context. This larger context involves reductions — not merely the freezing — to parity in the various kinds of weapons systems," said Mathias, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

"We have to recognize there is a very active campaign to win popular opinion in Europe. Without denigrating the value of the gesture, it has to be viewed as a move in the chess game of public opinion."

Rep. Bill Green, R-N.Y., said, "The problem has been that they (the Soviets) were deploying those missiles for many years before we started. Obviously if we were to accept a freeze at this point, we'd be giving them essentially what they want."

Gorbachev, named Communist Party general secretary March 11 after the death of Konstantin U. Chernenko, said he was optimistic U.S.-Soviet relations can improve but he said the Soviet Union expects "reciprocity."

Gorbachev specifically called for a U.S. moratorium on missile deployment in Western Europe and research on space-based anti-missile defenses, programs that the Reagan administration has said it is not willing to suspend without reaching an agreement on arms control.

Gorbachev did not tie the Soviet moratorium to a suspension of NATO deployments.

Asked about a summit, Tass said "See HALT on Page A2

Soviets on 'peace offensive'

By GEORGE GEDDA
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Soviet decision to halt temporarily deployment of intermediate-range missiles in Europe appears to be part of a new peace offensive by Moscow aimed at influencing West European public opinion and, ultimately, the arms-control talks in Geneva.

Administration officials have expected for some time that the Soviets, in their bid to persuade President Reagan to back down from his space-based missile defense system, would try to create a split between Washington and its European allies.

According to this rationale, the Soviets would show flexibility on the issue which is at the center of allied concerns: the intermediate-range nuclear (INF) weapons that Moscow has been targeting at Western Europe.

A generous Soviet offer on these SS-20 missiles would have great appeal in Europe, and the Reagan administration would come under heavy allied pressure to cut a deal with Moscow.

As administration officials see it, however, the Soviet's price for flexibility on the SS-20 issue would be U.S. See ANALYSIS on Page A2

Pope blasts world hatred in Easter talk

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II, in his Easter Sunday message, decried the human evil of "hatred, wars and ideologies that instill hatred" which plague the world 40 years after the end of World War II.

More than 250,000 people jammed St. Peter's Square to rejoice in the resurrection of Jesus. Tens of thousands more marched through Rome to the Vatican in cool but sunny weather to protest world hunger.

Millions of Roman Catholics followed the ceremonies on live television in 35 countries.

John Paul looked refreshed, despite a midnight Mass at St. Peter's Basilica, as he celebrated Easter Mass.

Choirs sang and military bands blared as the crowd applauded John Paul, resplendent in gold robes and a gold-encrusted mitre.

At the end of the more than two-hour ceremony, John Paul moved to the balcony over the main door of the basilica to deliver his traditional message "Urbi et Orbi" — to the city (Rome) and the world.

The pope said that for nearly 2,000 years since Jesus rose from the dead, leaving an empty tomb, mankind looks upon all tombs and "questions itself especially when the tombs are the legacy of the hurricane of violence and destruction caused by war."

The Polish-born pontiff, who lived through the Nazi occupation of his homeland, said: "Spontaneously our memory goes back to 40 years ago when, at the Second World War, unleashed by a mad imperialist ideology, was coming to a close."

"Above all, humanity cannot forget the men and women in each country who offered their lives in sacrifice for the right cause, the cause of the dignity of the human person," he said.

The 65-year-old pope said they fought "not to answer violence with violence, hatred with hatred, but to affirm a right and a freedom for themselves and others, also for the children of those who were then the oppressors."

Forty years ago the war ended. "Has peace, as the result of just order, been truly affirmed?" he asked.

He answered his own question, saying that the answer was no, in a world where, "human rights are denied... where places of torture, segregation and camps of inhuman labor continue to reap innumerable victims... where millions of children and adults are left to die because of war, drought and malnutrition."

At the end of his address, John Paul delivered greetings in 47 languages, including Cambodian for the first time.

Mormon fast brings hungry $6 million

By MICHAEL WHITE
The Associated Press

SALT LAKE CITY — The Mormon Church announced Sunday that it raised more than $6 million dollars in donations to relieve famine in Ethiopia and other African nations.

Elder Gordon B. Hinckley, of the First Presidency, the church's governing body, said $4.3 million already has been distributed through international-relief agencies, including the American Red Cross, the Catholic Relief Services, Africare and CARE, Inc.

Hinckley said an additional $100,000 had been donated by the church before the special fast, which was held Jan. 27 Mormons.

He said the rest of the money would be spent in countries where the church's research determines the greatest need exists.

Mormons who participated in the fast abstained from food and water for 24 hours and donated the money they normally would have spent on food to an African relief fund established by the church.

Hinckley announced the results of the fast during the 158th Annual General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints.

He said the much of the money was used to buy food, medicine and tents for starving people in Ethiopia, Sudan and other countries. Portions also are being spent in a three-year joint venture with Africare to drill for underground water for irrigation, Hinckley said.

In a news conference that followed the morning session, Glenn L. Pace, a member of the church's Presiding Bishopric, said some of the remaining $1.7 million probably would also be spent on the Africare venture. The Presiding Bishopric works under the First Presidency and has direct responsibility for Mormon welfare programs.

Pace visited famine-stricken areas in Ethiopia in March and said that the church's donations would be used.

He said he will recommend the church send another delegation to Africa in a few months to determine what further help can be offered.

"The thing that came to my mind was that you had Catholics, Mormons, Mennonites, Lutherans, people black, white, yellow, all responding universally to a need," said Pace. "I felt a great feeling of universal brotherhood."

Hinckley said none of the money was spent on overhead costs, but went directly to relief efforts.

"The good and other commodities are getting through to those who need them," Hinckley said during the conference session. "Their lands are dry and naked. There is neither irrigation water nor food. They wander in desolation until they die — and their children die unless they are fed. A little cracked wheat literally spells the difference between life and death."

Typically, Mormons fast on the first Sunday of each month, and donate the money they would have spent on food to church programs to aid the poor.

The African relief fast was held in addition to the regular monthly fast.

Hinckley said the fast donations for Africa far exceeded normal monthly offerings.

He said the fast was limited to Mormons in the United States and Canada because there was a need to move quickly and the fast could be implemented in those nations more easily.

Neo-Nazi maintains ignorance of slaying

DENVER (AP) — Neo-Nazi David Lane says he feels betrayed by his fellow white supremacists, some of whom he suspects helped bring about his recent capture, a Denver newspaper reports.

The Rocky Mountain News said in a copyright story Sunday that it conducted a half-hour interview with Lane — his first since his March 30 arrest in Winston-Salem, N.C.

"I knew what an absolute lack of racial pride there is in the remainder of the white race, I would never have gotten involved (in the white supremacist movement)," said Lane, accompanied by his attorney in a U.S. Marshals Service holding cell shortly after being denied bail last Friday.

Lane said he knows nothing of the machine-gun slaying in Denver of talk show host Alan Berg. Denver police have sought unsuccessfully to question Lane about Berg, and federal agents have linked him to the slaying.

Lane said Berg, who was Jewish and antagonized neo-Nazi sympathizers on his radio show, is a worse enemy dead than alive.

"I thought he was more destructive to the purposes he set out to defend," Lane said.

Lane was arrested in the parking lot of a Winston-Salem shopping center on a warrant charging him with conspiring in Philadelphia. FBI agents won't say how they tracked him down, but there are allegations that authorities were tipped off by a Lane colleague or may have traced calls Lane made from a phone booth.

Lane's court-appointed attorney, Thomas Keith, would not allow him to be questioned about ties to The Order, the anti-Semitic group the agents say masterminded the slaying. See LANE on Page A2

Sudanese coup claims security council

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — The new military junta dismantled the state security council and completed a roundup of former government leaders following the coup that deposed President Gaafar Nimeiri, the official news agency said Sunday.

It said anti-Nimeiri demonstrations and a general strike were continuing.

Nimeiri, considered one of the United States' firmest allies in Africa, remained in Cairo, capital of neighboring Egypt.

The news agency SUNA said its transmissions had been interrupted temporarily Sunday "because the masses of the people today decided to continue the political strike and civil disobedience until the state security apparatus was disbanded and all the figures of the defunct regime arrested and put on trial."

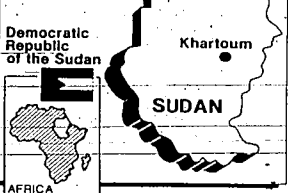

"We resume our transmission now that the state security council has been disbanded and all the prominent figures of the defunct regime have been arrested," said the agency, without giving details of the arrests.

"Brothers in the engineers union have volunteered to operate our transmission equipment because the political strike and civil disobedience is still continuing."

Gen. Abdul-Rahman M.H. Swareddahab, who announced Nimeiri's overthrow on Saturday, earlier said the army would take over the security agency and appropriate its weapons and com-

Krajcski said Swareddahab "expressed interest in the maintenance of continued good relations with the United States and appreciation for the assistance the United States has provided Sudan in recent years."

Demonstrators marched on the headquarters of the State Security Department on Sunday to demand its liquidation. The General Command's order followed.

SUNA said earlier the new regime was rounding up "all" of Nimeiri's supporters.

The agency did not elaborate, but Western diplomats said Omar el-Tayeb, first vice president and chief of state security under Nimeiri, was arrested, as were other vice presidents.

El-Tayeb's police organization of 20,000 men was a pillar of Nimeiri's regime, which began with Nimeiri's own coup in 1969 and had been one of the longest lasting in Africa.

The Western diplomats, who requested anonymity, said members of Nimeiri's Cabinet were under house arrest.

Egypt's state-owned Middle East News Agency reported from Khartoum that those ordered arrested included "vice presidents, Cabinet ministers and leaders of the Sudanese Socialist Union."

The Sudanese Socialist Union was created by Nimeiri and was the North African nation's only legal political party during his rule.

Iran resolute on Iraq with U.N. chief

By The Associated Press

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar, seeking an end to the Iran-Iraq war, met Sunday with Iranian leaders in Tehran but was told the fighting will continue until Iraq's government is ousted, Iran's official news agency reported.

The report indicated no progress was made in the talks Perez de Cuellar had with President Ali Khamenei, Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, and Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of Iran's Parliament.

Perez de Cuellar, who was on a four-nation Persian Gulf visit, announced Saturday he would extend his tour, going Sunday to Tehran and later to Baghdad, the Iraqi capital.

That had led to hopes of a possible breakthrough, because the U.N. official had said Friday that Iran refused to discuss "all aspects" of the conflict and he did not plan to go to Tehran or Baghdad.

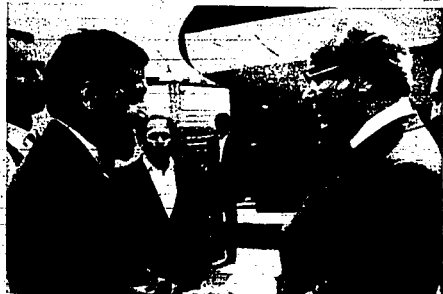

Iran does not trust anyone to mediate the war, Rafsanjani said according to IRNA, but he praised Perez de Cuellar for taking "the first positive stand in the world toward the Iraq-Iran imposed war."

It did not say if the secretary-general offered any proposals, but said Rafsanjani told him, "Firstly, you should prevent the wrong and illegal actions which are against international laws so that the distrust among our people (of the United Nations) would be moderated."

Agency quoted Khamenei as telling Perez de Cuellar: "We have logical things to say about the war and no one has so far been able to alter our view with logic. Based on what we have experienced, we are sure that as long as the present Iraqi regime (of President Saddam Hussein) remains, our conditions will not be realized."

The IRNA dispatches, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, reported Rafsanjani said Iran would "use all its strength to punish the Iraqi regime for its aggression."

Curbs on China's population rise help create overall birthrate drop

WASHINGTON (AP) — The world's birthrate has dropped from 29 to 27 births per 1,000 people since 1983, largely thanks to sharp curbs on China's population growth, a private population study group reports.

The Population Reference Bureau reports that China is currently averaging 1.4 births per 1,000 residents, down from 23 only two years ago.

With one-fifth of the world's population, changes in China's population have far-reaching effects on world averages, the independent, non-profit research group pointed out.

The new statistics, estimating the world's current population at 4.8 billion people, were published in the bureau's annual World Population Data Sheet, compiled by demographers Mary Maderies Kent and Carl Haub.

The current worldwide birthrate of 27 per 1,000, coupled with an average of 11 deaths per 1,000 people, results in an annual world population increase of 1.7 percent, the researchers reported. That is down from 1.8 percent in 1983.

However, they noted that this rate still resulted in an extra 84 million people being added to the world's population in 1984. They estimate the total number of people in the world will top 5 billion in 1987 and will exceed 6 billion by the year 2000 if current rates continue.

The fastest population growth is in Africa, where the continent-wide birth rate is 45 per 1,000. The bureau reported that African women average 6.3 children, with even higher rates in some nations.

With a crude death rate of 16 per 1,000, Africa's population is growing at 2.9 percent per year, compared with North America's annual growth rate of 0.7 percent.

By contrast, European women average fewer than two children and populations have actually begun to decline in Denmark, West Germany and Hungary because more deaths are occurring than births.

Easter rites lead to chaos in Beirut

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Two people were killed and 10 were wounded, including three at an Easter Sunday service by fighting around Beirut and the southern port of Sidon.

Both deaths were caused by sniping into Christian east Beirut, which residents said was touched off by shooting colorful tracer bullets into the air in Christian areas to mark the Easter holiday.

In Sidon, the provincial capital of southern Lebanon, battles between Christian militiamen in the hills overlooking the city and Muslim and Palestinian fighters on the eastern edge entered their 10th day Sunday.

Sniping gave way at midmorning to a barrage of 22 artillery shells fired on Sidon's main thoroughfare, Riad Solh street, from Christian militia gun positions, local reporters said.

The shelling interrupted a meeting of Nazir Bazzi, a leading Sunni Muslim Parliament member from Sidon, with the city's Maronite Catholic archbishop, Ibrahim Hleou, to extend Easter greetings.

Both later told reporters they had received anonymous telephone calls threatening their lives. The two have actively been trying for peace in Sidon, which is 25 miles south of the capital.

Congressmen hope to meet Soviet leaders

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S. House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill and 12 other members of Congress arrived in Moscow on Sunday on a visit U.S. and Soviet officials say provides for a possible meeting with new Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

In a brief statement to his Soviet greeters at the airport, O'Neill, D-Mass., said the bipartisan delegation comes with a desire for peace.

"We hope we find the new leadership in the Soviet Union also shares our goal," O'Neill said.

U.S. and Soviet officials have said the delegation's itinerary leaves time for possible meetings on Tuesday with Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and on Wednesday with Gorbachev.

Kicking a cat won't solve trade problem

Last year the United States bought from the world $123.3 billion worth of goods more than it sold to the world — a record trade deficit, one that probably will be broken again this year. How the country got into a situation that would bankrupt even your average huge corporation is complicated.

For one thing the dollar, towering as it does above all other currencies, gives American consumers more for their money when they choose imported products over American goods.

The huge federal deficit accounts in part for the high value of the dollar. American companies, for decades accustomed to a domestic market vast enough to grow fat on, are learning to compete worldwide, but it takes time even at home to win acceptance for new products.

Congress could begin to deal with these immense and interrelated problems by cutting the deficit substantially to relieve pressure on interest rates. It could rewrite business tax laws in ways that would emphasize making American industry competitive rather than sheltering it from competition. Instead, in a tantrum of utter and dangerous frustration, it plans to kick the cat. The cat nearest at hand, or foot, is Japan.

As in all of history's protectionist panics, Congress is responding to its local voters, automobile workers whose jobs are threatened by Japanese cars, electronics manufacturers whose "lost" $15 billion in sales to the Japanese last year, and every other American company that competes with Japanese products.

What Congress, in its frenzy, fails to recognize is that it cannot kick just one cat. The largest single trade deficit that the United States ran last year was with Japan — $36.8 billion. But the combined U.S. trade deficit with Canada, Taiwan and West Germany was larger — $40 billion. Would they be next? Would stuffing Japan have a ripple effect that would lead to barriers springing up in every industrialized nation? There is no clear answer to those questions except that it could happen, and it is not a gamble that the United States should take just for whatever satisfaction it gets from kicking the cat.

Soviets master the 'non-crisis crisis'

There is little doubt about the validity of the following three propositions:

First, an unspoken agreement exists between the United States and the Soviet Union to avoid a crisis that could lead to nuclear war;

Second, the Soviet drive for ideological and political world domination is unquenchable, and Mikhail S. Gorbachev's accession to power will change nothing in that drive;

Third, without American military power, and President Reagan's evident determination to use that power, the world future would belong to the Kremlin.

Both sides agree that toe-to-toe confrontations between America and the Soviet Union are dangerous and must be avoided. In the past the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization have gone to extraordinary lengths to signal the Soviet Union that neither Washington nor NATO would exploit Soviet troubles within its East European empire.

Faced with four more years of Reagan, Moscow has evolved a new form of quasi-warfare that, while minimizing the risk of superpower confrontation, may yet weaken U.S. power and resolve.

I call it the "non-crisis crisis." By that I mean the creation of micro-crises in different parts of the world that — while threatening the stability, existence and alignment of the Western alliance — are events for which the Soviet Union cannot be held directly accountable. The "non-crisis crisis" allows Moscow to occupy the high ground of statesmanship while restless and politically ambitious junior allies or surrogates can operate on the low ground of terrorism, hit-and-run border raids and even air battles over the Gulf of Sidra.

Guest columnist

The best current example of a "non-crisis crisis" at work is Central America, where the United States is bogged down in El Salvador and Nicaragua, and there is no U.S.-Soviet confrontation — and no Soviet losses, only gains.

The "non-crisis crisis" has become an institutionalized feature of contemporary international relations, as normal as a dynamite-packed Mercedes in Beirut.

Five countries have been tagged as responsible for the spread of the "non-crisis crisis" syndrome. According to Avigdor Haselkorn, senior analyst at Analytical Assessments, a division of Eaton Corp. in Cleveland, they make up the Radical Entente: Cuba, Iran, North Korea, Libya and Syria — all dedicated, quite openly, to the overthrow of American power and allies in Central America, the Middle East, Africa and the Pacific Rim.

It could even be that the Soviet Union has no "need to know" what the Radical Entente is up to. The most urgent question before Reagan is this: How can state-of-the-art crisis management deal with the "non-crisis crisis," which is intended to stretch our military and intelligence resources? At present, we cannot deal with a micro-crisis, such as the wipout of Marines in Lebanon. All we can do is withdraw, with all its awful consequences.

We are the fire brigades chasing fires set by a gang of arsonists who can set fires faster than they can be extinguished. The object of attack must be the arsonists, not the fires.

We need a school of "non-crisis crisis" managers — interdepartmental and interservice in nature, with the power and imagination to deploy our military and intelligence assets. Above all, we need new thinking, with new technology and resources. However effectively we oppose the Soviet bloc, we must overcome the ingenious scenario of the "non-crisis crisis" that the Radical Entente has prepared for us and that is working so well for them.

Lobbyists seem to have spent their legislative dollars well

BOISF — Reports from lobbyists show they spent more than $100,000 on dining and otherwise trying to influence members of the 1985 Idaho Legislature.

And lobbyist spending reports indicate those who spent their money early may have had more success for their bucks.

Spending reports through the end of February show lobbyists spent $83,721 on legislators for "entertainment, food and refreshments."

The session ran through March 13, but the secretary of state's office says little spending was reported on lobbying in the final days of the session.

That's an average of $664 spent on each legislator for food and drink, or an average of $100 per day. Discounting the weekend days included in the 66-day session, the average legislator was the recipient of $15 per day in free food and drinks from lobbyists.

One of the most successful lobbying efforts came from the Idaho Freedom to Work Committee, which spent $7,084 in January, including $4,451 for a state-wide series of advertisements urging support for right-to-work.

The Legislature on Jan. 31 voted to override the governor's veto and made Idaho the 21st state with a right-to-work law.

Quane Kenyon

The Idaho Freedom to Work Committee did not report any lobbyist spending in February, and spent $12 overall for "entertainment, food and refreshments."

The Idaho AFL-CIO went the other way, with state President Jim Kerns spending $1,926 in January for food and drink and another $1,254 in February.

Between them, Kern and the Freedom to Work Committee spent $5,438 on advertising over the right-to-work battle — and they were the only lobbyists who used advertising as a means of influencing legislation.

Lobbyists for cities, counties and education reported heavy spending in the second month of the session — and wound up the big losers.

The Idaho Senate refused to grant cities and counties local-option taxing authority. And Gov. John Evans said he felt the education budgets were inadequate.

Charles Holden, director of the Idaho Association of Counties, spent $3,317 on food, drink and entertainment for legislators. John Keiser, Boise State University president, listed $1,148 as the expense of a legislative gathering.

William Roden, former state senator and a Boise lobbyist, again spent the most money on lobbying efforts this session.

Roden, who lobbied on behalf of the liquor industry against bills raising the state drinking age to 21, spent $876 in January but added $9,443 in February for a total of $10,319 for the session — one eighth of the total spent on "entertainment, food and refreshments."

Other big spenders: Idaho Society of CPAs, $2,501 in January; Gub Mix, licensed lobbyist for the Idaho manufactured housing industry, $6,659; Greg Panter, Idaho Power Co., $546 in January and $1,127 in February for a total of $1,673; Lynn Parke, Idaho Farm Bureau Federation, $1,353; J. Kirk Sullivan, Boise Cascade Corp., $1,185; and Jean Weston, Park Center Club and other groups, $2,158 in January and $2,381 in February.

Overall, lobbyists spent $83,721 on food and entertainment; about $1,900 on living accommodations; $5,427 on advertising; about $2,450 on travel and $2,679 on telephone calls; $33,676 on office expense and $5,900 for unspecified "other" expenses. That added up to $195,651, or $933 per legislator.

Attorney General Jim Jones is expected to announce shortly that he probably will not make another bid for Congress from the 2nd District, but instead will run for another four-year term as the state's top legal officer.

If he runs and wins again, Jones will become the first attorney general since Robert Smylie to serve more than one term. And if Jones serves another full term, he will have eight years in the office, beating by one year Smylie's record seven-year stint.

Moreover, if Jones stays where he is, that could influence several other potential campaigns — including some members of Jones' staff who were thinking about trying for the job if their boss tried his luck elsewhere.

I-84 rehab work needs explan

Several recent letters concerning the rehabilitation project on I-84 near Jerome have indicated a need for some explanation of this project and Federal Highway funds.

Since this section of Interstate highway was constructed 20 years ago, many changes have been made in design features to provide a safer roadway and roadside. Among these changes are improved guardrail, the use of break-away bases for signs and lighting fixtures, covering the canals and ditches in the median and the flattening of slopes. These changes are all intended to reduce the effect of impact upon a vehicle and its occupants when these features are involved in an accident.

One of the most significant changes in standards is the flattening of side slopes. This allows the driver a better opportunity to regain control of a run-off-the-road vehicle. Approximately 60 percent of all interstate accidents are in this category. Accident records show that the flattening of slopes, in conjunction with the other improvements, result in a 75 percent reduction in the total number of accidents, with an 80 percent reduction in injury accidents.

Federal highway trust funds are dedicated funds generated by highway user taxes. These funds are not allocated to the states in a lump sum for indiscriminate use. They are designated for use in specified categories such as interstate construction, interstate rehabilitation, primary, secondary and urban highways, critical bridges, etc.

There are about 20 categories in all. Any unused funds in a category are redistributed by the Federal Highway Administration to other states for use in that same category.

In order to qualify for interstate rehabilitation funding, 59 percent of Idaho's total allocation) a project must restore the roadway to a "like new" condition and bring it as close as possible to present day standards.

This project requires a planform overlay, approximately 5 inches in depth. To bring the roadway to present safety standards, thereby qualifying for federal funding, some additional slope flattening and other changes mentioned above are necessary. These additional items involve less than 10 percent of the cost of the project.

The removal of the "rock piles" referred to in previous letters is a result of the subgrade widening required by the overlay, the slope flattening and the economics of excavation in rock.

The present economic loss for this section of highway is approximately $300,000 per year. This is based on the number of accidents and an average cost for the type of accident. It represents a direct cost to drivers involved.

The project improvements are expected to reduce this loss comparable to other similar projects which will represent a direct savings to the public of approximately $250,000 per year. This direct user savings would offset all project costs for safety improvement in less than 4 years. This savings would continue and would increase with the growth in traffic.

The Department believes this is a good investment for the public not only from a monetary standpoint, but also because any reduction in accidents results in a considerable reduction in personal anxiety and loss. Due to the safety savings and restrictions of this type.

If anyone has any further questions on this or any other Department project, please contact the District Office at Shoshone, 886-2411.

Reagan's budget package provides targets for both parties

By DAVID ESPRO
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's considerable skills as a political salesman will be needed when his newest budget package is taken up in the Republican-controlled Senate, which Robert Dole predicts lawmakers will "fire at will."

From a slowdown in Social Security increases to elimination of Amtrak to cutbacks in farm programs, there is much for individual Republican senators not to like, no matter how committed they are to reducing federal deficits.

Analysis

And if the agreement negotiated between the White House and a small group of GOP Senate leaders isn't picked apart by the Republican rank and file senators, the Democrats are certain to try.

They are aiming to regain control of the Senate next year, and are likely to force roll call after roll call to make Republicans stand up and be counted on politically painful domestic cuts.

"If this proposal is enacted into law, it would cost the average Social Security beneficiary $1,220 in the next five years, and push nearly one million Americans below the poverty line by decade's end," Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said as he sounded the first alarm within hours after the budget compromise was announced last Thursday.

The new budget will be put before the Senate during the week of April 22.

While Reagan, Dole and their allies are not underestimating the difficulties ahead in the Senate or the Democratic-controlled House, the plan to cut $52 billion from next year's deficits and nearly $80 billion over the next three years was a bargain both men needed. It amounted to a strong step forward on the president's overall, conservative agenda of sharply cutting back spending on domestic programs.

For Reagan, the compromise was also victory because it met his one non-negotiable demand — no tax hikes. From the beginning, he has wanted the budget debate focused exclusively on spending cuts so tax reform could be considered separately later in the year.

To win that point, he was forced to give ground on defense — about $29 billion over three years — abandon some of his domestic program cuts and after his insistence that he would not support Social Security changes unless a bipartisan majority of Congress showed the way.

But Republican senators knew, even if Reagan never admitted it, that the president had padded both his defense request and his list of recommended domestic changes against the day such a deal would have to be made. And, under the plan, defense spending will still rise by 3 percent after inflation for each of the next three years, while most domestic programs will be held below the rate of inflation or eliminated.

Blazes still ravage North Carolina area

By The Associated Press

Walls of flame rolled across 25 miles of parched brushlands in central North Carolina Sunday, a day after rain doused weather that had destroyed 50,000 acres in eight Southeastern states.

Authorities late Saturday evacuated about 600 people from the path of the 70,000-acre North Carolina fire, then let them return around midnight.

On Sunday, three water-bearing helicopters were called in to help contain the erratic blaze while authorities evacuated about 35 people from the Gum Neck Landing area at the eastern edge of the fire, said Tom Ditt, of the state Division of Emergency Management. It was the same area evacuated earlier.

Smoke from the blaze was visible from 50 miles away, said Larry Such, a spokesman for the state Fire Service. Drivers on U.S. 64, 20 miles away, had to use their headlights. Ash fell on the town of Roper, 20 miles from the fire, authorities said.

There were no reports of injuries at the scene, but the week's blazes were blamed for the death of a freighter in South Carolina, for at least 30 injuries — including two mild heart attacks suffered by evacuees — and for millions of dollars in damage.

Winds were driving sparks from the coastal blaze across firebreaks and starting new fires up to a half-mile behind firefighters, said state forestry worker Tom Sabin. In the fire's path, families lost their furniture on tracks and began moving out of the way.

"I've seen several trucks with furniture go by today," said J.Z. McGowan, a farmer who gathered with others at a small country store south of Creswell. "They were leaving. The fire would burn them up if they didn't."

The Red Cross set up cots and prepared food at Columbia High School and readied for as many as 150 evacuees, said Nelson Smith, a member of the Tyrrell County Rescue Squad. By 6 p.m. Sunday, 13 people had arrived at the shelter.

The fire, spreading across Washington, Hyde and Tyrrell counties, had burned an estimated 70,000 acres, said Kay Scott of the state Division of Forestry Resources.

Mondale admits mistakes in campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Walter F. Mondale, looking back on his landslide defeat in the 1984 presidential election, said Sunday he "fundamentally mishandled my case to the American people" by failing to emphasize the positive side of his message.

"They heard opportunity from the other side, they didn't hear it from me," the former Democratic presidential nominee said in an interview on NBC's "Meet the Press."

It was Mondale's first appearance in a national forum since the November election in which President Reagan carried 49 states for one of the most lopsided re-election victories in American history. Mondale carried only his home state of Minnesota and the District of Columbia.

Mondale said he continues to believe "I was essentially correct on the fundamental issues," but, he added that he was no match for President Reagan when it came to communicating with the American people.

"The fact of the matter is, President Reagan's ability to communicate — even things that I think are demonstrably not accurate — verges on genius," said Mondale. "I don't think anybody accused me of the same capability."

In the future, he said the Democrats "must find a candidate who, in addition to being right on the issues and slating them correctly, can master this modern challenge of communication in this huge country of ours."

Mondale also criticized Reagan for agreeing with Senate Republicans to a budget compromise that would cut 2 percent from the cost of living increases to program recipients.

Mondale said Reagan "backed off his commitment" made during the campaign not to tamper with Social Security.

Asked about the Republican contention that Reagan's commitment did not apply to the cost of living increases, Mondale replied, "That won't wash and the record won't sustain that at all."

He predicted Congress would refuse to go along with the proposal that would protect Social Security recipients against the first two percent of any increase in the cost of living, but not the next two percent.

No drop in violent crimes, but overall rate falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — A government "gauge" shows overall crime fell by 4.5 percent last year, but there was no drop in the rate of violent crimes such as rape, robbery and assault, the Justice Department said Sunday.

The National Crime Survey, which measures crimes not reported to police as well as those reported, also showed that the rate of household burglaries and larcenies fell to the lowest level in the 12 years of the survey's existence.

The crime survey is based on interviews with a nationwide sample of more than 125,000 people. Based on preliminary figures for 1984, there were 35.3 million "victimizations" compared to 37 million the year before, the Bureau of Justice Statistics said.

Steven R. Schlesinger, bureau director, said the drop in the crime rate may be attributable to several factors, including changes in sentencing procedures, increased citizen involvement in crime prevention and the shrinking crime-prone age group. These are people between the ages of 14-24.

Several criminal scholars in recent years have cited declining birth rates as a factor in declining rates of crime. But revamped procedures for sentencing convicted felons, especially those with long records, may also account for the change.

"Criminals in jails or prisons are at least temporarily unable to victimize the public," said the National Crime Survey, focusing on incidents in which people are victimized rather than on crimes reported to police, is regarded as a broader and more reliable measure of crime in the United States.

Fight on affirmative action looms

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration is facing resistance from many states and cities as it seeks to rid court-ordered affirmative action programs of race and sex-based numerical hiring and promotion quotas.

Officials in major cities, including Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, Miami, Philadelphia and San Francisco, say such programs are working well and should be left alone.

The looming fight, centering on programs that grew out of the civil rights struggles of the 1960s, raises the question of whether the Constitution demands color-blind public hiring policies.

Administration officials, led by Attorney General Edwin Meese III and civil rights chief William Bradford Reynolds, say it does. Civil rights groups say no. And the Supreme Court hasn't addressed the issue directly.

Reynolds maintains the high court rejected the issue last June.

In a 6-3 decision, the court held that Memphis, Tenn., officials violated the constitutional rights of firefighters covered by a seniority system to protect blacks from layoffs.

Reynolds acknowledges that the court's ruling in the so-called "Stotts case" dealt with layoffs but says it also concluded that preferential treatment in hiring and promotion violates Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

After that ruling, Reynolds sent letters to officials in charge of administering some 50 state and local government affirmative action programs, asking them to join his department in asking federal courts to strike mandatory quotas from those programs.

The department suggested substitution of a recruitment program along with provisions that ensure against discriminatory hiring practices.

"In our view, the Supreme Court's decision in Stotts precludes persons who are not actual victims of discrimination from receiving preferential treatment as part of any remedial measures designed to overcome the effects of past discrimination," Reynolds said in the letter.

Last week, the department released a list of the localities affected. While some agreed with Reynolds' position and others are negotiating, howls of protest emanated from city, county, courthouses and state capitols.

Schroeder's health still huge concern

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Artificial heart recipient William J. Schroeder is out of the hospital, but faces unresolved medical problems and will adjust slowly to his limited freedom, his wife and doctor say.

The 53-year-old Schroeder, who on Saturday became the first artificial heart recipient to be released from hospital, spent a restless first night in his new home Saturday, Bob Irvine, a spokesman for Humana Inc., said in a taped message Sunday. He provided no details.

Margaret Schroeder said she and her husband will develop a daily routine at their specially equipped apartment across the street from Humana Hospital Ajudub, where he spent 133 days convalescing after the mechanical pump was implanted.

"We're just kind of going to work it out on our own so that we get all the medical care taken care of. That's most important. From there we'll just go," she said at a news conference Saturday.

Implant surgeon William C. DeVries said "the important thing about moving him over there, for the next couple of days or next week, is getting him comfortable with his surroundings."

Fishing trips, one of Schroeder's personal post-hospital goals, may come later.

IRS asked to give firms their space

WASHINGTON (AP) — Space, the final frontier, is not beyond the reach of the Internal Revenue Service. So two senators want to ensure the IRS won't prevent free enterprise from boldly going where enterprise has not gone before.

Sen. Howell Heflin, D-Ala., and Slade Gordon, R-Wash., are proposing legislation that would remove tax code barriers to the commercial development of space.

In a letter soliciting co-sponsors, the senators noted that businesses are becoming increasingly interested in the potential benefits of space-based manufacturing and research and development.

But such ventures are "high risk, long-term in nature and very costly," the letter said. And U.S. companies are "frustrated by a number of unintended tax barriers which discriminate against space-related business ventures.

Such ventures, for example, do not get investment tax credits, accelerated depreciation, or research and development credits, according to the senators.

And because most U.S. tax laws were written before commercial uses of space were even envisioned, income from space ventures could be treated as foreign income, "simply because the activities are conducted in space and not on earth," their letter states.

"This is an equity issue," it adds. "It is a matter of ending unintended discrimination against private sector investment."

"The legislation they are proposing is designed to allow U.S. companies involved in space ventures the same tax treatment of those companies involved in domestic terrestrial ventures" by:

- Permitting the use of investment tax credits and accelerated depreciation.
- Providing research and development tax credits.
- Allowing income, derived from U.S. space ventures to be treated as domestic income.

Reagans ask for more to give organs

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — President Reagan and his wife Nancy, spending Easter Sunday at their mountaintop ranch, urged Americans to make provisions for donating their organs for transplant after death.

The Reagans spent Easter with their son, Ron, his wife, Doria, and their friend, C.Z. Wick, son of Charles Wick, director of the United States Information Agency and a longtime friend of the president.

Enjoying sunny and warm weather after being fog-bound a day earlier, the Reagans went horseback riding.

A White House statement said the Reagans spoke by telephone Saturday evening with Karen Osterblom, mother of 14-month-old Ryan Osterblom, who underwent liver transplant surgery Friday in Pittsburg.

The youth, of Indianola, Fla., on Sunday was in critical but stable condition, which is considered normal for recent transplant patients, said Debby Lesniak, a nursing supervisor at Children's Hospital.

County crews making parks well-scrubbed

Spring cleaning time arrives

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — In anticipation of picnics, camping and boating, work crews are doing spring cleaning at the parks owned by Twin Falls County.

The most ambitious project is at the park on the west side of Murtaugh Lake.

Last week, a dragline was used to build up the park's shoreline, which routinely melts away by the wind and the waves, said Darrell Helder, the Twin Falls County parks director.

The project was being done under the auspices of the county waterways commission, which is responsible for all waterfronts in the county. The commission projects were funded by the fees from boat licensing.

By this spring, domestic water for drinking should be available at Murtaugh Park. A well was drilled last year and crews will complete the work this spring. The project will cost about $80, Helder said.

If time allows, county parks crews will continue their ongoing project of installing a sprinkler system at the park.

When the system is completed, grass would be planted to replace the native grass that mostly has turned to weeds, Helder said.

About 1,000 feet of pipe were installed last year, but there is a lot more to do, he added.

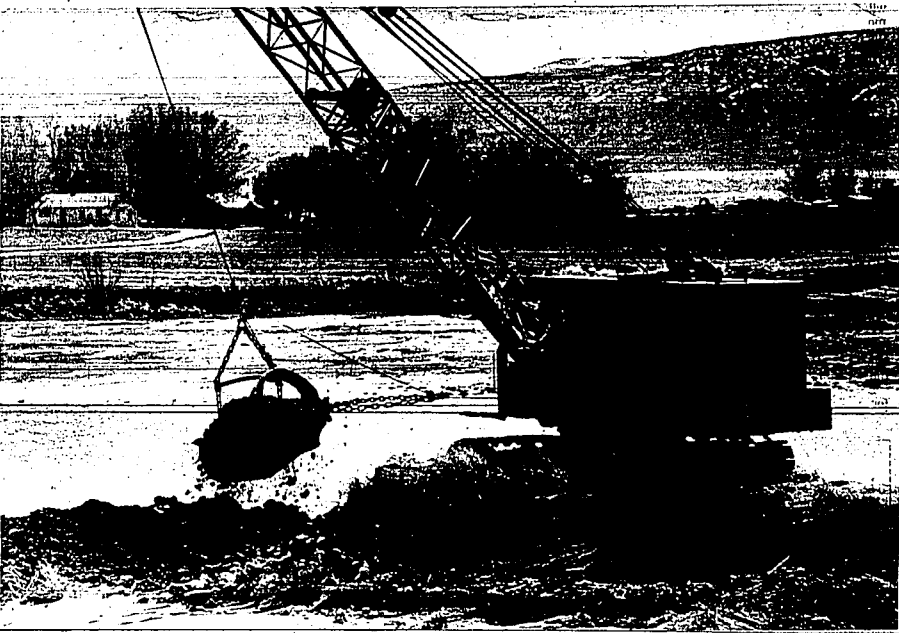

It took three years to complete a similar system at Rock Creek Park, which is located across from Mag Valley Regional Medical Center, he said. The funding for the sprinkler system was taken from the parks budget.

The 10-acre Murtaugh Park, with its sheltered picnic tables and many boat docks, was popular with water skiers, Helder added.

Across the county at Rock Creek Park, crews will paint and repair water pipes that broke during the winter.

The county has applied for a $200,000 grant to expand and improve the park. Such improvements include the construction of an amphitheater, Helder said he didn't know when the grant awards would be announced.

At Balanced Rock Park near Castleford, spring cleanup will consist of shoveling out the six to eight inches of sediment that collected under the picnic tables. The park was flooded last May and again this year by the nearby Salmon Falls Creek. "There was a lot of cleanup that didn't get done last year," Helder

Jim Shoemaker builds an embankment near the dock at Murtaugh Lake using a crane with a drag line and bucket

Through an agreement with the Bureau of Land Management, the county maintains Drexler Park at Salmon Dam.

The BLM was responsible for spring cleanup here, Helder said. The county pays the Salmon River Canal Co. for the services of a company employee, who lives near the park, to haul out trash. When Balanced Rock Park is ready for recreation, it will be maintained under an agreement with the Castleford Men's Club, Helder said.

"We are limited in what we can do," Helder said. The county parks department, consists of two men and Helder. The men also double as the county's solid waste department.

Land swap might not necessarily be smooth

Factors could delay BLM-Forest Service exchange until 1986

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

WASHINGTON — Skepticism and a need for a thorough review and a complicated legislative process will delay any swap of land between the Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service at least until 1986, say aides to key western Congressmen.

"This whole process, when it gets into legislation, is going to be more complicated than people realize," says Tod Neunenschwander, administrative assistant to Sen. Jim McClure, R-Idaho.

As chairman of the Senate's Energy and Natural Resources Committee, McClure will play a key role in the process of adopting legislation to put the interchange proposal into action.

And, Neunenschwander says, Idaho's senior senator has no intention of allowing anyone to foist the proposal upon the state, the public or government employees without a proper review or an attempt to resolve the concerns of all interest groups.

"I can tell you there will be hearings in the state, and we will try to work out solutions to their problems,"

SEN. JAMES MCCLURE
Needs to see details

Neunenschwander says. Although McClure supports the concept of the interchange, particularly for Idaho, he wants to see details on its effects before he endorses a specific proposal, the aide says.

Neunenschwander says officials in the BLM and Forest Service who say they hope the interchange is adopted later this year as "balancing" legislation and it will be at least 1985 before legislation is passed.

The delay, he says, will come from the time needed to review the proposal to give the public an opportunity to respond and to revise the "dozens" of laws that will be affected by the interchange.

However, Neunenschwander says, opening those laws up for review for purposes of the interchange presents a potential political pitfall: Lawmakers who have desires to revise other areas of those laws, to either weaken or strengthen them, may take advantage of the opportunity to do so.

Such actions could threaten or delay the interchange legislation, Neunenschwander says.

"That opens an entire can of worms, no question. I think it would be our intention to try to eliminate that as much as possible," he says.

Although any review of those laws is a fairly recent event, and the interchange could confuse that involvement just when people are getting used to the idea, Wilson says.

SEN. PAUL LAXALT
Doesn't want to move too fast

Those areas affected by the interchange, Neunenschwander says. McClure supports the general concept of the interchange because of its efficiency-increasing and cost-saving potential, he says.

In Idaho, the plan is especially attractive because the land managed by the two agencies is already split along logical lines, with the Forest Service primarily in the north and the BLM primarily in the south, Neunenschwander says.

Only relatively small, intermingled tracts — approximately 4 million acres — of public land will be affected in Idaho.

McClure has supported similar programs for a number of years, he says.

In part because of the natural division between the two agencies, no strong opposition has been raised to the proposal from either public land permit holders or conservation groups in Idaho. However, that is not the case in other states.

Strong opposition has surfaced in Oregon, New Mexico and Nevada for a variety of reasons, and their congressional delegations are approaching the issue either with caution or outright opposition.

Sens. Paul Laxalt, R-Nev., and Pete Domenici, R-N.M., have written letters to H.R. Director Robert Burford and Forest Service Chief R. Max Peterson to ask them to not move too fast on the proposal and to involve the Management, focus on issues concern state's conservationists

By DAVE LEWIS
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — "It's a feeling of being nervous about it, but not being afraid of it."

That's the way Dennis Baird of Moscow describes his reaction to the proposed land swap between the Bureau of Land Management and Forest Service that was reinstated by the agencies in January.

Baird is a member of the Sierra Club and the Idaho Environmental Council, and his reaction is similar to those of members of other Idaho conservation groups.

In general, conservationists see potential value in the interchange from a money-saving viewpoint. But they are concerned about certain sensitive areas — the dilution of land management because of cuts in manpower and the public's distraction from important issues facing the two agencies because of the attention given to the interchange proposal.

Wendy Wilson, director of the Idaho Conservation League, says the interchange issue could "muddle the waters" and deflect criticism away from the agencies on such issues as deficit timber sales and the new grazing fees recently proposed for public lands.

However, these and other important issues deserve the full attention of the public as policies are established to govern them, Wilson says.

"I think we need some clear accountability from the agencies on how they manage the land," she says.

Citizen involvement in the setting of management policies on public lands is a fairly recent event, and the interchange could confuse that involvement just when people are getting used to the idea, Wilson says.

Recently completed public involvement in such issues as the BLM wilderness study may become lost in the shuffle, she says.

"The interchange proposal doesn't help citizen watchdogging at all," she says. "Anything can happen in the post-Walt era."

"Because the proposal is still in its infancy, few conservation groups have taken an official position on it. But, skepticism dominates their search for an answer to why the interchange is being revived now."

"In concept, I concur with it," says Bill Meiners, past-president of the Idaho Wildlife Federation.

"I do have reservations with what may motivate the concept at this particular time," says Meiners, a retired BLM official.

Meiners says the Reagan administration may have a "hidden agenda" for proposing the interchange, and he says he is afraid it may be another ill-conceived attempt to balance the budget like the Asset Management Plan, a program initiated to sell isolated, hard-to-manage parcels of public lands that was stopped because of a loud public outcry.

Although he says there is a need for streamlining the agencies, Meiners says the administration may be giving only "lip service" to efficiency to hide its real purpose.

"I'd like to think this is an honest effort to streamline things," he says. "I'd like to think this is an honest effort to streamline things."

But, he adds, "In this day and age, you have to be suspicious of everything."

A primary concern to conservationists is the shifting of jurisdiction from one agency to another of sensitive areas, particularly those that are under consideration for

Gas station robbed

TWIN FALLS — The third armed robbery in a few months' time at the Texaco service station on Blue Lakes Boulevard North occurred Sunday morning when a young man entered the business and took $870 from the attendant on duty.

Public Safety Director Tim Qualls said police were notified at 9:45 a.m. after the suspect left the business, which is known as Hardy's Enterprises. He said the attendant, Michael Davis, reported the suspect walked into the office area and displayed a handgun. He ordered Davis to turn over the money and was given the cash from the cash register.

Qualls said after the suspect received the cash from the cash register he demanded that Davis open a floor safe. When Davis protested, saying he did not know the combination, the young man told repeated his demand, saying he knew Davis could open it, because he had watched Davis unlock the safe earlier when he opened the station for business.

The suspect was described as having a dark complexion, being about 5-10 and in his mid-30s. Qualls said the armed station was closed by the same robbers last December.

Since it was believed the suspect left on foot, Qualls said roadblocks were not set up.

Twin Falls, Hailey; Boise will sample beer

New brew to be test-marketed in Idaho

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Twin Falls, Hailey, and Boise have been chosen as test markets for Adolph Coors Co.'s newest beer, Coors Extra Gold.

Called a "full-bodied premium beer," Coors Extra Gold will be test-marketed in seven cities in California, two in Nevada and here in Idaho.

Twin Falls and the other test markets were chosen for a number of reasons, Coors says. Among them are the measurability of the market, demographics, strength of test market distributors, and probability of results.

"We have seen a move on the part of some consumers to try new brands within the premium segment, which represents almost 50 percent of the industry volume. We are responding to this change in consumer demand," said Coors executive vice-president Robert A. Reholtz.

"We also find consumers who now say they want a more robust taste. We believe Coors Extra Gold will capture the distinctive attributes these consumers say they want without sacrificing drinkability," he said.

Local distributor Dick Burwell says the new product will be on the shelves of local markets the week of April 15.

With Idaho and Wyoming providing premium barley to Coors, Burwell says the success of the new Coors product could mean expanded barley acreages for local farmers.

"If it's a successful product it means a lot to the Twin Falls area. If it works, we'll roll it out," Burwell says.

Coors Extra Gold will be sold initially in 12-ounce non-returnable bottles and 12-ounce cans with a gold and bronze label.

"It's a full-bodied beer, I think it's in the premium range between Coors and Budweiser," Burwell says.

Promotional material from Adolph Coors Co. stresses a darker golden color for the new product. "We are aiming for a special breed of premium beer drinker that we have carefully identified. Men — legal drinking age to 34. These are the guys who consume over 60 percent of all premium beer. Our advertising has been designed to target these individuals," Coors promotional material said.

State gains better foothold on ladder of 'Fortune 500'

BOISE (AP) — At least a half-dozen companies headquartered in Idaho or with sizeable operations in the state moved into more prominent spots on the latest "Fortune 500" list compiled annually by Fortune magazine.

The list ranks the nation's largest industrial companies, based on 1984 sales, and will appear in the April 29 issue of Fortune.

Exxon Corp., New York, retained its No. 1 ranking as the largest industrial company with $90.8 billion in sales last year. Exxon owns Zilog Inc., a semiconductor company with a satellite plant in Nampa.

Also ranked among the top 100 companies is Hewlett-Packard Co., which is based in Palo Alto, Calif., and has two divisions in Boise. The computer and electronics company placed 60th, with 1984 sales of $6.04 billion. It moved up 15 places from last year's listing when it ranked 75th.

J. Helz Co., Pittsburgh, ranked 194th with $3.95 billion in sales last year. The parent company of Orin-Ida Foods Inc., Boise, moved up from 100th place on the previous Fortune 500 list.

Boise Cascade Corp., a Boise-based forest products company, made substantial gains this year. It ranked as the 102nd-largest industrial company in the U.S., compared with 113th a year earlier. Its sales during 1984 were $3.82 billion.

"We certainly are pleased that we are moving up on the ladder," said spokesman Doug Bartels — who, despite being held back by some weak markets, we have had some steady gains in sales... in the packaging, paper and office products segments.

Other large Boise-based companies — such as Albertson's Inc. and Morrison-Knudsen Co. — were not included in the Fortune 500 listing because of Fortune magazine requirements. The magazine requires that a company derive more than 50 percent of its sales from manufacturing, mining or both to qualify as an industrial firm.

Louisiana-Pacific Corp. placed 269th on this year's list, a gain from 270th a year earlier. The forest products company, which operates plants in northern Idaho, had sales of $1.23 billion last year.

EG&G Corp. took the 291st spot with 1984 sales of $1.07 billion, moving from 318th place a year earlier.

EG&G, Wellesly, Mass., is a major contractor at the Idaho National Engineering and Laboratory west of Idaho Falls.

Potlatch Corp., San Francisco — another forest-products company — moved into 302nd place on the latest Fortune 500 list, up from 317th on the previous list. Potlatch, which has wood- and paper-products plants in northern Idaho, had sales of $993 million last year.

Some other companies with operations in Idaho also were on the Fortune 500 list, including Dart & Kraft Inc., Northbrook, Ill., which has a Tupperware plant in Jerome, at 33rd, the same position as last year; and Gannett Co. Inc., Tyngsboro, Va., which owns The Idaho Statesman newspaper. It rose to 186th from 203rd place last year.

Others included NCRCO, Portland, Ore., which owns the DeLamar Silver Mine, 470th, new on the list; Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, which owns a molybdenum mine in Challis, 10th, a drop from 8th place last year; and ConAgra, Omaha, Neb., which owns the Armour Food Co. operation in Nampa, 121st, up from 162nd place last year.

be difficult to undo if the proposal is ultimately rejected, says an aide. Kevin Abbott.

In Nevada, virtually all the Forest Service land will be turned over to the BLM, and the Sierra Club has raised objections to the proposal.

His primary concern is for those lands, Kirchner says, but he also is concerned about the actual savings the proposal will bring and a drop in land management when staff positions are cut in both agencies.

Most also appear skeptical about the amount of savings the agencies are claiming they will have if the swap is made, including McClure. The agencies claim from $25 million to $35 million could be saved each year. But that is very little of the combined $2.1 billion budgets of the two land managers have for 1985, says Neunschwander.

Burglar hits residential garage

TWIN FALLS — Leslie C. Lau of 111 Maurice St. told police someone took the electronic garage door opener from a car parked in his driveway and returned to burglarize the garage.

Lau said the opener was left on the dash of a 1965 sedan parked at his residence between Feb. 20 and Saturday when he discovered it missing. He called later to tell police someone entered his garage and removed a power saw and a camera sometime during those same dates. He estimated loss at $130. There was no sign of forced entry into the locked garage, Lau said.

In another theft reported over the weekend to police, a loss of $190 was sustained by the Sportsman's Supply at 101 Addison Ave. W. Clayton Clough told police someone took a ruger pistol from a glass display case. He said the theft apparently occurred while he was in the store from the store between 4 and 5 p.m. on either Thursday or Friday.

Evans to attend timber hearing

BOISE (AP) — Idaho Gov. John Evans and three representatives of the state's forest-products industry are scheduled to appear at a hearing in Kalspeil, Mont., today on Canadian timber imports.

The hearing, called by U.S. Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., will focus on the effects of increasing Canadian lumber imports on the Northwest timber industry. Baucus is a member of the International Trade Subcommittee of the Senate Finance Committee.

"Over 1,000 Idahoans have lost their jobs in the last year because our lumber markets are disappearing," Evans said. "Many factors are responsible for this decline, but the rapid growth in Canadian lumber imports — now estimated to supply 35 percent of the U.S. market — is one of the most critical."

The governor also said the flood of Canadian timber has depressed lumber prices below production costs in many areas of northern Idaho.

The three-week-old lemur, as yet unnamed since its sex isn't known, is a source of elation to Hogle officials.

What's what

Women in their 20s like men to wear jeans and T-shirts. Women in their 30s prefer men in three-piece suits. Women over 40 would rather see men in gray flannels.

Sooner or later some curious soul will do just the right thing - by accident - to stumble into a significant new discovery. Take Chinese Empress Xi Ling Shi. She dropped a silkworm's cocoon into 'hot' water. That softened it sufficiently to let the thread unwind. Why did she do it? Strang.

but the bad animals don't. They're just identified by the name of the species. See if you can name the good characters that match up with these bad animals: The wolf. The dragon. The snake!

Living will has short life span in some states

DEAR ABBY: Six years ago my mother signed the Living Will in order to ensure that should she become terminally ill, she would not be hooked up to machines to keep her alive after there was no hope for her recovery.

Abigail VanBuren Dear Abby

After watching her own mother die a painful, lingering death in a nursing home, she vowed never to impose that kind of suffering and expense on herself and her family.

Three years ago my mother suffered a severe stroke, and she's been in a nursing home with nurses around the clock ever since. We just learned that in our state (California) the Living Will is good for only five years — after that, it must be re-signed, in order to be valid.

Abby, because you have publicized the Living Will so widely in your column, I think you owe it to your readers to publish this letter and alert them to this fact.

mments you should know about. The Society for the Right to Die is a non-profit organization. It does not charge for Living Wills, but in order to cover the cost of the documents and mailing, I sent a check for $10 requesting five documents — one to give to my physician, my clergyman, and three for family members.

In my view, it's the best investment in peace of mind I've ever made.

DEAR ABBY: This is how I handled a courteous young man who ignored the "No Solicitors" sign on my door, then explained that he was a Jehovah's Witness.

When he offered to give me some literature, I responded, "You may leave your literature for me to read only if you will take some of my literature for you to read," and I handed him The Catholic Digest.

The courteous young man left in a hurry without taking my literature, or leaving his.

Manic-depressives suffer intense mood swings

By COSMOPOLITAN

We all have emotional ups and downs, but for the 4 million Americans who suffer from manic-depression, these mood swings were from frenzied excitement and Napoleonic ambition to lethargy and feelings of utter worthlessness.

Author Virginia Woolf, King George III of England, and President Teddy Roosevelt were among the artistic and historical figures known to have been afflicted. Their lives may have been dramatic, but their personalities lived bleak, potentially lethal sides: about one in seven manic-depressives commit suicide.

An article in the April issue of Cosmopolitan magazine explains that mood swings of manic-depressives differ in severity and duration from normal everyday ups and downs. Joy or misery prompted, say, by a career triumph or setback, normally last a few hours or days. But life for a manic-depressive can be like a blindfolded ride through a steep mountain range. Remissions and relapses may be spontaneous, with dips into depression and climbs to manic peaks lasting months, even years.

Just as depression ranges from ordinary "blues" to the depths of melancholia, mania extends from mild exhilaration or "hypomania" to psychosis requiring hospitalization.

Indeed, hypomania is an extremely pleasant state comparable to a mild cocaine high, eliciting feelings of sexuality and omnipotence. Fueled by seemingly limitless energy, hypomanics may function well for months on a few hours sleep a night. They are extremely productive.

Numerous successful businessmen, doctors, journalists and artists are known to be hypomanic. Says Dr. Michael J. Gillin, medical director of the Affective Disorders Clinic at the UCLA Medical Center: "Those of us in the field become very jealous of hypomanic patients because they get so much accomplished and really run the world."

Hypomania is a very creative state of being; the problem is you can't control it. The puzzle of manic-depression remains unsolved. A key avenue of research points to the brain chemical norepinephrine — that "feel-good" mood. Released from nerve endings, this chemical carries messages across tiny gaps separating brain cells. One theory by Harvard psychiatrist professor, Dr. Joseph Schildkraut, holds that some depressions may be linked to a deficiency of norepinephrine while some manias may be linked to its excess.

Manic-depression, in milder forms, is sometimes triggered by the change of seasons. November brings a winter-long depression. Come March, these patients suddenly become hypomanic.

Since seasonal manic-depression follows the change in day light at different times of the year, a National Institute of Mental Health research team has treated a number of patients with bright fluorescent lights to artificially "lengthen" winter days. Results have been dramatic: slumps dissipate rapidly and stay away as long as treatments continue. Several test subjects have gone through winter without their usual bleak moods.

One NL, four AL games open 1985 major league baseball campaign today

By BEN WALKER
The Associated Press

Pete Rose takes aim on one of the most hallowed records in sports. Baseball's best division, now better than ever, takes aim on the World Series champions, the Detroit Tigers. The carefree days of spring training are over; the regular season awaits. It's Opening Day, 1985.

In Cincinnati, where the National League has started its season for the past century, player-manager Rose leads his Reds against the Montreal Expos before a sellout crowd of 52,000 at Riverfront Stadium.

Another 52,000 fans are expected at Tiger Stadium, where Detroit meets the Cleveland Indians in one of four American League openers. The other AL games are at Baltimore, where the Orioles play the Texas Rangers; at Boston, where the Red Sox face the New York Yankees; and at Kansas City, where the Royals meet the Toronto Blue Jays.

MAJOR LEAGUE BASEBALL

"There's nothing like a home opener, either it's at home or on the road," Yogi Berra, the Yankees manager, once said.

The rest of the 26 major league teams play Tuesday. By April 19, every team will have opened at home. The teams in Cincinnati should be lively, anxious to see what Rose can do in his first full season since returning to his hometown. The Reds have fallen on hard times since the Big Red Machine glory days of the 1970s, and Cincinnati fans hope Rose's enthusiasm can rejuvenate the team.

For now, an even bigger story will be Rose's pursuit of Ty Cobb's all-time hit record of 4,191.

Rose needs 95 hits to break the mark. Rose will turn 44 on April 14, and he played sparingly during the exhibition season — in the games he did play, he hit a mere 6-11.

"I'm not going to worry about the record until I'm close enough that I can break it that day," Rose said. "No one has ever gone 95-for-95 in a game."

Mario Soto will start the opener for the Reds against Montreal's Steve Rogers, trying to rebound from a 6-15 record during an injury riddled 1984 season. The game will be the Expos' first under Manager Buck Rodgers.

The last time the Detroit Tigers played at home was Oct. 14, 1984, when they beat the San Diego Padres 8-4 to win the World Series in five games.

Detroit got off to a 3-5 start last year, finished the regular season with a 104-58 mark, swept Kansas City in the AL playoffs, then routed San Diego. Along the way, the Tigers became only the fourth team to stay in first place every day of the season. The Tigers will send ace Jack Morris against Cleveland's Bert Blyleven in a matchup of 19-game winners in 1984. However, there was a chance that Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson would not be at the game — he was hospitalized Saturday with a blood clot below his left knee and his status for the opener was uncertain.

Although the Tigers dominated the AL East last year, winning by 15 games, many teams in the division have improved themselves with offseason acquisitions.

New York added Rickey Henderson, one of the best leadoff hitters in baseball. Baltimore spent million of dollars to sign free agent outfielders Fred Lynn and Lee Lacy and pitcher Don Anse. Toronto, which blew more leads after the seventh inning than any team in the majors last season, got relievers Bill Caudill and Gary Lavelle. And Detroit, not to be outdone, traded for pitcher Walt Terrell.

"Detroit ran away with it last year. That happens once in a blue moon — this year, it'll be a dogfight," Henderson said.

Henderson won't be able to get New York off to a fast start. He's on the 15-day disabled list, nursing a sprained ankle.

The Yankees will have 46-year-old knuckleballer Phil Niekro on the mound in the opener against their traditional rivals, the Red Sox, who have a new manager in John McNamara. Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd is scheduled to pitch for Boston. Last year, the Orioles went into season as the defending World Series champions. But the Orioles slipped to a fifth-place finish in the AL East, becoming "lackadaisical" during the regular season, said team president Edward Bennett Williams.

The Orioles went through spring training with a renewed vigor, although they were hurt when Lacy suffered a hand injury that will sideline him until mid-May. Storm Davis of Baltimore and Charlie Hough of Texas are the scheduled starters.

The Royals began last season without slugging third baseman George Brett, who was injured, and outfielder Willie Wilson, who was serving a drug-related suspension.

Toronto, optimistic after finishing second in the AL East last year and now having strengthened its bullpen, will send Dave Steb against Kansas City's Bud Black.

It takes a court order to keep Chris' fan away

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — A 38-year-old man with an infatuation for Chris Evert Lloyd was ordered by a circuit court judge to stay away from the tennis star or face a jail term.

John Mallouk says he fell in love with Lloyd the first time he saw her 14 years ago, and since then has written at least 200 letters to her.

He claims they were love letters.

Circuit Judge Thomas Shotts said it was more obsession than love.

The situation came to court this past week when Lloyd, 30, was scheduled to play in the Ford Challenge Cup tournament at PGA National. The courts are only a few blocks from Mallouk's house.

Lloyd defeated Hana Mandlikova 6-3, 6-3 Sunday in the finals of the tournament in a 70-minute tennis match.

Lloyd is light-tipped on the subject. "Everything has been taken care of," was all she would say.

According to Shotts, Mallouk showed up at the tournament office last week asking if Lloyd had left him an invitation to a party as he had requested in his most recent letter. The tournament promoter contacted a lawyer, who convinced Shotts to issue the restraining order.

The judge was showing several of the letters and an affidavit from Lloyd saying she was worried about her safety.

"There is a reference to her husband Mr. (John) Lloyd, and how he (Mallouk) wanted to get rid of him so they (Mrs. Lloyd and Mallouk) could be together," said Shotts.

"She's apprehensive about (the letters) and I can't blame her."

Mallouk said he thinks Lloyd's marriage is holding her tennis career back and he was just mentioning that in the letter.

Two years ago, when Lloyd played in the Murjani Cup at PGA National, Mallouk said he tried to see her and created "a big misunderstanding."

"I tried to drop in at one or two tournaments, but she turned her back on me," he said.

After 14 years of infatuation and

I think single-minded would be the better word. I fell in love with her the first time I saw her at the U.S. Open. She was 16 and I was 24. I hate to be simplistic about it, but I just like her looks."

After 14 years of infatuation and

some 200 letters, Mallouk said he never has talked to the woman he idolizes.

Ahead 5-3 in the second set on Sunday, Lloyd reached match point when Mandlikova, of Czechoslovakia, fell to 30-40.

Lloyd returned a ball to the baseline, which was called out by the line man, deucing the score. Both Mandlikova and Lloyd disagreed, saying the call was good.

The umpire agreed with both players that a let should be played.

"It was good sportsmanship by Hana," said Lloyd, of Fort Lauderdale. "Other players might have accepted the call."

She won the replayed point — of the match — when Mandlikova missed a backhand volley.

Lloyd has lost only seven times on clay in the last 12 years. Sunday's victory extended her margin over Mandlikova to 17-3.

"I didn't serve very well today,"

Mandlikova said. "It's also tough to start playing outside like this, but there are no excuses. Chris played better than me."

Mandlikova, ranked No. 3, won $50,000 after beating Pam Shriver of Lutherville, Md., in Saturday's semifinal of the $275,000 Ford event.

In a consolation match Sunday, Carling-Bassett of Canada earned third place in the event and $25,000 by beating Shriver, 6-2, 7-5. Shriver got $15,000 for her fourth-place showing.

Pocatellans don't want tournaments in Boise

POCATELLO (AP) — A representative of the city of Pocatello and two local high school basketball coaches say they're angry over last week's decision to make Boise the site of the 1986 and 1987 state A-1A-2 high school basketball tournament.

"I'm very disappointed, obviously," said Jim Fox, owner of local radio stations KWIK and KPKY. He and Bob Pendergrass, chairman of the sports committee for Idaho First National Bank, represented Pocatello in a presentation last Tuesday to the IHSSAA Board of Control meeting in Lewiston.

"I still intend to look into it to see what Boise offered that we didn't," Fox said, adding that he was under the impression that Pocatello was lobbying for next year's state tournament alone. "When we heard two years, no one could be more surprised."

IHSSAA executive director Dick Stickle originally proposed having the playoffs in Boise for the next three years, but was voted down. The two-year plan passed unanimously during Wednesday's session.

"The committee is stacked with Boise-area people," Fox said. "It can be difficult to crack that kind of situation."

Pocatello High School basketball coach Jerry Koester said holding the tournaments in Boise again after previous runs at the Boise State University Pavilion in 1983 and 1985 was "certainly out of the pattern the way the tournament has been moved around the last 10 years or so."

"It doesn't surprise me because the Boise schools have been doing pretty much what they've wanted to do lately," Koester said. "I really think the Activities Association has been going with the way of the feelings of the Boise schools."

Before the Pavilion opened, the A-1 and A-2 tournaments were held at different sites with Pocatello and Boise hosting one of the tournaments each year on an alternating basis.

Pocatello hosted the combined tournament in 1984.

"The tournament was just as successful here as it was there," said Highland High School coach Don Conant. "It's not only A-1 schools; but look at the A-2 schools and how they draw. We've had some good representation from A-2 schools, especially from this side of the state. They'll never come back here again (with the tournament)."

This year's tournament drew approximately 26,000 people during its three-day run in Boise.

Fox said the IHSSAA may rationalize its decision by pointing out that Pocatello was awarded the state high school football playoffs for the next two years.

"Where are they going to take football in November other than the Mindome?" he said. "In all honesty, it's like getting the crumbs after the cake has been eaten as far as the economic impact on the communities."

Sun Valley skiers get warm, sunny Easter

Sun Valley — Sun Valley reported sunny skies and a high temperature of 53 degrees on Sunday, with some clouds and light winds in the afternoon. More of the same is in prospect for today. 'Other' Boutin takes on ISU basketball

POCATELLO — "It's BOUT-in," said the middle-aged man. "Like the pitcher."

Jim Boutin, named last Friday as Idaho State University's new head basketball coach, bears little resemblance to the author of Ball Four, Five, and a thousand lockerroom hijinks. But he'll have to do a fair amount of pitching just the same.

"Yeah, I'm aware there are some problems," he said. "But I'm looking forward to it. It's just going to be a thrill for me to coach at the Division I level. NAA coaches don't very often get the opportunity."

Boutin, named to replace Wayne Ballard who resigned last month after completing his third straight losing season at ISU, will inherit a team that has been beset by troubles, both personal and academic. He is signing on with a program that has had just one winning season in the six and with an athletic department on the verge of a financial crisis precipitated by the Idaho State Board of Education's determination to cut state support of college athletics by 10 percent next fiscal year.

"I'm going in with my eyes open," he says. "There are problems in every program; that's part of the challenge. Idaho State has some good athletes and a good basketball tradition."

Boutin was chosen over Ery Innlager, the head coach at North Dakota State, and Dick Drungelster, head coach at Southern Colorado, the other two finalists for the position. Marty Holley, head coach at the College of Idaho and a former assistant at ISU; and Fresno State assistant Keith Hughes, a finalist for the job along with Ballard three years ago, did not make the final cut.

At the age of 42, Boutin has 10 years of college head coaching experience, the last six at Western Oregon State College, where he compiled a 143-13 record. Prior to that, he coached for 12 years at Oregon's Willamette College, where he was 195-30. In 18 seasons, his teams have won 337 games and lost 173.

Boutin's track record, his experience and his reputation as a disciplinarian were the biggest factors in his selection.

"I think one of my strengths in coaching is being able to communicate with players," he says. "I've only met with them briefly, but when I get over there this (this) week I'm going to sit down with them together and individually, study the tables, monitor their academic progress and see if we can get them back on track. I want to find out which players are interested in staying with the program."

He says that his first act will be to find an assis-

Miller earns big check for Nabisco-Shore win

RANCHO MIRAGE, Calif. (AP) — Alice Miller said some personal "brainwashing" helped her forget the pressure and win the LPGA's $400,000 Nabisco Dinah Shore tournament Sunday.

"I tried to keep the possibility of winning off my mind," she said after she fired a final-round, 5-under-par 67 to hold off a late bid by Jan Stephenson.

"I tried not to think that it was the Dinah Shore, a major tournament, on TV, and worth a lot of money," she said after her three-stroke triumph.

"I sort of brainwashed myself," Miller wound up three shots in front of Stephenson with a 13-under-par total of 275 at Mission Hills Country Club.

Stephenson, who had trailed by four strokes heading into the final round, shot a closing 66.

"Jan had a real hot hand putting, but so did I," said Miller. "I just wanted to stick with my game plan; hit greens and wait for bats to go in.

Stephenson, who has apparently rediscovered her putting touch after two years of frustration on the greens, said, "I really thought I would do it, but Alice just kept coming right back."

Stephenson was attempting to become the first "grand slam" winner of all four of the LPGA's major tournaments.

Miller, who collected $53,000 for the victory, had built a five-stroke lead by the turn, but saw that trimmed to just one shot heading into the final three holes at Mission Hills Country Club.

Then, playing in 55-degree heat, she drilled a 12-foot birdie putt on No. 16 to go 12-under-par for the tournament, and Stephenson moments later missed a 6-foot putt for par on No. 17 to drop back to 9-under.

Sindelar wins 1st PGA event

By BOB GREEN

Golf

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Joey Sindelar won his way into the Masters, but said he'll go to Augusta, Ga. by way of Horseheads, N.Y.

"I'm not a negative thinker," Sindelar said after his surprise victory Sunday in wind and rain and cold at the Greater Greensboro Open, his first PGA Tour event. "But I only came here with clothes for one week. I've got to go home and regroup," he said.

Sindelar, who collected $116,528 last year as a Tour rookie, hadn't expected to be making the trip to Augusta next week, but he planned on a week at home in upstate New York.

But, with the extreme weather conditions sweeping away the hopes of some of the game's more glamorous names, Sindelar climbed over 15 players with a closing round of 69, then waited around for more than an hour for the rest of the field to finish and confirm his first victory. It was achieved on a 225 total, three under par for four trips over the wind-scoured Forest Oaks Country Club course.

"Unbelievable, I'm so excited I can hardly talk," Sindelar said.

The victory was worth $72,000 from the total purse of $400,000 and pushed his money winnings for the year to $87,044.

Perhaps more importantly, it qualified Sindelar for the Masters at Augusta, Ga., this week, and such exclusive events as the Tournament of Champions and the World Series of Golf.

"I'm thrilled to be going to the Masters. I never played there as an amateur, and it's a big thrill. But my first victory ..."

Japanese veteran Isao Aoki and former Masters champion Craig Stadler were second at 286. Stadler had a 71 in a fierce wind, occasional showers and increasing cold. Aoki, winner of 44 international titles, matched par 72.

"Well, second is better than third, but nowhere close to first," Stadler said. "It was a good week instead of a real good week."

Corey Pavin was the only other man to break par for 72 holes in the most extreme weather conditions encountered on the Tour this season. Pavin got in with a 71 and was alone at 287.

The group at 288, which included Ed Flori, Jeff Sluman, Doug Tewell, Dan Pohl and Bill Kratzert, Flori had a 70, despite a double bogey on the 18th where he double-hit a little chip. Sluman, Tewell and Kratzert all had 74s under the cold, gray skies and Pohl shot 75.

U.S. Open champ Fuzzy Zoeller made an early move, with a 69 over the front. But he took a double bogey on the 16th and finished at 71-289.

His problems were minor, however, compared with those of veteran Ray Floyd. From a share of the lead, Floyd slipped in with a 78 and finished the tournament at 290, five strokes back. Rookie Phil Blackmar tied with Floyd for the third round lead, didn't do quite so well. He shot 81 for a 293 total. Lanny Wadkins, already a 2-time winner this year, also got in the title hunt at one point, but bogeyed three in a row and had a 74-289.

Sindelar, playing about 1 1/2 hours in front of the other contenders, said the weather conditions — rain, wind and cold — contributed to his triumph.

"Things went right today," he said. "Today was the kind of day you want to catch people with. You couldn't have a nice day and expect to go past 15 people."

He got it three under par on the front side, then birdied the 10th from about eight feet.

Calvin Peete and Curtis Strange lead a cadre of new contenders against the more familiar favorites in the 48th Masters, which opens Thursday.

Jack Nicklaus, Tom Watson and Seve Ballesteros are, of course, among the more popular candidates for the green jacket that goes to the winner of the first of the year's four major tests of golfing greatness.

Walker breaks record in romp over Houston

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — Herschel Walker may have become the forgotten Helmsman Trophy winner on the New Jersey Generals this season with Doug Flutie around, but his record-setting performance against the Houston Gamblers probably won't be forgotten for some time.

Well, maybe not for at least a few days.

Walker rushed for a United States Football League record 233 yards on 31 carries and scored two touchdowns, including one on a league-best 68-yard scamper, as the New Jersey Generals defeated the Houston Gamblers 31-25 Sunday.

The performance broke the old standard of 208 yards rushing set last year by Todd Fowler in a game against Denver.

"What can you say about Herschel Walker," said Generals coach Jack Michaels. "Except for the fumble I can't complain, 233 yards is not a bad afternoon. He certainly earned his money today."

Walker said the Generals needed to control the ball against Houston's "run 'n shoot" offense.

"When I carry the ball a lot I can make things happen," said Walker. "The line was coming off the ball real well, and controlled their down linemen and made the holes. I was taking on linebackers and defensive backs."

Houston played without starting defensive lineman Hosea Taylor.

New Jersey took control early in the second quarter as Flutie took the Generals on a 75-yard drive in 15 plays with Walker capping the march by scoring from the one on fourth down.

Baltimore 17 Los Angeles 6

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Running back Allen Harvin rushed 26 times for 111 yards and two fourth-quarter touchdowns to lead the Baltimore Stars to a 17-6 victory over the Los Angeles Express Sunday.

Harvin led the game when he scored from 21 yards out with 1:33 remaining. Harvin capped a 67-yard, 12-play drive when he plunged over from the 2-yard line with 3:15 remaining for the Stars' first touchdown.

Quarterback Chuck Fusina, who completed 15 of 24 passes for 191 yards, found wide receiver Scott Fitzke for 14, 8- and 13-yard completions and scrambled for nine more yards in the drive.

The Baltimore scoring drive was kept alive when defensive end Ray Caltage tackled Fusina out of bounds for a personal foul, giving the Stars a first down at the Express 25.

Express place-kicker Tony Zendejas opened the scoring when he booted a 48-yard field goal with 8:13 remaining in the first quarter.

David Trout tied the score at the 2-15 mark of the first quarter with a 28-yard field goal.

Zendejas, who has supplied all the Express scoring in their last two outings, added a 35-yard field goal with 8:59 left in the game to give the Express a 6-3 lead.

San Antonio 15 Birmingham 14

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Nick Mike Mayer kicked three field goals to pace the San Antonio Gladiators to a 15-14 United States Football League victory over the Birmingham Stallions Sunday.

Mike Mayer's game-winning 24-yard field goal came with 11 minutes to go in the game and was scored after a fumble recovery by defensive end Greg Fields.

San Antonio's only touchdown was scored on the last play of the third quarter when linebacker Puff Choate recovered a fumbled interception returned 20 yards from two yards out. Birmingham, 5-2, missed an opportunity to win the game with less than a minute to go when kicker Danny Miller's 37-yard field goal attempt was no good.

Birmingham had marched 64 yards to the San Antonio 20 before Miller's attempt. Reserve quarterback Bob Lane had directed the drive, including two key passes to wide receiver Jim Smith.

Nuggets wrap up NBA Midwest crown

DENVER (AP) — The Denver Nuggets, who earlier in the evening clinched the Midwest Division title when Houston lost at San Antonio, got 42 points from Craig Erving Sunday night and hung on to defeat the Golden State Warriors 130-125.

It was Denver's first National Basketball Association division title since 1977-78 and also gave the Nuggets an NBA franchise-record 51 victories. With a 51-27 mark, Denver is 24 games above the .500 mark for the first time since entering the league in 1976.

Golden State, which had won its last two games, lost for the 15th straight time on the road to a Midwest Division team. The Warriors, 22-57, did not defeat a Midwest foe away from home this season.

Golden State, down by as many as 28 points (65-57) early in the third quarter, cut the deficit to just three points on several occasions late in the game behind Eric Floyd and Purvis Short.

But a basket by English with 26 seconds left gave the Nuggets a 120-123 lead to end the suspense.

Short, who had just four points in the first half, finished with 24 to lead the Warriors. Floyd added 19 and Larry Smith 18.

Lafayette Lever contributed 22 points and Wayne Cooper 15 for Denver. Dan Issel had 13 points in only 10 minutes of action, all in the first half.

Pro football

Tony Fitzpatrick and Pete Catan, who were all out with injuries, and Gamblers Coach Jack Pardee said the team missed them.

"They have two great running backs in Walker and (Maurice) Carthery," said Pardee. "But we are scrambling in the defensive line."

"The long touchdown run by Walker broke the old record of 83 yards he set May 29, 1983 against Washington. New Jersey finished the game with a total of 343 yards rushing, another record, breaking a mark set by Oakland.

The victory raised the Generals record to 4-3, while Houston dropped its second straight and fell to 5-2 despite two touchdown passes and a 33-yard passing performance by quarterback Jim Kelly.

Despite running only six offensive plays in the first quarter, the Generals led 7-6. Walker's long touchdown run off right tackle came on New Jersey's second play from scrimmage after John Preston intercepted a Kelly pass.

Kelly cut the margin to 7-6 on the Gamblers second possession, hitting Clarence Verdin on a 3-yard slant pass for a touchdown. Tony Fritsch missed the extra point.

Detroit 113 Milwaukee 91

DETROIT (AP) — Forward Terry Tyler scored 20 points and center Bill Laimbeer added 17 as the Detroit Pistons rolled to an easy 113-91 National Basketball Association victory over the Milwaukee Bucks Sunday night.

Detroit trailed 21-18 in the first quarter but went on a 16-4 spurt in a five-minute span to take a 34-21 lead with nine minutes left in the half.

Two baskets by Bucks center Randy Breuer and two "free throws" by forward Paul Pressey cut the lead to 35-27 with 7:14 to play in the second quarter. But the Bucks pulled no closer the rest of the contest.

Boston 114 New York 102

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird scored a game-high 38 points Sunday as the Boston Celtics completed a regular-season sweep of the New York Knicks with a 114-102 victory at Boston-Garden in a National Basketball Association game.

The triumph moved the Celtics, who won their third straight, to within one game of clinching the best record in the NBA.

Boston won at home for the ninth straight time, and extended the Knicks' current losing streak to eight, the longest of the season for New York. The Celtics also scored their sixth victory in as many games this season against the Knicks.

LA Lakers 135 Portland 133 (OT)

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Earvin "Magic" Johnson's season-high 39 points lifted the Los Angeles Lakers to a 135-133 overtime victory over the Portland Trail Blazers in a National Basketball Association game Sunday.

Byron Scott added 25 points and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar and James Worthy each scored 21. Forward Kurt Rambis had 14 points and a team-high 15 rebounds. In addition to his 39 points, Johnson pulled down nine rebounds and dished out 11 assists.

Kiki Vandeweghe and Clyde Drexler each scored 22 points for the Trail Blazers, and rookie center Sam Bowie had 21 points and a game-high 20 rebounds. Substitute forward Mychal Thompson added 21 points.

Denver, Vancouver campaign for big leagues

By The Associated Press

Denver and Vancouver used the last days of the baseball exhibition season to show their enthusiasm for possible major-league expansion, with the Colorado city the clear attendance winner.

A crowd of 34,518 turned out in 55-degree weather at Mile High Stadium Sunday to see the Seattle Mariners and Chicago Cubs tie 8-8. Phil Bradley hit a three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth inning to pull the Mariners even, and the game was called to allow both teams to make travel connections.

Baseball

The two-game series drew 76,974 fans.

Meanwhile, at B.C. Place Stadium in Vancouver, run-scoring triples by Manny Lee and Mitch Webster highlighted a three-run rally by Toronto in the eighth inning that lifted the Blue Jays to a 4-3 victory over Milwaukee.

The game drew only 13,987 to the domed stadium and a three-game total of 67,007, well under the 106,000 attracted to a similar series last year. In other exhibition finales Sunday, the Dodgers capitalized on California errors by Doug DeCinces and Juan Beniquez in the 11th inning to snap a 6-4 tie as Los Angeles drowked the Angels 9-7. The Dodgers took two of three games in the weekend series between the two teams.

Errors by shortstop Hubble Brooks, third baseman Bob Horner and first baseman Dan Driessen gave Atlanta two unearned runs in the fourth inning and the Braves went to beat Montreal 2-0. The Expos outlast Atlanta 5-3 in the game.

Bill Doran, Jose Cruz and Jim Pankovitz singled in the only runs of the game as the Houston Astros blanked Philadelphia 3-0.

Jack Clark hit his fourth spring homer and Terry Pendleton had two hits, including an RBI single, to lead St. Louis to a 6-1 decision over the New York Mets.

Ozzie Guillen had four hits and the Chicago White Sox scored three runs in the seventh inning to defeat Pittsburgh 8-4. Guillen, Marc Hill and Scott Fletcher knocked in runs as the White Sox broke a 2-2 tie in the seventh.

Chili Davis and Dan Gladden each hit a two-run homer off Don Sutton to carry San Francisco to a 7-5 triumph over Oakland. Mike Davis hit a three-run homer, his sixth of the spring, to highlight a five-run fourth inning for the A's.

Lenn Sakata homered, Scott McGregor pitched six innings of one-hit ball and Baltimore scored the winning run in a 2-1 decision over its Rochester farm team on Larry Sheets' double and a throwing error by Leo Hernandez in the bottom of the ninth inning.

San Diego's Tony Gwynn had three hits and scored the final run of the game on a bases-loaded walk in the sixth inning of a 2-2 tie with Minnesota. Managers for both teams agreed to end the game after 13 innings.

Injured Connors defaults to McEnroe

CHICAGO (AP) — Jimmy Connors, who was scheduled to meet top-ranked John McEnroe Sunday in the final of the $125,000 Volvo TennisChicAGO tournament, was forced to bow out because what was described as a torn muscle in his lower back.

It was the first time in more than a decade of professional tennis that the 32-year-old left-hander failed to take the court.

"It's never happened that I never played. Maybe that's it," said Connors, who was seeded No. 2. "I played too many times hurt in the past and it's finally caught up with me."

Connors, who earned $25,000 for second place, warmed up for about 15 minutes before electing to withdraw. McEnroe took home $50,000.

"I guess I got a little bit of an Easter prize," said McEnroe after being handed the winner's check. He said it was the first time he's ever won a title by default.

Tennis

Connors came into the final with a 16-4 record and without a title victory this year. He lost to Ivan Lendl in the final of the Paine-Webber Classic at his last tourney appearance, and was twice semifinalist in 1985.

Despite taking a month away from the game, Connors came to Chicago as the No. 2 ranked player in the world.

"Taking a month off actually did me a lot of good. I played good last week, and I was playing better and better here," he said. "But playing that much could be part of it too. I'm not kid any more."

Connors' trainer, Bill Norris, called the injury a torn muscle and said the problem began in Connors' tough quarterfinal win over Brad Gilbert.

He said Connors aggravated the injury in a semifinal win Saturday over third-seeded Andres Gomez.

McEnroe entered the match with 19 straight wins and three 1985 championships already under his belt. McEnroe, the world's top-ranked player since 1981, brought a 17-12 record against Connors' into the Chicago stop. Included were victories in their last eight head-to-head confrontations dating back to 1983.

To the delight of a nearby packed house at the Pavilion, McEnroe played an exhibition match against Pilot Tetscher, the No. 5 seed in the tournament and an early-round loser.

The doubles match between the team of Johan Kriek and Yarnick Noah and the U.S. Davis Cup duo of Ken Flach and Robert Seguso was extended to a best-of-five confrontation.

McEnroe, leading the Nabisco Grand Prix Series with 925 points, picks up 250 more with the Chicago stop. Connors, way down the list at 423, earns 175 points as runner-up.

Both men are expected to go on to Dallas for the World Championship Tennis final, but Connors may not play.

Norris said Connors' injury could be expected to sideline him for a week to 10 days — assuming he plays no tennis during this time.

LEGAL NOTICE

NOTICE OF INTENT TO RULE-MAKING
In compliance with Section 67-5203(a)(1), Idaho Code, notice is hereby given that the Idaho Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Environmental Health, has initiated rule-making. The proposed action is under contract number 0103-8501, involves the amendment of the governing Individual/Subsurface Sewerage Disposal Systems, Title 39, Chapter 3, Rules and Regulations of the Department of Health and Welfare. The action proposed is to amend the authority granted in Section 39-105, Idaho Code, for the purposes of implementing the provisions of Title 39, Chapter 3, and Title 39, Chapter 38, effective as soon as possible.

The following is a descriptive summary of the substance of the intended action and the principal issues involved:

The Department proposes to change the regulations for individual and subsurface sewage disposal to enhance protection of Idaho's waters and the health of its citizens. Research and practice in the past ten years have increased the knowledge for use of such on-site sewage systems. The current regulations are inconsistent with that knowledge, thus, updating is proposed. The use of the percolation test as a major site evaluation tool is proposed to be eliminated and replaced with soil textural determinations. A Technical Guidance Committee and Manual are proposed to address state-of-the-art use of alternative disposal systems in Idaho. The procedures for obtaining variances to the regulations and for contesting decisions is more clearly spelled out.

Within the time limits specified below, anyone can review the proposed rules in the Administrative Procedure Section or in any of the regional administrative offices of the Department. Copies of the proposed rules will be made available upon written request specifying the docket number cited above and at a rate of ten cents (10¢) per page. Checks must accompany the request and be made payable to the Department of Health and Welfare for the amount of $4.

Anyone can submit written comment regarding the proposed rules, and any individual or industry who may be affected by the proposed rule is encouraged to submit information concerning the anticipated economic impact of the proposed action. For assistance on technical questions concerning the proposed rules, contact Gary Schock, Department of Health and Welfare, Division of Environmental Health, (208) 334-4251, Boise.

All written comments and data concerning the proposed rules must be directed to the undersigned and must be postmarked or delivered on or before April 22, 1985.

Rule-making hearings will be held if signed, written requests for a hearing are submitted personally or addressed to the undersigned and postmarked on or before April 22, 1985, from twenty-five (25) or more interested persons—or from an association presenting a petition with signatures of not less than twenty-five (25) members of the organization—or from a governmental subdivision, agency, hearing requests should include a statement of the direct interests of the petitioner(s) in the subject matter of the proposed rules. Any hearing will be accessible to the physically disabled. Interpreters for persons with hearing impairments and brailled or taped information for persons with visual impairments can be provided upon five days notice. For more information, contact the undersigned at (208) 334-4033.

DATED this 20th day of March 1985.
