Japan cracks door to its markets

By JIM ABRAMS
The Associated Press

TOKYO — Japan announced a three-year plan Tuesday to open its markets to foreign products.

Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone urged his people to buy imported goods, saying a trade war would bring economic disaster upon them.

No quick results were expected from the Japanese plan, and initial reaction from the United States was muted. Congress, frustrated by a $37 billion U.S. trade deficit with Japan in 1984, has demanded the United States retaliate if Japan does not ease trade barriers.

The Japanese also stressed the need to reduce the dollar's value against the yen, which contributes to the trade imbalance by making Japanese products cheaper to the consumer and U.S. goods more expensive.

Japan's three-year program deals with telecommunications, electronics and other major trade areas of most concern to the United States.

Nakasone said Japan must move rapidly toward freer trade because "terrible depression and unemployment" would result if such trading partners as the United States took protectionist measures. Japan has few natural resources and its economy is built on industrial exports.

Japan had an overall trade surplus of $44.2 billion last year, $36.8 billion of it with the United States. Congress has called for sanctions unless Japan makes it easier for American goods to enter its markets and redress the balance.

The report on "external economic measures" issued Tuesday includes the plan to open markets and says an outline of the program will be completed by July.

In the package are pledges to accept foreign clinical test data for medical equipment, eventually to lower tariffs on plywood products, to simplify technical standards for computer equipment and to ease the way for the purchase of American communications satellites.

It also promises greater freedom for foreign lawyers to practice in Japan, another U.S. demand. More Japanese aid to developing nations, and attention to the interests of Southeast Asia and Europe in future tariff cuts.

The United States sees telecommunications, electronics, medical supplies and forestry products as areas in which American companies could compete successfully if they were let into the market.

Vice President George Bush said in Washington that Nakasone's appeal "looked good deal of courage," but added: "What's important... is what follows on, what actually happens in terms of access to market."

At the State Department, spokesman Edward Djerfjan said the principles enunciated were commendable, especially those which recognize that drastic change of the Japanese trading system is needed in order to discharge Japan's international responsibilities and strengthen the world trade system.

Nakasone said the Japanese plan must be accompanied by reduction of the dollar's value and greater efforts by U.S. companies to sell in Japan.

Way looks clear for prison project

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Land Board has removed all restrictions on a deed for the old state tuberculosis hospital at Gooding, which should clear the way for a $22 million private prison project.

Land Board members voiced unanimous support Tuesday for relinquishing all state control over the old hospital buildings and grounds to expedite a private project which eventually will bring 300 jobs to the Gooding area.

It may be the last state action on a long-discussed plan to sell the unused hospital to the city of Gooding, which in turn has signed a contract to sell to Buckingham Security Ltd., Lewisburg, Pa.

Executive Vice President Joseph Fenton said work should start by July or August on construction of what eventually will become a 650-bed privately run prison for "special needs" prisoners from nearby states.

Although the vote was unanimous, Gov. John Evans was the only board member expressing reservations. The property was sold for $100,000. Evans said he's felt all along that the property was worth more, perhaps up to the $505,000 appraised value.

But Evans and other Land Board members said they felt both the state and the Gooding community would get far more benefit if the property is turned into a job-producing, tax-paying private facility.

The Land Board granted a deed for the property earlier. But it stipulated that work must start within three years and the property must be used for a private prison for at least 20 years. Other

Asians study plant

In Twin Falls

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A Far East company that exports electronics products to the United States is eyeing the E. F. Johnson Co. factory as a research base and final assembly plant, its Twin Falls agent says.

Hans Syllen, former director of engineering at the Johnson factory, said top executives for the Japanese manufacturer temporarily have halted negotiations toward a plant in metropolitan Phoenix to investigate the possibilities in Twin Falls. However the company and its Korean affiliate have not approached E. F. Johnson Co. or its corporate parents directly, he said.

At the same time, a local group of investors and employees are moving forward with separate plans to form a new company named GemTec Inc. and to buy the mobile phone manufacturing plant on the south side of the city, said Dick Converse, the plant's manager and a principal in the attempt.

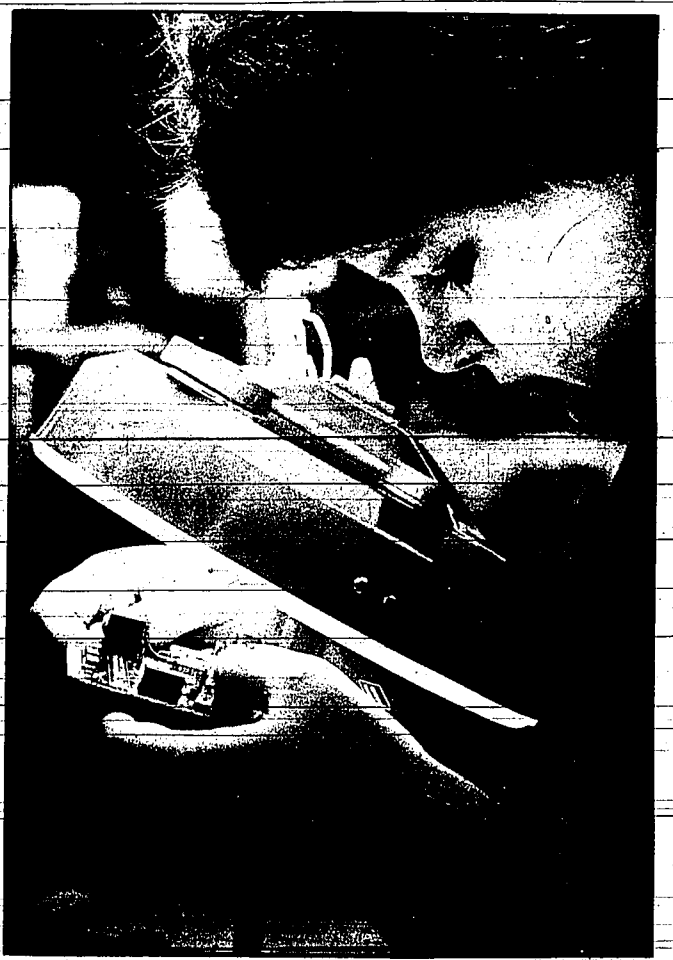

The E. F. Johnson factory currently is scheduled to be closed by the end of the year as a result of a pending sale of the company to Diversified Energies Inc. by parent Western Union Corp.

DE, which primarily is a natural gas distributor, has announced plans to shut down operations in Twin Falls by the end of the year. Western Union Corp., which would retain the plant itself in the complicated deal, has not yet decided what it will do with the factory, a spokesman told the Times-News.

Converse, who announced the buy-out attempt by influential Twin Falls investors and employees last week, said he has broached an offer with E. F. Johnson's president, Rick Boswell. Converse was on his way to the com-

Census Bureau figures million-plus Idahoans

By QUANE KENYON
The Associated Press

BOISE — If the U.S. Census Bureau's latest estimates are correct, some time last summer Idaho passed the one million mark in population.

A new census report, received by the Division of Economic and Community Affairs on Tuesday, says Idaho's latest population estimate at 1,001,000. That's as of last July 1 and reflects a 6 percent gain over the 944,127 Idahoans reported in the 1980 census, or a gain of 57,000 persons in four years.

The latest "provisional estimates" updated the 1980 census count by using a variety of statistical information.

The report shows Idaho's most populous county, Ada, had the largest growth, 16,100 persons in the last four years. But percentage-wise, the growth (16 percent) went to Custer, the county which used a mining boom to jump from 3,385 to 6,200, an increase of 82.4 percent.

Ada remains the population center with an estimated 189,300 residents as of last July, up from the 1980 count of 173,125.

Canyon is next with 87,000 persons, up from 1980's 83,756.

The report shows Kootenai County, with 9.9 percent growth, is gaining rapidly on Bonneville and Bannock counties, which are in a tight race for third place on the Idaho population chart.

Bonneville reported 69,000 residents, up 4.6 percent from the 65,980 reported four years earlier. Bannock listed 68,600 residents, up 4.8 percent from 1980.

Kootenai added 5,900 residents in the last four years and now has 65,700.

The latest census report shows Boise, Camas, Caribou, Clark, Clearwater, Gem, Idaho, Lewis, Shoshone and Washington counties all lost population or stayed the same.

Looking for ways to improve relations

Congressmen, Gromyko meet

By ANDREW ROSENTHAL
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko met Tuesday with a group of visiting U.S. congressmen led by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill for talks on how to improve relations between the two superpowers.

Also, Foreign Minister Hans van den Broek of the Netherlands arrived in Moscow and said he would ask the Soviets to clarify their announced freeze on deploying medium-range missiles in Europe. The Netherlands is the only one of five NATO nations that has not yet accepted new medium-range missiles in line with a 1979 deployment decision.

Gromyko warmly greeted the 13 congressmen in the gilded Katherine's Hall at the Kremlin. O'Neill, D-Mass., said later that the two hours of discussions covered "all kinds of things... things that could bring the two nations closer together," including cultural exchanges and trade.

Rep. Charles B. Rangel, D-N.Y., was less positive. "We don't know whether we've accomplished all that much," he said.

Rangel said Gromyko explained the Kremlin's position on disarmament and denied the Reagan administration's contention that the Soviet Union has superiority over NATO forces in medium-range missiles.

The delegation, which includes Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., expects to meet next Soviet leader Mikhail S. Gorbachev this morning. The congressmen are scheduled to leave this afternoon for Leningrad.

Gromyko opened the meeting by telling O'Neill, "Our talks will be easier than others going on now because we did not have to work out in advance an agenda for the meeting, or the subject matter and framework of the discussion."

Gromyko was referring to the extensive negotiations that led to a U.S.-Soviet agreement to resume nuclear arms talks in Geneva, Switzerland, last month.

The congressmen are among the first U.S. officials to visit the Soviet Union since the funeral of Konstantin U. Chernenko on March 13. The visit coincides with Gorbachev's first major statement on arms control, published on Monday in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda.

Average salary for teachers $23,546; Idaho in 41st place

By CHRISTOPHER CONNELL
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The nation's 2.1 million public school teachers now earn an average of $23,546, with schools in Alaska offering the highest pay and those in Mississippi the lowest, the National Education Association said Tuesday.

Idaho ranks 41st with an average salary of $19,700.

The 1.7 million-member union, in its annual estimates of school statistics, said teachers' salaries rose 7.3 percent in the past year — at a time when many governors and school reformers have been pressing for pay hikes to attract brighter recruits into the profession.

reported the schools are spending an average of $3,429 to educate each of the 39.4 million pupils in public elementary and secondary schools this year.

That is 7.8 percent more than the $3,192 it cost last year. The per pupil costs ranged from a high of $6,867 in Alaska to a low of $2,182 in Utah.

Alaska, which has the highest pay, also has the highest cost of living.

For the seventh year in a row, the largest share of public school funds came from state governments. The states provided 49 percent of public schools' $137.6 billion in revenues for the current school year, the NEA said. Local governments paid $61.6 billion, or 44.8 percent, while the federal government picked up the rest of the tab: $8.6 billion, or 6.2 percent.

The NEA's research department, in a report based on an annual survey of state education agencies, also 1983-84 and "is the lowest level of federal funding since the 1960s," the NEA said.

Five years ago, the federal government paid more than 9 percent of the school budgets. Ten years ago, more than 49 percent of school funds were raised by local governments, while the states provided less than 44 percent.

The report, "Estimates of School Statistics, 1984-85," also showed:

- The 10 states with the highest average salaries for classroom teachers are: Alaska, $39,751; New York, $29,000; District of Columbia, $28,021; Michigan, $28,301; Rhode Island, $27,384; Wyoming, $26,709; California, $25,300; Minnesota, $25,220; Maryland, $25,861 and Illinois, $25,829.
- The 10 lowest are: Mississippi, $16,200; West Virginia, $16,100; Louisiana, $16,000; North Carolina, $15,900; and Mississippi, $15,800.

Chemist wins science award

WASHINGTON (AP) — A chemist whose work is influencing the field of genetics has become the first woman to win the National Science Foundation's annual Alan T. Waterman Award, foundation officials said Tuesday.

Jacqueline K. Barton, 32, an assistant professor of inorganic and physical chemistry at Columbia University, "has earned international acclaim for her creative use of inorganic chemistry to design molecules that recognize and modify deoxyribonucleic acid (DNA)," a foundation release said.

The award, begun in 1975, carries grants of up to $100,000 a year for three years of research and advanced studies, and the release quoted her as saying she plans to spend the money on new instruments for her laboratory and on further bioinorganic research.

Weapons plans to cost plenty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Weapons programs at the heart of President Reagan's military buildup are expected to cost $750.7 billion by the time buying is completed in the 1990s, the Pentagon said Tuesday.

It amounts to an increase of 3.4 percent, or $25.1 billion, in total projected cost over a similar estimate prepared last fall. The Pentagon said that when the impact of inflation and increases to existing orders are discounted, the new projection amounts to a cost increase of less than 1 percent and points to a continued improvement in managing weapon programs.

The figures are in a quarterly study, required by Congress, known as the Selected Acquisition Report. The study, compiled as of Dec. 31, was delivered to Congress over the past four days and released Tuesday.

The study reports estimated costs of building 84 major weapons, ranging from Trident submarines to F-15 fighters and Apache helicopters. In addition, it provides estimates for several new weapon programs that were in the quarterly summary for the first time.

MIA's remains back from 'Nam

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — One Air Force navigator's daughter wept, even though she had never known her father, and the man's widow was grateful after learning his body was one of six returned from Vietnam after nearly 20 years.

"I was shocked after 19½ years of not having an answer," Dana Chwan, widow of Capt. Michael D. Chwan, said Monday. "I never really expected that his body would be returned so he could be buried in American soil."

Chwan and Maj. Chambliss Chesnut, both aboard a J-1 fighter shot down over North Vietnam on Sept. 30, 1965, were positively identified by U.S. military officials, the Pentagon announced Tuesday. The remains of four other servicemen also were identified.

Patl Chesnut, who now lives in Houston, called the return of her husband's remains "the last chapter. I didn't know what to say 20 years ago. I still don't know what to say."

Paralyzed woman's infant dies

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The premature infant born to a woman left paralyzed and comatose after a "mistaken" injection died Tuesday night, hospital officials said.

The baby, delivered 2½ months premature by Caesarean section to Lillian Cedeno, 21, of Schenectady, died at 7:24 p.m., said Richard Ridgeway, spokesman for Albany Medical Center.

The cause of death will be determined by the Albany County coroner, he said.

Bolivia cops nab cocaine base

WASHINGTON (AP) — Bolivian police last week intercepted about 1,160 kilograms of cocaine sulfate base, the largest such raid since that country returned to democratic rule three years ago, the State Department said Tuesday.

Responding to press questions, the State Department said 11 arrests were made and a Douglas C-47 aircraft was seized. It added that the substance was apparently to be flown from Cochabamba to laboratories in the Beni region of Bolivia when it was intercepted.

If it had been refined, the substance would have equaled about 160 kilograms — approximately 1,000 pounds — of cocaine with a street value of more than $18 million, the department said.

Garn, astronauts arrive for countdown

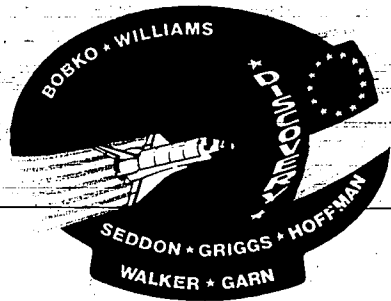

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The crew for Friday's flight of Discovery, including Sen. Jake Garn, arrived here Tuesday for final training as the launch team prepared to start the countdown for the first of two shuttle missions this month.

"We're all anxious, we're all ready, the vehicle is ready and the countdown is ready," he said before leaving Friday," commander Karol Bobko told reporters after the crew arrival.

Referring to five earlier postponements of the launch, pilot Donald Williams said, "We're going to do it right this time."

The crew members flew here in NASA jets from the astronaut training base in Houston. In the two days before launch, they are to conduct extensive flight plan reviews with mission directors, and Bobko and Williams will polish their flying skills in T-38 jets and practice landings on the shuttle runway where Discovery is to return on April 17.

The other crew members are mission specialists Margaret Rhea Seddon, David Griggs and Jeffrey Hoffman and payload specialist Charles Walker.

senior specialists Margaret Rhea Seddon, David Griggs and Jeffrey Hoffman and payload specialist Charles Walker.

Garn, a Utah Republican, is flying as a congressional observer in his capacity as chairman of a Senate subcommittee that oversees NASA spending. The countdown was set to start early today, aiming for liftoff of the 16th shuttle journey at 6:04 a.m. MST Friday.

Shortly before the start of the countdown, the shuttle Challenger is to be towed from its processing hangar into an assembly building where it will be mated with an external tank and two solid fuel booster rockets. Three days after Discovery lifts off, Challenger is to be transported to the pad to be readied for an April 29 launch carrying a European-built space laboratory to its cargo bay.

During Discovery's five days in orbit, the crew is to deploy commercial communications satellites for Telesat of Canada and Hughes Aerospace. Each is paying NASA $10 million for the delivery service. Hughes plans to lease its satellite to the Navy.

Garn will be the subject of a series of medical tests.

Groups to campaign against benefits cutbacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lobbying groups for older Americans and low-income people announced a campaign Tuesday against proposals to limit Social Security benefits and cut Medicare and Medicaid.

The campaign will include meetings with members of Congress over the April recess, when more than 100 legislators are scheduled around the country, leaders said.

The plans were announced at a news conference by Arthur Fleming, former secretary of health, education and welfare who is co-chairman of a group called Save Our Security, which advocates continued support for government programs for the elderly and poor, and Robert Brandon, Washington director of Citizen Action.

Citizen Action was described as a federation of 25 independent statewide citizen organizations working on a range of issues for low- and middle-income citizens and consumers.

When President Reagan agreed with Senate Republicans to hold the cost-of-living adjustment for Social Security benefits to 2 percent, "he certainly repudiated the commitment he made during the campaign" not to tamper with benefits, Fleming said.

"What a proposal of this kind does is to undermine confidence in the integrity of the system... and the ability of the government to live up to its commitments. It undermines the integrity of the government itself," Fleming said.

"When the president walks away from the kind of commitment he made during the campaign, he contributes to that lack of confidence in the Social Security system."

Brandon said 25 state coalitions of citizen action groups have set up hearings around the country on that issue and proposed cuts in Medicare and Medicaid. He predicted that "you're going to see a lot of politicians trying to duck on this issue."

The lobbying effort will attempt to see that members have to vote separately on the Social Security, Medicare and Medicaid issues instead of being able to vote on one budget package, he said.

"We are planning on accountability," Brandon said. "The target is people who haven't yet come out and said they will oppose these cuts."

Fleming said Social Security beneficiaries would lose even more under the budget plan agreed to by Reagan and Senate Republicans than under a one-year freeze of cost-of-living adjustments that the Senate Budget Committee had approved.

EPA allows continued dinocap use

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday it would permit apple growers and others to continue to use dinocap, a fungicide whose ingestion by laboratory animals caused birth defects, for at least another 3½ years, while reviews continue.

The agency said it had reviewed studies by the manufacturer, Rohm & Haas Corp., showing that dinocap does not cause birth defects in rabbits through skin absorption, and little is absorbed.

Previous studies showed that dinocap caused birth defects when eaten by both mice and rabbits, the EPA said. Rohm & Haas voluntarily stopped selling the product last November.

The EPA said dietary exposure to dinocap was not significant, and its concern was limited to workers who mix, load and apply it.

Rohm & Haas will be required to conduct additional toxicology and exposure studies while EPA continues its review of the fungicide.

During the review, workers will be required to wear protective clothing, which could mean long sleeves, long trousers, rubber gloves and boots, hat and face shield, depending on the job.

About 91 percent of dinocap, which is sold by Rohm & Haas under the trade name Karathane and by others in various mixtures under various names, is used on apples to control powdery mildew and mites. Most of the rest is used on other fruits. About 1 percent is used in gardens and homes to control mites.

An issue that should remain in proportion

The 1984 elections have barely faded, but already two powerful and rich special interest groups are mapping plans for a 1986 battle over right-to-work which could dwarf traditional state election contests.

Organized labor says it is prepared to spend up to $2 million on a publicity campaign designed to get Idaho voters to overturn the Legislature's passage of a right-to-work bill this year.

Presumably, right-to-work supporters, and their out-of-state national groups, will also pour huge amounts into the decision.

The result will be a flood of press releases, media "events," charges and countercharges, posturing, buffoonery and enough money spent on advertising to raise the average Idaho worker's wages a notch or two.

The issue already is an emotional one and like the cry of "subordination" in 1984, it may well have an impact on many Idaho legislative contests. It is also likely to effect the probable gubernatorial race between Lt. Gov. David Leroy and former Gov. Cecil Andrus.

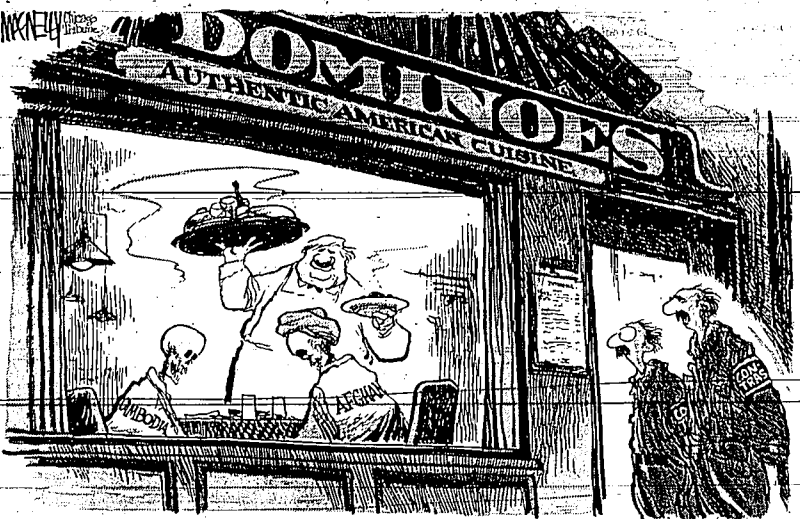

There might be some logic in the debate of the issue at the state level. Right-to-work has been predominant in a state-by-state issue, although there has been heavy lobbying in many places from national unions on one side and the national Freedom to Work Committee on the other.

But in the probable senate race between Gov. John Evans and Sen. Steve Symms, the issue, it seems to us, is essentially irrelevant. We ought to judge the contestants much more broadly, on each's fitness to be a United States senator, on the issues with which the Senate deals, not on something as narrow as right to work.

But you can bet the issue will be dragged in anyway. Remember that Phil Batt's weak disassociation from a sleazy anti-labor comic book probably handed the tight election to Evans. Evans' presence alone on the ticket will revive the issue.

We support right to work, mostly for the philosophical framework it gives a state in industrial recruiting. But we're not under any illusion that it is a panacea for an ailing state economy; a right to work law won't bring in a huge influx of new businesses, despite the claims of its proponents.

Once and for all, the issue should be debated and voted-upon-in-1986. But we're confident the people of Idaho will keep it in proper proportion to the other important issues in the various contests that year.

U.S. should demand end to Contra aid

Jim Chupa
Guest opinion.

President Reagan has claimed that the Contras are freedom fighters, representing the true democratic aspirations of the majority of Nicaraguans.

While the President paints them as embattled liberators, the reality is that the majority of Nicaraguans are frightened of and repulsed by the Contra, "due entirely to the Contras' record of brutality against ordinary Nicaraguans whom they suspect of cooperating with the Sandinistas.

Secretary of State George Shultz has consistently denied any truth to the evidence of the Contras' atrocities that has been gathered. As reported by the New York Times last June, Shultz criticized "the insidious claim that 'one man's terrorist is another man's freedom fighter.' It is not hard to tell, as we look around the world, who are the terrorists and who are the freedom fighters. The Contra in Nicaragua do not blow up school buses or hold mass executions of civilians." Despite Mr. Shultz's disclaimer, the public should know what they have been paying for.

The first reporting of Contra atrocities came from a small, determined group of nuns and priests, later from journalists, and most recently, for the benefit of U.S. Congress, from teams of lawyers who have verified each other's findings.

These attacks are not isolated incidents to be written off as the collateral result of war. Over two thousand civilians have been killed, others kidnapped and tortured.

Although Congress refused to aid the Contra last year, the Reagan Administration has coordinated aid from private, conservative U.S. donors to supply Contra efforts. The donated supplies are flown via U.S. military transports to Honduras and shipped within Honduras on Honduran military trucks and a CIA-sponsored charter airline company. According to The Nation, among the donors are an aid organization sponsored by the Soldier of Fortune Magazine and Reverend Moon's Unification Church. This aid helps the families of the Contra rank and file, enabling the administration to use remaining CIA funds to supply munitions and weapons.

However, there has been evidence of a continuous Nicaraguan hand behind the guerrilla insurrection in El Salvador. There is no convincing public evidence of a flood of arms entering El Salvador from Nicaragua, despite millions the U.S. has spent on the most advanced monitoring system available, and extensive patrolling of both the border regions and the waters off El Salvador. Foreign Affairs' Alan Riding reports that the last arms shipments from Nicaragua took place in 1980. The University of El Salvador reported last year that the guerrillas only began to expand after they seized munitions and weapons from the Salvadoran military in 1982, two years after the last shipments from Nicaragua. Nicaragua has played no significant part in their survival as a force in El Salvador's affairs. The guerrillas are on their own. President Reagan has no evidence of Nicaraguan aggression.

The final result is that the common men, women and children of Nicaragua have borne the brunt of this punishment sponsored by the U.S. They see the Contra as U.S.-backed invaders, bent on overthrowing their revolution, the latest U.S. intervention since the first in 1853. Since then, U.S. Marines have intervened 41 times. The majority of Nicaraguan voters supported the Sandinistas in their elections last year. Voting was not mandatory, as it was in El Salvador. This majority does not share President Reagan's claim that the Contra represent the only true force for democracy in their country.

All that the U.S. public has paid for, what are we guilty of, is supporting a tiny group of terrorists determined to force their countrymen into submission through murder, rape, and mutilation. Although Congress again has refused to fund the Contra, latest word is that President Reagan is considering some form of compromise. Trading new negotiations initiative for continued aid to the Contra. But in this matter, there is no room for compromise. We have no business funding groups like the Contra. It is time to demand an end to this. The Reagan administration should discontinue all forms of aid to the Contra, and seriously participate in the Contadora negotiations scheduled for this month.

The public has to demand an end to this dirty little war. It will never happen otherwise. It all depends upon who you believe; Mr. Shultz, when he states that the Contra do not blow up school buses, or the 20 civilian passengers from the town of Wasala, whose truck was attacked last July by the Contra. Five people were killed; including children. One woman, her arm amputated after this attack, witnessed the death of her son and granddaughter. "We were without defense, without weapons," she said. "We never even heard them ask us to stop. We just heard shots."

Letters/Christian background would bring proper choices

Prefers to build churches

It seems like when we pick up the newspaper anymore we read about a state, county or city that needs a new jail or penitentiary. Why? What causes the over crowded conditions? I don't think Idaho is growing all that fast.

I believe if we send our young people to Sunday school and church and give the youth a good Christian background so that when they get to the cross roads of life they will know which road to take. So many take the wrong turn and end up having trouble with the law.

Youth occurs chronologically during the teenage years and the early 20's. During the adolescent years, one is open to almost any new idea. This is where his or her personality and character are seeking ways to take on their own forms. Here the church can help guide and form their ways of thinking along with the help of the parents and schools.

I would rather see new churches built or added on to as to see so many new jails having to be built.

Prosecution brings question

After reading the article on cable pirating in Friday's paper about a federal judge in Boise filing an injunction against several Magic Valley families who were accused of pirating the signal of Idaho Home Theater, according to the article about 75 to 100 people could still be sued for this violation. I was under the impression that this signal that is sent out is considered a radio transmission.

If so, Section 47 of the Communications Act of 1934 states that an American citizen has the right to receive any radio transmission from any source; so accordingly, you are constitutionally guaranteed the right to receive these signals. How can people be prosecuted for something that is not against the law? (Case Closed)

'All's well that ends well'

Wrong again, Steve. Mr. Bill Burns concern has never been with the health care in the valley but rather with the health of his own fragile ego.

In any other "business," decisions which continually hurt the bottom line would not be tolerated. In a competitive environment, I thought the idea was to lessen your "competitors' advantage, not increase it, like Burns did.

It seems like he didn't have enough competition so he'd go out and create some more to take away more of the market share. Sound economics?

More disturbing is your editor's complete lack of understanding of the issues. I can only presume the same superficial attention to the facts that pervade the rest of your paper. Perhaps the editor deserves to be "promoted" to the Southern tip of Texas.

Oh well, all's well that ends well — Burns is gone.

Hope, fear often have more effect than rational judgments

They asked a songwriter once how he went about writing a song. "Simple," he said. "I hear it in my head."

They asked a filmmaker once how he went about making a film. "Simple," he said. "I see it in my mind."

There's a powerful line in the Bible I keep inscribed on the inside cover of my appointment book. It reads: "That which is essential cannot be seen with the eye. Only with the heart can one know it rightly." The search for essence is not only what science and philosophy and art are all about. It's what American politics is all about, too.

The pollsters tell us people vote their feelings more than their thoughts. That feelings like hope and fear are more powerful instruments of decision than mere rational judgment of right and wrong. Even the judge-pollster candidates and officeholders on feelings of trust, on the kind of people they perceive them to be. On the kind of people they want to think of themselves as being.

President Reagan projects it by being an American. That is why, although he loses on many of the issue polls, he wins every election.

And that is where political media consultants come in on issues like defense spending, the MX, and the Strategic Defense Initiative. They are the ones who will try to translate dry votes in the Congress on issues like these into powerful, emotionally moving broadcasts on television in 1986. They will connect a candidate's vote on an issue with a citizen's vote for that candidate. For the business of political communication is more a matter of touching feelings than moving minds.

Robert Goodman

Do issues count? Of course they do, but more as the heart feeds you than as the mind dissects them. Give a young man 37 well-thought-out reasons why the girl he is intending to wed is all wrong for him, and the odds are that all your words will stop at the ear-gram. Tell somebody who feels passion in the school right all of your reasons why it's wrong, and see how far you get persuading that person to leave the Constitution alone. The internal combustion that leads to the bombing of abortion clinics illustrates how powerless the human brain can sometimes be in subduing the passions that seethe beneath the surface.

Media specialists who try to position their candidates against MX and the like, will be facing the problem that they will be airing a negative ad campaign. It's been discovered over the last few campaigns that negative ads just don't work as well as we originally thought. A few years ago, negative campaigns became popular after the National Conservative Political Action Committee claimed that their negative ads were key in sending five or six incumbent U.S. senators back to the farm. The theory developed in the political community that the emotion to tap was not affection for your candidate, but contempt — or possibly even hate — for his opponent.

Last year, we grew to appreciate another emotion too long ignored or clumsily portrayed by the political camera. Call it the power of love. It is the love that is felt by an old man for his congressman who comes through for her in bucking the bureaucracy to see to it that she receives her Social Security check on time.

It will take more than a few disagreeable decisions on their voting records to move you away from them.

Some people claim that one of these disagreeable decisions the voters will have to confront is their senator's vote on defense spending. The reasoning goes that all that money spent on defense will be that much less the people will have to spend on themselves, and when they wake up to this fact they're going to be feeling mad.

Don't see it this way at all. In fact, I believe there's an emotion working beneath the surface of these issues which, like a boomerang, will hurl these reasons back to the sender with cruel and incredible force.

For lack of a better term, call it the emotion

Quintero claims confession was forced

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Rafael Caro Quintero, a key suspect in the kidnap-murder of a U.S. narcotics agent, said at his arraignment Tuesday that he had been tortured and forced to sign a confession.

The confession, read to Caro Quintero before he addressed the court, says he had bribed dozens of top-level Mexican police officials to let him continue running a major drug-trafficking operation.

"I signed the confession, but the statements are false," Caro Quintero said in front of a public appearance since his capture in Costa Rica last week.

As is customary at Mexican criminal court proceedings, Caro Quintero was kept behind bars at the arraignment. He appeared tired and unshaven, but he did not show any signs of having been beaten when asked to do so by the judge.

Pedro Elias Soto Lara.

The confession states that Enrique Camarena Salazar, the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration agent, was brought to Caro Quintero's house after he was kidnapped Feb. 7 within sight of the U.S. consulate in Guadalajara.

It said Caro Quintero greeted the agent and brought him into the house, but there was no elaboration. Camarena Salazar's badly beaten body was found March 5 on a ranch 60 miles southeast of Guadalajara, regarded as a major drug center in Mexico.

Caro Quintero was questioned throughout the weekend after he was brought to Mexico City late Friday on a government plane from Costa Rica. He was captured there after a brief shootout at an estate outside San Jose, the Costa Rican capital, on Thursday.

The confession says Caro Quintero paid the equivalent of about $300,000 to a top Mexican police official to be able to leave Guadalajara on Feb. 9, when he was seen boarding his private jet.

It said the payment went to Armando Pavon Reyes, former commander of the Federal Judicial Police in Guadalajara. Pavon Reyes, who was seen giving Caro Quintero a farewell embrace at the Guadalajara airport, was questioned Monday at Interpol headquarters here.

Caro Quintero and five other men arrested with him were taken to the Northern Prison complex on Monday under heavy police guard to await arraignment.

Mexico head mildly backs Reagan plan

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Mexican leader Miguel de la Madrid gave a partial endorsement Tuesday to President Reagan's proposal to end the fighting in Nicaragua, saying it "could constitute a step forward" in the solution of this delicate conflict.

A communique from de la Madrid's office said the two presidents discussed the situation in Central America by telephone Monday at Reagan's initiative.

The statement, carried by the government newspaper El Nacional, said the two leaders agreed the Central American conflict must be resolved through dialogue and negotiation. It said the conversation concentrated on Reagan's proposal for a cease-fire in Nicaragua and a 60-day moratorium on U.S. aid to purchase armaments for anti-Sandinista rebels there.

"The proposal of President Reagan to encourage the halting of hostilities could constitute a step forward in the solution of this delicate conflict," de la Madrid said in the communique.

Mexico and the United States have differed strongly on Central American policy. Mexican officials say the conflicts are rooted in generations of social and economic inequality. The Reagan administration blames much of the problem on Cuban and Soviet influence.

Reagan made the proposal last Thursday in urging Congress to release $14 million to the U.S.-supported Contras, the anti-Sandinista rebels based in southern Honduras. He said the money would be used for armaments for 60 days if Nicaragua's leftist Sandinista government agreed to start negotiations.

Bomb attack leaves 3 dead

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A car bomb exploded at an Israeli checkpoint Tuesday, and a guerrilla group said a 16-year-old Shiite girl had driven it on a suicide mission. Israel said two of its soldiers were killed and two wounded.

The Israeli military command in Tel Aviv said the car arrived from north of the Israeli lines and exploded at the Batei al-Chouf checkpoint, 15 miles east of the port city of Sidon.

The National Resistance, which has claimed most of the attacks on Israeli occupation forces in southern Lebanon in recent months, said it was responsible for the car bombing.

The deaths brought the number of Israelis killed in Lebanon since the June 1982 invasion to 66. Of these, 42 have died this year.

Sudanese regime dismisses justice

KHARTOUM, Sudan (AP) — The new military regime dismissed the nation's chief justice Tuesday and said it had formed a council of senior officers to run Sudan until a return to civilian rule.

The regime, which ousted President Gaafar Nimeiri in a bloodless coup last weekend, also accepted a petition from the judges' union seeking a review of "hastily passed laws," indicating it might consider ending or revising Islamic law.

The dismissed chief justice, Fuad al-Amin Abdul-Rahman, was known as a strict interpreter of the Islamic law imposed by Nimeiri in 1983.

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — An earthquake registering a magnitude of 4.5 on the Richter scale shook parts of the border area between Iran and the Soviet Union on Tuesday, the official Iranian news agency said.

No damage or casualties were reported.

The Islamic Republic News Agency, monitored in Nicosia, Cyprus, said the tremor occurred at about 7 a.m. in an area 90 miles north of Tabriz in the western part of Azarbaijan province.

Hurt by writing off fraudulent loans

Moore Financial's profits plummet

BOISE (AP) — Moore Financial Group's profits plummeted about 68 percent in the first quarter when it wrote off millions of dollars in bad loans — some stemming from what the company chairman called fraudulent loans by a credit officer at its subsidiary, Idaho First National Bank.

About $1.7 of those charges were used to increase Moore's loan-loss reserve, and about $4.3 million was used to offset bad loans that were written off in the first quarter.

Escaped Utah prison inmate turns himself in to authorities

POINT OF THE MOUNTAIN, Utah (AP) — An escaped Utah State Prison inmate turned himself in to Salt Lake County sheriff's officials Tuesday and was determined to be a juvenile, a sheriff's spokesman said.

That brought to two the number of prison escapees who were back in custody. Two others from two separate escapes Monday remained at large.

Sheriff's Capt. Bob Jack said because the youth was under 18 — the age given by the prison — he was taken to a detention center in Salt Lake City and would be turned over to juvenile court authorities.

The rash of escape attempts from Utah State Prison drew an angry response from the prison warden, Ken Shulten.

"I'm extremely frustrated about what appears to be an inability to completely mandate the whereabouts of inmates at the Draper site," Shulten said.

Authorities continued to search Tuesday for Lyndal Ritterbush, 40, Ogden, and Steven Huntley, 32, from the Tacoma, Wash., area. They walked away from a medium security area sometime after 8 p.m. or 9 p.m., said prison program director Jim Cropp.

Both had been working in the garage outside the prison's double fences servicing prison vehicles, Cropp said. They were reported missing after a 10 p.m. patrol check of the area, he said.

Frost, who Cropp said was from Los Angeles, and James R. Duncan, 21, Brea, Calif., fled the prison earlier Monday. A prison worker told authorities two men held a homemade knife to his throat and forced him to drive them to freedom.

Shulten said the second escape was made possible because a large portion of the staff was looking for Duncan and Frost and at the same time a disturbance erupted in the prison's gym area.

"I don't know whether we had a string deal or an assault, but the word went out there might be trouble and they tried to move the inmates out of that area," said Jeff Gall, minimum security supervisor. "As a result, the guards were redeployed around the prison and the secure perimeter, leaving the second two escapees alone outside of the secure perimeter working on some vehicles.

"That's when they took off," Gall said.

Shulten said as a result of Monday night's escape all inmate traffic outside of the secure perimeter was restricted, except for court and medical travel.

The escapes followed an unsuccessful bloody escape attempt April 2 by Ronnie Lee Gardner. Authorities say he tried to shoot his way out of a Salt Lake City courthouse in a melee left a Salt Lake attorney dead and two people, including Gardner, hospitalized.

"I think we have to be fair to recognize the Ronnie Gardner incident is substantially different from the two situations yesterday," Shulten said Tuesday.

Cropp said the prison is "still having a bad run right now."

Tuesday afternoon Rick Clawson, 21, an inmate from the Salt Lake City area overdozed on 114 milligrams of the mood elevator elyxit and he was listed in stable condition at the University of Utah Health Sciences Center, Cropp said.

Craig: Saving the family farm may be a problem of definition

GENESEE (AP) — Idaho Congressman Larry Craig says he isn't sure what it means now when someone says the nation's family farms should be saved.

"I don't know if we can protect the family farm because I don't know what a family farm is any more," he told a U.S. government class at Genesee High School Tuesday.

In Latah County, a family farm might be 1,000 acres, a $1.5 million investment and a corporation involving several family members, Craig said.

An Office of Management and Budget analysis concluded that there weren't any federal programs that didn't help the big farmer more than the small farmer, he added.

Craig said federal agriculture support programs can and should be phased out, but over a five or six years to stabilize markets and allow for greater expansion into foreign markets. The proper role of government in agriculture is not production and price supports, but in marketing assistance. "I'd rather see government on that side of the fence," he said.

Foreign markets are of particular importance to the Palouse because of the soft white "pasta" grains grown here, he said. Because the strength of the dollar hurts foreign sales, Craig suggested developing "export certificates" rather than trying to match foreign governments' subsidies of commodities.

An export certificate would enable a trader who buys grain on the world market to get a certificate equal to the difference between the strength of the dollar and the value of his own currency. That certificate could be traded in on U.S. government-controlled reserves, so the trader would get the same volume for his money despite the inflated value of the dollar overseas.

"The idea is to take the large surplus we have and use that as a leveraging-down tool," he said.

"There's almost all of last year's harvest still in storage and predictions of a new bumper crop coming in," he said.

A new farm bill containing some of these ideas will be out by May 15, he predicted.

UI faculty morale hits new low, survey finds

MOSCOW (AP) — Morale among some faculty members at the University of Idaho is low and the depression is caused by dissatisfaction with salaries and lack of state support for education, according to a poll published Tuesday in the UI student newspaper.

The survey, distributed by the Argonaut, asked whether faculty members were actively looking for other jobs and whether they would consider leaving the university if a higher-paying position materialized.

The survey also asked faculty members if they were satisfied with their salaries.

Of the 815 questionnaires distributed to 500 faculty members, 255 were returned, according to Eber-sole Gaines, Argonaut managing editor.

Gaines said that he and Argonaut staff members wrote stories on the survey based on the premise that 51 percent of the faculty responded to the questions.

Gaines said 815 questionnaires were distributed to ensure that each faculty member would receive a copy.

Ada, Bannock top petition counties

BOISE (AP) — When labor leaders launched a referendum petition drive here last month on the state's new right-to-work law, Pocatello union officials predicted they'd have the state's best turnout.

county-by-county breakdown Tuesday shows Bannock County lost the petition "race" to Ada County but not by much. And on a per-capita basis, the eastern Idaho community did far better than Ada County.

Union officials predicted 61,337 signatures to election officials here on Monday, nearly double the 32,666 needed to put the issue on the next general election ballot.

No signatures were turned in from Boise, Camas, Clark, Owyhee and Teton counties. Officials said some signatures were gathered in those counties and were awaiting county clerk verification when labor leaders decided to call a halt to the drive because it already had more than enough names.

Ada County turned in 12,256 signatures, followed by 9,409 from Bannock. That meant about one out of every 15 Ada residents signed a petition, and about one out of every 7.2 Bannock County residents signed.

Nez Perce County, which turned in 4,816 signatures with a population of 33,300, did slightly better, one signature for every 6.9 residents.

Canyon County produced 6,001 signatures, Kootenai had 4,915 and Nez Perce 4,816. Bonnevill County submitted 3,332, Bingham 1,886, Madison 174, Minidoka 1,037, Cassia 790, Twin Falls 1,633, Latah 1,169 and Shoshone, 1,152.

McClure joins Dole on European allies tour

WASHINGTON (AP) — Idaho Sen. James McClure has joined Senate Republican Leader Bob Dole of Kansas and a few other GOP colleagues on a nine-day tour of Europe for discussions on defense and economic issues with America's allies.

McClure spokesman Bill Lyle ingstone said Tuesday that the senator had been scheduled to attend an international conference on alcohol fuels and when that meeting was canceled he was invited on the European trip by Dole. The delegation, which left Washington last Friday, is scheduled to return Sunday.

Livingstone said.

The group has already met with British officials and was meeting Tuesday with representatives of the French government in Paris. Trade relations and foreign policy were among the topics in discussions with the French foreign minister, economic minister and officials of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

Still on the itinerary are sessions with West German and Italian officials. Livingstone said there has not been any confirmation on a proposed meeting with Pope John-Paul II at the Vatican.

Legislative panel set to meet April 23

BOISE (AP) — A special legislative committee looking into the state personnel system plans its first meeting here April 23.

Two Republican leaders of the Legislature will serve as cochairmen. They are Rep. Robert Geddes, R-Fresno, assistant majority floor leader, and Sen. Phil Bait, R-Wilder.

The 23-member committee will look into allegations that some state administrators are circumventing policy on the granting of raises and the filling of positions.

Arson suspected

GARDEN CITY (AP) — Arson is suspected in a fire that swept through a freight trailer here.

The fire Sunday in the empty Global Van Lines semi-trailer is similar to a string of fires that occurred in the Boise area over the weekend and earlier, Boise Police Detective Ron Cluff said.

Damage to the trailer was estimated at up to $9,000.

A. Tiger.

Client asks if the old dirigibles, such as the Hindenburg, carried much of a payload—How about 50 tons? Poor Hindenburg! It burned on May 6, 1937, ending the era of lighter-than-air transportation. The ship had state rooms for its 72 passengers, shower baths, a grand piano, crated cars, drums of chemicals, plenty of freight and mail, all hanging up there on a volatile explosive. If Germany had not been a dictatorship, that fragile blunder might have had the good fortune to die in committee.

Senator manages to keep single secret

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL The Associated Press
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Sometime during his four-day space shuttle flight, Sen. Jake Garn plans to reveal a secret item he has carried aboard.
It may well be one of the few secrets left to the senator from Utah.
One item of clothing, in particular, promises to tell more about him than that people want to know. As Garn describes it:
'I will wear a belt of sensors across my stomach to record bowel sounds on launch and right afterwards when we enter weightlessness.'
Even the Freedom of Information Act doesn't require information that is personal, but it's part of the price Garn is paying for the ride he sought so strenuously.
Through his position, through a comic strip that ridiculed him and through public pronouncements of his role on the flight, Garn is easily the best known of the six men and one woman flying the mission. In fact, he may be the most publicized crew member of all 16 shuttle flights, barring, perhaps, Sally Ride, the first woman in space.
Like the others who have flown in space, Garn is allowed to carry a personal kit. He has something special in mind to put into the kit, but he won't say what it is until he is aloft.

UTAH SEN. JAKE GARN All set for shuttle trip

The countdown starts today for Friday's launch.
Garn, 52, was invited to the adventure of a lifetime because he is chairman of the Senate subcommittee that oversees the spending of NASA's billions. Nobody made any bones about that, not NASA administrator James Beggs and certainly not Garn.

'Is NASA buying me? Hell no, they're not buying me,' he said. 'I'm not influenced in that way. NASA is getting a better informed chairman. To NASA it's a risk. Based on my experience, I may not approve some things NASA wants.'
There was no subtlety in Garn's angling for an invitation. In opening a NASA appropriations hearing on May 12, 1981 — a month after the shuttle's maiden flight — Garn said, 'My first question is: When do I get to go on the space shuttle?'
The next year he insisted that the committee hearing record reflect 'my continuing desire sometime in the future to personally check out the space shuttle so that we can provide continuing appropriations.'
And, in 1983, he reminded space agency officials, 'I still have a great desire to go.'
Garn goes to great pains to say that he and the space agency do not always see eye to eye.
He says he'll have more knowledge if he sees first-hand how NASA's programs work, a view not shared by another space committee chairman, Rep. Don Fuqua, D-Tn., of the House science and technology committee.
Fuqua wrote Beggs he was disturbed by 'the perceived obsequious nature' of NASA's Garn announcement and 'the cavalier manner in which this episode was handled.'
Garn comes by a long-standing interest in flight naturally. His father, Jacob Edwin Garn, was Utah's first aeronautics director, planning for air service and airports in the state. Garn rose to the rank of lieutenant in the post-war, piloting patrol-missions over the Yellow Sea and the coasts of China and Korea in the Korean war.
He then joined the Utah Air National Guard, flying high performance aircraft, and NASA says has logged more air time than most astronauts.

He also is chairman of the Senate Banking Committee and a hard-line conservative on most issues. He's been a key player in the deregulation of the nation's banks and savings and loan institutions.
Cartoonist Garry Trudeau, in the comic strip 'Doomsday,' called Garn's trip 'the most extraordinary junket in the history of Congress,' and referred to Garn 'who plans to make himself sick, purposely, for a study of space sickness — as "Barfin' Jake."
'Several shuttle astronauts have vomited, but few have suffered nausea or perspiration,' said Garn. 'We're checking to see if the vomiting might be caused by bowel shutdown.'
That's why he is wearing that belt of sensors.

Man pays $1,000 to buy canine hero

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mark Marriott, 65, a retired salesman said he paid $1,000 for a German shepherd who refused to leave a dying canine companion on a busy street because 'for the amount of love he gave he deserves the same in return.'
'As far as my recollection over the last 15 years, this was the highest price ever paid' for a pound dog, Gary Olsen, district supervisor for the Los Angeles Department of Animal Regulation said.
The male German Shepherd, 12 to 18 months old, became a local hero of sorts March 31 when a Doberman pinscher was struck by a car in North Hollywood. The shepherd refused to leave her side, barking at passersby in an apparent attempt to get help.

Sister of slain model sues Playboy founder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sister of slain Playmate Dorothy Stratten has filed a $5 million libel suit against her stepfather and Playboy magazine founder Hugh Hefner over statements they made in a dispute over Miss Stratten's death.
The Superior Court lawsuit contends that Burt Eldridge and Hefner falsely told reporters last week that movie director Peter Bogdanovich 'seduced' Louise B. Hoogstraten, who was 13 when her 20-year-old sister was slain.
'This conveyed the false impression that Miss Hoogstraten had sexual relations with Bogdanovich, the suit said.
'The suit also alleged that the two falsely told reporters that Bogdanovich also had seduced her mother, Nelly Schaap, and that Louise had cosmetic surgery, paid for by Bogdanovich, to make her look more like her late sister.
'Hefner responded to the lawsuit in a terse statement released through the public relations office of Playboy Enterprises, Inc.: 'It appears the truth will finally be known.'
Dorothy Stratten, who was selected Playboy's 1980 Playmate of the Year, was shot to death Aug. 14, 1960, by her estranged husband, Paul Snider, who then killed himself.

Hefner called last week's news conference to screen a documentary he said would counter claims made by Bogdanovich in his book 'The Killing of the Unicorn: Dorothy Stratten, 1960-1969.'
The book criticized Hefner's Playboy empire for its role in a series of events that ended in Miss Stratten's death and blamed Hefner for demeaning Miss Stratten.
The suit accused Hefner and Eldridge of libel, slander, invasion of privacy and intentional infliction of emotional distress, Gloria Allred, Miss Hoogstraten's attorney, said at a news conference Friday.
'Is it not enough for Hefner that Louise has lost her only sister?' Ms. Allred said. 'Must she now be faced with losing her reputation and her credibility as well?'
Ms. Schaap said in a prepared statement: 'All I ask is to leave my youngest girl alone. Louise has done nothing wrong. Nor myself. Mr. Bogdanovich has been a friend to our family; he has not been sexually involved with me or my daughter Louise at anytime.'
Bogdanovich also released a prepared statement asserting that Hefner 'acts as if these two women don't exist, except to be used to get at me.'

Citizenship fight like 'Death March'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Filipino who served in the U.S. Army and survived the Bataan Death March says the ordeal of trying to regain his American citizenship has been as draining as that in World War II, but he is confident of success.
'There is no doubt. It's as if I was saved by divine providence and I know that divine providence will help me again,' Gregorio Rivera, 68, who gave up his Filipino citizenship in November when he became naturalized.
U.S. District Judge Gordon Thompson revoked Rivera's citizenship two months later after the Immigration and Naturalization Service said it had incorrectly processed his application.
On Monday, the day before the first anniversary of the start of the 55-mile march in which 10,000 U.S. and Filipino prisoners of the Japanese died, Thompson ruled that the United States was within its authority when it abolished a part of the Immigration law pertaining to Filipinos who served in the U.S. military.

Sister of slain model sues Playboy founder

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The sister of slain Playmate Dorothy Stratten has filed a $5 million libel suit against her stepfather and Playboy magazine founder Hugh Hefner over statements they made in a dispute over Miss Stratten's death.

The Superior Court lawsuit contends that Burl Eldridge and Hefner falsely told reporters last week that movie director Peter Bogdanovich "seduced" Louise B. Hoogstraten, who was 13 when her 29-year-old sister was slain.

"This conveyed the false impression that Miss Hoogstraten had sexual relations with Bogdanovich," the suit said.

The suit also alleged that the two falsely told reporters that Bogdanovich also had seduced her mother, Nelly Schapp, and that Louise had cosmetic surgery, paid for by Bogdanovich, to make her look more like her late sister.

Hefner responded to the lawsuit in a terse statement released through the public relations office of Playboy Enterprises Inc.: "It appears the truth will finally be known."

Dorothy Stratten, who was selected Playboy's 1980 Playmate of the Year, was shot to death Aug. 14, 1980, by her estranged husband, Paul Snider, who then killed himself.

Hefner called last week's news conference to screen a documentary he said would counter claims made by Bogdanovich in his book "The Killings of the Unicorn: Dorothy Stratten, 1960-1980."

The book criticized Hefner's Playboy empire for its role in a series of events that ended in Miss Stratten's death and blamed Hefner for demeaning Miss Stratten.

The suit accused Hefner and Eldridge of libel, slander, invasion of privacy and intentional infliction of emotional distress. Gloria Allred, Miss Hoogstraten's attorney, said at a news conference Friday.

"Is it not enough for Hefner that Louise has lost her only sister?" Ms. Allred said. "Must she now be faced with losing her reputation and her credibility as well?"

Ms. Schapp said in a prepared statement: "Will I ask Is to leave my youngest girl alone. . . Louise has done nothing wrong. Nor myself. Mr. Bogdanovich has been a friend to our family; he has not been sexually involved with me nor my daughter, Louise at anytime."

Bogdanovich also released a prepared statement asserting that Hefner "acts as if these two women don't exist, except to be used to get at me."

sonal kit. He has something special in mind to put into the kit, but he won't say what it is until he is aloft.

The countdown starts today for Friday's launch.

Garn, 52, was invited to the adventure a lifetime because he is chairman of the Senate subcommittee that oversees the spending of NASA's billions. Nobody made any bones about that; not NASA administrator James Beggs and certainly not Garn.

"Is NASA buying me? Hell no, they're not buying me," he said. "I'm not influenced in that way. NASA is getting a better informed chairman. To NASA it's a risk. Based on my experience, I may not approve some things NASA wants."

There was no subtlety in Garn's angling for an invitation. In opening a NASA appropriations hearing on May 12, 1981 — a month after the shuttle's maiden flight — Garn said, "My first question is: When do I get to go on the space shuttle?"

The next year he insisted that the committee hearing record reflect "my continuing desire sometime in the future to personally check out the space shuttle so that we can provide continuing appropriations."

And, in 1983, he reminded space agency officials, "I still have a great desire to go."

Garn goes to great pains to say that he and the space agency do not always see eye to eye.

He says he'll have more knowledge if he sees first hand how NASA's programs work, a view not shared by another space committee chairman, Rep. Don Fuqua, D-Fla., of the House science and technology committee.

Fuqua wrote Beggs he was disturbed by "the perceived obsequious nature" of NASA's Garn announcement and "the cavalier manner in which this episode was handled."

Garn comes by a long-standing interest in flight naturally. His father, Jacob Edwin Garn, was Utah's first aeronautics director, planning for air service and airports in the state. Garn rose to the rank of lieutenant in the U.S. Navy, piloting patrol missions over the Yellow Sea and the coasts of China and Korea in the Korean war.

He then joined the Utah Air National Guard, flying high performance aircraft, and NASA says he has logged more air time than most astronauts.

Cartoonist Garry Trudeau, in the comic strip "Doomsday," called Garn's trip "the most extraordinary junket in the history of Congress," and referred to Garn — who plans to make himself sick, purposely, for a study of space sickness — as "Bartlin' Jake."

"Several shuttle astronauts have vomited, but few have suffered nausea or perspiration," said Garn. "We're checking to see if the vomiting might be caused by bowel stutdown."

That's why he is wearing that belt of sensors.

Citizenship fight like 'Death March'

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Filipino who served in the U.S. Army and survived the Bataan Death March says the ordeal of trying to regain his American citizenship has been as draining as that in World War II, but he's confident of success.

"There is no doubt. It's as if I was saved by divine providence, and I know that divine providence will help me again," Gregorio Rivera, 68, who gave up his Filipino citizenship in November when he became naturalized.

U.S. District Judge Gordon Thompson revoked Rivera's citizenship two months later after the Immigration and Naturalization Service said he had incorrectly processed his application.

On Monday, the day before the 43rd anniversary of the start of the 55-mile march in which 10,000 U.S. and Filipino prisoners of the Japanese died, Thompson ruled that the United States was within its authority when it abolished a part of the Immigration law pertaining to Filipinos who served in the U.S. military.

PG-13 Rating Introduced

A new rating category is in place as of July 1. This new category is inserted between the current PG and R ratings. It is designated as "PG-13: Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for attendance of children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children."

The revised five-category system of the voluntary film industry rating program is now as follows:

- G General Audiences, all ages admitted.
- PG Parental guidance suggested. Some material may be suitable for children.
- PG-13 Parents are strongly cautioned to give special guidance for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
- R Restricted, under-17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.
- X No one under 17 admitted.

All films rated after July 1 will be given ratings under the new five-category system.

Securities dealer's assets frozen up

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A judge froze the assets of three affiliates of a failed government securities dealer Tuesday, a day after it was placed under bankruptcy-law protection from customers who are owed at least $140 million.

Savings and loan associations across the country tried to assess the impact of the Chapter 11 filing by Bevil Brestler & Schulman-Asset Management Corp. of Livingston. But the Federal Reserve Board in Washington said no problems had been reported at financial institutions in the wake of the filing and related court action.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has alleged that Asset Management, four affiliates and five officers misrepresented the financial status of Asset Management and failed to disclose it could not meet obligations to customers. Regulators estimated it owes at least $140 million to customers.

U.S. District Judge Dickinson Debevoise had frozen the assets of Asset Management on Monday and did the same Tuesday for BBS Government Securities Group Inc., Bevil Brestler & Schulman Government Securities Inc. and BBS Securities Group Inc.

The SEC on Tuesday did not ask that any action be taken against the fourth affiliate, the brokerage firm of Bevil Brestler & Schulman Inc. The SEC also asked the judge to take away the officers' control of three of the companies in order to protect customers.

Farm policy assailed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four farm-state Republican senators told President Reagan on Tuesday that he has failed to live up to a promise to Congress on the farm credit crisis and his "direct and immediate intervention" is needed to help struggling farmers.

"Absent your direct and immediate intervention, your program will fail in assisting large numbers of farmers and lenders who are depending upon the fulfillment of administration promises," the group said in a letter to Reagan.

The letter, signed by Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa, James Abdnor of South Dakota and David Durenberger and Rudy Boschwitz of Minnesota, accused the administration of ignoring its own rules for the president's farm Debt Adjustment Program.

The rules, published Feb. 15, specify that federal loan guarantees to qualifying farmers would cover both operating loans, made to cover the cost of supplies and equipment, and real estate mortgages, the senators contended.

"Consequently, promised assistance to a large number of eligible and qualified borrowers will be denied," the letter said.

Volcker optimistic about budget cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Paul Volcker, who has often warned about the economic perils of unchecked federal budget deficits, expressed optimism Tuesday about a new Republican deficit-reduction plan.

President Reagan and GOP Senate leaders announced agreement last Thursday on a package of spending cuts which would trim the 1986 federal budget deficit by $52 billion.

Volcker cautioned that such an agreement has a long way to go before it is enacted into law, but he said it was a good beginning.

"I can't help but be encouraged by the steps announced last week by the Senate Republican leadership and by the administration," Volcker said.

Stray bullets make canyon work dangerous

By JANE NEBUCKWAY
Times-News correspondent

GOODING — Spring can be a dangerous time to work in the Snake River canyon. Land owners and fish hatchery operators told the Gooding County Board of Commissioners Monday hunters are shooting into the canyon from the rim, endangering lives and livestock.

Terry Huddleston said employees at Crystal Springs Trout Farm regularly have had to seek shelter indoors because ricocheting bullets or kids trying to shoot into the water make it too dangerous to work on the fish ponds.

Joe Chapman of Rim View Trout Farm echoed Huddleston's report, saying his

"This is an annual spring occurrence, and we all agree there is a problem ... Doing something about it is harder."
— Bob Thackeray

brother was injured in a hunting accident two years ago, and he has no wish to repeat the experience.

Idaho Department of Fish and Game officer Robert Vaughan, superintendent of the Magic Valley steelhead hatchery under construction in the Hagerman area, said surveyors and construction workers have been placed in jeopardy by hunters shooting from the rim and on the side hills near the construction site.

"It's a real hazard," he said. Area livestock owners said their land is routinely trespassed on, with gates left open, freeing livestock, and fences damaged by weekend hunters.

Also, a home owner reported bullets have "whizzed" around his house.

Gooding County Sheriff Robert Aja told the commission Gooding has an ordinance prohibiting shooting, except with a shotgun, within 100 feet of the rim or into the canyon without the landowner's permission.

But, he said, the ordinance is difficult to enforce, because many landowners give permission for hunters to be on the property, or his officers do not actually see the shooting.

Gooding Deputy Sheriff Bill Boyer said a state law prohibiting reckless display of firearms also can apply in many cases.

Aja said it is important to have cooperation from area residents who call in shooting violation complaints. "They need to be willing to testify, in order to really make it stick," he said.

The commission agreed to look into changing the county ordinance to require written permission from landowners to hunt within 100 feet of the canyon rim.

"This is an annual spring occurrence, and we all agree there is a problem," chairman Bob Thackeray told the group. "Doing something about it is harder." The commission took the matter under advisement and agreed to investigate installing warning signs on public access and to work with Jerome and Twin Falls counties where the problem also occurs.

Thackeray said public awareness also could help the situation and said the commission would send notices of the county ordinance to Gooding landowners along the rim.

Huddleston said his firm's efforts to work with landowners on the rim above the hatchery have been very effective, and once the landowner understood hunters were shooting into the canyon, they have warned their permittees not to do so.

"It has cut the problem way down," he said.

Seniors like move to KMVT

Despite objections, most support switch to donated building

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A straw vote of those attending a Senior Citizens Board meeting Tuesday night showed seniors overwhelmingly in favor of moving to the old KMVT studios recently donated to the city.

This week a concrete floor built over wood on the east end of the present center on Fourth Avenue has collapsed, said board chairman and city councilman Gae Kleinkopf. That has pulled sides of the surrounding walls in, including the far corner of the building which has pulled away from the brick, he said.

That area, which was being used for storage with restricted personnel access, will have to have stored items removed, be boarded up and have warning signs posted, a city engineer and building inspector have decided, Kleinkopf said.

City officials will allow only limited access to a freezer about eight feet from where the floor collapsed, Kleinkopf said. Adding an addition to the old building and using the most structurally sound parts for storage at least is still a possibility being considered by the board.

But all but one board member present commented favorably on a move to the old KMVT studios. A decision is not expected until next month.

Board member Russell Wolfe said he was concerned that the donated site on the corner of Elizabeth Boulevard and Eastland Drive would have too much traffic, be too noisy and be difficult to remodel.

But other members said that although they had mixed feelings when they toured the building which has numerous additions and a section that has not been used for several years, they thought problems could be overcome.

Traffic on the corner is only heavy at 8 a.m. and 5 p.m., — times that senior citizens are rarely using the center, Kleinkopf said. He also said that many of the buildings interior, non-bearing walls could be removed to make larger meeting spaces.

The Navy Construction Battalion should be available to help with demolition necessary for remodeling to begin. The seniors also have $30,500 in a building fund that could be used for remodeling and possibly another $20,000 or more from the sale of the present site if the city allows it, Kleinkopf said.

The city has also applied for a Community Development Block Grant for $100,000 that could be used to remodel the studio building if the city is awarded the grant.

Kleinkopf said he was disappointed by comments that seniors only get cast-offs made on a local call-in radio show, since with the possibility of $150,000 to remodel the studios could make the building live again.

If the seniors do not accept the donation of the studio building, the property will revert to KMVT, Kleinkopf said.

Summertime school eyed

Elementary program planned

By DEAN S. MILLER
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls School Board Tuesday night voted to support an elementary summer school program this summer.

At the Tuesday night board meeting, the board did not set a dollar figure for an override levy. A special meeting to discuss the override levy was scheduled for 7 p.m. April 16.

The elementary summer school proposal was presented to the board by Shirley Wilson-Bates, Kay Jones, and Julie Blank, three elementary school teachers who have organized the school and will act as administrators.

Tuition for the elementary program will be $35 for a 4½-week remedial program for grades one through six.

Blank told the board the summer school program will need $5,000 in support above the tuition revenues to operate with a $35 tuition. She said the elementary school parent organizations had offered to try to raise about $2,000. The board voted to pick up whatever amount the parent groups could not raise.

The board will delay action for two weeks on a junior high summer school proposal until the organizers, Andy Barron and John Miller, can collect more parent response. Their last letter to parents netted only 10 positive responses.

Snow presented the board with over $300,000 worth of purchases and repairs to be considered for addition to the override levy. He said the year's incremental increase in the district's 319 teachers salaries; the increase in the district's liability insurance premiums; and increases in utility bills will cost $100,000 more than the three percent increase in Idaho funds to the Twin Falls district for next year.

Snow says textbook purchases and the new roof for Robert Stuart Junior High School are top priority items. Assistant superintendent Kent Heaton told the board the $150,000 asked for in Snow's list of override items is $100,000 less than what the district needs to keep up with recommended textbook adoptions.

"The roof at Stuart is 22 years old and if it is not replaced, the district may lose the building, Snow said.

'Soft-core porn' pulled from racks

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — What some area residents are calling "raunchy, soft-core, porn magazines" are coming down from the shelves of two Twin Falls convenience stores this weekend following the efforts of a citizens committee.

Jim Lynch, owner of the two Mr. Gas stores in Twin Falls, says he will remove copies of such magazines as Hustler from the racks of those stores this weekend, even though such magazines "are our best seller" and are usually purchased "not by those you think would buy them, but by people wearing suits."

He is voluntarily removing the magazines as a demonstration of good will toward the community in a compromise agreement with Scott Gife, spokesman for Determined Citizens Against Pornography, Lynch says. He also says he does not want to offend any customers nor have his stores picketed.

As part of the compromise, Mr. Gas will continue to carry Playboy and Penthouse, Lynch says. They will be stocked on a magazine rack above the heads of children and with most of the covers hidden, he says. The company also will continue to enforce a policy of not letting children or adults read magazines in the store, he says.

Earlier, the store moved magazines with what some people believed to be pornographic material from racks to behind a counter. "But males were timid about asking female (cash register) attendants for them," he says. Sales of the magazines dropped 80 percent, so he moved them back to a magazine rack with all but the titles covered.

Five committee members are confident that what they believe is "raunchy, soft-core pornography" is still readily available in at least one other Twin Falls convenience store.

Air show set to fly as planned

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Despite an organizational dispute, the air show scheduled for July at the Twin Falls-Sun Valley Regional Airport will go on as planned, says Gary Wolverton, Twin Falls, the chairman of the event.

Wolverton attended a board meeting Tuesday because of a letter the board received from members of the Magic Valley Pilots' Association, which was helping to organize the show.

Bob Wills, the association president, wrote that there was not enough planning time for the air show, so the association was backing out.

Wolverton said he was upset about the vote of the association board and because other members of the association were not polled.

Despite the association decision, "We will have this air show and it will be very successful. I made a commitment to you people," Wolverton said.

The steering committee already has the commitment of professional flyers, he added.

In a telephone interview Tuesday afternoon, Wills said the idea of an air show sounded good at first, but that association members soon realized how much time and effort it would take.

"We wish, Gary, luck. The club just didn't have time," Wills said.

In September, the board voted to support the air show concept and donate the use of the airport facilities.

Board chairman Dick Stowell told Wolverton that the organizational disagreements didn't change the board's position on the show. The board's position on Page B2

United Way survey points to need for improving info

By ANNETTE CARY
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley United Way agencies seem to be doing a good job meeting the needs of youth in the valley, but will work on making more information available about their services, says executive director Sandy Thomas.

United Way has recently completed a survey to determine whether its five member agencies that provide services for youth are meeting the needs of the community. Those agencies include the Salvation Army, Camp Fire, Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and the YPCA.

About 65 percent of the 33 agencies and psychologists identified by the United Way, as dealing with youth returned mail surveys.

Some 99 percent of those said they were not familiar with services for youth offered by the each of the agencies, particularly the Salvation Army.

Most who had referred clients to one of the agencies did it for the recreational activities available there, they said. Still, 39 percent of the respondents said that the bigsoring workshops on training for youth leaders and asking survey respondents to volunteer expertise.

Individual agencies will also consider doing their own training programs and adding more information on problems identified by survey respondents such as peer pressure and drug abuse.

Thomas said she would like to do more United Way surveys to find out what services are missed and which overlap in agencies. Future surveys might contact school personnel, day care workers and those who deal with handicapped people, she said.

The board also had a chance to see a 1976 Ford Van donated by Mountain Bell to Magic Valley United Way to give to a member agency. United Way has selected United Cerebral Palsy of Idaho to use the van in a lending library program that brings toys and therapeutic equipment to the handicapped in Magic Valley and elsewhere in the state.

Work on the exterior of the van has been done by Wills Motors and Lytle Signs of Twin Falls.

Atwood to fill in as MVRMC leader

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Regional Medical Center assistant administrator Alleen Atwood will step in as one of two temporary administrators while the hospital waits for its new permanent administrator, John Bingham, to arrive.

Atwood will be temporary administrator for a week. She will be followed by interim administrator Joe Horner, who will direct the hospital until Bingham arrives in mid-to-late May.

Hospital board chairman Robert Valentine said Monday that Horner has worked in Saudi Arabia and Texas. Valentine said Horner led an MVRMC board retreat this winter at which the board set goals for 1985. Valentine said the board will not delay decisions while waiting for Bingham to arrive. He said there are no urgent issues now facing the board and that Atwood and comptroller Don Crilly will be able to take care of the day-to-day running of the hospital.

Atwood, who has her doctorate in Organization and Leadership from the University of San Francisco, has been the assistant administrator since January 1984. She said Horner was administrator of an HCA-managed hospital in Longview, Wash., until recently.

In the interim between the departure of Bill Burns and Bingham's arrival at MVRMC, Valentine said it would be the responsibility of HCA to keep Bingham abreast of hospital developments.

Valentine said the board will continue to consider the joint venture between the hospital's laboratory and Physician's Laboratory and will continue to study a proposed policy that would allow the hospital to deny non-emergency treatment to patients with overdue hospital bills.

The Salt Lake City accounting firm of Deloitte, Haskins, and Sells is preparing a feasibility study of the laboratory partnership that should be completed by April 15, Crilly said Monday.

Budd innocent in beating case

JEROME — A Fifth District Court jury in Jerome found Terry Budd, 35, of Hazelton innocent of an aggravated battery charge at the close of a trial that continued through last week.

Budd was accused of beating Terry Hansen, 33, also of Hazelton, at the Greenwood Park in Hazelton on Aug. 26, 1984. The complaint and probable cause statement in the case alleged that Hansen stepped in to stop a fight between Budd and his girlfriend and that Budd then struck him in the head, knocking him to the ground and kicking him.

Hansen was hospitalized for several weeks with a ruptured intestine and injuries to the pancreas. Witnesses testified Budd was bound over to district court for trial following a preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court in Jerome on Oct. 17, 1984.

The jury acquitted Budd after about five hours of deliberation last Thursday night. He was represented by William Hoffeld of Twin Falls. Jerome County Prosecutor Mark Gause represented the state.

Easter vandals' spree probed

RUPERT — Mindoka County officers Monday were investigating a vandalism spree that occurred during Easter weekend in an area west of Rupert.

Sheriff's officers said at least a dozen mail boxes were broken off or smashed, apparently with large pieces of concrete were thrown against them. All were destroyed.

The damage was reported Sunday and officers believe the damage occurred Saturday night or early Sunday morning. It appeared the pieces of concrete weighing five to 20 pounds were thrown from a passing vehicle, officers said. A number of newspaper tubes and boxes were also broken.

The damage involved rural residents living in an area that began at 950 West, running to 100 South and 500 South, then across to 850 West and north to 100 West.

No immediate estimate of damage was made, but authorities said value of the mail boxes would run up to $20 per box.

Cook asks hydro plant hookup

TWIN FALLS — Cook Electric Co. of Twin Falls has asked the Idaho Power Co. to connect its proposed 9,000-kilowatt hydroelectric plant at Magic Reservoir to the utility's distribution system.

Beginning August 1986, the plant will produce 42.6 million kilowatt-hours a year from its three 3,000-kilowatt generators.

The Idaho Power reports that within five years the capacity of energy from cogeneration projects hooked into its system will amount to 293,340 kilowatts.

Lions set Saturday work party

TWIN FALLS — Members of the Twin Falls Lions Club will hold a work party at Harmon Park Saturday morning to reroof two shelters. The Lions are also donating $1,500 worth of material for the project, says city parks and recreation director Clark Browning.

The Lions will be replacing with metal roofing fiberglass roofs that have been destroyed by the wind.

Youth charged after accident

TWIN FALLS — A Kimberly youth was charged Tuesday with reckless driving as the result of an accident April 5 in which his vehicle crashed into a utility pole on County Road North 2700.

William Alan Greene, 16, was cited by Twin Falls County officers who investigated the accident at 3 p.m. April 5. Police reports indicated Greene was northbound when his vehicle crossed the road, went into the borrow pit and then hit the pole, shearing it off just above the ground.

Three charged in car burning

TWIN FALLS — Preliminary hearings have been set for three suspects in a car theft and burning that occurred in Twin Falls almost a year ago.

An investigation by the Twin Falls County sheriff's department led to the arrests earlier this month of Michael Gerald Keller, 24, Hansen and Scott Matthew Keller, 23, and Bryce R. Rovig, 25, both of Twin Falls. All three are charged with grand theft and third degree arson.

Magistrate Court records show a preliminary hearing has been set for both Kellers for April 19 and a preliminary hearing for Rovig, which was set for April 22, but the hearing has since been waived.

The trio is charged with the theft of a 1981 Camaro on May 14, 1984, from the used car lot of Roy Raymond Ford agency on Blue Lakes Boulevard North in Twin Falls May 12 or 13. The vehicle was found on the south of Twin Falls. It had been stripped of the engine, bucket seats, stereo and other items and burned.

The three suspects were arrested April 2 following an investigation by county officers.

Correction

TWIN FALLS — The Times-News Tuesday incorrectly reported that the Chapter One migrant student program at Twin Falls School District owned 13 Sony computers. The computers are owned by the Chapter One program for educationally disadvantaged students.

In the same story, the model numbers of the junior high school Radio Shack computers were reversed.

The 12 older computers are Model Ones and the six newer computers are Model Threes.

Rash of burglaries hits area, but damages in excess of loss

TWIN FALLS — Burglaries at five Twin Falls businesses and one residence were reported Monday to Twin Falls police, but officers said damages from forced entries exceeded cash loss in most cases.

Entries were reported at the Valley Radiator Co., 249 South Park Ave. W.; Wolverton International Inc., 161 Third Ave. W.; Curt's Car Care, 1611 Addison Ave. E.; The Buffalo Cafe, 216 Fourth Ave. W.; and Crandall Service Co. at 275 South Park West. The residential burglary was reported by Rick Murray of 1122 Park Meador Drive but was in a home on Heyburn Avenue.

Officials at Valley Radiator reported the burglary occurred between 7 p.m. Sunday and 7:45 a.m. Monday. James Clawson said $150 in damage resulted and $7 in cash was taken. He said a window was broken to gain entry and desk and file drawers in the office as well as one in the side door were forced open.

Officers said only about $15 damage was reported at Wolverton International. A window was broken to gain entry but nothing was missing.

Someone pried open a door at Curt's Car Care sometime Sunday night or early Monday morning, officers said. Instead of the building, the intruder forced open a cash register and pop machine. About $30 in cash was missing, including $15 each from the cash register and pop machine. Damage was in excess of that amount.

At the Buffalo Cafe, about $80 damage resulted when someone forced open a window and then broke the interior front door glass. Officers said the burglar went through the cash drawers but nothing was missing.

Damage was estimated at $300 at Crandall Service Co., after someone broke out a window and then forced open the soft drink machine, a cash register and file cabinet as well as a door between two office areas. Only $5 in cash was missing from a soft drink machine.

Rick Murray told police someone broke into a home at 237 Heyburn Ave. while the owners were away. He said a basement window was broken and it appeared the burglars spent the night as both the bed and couch appeared to have been slept on by someone. He said a television set is missing but other losses will not be known until the owners return and check the home. Murray estimated the break-in occurred Friday recently.

Vial of explosive chemical found, rendered harmless with dynamite

BURLEY — State, city and county officials teamed up against a small container of picric acid found in Burley Tuesday afternoon and rendered it harmless with three sticks of dynamite.

Picric acid is a poisonous substance used in the treatment of burns and in making dyes and explosives.

Law enforcement officers and fire department officials said the acid, which also can become an explosive, was found at Sib's Pharmacy at 1526 Albion St. About 3:30 p.m. The acid was discovered during renovation and expansion of the pharmacy building. It apparently had been in the building for a long time and had reached the stage of crystallizing, at which time it converts to a gas, officials said.

The material was placed in a city dump truck and hauled to a gravel pit about three miles south of Burley where it was blown up with the explosives.

MVRS plans scholarship program to provide services for the disabled

TWIN FALLS — With donations from service clubs, Crumrine Rehabilitation Services has established a scholarship program to provide services to disabled people who might not otherwise be served.

A majority of organization's clients are referred from the State Department of Health and Welfare and State Vocational Rehabilitation program, said MVRS executive director Jeff Crumrine. However, there are many clients who are not eligible for them through the state agencies, he said.

The purpose of the scholarship fund is to serve the people who had no other way of obtaining MVRS services, which include evaluation, training, job placement and employment.

The program include the Jerome Kiwanis Club, Gooding Business and Professional Women's Club, Filer Kiwanis Club and Duhl Rotary Club.

The organizations contributed enough for three scholarships, which cover about one-sixth the costs of the services, Crumrine said.

He had hoped more clubs would have participated, but he was satisfied with the donations, Crumrine added. The scholarship program will be evaluated to determine if it will be offered next year.

"Hopefully, we'll get additional groups involved," he said. Any group or person interested in establishing a scholarship fund drive, which began September, other contributors to 734-4442.

ment to disabled people, Crumrine said.

Service clubs were offered the opportunity to contribute $500 to sponsor a full scholarship. With the full scholarship, the contributing club would be allowed to select a person from their community. MVRS would provide services for a maximum of six months.

A $250 contribution would establish a partial scholarship. In this case, MVRS would select a person to be served for a maximum of three months.

The Twin Falls Lions Club was the first group to contribute to the scholarship fund drive, which began September. Other contributors to 734-4442.

Katz is selected to hospital board

TWIN FALLS — As was suggested by the Institute for Health Planning in its study of Magic Valley Regional Medical Center, another physician has been added to the hospital board.

Ben Katz, a pediatrician in the area for 35 years, has been added to the board to fill the seat suggested by the Wisconsin-based consulting firm.

Katz served on the board from 1973 to 1975 as the first physician member. He is a graduate of the University of Iowa and was trained in pediatrics at New York University and the University of Minnesota. He has also served on the state board of medicine and the state board of medical discipline.

A member of the American Academy of Pediatrics, Katz was given the 1984 Robbins award by the Idaho State Medical Association for outstanding community service.

Airport

board voted again to support the air show.

In other business, the board approved the elimination of a requirement for people who lease hangars at the airport "to carry liability insurance on the hangars."

The proposed change would effect about 18 private individuals who rent space. Companies leasing space at the airport have different insurance requirements. Airport Manager Harry Merrick said.

The insurance carried by the City of Twin Falls already protected the airport property, said Tim Obenchain, the city's insurance agent. The requirement in the lease was costing people about $250 to $500 for insurance when it wasn't necessary.

Obenchain suggested that the board drop the requirement. If the city must require a person to carry insurance, it should be on the aircraft.

Instead, said the insurance requirement was just another expense on the private owner of an aircraft. When leases come up for renewal the clause concerning the insurance should be dropped.

The Twin Falls City Council and the Twin Falls County Board of Commissioners will have final approval of the board's recommendation to drop the insurance requirement.

Crew chief Paul Utley reported that 62 inches of snow fell at the airport during the past winter, costing more than 300 hours in overtime to clear runways and taxiways.

Grandparents lose rights due to beliefs

DEAR ABBY: Our only daughter, "Sally," lives in a beautiful home 400 miles from us, but her husband, "Joe," has forbidden us to visit her in their home.

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

I finally wrote Joe a long letter addressed to his office (he's a successful surgeon), telling him that I thought we were entitled to come for a visit. He returned the letter in which he had scribbled, "Tell it to Dear Abby," so that's what I'm doing.

My husband is a Christian church minister — Disciples of Christ — so we sent Sally to a good Bible college, hoping she would marry a fine ministerial student. Instead she met Joe, an Episcopalian. They fell in love, and he won her over to his church. They were secretly married after graduation and we ceased all communication with Sally for several years. Last year she let us know we were grandparents.

their grandchildren. How do we go about enforcing those rights?

CUT OFF IN VIRGINIA
DEAR CUT OFF: There is a right that outranks grandparents' rights — it's the constitutional right under the First Amendment that grants every citizen freedom of religion.

"That means the right to worship (or not worship) according to one's own conscience. Your daughter, an Episcopalian, baptized her child in accordance with the rules of that church, so for you to accuse her of condemning her child to hell because your religion differs from hers is an insult.

"Until you respect your daughter's right to religious freedom, forget about your "rights" as a grandparent. You have none.

Christy, they had our grandson baptized in the Episcopalian church, and we know from the Scriptures that all must be baptized by immersion to be saved, so my husband told them they had condemned our grandchild to hell — since they broke off all communication with us.

In your column you have said that grandparents have the right to see

DEAR ABBY: Because I have had a mastectomy, I am all too familiar with the comments of insensitive people concerning breasts.

Cap, gown industry growing

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Students in U.S. high schools and colleges continue to show increased interest and participation in graduation ceremonies, according to an executive of a major manufacturer of graduation apparel.

"During the Vietnam years, participation in graduation ceremonies by students and faculty dropped significantly," says Ted Beach, vice president marketing for Collegiate Cap and Gown here.

"But the volume and kind of orders this year indicates students and faculty not only want to participate, they are seeking ways to make the event more memorable — adding more color, more pageantry, and a stronger emphasis on souvenir items like tassels, cords and pendants.

"This has been a major trend in the cap and gown industry in the past several years," Beach said. The executive said a substantial increase in the number of gowns for graduates of day care and other preschool programs reflects the increasing number of two-career and single-parent families.

"The day could come when one individual might go through six or more graduations in a lifetime — kindergarten, grade school, junior high, high school, college and graduation," Beach added.

Since the company ships more than a million garments each season and most graduation ceremonies fall between mid-May and late June, precision delivery is of overriding importance, Beach points out. The company processes orders with a IBM computer to make sure that each graduate gets a gown of the right color and size at the right time.

Spock picks collaborator on baby book

NEW YORK (AP) — As Dr. Benjamin Spock approached his 60th birthday, and the fourth major revision of his classic book, "Baby and Child Care," he decided it was time to choose a collaborator, and eventual successor.

The choice: Dr. Michael B. Rothenberg, 58, a professor of pediatrics and psychiatry at the University of Washington School of Medicine and a member of the staff of Children's Orthopedic Hospital and Medical Center in Seattle.

"The Pocket Book of Baby and Child Care" was first published in 1946. Spock recalls he was told by an editor: "It doesn't have to be a very good book because at 25 cents a copy, we'll be able to sell a hundred thousand a year."

But Spock wrote with a voice that parents liked and understood. According to its publisher, "Dr. Spock's Baby and Child Care" is now the second best seller of all time, next to the Bible. It is estimated that 30 million copies have been printed in 38 languages in 31 countries.

The new 40th anniversary edition carries both Spock's and Rothenberg's names, the latter under contract to revise the book again in another year or so.

Rothenberg first met Spock when he was a pediatric resident at Western Reserve University School of Medicine in Cleveland in 1955 and Spock was a teacher there. But they had only "peripheral" contact in the years that followed.

Catech and Adrienne Maynard; Sharon Cain, Mackay, and Stacey Pook, Twin Falls.

The bride, a 1982 graduate of Butte High School at Arco, attended the College of Southern Idaho. She is employed at Check Savers in Twin Falls.

The bridegroom, a 1982 graduate of Twin Falls High School, is employed in farm work here. Following a trip to Yellowstone Park, the couple resides in Twin Falls.

Delightful dips can be nutritious, too

Dips mean easy entertaining and delicious snacking.

From savory dips for elegant parties to fast blender whip-ups for the kids (and grown-ups, too) the decision is unanimous — everyone loves dips.

The good news is they can also give you a nutrition boost. Yogurt and cheese-based dips provide protein and calcium.

Vegetable dips provide vitamins A and C. And surprise! When you team them with potato chips, the chips add essential carbohydrates, vitamins C and B-6 and potassium.

Here are some great chip and dip recipes for you to try.

COOL CUCUMBER DIP
Cool and refreshing and great for the weight conscious.
1 cup unflavored lowfat yogurt
1 cup diced cucumber
1 small clove garlic, crushed
1/2 teaspoon dill weed
Dash cayenne pepper
In bowl combine all ingredients. Cover; chill at least 2 hours. Serve with chips. Makes about 1 1/4 cups.

TANGY TUNA DIP
1 can (7 oz.) tuna fish, drained
2 tablespoons capers, drained
2 tablespoons lemon juice

1 tablespoon dried minced onion
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup vegetable oil
1/2 cup unflavored lowfat yogurt
1/4 cup mayonnaise
Potato chips

In blender or food processor blend together tuna fish, capers, lemon juice, onion and paprika until smooth. With machine running, slowly pour in oil until absorbed. Stir in yogurt and mayonnaise. Serve with chips. Makes 2 cups.

ITALIAN CAPONATA DIP
2 tablespoons olive or vegetable oil
1 small eggplant (about 1/2 pound) peeled, cubed
1/2 cup sliced onion

1 cup celery, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce with tomato bits
1/4 cup pitted ripe olives, drained
2 tablespoons red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon pepper
Potato chips, thick sliced or ridged
In large skillet heat oil to sizzling over high heat. Add eggplant, onion and celery. Cook and stir 10 minutes. Reduce heat to medium-low. Stir in remaining ingredients. Simmer, stirring occasionally, until

GREEN HERB DIP
1/4 cup packed parsley, stems trimmed
2 tablespoons chopped green onion thick and celery is still tender-crisp. Spoon into bowl. Cover; chill at least 2 hours. Serve with chips. Makes about 3 cups.
1 egg

SPINACH AND BEEF DIP
1 package (10 oz.) frozen chopped spinach, defrosted and drained
1 package (8-oz.) cream cheese softened
1/2 cup mayonnaise*
3 tablespoons milk
1 jar (2 1/2 oz.) dried-beef crumble

1 cup sour cream or unflavored lowfat yogurt
1/4 cup minced green onions
1 clove garlic, minced
2 teaspoons dill weed
Potato chips

In bowl combine spinach, cream cheese, mayonnaise, milk and dried beef; beat thoroughly. Stir in sour cream or yogurt, green onions, garlic and dill until well blended. Serve with chips. Makes 4 cups.
*For a lighter dip substitute reduced-calorie cream cheese and reduced-calorie mayonnaise; use yogurt.

FAST BLENDER DIP
1 package (10 oz.) frozen, chopped vegetable, defrosted and drained*
1 cup creamy-style cottage cheese
1/2 cup unflavored lowfat yogurt
1 package (6 oz.) onion
Salad Dressing mix
Potato chips

In blender or food processor blend together vegetable and cottage cheese until smooth. Add yogurt and dressing mix; blend 30 seconds. Serve with chips. Makes 3 1/2 cups.
*Or 1/2 cups chopped chopped vegetable.

definition mein means 'noodles').

WAN-Q RESTAURANT BEEF CHOW MEIN

2 tablespoons peanut oil
1 clove garlic, minced
6 ounces thinly sliced beef tenderloin or chicken breast
1-2 cups sliced celery
1-2 cup thinly sliced water chestnuts
1-2 cup Chinese pea pods, thinly sliced lengthwise
1-2 cup shredded carrots
1 cup shredded bamboo shoots
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1 teaspoon Sherry
1 cup chicken broth
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1-2 cup water
Hot cooked rice

Heat oil in skillet or wok. Add garlic and meat and quickly brown meat. Remove meat and set aside. Add celery, water chestnuts, peas, carrots, bamboo shoots, salt and soy sauce and cook and stir until vegetables are tender-crisp. Add sherry and broth. Cover and bring to boil. Mix cornstarch with water, then add to broth. Cook until slightly thickened. Serve with rice. Makes 4 servings.

Korean foods have distinct flavor, aroma

"Please Do Not Throw Foreigners Into The Toilet."

This was the first sign I saw in English after we entered Korea. I didn't know whether to be relieved or alarmed. Just where do we throw foreigners? After all I was one of them having come through the customs line for aliens.

I am quite sure the sign meant the usual foreign objects, but one never knows.

After being in Japan for a week where the signs were all so very polite — "You Must Have Permission To Enter Here" and "This Door Is Closed (It Wasn't). Use Main Entrance."

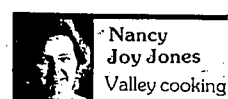

Please, I really didn't know what to expect of Korean hospitality.

It was very warm. Old M*A*S*H reruns and tales about "The War" by friends hadn't prepared me for the bustling, modern city of Seoul with its population of 10 million.

The first thing we really noted — about the city were the very broad avenues (I mean wider than Salt Lake City streets, folks) and the large-scale to the buildings. They were big, starkly geometric and set apart, giving a giant scale feeling to the city. These buildings weren't tall enough to be called skyscrapers. They didn't block the view of the rock mountain cliffs that we first thought were outside of the city. After going through tunnels from one end of the city to the other, we found the mountains were the city.

Our hotel was a delight — super modern, smack dab in the center of things and only two blocks from the American Embassy.

Everyday the hotel changed the carpets in the elevators. The carpet read "Have a Nice Wednesday" when we got there. Not a bad idea for us foreigners who crossed the International Date Line and lost or gained a day. I have decided that's why we travel together. One can keep his watch on home time and one is kept on local time — so only one of you is confused.

In the hotel coffee shop there was a table and ad for beer featuring a picture of the Statue of Liberty, so we felt right at home.

Korean food is very good. It uses many of the same ingredients as Chinese and Japanese cuisines but comes out with a definite distinctive flavor and aroma.

The mainstay is Kim Chee or Kimchi — a pickled cabbage mixture. This is made a lot like sauerkraut. You can buy ready-made jars of this in your supermarket (check the produce department). This is eaten alone, as a side dish or an ingredient in a dish and even as a topping.

More beef was used than I expected in the menus, but it was not generally in the form of steaks or roasts. Short ribs were used a lot in soups, stews and barbecues. Several dishes called for sliced beef. I would use thinly sliced round steak or something similar. Some of the garnishes were interesting and really quite easy. One was called egg sheets. To do this, separate 3 eggs. Beat the yolks and pour a layer into a small, lightly-greased fry pan over medium heat. When it sets, add more beaten yolk to the pan to make a thick sheet about like a pancake. Remove from pan onto a plate and let cool. Do the same with the egg whites. Cut them into rectangular shapes.

These could be used to top many things. How about trying them on top? See JONES on Page C2

Daughter learning skills in kitchen

By JOAN BEAN

Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Considering motherhood a full-time job, Theresa Dickhaut reluctantly accepted a part-time position as a receptionist in a doctor's office last fall.

But, instead of causing a problem, it has helped her daughter, Becky, 12, to gain a degree of independence.

"It's been good for her, because I have always been here for her. She's grown up with it a little, too," she says.

The part-time employment allows Theresa to teach Becky homemaking skills. This has paid off with help in the kitchen.

"She likes to get in and help make soup or stew. Becky enjoys it and is pretty happy when something turns out," she says.

When it comes to learning how to make soup, Becky has an excellent teacher. Dickhaut's soups receive rave notices from family and friends.

Perhaps the practice of adding cabbage to most of her soups and stews may be partly responsible for this. "It's been good for her, because I have always been here for her. She's grown up with it a little, too," she says.

cond day, because the cabbage flavor kind of sets in it," she says.

When she makes a family favorite called "dumping out," she cooks the cabbage. This can be prepared in a hurry, without the bother of all day simmering.

DUMPLING SOUP

To prepare the basic dough recipe, start out with 3 cups flour and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Add enough water to make a dough consistency. Break or cut dough into bite-size pieces. Drop into boiling salted water. Boil only two or three minutes. Drain off all water. Set aside. Prepare medium-sized potatoes into bite-size pieces and cook until done. Add dough to potatoes and leave about 2 cups of the potato water. Add a quart of half and half and warm it. Dice 2 or 3 onions and brown in about 1/2 cup margarine. Add about 1/4 cup butter. Put four minutes in soup.

Add salt and pepper to taste. Serves four. Dickhaut is the family gardener as well as the cook. Although the garden patch is a modest size, she does some canning from the harvest. She recalls the year she planted three rows of peas, intended for that purpose.

"Boy, I just thought I had a lot of peas there," she says. "By the time I finished picking and shucking them and getting them in my jars, I had spent all day for 1/2 pints of peas! I'm not going to do that again."

Her garden does cooperate when it

Fond remembrances of a peanut butter chip cookie

By ROSE DOSTI
Los Angeles Times

Dear SOS: The Harris Ranch in Coalinga, Calif., has a Peanut Butter Chip Cookie that brown sugar and vanilla in large bowl. Beat makes my mouth water every time I think about it. Please, please, try to get the recipe. Love, Mix well. Stir in peanut butter chips.

Dear Lynn: This Peanut Butter Chip Cookie truly is a mouth-watering delight.

PEANUT BUTTER CHIP COOKIES

1-1/4 cups flour
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1-2 cup butter or margarine, softened
1-4 cup granulated sugar
1-4 cup brown sugar
1-2 teaspoon vanilla

1 egg
6 ounces peanut butter chips

Combine flour, baking soda and salt. Set aside. Combine butter, granulated sugar, brown sugar and vanilla in large bowl. Beat until creamy. Add egg. Slowly add flour mix. Mix well. Stir in peanut butter chips. Drop by rounded teaspoons onto ungreased cookie sheet. Bake at 375 degrees 7 to 9 minutes. Makes 30 (3-inch) cookies.

Dear SOS: Do you have a recipe for chow mein? Recipes I have seen in my cookbooks just don't seem to be the right ones. —MRS. J.B.

Dear Mrs. J.B.: Here is a New York-style cornstarch version using mixed Oriental vegetables with some beef or chicken served over crispy noodles or rice (even though by definition mein means 'noodles').

WAN-Q RESTAURANT BEEF CHOW MEIN

2 tablespoons peanut oil
1 clove garlic, minced
6 ounces thinly sliced beef tenderloin or chicken breast

1 pound lean ground pork

1 cup water

1-2 cup chopped onion
1-2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 teaspoon salt
1-8 teaspoon sage
Dash black pepper
1/4 cup ground nutmeg
Pastry for 2 crust 9-inch pie
Brown pork in skillet. Drain off excess fat. Stir in water, onion, bread crumbs, salt, sage, pepper and nutmeg.

Simmer, covered, until onion is tender about 30 minutes stirring often. Line 9-inch pie plate with pastry and fill with meat mixture. Adjust top crust, seal and flute. Cut slits in top. Lamb, young crops from new season produce spring feast

By SHELLEY DAVIS
The Washington Post

Anyone who loves to cook will tell you that spring is the true beginning of the year. There's something in the air that makes your fingers itch in search of tender, young foods — the early signals of crops yet to come — to turn into spring feasts.

The truth is, when the mood hits, it's difficult to imagine a happier way to spend a beautiful spring afternoon than in the kitchen — not to make a lot of any one dish, but of different dishes that are light, tasty, colorful and as pretty as can be with which to surprise unsuspecting guests.

This five-course spring-celebration menu for six meets all of these needs. The major ingredients are the herbs, vegetables, meat and fish that are flooding our markets now and will continue to be on hand for the next several weeks.

Rosemary, asparagus, carrots, fresh greens, shad roe, spring lamb and rhubarb are used in colorful combinations that appeal to our artistic culinary instincts.

That these herbs and vegetables taste their best with a minimal amount of cooking, and that most hold their day or two, once the final preparation starts, could be considered a drawback for cooks who shy away from last-minute preparation.

However, keep in mind that many of the preliminaries can be started a day or two in advance, and can be started early on the morning of the feast.

On the other hand, dessert — a delightfully moist rhubarb cheesecake — must be completed at least a day ahead of serving in order to chill thoroughly.

The menu starts with thin slices of shad roe drizzled with a parsley-flecked orange sauce and served on toast points.

Shad roe is the ultimate spring ingredient, since it is only available 100 days each year.

Follow the roe with a spectacular carrot-and-spinach timbale sitting in a pool of spinach sauce sprinkled with diced yellow pepper.

How can we celebrate spring without a course of baby lamb, asparagus and tiny red new potatoes? The answer, of course, is that we can't.

This saddle of lamb is so tender it's all, tied and roasted on a bed of rosemary and garlic. The bones are used with the pan drippings to make a thin sauce that is full of garlic and rosemary flavor.

The potatoes should be poached slowly, so as not to break their delicate skins. Just before serving they are tossed with butter and parsley.

The steamed asparagus are reheated with lemon juice and sprinkled with flecks of lemon peel. They are tied in tiny bundles with blanched scallion tops and served, fanned, in real paper boats.

A light salad course is always a nice finish to the savory portion of any meal, since it cleanses the palate, getting it ready for dessert. Some of the nicest salads are made simply with a variety of fresh greens and scallions.

For most of the winter we've enjoyed butterhead, chicory, Belgian endive and romaine. Now that spring is here, we can add red-leaf lettuce, peppery mache, fiddleheads (baby ferns) and tiny spinach leaves to round out the choices. Remember when choosing lettuces to look for differing textures, colors and flavors.

The delicate pink of rhubarb is a grande finale swirled through this cream, cheese and sour cream cheesecake. It is more like a pudding than a cake, in that it is served slightly undercooked. The cake must chill at least 24 hours before it is served and it holds quite well when made two days before serving.

Keep the decoration simple. Remove the cheesecake from the oven and sprinkle bits of chocolate wafers over the marbled top.

Then make a circle of strawberry halves and lay a whole strawberry in the very center. Serve it with a flavored coffee, and this will be a meal to stun your guests — one they will remember for many springs to come.

ROAST LOIN OF SPRING LAMB

FOR THE SAUCE:
Meat trimmings and bone from saddle of lamb, plus a few veal bones
1-2 scallion, coarsely chopped
1-2 carrot, coarsely chopped
1-2 celery, coarsely chopped
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
Bouquet garni (3 parsley stems, 1 sprig fresh thyme, 1 bay leaf)

1 CUP RED WINE

FOR THE ROAST LOIN:
1 whole saddle spring lamb, boned and tied (about 12 pounds)
Salt and pepper to taste
6 sprigs fresh rosemary sprigs
6 whole cracked garlic cloves
The day before your meal brown meat trimmings and bones in a 400-degree oven for 1 hour, or until very brown. Soften onion, carrot, celery and leek in vegetable oil in a stock pot. Remove bones from oven to stock pot with vegetables, bouquet garni and 1-2 cup wine. Cover with water. Add drippings from roasting pan. Simmer for 3 hours. Strain, discard meat and bones and chill. Just before using remove fat that accumulates on top.

Salt and pepper lamb all over and let sit 10 minutes. Lay a bed of garlic and rosemary sprigs in a roasting pan just large enough to fit roast. Place roast on top of garlic and rosemary and roast in a 450-degree oven to sear 15 minutes; reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees and cook 25 minutes a pound. (This will give you a medium-rare roast.) Remove from roasting pan and cover with foil, keeping warm for 20 minutes.

Remove fat layer from stock and reduce to 1 cup. Remove all but 2 tablespoons fat from the roasting pan. Leave garlic and rosemary in pan. Add reduced stock and remaining 1-2 cup of wine and bring to boil. Reduce to 1 cup. Strain and keep warm.

Carve roast into 1-2-inch slices. Arrange in oval serving platter, garnished with a fresh sprig of rosemary.

Spoon a little sauce over each piece and pass remaining sauce separately in a boat.

RHUBARB CHEESECAKE

(8 servings)
FOR THE RHUBARB PUREE:
1 pound rhubarb
1 cup sugar

FOR THE CRUST:
Butter for pan
About 10 thin chocolate wafers

FOR THE CHEESECAKE FILLING:
2 pounds cream cheese
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
24 ounces sour cream
1 teaspoon vanilla

FOR GARNISH:
Crumble chocolate wafers
Fresh strawberries for top

Cut rhubarb into 3-4-inch pieces. Barely cover with water. Add sugar and cook until tender and pulpy, about 10 minutes. Strain off excess liquid and return to heat to dry out. Puree in food processor.

Butter the sides only of a 9-inch springform cake pan. Crumble chocolate cookies in bottom of the pan. Reserve 1 tablespoon of crumbs for the top. Chill.

Soften the cream cheese with sugar on low speed with an electric mixer. Scrape down sides and mix in egg, sour cream and vanilla. Spoon mixture over crumbled chocolate and swirl in rhubarb puree.

Bake in a boiling water bath 45 minutes at 350 degrees. Turn off oven, but leave door closed for 45 minutes. Do not peek or cake will fall. Remove from oven and sprinkle chocolate crumbs on top of cake. Arrange strawberry halves in a circle in the center. Cool completely before chilling in the refrigerator for at least one day and up to two days.

Nursing home resident clipping away

By MARTIN SLOANE
United Feature Syndicate

DEAR MARTIN — My mother is a resident of a nursing home and is no longer a grocery shopper, but we have teamed up to continue the pleasures of coupon clipping.

Each month Mom passes along the coupons she has clipped from newspapers and magazines. You'd be surprised at how many she saves.

In return, I put her name on many of the refund request forms I send into the manufacturers. She really enjoys the extra mail and the little surprises she receives — mostly cash!

Mom saves the money, and has the fun of inviting a guest out to lunch, "her treat." — K.W., Sunnyside, Wash.

DEAR K.W. — Your letter really made my heart. I call this teamwork for the day, and I wish you and your mother continued to enjoy the fun of clipping coupons.

Dear Martin — I wanted to drop you this note to tell you about my recent experience with a Wrangler's refund — "Buy 2 regular pair of Wrangler jeans and get 1 pair at 50% off." The offer asked for a "small" proof of purchase from the label on the waistband.

I shopped around and couldn't find any jeans in my son's size that had this proof. I wrote to Wrangler and asked them what I should do. They were prompt in responding and, to my surprise, sent me a gift certificate for a free pair of Wranglers. It pays to write to the manufacturer when there is a question about a product or an offer.

Dear Victor — I appreciated receiving this information because several readers have written to me concerning the same problem. Wrangler's solution is certainly an example of customer relations at its best.

SMART SHOPPER AWARD
The Smart Shopper Award goes to Mrs. Jerry Buckendahl of Alta, Iowa: "Our local supermarket advertised a coupon special on Peter Pan peanut butter, regularly $1.59, on sale for 99 cents with this coupon clipped from the newspaper. The store was also offering double-value coupons.

Combining the supermarket coupon with my 35-cent manufacturer's coupon, I only paid 29 cents for an 8-ounce jar of peanut butter. My kids liked it so much that I went back the next day and bought another jar. A week later I found Peter Pan coupons that will bring me even greater savings. That's what I call super shopping!"

I agree, and Mrs. Buckendahl will receive an autographed copy of my book, "The Guide to Coupons and Refunds."

I am interested in your smart shopping experiences. Please write to me in care of this newspaper.

Soak the dried mushrooms in warm water for 10 minutes. Drain. Discard the stems and cut the mushroom caps into 3 or 4 piece strips. If using fresh mushrooms, just clean and slice.

Cut the slices of beef into small strips. Mix all the other ingredients except the water and add them to the beef in a medium saucepan. Cook the beef until it turns brown and then add the mushrooms. Add the 1/2 cup water here and cook for 5 minutes. Serve warm.

This could be served along with rice or noodles. Top with sesame seeds and pieces of the egg sheet. You could also add chopped green pepper to make the dish more colorful. It's tasty and not too "far out" for occidental palates. Enjoy!

of your next bowl of oriental noodles instead of hard-boiled eggs?

Now I want to share one of the recipes that I enjoyed there. This can be really easily duplicated in your home. This will serve two to three people. If you can, try to find the dried oriental (pogy) mushrooms; if not, just use canned or fresh.

BEEF AND MUSHROOM (SOGOKU POSOT MUCHI) M

3/4 pound beef (sliced at least 1/4" thick)

2 ounces dried mushrooms (1/2 pound fresh)

3 tablespoons soy sauce

3 tablespoons green onion, finely chopped

1 tablespoon garlic, finely chopped

1/2 teaspoon fresh ginger, finely chopped

2 tablespoons sesame oil

1/4 teaspoon black pepper

1/2 cup water

comes to growing the ingredients for salsa, which is used as a dip or as a hot sauce for tacos. Last year, she canned 18 pints.

SALSA

1 pint blended tomatoes

10-12 ounces tomato puree

6-9 jalapeno peppers (depending on how hot you want it)

3 tablespoons tobacco sauce

1/2 tablespoon paprika

1/2 tablespoon cumin

1 tablespoon chili powder

3/4 teaspoon crushed garlic

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/2 tablespoon sugar

Mix together and heat to a medium consistency, not too thin. If it gets too thick, add tomato sauce.

She puts this into jars, seals and hot bathes it for 15 minutes.

Dickhaut has an unusual recipe for doughnuts, made without yeast. "If you want them, you just get in and make them. You can have doughnuts within an hour," she says.

"My grandmother made these doughnuts forever," she says, "You don't have just an ordinary doughnut. It's a weird shape — like a pretzel that's all twisted up."

GRANDMA S DOUGHNUTS

1/2 cups sugar

3 eggs, well beaten

1 tablespoon melted margarine or butter

1 teaspoon soda, dissolved in 1/4 cups buttermilk or sour milk

1/4 teaspoon salt

1 teaspoon vanilla

1 teaspoon baking powder

Flour

Mix first seven ingredients and add enough flour to make dough easy to roll out like sugar cookie dough.

Keep adding flour until it is not sticky so that dough doesn't stick to rolling pin or counter top. Roll out as you would for cookies. Cut into 4- or 5-inch squares. Cut two 3-inch slits in center of each square. Take one corner of the square and pull it around through one of the holes and twist it back in underneath the other slit. Drop into hot oil and brown. When slightly cool, roll in granulated or powdered sugar. Makes approximately four dozen.

Start melons indoors, then move out

REXBURG — As I contemplate the recent snow and cold weather, I begin to wonder if it will ever be warm enough to plant melons.

However, if I don't prepare now, I won't have the necessary seed and materials to be successful in growing them.

Several years ago when I first tried growing melons, I wasn't very successful. Then I learned the three important factors for success: extra early varieties, plastic mulch and starting the seeds inside about a month before outside planting.

I have tested dozens of cantaloupes and watermelons and have found 10 cantaloupe varieties and 15 watermelon varieties which will mature a significant amount of fruit in a 100-day growing season.

Some parts of the Magic Valley have a growing season at least 20 days longer than this. You will seldom find any of these varieties on an ordinary seed rack. Normally, you must purchase seed from one of the mail order seed companies or a nursery. Started plants sometimes are available from local greenhouses or nurseries.

Allen Wilson
Intermountain gardening

My three favorite cantaloupes are Early Northern Queen, Earlisweet and Scoop. Earlisweet is the most readily available. My three favorite watermelons are Yellow Doll, Sweet Baby and Sugar Belle.

There is not sufficient space to list all the varieties or sources. However, they are all included in my leaflet on suggested vegetable varieties. If you would like a copy, send $1 and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to Allen Wilson, Box 100, Rexburg, Idaho 83440. Ask for vegetable varieties.

I have obtained a limited amount of Early Northern Queen cantaloupe seed for my readers. It is the largest and earliest variety. If you would like a 10-seed sample, send $2 and a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the above address.

I will include instructions on how to start the seed inside and how to apply the plastic mulch. Be sure to specify melon seed. If you want both the seed and the leaflet, send two envelopes.

Seed can be easily started inside in a sunny window about three to four weeks before outside planting. In the Magic Valley, seed should be started about the end of April or early May. Peat pots or pellets are best for starting melon seed, since they produce the minimum transplant shock.

Black plastic will double yields and clear plastic will triple yields. Both speed earliness by a week or more. They warm the soil and greatly increase growth rate. In warmer parts of Magic Valley, even ordinary melons can be grown with plastic mulch.

Basement makes better choice for a workshop

By ANDY LANG
The Associated Press

Q. — I have decided to build a workshop. I would like your opinion on the best place for it to be. Right now, I am torn between the attic, which is unfinished, or the basement, which also is unfinished. Whichever one I do not use will be kept for storage of various kinds.

A. — Nobody can give you a definite opinion without having some idea of what kind of activities will be performed there. Generally, however, a basement with a concrete floor is the better choice. It usually has some protection of heat from the furnace and, in a hot weather area, is cooler in the summer. If the noise from power tools can be heard upstairs, it is fairly easy to keep the noise downstairs. It will support heavy tables and tools.

There is usually plenty of storage space. The one thing that might cause trouble is dampness. Be sure you have a good system of gutters and downspouts so that water does not settle alongside the foundation and eventually find its way into the basement. If there is a danger of condensation or if you have had it at some time in the past, take all the necessary steps to control it, one of them being the covering of cold water pipes which attract moisture. If you expect to be working with large sheets of plywood, gypsum board or hardboard, be sure there is a way the sheets can be maneuvered into the basement — and, not so incidentally, out of it. You wouldn't be the first person who built something in a basement workshop and then found he couldn't get it out without taking it apart.

Q. — I bought a second-hand table saw and am just getting used to it. How far above the table should the blade be?

A. — It isn't how far above the table the blade should be; it's how far above the stock it should be while cutting. The answer is — the top of the blade should be one-fourth of an inch above the stock. Please try to get an instruction booklet by the manufacturer of the table saw or, at the very least, a book about table saws in general. It should be done at once, not after some trouble occurs.

Q. — We have an occasional drainage problem in our plumbing system. One of these days I will get around to finding out exactly where it is. I feel confident I will be able to handle the problem, but first I want to be sure of its location. I understand there is a simple way to determine whether the stoppage is in the main drain or in a specific place. Can you tell me?

A. — If you turn on the water at each fixture, carefully inspect each one to see which is draining and which is not. If there is a stoppage at only a single fixture, then the trouble is there and not in the main drain. If there is a stoppage at two or more fixtures, the stoppage is in the main drain.

Tips that may be of help to you when you're doing it yourself:

- When attempting to get rid of rust stains from a porcelain surface, why not try a rust remover? People seldom think of it in connection with a sink or tub. An excellent type is a jelly that also removes lime stains from porcelain.
- If you ever decide to fix a sagging floor with adjustable steel jack posts, remember they must be turned up very slowly — no more than half an inch every three or four days.

- When you have to repair the crumbling mortar between bricks in a wall or house exterior, be sure you get a special mortar mix which contains hydrated lime.
- If you are putting in a new doorbell or chime at the front or rear door, it is not necessary to turn off the electricity, but if you do any work whatever on the transformer, shut off the power or call in an electrician.
- Avoid getting on a ladder to check for openings in the side of a house, by standing on the ground and using a moderate or large-sized flashlight.

Noise, light deter thieves

By HARPER'S BAZAAR

Don't put out the welcome mat for would-be burglars and chances are they will visit someone else.

The more difficult and time-consuming a house is to break into, according to an article in the April issue of Harper's Bazaar, the less tempting a target it becomes.

"The greatest deterrents to thieves are noise and light," said Ray Johnson, a reformed thief turned security expert. "Many of these guys would just as soon use a sledgehammer on your door, but they don't because of the noise. They want to slip in and out as quickly and as quietly as possible."

Doors and windows are the homeowner's first line of defense.

The most secure doors are solid wood or hollow-core metal. It is best to have hinges on the inside, but if local laws demand outside hinges, flatten the head of the hinge pin so it can't be easily pulled out and the door removed.

Indians claim Idaho planted diseased smolt

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The Columbia River Inter-Tribal Fish Commission, feeling the impact of adverse publicity over Idaho charges that it is overfishing for steelhead, has countered with accusations of its own, claiming Idaho officials covered up the 1933 release of diseased smolts into the river basin.

In a detailed report, Commission Director S. Timothy Wapato said the state Fish and Game Department released 500,000 steelhead smolts into the basin's Pahlsmiro River from its Niagara Springs Hatchery two years ago knowing that they had been infected with IHN virus, one of the most deadly diseases in the river system.

But Ken Norrie, assistant director of the state Fish and Game Department, discounted Wapato's allegations.

"We've heard that song and dance from them before," Norrie said. "We have some data that shows their claims aren't true."

While conceding there were some diseased fish in the hatchery, Norrie said most of them died before release and were not figured into the department's calculations of how many steelhead have returned to Idaho in subsequent years.

"The bottom line is we didn't put those nets in the water," Norrie said of the state's continuing charge that gill-netting and other commercial fishing by Indians on the Columbia is responsible for severely depleted steelhead runs in Idaho. The Inter-Tribal Fish Commission includes the Nez Perce, Umatilla, Warm Springs and Yakima tribes.

But Wapato said the state has not responded to commission concerns about the disease outbreak and instead continued its campaign of accusations of Indian overfishing.

Arguing that the Idaho campaign has prompted rising support for efforts to curtail In-

Indian treaty rights to commercial fishing on the Columbia, Wapato claimed Idaho officials are justifying their efforts on grounds that they have no voice in fisheries management on the Columbia.

The state, he said, "is a part of virtually every inter-governmental management group on the Columbia River. The only thing that limits its participation is the (Idaho Department of Fish and Game) itself."

But Norrie pointed out that the state has no membership in the Columbia River Compact, which is responsible for the commercial fishery in the basin.

Burley and Declo wear county crowns

Raft River fades

By BRAD BRELAND
Times-News writer

BURLEY — The Burley boys team and the Declo girls team took honors in the Cassia County track meet Tuesday.

The Bobcats easily outdistanced Declo in the boys meet while a late rally for Declo helped the team to a 16-point victory over Raft River.

The Bobcats didn't finish first in many events but utilized many second and third-place finishes to win the meet.

"We've got a lot of depth especially in the quarter mile and the sprints," said Scott Crane about the boys victory. "For the first time on the track, I thought the kids did real well."

Scott Nelson paced the Bobcats with a first place finish in the 200-meter dash and a third place finish in the 100-meter dash. The Bobcats pulled away from the pack after the 200-meter dash by finishing 1-2-3.

Brad Matthews had first place finishes in the 100-meter dash as well as the long jump. The Hornets also won three of the four relay events including a win at the wire in the 400-meter relay.

In the girls meet, Declo captured all four places in the 100-meter race to overtake the Trojans.

"I'm really pleased," said Declo girls' Coach Jay Darrington. "For the first time out, it's really encouraging."

Darrington's team is a young team this season with 21 of the 28 team members being sophomores and freshmen.

Jessie Miller from Declo finished in first place in both the 1600 and the 3200 meter race.

Sophomore Sydney Beck won both hurdle events for Burley in the meet.

Terry Asher of Declo strains mightily but to no avail in shot put competition

Twin Falls romps to double-header win over Broncos

TWIN FALLS — Allan Valdez outplayed Idaho satellites by romping to a double-header win over the Broncos Tuesday afternoon.

Valdez had a pair of singles, a double and a two-run homer in the opener as the Bruins crushed into an 11-6 decision. In the nightcap, Twin Falls feasted off five walks, one hit and three errors to score five first-inning runs and trigger an 11-5 decision.

The Bruins will travel to Idaho Falls Saturday and Coach Bill Ingram announced a makeup double-header with Pocatello will be played at 11 a.m. April 27.

Despite the double win, Ingram wasn't happy with the play of his charges.

"We aren't playing with much intensity," he understated. "This is only the second live pitching Blackout has seen this year. They've only been able to practice outside once because of lingering snow cover."

"I thought we swung the bat fairly well at times but at other times we didn't. The games were just like practices have gone lately. No intensity and no consistency."

Ingram said he was pleased with the pitching of junior Tom Prater in the opener.

"He just worked four innings but he's had a little arm trouble and we didn't want to push him," the coach said.

In the second game, Kirk Slater gave up five hits — two of them four-four hitting in the opener and a plethora of walks and errors in the nightcap carried Twin Falls' Bruins past Blackout in a Gem State double-header Tuesday afternoon.

The Bruins picked up 10 hits in the opener off Corey Schroeder and reliever Tom Bean. Matt Harr's double highlighted a three-run first inning and Valdez two-run homer jumped the lead to 6-2 in the second. Nick Qualls cracked a solo homer in the fifth and Casey Bartholomew's two-run double punctuated a four-run sixth inning that let the Bruins pull out of reach.

In the nightcap, loser Brad Watson walked the first three men he faced and wound up walking five and being betrayed by three errors in the inning. Qualls delivered Twin Falls' only hit as the Bruins turned ahead 5-0.

Twin Falls gave two of those back in the second when a walk, error, passed ball, wild pitch and single by Brad Moss picked up the runs. A pair of errors gave the Broncos another pair in the third but after that Slater escaped further damage until back-to-back misplayed fly balls in the sixth gave Blackout its final tally.

(First Game)
Blackout 02:02 — 6 8 8
Twin Falls 33:24 — 11 10 5
Schroeder, Bean (5) and Sharp, Prater, Harr (3) and Bartholomew, Watt, R. Schroeder, Harr, Twin Falls, Valdez, Qualls

(Second Game)
Blackout 02:00 — 5 5 5
Twin Falls 5:10 — 11 6 6
H. Bean (5) and Moss, Slater and Qualls, W. Slater, L. Watson

New York's first dome won't come from taxes

NEW YORK (AP) — The administrations of Gov. Mario Cuomo and Mayor Edward Koch have endorsed the building of a domed stadium next to Shea Stadium in Queens by private developers, according to a report in the New York Times.

The Times said Vincent Tesse, chairman of the state Urban Development Corp., and Herbert Sturz, chairman of the City Planning Commission, will announce the decision at a news conference Wednesday and invite proposals for building and operating the stadium.

In its Wednesday edition, the Times quoted state and city officials as saying the request for proposals will go out to real estate developers and owners of football teams across the country, to be returned by June 5.

The officials said it was hoped a proposal could be selected by the end of July, and a domed stadium could be built by the fall 1988 season.

One proposal has been made by real estate developer Donald Trump, who also owns the New Jersey Generals of the United States Football League.

Trump wants to build a 60,000-seat stadium and sell most of the seats for condominium ownership for between $4,000 and $5,000 a seat. This revenue, he says, would permit him to build the stadium without government funds.

But both Cuomo and Koch have said they would favor Trump's plan only if a substantial number of seats were available to the public on an event-by-event basis.

Another plan, involving a stadium and apartment complex on the site, has been offered by a group of developers headed by Ira Riklis and Murray Zborowski.

The stadium site is now occupied by about 70 junkyards and light industry providing about 1,200 jobs, officials said.

Minnesota trades for draft rights of Kosar

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings and Cleveland Browns announced trades on Tuesday night aimed at enabling each to draft University of Miami quarterback Bernie Kosar, and Kosar was said to be contemplating a strategy that would put him with the Browns.

The Vikings first announced they had reached an agreement with Houston for the Oilers' first round pick, No. 2 overall, in the National Football League draft on April 30.

Then the Browns said they had made a deal with the Buffalo Bills for their selection, the first, in the supplemental draft, if one is necessary.

Kosar, who has two years of college eligibility remaining, has not informed the league that he plans to be eligible for the regular draft and has until April 15 to do so, said league spokesman Joe Brown. If he does not, a supplemental draft would be held with the team selecting in the same order as the regular draft.

A source close to Kosar said the quarterback probably would not make himself eligible until after April 30, and thus would be available in a supplemental draft.

Kosar, who grew in a near-Cleveland, has expressed a preference for playing with the Browns.

Vikings General Manager Mike Lynn said the trade with Houston does not mean the Vikings will draft Kosar, but it gives them the opportunity to do that if they so choose.

Of the possibility of Cleveland getting Kosar in a supplemental draft, Lynn said, "The whole thing is bizarre.... It is something that might have to be addressed by attorneys."

He said as far as the Vikings were concerned, Kosar "has declared himself eligible for the 1985 draft."

Two plead guilty as Tulane case opens

New Orleans (AP) — Two Tulane students, one a member of the basketball team, pleaded guilty Tuesday in connection with the Green-Wave basketball point-shaving scandal, District Judge Alvin Oser said.

David Rothenberg, 22, a student from Wilton, Conn., and Bobby Thompson, 21, a little-used guard, entered the pleas in a surprise court appearance and face sentencing on July 9 after an investigation by the state's Department of Corrections, Oser said.

Thompson pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to commit sports bribery, Rothenberg to two counts of conspiracy and one count of possession of cocaine. Oser said the conspiracy count carries a maximum sentence of 2½ years in prison and a fine of $2,500. The possession count carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a fine of $5,000.

Rothenberg's lawyer, Ralph Caprelli, said his client would "testify to the truth" if called as a witness against others in the case.

Rothenberg and Thompson were the eighth men charged in an alleged point shaving scheme that led to the discovery of NCAA recruiting violations and the resignation of basketball coach Ned Fowler and two of his assistants.

In a related development on Tuesday, Oser ordered the university to preserve game films and statistical records of the past four basketball seasons, since they may be used in the defense of two other players.

Oser set a hearing for Monday to decide whether Tulane will be ordered to produce those records for lawyers representing David Dominique and John "Hot Rod" Williams.

"We are hearing that Tulane has ended its basketball program and we don't want defense evidence to wind up in a warehouse somewhere where it can't be found," said Edward Castaing Jr., who represents Dominique.

He said the records may help to show that Williams and Dominique did nothing wrong, as well as help cast doubt on the testimony of two other players who have been given grants of immunity — forwards Clyde Eads and Jon Johnson.

University President Eamon Kelly last week recommended ending the men's basketball program in the wake of allegations of NCAA violations, discovered as District Attorney Harry Connick investigated the point shaving allegations.

Kelly said that Fowler admitted that he made cash payments to several players.

The school's board of directors and University Senate are expected to comply with Kelly's recommendation at a meeting next week.

Williams and Dominique are each accused of two counts of taking bribes and three counts of conspiring to fix games.

Thompson, a seldom-used senior point guard, was accused of two counts of conspiracy, although he is identified eight times in court papers as having taken a bribe from others among the eight indicted in connection with the scandal.

Castaing said Tuesday that it may be important to compare the performances of Williams and Dominique to the performances of Eads and Johnson in the games mentioned in the indictments — home games against Southern Mississippi and Memphis State and a road game at Virginia Tech all in February.

"There is a very large question of what Clyde Eads and Jon Johnson did in those games," he said.

Williams is represented by Joel Loeffelholz and Allen Tusa of New Orleans and Mike Green of Chicago.

On Monday, Green characterized the case against his client as a fabrication based on the testimony of self-confessed "drug addicts."

Two weeks ago, when Connick announced he was arresting the players, he said cocaine was the motivating factor, rather than money.

Green said Monday that the state's case is based on testimony from three people who admitted acquiring drugs from a fourth person also involved.

"I have found in several of the cases I've tried that it's hard to determine what drug addicts mean from time to time," he said.

"The only thing I've read about (Williams) is what drug addicts say about him," he said.

He also said he may seek a fog order, if supposedly secret grand jury testimony keeps appearing in news reports.

"I can't see why a prosecutor would do that, unless he doesn't have confidence in his case," he said.

K-Steel tourney field set

TWIN FALLS — The 1985 K and T Steel junior college basketball tournament will feature two national-tournament teams, including defending champion Dixie College.

Coach Fred Trenkle announced Tuesday the field for the 1985 event, slated for early December, is complete.

In the first round, Dixie will go against Casper, Wyo., junior college with 251 taking on Western Wyoming. The will be losers and winners the second night.

"We feel this is a very strong field," said Trenkle. "Dixie lost some men from its championship team but (Coach Neil) Roberts feels he already has signed a very good nucleus for next year. Casper went to nationals this spring and will be tough, especially since this is Coach Swede Erickson's last year and they will be dedicating the season to him. Western Wyoming is going to be strong this year and they have everyone back and believe they have a solid line on a couple of center-type players."

Concerning his own recruiting, Trenkle said "right now we're feeling very good. If we'd happen to get them all, it would be the strongest team I've put together here. There are some very excellent players who are showing interest in us now — but this isn't September, either," he added.

Muny golfers meet tonight

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Men's Golf Association will kickoff their season with a two-man best ball and business meeting tonight.

Players may chose their own partners with no more than a six-stroke difference in handicap being allowed. Signup should be completed prior to 5 p.m. The event will begin with a shotgun start at 5. The business meeting will following the nine-hole tournament.

Church loop sets work day

TWIN FALLS — Magic Valley Church League softball teams have scheduled a work day at Fruit Field Saturday.

Paul DeWitt, league president, said members of all teams in the league are asked to help. The primary job for the day will be installation of new seats on the existing bleachers, starting at 9 a.m. Those helping should bring drills or other hand tools, he said.

DeWitt also said Saturday is the deadline for $100 deposits to assure teams of places in the league for the coming season. Those deposits may be made with league officers at the work session, he said.

Blue Lakes takes early lead

TWIN FALLS — The Blue Lakes women used the home course knowledge to fashion the early lead when the Magic Valley Women's Intercity Girls Series got underway Tuesday.

The team points earned included Blue Lakes 12, Buhl 10 1/2, Twin Falls 10, Burley 9 1/2, Canyon Springs 8 1/2, Jerome 8, Gooding 7 1/2, and Rupert 6.

Gross winners were Betty Davis and Sue Langdon, 87; Doris Ellingham and Terri Simpson, both Burley, 89; Fern Butler, Jerome, 90; and Justine Messersmith, Jerome, 91.

Net winners include Mildred Lynch, Burley 68; Mary Obenchain, Blue Lakes, 70; Bernice Howard, Canyon Springs; Johnny DeBlanc, Rupert; Kay Hughes, Gooding; Rose Black, Buhl, and Georgia Cantrell, Buhl, all 72.

The next session will be held April 25 at Buhl.

Robertson lost to injury

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — San Antonio Spurs rookie Alvin Robertson will be out for the rest of the season with a broken foot, officials of the National Basketball Association team said.

The 6-foot-4 guard broke his foot in the Spurs' Sunday game against Houston.

Robertson, the Spurs' first-round draft pick last year, said he "felt a snap" in his foot late in the fourth quarter against Houston Sunday night after battling Rockets' guard Robert Reid for a loose ball.

He limped off the court, but had no idea the bone was broken.

"I was looking forward to playing in the playoffs. This is a little depressing," Robertson said Monday.

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Former Utah State University basketball player Oscar Williams Jr. was convicted Tuesday of first-degree murder in the 1982 shooting death of his wife.

A District Court jury deliberated about five hours before returning the verdict against Williams, who set school assist-records when he played guard for the team from 1974 to 1978.

City bowlers meet Saturday

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Women's Bowling Association will conduct its spring meeting at 2 p.m. Saturday at the Bowladrome.

Trophies and tournament checks will be presented, reports Eileen Day, association spokesman.

In addition, the group will elect new officers for next season and also pick delegates for the state, national and northwest meetings later this year.

All association members are urged to attend.

Bruin jayvees win pair

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls Jayvees opened their season with a double-header sweep of Blackfoot Tuesday.

Kevin Ames homered and Shane Clark tripled to pace a 12-9 decision in the opener while Curtis Hansen clubbed two homers and Eric Ochsner and Derek Hansen added triples in a 10-3 nightcap.

NHL Stanley cup play opens tonight

By The Associated Press

The fortunes of the Montreal Canadiens and Boston Bruins have changed so much in the last 12 months that when they meet in the opening round of the National Hockey League playoffs, they will have reversed positions.

The Canadiens were the weak fourth in the Adams Division last year, while the Bruins won the sector. But Montreal shocked Boston in the best-of-five first round of the 1984 playoffs with a sweep.

Ever since, the Canadiens have been moving up the NHL ladder and, this season, in what was expected to be a rebuilding year in Montreal, they finished first in the division. At the same time, the Bruins have been sizzling and their 36-34-10 mark and 82 points were considered poor numbers in Boston.

The teams will square off Wednesday night in Montreal, when all eight divisional semifinals begin. The other series have Buffalo at Quebec in the Adams Division; the New York Rangers at Philadelphia and New York Islanders at Washington in the Patrick; Detroit at Chicago and Minnesota at St. Louis in the Norris; Los Angeles at Edmonton and Calgary at Winnipeg in the Smythe.

Canadiens defenseman Larry Robinson is looking forward to a tough series with the Bruins, who were 3-1-1 against Montreal during the season.

"They have a lot of rested hockey players this year," said Robinson. "In the past they have been in the race until the end but this year they were out of it earlier and able to rest."

Coach Jacques Lemaire, who has turned the team around since moving behind the bench near the end of last season, sees little advantage in having the home-ice edge against the Bruins.

"It means a bit but not as much as used to, to be at home," said Lemaire. "Ten years ago, it meant a lot more."

"Each team has proven it can play in the other's building. If your team is ready, your chances will be good."

The Bruins need a good playoff to erase the memory of a mediocre season in which Gerry Cheevers was replaced as coach by General Manager Harry Sinden.

"We're not trying to salvage the season in the playoffs. We're trying to win the playoffs," said Sinden. "I've seen too many teams that have wound up behind other teams and won (the playoffs) over the years in this league."

"We had a season that certainly we're not used to around here. You become accustomed to 600 or 700 hockey around here for 16 or 17 years, and it's a disaster when you're just over 500."

Added Bruins captain Terry O'Reilly: "When we are on top of our game we can beat them. Our best game can beat their best game."

The other Adams series also is a rematch of last spring's opening round, when Quebec swept Buffalo. The Nordiques won all four home games against the Sabres this season, while Buffalo was 3-0-1 at home with Quebec.

Richardson replaces Sutton at Arkansas

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Nolan Richardson, the most successful coach in Tulsa basketball history, was named Tuesday to continue the University of Arkansas tradition started by Eddie Sutton.

Richardson will be the first black head coach in any men's sports in the history of the Southwest Conference.

The announcement by UA Athletic Director Frank Broyles came a week after Sutton resigned to take the coaching job at the University of Kentucky. The other finalist for the UA job was Rolfe Massimino, who guided Villanova to the national championship eight days ago.

Sutton, who coached at Arkansas 11 years and took the Razorbacks to nine straight NCAA tournaments, resigned to succeed Joe B. Hall as head coach at Kentucky.

Richardson visited the Fayetteville campus Thursday and his name remained prominent as other coaches were mentioned and dismissed. As late as Monday, the job is believed to have been between Richardson and Massimino although Massimino's name was not revealed until Tuesday.

Richardson is 43. In five years, he compiled a 118-37 record. His Tulsa teams have been in the NCAA tournament three times, the NIT twice.

Hagler uncomfortable with Las Vegas judges

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Marvelous Marvin Hagler doesn't hit the tables or pull slot machine handles when he comes to this gaming mecca. Hagler feels the judges who will score his fight Monday against Thomas Hearns are enough of a gamble.

"I'm in Las Vegas so I'm very nervous about the outcome," the undisputed middleweight champion said Tuesday. "I don't trust the judges here after what they did to me against (Roberto) Duran."

Hagler was forced to win the last two rounds to pull off a narrow decision win over Duran 17 months ago here in a fight most ringside observers thought he had won easily.

But Hagler took the judges out of his last Las Vegas fight when he stopped Juan Roldan in the 10th round of their March 1984 fight and says he plans to do the same thing against Hearns.

"This fight can end easily. It doesn't have to go 12 rounds," Hagler said. "I think I beat the jinx here by knocking out Roldan, and I can do the same thing against Hearns."

Hagler, who flew into Las Vegas Monday night after training several weeks in Palm Springs, appeared relaxed as he talked about the fight during an impromptu interview session in his Caesars Palace hotel suite.

Wearing a red cap with the word "War" on it, the 166-pound champion talked of his fight preparations and efforts to avoid the "circus atmosphere" surrounding the upcoming bout.

Denver cries foul for snub in expansion

DENVER (AP) — Colorado's governor and Denver's mayor expressed outrage Tuesday at Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's announcement that no city, including Denver, is ready now for a major league baseball team.

Ueberroth, meanwhile, promised on Tuesday that Denver would be considered "with other interested cities" when expansion sites are considered.

"Denver has obvious good qualities," he said in a statement issued in New York.

On Monday Ueberroth made the comments that triggered the Denver reaction. He said there is no city that currently meets his personal requirements to be considered for an expansion team.

Ueberroth's statement on Monday was "a major insult to the people of Denver," Mayor Federico Pena said. He said the 70,000 people who attended two exhibition games in Denver over the weekend exemplified the city's support.

Colorado Gov. Dick Lamm, who was taken to task by Ueberroth for his opposition as a state legislator to the 1976 Olympic Games coming to Colorado, had even sharper words for the baseball official. Ueberroth had said Colorado has a governor that "threw the Olympics out. He just threw them out."

There is no connection between the realities of the Olympics for Colorado in the early '70s and the readiness of Denver and our region for major league baseball more than a decade later," he said Tuesday.

Ueberroth, who was in Cincinnati on Monday for the opening of the 1985 baseball season, said he has three criteria for expansion.

"No. 1, that ownership has roots in the community. No. 2, that the community has great fans, and No. 3, that the team has the support of the city, county and state — in other words, the politicians," Ueberroth said.

Lauren Castiel, an aide to Pena, said officials knew of the criteria and were sure they could meet two. She said officials were also optimistic of getting approval for the ownership arrangement.

In Denver, oil billionaire Marvis Davis, who doesn't comment on his attempts to bring a team to Denver, is understood by baseball people to want to own a team himself.

The Dikou brothers — John, George, and Deno — have been actively campaigning for a team and would prefer not to have partners, observers have said.

Pena said the people, politicians and officials in Colorado have shown strong support for a major league team. His office, he said, would be taking steps to make sure Ueberroth is more adequately informed of that support.
